The Imprisoned Heiress -OR- The Spectre of Egremont.

CHAPTER X.

"But where are you going, lad?" cried his bewildered parent. "What are you going to do?"

"I don't know," replied he, carelessly. "And I don't care. I'm sick of this state of things, and there are some reasons, which you know nothing of, which compel me to leave this place. I may go this very day. I'll step over and say good-by to Jessy now."

He arose from the table, took his hat, and went out, without another word.

It was perhaps well on toward noon when, as the dame sat knitting near the fire, Lord Ashcroft lightly hastened to the cottage door. He entered in response to the woman's timid invitation, and said that as he had walked from Egremont, he would like to rest himself a while.

Lord Ashcroft praised her cheerful home, referred to the books he saw arranged in the book-rack, and thus encouraged Mrs. Kepp to speak freely of her son.

"He is much given to reading," she said; "but recently he has not seemed himself; his books, mayhap, have made him strange and discontented."

"Indeed!"

"Yes, my lord," declared the dame, with inward delight at his lordship's apparent interest in her son, and a wild hope springing up in her heart that he might do something for Gosman, or at least bring about her son's marriage with Jessy Kay. "He hasn't seemed at all like himself for a day or two, and this morning he actually frightened me with his strange actions."

"How so?" questioned Lord Ashcroft.

"Why, my lord, he was out in a storm last night, and never came home at all. His bed hadn't been slept in, and when he came in he looked as though he hadn't slept a wink, poor lad."

"Unconscious that her words were likely to fasten a horrible crime upon her son, and imagining that she was enlisting her noble visitor's sympathies in Gosman, the dame described the young man's wild appearance that morning, his unusual roughness of manner, and his repeated desire that she should cease to annoy him with questions."

Lord Ashcroft could not fail to interpret her words to Gosman's disadvantage.

"Then you do not know where he spent the night?" he asked.

"No, my lord, and no more does any one else, poor lad. And he's going away to-day, my lord, to Glasgow, to ship for some place on the other side of the world. He has gone now to say the last word to Jessy. Poor fellow, he's that wrought up, my lord, that he said he could almost commit any crime, though, of course, he didn't mean it."

"But what can be the cause of this trouble?"

"I don't know, unless it's want of money, my lord. Donald Kay says he shall not have Jessy, and Gosman says if he had money Kay would consent directly."

Here, then, thought Ashcroft, was motive enough for a robbery.

Could there be another motive for the attempted assassination?

But no other motive was revealed by the garrulous dame, who prattled away of her son, his talents, his ambition to be head forester some day, his love for Jessy, his disapproval of Donald Kay and various other matters that went far to confirm the visitor's suspicions of Kepp's guilt.

The result of her remarks was to induce in Lord Ashcroft a belief that Kepp was partially demented, and he resolved to seek him out and hold a personal interview with him before returning to Egremont.

He expressed his regret at the unfortunate mental state of the under-forester, and the dame delighted at his condescension, summoned all her courage and begged him to do something for her son.

"If your lordship only would," she said, prayerfully. "I cannot bear to lose him; to have him go away and leave me husbandless and childless. Oh, my lord, if you would only get him to stay here. A word from your lordship would make Donald Kay consent to the marriage, and then everything would be all right."

"I will see your son," he replied, kindly, pitying the unsuspecting woman, who reposed such confidence in his power and goodness.

"Thank you, my lord, thank you a thousand times! I know now that everything will be well," said the dame, with a hopeful look.

Lord Ashcroft longed to tell the simple creature of the perilous position in which her son was placed, and prepare her for the fate that must overtake him, but he could not bear to change her suddenly conceived hope to awful grief.

Besides, there was still a doubt in Gosman's favor.

The knife might prove not to have been his.

His lordship had brought the weapon with him, but he hesitated to produce it and put the question to the woman if it were her own.

The doubt influenced him to the act at length, and he carelessly drew out the knife and laid it upon the table at a moment when Grace Kepp's face was averted.

It was not long before her wandering gaze discovered it.

"Why, where did that come from?" she exclaimed, in surprise, taking it up. "Did your lordship bring it in?"

"Yes, I found it. Have you ever seen it before?"

"Seen it before, my lord?" smiled the dame. "I should think I had. I had the knife when I first went housekeeping."

"Are you sure of it?"

"Yes, my lord. There's the very crack in the handle I remember so well. I suppose your lordship picked it up in the forest? I never knew Gosman so careless before. He took the knife a month ago to use somewhere, and lost it. I've asked him about it a dozen times, but he never could find it. It's been well sharpened, I see."

She laid the instrument down, smilingly, unconscious that her words had sealed the fate of her unhappy son.

Lord Ashcroft had a guilty feeling as if he had treacherously caused the mother to condemn her son, and mentally resolved that her words should never be repeated by him.

Such unconscious confidence as hers should be held sacred and inviolate.

"As I found it, I'll keep it for the present," he said, taking it up from the table. "I think I will now go in search of your son."

"Your lordship will do all you can for him, will you not, my lord?" cried the dame, anxiously.

"I will do all I can for him," answered Lord Ashcroft, solemnly, as he arose from his seat; "but there is one higher than any mortal to whom you should plead for your son."

With these words, uttered in a tone that struck the woman with a deadly fear, Lord Ashcroft quitted the cottage, secreting the knife on his person, as he lingered a moment in the porch, and set out for the chalet of Donald Kay.

He struck into a narrow wood-path, instead of the wide avenue, and walked slowly along, wishing and hoping that Kepp had already fled the country, and wondering over the mystery of the attempted assassination.

But his wishes and hopes were alike vain, for, as he came nearer to the center of the forest, where Kay's cottage was situated, he heard the sound of sobbing. He paused and looked around him, beholding, in a sheltered glade at no great distance, prostrate upon the ground, the form of the suspected under-forester, Gosman Kepp.

CHAPTER XI.

As Lord Ashcroft looked upon the prostrate form of the under-forester, groveling in utter misery and wretchedness upon the bare, cold earth, a feeling of consideration for him sprang up within his breast.

Quitting the path, his lordship sought the side of the unhappy young man, his approach being unheard, and said, in a not unkindly tone:

"Come, come! This cold, wet ground is no place for you, Kepp. Get up. I wish to talk with you."

At the sound of his voice, the under-forester lifted his head and regarded his lordship vacantly, showing a face so pale, worn, and full of misery, that Lord Ashcroft pitied him, even while believing him guilty of attempting an awful crime.

"Get up," repeated his lordship, seeing that Kepp, while hearing, had not comprehended his former words.

"Can't you take me somewhere where I can have a long talk with you—some sheltered place?"

Kepp muttered assent, without evincing the slightest surprise at the request, arose languidly, and shook himself unconsciously, as a dog might have done, and then turned on his heel, striding into the deeper shades of the forest.

Lord Ashcroft followed him in silence.

A few minutes' walk brought them to a pretty little pagoda, which nestled in a tiny dell, looking like a fairy's palace. It had been erected as a shelter for wanderers in the forest during a storm, and besides being exquisitely ornamental, was extremely useful, it having a tight roof and flooring.

It was furnished with a bench and two or three chairs, and its one small window was half covered with a silk curtain.

Into this retreat Kepp conducted his lordship, who seated himself upon the bench and motioned the forester to a chair.

But the young man flung himself upon the dry, clean floor, and silently and without curiosity awaited Lord Ashcroft's communication.

Good Recipes

Lima Bean Loaf.

This is a most excellent meat substitute and may be used as the main dish of a simple home dinner. Either the canned, dried or fresh cooked beans may be utilized in its making. It also is extremely good sliced cold and used as a sandwich filling. Put one and a half cups of cheese and three cups of cooked lima beans through the food chopper and add half a teaspoon each of onion juice and paprika, a scant teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of tomato catsup, three tablespoons of melted bacon fat, and one-eighth of a teaspoon of dry mustard. Mix well and add sufficient stale bread crumbs to mix the ingredients into a roll. Place in a buttered pan, sprinkle with dried bread crumbs mixed with melted butter and bake in a moderate oven, basting occasionally with melted butter dissolved in a small cup of hot water. Serve with a tomato sauce.

Soup Stock in Quantity.

Strip off the fat and meat from twenty pounds of beef hocks, joints and bones containing marrow. Crack bones with a hatchet or cleaver. Reserve meat and fat for other use. Put the broken bones into a thin cloth sack and place in a large kettle containing five gallons of cold water. Simmer (do not boil) for six or seven hours. Do not salt while simmering. Skim off all fat. This should make about five gallons of stock. Sterilize in hot water bath 90 minutes or sterilize in steam pressure cooker forty-five minutes at fifteen pounds pressure. Pack hot into glass jars, bottles. Partially seal glass jars.

Oatmeal Cinnamon Biscuits.

Sift one and one-quarter cupful of white flour and one and one-half teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonful of sugar together. Add one and one-third cupful of raw oatmeal, six tablespoonful of melted shortening and enough water to make a soft dough. Roll out thin on floured board, sprinkle with mixed sugar and cinnamon and roll up, then cut in slices. Bake in a greased pan in a moderate oven about twenty minutes.

Potato Supper Dish.

Two cups milk, four tablespoonful shortening, four tablespoonful flour, one-half cup grated cheese, cold boiled potatoes cut in cubes. Make a cheese sauce, using shortening, flour, cheese and milk. Put a layer of potatoes in a buttered baking-dish. Add a layer of sauce and repeat these layers until the dish is full. Cover with buttered bread crumbs and cook in oven until crumbs are brown.

Quick Boiled Frosting.

One cup sugar, three tablespoonful cold water, one egg white, one-half teaspoon flavouring. Put the sugar, water and egg white in the top of a double boiler or bowl that will fit into the top of a kettle. While the water boils briskly in the lower kettle beat the mixture steadily for seven minutes, using a Dover beater. Remove from the heat, add the flavouring and beat with an open spoon until right consistency to spread.

Apple Sauce Cake.

The Tiger in Retreat

Clemenceau recently refused an offer of 50,000 for ten articles on the political situation. "There is enough trouble now," he is quoted as saying. "Why cause more?" . . . Now comes the word that he is working on his autobiography. He will not say anything about the present, but perhaps no man living has as much to say about the past, particularly as it affects France, and though 88 years old, he hopes to finish the story of his troubles and victories in ten years' time. What a task to set for oneself after the allotted span has been passed. Three large volumes filled with the events of eighty-three strenuous years! It is as heroic as Von Ranke attempting to write the history of the World after he was 90. Clemenceau's opinion of current conditions may be left unexpressed without loss to the world. Not so Clemenceau's story of his life and work. As his great life is drawing to a close a great autobiography should be in the making.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Liver Trouble so Severe I Had to Quit Work"

Mr. Thomas Honey, Brantford, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from enlargement of the liver for ten months, and finally I had to quit work. I would wake up in the mornings with a bitter taste in my mouth, had frequent headaches, yellow complexion, and pain in my right side, and between the shoulder blades. It was almost unbearable, and terribly weakening. I could not sleep at night and my heart also bothered me. But the whole trouble has now left me, thanks to that wonderful medicine, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Assassins Would Make the Life of Allenby Their Next Object

Evacuation of Egyptian Troops from Sudan Begun—Misunderstanding in France of Events in Egypt—Australia Pleased with the Prospects of Preferential Tariffs.

NATIONALISTS WOULD GET ALLENBY NEXT.

LONDON, Nov. 26. Egyptian Nationalists have arranged to make a desperate attempt on the life of Viscount Allenby, the British Commissioner, according to the Cairo correspondent of the Daily Mail, who says that information respecting this plan has been heard from many trustworthy sources, and that the danger is officially regarded as very serious. The guards on the Residency have been doubled and increased precautions will be taken to protect Lord Allenby when driving through the streets. An order has been issued that every high British military and civil official henceforth shall be accompanied in public by an armed escort. Officers must carry revolvers and civilian officials must keep revolvers in their desks.

FRENCH MISUNDERSTANDING. PARIS, Nov. 26. From news received here there appears to be complete misunderstanding in France as to the events in Egypt and the recent attitude of the Zagloul Cabinet, telegraphs the special correspondent of Le Matin in Cairo.

SATISFACTORY IN AUSTRALIA. MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 26. General satisfaction is being expressed here at the prospects regarding British Imperial Preference. The Herald states Premier Bruce never doubted Great Britain would give substantial preference to the Dominions without radically changing her own fiscal policy.

TO ADJUST WAR CLAIMS. WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. Secretary of State Hughes concluded today a tripartite agreement with the Austrian and Hungarian Governments under which war claims arising since July 31, 1924, will be adjusted.

NO NEW DEVELOPMENT. LONDON, Nov. 26. The Egyptian crisis showed no marked development to-day. Cairo and Alexandria remained quiet and even the militant students seemed disposed to accept the advice of Zagloul Pasha, for they refrained from demonstration. Viscount Allenby, the British High Commissioner, is said to content himself with seeing that the Egyptian units are withdrawn from the Sudan and awaiting the next move by the Cairo Government.

MURDER AND SUICIDE. DUBUIG, Pa., Nov. 26. Three men, including the president and chief salesman of the Jackson Vitrified China Co., of Dubuig, were shot and killed here this afternoon. The victims were: H. Jackson, President of the Company; Wm. Darden, Chicago, his salesman manager, and John Soukop, who, according to the police, shot himself after killing Jackson and Darden.

NOT ADVISED. DUBUIG, Pa., Nov. 26. Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Free State Cabinet, speaking in the Dail Eireann in answer to Tom Johnson, leader of the Irish Labor Party, said the Free State Government had not received any statement from the British Government regarding the latter's action in Egypt. He stated the Free State Government disclaimed any share of the responsibility for such action.

RUM RUNNER LOST. DIGBY, N.S., Nov. 26. The schr. Robert and Arthur, Captain George Moore, forced to leave Rum Row through bad weather, struck on a ledge last night while trying to make Westport Harbor, and sank with six hundred cases of alcohol. The crew escaped and succeeded in salvaging one hundred cases of the liquor cargo before the vessel slid off the ledge into deep water and disappeared.

EGYPTIAN TROOPS UNDER ORDERS TO LEAVE SUDAN. KHARTOUM, Sudan, Nov. 26. Egyptian units of the Egyptian Army have received orders to evacuate the Sudan forthwith. The Fourth Battalion already has left; the Third Battalion with artillery will leave shortly.

A BIT OF SCANDAL. LONDON, Nov. 26. A Paris hotel apartment scene, in which it is alleged a wealthy Indian Prince was entangled with pretty Mrs. C. E. Robinson, wife of a former bookmaker, was described in detail to-day, when Montague Noel Newton, who yesterday testified that he had joined in the conspiracy to extort huge sums from the potentate, resumed the stand in the trial of Mr.

Great Britain to Rule Aerial Way in Near Future

MOTHERLAND'S OUTPOSTS TO BE LINKED BY FAST DIRIGIBLE FLEET.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Dirigible mail and passenger service which will link the possessions of the British Empire by air as the mighty British fleet has linked them by water is expected to be in operation early in 1927.

This announcement followed a visit to the village of Cardington, near Bedford, by Sir Samuel Hoare, Minister for Air in Stanley Baldwin's Cabinet. It was revealed that England plans to make Cardington the greatest air port in the world, with facilities for caring for airships twice as large as the ZR-3.

Two such dirigibles already have been ordered. They will be known as his Majesty's R-100 and R-101.

Work Begun. Construction work has begun on the air port and it was to learn what progress is being made that Sir Samuel, with his Parliamentary Under-Secretary, Sir Philip Sasson, visited the village Tuesday.

Far-Flung Posts. From Cardington will radiate air mail and passenger services to Egypt, India, Australia, South Africa and Canada. With the big ships travelling on schedule time, Egypt will be only a two and a half day journey from England. Five and a half days will take the air voyager to India. Ten days will suffice for the trip to Australia. The long voyage across half of Europe and the length of Africa to Cape Town will be accomplished in five days and a half. American and Canadian travellers who choose to cross the ocean by air, will be able to make the trip from Cardington to North America in three days.

"I am greatly satisfied," Sir Samuel said after he had visited Cardington. "We are seriously attempting to develop airships. The importance of our developments cannot be overemphasized."

One of the projected dirigibles will be built at Cardington, the other at Howden, in Yorkshire, where the ill-fated American ZR-2 was built. The ZR-2 fell into the River Humber during a trial flight carrying most of a mixed crew of Englishmen and Americans to death.

Ample Space. The new ships each will have a gas bag capacity of 5,000,000 cubic feet and accommodations for 100 passengers.

Exhaustive aero dynamic investigation will be carried out with the R-33 and R-36 while the larger ships are under construction. The R-36 was the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic, but so rapid has been the progress of dirigible engineering that she no longer is considered as more than a trial horse for greater craft.

Lengthy Trip. Air Vice-Marshal Sir Sefton Branker is leaving England by air for India Thursday. Sir Sefton will endeavor to survey a mail and passenger air route to India by way of Germany, Poland, Rumania, Turkey, Syria and Mesopotamia. He will have a crack army pilot with him on the long flight.

While he is in India Sir Sefton will confer with the India Government regarding the construction of an air port in India to care for the traffic which the Mother Country hopes to send from Cardington.

SITUATION MUCH EASIER IN EGYPT.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Field Marshal Viscount Tilenby, British High Commissioner in Egypt, informed the British Government, in a message to-day, that the situation in Egypt was much easier as a result of the respite since the resignation of the Egyptian Cabinet. The possibility of serious riots in Cairo and other centres, he said, was greatly reduced. Lord Allenby, it was said in official quarters, believes the Zivar Pasha Cabinet will accept the remaining British demands or open direct negotiations with Great Britain for settlement of the differences existing between the Governments.

Nationalisation

London Daily Telegraph: Wherever nationalization has been tried it has proved a failure. We are not referring especially to Russia, though that unhappy country furnishes the most glaring example of the price in human suffering which has to be paid for destroying the Capitalistic system, with its incentives to initiative and industry. We are thinking rather of the tens of millions lost on the State shipping of the United States, Canada, Australia, France, Brazil and other countries. We have in mind the inefficiency and consequent high costs of the State coal mines in Germany, which admittedly cannot compete with the mines privately owned. The service of the State-owned railways is seldom commensurate with the charges levied and, in many cases, has to be given help out of the national funds, as, for instance, in Canada, where the National Railways absorb practically all the yield of the income-tax.

Green's Hr. Notes

It is with deepest regret we chronicle the death of Mrs. Enos Field who, for the past 29 years has been postal operator of this place. As a public official she was very obliging, her ready smile and cheerful disposition both at home and at the office will ever be remembered by her many friends.

Miss Elizabeth Peley, of this place, a graduate nurse of Whidden Hospital, Everett, Mass., is spending a holiday with friends here. We understand she intends leaving after Christmas to take up her work again. There are quite a number of sick people in this vicinity and her services have been in great demand.

Quite a number of our men, who have been working in the Humber Area are returning home.

Mr. Mar Bennett left by Tuesday's express for Deer Lake, where he intends remaining all winter.

Our very obliging Agent, Mr. J. Taylor, is now spending his vacation at St. John's and Carbonear. We wish him a very pleasant holiday. He is being relieved by Mr. Karl Sprecklin, of Briggs.

Miss Annie Taylor, who has been working with the Nfld. Government Railway, assisting her father, is now working in the Postal Telegraph Office.

Mrs. (Rev.) Patton, who has been attending the Mission Band Convention at Freshwater, returned on Saturday night's train.

Mr. T. L. Drover, of St. John's, who arrived here on Monday, on a business trip, returned by Thursday morning's train.

Mr. Roland Poughman, who has spent the past five months at Boston, has resumed his former position with Drover Brothers, Green's Hr.

Mr. Stephen Cram, who left for St. John's on Friday in the interest of his firm, is returning to-night.

Mrs. E. R. March, who visited St. John's on a business trip, returned on Friday.

Mr. Victor March returned from Bellevue on Saturday.

Mrs. Thomas Colish, who visited friends at St. John's, also returned on Thursday night's train.

The Rev. S. A. Dawson, of Heart's Delight, accompanied by Rev. W. J. R. Higgitt, of Hr. Grace, addressed the C. of E. Men of this community on Wednesday night. The Rev. Dawson anticipates visiting Green's Hr. next Sunday when a Thanksgiving Service will be held.

Two of the oldest citizens of this Harbor, in the persons of Mr. John Reid and Mr. George White, passed to the Great Beyond a few days ago. Sympathy to the bereaved.

Doctors McLeod and Chisholm, visited this place recently.

The members of the Rook Club intend having a social on Wednesday night. A very enjoyable time is anticipated by all.

Quite a few of our young people took advantage of the Cauld Cannon, held recently at Hopedale. It was very gratifying to note the marked attendance by the various entertainments held in this place during the last month.

Room Preferred to His Company

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. Nov. 13—(C.P.)—William Brackenberry's pet bear has been executed, not because of any bearish crime, but because it was waxing large, and one never could tell when bruin might start something.

When the bear wished itself on the Brackenberry family, they lived at Piman, B.C. It wandered in from the hills, a black, good-natured youngster. At mealtime it would sit a few feet from the dinner table, and catch scraps thrown to him. When he felt he was being neglected, he would sit on his hind legs, whine and gaze solemnly at the family.

Sometimes when he found the kitchen door shut, he had a habit of lumbering around to the window and peering in. When the Brackenberry's moved to Pacific, the bear took the trail and came along as well.

Everything was lovely until the pet's size began to disconcert the family. He was as amiable as ever, but still he was a bear, and no one could tell when some of his pranks might be embarrassing, as well as dangerous. So bruin was shot and the family is very sad.

For $2.75 we have a limited number of Girl's Boots in many pretty designs; sizes 11, 12, 13, 1 and 2, at F. SMALLWOOD'S, nov15,11

By EDGAR GUEST.
WHAT THE BABY DID FOR US.
When Janet came her brother there
Was ten years old and oh, so wise
I'm sure the house was in despair,
There were no fairies anywhere,
She'd ceased to croon her lullabies
And age had come and swept away
The lovely charm of Christmas day.
With Peter Rabbit we were done,
To go where strange buccaners
Floppy and Mopsey legs were gone,
The wooden horse he rode upon
With Mother Goose had disappeared,
For he had turned to rougher play,
And we had lost our Christmas day.
I could not interest him then
With tales of robbers, elves, and
He wanted yarns of fighting-men,
The books which Cooper used to pen
And found them standing on my shelves.
Then little Janet came to stay
And brought us back our Christmas day.
We have our Santa Claus once more,
Again we have our Christmas-trees,
Now just behind my library door,
A rag doll lies upon the floor,
And painted blocks marked A. B. C.
Again we have those joys to claim
Which we had lost, till Janet came.

The Women's Guild, of Christ Church, held their annual sale of work on Wednesday night last in their schoolroom, and the affair proved to be highly successful. Plain and fancy work and candy were on sale, while the ladies in charge of the refreshment table were kept quite busy—excellent meat teas having been served. The fine sum of two hundred and three dollars was realized as the proceeds of the evening.

Miss Rita Parsons, who was taken ill at Bay Roberts, where she had been teaching, came home on Monday. She is now greatly improved, and her many friends are pleased to know that she is able to get out again, although she is not sufficiently recovered to resume her school work until after Christmas. Her sister, Mrs. Harold Jarrett, of Clarke's Beach, who accompanied her, left again on Thursday, and intends going to Corner Brook this week, where she will join her husband, who is working there.

The ladies of the R.C. Christmas Tree Committee held a card party and dance in the Academy Hall on Thursday night last. Progressive auction forty-fives was played, the prizes being won by Miss E. Joy and M. P. Stapleton. At the close dancing was indulged in, and a very pleasant evening spent.

Members of the Carbonear and Hr. Grace Cricket Clubs are busily engaged, making preparations for attendance at a dinner and presentation of the Jones trophy, at the Staff House, Bay Roberts, on Thursday night next. Motor cars will convey the members to and from Bay Roberts, and a most enjoyable time is anticipated.

The stork arrived at the home of Dr. W. E. and Mrs. Proculer, (nee Miss Minnie Pugh) of Laminia, during last week, and left a baby-boy. We extend our congratulations.

Cadet Fannie Parsons, of the Salvation Army, gave her farewell at the evening service at the Citadel here on Sunday, and expects to leave for her appointment, Summerford, N.D.B., during the week. This is Miss Parsons' first appointment in the work of the Army, and we wish her well.

Miss Winnie Rogers who has been confined indoors for the last five weeks through illness, is now much improved, and we hope to see her out again in short.

Mr. Ernest Gosse, who has been working at Montreal during the summer months, arrived here recently to spend the winter at home.

Miss Nellie Dwyer leaves town by tomorrow afternoon's express en route to Boston, Mass., after spending an enjoyable four months' holiday here with her parents, Sergt. and Mrs. Dwyer. She has been engaged at nursing in Boston for some time. Miss Dwyer will spend a few days at Deer Lake before proceeding on her journey. We wish her a very pleasant trip.

J. J. McCormack, Station Agent at Badger Brook, who has been on holiday, returns to duty again to-day. During his vacation, he has spent a while visiting the city, and has had a very enjoyable holiday.

Mr. E. Simmons went out to the city by this morning's train, on a business trip.

F. McRae, who was on a visit to the city last week, returned to town again by Saturday night's train.

"Kill Him! Kill Him!"

HOW BRITISH EXPLORER ESCAPED
BEHEADING.

Some hair-raising adventures are recorded by Mr. A. Henry Savage-Londor, the well-known traveller, in his latest book, "Everywhere—the Memoirs of an Explorer" (Fisher Unwin). Mr. Savage-Londor, who, by the way, is a descendant of Walter Savage-Londor, poet and critic, twice explored Tibet, and one of his thrilling experiences there was when the executioner "practised" on him. "The savage crowd yelled for my life," he writes. "The whole valley resounded with the ferocious cries, 'Ta kossatton! ta kossatton!' (Kill him! kill him!) A red-hot iron bar had been held so that his eyelashes and eyebrows were singed off. The barrel of an overloaded matchlock was rested on his forehead and fired. Then a double-handed sword was handed to the executioner. "The executioner," he adds, "waiting towards me, lifted the sword and brought it down upon my neck, to be sure, as it were, of the distance, for a clean, effective stroke.
Then he drew back, and struck a blow with all his might. The point of the sword passed close to my neck, just under my chin, but did not touch me.
Again he performed the unpleasant exercise on the other side of my neck.
This time the sword could not have been more than half an inch distant from my neck. I could not quite understand what was taking place, as when the sword came down upon me the first time I really thought my head was off. I was surprised when the blade swung past and I still saw the scenery before me and heard the diabolical music of the lamas. What was happening? The second time I had not yet recovered from my astonishment at being alive, and it made less impression on me. I did not utter a word. The lamas and crowd were still clamouring for my head, but the Pomo postponed the execution in order that my men and I might be tortured before being killed. I only learnt later that the unpleasant sword exercise was usual in Tibet, in order to show the wonderful skill of the executioner in handling the huge sword, and also to scare the victim as much as possible before the final blow was given."

Income Tax Secrets

WHAT AMERICA'S RICH MEN PAY.

With mixed feelings the American Republic is regarding the publication, under a new clause in the tax law,
of the income-tax returns for 1923.
Inland Revenue offices throughout the country have opened their files to public inspection, and the disclosures in the newspapers of the incomes of the richest and best-known people in the United States have aroused general excitement, and great indignation on the part of those whose private affairs have thus been revealed. Some American newspapers refrained from publishing the income-tax returns on the ground that it is illegal and a gross violation of the rights of the individual. Tax collectors' offices were besieged by the curious, who were anxious to know details. Salesmen called to get lists of prospective customers, and merchants to secure information about competitors. Businesslike girls hastened to ascertain their fiancés' incomes for last year, and young men attended to examine the fortunes of their prospective father-in-law. In most income tax offices throngs of wives attended, eager to learn whether their husbands had been truthful in reporting their incomes to the "home" office. President Coolidge's income-tax assessment is listed at £1,300, which he pays by quarterly instalments. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, one of the richest men in America, paid £235,000. Douglas Fairbanks headed the list of cinema stars with the payment of over £45,000, whereas his wife, Mary Pickford, paid less than £500. William Hart, Charlie Chaplin, and others were not hit very heavily,
because they, like so many other rich people here, invest money in tax-exempt securities. This is the explanation offered by many millionaires for paying less than persons not usually rated as millionaires. Some of the other payments are as follows:—
Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight boxer . . . £18,000
John D. Rockefeller, Jr. . . . 1,487,000
John D. Rockefeller, Sr. . . . 248,800

What Shall We Do With the Boy?

Few problems weigh more heavily upon a parent than that of deciding upon a career for his son, and in these days, practically the same question has to be considered in the case of a daughter. Even when that matter has been settled, there is the cost to be taken into account, and last but by no means least, the choice of the school or university where the special training required may be obtained and the time of the student spent to the best advantage. In this article we are referring in particular to the boy; at the same time the circumstances are very much the same in considering a girl's education.

Many factors may have to be taken into account in deciding at what age it is desirable that a boy should leave his home school to continue his education abroad, but this much may be said, that a pupil will receive as efficient instruction and as thorough a grounding in the subjects covered at the local colleges as he will anywhere else. This is not surmise; it has been shown by the high average gained by candidates in examinations corrected by the English and Canadian examiners, and by the tributes which have been paid to the efficiency of Newfoundland pupils by the heads of outside schools.

Up to the present an education beyond that provided by the colleges has been out of the question for the son of parents in poor, or even in ordinary circumstances, unless he has been fortunate enough to win either the Rhodes or the Jubilee Scholarship, the only prizes of material assistance in such a case that can be obtained in Newfoundland. With the establishment of the Junior College School, provided it fulfills expectations, this drawback will to a certain extent be overcome, and the difficulty of deciding the students' "bent" will be made easier.

Magistrates Court
A seaman, drunk and disorderly, was allowed to go as he promised to join his ship.
A laborer, drunk and disorderly, was fined $1.00.
A truckman, for improper driving, was fined $1.00.
A young man, summoned for loose and disorderly conduct, was allowed to go on payment of $1.00 and costs.
A motorist, charged with parking his car on the public street after midnight was ordered to pay costs.
A son, summoned for the non-support of his father agreed to take the old man home and look after him. The parent expressed his disapproval of this arrangement owing to his dislike of his daughter-in-law.

Among the Deep Sea Fishers

The October number of the international Grenfell Ass'n Magazine "Among the Deep Sea Fishers" is almost entirely devoted to matters connected with the work of the mission on the North Coast of Newfoundland and the Labrador. Among the articles contained in it is the Journal of Rev. Henry Gordon from Jan 1st. to March 31st, 1924. It is not so much what it said that thrills as what can be read in between the lines. It is not the hardships met that impresses but the spirit which makes the missionary regard them as of little account and even see the humorous side of what often is little short of tragedy. The magazine is most interesting throughout and contains some illustrations.

view, either that he may make his mark in some chosen trade or profession, or that he may benefit in a general way, and acquire that tone which is generally regarded as the hall mark of the recognized schools of learning. Immediately the question arises, which of the many excellent institutions available will best suit the purpose? With the former, he wants the boy to be given the best possible chance of obtaining the knowledge required. At the same time he is anxious that he will be surrounded by refining influences. On the latter score there is little cause for concern, since any institution which is a bona fide seat of learning is certain to inculcate upon the observance of a high moral code, and bases its reputation on the principle that "Manners maketh man."

The complaint is often heard here that a boy or a girl who has been sent abroad to be educated returns with nothing more to show for the money expended and the sacrifices made by the parents than expensive tastes and a feeling of discontent for the old home surroundings. The intense disappointment of the parents is natural, but it is wrong to attach the blame to the child in most cases, and it is more than absurd to find fault with the school or the university. The responsibility is the parent's who in selecting an institution did not first ascertain whether or not the course of study followed was adapted to his child's special requirements and circumstances. A horticulturalist may raise a variety of flowers and vegetables, but he does not expect all of them to reach perfection under precisely the same conditions or in the same kind of soil. Some may be cultivated to serve a practical purpose, and others simply to give pleasure. If he were foolish enough to reverse the conditions or to treat all alike, he could only blame himself if the result was a dismal failure.

A school that is expressly intended to serve the requirements of certain students does not necessarily provide the facilities that others may require. To place a boy, who must eventually make his own way in the world, amongst others who have been brought up in wealth and luxury is to inflict hardships upon him, or to induce him to adopt habits and mannerisms that will unfit him for the life to which he must eventually return.

There are numerous excellent educational institutions from which a selection may be made to meet individual requirements. Some are very expensive, others less so, but it does not necessarily follow that the former will suit any particular case best.

Drowning Fatality

BODY OF DAVID KING RECOVERED FROM WATERS OF HARBOR.

Yesterday at 1.30 p.m. Harry Antle of Middle Battery Road reported to the police that David King of the South Side had left his home on the 25th inst. in a small boat and landed at W. & G. Rendell's premises to transact some business. King was seen in the boat at 6 p.m. by William Howell of Pine Hill. ### Among the Deep Sea Fishers

The October number of the international Grenfell Ass'n Magazine "Among the Deep Sea Fishers" is almost entirely devoted to matters connected with the work of the mission on the North Coast of Newfoundland and the Labrador. Among the articles contained in it is the Journal of Rev. Henry Gordon from Jan 1st. to March 31st, 1924. It is not so much what it said that thrills as what can be read in between the lines. It is not the hardships met that impresses but the spirit which makes the missionary regard them as of little account and even see the humorous side of what often is little short of tragedy. The magazine is most interesting throughout and contains some illustrations.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Nov. 26th.—Called up bedtimes by a strange noise about the house, which my wife believes is a burglar, and would have me hunt the fellow and capture him. This I am loth to do, being a cold night, and causes me to shiver all over as if I did have the ague. However, to settle my wife's alarm, I did creep down the stairs, and into the kitchen, where I do find a strange cat making merry with the crockeryware that was left about. So chasing the brute about, I do get it outside the door, but in the chase, did trip over a mat which causes me to turn my ankle. Am on getting back to bed, find the ankle much swollen and am compelled to call Dr. Blabb who dresses it and makes me keep to my bed all the day. And, indeed, I am the unluckiest wight that ever was. Comes Povey this afternoon to visit me and shows me a bottle of a very old brandy that he did secure for me, but will not tell me where he gets it. He gives me the names of the days, which is very little, and indeed, is the dullest possible season. At night, do leave my bed for to play awhile at Bridge, but the fact that I win, does little to allay the great pain that I suffer from my ankle, which causes me to damn all cats most heartily, and will play the next one that I do see about the house.

Obituary

MRS. MARTHA E. CROSBIE.

Last night at 9.30 there passed to her rest, at the advanced age of eighty-six, Mrs. Martha E. Crosbie, the widow of the late George Graham Crosbie. A native of Britain, she spent a considerable part of her life there, but eventually she and her husband removed to St. John's, and took over the well known hotel, the Knight's Home. When it was destroyed by the fire of '92, temporary quarters were found for the hotel and in 1894 the Crosbie was opened. Until advanced age and feebleness made an active life no longer possible, Mrs. Crosbie was known throughout the country for her remarkable energy, for her generosity, and for the active part she took in all matters of a philanthropic and social nature. Even when failing strength made it no longer possible to give such affairs her personal attention, she was always anxious to be informed of all that was going on, and through the many who have reason to cherish her memory. Among those who mourn her demise are six children and a large number of grandchildren. Of her sons, the youngest died early this year and 3 survive, George, of New York; Walter, of Bay Roberts, and Sir John C. Crosbie, K.B.E., Minister of Finance and Customs. The three daughters are Mrs. Rogers, of Summerside, Prince Edward Island; Mrs. (Hon.) S. K. Bell, of the Crosbie Hotel; and Mrs. Woodman, of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island. The youngest daughter just arrived in time to say goodbye before the end came. The funeral takes place to-morrow (Friday) afternoon, from the Crosbie Hotel, Victoria Street entrance, at 2.30 o'clock. The Telegram offers sympathy to those who have been bereaved.

MRS. MARY POWLER.

Her many friends in the city will be sorry to hear of the passing of Mrs. Mary Powler, which took place at Topsall at 2.30 o'clock this morning. Deceased lady had been very ill for the past six weeks, but of a robust nature, her friends thought that she would regain her wonted health; but it was not to be, and the summons came at the time mentioned above. Deceased was in her 70th year, and leaves four daughters and two sons, to mourn the loss of a devoted mother. She will be missed in the community in which she lived, for she always took a deep interest in its welfare and worked for its betterment. The funeral takes place at Topsall on Saturday next, at 2.30 o'clock. The Telegram, with the many friends in St. John's extends to the family its sincerest sympathy in their sad bereavement.

Prospero Returns to Port

S.S. Prospero, Capt. Field, which went ashore Tuesday morning, on Green Island, near Cape Bonavista, returned to port at 3.30 p.m. yesterday. According to members of the crew the ship left King's Cove, coming South, at 4.30 a.m. Tuesday, and an hour later ran ashore. Capt. Field and Chief Officer Carter were on the bridge. At the time there was no fog but it was pitch dark, there being no moon. She was going full speed at the time and ran right up on a beach and flat rocks in a cove, only the stern aft from the engine room remaining in the water. At the time of the accident the sea was quite smooth and the light at Cape Bonavista could be seen. As soon as the ship struck the boats were ordered out and quickly got away in charge of some of the sailors. The ninety passengers, who were all in bed at the time, at once hurried on deck, but behaved splendidly and not the least confusion prevailed. With Steward Grills at the gangway they were soon in the boats which, taking women and children first, made two trips and landed all in a cove half a mile from the Cape. From there they proceeded to Bonavista, a distance of three miles, where they joined the train and reached the city at 6.30 yesterday morning. As soon as the passengers were landed the jettying of cargo begun from No. 2 hold, in order to lighten the ship, and quite a quantity was thrown overboard. This consisted principally of fish and oil. Some of this was lowered into boats which were quickly on the scene from Bonavista and more was picked up by others. With the assistance of the Seneff, Malakoff and Susu the ship was towed off at high tide, at 7 p.m. after which she proceeded to King's Cove under her own steam. At King's Cove the work of straightening up the cargo of the Prospero was carried out and at 6 o'clock yesterday morning she left for this port, arriving here as mentioned above. Minister of Marine Winsor, Ship's Husband Dalton and Mr. P. J. Cashin, who had transferred from the Sebastopol, returned by her. The Prospero is now lying at the dock pier, and with her pumps going at intervals can be kept free, as she is making only little water. She will go on dock in about ten days, as soon as the Seal and Terra Nova come off the stocks.

Capt. Dalton, Marine Supt., is making an enquiry to-day, and after making his report an investigation by the Railway Management will follow. Speaking to a Telegram reporter to-day, Capt. Field would not discuss the cause of the accident, although he verified the above report. The following first class passengers were on the ship when she went ashore:—Messrs. Campbell, Simms, McDonald, Bartlett, Darcy, White, Rice, Fradham, Fitzgerald, Simms, Yates, Alcock, Ricketts, Moore, Elliott, Fitzgerald, Milfin, Kinsella, Walters, Stapleton, Vayle, Green, Tulk, Payne, Hann, Ellis; Messdames Hoff, Neville, Brothers, Milfin, Winsor, Green; Misses Alcock, Woods, Penney, Milfin (4) and 51 in steerage.

Mr. Lloyd George And the Russians

Mr. Lloyd George recently said:—"I would have accepted the Russian denial but for one thing, I have been Prime Minister, and they denied to me a similar transaction when I had positive proof in front of me. Zinovieff is powerful, but Kamenef is more powerful." "I came here, and we found he was selling jewels which had been stolen out of their setting, and was giving money to semi-revolutionary organizations in this country, and he passed on £75,000 to the directors of the Daily Herald."

Delightful Comedy Drama
STAGED AT ST. PATRICK'S.

A capacity audience greeted the presentation of the delightful comedy drama, "Paddy Casey, the Millionaire" at the Convent School, St. Patrick's, last night. The play is replete with tense moments and thrilling climaxes, while the troubles of Casey, with a family striving vainly in an atmosphere of affluence to forget the associations of the past, when Casey carried the hod, provided a feast of fun throughout. In the leading role as Eileen the maid, Miss Winona McDonald proved a very lovable heroine and portrayed the character in a manner that won for her, new laurels. As the haughty supercilious "affinity" of Casey, Miss Jean Dicks played an extremely difficult part with an ease that indicated unusual histrionic ability; while Miss Gerlie Ryan, Miss Kathleen Hayes and Miss Pauline Vaughan, all well known to the St. John's theatre goers, excelled all previous efforts. As the likeable, hen-pecked, home-loving Casey, Mr. John J. Callahan carried the audience from start to finish and was seen to better advantage than ever before; his acting and elocution were most excellent. Mr. E. Molloy as Michael Casey, made a very popular hero with Mr. Gus Cleary, Mr. R. Redmond, (the irresistible Frenchy) and Gordon Woods, who were quite at home in their respective parts, will prove a reliable addition in the theatrical firmament. To Mr. O'Grady, who not only played the part of Detective, in his usual perfect manner, but was responsible for the direction of the performance, and to the organizer, Miss Hayes, a special word of praise is due. During the acts delightful specialties by Miss Stella Shea, Miss M. Jackman, and little Miss Bambrick, added greatly to the entertainment. The C. L. B. Band was present and discoursed popular selections during the evening. Altogether the performance is one of unusual merit. It will be repeated this evening with new specialties and the Mount Cashel Band and the Prince's Orchestra to-morrow night.

In Arkansas a man and his wife were sitting outside their house when a funeral procession passed. The man was comfortably seated in a chair that was tilted back toward the street, his feet on the sill of an open window. "I think that's the funeral of an man Williams," he remarked. "Reck on it's the biggest seen in these parts for a while, ain't it, Caroline?" "A purty good-sized one, Bud," his wife replied. "I sure would like to see it," said Bud. "What a pity I ain't facts' that way!"

The opening of Toyland at The Royal Stores is the opening of Joyland to the kiddies. A merry place for holiday happiness, of childish laughter and glittering toys, of fairy like dolls and cornucopias of all the things that go to make a child's Fairyland. It would take a lot of space to specify our stock of toys, but Oh! What's the use? Bring the kiddies along and let them see this wonderful toyland. Below you will find a few items taken at random and specially reduced for Friday and Saturday.

NERVOUS BREAK-DOWN

Pains in Back and Legs Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ford, Ontario.—"I had a nervous break-down, as it is called, with severe pains in my back and legs, and with fainting spells which left me very weak. I was nervous and could not sleep nor eat as I should and spent much time in bed. I was in this state, more or less, for over two years, before Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me by my neighbor. Before I had taken five doses I was sitting up in bed, and when the first bottle was taken I was out of bed and able to walk around the house. During my sickness I had been obliged to get some one to look after my home for me, but thanks to the Vegetable Compound I am now able to look after it myself. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine in turn with the Vegetable Compound, and I certainly recommend these medicines to any one who is not enjoying good health. I am quite willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. SHEPHERD, 130 Joe. Janisse Avenue, Ford, Ontario.

Nervousness, irritability, painful times, run-down feelings and weakness are symptoms to be noted. Women suffering from these troubles, which they so often have, should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. All druggists sell this medicine.

THANKSGIVING—A POINT OF VIEW.

You doubtless remember the story of the old woman who got up in the experience meeting and said she had only two teeth but "bless God dey hits."

And Yet They Complain.

As for the other end of the scale, how many people we know whose lives seem to be ideally circumstanced, health, nice families, a reasonable amount of money; yet we find them complaining and unhappy because "we've got to put off fixing the house another year, it does seem as if I never had anything I wanted and I'm getting older every year," or because "Harry simply won't go around with me, he doesn't play bridge and he doesn't dance. Seems to me I have a pretty rotten time of it."

Thanksgiving is a point of view. That's been said a million times more or less but it's just as true to-day as it was the first time. And just as easy to forget.

The Basis of Happiness. The habit of being contented, and not simply the outward circumstances of your life, is the basis of the habit of being happy.

You can look two ways at any set of circumstances and find something to be thankful for in them or something to feel disturbed and aggrieved about.

I have two friends who are of opposite temperaments. They planned a motor trip together one day and when the day came the weather was uncertain. However they went. When they came back they both told me about it (separately). "We had a nice time," said one grudgingly, "though it was cloudy all day." Said the other triumphantly: "We had a lovely time and it never rained a drop."

Two men looked out from prison bars one saw mud another stars.

Thanksgiving is a point of view. Some people are disgruntled at the Creator because roses have thorns and other people are thankful to Him because thorns have roses.

It doesn't depend on the Creator or the roses which way people feel. It depends on the individual.

Thanksgiving is a point of view. What better day than to-day to make up your mind that, insofar as in you lies, you will adopt that point of view.

Many Newspapers Forced to Suspend

CONTINUED HIGH COST OF NEWS-PRINT, POSTAGE AND LABOR FORCES 22 CANADIAN DAILIES TO SUSPEND AND 19 TO AMALGAMATE.

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—Owing to the continued high cost of newsprint, at the present time approximately 10 per cent greater than in 1914, and the increased cost of postage and labor, the publishing of newspapers in Canada is rapidly becoming a precarious business.

Since 1914, 32 Canadian daily newspapers have suspended publication and 18 have amalgamated. The following is the list:—

WALT MATCH

I have received a grateful of pies from loving friends, and I am truly grateful, my song of praise ascends. The prospects are not murky, the gods are good to me, I have a stately turkey most beautiful to see. The fiver has a tankful of John D.'s sparkling suds, and I am surely thankful, my heart with rapture thuds. Good fortune, never swerving, is with me year by year; if I were more deserving, more loudly would I cheer. I don't deserve the blessings that I forever know, the pattings and caressings he kindly fates bestow; for I am often given to grumbling and complaint; and if I'm hardly driven, my soul grows weak and faint. I'm often seen forgetting the blessings that are mine, my neighbors see me fretting, they hear me sigh and whine. My faith has often wavered, I've trained with carping scolds, and one so highly favored is wicked when he doubts. My faults are large and hateful when seen in stern review, and so, while truly grateful, I'm feeling humble, too. Oh, better men are wanting my blessing rich and rare, and better men are haunting the bread line in despair. And still I draw a grateful of pie, Thanksgiving morn; and, while I'm deeply grateful, I view my sins with scorn.

Obituary

It is with feelings of unfeigned regret we have to announce the passing of one of our most distinguished and respected citizens, in the person of Isabella, loving daughter of Patrick and Margaret Lane, who was visited by the Angel of Death on Monday, Nov. 23rd. Isabella, who had only attained her twenty-second birthday, had been ailing for the past five months, and bore her sufferings with unlimited patience and endurance.

Being a graduate of St. Bride's College, Littledale, her demise, I am sure, will be greatly mourned by her former Teachers and classmates. After leaving college she engaged in the Teaching profession, and for the past four years filled the responsible position of Superior Teacher here, where her pleasing disposition and talented characteristics gained the confidence and respect of everyone who experienced her acquaintance.

She always played a prominent part in Church matters, and being Secretary of the Altar Society, her loss is regarded by that organization as an irretrievable one. Their sympathy was expressed in a small measure by each member dropping a white flower on her coffin, when all that was mortal of a kind friend and loving companion was consigned to Mother Earth.

To her sorrow stricken mother, father, brother and sister the sincere sympathy of the entire community is tendered, a particular share being expressed by the writer who was

A SINCERE FRIEND. Tilting, Nov. 10, 1924.

The Carnegie Corporation

GRANTS INCLUDE $75,000 TO NEWFOUNDLAND.

New York, Nov. 21.—Reports of progress during the fiscal year just ended, made by the recipients of large grants from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, are given to the public in the annual report of President F. P. Keppel of the Corporation, presented at the annual meeting of the Corporation Trustees recently.

The list is headed by the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh which received the largest single grant in the history of the Corporation, amounting to $1,327,375.25. Of this sum, $5,000,000 was paid over to the Pittsburgh authorities in June, 1924. Other large grants upon which reports of progress are made, together with the amount of each grant, are as follows:—

- National Research Council and National Academy of Sciences, $5,000,000; educational institution in Eastern Canada, $3,000,000; Institute of Economics, $1,850,000; National Bureau of Economic Research, $150,000; Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, $62,500; Food Research Institute, located at Stanford University, California, $704,000; American Law Institute, engaged in formulating a restatement of the law, $1,075,000; Johns Hopkins Medical School for an Outpatient building and Diagnostic Clinic, $2,000,000; New York Academy of Medicine, $1,000,000.

Among the more important grants made during the current year are included the following:—

- American Library Association, for general support and for the conduct of certain special activities, $164,100; Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, to aid in publishing an economic and social history of the world war, $350,000; Harvard University, for the training of personnel for museum service, $100,000; Institute of International Education, $182,500; Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, $108,000; University of California, for a study of pyorrhea and its possible relation to other human maladies, $85,000; National Institute of Public Administration, $40,000; Committee on Legal Aid Work, $85,000; Union University for the Albany Medical College, $62,500; Junior College, St. John's, Newfoundland, $75,000 and University of King's College for endowment $600,000 (part of $3,000,000 gift for education in Eastern Canada); and to various agencies for research in India, $43,000.

We note a number of quite high collars.

Fashions and Fads.

We note a few muffs combining fur and fabric.

Bands of dyed squirrel tails make novel trimming.

There is quite a fad for appliques of furs on fabrics.

Deep wine or burgundy is a new shade for evening.

A fur-lined coat is delightfully luxurious and smart.

Dance frocks use plaited tunics, falling from the hips.

Skirt bands and tunics are finished with thick ruffles.

Black and beige are excellent colors for daytime wear.

MUTT AND JEFF

By Bud Fisher

Queer Story

THE LAW AND THE SPIRIT.
 "That's a big load of pine there, Mr. Munsey," commented Phineas Lock, an American lumber merchant, looking across his English customer's timber yard to where a group of men were loading trucks with long tree trunks, stripped but not sawn. "Going to the mills, eh?"
 Munsey shook his head. "A customer in Scotland," he replied.
 The two men had finished their business and were waiting for a contract to be drawn up.
 "Pit props?" asked the American.
 "It's likely. There are big collieries near his place."
 Lock strolled across the yard and examined the wood curiously.
 "Not English pine?" he said.
 "No, French. We get it up from near Bordeaux."
 "That so? I didn't know you used French wood for props."
 "This customer makes a point of our getting this Bordeaux pine for him," explained the Englishman. "He may not use it for props, though; but it was only a guess of mine."
 Lock stopped to view the stem nearest to him, one marked with a long, narrow blaze.
 "Do you know your customer personally?" he inquired.
 "No, but I've had him on my books for years, and a good customer he is," said Munsey, with pride.
 "A Frenchman himself, perhaps," suggested Lock, watching with a puzzled frown as the log with the thin blaze was swung into the truck.
 "Scotch by his name," said Munsey.
 "Not much in a name," remarked Lock, reflectively. "I suppose your miners this side are all British, eh?"
 He touched another trunk reflectively, laying the palm of his hand in a broad axe-mark on its side. The blaze he noticed was wider than his hand.
 "Most miners are," agreed Munsey. "but they run a lot of Polish labour up North."
 "Poles, eh?" said Lock. "Well, well!" The puzzled look had lifted from his brow.
 "They make good miners too, I fancy, when they're sober," said the Englishman. "Though the Tories used to make capital crying out against the Polish vote. Lies, of course."
 "Politics are mostly lies," said Lock absently, his eyes still bent on the men at work. "All graft."
 "We're not as bad as you," said the Englishman with a smile. "Our politicians don't make laws and then look on quietly while they're broken like your drink enactment."
 "There's no temptation to break your laws, maybe," said Lock. "Wait till you've got Prohibition and a man can get 500 per cent. on every bottle he slips in. Your Pussfoot gang will get their way one of these days and then you'll see."
 "I am a teetotaler myself," said Munsey.
 "Not a Prohibitionist, surely?" asked Lock, turning from his watch on the logs with an air of surprise.
 "I might vote for it," admitted Munsey, "but if it was passed I should not be sorry. But apart from the drink question, it's the law-breaking that I cannot hold with out in your country."
 "No?" said Lock coldly, looking at the other over his spectacles.
 "Take that judge in New York who was caught a little while ago," argued Munsey, warming to his subject. "He was abusing the law he was supposed to administer. You can't defend that?"
 "You mean that case reported in the English papers?" remarked Lock. "That was a regular frame-up."
 "But the liquor was found in the Judge's house—he took it there in his car," protested Munsey.
 "Maybe. But the Judge never had that booze assigned to him," said Lock. "Why, he's a well-known Pussfoot."
 "You don't mean to tell me a man can take his car home full of imitation petrol tins each containing whisky and not know what is inside," objected the Englishman.
 "I sure do. You see the Judge had a notion he'd land some of the big fish in the run-running game—men way up—but he talked too soon, and—whiff! They framed him up and got him as neat as you like. That's what happened to that Judge."
 "But if it wasn't his whisky, why didn't he prove it?" Demanded Munsey, in bewilderment.
 "How could he? They had the police waiting and witnesses on the spot."
 "Then how can you be sure it wasn't his whisky?"
 "I tell you the Judge was a teetotaler like yourself. Why did the police search him that night? They knew the stuff was there, that's why. Someone had put them wise and if you cared to bet that same person loaded up the Judge's cans, you'd win your money, sure."
 "You mean the whole thing was done out of revenge?" asked Munsey, thrilled in spite of himself by this strange version of the news.
 "Revenge? No!" scoffed Lock. "The Judge was going to talk out loud and give the names of prominent men who were bootlegging, so they stopped his mouth. Who's going to listen to him now?"
 "Well!" said Munsey. "A thing like that couldn't happen over here."
 "Think not?" asked Lock, lightly. "If you had Prohibition here, and I was to say to you. Forward a few cases look inside each case?"

 "I should refuse to forward the cases if they were nailed."
 "And offend a customer?"
 "Certainly."
 The American looked long at Munsey, then he shook his head.
 "You're a mighty honest man," he said, "but what if you weren't asked? If your foreman just loaded up these cases and said nothing? How could Munsey. "Here in England we keep the spirit, not the letter, of the law." A big woodman's axe lay against a pile of timber on his right; he examined it and strode towards the diminishing pile of three trunks.
 "What are you doing?" cried Munsey.
 Lock, stooping among the timber, had found what he wanted—a log with a narrow blaze.
 "Stand clear!" he shouted, as he swung the axe.
 The axe fell with heavy workman-like strokes on the wood until the blade cut with a metallic clink into the centre of the tree. A thin trickle of liquid came oozing out, and Lock stood back.
 Munsey saw a silver sparkle of tin in the wood. In astonishment, he leant forward and touched the mark.
 "What's this?" he asked.
 "Brand," said Lock. "It's a common trick in America. Hard on the Polish miner to call his hand, but my sympathy goes to honest men—like the Judge—every time!"—In Truth.

Jenkins was doing a walking-tour in Ireland. He had called at a wayside Irish cabin to obtain a glass of milk one morning, and while he was drinking it he sat down inside and chatted to the owner. Looking round him, he noticed on the top of a chest a glass shade under which was a rose and a brick.

"Why do you cherish two such dissimilar objects?" he inquired of his host.

"Shure, sorr," was the reply, "there's memories attached to that. Feel this big dent in my head. Well, it was the brick that made it."

"Yes, I understand," said Jenkins, "but what about the rose?"

"Ah, the rose, begorra," answered the Irishman. "The rose is off the grave of the scalpeen who threw the brick."

I cannot say, and I will not say
That he is dead. He is just away!

With a cherry smile and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair
His needs must be, since he lingers there.

And you—oh, you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return—

Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here;

And loyal still, as he gave the blows
Of his warrior strength to his country's foes—

Mild and gentle, as he gave,
When the sweetest love of his life he gave

To the simple things; where the violets grew Pure as the eyes they were likened to.

The touches of his hands have strayed
As reverently as his lips have prayed:

When the little brown thrush that harshly chirred
Was dear to him as the mocking bird;

And he pitied as much as a man in pain
A writhing honey bee wet with rain.

Think of him still as the same, I say;
He is not dead—he is just—AWAY!

Thousands Lost by Canadian Banks

WESTERN POLICE BELIEVE THEY HAVE LEADER OF GANG OF FORGERS.

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 10.—(By Canadian Press)—One of the most highly organized systems of bank frauds in Western Canada is thought to have been unearthed and brought to a close as a result of the investigations conducted during the past three months. Under the direction of Detective Reynolds, finger-print expert of the City Police, one of the alleged principals, a man giving the name of Nick Schumansky, with a big bunch of aliases, has been arrested in Regina and will be brought back to the city to face four charges here. Another is under arrest in Winnipeg and will be returned to Edmonton in the course of a few days while others are under suspicion. Banks are said to have lost thousands by the forgeries.

The frauds on the branch of the Bank of Montreal were put over by means of two checks for $250 and $350 in which the name of Sam Boychuk, a well known city rooming housekeeper, was used. It was not until nearly a month after the checks had been cashed that it was discovered that they were forgeries. Even then the imitation of the handwriting of Boychuk was so well done that no one but an expert would be able to detect the difference.

Hunter's Paradise

VANCOUVER, B.C.—(Can. Press)—Despite the fact that about one thousand moose are killed annually in the Liard District, they are found to be increasing, according to Inspector T. V. Sandys-Wunsch, in command of the Liard patrol of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

It is estimated that 300 tanned skins were shipped out last year by the Hudsons Bay Company. The Indians are most eager, owing to the ease with which moose can be killed. In years gone by the prospectors took in meat with them, but now rely on the moose. So common are the animals that they are killed for dog feed and an attempt is now being made to supply smoked fish in their stead, in order to save the animals, as there is an abundance of whitefish in the lakes and streams.

Three white moose were killed at Thirty-Mile Bar on the Liard River in 1922. Mr. Sandys-Wunsch says, and the Indians informed him that there was a large white bull near there now. The inspector gave the Indians strict instructions not to kill the animal or any others which they saw of a rare variety.

The herds of caribou appear to be increasing rapidly. The deer are reported not to be numerous owing to the large number of wolves, and the inspector believes some step should be taken to keep down the wolves and coyotes by a select number of men using poison.

There are reported to be a large number of sheep and goats in the hills along the Dease and Liard Rivers. The sheep on the Lower Liard are pure white and those on the Upper Liard and Dease have a dark saddle.

Grizzlies are numerous, as well as black and brown bear. There has been a slight increase in foxes, lynx and beaver. Marten, mink, muskrats and weasels are plentiful.

River, 100 miles west of Fort William, bore traces of a desperate hand-to-hand battle with an infuriated bear.

The body was found lying in a heap under some trees. Every portion of the body was gashed and ripped while in one of Waino's hands was a blood-spattered axe, and in the other were tufts of black hair torn from the side of the bear.

It is supposed Waino, who was carrying a rifle and hand-axe, met the bear and fired a shot, wounding the animal, which, infuriated, closed with him, and in the ensuing battle inflicted terrible and fatal injuries.

Waino formerly resided here, and had been married only six months. Corporal Boyd left Fort William to-day to bring the body in.

Poultry Exhibition Opens

The 12th annual Poultry Show was officially opened last night at the C. L. B. Armoury by his Excellency the Governor in the presence of a very large gathering. His Excellency accompanied by Lady Allardice, Miss Allardice and Capt. Goodfellow arrived at the Armoury at 8 o'clock and were received by President G. R. Williams and Show Manager W. R. Butler. The Vice-Regal party after an inspection of the exhibits ascended the platform, on which were W. J. Walsh, Minister of Agriculture and Mines; A. J. Bayly, Secretary of Agriculture; H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., Hon. President of the Association, and W. R. Butler, Show Manager. President Williams in a few well chosen words asked the Governor to declare the Exhibition open.

His Excellency expressed his pleasure at being present and having the honor of opening the show. It was a great pleasure to him to see such a large number of exhibits and such a splendid quality of birds. Poultry raising is a part of farming, and he thought the people in this country do not do nearly enough of farming. A man from Quebec had told him a few days ago that our climate and soil conditions are much more favourable for farming than those of Quebec, where so very much more farming is done, and the exhibition showed that conditions here lent themselves to successful poultry raising. Years ago we had very many more fowl than we have to-day, but indications are that the day is coming when we should not have to import any more fowl or eggs. There is no difficulty in keeping poultry, and his Excellency felt sure that anyone who wanted to know anything of the art could learn all they required by application to the Poultry Association. In Australia a short time ago, a train was sent through the continent with fifteen carriages filled with home made products, and the idea was to show the people just what could be done in their own homes, especially in the way of agriculture. This was an example of what other countries are doing, and whilst it is not possible for the same to be done here, much more could be accomplished. His Excellency felt sure that the Minister of Agriculture would do all in his power to forward any movement of this sort for the benefit of the country. He congratulated the President and Committee on having such a large and excellent display, and wished the Show every success. The Show was then formally declared open.

President Williams thanks the Governor for his encouraging remarks, and then called on W. J. Walsh, Minister of Agriculture and Mines.

Mr. Walsh took the opportunity to publicly thank his Excellency for the real interest he has always displayed in everything having for its object the benefit of the country and the people. Speaking on an occasion like this was rather new to him, and he confessed that he was not possessed of a big knowledge of the work of poultry culture, but he was interested, and he intended to learn as much as possible of this very important work. He congratulated the Poultry Association on the splendid exhibition, and he looked forward with hope to the day when not only would there be Associations in St. John's and Bell Island, but in every important centre in the Island. As long as he remained at the head of the Department of Agriculture and Mines he would be only too pleased to do anything in his power, either officially or personally, for the benefit of poultry raising, a project which is of much importance to the people of the country. He was glad Prof. Landry was again present to judge the exhibition, and he felt that Newfoundland must have something special to offer when the Prof. could give so much of his valuable time to come here year after year. Mr. Walsh thanked the Association for inviting him to be present, and he wished the Show every success.

The party, with Prof. Landry, were then entertained to tea by the ladies of the Spencer Club.

This year's Show surpasses the best efforts of the Association in the number of exhibits and the class of birds shown. The pens are well arranged so as to make it easy for visitors to move freely around. In addition to the birds, which include hens of all classes, geese, turkeys and ducks, there is also a very fine display of Newfoundland dogs, and these attracted much attention. In the gymnasium are several pens of foxes, and these were a source of interest to a large number of people. The Valley Nurseries have also a display of flowers grown at their premises, which came in for much favourable comment. The trophies which are being competed for, are also on exhibition. Four special classes of birds are shown this year for the first time, viz. Golden Wyandottes, Black Jersey Giants, Silver Spangled Hamburgs and Speckled Sussex. The Show will be continued this afternoon and night. At four-thirty this afternoon the Newfoundland dogs will be judged, and owners are asked to have their animals in the Armoury at 2.30, and to be present when the judging takes place. At 6.30 the Association will hold its annual dinner, at which Professor Landry will be the guest of honour.

The Hostess

Last night the largest number of people ever to attend the exhibition for opening day were present, fourteen hundred purchasing tickets.

Another Wonderful Film at the Nickel

"THREE WISE FOOLS," A STORY OF UNUSUAL INTEREST.

A corking good picture is Goldwyn's film version of Austin Strong's successful stage play, "Three Wise Fools," which comes to the Nickel Theatre to-night. It has been directed by King Vidor with all of his feeling for actuality in characterization, in atmosphere and in background.

It's story is that of three old bachelors who agree to take charge of the grown daughter of the girl who had rejected the love of all three of them in their youth. Comedy complications ensue fast and furiously and soon become interwoven in a series of dramatic incidents which are solved happily for all concerned after the girl has been jailed on a charge of aiding and abetting three criminals to break out of prison. "The Wise Fools" has all most everything in it that the most jaded fan could wish for—comedy, romance, reality, thrills and spectacular moments.

Its cast is of the kind that Goldwyn has accustomed picturegoers to expect. Eleanor Boardman, who jumped into screen fame with her acting of the role of Remember Steddon in Rupert Hughes' "Souls for Sale," is the girl—the "three wise fools" are Claude Gillingwater, William H. Crane and Alec Francis. The cast also includes John Sainpolis, Brinsley Shaw, Fred Esmelton, William Haines, Lucien Littlefield, Zasu Pitts, Martha Mattox, Craig Biddle, Jr., Creighton Hale and Raymond Hatton.

To-night you will hear Eleanor Mews, that beautiful Mezzo-soprano soloist in a collection of songs that is going to appeal to your particular musical taste, and rendered as only an artist can render them.

Star Entertainment To-Night

The Star of the Sea Ladies' Association are holding a card party, supper and dance at their rooms to-night. Good prizes are being offered for the card game and also for the elimination dance. The C. C. C. Band will supply the music.

Einstein's Theory LEADS SCIENCE TO NEW CONCEPT OF WORLD'S ORIGIN.

LONDON, Nov. 18. — Einstein's theory of relativity has altered the views of astronomers. Authorities now believe, as they never have before, that life on other worlds is probable.

Prof. Henry Turner, Oxford astronomer, writes to the London Times:

"The average life of a star, instead of being some millions of years, as was supposed generally, is probably some millions of millions of years."

It had been assumed that the sun was torn asunder by the close passage of a great star, which thus formed our world. But on the assumption that the sun was only a few hundred million years old, mathematicians had calculated the odds against such a celestial crash in the universe of known stars at 100,000,000 to 1. This was puzzling until Einstein solved the problem.

It was shown, Turner writes, that such a chance as produced our earth was unlikely to have occurred elsewhere in the universe because of the enormous odds against collision in space, but now that the age of stars has been increased millions of times the odds against collisions are so greatly reduced that many others may be assumed.

By increasing a million times the age of stars, the odds in favor of similar circumstances producing another earth are now reduced from 1,000,000 to 1 to even money.

Wedding Bells

WALSH-POWER.

A very pretty wedding took place in the Parish Church, at Petty Hr., last evening, when Mr. John Power led to the altar May, the eldest daughter of Mrs. and the late Henry Walsh, of the Goulds. The groom, a son of Mr. B. Power, Quidi Vidi, is a member of the Telegram staff.

The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, in the presence of quite a number of friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride looked charming in a black picture hat and carrying a bouquet of carnations and maiden hair fern. Her dress was shadow lace over blue canton crepe. The bridesmaid, Miss Gertrude Ryan, was attired in mauve crepe de chine with hat to match. The duties of best man were ably performed by Mr. Patrick Walsh, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the sumptuous wedding supper was partaken of at the home of the bride's mother. After the toast to the bride and groom had been duly honored, songs, speeches and recitations were given by the assembled guests and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The presents received were numerous and testified to the esteem in which the couple are held. Amongst others was a cheque from the D rectors and gold pieces from the staff of the Telegram, and also a cheque from the groom's father. The groom's present to the bridesmaid was a beautiful set of ear rings, and to the best man, a set of gold cuff links.

The honeymoon is being spent at the Goulds. The Telegram wishes Mr. and Mrs. Power many years of happiness.

MCGRATH-NASH.

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at St. Joseph's Church on Tuesday night, when Mr. Michael Walsh, of Branch, was united in matrimony to Miss Elizabeth McGrath, of Colliers, by Rev. Fr. Pippy. The bride looked very charming in a navy blue costume with hat to match and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. She was attended by Mrs. Teresa White, of this city. The groom was attended by Mr. Leo Power of Branch.

After the ceremony the bridal party took a motor drive, which was followed by a reception at the home of Mrs. Follett, on New Gower Street. The honeymoon will be spent in Colliers, the home of the bride. There were quite a number of presents of a very tasteful character. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Nash every happiness in their wedded life.

Famous Baritone at the Majestic Theatre

Emmett O'Mara, assisted by Jeanne Palowa, contralto and accompanist, will open their second week's engagement at the Majestic Theatre to-night.

Mr. O'Mara is fast becoming a popular favorite with the music lovers of St. John's, as well as proving a pleasing attraction to the general public. The songs that Mr. O'Mara sings are of the type that please all, the Irish songs predominating, while his dramatic talents are shown to advantage in the Classics. Mr. O'Mara holds a reputation second to John McCormack, in the States and Australia, and St. John's people should feel grateful to have such an artist that can be heard at the small admission charge. The audiences have responded beautifully with their appreciation of the artists' efforts to please. Jeanne Palowa proved herself an able assistant. She is the possessor of a beautiful contralto voice of unusual register and shows very careful training. Her rendition of the "Star," by Rogers, was indeed beautiful but to the musical mind it was felt that we should like to hear her voice in something from the opera or in oratorio, as this artist has a rare talent. It is also pleasing to note the careful selection of song numbers by these artists, each and every song seems to be just the right song for the audience present. Mr. O'Mara has been receiving many requests for favorite songs to be sung, and we hope to hear him sing the requested numbers, including "The Heart Bowed Down" from "The Bohemian Girl," "Kathleen Mavourneen."

Jap Emigrants Diverted to S. America

VICTORIA, B.C., (C.P.)—United States immigration exclusion measure have had a startling effect upon the emigrants of Japan, according to passengers arriving here on liners from the Orient.

The cause of the exclusion measure, said E. H. Li, scholar of China, "vessels in the transpacific service suffer considerably from lack of passenger trade. But there is a constant increase of emigration to South America, and the Japanese are pouring, literally, into the countries of the southern continent. "The government has planned to send 2,000 emigrants there shortly by appropriating 600,000 yen as a subsidy," he continued.

"At the present time," he asserted, "the Nippon Yusen Kaisha is placing the Manila Maru and the Canada Maru on the South American route. These vessels are scheduled to sail from Yokohama early in December, and already there are 900 passengers booked. The Seattle Maru and the Hawaii Maru will follow these steamer in March.

"The tendency to emigrate to South America was becoming almost a habit," said Mr. Li. "Thousands plan to make the voyage."

Rum Row's Baronet Speaks Out

SIR BRODERICK HARTWELL, PURVEYOR OF LIQUOR TO THE AMERICAN BOOTLEGGERS, TELLS HOW HE CONDUCTS HIS UNIQUE BUSINESS WITHOUT LOSS OR AN UNEASY CONSCIENCE.

(By Donald Lawder).

The bulky, red-buckram volume of the English "Who's Who" which lists for to-day and future generations the names of Britain's great near-great, and as some would suggest, ingrate, lists him as Sir Broderick Cecil Deham Arkwright Hartwell, Baronet.

But on the records of the House of Commons and in the diplomatic papers of England and the United States he is unofficially described as "Great Britain's Rum-running King."

To speak plainly, Sir Broderick Hartwell, Bart., is purveyor of liquors and wines to the Rum Fleet that anchors just out of the reach of the United States Coast Guard off the coast of the United States of America.

He is the most spectacular figure in that gigantic industry which has developed in England, Scotland and Ireland in the interest of helping a dry country quench its thirst.

In this business, Sir Broderick is, relatively, a newcomer. But, although he has been in the "export" business for barely a year, his shipments toward the general direction of the United States have been valued at about $1,320,000, based on distillery prices. Shipments valued at $5,000,000.

As much as the market on, say, Scotch whisky is at least four times in New York City what it is in England, it is safe to say that his business within one year has grown from nothing to around $5,000,000. American prohibition value. His business can therefore be rated as a going concern with liquid assets.

It was chiefly because Sir Broderick Hartwell is the most outstanding and spectacular, though possibly not the largest, figure in this liquor exporting business to the United States coast line, that I crossed the Atlantic to interview him.

Two facts made Sir Broderick stand out against the background of organized liquor shipping to Rum Row. First, he is a baronet, the descendant of a line of baronets—the fourth, in fact. His family tree has borne the honored titles of Admiral and General in the British forces. His father was Consul General for Naples and Southern Italy. An uncle was Sir Francis Hartwell of Crimean War fame. Another uncle was Admiral Arthur Page of the Royal Navy, who served, with Admiral Sir Frederick Bedford, as Sir Broderick's godfather.

Secondly, he conducts his business openly, maintains offices in one of the busiest streets of downtown London and has at the present time a list of one thousand stockholders in all parts of England and many parts of the world. And, stranger than all, he advertises.

Small wonder that the English newspapers have published columns about him that he has even been made the subject of a question to the British Government in the House of Commons, where Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald characterized the rum-running exposures as a "disgraceful blot."

I admit I was prepared to meet an entirely different type of man than is usually associated with liquor-selling activities in the United States. Here, where further whispers, mysterious suitcases, a series of pre-arranged signals or a "p. r. introduction" are essential to get one's feet in touch with a "little plate stock" one is accustomed to at least a decent amount of discretion on the part of the purveyor of hard liquor.

But to come right out, to keep one's offices not guarded by a "tip-off," to take the public into his confidence and above all to advertise! Even the most 100 per cent. American bootlegger must admit that the members of the trade in England have outdistanced him in business methods.

My introduction to Sir Broderick's methods was in the form of a circular letter, which he told me later had been sent to something like 10,000 persons in England. It set forth the profits to be made in shipping liquor to the United States and flaunted the banner of patriotism by declaring that it "helps British trade, and increases employment and swells the national revenue."

My second introduction came on board the United States liner Leviathan on which I crossed to England to interview this knight of modern times. This introduction came in the form of an advertisement in the columns of the "Oceanic Edition of the Chicago Tribune and New York News," published daily on board the Leviathan. The advertisement read:

My next introduction was to Sir Broderick himself.

31 Haymarket, London, S.W. 1, the morning after I arrived in England. I had previously considered the matter of getting a letter of introduction which I considered might be necessary to this busy person. But I finally decided that if he were so open about his business possibly he might be equally open to receive an unannounced, uninvited caller. He was—until he found what I wanted.

Not that I would go so far as to say that Sir Broderick welcomed me under the impression that I was a potential American customer. He is an extremely pleasant, affable man. But his manner was somewhat curt, as least as curt as that of an English gentleman will permit, when he learned that my mission was to obtain information—and nothing else.

"I have had quite enough publicity"—he fingered a crisp brown mustache with one hand as he gestured toward a stack of press clippings with the other. "Not that I have done anything to hide. My business is quite legal. I assure you. But simply that I am getting sick of all this rot about my part in the liquor-shipping business, when I am really only a small part in it."

"It's all true then?" I nodded. "All this about stockholders and big dividends and thousands of cases of liquor sent out to our rum row. You are actually and openly helping others to violate our prohibition laws," I said.

"Certainly it's true," he flashed, impatiently. "I am engaged in a legitimate business. I am violating no law of your country nor of my own. I am simply buying whisky and wines from distilleries and selling them on the high seas to whoever may buy them. That the liquor lands on American territory eventually is none of my concern."

"But you find America a most profitable market and you are pretty sure your liquor eventually does land there, aren't you?" I pursued.

"Certainly. I take care to see it does land there. At least within 30 miles of there—the legal limit is now twenty miles. What happens to it afterward is none of my concern. I don't see what they are making all this fuss about."

"Look here," he continued. "You say you have prohibition in the United States. In the first place you haven't prohibition. You have a prohibition law, but your people don't enforce it. Your officials don't enforce it. No one seems to care about enforcing it. Why should I look after that? That's your business."

After this statement Sir Broderick proceeded to pour me a generous drink of his private brand of Scotch that I might taste the quality of the whisky he is handling.

"Look here, my dear fellow," Sir Broderick went on, as he sipped his whisky and soda, "you may take it that I know as much as any one about the 'inside' of the whisky rings in England that has been engaged in this trade for over two years. Their chartered ships have plied between Scotland and a point of the American coast as regularly as the night train for Glasgow leaves Euston Station. I am not alone in this business. There are many syndicates similar to mine.

Has Sent Six Cargoes.

"The only difference with my business is that I have gone straight to the public instead of to a few financiers. I have thus far made six shipments to the United States. The last one was valued at," he picked up a slip of paper from his desk and glanced down a row of figures, "let's see, the last one carried about 253,000 of liquor and wines. That's about," he figured quickly on a pad of paper,

"$225,000 at the prevailing rate of exchange. That is an average shipment. So, compared with the total volume of business done from Scotland alone to your rum row I am small."

He turned and pointed out the window to the stream of traffic passing down the narrow and congested confines of Haymarket, which serves as the main artery between Piccadilly Circus and Pall Mall.

"In comparison with the total volume of business done in liquor between the British Isles and your United States I am as one ear to the ground in that rush of traffic down there," he said.

"How do you like that whisky?" he suddenly inquired. "It's my own private brand. And look here," he brought an unopened bottle from a drawer of his desk, "see this purple gelatine cap? That is an idea of my own." It exhibited with evident pride.

"It keeps your American bootleggers from tampering with the contents. I understand they dilute the whisky before they sell it to your people. Well they can't dilute this without being detected."

At that moment Sir Broderick might have been a manufacturer of safety pins or any other staple commodity, who was explaining a new marketing idea.

"Of course I ship still wines, champagnes, cordials, liquors," he explained, as he returned the bottle to his desk. "But the bulk of shipments consists of Scotch. To date, I have made six shipments on which returns of investment plus dividends were made to my stockholders in October, 1923; December, 1923; March, 1924; May, 1924; June, 1924, and the last has just been made." (This was in July.)

"Each shipment is handled as a separate financial transaction and all accounts and dividends are paid on separate shipments, so a stockholder gets a quick turnover and is not obligated in any way to participate in further shipments."

"On the first four shipments I paid dividends of 20 per cent. each and on the fifth and sixth shipments I paid back capital plus 25 per cent. because of the better prices I obtained from my American importers. You can see the business is on a sound, permanent basis."

"Yes, but how about the risk of seizure?" I asked.

"There is absolutely no risk of loss," Sir Broderick spoke with the air of a conservative banker discussing an investment in municipal bonds. "Absolutely no risk. Look here"—he pulled a pad of paper toward him and drew a rough diagram of the United States coast with a line about an inch off shore.

Anchor Beyond Danger.

"In the first place, my ships never go beyond this line, and the United States cannot make seizures any further out at sea than this." He drew another line about half an inch off the coast. "My ships never go within the radius where seizures are allowed under the new treaty between Great Britain and the United States. In fact, they never go within five or ten miles of that. Then, I sell my goods for cash against delivery on the high seas. My agent on the ship receives a check for the entire cargo before a single case is transferred off the ship. If a case of whisky falls into the sea in the transfer from one ship to another, as sometimes happens, that loss is borne by the American importers. Furthermore, my cargoes are insured at Lloyd's against marine disasters. The coverage is complete. There is absolutely no possibility of loss."

Charged with the cold blooded murder of his two nieces, Cynthia and Neyessa Foster, aged 10 and 14 years, Harry Williams of Fosterville was brought here this evening and lodged in the county jail, awaiting preliminary examination to-morrow morning. Bound hand and foot the lifeless bodies of the girls were found last evening at their uncle's shack in Fosterville, York County, with bullet wounds in their heads. The horrible discovery being made by their father, Ward Foster, who had gone to Williams' shack to see why the children were delayed. The slayer although cautioned about incriminating himself admits the crime, and when he was brought here seemed perfectly indifferent regarding it. The elder of the murdered girls had been assaulted. The atrocious crime has utterly amazed and horrified the residents of York County and the Province at large.

This was a considerable calamity.

PREPARATIONS FOR HOLY YEAR.
ROME, Nov. 27. Signor Cremonesi, the Royal Commissioner of Rome yesterday informed Premier Mussolini that preparations for receiving pilgrims here during the holy year ordered by Pope Pius to celebrate the twenty-second jubilee were proceeding splendidly. The municipality of Rome also was at work to have fifty new street car lines running in January. The Commissioner informed the Premier that he was expecting several million persons would visit Rome during Holy Year.

Sailing by Sound

By THEODORE S. SPRIGG.

Good eyesight is one of the most necessary qualifications of the sailor. Next in importance comes a keen sense of hearing, and many a ship has been saved from disaster by an officer who was able to hear the distant boom of the surf or the faint wail of a fog-bound steamer's siren.

Yet strangely enough, in a fog at sea, where sound is often the only means of guidance, it is quite unreliable. So curious are the effects of a fog-bank on sound that a vessel may be within a mile of a lightship firing her gun and yet hear no sound, while a ship some six miles farther off can pick up the signal distinctly.

But though sound on the surface cannot be trusted it will travel through water without any deflection, and the sailor lost at sea now listens under the water.

Submarine signalling, as it is called at sea, is now a recognized form of navigation, and the majority of lightships all over the world are fitted with a bell suspended several feet below the water. In fog or thick weather this bell is started from on board the lightship and by means of an automatic control a certain number of rings is given at regular intervals.

The signal is heard by an approaching liner, feeling her way through the fog, by means of special receiving apparatus. This consists of two small iron tanks filled with water and containing a microphone, and fitted one on each side of the vessel's bows as low down as possible.

Each tank is connected to a receiver fixed on the chart room wall and an ordinary telephone earpiece is provided, while a two-way switch connects the set with either the port or starboard tank, as required.

Not sure of his position but knowing himself to be somewhere near a lightship, the navigating officer picks up the receiver and, switching over to the port tank, or "ear," he listens for the bell.

Nothing but the noise of the water rushing past the bows is heard until he switches on to the starboard "ear," when the sound of the bell reaches him distinctly, showing the lightship to be on the starboard bow; then by manoeuvring his ship so that the bell is heard with equal strength on both sides, he is able to steer direct for the distant light-vessel, confident of his course.

Submarine signalling is particularly useful in navigating such difficult estuaries at the Mersey, and many an anxious captain has breathed a sigh of relief as he heard the three rings of the North-West Lightship, sending her warning through the water.

Keeping the bell on his starboard side he is able to proceed until he picks up the sound of the Bar Lightship, three rings sent out at regular intervals. Correcting his course by this, the treacherous sandbanks are avoided and the channel entrance made in safety.

Not Guilty

The old negro was in the dock, charged with having stolen a watch. Counsel and witnesses for both sides did their best and worst, but when the jury came to consider their verdict they decided that the evidence was not sufficient to convict the old man, and that they must return a verdict of "Not Guilty."

"That they did, and the Judge, turning to the prisoner, said: "You're acquitted!"

The old black man looked rather doubtful at this, and asked: "Acquitted? What yo, mean, Judge?"

"I mean," answered the judge, "you are acquitted."

The negro looked more confused than ever.

"Judge," he asked, "does dat mean that I have to gib dat watch back?"

Graduated Income Tax

Edmonton Journal: The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States last year paid an income tax of $2,718; the President's payment was $5,643; while the champion heavyweight pugilist contributed $90,331, the most popular movie actors $25,769, and the most successful manufacturer of chewing gum $1,154,420. Many other comparisons almost as striking can be made on the basis of the lists that are now being published as a result of the change in the law which was made at the last session of Congress. It is not at all clear why publicity was insisted upon. There ought to be some higher object to serve than the mere satisfying of popular curiosity. Possibly the intention was to drive home to the public how little in keeping with services rendered are money rewards. The lists certainly emphasize this. But is there likely to be any change as a result?

After Balacava

VETERAN TALKS OF 70 YEARS AGO
Just 70 years ago the Light Brigade made their immortal charge on the Russian guns at Balacava. It is doubtful if any of the Six Hundred who rode "into the valley of death" are still alive; but among the half-dozen Crimean veterans now at Chelsea Hospital there are two who saw the charge. These old warriors are Pte. William Piner, of the Manchester, and Gunner Isaac Sugden, Royal Horse Artillery. Their recollections of that October morning in '54 are as vivid as if it was yesterday. "Our division," Pte. Piner told the "News of the World" representative, "was in the outer valley at daybreak, and at seven in the morning the charge of the Light Brigade was made. The front line was composed of the 17th Lancers—"the Death or Glory Boys"—and the 13th Light Dragoons. Behind them rode the 11th Hussars—the "Cherry-pickers"—with the 4th Light Dragoons, and bringing up the rear, the 8th Hussars—all told there were some 640 horsemen who started as the trumpeters sounded the call, and 40 officers and 353 men lay dead and wounded a few minutes later. Artists paint the charge with the men in full parade dress. As a matter of fact, they were called so hurriedly that many were only half clad and just had time to boot and saddle when the mad, wild rush began. The squadrons kept perfect order as they moved forward under Lord Cardigan. When the front line turned the bend in the further valley, the roar of heavy guns broke on the morning air, and the Light Brigade rode on in face of such a

Hall of Shot and Shell

that only those who saw and heard can understand. Right down that long valley, we saw them swallowed up in the smoke clouds and disappear towards the flashing batteries. Presently out of the mist and vapour there dashed back a number of riderless horses. Then the smoke clouds lifted and we saw heaps of men and horses lying at the mouth of the valley, dead or in the agonies of death. It seemed hours, but in reality it was only minutes, before the remnants of the Brigade began to drift back. At first a few stragglers who had their charges shot under them came limping in, then two and three on dead-beat horses, helping others who clung to their stirrup leathers. With bare sabre and lance some of our fellows had actually reached the Russian guns and cut down the gunners, but these must have been only a fraction. At length there appeared parties of mounted men riding in some sort of formation. They were the unscathed survivors of the dare-devil ride. The muster roll showed that two-thirds of the Light Brigade had fallen, and when we sent parties to bury the dead and aid the wounded we realised the awful nature of the carnage. Three hundred and eighty horses lay stretched on that ghastly field. I was a youngster then, and had not seen some of the awful battle scenes I was to witness later, but the impression Balacava left on my mind is just like some terrible nightmare. Even now as I close I seem to hear the thunder of the hoofs, the cheers, and the roar of cannon just as they sounded 70 years ago."
