Admit Street Car and Gas Holdings Are Under-Assessed

STEPHEN GRANT FOLLOWS COURT RULING IN 1899

Companies Assessed "Away Below" Those of Ottawa and Toronto.

NEED EXPERT VALUATION

Commissioner Points Out, However, Length of Franchise May Have Bearing.

Admitting that the London Street Railway and City Gas Company holdings are under-assessed, as charged by Ald. L. Douglass at Monday's meeting of the city council, Assessment Commissioner Stephen Grant informed The Advertiser Tuesday morning that this is due to the fact that the department "is following rules laid down previously." In 1899, when the city council decided to assess the street railway company, it was pointed out that in comparison to Ottawa and Toronto assessments the street railway company assessment here is "away below" that of the above cities.

The assessment commissioner admits that this is the case, and that there has been no increased assessment on the street car wires, tracks and similar equipment since 1899, when the assessment was settled by the courts at Toronto. He further asserts that before the above assessment can be increased a new valuation on the company's tracks must be made by experts.

Assessed in 1899. In 1899 I assessed the London Street Railway Company, and they took it to the judges," said Mr. Grant. "The courts set the assessment at $5,000 per mile. There was no legislation at that time authorizing assessment of a street railway company, and I believe I was the first man in Ontario to assess a street railway or gas company on tracks or mains."

"Perhaps the Toronto franchise has longer to run than that of the London street railway," said the assessment commissioner, in reference to the great difference in assessment. "We are supposed to take into consideration the value to another company purchasing and taking over the road with the same rights and powers. The assessment on the London Street Railway Company and City Gas Company land and buildings is made in the same manner as anywhere else in the city. When first assessed the City Gas Company appealed and taking the case to the courts at Toronto lost their appeal. This company is assessed at $3,300 per mile for gas mains."

Need Expert Valuation. "To increase the valuation per mile of the London street railway tracks would necessitate the services of an expert," continued Mr. Grant. "The first step would be to take it to the solicitor, I think."

"The land and buildings of the street railway is assessed like any house in London, but the tracks are under-assessed. That is, they are under-assessed under section 44 of the act, which says that they should be assessed at their actual cash value if they were to be purchased, taken to Page 2, Column 1.

Doubt Rosie Can Become Lawyer

NEW YORK, June 19.—Although but 13 years old, Rosie Reeve of London, Ont., has arrived in New York to become a student in law at Columbia University.

In sandals, half-hose, knee-length skirt and middie blouse, she will take her place alongside much older students in the university from which she hopes to emerge within a few years as a full-fledged lawyer.

Two years ago, according to her own statement, she was a public school pupil, learning the rudiments of reading, writing and arithmetic. Partly because of ill-health and partly because he didn't believe in schools, her father, Thomas Reeve, who claims to have invented a new system of education, took her away from school when she was in the fourth grade.

While her father was teaching his new system of typewriting and stenography, Rosie attended his school. She is reported to have learned enough in that time to hold a stenographer's position. For two months, though, she had been in the world but eight years, she is said to have held a stenographer's job and made good.

In two years, her father claims, she took as many steps toward obtaining a university education as the average child takes in eight.

Her education has been founded on a study of the dictionary, which Reeve arranged for his pupils, according to word groups instead of alphabetically.

At Western University, London, Ont., last year, Rosie studied English literature, Spanish, French and chemistry.

In art and literature, she leans toward the realistic, and declares Dickens is her favorite author. She professes to like horseback riding, swimming and music, and hopes to become a finished singer.

"I have chosen law as my profession, because I believe it will enable me to do the biggest service, and I believe it takes more brains than any other profession," she stated.

"And I intend to marry, for I don't care to be an old maid."

Rosie has two sisters, "Birdie" and Bertha, both older than herself. The father is said to be grooming "Birdie" for the champion typist of the world. She acted as a public stenographer while in London at the Griggs House.

ROSIE REEVE.

Reeve claims to be somewhat of an inventor. He stated he offered to build a cylinder-shaped city hall for London, free of charge, the rent of the offices in the building to pay the expenses. Londoners, however, did not accept his offer of a skyscraper, he admitted.

Information is said to have reached Columbia University authorities from London, that Rosie has not the educational foundation necessary to grasp the difficult phases of the study of law.

Following the ultimatum issued to the city council by Front street ratepayers that unless dumping of clinkers from the civic incinerator along the north bank of the River Thames, opposite their property, was halted they would issue an injunction against the city, City Engineer Brazier has ordered that no more such refuse be dumped there.

This order was issued, despite the fact that City Solicitor T. G. Meredith has ruled that the city is not liable for damages for permitting such dumping.

The Front street residents claim that the clinkers used to build up the north bank of the river have filled in the bed of the stream, and diverted its course, thereby endangering their homes. They declare that such action is a menace to life and property in their community.

A Navigable Stream. In the ultimatum issued to the council the ratepayers pointed out that the River Thames is a navigable stream, and as such the city or any person is prohibited from dumping refuse of any kind in or about it in such a manner as to divert its course. They threatened to appeal to the courts to stop the alleged nuisance, but City Engineer Brazier's orders have made an injunction unnecessary.

Asked why the dumping was stopped in the face of the solicitor's opinion that the city is not violating the law, Ald. John Ashton said Tuesday: "It was stopped on the orders of the city engineer. It was not right to aggravate these ratepayers."

WOMAN IN RUN FOR U. S. SENATE. St. Paul, Minn., June 20.—With the outcome of the major Republican contests apparently determined, interest in the Minnesota primary turned today to the race Mrs. Anna Dickie Olsen made for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Reports available today showed her in a nip and tuck contest with Thomas J. Meighan, one of her two opponents, and it became evident that the outcome would be in doubt until many more precincts had reported.

AYERS AWAIT FATE AT HANDS OF SARNIA JURY

Detroit Witnesses Insist Prisoner Was in Motor City Day of Robbery.

TRY "CASEY" YOHN NEXT

London Girl Flatly Contradicts Evidence Given by Mrs. Koehler.

Special to London Advertiser.

Sarnia, June 20.—While "twelve good men and true" are deliberating whether William Ayers of London was actually one of the four bandits who held up and robbed the Wyandott branch of the Bank of Toronto of $11,000 cash October 20 last, F. W. Willson, crown attorney for Lambton, asserts he is willing to proceed with the case against George Anderson, another of the four men alleged to have been implicated in the robbery.

The prosecution announces also that John "Casey" Yohn will be the next suspect to face the jury, after which it is expected that all will be in readiness to proceed with the retrial of Edward A. McMullen, whom the police believe to have participated in, and perhaps directed, the Wyandott robbery.

The latter prisoner was the first to be tried, the jury disagreeing Friday last.

It now seems doubtful that all the cases can be disposed of this week.

Finances Takes Stand. As the first witness called this morning for the defence of William Ayers, Miss Beatrice Seager, fiancée of "Casey" Yohn, again related her version of the meeting with Mrs. Olive Myrtle Koehler at the corner of Clarence street and Queen's avenue, London, the evening of January 3 last, when the latter claims she was ordered into an automobile at the point of a pistol and compelled to go to Port Stanley.

Miss Seager could not give the exact date of the meeting, but was positive that it was in January. Cross-examined by Crown Attorney Willson, she stated that while the party did not go to Port Stanley that night, as claimed by Mrs. Koehler, they did go to the lakeside upon another occasion, Mrs. Koehler accompanying them upon her own initiative.

Then followed a string of witnesses from Detroit, Michigan, who were positive that both William Ayers and John Yohn were in that city continuously from October 18 to October 23.

Knew Ayers Three Years. William Everhart of Detroit, stated that he had known Ayers for three years, and had met him in Detroit on October 18. He was absolutely sure as to the date, as he himself had arrived that day from Los Angeles. Every evening from that day on until October 23 he met and conversed with the two Londoners, often associating with them in the afternoons.

Ole Benton, also of Detroit, and a friend of the preceding witness, testified similarly, also fixing the dates. Mrs. Olive Connolly, who conducts Turn to Page 2, Column 3.

How To Become Past Member of Fuming Fat Fraternity

According to one of the old-time popular songs, "Nobody Loves a Fat Man." During the hot weather season in London it is an undisputed fact that nobody loves to be fat. However, try as they may, there are many unfortunates who cannot reduce their surplus adiposoids, and it is to these individuals that the message of Dr. Lulu Hunt Peters comes as a gift from the gods.

Dr. Peters, who is the author of "Diet and Health, With Key to the Calories," has evolved a system of reducing weight which possesses as its chief recommendation the fact that by its employment she reduced from several pounds overweight to normal.

Then she thought of others in Western Ontario, who show the plump in which she found herself, and decided to pass the secret on to them.

Provided that her instructions are rigidly followed with special attention paid to Dr. Peters' admonition, "Don't get scared," those Advertiser readers who regard their corpulent figures as a burden can find a method to rid themselves of it.

First-hand information on Dr. Peters' safe and sane methods is included in the following articles.

BY DR. LULU HUNT PETERS. Special to London Advertiser.

DO you want to reduce?

Then remember—

Overeating is the cause of overweight 999 times out of 1,000.

We are too fond of food—particularly sweets. We have not known food values. As a result—

Three-quarters of the adult population of Canada are too fat!

Some of them have taken to dieting—without results.

I know I did when I was a little girl. I was fat and hated it. So I decided to cut down on my eating. I would go without supper, taking instead—

An ice cream soda—more fattening than the meal!

Yet that is the way many persons diet. No wonder they can't reduce.

OFFER TO CUT FREIGHT RATES

Railways Ask Committee To Suspend Crow's Nest Pass Agreement.

Majority Expected To Favor Companies' Amended Offer.

Ottawa, June 20.—(Canadian Press).—Definite offers of freight rate reductions, contingent on suspension of the Crow's Nest Pass agreement were made by the C. P. R., the Canadian National and the Grand Trunk this morning to the special house committee on railway transportation costs. The suggested reductions apply to certain basic commodities and are identical in the case of each railway. They are: "Grain—in the Canadian Northwest to the lake head and to Vancouver, for export proportionately, reduction of 20 per cent.

"Forest products—in Western Canada, reduction of 16.66 per cent; in Eastern Canada, reduction of 20 per cent. Coal, except coal from the lake head in Western Canada and exclusive of anthracite coal, reduction of 10c, 15c and 20c a ton, according to length of haul.

"Building material—Brick, lime, cement and plaster, reduction of 16.66 per cent west of the Great Lakes; reduction of 20 per cent east of the Great Lakes.

"Fertilizers, other than chemical fertilizers, reduction of 18.66 per cent west of the Great Lakes; reduction of 20 per cent east.

"Pig iron, billets, blooms, wire rods, and scrap iron, reduction of 16.66 per cent west of Great Lakes; reduction of 20 per cent east.

"Ores—Reduction of 16.66 per cent west of Great Lakes; reduction of 20 per cent east.

W. B. Lanigan, freight traffic manager of the C. P. R., informed the committee that the reduction would cost the C. P. R. $10,558,469, including reduction on international and interstate traffic affected by the later order of the interstate commerce commission.

After the railway companies had made their amended offer, the committee again went into executive session to consider its bearing on the report. The decision of the committee is not yet available, but it is now stated that while the new offer may be accepted by the majority of the committee it does not go far enough to induce its acceptance by the western members of the committee. In that case, the fight over the proposal is likely to be carried from the committee into the House.

The committee discussed the railway company's offer and then adjourned to meet in executive session again this afternoon. There is a probability, it is stated, that should the majority of the committee favor the new offer, western members will bring down a minority report urging that the rates on grain be reduced to the Crow's Nest rates. These are calculated to be in the main from one to one and a half cents per bushel lower than the rates under the new offer.

Methodist Alliance Wroth At "Lifting of Lid"

Protest to Premier.

STRONG action was taken at the Monday meeting of the London Methodist Ministerial Alliance, protesting against the withdrawal of the amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act, prohibiting the manufacture of home brew, and firmly-worded resolutions have been forwarded to Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the premier, urging the enforcement of such an amendment; to the members representing the district in parliament, asking them to do all possible in favor of it; and to the president of the London Conference, Rev. J. W. J. Millard, asking him to take immediate action on the matter.

Members of the association expressed themselves as disappointed at the withdrawal of the amendment and Rev. J. A. Agnew of Ridout Street Methodist Church, states: "I can hardly conceive of such action on the part of the government, the withdrawal of an amendment which will mean so much toward the completely effective working of the Ontario temperance act."

Discussion of the withdrawal was introduced by Rev. Walter Millson, district secretary of the department of social service and evangelism of the Methodist church, and a committee composed of Rev. A. E. M. Thomson and Rev. John Garbutt were the committee appointed to draft a resolution of protest.

Before the meeting members of the Alliance gave a luncheon in Smallman & Ingram's in honor of three of their members who are leaving this district, Rev. J. W. Hedley, B.A., D.D., of Byron, who goes to Goderich; Rev. Harold Willens of Silem, leaving for Gorry, and Rev. J. E. Hunter of Lambton.

The luncheon was a most enjoyable affair, and the spring flowers decorating the tables, lent a very pretty touch.

Rev. S. Judson Kelly, first vice-president of the Ministerial Alliance, occupied the chair, and at the conclusion of the luncheon short speeches were made by several present, each a tribute to the departing members, and each with a note of humor and witicism to lend cheeriness to the gathering.

Rev. J. W. Hildbert, ex-president of the London Conference; Rev. J. A. Agnew of Ridout Street Methodist Church, and Rev. W. E. Millson were three who gave short addresses.

The loan is intended to pay all maturing loans and obligations, it is understood of the $182,000,000 of five year Victory Loan, issued in 1917, and falling due in December.

It is probable that the new loan, in part anyway, be raised in Canada. In his budget speech, Mr. Fielding discussed the possibility of floating the coming loan at home.

"We shall probably need for our financial operations some further borrowings at no distant date," he said. "I am hoping that when the moment arrives the condition of the money market in Canada will be such that we can have a domestic loan. I think many people regard it as important that we should place our loans at home, because the interest then is payable to our own people. That is an excellent idea but it may be pushed too far."

Meanwhile none of the old tickets are being sold, the company charging a straight five-cent fare to those passengers not in possession of the old tickets.

WILSON ADMITS ANNEX BARGAIN "BAD" FOR CITY

Declares School Taxes Could Be Collected From District.

COUNCIL MORALLY BOUND

Charges Alderman Is "After" Certain Factories' On Tax Issue.

Branding the statement made to The Advertiser by Ald. B. Ashplant on Friday last, that he is obstructing the collection of school taxes from the annexed district as "an absolute and deliberate falsehood," Mayor Cameron Wilson declared on Tuesday that no person can point out a single instance where he or Ald. Childs have prevented city officials from collecting these taxes.

"It is an absolute and deliberate falsehood," declared the mayor, with reference to Ald. Ashplant's published statement. "There is not an official in the city hall who can say I ever discussed the question with them excepting the city solicitor and in committee or council meetings. Ald. Ashplant was present at these meetings and I have never interfered. Neither has Ald. Childs."

"An agreement was made between the city and ratepayers of the annexed district," continued the mayor, "and that is a moral obligation which has been recognized by every mayor and city council since that time. Because there is a loophole in the agreement permitting collection of school taxes, that does not say we should take these people by the neck and squeeze the money out of them."

No New Question.

"This is no new question, as city councils before this year have known that they could legally collect school taxes from the annexed district. We know that a bad bargain was made by the city at that time, but we are morally bound the same as with the City Gas Company and London Street Railway Company, when we maintained that the legislature should not interfere."

"It is legal to collect the school tax on the annexed district, and anybody who wants to take Ald. Ashplant's advice and take the thing to law can do so. We have no objection. It is up to us to keep our agreement. The question has been hard on these people by taking advantage of them."

"Ald. Ashplant is after certain factories in the annexed district," concluded Mayor Wilson, "but he cannot make fish of one and fowl of the other."

TO OBSERVE JULY 1 AS DOMINION DAY

Dominion Day will be observed as a holiday in London on the day on which it falls, which is a Saturday, Mayor Cameron Wilson stated Tuesday morning.

"It is a statutory holiday, set by the Dominion government," said the mayor, "and we cannot change it."

"Why change it to Monday anyway?" asked Ald. Ashton. "After a hard winter of unemployment, and men just getting work it would be a shame to make two holidays."

ITALIANS FIRED ON IN BRANTFORD

Brantford, June 20.—Mysterious gunmen, screened by the curtains of a closed and lightless motor car, fired upon Salvatore Schroni and Jim Fort, local Italians, as the pair were walking home about 9 o'clock last night. Schroni and Fort miraculously escaped injury, though four pistol shots were fired. It is believed that the shooting is just another chapter in the feud which is going on amongst Italians in the province, a relative of Schroni having been murdered in Guelph, Ont.

AVERS BUSINESS NOW IMPROVING

W. S. Fisher Addresses Canadian Manufacturers' Association Annual Meeting.

Declares Basic Production Is Recovering and Unemployment Decreasing.

St. Andrew's by the Sea, N. B., June 20.—(Canadian Press).—“Generally speaking, business is steadily, though very slowly, improving, the international situation seems to be clarifying, money is easier, surplus stocks have been reduced, basic production recovering, unemployment is decreasing, prices are stabilizing and demand is reviving.”

W. S. Fisher, St. John, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, addressing the opening session here this morning of the association's fifty-first annual general meeting, thus summarized Canada's position, following what he terms the trying experience of the last years.

“Time is the panacea for most of our ills, physical or mental,” he added.

Defends Protective Tariff.
Mr. Fisher devoted a large part of his address to the defence of a protective tariff. He thought an adequate customs tariff the best safeguard of the home market, which he declared to be the greatest market for the country's products. Taxation could raise sufficient money to pay current expenditures, interest on the national debt, a debt which had increased from three hundred and thirty-six millions in 1914 to two billion four hundred and twenty-seven millions at present.

But he did not think any form of taxation of the country's present wealth could be applied to reduce the principal. He represented that development of Canada's natural resources, the farms and mines, the forests, the fisheries, and the development of the country's factories, so that they could transform its raw materials into usable form, would produce the wealth which, when taxed, would pay off the national debt. Canada's natural resources, Mr. Fisher said, included three hundred million acres of farm land, while 14 per cent of the world's supply of coal was in Alberta alone. The country also had, it was estimated, 50 per cent of the world's cobalt, 86 per cent of its asbestos, 85 per cent of its nickel, 20 per cent of its cured fish, etc.

Canadians Pay Interest.
Mr. Fisher thought it an extraordinary thing that Canada had seen three downward revisions in the tariff in 1919, 1920 and 1922. He asked: “Should the national resources be sold in crude form, presenting to other countries the profits and employment from turning them into finished products, leaving Canadians for ever paying interest on the national mortgage?”

JUDGE FINES MAN CHARGED WITH STEALING FOWLS

David Tazman Must Also Make Restitution for Birds Disposed Of by Raffle.

Convicted before Judge Judd at a special session of the Middlesex county court Monday afternoon of the theft of geese and other fowl, David Tazman was fined $10 and directed to make restitution for poultry to the extent of $18. Tazman was first arrested last December, the case not coming up for final disposition until a week ago, when the defendant elected trial by judge.

The prosecution claimed that Tazman, bent upon holding a raffle, deemed it expedient to appropriate geese, turkeys and chickens, all likely birds from barnyards other than his own in the immediate vicinity. Certain neighbors stated that, having suspicion that certain fowl about to be raffled off was obtained from their premises, journeyed over to Tazman's on a tour of inspection and identified the same.

In this manner, they assert, the defendant returned a part of the fowl, but the plaintiffs were compelled to take the issue to the courts with respect to the other birds.

Defendant will now have to pay for these, the court orders.

Bewails Lack of Courtesy Among London Autoists

Motorist Suggests “Code.”

CERTAIN London citizens bewail the fact that courtesy among London motorists is like honor among thieves, scarce. Others urge that the complaint comes only from chronic grumblers, but in any event, cries have been raised on the question as to whether or not there is a code of ethics to guide autoists in existence.

As so far no one has come forward with a set of rules, it is evident that if such a list of courtesy laws has been commonly agreed upon by motor car owners they are, like the British constitution, unwritten.

Between motorist and motorist, and between motorist and pedestrian, such courtesy should exist.

Ships at sea, when they pass each other, as an act of courtesy, often dip their flags. Such things are the result of tradition on the milkiest of highways. So a crop of rules are bound to come up in time.

Comes J. P. Miller of Sheldon Apartments, Waterloo street, in an ironical mood with suggestions for a code. And it sounds as if many London motorists might be following it.

Be sure to have a horn that makes the loudest and most discordant noise possible, one that says: “Jump, or I’ll run you down,” instead of “Please let me pass.”

Sound horn on every possible occasion, such as when calling your lady friend to the door, when the man in front of you is forced to slow down, when passing hospitals, or when you wish to cross a crowded thoroughfare at top speed.

Never use stop light. It is hard on eyes of man back of you.

When you wish to throw peanut shells from car, or knock the ashes off someone you will likely be going so fast that you won't get caught.

Disregard danger signals. They are put there to annoy motorists who are in a hurry.

If another is driving the car you are in, be sure to instruct him in the details of driving. Grab the wheel if possible.

Always get out at the left door. Those driving past need exercise in steering to avoid hitting you.

Who's To Blame?

HOW often we have heard the remark that Canada must be very careful of the class of immigrants that are allowed to come into this country. National pollution from this source must be discounted, and all the rest of it. Now, with that talk there can be no objection, nor argument, as it is the feeling of the people of Canada generally.

But turn it the other way. We make the charge that a great many of the people who have come as immigrants to this country are not capable of assimilation with the people of Canada. They do not do things our way; they want to bring along with them their old ideas and habits, and so on. As a matter of fact what have the people of Canada done to try and assimilate the foreigners who have come to Canada in years gone past? Have we, as a people, stood up before them as the embodiment of ideals and national aspirations of such a calibre that within their minds would be awakened the desire to turn their lot entirely in with that of the Canadian, in the hope that he might turn out to be a good Canadian citizen?

This matter was discussed in the Commons a few days ago by members on both sides of the house, and there was some plain talk by members on both sides. The minister of the interior stated very plainly that there were people gaining admission to the country who would be better outside of it, and he also intimated that exception was taken at times by "friends and members of parliament" to "my action in deciding to deport people who are not physically and mentally fit."

But after we get these people in here, what then? Mr. BEAUMONT, one of the Progressive members from Western Canada, brought somewhat of a strong accusation before the House of Commons, when he referred to the manner in which Canadian political parties in times past had gone after these people in order to get their votes. He referred particularly to the Ukrainians, and the manner in which attempts were made to secure their votes. He did not charge that any political party in the west was singled out, contenting himself with the remark that "in all political parties there are unscrupulous politicians." He goes on to state that there never has been any attempt on the part of political parties to enlighten the Ukrainians regarding political matters. The method of operating among them when elections were on was by giving money, buying drink and promising to build roads, which, of course, would provide more work for these men. The Ukrainians, as a result, as a time when they can get a little easy money, and perhaps be well looked after for a few days. They were, on some occasions, granted naturalization papers within a few days of elections, and voted without any idea of what or who they were voting for.

That case is not very much overstated, as any person who has had a residence of any duration in a district where these men live would know. And yet the charge goes out to many of these strangers in this country: "They cannot become Canadians—they are not capable of assimilation." True, perhaps, but Canada cannot assume this holier-than-thou attitude, and simply pass along to the next order of the day. These people, whether we are aware of it or not, are going to respond in a very great measure to the mark that is set for them in this country, and if that mark is low, then the response is going to be low, and, on the other hand, if we impress them with the worth of our citizenship, and the sincerity of our national professions, then their vision is going to be brought up to a higher plane. Right now Canada can scratch pretty hard for a reason to state to the foreigners in this country that she has done her full duty toward them, and that the reason why the foreigners have not made greater progress toward naturalization, in the real sense of the word, is a matter that does not rest heavily upon their hands because they have discharged their whole duty.

Not Falling Down.

London-Lessee set out to raise $125,000 in a united welfare campaign, but thus far has raised less than $50,000. Somehow there is less enthusiasm over money-raising campaigns than there was during the war.—Brantford Express.

WELL, just to show the Brantford Expresser and all others who have their doubts in the matter, it is safe to say that the London objective of $125,000 will be realized before the committee in charge give out the order to cease firing.

The London campaign was of such an order that it simply had to succeed. The amount asked for included only the maintenance of the following places: Aged People's Home, Salvation Army, Women's Sanatorium, Victorian Order of Nurses, Day Nursery, Children's Aid Society, Y. W. C. A., Child Welfare

HOME SWEET HOME!

Association, Mount Hope Home, St. Joseph's Orphanage, Protestant Orphan's Home, Y. M. C. A., St. John Ambulance Brigade, Byron Sanatorium. There was no extension work taken into consideration, and the figures were based on the known wants of these places.

Already the total stands at about $100,000, and there are a number of people who have not been called upon. Some of the canvassers have had experiences that show them there is quite a wide variety of business ups and downs during the year, and also that men will give in most cases according to their ability. The way the money has been put up is a tribute to the public spirit of London. Some men were in a position a year ago to do well for the canvassers. At that time they were making good money, and when a call came they were willing to respond according to the prosperity that was theirs at that period. Others have been affected in a different way, and find that owing to changed conditions they are not in a position to equal the amount they subscribed a year ago. In most cases they stated their case frankly, and there was no argument about it. It is a pleasure to do business with men who will speak frankly.

Then, too, there is a difference in canvassers, as in everything else. Fortunately, London has a large percentage of good ones. Of course, there are always the workers who will take any amount that is offered, who come away with five where they should get fifty, and who are too ready to write "out" or "away" on a card and turn it in at that. It is probably the difference again between an order taker and a salesman. The order taker would get the five, while the salesman would sell the proposition to the extent of a fifty-dollar contribution.

The impression seems to have been created in outside places that London was falling down badly on its effort to get $125,000. This is not the case, and those in charge are confident that the welfare drive will go over the $125,000 hurdle without taking any of the rails off the top.

The Title Business.

OPINION is growing in Britain that it is wrong to keep up the practice of bestowing titles on various people in far distant parts of the empire, regardless of whether they want them or their country approves of them.

The Manchester Guardian discusses this matter in a very frank manner, taking as its starting point the fact that the Canadian premier had taken only a privy councillorship, which, of course, carries no title with it. South Africa and Australia are the places where turbulent opposition has come to the surface over the granting of titles.

The Guardian, referring to these latter places, remarks: "We have GEX. SMUTS getting up to assure the Union House of Assembly that he had nothing to do with suggesting that a South African banking magnate who has just been made a lord should have any distinction given to him, and we have the Cape Times, a level-headed organ of the British Commonwealth, declaring that this particular operation of the fount of honor is likely to have a most regrettable reaction on the loyal affection for the Royal House of both white races in South Africa." Strong language this, but nothing to that of the New South Wales labor conference about the Australian knight whom the honor list has created. His title, they say, is "an insult to white Australia," a phrase which refers to the fact that he happens to believe that Australia's tropical north cannot be colonized successfully without introducing colored labor. There is no deadly sin in being a banking magnate, nor in having views on the development of one's country which do not accord with those of some local party. But it seems unfortunate that, despite the known reluctance of the dominions to be enriched with titled citizens, the home government still persists in making the fountain of honor play on them, and play, moreover, like an ill-directed hose pipe, on individuals whom their fellows consider quite unsuitable for such conspicuous treatment. Those who might conceivably be thought suitable are apparently dodging the jet. Would it not be well to give the stop-cock for dominion titles a full turn and cut off the flow entirely?

The Guardian touches the weak spot in the whole system when it speaks of the impossibility of selecting those who are thoroughly deserving of recognition, who may in many cases be "dodging the jet." The suggestion to simply turn off the title tap and then lose the key is probably the best solution as far as British dominions are concerned. If the people of Britain desire to continue the placing and perpetuating of titles on the people in their own land it is entirely their own business.

LITTLE TISERS

An optimist is a man who plants an orchard near a schoolhouse.

Health Hint: Never marry a widow until you try her cooking.

The Fan twins, Baseball and Electric, have arrived for the season.

Some people grumble about London's present weather, as if they expected winter this summer.

One way to keep your daughter away from the charms of Springbank Park and Port Stanley is to feed her onions.

Several denominations have decided that women cannot preach in the church, but, of course, there's nothing to stop a bit of a sermon at home.

During last year Canada burned up $45,000,000 worth of property. Carelessness and ignorance, say the experts, are the cause. Yes, we're a young nation, but we're mighty smart for our years.

A correspondent asks if it is a fact that members of the Dominion house must vote on a division. A vote must be made one way or the other, unless the member can have an important business engagement out of town.

And now comes word from Ottawa that folks can't make home brew any more. That will cause a slump in the price of potatoes, raisins, yeast, oats, wheat, corn, prunes, molasses, and everything that the home brewers were dumping into their mess.

The House of Commons had quite a long discussion over the lobster business a few days ago. After the way the DAYTON amendment was treated the Conservatives, no doubt, imagine there are a lot of them right in the house.

And now the papers are being bombarded with sob stories of FATTY ARBUCKLE being broke, about him having to give up his home and his big auto. When some of these sob writers want to dump their buckets of gush, this old world can furnish such a procession of real worth-while ones that ARBUCKLE will be thin before it passes.

London, England, and other British cities are worried over their water supply following a lot of bright weather. Last year's water famine, which was unusually severe in part, threatens this year to be worse. One critic writes: "If, as some experts suggest, we are in for a cycle of hot summers, the whole problem of national water supply will need reconsidering."

The Vancouver Sun submits figures to show that the coast province is paying more than other parts of the Dominion for its fire insurance. British Columbia fire insurance premiums for five years past amounted to $20,500,000; fire losses amounted to $6,200,000, or 31 per cent. Premiums in the four eastern provinces for the same period amounted to $131,000,000, and fire losses to $70,000,000, or 52 per cent. It looks as though British Columbia had been paying for the expectations of the insurance companies that some person was going to drop a match or some mountain cow kick over a lantern.

NO. 245—SELLING THE CLOSED "A."

You have before you a letter from a prospective purchaser of something you have to sell. You have noted that in his writing his "a" and his "o" are closed at the top, or perhaps are closed by a looping stroke of the pen.

Now before you successfully present your argument to this man, you know you have to find out more about his affairs or perhaps the uses to which he is going to put what you have to sell him. In short, it is necessary for you to learn something of his private business.

The obvious course in such a case is to ask the prospect about these things. Will you ask this prospect? Of course, it depends largely upon the nature of your proposition and how deeply you are going to dig into his private affairs. The chances are against his responding frankly to a simple question, however. That is the indication of the closed "a" and "o," particularly the indication of the loop in the formation of these letters. You may get the information you want from him, but you'll have to really sell him on telling you. In many cases you'll have to dig up information yourself, and when you have got it use it quietly, but don't parade it before your prospect, for since he is the type of man who "does not tell everything he knows" and who "keeps his own counsel," he's more likely to be displeased than pleased by the knowledge that you have defeated his habitual practice.

Tomorrow morning there will be a jubilee celebration on the grounds of St. Andrew's Church. The teachers and scholars will assemble at 9 o'clock to sing the national anthem and plant a maple "jubilee tree" to commemorate the occasion. Mr. James Gillean, the oldest member of St. Andrew's congregation, has been requested by the board of managers to turn the sod and plant the tree.

There was a heavy white frost in this neighborhood last night.

Mr. Findlay Perrin's many friends in this city will be pleased to learn that he has been successful in securing a scholarship at the recent examinations at Osgoode Hall.

Teachers and pupils of the Talbot Street Public School, picnicked at Springbank Park, Saturday afternoon. Nearly 300 tickets were sold in advance, but the appearance of rain prevented some of the ticket-holders from going. The First Presbyterian Church Mission held an outing at the popular resort the same afternoon.

In all the city churches yesterday, the queen's jubilee was signaled by special sermons, special music, or special prayers—in the majority of instances by all three. Many of the churches were prettily decorated with flowers or national colors, and in all the most fervent patriotism found expression, when in every school, Catholic and Protestant, the queen was honored with equal enthusiasm. All pastors alike did justice to the great occasion.

DR. BISHOP'S ADVICE

SAVING THE DROWNING

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP.
FOR summer claims its quota of victims by drowning. If everyone knew the rudiments of artificial respiration for the apparently drowned, fewer would be sacrificed. When a father has been brought from the water apparently drowned, don't lose a moment in trying resuscitation. At any moment up to two or three hours signs of recovery may appear.

First, with the corner of a handkerchief wrapped around the finger, clear the victim's mouth of any obstruction. Lay the sufferer face downward, and by slightly elevating the lower portions of the body expel as much water as possible from the stomach and air passages. Then use the Schafer, or one-man, method of restoring breathing. The patient should be placed with his

A Real Raw Deal

A Chicago jail was full of the confusion of curses, screams, groans and obscenity. "It's a dull night, but noisy," said the patient turnkey. Suddenly two figures appeared outside the entrance, one was a big policeman, the other, a boy of seventeen, short and slender.

"Have you got room for our young friend here?" asked the officer with a grin, as the turnkey swung open the heavy door. The boy's face was pale and his eyes had a look of terror in them.

"Haven't you got some friend who'll go your bail? How about the man you work for?" asked the turnkey. "Oh, no! If he knows I'm pinched, I'll lose my job. I don't want nobody to know."

He opened the cell door and the boy went falteringly in. There were two others in the cell, one was a dope fiend and the other a youth charged with picking pockets. The dope fiend made room for the boy on his wooden bench. For fourteen hours they were confined there together. Now and then the boy would fall to sleep only to be awakened by the hideous screams of a prisoner with delirium tremens. Occasionally the dope fiend leaned over and talked with the boy in low tones. Later in the night he began to suffer from lack of his drug; presently he dropped to the floor; his head fell back and his eyes rolled wildly. All night long, at frequent intervals, there were outbursts of drunken profanity as groups of new prisoners were received and put into cells.

In the morning, the boy was taken in a patrol wagon to the boys' court. It appeared in court that, while riding his bicycle, he had accidentally run into a child. He had stopped immediately, had picked up the child and had taken it to its mother. This was his crime. Because of it his self-respect had been assaulted; he had been exposed to both physical and moral disease; he had heard more profanity and vulgarity in one night than most boys in a year.

Conditions in many city police stations are bad; in county jails they are worse. Some are underground, as were the dungeons of the dark ages. In some cases, the cells are overrun with vermin and rats. In many county jails, no attempt is made to keep boys separate from adult murderers, pervers and other criminals. A large proportion of those detained are innocent.

This is a picture of the raw deal that was given one boy when he was arrested for a slight offence. What happens to the boys of your community who happen to fall into the hands of the law? Do they get on the road to criminal life?—Firelighter.

The BOOKSHELF

MOONLIGHT AND COMMON DAY, by Louise Morey Rowman; Toronto: The MacMillan Company of Canada, publishers; $1.50.

"Moonlight and Common Day" is another notable contribution to Canadian poetry by a comparatively new and unknown writer, although the author has contributed to a number of leading magazines of Canada and the United States for some years past. Not all the poems included in this modest but neat and attractive little volume are striking or of unusual merit. But nearly all will pass the test as very good poetry as poetry goes these days, and altogether the collection is highly creditable.

The poems included in the volume cover a wide range of subjects, and are variously treated and in various measures to free verse. The range and catholicity of the thought expressed can be best intimated by mentioning a few of the meters, ranging from orthodox lyrical titles: "The Lover," "The Mourner," "Dinner of Herbs," "Sea Lavender," "Fireflies," "The Edge of the World," "Altar Fire," "She Plans Her Funeral," "Two Compositions of Debussy," "The Clover Field," "Winter Symphony," "Moonlight and Common Day" and "The Apple Orchard." One poem deserves to be quoted in its entirety, so thoroughly does it express a wholesome sanity of poetic and artistic viewpoint, rather refreshing in these days when Sir Conan Doyle and Einstein are engrossing the popular stage of thought with perhaps heavier schools of metaphysics than ever. The reader is quite ready to understand and appreciate. This little poem is entitled "Earth-Born," and reads as follows:

"Do you think God will make us forget—

When we wake up in heaven—

All the queer, little earth-fashions things

That are sacred as archangel's wings

Or the stars that are seven?

Our books, our green china with posies,

My white wedding gown with its roses,

The candles we light

In our wee house at night,

Your father's old clock with its wise, friendly face,

And my mother's old lace—

Do you think Love can ever forget?

"Yes, count me a lover of earth,

With its tears or its birth;

It is wine that is bitter or bread that is sweet—

With the pink apple trees and the brown honey-bees,

With the far, purple lands—

And the warm golden sands—

And its queer little love-hallowed things

That are sacred as archangel's wings

Or the stars that are seven!

Do you think God will make us forget

When we wake up in heaven?"

DENIES GUILT ON FORGERY COUNT

Gaston St. Pierre of Dover Township Released On $1,500 Bail.

Brigadier-General Rennie Speaks At Chatham Unveiling Ceremony.

CHATHAM, June 19.—Gaston St. Pierre, farmer of Dover Township, pleaded not guilty to a charge of forgery which was read to him in the county police court this morning. He elected to take his trial before a judge and jury in December next. He was released on a bail of $1,500 in two sureties.

St. Pierre is the man who gave the county police two or three merry chases when they attempted to arrest him about a month ago. He was apprehended later on in Marine City and returned to this city for trial.

Brig.-Gen. Rennie of Toronto was the principal speaker at the unveiling of a memorial tablet in the Victoria Avenue Methodist Church here yesterday morning. The tablet, which is made of bronze, contains over 60 names of men who served and of six men who were killed on the field of battle.

The feast of Corpus Christi was observed in the Roman Catholic churches of the city yesterday with appropriate ceremonies. At the Blessed Sacrament Parish the pastor, Rev. Father Dignan, was in charge of a monster procession in the afternoon at the Ursuline College campus where over 600 people, including the pupils of the college joined.

Rev. Father Sullivan was the celebrant of three benedictions which were given throughout the procession. Father Harrigan was deacon, and Father Cook was sub-deacon.

At St. Joseph's a procession was held in the morning, and Father McKee delivered a sermon on the feast of the day.

Roman Catholic priests of the city, with the exception of Rev. Father Dignan, left for Sandwich today, where they will attend the annual diocesan retreat for the clergy. Among those attending are: Rev. Fathers Gnam, McKee and Sullivan, from St. Joseph's, and Harrigan from the Blessed Sacrament Parish.

The Protestant churches of Kent County observed yesterday as Hospital Sunday and appropriate talks for the day were given by all ministers. Coin envelopes for making a contribution to the public general hospital fund of this city were distributed among the congregations.

Walter H. Smith of this city, agricultural representative for Kent, Assistant Director of Agricultural W. D. Jackson of Toronto, Roy Schuyler of Paris, W. C. McDonald of I. B. Treloca, and A. A. Knight of Lindsay have returned home after a week's trip of inspection on agricultural research work in Michigan. ARISTOCRACY OF BRAIN PROPOSED

LONDON, Eng., June 19. — The establishment of "an aristocracy of brain instead of the aristocracy of birth" is stated, is one of the objects of the proposed reform of the House of Lords which is being sponsored in the House of Commons by Claude Lowther.

The bill proposes that members of the House of Lords shall be chosen by merit alone and that the hereditary system shall be abolished, except in the case of a royal prince.

The existing lords, according to the bill, shall select one hundred peers of the realm by merit alone to be the first members of the reconstituted house and these "lords of parliament" shall select 200 others by merit.

WOMEN'S HOME MAGAZINE PAGE

Dear Miss Grey—Here comes a very informal letter for help.

1. In ordering dinner at a hotel, when in company of a gentleman, is it permissible to omit the fish course, ordering the meat to follow the soup? I understand that the potatoes and extra vegetables are served anyway, without it being necessary to order them. Is that right?

2. When four are seated, should they be seated alternately around the table?

3. What would be nice and easily served at a little informal afternoon tea? At a large tea, what are the teas mentioned, and when are they served?

4. In going to an invited dance, does the hostess or those in charge supply the dance program or not? If to a public one, where tickets are purchased, does one supply one's own? Can these be purchased at a stationer's? When a man asks for a dance do you give him your own program to write his name in or do you write it yourself?

5. What is a tea dantant, and at what hour is it held? Would an afternoon frock serve or should one wear evening clothes?

6. How do you pronounce Pavlova, the Russian dancer's name?

7. Where there are place cards at a dinner, does one first look around until they discover their own, or does the hostess help by adding a word?

I'm afraid these questions will bore you to death. If need be you can answer in installment plan. Am a newcomer here, and find it a wee bit bewildering. Many thanks.

QUEEN ELIZABETH.

1. The gentlemen should order the dinner, but of course if you do not care for fish you may state the fact.

2. Yes, unless one of the party wishes to sit next to a certain person.

3. Sandwiches, small cakes or large ones, and tea. The fish referred to is ice cream bricks, which are served with the cakes.

4. Yes, the hostess supplies the programs at a private dance, and those in charge at a public one. They may be procured at a stationer's shop. The man writes the girl's name on his own program and his name on hers.

5. Tea dantant is a tea at which the guests dance. One should wear an afternoon frock.

6. Pavlova is pronounced Pav-lov-a, with the accent on the second syllable, the w like a v.

7. One may look around quietly and see where his or her card is, but if you cannot find it the hostess may assist you.

I hope I have been of some assistance to you, Queen Elizabeth.

CAN FIND NO RELIEF.

Dear Miss Grey—I am writing to ask you if you can suggest any prevention for mosquito bites. The bites swell like bee stings on me, and almost take all the pleasure from picnic and fishing parties. I've tried coal oil, soda and sugar of lead, and find no relief. Maybe some of the Mail-Box readers know of something. Thanking you for any suggestions, Am watching the Mail-Box.

M. J. A.

As I do not suffer very much from mosquito bites, I do not know of a preventive for them, unless you build a smudge around yourself; but I am quite sure some one of the Boxites will be able to help you out, giving you a remedy. I hope so, anyway. M. J. A. as it is too hot that all your summer outings are spoiled by these pests.

WANTS SONG AND PATTERN.

Dear Miss Grey—I was wondering if the stocking foot pattern I sent in was all right. Will you please send me the words and music of "Oh What a Pal Was Mary," and I will pay the postage on it. I do like to read all the letters in your page. Please send me Dad's housekeeper's address, and I will do what I can for her. I would like a sunbonnet pattern, too.

JUNE MARY.

Thanks you for the inclosure, June Mary. I am sorry, but I could not give the list of addresses you asked for. The song is in the Mail-Box, but maybe someone will send it in, also a sunbonnet pattern.

Dear Miss Grey—For many months I have read your truly interesting page, but as yet have never found time to write to such a jolly crowd as you seem to be. I am a Canadian, and for the last two months have acted as book-keeper for a firm in this town. Would love to correspond with someone who needs help, also someone about the age of 18. Please, send "Thornless Rose" letter is getting rather long and may be monotonous for the first time, I will close. With every success to Boxites.

"THORNLESS ROSE."

What a bright little letter, Thornless Rose. I am delighted to think you enjoy our little Mail-Box. I am a jolly crowd, I hope you receive some interesting correspondents from the Corner. Will be looking for a longer letter next time. Many thanks for hospital mail.

AN OLD-TIME FRIEND.

Dear Cynthia—Will you kindly give or send inclosed letter to May? I always feel very sorry for a lonely girl, and especially around the ages of 18 or 19 years. I hope my letter will cheer her up a little, poor little girl. Well, Miss Grey, you will think and know that I have got into the Mail-Box, but it is not so. We read the letters every night when we get the paper, but somehow or other, have been very busy, and with my work and my sick hubby, I have plenty to do. Chirper is practicing very hard these days for a musical examination. You will be glad to know that the girls are taking pupils. She is still working at the office doing stenography, so you see she is a busy maid too. Isn't this lovely weather? I am out on the veranda writing this, and the birds are singing and everything seems to be happy. We are right close to a beautiful park, and just north of the city. The trees with their virgin leaves, and the lovely green grass and the flowers and foliage makes one feel that it's good to be alive. Well, dear Cynthia, I must close. With love from Chirper and myself, your old-time friend, MRS. FATTY.

I am sorry that I cannot forward your letter to you, as our letters are always so bright and cheerful that I am sure it would cheer her; but she has never given us her address, so I will hold your letter until she writes again. You and Chirper must be kept very busy. I think I have seen your home, as I visited in that part once, and think it a beautiful spot.

LILY OF LIVERPOOL.

Dear Miss Grey—Please send me Lily of Liverpool's address, because I would like to see the lady and get some clothes. Please send me the address by return mail. Thank you for your trouble.

TRULY IN NEED OF A FRIEND.

Lily of Liverpool's address is not on our family list, but I think if she sees your letter she will send it in. If so, I will be pleased to forward it to you.

ATTENTION, PHONE.

Dear Miss Grey—Saw in a recent issue of your paper that Phone wanted to get some help in the valley, so I thought I could be useful for once. Can supply her with the illness if someone has not already offered same. The white columbine secured through your Mail-Box is growing fine. Will inclose mite.

RIBBON-GRASS.

It is good of you to offer your lily roots for Phone. She has not already received some. I am sure she will be pleased to receive them. I am glad to hear good results from the various ones who procured roots and seeds through the Mail-Box. So far the reports have all been excellent. Many thanks for the hospital mite.

BOUND TO WIN.

A jolly event was a picnic held at Port Stanley of the Bound To Win Club of Askin Street Methodist Church, of which Miss Lillian Sproule is teacher. Baseball and other sports were enjoyed, a committee consisting of Misses Letta Clement, Bertie Spettigue and Vera Morrison, of the church, and Misses Gladys Wanless and Marjorie Carter, a large share of the credit for the success of the event being accorded to Miss Sproule. The club holds the final meeting of the season Tuesday evening.

LOCH LOMOND CHAPTER.

Discussion of further ways and means of raising funds for the cot in memory of Scottish heroes who gave their lives in the world war, occupied a large share of attention of the members of Loch Lomond Chapter, I. O. D. E., at the regular meeting held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. A. Mercer, 436 Pall Mall street. Plans were completed for the dance to take place Wednesday evening at Springbank Pavilion. The home of the hostess was beautifully decorated with peonies and roses, and the tea table, presided over by Mrs. Wootton and Mrs. T. McDonald, was most attractive with summer flowers.

Members of the London Alma Daughters are having a gala week in connection with the closing exercises of their alma mater. Monday afternoon a number of members of the local chapter went down to St. Thomas for the annual Alma Daughters' banquet in the college, for which former Alma students traveled from all over the United States and distant points in Canada. Wednesday the annual picnic takes place at the country home of Mrs. T. H. Haskett, in London Township. It is hoped to have at this a number of members of other chapters and other former Alma girls who are enjoying a reunion with old school friends.

A pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, June 14, at 1 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, when Gertrude Evelyn, daughter of Miss Sarah McCaul, became the bride of Reginald I. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of West Zorra, Rev. W. P. Lane of Embro officiating.

As the wedding party entered the parlor, the wedding march was played by the bride's sister, Miss Sarah McCaul. The ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreens and orange blossoms, from which was suspended a large white bell. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked lovely in a gown of cream silk brocade crepe, with crystal head trimming, with a veil falling from a bandeau of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. She also wore the groom's gift, a string of pearls. Little Miss Lillian Coulson, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl, and was dressed in white with pink trimming, and she scattered roses in front of the bride.

"HAPPY DAYS" HOLD PICNIC.

Forty or more children between the ages of 4 and 12 years made merry at the picnic of the "Happy Days" Mission Band of Askin Street Methodist Church, held Saturday afternoon at Thames Park. The grounds, with their swings and other play equipment, proved a fortunate choice of location for the event, and to these amusements were added a peanut scramble, and a program of races, in the course of which everyone somehow got a prize. A picnic tea to the children was naturally the most important part of the afternoon. Mrs. W. M. Westcott and Mrs. Frank McRae took charge, assisted by some of the mothers.

"CHARLIE CHAPLIN MYSTERY."

The spacious grounds of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Stephens, Base Line, will be gayly decorated Wednesday for the garden party to be held in the afternoon and evening under the auspices of the St. James' Church Guild. Chinese lanterns will be strung throughout, and the booths will be decorated with flowers and bright-colored bunting. An attractive program will be provided, including the presentation of "Little Miss Muffet," by a number of young children under the direction of Miss Wynne-Price. Great mystery surrounding the Charlie Chaplin game, which it is promised will provide no end of fun. The following conveners will be in charge: Miss Josephine Macfie, president of the guild, general convener; team room, Mrs. F. R. Hardy; ice cream, Mrs. A. O. Hunt; candy, Mrs. A. S. Hallett; Mrs. T. GOULD-TAYLOR.

On Wednesday, June 14, a quiet wedding was solemnized at the Methodist parsonage, Hale street, London, when Miss Myrtle Taylor, daughter of Mr. George Taylor of Strathroy, was married to Fred J. Gould of the same town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. W. Reid, cousin of the bride. The bride's gown was a beautiful creation of georgette crepe, with overlace. A handsome string of pearls, the gift of the groom, was the only ornament she wore. After a short trip to western points, the happy couple will reside in Strathroy, where Mr. Gould is engaged in business.

O'BRIEN-GALLAGHER.

A quiet and pretty wedding took place at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at All Saints' Church, Strathroy, when Stella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gallagher of Melbourne, was united in marriage to Mr. William O'Brien, Rev. Father Quinlan officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, wore a smart cape suit of navy pique tulle, with white tulle hat, and carried Opheelia roses. Miss Margaret Gallagher, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, frocked in peacock blue Canton crepe, with white hat, and carried pink roses. The groom was supported by C. Doyle of St. Thomas.

After the ceremony the guests, including only the immediate relatives, motored to the home of the bride, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes, for points east.

On their return they will reside on the groom's farm at Glenworth.

TURN DOWN $300 SALARY BYLAW

Aldermen Throw Out Measure To Remunerate Themselves On Third Reading.

New Legislation Required To Legalize Pay List of City Hall Staff.

WHAT THE CITY COUNCIL DID:

Defeated the salary bylaw on its third reading, which included a clause authorizing payment of $300 per year to aldermen.

Approved of the civic garbage department, and filed the report on doing this work by contract.

Promised to agree to any reasonable proposition presented by Front street ratepayers for the protection of their property from flooding.

Asked for a report from the assessment commission on the assessment of the London Street Railway and City Gas Company, to include method by which assessment is determined.

Referred the request of north end deputation for relief from

Cocoon Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or any kind of soap that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain Cocoon oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonsful of Cocoon oil in a cup of water, and wash your hair with it. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Cocoon oil at all drug stores. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure you get Cocoon oil. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.—Advt.

YOUNG GIRLS NEED CARE

Mothers, Watch Your Daughters' Health

Health is Happiness

From the time a girl reaches the age of twelve until womanhood is established, she needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give.

The condition that the girl is then passing through is so critical, and may have such far-reaching effects upon her future happiness and health, that it is most criminal for a mother or other guardian to withhold counsel or advice.

Many a woman has suffered years of prolonged pain and misery through having been the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance on the part of her mother, who should have guided her through the dangers and difficulties that beset this period.

Mothers should teach their girls what danger comes from standing around with cold or wet feet, from lifting heavy articles, and from overworking. Do not let them over-study. If they complain of headache, pains in the back and lower limbs, they need a mother's thoughtful care and sympathy.

"We Both Recommend"

Writes Mrs. Clause about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"When my daughter was thirteen and until she was fifteen, she suffered very much from the same trouble that I have now. Finally I learned through my mother of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and how thankful I am that I have taken it, as I am relieved from pain and cramps."

Mrs. H. A. Goodman, 14 Rockvale Ave.

Fight Duel For Girl Whose Father Aids Suitor Who Paid His Fare Home

Special to London Advertiser.

KITCHENER, June 19.—The "eternal triangle" of two men and a girl—involving as a side attraction, the interchange of pistol shots between the suitors, both foreigners, had as a fitting climax to the morning appearance of the latter in police court.

The battle was precipitated, it is reported, by an alleged agreement between lover No. 1 and the fair one's father, whose homestead is not far from this centre. It is explained that the parent was in Montreal, but desired to return home. Seemingly, however, he was just a trifle shy of funds, and it is alleged that he promised payment for sewers and pavements to No. 2 committee.

By a vote of 6 to 4 members of the city council, in session Monday night, threw out the bylaw authorizing payment of $25 per month to aldermen on its third reading, without much discussion. The entire salary bylaw which covered remuneration for all city officials was thrown out, but a motion introduced later directed that a new bylaw covering civic salaries be prepared by No. 1 committee.

Prior to the defeat of the bylaw, Ald. Holmes moved that the salary bylaw be amended by striking out the clause relating to aldermanic salaries. His amendment was not seconded, and the entire bylaw was defeated.

Aldermen Childs, Watkinson, Cunningham, May, Douglass and Drake voted the bylaw down, while Aldermen Holmes, Ashplant, Ashton and Bean were in favor of it.

New Bylaw Required.

This means that before salaries paid to all members of the city hall staff are legalized, a new salary bylaw must be prepared, and No. 1 committee of the city council will deal with this question at the next meeting.

Ald. Ashplant did not take kindly to the defeat of the proposal to re-compensate the city fathers for their services, and under inquiries asked Mayor Wilson: "What is your attitude on wage cuts in the lower services in view of your approbation of bonuses?"

"It is the same as it has been," replied the mayor. "I leave that entirely to the heads of the departments." "You are head of a department," came back Ald. Ashplant. "You are head of the whole outfit. Would you, for the sake of those who are being cut, care to see them restored to the wages they received before?"

"I have no intention of giving you material for propaganda, and playing to the gallery," declared his worship.

"By not replying you are giving me material," commented Ald. Ashplant, "and I compliment you on your success, although I asked you sincerely."

Would Have Chaos.

"Any man who interferes with those of civic departments will soon have chaos," asserted the mayor, "and that is all the answer you are going to get from me. I leave it to the department heads."

"You have had a considerable amount to say on bonuses," continued the ward four representative, "Have you the same sympathy for the men as for the officials?"

Mayor Wilson: "Yes."

"Then you don't exercise it," Ald. Ashplant declared.

Ald. Douglass then moved that the city assessor be instructed to report on the valuation of the London Street Railway and City Gas Company, according to the assessment roll, and to include in this report to No. 1 committee an explanation of the method of arriving at such figures. The motion carried.

In presenting this motion Ald. Douglass pointed out that the assessment of the street railway company is very low compared to that on similar companies at Ottawa and Toronto.

"I think the London Street Railway assessment should be looked into," he declared.

"We may buy the road," protested Ald. O. I. Cunningham, "and if we raise the assessment that is our own valuation. We will be raising the price we are going to pay for it and it may militate against the city. We might get it in the neck."

"If in 1925 we decide to take over the London Street Railway they are not going to sell at the assessed valuation," explained Ald. Douglass.

A Little Book Helped Her to Decide

Milwaukee, Wis.—"My daughter took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she was so weak and did not feel like going to school. She was like that for a whole year before taking your Vegetable Compound. I found a little book of yours in our mail-box and decided to give her your medicine. She is now strong and well and attends school every day. We recommend your medicine to all mothers with weak daughters." Mrs. E. KLODZNY, 917 24th Ave., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Learned Through Her Mother

Toronto, Ontario—"I suffered from the time I was a school-girl until I had taken your medicine, with pain in my left side and with cramps, growing worse each year, until I was all run-down. Finally I learned through my mother of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and how thankful I am that I have taken it, as I am relieved from pain and cramps."

Mrs. H. A. Goodman, 14 Rockvale Ave.

year eliminates this kind of thing," said City Clerk Baker.

"It has been going on for years," interrupted Ald. Ashton. "Ald. Ashplant was in for four years. If it was the sins of last year's council, then he was a sinful man."

"This deputation feels that they are correct in doubting the sincerity of No. 2 committee, because they were not permitted to deal with it over the table, but a decision was reached after they left," continued Ed. Lance.

"No deputation can talk before the council that way," interrupted Mayor Wilson hotly.

"A citizen has a right to talk from the shoulder if he feels that way," interjected Ald. Ashplant. "This council has stood a lot. We are not that thin-skinned."

"I will ask Mr. Lance to withdraw that statement before we proceed further," insisted the mayor. The citizen refused to retract his insinuation and the session proceeded with other business, referring the North End request to No. 2 committee.

Ask for Breakwater.

A delegation of Front street residents, with Raymond Smith as spokesman, asking for a breakwater to protect their property from the inroads of the Thames, and to have dumping of clinkers on the river bank opposite their property halted.

Mr. Smith introduced himself as "a permanent committee to the city council," owing to repeated visits to the city hall. He insisted that clinkers dumped in the river opposite the city incinerator endangered the Front street homes, declaring that in some places they had built up the north river bank thirty feet.

"Something must be done," he declared. "We want immediate action or an injunction will be issued. We have appealed to No. 2 committee until we are tired. We ask for fair treatment."

"We have no right to do it," declared Ald. Ashplant, referring to construction of a breakwater by the city, "but it was the same for the London West breakwater. There is no doubt in my mind but that Front street residents have a grievance. It's a disgrace."

Ald. Cunningham opined that if the council proceeded to do anything that they were not legally entitled to authorize the members might have to pay for it individually, citing a recent case in Ottawa as a precedent.

Ald. Holmes suggested that the ratepayers come to the city council with a definite proposition to solve the nuisance, with the latter body agreeing "to get together." This was agreed to, and the ratepayers will wait on No. 2 committee with a definite proposition, stating just what steps they will take to co-operate in protecting their property.

"We were going to pay a lawyer," said Raymond Smith, "but as you take it mild, we will."

"Save your money," advised Ald. Douglass.

Inefficiency Charged.

When the recommendation of No. 2 committee, that no action be taken this year on the contract system of collecting garbage, Ald. O. I. Cunningham declared that inefficiency had been charged against this department and moved an amendment

Rescues Young Woman From Drowning When She Falls Into St. Clair River

SARNIA, June 19.—Miss Mable

Pierce, 21, Enniskillen Township, was rescued from probable death in the St. Clair River here this afternoon by Alfred Gulletti, Queen's Hotel, Point Edward.

Engaging in conversation with relatives on board the river deck of the ferry Louise Philippe, as it was being made fast to the wharf, Miss Pierce was looking upwards, apparently not realizing her close proximity to the edge of the dock, and stepped off into the water.

that the city council approve of the work done. The motion carried.

"It has been charged that the garbage department is fifty per cent inefficient," said Ald. Cunningham. "Now they report back that they cannot get information, and ask that the report be filed. The department has been placed in a disadvantageous position in the minds of the citizens. If they are not able to get the information that the department is not inefficient the committee should come here and say so. If it is inefficient, we should know it. I would ask the chairman of No. 2 committee what his explanation is."

"The contract would only be in force for the time the council is in office," explained Ald. Douglass. "The report is to be filed just for the present."

"If the committee wishes to leave an inefficient garbage department for six months it is up to them," came back Ald. Cunningham. "There has been no set of figures yet showing the inefficiency of the department. It was said here that $40,000 could be saved on the garbage department."

To Back It Up.

"I made the statement and am here to back it up," said Ald. May. We have no official statement here to back us up."

"I got it," said Ald. Cunningham. "Yes, I know," replied Ald. May. "You've got six pages of foolscap." Ald. Cunningham denied this assertion.

"You have, I've seen it," insisted Ald. May. "You can't fool me."

Ald. Cunningham then quoted figures vindicating the garbage department in comparison to the contract system, and when asked by Ald. Watkinson where he obtained them, advised him to "go to the department and figure it out." He stated that no city in North America of any importance employs the contract system of collecting garbage, and that London handles garbage disposal as cheaply as any municipality.

The council decided to meet once during July and August, namely on the first Monday of each month.

SEIZE NARCOTICS VALUED AT $6,000

WINDSOR, June 19.—Six thousand dollars worth of narcotics was discovered by provincial police late Sunday night when they raided the home of Mrs. Philomena Crimaldi, 339 Tuscarora street, in search of liquor. The woman had the drugs hidden in her blouse.

In police court today she was Gulletti, who was standing on the upper platform of the Northern Navigation Company waiting-room, ran down the stairs, tossing off his coat as he ran, and plunged into the river. He succeeded in grasping Miss Pierce, and with the aid of bystanders she was brought to the wharf, and was subsequently taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Stirrett, Front street, where she is employed as a maid. Efforts will probably be made to secure some recognition for Gulletti's brave deed.

charged with violating the narcotic law. Her trial was fixed for Wednesday, Magistrate Gundy placing the amount of bail at $2,000 cash. Recently her husband was convicted on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

DISCLAIMS HURT, BUT LATER DIES

HAMILTON, June 19.—Run down

by a large car, which passed over his stomach, tonight, John Cochrane, a 15-year-old boy, jumped to his feet and exclaimed:

"I am all right. I am not hurt." He then pitched forward, fell unconscious to the ground and succumbed to his injuries an hour later in the General Hospital.

The car which struck him was driven by Saul Walker, a shoe merchant of this city.

On Wings of Wireless

by ARTHUR B. REEVE

CHAPTER XII

ALL TELL THE WORLD.

GARRICK spread the net far and wide to intercept the "Bac-chante." Within a few minutes he had the Radio Central, the New York police wireless station, all the big private broadcasting stations, even

Defoe's apparatus in the boat-house ending out periodical signals of alarm. He had turned the radio world veritably upside down in the search.

Forenoon lengthened into afternoon. Dick worked feverishly tuning up his Defoe's automatic hydro-plane.

"This is one of the newest of sciences," he remarked as Garrick watched.

"Tautomatics?"

"Yes. You probably know it by another name. There is something weird, fascinating about the very idea. I sit here safely, up stairs, turning switches, pressing buttons, depressing levers. Ten miles away

a vehicle, an auto, a ship, an airplane, a submarine, obeys me!

"It may carry enough of the latest and most modern explosive that after-war science can invent, enough to explode to rival the worst of earthquakes. Yet it obeys my will.

It goes where I direct it. It explodes where and when I want it. And it wipes off the face of the earth anything that I want annihilated. That's

tautomatics."

Garrick regarded his friend with genuine admiration. "I won't go into my radio-combinator, my telecombinator, my audio relay and all the rest," went on Dick. "You see, I have letters on the keys of the radio combinator—forward, back, start pro-pellor motor, stop propeller motor, rudder right, rudder left, stop signals forward and aft, and all the rest. It's really delayed control.

The machinery is always ready, but it delays until the right, selective impulse is given. And I take advantage of the delay to have the message-signal repeated back to me, to check up on it."

"It's your back!"

"It was Nita Walden in her car with McKay before the laboratory.

"She called me from Southport; I went over and met her train on the main line. And I've brought her here first. Guy, telephone to Glenn;

"I've been how anxious the Guy is."

"But how? What of Ruth?"

"Queried Dick."

"Ask Viru. She has come to tell you all she knows. I made her these youngsters are getting told down. Maybe Ruth will hear to reason when she gets back. Oh, if I only had her!"

"I'll say that, too!" cried Dick.

"Tell us, Viru."

"Well, you see, we found a duck boat in the hold, a boat for one. One of us could get off. Ruth made the choice—insisted—settled it. It had to be done in a second. She made me go—seven when I fought her to stay."

Dick grasped Nita Walden's hand in emotion. It was a splendid piece of heroism of Ruth.

"Don't you see," explained Viru, talking fast as she poured out what she knew. "The jig was up for the gang. All they wanted was to make a clean get-away, take all the jewelry and the money. They waited until the last minute to get fifty thousand for the Inner Circle and the other stuff. But it failed. Then the only thing that remained was to get away—with Ruth—the ten-million dollar heiress, as they speak of her."

"You know, the 'Bacchante' had been taking the stuff off run-runners. It was sheer bluff, posing as revenue enforcement. It was stored in the 'Sea Vamp.' Every time anyone drove into the city, they would take a couple of cases or more to the Inner Circle or the Garage. From the Inner Circle and the Garage it was distributed. They were wealthy bootleggers. To the wealthy, bootleggers are aristocracy."

Nita sighed. "Up to a point, then, perhaps Ruth didn't need saving from herself as much as I thought.

She was on the trail of something big—this conspiracy. . . . And she almost landed her fish. . . . Only to get into trouble from which it's taking all the skill of Guy and Dick to save her."

Viru's eyes were restlessly glancing through the window down the road. Suddenly her face beamed.

She forgot her rumpled dress as it had dried on her, her disordered hair.

"Glenn's coming! I hear his engine.

Oh, boy!" Out of the room she flew.

Viru and Glenn came up the road.

The story was repeated. Garrick to turned to his radiophone; Garrick to sitting cranks reports of the whereabouts of the fast coast cruiser.

"Viru," said Glenn ardently, the moment they were alone. "I won't take 'No' this time—nor even

"Wait."

Viru blushed. "Just as soon as we get Ruthie."

"Here's the first report that I place any confidence in," shouted

Garrick in a tone that could be heard all over the boat-house. "It's from a freighter—just off Seaville, sighted a boat answering the description of the 'Bacchante' putting into the Great South Bay."

"That checks up with Ruth's Fire Island message!" called Dick from below. "The 'Bacchante' must have rounded the island. I guess

she could; she's fast enough."

"How's the 'Bacchante' coming on,

Dick?"

"With the first wireless clue.

"It'll be twilight in an hour. Can you hurry it up?"

"All ready now. I've been all dressed up with nowhere to go for fifteen minutes!" called back Dick from below.

"They swung open the doors and ran the radiophone down the skidway, calling back to McKay to drive

Mrs. Walden across the island to Seaville. The radiophone struck the quiet water of the harbor. The propellers rose to the surface. They were in a cloud of spray, leaping lightly from the surface to the air, and waving a gay goodbye as Nita clasped her hands as if in prayer and Viru drew close to Glenn.

The flight to Seaville was only a matter of minutes for there was no time to lose before the dawn. The radiophone was a hasty survey disclosed no sign of the "Bacchante"

but there was a tremendous crowd down on a bulkhead and they could see them waving and hear their shouts. Dick brought the radiophone down to the water and a couple of small motor boats put out. "The hands.

Ben came lopping up, bowing and scrapping and wiggling his ears joyfully.

"Just in time for lunch, my dears," said he. "And say, that Blossom

here is some cook."

Mrs. Blossom blushed on her pink nose and looked proudly at her husband.

"Yes, but I've a good provider," she declared. "Ben brings home the nicest things."

"Depends upon the time of year,

my dears," said Ben importantly.

"Lettuce and radish tops and new-pea shoots are at their best just now. Um Yum! Blossom can make a salad that would melt in your mouth. But there, come in and find out for yourselves."

Ben bowed them in and set chairs and Blossom brought in the food.

That was the time for the Twins to tell how they wished they could find poor old Peabody and take him home.

"Say," said Ben suddenly. "I saw a strange today! Ragged as a beggar, too, as you say the Moon-Man field right beside Farmer Smith's sass-patch garden."

"Oh, will you show us where he

STEWART SURE INDIANS MERIT "SQUARE DEAL"

Squelches Meighen's Petty Attack On His Stand On Six Nations.

WOULD INSTILL MANHOOD

Believes Desire For Citizenship Will Mature of Itself Without Force.

BY RANDOLPH J. CHURCHILL.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, OTTAWA.

June 19.—Amendments to the Indian act to abolish compulsory enfranchisement, an "invention" of the late Tory government, and to clear titles to reserve lands held by Indian returned soldiers, received their second and third readings tonight, and the bill is now ready for the Senate.

Opposition came from Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen following the second reading.

In the former premier's attack, and the reply of Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of Indian affairs, the attitude of the two parties towards the Indians was clearly exemplified.

Mr. Meighen criticized Mr. Stewart for dealing generously with the Six Nations Indians, although he did not name any tribe in particular.

"The minister has received threats," said the leader of the opposition. "He should have sternly faced them. He should have surmounted the difficulties. The unrest will break out again. They will come back later with a courage born of past successes."

"The law passed by the late government," Mr. Meighen said, "would force the Indians to assume citizenship only after they had passed strict examinations. The government sought to gradually take the Indian from his state of worship and to give him the responsibilities of citizenship."

Accept Responsibility.

The Indians would not take that responsibility of their own accord. They did not take the view that the government's obligation ceased when they were able to take care of themselves.

Mr. Stewart replied that the common sense of the Indian people was not to be trifled with. He said that the Indian people were not to be trifled with. He said that the pulsory enfranchisement act had never been enforced because the Indians had been up in arms against it. They resented giving up their property by compulsion. There was nothing to stop an Indian when he secured possession of his land from selling it to a white man, a practice which they feared would break up their reserves.

The minister stated that the government rather than force the Indians to do a thing which was repulsive to him, was seeking to gradually educate them to the point where they of their own accord would desire citizenship.

It was the intention of the Liberal government to try and instill within them the real essence of manhood. To inculcate a desire for citizenship. To allow them to take responsibility rather than force it upon them.

In his belief greater success would be obtained by a candid agreement was made with the dissatisfied tribes.

In the house this afternoon the prime minister, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, moved a resolution approving the treaties signed on behalf of Canada by Sir Robert Borden at the Washington disarmament conference.

Laud U. S. Effort.

The prime minister said it was unnecessary to deal at any length with the genesis, procedure and results of that conference. He thought the house would wish to express appreciation on behalf of Canada of the services to this and other countries of the president of the United States, who had called the conference.

He also wished to express Canada's appreciation to Sir Robert Borden, the Canadian delegate, for his splendid work at that conference.

Dealing with the essential features of the treaty signed, Premier King said that these would not be ratified on behalf of Canada until both Houses of Parliament had approved of them. He outlined the five treaties that had been signed, in two of which, that relating to limitation of naval armaments and the Pacific treaty, Canada was particularly interested.

Dealing with the treaty regarding limitation of armaments, Mr. King mentioned as of special interest to Canada, the fact that the Dominion is exempted from the provision which preserves the status quo in regard to naval bases and fortifications in the Pacific. The maintenance of the status quo implies that no new fortifications are to be erected, and the exemption of the Canadian islands in the Pacific from this provision leaves it open for Canada to fortify them as she may deem fit.

Mr. Meighen joined heartily in the tributes paid to the representative of Canada at the Washington conference. No one was so well able to represent Canada and her interests generally as Sir Robert Borden. The peace conference had not meant more to humanity than the Washington conference.

Proud of Empire.

The opposition leader joined as well in a tribute to the United States in seizing the opportune moment boldly to take the responsibility for calling together the great powers of the world in order to achieve something around which all could gather to reduce armaments. Mr. Meighen was also proud of being a citizen of the British Empire. The empire representatives had urged proposals, the acceptance of which would have meant further disarmament. The British Empire has stood alone for the elimination of the submarine.

agreed, he said.

"In the meantime, however, Britain had to keep pace with other nations which continued to build submarines."

"Canada was much interested in Far Eastern questions, despite the fact that she was apparently not very much concerned geographically. Happily, the Far Eastern problem had been mostly cleared up."

Hon. T. A. Crerar joined in the tribute to the United States president, and believed the Washington conference had marked a great step toward the settlement of international disputes.

The agreement to limit armaments was one of the most hopeful which had been achieved. Great value attached to the acceptance by the powers of the principle of settling difficulties by negotiation.

Value Pacific Treaty.

The Pacific treaty was of great importance to Canada. Mr. Crerar hoped that the treaties would be unanimously ratified by Parliament, not only as manifestation of Canada's place in world affairs, but also as a means of making the future of world peace brighter.

Ernest Lapointe, minister of marine and fisheries, said the four-power treaty was a milestone in the history of the world.

Approval was also given by the house today to proposed amendments of the covenant of the League of Nations adopted at the last meeting of the assembly of the league.

One of the amendments proposed that the assembly shall fix the rules for the selection of the four members to act on the council with the representatives of the four great powers.

An amendment to article six, said the prime minister, was of particular interest to Canada, because it provided for a new allocation of the expenses of the secretariat. Canada had contributed $200,000 a year to the expenses of the secretariat for the first two years. Under the new allocation she would contribute $150,000.

It was hoped that this amount would be further reduced at the next meeting of the assembly of the League of Nations.

An amendment to article twelve merely provided that nations should be required to submit their differences to "judicial settlement," in addition to the other means of adjustment mentioned in the covenant before resorting to war. This amendment resulted from the formation of a permanent court of international justice.

DISCUSS WHEAT BOARD.

OTTAWA, June 19. — (By Canadian Press) — Progress on the bill to create a Canadian wheat board came to a somewhat abrupt halt in the House of Commons this evening, when the Government requested time to consider an amendment proposed by R. M. Johnson (Progressive, Moose Jaw). The seventeen clauses contained in the bill had passed the committee, but clause 18, moved as an amendment by Mr. Johnson, introduced a new compulsory feature.

Mr. Johnson's amendment read: "The board shall have power by regulation approved by the lieutenant-governor-in-council of any province which enacted such legislation as in the last preceding section described, to prohibit or to impose such conditions or restrictions as may be deemed advisable upon the export of wheat from the province except by or under the authority and direction of the board."

Discussion on the clauses of the bill had been under way for some time when the amendment was introduced. When it was read the prime minister stated that the government required time to consider the legal and other aspects of it, and, therefore, he asked that the committee rise and report progress.

Previously the house in committee had defeated an amendment by Hon. A. K. MacLean, which Mr.

ant-governor-in-council of any province which enacted such legislation as in the last preceding section described, to prohibit or to impose such conditions or restrictions as may be deemed advisable upon the export of wheat from the province except by or under the authority and direction of the board."

Discussion on the clauses of the bill had been under way for some time when the amendment was introduced. When it was read the prime minister stated that the government required time to consider the legal and other aspects of it, and, therefore, he asked that the committee rise and report progress.

Previously the house in committee had defeated an amendment by Hon. A. K. MacLean, which Mr.

MacLean said was for the protection of grain dealers who had contracted for future deliveries in grain.

Mr. Johnson, in moving his amendment, declared it was necessary to make the act workable. Without it buyers would induce farmers to ship grain outside the province and then sell to them.

Right Hon. A. Meighen charged the government with submitting an unworkable bill, which was not what the agriculture committee's report had requested.

"The government," he charged, "is putting teeth in the mouth of a deformed monstrosity."

In reply, the prime minister declared the Government was prepared to carry out the details of the report as far as possible.

The bill will be taken up again, probably tomorrow or Wednesday.

FIND REST FROM LABORS AT PORT

Londoners Realize Advantages in Accommodation Provided At Lakeside.

Dancing, Swimming and Other Sports Prove Big Attractions.

When summer comes Port Stanley is annexed by London. So easily is it for Londoners to get to the port and so numerous are the attractions there that thousands of London's citizens spend days, week-ends and weeks there. It is London's haven from the heat.

Port Stanley can justly lay claim to being one of the better class summer resorts of the continent. It has all the facilities of an up-to-date watering place, including an excellent beach, a modern bathhouse, an amusement park, picnic grounds and a casino.

There is something doing all the time at Port Stanley. So refreshing are the waters of Lake Erie that visitors often spend the greater part of the day in the lake. For children there is a gradually-sloping beach and sliding board, and for adult swimmers the diving-board far out in deep water.

Along the board walk scores of lunch counters, games and other concessions have been established.

Dancing Proves Attraction.

At night the dancing pavilion, which has an excellent floor and a good orchestra, is one of the centres of attraction. Chief among other drawing cards are the free movies on the beach. All the latest motion picture releases are shown.

The Erie Amusement Company offers much to pleasure-seekers, including a roller-coaster, merry-go-rounds and other devices. The company has improved its grounds greatly this year, having planted shrubs and built better roads.

The London and Port Stanley Railway has also improved its property. Its cafeteria is giving the best of service as usual, and its bathhouse is being well patronized.

On the hill at the lakeside is the ideal place for a picnic. There one will find ample space to run off a sports program, and to serve lunches to hundreds of picnickers. An incline railway solves the problem of reaching the top of the heights, over which a cooling breeze from the lake is always blowing.

The roads to Port Stanley are in excellent shape for motoring.

Londoners who do not care to motor can ride in the comfortable electric cars on the London and Port Stanley Railroad, which are noted for speed. And the return fare is reasonable.

Many Roomers in Port.

Rooms can be rented for a comparatively small sum at the resort. Many Londoners and other residents of Western Ontario who do not care to build or rent a cottage take advantage of this. In fact, one will find almost as many roomers as cottagers at Port Stanley.

There are, however, a great number of summer homes at the lakeside, which have been built by Londoners, and which are occupied during the entire summer. Residents of the city find it possible to live beside the lake, and at the same time go daily to their work in London because of the cheap fares on the municipally-owned road.

In comparison with other resorts throughout Canada, Port Stanley holds a high place in the estimation of vacationists.

FRENCH OFFER TO CO-OPERATE BUOYS PARLEY

Creates Optimistic Tone in Deliberations of The Hague Conference.

FORM SUB-COMMISSIONS

Delegates Advance Arrangements For Meeting With Russians.

THE HAGUE, June 19.—France's decision to co-operate with the other European powers in the forthcoming negotiations with the Russian Soviet had a buoyant influence in the conference here today. Arrangements for the meeting with the Bolsheviks were advanced by the formation of three sub-commissions. In accordance with the Genoa agreement the names of the countries represented on the various sub-commissions will be communicated to Moscow tomorrow.

France's adherence, it was officially announced at today's session by M. Benoist, is not without reservations, however. The French minister read a letter saying that he had been instructed by his government to make

Embarrassing Hairs Can Be Quickly Removed

(Beauty Culture)

Hairs can be easily removed from the under-arms, neck and face by this quick, painless method. Mix into a stiff paste some powdered talc and water, spread on hairy surface and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be free from hair or bloom. Excepting in very stubborn growths, one application is sufficient. To avoid disappointment, buy the talc in an original package and mix fresh.—Adv.

Aims To Wed and Live For a Century!

CHICAGO, June 19.—Harold F. McCormick today ordered arrangements rushed for a romantic trip to Europe with his daughter Mathilde. From his bed at Wesley Memorial Hospital, where interstitial glands of a poor youth were reported to have been transplanted into his body, the millionaire harvester king directed plans which will take him to Paris within a month.

There, after seeing his 17-year-old daughter Mathilde safely married to Max Oser, her Swiss hostler suitor, he will be free to wed the beautiful Ganna Walska, Polish opera star.

McCormick's recovery from the operation, performed at midnight last Monday in a secluded, walled and guarded wing of the hospital, has been rapid.

Physicians feared for a time that his recovery might be retarded somewhat by the anger shown when he learned that the reports about the nature of the operation had become public. So anxious was McCormick that no publicity be given to the operation that he is reported to have offered to triple the fee of Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse, noted gland specialist, in case no word of the surgery leaked out. The agreement was known that France would be represented at the meeting on June 26 with the Russians, and then added:

Makes Reservation.

"In authorizing me to make this notification, the French government desires to recall that this meeting is merely a reunion of experts and referendums; that all political questions will be eliminated from the negotiations and that France retains her liberty to withdraw her experts at any moment if the attitude of the Soviet government representatives appears to render it necessary."

Supporting his minister, M. Alphonse, specialist on private property held by the French in Russia, insisted on the wisdom of keeping in mind that all decisions must be referred to the home government.

President Van Karnebeek announced that all the countries represented at The Hague with the exception of Albania, had decided to have delegates on the central non-Russian commission, each country being represented by not more than two persons. He recommended that understood to call for the payment of $75,000 in case the secret of the operation was kept.

McCormick, according to friends, desires to live to be 100 years of age.

The central commission should meet to consider "certain directing principles" before the arrivals of the Russians. It would, in his opinion, be useful also if the president of the central commission and the presidents of the three sub-commissions should form a kind of central commission to insure unity of work and progress. This suggestion was adopted.

Lauds Van Karnebeek.

After declaring that France's definite admission was a happy augury, Sir Phillip Lloyd-Greame, of the British delegation, warmly congratulated Jonkheer Van Karnebeek on his "inspiring leadership." He realized that the Dutch foreign minister's political position at home made it difficult for him to accept the permanent presidency, because the decisions of the conference must be considered by him later as a minister of the Dutch cabinet. He hoped, however, that the minister would accept the honorary presidency.

The delegates held informal meetings today in order to reach an agreement on the appointment of a president of the main commission and the chairman of the sub-commissions in the hope that their elections on Wednesday morning, to which day the session was adjourned, should cause no friction and be made, if possible, by acclamation.

NEW SERVICE CAFE OPENS SATURDAY

Richmond Street Restaurant
Will Present Many Novel Features.

Restaurant service by a new and novel method will be introduced into London today at the New Service Cafe and Lunch, 362 Richmond street. The special feature of the new method is prompt service. By arrangement of the seating space in a horseshoe design this result is achieved.

The lunch will be under the direction of John and Constantine Zafiron, who bring the idea from Toronto, where it first met with success on its introduction into Canada. Another special feature of the lunch will be the elimination of the necessity of waiters passing from the cuisine to the dining-room. This is overcome by a special double partition device, with two open passages, through one of which orders are given, and through the other, of which they are received.

Black and white forms the basis of the cafe decorative scheme. The black being the woodwork, and the white the marble of walls and tables. In addition to the prompt service which the new idea enables patrons to receive, sanitary service is also assured.

DISCUSS DATES OF NEXT SESSION

OTTAWA, June 19.—(By Canadian Press.)—With the end of the present session at hand members are concerned themselves to some extent with the probable date of the next session. For a time there was a strong feeling in favor of resumption of the practice of meeting in the fall months, but that is believed to have been abandoned.

Present indications, judging by the expressions voiced to the party whips and by them passed along to the government, are in favor of Parliament being called as early as possible after Jan. 6 next, and then driving through in an attempt to finish as early in May as possible.

BATHER, BITTEN BY SHARK, DIES IN ARMS OF PAL

"Tiger of Sea" Terrorizes
Florida Resort After Girl
Meets Death.

IS PULLED UNDER WAVES

Companion Signals For Help and Stands by After Attack of Killer.

TAMPA, Fla., June 19.—Terror of a "tiger of the sea" kept bathers in Florida waters close to shore today, following a battle in which Dorothy McCatchie, champion girl swimmer, was bitten to death by a giant barracuda, or a shovel-nose shark.

Mary Buhner, 17 years old, companion of Miss McCatchie on the fatal swim, will be recommended for a Carnegie Medal for her heroism in holding the dying girl in her arms and signalling for help from shore after the killer had made its attack. Two deep wounds in the girl's legs proved fatal, and she died in her companion's arms.

The girls were swimming in the ship channel of Tampa Bay, off St. Petersburg, about half a mile from shore. Both were members of the state champion swimming team.

Pulled Under Waves.
Just as they reached the channel buoy, Miss Buhner was horrified to see her companion drawn beneath the surface. A moment later Miss McCatchie came to the surface, the waters about her stained with blood. "I've been bitten," she gasped. "My leg—" and she went down again.

Miss Buhner, terrified, kicked vigorously with her feet to frighten off the attacking fish, and seized and supported her companion, who was rapidly weakening. A large artery in Miss McCatchie's leg had been severed, and she was unable to do more than cling weakly to Miss Buhner's shoulders.

Battles To Save Girl.
Although nearly fainting herself at the blood and in fear for her companion, Miss Buhner waved frantically to persons on shore. For a long time they did not see her signals. Finally help was sent out. By the time a motorboat arrived, Miss Buhner had held up her dying friend for half an hour.

The giant fish is believed to have been patrolling the wake of gulf streamers in search of food.

FATALLY BURNED DURING CEREMONY

QUEBEC, June 19.—Two young girls, 7 and 8 years old, daughters of A. Boucher of Mahamk, Abitibi, were so severely burned during the Corpus Christi procession yesterday in that village that they succumbed about four hours after the accident. Another young girl, daughter of Mr. D. Lambert, was also severely burned, but she is expected to survive. The young girls were impersonating angels in a repository, and candles set fire to their clothing.

EXHIBITS NUMBER 175 IN NUKOL CASE

TORONTO, June 19.—Miss M. Grace Snowball, a former employee of the Nukol Co., was on the witness stand this morning in the $400,000 conspiracy to defraud charge against Hiram F. Slater and Leslie J. Thompson, before Judge Coatsworth and jury in the general sessions. She identified several books as being cash books and records of sales of the Nukol Fuel Co., but as she did not have charge of the books she could not throw much light on the transactions contained in them.

The number of exhibits in the case has now reached 175, and the trial is expected to continue for about a week, as the crown's case is not yet completed, although Crown Attorney McRuer states that he is nearly finished with the evidence.
