Celebrated Norwegian Jigger

Fishermen should use these Jiggers and rig them with swivels same style as in Norway, then the Jigger acts like a minnow and when spinning attracts the fish, so that instead of jigging they really snap the Jigger and in this manner you never fail to catch them. Ordinary leads can be used, but the Norwegian style seems more simple and easily made. Our fishermen should try this great Norwegian fish killer.

P. A. strikes 13 every time you fire up!

Prince Albert smashes the big joy gong whether you jam it into a jimmy pipe or roll it into an acehigh makin's cigarette, the like of which you never got next to before.

Pretty quick you forget about the chaff-brands and fire-brands! For P. A. is all there—signed, sealed, delivered!

Men everywhere smoke P. A. because it's a revelation—can't bite the tongue! The bite's cut out by a patented process. Hence, no tobacco can be like the inter-national joy smoke

Listen: You can never tell from where you're sitting how your picture's going to look. Nor can you tell how bully P. A. is until you fire up! It's a case of "show me." We've made a "show down" for millions of men everywhere.

In five years Prince Albert, from a little stranger in a big land, has made a record in the United States of selling more than all other pipe brands combined!

Got the nerve to put up the price for a tidy red tin to find out something for what ails your smokappetite?

Prince Albert is imported from the United States into Newfoundland and is on sale, in one-eighth-pound tidy red tins by all of the leading dealers.

CHAPTER VII.

Ralph set down the rod and, taking up the stick, broke it across his knee and tossed the pieces over his shoulder.

"Some men can't be trusted with even a stick," he said, coolly. "You're one of them, sir. Take my advice and get into the habit of walking without one. Why," he smiled grimly, "do you know that where I come from the quickest and easiest way of losing your life is to threaten another man with a blow. Lucky for you I'm rather a decent-tempered chap, or I should have served you as I served your stick."

Talbot was well-nigh incapable of speech, and stood glowering at his opponent in silence for a moment. Then he said in a low, almost inarticulate voice:

"You will leave this place at once—at once, do you hear? I will see that your wages are paid—though you don't deserve them; and if I find you here after another hour I will have you kicked off the estate."

Ralph appeared to consider the proposition carefully.

"The lord's nephew, I think you said?" he enquired; "his heir, I suppose. But you're not master yet, I take it? Lord Lynborough's my boss, as we say in Australia. Do you know, if it's all the same to you, Mr. Denby, I'll wait until I get notice from him or Mr. Burchett. I'll risk the kicking."

Talbot Denby uttered an oath under his breath.

"You must be out of your mind," he said, as if he found it hard to credit such insolence. "What is your name?"

"Ralph Farrington," said Ralph. "at your service—no, not at your service! I'd rather starve first! Have you any more questions to ask me?"

Talbot Denby's lips writhed.

"Mad!" he said, as if to himself. Then aloud: "Take my warning, my man, and do not let me see you, or hear of you again. I shall inform Lord Lynborough of your insolent conduct."

Ralph seemed to consider for a moment.

"Do you think you will?" he asked almost pleasantly. "From what I saw of his lordship, and what I've heard, I should imagine him to be rather a well, manly old gentleman. Won't he be a little suspicious when he hears that his nephew allowed his walking stick to be taken from him and broken?"

Talbot's eyes flashed and flew over the tall and slim but muscular frame.

"Yes; we're about the same height and weight," remarked Ralph, as if he had read Mr. Talbot Denby's thoughts. "If you'd like to fight it out, we'll step behind the hill there—Hush!" He lowered his voice warningly and drew a little closer to Talbot. "We are being watched—ladies! Yes, this is the way to put on a fly. He pretended to show Talbot the one he had just put on. "Good fly, isn't it? Ah, they've gone! Better go now, Mr. Denby. Any time you'd like to take me on I shall be delighted to oblige you. You'll find me at Burchett's or somewhere about the place. Good-morning!"

Talbot stood glaring at him with clenched teeth for a full minute—Ralph having resumed his fishing as if nothing had happened—then turned and walked away.

Now, as Veronica had gone up the bank, offended pride glowing in her eyes—brought there by Talbot's almost insolent question—and a strange wild tumult raging in her heart—caused by the touch of Ralph's lips—a girl darted from behind a clump of trees and ran to her with hands clasped and her hair, rather weak face all amove with fear.

"Fanny!" exclaimed Veronica, in a rather displeased voice.

Fanny Mason panted for breath and wringing her hands, looked from Veronica to the stream.

"Oh, Miss Veronica—they're—I'm afraid they're going to fight!"

Veronica turned in time to see Talbot raise his stick. Fanny uttered a low cry and was about to run down to the two men; but Veronica grasped her arm and held her, murmuring in a tone of command:

"Be silent!"

Fanny, gasping and trembling, of course obeyed, and the two girls, so nearly alike in age, so totally different in station and character, stood and looked on at the little scene below. Veronica did not gasp or tremble, but the clear, healthy pallor of her lovely face grew of a warmer tint; and as she saw the outcome of the struggle, her eyes flashed and a long breath came from her parted lips; she was fighting with the sense of triumph which made her heart grow warm and every vein throbb-

Was it not the women who thronged the Coliseum in the days of old when men fought in the arena for their lives? There are still women who gentle though they may be, love a fight—so long as it stops short of bloodshed.

"Come!" she said to Fanny, almost swinging her round and actually drawing her away. "Why are you so frightened?"

Fanny began to whimper shamefacedly.

"I'm—I'm always frightened when there's fighting, Miss Veronica," she said, "and—and I saw they were going to quarrel by the way Mr. Talbot spoke to you and walked up to Mr. Ralph."

"Oh! so you were behind the trees—watching?" said Veronica.

The girl shrank from the scornful gaze of the clear, violet eyes.

"Not—not watching, miss," she faltered. "I happened to be in the wood and—I like to see Mr. Ralph fishing, he's so—so—"

"Skillful," suggested Veronica, with a little smile of scorn. "You know him very well, I suppose?" she added, indifferently, but with a shame that began to creep into the place of the triumph that only a moment or two had filled her heart. There was another girl who was "interested" in Ralph Farrington. But that was natural and proper enough: the laundry maid and the gamekeeper were on a level; while she—

"Yes, miss," said Fanny, slyly avoiding Veronica's gaze. "He—he came to our cottage the first day he came, to bring back the puppy and get his wound dressed."

"His wound? Ah, yes!" breathed Veronica. "Come on. Why are you looking back?"

"To—to see if they are going to quarrel again, miss." Fanny breathed a sigh of relief. "No; Mr. Talbot's gone! I'm so glad! He—he looked so fierce. Not that he'd have hurt Mr. Ralph; he's so strong and— Wasn't it splendid the way he caught Mr. Talbot's arm and broke the stick! Oh, miss, I do beg your pardon! I'd forgot that Mr. Talbot is your ladyship's cousin—the people about the place could never understand why all the family had not titles—and that of course you'd rather be beat."

Veronica bit her lip. "There is no 'of course' about it, Fanny. I think they were both very foolish and both deserve to be beaten. I suppose Mr. Talbot thought that the young fellow was poaching; you see, he did not know he was the new gamekeeper."

"Yes, miss," said Fanny, doubtfully, and with an upward glance at the haughty face, she sighed. "Yes, miss: It—must have been that; for why should he want to quarrel with Mr. Ralph, him as is so quiet and honest spoken?"

"Why do you say 'Mr. Ralph'?" asked Veronica, with a touch of sharpness in her voice. "Why don't you call him 'Ralph Farrington'?"

Fanny hesitated for a moment, her weak mouth half open. "I—I don't know, miss. Mother and me always call him 'Mr.'; he's so like a gentleman. Mother says that even the gentlemen of the Court—oh, I beg your pardon, miss!—couldn't speak better or have nicer manners."

"I suppose he comes to your cottage very often?"

"Oh, yes, miss; that is, rather often. I—I see him passing of an evening when he's going his rounds and sometimes he comes in, and sometimes he just leans on the gate and talks in his pleasant way. You see, miss, he's quite a stranger, and he may be glad to have a chat; and he's friendly because mother saw to his wound—a nasty gash it was!" Fanny shuddered and closed her eyes so that she did not see the transient flushing of Veronica's face.

"Of course, very natural," she said, with an excessive indifference. "Perhaps, Fanny, it will be as well if you do not say anything of—of what we have seen this morning."

"Oh, no, miss, certainly not!" responded Fanny, eagerly; "and I only hope Mr. Ralph didn't see me—us; he wouldn't like to think as we'd been watching him. He's particular, I'm sure. Oh, I'm so glad they didn't fight! Aren't you, Miss Veronica?"

"Very," said Veronica, drily. "Now run home, Fanny. Oh, by the way, I want some old lace washed, and I should like to see you about it before I send it. Will you come up to me to-morrow morning?"

"His wound? Ah, yes!" breathed Veronica. "Come on. Why are you looking back?"

"To—to see if they are going to quarrel again, miss." Fanny breathed a sigh of relief. "No; Mr. Talbot's gone! I'm so glad! He—he looked so fierce. Not that he'd have hurt Mr. Ralph; he's so strong and— Wasn't it splendid the way he caught Mr. Talbot's arm and broke the stick! Oh, miss, I do beg your pardon! ### A Bit Mixed!

Three smart young men and three nice girls—
All lovers true as steel—
Decided in a friendly way
To spend the day aweek.
They started in the early morn.
And nothing seemed amiss,
And when they reached the leafy lane
They in like twos
And she in twos
This!

They wandered by the verdant dale,
Beside the rippling rill;
The sun shone brightly all the while;
They heard the song-bird's trill.
They sped through many a wooded glade,
The world was full of bliss—
And when they rested in the shade
They sat in twos
Likethis!

The sun went down and evening came
A lot too soon, they said.
Too long they tarried on the way,
The clouds grew black o'erhead,
Down dashed the rain! They home-ward flew.
Till one unlucky miss
Slipped sideways—Crash! Great
Scott!

The lot
Were all mixed up likethis!

Ponderous Personages

DANIEL WEBSTER
By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "It Good Old Sinash."
Daniel Webster, the most tremendous orator who has ever reverberated in America, was born and educated in New Hampshire—after which feat the said state has remained ever since in a partially exhausted condition.
Webster arrived on earth in 1782, just before the close of the Revolution and eighteen years afterward delivered a Fourth of July oration in Hanover which contained many words used for the first time in that vicinity.
At nineteen, he became Dartmouth College's greatest alumnus and later went to Boston, where he studied law and full-organ conversation with thunder and lightning trimmings.

Webster was at that time a frail lad, with a head several times too large for him. He was intensely earnest and chose his pie for breakfast with an eye toward the future preservation of the republic. At the age of thirty-one, he went to Congress and a few days later he began to make speeches against the administration. After the first speech, it was generally conceded that when Webster had anything to say, the opposition had better get into the bomb proofs. He continued making speeches for many years on various subjects and most of these speeches can be bought to-day bound in buckram or leather or full morocco, the price varying with the binding and payable on easy terms. He took great delight in explaining to all comers that the Union was greater than any part thereof and he made several men famous by debating with them along these lines—the kind of fame that Alton Parker got by running against Roosevelt.

Webster was a great lawyer and won the Dartmouth College case behind which the vested interests have defended themselves ever since. He also knocked out one of the first monopolies—the Fulton Steamboat concession. He served in Congress off and on for many years and also in the Senate, but he was fondest of being Secretary of State, holding that office twice. He got four electoral votes for president once and could have been Vice-President when William Henry Harrison was elected, but he refused the nomination. That was the worst guess ever made by mortal man. Harrison died a month after he was inaugurated.

In his later years Webster was a stern sad man with massive overhanging eyebrows, tightly sealed mouth and large craggy face. He looked like two tons of dynamite ready to go off and when he spoke, it sounded like a volcano spouting dictionaries. He dedicated more monuments and was the orator of the day on more occasions than any other American and each time he tore a large irregular hole in the enemies of the Constitution. Webster was the greatest friend of the American Constitution and the worst enemy of his own—in consequence of which he became extinct at the age of seventy while still hard at work.

Webster was the greatest friend of the United States when it needed friends and assayed 100 per cent patriotism. He and Noah Webster worked closely together, Noah discovering new and deadly words for his celebrated dictionary and Daniel trying them out on the enemy and making them popular.

The Empress of Ireland Enquiry

Special to Evening Telegram. QUEBEC, June 18.

Assertions by Quarter-master Jas. Francis Galway, that the Empress of Ireland did not steer well, that her wheel jammed only a few hours before the collision which sent her to the bottom of the St. Lawrence on May 29th, that she swerved badly and that the crew could verify these statements; and denials of these claims by responsible officers of the lost liner, made to-day's session of the Dominion Commission Inquiry into the wreck, one of quickly changing, gripping interest from start to finish. Lord Mersey seemed alone among those in court not to be excited by the production of Galway's evidence. He began by stating he did not attach much importance to it, and wound up by putting questions to the witness who was in charge of the wheel of the liner just a few hours before she went down, which seemed to indicate the currents of the St. Lawrence was responsible for the Empress' behaviour which his lordship flippantly styled "Galway's description of ship's disobedience of helm." A suggestion was made during the day that the C.P.R. had tried to get him to leave the country before testifying, which was supplied by John Murphy, who relieved Galway, and who contradicted his statement in regard to the ship steering badly, as did Adelaide Bernier, pilot in charge, when the ramming occurred, and several of the Empress's officers. Galway got a severe gruel from Lord Mersey, who, though very much flustered as might be expected, stuck to the main points of his accusations against the Empress's steering gear. The springing of Galway's evidence by Haight, the New York lawyer for the owners of the Storstad, which rammed the liner, caused Lord Mersey to lose that urbanity which had up to now been the distinguishing feature of his conduct of the proceedings. He made a biting remark about Galway, forgot his name, and referring to him as "The man from Neptune Inn," where the witness was staying, continually jabbed him with questions as to why, when he considered the steering gear of a ship, the main asset in life saving, he had not mentioned the alleged disobedience of the Empress, giving his story to C.P.R. lawyers and to Montreal newspapers. His Lordship also developed a most sarcastic line of argument when he read Haight a lesson on his duty the Court, severely condemning what he thought was an attempt on the part of the Storstad legal battery to keep Galway's testimony up their sleeves. His Lordship decided the charges of cowardice lodged against some of both the Empress and Storstad crews, were unfounded.

Opalescent effects are particularly promising among dress trimmings. Fabric handbags are greatly liked just at present.

"DO IT NOW."

By RUTH CAMERON.

A certain friend of mine invariably answers all letters on the day she receives them. When I praised her for her promptness one day, she answered, "It isn't because I'm good; it's because it's the easiest way. If I answer a letter on the day it comes, the effort doesn't seem anything, but if I let it lie around on my desk and hang fire for a week or so, answering it begins to loom up like a terrible burden."
How true that is of all kinds of tasks!
Show that you are afraid to attack them, let them get the upper hand of you, and the first thing you know they are towering over your head and shutting out the sunshine of life.
But go at them without any show of fear or reluctance, and they dwindle to nothing before you.
Take some little task like the breakfast dishes, for example. If you get up from the breakfast table and without stopping to think what a nuisance they are, advance boldly upon them, you will have them done in no time, and maybe even catch yourself singing over the dishpan.
But if you eye them with disfavor and decide you'll read the paper awhile before attacking them, and then remember that you must telephone a friend or run across the street to interview a neighbour, when you come back a half hour later you find that the breakfast table with the dishes upon it and the crumbs and the half emptied coffee cups has become an almost repulsive sight. The task of clearing it off looms like a mountain before you. You approach it slowly and distastefully, and the task probably takes you twice as long as if you had gone promptly about it.

It's the same way with bed making. Were you ever wicked enough to leave your beds until after dinner? If you have been, you know what a strangely unpleasant sight is an unmade bed with the afternoon sun lying upon it. It seems to reproach you, and you dislike it and want to get away from it just as you do from people who reproach you.

I once put off telling a piece of disagreeable news to someone who had to hear it. I can hardly describe to you how my dread of announcing it grew. I had disliked the thought at first, but my dislike changed by leaps and bounds into a positive aversion. It seemed to me I simply couldn't make the plunge. As the gentleman in the comic section says, "Never again!"

So, if you have anything hard or disagreeable to do, do it now. Fly at it, drive it before you. You will be astonished to see how it dwindles the moment you lay your hand, or your mind, upon it.

And the best of all, you will be surprised to find how much you will be strengthened by one such experience, and how much more easily you will approach the next unpleasant task.

Proper Living During Hot Weather.

Much of the irritability of the human race is caused by overindulgence in unbalanced meals composed of badly cooked foods.
The modern, thrifty housewife plans her meals so as to secure the best diet for her family. During the hot months, heat-producing foods—fats, sugar, starches, heavy puddings and pies and fried things should not be eaten, but rather those which are easily digested and cooling to the blood.
The business in which the breadwinner of the family is engaged must be considered when planning the meals. The man or woman leading a sedentary life requires foods easy of digestion and assimilation. This class of people does not require as much food as that engaged in muscular labor. The latter class needs heavier meals, but these should be less burdensome than in winter.
For both classes too much cannot be said about masticating one's food. The teeth were made for this purpose and many ills would disappear if food was not bolted into the stomach, which is too often overtaxed.
Salads rich with mayonnaise or hotted dressing should never appear at dinner, but be reserved for luncheon or supper. Green or fresh vegetable salads with a simple oil and vinegar dressing are the proper thing for dinner at all seasons. Potatoes can be eliminated from the menu some days and in their place substituted

Sixty Years a Queen—England's Tribute to Its Lamented Sovereign Victoria.
The late Queen, Victoria the Good, the Great Career on the Throne—Life of Queen Victoria Portrayed in Magnificent Seven Reel Film—Musical Accompaniment by Noted Artists.
The greatness and magnanimity of our late Queen, Victoria the Good, the trials and joys of her long reign and the countless events that go to make up the history of that memorable period, are the groundwork of the excellent seven part motion picture: "Sixty Years a Queen," as shown in the York Theatre by M. B. Leavitt, of New York and London, last evening, and which will be the attraction at that theatre every afternoon and evening this week.
The lengthy film is something out of the ordinary; it is intensely interesting as well as instructive, and offers a pleasing diversion from the usual run of lighter pictures. For nearly two hours those who attended yesterday's performances saw a most touching resume of the life of the great Queen and the people who were making history during her reign. No happening of interest or importance is omitted and the events are so well staged and enacted that one is carried back to the time when Her Majesty was the idol of the British people, whose loyalty to her is displayed in many ways.
The expense entailed in the production of this picture can only be imagined. Every spectacle is portrayed to the minutest detail. The settings and costumes of those taking part are in strict keeping with the time of the representation and in some places hundreds of people are shown in the epilogue, and Messrs. Barker, of London, under whose hands the gigantic undertaking was planned and perfected, are to be congratulated upon their success.
Carl Brett, the writer of the score for "A Good Little Devil" and author of "The Song of the Soul," from "The Climax," provided the musical accompaniment for the pictures, and his playing added greatly to the enjoyment of the photo-play.
The seven-part historical review contained among many others the following conspicuous incidents: The young queen holding her first privy council; coronation at Westminster Abbey; firing salutes in Hyde Park; the privileges of a queen; gorgeous state ball; Roland Hill, inventor of penny postage; the wedding of Queen Victoria to Prince Albert; the first telegraph station; the bustings made of election; the christening of Queen Victoria's first baby; several attempts on Her Majesty's life; family gathering at Osborne House; the first exhibition in Queen Victoria's reign; discovery of gold in Australia; Florence Nightingale at the Crimea; the Queen receiving the wounded at Buckingham Palace; family gathering at Windsor Castle; the terrible Indian mutiny; rifle shooting at Wimbledon; death of the Prince Consort; David Livingstone's discovery; the Queen's cable with messages to Lincoln; Hattowen at Balmoral; Charles Dickens meets Her Majesty; Prince of Wales critically ill; meeting of Victoria's cabinet; India Durbar in 1857; Gordon's last stand at Khartoum; the great Victorian Jubilee; Victoria's last appearance in public.—The Evening Times and Star, St. John, N.B.

America especially, a large and increasing market for marble in the erection and decoration of public buildings, and the quarries of Newfoundland may lead to the employment of many of our people.

On Thursday morning His Royal Highness will take a motor drive to see the country, going out by way of 20-mile Pond to Portugal Cove and returning via Broad Cove. On this drive His Royal Highness will have the opportunity of seeing Bell Island, which contains the most valuable and extensive mine in Newfoundland, and may inspect the trout hatcheries at Murray's Pond and the Fox Farm belonging to Mr. H. D. Reid.

On Friday morning early H. M. S. "Essex" will bear away our Royal Guest pleased, we hope, at the rousing Newfoundland welcome which will have been accorded wherever he has touched in the loyal and ancient Colony.

His Royal Highness, as Governor of Canada, is due to arrive at Quebec on the morning of the 19th of July.

Three women were drowned and it is feared a dozen other persons perished yesterday when a passenger train went through a culvert and into a torrent at Carr Bridge, 28 miles south of Inverness, Scotland. A thunder storm that ravaged the north of England and Scotland, was responsible for the accident. A train from Perth was crossing the culvert, and became derailed, and a culvert which had been undermined, collapsed. A passenger coach fell into the water. Many persons on the train escaped from the car, but drifted about in the stream and were badly injured before being rescued.

The incense which cut into the Kaiser Wilhelm has also been docked with her bows badly damaged. The collision almost duplicated that between the Empress of Ireland and the Storstad and promises to furnish the courts with a similar controversy to settle.

Confederation.

We are in receipt of a letter signed Observer, which opens a discussion on the subject of Confederation with Canada.

Our correspondent suggests that it is advisable that a public discussion should be induced on this subject, as he recognizes that considerable discussion is going on outside of the press.

We recognize with him that the topic of Confederation has been occupying attention of many persons for some months, and we agree with him that it may be advisable to discuss the matter more publicly.

We have therefore given a place in our columns to his observations, and we shall welcome further contributions from him and others.

It will be observed that our correspondent eschews personalities, and discusses the matter from the standpoint of the merits of the questions, devoting himself in this letter to general comments as to the effect of Confederation on the industries of the city.

We shall be glad to receive for publication letters to be published over the actual signature or over a nom de plume, but of course correspondents must in all cases follow the custom of supplying us with their names and addresses, even though the names may not be sent in for publication.

We ask for a clean discussion on the merits of the matter. We invite contributions based on facts and principles, not on prejudices and personalities. We shall not publish any injurious reflection on public men, nor shall we give publicity to declarations or insinuations or innuendoes meant to reflect on the honour of public men, or to attribute unworthy motives or sinister ends to them.

We shall welcome all contributions, whether in favor of or against Confederation with Canada.

The Duke's Visit.

PROGRAMME FOR ST. JOHN'S.

The arrangements for the visit to St. John's of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught have now been completed. Owing to the many calls to be made around the coast, H.M.S. Essex will not arrive in the Harbor of St. John's until the morning of Wednesday, the 15th of July. The Duke will therefore be in St. John's for two whole days only.

It is hoped that the Importers' Association will endorse the proposal that Wednesday, the 15th of July, which is already a half holiday, should be declared a whole holiday, in order that the citizens may have full opportunity to meet and greet our Royal Guest.

The programme for Wednesday is as follows:

His Royal Highness will land at 9 a.m. at the King's Wharf, which will be specially decorated for the occasion. The Guard of Honor will be drawn from the Police under the command of Inspector General Sullivan. The Mayor and Municipal Council will be presented to His Royal Highness, and will tender an address of loyalty, and welcome on behalf of the City of St. John's. The Duke with the Governor, will then drive at a foot pace through the City, stopping at King George V Seamen's Institute in order to inspect that useful and commodious edifice. Leaving Water Street by McBride's Hill, the Duke will drive to St. George's Field, where the Cadet Corps will be ready drawn up for inspection at 11 a.m. H. R. H. will inspect the Brigades. H. R. H. will then drive to Government House by Military Road and King's Bridge Road, entering the Government House grounds by the east gate.

His Royal Highness has been pleased to approve of a visit to Bowring Park in the afternoon, and at four o'clock will, at the instance of the Hon. Mr. Edgar Bowring, declare the Park open for the pleasure of the citizens of St. John's. The Duke will be asked to plant a tree to commemorate the occasion of his visit. After viewing the Park and meeting prominent persons associated with the well-being and improvement of the City of St. John's, His Royal Highness will be asked to proceed to the site fixed upon for the Tuberculosis Hospital, which is to be erected as the gift of Mr. W. D. Reid. It is hoped that the foundation stone, of Newfoundland marble, may be ready for the occasion. This marble block is to be obtained from the quarry at Canada Harbor, where white marble, equal to the best quality from Carrara, can be obtained. There is, in

Beri-Beri.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor—I want to thank M. B. for commencing a discussion of beri beri in the papers. In Newfoundland the newspapers are the means of dissemination of information, the people, especially in our outports, reading few books at all, that is my apology for so constantly troubling you.—I sincerely hope others will add to the discussion and keep alive an interest in the subject. The Government has been obliged to send relief immediately to the sufferers at Hooping Harbor, and there are many other cases. The object of the discussion is to interest people in finding out what to do to prevent the great economic loss and suffering entailed. As M. B. suggests, the causes are very likely plural, the evidence rather points that way. The district at present affected is very steep, rocky, and on low lying ground or marshes at all. Diet is universally accepted at present, either as causing the disease directly, or leaving the person in a condition which permits some other cause possibly a germ, to lead to the disease. The people of the country should remember these facts. The disease is essentially one of poor diet, it may even affect babies at the mother's breast where they are infected themselves. The two ingredients that are needed are nitrogen, and phosphorus. A fish eating people should have plenty of phosphorus, for beri beri has been mostly a winter disease when fish has been scarce. Beri beri is a disease of the crew's cabin, only seldom of the officer's. As M. B. points out, a poor diet means nitrogen starvation and a lessened resistance to infections of all kinds. People of the coast should remember that meats, fats, and vegetables containing nitrogen, such as peas and beans, are valuable. Mr. W. G. Goaling points out that the Manitoba flour contains more nitrogen than the Kansas or second flours, this is practically so small an amount anyhow it counts for little.

As to the infection and its possible method of reaching the human being, very careful experiments have been made and are not yet conclusive. Sir Frederick Manson, the famous specialist in tropical diseases, believes that the infection is carried largely by the vermin which infect the body, called body lice; these are, alas, too common among the poor, they have never been warned properly of the real danger these are, and there is no excuse for them. The bed bug is more difficult, in wood houses, to get rid of, but Sir Frederick Manson states that it is a cause of danger, just as the mosquito carries malaria and yellow fever.

To make this contribution to the discussion practical, it would be a very great help if the people were told through your columns that they should use whole wheat—which carries phosphorus and possibly a ferment or alkaloid yet unisolated, that it is good always to eat some meat, or fat, or peas, or potatoes in their skins. And secondly, that they ought to make a regular campaign against body vermin and bed bugs. The doctors of this country can speak with authority on the danger and evil results that they have seen from this all too common cause of danger. Perhaps I might add that the careful work done in Malta revealed the fact that in the milk of the goats, which the people had considered their very safest source of food, lay the germ which destroyed so many lives, when that was forbidden as a diet 95 per cent of the disease disappeared. And since, in 1911, the Governor of the Philippines passed a law against the use of polished rice in the Army and Navy, both native and American, beri beri ceased to exist. Rice containing less than one half per cent of phosphorus is called polished rice.

Thanking you for your courtesy in publishing these letters.

Believe me,
 Sincerely yours,
WILFRED T. GRENFELL.

Rebel Gunboat Sunk.

Special to Evening Telegram. On board the U.S.S. California, Mazatlan, Mexico (via wireless from San Diego) June 18.—The Federal gunboat Guerrero, which sank the Constitutional gunboat Tampico, arrived at Mazatlan to-day, with her colors half mast, in honor of Captain Melpico, of the vanquished vessel, who committed suicide. The Constitutionalists picked up after the sinking of the Tampico, will not be turned over to the federal authorities at Mazatlan, the Guerrero's officers having decided to spare their lives. The United States cruiser New Orleans, and the destroyer Perry, which witnessed the battle, and aided in rescuing members of the Tampico's crew, arrived here with the Guerrero. The New Orleans had six wounded men from the Tampico aboard. When the Tampico began to sink, Capt. Melpico and a number of his crew attempted to escape in a launch. The Guerrero gave chase, but did not fire on the boat, which it soon overhauled and captured. As the launch was being brought alongside the Guerrero, Capt. Melpico committed suicide.

Wonderful Picture at Nickel Theatre.

The most thrilling and spectacular "motion" ever presented in St. John's will be seen at the Nickel Theatre this evening when the great story entitled "A Dash for Liberty" will be given. It is a powerful story produced in two reels by Romaine Fielding. It is full of sensational scenes, including 'A Wild Ride on a Runaway Train' an explosion in which a touring car is shattered in pieces, a leap from a moving train and the capture. These scenes are real in every particular. It easily ranks among the foremost of thrilling motion pictures ever seen. There is excitement for everybody and thrills by the score. No one should miss it, as they may never get the opportunity to see such a high-class picture again. Then there are three other big films, a social drama "The Price Demanded", a war story, "A Daughter of the Confederacy", and a Biograph comedy "Red Heck Champion". To-morrow there will be a special matinee for children, and on Monday the wonderful Pathe D'art in three reels, "In the Springtime of Life".

Sorrow Renewed.

Sorrow is being continually renewed when we hear of these false reports of certain wreckage being picked up, which is supposed to be that of the Southern Cross. For years to come the memory of that terrible disaster will be fresh in the minds of people. Many a home is left vacant, many an earthly helper gone, and many are the sad hearts that shall mourn for the loved ones of that terrible disaster. St. Vincent has lost some of its fine young men in the person of Edward Gibbons, Sebastian Gibbons, Alonzo Gibbons, Thomas Gibbons, Con. Fleming, James Walsh, and William Whyte, of Peter's River, son of Edward and Catherine Whyte, "Bill," as he was familiarly called, was a kind, affectionate and loving son, and was idolized by his parents, who, with the friends of the other victims, deeply mourn over their sad fate.

They risked their lives on the ocean foam In the hope of returning soon; But little they dreamed, as they bade farewell, That the ocean would be their tomb.

May God provide for the unprovided, In the hour of death, He's our only Friend; When closed are our ears to all earthly sounds, He is our Comforter then.

O, regret not the sorrow that on thee is laid, By the hand of God hath that sorrow been weighed. St. Vincent, June 15, 1914.

Death at St. Vincent.

There passed peacefully away at St. Vincent on May 18th, Mr. Michael Gibbons, aged 43 years, son of the late Patrick and Sarah Gibbons. Deceased was in failing health for the past few years. He was one of the most successful fish-killers in the place and well liked by all who knew him. He leaves a wife, two sons, five brothers and one sister, besides many other relatives and friends to mourn their sad loss. May his soul rest in peace.

A Scene Behind the Scenes

Ratgenhauer's pay-clerk handed Marian her check for fifteen dollars on Saturday night between acts. Small though her pay for her week's acting was, Marian knew that it would replenish for a little while her by now practically exhausted funds. For the past week she had scrimped and scraped to make two ends meet. She had, sternly denied herself such luxuries as soda water, ice-cream candy, and even chewing gum. Never had she known before what desperate economy meant.

She thrust the check hastily into her purse, with the embarrassed fear that one of her companions in the dressing room might see it and laugh at its small denomination. "Oh, you coin of the realm," exulted the ingenue, accepting her own check and kissing it lightly. A surreptitious glance showed Marian that the other's check was for forty-five dollars. The sight was like a singeing flame to her envious feelings. "Get that check of yours cashed quick," laughed the ingenue.

"It might come back marked 'No Funds,'" answered the other, with lowered voice. "Ratgenhauer is as slippery as an eel. He's been through bankruptcy twice, you know. I wouldn't trust him much farther than I could see. Sorry you're not going to be in the cast next week," continued the ingenue. "Hope you'll be back on the job after that."

"I hope so," said Marian anxiously. Already she was filled with regret that she was not to participate in next week's play. From its initial strain, her work had become fascinating. Also, the first feeling that this work made her common had worn off. She longed to be regularly in the harness. Ratgenhauer put in an appearance as she was packing her suitcase preparatory to taking back to her boarding house the costume she had worn during the week. "Get your money?" smiled the manager.

"Yes, thanks," answered she. "Not much just yet. But before long you'll be pulling down big money—like the rest of them," said the manager.

ager. "Sorry we'll have to be with you next week." "So am I. What about the following week?" demanded Marian anxiously. "I think I can take care of you," said Ratgenhauer confidentially. "I can't tell definitely just yet. I'll know Saturday. Show up for rehearsal at ten o'clock. I think I can hand you a part, all right, little girl."

The two were alone in the dressing room. The final act of the play was proceeding full blast on the stage, and Marian's room-shares were either on the stage or waiting in the wings. Marian, alone with the manager, felt uncomfortable and hurried her preparations to depart.

"You've gotten fresh with me just once too often," said Marian in a hoarse rage.

"I want a little kiss before you go," he said suddenly, closing in upon her and putting his arms around her before she could retreat.

Again and again he forced kisses upon her lips. Boiling with rage at this repetition of a former scene with him, Marian, managing to free one arm, swung and struck him a stinging slap on the face.

"Damn you!" he cried falling back. "What's the matter with you anyway?"

"What's the matter with you anyway?" "You've gotten fresh with me just once too often. After this you keep your distance!"

Bertha M. Clay.

Poor Bertha's gone to glory, she died a month ago; no more she'll write the story of heartache, love and woe, the story sweet and tender of mafs and wedding rings for now in realms of splendor she's trying out her wings. I thought she was a maiden with old style cork-screw curls, with beads and earrings laden, like other ancient girls; but now the truth is printed since Bertha's home was called, her nose was crimson tinted, and she was slightly bearded upon her face and body high life had left its scars, for Bertha liked her toddy, and Bertha smoked cigars. On earth no human eazer beheld her in a gown, she used a safety razor to keep her whiskers down. With other mild carousers she liked a quiet game and Bertha's chums wore trousers, and Bertha did the same. This novelist of promise pursued deceitful plan; her given name was Thomas—and Bertha was a man! With this fact as a starter we will not show surprise on learning that Nick Carter is grandma in disguise!

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICK CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland—417-17.

Self-stick hatpins are among the novelties.

Will Close Down Their Boat House.

The C. L. B. Boat Club held a special meeting last night when important business was discussed. The attendance of members was large. Lieut.-Col. Rendell was also present. The report of the Executive Committee regarding the work of the Club was received. It was then unanimously agreed on that as the Club was formed solely to assist the Brigade, and in view of the latter having already decided not to participate in aquatic or any other Athletic events, the Club would not take part either end of the boat house, on the south side of the Lake would remain closed this year. It was further decided that any parties or organization wishing to take over the property to make application which would be considered at an early date.

Committees were appointed for matters respecting entertainments to take place for other purposes. The meeting then closed.

To-Night's Match.

The Feldians and Casuals will try conclusions this evening. The players are—

FELDIANS.—F. Lush, goal; F. Rendell, Strang, backs; C. Strong, Tait, Ryall, halves; Whiter, C. Rendell, Pinsent, E. Rendell, Trebble, forwards.

CASUALS.—Foster, goal; Bradbury, Hartley, backs; W. Chaney, Stevenson, R. Marshall, halves; O. Chaney, Pottle, Smith, Wall, Garland, forwards.

Played to a Draw

No Goals Scored. A Fast Game.

The large concourse of onlookers who attended last night's football match between the Collegians and B. I. S. certainly got the worth of their money, as a fast and lively exhibition was served out to them. The result was a draw, neither side scoring a goal. Taking everything, all in all, honours were evenly divided, hence a draw was good value. The game was the hardest fought for the season so far, but the high wind that prevailed hampered combination a great deal.

THE GAME.

The Collegians won the toss and took advantage of the wind. They began well and kept the ball in B. I. S. territory. The latter were kept busy defending and were unable to reach midfield owing to the wind being against them. Several attempts were made by the Collegians to score, without success, due to lack of judgment displayed in shooting. The Colleg boys continued to press hard, worrying their opponents. Duggan and Burke were valuable assets for the B. I. S., and frequently relieved dangerous situations. Hutchings controlled the ball and made a hard try, only missing by a narrow margin. A corner was then conceded the Colleg boys, but was poorly placed. Eventually the Irishmen broke away and brought the ball to the Collegian goal. Burke shot and Quick saved well. The Collegians resumed their attack and for the balance of the half hour had the best of it, but no scoring was done.

SECOND PERIOD.

The B. I. S. now had the wind in their favour and not a few members of the team took it easy. The Collegians who had no goals to their credit, knew they were up against it and worked with renewed energy. They seemed to play better against the wind, as for the first couple of minutes play was confined to B. I. S. quarters. Then the Irish settled down and got in some effective play. Quick was called upon and proved to be a hard man to beat. The Irish forwards then altered their play. They kept the ball as much on the ground as possible and exhibited a little combination, but even this failed to produce results. The Collegians' entire back division played a rattling game. The B. I. S. secured three corners in quick succession. They were neatly placed by Shortall but each time the ball was driven out of danger. The B. I. S. bombarded the Collegians goal for fully five minutes. Enthusiasm ran high and excitement was at fever heat amongst the spectators, but no scoring was done.

Before the game ended the Collegians made a few dashes against the wind into B. I. S. territory and once nearly succeeded in scoring. Mr. W. J. Higgins refereed.

THE PLAYERS.

B. I. S.—Clare, goal; T. Duggan, Dunn, backs; W. Duggan, Burke, Brown, halves; E. J. Brophy, E. Brophy, Jackman, Kavanagh, Shortall, forwards.

COLLEGIANS.—C. Quick, goal; Ayre, Barrett, backs; H. Barnes, Pike, J. Barnes, halves; Maddock, Smallwood, Hutchings, Noonan, Quick, forwards.

Kid Gleason.

Red McGhee

Red McGhee says: An' still they call of Gleason 'Kid'! A sneak-in' slant beneath his lid shows up a darn t h i n thatch. An' where the hairs do grow you'll the color scheme d o n 't quite agree—the dark an' gray don't match. But 'Kid' he is in spite of that an' underneath his of straw hat he's got a baseball pate. Right now he's with 'Comiskey's clan, a-helpin' Jimmy Callahan to steer the White Sox straight.

He started in former days himself, before he crawled-up on the shelf, on 'Phillies' of infield. He spent years 'headin' round the bush to scout out youngsters that had push an' tipped some that appealed. He's got a knack of 'pickin' out' the youngster who can pitch or clout in regular big league style. It's intuition, highbrows say—'all I know is it's sure the way to grab the rooks worth while.' But where the ol' boy really shines is keepin' kids within the lines when they've produced—made good. He knows jus when to slip 'em praise, an' when their hat size starts to raise he makes 'em knock on wood. He guards 'em in an' out of hours an' with his keen sarcastic pow' he checks 'em when they skid. The years he's counted in their flight don't count. His tongue gives him the right to wear that label, 'Kid.'

Anaemic Mothers Here is Relief!

You Can Enrich Your Worn-out Blood and Quickly Renew Your Health With Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Sufferer of Twenty Years States Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a Real Cure.

"I can't remember any time during the past twenty years when my heart wasn't aching. If I bent over, dark specks would come before my eyes, and it seemed as if all the blood in my body wanted to rush to my head." Thus opens the letter of Mrs. Enoch S. Spry, of Putnam P. O., and continuing her interesting statement she says: "Work or exertion made my heart beat terrible, and going upstairs caused such shortness of breath that it fairly frightened me. I tell you how I feel to-day and you can understand what a great cure Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made. I feel strong enough now to work like a man, as for going up stairs on the run, it doesn't bother me at all. I eat and sleep as any well person ought, and as for dizziness which used to frighten me so much, it has entirely disappeared. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful medicine. They helped me, and I know every woman that uses them will have comfort and good health. Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c. per box at druggists and storekeepers, or the Catarthozene Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada."

Obituary.

JOHN T. COLLINS.

With regret we chronicle the demise of a well known and highly esteemed citizen in the person of Mr. John T. Collins, who passed peacefully away at his late residence, Prescott Street, last night. The deceased had been ill for over thirteen years, having been suddenly stricken with paralysis in January, 1901, still he maintained his characteristic cheerfulness, and awaited the end with remarkable resignation. During this long period he was unable to talk and as the right side was completely paralyzed he learned to write with his left hand, and spent much of his time in correspondence with friends abroad, of whom he had a great number. Mr. Collins was for over thirty years in the employ of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company, and was considered one of the most popular and proficient operators on the staff. He had travelled extensively and was thoroughly conversant with current topics the world over. During his long and tedious illness, during which he was unable to move without help, he was attended by three devoted sisters, who watched him faithfully and were ever ready to minister to his wants. To these and the many friends of the deceased, the Telegram offers its sincere sympathy.

Confederation.

Its Effects On City Industries.

Editor Evening Telegram.

It is the province of newspapers to note any change in public sentiment whether they agree or are opposed to such change, and it is perhaps advisable that public discussion should now be induced on the subject of Confederation with Canada, which recently has assumed proportions very different from that of a few years ago.

Except at Election times when a charge of favoring Confederation was considered by candidates a subject for criminal libel, the matter was for some years relegated to the far future, but now through all classes the matter is discussed with pleasurable anticipation by some, with apprehension by others. Very favorable terms are spoken of, and it is pretended that private information has been received of many large expenditures which would be made in town and country by the Dominion Government. A decline in the steady independence of the townspeople probably has some effect on opinions. All classes are spending money too freely. From motor cars down through excursions, sports, to the Nickels, all classes are spending too freely, and there is nothing which so saps independence as the fear of financial embarrassment. I do not speak of the Government. The actions and expenditure of the Government are known to the public and are publicly discussed. When independence wanes one looks for somebody or something to learn upon. They may account in part for the change of sentiment which has progressed so far that it is stated bets have been freely offered that the Colony will be in Confederation within two years.

It may be as well to consider what the effect may be on the industries of this town. It is well known that small factories cannot thrive in competition with larger ones, and when all protection between Newfoundland and Canada is removed it will be impossible to operate most of the factories which are now providing profitable employment to a large class of operators, who would either have to leave the country or become a drag on the fishing and farming population to whom they would have to look for support.

It seems probable that the Tobacco Factory, owing to its constitution, might continue to operate. Clothing factories, biscuit factories, Soap factories, would be unable to compete with the larger establishments in Canada. The Butterine factories would disappear automatically, as the farming interests in Canada prohibit the manufacture of Butterine in Canada.

Our flourishing shops in St. John's as well as the outports would be subjected to a small order and commercial traveller competition, which would seriously curtail their operations.

What the effect on the value of property in St. John's would be, can be easily imagined.

These considerations may be suggestive to those who have the welfare of the city at heart. I believe that the city cannot be seriously damaged without corresponding injury to some extent, to the country.

Yours truly,
OBSERVER.

Wedding Bells.

HOUSE-SWEETAPPLE.

On Tuesday last, Miss Annie House, of Greenspond, and Mr. Martin Sweetapple, of this city, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. Mr. Whitemarsh performed the ceremony in the presence of a large circle of friends of the contracting parties. The bride was tastefully dressed and was attended by Mrs. Pike, sister of the groom, and Miss May Downton; whilst Mr. Wm. Downton supported the groom. After the ceremony the wedding party, after a drive around Quidi Vidi Lake, repaired to their future home on Hayward Avenue, where a reception was held. The Telegram joins the many friends of the happy couple in the felicitations extended.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percis Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

Two-Reel War Drama at the Crescent

A double film story full of stirring situations is the feature at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day and tomorrow. The Post Telegrapher is a two-reel Bison illustrating the action of an organized army carrying with it a very interesting plot. A Double Deception, a comedy drama is also a subject that will meet with the approval of patrons. The real comedy is Mike and Jake as pugilists, see this if you want to enjoy a hearty laugh. Miss Louise Arkandy will sing an illustrated novelty song and a special programme of music will add greatly to the big performance. Tomorrow afternoon is the day of the usual big matinee. The opening days of next week the great three-reel southern drama "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the usual prices. The Crescent is the home of safety comfort and refinement, courteous attention particularly to ladies and children every afternoon and evening.

Singing and Clog Dancing.

Six Pictures and 3 Vitagraphs. There was a very pleasing program at Rosaleys' and one well worth the price of admission; Dan Cusack in his vaudeville act went big, his clog dance calls for special mention. The pictures are ahead of anything seen here before. There is a soul-stirring drama "When the Desert was Kind," by the Vitagraph Co., another society drama, "Tim Grogan's Foundling," by the Vitagraph Co.; "Live and Let Live" showing the petty spite between two firms, by the Vitagraph Co. "After Welsh Rarebit" a very fantastic film, showing a man looking for his friends above the clouds, also "In Warner regions." In fact all six are features, no trash, but the latest and best in filmdom.

Visit of the Duke of Connaught.

The following account of the plans for the reception and entertainment of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, is published with the sanction of the Governor who feels that the people of Newfoundland are deeply interested in the visit to the Colony of so distinguished a Prince.

His Royal Highness will live during his cruise on board of H.M.S. Essex, a powerful cruiser of 9,800 tons, commanded by Captain Hugh D. E. Watson, C.B., M.V.O., who is remembered on the coast as Lieutenant on board the Cleopatra when the late Admiral Curzon-Howe was the popular Commodore on fishery duties.

H.M.S. Essex will arrive off Bay of Islands early in the morning of Wednesday, July 8th and His Royal Highness will make an early landing at Curling (Birchy Cove) where the West Coast is sure to greet the Duke with a Newfoundland welcome. Special facilities for travelling will be offered on the Reid Newfoundland Railway (return tickets for single fares) from Port aux Basques and St. George's on the afternoon of the 7th, returning each day after the Royal visit is over.

The Governor will be at Curling to receive His Royal Highness and will put off, as soon as the cruiser has come to anchor, to pay to the Duke a visit of courtesy and welcome. His Royal Highness will be received on landing by the Reception Committee when the Bishop of St. George's, the Magistrates and the Chairman and Secretary of the Reception Committee will be present. Subsequently at the place selected by the Reception Committee, a loyal address of welcome will be presented and the Governor will present first the members of the Reception Committee and then the representatives of all sections of the community on the West Coast, commencing with the representatives of the District of Channel, next those of St. George's and then those of Bay of Islands and Bonne Bay. His Royal Highness has expressed a desire to see the beauties of Humbermouth and will travel by launch through the superb waters of the Bay and up the River to the Marble Mountain before rejoining the Essex. In the afternoon, the cruiser will weigh anchor and leave for Hawke Harbor.

On Thursday, July 9th, the Essex will continue its northerly cruise in order to pick up and pass the fishing fleet then busy along the coast beyond Point Riche and in the Straits. It is hoped that His Royal Highness may land at Blanc Sablon so as to see a fishing settlement typical of this part of the coast of Labrador at the season when that shore is most busy. People from Forteau, Greenly Harbor and Isle au Bois will be able to go to Blanc Sablon should His Royal Highness go ashore that afternoon, and will join with Mr. E. Grant in giving our illustrious guest a hearty welcome.

During the night the Essex will go through the Straits of Belle Isle and make the settlement of St. Anthony. The time at the disposal of our Guest will not allow of an extended cruise "down North" along the Labrador coast but it is hoped that some people from the settlements along the Straits and as far as Battle Harbor may be able to come to St. Anthony to join in the welcome to be given to the Royal Duke.

At St. Anthony His Royal Highness will land and be received by a Guard of Honor from the Legion of Frontiersmen and, as the guest of Dr. W. T. Grenfell, C.M.G. and Mrs. Grenfell, will be shown the Hospital, the Orphanage and all the work carried on by that eminent Christian worker and philanthropist on behalf of the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen and the associated Grenfell Associations of America, New England, Canada and Newfoundland. After a day spent at St. Anthony, the Essex will proceed on its journey along the coast to Canada Harbor and take the salute of the Quartermaster at the Marble Works. Perhaps Mr. Trewhy and his fellow workers may have ready for delivery a block of Newfoundland white marble (said to be as fine as the best Parian or Carrara) to be used as the corner stone for the projected Tuberculosis Hospital which has been offered to the Colony by Mr. W. D. Reid.

On Saturday, July 11th, it is the wish of His Royal Highness, if possible, to call at Twillingate. This may not prove feasible, for reasons of time, but if the visit can be arranged the old Northern Capital will not be backward in giving a good welcome to the Duke. The Essex has, however, to arrive at Botwood in time to reach Grand Falls that afternoon.

At Botwood, His Royal Highness will be received by a Guard of Honor composed of the Boy Scouts of the Grand Falls Company, who will then be camping out at Botwood under the command of Mr. Herbert Blackall. A reception of the leading residents of Botwood will be followed by a visit to Connaught Hall, dedicated last September for the Botwood Lodge of Freemasons, at a cost of $5,000.

His Royal Highness will then proceed to the great Paper and Pulp Mills on the Exploits River. Unfortunately, Mr. Harris, the Manager of the Albert E. Reed, works at Bishop's Falls will himself be absent from the Colony, but the people of Bishop's Falls will be able to unite with those at Grand Falls in the expression of their loyalty.

At Grand Falls, His Royal Highness will be welcomed by Mr. Vincent Jones, resident Manager and Director, and in command of the marvellous settlement which has risen, like a dream city touched by a magician's wand. Lord Northcliffe (the magician) and Lady Northcliffe are, unfortunately, unable to be present in person to greet His Royal Highness, and Grand Falls must needs lose somewhat by the absence of the gracious hostess, but the welcome will be all right.

Sunday, July 12th, will be spent quietly at Grand Falls.

In continuation of the narrative of particulars relating to His Royal Highness' visit, the Duke will leave Grand Falls on Sunday afternoon, July 12th for Botwood so that H. M. S. Essex may have time to make Bonavista, the next port of call, by Monday morning.

DUNLOP Traction

The Master Tire fills the bill by reducing the bill. You see "Traction" on every style and make of car—on rear wheels, front wheels.

FRED. V. CHESMAN,
AGENT, ST. JOHN'S.

It is always a little uncertain whether the weather conditions will allow of a landing at Bonavista but it is His Royal Highness' desire to go ashore on Monday, July 13th and meet the folk who have suffered through our late disaster.

Tuesday, July 14th will be spent partly at Trinity where The Duke will land early and then in cruising down the coast so as to arrive at St. John's early on Wednesday.

FIRE ALARM.

At 9.10 p.m. yesterday an alarm of fire from Box 31 summoned the Central and Western companies to the rear of Mr. J. Whiteway's store, Water Street, where a box of soot was smouldering on the roof.

The electrician of the theatre near saw smoke issuing from the roof and sent in the alarm to which the firemen promptly responded and thus saved another blaze, as the fire was just working through the roof when they arrived. The soot was placed on the roof in a cardboard box, and was supposed to be smouldering for some time before the smoke was discovered. No damage resulted and the "all out" signal sounded at 9.25 p.m.

Crowds of citizens were on the scene in a great state of excitement as the fire was at first thought to be in the main building.

Here and There

Mr. Roy Farrell, son of Captain W. Farrell, Harvey Road, was a passenger by the Florizel, which arrived here yesterday.

ONE MORE SITTING.—This afternoon the City Fathers will meet. This day week will be the last time the present board will sit.

DETAINED AT SYDNEY.—The s.s. Morwehna is being detained longer than usual at Sydney. She will not get away for this port until tomorrow.

WITH THANKS.—We acknowledge with thanks copy of this year's Newfoundland Football Annual, just received from Mr. W. J. Higgins, Secretary of the League.

DOOR FOUND OPEN.—At an early hour this morning, the police found the door of a store on Adelaide Street open. Enquiry was made as to whether any attempt had been made to break in, and it was learned that the door was left open carelessly by the last person who was in the place.

INJURED BOY AT HOSPITAL.—The little boy Jones, who was seriously injured by a street car, as alluded to in yesterday's Telegram, passed a very comfortable night at the hospital. The leg was not amputated, though the bone was badly crushed, and there is some hope of saving the limb. The little fellow is only five years old, and it is not yet known if he will survive the shock.

From passengers who came on the Florizel, yesterday, we learn that the heat has been intense this month at New York. On Saturday last, the day the ship sailed from there, the weather glass registered 100 in the shade. This is the sort of weather experienced for a fortnight previously in the American city, and that many prostrations had occurred, some of them resulting fatally.

Heavy westers are coming in for waisteats.

That Averted Collision.

"SHIPS WERE NOT IN GRAVE DANGER," SAID CAPT. SMITH.

Concerning the head-on collision that was so called averted, off Beaver Harbor, in which the Red Cross Liner Florizel and the Dominion Coal Co.'s steamer Cabot figured and about which so much sensation was created, emanating from a paragraph contained in the public despatch, yesterday, and which was sent from Halifax following the arrival of the coal boat, we had an interview yesterday afternoon with Captain Clifton Smith, immediately on arrival of the Florizel. He told us that the report received from Halifax was partly incorrect and that the story of those on board the Cabot was exaggerated. Capt. Smith's story was to the effect that the Florizel left Halifax at noon on Tuesday, bound for St. John's. Shortly after her departure fog set in, gradually becoming very thick. Between two and three o'clock or about forty miles east of Halifax, Capt. Smith, who was then on the bridge, heard a steamer's whistle just as the fog began to lift. The sound of the whistle was like that of a tug boat. The Florizel responded with a blast of her whistle. The Florizel's bow was in a direct line with that of the approaching steamer, which proved to be the s.s. Cabot, bound to Halifax from Sydney, coal laden. Both captains altered their helm and the Cabot passed the Florizel on the starboard side. Capt. Smith denies the statement that the coal boat was only twenty feet from his ship. He says she was at least 50 feet away but at no time was either ship in grave danger. The Cabot was here last year; she is only a 500 ton boat.

(From Branch to Placentia.)

"The total catch is 200 quintals and for last week 100. Five traps are in the water and 12 boats with 9 skiffs fishing. Prospects are fairly good, caplin being used for bait. The lobster fishery is very poor to date. Yesterday bait was plentiful and the Point Verde dorics, twenty-five in number, averaged 2 quintals. There is no fish yet for the traps."

(From Trout River to Rocky Harbor.)

"Five traps with 25 dorics and skiffs are fishing, but it is too early yet to form any opinion of the prospects. The total catch is only 40 quintals. There is sufficient herring for local use. The lobster catch is very small and stormy weather is hindering operations all round."

The turn out is expected to be an exceptionally large one, and arrangements may be made to have a representation from Bell Island to take part in the celebration.
