PIPELESS.
THE NEW PLAN OF HEATING.

In recent years a new plan of heating has come into being. It is the Pipe-less Furnace. A warm air furnace with only one register. This furnace has so many advantages over other heating systems; it is adapted to so many uses to which other furnaces cannot be put; is so low in first cost; and so economical in fuel; that we sincerely believe it to be the greatest forward step made in the heating business in two generations.
Dwelling Houses, Public Buildings, Large Stores,
Halls, School Houses, Lodge Rooms and Churches are perfectly heated with this type of furnace. Made in six sizes. Full information,

An Indispensible Favorite OR Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER XVII.

"Now, I must have the spinal board out; but, of course, for that I must ring for Isabelle to work the shampoo-pads," says Lady Maria, absorbed in stretching herself at full length on a sloping, hair-covered board, which slides out slowly on rollers, and leaves her extended lay figure-wise, in her long, narrow, red gown, among the ropes and treads.

At this moment her faithful Isabelle enters the room.

"How is it you are absent at twelve o'clock, Isabelle?" Lady Maria asks, reproachfully, "when you know how necessary punctuality is for me in everything? It is now half-past twelve, and I have only got to the spinal board; you have neglected me, Isabelle."

"Pardon me, my lady," the devoted nurse replies, dutifully kneading Lady Maria like a batch of dough. "If you recollect, I told you I did not consider you were equal to your exercises this morning. I know the consequences of one of that lady's visits—utter prostration of your vital powers from the depressing influence of an unsympathetic presence."

"Quite true, Isabelle," Lady Maria says, languidly, in a gratified tone; "and I think, if you will finish up with the chest-rubbers, that will do for to-day. I do feel exhausted."

"Ah," mademoiselle says, drawing a long breath of intense feeling, "I feared this!"

And then, when the poor hypochondriac has been reinstated on her likely couch, and the red curtain has been drawn, "to induce warmth and repose," as the green one is drawn "for the benefit of the optic nerves and brain." Mademoiselle Isabelle comes and stands by the pillow of her mistress, in whose morbid brain she is nursing the growth of monomania. The soft, red light falls in a rosy flush on mademoiselle's delicately tinted face—she is a past mistress in occult mysteries of "tints" and blooms—on the shining braids and silky waves of the elaborately arranged hair, on the dove-gray gown and snowy muslin kerchief and apron of her spotless Persian apparel, on her meekly folded white hands, on her downcast eyelids. She really looks cast in too saraphic a mould for this world.

"You do not actually believe, I hope, dear Lady Maria," she says, with mild reproach, "that I could be guilty of neglecting you. I left the room during Mrs. Murray's visit, dreading lest I should be the cause of agitation to you; and I went to discover the bare truth," with a vicious hiss, "of the alarming news she, very thoughtlessly announced to you. His lordship is not perceptibly worse, I assure your lady-ship. He is a little weaker, as I told you, and Dr. Blyce was not satisfied until Sir George Parker was telephoned for, not an hour ago. As you know, Lady Maria, I was in your room then; so I could not possibly hear the news. The earl did not sleep well last night, and seems to be slowly, but painlessly, losing ground, as I told you. This information I have had freshly conveyed to me by the earl's nurse, not five minutes since, and—I have spoken to the viscount as well."

"Of course! Of course, Isabelle!" Lady Maria says, apologetically, "I was only amazed to think that Aunt Murray had any information that you had not, knowing, of course, that you report faithfully to me everything that the viscount tells you."

"Of course, my lady," the meek and faithful creature says, calmly.

"Of course!" repeats Lady Maria, decisively, "I knew Aunt Murray was exaggerating."

At this a faint, swift hope dawns in Yolande's heart.

"Has Captain Glynne gone out, do you know, mademoiselle?" she asks, carelessly.

"Oh, yes!" mademoiselle replies, briefly. It is no part of her scheme to spare Yolande's feelings. "He and Miss Murray went out an hour ago, up the hills as far as Penmawr, I believe."

"Alone?" Lady Maria asks, with a scandalized emphasis, and a warning glance at Yolande which her devoted nurse is too busy to see.

"Oh, no—at least, I think not! Miss Powys and her brother went with them," mademoiselle answers, absently. "They will lunch at Penmawr, of course. There is such delicious bread and cheese to be had there, and home-brewed ale, and all sorts of nice things!"

"Penmawr is five miles away," Lady Maria observes.

"Oh, yes!" mademoiselle says, quietly. "They can't be back until the evening. Ten miles across the hills is no joke."

"You were afraid of the fatigue, I suppose, dear?" Lady Maria says, with an inquisitive look at Yolande. "You don't look strong. It would have been too much for you."

"Yes," Yolande answers, in a dull voice. "I could not have borne it."

And then she rises and bids Lady Maria good-morning, resisting a pressing invitation to try the Duffer-Muller method of exercising her muscles, or the effects of the galvanic battery, or a dose of ante-luncheon bitters, or any of the seductions of Lady Maria's delightful retreat. She escapes them all, and gets away to her own room to spend the long, weary day alone.

"Isabelle," Lady Maria says, desisting a minute from anxiously feeling her own pulse, "why has Captain Glynne gone off with Miss Murray and left his young wife at home?"

"I am sure I don't know, Lady Maria," Miss Glover replies, with a little moue of puzzled inquiry.

"It doesn't seem very attentive or loving conduct on the part of a bridegroom, I think," Lady Maria observes, severely. "I disapprove, of course, of love-making and devoted fondness and all that sort of thing extremely, and consider it in very bad taste for a married couple to display their fondness for each other openly; but I certainly disapprove of quite marked indifference to each other's society. It is equally in bad taste until people have been married a year or so—unless special circumstances oblige them to be very much apart."

Lady Maria heaves a deep, unconscious sigh, as she sadly glances round the four walls of the drearily luxurious room, which is her living tomb, containing all of interest that her barren, weary life possesses to replace the joys of wifehood, motherhood, the crown of marriage, and the love of little children.

"Very bad taste, indeed, as your ladyship says," responds mademoiselle.

"And Joyce, too," Lady Maria goes on, angrily—her blue-eyed, golden-haired, gay young cousin is no favorite with the faded, sickly invalid—"I think Joyce might have had the decency not to permit Dallas Glynne openly to neglect his young wife for her so soon! Every one knows that there was some engagement or nonsense of that kind between her and Dallas Glynne formerly."

"Indeed, yes, Lady Maria—as you say," echoes mademoiselle, with meek regret. "It is scarcely decent, such open neglect of a young, newly married wife!"

"I shall speak to Captain Glynne, if I see anything more of conduct of this sort!" Lady Maria declares, more angrily.

"Pardon me if I suggest that you should speak to Miss Murray also, Lady Maria," mademoiselle says, smoothly. "Miss Murray fears very much actually incurring your displeasure, and fears also very much being banished from Pentreath Place. It has great charms for her," she adds, in a curious, altered tone, "for the Honorable Mrs. Murray, her mother, as well."

"I wonder why," Lady Maria remarks, uneasily, trying to read her companion's countenance.

But the placid visage of the Sphinx is not more impenetrable than is mademoiselle's delicately tinted face, with its rapt expression and far-off gaze directed upward to the limpid blue and floating, fleecy clouds of the April sky. Her thoughts return to earth immediately, however.

"It is time for your oysters and beef tea, Lady Maria!" she says, in tones of solemn importance. "Five minutes to the hour. I must order them at once."

"Not beef tea to-day, Isabelle," Lady Maria says, anxiously. "I fancied it did not agree with me very well yesterday."

"Clear gravy soup, then," suggests the devoted attendant, "or Jullienne with green peas?"

"How can you think of such a thing?" Lady Maria exclaims, tragically. "Green peas! I am surprised at you, Isabelle! Of course, you have not been very long in my service, or you would know that green peas, especially canned peas, for the garden, has very few so early as this—simply deadly poison to me!"

"I wonder how much Miss Joyce and the viscount would give me for the hint," Miss Isabelle remarks to herself, malignantly.

"I might, indeed, consider myself as a laid-aside invalid," Lady Maria goes on, in a tone of sorrowful importance, "if I ate green peas in any form!"

And, in view of this possible calamity, she forgets all lesser ones, the sin and sorrow, the pain and darkness, the fleeting bliss and abiding woe of married lives and tangled destinies.

REMARKABLE NAVAL GUNNERY.

The opening of a new era in sea warfare was presaged on Los Angeles (Cal.) Harbor on May 22 by the super-dreadnought Tennessee, when she successfully carried out experimental gunnery exercises at the extreme range of 35,000 yards, or approximately twenty-two miles. The results of the practice are being kept secret, although it was learned from semi-official sources that remarkable scores were made.

The moving target, towed at a ten-knot speed, was completely out of sight from the fighting tops of the Tennessee, and range-finding, correction and "spotting" the fall of the shots was done by seaplanes, which flew between the target and the Tennessee.

K. of C. Challenge Opponents to Produce Facts.

MONTRÉAL.—Declaring that the Knights of Columbus would stand, in whatever country they operated, against all societies or combines that sought to inject religious and racial bias into government and social life, Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia in his address to the Forty-First Supreme International Convention of the Knights of Columbus, challenged the Ku Klux Klan or any other opponents of critics of the K. of C. to produce a single fact on which to base their opposition or criticism. "We may tolerate any reasonable difference of opinion," he stated, "but we shall not tolerate any reflections upon our integrity. The Knights of Columbus have spent forty million dollars entrusted to them by the American public, with the exception of some millions now being devoted to educational and hospitalization work. In Canada the Knights have spent many hundreds of thousands of dollars on welfare work. Every dollar has been devoted to its right purpose. Every remaining dollar is being devoted to that purpose as tens of thousands of ex-service men of all denominations receiving education under K. of C. auspices can prove, and as any enquirer may see for himself by visiting any of the 400 hospitals throughout the country where the Knights of Columbus maintain hospitalization free for war veterans regardless of creed. Any man who challenges the record must prove his case or abandon it. We have been over patient with slanderers. We shall not be so in future; the law can be invoked to curb malicious trials."

The K. of C. chief declared that the three most important tasks now before the Knights were the satisfactory solution of the Catholic boy problem, connected with which there is a special committee report on the probable formation of a junior K. of C. movement; next, the extension of the K. of C. national correspondence school into a vast mail-system university for

FOR over twenty years the Carnation label has been a sure guide to purity, safety, and convenience in milk. Carnation is simply the richest and best milk with about 60% of the natural water content removed by evaporation, sealed in the container and sterilized.

Carnation is rich enough to take the place of cream in tea, coffee, etc. By adding a little more than an equal part of water, you get "whole" milk of natural consistency. Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans from your grocer.

THIN WHITE SAUCE

Two tablespoonfuls flour, 2 tablespoonfuls butter, ¼ teaspoonful salt, 2/3 cup water, 1/3 cup Carnation Milk. Melt butter, add flour and stir until thoroughly mixed. Add the milk with the water and cook about five minutes or until the mixture thickens, then add salt. This recipe makes one cup of sauce.

"Not until the last dollar of our war fund is expended," Mr. Flaherty declared, "will the Knights of Columbus cease their ministrations to the disabled men in hospitals. There are more than thirty thousand of these men now and the end is not yet. We shall remain with them to the finish." Archbishop Gauthier delivered an address of welcome from the altar of the Cathedral of Notre Dame at the solemn Mass opening the convention. A mammoth parade, in which more than twenty thousand local and visiting Knights marched, preceded the Mass. The convention will continue through to-night to Thursday afternoon.

To Excavate City of David.

The proposed excavations on the site of the City of David in Jerusalem, were discussed recently at a meeting of the Palestine Exploration Fund at the rooms of the Society of Antiquaries, in London.

Dr. D. G. Hogarth, who presided, said that the occasion was epoch-making in their history, and they were on the eve of undertaking the excavation of the City of David, which had long been their ambition. He pointed out that there might not be much in it, because it was a rocky hill, but he reminded them that the excavation of the pockets of earth on the Acropolis Hill at Athens gave up a most interesting collection to the Athens Museum.

The Dean of Westminster had written saying that he had the highest hopes of the work. The Palestine Government assured them of its assistance, but said that the Fund should have £5,000 in its possession before anything could be done. They had themselves, through the British Academy, £2,000. Mr. Charles Masterman had given £2,000, and Viscount Burnham £1,000.

They started thus under very fair auspices, and he gave a promise that no one's prejudices would be outraged. The only small cloud was the unrest in Palestine, but he did not think that there would be any danger in Jerusalem itself.

In the Open Desert

Major Blake, describing some of his adventures on the great attempted Round-the-World Air Flight, writes—

"On several occasions when we were stranded in the desert with little or no food, Boveril was most valuable. I remember one of the hottest, cold nights in the open desert when our desert machine and ourselves had to last miles away from anywhere. We sat huddled up under the machine, unable to sleep through cold, until we drained some petrol out of one of the tanks and heated some of our small supply of water. Then we opened up a Boveril tin, enabling us to thoroughly warm ourselves and do a little sleep."

"I cannot overestimate the value of this food to us. I should not extremely wish to undertake a trip of this nature without this food."

French Press Predict an End to the Entente.

London Papers Approve of British Note—

 August 27.

FRENCH PRESS ON THE BRITISH NOTE.
 PARIS, Aug. 13. The Journal Des Debates comments upon the British reparations note, "our will to break the resistance of a country that does not wish to fulfil her engagements is irrevocable, as there is literally nothing in all the enormous text that might lend itself to an arrangement, we are forced to consider the possibility of definite action, which will be as repugnant to the Government of the Reich as to that of his Majesty, but which we cannot prevent if England has said her last word." L'Intermédiaire also regards the document as a sort of repudiation of the entente cordiale, which is extremely regrettable. La Liberté declares the note would make one believe that the new cabinet has set itself to the task of finishing what Lloyd George left that was embroiling France and England.

FRENCH OFFICIALS THINK.
 PARIS, Aug. 13. The most surprising feature of the reparations note to the French officials, it is said, was the statement that the occupation of the Ruhr was illegal. "The legality of occupation of the Ruhr or any German territory the Allies choose was recognized in a joint signed at Spa in July 1918, by the British as well as all the Allies, and by representatives of the German Government," an official said.

fairly accurate description. Within a ¼ of a mile of her home, in broad daylight, she was terribly battered about the face and throat by her assailant who, after dragging her into a shed and outraging her, beat her and then apparently left her for dead. Miss Mackett's plight was not discovered until sometime later, when she was found with almost unrecognizable features and hardly able to stagger along the road home.

DR. GUSTAVE STRESSMANN TO FORM NEW CABINET.
 BERLIN, Aug. 13. Dr. Gustave Stressmann, the new German Chancellor, to-day undertook the task of organizing a Ministry to replace the Cabinet which Chancellor Cuno brought into office last November, and which passed out of existence yesterday in the face of a no confidence vote of the Reichstag.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON WILL RACE AGAIN.

SCHM. EDWARD ROY LOST NEAR SYDNEY.

RARE FISH LANDED.
 A freak fish with a body like a snake, measuring over four feet in length, the head resembling that of a raven with a long beak-like mouth, having teeth about an inch long resembling a saw blade and large fan-like collapsible fins on the back, was landed at Prince Rupert by Canadian Schooner P. Dorreen the last of May. It was sent to the museum at Victoria where it was identified as a saw fish, Alepiurus borealis. The museum reports that the fish is only the third known to have been taken in British Columbia waters. "The fish specimen we had was taken at Quatsino Sound in 1895, the next was taken of Victoria in February 1897. It is a deep water fish and appears to be rare on the coast. According to Jordan & Everman's book on fishes they only have two specimens in the California academy of science which were taken years ago."

COMMUNISTS AND TROOPS CLASH.
 LONDON, Aug. 13. Sanguinary fighting between Communists and Military occurred to-day in Seitz, Salonia, according to a Central News despatch from Berlin. A large body of Communists stormed the City Hall, occupied by soldiers, and there was considerable fighting in the streets. The bodies of nine Communists were recovered, thirty were injured and many troops were wounded, the message said.

FIRPO.
 We smile on the two-fisted bruiser who's scrapping his way to the front, and, be he a winner or loser, he's pulling a wonderful stunt; for Firpo is always a fighter, the scrappiest man of the age; he isn't a speaker or writer, he hasn't been seen on the stage. He yells for the scoundrel and, sally, he sighs for a clip on the back of the shorts and he paws in the valley, he longs for a victim a week. When there is no fighting he's worried, when he has no bruises he's wild; his fetlocks have never been curried, his back teeth have never been filed. The fame he has won will survive him, the lore of the ring he's enriched; no ladies or children can drive him, he won't always stand when he's pitched. Grown weary of pugs who are writing, and bruisers who talk by the year, we welcome a fighter who's fighting whenever a foe will appear. Grown weary of champions copping their victims with infinite care, we welcome a bruiser who's bruising, a scrapper with burs in his hair. Grown weary of fighters who clamor for millions before they will scrap, we welcome this fierce human hammer, who's knocking the stiffs from the map.

FRANCE WITNESSES A DECLINE IN BIRTHS.
 PARIS, Aug. 13. The effort being put forward to check depopulation is still far from successful, for the temporary boom in marriages and births, which began after the armistice, has already subsided and the decline of births is now more serious than ever. While other populations are increasing rapidly and in goodly numbers, France is making slow progress.

 TARLES, France, Aug. 13. Twenty-three tourists were killed in a motor bus accident to-day at St. Sauveur, a Pyrenees resort, about twenty-five miles south of here.

NO CHANGE IN GERMANY.
 BERLIN, Aug. 13. Chaotic conditions still prevail in various sections of Germany owing to situation created by shortage in food, and a general spirit of unrest. Additional disorders are reported from various towns to-day, with further casualties growing out of fighting between townspeople and police. At Alltaccapelle four men were killed and forty wounded by the police in a potato shortage demonstration, while at Creteil several men were wounded in a public manifestation. There were also disturbances in Rheinhausen. At Luchee Communists compelled the Senate to adjourn. In Berlin the strike of transportation workers is causing the authorities much trouble. Activities of the strikers to-day necessitated the Government ordering many of them under arrest.

LONDON PAPERS WELCOME DEFINITE POLICY.
 LONDON, Aug. 13. The majority of the British morning newspapers approved wholly of the British note to France and Belgium. The note is strong, but not too strong says the Times. It was high time such a clear statement of the British case was made.

COMING ELECTIONS CAUSE NO EXCITEMENT.
 DUBLIN, Aug. 13. Little sign of excitement in Ireland over the approaching elections although the day for nomination of candidates is August 18th and election day, August 27th. According to present indications there will be four candidates for every seat.

When They Marry.

Although marriage has increased considerably in the last few years, births have on the whole decreased. Births were mostly on the increase until 1911, when they steadily decreased until 1920. In that year there was a jump from 692,488 in 1919 to 957,782. Next year, 1921, the figures again dropped—this time by 108,968. The Registrar-General's figures of births, deaths and marriages for 1921 show that more people were married in the last half of the year than in the first.

Women marry at an earlier age than men. In 1921 over 2,000 more women than men were married under twenty-one years of age. Three girls were married at the age of 14, twenty-six at 15, 247 at 16, and 1,737 at 17. No boys were married under the age of 16, but fifteen were married under 17.

On the other hand, men marry at a greater age than women; and widowers of sixty or more often re-marry than widows of the same age. In 1921, 243 widowers re-married at the age of 65, and 57 re-married who were over 80. Of the widows, only 118 married again at the age of 65, and only seven at more than 80 years of age.—Pearson's Weekly.

Watching an Island Grow.

HOW A "WRECK" BECAME A FAIR-SIZED ISLAND.

When an earthquake occurs it is quite possible for an island to sink below the surface of the water in a few hours. But it is not generally known that some islands have risen above the surface so rapidly that they could be seen growing.

Islands near a mainland are mostly merely fragments broken off the coast, but oceanic islands have no direct relationship with continents. They appear generally in groups, and are known as low groups and high groups. The low groups are the coral islands, the high groups the volcanic islands.

The best example of an island growing in a night is one near Santonin, in the Aegean Sea. This island appeared at the beginning of the eighteenth century.

One day Santonin showed signs of earthquake shocks. The next morning the people got very excited about a wreck, looking black against the shining sea.

Searfaring men went out and came back with the news that the "wreck" was a huge rock, risen from the sea where it had previously been 525 feet deep. Oysters were still clinging to it.

Within twenty-two days the island stood twenty-five feet above the level of the sea and was about 3,150 feet in area. The water round it was hot, and black rocks began to appear round the island.

The day after the rocks had appeared they had risen so high as to become part of the island. The island went on increasing in size, the growth being visible to the eye, till it was nearly five square miles in area.

A YOUTHFUL FINANCIER.

"Father, wouldn't you be glad if I saved you half a crown?"

"Certainly, my son," was the reply of the parent, who was so delighted at this evidence of budding business ability that he handed the boy a six-pence.

"Well, I saved it all right," the little chap replied, edging nearer the door. "You said if I brought a good report from my teacher you would give me half a crown, but I didn't."

Gone With the Goods.

The captain of a ship put into a little harbour in Scotland to recruit two seamen. One man presented himself with a sheet of excellent testimonials, and another offered his services without possessing a single credential. As they were the only two applicants, however, the skipper had no choice but to engage both. Before the voyage had gone far the two new "hands" were instructed to swab the deck, and one of them was washed overboard together with his pail. The other rushed to the captain's cabin.

"D'ye remember that fellow w' the great bunch o' 'characters' you signed on?" he exclaimed.

"I do," replied the officer.

"Well," said the other, "he's awa' w' your bucket."

Proof Positive.

When he is in the mood nothing delights Sir J. M. Barrie more than to fire off stories concerning his student days in Scotland.

One concerns a Don at a certain Scottish university who, going round on a tour of inspection one day, came across a very large-sized barrel of beer in a student's quarters.

The Don pointed out that a vital law of the college had been openly broken, and asked for an explanation. This was readily forthcoming.

"You see, sir, I have not been very well lately, and my doctor ordered me to drink a glass of beer every morning and every evening. I am only taking it medicinally."

This soft answer turned away wrath, as the Don got quite sympathetic and inquired, "And do you think it is doing you good?"

"Why, yes, sir. Do you see that barrel? When it came in here on Thursday it took two of us to lift it, but now I can trundle it round the room by myself."

Follow this simple rule to have lovely, gleaming hair

Never shampoo your hair without olive oil, hair specialists warn. To do so is to leave hair dry, dull, brittle—all its rich warmth of color and life gone. No hair can be beautiful unless clean, they say. Nor can hair be beautiful without the glossy sheen so much admired.

Therefore—use olive oil shampoo.

You see prettier hair everywhere, today. Women have learned that the most delightful form of olive oil hair wash is PALMOLIVE SHAMPOO.

It is convenient for home use, and most economical—costing but a fraction of what you'd pay to have the same treatment from a specialist.

It cleanses away all dirt and oil—thoroughly removes dandruff. And it leaves hair fluffy, soft, pliant as a baby's; with the gleaming sheen of new silk.

SPORTOGRAPHY

LET'S HAVE A BOUT.

Time was when the sporting element of St. John's promoted something in the way of a boxing bout or a wrestling tournament occasionally. Last spring the G.L.B.C. made an excellent attempt to revive this sport, but unfortunately an election meeting which gave equal promise of hard knocks and threatened struggle held back the blood to that quarter, and in consequence the squared ring was surrounded by an enthusiastic circle which had position but no magnitude. Are there no Otto Oppelns, no Young Queens-to-day? Plenty of them, and only waiting to display their skill. By the look of things we are not going to have any summer just yet so why not stage something if only to take our minds off the alleged rumours, political prophecies, the amount so and so made out of the Government. If the old hands are too tired to undertake the arrangements let some of the younger generation "get busy." There is a full house assured to the first in the field ZIBBY.

NO FOOTBALL TO-NIGHT.

Owing to the illness of St. Joseph's Regatta being on tonight, the League has authorized the cancellation of the Salus-C.E.L. game advertised in this morning's News.

TO TAKE SHAMROCK BACK TO ENGLAND.

New York, Aug. 10.—A crew of British yachting sailors, in the employ of Sir Thomas Lipton, arrived to-day on the Zealand to take Sir Thomas's 25 meter racing yacht, Shamrock, back to England, where she will be used as a trial horse for the new attempt to capture the famous American cup. The Shamrock was used in both British and United States waters in 1920 as a pacesetter for the Shamrock IV. Since then she had been in storage.

HOPE TO COMPLETE REGATTA TO-NIGHT.

A well known Canadian, doing business here, when asked yesterday "When are we going to have any summer?" promptly replied: "I don't know; I've only been here three years." In any case it has been the worst summer in Newfoundland for many years even in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. For instance they've been trying to run off the St. Joseph's Regatta for the past week, and up to the present only three items on the program have been completed. However, with hopeful hearts the garden party committee hope that conditions will permit the finalisation to-night. The first race will begin at 6.30.

REAL SPORT.

We in this country have up to recently looked on our sport as something to do in our spare time, and do it in a more or less haphazard fashion. When we think of the Americans massaging the muscles needed for each game and listening to lectures on the psychology of tennis rackets, we realize how specialised other nations have become. Next year the games will be a severe test to our men—if any go to compete.

HIGHLAND GAME TO-MORROW.

The preliminary football fixes for the Junior League in connection with the Highland Games resulted in the following teams being left in for the

A meeting of the Sports Committee was held last night, when all matters were finalized, a large number of entries for the various events being received especially for the flat races. Mr. Jack McNeil will receive final entries to-night at St. Andrew's Club from 8 to 9. The coxing of the Mercantile Field Regatta grows must all enter to-night. The prizes are now on exhibition in McNab's windows and are well worth striving for. The 10 mile walking match will be officially recognized by the A.A.A. in case the record should be broken as it is by request under their auspices.

BOOSTING AMATEUR ATHLETICS.

As is largely done by the press in England, the Chicago Tribune makes the announcement that "henceforth, instead of devoting pages of space to the free exploitation of commercialized sport such as baseball and boxing, it would give all amateur events the preference in space. This decision is no doubt largely influenced by the increasing interest all the world over to the Olympics which is being held at Paris next year. Later we hope to publish extracts from the English and American press concerning the world wide athletic meet.

SOMEONE PLEASE ANSWER!

Editor "Sportographs" Dear Sir.—Will you through your well read columns kindly tell me, if the East End scored one goal in Saturday evening's game. I notice in all three papers yesterday that the score was 4 to nil. Whereas some of the players claim that the East End scored one goal. There is an argument and by the way a small side bet. So if you will find out from Mr. T. Delahunty who, I think, refereed the game and publish his decision. Hoping that you will oblige one who reads with confidence the true reports of all games in your columns. I remain, FOOTBALL FAN.

MONTREAL'S GOLF WIZARD.

In Montreal on August 8th, Redvers MacKenzie established an "unofficial" amateur course record at the Country Club when he played the 18 holes in 88. His score is the best ever made there with all putts holed out. His card was: OUT—4 4 4 4 3 3 2 5—38 IN—5 5 3 3 4 2 2 5—35—83 He had four birdies while his only two faults were on the fourth and twelfth holes where two putts rimmed the cup.

INTER-TOWN CRICKET.

While primarily the object of the Grand Falls trip next week organized by Mr. Bobby Jones is to play football, still it will be of interest to readers of this column to note that arrangements are being made by Mr. P. Wallace, of Shamrock fame, to carry along as many cricketers as possible to have a crack at the Grand Falls for the silver cup presented by Mr. Charles H. Hayward for the revival of "the grand old game." MORE LIGHT THROWN ON BRITISH POLICY ON REPARATIONS.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—What is claimed "an authoritative and direct footnote on British foreign policy" was made public last evening by the Central News. It reads "There is no tenderness in the British Empire for Germany, but the Government believe that if France is not to maintain an indefinite stranglehold on Germany, the complete overthrow of the economic situation of Europe if not of whole world is certain. It is more than a suspicion that the French policy if directed to the isolation of Great Britain in Europe. The British Government are seeking not the isolation but the co-operation of France. If that fails, obviously Great Britain will try her own policy to win over Germany. Britain may then try to win over Italy, to detach Belgium from the support of France in Ruhr, and bring into line with her Holland, Switzerland, Sweden and Norway, who are suffering equally or more than Great Britain from effects of the French policy. Apart from the immediate aims of the Government their policy is the ultimate co-operation between Great Britain and the United States for world settlement. No immediate sensational response from the United States may be expected, but Premier Baldwin believes that Europe cannot be saved unless the people of the United States join the British in saving them.

YELLOW BOOK REVEAL POINCARÉ'S FIRM STAND.

PARIS, Aug. 14.—"A yellow book" of diplomatic documents issued by the French Government contains thirty-seven telegrams and letters, first of them between Premier Poincaré and the French Ambassador, dated from May 2nd to August 30th. Premier Poincaré puts the position plainly in the June 12th message to the French Ambassador in London. He instructs the Ambassador to tell Lord Curzon that "it is the prohibition of the interest of the Allies which prevents us from telling Germany the exact amount she owes us." The message adds, "the solution of this problem is in the hands of Great Britain first of all and United States afterwards." The latter can be approached in common accord by the Allies when they have agreed upon a formula and it has become evident that everything depends only upon the attitude of the Government at Washington." The documents in the yellow book emphasize Poincaré's absolute conviction that Germany can pay, must pay, and will pay, because France will follow a policy of making it easier to pay than stand the pressure in the Ruhr. The Premier explained his idea of guarantees suggesting that Germany deliver Rhineland railways to the Allies. Give them certain Ruhr coal mines, collect customs in gold for the Allies and otherwise actively co-operate in the payment reparations. Premier Poincaré is firm throughout in the policy of compelling Germany to cease resistance and he refuses to compromise on the occupation of Ruhr or the amount of reparations expect as compensated by the cancellation of inter-allied debts. Speaking of committees to determine Germany's capacity to pay he says: "Reports would simply see German treasury empty and conclude she could not pay while France knows she can pay."

HAROLD LLOYD IN ONE BIG SCREAM!

In Passing.

A few days ago reference was made in this column of the many abuses of the Prohibition Act as now in force.

The subject is a very delicate one to discuss, consequently we are in no way wedded to the following opinions and suggestions.

As already stated by the late and present Prime Ministers a radical change for the better is necessary in order to depart from the many flagrant violations of the law which are daily evidenced in the courts and otherwise.

These suggested amendments in no way commit a policy but provide ample room for some discussion with a view to one or another improvement. Firstly Complete Prohibition. Secondly the following:

- 1. Reverse the old License Law—license the buyer, not the seller, issue a license, good for one year, to any person over eighteen years, license to be obtained on the payment of say, five dollars to a magistrate or official.
2. Every license to be numbered, and to bear the photograph of applicant. The photograph would prevent the license being transferred and used by parties to whom liquor should not be sold. It may seem extreme, but rigid safeguarding is essential.
3. Any person arrested for drunkenness to have his license suspended for, say three or six months,—license to be cancelled for a second offence.
4. The name of the person whose license has been cancelled to be published in the press, as is the case in the Pure Food Law.
5. Any person who uses his license to procure for and supply to a person whose license has been so cancelled, to have his own license taken, and be made liable to imprisonment for thirty days, or a fine.
6. No sale to be made to any person more often than once a week, except with the approval of the Control Board.
7. In cases of sickness, where parties interested do not hold a license, dispenser be empowered to supply at his own discretion.
8. Abolish the supplying by scripts, and provide two depots, one East and one West, stocked from a Central Department, by which they will be controlled, and to which they are responsible.
Under the old License Law, the sale of liquor to minors, habitual drunkards, etc. was barred by heavy penalties.
This has resulted in wholesale drunkenness among all manner of undesirable, and a marked prevalence of drunkenness on Sundays, a condition practically unknown under the old License Law.
Formerly fully thirty per cent. of the Colony's liquor bill was paid by tourists, travellers, etc. Now, not five per cent. of the half million dollars paid, according to the Controller's statement, was contributed, as the outside does not know how to proceed to secure the necessary script.
Add to this the amount spent unnecessarily in buying scripts, and it will be seen that our people are being forced to expend a very large amount of money, much of which can be saved them by the installation of a proper system of sale.
To-morrow some reasons why the present Prohibition Law should be amended.

Imperial Conference Will Discuss Foreign Policy of Great Britain.

CONSTITUTIONAL PROBLEMS TO BE TREATED BY IMPERIAL STATESMEN WHEN THEY MEET IN LONDON NEXT FALL.

GEORGE HAMBLETON, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.
Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 13.—When leading Liberal Opposition in the House of Commons in 1921, the present Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King, passed this resolution:—
“That the House, while recognizing the propriety of Canada being represented at any Imperial Conference or Conference of the Prime Ministers of the Empire that may be called, do record the opinion that at the same conference no steps should be taken in any way involving any change in the relations of Canada to the other parts of the Empire.”
The resolution was moved on the 14th of the Premier's Conference of Ministers and refers to that conference particularly. But it is of special interest at the present moment because it indicates the lines which it is anticipated Premier King intends to follow when constitutional relations are discussed at the coming Imperial Conference. Canada has no intention of making any question of constitutional change and any such discussion will, it is thought, turn largely to improvement in methods of conducting and communication.
In 1917, the Imperial War Conference recognized the “right of the Dominions and India to an adequate voice in foreign policy and in foreign relations,” and urged the provision of effective arrangements for consultation in all important matters of common Imperial concern. The “adequate voice” has still to be heard. The “effective arrangements” have still to be made complete.

These conferences are in progress and a problem of Dominion consultation is being solved. Every facility is being provided for full exchange of views. The matter comes when the conference has passed its final resolutions and delegates have gone their various ways. Between conferences there is usually a long interval, and in that interval important questions are apt to arise as was the case last Fall in the crisis of the Dardanelles. Premier King has stated that the earlier crises of this episode were not communicated to the Dominion Governments at all. The first official dispatch was the dramatic “appeal” to the Dominions, asking if they would be represented by members of the Dominion Government were hurriedly summoned together to consider an issue, the consequences of which they could not compare with the Empire's honor on the line of war. And to add to the irony of the “appeal” appeared in the Press when it was officially received by Premier King.

Discussion of the problem of consultation has brought numerous suggestions of status, various suggestions of schemes. Premier Massey of New Zealand thinks ministers of the Empire should have the same status as British ministers and “be in position to approach the Sovereign.” Premier Bruce of Australia and Premier Smuts of South Africa have said their position clear. Premier Smuts will hold, as Mr. Hughes held, that the Dominions are entitled to a voice in foreign policy on the right which, as a matter of fact, has already been formally recognized. “What South Africa should do,” declared Premier Smuts, “is to use her voice no longer as a subordinate but as one of the states of a commonwealth.” But how, as Mr. Hughes queried at the last Conference, in 1921 “are the Dominions to have an effective voice in foreign policy when as things stand they can only be told after the things have been done and are not consulted beforehand?”

Clearly as a means of meeting the situation there has been a revival of the proposal that the Dominions should each be represented by a resident minister in London who would keep in constant touch with the British authorities. During the war Canada was represented in London by a resident minister—Sir George Perley—who had become acting High Commissioner following the death of Lord Curzon. Sir Edward Kemp as High Commissioner of Overseas Military Services was also resident in London during a large part of the war period.
Sir George Perley has recently advanced the view that the high commissioners of the various Dominions should be members of their governments and charged with the duty of representing members of the British Government whenever the occasion demands. Lord Strathapey speaking in the House of Lords put forward another suggestion and one rather reminiscent of the Imperial Council idea, proposed by New Zealand and adopted at the 1917 conference. Lord Strathapey's idea is that the Dominions should have representatives in the British Parliament, that the Dominion High Commissioners should have seats in the House of Lords and should be invited to be present at Cabinet meetings when the Empire's foreign policy is discussed. Further Lord Strathapey pressed the view that instead of an Imperial Conference every few years there should be daily consultation.

But there is another side to the question and one which may have considerable bearing on the attitude taken by the Canadian delegates next October. The subject before the conference was the Declaration of London and Sir Wilfrid laid stress on the point that to press for the right to give advice implied willingness to back up the advice with deeds, if need be.

"This is a treaty," declared Sir Wilfrid, "which lays down certain rules of war, as to what manner war is to be carried out by the Great Powers of Europe. In my humble judgment if you undertake to be consulted and to lay down a wish that your advice should be pursued as to the manner in which war is to be carried on, it implies of necessity that you should take part in that war."

It is altogether likely, too, that the conference will hear echoes of the halibut treaty between Canada and the United States, or rather of the procedure adopted in its signature. Possibly no similar document in recent years has aroused so much controversy over constitutional points involved. More may yet be heard.

A Re-Enacted Love Story of the Ages.

IS PRODUCTION AT THE NICKEL.

A re-enacted love story of the ages. "Always the Woman," a Betty Compton production starring herself, distributed by Goldwyn, was shown last night at the Nickel theatre and scored a hit with the spectators. It gave this clever and charming screen star an opportunity to disclose her histrionic gifts in more variety and profusion than any other production in which she has been seen.

"Always the Woman" is a screen version of a story by Percy Poore Sheehan, and was directed by Arthur Rosson under Miss Compton's personal supervision. Its cast is one of the best seen in any picture of the screen, including, as it does, Emory Johnson, Doris Pavn, Macey Harlam, Gerald Pring, Arthur Delmore and Richard Rosson.

As Celia Thaxter, a slangy American vaudeville dancer on route to Egypt, Miss Compton has a role entirely different from anything in which she has previously been seen. On the ship is an Egyptian mystic who recognises in her a reincarnation of the oldtime Queen, Necco-Tokris, who gave up her life for love. The old tragedy begins to re-enact itself, Kelm Pasha, a wealthy Egyptian statesman, being the reincarnation of the high priest who sent Necco-Tokris and her lover to death.

In an oasis of the desert and in an ancient pyramid, the modern enactment of the old story takes place, only this time the lovers are united, due to the desire for atonement by the mystic, who in the former incarnation betrayed the Queen. Macey Harlam is the High Priest and later Kelm Pasha, and Emory Johnson the lover.

Monthly Meeting Nfld. Poultry Association.

The monthly meeting of the Nfld. Poultry Association was held last night at 8 o'clock. Mr. G. R. Williams, the President, occupied the chair, while a large number of members were in attendance. The chief business of the meeting was the appointing of a deputation to interview the Department of Agriculture with a view of extending the work of the Association in encouraging Poultry Culture more generally throughout the Island through the benefit of the general public. A very interesting report was read of a visit made to the poultry farm of Mr. Leonard Earle, an account of whose activities appears in another column of this issue. The holding of the annual show also came up for discussion at this meeting. It was decided to hold the show for three days during the last week in November. Arrangements are being made to give illustrated lantern lectures each evening on poultry culture. President Hughes of the Bell Island Poultry Association stated that they would probably hold their exhibition in November as well. The Committee in this connection are making every effort to make it a huge success.

"Ma's compliments," quoth the small boy, "but she sent me to show you this bone brought with the beef this morning."

The butcher smiled sarcastically. "Trot back, my little man, and tell your ma that the next time I kill a bullock without bones I'll give it as a present to her."

"Ma's compliments," said the boy, "but the next time you get beef with a mutton bone in it she will buy the whole carcass as a curiosity."

Poverty Ends Royal Romance of Many Years

London.—The post-war poverty of many once powerful nobles has brought before the public the sad ending of a royal love affair.

The story is the romance of Princess Louise of Belgium, daughter of Leopold II, who married Prince Philip of Coburg, and about thirty years ago left her husband her two children to elope with Captain Gesta von Mattasich, a Hungarian nobleman.

The princess was divorced by her husband, and Captain von Mattasich lost his commission in the Austro-Hungarian army. Following the war money became scarce, and the lovers were compelled to move from their palatial residence in Vienna to a small village.

The princess disputed the will of her father, who left everything to hismorganatic wife, the Baroness Vaughan, but she lost the suit. Then she appealed to her sister, the Princess Stephanie Louisa, former Crown Princess of Austria.

Princess Stephanie offered to allow Louise, who is now 64 years old, to spend the rest of her life at the beautiful castle of Crozslar, in Hungary, on condition that she leave von Mattasich. The offer was accepted, and friends now have found another home for the penniless captain.

Talkative Old Gentleman (to fellow-passenger): "How fast we travel! But, young man, have you ever thought of the flight of time? Think of the fleeting hours of youth, the golden days that swiftly pass away. Have you ever counted the minutes—"

Batterby (suspectingly): "What are you trying to do? Sell me a watch?"

WALKING SHORT STORIES.

"I have just left my letter to let the ice man in and I have been talking to him for half an hour. Perhaps you may be invariably in our conversation. I was having some difficulty in fixing the drain and he offered to help, saying with the delightful nonchalance of youth, 'I fixed our refrigerator for my wife this morning.' He is only a youngster and of course I expressed my surprise at his marriage and then the whole story of his romance came out. I can't tell you how I enjoyed it. I think it's even more fun to read stories that way than in the magazines, don't you?"

She Is Never Bored.

So writes a friend of mine. She is a woman who is never bored. And in that paragraph she unconsciously gives one of the reasons.

It is a great gift, or perhaps I would better say a very fine habit to read the romances that walk around and talk to us every day, as well as those that are written down in books or magazines.

People who have it never bore themselves.

Of Robert Louis Stevenson, when he was shut up by his ill health in his father's home at Bournemouth, his biographer writes:

They Stayed to Dinner.

"The chance seldom presented itself to him of meeting men of any class whose lives lay outside his own, but those who fell in his way received unusual attention at his hands, more especially if they possessed originality or any independence of character. Thus, the barber that came to cut his hair, the picture framer, the vet who attended Bogey, each in their different way were originals to a man whose life was so secluded. Their coming was welcome, they invariably stayed to meals, and sooner or later, told the stories of their lives."

Of course Stevenson was an author. He had to know about people for the sake of his craft.

But somehow I feel as if he would have wanted to know about people anyway—he was that kind.

Everyone can be interesting for a time if he or she is drawn out to talk simply and sincerely about his life. I do not mean that one has to draw people's secrets out of them, but rather to get them to talking about the things they know most about and are most interested in.

The Philosophy Of A Tailor.

Some of the most vital memories of my life are occasions when people in other walks of life than mine have started talking to me about their experience and their philosophies. I remember a little old foreign tailor to whose fittings I used to look forward because some chance remark of mine gained his confidence and led him to talk freely of what he had learned about human nature as a tailor.

The older I grow the more I am coming to feel that happiness in life has much to do with being interested. The more you are interested in life, the less chance you have of being bored. And to cultivate the art of making people tell you the interesting things about themselves is to erect one more barrier between yourself and boredom.

What Would Happen if the Gulf Stream—?

Many are the forms in which the above question finishes. Nearly always, however, it is of a calamitous nature. When the Panama Canal was being built many dismal prophets prophesied that the warm waters of the Gulf Stream would flow through the Canal and leave the Eastern States and Northwestern Europe under Arctic conditions. Here is an authoritative statement by Jacques W. Redway, F.R.G.S., respecting the matter.

Stories concerning the dreadful things which are to happen because of the eccentricities of the Gulf Stream come quite as regularly as epidemics of the influenza, but about thirty times as frequently. The influenza visits us only about once in a generation. The vagaries of the Gulf Stream are rehearsed every summer about as certainly as August follows July. In order to understand ocean currents and their connection with the weather, one would better begin with first principles, namely, the Equatorial Current.

In equatorial regions a steady wind blows from the east-northeast and southeast in different latitudes, but always from the east. The skin friction of this great wind belt in the course of years multiplied by tons of thousands has finally dragged enough water along in a westerly direction to set in motion a feeble current, 1,000 miles or more in width, which flows westward. The Equatorial Current is the greatest of all ocean currents. There are other factors involved in the formation of ocean currents, such as the differences in temperature, differences in specific gravity—for salt water is specifically heavier than fresh water—and the earth's rotation; but the factor chiefly to be considered is the direction of the wind.

The South American continent projects a fairly sharp angle against the Equatorial Current, splitting it squarely in two, turning one part along the Brazilian coast, the other in a northerly direction. The latter finally becomes the Gulf Stream.

As a definite current the Gulf Stream has not nearly the extent with which common opinion credits it. The waters which form it gather rather broadly, but gradually concentrate at Santaren Channel and Florida Strait. At this locality they become the Gulf Stream. Years ago, common tradition had it that the Gulf Stream made a complete circuit of the Gulf of Mexico, and hence the name. As a matter of fact, a small amount of water is drawn out of the Gulf by a process akin to that of evaporation, but it is not stream water; it differs therefrom in temperature, color and salinity.

In extent one may safely assume that the Gulf Stream begins in Florida Strait. At a point roughly between Miami and the islands lying eastward—one of which is Bimini, with a stream not associated with the Gulf—the Gulf Stream is a powerful current with a maximum velocity between five and six knots, and a minimum of about three knots. At this point its flow reaches to the bottom and sweeps the Zome therefrom as far north as Cape Hatteras.

Off Cape Hatteras, at a point where the 2,000 fathom curve is nearest the coast, the velocity rarely exceeds one and one-quarter knots. Thence northward the velocity gradually decreases until, at the southern limit of Grand Banks off the Newfoundland coast, its force is lost and it becomes merely a wind drift.

The velocity of the Gulf Stream along the Florida coast varies with the season and even with the passage of the moon; that is, the variations are both seasonal and monthly. Its flow is swiftest in summer, when its flood is pushed as far as Grand Banks and slowest in winter, when it does not reach much further than Cape Hatteras. Its temperature in mid-summer off the south coast of Florida may be as high as 86 degrees. Even at Grand Banks its waters may be warmer by twenty degrees or more than the surrounding waters.

The Gulf Stream water is saltier than the cold water which forms its banks. Off the Florida coast its waters show a strong color contrast in comparison with surrounding waters. Between the Gulf Stream and the coast is a cold water counter-current flowing southward; and small south-bound craft frequently use its flow to gain a knot or two in speed. Off Cape Hatteras an adverse under-current appears seasonally at the surface, meeting the Gulf Stream and throwing the surface into the rips which navigators have named rather aptly "Little Hell."

Regularly reports are circulated, coming occasionally from Florida resorts, giving the traditional news that the axis of the Gulf Stream has changed, thereby changing the climate of the South Atlantic States. As a matter of fact, there are slight seasonal changes in the position of the Gulf Stream, but they produce no apparent change in the climate of the Southern States or that of any other part of the world. But to say that any permanent or material change in Heartless Laws Make Marriage No Easy Matter.

Moscow.—When the American Congress passed the law annulling the previous rule that a foreign woman automatically became an American citizen by marrying an American, it put Herculean difficulties in the path of Dan Cupid in the document-cursed countries of Eastern Europe, most frequented by a certain new type of young American men at an age when they are very susceptible to pretty foreign girls and matrimony.

The American Relief Administration, the Near East Relief, the Y. M. C. A. and other organizations which since the war have conducted relief operations in Poland, Austria, Greece, Russia, the Balkans and the Baltic states, sent hundreds of young Americans into cities noted for their charming girls.

Before the law became effective last September, marriages of Americans to these girls was relatively easy, although even then it involved digesting into records for documents, more documents and still more documents. Once this was accomplished, however, all the young American had to do was to go to the nearest American consulate, have his wife's photograph pasted on his passport, and if he was ready, could take her home an automatic American citizeness and show her proudly to his folks.

But to-day things are different. A few weeks ago one young member of the Near East Relief mission in Armenia got a brief vacation and came through Moscow to his way to Warsaw to marry there a lovely Polish girl who had waited for him two years. They had met when he was with the American Red Cross and she a nurse on the Polish battlefields against the Russians.

"I'll be back in ten days; save a room for us at the hotel," the American said blithely and confidently as he left Moscow.

Six weeks later he returned with his bride, having miraculously untangled miles of red tape and overcome, with the assistance of every official, Polish and American alike in Warsaw and Moscow, obstacles that left both bride and groom too tired to enjoy a honeymoon.

In Poland a woman automatically takes on the citizenship of her husband and, therefore, should lose her Polish passport. American rules, due to the new law, prevent consuls from pasting foreign wives' pictures on husbands' passports. One cannot enter Russia without a passport, and it is particularly difficult for a Polish subject to secure a visa to enter Russia at all. American law required this couple to have two passports, his American, her Polish. Polish law and the Russian difficulties in the way of Poles entering required them to have one, and this American.

Finally the young man prevailed upon the Polish authorities to give him a Polish passport, and upon an American consular official to give him a letter stating the couple had been legally married, although the bride was not an American citizen. The worried bridegroom pasted his wife's picture on the letter, attached the letter to his own passport, and finally got through.

Italy Wants Tinned Fish Marked.

Italy some months ago received shipments of tinned fish and sardines that were, so report says, far from wholesome. The Government health department tried to trace the origin of the goods but the labels had been detached and the search proved futile. Now the Italian Government has enacted a decree that all tinned fish imported must bear on the tin the distinctive markings, a description of the contents, the name of the packer and the country of origin.

Representations were made to the Italian administrative authorities through the Canadian trade representative at Milan, as the request of the Canadian Fisheries Association, to have the decree modified in view of its impracticability. It was impossible to know at the time of packing what quantity should be marked for the Italian market and it would be a heavy expense to mark all the tins, and, in some cases, unsatisfactory to distributors. The authorities at Rome took the view, however, that the marketing was not impracticable and that all countries exporting fish were put on the same footing. Concessions were granted in that the application of the decree was deferred and the ruling was given that a paper pasted on the cover would be considered an indelible marking and that embossing would not be exacted. It was further pointed out by Rome that there seemed to be little reason why Canadian trade in this commodity should be considerably increased in view of the fact that the customs duty of 45 lire per quintal, which works out at 168 lire per hundred kilos, or four cents (Canadian) per one-pound tin, has been removed.

The Canadian Trade Commissioner remarks that there seems little prospect of getting further alterations in the decree and he is inclined to the opinion that the enactment may come as a blessing in disguise to Canadian canners by eliminating intermediaries and advertising Canadian products as such.

All About Our Peers.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

The Parliament is the only one left in the world composed of hereditary peers. In other countries the Upper House, in the Lower, is elected. Very soon, probably, we shall see something of the sort come to pass here for the present Government is pledged to reform the House of Lords, to make of it a more popular representative body. Our House of Lords, as at present constituted, is the oldest legislative assembly in the kingdom, antedating by some two centuries the House of Commons. It has two distinct functions, the making of laws, which it shares with the Commons, and the interpretation of laws, with which latter the Commons have nothing whatever to do. As a final Court of Appeal, its decisions are absolute, and cannot be overruled or set aside by any assembly, or by any individual, save except, the King himself.

This Supreme Court is almost entirely devoid of the dignified traditions of the lower courts. It sits under an oblong table covered with brown cloth, and the Lord Chancellor, who usually presides, alone wears a wig and gown. The other members present wear ordinary morning dress. The impression prevails that only the Law Lords, who are supposed to be chosen on account of their legal knowledge, take part in these deliberations, and usually this is so in fact. But in theory every peer has a right to assist in this Court of Appeal, whether he knows any law or not, and whether he has any interest or none in the particular case under consideration. Members of the Upper House attend in response to a writ, which is sent to each Peer. This he has to present to the Clerk of House before sitting at his seat, and that official responds calls out his name and title to the Hall of the House.

A new Bill is compiled for each session of Parliament, and is solemnly presented to the Clerk by the Secretary of State, who comes into the House wearing his tabard, a special, sleeveless jacket emblazoned with heraldic devices. This Roll, on which the names of the Peers appear in order of precedence, is an actual roll, and is wound round a roller. When consulted, it is unrolled, and is seen to consist of a long strip of parchment, some inches wide. There is no Better Highways in 1923 to Absorb $288,000,000.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The 1923 road construction season is expected to add many hundreds of miles to the country's system of improved highways. Figures compiled by the Bureau of Good Roads of the Department of Agriculture from 21 selected states show they will have available $288,000,000 for this purpose, compared to $278,000,000 spent by them last year. On federal-aid work, which constitutes something like one-half the total mileage, there was under construction March 31 work estimated to cost $283,000,000, as compared with $233,000,000 one the same date a year ago.

Old Age and Disability.

Some of the facts established by the laws of mortality and of business are pertinently set forth in the company paper of the Travelers. It is pointed out that the expectation of life at birth is 51 years. Those who survive the vicissitudes of early life and attain fifty years of age have a further expectation of about 20 years. The age when man is capable of the most sustained physical endurance ranges from 29 to 32 years. In industry the full vigor and productivity does not extend beyond 45. The death rate at 40 is nearly three times what it is at 20. At age 65, with some rare exceptions a man is well on the way downward from the peak of his activity. It is the economic danger of age. The possibility of meeting these hazards of death, of old age, and of permanent disability has three one door only—insurance. Insurance allows a man to discount them all in advance of their occurrence.

British Behind Baldwin.

British opinion, 80 per cent. of it, and perhaps more, is solidly behind Baldwin in his opposition to the French attitude toward the German "problem." We may have our own troubles with Labor, but even Labor at the present time is a unit on the French question, said Mr. T. O. Jacobsen, who is described in a Toronto "Globe" interview as the head of Jacobsen, Welch & Co., Ltd., British stationery manufacturers, a Justice of the Peace for the County of London, a former member for Hyde, a constituency not far from Manchester. He sells wherever there is a market, employs a thousand men, and his works are administered under the Whitley Council scheme, on a profit-sharing basis.

"Sooner or later we, and the rest of the world, will have to face the facts," he continued. "Sensationalism is the last thing we want. But we do need a sane, sober, realization of what is happening, and what more is likely to happen, unless the world learns to understand that it is not made up of a series of watertight compartments, and that no nation can float the rest of humanity or live unto itself alone."

"What would be the effect of a serious international crisis on the Baldwin Administration?"

"It would stand. Britain wants a Conservative Government—one that it feels will not move too hurriedly. Lloyd George may come back; there may yet be a middle party; but Lloyd George is too 'jumpy' a person to come back just now."

"And you supported him?"

"What is the average Englishman's attitude toward reparations?"

"Well, we think Germany should be forced to pay, but we're a practical nation. Look where we are today as the result of this international debt business. We pay the States, and we have no money left to buy her goods. Germany can't pay anybody, and Australian wool, Indian tea and jute are going a-begging because Germany and Central Europe can't buy from us and we can't get the money which might help to relieve the American farmers' troubles. Germany was the British Empire's best customer, and when your best customer is down and out you're not likely to be in a position to buy from anybody else."

"On the other hand, it is easy to understand France's determination to make Germany pay. I think she knows Germany can't pay, but she hasn't forgotten what she suffered and that Germany escaped war's destruction. We think the war is over, France is not, apparently, in the same state of mind."

"Then you believe that normal conditions will not be reached until Germany is given an opportunity to get on her feet?"

"Precisely."

"Do you think France will give Germany that chance?"

"Here's where we had better go cautiously. But, frankly, I do not."

I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."

Mrs. J. E. McMahon, 183 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Part Book, upon which "Aliments Peculiar to Women." is

The French people fear Germany—and naturally—but the French leaders are using that fear to lead France on a search for power. There is a growing feeling in Britain that France is preparing to make an effort to again realize the dream that was shattered when Napoleon went to Elba. She knows we don't want to fight and think she can do as she pleases. That's why we're worried. Germany has no air fleet. France is spending millions on her air army. Why? Why is she straining every effort to build up an equally dangerous submarine fleet? These are questions which we in Britain are wondering about. Of course, we're not talking about them in Parliament, but we are not playing ostrich.

"And the Ruhr? Does France mean annexation?"

"To speak frankly again, I think she does, and many others in England think the same thing. That would be the first step towards a new military hegemony in Europe—France, with the Rhine Valley, Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia."

"That led naturally to the Unites States. They don't understand—they don't understand," said Mr. Jacobsen. "They can't stand aloof—the troubles in the Middle West should teach them that—they can't leave the rest of us to sizzle and expect to escape singeing themselves. They'll come to it, some way, I hope—but if they don't we'll have to do the best we can ourselves."—Toronto Saturday Night.

Civic Opera to Have New Stars in 1928 Season.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(A.P.)—Ferdinand Ansesse, leading tenor in French opera, will make his American debut with the Chicago Civic Opera, which opens here November 8, according to the announcement made by the company. Arrangements are being made for the appearance of other brilliant guest artists, which will include Mme. Louise Homer. She will appear in a limited number of performances including "Samson and Delilah."

Other stars included in the regular personnel of the company for the coming season will be Mary Garden, Anita Galli Cavali, Florence MacBeth, Mary McCormic, Cyril Van Gordon, Georges Baklanoff, Tito Schipa, Edith Mason and Feodor Chaliapin, with Giorgio Polacco again present as musical director.

"Boris Godunoff" and "L'Africain", the latter by Meyerbeer, are announced as novelties in the 1928-29 season, because they never before have been given by the Civic Opera Company. The role of Boris is said by critics to be one of Chaliapin's greatest. Among the revivals announced is that of "Zara," with Mary Garden in the title role. Miss Garden also will appear in the revival of Massenet's "Cleopatra."

Harry W. Beatty, technical director, is spending the summer in Europe visiting the more famous opera houses of France, Germany and Italy in search of new ideas. He is said to be making a special study of proposed settings in Mousorgsky's "Boris Godunoff," which has become popular with American audiences.

The opening of the operatic season November 8 is a departure from custom, as the season will open Thursday instead of the usual Monday and will run one and one-half weeks longer than the usual season of ten weeks.

Announcement also was made that Adolph Bohm will be in charge of the ballet and that Miss Anna Ludmila would return as premiere danseuse.

Warns of Japanese Invasion.

Sydney, N.S.W.—William M. Hughes, until recently premier of Australia, believes that some day the surplus population of Japan may come knocking at the doors of Australia, seeking relief from the starvation that has compelled them to flee from their overcrowded island empire. And, if this does happen, Australia, can hardly bid them be gone if she still lacks people.

Hence, Mr. Hughes argues in an article in the Sydney Telegraph, it behooves Australia to-day to redouble her efforts to fill her vacant spaces with men and women of the white race.

Jewels Cause Worry.

The possession of rare and precious jewels is a source of great worry to many people. It is so easy to lose them.

Jewel thieves are such well-dressed gentlemen, and it is difficult for the unwary to anticipate that the man who is the owner himself such an agreeable companion is actually planning a raid on a well-filled jewelry case.

If only jewel thieves were compelled to wear some distinctive mark of their profession—say, a broad arrow on the forehead—it would relieve the anxiety of all lovers of priceless gems.

I was once asked by a woman, says a writer in an English paper, what were the best precautions to take to guard against jewel thieves. I replied that I had £50,000 worth of jewels no thief would ever steal them. I should just sell them.

That is the sort of answer a man would give, but it does not help a woman very much. As a matter of fact one can only give the general advice that common sense and reasonable care should be exercised. Assume that if you leave your jewels unguarded somebody is going to take them away, and act accordingly.

A very famous jewel thief named Nicholson used to say that so many temptations were placed in his way that he could not resist them. He never blamed himself but always the women who were so careless with their valuables.

He appeared in the dock for the last time at Middlesex Sessions, in London, some years ago, when the late Sir Ralph Littler sentenced him to ten years' penal servitude.

"My lord," he pleaded, "I am an old man and I'm afraid I shan't live to serve that sentence."

"How old are you?" asked the judge.

"I turned seventy, my lord," was the reply.

"I suppose you are right," said the judge. "Well, look here, Nicholson, do as much of it as you can!"

He did his best and died six years later in Parkhurst Prison.

Spoilt the Play.

One of the favorite stories of the well known actor, Stanley Logan, concerns a certain melodrama he once witnessed.

The strongest part was that of the villain, and the actor who took the part gave quite the best performance.

Half-way through the second act, the heroine, after having been left starving on the Embankment with a bunch of children for several weeks, and generally having been well "put through it," finally got tired of this sort of treatment, and shot the villain stone dead.

"What have I done!" she cried, gasping up at the gallery.

"Shot the best blooming actor in the show, Miss," came the prompt reply.

Teeth not clean
Old brushing methods left much film intact. They left the teeth unclean, to often discolor and decay.

So dental science searched for film combatants, and found two. One acts to curdle film, the other to neutralize mouth acids.

Women Not Deceived.

In France Canadian soldiers were trained to use their wits. A class would be told to look at some object and then to turn their backs and tell how many things they had noticed about it. The only trouble was that they did not use women instructors. Because a woman finds out in ten minutes that the embroidery on your costume does not match, that the silk of your sleeve is frayed, that the heel on your shoe is uneven, that you trimmed your hat yourself, that the lace on your neck is only imitation. And when you part she has calculated the cost of your dress, and knows your past history, present circumstances, and future prospects.

A Commercial Poultry Plant.

AN OBJECT LESSON IN AGRICULTURE.
 The first thorough going attempt at commercial poultry raising along advanced lines in Newfoundland is now on a fair way to success at Altadina, the eleven acre farm of Mr. Leonard Earl, situated on the Outer Cove Rd. Here may be seen a flock of over one thousand chickens, the nucleus of an industry which Mr. Earl believes can be made successful. A member of the Newfoundland Poultry Association he has been raising poultry for a number of years and his present venture is founded on this experience. He is convinced that poultry raising to be profitable must be combined with some other branch of agriculture and he is therefore devoting some of his attention to raising vegetables. Four acres of the eleven he has now under root crop, cereals and fruit. His poultry plant has an incubator capacity for 1,500 eggs. The brooding house, which has room for 3,000 chickens, is divided into three brooding compartments heated by oil and coal brooder stoves. An exercise room is attached to each brooding chamber and leads out to wire covered runs. The laying house 110 feet long by 18 feet wide is divided into 3-25 ft. laying pens and four breeding pens. The building, which is open front, hood style, has accommodation for 500 laying birds. An alley running the full length of the house communicates with every pen and also leads to the feed room, a 16 x 16 ft. addition at the rear. The runs for the laying stock are all seeded down to clover and an additional 3 acre field of which hay is now being taken is to be given over to young growing stock. These will be placed in colony houses scattered over the field. Mr. Earl is installing all modern equipment such as non-freezing drinking fountains, self feeders, etc. This season he placed in incubation 4,000 eggs but as a large percentage of these came from such far away places as Hope, Indiana the results were not satisfactory. He has in addition to the 1,000 chickens a splendid flock of ducklings, a number of geese, and a hatchery of turkeys. The latter were raised from stock whose parent is valued at $900. All the work at the poultry plant and the farm is done with the help of only one hired man. Mr. Earl in addition to the 11 acres of his own operates the farm adjoining owned by Mr. John Fenlon. It may be mentioned that Mr. Earl has a splendid patch of the famous miracle wheat, which, despite the unfavorable weather is reaping splendidly. Other cereals he is growing include boardless barley, and corn. For green feed he has a large patch under mangies. In the field devoted to

The Empire Exhibition.

It is impossible for any person with the smallest concern for the country with whose prosperity his own is so indissolubly linked not to follow with the closest interest the arrangements for the representations of the great British Dominions Exhibition, which is to take place in London, the metropolis of our Empire, next year.
 The existence of this country depends upon advertising its products and resources with everything that we are proud of. In disseminating this knowledge to the outside world, there is no better medium for communicating with those most interested and influential than by a display at the hub of the universe.
 Our sister Dominions are all taking part, and we the oldest colony of the greatest Empire the world has ever seen, cannot afford to be absent.
 By a well selected and well organized display we can make an excellent exhibit, even if it is not so extensive as some of our more pretentious relatives.
 In this connection we are pleased to say that Mr. H. D. Reid, who helped in no small way to make a success of our last exhibit at the Festival of the Empire, has offered his services, free of charge, while he is in London during the next nine months, to do all in his power to make a success of our exhibit if the Government decides to take part.—Trade Review.

Sullivan's Swim Across Channel.

IN THE FINAL STAGE OF HIS GREAT EFFORT THE AMERICAN ATHLETE SHOWED MARVELOUS DETERMINATION — BATTLING TIDE HAD DELAYED PROGRESS — HE GETS THE SKETCH $1,000 PRIZE.
 DOVER, Aug. 7.—Observers who were in the small boat that accompanied Henry Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., on his swim across the English Channel say that in the final stages of his great effort the American athlete showed a marvellous degree of dogged determination. Sullivan had the misfortune to meet one strong tide setting from the French capes and the captain of the accompanying motor lugger estimated that but for this the swim would have been accomplished in six hours less time. As it was, Sullivan performed the feat in 27 hours, 25 minutes.
 Because of this baffling tide, it took the swimmer from six fifteen yesterday morning until eight five o'clock last night to make the last six miles of his journey. The trouble was due to the fact that the flood tide was running two hours behind its normal schedule because of the east winds that had prevailed for some time.
Tremendous Endurance Test.
 The last twelve hours of the swim proved to be a tremendous endurance test. At 8 o'clock yesterday morning the pier at Calais was a little over three miles ahead, but for the next two hours the swimmer's relative position to the land was unchanged. Then the tide set off the coast and Sullivan was forced to make a great fight to retain his advantage.
 At 11.15 o'clock Monday morning the swimmer was two and a half miles from shore with the Calais lighthouse to the southeast. He was then making 34 strokes to the minute and swimming very regularly. By noon the tide began to carry him westward down the channel and in the following hours he drifted in this direction, stroking 33 to the minute and edging slowly across the current. At 3.15 o'clock Monday afternoon he had reached a point opposite the Sangatte Cliff. The water was choppy and the tide was dead against him. One hour later Sullivan was still drifting west and his position was rather despaired of unless it proved that he could hold out for the returning tide which those aboard the boat believed would help him ashore. At 5.17 o'clock he was still two miles off the coast and white caps were breaking. The accompanying party, to cheer him along, sang "For he's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Change of Tide.
 With the change of tide at 6.15 o'clock Monday evening Sullivan made better progress toward his goal, and the occupants of the boat could see the crowds on the sands in front of the Calais Casino watching his struggle with the choppy channel waters. An hour later the swimmer was exactly opposite the lighthouse, one mile from the coast. He was quite cheerful and swimming strongly.
 At 7.30 o'clock the athlete expressed confidence that his seventh attempt to swim the channel would be successful. At this time he was making 33 strokes to the minute and was gradually forging ahead. It was five minutes after eight when Sullivan first felt bottom. He attempted to stand but staggered as though intoxicated, and one of the crew jumped from the boat up to his waist in water.

 "I don't want any help," cried Sullivan. "I'll finish this myself." He staggered ashore.
 Sullivan first food when he reached the Casino was a dish of ice cream. He later took a little soup and then rested.
 Only once during the nearly 28 hours he was in the water did he take nourishment and then he ate an egg and milk. He swam nearly fifty-six miles, although the point to point distance by airplane is only approximately 23½ miles.
SKETCH AWARDS $1,000 PRIZE.
 DOVER, Aug. 7.—The Daily Sketch announced to-day that it had decided to award to Henry Sullivan the £1,000 prize it offered some time ago for the Channel swim. The newspaper says that although Sullivan entered the contest, he did not fulfil the conditions inasmuch as there was no representative of the paper in the accompanying boat, but that in view of his pluck and the fact that there is no doubt of his having accomplished the feat, the prize will be awarded.

When you are "waiting around again" or at functions where full dress is usually worn, don't you feel out of place with a jacket on? Now is the time to leave your order for Full Dress or Tuxedo. Our prices for these Suits are remarkably reasonable. For special parades, or social calls, we can give you something within your means in a Prince Albert, or Morning Coat. We specialize in these garments.
