NOTICE!

Complying with widely expressed public opinion as voiced by the Press and individual citizens. We, the undersigned members of the Municipal Board, deem it our duty to offer our services to the City for the next two years.

While making this announcement as a body, we wish it to be clearly understood that we are standing as individuals, and desire to express our readiness as individuals to work with any Mayor or with any other Councillors that the Citizens may see fit to elect.

In respect to the Charter which has been submitted to the Legislature, we beg to state that, while firmly of opinion that its adoption will enable the City to be more effectively governed than at present, we have always recognized that some of its provisions are debatable. We have supposed that the Legislature and the Citizens would carefully consider such sections and would arrive at some decision in respect to them which would be generally satisfactory.

We can point to some satisfaction, if not with pride, to the improvements which have been made during our short term of office, and it is in the hope that we may be able to complete and perfect the work begun, and to institute further improvements, that we now signify our willingness to serve the City for another term of two years.

"KYRA," WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

CHAPTER XIII

A Letter From Home.

"While I keep my eye on that door the child is safe," he thought; "and now to get the route to the nearest town."

He took his seat at the table, round which the men were gathered, eagerly watching the mail-master, as he turned over a heap of letters which he had taken from his bag.

"Boss, that's for you," he said, tossing over a letter to the landlord. "Finny, my boy, here's a couple for you; and—" he broke off, suddenly, and stared at Percy's tobacco pouch—"You don't expect anything my way, stranger?" he said to Percy, with a sly wink to the company.

"No," said Percy; "I certainly do not, my friend."

"Wal, then, you may look upon this as an unexpected blessing," said the mail-master; and, with a triumphant smile, he drew a soiled-looking letter from a particular corner of his pouch. "Your name, you say, is Percy Chester?"

"It is," said Percy, with as near an approach to surprise as was possible to him.

"How do I know that?" asked the mail-master, with either real or assumed suspicion.

Percy frowned.

"Because you have heard me say so, for one reason," he replied.

"Ah, but how do I know you're the real Percy Chester, eh?" said the mail-master, wagging his head. "Because," he continued, "this here 'bacca pouch says so" and, with an air of conscious cunning, he pointed to the silver crest on the pouch, and then to the crest stamped on the envelope in his hand.

Percy was almost guilty of a start.

"Well reasoned," he said; "the letter no doubt belongs to me."

"And there it is," said the man, handing it over, with another wink round, as much as to say—"You behold no ordinary man in me, the master of the U. S. mail, my friends."

Percy took his letter, and drew near to one of the candles. Yes, extraordinary to say, there was the Vering crest, the Vering postmark; it was from Vering Wood. There were stamps and scrawls and postmarks all over the envelope, back and front; it looked as if it had been traveling as hard as Percy himself, as indeed it had.

Before he broke the seal, he turned to the postmaster.

"Is it not rather an extraordinary thing for a letter to travel in this way?" he asked. "This seems to have been following me about for—"

"Three weeks," said the man. "Yes, we are a go-ahead nation, stranger; and when we see 'To be forwarded' on an envelope, we forward it, we do; we don't chuck it in a pigeon-hole, like the Britishers. I'll trouble you for four dollars extra postage, and a receipt."

"Here are both," said Percy, laying down money on the table and signing the postmaster's book. "and the least I can do to translate my thanks into something more substantial than words," and he nodded to the landlord, who handed him a whisky glass.

By Purifying the Blood You Get Rid of Pain

Here is the Sworn Statement of a Lady Who Was Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Poison causes pains and aches, tired, languid feelings and derangements of the vital organs of the body. By ridding the human system of poisonous impurities Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure rheumatism, headache, backache and pains through the body and limbs.

As an illustration, we would refer you to the sworn statement of Mrs. Bergland. It is just such experiences as this that has made so many thousands of people enthusiastic about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is why they are to be found in the great majority of homes.

Mrs. O. Bergland, Dundick, Sask. writes:—"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to all who are suffering from weak kidneys. I suffered from headache and backache, had heart fluttering and my sleep was so broken and unrefreshing that it was with difficulty that I

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering. It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

opened the letter. "Honored Sir:—If you are not already Percy drew away to the candle and ready on your way home, which I hope and trust you may be, take ship at once. The earl is sinking, and you should be here!

"Your honor's most faithful servant, STEPHEN GRINGE."

CHAPTER XIV

A Child With a Woman's Heart.

Percy stood as if turned to stone. This summons, sent hap-hazard, and on a goose chase of the wildest kind, should have met him in this out-of-the-world, snowed-up settler's inn. There was something almost miraculous in it! Here he had been traveling guided by no hand but that of chance, to meet this emphatic call to the deathbed of the head of his house. For the moment he forgot the place, the presence of the watchful, curious men around him, Kyra herself, and instinctively strode to the door. Then he turned back to the table.

"How long has this been in your possession?"

"Three weeks, no more nor less, stranger, and it's all a chance I had it. You see it lay at the general office for a day before we knew which way you'd turned, then I says, 'I'll take it and cross him somewhere, or lose my hair'—hair's on, stranger, you bet."

"You have done me a great service," said Percy, simply. "This letter calls me back to England immediately. Can you put me on the quickest road?"

"If I can't no one can," said the postmaster, and then he dipped his finger in the whisky glass. "Look ye here, stranger," making a diagram rapidly, "this yere's Wanahi due west; this yere is the nearest port; these yere dots, all in a line on the left, are—so-and-so and so-and-so, naming several villages and settlements. 'In all a matter of a hundred miles—through snow and brake, grizzlies, and Injuns—"

"Ah!" said Percy, the word bringing him upright as a dart—"the child."

"The child," echoed Mr. Jackson, who had been listening with affected listlessness; "don't let the young 'un trouble you, sir—I'll undertake to look after her. What's more, I'll undertake to restore her to her own tribe; I know it well."

"It's name?" said Percy, quietly.

Mr. Jackson hesitated, then, by the very look of his face, was about to lie, when the falsehood was driven from his lips by a sudden muffled clatter outside.

"What's that?" exclaimed the postmaster—"travelers?"

Still came the strange clatter; this time distinct for a moment, then faint and still fainter.

The landlord sprang off the table on which he had been sprawling, with an oath.

"It's the horses!"

Every man sprang to his feet and stared at his fellows.

"Darn my limbs! why don't we go and see?" cried the postmaster.

And he made a dash at the door, followed by all—all but the Yankee. He stopped suddenly, and sprang like a lean cat to the door of the side room. His was a quick movement, but Percy saw him, sideways as it were, and, swinging round, had gained the door and stood before it. The Yankee glared at the stalwart Englishman with undisguised malice.

"Come, stranger," he said, "it's no use daddling round the brat."

"The child—I must have her!"

And like lightning, he whipped out a revolver. But Percy's eye was quick, and he had learned to use his fists. Before the deadly barrel was leveled he had struck it up to the ceiling, and sent the tall Yankee over on to his side; then, with a backward kick, he stove in the door, and putting his leg in to keep it, called the child.

No answer. Out came his revolver. "Yes, palefaces no like Kyra's brave. They tink Kyra sleep—sleep, Kyra little 'possum, and shuttee eyes fast, but keepee ears wide—so! Kyra no go with tall, thin bar. He bad paleface! Kyra no go away from brave! So Kyra creep like smallee beaver and makee Pollee ready—paleface horses no ready any more!" and she shut her lips and smiled with the most exquisite and lively mischief.

"You sent their nags loose!" exclaimed Percy, looking at her incredulously.

"Kyra say—go, paleface horse, you no catchee Pollee now!"

And then, having told her tale, and ascertained by Percy's face that her "brave," was not going to throw her off the horse, she, like a true redskin drew in her sweet little head under the blanket, and composed herself for sleep.

A grim smile crossed Percy's face, and he looked down at the blanket with a strange, puzzled air.

"What is this I have picked up out of the snow?" he muttered. "A child with a woman's heart, and a witch's wits! Polly, we'll make for England, but it is strange to me if we don't presently find ourselves either led by the arm to fairyland for rescuing an elfin queen, in the shape of an Indian brat, or in New York jail for stealing horses and assaulting a United States Commissioner. But England by choice, for I feel as if the hand of Fate was beckoning me!"

How You May Throw Away Your Glasses

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunate ones, these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one Bon-Opto tablet in 1/4 glass of water. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind, or nearly so, or who wear glasses might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasingly weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, says: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable eye medicine, and is highly recommended by eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it myself, and I feel that it is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

house, made off at a noiseless gallop over the snow.

"Now," said he, pulling up and wrapping his cloak more closely round the girl; "my little daughter of Solomon and the first serpent, what have you done? and how have you done it? Deign to inform a brainless child; do, sapient gray-head!"

"Paleface no angry?" asked Kyra, drawing her head out, and peering at him with half-doubtful smile.

"Angry? No room for it. I'm all astonished admiration, my child—I mean, my good witch! How did you get out of that room? through the window?"

She nodded.

"Yes, palefaces no like Kyra's brave. They tink Kyra sleep—sleep, Kyra little 'possum, and shuttee eyes fast, but keepee ears wide—so! Kyra no go with tall, thin bar. He bad paleface! Kyra no go away from brave! So Kyra creep like smallee beaver and makee Pollee ready—paleface horses no ready any more!" and she shut her lips and smiled with the most exquisite and lively mischief.

"You sent their nags loose!" exclaimed Percy, looking at her incredulously.

Fashions and Fads!

Vells and handkerchiefs with tassels are the latest fad.

Spanish shawls are very much in favor as theatre wraps.

A parasol for rain or sun is of flowered rubberized silk.

Cossack coats of taffeta are made to wear with summer frocks.

Gin Pills

Why Demanded

"Gin Pills did for my husband and me what no other remedy could. I have advised two other parties to use them and they being my mother who has been a great sufferer so as to enable her to sleep on her left side. The doctors told her they could not cure her, but could relieve her by an operation for a floating kidney, but on account of her age, did not think it advisable for her to go. Upon my advice she tried Gin Pills which she said for which she is ever ready to speak in terms of praise."

A STYLISH GOWN ESPECIALLY DESIGNED FOR MATURE FIGURES.

1697—Ladies' Dress With Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths.

This model is fine for combinations of materials, for serge and satin, broadcloth and suede or silk, for chambray and gingham. As here shown, serge was used with figured silk for vest, collar and skirt panel. This style is easy to develop, and very attractive. If linen is chosen the panel and vest may be embroidered. The sleeve in wrist length has a two piece deep cuff. In short length it is finished with a cuff cut with points.

The Pattern is in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires 6 1/2 yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size. The skirt measures 3 1/2 yards at the foot.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A DAINTY AND COMFORTABLE NEGLEE.

1716—Ladies' Kimono.

Figured challis, dotted muslin or dimity, any pretty lawn or crepe, also silk, cashmere, nun's veiling and albatross, batiste or linen may be used for this style. The sleeve is lengthened by a gathered ruffle. The collar is in ruffle style, and meets the smart revers of the fronts.

The Pattern is cut in 3 sizes: Small, Medium and Large. It requires 5 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for a Medium size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

It has been a commonplace comment during the last few days that we were greatly depressed at the news of Kitchener's death. We felt as the Dutch Nieuwe Courant put it, that "one of the pillars of the Empire had fallen." We felt, as the Kitchener's death. We felt, as the "fight on!"

We shall be raising monuments to our great hero when the clash of arms ceases and we turn to victor services and award honors. The name of "Kitchener" will be carved above the portals of Soldiers' Homes and Army Hospitals. His majestic figure will rise in bronze in countless cities.

But, if he had his choice, he would exchange all these memorials of a grateful people for one living, lasting monument in the form of an Empire-effort to make up for even the great loss of his genius and capacity by settling down in dogged, redoubled determination to complete the task he started—to sustain and support the army he created.

If the foe think to discourage us by killing our leader, we must meet them with our teeth set and our blood up to a united and untrifled resolution to turn tragedy into triumph and show that the British bull-dog spirit is not to be cowed, though bow follow blow, and the sword of our leader no longer gleam ahead.

We shall but poorly repay the priceless services of Lord Kitchener, dishonor his example and discount his inspiration, if we permit his death to be listed as a British defeat. The Germans confidently count it as a victory. We must disappoint them.

That is what Kitchener would urge in his quiet voice could again be heard. Berlin smiles over this gift from Fate or fanaticism. Kitchener's command would be—"Turn that smile into a grimace of despair!"

On sober, second thoughts, the British Empire refuses to be cast down over the loss of Kitchener. We cannot escape our sadness, but we will escape anything like depression, demoralisation or dismay. #### USE NERVILINE.

Aching joints and sore muscles are common in rheumatic people. Inflammation is deep in the tissues. You might use a dozen remedies and derive less relief than Nerviline will give you in half an hour.

Nerviline is a pain-subduer that works do not altogether describe. It is fully five times stronger than most remedies, not that it affects the pain unfavorably—no, its great power is due to its wonderful penetrative quality—it strikes in deeply, but never burns or blister.

Just rub Nerviline into sore muscles, stiff joints, and note the glow of comfort, the ease of pain that follows. You are astonished, delighted; this is because words do not express the promptness and permanency with which Nerviline cures every ache and pain in the muscles and joints.

Marvelous, you'll say. Natural, we say, because Nerviline is different, stronger, more penetrating, a true pain-subduer. Just try it and see if it doesn't cure rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, strains and sprains.

The Kitchener Spirit.

It has been a commonplace comment during the last few days that we were greatly depressed at the news of Kitchener's death. We felt as if the Dutch Nieuwe Courant put it, that "one of the pillars of the Empire had Kitchener's death. We felt, as the girl for the brave and undaunted spirit which had flamed up and gone out under the icy waters of the Orkneys; but we flinched for, perhaps, a forgivable moment under the blow and feared for a breath that this might mean in the great Allied battle of freedom.

But that was not in keeping with the Kitchener spirit. The name of the iron soldier who fell in the very crisis of the war has done so immensely much to win, is not associated with misgiving or hesitation. Kitchener is synonymous with determination, invincibility, undiminished steadfastness. He was the man who won through to Khartoum.

And that is his bequest to his people—the British people. If he had left us a last word, it would be—"Fight on!"

We shall be raising monuments to our great hero when the clash of arms ceases and we turn to weigh services and award honors. The name of "Kitchener" will be carved above the portals of Soldiers' Homes and Army Hospitals. His majestic figure will rise in bronze in countless cities. But, if he had his choice, he would exchange all these memorials of a grateful people for one living, lasting monument in the form of an Empire-wide effort to make up for even the great loss of his genius and capacity by settling down in dogged, resolute determination to complete the task he started—to sustain and support the army he created.

If the foe think to discourage us by killing our leader, we must meet them with our teeth set and our blood up in a united and unflinching resolution to turn tragedy into triumph and show that the British bull-dog spirit is not to be cowed, though blow follow blow, and the sword of our leader no longer gleam ahead.

We shall but poorly repay the priceless services of Lord Kitchener, dishonor his example and discount his inspiration, if we permit his death to be listed as a British defeat. The Germans confidently count it as a victory. We must disappoint them.

That is what Kitchener would urge if his quiet voice could again be heard. Berlin smiles over this gift from Fate or "Fateism." Kitchener's command would be—"Turn that smile into a grimace of despair!"

On sober, second thoughts, the British Empire refuses to be cast down over the loss of Kitchener. We cannot escape our sadness, but we will escape anything like depression, demoralization or dismay. We will fight the more furiously for the cause in behalf of which he labored and finally laid down his life.

Roberts "died within sound of the guns he loved." We did not still the guns. We multiplied them many times over; and their death requiem will yet sound over the hopes of Prussian Imperialism—that organized national appetite which Roberts feared and hated, and against which his aged voice was ever raised in warning.

Kitchener died with a British cruiser. He went down within a few days of the thousands of his fellow countrymen who died in their glorious and victorious fight against the whole German Navy just across the North Sea. The same waters gently cover them. The same flag floats triumphantly over those waters, as secure in its mastery of the sea as it ever was. Though the creator of our army, he died with the greatest symbol of British power.

Let us make that power impregnable. It is a power never used for oppression—never turned against the weak—always at the service of the oppressed. It flashed into action in this war when the Hun struck down innocent and defenceless Belgium. It joined Russia in the defence of menaced Serbia. It fights with France for the liberation of the French of Alsace-Lorraine, and with Italy for the freeing of Italian lands from the yoke of Austria.

That is the power that Kitchener to a great extent personified. He used it to set the stricken Soudan free from slavery and to enable the Egyptian fellahen to lift their heads as men. He was as a sharp sword in the hand of a liberty-loving democracy. The sword is now broken. But the democracy lives and loves liberty as passionately as ever.

Will we fight for it as steadily, as grimly, as unitedly as ever? If Kitchener could hear, that is the question whose answer he would most anxiously await. He would care nothing for the gibes of Germany which can ill-conceal its delight. He would know—none better—that good men have been trained in his school to take up his baton. But will the whole Empire rally as never before, and charge past the form of their fallen leader, finding a spur in his untimely death that they never felt in the most inspiring moments of his life?

That is the message he listens for as the waves crash on the coast of the Orkneys. Is his last act to benefit Berlin or Britain?—Montreal Daily Star.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them. I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. ### The Effect of the Blockade.

(The London Free Press.) Some of the most notable men of France in the world of letters, the world of science, of politics, of commerce and industry, of military affairs, have formed an association the object of which is to keep the public authoritatively informed on all matters of moment regarding the war.

The significant motto of the association reads: "Patience, Effort and Confidence." The "Letters" of the association so addressed to the nation are distributed through the agency of well-known magazines, in leaflet form.

The most recent letter has for subject matter: "The Control of the Seas." Under the first heading: "The Allies Control the Sea," the superiority of the allied sea-power is explained in detail. The second division tells of the loss of the enemy in colonial possessions. The third, the blockade and effects on German commerce. Division four sets forth the various consequences of the blockade. The conclusion shows how the land held by the central powers in Belgium, France and Russia is more than offset, territorially, by the Allies' gains in China and Africa.

Rear-Admiral Degens gives a clear account of the results, present and future, of the blockade. He says: "The reduction of Germany's importations has deprived her of industrial resources indispensable to the support of her economic life. Her commercial fleet, destroyed or closed in for the last eighteen months, was a chief agent of the importers and the manufacturers, to whom she brought raw material and supplies. The list is long; minerals, cottons, flax, wool, textiles of all sorts, raw hides, leathers, fats, oils, petroleum, gasoline and rubber. Any of these materials that now reach Germany, from the outside world, are necessarily very high in price—therefore, many enterprises have been affected seriously.

"Since the beginning of September, 1916, cotton weaving establishments work but one or two days a week. Iron and steel are manufactured for military purposes solely. With leather the story is almost the same. "The reduction of the industrial output has sensibly increased the cost of living. We have some time since ceased to listen to the exaggerated accounts that told of imminent famine. The increase, however, has raised the Government no little alarm. In order to remedy the situation there are many cases in which a maximum has been placed, with the effect that the products thus tariffed have been withdrawn from the market.

"Notwithstanding these facts, Germany, at present, has no idea of looking upon herself as conquered, but it would be useless for her to argue that her power of resistance has not been seriously diminished. The Allies have every intention of rendering the blockade yet more effective and stringent.

"Germany has often boasted that her territorial gains have been so important that when the time for the signing peace contracts comes, she will be able, by reason of these gains, to dictate terms to the Allies. 'Nearly all Belgium, a good slice of France, and some Russian territory' are in our hands," they triumph. "Germany forgets the mortgage we have on her holdings! "In first rank come the colonies we have taken from her. In Africa alone, according to the German official reckoning, we have now possession of 552,982 square miles, which is almost equal to the total surface extent of Germany, Austria-Hungary and France.

"As a result of the blockade, the seas that Germany covered with her fleets, merchant and marine, are free of all her vessels. And in consequence an embargo is put on her foreign commerce and the products necessary for trade. "This sequestration of German commerce will last as long as Great Britain finds necessary to the end she has in view, in conjunction with her Allies. No matter what might be the military events, continentally speaking, as long as Great Britain keeps the sea superiority, she could, of herself alone, restrict German contact with the seas and oblige that country to live her own."

"Thus the Allies hold the controlling odds, which are considerable: the German colonies, the external commerce and all the industries dependent upon importations and exchange."

At Rest.

The funeral of the late Rev. George Paine took place from his late residence King's Bridge Road at 2.30 yesterday afternoon. At the house, service was conducted by Rev. C. A. Whitemarsh, B.A., and Rev. Norman Gay, M.A. The funeral cortege proceeded up King's Bridge Road and Military Road, down Cochrane Street across Bond Street to Gower Street Methodist Church. On arriving there the casket, covered with floral tributes, was placed in front of the Communion rail, and the city circuit ministers occupied the front seat. The rostrum was occupied by the Rev. Dr. Fenwick, who conducted the service, Rev. Dr. Curtis, who read the lessons, (St. John, Chap. XIV., 2 Corinthians, Cap. I.) and Rev. Wm. Swann, of Bell Island, who offered prayers. The Rev. W. H. Browning, of Pouch Cove, paid an affectionate tribute to the faithfulness of the departed minister. Rev. Mr. Paine had visited the Motherland four years after laboring in Newfoundland, and on returning to his work was accompanied by the speaker, Revs. Story, Hill and others, and landed at St. John's from the s.s. Caspian 33 years ago. Mr. Browning referred to Mr. Paine's success on his various circuits, derived not so much from his eloquence as a preacher as from his sympathetic interest in young men, the sick and others. He was always a much loved pastor and friend. The hymns, "Asleep in Jesus, Blessed Sleep," and "Brief Life is here our portion," were very feelingly sung during the service, a large number of the choir being in attendance. At the conclusion of the service the congregation stood whilst the organist, Mr. Kendall, played the Dead March in Saul, after which the cortege proceeded to the West End Cemetery where all that was mortal of a faithful servant of God was laid to rest to await the coming of the Resurrection. The prayers at the graveside were said by Rev. F. W. Atkinson, Rev. W. H. Browning and Rev. Harry Royle.

The English Miracle.

L'Homme Enchaîné, Paris.—The English miracle has not been wrought at sea. Dreadnaughts, cruisers, torpedo boats! Well, it is all only the English tradition. But what has made the ancient northern island soar in the esteem and admiration of mankind is that she has, for the first time in her thousand years of history, ceased to be an island, ceased to think and act as a mere island. She has embodied herself into the Continent by her fine handsome men who have heroically held the line in the trenches of Flanders, their short pipes in their teeth, by her guns and her convoys, and, above all, the high serenity with which she has accepted, on our ancient soil, a destiny of pain and bitter struggle. Yes, that is splendid, because it is not all the work of an hour, but the inevitable conclusion of a history of ten centuries. Other nations have, on these epic battlefields of Europe, shed more blood than England. Others have undergone assaults more violent, have had to develop a more desperate heroism before the onrush of the Barbarians. But no nation has resolved, with more method of decision, to go on to the very end of the task. No nation has experienced so complete a metamorphosis in its manners, in the exercise of its rights and its claims to be independent.

Incidents of Thunder Storm Were Marvellous.

Body of Soldier Tattooed With Oak Leaves.

Hamilton, Ont., June 5.—Something akin to terror ran through the minds of the ten thousand troops who were in the route march at Niagara-on-the-Lake during the intense electrical storm last Friday.

The unfortunate private who was killed outright had the imprint of the maple leaf made on the peak of his cap driven into his forehead by the force of the lightning which struck him. Another private, who was not seriously injured, was struck as he was marching with his comrades past a large oak tree on the Niagara road. Strange to say, his body is simply covered with the patterns of oak leaves as though they had been tattooed into the flesh or stamped with some kind of a die.

Six or seven of the forty-odd others who were injured are said to have sustained serious injury to their eyes, and yesterday, it was stated that these men might go blind. The troops who were marching at the time were all carrying their rifles with bayonets fixed, and before the latter could be sheathed a quick storm came up, with the foregoing results. Another man had his right leg twisted almost completely around. He was thus rendered unfit for further military service.

WEDNESDAY, June 14th 1916.

Light From the East.

We make no apology for again referring to Russia, whose achievements are daily gaining importance. Not long ago an authoritative English paper assured us that, although day was not yet, we could already see the dawn. If so, it comes, appropriately enough, in the East.

The report of the fall of Czernowitz is likely enough soon to be confirmed. The great German drives of last summer scarcely moved, or tried to move, the Russians from this region. If we remember aright, they retained the district around Tarnopol. Now Czernowitz is an important point, connected directly with Lemberg by rail. More important still, it lies almost at the juncture of Hungary, Russia and Roumania, and its loss by the Austrians will certainly affect the last named, occurring as it does immediately before her eyes. How far will it affect her?

How tremendous would be the accession, at this moment, of the Austrians to the strength of the Allies! Austria, her frontier there almost denuded of troops, would crumple up. Bulgaria would be nipped between the pincers of Bucharest and Salonika. But Roumania has made, undoubtedly, a secret compact with Austria, or rather, what is a very different thing, her Government has. As to which, let us hope that it partakes of the general nature of Balkan compacts, and that the Kaiser may find in his "scrap of paper" theory a weapon to be used against himself.

Coincidentally with the Russian advance we learn that Greece is being rendered innocuous and that the Bulgarian coast on the Aegean is being bombarded, both very significant facts. Let us sum up the factors in the situation—Germany is busily occupied on the west front and will be so whether she wishes it or not; Austria has her hands full with Italy; Russia threatens an avalanche into Hungary; Roumania still sits on the fence; Greece attempts a quiet understanding with Bulgaria, which is quietly frustrated; Bulgaria is bombarded where she flanks Salonika; and at Salonika there is a large Allied force. The role of prophet is a dangerous one at present, but we will risk it. We too see the dawn in the East.

Further Kind Notices.

The following article appeared yesterday in the editorial columns of the Evening Herald, to whom, on Dr. Lloyd's behalf and our own, we offer our sincerest thanks:

JOURNALISTIC CHANGES.
The Evening Telegram has changed editors. Dr. Lloyd, as most people know, having decided to go into the active practice of the law and withdraw from the editorial chair of that newspaper. He ended his work there on Saturday last and in noting his withdrawal from the journalistic arena, we take occasion to express our appreciation of the ability and capacity which he displayed during the twelve years he filled the editorial chair of that newspaper, and the excellent service done by him to various public movements during that period.

He is being succeeded by Mr. Harry Winter, Bachelor of Arts and Rhodes Scholar, son of the late Sir James Winter, and one who has already won laurels in a literary career. We wish him a successful career in journalism and in the wider fields usually associated therewith.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DISEASES.

To-Night's Concert.

We shall be disappointed if the Comrades' Glee Club are not accorded a capacity house to-night.

This not merely because of the objects of the concert, worthy as these are; we would say the same at any time, were it peace or war. Too often, it seems to us, St. John's is privileged to hear music of a very high order from its own artists, which it does not sufficiently appreciate. We have in our midst not a little musical talent, which it only needs public interest and support properly to organize and establish as a larger feature of our life. To-night's music is of a kind which will particularly repay encouragement. We are pleased to note, among the items of a particularly attractive programme, the orchestral selections "which delighted the 'Milestones' audiences recently. The address by Lieut. Stan Lumsden should of itself bespeak a full hall.

We are reluctantly compelled to agree with the Daily News' estimate of Dr. Bridges' sonnet; we do not think typographical corrections are likely to improve it much. It seems to us that anyone could have written it—the best possible reason why a Poet Laureate should not. Lines five to eight are very harsh, besides being even more than a poetical exaggeration.

McMurdo's Store News

WEDNESDAY, June 14, '16.
Among the latest arrivals we list Newline and Fletcher's Castoria, both of which are now on sale. Though we are practically out of flower seeds, we have still a good stock of American Mixed Sweet Peas for sale. These Sweet Peas give an almost endless variety of handsome and striking colors, are easily grown and very prolific. Price 10c. an ounce. When you go fishing, take a bottle of Tar, Oil and Pennyroyal with you. You will find the value of it. Price 25c. a bottle.

Rev. Dean Roche Dead.

Special to Evening Telegram.
WITLESS BAY, To-day.
Very Rev. Dean Roche, P.P., died at 5 this morning.

Presentation to Dr. Jones

Yesterday afternoon Hon. R. Watson, Mr. R. Dowden and Mr. A. Campbell on behalf of the parishioners of St. Thomas's Church and others waited on the Rev. Dr. Jones and presented him with a purse of gold, prior to his departure from the country on a short vacation, as mentioned elsewhere in this issue. The gift is an evidence of the regard and esteem in which the popular Rector is held. The Telegram wishes him bon voyage and a pleasant vacation.

June Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Gertrude Lawton, daughter of T. J. Lawton, Esq., of Bell Island, to Mr. John P. Murphy, accountant and operator of the D. I. and S. Co., and brother of Lieut. Leo Murphy, will take place at the residence of the parents of the bride-elect, East Wabana, on Tuesday, the 27th inst.

First Labrador Steamer

The S. S. Sagona left last night for the Labrador, calling at Conception and Trinity Bay ports en route and taking fishing crews and supplies on board at each place visited. Several passengers, whose names we published yesterday, and a quantity of freight went from here. She is the first steamer to go to the Labrador coast this season from St. John's.

Cook of Attila Drowned at Barbados.

Word has been received by Baine Johnson & Co. intimating that the intelligence that the cook of their barquentine Attila had been drowned while the vessel was at Barbados recently. The body was recovered and given Christian burial. No particulars are yet to hand as to how the fatality occurred and are now anxiously awaited. The Attila is due here about a week hence, being now 15 days out from Barbados.

GOOD MARKSMEN.—The companies of volunteers at present in training are making remarkable progress as marksmen, especially the men of No. 7 Platoon.

Our Volunteers.

The total number of enrolments to date is 3,885, the following having presented themselves yesterday for enlistment: Norman Martin, Hr. Grace; John Johnson, St. John's; John McGorey, St. John's. Yesterday Swedish and extension order drill were gone through on the barracks, and Capt. O'Grady gave instructions to a non-com. class.

House Burnt Down; Family Destitute.

The subjoined message was received yesterday evening by Minister of Justice Squires from Mr. Elisha Button, J.P., at New Melbourne, T.B.:—
"The dwelling house of Ambrose Matthews at Brownsdale, with all its contents, was destroyed by fire at 11 o'clock to-day. Mrs. Matthews had left the house for some time, leaving a baby and three other children home. It is thought that one of the children set fire to some kindling near the stove, and before any person saw the fire the whole of the inside of the house was burnt. When it broke through the roof, neighbors hastened to the scene, but it was too late to save anything. The children barely escaped, and the baby was almost suffocated. The husband is in service with Joshua Morris at Lower Island Cove. The family is now entirely destitute. Their summer's provisions have been destroyed, which were in the house. The undersigned will gladly receive any help for them in the way of money or clothing."
"ELISHA BUTTON, J.P."

The Big Thing for Breakfast

And it's BIG in more ways than one.

First, there's that wonderful flavour. The crisp, nutty granules of Grape-Nuts food combine the sweets of whole wheat with the smack of malted barley—a flavour that no mere wheat food can rival.

Next comes the remarkable digestive quality. (Malted barley contains a natural digestive element.) Grape-Nuts digests quickly, and weak as well as strong stomachs handle it comfortably.

And then comes the wonderful nourishing value. No other cereal food puts the vim and vigour into body and brain that Grape-Nuts does.

This food-standby tells its own story after trial.

"He Hath Led Me."

In pastures green? Not always; sometimes He Who knoweth best, in kindness leadeth me In weedy ways, where heavy shadows be.

Out of the sunshine, warm and soft and bright
Out of the sunshine into darkest night
I oft would faint with sorrow and affright—

Only for this—I know He holds my hand
I trust, although I may not understand

And by still waters? No, not always so;
 Ofttimes the heavy tempests round me blow
 And o'er my soul the waves and billows go.

But when the storms beat loudest, and I cry
 Aloud for help, the Master standeth by.
 And whispers to my soul, "Lo it is I."

Above the tempest wild I hear Him say
 "Beyond this darkness lies the perfect day,
 In every path of thine I lead the way."

So whether on the hill-tops high and fair,
 I dwell, or in the sunless valleys where
 The shadows lie—what matter? He is there.

And more than this; where'er the pathways lead,
 He gives to me no helpless, broken bread,
 But His own hand, sufficient for my need.

So where He leads me, I can safely go,
 And in the best hereafter I shall know
 Why in His wisdom, He hath led me so.

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—
1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $223,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does so other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charitable and administrators their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

This Store has put forth an endeavour never before equalled to offer extraordinary values in seasonable high-class Merchandise of Character, Style and Quality, during this their Fourteenth White Sale. And as a result of the sharp concessions from regular prices on our own distinctive stock, in addition to the unprecedented values in desirable lines purchased specially for this Sale, great selling activity is expected, exceeding that of any previous Sale.

Our June Sale of Ladies' Whitewear brings you the sort of garments you want, at less than you can buy them anywhere else. Not only lowest prices, but lower prices coupled with better qualities. This is the keynote of our June White Sale of Misses', Children's and Women's White Underwear. No cheaply made or inferior goods, nothing that won't give good service, but plenty of good-looking, well-made, perfect-fitting, long-wearing garments. That's what you'll obtain here at surprisingly little prices.

Pillow Cases,

Imitation Democracy.

RUTH CAMERON.

Once upon a time I knew a woman who was a very vain. And what do you suppose she was vain of? Not of her looks, her clothes, her handsome husband, her home, her children, her cooking, or any of these things that the average woman prides herself upon. No, her woman was vain of her democracy.

She said she was a democrat to the core, and she was always talking about her dislike of snobbery, and her love of democracy. And this democracy she demonstrated in two ways—by being painstakingly rude to people whom she fancied thought themselves above her in the social scale, and by going sometimes to the moving picture show and to church with her maid.

Strangely enough, her maids were not as devoted to her as one would expect.

And yet her maid didn't love her. Perhaps they were ungrateful, or perhaps—well, I'll let you judge from the following what the trouble was.

A maid who had once lived with this woman came to live with a neighbor of mine. Her former employer's name was mentioned one day by my neighbor who admires her, and the maid did not seem enthusiastic. "Don't you like her?" asked my neighbor.

"She was always very nice to you, I thought," said my neighbor; "took you to moving pictures and things like that." The maid reddened. "Yes," she said, "I suppose she was nice, and I know she thought so. She made me feel all the time that she was thinking how kind and condescending of her it was to go about with me."

"It Doesn't Pay To Be Nice To Them" My neighbor was indignant. She thought the girl was ungrateful, and she said that it showed it didn't pay to be nice to them. She told the incident to me to substantiate the fact. And I wasn't convinced. In fact I felt a deep sympathy for the maid.

Would you care to go about with anyone who made you feel how kind and condescending they were to go with you?

Is democracy democracy when it gives people that feeling? The truth is that self-conscious democracy is just as futile as any kind of self-conscious goodness.

Any form of virtue for which you are inwardly putting yourself on the back is robbed of its chief value.

True Democracy Does Not Condescend.

True democracy comes from the heart. It does not manifest itself in rudeness to social superiors nor in condescension to social inferiors.

It loves all human beings; it respects the cruel inequalities of lot, it longs to see equal opportunities, but it does not pretend that all men are equal in character, education and ability. It disregards false standards of money, ancestry and rank, and judges, if it judges at all, by standards of true worth and real breeding.

I think snobbery is the hardest fault in the world to conquer. It seems to be almost an instinct. There are few of us who do not have our moments of snobbery, in thought, if not in deed. Love of mankind, tolerance, a broader vision, less vanity and a firmer grip of the great truth

'Your Boys and Girls.

In a family composed for the most part of boys the girls often make life miserable for them by selfishly appropriating the chief pleasures for themselves. Boys and girls in a family should be brought up in the same way, and what is right for one should be considered right for the other. Little disputes in regard to family rights should be deemed on their merits and not with regard to sex. Boys should be taught to protect their sisters, but should not be allowed to cater to their wishes when these are inspired by pure selfishness.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIZZINESS.

FORSAKEN.

I go my weary course alone, abandoned and shunned where'er I'm known. No maidens smile when I draw near, but from my path they shrink with fear. For me there is no outstretched hand, no welcome smile in all the land. There is no lamp alight for me, no children climb upon my knee. Alone, alone, all, all alone! The gray world has a heart of stone, and pardon it will never give to its pariahs, while they live. I long to join the busy throng that moves in joyous haste along; I long to take my place again, and mingle with my fellowmen, but if I make a slight advance, I find the outcast has no chance, and voices rise, with anger fraught, "Go, Ishmael, we want you not!" Perhaps when I am gone to rest, and grass is green above my breast, some pilgrim, bending o'er my tomb, will say, "We drove him to his doom! Though dark and wicked his offense, his punishment was too intense. We drove him from his kind away, for eating onions every day!"

Belgium's Heroic Prelate.

A Brave Defender of Liberty. "Belgium will be restored. It stands before the entire world a nation of heroes."

The world, Germany excepted, agrees with Cardinal Mercier, the heroic Prelate of Belgium, Archbishop of Malines, who in December, 1914, when the gallant little nation had been overrun by the Huns, uttered these prophetic words.

Nothing, perhaps, has raised the ire of the Germans against the Church of Rome more than the brave stand made by Cardinal Mercier, champion of Belgian liberty. The Huns arrested him, made him prisoner, prevented him from attending Divine service, and in many ways endeavoured to silence Belgium's heroic priest. But they have failed to suppress him, to the great chagrin of Von Bissing, the Governor-General of Belgium.

Cardinal Mercier was practically unknown until the Eucharistic Congress in London five or six years ago, when he showed himself an orator of great power and distinction. Born at Braine l'Alleud, a little town near the field of Waterloo, on November 21st, 1851, Cardinal Mercier is now in his sixty-fifth year. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1875, and from that time till 1906, when he was elected Archbishop of Malines, he was professor of philosophy at the University of Louvain. From that time until the outbreak of war he has been the soul of the religious and patriotic zeal of Belgium.

No professor was more popular with the students at Louvain, and he gathered round him at the college a band of Belgium's greatest men. Germany hates him today for the bravery with which, in the face of the devastation of his beloved country, he has prophesied its triumphant revival.

"Prince of the Church in Peace" and "Lion of Bay" are the descriptions which have been aptly applied to the champion of Belgian liberty, who, although still at the mercy of his enemies, maintains that indomitable spirit which is so characteristic of the "little" nations for which we are fighting.—TH-Bits.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR LUNCHES AT MADRID.

PARIS, June 13. The German Ambassador to Spain took luncheon yesterday at the Royal Palace, Madrid, according to a despatch to the Havas Agency from Madrid. This gives rise to rumors of a request to King Alfonso to make peace overtures.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, June 13. A communication issued to-night by the War Office, reads: On the front north of Verdun no infantry attack is reported. During the course of the day bombardment was intermittent in sectors east and west of the Meuse. The day was calm on the rest of the front. The Belgian communication says that artillery activity was normal.

BRITISH OFFICERS' CASUALTIES.

LONDON, June 13. The officers' casualty lists show during the month of April that the British army lost 316 officers killed, 900 wounded and 49 missing, total 1,271. This brings the total losses since the beginning of the war to 26,304, of which 8,190 were killed or died from wounds; 16,344 were wounded and 1,852 missing. Although the gross total shows an average of two wounded to one killed, the average for April is lower, viz.: Three wounded to one killed. During the month, the Indians lost 47 killed and 72 wounded; Canadians 18 killed and 96 wounded; Lancashires 20 killed, 49 wounded and 12 missing; Field Artillery, 15 killed and 43 wounded; Royal Fusiliers, 11 killed and 19 wounded; Yorkshires, 10 killed and 29 wounded; Flying Corps, 3 killed, 16 wounded and 5 missing. Major-General Kembell is reported wounded. Seven Lieut.-Colonels were killed.

WILL FORM A NEW MINISTRY.

PARIS, June 13. Signor Pablo Rosetti, veteran Italian Parliamentarian, and former Minister of Public Instruction, has been requested by King Victor Emanuel to form a ministry in succession to that headed by Premier Salandra. Probably he will take the Presidency of the Council without portfolio, says a Havas despatch from Milan to-day. Signor Rosetti is expected to surround himself by eminent men of all parties in forming a new ministry.

FLOOD ACQUITTED.

DUBLIN, June 13. Sergt. Robert Flood, of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, has been found not guilty of the murder of Lieut. Lucas of King Edward's Horse, and William J. Rice, brewery employe, by court-martial to-day. He was released.

HUGHES' PLATFORM.

NEW YORK, June 13. Hughes, in response to questions put by newspaper men in regard to his attitude towards support offered him by German-Americans, said: "My attitude is one of undiluted Americanism and anybody that supports me is supporting an out-and-out American, and an out-and-out American policy, and nothing else." Oscar Straus, former candidate for Governor of New York, on the Progressive ticket, has sent a telegram to Hughes pledging his support.

WELL DONE, CANADIANS!

LONDON, To-day. Canadian troops, in what the British official statement describes as a gallant and successful assault, south-east of Zillebake recaptured the former British position over a front of more than 1,500 yards. Notwithstanding severe shelling the Canadians retained the ground gained which is being consolidated. The text of the statement reads: 1.30 in the morning Canadian troops made a gallant and successful assault south-east of Zillebake. Their objective was our old position in that neighbourhood, all of which was captured on the front attacked, extending from the southern portion of Sanctuary Wood to a point about 1,000 yards north of Hill 60, a total front of over 1,500 yards. In the course of the assault heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy. Three officers and 123 men were taken prisoners. Our troops were subjected to severe shelling for several hours after gaining the position but were well supported by our artillery and retained the ground gained, which is being consolidated. Heavy bombardments by the enemy continued during the day to which our artillery replied effectively. Attempts by hostile infantry to counter-attack were frustrated by our artillery fire. Last night our troops carried out successfully raids to the northeast of Ypres, south of Bois Grenier. In the latter place a party of Australian troops entered the enemy trenches, causing a known loss of twelve killed and probably others, and captured six prisoners. Two trench mortars were destroyed. The raiding party returned safely, the only casualties being one officer and man, both slightly wounded. On the remainder of the front there is nothing of importance to report. The enemy put 300 shells into Malincourt during the day. Our artillery bombarded hostile positions about LaBoiselle. There was less shelling than usual around Souchez and the Loos salient.

TEUTONS ON THE RUN.

PETROGRAD, To-day. A War Office announcement to-day says the retreat of the Austrian and German troops along the Galician and Volhynian fronts is proceeding so rapidly that only a small number of prisoners has been captured in addition to those previously reported. The total is given at about 115,700, as compared with approximately 114,700 announced yesterday. On the Caucasus front in direction of Rianberk we approached the Turkish positions without being observed and attacked the enemy while he was resting. We captured the camp. After suffering some losses the enemy fled. An attack by the Turks in the region of Ravanhousee was repulsed.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle left Marystown at 5.50 p.m. yesterday, going west.
The Clyde left Moreson's Hr. at 7.10 p.m. yesterday, inward.
The Dundee left Greenspond at 7 p.m. yesterday, inward.

The Kyle arrived at Port aux Basques at 8 a.m. to-day.
The Petrel left Winterton yesterday, outward.
The Meggie leaves Port aux Basques to-day.
The Sagona left St. John's at 6 p.m. yesterday, for the Labrador.

THE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, To-day. In Volhynia and Galicia the Russians are keeping up their strong offensive against Austro-Hungarians and Germans on various sectors in both regions they have made fresh advances and captured additional prisoners and war stores. In Galicia the drive of the Russians has brought them across the Dnieper River, where they have captured the towns of Zale Szyzky and Horodenka, whence they are pressing forward toward the Pruth River and the Bukovina frontier with Czernowitz as their objective. Numerous Austrian fortified positions in this region have fallen into the hands of the Russians. Further north violent fighting is taking place around Tarnopol, where the Austro-Hungarians, reinforced by the Germans, are holding back the attempts of the Russians to advance in the direction of Lemberg, the capital of Galicia. Northeast of Tarnopol, near Vorobicka, positions have changed hands repeatedly with heavy fighting, while east of Koziof, which lies southwest of Tarnopol, the capture of the Russians' advanced post is reported from Vienna. In Volhynia, northwest and west of Lutsk, the Russians have driven out the Austrians near Rofitche and occupied the town of Torchin, while west of Kolki, north of Lutsk, the Austrians have again repulsed the Russians who were trying to cross the Styr River, inflicting heavy losses on them. The diversion of the Germans on the northern part

Scarcity of Bait Hampers Fishery.

Following are the latest reports received by the Board of Trade:
From A. J. Pearce (Twillingate to Trump Island)—The catch is 477 qtls. with 16 for last week. Thirty five or 40 traps are fishing, but no boats or skiffs. The trap fishing is rather poor, as part of the week the water was too rough for all to attend to them. A few in scattered places did fairly well, but the others, very poorly. The seines got nothing, owing to the heavy sea. A good sign of salmon continues, and caplin is getting plentiful. Prospects are not much improved.
From J. White (Colinet Island to Head of Salmonier)—The traps are not out yet, but some 20 boats are fishing. The catch to date is 1,500 qtls. with 500 for last week. Prospects are fairly good and there is some herring for bait, but it is not plentiful. The fishermen from the outer grounds report cod plentiful, but bait scarce.
From R. Lawton (Southern Head of Keels to Knight's Cove Pt.)—Prospects are very poor, and there is very little fish reported on the grounds. The liners are well supplied with herring bait, but have done very little. Eleven traps and from 8 to 14 skiffs are fishing. The total catch is 260 qtls.
From R. Furneaux (Rose Blanche to Hr. Le Cou.)—During the week five schrs. arrived from the Cape Breton shore, with from 40 to 70 qtls. each. The catch is 10,220 qtls. and for last week 260. Not much is doing at present, as bait is very scarce and all the shore boats are away, fishing at other parts of the coast.
The catch by districts compiled up to June 3rd, is:—
Burin—11,960 qtls.
Fortune Bay—14,280 qtls.
Burgee and LaPoile—19,548 qtls.
Twillingate—836 qtls.
Fogo—985 qtls.

The incoming express is due at 6.30 p.m. to-day.
The train from Trepassay arrived at 11.30 a.m. to-day.
The local from Carbonar reached the city at noon to-day.

Private Bailey Killed in Action.

Private Aaron Bailey, who was a native of Trinity but of late years a resident of Halifax, enlisted in 1914 with the 40th Battalion C. E. F., but afterwards while in England was transferred to another regiment and proceeded to the firing line in Flanders, where he was recently killed in action. He has a brother serving on one of the British warships. Private Bailey is a son of Mr. Garret Bailey of Trinity, and leaves a wife at Halifax, three sisters and four brothers at home and abroad to mourn their sad loss. General sympathy is expressed to the bereaved family, in which the Telegram joins.

Passing of Rev. Dean Roche.

Elsewhere in this issue is a message stating the death of the late Rev. Dean Roche, of Witless Bay, who entered his eternal rest at 5 a.m. to-day. The deceased Dean who had passed his 74th year was for upwards of 46 years in charge of this parish. It was only two weeks ago that the beloved priest left the General Hospital after undergoing an operation for an internal complaint. The passing of the venerable cleric who was the second oldest Catholic priest in Newfoundland, will be regretted by his parishioners and many others throughout the country. The Telegram offers deep sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Funeral Obsequies.

OF REV. S. J. ANDREWS.

The funeral of the late Rev. S. J. Andrews, notice of whose death appeared in our issue of the 31st ult., took place from the Church of the Holy Redeemer, on Wednesday afternoon, and was largely attended by the residents of this place, and other parts of the Parish, evidencing by their presence the respect and esteem in which the late Rector was held by his friends and parishioners.

The service at the church and grave was participated in by the following clergymen: Rev. Dr. Harris and John Lockward, from Halifax; Canon Hind, from Shelbourne; Revs. H. L. Haslam, of Liverpool, and A. R. Yeoman, Rector of this parish. The choir of the Church of St. John assisted in the music. The service was most solemn and impressive.

The deceased is survived by a widow, three sons and two daughters, all of whom with the exception of Harry, who is somewhere in France with his regiment, were present at the funeral.

The beautiful floral offerings were but a slight token of the esteem in which the deceased was held. Mrs. Andrews and family have the heartfelt sympathy of their many friends.

The funeral of the Rev. S. J. Andrews, news of whose death on the 30th ult. saddened a wide circle of our Port Medway, and was largely attended, this fact, together with the many flowers which were laid upon the casket, bearing witness to the affection in which Mr. Andrews was held. The service was one of singular beauty, hymns, prayers and sermon striking not the usual note of morbid gloom, but one of confidence in Him who has triumphed over death, a note befitting the laying to rest of one who had fought a good fight and had finished his earthly course, having kept the faith.

The golden evening brightens in the west; Soon, soon to faithful warriors comes their rest; Sweet is the calm of Paradise the best.

Alleluia.

But lo! there breaks a yet more glorious day; The saints triumphant rise in bright array; The King of Glory passes on His way.

Alleluia.

The sermon was preached by Rev. V. E. Harris, D. C. L., of Halifax, who in earnest and eloquent words conveyed a message of appreciation and of sympathy from Archbishop Worrell. A notable feature of the service was the reading of the lesson, 1 Cor. 15: 20, by Rev. H. L. Haslam, whose beautiful interpretation of the passage seemed to give new and deeper meaning to every verse of this familiar chapter. Other clergy present and taking part in the service were Revs. Canon Hind, of Shelbourne; J. Lockward, of Halifax, and R. A. Yeoman, of Port Medway.

Deep sympathy is felt for Mrs. Andrews and her sons and daughters. One of the former is now overseas, having been among the first to answer the call of duty.—Liverpool, N.S., Advocate.

[The Rev. S. J. Andrews was a native of Upper Gullies, South Shore, Nfld.—Ed. E. T.]

The Harbor Grace Ferry.

AUNT SUSAN NOT PLEASSED.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Would you allow me space in your paper to show up what all the people about here are now finding fault with, and what I thought would be brought to the attention of the authorities through the press long before this. But what appears to be everybody's business is nobody's business. We have, as your readers know, a motor ferry running across this harbor. We have to thank the Government for this boat, as if she was kept on it would be a great source of satisfaction to people crossing the harbor. The Government made a contract with Mr. Ernest Sheppard to supply a boat with a cabin for people to go in when the weather is rough or during wet weather. From a reliable source I learn the contract allows $1,800 a year for this boat, and there were two men on the first year, but Mr. Sheppard has since decided to do with a little boy as an assistant, to save money, I suppose. While I am not finding fault with this action of our ferryman, it seems hardly the thing for the Government to provide for two men, and then for the ferryman to put a boy instead so as to be able to put more money in his own pocket. But Mr. Editor, we have tried to swallow that as well as other little petty things that should not be, which I will probably refer to later. But at present we have to cross back and forth in a trap-boat, with a motor engine, of course, and one that uses less gasoline than our contract-called-for-boat, and this again so as Mr. Sheppard can find more money in his own pocket. the same time the passengers often get soaking wet in this open boat from sprays or from rain, and that while the larger and covered boat is lying at the wharf.

Again, I would say that last spring the same thing happened. An old boat was put on while the regular boat was being fitted up. Now while that boat was lying up for a month or so, when the harbor was filled with ice, was the time to have her topsides, deck and saloon attended to and then when the ice moved off, a day or two at the least would be sufficient to have her off the service.

I would also advise the ferryman to try and cultivate a gentler disposition, if it is possible, and I would ask him to try and understand that he is only the servant of the people whom he brings forth and back. His pay (sufficient I think), comes from the general revenue, and the child contributes to that revenue when he or she buys an all-day sucker. That is all I have to say at the present time. But I would just ask Mr. Woodford, who is, I am told, the head of the Public Works Department, to see that the above is remedied, if the service is to be the satisfaction to the public that the department intends it should be.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I am, yours sincerely,
AUNT SUSAN.

A Song.

(By Charles Alexander Richmond, in Scribner's Magazine.)

Oh, red is the English rose,
And the lilies of France are pale,
And the poppies grow in the golden wheat,
For the men whose eyes are heavy with sleep
Where the ground is red as the English rose,
And the lilies of France are pale,
And the ebbing pulses beat fainter and fainter
And fall.

Oh, red is the English rose,
And the lilies of France are pale,
And the poppies lie in the level corn,
For the men who sleep and never return,
But wherever they lie, an English rose
Will grow, for a love that never and never Can fail.

Return of the Slate.

The increasing expense of paper these days of militancy has led to the reappearance of the school slate in some parts of the United Kingdom.

However the slate and slate-pencil makers may rejoice in the present sanitary science will most certainly oppose the use of the old-time slate.

"Medical authorities rise up in indignant protest at the very thought and condemn the slate with hot breath as the most malignant of all disease transmitters," says a Scotch paper.

"Those of us who go back to the slate epoch will freely admit that on sanitary grounds there is everything to be said against it. The small boy is not a fastidious or a cleanly animal. By choice he 'cleans' his slate by spitting upon it, and rubbing it with the front of his hand, and no rules prescribing the use of a sponge could break him to this habit. He thus prepared the slate as a culture ground for microbes if he happened to be possessed of any, and the amiable trick of writing upon one another's slate injurious remarks about the owner or the teacher effected a free exchange of germs."

And yet, though I am by no means a reactionary, I really wonder whether there is less sickness among school-children, less spreading of contagious diseases than there was when we all used slates?

It is a marvel scientifically speaking, that any of us lived through those days of half a century ago? Will the elderly people of 1916 speak in the same terms of their youthful days? And will they live happier, longer, and be more free from disease than are we who live in this year of grace?

Familiar Faces Gone.

Many Things Once Seen in London Have Passed With the War.

It is tradition itself which has been most hardly hit by the war. Where are the traditions of London streets and taverns, writes a London correspondent? "All, all are gone, the old-fashioned faces"—gone either to the front to fight the Germans or to the munition factory to feed the firing line.

Thus the streets of the metropolis would look strange to the eyes of a rejuvenated Johnson or Lamb. The absence of the organ-grinder, who, Italian or English, has largely deserted the streets for the trenches, they would naturally not notice.

But the organ-grinder is only one of the many more or less picturesque characters fast disappearing from our public places. Here is a list of some others:—Coasters, crossing sweepers, shoe-blacks, beggars, match sellers, hawkers, of pirated music, coffee-stall keepers, apple women.

The last-named ladies, it may be noted, have probably found more profitable, if less picturesque, employment in one of the many mendedepot factories. Then one misses the eloquent-tongued itinerant toy hawkers, of indubitable Cockney origin, whose place is now being taken by swarthy little Japs with soap-stone ornaments to sell.

Another personality whose loss one bears with more equanimity is that of the charity canvasser—usually a long, lean, cadaverous, and bespectacled gentleman of clerical collar and untidy cuffs—who once knocked gently but persistently at our doors.

Curious Facts About Russian Icons.

There is not a home in Russia that does not possess its icon, the devotional tablet in the mystic power of which every Russian believes. These icons vary in size, quality, and decoration, many of them being of great value and antiquity. There is an interesting collection of them at the Victoria and Albert Museum. The word "icon" is really the Latinized form of a Greek word signifying portrait.

The portrait may be small enough to carry in the pocket, or it may be life-size, and the icons in the Russo-Greek churches are often of wonderful workmanship and costly design. The raised halos of the portrait figures are specially enriched with precious stones, and in the case of the portraits of the Virgin the robes are encrusted with seed pearls and the fingers and neck adorned with jewels.

Some icons take the shape of a square or oblong box, set in metal thickly enamelled and hinged, which, when open, reveal figures of religious interest. Some curious examples of icons of finely-carved horn are also to be found, the effect being most beautiful when hung in a position which admits of the light being seen through the carrying. A small but exceedingly fine specimen of the horn icon is minutely carved with a series of episodes in connection with the birth of Christ. Its mounting is of silver-gilt, chased in a cord pattern, and the whole hangs from a suspensory-bead. One may also come across the icon of carved boxwood, fitted for the sake of the protection of its fragile beauty into a case of precious metal, enamelled and studded with precious stones.—Tit-Bits.

Cooking utensils should not be allowed to stand and dry. Put water in them immediately, and stand them on the back of the stove to soak.

Every housewife should remember that most cases of bad temper come from indigestion, and indigestion frequently comes from poorly cooked food.

Fried potatoes should not stand in the pan after they are done; they absorb the grease, get tough, and become even more indigestible than they are naturally.

If eggshells are given to chickens they should first be browned in the oven until brittle. Eggshells fed in their natural state are apt to teach the hens to eat eggs.

If children were taught early to cut their finger nails, there would be less biting of the nails. It is often neglected nails that start the biting habit.

When strawberry plants are set out their roots should be dipped into a pool of very soft mud. This coats the roots with moisture, and the plants will not be so likely to dry out before taking root.

TREATMENT OF DELICATE SKINS.

Women with sensitive skins often cannot go out in inclement weather, if your skin is delicate, it need not keep you from going out if you will give it reasonably good care. A coat of good skin-food cream, well rubbed in and dusted over with rice or talcum powder, should be applied before leaving the house.

This will prevent the wind from drying and chapping it too severely. It is quite fatal, too, to bathe the skin immediately before or soon after exposing it, for this takes the oil from the skin and causes it to chap.

On coming inside it is best to rub a massage cream on the face, and, after allowing it to remain on long enough to soften the skin surface, wipe it off with a soft muslin.

Do not leave powder on the face all night. It will ruin the most beautiful skin eventually, and its effect is nothing short of disastrous. Powder is usually put on over a coating of cold cream to make it stick. This paste, left on all night, clogs all the pores. The skin habituated to this treatment is pasty, sallow and without life, usually the pores are enlarged from the deposits of powder.

It seems quite simple to slip into bed at once when you are tired and it is hard to take the time and energy to give your face a good cleaning. But really, it is worth the effort. Ten minutes spent in washing out all vestige of cosmetics will keep your skin lovely.

The nightly cleaning should be most thorough. If properly done, all that will be necessary in the morning will be a cold sponge. All the dust and dirt of the day has settled on the face, besides the cold cream and powder, and it needs a good scrubbing to get it off.

The recent announcement that the King had conferred the Order of St. George upon the Prince of Wales is of particular interest, as the Heir Apparent now possesses decorations given by his country's three most important Allies, and all received during the war. The French President, who had already presented His Royal Highness with the Grand Cordon of the Legion of Honour, bestowed the Croix de Guerre, a new service medal, on him last autumn when King George was in France, while the King of Italy gave him the Order of the Annunziata as a birthday gift last summer, and more recently conferred on him the Knight Cross of the Military Order of Savoy, a distinction open only to soldiers, and, therefore, the more highly prized.

WHY THE WAR BROKE OUT WHILE IT DID.

It was interesting to hear from a well-known electrical engineer the three reasons why the war broke out just when it did. He said that these were—(1) Germany's new-found ability to dispense with Chili nitrates; (2) the perfection to which Zeppelins had been brought; and (3) the gyro-compass for submarines. This was one of the points in Kilburn Scott's lecture at the University College, London, on the production of nitrate from the air by electric power. He dealt mainly with one of the three methods of doing it—the direct electrical method which was elaborated in Norway and has passed to France, Italy, America, Germany, and Austria, but not to England, where the only dependence is still on the nitrates brought from Chili. He showed the wastefulness of such a procedure, inasmuch as it necessitates the employment of so many ships at a time when the cost of transport is becoming dearer and dearer, and our backwardness the unwillingness of powerful capitalists to have their profits from Chili nitrates interfered with. He showed in detail the importance of the compounds of nitrogen in the manufacture of explosives, in agriculture, and in the production of aniline dyes, and described how economically the fixation of nitrogen might be effected in the neighborhood of our own coal fields.

THE PRINCE'S DECORATIONS.

LONDON, May 22nd, 1916.
The recent announcement that the King has conferred the Order of St. George upon the Prince of Wales is of particular interest, as the Heir-Apparent now possesses decorations given by his country's three most important Allies, and all received during the war. The French President, who had already presented His Royal Highness with the Grand Cordon of the Legion of Honour, bestowed the Croix de Guerre, a new service medal, on him last autumn when King George was in France, while the King of Italy gave him the Order of the Annunziata as a birthday gift last summer, and more recently conferred on him the Knight Cross of the Military Order of Savoy, a distinction open only to soldiers, and, therefore, the more highly prized.

PRINCE GEORGE AND OSBORNE.

Prince George may, it is thought, go to Osborne this year. At present he remains at his old East Coast school in spite of the fact that a raid was made near there not long ago, an example of courage on the part of his parents which others might take to heart. Kings' sons at school nowadays are treated there very much like anybody else. "Dobbs" is said to be the nickname of the Duke of Brabant, heir to the Belgian throne at Eton. Prince Henry and he are said to be excellent friends there. The Belgian Prince is in the Lower Fourth and is said to have been much excoriated at first by the tremendous authority allowed to the Fifth and Sixth Forms over boys of all other forms. He now knows English almost perfectly.

WHY THE WAR BROKE OUT WHEN IT DID.

It was interesting to hear from a well-known electrical engineer the three reasons why the war broke out just when it did. He said that these were—(1) Germany's new-found ability to dispense with Chili nitrates; (2) the perfection to which Zeppelins had been brought; and (3) the gyro compass for submarines. This was one of the points in Kilburn Scott's lecture at the University College, London, on the production of nitrates from the air by electric power. He dealt mainly with one of the three methods of doing it—the direct electrical method which was elaborated in Norway and has passed to France, Italy, America, Germany, and Austria, but not to England, where the only dependence is still on the nitrates brought from Chili. He showed the wastefulness of such a procedure, inasmuch as it necessitated the employment of so many ships at a time when the cost of transport is becoming dearer and dearer, and dearer, and assigned as the cause of our backwardness the unwillingness of powerful capitalists to have their profits from Chili nitrates interfered with. He showed in detail the importance of the compounds of nitrogen in the manufacture of explosives, in agriculture, and in the production of aniline dyes, and described how economically the fixation of nitrogen might be effected in the neighborhood of our own coal fields.

FRICITION AMONG PRISONERS OF WAR.

In a certain establishment in this country where there were many hundreds of German prisoners of war there was so much difficulty in keeping the peace between Germans of different varieties that it was decided to segregate the more turbulent characters and transfer them elsewhere. This meant a march from the institution in question along a country road and through a straggling village to a railway station. The prisoners were escorted by a strong military guard with fixed bayonets. All went well until the center of the village was reached, when a prisoner swung round and gave one of his fellows a thundering blow in the face with his fist. In an instant the prisoners were fighting with each other like demons, and the air was Prussian blue with German oaths and shrill with that peculiar half-hysterical scream which the German gives when he is hurt or excited. The guard kept their heads. With their bayonets at the "ready" they so held the fighting mass together that none could get through the cordon; and they let the struggle go on until the first fury was exhausted. But by the time the ranks were reformed the prisoners had done a good deal of damage among themselves, and the village onlookers had had an exciting ten minutes. No bayonet was blooded, thanks to the cool-headed restraint of the guard. It is not always easy to induce German prisoners to live together in brotherly amity, and if the experience of some of the military authorities who have to deal with them are any guide, the German Empire after the war will be a veritable cockpit, in which the immortal tribal quarrels will be resumed with ferocity.

DAFFODILS.

Scotch daffodils met with a warm welcome at Covent Garden this week, arriving as they did when the supplies from the English daffodil farms had come to an end. Daffodils are in demand by the London public as long as the flower is obtainable. In the height of the season, when the Channel Islands and Scilly Isles produce is being marketed, daffodils pour in to the market literally by the ton, but though the dealers complain of glut, and consequent slump in prices there never seem too many daffodils for the flower-loving Londoner. The daffodils, by the way, are one of the favorite flowers at the military hospitals, as are the wild bluebells which Queen Mary makes a point of sending out during the spring. Though for the moment Covent Garden has a new fruit luxury in the shape of forced raspberries, which are being sold at eight shillings per pound, wholesale dealers are now chiefly concerned themselves about strawberries, not the forced variety but the outdoor fruit. Owing to the cold weather strawberries will be late this year, and, worse still, shortage of labor will deprive Londoners of their full share of the berries. Thus, though supplies are fairly plentiful at the present season of the forced fruit, Covent Garden will not receive its usual rich harvest of summer strawberries, the most popular of all fruits in London.

THE SOCIETY "BEAUTY CHORUS."

What would Queen Victoria have thought of the beauty chorus composed of society women and girls that is becoming a usual feature of most charity matinees? Anyhow, it is with us now and I believe that there is quite a competition to get into it. Time was when a modest country gentleman would have gone to the stake sooner than see a girl of his "on the stage." Now dukes and earls consent, quite as a matter of course, to their young daughters appearing at Drury Lane. It is not very long since a certain play produced in various country places for charity ended with a week at one of the tiniest of London theatres, and then the trouble began. The grandees peremptorily refused permission to let their daughters play their parts in London, and the thing collapsed. Now, on the other hand, such a scheme would collapse unless it was carried through in London. Rehearsals with young professional actors are part of the fashionable girl's programme; "make up" is as familiar to her as stage jargon itself; and she is on terms with many "dressers" whom she regards as "dears." She is bosom friends with actors and actresses, and entertains them for week-ends in the country and constantly in London. The professional actress regards this invasion of her province with much calm. Extraordinarily few aristocratic ladies are any good at all on the stage, and their presence there is only a fashion that will pass. It does

What You're In For.

The Experiences of a Derby Recruit.
On the Road to Promotion.

It was a maxim of the great Napoleon that every private soldier carries a field-marshal's baton in his knapsack.

If that was true of the French Army over a hundred years ago it is trebly true to-day of the British Army. Never in our military history have the chances of promotion been so numerous and ever-present as they are nowadays; the magnitude of the Army and the class of men who have flocked to the Colours provide the openings and the men to fill them.

Now, I may as well be quite frank and honest and admit that when I joined the Army my mind was fully made up to earn promotion as quickly as possible. Promotion meant more responsibility, and in some respects harder work, but, on the other hand, it meant more money and more comforts and privileges. Besides, there was the spur of personal pride in "getting on."

Feeling that first impressions would go a long way, I lost no time in seeking out my friend, himself a corporal, as soon as I joined the battalion, telling him of my determination, and asking him to give me any good "tips" he could.

How to Get On.

"Well, the best thing you can do," he laughed, "is to see that you're a little smarter all-round than the smartest man in your platoon. You'll be surprised how easy it will be to beat him if your heart's in doing so, and if he isn't up to the same game himself. If he is, both of you will perhaps get picked out for a stripe."

Then he told me some material ways in which I could make certain of pleasing "the sergeant," and through him the officers. These were the chief ones: Obey all orders unhesitatingly; keep yourself, your uniform, your buttons, and your kit generally clean and bright; be in good time for every parade and every call; salute those entitled to be saluted punctiliously; keep all rules both in the letter and the spirit; show yourself keen on your work.

To some people, even to a good many who are soldiers, all this may sound a sort of counsel of perfection. So it was to a certain extent; but it is quite simple and easy to carry it out. Summed up, it merely amounts to doing one's job properly.

My "first stripe," denoting the rank of lance-corporal, or "lance-jack," as it is sometimes called, came to me a week ago. In the words of Rudyard Kipling, "the cruel sergeant," who isn't in the least bit "cruel" in this case, "sent my name along for lance," and the next thing I knew was that I had been promoted.

The Position of Lance-Corporal.

The jump from private to lance-corporal is a sort of necessary evil, leading, with luck, to higher things. The position is a severe test of soldierly spirit and fitness. A lance-corporal is a private with a lot of extra work, a little authority, and no extra pay.

He has to work tremendously hard, doing all sorts of odd jobs and "running errands" for those in higher authority in his platoon or company, and unless he is cheerful and determined to "stick it" he might just as well gracefully refuse the stripe at the beginning.

Nobody likes being a lance-corporal, and many who try the experiment "revert to private at their own request," but the work has to be done, and it is worth while to those who mean to see it through.

There is this consolation about it: no lance-corporal who can prove his worth nowadays is kept in the position for long. In the old days, before the war, a man might go in the rank for months—years, even—but now the next step up to corporal, at is, $d. a day, is not very long delayed.

There have been some remarkable rises in the ranks in the new armies. I know one man who joined as a private and was a major within a year; another rose to be quarter-master-sergeant within six months.

Correspondence School

By GEORGE FITCH,

Author of "At Good Old Slawh."

A correspondence school is an educational institution with a long distance attachment which enables a man to stuff himself with knowledge at the rate of two cents an ounce, rural free delivery included.

It is very easy to attend a correspondence school. All that is necessary is to be a good correspondent. A man need not be a careful dresser, or a durable end runner, or a master with the banjo, or a swan-like dancer. He does not need to possess a chilled steel voice box or a wagon load of sofa pillows, or talent for organizing under-classes or an inordinate nocturnal appetite for pie. All he needs is a bushel of two-cent stamps and a little spare time in the evening. With this equipment he can in a few months familiarize himself with the principles of mechanical drawing, electricity, German, Spanish, shoulderless French, intensive farming, swimming under water, journalism, horse doctoring, ship building, Marathon running, cake designing, skyscraper planning, piano playing, preaching, law, scenario writing, auto driving, plain legislating, home plumbing, aviation, or hair cutting.

It will thus be seen that the correspondence school has a vast curriculum. Hundreds of thousands of Americans are attending these schools around the kitchen table at night, and all over the land worried young chauffeurs are sitting in motionless automobiles trying to find out from a fat book how to get home in time for supper.

The student of the correspondence school does not wear a hat banded up in front, or mysterious jeweled pins, but he can easily be distinguished by his college flag, which is a brunette forefinger on his right hand. The yell of the correspondence school is, "Gee whist! Postage due!" and some fine records are held by the students, who make them while sprinting for the last mail collection.

The correspondence school has developed greatly, but it still lingers behind the ordinary college in many important branches of science. It does not teach lawn tennis or strolling or debating or bonfire building or neophyte spanking. It does not develop a taste in neckties and finances and in the beauties of obtaining money by mail. The college sophomore with a pa who is susceptible to good literature can make a record which the correspondence student can never hope to approach.

It is a good idea once a week to fill all cooking vessels with water in which soda has been added; put them on the stove and just boil them vigorously for three or four hours. This will make them sweet and clean.
