CHAPTER XII.

"Quite so, quite so," responded Standon quickly. "Quite right. Forgive an old man's impertinence, my dear boy; and believe that it sprang from my interest in your welfare. By-by."

He toddled off, but chuckled when he had gone out of Clive's hearing, for he had seen Lady Edith's blush as her eyes had fallen on the young man. Clive walked slowly down Parliament Street, the old man's words haunting him; for Lord Standon had spoken the truth; the man who married Lord Chesterleigh's daughter, with her vast wealth and the great family interest, would find his political road smoothed for him, would find the path of the flints which lie so thickly on the cruelly rough road to fame and power.

Perhaps the thought was still with him when he went up the stairs to the great house in Grosvenor Square, for he was grave and preoccupied. But Lady Edith greeted him brightly, and appeared to be in the happiest of moods.

"How tired you look!" she remarked. "I thought you looked as if you didn't want to be bothered with the talk and chatter, and I have told them that I am not at home to any one else; so that you can rest and drink your tea in silence, if you like."

"That was very kind of you," he said gratefully. "But I want to talk." "When you have had another cup of tea," she said. "And now, if you must talk, tell me about—oh, anything that you are doing."

She leaned forward, her eyes fixed on his face with so evident an interest that Clive responded at once.

"I'm still pursuing the uneven tenor of my way," he said. "I think we shall be able to do something with the Housing question."

He told her in a few words—there was no need of a lengthy explanation, for she had the whole matter at her finger-ends—of the proposal of the government, and she listened intently, putting in a word, asking a question now and again, and leading him on as a clever woman can lead a man by talking of the subject nearest his heart.

"Yes; it is better than nothing," she said. "But you will get all you want in time, you are one of the men who always succeed sooner or later."

He laughed. "That's a rather too flattering estimate of my poor powers," he said. "But tell me, you were kind enough to say you could get some more pupils for my friend?"

"Yes; I have another one, I think," she said brightly. "And he deserves all we can do, for he is really very clever and is a capital teacher."

Clive thanked her again. "I can't tell you how grateful I am to you," he said warmly, so warmly that the color rose to her face and her eyes became downcast; then she raised them and glanced at him swiftly.

"It is I who should be grateful to you," she said in a low voice. "Until I—I knew you, I cared for nothing—I mean," quickly, her color deepening, "that nothing interested me, that I was quite indifferent about things, everything. Life seemed such a wearisome business, so many dinners, so many balls, so many receptions; and I was terribly tired of them all. But I know now why you—and men like you—keep on trying to do good, despite all sorts of disappointments and discouragements."

She paused for a moment; then went on again:

"This little thing I have done for you—you can't tell how much pleasure it has given me. I suppose it is because I have been of some use in the world; perhaps because I have been of some little use to 'The Friend of the People.' Will you let me be of more use to you? Isn't there something else I can do? Something bigger, that will give me real trouble; this was none. There, now! I am selfish. I am forgetting that you are tired and want to rest, and I am plaguing you. No; you shall not hum my whims and fancies, shall not talk. Lean back and rest, won't you?" She took a cushion from the long divan and put it at the back of his chair with a half-apologetic laugh, but with an appeal in her eyes.

Clive put out his hand to refuse the cushion, and their hands met. The blood rushed to her face at the contact, and her eyes grew soft and melting. Embarrassed, with a strange sense of foreboding, Clive let his fall and looked at her now downcast face with a troubled regard. It was an awkward moment, but before either of them could speak the door opened, and Sara entered. Lady Edith started and looked up with a frown.

"What is it, Sara?" she demanded, with ill-concealed impatience.

Sara had stopped just within the room and had shot a swift glance, malign, almost threatening, at Clive; but with a gesture of apology she bent her head low and put out her joined hands in an Oriental salaam.

"Pardon, my lady," she murmured. "I did not know—I thought the room was empty. Pardon sahib!"

She had gone, had glided out in a moment, but her entrance had broken the spell and Clive rose with a feeling of relief, of—was it escape?

"I take you at your word. I'll accept your kind offer, Lady Edith," he said gravely. "If I need any help I think you can give me for some of my poor people, I will come to you. I am very grateful."

She gave him her hand without a word, her eyes downcast, her face now pale; and for some minutes after he had gone she sat breathing painfully and gazing at the chair in which he had sat.

As Clive went down the stairs and

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

You will be pleasantly surprised to note how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs and breaks the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiaecol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

into the street, he, too, breathed painfully, and again Lord Standon's words came back to him. He lived in a world in which so many marriages without love are made, in which the marriage of convenience is as frequent as any other act of exchange and barter, that he was not startled by the idea suggested by the old gossip. But he recoiled from it with a sense of distaste, of resentment, which arose from something within him that lay deeper than the mere surface objection to a loveless union.

She was very beautiful, the advantages of such a match were as great as undeniable, as Lord Standon had pointed out, but—No; he could not do it; though by doing it he should gain all that he was striving for. And yet a few weeks ago would he have shrunk from the idea of marrying Lady Edith as he shrank now? Why had he become so scrupulous? What had happened to make him so unworldly?

As if in answer to his question, Mina's face rose before him—but he thrust it aside; he would not accept the mute answer.

When he entered the Tate Gallery the next afternoon and looked round, eagerly, he was conscious of a pang of disappointment, for she was not there. He walked quickly through the rooms, devoured by suspense, and presently, with a sense of relief and gladness, he saw her coming toward him.

Her face was pale and there was a troubled expression in the gray eyes as she gave him her hand.

"I am late," she said in a low voice, her eyes avoiding his. "I—I did not mean to come."

"Not mean to come? Why?" he asked, though he foresaw, with a sinking of the heart, her reply.

"No," she said, meeting his eyes with an effort, but steadily. "I—I thought it over after I left you. I knew Tibby would be angry, and I did not tell her. I have not told her that I was at the meeting the other night. And—and—no; I did not mean to come. But I—I could not keep away. It seemed so ungrateful not to come and tell you why—"

"I understand," he said in a low voice. "You think it is—wrong, Mina?"

She inclined her head; there were no tears in her eyes, but he knew that she was afraid lest there should be.

"Yes; I—I suppose it is. Tibby would know. I did not think of it until I had discovered that I did not want to tell her. She would know. And yet—is it wrong?" she asked almost piteously.

Clive stood, battling with his conscience. Her presence was as sweet as myrrh to him. There was an irresistible fascination in her innocence, her half-unconscious desire to avoid evil. What should he say?

"Perhaps Tibby is right," he said at last; but even as he spoke he rebelled against the scruples which were dividing them. "But all the same, I am glad you have come, Mina. Will you stay five—ten minutes, now you are here?"

She looked round wistfully, then up at him doubtfully.

"Five minutes, then," she faltered, with a sigh. "There—there is one of the pictures I want to see again."

"Tell me which it is; we will go and look at it together," he said.

"She went straight to one of the rooms, and they stood before Waterhouse's magnificent and pathetic 'Lady of Shalott.'"

"This it is," she said in a low voice, her eyes fixed on the picture. "It is so beautiful—so—so real that I could not get it out of my mind, though I don't know what it means."

"It is from one of Tennyson's poems," he said. "I will send it to you."

"No, no!" she said. "I can borrow it from the school library. How lovely she looks, and how unhappy. I—I wish I could forget it."

"Come and look at some of the others," he said in a voice that came painfully.

They walked round slowly and she gazed at the pictures, but with lessened interest, and when they reached the door she started slightly and stopped.

"I will go now," she said. "I—I am glad I came, that I have seen the picture once more."

"You can come again," he said, still with the labored voice. "You can come alone, Mina."

She shook her head, her face averted.

"No; I shall not come again," she said, almost inaudibly. "Don't—don't come with me, please. I would rather you did not—"

Her voice broke and her lips quivered. "Oh, how ungrateful you must think me! But I'm not, I'm not!" She raised her eyes to his face and he saw the tears in them now. "But I—I could not tell Tibby—"

The tears threatened to fall, and she turned aside and put her hand to her eyes with a swift movement that wrung Clive's heart.

"Good-by."

He held her hand a moment, his own closing over hers tightly, then she withdrew it from his grasp and, before he could realize that she had gone, she had passed out.

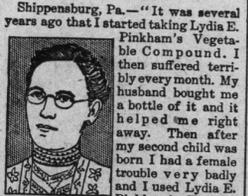

He stood looking at the door like a man in a dream; then, with a quick sigh, a catch of the breath, he turned after her; but when he had reached the entrance he stopped short, and stood biting his lips, his face white and strained, his heart beating heavily, for, with the passing of that slight girlish figure, something seemed to have passed out of his life.

But she was right, the instinct born of her purity, her innate goodness, her childlike shrinking from an unknown evil, was right; he must see her no more.

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her in Health for 14 Years.

Shippensburg, Pa.—"It was several years ago that I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I then suffered terribly every month. My husband bought me a bottle of it and it helped me right away. Then after my second child was born I had a female trouble very badly and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and in a short time was cured and have been in excellent health since. I always praise the Compound whenever I have an opportunity as I know it helped me and will help others. Lately I have given the Compound to my daughter and I wish all suffering women would take it and be convinced of its worth."—Mrs. JAMES A. BEIDEL, 113 N. Penn Street, Shippensburg, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Girls! Have a Mass of Beautiful Hair, Soft, Glossy, Wavy

25-cent bottle destroys dandruff and doubtless beauty of your hair.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that all you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

THE CRESCENT PICTURE PALACE.

The picture show at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day is really a good one and should be seen by all lovers of moving pictures. "Out of the Storm" is a thrilling mining drama. It is produced by the Lubin Company and portrays some beautiful western scenes. A Kalem masterpiece in two acts is "Her Bitter Lesson," the favorite actress Alice Hallister features in this great modern society drama. "The Apple" is a Vitaphone melodrama. Dorothy Kelly and James Morrison are the principals supported with a strong cast. Lloyd V. Hamilton, the great comedian, plays one of his funniest roles in "Love Oil and Grease," this is one of the funniest comedies you ever laughed at. On Wednesday a wonderful presentation of Browning's celebrated poem: "The Ring and the Book" will be shown.

THREE PRIZES AGAIN AT ROSSLEY'S TO-NIGHT.

Last night there was a splendid house at the Reliable Show Shop, and patrons were delighted with the laughable sketch presented by the ever-popular Rossleys. The MacKenzie Company gave every satisfaction, the singing and playing being very much appreciated. The three-reel feature "Sans Gene" is even better than the Bernhardt picture of last week, as Madam Rejane is a great comedian. Mr. Rossley gave the three money prizes which were won by Miss Hanley, Mr. Murphy and Mr. Andrew Snow. Mr. Murphy will hand his dollar over to the Patriotic Fund. Mr. and Mrs. Rossley will appear in their laughable sketch again to-night and other three prizes will be given. Mr. Dan Roche who comes from New York for Mr. Rossley, is a wonderful pianist.

British Fleet Basily

Carrying on Operations in Belgium, Not Officially Mentioned.

Paris, Sept. 23.—Tremendous flanking operation is being carried out by the British fleet, of which the official statements have as yet made no mention.

This development will probably prove the decisive factor in the huge attack now in progress. It is a surprise for the Germans and another triumph for the British fleet.

An operation analogous to the Dardanelles' effort is being carried out on the shell-sweet sands of which was once the most famous summer gambling resort in Belgium.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE CHALLENGED

Mr. Lloyd George's statements at Bristol with regard to an alleged incident at the Coventry Ordnance Works have been challenged by the Coventry Munitions workers. Mr. Lloyd George said that workmen had been asked to annoy a certain man, who was completing a job in 8 1/2 hours which ordinarily took 3 1/2 hrs. The allegation of the Minister of Munitions has been taken up and investigated by the Coventry Labor Advisory Committee on war output, and in a reply issued recently the committee declared that the statement according to which a trade union official sent a circular invitation to men employed in the Coventry Ordnance Works to watch and annoy a certain man with a view to retarding the output needs calling attention to the committee wishes emphatically to contradict this, and claims that every assistance has been given to accelerate the output of munitions of war. This communication is signed by seven members of the committee. Mr. Lloyd George in his speech said a note had been circulated among the men working at the factory, but did not specify by whom it had been circulated.

427th Day of the War

TO-DAY'S Messages.

10.45 A.M.

STEAMER MISSING.

MONTREAL, To-day. Anxiety in this city over the probable loss of the Dominion Coal Co.'s steamer Kronprinzolaf, bound from Sydney to Montreal, with a cargo of coal, deepened into the belief that the vessel has met with a serious mishap, as no definite news of the whereabouts of the Kronprinzolaf can be learned. It was thought she was driven ashore in a gale on Sunday night. She was expected at Montreal last Wednesday or Thursday. Capt. Jensen was in command of the Norwegian vessel. The crew of twenty-nine consisted chiefly of Norwegians.

LOST SONS AT THE FRONT.

LONDON, To-day. G. N. Barnes, recently returned from Canada, is the first Labor member to lose a son in the war. Barnes has been a most active member of the Parliamentary Recruiting Committee. Donald MacMaster, who has lost his only son in France, has gone to Scotland in connection with his duties as a member of the Munitions Committee. His loss is making him more determined to do everything possible to help the country.

GERMAN COUNTER ATTACKS REFUSED EXCEPT AT ONE POINT.

LONDON, To-day. Field Marshal Sir John French's report dated Oct. 4, 7.40 p.m., says: Yesterday afternoon the enemy commenced a heavy bombardment and delivered repeated attacks over the open against our trenches between the Quarries and the Sermedes-Hulloch Road. These attacks which were pressed with determination, were all repulsed with severe losses to the enemy, and failed to reach our trenches. Further northwest the enemy succeeded in recapturing the greater portion of the Hohenzollern redoubt. On the remainder of our front the situation is unchanged.

PRAISES FLYING CORPS.

LONDON, To-day. Field-Marshal French issued an order of the day, expressing appreciation of the valuable work done by all ranks of the Royal Flying Corps in the battle in France, which began on September 25, under extremely adverse weather conditions, which compelled flying at very low altitudes and under heavy fire. General French especially thanks the pilots and observers of the aircraft for their plucky work and co-operation with the artillery, photographing and making bomb attacks on railways, which he says was of great value in interrupting German communications.

THE LANDING AT SALONIKA.

LONDON, To-day. The Athens correspondent of the Reuter's Telegram Company, sends the following to London and Paris: The 'Messenger D'Atens' commenting on the Allies landing at Salonika, does not understand the uneasiness manifested in Greece over the incident. The paper points out, even should the Greek Government regard this action as a premature move, it was one in support of Greece and assures the people it is as the traditional friend of Greece and in no other capacity that France and Great Britain make their appearance in the Balkans.

HEAVY CASUALTY LIST.

LONDON, To-day. Another heavy casualty list made public here, indicates the price paid for the recent British victory over the Germans in France. The official list gives the names of ninety-nine officers and 7,736 men, while unofficial news has been received of the deaths of 83 additional officers.

1.00 P.M.

PRINCE NICHOLAS TO COMMAND.

ATHENS, To-day. Prince Nicholas, the newspapers state, soon will be made Commander-in-Chief at Salonika. He held a similar position in the last Balkan war. A Mytilene despatch says the British light squadron yesterday bombarded Turkish fort of Penki one of the Dardanelles defences. Long range guns mounted on Lighters bombarded the Narrows and forts on the Asiatic coast.

BULGARIA HAS MILITARY ALLIANCE WITH GERMANY.

MILAN, To-day. A military convention was signed between Bulgaria, Germany and Austria some time ago, according to the Sofia despatch to Corriere Della Sera. By the terms of this treaty, the despatch asserts the Bulgarian army is bound to attack Serbia with six divisions in the Nish Pierot section and send Macedonian troops to Vardar to destroy the railroad communication with Salonika, thus delaying the allies in their efforts to aid Serbia. The Opposition Bulgaria Leaders M. Ghenadiev Malonoff and Gurehoff, after having gone so far as to threaten King Ferdinand, because of his stand in favor of Germany and Austria are reported to have changed front completely and now proclaim that the nation is united; bands of students parade the streets of Sofia singing alternately Bulgarian, German and Austrian national anthems.

BULGARIAN TREACHERY.

LONDON, To-day. Under such captions as "Bulgarian treason" and "Bulgaria sells herself," all the editorials in the London morning newspapers take it for granted that Bulgaria has cast in her lot with Teutonic Powers.

Cotton and Explosives.

Some striking facts regarding cotton in its relationship to the manufacture of high explosives were recently given by Sir William Ramsay. In the first place it should be explained that gun-cotton is really cotton waste, carefully cleaned, combed, and dried, soaked in one part nitric acid to three parts sulphuric acid. It is afterwards dried, and pressed into cakes. It is employed in the Navy in both a wet and dry condition, the former, with thirty per cent. of water added, being much safer to handle.

Sir William Ramsay points out that there is no adequate substitute for cotton for propulsive ammunition. Other substances have been tried—wood, hemp, straw, and other material with woody fibres. But they have not the propulsive power of cotton. To propel as far with woody materials would need a larger charge, which would entail the enlargement of the barrel of every gun and rifle.

The expenditure of ammunition in this war is unprecedented. At a conservative estimate, Germany requires 1,000 tons of cotton a day. A whole bale of cotton is required to fire one of their biggest guns, or for every 80,000 rounds of rifle ammunition. The total cotton stocks in Germany at the outbreak of the war was estimated at 250,000 tons. This would have carried on the war for 250 days, or about eight months, had cotton, in the opinion of experts, been made contraband at the beginning of the war.

It's Always Darkest.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"I'm feeling better than I have for years," a friend of mine told me the other day in a strong, happy voice that backed up her words.

For the last ten years she has been on a n d sometimes across the boundary of invalidism. During that period she has been operated on three times. The last time the doctor decreed that an operation was necessary, it did not seem to her friends they could let her go to the hospital. I remember what a gloom settled down on their hearts when that decree came. It seemed the final blow of fate.

And yet, when I asked her what she thought had wrought the change in her health, she answered promptly, "That last operation, without doubt. I've been gaining ever since."

Out of The Blackest Day Came Sunshine.

Naturally my mind went back to the black day when she was carried to the hospital. It was one of the blackest days that those who loved her ever managed to live through, and yet see the days of sunshine and health and happiness it has brought them and her.

The best things of life often come wrapped up in the most unpleasant looking packages, don't they?

Two of the best things that ever happened to me were these—I funked my examinations to the normal school and I lost my second newspaper position.

How Two Misfortunes Brought Good Fortune.

In the year which passed before I could take my normal examination again, I changed my mind and prepared for college, a course which proved far wiser and happier in the end. And having lost a makeshift position, I found my way into work that I loved.

And yet, as you may well imagine, neither experience appealed to me at all at the time it happened.

I know this is a trite thought, reader, but it's one of those trite, true things that in times of discouragement one sometimes forgets and needs to have brought home to one.

We need to have the spirit of hope stabbed wide awake by the poignant present ill is the seed of the greatest happiness that will ever come to you. It has been so with others. Why not with you?

Question—To settle a family jangle, will you please answer through the paper whether it is in good taste to have the shades of the rooms fronting on the street raised during the evenings so that the brilliantly lighted room and its occupants are plainly visible to passerby?

Answer—I can't settle anything so entirely a matter of taste as that. Some like the shades up, some down. In the old days the housekeeper rushed to pull the shades down the moment the lamps were lighted, but nowadays people are not so particular. Personally I love to pass along the street where the shades are up. It looks so friendly. In my own home the shades are usually up in summer and down in winter. But I repeat, this is wholly a matter for individual taste to decide.

From Sailor Boy to Lord Chief.

STORIES OF LORD READING.

"In my early youth I was a sailor. Not a very distinguished one, I am afraid, for I served as a ship's boy in a sailing vessel," Lord Reading, the Lord Chief Justice of England, confessed a short time ago at a distinguished gathering. Had his lordship cared to continue his reminiscences and gone into further details, he might have told how the vessel which he served upon was the good ship Blair Athol, a Scottish vessel trading to Rio Janeiro with coal.

For more than a year he led the rough-and-tumble life of a sea apprentice, his main duties being to keep the brass-work clean.

Apparently in his boyhood days the Lord Chief was a bit of a pickie. One of his schoolfellows some years ago described him as the very worst of boys from the schoolmaster's point of view. "Lessons he left unlearned, class work he shirked, and mischief was his only devotion. Indeed, my recollection of him is always of a demoniacal, young, mischievous imp, with sparkling eyes, who was always in disgrace or being caned, and yet withal was ever merry and deliciously humorous. 'Isaacs Secundus, you will go to the devil,' was the prognostication oft repeated by his schoolmaster."

His brief but inglorious career upon the ocean, however, knocked some of the nonsense out of "Isaacs Secundus," and on his return he entered his father's business at Magdeburg, Germany, where for two or three years he superintended the shipments from Hamburg. By this time he had reached his twentieth year, but could not decide what vocation he was most suited for. He determined to try the Stock Exchange.

With characteristic thoroughness he learned the business as a clerk. Then he became a member. But the work did not appeal to him. Nature had intended him for the law, although he did not know it then, and he only discovered his forte when at twenty-four he decided to enter the Middle Temple as a student.

At the beginning of his legal career, a day that brought him a guinea was a day for rejoicing, but soon people began to talk of young Rufus Isaacs, and his progress became a thing to marvel at. The plums of the profession—he became Solicitor-General and Attorney General in 1910—fell to him, although in accepting these offices he made a great sacrifice. For while the salary attached to the latter office is £7,000 a year, which, together with fees, is brought up to about £10,000, it was estimated that his private practice was bringing him in at that time over £30,000 a year.

King "Begs Pardon."

During the visit of the King and Queen to the Devon Voluntary Aid Hospitals at Exeter, says the Western Morning News, the King was attracted by an Irish soldier of more than usually youthful appearance.

"You look very young for a soldier," remarked the King. "How old are you?"

"Eighteen, your Highness," was the prompt reply.

"You joined up last year, I suppose, for the war?" said the King, unable otherwise to account for the breach of Army regulations. "Oh, no, your Honour, I joined four years ago." The suspicion of a smile wavered on the King's lips as he asked further, "How old were you then?"

"Sure, sir, I just joined when I was a bit of a boy, sir."

"Oh," said the King with a laugh, "I beg your pardon."

Use "Cascarets" for Liver and Bowels When Constipated.

When bilious, headachy, sick, for sour stomach, bad breath, bad colds.

Get a 10-cent box.

Take a Cascaret to-night to cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, a bad cold, are bilious, nervous, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

THE CARISBROOK.—The S. S. Carisbrook which went ashore near Little Bay some time ago is still in the stream waiting to enter the dry dock. She is leaking considerably, and her pumps are kept going continually to keep her free. She is expected to enter the dry dock on Thursday.

Dr. Geisel's Lectures

Dr. Geisel again lectured to large and appreciative audiences at the Casino yesterday afternoon and night.

In the afternoon the subject of the discourse was "Self Poisons" and the topic was dealt with in a masterly and interesting manner. Dr. Geisel advocated the use of large quantities of water daily as a beverage and urged the necessity of physical exercise for the promotion of digestion. The lack of the latter, and the small quantity of water usually drunk are responsible for the greater number of the ills consequent upon the fermentation of food in the stomach. Rev. C. H. Barton presided, and at the close a vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Barnes and seconded by Rev. Mr. Whittemarch was tendered the lecturer by acclamation.

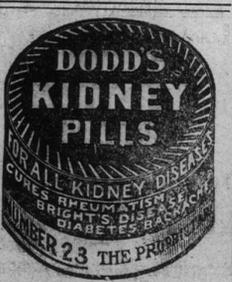

In the evening Dr. Geisel took as her subject "A Blot on the Brain" and delivered an earnest and instructive address to a capacity audience of representative citizens. She dwelt at length on some of the evils which affect our life, interfere with mental development and activity, destroy manhood and womanhood, and leave their blight on the succeeding generation. Children are the innocent sufferers of their parents' excesses, said Dr. Geisel. She then went on to deal with the deadly effects of alcohol on the brain cells, illustrating her remarks with a photographic chart, and quoting statistics in support of her argument.

In March, which is said to be the greatest beer drinking city in the world, a noted scientist has stated that 72 per cent of the babies born there were imperfect. As a contrast, in the State of Maine which is practically dry except for the "stopping over" of the adjacent States, the statistics showed the reverse that is 72 per cent of the babies born were found to be normal. The use of alcohol, says Dr. Geisel, leaves a blot on the brain which results in mental deficiency. Other blots on the brain came from adenoids, improper feeding of children and cigarettes. She dwelt at length with the effects of cigarette smoking, particularly in the case of students, who in many instances have been found unable to pass the qualifying examinations for admission to universities. All these blots may be removed and man has it in his power to destroy them.

In conclusion she made a strong plea for the removal of drink. She referred to the brave Newfoundlanders who are fighting abroad for us and urged upon all present to fight also for the removal of the enemy alcohol so that the coming race will be clean, strong, and vigorous men and women.

Dr. Curtis presided at last night's lecture and the hall was so filled that many were unable to gain admittance. This afternoon at 3 o'clock Dr. Geisel lectures on "A Study of the Nerves," and to-night the subject will be "The Home Behind the Men."

Our New Idea!

Having shown where we excel in the Bedding Line, we wish to add one word more on Our New Idea Bedstead. Having installed machinery the past month for the punching, boring, &c., of our Beds, we can now fit our Oxford or Copper Spring to any Bed as required. This does away with the wood altogether, makes it absolutely vermin proof, and makes a Bed superior in every way to the old, as it is made into the Bed and can be removed and packed very closely—a great convenience when removing. We also have the Combination Lath and Spring Beds, the only thing of its kind in the country.

Authors in Khaki.

The announcement that Mr. John Macfield, the poet, is now serving with the Red Cross is a reminder that many men of letters are now in khaki. Captain A. E. W. Mason, who wrote among other popular works of fiction, "Four Feathers," is serving with the Manchester Regiment, while that popular author and dramatist, Mr. Somerset Maugham, is also with the Red Cross.

Compton Mackenzie, who has been sending us such brilliant reports from the Dardanelles, is serving as a Lieutenant out there; which calls to mind the fact that "Eye-Witness" at the beginning of the war was Colonel Swinton, who under the pseudonym of "Ole Luk-Ole" has written stories which are regarded as masterpieces of military writing. Mr. W. B. Maxwell, son of the late Miss Bradton, who ranks among the popular novelists of the day, is serving as a Lieutenant in the Royal Fusiliers; an enthusiastic member of the Royal Naval Air Service being the well-known playwright and novelist, Mr. Cosmo Hamilton. Lord Dunsany, an author with a unique reputation, is in the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers.

Among other writers in khaki might be mentioned Lieutenant Stephen Cwyn, M.P., journalist, novelist, and poet, who joined the Irish Brigade as a private, and was ultimately promoted; Dion Clayton Cathrop, who belongs to the Royal Naval Division; and that popular writer of short stories, Oliver Onions, who is proud of the fact that he is a "Terrier."

Simpson's Bag Full of Money.

Housekeeper Repeats the Story of the $50,000 Seen with the Winnipeg Tory Boss.

Winnipeg, Sept. 24.—The tenth day of the preliminary hearing of the charges against the ex-Cabinet Minister opened with the evidence of Miss Mary Smith, who was housekeeper for Dr. R. M. Simpson. Miss Smith said Simpson left for the front on May 2nd, giving her one day's notice. She said Horwood had visited Simpson and telephoned him, and Simpson had telephone conversation with Caldwell.

Witness said that she saw Simpson take to his apartment a Gladstone bag full of money. She saw twenty dollar bills, and afterwards she saw a memorandum on the table with figures totalling $50,000. An hour later Simpson took the money away. She thought this was about the first of April of this year. She told of Simpson telling a Mr. Sweeney, over the telephone, that he "would not mind giving three or four thousand dollars to quiet it down." She believed the Parliament buildings were mentioned.

J. R. Russell, of the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs, who had been subpoenaed to produce some telegrams, said he could not bring any sent last year, since these telegrams were destroyed after six months. Russell identified the telegrams produced before the Commission. These included a series between Sir Rodmond Roblin and Hon. Robert Rogers regarding sending F. H. Phipps to Winnipeg. H. Bowman, Assistant Deputy Minister of Public Works, stated that when the original tenders for the Parliament building were called for he was instructed to take any tenders to the Premier's office. He saw only one tender, and gave it to Sir Rodmond Roblin. He never saw a second. Bowman described his meeting with Caldwell, Simpson and Horwood, in which witness recommended the change from a piling to a caisson foundation, at a cost not exceeding 25 per cent. above the cost of piling.

Malcolm McLean, clerk of the Executive Council, was asked about the $302,000 dome contract. Witness said that he was ordered to go to the Lieut.-Governor, obtain from him the certified copy of the order-in-council sanctioning this contract and take it back to the Premier. Either Roblin or Montague gave him this order and he got the document and gave it to Roblin.

An adjournment until Tuesday morning was granted the defence this afternoon, for unstated reasons. When court resumed after the noon adjournment, A. J. Andrews, for the defence, asked for the adjournment. The Crown did not oppose the request and the session was immediately concluded, no evidence being taken.

Winning the V. C.

Fought With His Pistols to Save the Guns.

The announcement that that grand old soldier, General Sir James Hills-Johnes, recently celebrated his eighty-second birthday, recalls the striking story of how he won the V. C.—a story which stands out even among the many stirring military episodes with which the "For Valour" medal is associated.

Four years before the Indian Mutiny broke out, Sir James joined the Bengal Artillery, to which Lord Roberts already belonged, in the same corps. Both were present at the siege of Delhi; both took part in the operations at Lucknow; both were dangerously wounded at the siege of Delhi; both made miraculous recoveries, and both before the Mutiny ended, received the Victoria Cross.

This is how "Jimmy" Hills won the much-coveted decoration. He was in charge of a cavalry picket outside Delhi, when a large body of Sowars suddenly dashed forth from the city. To save the guns, young Hills actually charged the enemy alone, thinking that the diversion he caused would give the runners time to reload. For the next few minutes the lieutenant had the time of his life.

He plunged into a series of hand-to-hand fights such as appear in the stories of the old Crusading days. He succeeded in putting two men out of action one after the other, but no sooner was he rid of these than he was charged by two more, and his horse was sent flying. But he went on fighting.

When his sword was twisted out of his hand he resorted to bare fists, being eventually rescued from certain death by Sir Henry Tombs, who also won his V. C. on that memorable day.

Labour M. P. And Engineers.

Work Slackers False to Their Mates in the Trenches.

Mr. G. N. Barnes, M.P., at Brownling Hall, Walworth, on September 12th, said: "What we want is that the men we have sent to fight our battles should be supported by men in the workshops better than they are at the present moment. (Applause.) As a trade unionist I have said before that I believe in normal times and under normal conditions our form of organisation in the workshops is the best one on the whole, and that the admission of men into trade unions and the payment of a standard rate of wages on something like equality has, on the whole, worked well."

"At the same time I added, that under conditions caused by the war we ought to regard it as our solemn duty to turn out as many as it is possible in every workshop in the country. I am sorry to say I do not believe that has been done. I speak as a member of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers. I have some knowledge of the conditions in engineering shops throughout the country, and I believe that at this moment there are a large number of semi-automatic machines, simple machines that could be operated by other than highly skilled mechanics, and the society, instead of standing in the way of that being done ought to encourage it by every means within their power. (Applause.)"

V. C. by His Men's Petition.

Medically Rejected Hero's Deed—His Own Account.

A tall, tired officer of the Scots Guards stepped out of the "leave" train from the front arriving in London in the early hours of the morning. He was Second Lieutenant Boyd-Rochford, the new V.C., who, as stated in The Daily Mail, was medically rejected before he was accepted for the Army in April, after undergoing an operation for varicose veins. He did not know he had been awarded the Victoria Cross, and, although his brother met the train and told him so, he could scarcely credit it until he read it in the newspapers later in the morning.

As Second Lieutenant Boyd-Rochford waited for the Irish mail last night he told a Daily Mail representative the story of his efforts to enlist and how he won the V.C.

"Like other men," he said, "I was, of course, keen on enlisting when war broke out. But I had the ill luck to meet with a nasty accident while playing polo during the last week in August. I had to undergo a serious operation in November and was in hospital for three months. When I came out in February I tried for a commission, but they would not accept me because I had varicose veins. So I underwent another operation and was laid up for six weeks.

"After that I got my commission and joined in April. I went to the front on June 1st, and have been in the trenches with my battalion continuously until last Friday."

Caught Mortar Bomb.

The lieutenant was with a working party of about 40 men in a trench when a mortar bomb from the German lines was hurled over the parapet. The lieutenant, with Irish dash and resolution, shouted, "Clear away, boys!" and springing forward caught the bomb just before it reached the ground and flung it back over the parapet.

"It seemed," he said last night, "that it had hardly left my hands before it exploded with a terrific report. We were all buried under falling earth, but fortunately no one was hurt, although my cap was blown to pieces. "My men were very appreciative of my action and cheered and thanked me. Afterwards they wrote and signed a statement of what I had done. There is just one thing I must say, and that is that the men of my battalion are simply splendid!"

The lieutenant will receive his V.C. from the King at Buckingham Palace shortly.

A BIG SALE!

About two months ago a statement appeared in this paper that over "TEN THOUSAND" (10,000) bottles of STAFFORD'S LINIMENT had been sold since the beginning of the year 1915. Certain persons were heard to remark that they were not so sure about this statement. We will go farther now and offer $1,000 to the person or persons who can come in to our store on THEATRE HILL, and ask us to show them orders amounting to over FOURTEEN THOUSAND (14,000) sold since the beginning of THIS year and by our not being able to produce them, will gladly forfeit the above sum mentioned.

All you have to do is to come in and ask us. The reason of the big demand for STAFFORD'S LINIMENT is that it is superior to any other LINIMENT on the market at the present time. It has a unique record for relieving RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA and all ACHES and PAINS, in fact no home should be without a bottle. "STAFFORD'S LINIMENT" is sold everywhere, and always be sure that you obtain the bottle with the green wrapper on the outside and the RED LABEL inside.

THIS CHILD (BADLY BURNED) WAS SAVED BY ZAM-BUK

Mrs. A. Bruhm lives at Northfield, N.S., and her little daughter, while playing at a bon-fire, was set ablaze. She was burned so seriously that her life was despaired of. Zam-Buk was applied to the burns, and not only did it give relief, but it healed the burns and saved the child's life. "You may rest assured," writes the grateful mother, "that our home will never be without Zam-Buk!"

You need no harrowing details, no high-flown language to gather this lesson:—For burns—sustained while ironing, opening the oven door, striking a match, handling a stove lid—just as soon as any burn is sustained put on Zam-Buk. In from ten to thirty minutes, according to the severity of the burn, you will have ease!

Just as good for scalds, cuts, etc., and a positive specific for eczema, itchy skin diseases and for piles. 25 cents. All druggists and stores, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Why not try it?

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY.
(By Harold MacGrath.)
60c. Cloth; 50c. if mailed.

At the foundation of the plot of this exciting mystery story, there is a secret organization in Russia. Then are given glimpses of country house society, the modern boarding-school, the fashionable restaurant, the enterprising twentieth century newspaper reporter, the romance and mystery that may be linked together by two halves of a bracelet, the love of a father for his daughter, the devotion of an old family servant, the intrigues of a band of thieves and blackmailers and plenty of the old love that is always new, not to mention the million dollars about which the whole thing revolves and which, in these times, has an especially pleasing ring. All these result in a story that keeps the reader with pulses tingling.

We also have Winston Churchill's Great Novel, "The Inside of the Cup," in a 60c. cloth edition. Only a few copies, though.
