At the Opera House Thursday Night

A couple have appeared in New Jersey courts in search of a divorce. The man is said to have told his wife that her conversation was nothing but hot air and she retaliated by pouring hot water on him.

The advantage of attending to the Christmas shopping early cannot be emphasized too strongly. It is better than to leave it to the last—better for those who sell and those who buy. Those who find it convenient to do so should buy early and avoid the anti-Christmas rush.

It is a good thing to keep a close eye on children; but when we read that Francis Cornany, of Ohio, his three young children and his younger brother were all drowned in the same hole in the ice while skating, the conclusion is irresistible that if the youngsters had been skating alone they would not have made that hole.

It is unfortunately the custom of many to wait until a week or two before Christmas before beginning to prepare their gifts; then there is no time to think, and money is wasted. A little more time and thought given to the matter would make the gift more effective of greater pleasure to both donor and recipient. A costly gift that is not especially useful to the receiver gives not half the pleasure that a much simpler gift would create if it were just what a person could make use of or could enjoy.

THE MIGHTY POWER OF MI-O-NA

MI-O-NA, that extraordinary and perfect stomach tonic, will relieve dyspepsia in twenty-four hours. It will cure and is guaranteed by T. J. Durick to the readers of the UNION ADVOCATE to cure the most painful cases of dyspepsia, if taken according to directions. MI-O-NA tablets not only cure dyspepsia, but all stomach disturbances, such as vomiting of pregnancy, sea-sickness and the stomach sickness after excessive indulgence. MI-O-NA cures by strengthening and invigorating the flabby stomach walls and after a course of MI-O-NA treatment, constipation, if there is any, will entirely disappear. Mrs. S. Keast, of Clarksburg, Ont., says: "A bad stomach trouble that had bothered me for years, baffled and puzzled skilled physicians, was nicely relieved by my using MI-O-NA. My trouble was on account of food not digesting but fermenting in my stomach, forming a gas that gave me untold suffering and pain and also made me weak nervous, irritable, and unable to rest. Since using MI-O-NA I can go to bed at night and sleep and wake up in the morning refreshed. I cannot speak too highly of MI-O-NA." MI-O-NA is a most economical treatment, a large box of tablets only costs 50 cents at T. J. Durick's and the dyspeptic, nervous or otherwise, who does not give them a trial is losing an opportunity to regain health.

COOK ADMITS HE DIDN'T REACH POLE, "GOT WITHIN GUN SHOT"

Forfeits All Claim as Discover of the Top of the Earth—Confesses to Dr. Brashear Cook Insisted That He Got Within a Mile of Goal

COPENHAGEN COMMISSION DECIDES AGAINST EXPLORER

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 20.—Dr. John A. Brashear, famous Pittsburg scientist and astronomer, in a Pittsburg newspaper today makes a bitter attack on Dr. Cook, claiming he is now satisfied that the Brooklyn physician not only did not reach the North Pole, but that he did not scale Mount McKinley. He said in part: "When I asked Dr. Cook how near he had gone to the Pole, he replied 'within gunshot'. I asked him how close this was, and he insisted about one mile. I can only say that no instrument made would prove this observation. It is impossible for a man to ascertain that he is within one mile of the pole. I asked Dr. Cook the name of the sextant he used, and he replied that he could not remember. This to me is a peculiar mark of Torgerness. "Dr. Cook claims that he was at 96 degrees, 27 minutes. At that time he may have been at 81 degrees which is about 380 miles from the pole. He has absolutely nothing to prove that he was much nearer than 400 miles. A careful study of his own copyright publications prove that Dr. Cook was not at the pole. "Dr. Cook told me that the size of the flag in his Mount McKinley pictures had been enlarged. Now if a man will take in one thing, is it possible to believe that he will not do so in others? "I have the kindest feeling for Dr. Cook if he got within 400 miles of the pole he is to be congratulated, but this controversy should never have been played on the shoulders of the American people."

THE TERROR'S CHRISTMAS.

Turkeys Were $17 Each During the Siege of Paris.

When the Christmas day of 1870 dawned upon Paris the city had been in the iron grip of the German investment for about three months. The winter was a bitterly cold one, the thermometer registering 10 degrees below freezing point on Christmas morning. The Seine was frozen over.

The poor's daily rations were a few ounces of horseflesh and a piece of repulsive looking black bread.

By Dec. 25 food prices had reached their highest point since the beginning of the siege. On Nov. 13 a pound of butter fetched $14 and a rabbit $3.50. By Dec. 19 rabbits had risen to $5, a box of sardines brought $2.50 and eggs 25 cents apiece. For one's Christmas dinner one could buy a goose for $10 or a turkey for $17. Pigeons were $3 each, and a small fowl could be obtained for $5. Ham was $1.50 a pound. As for vegetables, carrots and turnips were 4 cents each, and a bushel of potatoes cost $6.25. There was hardly any milk in Paris, and the little there was had to be preserved for the sick and wounded. However, there were oceans of wine, and the wineshops did a roaring trade.

For some time before Christmas the starving people had been feeding on cats, rats and dogs until by Dec. 25 a dish of cat's flesh was hardly obtainable. Dog was 60 cents a pound, and fine rats fetched 14 cents each. Many domestic pets were killed for food. "Poor Azor!" said a humorous citizen as he finished a stew made from his favorite dog. "How he would have enjoyed these bones!"

With true Parisian light heartedness the citizens tried to make the best of things, and the cafes and restaurants were almost their normal aspect. At half past 10, however, an order of Trochu closed every shop and cafe, and by 11 o'clock Paris had gone to bed.

The midnight mass of Christmas eve was celebrated as usual in the churches, which were crowded with praying, weeping women. Newspapers appeared as usual, some of them containing glowing accounts of perfectly imaginary French successes. The satirical sheets were even more bitter and venomous than at other times and published scathing caricatures. Some showed the fallen emperor, Napoleon III, as a shoeblack at King William's boots, or as a beggar with his pockets turned inside out, or as a traitor handing over France to murderers, or as a thief making off with millions of the nation's money. Others depicted Julius Favre in tears and pocketing Bismarck's gold and Trochu handing over the keys of Paris to a Prussian in exchange for a bag of coin. In all the idea of Parisians that France had been betrayed by those who ought to have protected her was prevalent.

So at this season of peace and good will suffering Paris was nearly at her last gasp. Owing to the tenacity of her rulers and citizens, however, her agony was to be prolonged for some weeks longer, as it was not until February that the negotiations for a preliminary peace were completed.

MEETING OF DELEGATES

At the request of Rev. J. S. McArthur, a meeting of delegates from the different churches met at St. James' Hall last evening at eight o'clock, to discuss ways and means for the suppression of the liquor traffic. Of the five churches, three were personally represented. Rev. W. Nicholls had expressed his intention to be there and was, perhaps, unavoidably absent. Rev. Mr. McArthur said he had been speaking to Father Dixon, and believed he must have misunderstood his message, as he had received a letter from him expressing his full accord with the impartial enforcement of the Scott Act, so long as it was a law, but added that in the past he believed that favor had been shown in some cases. Mayor Miller and Ald. McMurdo were present on invitation, as representatives of the Town Council.

After much discussion concerning the lax manner in which the present Scott Act Inspector was enforcing the Act, in the course of which Mayor Miller and Ald. McMurdo assured those present that the present Inspector never received any instructions from them not to enforce the law, and inasmuch as the Act had been the cause of keeping many good men out of the Council, suggested that the burden be placed on the shoulders of a Commission as was the case in Moncton. It was decided to appoint a committee of five to devise a plan by which the burden of enforcing the Canada Temperance Act be lifted from the shoulders of the Town Council. The Committee appointed consisted of Jas. Falconer, Chairman, Thos. Clark, Simon McLeod, Rev. J. S. McArthur, Rev. Dr. Cousins. The committee were requested to meet as soon as possible at the call of the Chairman. Meeting then adjourned.

A CHRISTMAS QUESTION

What can you give for Christmas? It is not the gift that is bought, but the love that goes with the giving. The remembrance and the thought, that fills the life with gladness. And the eyes with happy tears. That warm the coldest winter. Of the heart along the years.

What can you give for Christmas? Just keep your tired hands still. For a gift that is wearisome doing. Its message does not fulfill; But a simple memory token. Of love you can always send, That will breathe a silent greeting. From the heart of friend to friend.

Why We Are Stronger.

The old Greeks and Romans were great admirers of health and strength; their pictures and statuary made the muscles of the men stand out like cords.

As a matter of fact we have athletes and strong men—men fed on fine strength making foods such as Quaker Oats—that would win in any contest with the old Roman or Greek champions.

It's a matter of food. The finest food for making strength of bone, muscle and nerve is fine oatmeal. Quaker Oats is the best because it is pure, no husks or stems or black specks. Farmers' wives are finding that by feeding the farm hands plentifully on Quaker Oats they accomplish a double result; the men go to their work with greater vigor and the expense of such feeding is less than with other foods.

Mr. George Power of Moncton was accidentally shot at one of the Richard's camps about 60 miles out the International railway on Thursday afternoon last. The patient is reported as doing as well as can be expected considering the nature of the wound. No particulars as to how the accident occurred can be learned as Mr. Power will say nothing more than it was accidental. A rumor however is current that he was mistaken for a deer. This rumor of course cannot be verified.—Campbellton Tribune.

WEDDING AT MILLBANK
The Presbyterian church at Millbank was crowded on Wednesday evening, Dec. 15th, with an interesting audience which had gathered to witness the marriage of Mr. Wilmot Coltart of Vancouver B. C., to Miss Elsie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Clark. The church had been very prettily decorated for the occasion. Immediately in front of the pulpit was a beautiful arch of evergreens and flowers under which the happy couple stood while the nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. F. C. Simpson of Douglstown, according to the simple and impressive rite of the Presbyterian church. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white satin with tulle veil and orange blossoms and carried a magnificent bouquet of white roses. At the close of the ceremony Mr. Simpson, on behalf of the trustees of the church, presented the bride with a handsome bible as a memento of the first wedding celebrated in the church. Miss Ruby Haviland ably presided at the organ. A reception was held later in the evening at the home of the bride's parents where their many friends tendered congratulations to the bride and groom who were the recipients of a large number of handsome and valuable presents. The newly married couple left the following morning for Boston en route to Vancouver, where they will make their future home.

A CHRISTMAS VAMPIRE

A fool there was, and he made a gift,
(Even as you or I)
He bought it with taste and care and thrift
(For a lady his friends thought rather swift)
And when he gave it, the lady sniffed,
(Even as you or I)
Oh, the judgment and taste and time we waste
On the gifts at Christmastime;
Which we give to the lady who isn't pleased
(And now we know she could never be pleased
And never be satisfied.)
A fool there was, and he gave his cheque,
(Even as you or I)
For a necklace of pearls without a fleck,
(And it didn't the least suit the lady's neck)
And she never thanked him a single speck!
(Even as you or I)
Oh, the chink we lose and the think we lose,
On the things we buy with pride,
To give to the lady who never is pleased
(And now we know she can never be pleased
And never be satisfied.)
The fool was fleeced to his last red cent,
(Even as you or I)
She threw him aside, when his gold was spent,
(And nobody cared where the lady went.)
And the fool gave way to loud lament,
(Even as you or I)
And it wasn't the loss, and it wasn't the dress,
The reason that same fool cried:
It was coming to know that she never was pleased (Seeing at last she could never be pleased
And never be satisfied.)

SPECIAL FARES XMAS HOLIDAYS

The cheap fares prevailing on the Intercolonial Railway for the Christmas and New Year's Holidays ought to prove a boon to those who find it necessary or convenient to travel at this festive season of the year. The regular return rate to Montreal from Newcastle is $20.65 but from December 21st until January 1st a one way fare will prevail, and on these dates the fare will be $13.75 good for return until January 3rd, thus effecting a saving of over $6.00. The fares will be correspondingly low to all other stations on the line. With these low rates and the excellent train service in effect, there ought to be a big rush of holiday travel.

Strathcona Trust.

OTTAWA, Nov. 10, 1909.

Sir,—
With reference to previous correspondence on the subject, I am directed by the Honble. Sir F. W. Borden, Minister of Militia, as Chairman of the Executive Council of the Strathcona Trust, to inquire whether your Government is yet in a position to accept, on behalf of the Educational Establishments under its control, the advantages offered by the Strathcona Trust for the encouragement of Physical Training and Military Drill in Public Schools.

2. From inquiries which have been addressed to the Executive Council, some misapprehension seems to have arisen as to the aims and objects of the Strathcona Trust. It is with a view to the removal of any grounds for misunderstanding that I am directed to submit the following remarks:—
3. As you are aware, Lord Strathcona's object in forming the trust is twofold: (1) the improvement of the physical and intellectual capabilities of the children while at school, by means of a proper system of physical training calculated to improve their physical development, and, at the same time, to inculcate habits of alertness, orderliness and prompt obedience; (2) the fostering of a spirit of patriotism in the boys, leading them to realize that the first duty of a free citizen is to be prepared to defend his country—to which end all boys should, so far as possible, be given an opportunity of acquiring a fair acquaintance, while at school, with Military Drill and rifle shooting.

4. With regard to the first point, the Executive Council deems it necessary to require that a Province before it can participate in the benefits of the Trust, should pledge itself to include in the regular curriculum of the schools under its control instruction in Physical Training for all, and there have been, so far as the Executive Council is aware, no serious objections raised to the universal introduction of a well tested system of Physical Training into all the Public Schools of Canada.

5. With regard, however, to the question of Military Drill and rifle practice for boys, a some what important misapprehension appears to exist in certain quarters, to the effect that the Strathcona Trust is designed to be used as the vehicle for the introduction of a system of compulsory military training into the Schools of the Dominion. I am directed to state, emphatically, that such is in no wise Lord Strathcona's intention, nor that of the Executive Council of the Trust.

6. As stated above, one of Lord Strathcona's main objects is to inculcate a spirit of patriotism in the youths of this country, together with a realization of their duty as free citizens in its defence, and, consequently, their training in the rudiments of a soldier's art is, in his opinion desirable, in order that they may be able to give proper expression to that spirit in time of national danger; but His Lordship does not seek to insist that this military training should be made compulsory. All he asks is that the Government of a Province should undertake to ENCOURAGE, as far as possible, the formation of cadet corps and the practice of rifle shooting in the schools under its control, leaving it to the parents themselves to decide whether their sons should join these corps. The proper military instruction and care of the cadet corps when formed is a matter which falls within the province of the Department of Militia, however, asks that the Educational Authorities will encourage, or, at least, place no obstacle in the way of their teachers becoming officers of their School Cadet Corps.

7. The position may, perhaps, best be summed up by re-stating the general conditions, which the Executive Council of the Trust asks the Education Department of a Province to accept in order to secure the schools under its control participation in the benefits of the Trust. It is confidently believed that perusal of these conditions will show that they cannot fairly be in any way construed as an attempt to introduce a system of compulsory military training into the Schools of Canada.

8. These conditions are as follows:—
(a) Physical training to form an integral part of the curriculum in every school, or public educational establishment maintained mainly out of public funds, at which a teacher holding a certificate other than that of the lowest grade is employed.

(b) A certificate of ability to instruct in physical training to form part of every teacher's certificate, other than those of the lowest grade, granted by the Education Department of the Province.

(c) The Education Department to undertake to encourage the formation of cadet corps, including the practice of rifle shooting under suitable conditions by the older boys, in all educational establishments under its control.

(d) The system of physical training adopted to be that in force in the elementary public schools in Great Britain (which has been recently revised in view of the latest developments in Sweden, Switzerland and other countries), with such modifications therein as the local conditions of any Province may show to be necessary.

(e) The Education Department to undertake to require, within a specified period, all teachers who are already in possession of its certificates other than those of the lowest grade to qualify themselves to instruct in physical training (subject to the exemption of such teachers as are physically unable to qualify, or are nearly at the end of their term of service), so that in every school there shall be at least one teacher capable of imparting the necessary instruction.

9. The Militia Department will, on its part, aid the Education Department by affording the necessary facilities to the teachers of both sexes to qualify themselves in physical training, by providing instructors until such time as the Provincial Authorities are in a position to undertake this duty themselves.

10. The Militia Department will also afford to the teachers the necessary instruction in military drill required to enable them to become officers of cadet corps under the same advantages as are already allowed to officers of the Active Militia, and will grant certificates of qualifications.

11. The Militia Department will also pay the authorized grants to the teachers qualified and acting as instructors of cadet corps, and will supply to these corps such arms and equipment as are needed under the regulations applicable to each case.

12. Sir Frederick Borden confidently hopes, that after consideration of the foregoing explanations, your Government may see its way clear at a very early date to declaring its acceptance of the conditions mentioned in paragraph 8 of this letter, so that both teachers and pupils in the Educational Establishments of the Province may be competent to share in the benefits of the Trust.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
A. G. LEWIS,

Santa Claus' Revenge.
Belated comes advice tonight
That, "without proper cause,"
Two foolish boys went on a strike
Against old Santa Claus.
They sent him written word that he
Must take two trips a year.
The first an early one to see
What children wanted here.
They said his work of late was bad.
They criticised his taste.
They said it made them very sad—
Those presents gone to waste!
They asked him why he thought a boy
Would want a Teddy bear.
They said it seemed he could employ
Much better judgment there.
They wrote him frankly what they Thought,
A protest in each line.
They told him that they thought he ought
To sell out and resign.
They covered reams of paper then
For each boy in their town,
The how, the which, the what, the when,
They carefully went through—
And then they told him what to bring
For each boy in their town,
And for themselves—"Oh, everything!"
Was just what they put down.
They thought the saint was far too old
To understand their scheme,
And each one bought a bag, to hold
Their presents, it would seem.
But when they woke on Xmas morn
With "What did Santa bring?"
Why, just as sure as you are born,
He hadn't left a thing!

BESSIE.

WHERE is the tree? whispered Mrs. Philander anxiously as her husband shook the snow from his coat and carefully wiped his feet on the brand new doormat. "Couldn't get one," returned Philander moodily. "Couldn't get one! Why not, James Philander?" "I forgot it, Bella, until just as I got off the train, and as that was the last train from town I couldn't very well walk back and look up a tree. By that time the shops would all be closed and—"

"Walk back! Such nonsense! Of course if you haven't thought enough of the children to buy them a tree!" "My dear," interposed Philander desperately, "don't say another word. I'll find a tree somewhere tonight if I have to rob the church of the Sunday school tree!" He thrust his arms into his overcoat and grasped his hat, but Mrs. Philander put out a detaining hand. "James," she said seriously, "you cannot find a tree in Rose Heights tonight. You know there is not a shop in the Heights, and where else would you look for a tree?"

"I shall walk into the woods and dig one," returned Philander with dignity. "Well, you could do that, James, but it is 11 o'clock now and there is no moon. You will lose your way." "Nonsense!" returned Mr. Philander. "I hope I know my way around Rose Heights. I saw a very handsome pine tree in that strip of woods back on the Turkey hill road. I could walk there blindfolded and lay my hand upon that tree," he asserted rashly. "Very well," returned Mrs. Philander reluctantly. "I hate to have you go, James, but the children will be so disappointed. The presents are all ready, and I have been up in the attic and got the base for the tree and all the ornaments—in fact, everything is ready except the tree."

"The tree will soon be here," said Mr. Philander grimly as he jerked on his arctic and turned up his coat collar. "Just bring me the spade from the woodshed, please," he added. "A spade, James! I thought they chopped trees down. The ground is frozen." "Of course, the ax, by all means," replied Philander irritably. He was vexed with himself for having forgotten to order the tree, which was one of the necessary adjuncts to the Philander Christmas. He had never forgotten it before. He meant to order it that morning and have it sent to his suburban home later in the day, but an important business matter had driven the remembrance of the festival from his mind until his wife's greeting when he opened the door recalled it to his attention. He sallied forth, bearing the ax, and waded through the newly fallen snow to the corner of the street, where he turned toward Turkey hill road. The snow was only six inches deep, and the walking was not so bad. Gray clouds hung low, and there was a thick flurry of flakes as Philander turned the corner. When he reached the strip of woods it was snowing heavily, and he could only guess at the location of the particular pine he had in mind. He whistled cheerily as he walked along, for his spirits were rising. He felt a warm glow stealing over his tired frame as he anticipated the delight of the three small Philanders when they beheld the selfsame tree that they had so warmly admired a short while before set up in their own parlor, ablaze with candles and rich with gifts.

Mr. Philander stopped and thrashed himself vigorously with his arms. There was a faint grayness in the air that was reflected from the fallen snow, and there was the tickling rush of flakes in his eyes. When he reached the very opening in the woods where they had admired the tree he turned around and looked carefully up and down the road. Of course he could see nothing, nor was there the faintest tinkle of bells. It was a very lonely spot. Mr. Philander knew that the strip of woods was private property, and he also knew that he could make it all right with Lake, the owner of the woods, on the following day, as Lake lived four miles away and it was impossible to ask his permission now. Although Mr. Philander had stated that he could put his hand on the tree in the dark, he found it rather a difficult thing to do after all. He lost himself several times in the dense thickets, and all the tree trunks seemed unfamiliar to his touch. Then, all at once, he emerged from the underbrush, and spied boughs of pine brushing his face. "Hit it by Jove!" he exclaimed. He dug the snow away from the trunk and with a few lusty blows laid the tree low and dragged it trailing through the snow. He lost his bearings once or twice, and finally, at a moment when he almost despaired of reaching home that night, he found himself standing before his own gate. He carted the tree around to the back door, and with Mrs. Philander's help it was taken into the house and set up in the parlor. Mr. Philander thawed himself out in front of the kitchen stove and quaffed fragrant coffee that his grateful wife had prepared. "It is a beauty, James," she said gleefully, "the finest we ever had. How delighted the children will be. I am sorry, though, you are so tired, dear." "Oh, I'm all right now, Bella," said Philander cheerfully. "I was worried after I found that I had forgotten the tree, but I closed out that deal with Wells today, and I was busy every moment." "How lovely that you got the contract, James!" cried his wife excitedly. "That is a fine Christmas present for you!" "You bet your life it is," returned Philander jocosely. "Now let us get the tree ready for the kiddies. Everything handy?"

"There isn't a thing for you to do, dear, save to hang them on the tree," said his wife, leading the way to the lighted parlor, where the tree stood, its symmetrical branches glistening in the light and exuding a fresh balsamic odor. "By Jove, it is the handsomest tree we ever had!" exclaimed Mr. Philander, surveying the shapely conifer admiringly. They were soon at work, and presently the beautiful tree blossomed forth in glistening festoons of gold and silver tinsel. A radiant star tipped the highest point, while daintily decorated gifts burdened the branches and were heaped at the base.

It was with unusual satisfaction that the Philanders retired that night. They were to leave the respondent tree, but utter weariness drove them to bed. It was daylight when the first delighted shriek from a small Philander awoke his tired parents. Mr. Philander groaned dismally. He ached from head to foot, and he was sick from lack of sleep. Mrs. Philander was equally tired; but, with the self-abnegation of mothers in general and mothers in particular on Christmas morning, she got up and went downstairs to enter into the joys of the happy children. When Mr. Philander came downstairs to breakfast the children gathered about him eagerly. "Father," asked Jack, the eldest, "is this the very tree we saw last Sunday when we walked along Turkey hill road? Is this the very tree?" "Who told you that, Jack?" asked Mr. Philander sharply. "Oh, mother did. I told her I had seen it somewhere before, and she said it was that very tree."

JACK.

wailed Bessie, dragging her new doll remorselessly by its flaxen hair. "An' I linked it came that way, too!" protested Robin indignantly. "It's a Santa Claus tree, babies, so don't feel bad about it. Run away and play," said Mr. Philander reassuringly. Then he turned to Jack, "Yes, it's the very same tree, my boy," he said proudly. "It doesn't look like it, father," said Jack bluntly. "Doesn't, eh? What's the matter with it?" "Oh, nothing. It's fine, but it isn't the tree we saw," insisted the boy obstinately. "Never mind, never mind," returned Mr. Philander good naturedly. He sought his wife, who was helping North with the breakfast. "Our tree was a great success, my dear," he said genially. "It is beautiful," replied Mrs. Philander happily. "The children are so delighted." "Well, I'm glad of that. I was telling Taylor yesterday morning going down on the train that Christmas was not Christmas without a tree, and he said that it wouldn't be Christmas at their house, then, for they were not going to have one."

"How strange!" uttered Mrs. Philander. "Why not, pray?" He said something about hard times. He said he could not find a tree. He said he would buy one for them. He said he would buy them stockings before the fire and all that, you know. "Dear, dear! I think the children prefer a tree just the same," said Mrs. Philander reproachfully. "How little Tommy Taylor! We must invite him over to see the children's tree this afternoon."

"Yes, indeed, that will be an excellent plan. Suppose we invite a few people to spend the evening and enjoy the tree with us. We can put on some small remembrances and have a jolly time," said Philander, warming up to the subject as he proceeded. "That will be delightful," agreed Mrs. Philander. "Let us ask the Taylors." "Sure, we'll ask them!" chuckled Philander. "I'll show Taylor the way to keep Christmas."

That afternoon Mrs. Philander bustled herself in preparation for the evening's entertainment. The Taylors had accepted gladly, and so had the other invited guests, and Mr. Philander, who was the soul of hospitality, walked about and rubbed his hands with pleasant anticipation. He made sturdy trips to the cellar for apples and cranberries and cracked great bowls of nuts. He carried in large arm loads of wood for the fireplace and surveyed the roaring blaze with complacent satisfaction. It was at that moment that Jack Philander burst noisily in. "Oh, father, what do you think?" he began breathlessly.

"Well, my boy, what is it now?" asked Mr. Philander indulgently as he warmed his coat with comfort. "I heard Mr. Taylor telling some men that somebody chopped down the tree from his front lawn last night!" "What tree?" asked Mr. Philander absently. "Why, that tree you know, the way pine that stood on their front lawn!" "What a pity!" exclaimed Mrs. Philander. "Mrs. Taylor told me it was the pride of her husband's heart." "How did it happen, Jack?" asked Philander, with interest. "Mr. Taylor said his wife heard some one chopping about half past 11 last night, but she didn't think anything of it, and this morning they found the tree was gone—only the stump left!" "That's very strange," observed Mr. Philander. "And, father," continued Jack earnestly, "I was in the woods on Turkey hill road today and that little tree we saw last Sunday is there yet. You didn't cut it down. I know that, and I wasn't!"

Mr. Philander paled slightly. "Why, father," pursued the terrified Jack with a directness born of sudden revelation, "this is Mr. Taylor's tree! I knew I'd seen it before!" Mr. Philander shrank from their horrified gaze. "The Taylors will be here in a few minutes, James," said Mrs. Philander coolly. "My dear, I must have got mixed around in the storm, but the Lord only knows how I got in Taylor's yard." "It's on the other side of the woodshed," said Jack sympathetically, "and I guess you walked right through and into Mr. Taylor's yard." "I must have done that," groaned Mr. Philander. Then with sudden inspiration he stripped the tree of its ornaments and candles and carried it through the house into the back yard. He scratched a match, and in five minutes the Philander Christmas tree was a charred ruin. "Too bad, old chap," said Taylor commiseratively as Philander lamented the absence of the tree. "That's one reason why I don't believe in Christmas trees. They are apt to take fire, and there you are. I am glad it happened before we arrived."

Available Beds in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives Increased Three-Fold as a Result of Last Year's Sale of Christmas Stamps. The Number Can Be Doubled This Year If Everyone Will Help.

STIMULATED by the success of a year ago the National Sanitarium Association have made large preparations for the sale of the Christmas Stamp of 1909-10, issued on behalf of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. Tuberculosis that would bring hope and joy and gladness to thousands of homes and communities in all parts of Canada. The stamp of 1909 is more beautiful than that of a year ago. The design is as shown in this article, but printed in red and green, and is of same size as the regular government postage stamp. This Christmas stamp will not carry any kind of mail, but any kind of mail will carry it—and carry to the happy Season's Greeting! from sender to receiver. The stamps will be done up in envelopes of ten, twenty-five, fifty and one hundred for ordinary selling, and large users will be supplied in quantities. The price for ten is for one thousand is a cent each. The banks, department stores, drug stores, book and stationery stores and many other stores will sell them. Women's clubs, church organizations, bible classes and Sunday schools, public schools, and many other organizations and individuals will help this year as last year. There would seem to be no reason why everybody everywhere may not help in forming an army of willing workers to sell these stamps all over the Dominion. The Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives is in the fullest sense a national institution caring for patients from every province in Canada. The first issue of the stamp for this year is one million, and these will be put into circulation immediately, but there can hardly be any reason why the issue should not be increased many times over before Christmas. The direction of the sale of Christmas Stamps is in the hands of Mr. J. S. Robertson, Sec.-Treasurer, National Sanitarium Association, 317 King Street, West, Toronto, who will give prompt reply to any enquiries regarding the stamp.
