THE WEST ELGIN

Commissioners Report on the Election Frauds There.

Mr. McNish Exonerated—The Sheriff was Negligent—Doubt Cast on Pritchett's Evidence.

Toronto, July 12.—[The report of Judges McTavish, Barron and Morgan on the irregularities in the West Elgin Provincial election resulting in the return of Donald McNish, has been forwarded to the Lieutenant-Governor and will shortly be made public. It is understood that the commissioners find that the fraudulent actions committed were not sufficiently numerous to affect the result of the contest, and that while half a dozen deputies were improperly appointed—some in fictitious names, and as a result of deceit practiced on the sheriff, who was returning officer—Mr. McNish knew nothing of these frauds. The commissioners blame the sheriff for not looking more closely into the applications of persons seeking to serve as deputies. The sensational affidavits of Pritchett, and his evidence are not given credence, as they are unsupported in so far as the commissioners could find by corroborated evidence, and the evidence of Pritchett's brother-in-law, Hastings, who could possibly have confirmed Pritchett's story as to being paid to go to Detroit, and keep quiet there, could not be produced, although every opportunity was afforded Hastings to give evidence. The judgment of the commissioners on Pritchett's case is that while he was smuggled into a position as deputy returning officer by some persons to aid in securing the election of McNish illegally by switching or miscalling ballots, he did not switch eighteen or twenty ballots as he claims to have done, because the inspection at Osgoode Hall, held on March 24, following, discovered only three of a difference from the statement made and signed by Pritchett at the close of the poll and because, as the commissioners find, no one had access to the box and papers after their delivery to the returning officer, except the returning officer, and the clerk of the Crown in Chancery, neither of whom tampered with them. The result of the voting at this poll, according to the statement of Pritchett, was 27 of a majority for McNish; the result of the inspection at Osgoode Hall was to reduce it to 24. This vote, however, was entirely disregarded and not counted by the returning officer when he cast up the number of votes for each candidate, for the reason that the returns of Pritchett were not properly made up.

MR. WOOD MAY BE FIRED

For Denouncing a Pro-Boerite.

SAID HE OUGHT TO BE HANGED FOR WISHING EVERY CANADIAN IN SOUTH AFRICA WOULD BE SHOT.

Ottawa, July 12.—In the Commons yesterday on the motion to go into supply, Mr. Monet, Liberal member of the House, who followed Mr. Bourassa in his pro-Boer policy, brought to the attention of the government the letter, written by H. Wood, collector of customs at St. John's, P. Q., to the News, of that city. In this letter, which Mr. Monet read to the House, with comments, Mr. Wood, replying to attacks made upon him in the Canada France and La Patrie, wrote that "after hearing one of the Boer sympathizers say the government had no right to send men to South Africa, that our brave soldier boys had no business there, and that he hoped they would all be shot, and not one ever return, I made the remark to him that the British hung several like him in 1837, and they ought to have hanged more." Mr. Monet said it was a case which called for Mr. Wood's dismissal from the public service.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the matter was one which until to-day had not been brought to the attention of the government, as no complaint had been made against the official in question. He went on to say that it appeared an alteration had taken place between Mr. Wood, the collector of customs at St. John's, and a man named Polvin, a railway employee, at that place over the trouble in Montreal in connection with the action of the Laval students. Polvin said that in some quarters the feeling is not so much whatever to send the contingents to South Africa, and he desired, for his part, that they would all be killed. Wood was said to have replied that the British government had hanged several French Canadians in 1837, and it was a pity more of the same race had not been hanged. Now, Mr. Monet said, and very properly, he (Sir Wilfrid) was glad to repeat his statement that he would attach no importance whatever to this alteration, made to the language of the letter, which was reproduced in La Patrie, by Wood, responsible as he was under the circumstances, but that afterwards he wrote a letter to the press, and in which letter he repeated what he had said before, namely, that it was a pity more French-Canadians had not been hanged in 1837. "Was it," said Sir Wilfrid, "drawn out rather by the article in La Patrie?" Mr. Foster asked.

WILL GET COLD JUSTICE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that the article first appeared in La Canada France, and was reproduced in La Patrie. What Wood repeated and gloried in was his statement about French-Canadians, which, all would agree was most unbecomingly reprehensible. He should have remembered that not only French-Canadians, but English-Canadians, were hanged in 1837—men who were just as good as the French-Canadians of the British Crown, but to vindicate every British subject. The Toronto city council was now erecting a monument to the chief rebel in Upper Canada, William Lyon Mackenzie. The judgment of the people of Canada long ago was that William Lyon Mackenzie and those who fought on the same side in Lower Canada, were fathers of the Canadian liberty we now enjoy. It was unfortunate for any man, especially a civil servant, to recall in a spirit of hostility to the French race, the events of that day. One thing, however, to be said in Mr. Wood's favor, was that he pleads provocation. He had a right to be heard, and to have his full conduct enquired into, and it would not do for the government at the moment to offer any opinion as to whether he was guilty or not guilty, even though for his (Sir Wilfrid's) part he denounced and repudiated the language used. Unfortunately, however, sometimes have some excuse. It would not do for the government to pronounce any opinion on the matter. Mr. Monet had not asked that Mr. Wood's conduct be investigated.

Mr. Bergeron—"No," he asked that Wood be dismissed.

Mr. Monk—"Found guilty."

"That," replied Sir Wilfrid Laurier, "may follow according to what we find as to the language used by Mr. Wood, which, I think, everybody must admit as most reprehensible and offensive and such as could not be tolerated in a country like this." At the same time Mr. Wood, he continued, had a right to say he was acting under provocation, and to be heard by the government before the government took action, and the government would look very carefully into the matter. While what Wood said was offensive, nobody would believe that, while in Quebec there were sympathizers with the Boer cause, any man in Canada could harbor such a horrible sentiment as to hope that all our soldiers in South Africa would be killed. In conclusion, Sir Wilfrid Laurier promised that the government would look into the matter without fear or favor and render justice. Mr. Bourassa said the important fact was that a month after the personal quarrel the collector of customs should deliberately write a letter, saying that all people sympathizing with the Boers were traitors and should be hanged, just as the men who fought for liberty in 1837 should be hanged. Major Beattie—"He did not say that."

TRAITORS PLENTIFUL.

Mr. Bourassa retorted that what was said amounted to the same thing. "I am very glad, indeed," said the member for Labelle, "to have this occasion of pointing out that a man who favors the intervention of Canada in the war is obliged to admit in a public document that in the particular locality in the Province of Quebec in which he resides more than half the people think and speak exactly in the same way as a few members of this House have had the courage to think and speak." Continuing, he spoke of the dismissal of an Ontario official named Muir for talking annexation, and said:—"If a man is to be dismissed from a public office who takes an active side with either political party in this country, surely a public servant who thus denounces a large number of our people, and who goes to the length of saying that so many loyal subjects should be hanged, should not be allowed to go scot free."

Mr. Foster said that the speech of Mr. Bourassa emphasized the necessity for great care in dealing with this case. Mr. Bourassa had generalized very largely on the association attributed to Wood in regard to persons who should have been hanged. But if the letter were read it would be found that the persons to whom the expression was applied were persons like Polvin, who hoped all the Canadians in South Africa would be killed. The honorable gentleman opposite had no right to say that to the million and a half of people in Quebec. There was no necessity for any heat about the matter, but there was every necessity for all to hold back their opinions till they knew what had actually been said and then let justice be done.

MR. WOOD MISREPRESENTED.

Mr. Clarke Wallace was the last speaker. He said that seldom in the House had he ever heard such gross misrepresentation of a man's word than the member for Labelle had been guilty of. Mr. Bourassa had misstated the language of Wood, and he was sorry to say, Sir Wilfrid Laurier had done the same thing. The Premier replied that he spoke without having a copy of Wood's letter in his hand.

Mr. Wallace quoted the letter in full to show that Mr. Wood's indignation was expressed against Polvin and men like him, of grossly disloyal character. He was not speaking of French-Canadians—never mentioned them. Mr. Wood wrote:—"My remark was intended for such men as the Boer sympathizers above mentioned, and not for such men as Mr. Polvin, Dr. Elsie and other brave Canadian boys, whose actions have been such that all loyal British subjects are justly proud of them." Mr. Wallace was severe upon such disloyalty as Mr. Bourassa preached, and said that Mr. Wood at least condemned those who used such vile and outrageous language. The country could never see a man punished under such circumstances without trial. It was the man who would listen to such disloyal, scoundrelous sentiments without denouncing them who deserved condemnation. The Premier's calling Wood's sentiments offensive and reprehensible rather than disloyal, was a great first and trial afterwards. The country would await with a good deal of interest the course adopted towards a man who had at least shown a patriotic and a brave spirit.

MR. LARKIN'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Huron Expositor.—Mr. Wm. Carnochan, of Tuckersmith, and Rev. Mr. Larkin, of Seaford, had quite an exciting experience on Tuesday evening. They were driving into town from Harpurhey, and when opposite the residence of Mr. Robert Scott, one of the front wheels came off the buggy. Mr. Larkin jumped from the rig and escaped injury. Mr. Carnochan was not so fortunate, as he was thrown out and had his hand hurt. The wheel coming off frightened the horse and made for the ditch, colliding with a telegraph pole, where it left the buggy and made for home at a 250 clip. The buggy was badly smashed and the harness was pretty badly demoralized, but the gentlemen may congratulate themselves, that they escaped as well as they did and that it was only the rig that was smashed.

LOOKS OMINOUS.

Non-receipt of News From Peking Causes Forebodings.

Li Hung Chang Summoned to the Chinese Capital—He is Probably Required to Smooth Matters Over With the Powers.

London, Thursday, July 12, 4 a. m.—The Chinese situation again bears a most ominous aspect. Ten days ago Sir Robert Hart despatched his last message, declaring that the situation was desperate, and since then no word has come from the Europeans in Peking. According to the Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent, Li-Hung-Chang has received an imperial decree ordering his immediate departure for Peking, presumably to break the news of the Peking tragedy to the European powers, and in his usual role of negotiator with Europe in different matters to endeavor to act as mediator and to avert the vengeance of the powers. To add to the grimness of this suggestion all advices from Tien Tsin tend to confirm the reports of the perilous condition of the allied forces and the optimistic Chinese rumors. Unless reinforcement speedily reaches Tien Tsin another disaster may be expected. The Daily Mail's Tien Tsin correspondent, telegraphing July 5, says: "The situation is about as bad as it can well be. I only trust that we shall not want relieving ourselves. A forward movement is impossible. From thirty to forty thousand troops are wanted, and there are only ten thousand here. The foreign troops are working well together, but it is inconvenient that there is no supreme commander. In some quarters the feeling is to rescue Peking and clear out in favor of Russia." Under Tien Tsin correspondents say that no advance is possible until September 1, and explanations are being asked by the papers here of the tardy action of Japan in sending the troops, since it is known that the Japanese are willing to send them, and Russia raised no objection to her doing so. It is hinted that a difficulty arose as to the manner in which Japan was to be re-compensated for her heavy outlay. Rumors are current that Japan demanded the cession of a Chinese port.

PRINCE TUAN'S EDICT.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Express gives the text of a long edict of Prince Tuan, dated June 28, and addressed to the Chinese ambassadors, which the Express declares is identical with the message of Emperor Kwang-Hsu, mentioned by the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail, and with the Chinese edict published in Washington. The Express considers that the edict proves Prince Tuan's party is making no attempt to disguise the fact that the worst that could be anticipated has happened. The edict contains the following paragraphs:—"The anger of our people knew no bounds. They could not be restrained. The task of guarding the legations, which before was difficult, has now become impossible. Elsewhere, referring to the desire to protect the legations still unharmed, it says:—"If it is impossible for us to continue the protection, let it be represented to the powers that we must be held blameless, for the anger of our people grows with the rising of each sun that sees more and yet more foreigners and soldiers coming to over-run and lay waste our country and slay our people." The correspondent says the edict is intended to pave the way for a final lifting of the veil over the recent history of Peking.

On the other hand the Chinese Minister at Paris has informed M. Delcasse that Li Hung Chang has cabled him from Canton, on yesterday's date, saying that he had just received a telegram from Peking, asserting that the soldiers and others who surrounded the legations had gradually dispersed, and the revolt was decreasing.

CANADIANS IN GEORGIA.

Domination day, the Canadian national holiday, was celebrated in an appropriate manner at East Lake by members and friends of the Canadian Society of Georgia. A basket picnic had been arranged from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock in the evening, and an elaborate program, consisting of foot races, rowing and swimming contests, fishing, and dancing was indulged in. The Canadian Society of Georgia, numbers about sixty members, and the present Executive officers are—A. W. Farlinger, president; J. S. Cameron, vice-president; W. N. Phillimore, second vice-president; George Wilson Stewart, secretary; and Alfred Maddison, treasurer.—Atlanta, Georgia, Constitution. The W. N. Phillimore referred to in the above was for several years a resident of Chatham, having been an employee of the T. H. Taylor Milling Co. He is a brother of W. R. Phillimore, of Baxter St.

MICHIGAN CROP OUTLOOK.

The Michigan crop report for July contains but little that will encourage the farmer. The temperature for June was three degrees below the normal, which retarded corn and beans, but was beneficial to grass and wheat. Hailstones ruined the fruit crop in some sections, while the high winds blew down the grain in others. The wheat crop of the state will average but seven bushels to the acre. The condition of corn for the state, as compared with an average year, is 89; oats, 98; beans, 94; potatoes, 95; pastures 93. The average planted to beans, as compared with last year, is 9108, or almost a tenth less. The hay crop has been shortened somewhat by the dry weather, yet in most instances the yield exceeds that of last year, the average yield for the state being 1.42 tons per acre. The prospect for apples is on the whole better than one year ago. The peach crop promises to be a large one in many sections of the state.

IS NOT THE GOVERNMENT GOING TO CALL THESE MEN DOWN?

So far the Ontario Government has apparently taken no action in connection with the outrageous stipulation under which the local board of license commissioners granted the Aberdeen hotel authority to dispense liquid refreshments. The Government is possibly under the impression that this case is going to be allowed to drop. But it isn't. It will make excellent material in the next campaign to prove to the electors the abuses which can be perpetrated under the beautiful license system which for years has disgraced this province. It will show, too, the class of men partisanship leads the Government to place on its license boards.

Government really believed at the time the license to the Aberdeen hotel was granted that such a condition, forbidding the proprietors from purchasing supplies from the Walkerville Brewing Co., was included. But, nevertheless, such was the case. Who could think that a board of alleged business men would descend to such pettiness.

Of course, legally, they had no power to say anything about it, but in their own autocratic way, these little gods on whom the government has conferred a little brief authority, assumed unto themselves the right to regulate other people's business. They issued their mandate and the licensee well knew that if it is disobeyed her head can be chopped off at the end of the term, without cause, and with no power to appeal.

If the government permits a license board to act so childishly in one instance, they will have the same right to do it in every case. If they are permitted to say what beer a licensee is to sell, they may also instruct him where to buy his milk, potatoes and cabbage. This system carried to its logical length could be utilized by a government to close up any brewery in the province, if it so desired. All it would have to do would be to intimate to its various license boards that they should forbid licensees handling this or that firm's goods, and the firm would have to close up.

All this illustrates the rottenness of the system. A good system with poor men would be bad enough, but a rank system with commissioners who can't rise above such puerility, as ours have shown, is enough to disgust everybody. It is to be hoped for the sake of its own reputation the government will take some action in this matter and in future try and secure commissioners who will not descend to such depths of smallness as this case indicates.

Members of parliament think they are worth more than a thousand a year, and that is where they differ from the people who elect them.

The execution of young Durrant, a Canadian medical student in San Francisco, a couple of years ago for the murder of two girls in a church there, will be remembered by the reading public generally. It is now said the pastor of the church has just died and on his deathbed confessed to the crime for which Durrant suffered. This will furnish an excellent theme for discussion among those who are always prone to believe that the law is in the habit of hanging the wrong person. As for confessions of this kind we place little faith in them. They are probably the outcome of diseased minds.

The acting Minister of Public Works, like his colleague in the Government, has had a sudden awakening of interest in the welfare of Canadian workmen. After allowing the Alien Labor Act to remain a dead letter on the statute book for three years, the Government a few days ago invoked it in the case of a paving contract at Welland, and deported a dozen Italians to Buffalo. Now comes Mr. Mullock with the announcement that he has incorporated in a couple of Government contracts at Sarnia and Port Colborne a provision that none but Canadian residents shall be employed. This eleven-hour solicitude for the workingman shows how anxious, in the face of a general election, the Government is to square things up.

H. K. RIDLEY

The Ottawa Free Press, Liberal, editorially denounces the proposal of the Laurier Government to take the forthcoming census on the de jure system as "this last assault on the liberties of a free people." It further says: "The Liberals at Ottawa when in opposition, denounced the de jure system in the census on the de jure principle. Thus the Government is sliding rapidly over the precipice of broken pledges into the canon of popular disfavor." We commend the above to the Windsor Record. The Free Press believes in practicing what it preaches.

ARCHIE'S RECORD.

Ottawa Citizen.

Archie Campbell voted for Mr. Parmelee's amendment at Ottawa, declaring that the country was not ripe for prohibition.—Chatham Planet.

He also sat and kept Sir Wilfrid company upon the occasion of the singing of the National Anthem in response to Mr. Bourassa's anti-imperial speech, wearing his hat the while. Though for very shame's sake he was constrained to rise at the third line of the verse, and later, indignantly denied that he sat it out with the premier. Then, too, he was in the majority that ingloriously whitewashed Emergency Food Contractor Devlin. Yes, Archie is making a record, this session, but he doesn't propose to invite the electors of Kent to pronounce upon it.

THE EFFICACY OF PRAYER.

Charlottetown (P. E. I.) Patriot.

Pennsylvania courts have a strange case before them to adjudicate upon. Rev. E. E. Dixon, Methodist minister at Stroudsburg, one day uttered a fervent prayer against a new brewery which was being built in the neighborhood, and called upon the Almighty to blast it with lightning.

A little time afterwards during a violent storm the brewery was struck and two sons of another Methodist minister, who were working there, were injured, and though it was not totally destroyed, yet the shareholders have brought an action for damages for being made the target of pulpit imprecations. The minister claims that he cannot be held responsible for providence, and the brewers reply that providence would have done nothing if he had not stirred things up, and the lawyers are delighted at having a chance of arguing out the question of the efficacy of prayer.

BRER HOG.

A Wise Beast, a Weather Prophet and a Fine Fighter When Wild.

Hogs are not stupid—the popular impression to the contrary notwithstanding. Instead they are very wise—especially weather wise. Negroes say, "Ole Brer Hogg, he kin see da wind." Certainly Brer Hogg's behavior is sometimes such as to give a color of reason to the belief. The wind may blow softly, the sun shine warm in a clear blue sky, but if that mysterious sense warns the hog of change, he gets ready for it upon the instant.

Hogs in herd are tremendously gregarious; they feed and range and sleep in gangs. Their lead-beds are heaped together as soon as the frost falls. The older animals begin the heaping, and the pigs quickly fall in line. At first the mound is moderate, but when colder snow threatens a grove as if by magic. Not only leaves, but low bushy brush and straw sedge are gnawed off and carried in great mouthfuls to re-inforce the bed. If twenty hogs are to sleep in it it will be breast high to a man before the accumulation ceases. Then as soon as feeding is over the hogs make a dash for it, burrow under and bury themselves, head and ears, in its depths. They lie cross-and-pile, any fashion, indeed, which brings them as close together as possible. As the cold increases in the night, those upon the outer edges push under and between their sleeping mates, thus rousing them to squeal discontent.

A sucking sow makes her own bed and drives away from it every thing except her pigs. She heaps it conically, gets upon top, works herself half-way down in it, then whirls around and around, until she has hallowed for herself and her piglets a snug nest. After she lies down in it, with her pigs strung along her side, she rises upon her forelegs, and with her snout first the bed-stuff all over her litter.

Upon a bitter day the pigs do not leave the bed. Pigs of every sort indeed lie cowering through the cold unless driven out by hunger. A curious fact is that a pig will not squeal if caught and lifted by the tail. Darkly phantasmagoric take advantage of it to carry off pumpkins, cabbages, and other things of their lawful owners. But we bettle even the most-blowing and capricious who seizes upon a pig by the ear or round the middle. Piggy not only squeals, and tries to bite, but he screeching calls every other hog within hearing to a fierce attempt at rescue. Bristling, snorting, they charge down upon the offender. If he runs, they run after; if he stands, they stand about, uttering the while a peculiar sound, something between a squeal and a guttural roar. Oddly enough, sucking mothers are hardly so fierce as other members of the herd. But it is the part of wisdom to drop your pig and run, as either who you are in danger of serious injury.

Sight of a vicious or even a teasing dog, no doubt, brings back to the herd hog a memory of the time when his forehead fought off wolves. For he adopts the same method of defence—forms a ring with his stronger companions, flanks of the weaker are sheltered. The ring faces out, bristling and uttering its guttural war cry. If the dog leaps at it, it swiftly becomes a long oval, reaching out to meet and rend him.

Inside the foreleg every hog has five curious, small indentations, whose use no anatomist has ever discovered. Tradition calls them the marks of the devil, which entering into a herd of swine, made them rush violently down into the sea. They are, perhaps, an eight of an inch in depth, and as big around as a small pea. Negroes say that if by chance they become clogged the pig will not thrive, and the experience of many hog raisers goes to confirm the saying.

Hogs learn quickly to discriminate. They will let up a piglet squealing when hungry, but give no attention to any other person. They also learn their own calls a distinguished from those of other animals. Up in the region of mountains and moonshine whiskey, hogs are called with long wooden trumpets, whose sound is like that of a hunting horn, but more powerful and carrying further. Revenue vigilance is, of course, the horn's reason of being; the hogs do not awaken suspicion as would the usual calling. The hogs ranging miles of mountain-side come when they hear the trumpet a little before daylight for their beloved swill, but cannot be deceived by blasts of any other horn.

Singularly, once upon a time, three pet pigs were trained to come for their morning mush and milk at the sound of "Dixie" most vigorously sung. They never fail to hear and heed, even though a half mile off, yet paid no attention whatever to any other song or sound. Another pig, friendless and very fat, led to the way by a dog, the cows in pen, and until he was transmuted into bacon answered only to the call of "Snook cow! Snook cow!" And still another learned to regulate feeding by the sound of the bar farm bell and came grunting and growling to the trough whenever he heard its clamor. While a fat pig is about the laziest and the clumsiest of created things, one lean and hungry is among the most active in mind and body. A fearless forager, the fence that turns him has to be almost bullet and bomb proof. He learns to climb post and rail as a dog climbs, to throw down snake rail after the manner of breechy cattle, to evade barbed wire as shrewdly as a politician evades the fulfillment of a promise and to worm his way through everything in a manner to justify the angry farmer who said: "I don't know about a camel going through the eye of a needle, but if it was a hog I'd bet on his doing it every time."

No other animal has been more modified by civilization, and none reverts more quickly to the original wild type. Three generations of running wild suffice to turn the smooth round, short-muzzled Berkshire, all meat, almost no feet, into the rascally or base-splitter, thin, lank, leggy, lop-eared, sharp-nosed, an Ishmael in bristles running like deer, if running be possible, fighting as only a wild hog can fight when battle is imperative. The tusks which have been half obliterated in the process of civilization get back size and strength.

Destiny Changed.

The "Slater Shoe" is closely watched during the process of manufacture. Every shoe undergoes a careful examination after leaving the hands of each operator.

The slightest flaw in the leather or workmanship—a stitch missed—a slip of the knife, only discernible to an expert condemns the shoe that started toward the "Slater" goal to the ordinary.

The Church of England social on Saturday evening on the lawn of Jas. Attridge, was a very enjoyable affair, everything passing off pleasantly.

Among the First of July visitors were noticed Mrs. Wm. McKeough, Mrs. Thos. Stone, Miss Burns and Hector Jackson, all of Chatham.

Fred. Shaggy, of Bay City, Mich., arrived Monday evening on a two weeks' visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Shaggy.

Monday was observed as a holiday in our village, and many of our citizens spent the day at the lake.

DOVER CENTRE.

The racing craze has reached this part of the county, and contests are being held weekly and the greatest interest is being taken in the results.

T. A. Rankin with his E. & D. is on the top of the heap, but he has half a dozen fast riders after his scalp and some exciting races may be looked for in a few weeks.

Ernest Montgomery brought out his new 98 gear E. & D. on Friday night, and it is a beauty. Albert Mills has purchased one with the same gear and a 24-inch frame. He made the race interesting for Mr. Rankin who has recently won two races, and it is altogether likely that the winner of the last races will have to strike a faster clip in some future races if he expects to remain on top.

Harry Carr has bought an 84 gear E. & D. and G. McMath, who has an idea that he can keep up with the best of them got his 98 gear E. & D. on Saturday.

It is expected a contest for two or three prizes will take place this fall amongst riders of E. & D. wheels as there are now about twenty of these wheels run in this vicinity.

Discouraged

Men, who have suffered the tortures of dyspepsia, will find encouragement in the following letter. It points the way to certain help and almost certain cure. In ninety-eight cases out of every one hundred in which Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is used the result is a perfect and permanent cure. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition, strengthens the stomach, purifies the blood, and nourishes the nerves. It has cured in hundreds of cases after all other medicines have utterly failed to give relief.

There is no alcohol contained in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"Your Golden Medical Discovery" has performed a wonderful cure," writes Mr. M. H. House, of Charleston, Franklin Co., Ark. "I had the worst case of dyspepsia, the doctors say that they ever saw. After trying seven doctors I was discouraged, and everything I tried failed to give me relief. I tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and now I am cured."

Chronic dyspepsia may consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. Correspondence private. Address Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Free. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay cost of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for paper-covered book, or 50 stamps for cloth-bound volume. Address as above.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES AND DEATHS

DIED

ROBBINS.—On Tuesday, July 10th, in Chicago, Mammie, beloved wife of B.
Robbins; aged 23 years and 11 months.
The funeral will take place from her father's residence, Colborne St., tomorrow at 2 p. m., to the First Epistalian Church, and thence to Maple Leaf Cemetery.

LOCAL BRIEFS

The civic board of works have sold the stone in the present King street track to Contractors Fielder and Blight for $3.75 per cord, they to take up and remove the same.

A comparison of the weather from July 1st up till July 10, of last year with the same time this summer, shows that in '99, the lowest point reached was 64 and the highest, 92.
In July, 1900, the lowest point was 48 and the highest 95.

That drawn, squinting expression,
seen on the faces of many older people,
is often erroneously attributed to age, or "a life of care" or "raising a large family." Such alleged reasons may occasionally be valid ones, but the fact still remains that these "squinted" facial conditions are often due to defective eyes and the need of right glasses to remove muscular and nervous strain. Save your nervous energy. Let good glasses do the work now imposed on over-taxed muscular and nerve force. Glasses to fit any eye. E. J. MacIntyre, leading optician, opposite Grand Opera House.

HAD A LIVELY TIME.

Residents of Park street were treated to a lively set to Tuesday evening in which language and a club wielded by a colored woman figured conspicuously. A man endeavored to effect an entrance into the residence of Sarah Bentley. The woman didn't take kindly to his visit and met him half way with a club. She upper cut, under cut and lambasted the fellow until he cried for mercy. The man got a terrible beating but he managed to shuffle off and get out of reach finally.

IRISHMEN'S PICNIC.
The Irishmen's picnic will be held at Erieau on Wednesday, 25 inst., and extensive arrangements have been completed to make it a great success. A long list of contests are being arranged for and the selection of a number of valuable prizes has already been made. An energetic committee has about perfected all details and the list will be published in a few days. Communications addressed to Geo. M. Baird, secretary, Blenheim, will have prompt attention.

Smoked Eye-Glasses and Spectacles

Are sold by us only as a protection from wind, the sun, etc. They should never be worn for errors of refraction which can only be corrected by a refracting glass.

If you have weak eyes you should wear smoked or colored glasses on the water. They sell at 25c and upwards.

GLORIOUS 12TH.

This is the Day the Orangemen
Own the City.

Notes of the Day—Some of the Lodges Which Arrived Early in Town.

The glorious 12th
of July opened propriously for Chatham's celebration and the day was all that could be desired. Early in the morning the local lodge did its share in the decorations and had large streamers stretched across the streets with the following inscriptions:

"Love the Brotherhood," "William III,"
"Our God, Our Country, Our Queen," and
"Brethren Welcome."

At an early hour the visiting lodges began to arrive by all trains and all roads the visitors were met at the trains by the County Committee on Arrangements, consisting of County Master E. J. Neely, County Secretary Wesley Shaw, and those Biggar, Parker, Alex. Longmore, Dover, Thos. Martin, Chatham; John Sissons, Harwich and Wm. Simpson, Ridgeway.

The lodges that had arrived up till noon were:

Comber Lodge, No. 1198, under Master William Clydesdale, 50 strong, accompanied by the Leamington Band and also Thamesville Lodge, 40 strong, under Master Ben. Boothroyd, Wabash
Band.

Essex Centre Lodge, No. 796, 60 strong, under Master Warren Lee.
Orange Young Britons, of Essex, Master George Bradt, Essex Centre
Band.

lign, 20 strong.

Northwood Lodge, No. 865, 40 strong,
Master Bartlett, with their own Fire and Drum Band, under Walter Osterhout.

strong.

strong, Master Sam. Biggar, with their own Fire and Drum Band.

Band, led by Ed. Fleming.

Band.

Henwick L. O. L., No. 825, Master
Wm. Byker, 50 strong.

The East Middlesex lodges arrived on the noon trains in time for the procession.

CELEBRATION NOTES.
It was a proud day for King William.

The merchants did not half decorate up for the occasion.

Tom Martin makes rather a good looking marshal when he's all spruced up for the twelfth.

The hotels nearly all ran out their banners.

Ald. Geo. Liddy was showing his colors by wearing a flaming Orange tie.

It is just 210 years since King William crossed the Boyne.

The Chatham lodge has a right to be proud of the success of their celebration.

The Comber Ladies Lodge was about 40 strong.

Everywhere to-day orange ribbons and clothes and everywhere the members of the lodges.

It was the greatest Orange celebration ever held in Chatham.

The air was full of Orange Feather,
No surrender, and God Save the Queen.

The procession this afternoon was the largest Orange parade ever seen in Chatham.

Lodge after lodge and band after band spread out nearly a mile in length.

A colored youth constituted himself a guard of honor for one detachment of L. O. L.'s on King street. No serious objection would have been taken to this, however, had he not waved a loud green flag and said things not to be found in any standard dictionary.

The second chapter of this tale is the last. The town and tattered green flag was last seen in a rear yard half an hour afterwards. That is all.

CLOSE TO GOOD-BYE.

That is supposed to be Sir Robert Hart's Last Message.

Che Foo, Sunday, July 8.—An artillery duel is proceeding at Tien Tsin.
The Chinese guns are so masked that the allies find difficulty in locating them.

A LAST MESSAGE.
New York, July 12.—A despatch to the Journal from Che Foo, July 8, says:
A courier from Sir Robert Hart, in Pekin, has just arrived bringing this message, dated June 25: "Close to good-bye. Near the end."

LITTLE TO HOPE FOR.
London, July 12.—To-day's news tends to confirm the pessimism in London concerning the fate of the international colony in Peking. Observers see in the edict from Peking and other information emanating from Chinese official sources only attempts to gain time, and desperate anxiety on the part of someone to make an apology for the outrages committed at the Capital. The latest news from Tien Tsin considerably intensifies the general alarm. The lack of cohesion among the allies and the consequent failure to make headway render the situation critical.

IN A HUMAN SKULL

Teacupful of Diamonds and Other
Gems Found at Galesburg.

Supposed to Have Belonged to a Mysterious Doctor Who Disappeared
40 Years Ago.

Galesburg, Mich., July 12.—Forty years ago an old doctor, who had practiced in Galesburg for a considerable period, mysteriously disappeared. For a long time previous to the occurrence robberies had been frequent, but no clue had ever been obtained. On Tuesday, in clearing out an ancient garret, there was found a skull which was identified as having belonged to the doctor.

It was an object of considerable curiosity, and was frequently handled, and as some boys were using it over, a hidden spring was accidentally touched, causing a section at the top of the skull to fly off, revealing a teacupful of gems, largely diamonds, thus concluding the mystery.

It is believed the doctor was one of the old-time robbers and that the gems were a part of the spoil derived from the assassination of early settlers.

HAIR RAISING.

Years Ago no One Would Believe
What Thousands Now Know to be a Fact—Hair Can be Grown on Bald Heads.

The hardest to convince that baldness can be replaced by a new growth of hair, are the bald.

Why? Because hundreds of things have been used with no effect. Nothing that has ever been prepared would produce a permanent growth of hair on bald heads until the discovery of The Rose Hair Grower.

This preparation is the first to successfully demonstrate the hitherto impossible, growing hair on bald heads. The originator, after perfecting the formula, found himself face to face with an incredulous public, who said: "No, no, too good to be true."

"Would like to believe it, but can't," "Nothing will cure my baldness," "Good man, if true, you could not supply demand."

Useless to talk, been fooled to often.

Now these same people, who know what they are talking about, express themselves as follows:—

Robert Ross, plumber, Parkdale, says,—"I have been bald for over 22 years, but after using The Rose Hair Grower for two months, I have a good growth of hair all over my head, and it is filling in at the sides nicely. I have much pleasure in sending you this reference, and will continue using your treatment."

W. Livingstone, druggist, 25 Howard St., Toronto, says,—"This is to certify that I have seen the results of the use of The Rose Hair Grower. As a druggist with many years' experience in the city of Toronto, I have seen a multitude of hair tonics tried with varying results, but have never sold a hair grower that has been such a pronounced success at The Rose. Ladies and gentlemen amongst our best people in the city, to whom I recommended it, many of whom were bald, now have beautiful heads of hair. I have used it myself and now have a head of hair as thick as anyone could wish for."

The Rose Hair Grower stops falling of the hair with a few applications. It absolutely removes dandruff. Makes the hair soft and pliable. It is a perfect hair dressing, and the only preparation in the world that overcomes baldness.

Price, $1.00 per bottle of dealers, or forwarded on receipt of price by addressing Rose & Co., 48 Adelaide St., East, Toronto, Ont.

LOVE'S TRIUMPH.

A STORY OF LOVE AND WAR.

BY MARY J. HOLMES.

Author of "Lena Rivers," "Edna Browning,"

"Tempest and Sunshine," Etc., Etc.

"Never," Annie replied, feeling glad that a servant appeared just at that moment, telling Rose a little girl was in the kitchen asking to see her.

It was a daughter of one of the soldiers whose mother was sick and had taken Mrs. Mather for some little delicacy. Such calls were frequent at the Mather house, for the soldiers did not receive their pay regularly, and there was much destitution among their families, who, but for Rose's liberality, would have suffered far more than they did. As freely as water, her money was used to relieve their wants, and now, forgetting Jimmie and his Pequot, she entered at once into the little girl's story, and when told that the sick woman had expressed a wish to see her, she said, "I'll go now, there's Jake just come in. I'll have him harness the horse and take you home. It must be a mile or more to your house."

Rose usually acted upon her impulses, and was soon in her carriage, with the huge basket at her feet and the little girl opposite, enjoying her ride so much, and enjoying it the more for the unfamiliar signs of the city and the strange faces she detected in the faces of her companions, as she neared her humble home in the Hollow. Rose had asked both her mother and Annie to accompany her, but they had declined, and for a time after Rose's departure they sat together in perfect silence, while a curious train of thought was passing through the minds of each. Annie's agitation when Rose read "Pequot" for "paragon" had surprised Mrs. Carleton, while what she had said of the girl and her aunt had awakened a feeling of disquiet and suspicion. Mrs. Carleton was proud of her own and her husband's family—proud of her wealth, and proud of her position. Not offensively so, but in that quiet assured kind of way so natural to the highly bred Bostonian. It was this pride which had prompted her to resort to so extreme measures with the boy Jimmie, when she found how much he was interested in the little Pequot, and when, during Jimmie's brief stay in Rockland, she, with a mother's quick intuition, detected in him signs of interest in Annie Graham, her pride again took flight, and she was half glad to have him go from the possible temptation. Something in the nobler part of the woman's nature told her how wrong the feeling was, while each day some new development of Annie's gentle Christian character, made the desolate young creature dearer to her. That she was superior to most people in her rank of life, Mrs. Carleton knew, and she had more than once wondered how one like her had ever become the wife of a mechanic. She was not thinking of this, however, on the afternoon when she was alone with Annie, while Rose was away on her errand of mercy. She was thinking rather of the suspicion which had just found a lodgment in her mind, and was devising some means of testing its reality. To this end she at last made some casual remark about Rockland and its people, asking if Annie had always lived there.

"Only since I was married," was the reply. And Mrs. Carleton continued: "You seem more like Eastern people than like a New Yorker. Were you born in New England?"

"Yes—in Connecticut," Annie said. And then Mrs. Carleton made a great blunder by asking next:

"Were you born in or near New London? I have been there several times, and may know your family."

At mention of New London, Annie's eyes flashed upon Mrs. Carleton, and she felt that there was a deeper meaning in the questioning to which she was being subjected than appeared on the surface, and her voice trembled a little as she replied:

"I was born in Hartford, and lived there until I was eight years old, when my parents both died of cholera in one day, and I went to live with my aunt in New Haven."

"Yes," Mrs. Carleton answered slowly.

Thus far there was quite as much to prove as there was to disprove the correctness of her surmise, and thinking to herself:

"I may as well go further, now I have commenced with being rude," she continued, "Pardon me, Mrs. Graham, if I seem inquisitive, but I cannot help feeling interested in one to whom Rose is so greatly attached, and I do not remember that I ever heard any of your history before your husband went to war. I do not even know your maiden name."

Annie's heart beat almost audibly, and her cheeks were very red, as she replied:

"My father was Dr. Howard, and I was Annie Louise Howard. Excuse me, Mrs. Carleton, if I cannot talk much of my girl-life after my parents died. It was not a happy one. I was wholly dependent upon my aunt, who, while giving me every advantage in the way of education, kept before me so constantly the fact that I was an object of charity that it embittered every moment of my life, and when George offered me his love I accepted it gladly, finding in him the only real friend I had known since the day I was an orphan."

Annie was crying now, and excusing herself she left the parlor and repaired to her own room, where her excitement spent itself in tears and sobs as she recalled all the dreadful years when she was subject to the caprices of the most capricious of women, who had attempted to force her into a marriage with a millionaire of sixty, and had driven her to accept the love which George Graham had offered her. George and not been her equal in an intellectual point of view, and none knew this fact better than Annie herself. But he was the kindest, tenderest of husbands, and she had loved him devotedly for the many virtues which made him the noble, unselfish man he was. Captain Carleton and Jimmie both could sympathize with her tastes and inclinations far better than George had done, but never once during her brief married life had she allowed herself to wonder what her lot might have been had it been cast with people like the Carletons. And since her husband's death anything which looked away from that grave by the churchyard gate seemed so terrible to her that now, as she recalled Mrs. Carleton's questioning, and guessed what had prompted them, every nerve quivered with pain, which could only be soothed by a visit to George's grave. There, on the turf which covered him, she had wept out many a grief, and she started for it now, the villagers watching her as she passed their doors, and cautiously speculating, as people will, upon the time to come when the long black dress and graceful girlish form would not be so often seen among the Rockland doughts of the town.

Already the gossip of the town were coupling her name with the Carletons, the majority giving her to Tom, the elder and more worthy of the two. A whisper of this gossip had been borne to Mrs. Carleton, who, while pretending to ignore it, had felt troubled as she recalled all the incidents of Jimmie's visit at home. Then, when the suspicion came to her that the woman whom Rose had taken into her home, and who was possibly identical with the girl of New London, whose name she could not remember, she felt the ment greatly disturbed. There was a fierce struggle with her pride, a close reasoning with herself, and then her better nature triumphed, and her heart went out very kindly toward poor Annie, at that moment standing by her husband's grave, and wondering why her thoughts would keep straying away to the wayward young man who had been a traitor to his country, but was trying to atone by voluntarily bearing the hardships of a private's life when a better was offered him. He had asked if she would think he did right, and the question had shown that he cared for her good opinion. Yes, she did think he was right, and she resolved to send him a message to that effect when Rose wrote to him next. There was no wrong to the dead in the thought, and her tears dropped just as fast upon the marble as she stooped to kiss the name cut upon it, and then left the silent graveyard.

Meantime Rose had visited her sick woman in the Hollow, and fed the hungry children, and dropped upon the floor the six weeks' wages which she tried to hold, then, gathering her shawl about her, and holding up her skirts, just as she always did when in the home of the poor, she re-entered her carriage and bade Jake drive her next to Widow Simms's.

Everything there was neat and clean as soap and sand and the widow's two hands could make it, while Susan made a very pretty picture, in her dark stuff gown with the scarlet velvet ribbon in her black hair. There was a saucer of English violets on the round deal table, and their sweet perfume filled the room into which Rose came dancing, her eyes shining like stars, and the widow began to wonder "if there wasn't some pain there."

The widow was not in her best mood, for she was very tired, having done a heavy washing in the morning before Rose Mather had come, and after opening her bright eyes, then, after the coarser, larger pieces were dried and ironed, she had tried to spin, a work to which she had clung as tenaciously as if on every stream in New England there were not a cotton or woolen factory capable of doing the work so much easier and better than her own. The widow was fond of spinning, and she had turned the wheel with a right good will, until Isaac had complained that the continuous humming hurt his head, and made him think of the wind as it howled so dimly around the dreary prison in Richmond. Lately, they called it now.

and Isaac always considered when he heard the name and thought of what he suffered there.

Isaac was very weak and pale, and his face looked like that of some young girl as he lay among his pillows, in that pretty dressing-gown which Rose had bought, and Annie had made for him. He was sleeping when Rose came in, and the widow's "Hush-sh," came warily as a greeting, but came too late, for Rose's blithe voice had roused him, and his glad, welcoming smile more than counterbalanced the frown which settled on the widow's face when she saw her boy disturbed. Rose was accustomed to the widow's ways, and throwing off her shawl and untying her hat, she sat down on the foot of Isaac's bed, and drawing Jimmie's letter from her pocket began:

"I've got such splendid news for you, Mrs. Simms—at least, I think I have. Yes, I know it's sure to come true. Eli is going to be a lieutenant, with twelve hundred dollars a year. Such a heap of money for him; and it's all Jimmie's, too. He would not have the de- served it. Listen to what he says."

Both the widow and Susan were close to Rose now, the frown all gone from the widow's brow, and the puck- er from her mouth; both were blunder- ing back in a trice, as blundering Rose read on about "Hopah" and "Phineas," and "Eli," till she came to the "crabbed," which she called "crab-apple," and then stopped short, her face a perfect blaze, as she tried to apologize.

"Tain't worth while to soap it over," the widow said fiercely. "I be a crab-apple, I s'pose, and a queer one, at that, but I am as I was made, and I'd like to know if crabs want as good as Successors."

"Please, mother, never mind," Isaac said, pleadingly, and his voice always quieted the fiery woman, who listened while Rose read of Eli's good fortune, and made another terrible mistake by stumbling upon Jimmie's opinion of Isaac's sickness.

She only read: "He's not long for this world," but that was enough to bring a flush to his brow, and blanch his mother's cheek; while, with a gasp of tears, Rose hid her face in Susan's lap, and sobbed:

"I wish I had not come. I'm always doing wrong when I mean to do the best. Oh, I wish the war had never been, and I don't believe Isaac is so sick. Jimmie has no right to judge. He don't know."

Rose's distress was too genuine not to touch the widow, who tried to appear calm and unconcerned, and even said something kind of Jimmie, who had so generously preferred Eli to himself. But there was a restraint over everything, and after a few awkward attempts at something like natural conversation, Rose bade a hasty good-bye, and went out from the house to which she had brought more sorrow than joy.

CHAPTER XXI.

"Not long for this world!" The sick boy whispered the words to himself many times to himself, as with his face to the wall, where neither his mother nor Susan could see it, he thought of what Rose had read, and wondered if it were true. He was not afraid to die. He had been very near death once before, and had not shrunk from meeting it as death. It was only the dying from home he had dreaded so much, asking to live till he could see his mother again, and the grass growing by the cottage door, and the violets by the well. And God had taken him at his word. He had lived to see his mother, to feel the touch of her rough hands upon his hair; to hear her voice, always kind to him, calling him her "Iky boy"; to see the green grass by the door, and the violets by the well. But this, alas! did not suffice. He wanted to live long—longer than he had ever lived. He wanted to live to see his mother; to live to take care of his mother; to live to hear the notes of victory borne on the Northern breeze, as the Federal flag floated again over land and sea. All this was worth living for, and Isaac was young to die—only nineteen, and looking three years younger. It was very hard, and the dark eyelashes closed tightly to keep back the tears as the white lips tried to pray, "Thy will be done." That was what they meant to utter, but the grave the Saviour taught, "Our Father!" that was all; but the very name of father brought a deep peace into Isaac's heart.

God was his father, and he had nothing to fear; living or dying, it would be well with the boy who would not tell a lie even for promotion. And so, while the mother, whose heart ached and throbbed with this new fear, and still found time to feel a thrill of pride in Lieutenant Eli, moved softly round the room, preparing the dainty supper for her child, Isaac slept peacefully, nor awoke until the delicate repast was ready and waiting for him on the little table by the bed. There was spiced chocolate to-night, and nice cream toast, with grape jelly, and a bit of cold baked chicken, and the highly seasoned cucumber pickles Isaac had craved so much since his return, and which the physician said were good for him. And the best china cup was brought out, and the silver spoons marked with the widow's maiden name, and a white napkin was on the tray; and Isaac, who enjoyed such things, knew why it was all done that particular night, just as the widow knew why, at bed-time, he asked Susan to read from Revelation vii, 16, "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

Man is on the whole, a blundering, rather than a diabolical creature.

There is no compensation for the woman who feels that the chief relation of her life has been no more than a mistake. She has lost her crown. The deepest secret of human blessedness has half whispered itself to her and then for ever passed her by.—George Eliot.

SHE COULD SEE THINGS

Tom and the Clairvoyant.

AN OLD TIME CORRESPONDENCE RECALLED BY THE PALMIST D SPUTE.

Although our good friend, P. C. Groves has no use for palmists he seems to have a weakness for clairvoyants. He doesn't believe any palmist can look in his hand and foretell the future. But when it comes to a clairvoyant looking into a piece of glass and "seeing" things, Thomas appears to think it is all right. The following correspondence which appeared in the Planet in 1894, after the drowning of the late John Young and the recovery of his body will, in view of Mr. Groves' statements that he prosecuted Miss Matilla as a fakir, will prove of some interest:

THE YOUNG CLAIRVOYANT.

Sir,—I have been requested by a large number of persons to state to the public what I know in regard to the ending of the body on Saturday. In the first place when I heard of the young clairvoyant's coming I did not believe it could be done, but it does seem strange to me that the body was found in a direct line across the river from where we were searching. If it had not been for Miss Ouellette we should not have been searching within 50 yards of the place. The Chief of Police gave me instructions to take the two boats on Saturday and go to the hospital and search the boat thoroughly, but having heard that the young lady would be down Saturday morning I sent the two boats to the head in the river to search, and procured another boat for Capt. A. Barr, myself, the girl and her friends. We got in and I told her where the man was last seen. When we came alongside of the steam barge "Owen," she looked through the glass, and when she instructed Mr. Barr to row over Dr. Holmes' stable. From Dr. Holmes' stable she pointed a direct line amidst the "City of Chatham," and told us to drag the river across the stream. We endeavored to drag straight across, but could not do so on account of the current. When we were not in line, however, she would tell us so, and, finally, I sent the boat and floated it across the river, asking her to row in the boat and point out the exact spot. She did so, but the body was found fifty feet further across the river from the point she said. Before we commenced to search, Miss Ouellette stated we would find a large tree top and lots of brush, which we did, and she also said the body was fast under a log. I tried to alter her opinion by asking her if she thought we were in the wrong place, though we were so long and fruitlessly. She replied, "The body is there and you will find it in no other place, for I have seen it." Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

Yours respectfully,
OTAM GROVES.

April 17th, 1894.

DENONCED THE FAKE.

Archie Skirving, who was also engaged in the search, naturally perceived the humbug of the whole thing, and undertook to expose the clairvoyant's claims in the following letter:

Sir,—For the past week or so, I have been wondering whether we are living in 1894 or the year 1. Our boasted free education and civilization seems to have done very little for the masses, when so much superstition prevails as has been manifested in Chatham during the last few days. Such an humbug is worthy only of the Aborigines from whom it has been handed down.

There is a legal aspect to the situation, which probably has not occurred to "Fajr Flora," for, if I understand Canadian law correctly, it is especially deals with clairvoyants and fortune tellers.

I will, however, touch no further on the moral aspect of the case, but simply tell our readers some facts relative to the finding of the body.

On Saturday afternoon last I was watching the parties of searchers, and came to the conclusion that they were widely astray. Any sensible person would readily infer that had the body fallen in the river at the north end of the bridge, it could not by any means get over to near Dr. Holmes' stable, but rather that it would follow the current, which would take it down near the Owen or the City of Chatham. With some others we started to drag alongside the different boats, but our tackle was imperfect, and we failed to secure the body.

We next went over to near Dr. Holmes' stable, and taking the clairvoyant in the boat with us, we asked her to locate the body again. She got out a piece of rough, green glass, common around any glass works, and which one often sees in rockeries, and wrapping it up in a piece of black cloth and looking through the bottom of the boat and about 18 feet of water as thick as pea-soup, she said: "He is right here!" I asked her if she could see him, and she replied: "Yes, this is the spot." I dragged and searched, and so did many others; but it is needless to say that no body was found there.

Shortly afterwards the Owen moved out from her quarters and proceeded down the river. Wishing further to test the powers of this clever clairvoyant, I again invited her and a lady friend out of her mother's boat and, having rowed around in the river for a considerable length of time, I suggested to her that we go over towards the City of Chatham and endeavor to locate the body there. I further ventured the remark, by way of encouragement, that in turning round and going down the river, the Owen might have shifted the body. She was quite firm, and positively asserted that it was useless going over to or near the City of Chatham, that the body was not there. Well, then, I said, let us go back to the old spot and see if he is still there, to which she assented. We again rowed to near Dr. Holmes' stable. She again got out that chunk of green glass, and again looking through the bottom of the boat and all that muddy water, stated, "This is the spot. He is still here."

I think it is hardly necessary to add that the body was not found there, or anywhere near there, nor even in the so-called "line"—whatever that may be—but it was found by practical men near the City of Chatham, 100 feet from Flora's location and in the only common sense place that anything but gross ignorance would suggest.

If the clairvoyant was so positive of the exact location of the body, why did she not ask for one of the many poles and other appliances, which are so convenient to her at the time, and reaching down secure it? There was no labor attaching to such a proceeding. Probably Miss Ouellette can explain!

Apologizing for trespassing so far upon your kindness, I am, Sir, yours obediently,

A. H. SKIRVING.
P. S.—Mr. Wellington Constables, of our most reliable County Constables, was in the boat with us, and will corroborate all I have said.

A. H. S.

MR. GROVES REPLIES.

P. C. Groves, although not mentioned in Mr. Skirving's letter, seems to have taken the latter's denunciation of the clairvoyant's claim as a personal insult, and in a column in communication to The Planet, the first part dealt with plans of the river showing the location of buildings, boats, etc., and the second part, the communication went on as follows:

To hear Mr. Skirving talk, he wants to make out we are all a lot of ignorant men, just because we don't think as he does. It's a good thing there's difference of opinion. I was honestly trying to give to the public what Miss Ouellette said and did to give her credit for no more than she deserves.

Mr. Skirving boasts about free education and how little it has done for the masses. It seems so in this case. Why did Mr. Skirving commit himself and acknowledge her power just as soon as he commenced to drag in the place where she said the body was?

He says his wife or he was watching us before he came over to drag, and at the same time knew we were all astray. That's learning for you.

Now, sir, I don't tell you how a man could have been smart who don't believe in Clairvoyants and fortune tellers. He should have kept away and not gone near the place where the girl was, but denounce her at once and go some other place and find the body. Then he would make for himself a name that could be handed down with-out any puff or blow from any paper.

Sir, I was in charge of the men who were working "astray," and you can put me down at the lowest notch. I am only a common every-day man, and don't profess to know much. I received a common school education, not copying for anything in the shape of letters behind my name such as M. A., or B. A., or C. E., I shall never be able to get them without theodolite of a paper put in them there, though I am not entitled to it.

I once knew a man from the old sod who was a great blower. He would get into a writing and tell you he had travelled nearly every country under the sun. He had been to every important city, it did not matter to him, and he don't think it exactly in his line to write in it.

In conclusion, as a community we deeply deplore the loss of the late John Young and trust we may never have again to write up such a case, which has baffled so many of us. But may we try and cultivate the broad principle that a man's a man for a' that; and if he don't think exactly as others do, we have not got a cast iron rule that should class him among savages. For the day is coming when six feet of earth make us all of one size.

Thanking you for taking up so much space in your valuable paper, I remain, sir, yours respectfully,
TOM GROVES.

Chatham, Apr. 23, 1894.

To this letter Mr. Skirving briefly responded by stating that his first communication had no reference to Mr. Groves or any other citizen. He was simply exposing the gross superstition that prevailed as shown by the number of people who believed in clairvoyancy. This closed the correspondence.

At last.

Once upon a time a certain man set himself the task of discrediting the adage.

Beginning with the adage that honesty is the best policy, he soon had them all discredited except the adage that no man is ever a hero to his valet.

Here he expiated years he labored, becoming successively champion pugilist, a magazine poet and Mayor of a large city, and all in vain.

But it chanced in the end that his strenuous life reduced him to penury and he was compelled to be his own valet.

"At last!" cried the man the next day after this, and died happy in the thought of having achieved his purpose.—Detroit Journal.

Nothing betrays a greater ignorance of the world, the human heart, and of good manners, than the assumption of a self-sufficient, dictatorial tone of conversation.

"More haste, less speed," and "hasten slowly," are proverbs born of experience that some things can't be hurried without loss and waste. That is especially true of eating. The hasty lunch habit, "five minutes for refreshments," is a habit most disastrous to the health. You can hurry your eating. You can't hurry your digestion, and the neglect to allow proper time for this important function is the beginning of sorrow to many a busy man. When the tongue is full, the head aches, when there are sour or bitter risings, undue fullness after eating, hot flushes, irritability, nervousness, irascibility, cold extremities, and other annoying symptoms, be sure the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition have "broken down." Nothing will re-establish them but a healthy operation so quickly as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves, purifies the blood, and builds up the body. It is a strictly temperance medicine containing no alcohol or other intoxicant.

E. & D. BICYCLES

The great reason for the goodness of E. & D. bearings lies in their four-point design. The load passes directly through the balls, and there is no opportunity for the balls to jam.

In E. & D. four-point bearings the weight on any one point in the bearing is never more than 1-8th of the weight of the rider. In ordinary bicycles, the immense leverage between cup and cone bearings and cone and ball bearings and breaks the balls.

To show how little the wear on E. & D. four-point bearings is, we first guarantee them for three years, and, secondly, we oil them at the beginning of the season, and at the end, upon examination, the oil will be found clear.

E. & D. bearings are excellent. In all parts, the four-point system is employed. In 1900 E. & D. models even the head bearings are equipped with four-point bearings.

and the local guarantee privilege that goes with them is worth the cost of the wheel. And we will be very glad to show you the new E. & D. with its excellent equipments.

FINE DRUG STORE.

A. I. McCall & Co.'s Up-to-date Pharmacy—Firm Also Carries Cameras and Optical Supplies.

A. I. McCall & Co. are doing a splendid business in their bright quarters next to Hugh Macdonald's store.

"Three years ago saw us make our debut in Chatham business circles," said Mr. McCall, the head of the firm. "There was no trade pertaining to the business we purchased and kind friends came to us confidentially and said they would give us just two months to get out. We saw Chatham was a good place and there was plenty of business for those who would hustle. We therefore stayed out the two months allowed us by considerate friends and we are still staying but we have the satisfaction of seeing our trade rapidly increasing till we have an exceedingly good business resultant on always having a bright and clean, well-stocked store, and the best goods which we generously advertise.

"A specialty of cameras is made by us and since coming here have sold many photographic outfits. From the little $1.50 camera to $125 cabinet camera we keep in stock. We also have on hand all kinds of photographer's supplies.

"Our optical department we take pride in and are ready at all times to fit every eye with any kind of glass or frame desired. Our lines of drugs, hair brushes and perfumes are unexcelled and we take this means of thanking a generous public for their liberal patronage.

WHY COOK IN SUMMER WITH MALCOLMSON'S GROCERY SO HANDY?

At the Hugh Macdonald grocery establishment special attention is now being given to the cooked meat trade. On a recent trip to Toronto Mr. Macdonald saw to what proportions this trade had reached in the Queen City. On his return he had special meat refrigerators constructed and already the growing demand for cooked meats during the hot weather, has well warranted the expenditure made on costly coolers. Cooked meats of every kind for luncheons and dinners can now be secured at this store on a five minutes' notice.

Twenty Per Cent

Goodness knows they must have been dear enough before, when boys' $4.00 and $4.50 three piece Halifax tweed suits are advertised as special at $3.48 and we sell them regularly for $3.25.

Worse yet is the special price of $2.48 for $3.00 and $3.25 boys' all-wool Halifax two piece suits when we sell them regularly for $2.00 and have been doing it right along.

Some of our Prices

Boys' 2 piece, all-wool Halifax tweed suits, nicely pleated and well lined, sizes 22 to 28, regular price.....$2.00

Young men's all-wool Halifax tweed suits, extra well made sizes 32 to 36, reg. price.....$4.97

Boys' 3 piece, all-wool Halifax tweed suits, strong linings, collar on vest, perfect fit, sizes 28 to 33, regular price.....$3.25

Men's all-wool Halifax tweed suits, extra well lined and trimmed, fit as well as our $15.00 suits, all sizes, reg. price.....$4.75

Figure these statements out and see how much you have been losing dealing with "specials" instead of with our "regulars."

Take the latter instance and you will find our regular price over 40 per cent the lower. To be perfectly fair you will find our regular price the least fraction less than 20 per cent lower than the advertised special.

Apply the results to a fifteen dollar suit of clothing or to the purchases of a year or so and see where you land.

SUBSTITUTION.

Some shoe dealers try to reap where they have not sown.

Try to reap some of the business harvest of the "Slater Shoe," sown by the sterling qualities and advertising of this famous shoe for men.

The profit on a "Slater Shoe" is not so large as that on some nameless shoes—with nobody's name on them—nobody to guarantee the wearer value received.

Sometimes what would have been a "Slater Shoe" has its destiny changed.

If its perfection is marred in manufacture—a stitch missed—a flaw in the leather—a slip of the knife changes what was meant to be a "Slater Shoe" into an imperfect shoe that is sold to the highest bidder.

Sometimes the merchant who buys these faulty goods tries to impose them on the credulous as "Slater Shoes."

Now profits come out of your pocket and its just as well to satisfy yourself that the shoe you are buying is a genuine "Slater"—there are more ways than one of identifying it.

Every "Slater Shoe" has the makers' stamp on the sole—"The Slater $3.50 Shoe" or "The Slater $5.00 Shoe" as the case may be, and none are genuine without this stamp.

THE SLATER $3.50 SHOE

Like this

THE SLATER $5.00 SHOE

And this

Every "Slater Shoe" has the name on the strap. Look for it as this also is an evidence of genuineness.

Every pair has a coupon attached, telling the kind of leather in the shoe; what wear it is adapted to, what dressing should be used on it. This coupon is good for 5 cts. on the price of a bottle of "Slater Shoe Polish."

Look for these proofs of genuineness, and once having identified the shoe you are buying, your feet and tastes will soon be satisfied.

The "Slater Shoe" is made in twelve shapes, all sizes, half sizes, six widths, all leathers and styles. Every pair Goodyear Welted.

$3.50 and $5.00.
