NO FEDERAL STATEMENT.

MR. YARKER WILL HOLD IT BACK FOR THE CROPS.

Liquidate—An Idea of the New Policy

—A Syndicate Formed to Buy and Bul Mr. Yarker has decided not to make, at present, a public statement in regard to the ondition of the Federal bank. His main pason for this, as will be seen in the interiew below, is that if he waits a little longer he hopes he will be able to make a better one owing to the promised good crops. But if The World cannot give Mr. Yarker's statement it can give certain information which it has gathered as to the frequency of the required after Saturday. This wholesale discharge is attributed to dullness of trade. future is likely to be.

Secondly, that the capital stock is going to be reduced-to what extent, we do not at present know;

Thirdly, that the business of the bank will be greatly reduced in comparison to its former operations, and that none of the unbanking business, such as lending money on its own stock, will be continued; Fourthly, that the Commercial and Loan company, or whatever the "little machine" was called, is to be wound up;

Fifthly, that the greater portion the branches will be closed and strict economy is the conduct of the business of the bank insisted on.

insisted on;
Sixthly, that that portion of the capital of the bank which hitherto has been lending o various private bankers throughout the country for the purpose of conducting shaving operations will be directed in other channels just as fast as it can be realized. One reason why the bank ought to go on and not only go on, but experience little difficulty in doing a sound business is that the other banks have committed themthe other banks have committed themselves on several occasions to the statement that the Federal was in a good position. For instance, the following is the official statement drawn up at the meeting on the night of Saturday, June 28, and published in the papers the Monday following:

lowing:

"A meeting of the representatives of the banks in Toronto was held at the office of the Contario bank at noon on Saturday, to consider the position of the Federal bank. A committee consisting of Mr. Yarker, manager of the bank of Montreal, Mr. Anderson, general manager, and Mr. Kemp, assistant general manager of the bank of Commerce, Mr. Plummer, assistant general manager of the Merchants bank, Mr. Holland, general manager of the Ontario bank, Mr. Coulson, cashier of the Imperial bank, were appointed, who, after a careful examination of the assets were satisfied that the bank is solvent beyond question, and abundantly able to meet all its question, and abundantly able to meet all its liabilities, and that under competent management the business can go on without interruption. The committee having learned that the board had endeavored to secure the services of Mr. Yarker, ressed that gentleman to accept the position, and at a meeting of the board held in the evening he was formally appointee to and accepted the office of general manager of the Federal bank of Canada. The fullest confidence in the report of the committee and the appointment of Mr. Yarker was expressed by the managers of the bank of British North America, Merchants, Dominion, and Standard banks, who were present, but had not acted on the committee."

By this statement and by their subse-By this statement and by their subsequent utterances the other banks are bound to see the Federal through, and this fact of itself ought to ease the situation. As a matter of fact we believe the other banks have come forward, and have supplied and are willing to supply Mr. Yarker with all the ready money he requires. Whether they have done so on quires.

to make any public statement.

His answer was: "I intend to adhere to my original resolution to report only to the shareholders in the authorative and use I way. It is true however that I have instrumented an investigation and among that we make no nominative just completed an investigation, and am in a position to report, but any final figures given now might prove unfair to the shareholders, as the expested abundant harvest will alone turn many a doubtful harvest will alone turn many a doubtful item of to-day in a good asset. And, besides, I am constantly engaged in proving and adjusting the weaker accounts and properties of the bank. I intend further to personally visit all the branches of the bank and shall start out almost at

The reporter asked what was the present ondition of the bank.

My investigation, said Mr. Yarker, has convinced me that all the depositors, note-holders and creditors are perfectly safe, and in addition the bank has all the capital it requires to do a sound and regular business upon, and no other class of business, however profitable or tempting, will be considered or attempted.

Then, said the roporter, I would like to be a considered or attempted. ask you one straight question: Is the bank in process of liquidation?

No, replied Mr. Yarker, I expect the bank will continue the regular discount business, but, of course, not to the extent of former operations.

In an interview with a gentleman who is a holder of Federal and other bank stocks he said: If Mr. Yarker does not make a report it will be the hardest on the shareholders, for until it is known how much they are to lose the price of the stock will be uncertain. Whatever we are to lose it is better to lose it now. I have got a pretty close inside look at Mr. Yarker's figures, and I should say that wiping out all the rest and one million of the stock there is more than enough to leave two million of the capital unimpaired.

A. T. Kerr, share and stock broker, was A. T. Kerr, share and stock broker, was interviewed last night in reference to a syndicate that it was reported he was forming to buy up 5000 shares of Federal now on the street. He said he was going in for such a deal, and gave the following "reasons why Federal is a purchase:" 1st. If the institution was in as bad a condi-tion as many would have, you believe, it never could have withstood the incessant drain that has been made upon its deposits, and that, too, without any extraneous aid other than contracting its loans and rediscounting paper it holds.

2nd. The solemn asseveration of a committee of Toronto bank managers well qualified for the rask, they assumed that the bank held ample resources to meet any calls made upon it, has so far been verified.

3rd. Assuming that "Pott's lumber account" and losses at Winnipeg Branch aggregate $21,000,000, there is still a rest fund of $500,000, tand so far nothing definite is heard of losses of magnitude elsewhere) the stock should sell at 126; but we will go farther and assume that all the rest fund has disappeared, even then the stock should sell about par, say 100.

4th. We wi'l allow the management takes away the $1,500,000 rest and $1,000,000 from the capital account, in all, $2,500,000 and places $2,000,000 to one side for losses, and creates a new rest fund of $500,000, they then would have two millions capital and half a million rest fund, in which case the present or old stock should be worth 75.

5th. If you wait until Mr. Yarker publishes his statement, and my reason No. 1 should be right, you will find all at once there will be no sellers under 75, and the golden opportunity lost.

formation which it has gathered as to the true condition of the bank and what its future is likely to be.

The first statement we would make, and it is on the authority of Mr. Yarker, is that the bank is not going to liquidate;

Secondly, that the capital stock is going

San Francisco.

From the San Francisco Chronicle, July 22.

Pursuant to the action of the Canadian parliament, in session last winter, resulting from the introduction of a resolution inter dicting the further immigration of Chinese into British Columbia, final action on which was deferred pending the appointment and report of a commission of inquiry, there are now in San Francisco the Hon. J. A. Chapeau, member, and Hon. N. Flood Davin, secretary, members of a royal commission of two, delegated by the Canadian government to inquire into Chinese immigration.

ment to inquire into Chinese immigration.
The initial meeting of the commission will be held this afternoon at the Palace hotel. In reply to questions submitted by a Chronicle reporter, Mr. Davin said:
"The commission thought the most favorable points at which to make examination were San Francisco and Victoria, B.C. In this city it expects to complete its labors in the course of a fortnight, when it will depart for the city last named. The commission has no foregone conclusion. It tis labors in the course of a fortnight, when it will depart for the city last named. The commission has no foregone conclusion. It comes to the Pacific coast to arrive at facts connected with this immigration, to learn if there are any and what grounds for the cry against it and to put the government in possession of such facts as are ascertained at the places mentioned. It is expected that within the next week or so the leading men of San Francisco and those having an opportunity of specially informing themselves on this subject will be communicated with. The first governmental recognition of the question occurred in a report made to parliament in 1872, indicating that there was then a doubt in the minds of the people as to the feasibility or advisability of permitting further Mongolian immigration. It is, however, repellant to British institutions, and consequently Canadian, to debar any man or race the privilege of living under its protection or of enjoying its institutions. The fact, however, that the Chinese are not better liked in British Columbia than in the Pacific states and territories impels our government to inquire into the matter."

The French Canadian Banks. Mottreal, July 30.—The announcement made yesterday that the Banque du Peuple intended, passing its usual half yearly dividend of 2½ per cent. has had the effect of further depreciating the stock this morning, 43 being offered and 47 asked. A good deal of gossip has taken place to-day on the subject, and it is stated on reliable authority that amongst the on reliable authority that amongst the "lockups" referred to yesterday are a large block of cotton stocks held for discounts to a well-known French Canadian speculator and politician. The bank is one of the oldest financial institutions in the city, having been established in 1855, since which time, until now, it has regularly paid dividends. Its charter is a peculiar one. It has no double liability clause, but the directors are personably responsible for its liabilities to the full extent of their means. The talk is revived of uniting the small French banks into one large with a capital of $5,000,000 with branches throughout the province. Montreal Witness: Some changes in the dominion ministry are, it is reported, about to be made. New, sonny, that'll do-don't you say an ther word against selfishness. I believe in elfishness, I do, really—can't imagine how this planet could get along without it. It is very charming, this every day talk about the and all the other current phrase-coin we are so familiar with, but believe me sonny, it is the individual good to each that really rolls the old chariot along. Selfishness builds railways, churches, schools, hospitals; dredges canals: pidemics are on the warpath—insists on the ull enjoyments of civil and religious liberty rompts men to "flee from hell and rise to eaven." Oh! you'll better believe in selfishness, it's a valuable quality to possess, a won-derful motive power. Your eyes grow large, your hands are uplifted and outspread like two fans as you listen to a certain tale of wonerful self-sacrifice. You think it is away beond you-to renounce so much for the goo of others—so unselfish. Sonny—that's all you know about it. When you go and do likewise know about it. When you go and do likewise you will find it to be the sublimity of selfishness, that the possession of all that has been reneunced could not afford a tithe of the self-satisfaction, the exquisite enjoyment of having been able to do it for duty's sake. You ought to feel how a fellow's conscience comes, purring, and fawning, and rubbing you down softly as you sit alone in the dark after any such sacrifice! Mind you, sonny, conscience said was her own. On July 28, was asked such sacrince: Anima you, soling, constitution is a great good to selfishness. It has an inveterate habit of walking around within you all hours of the day, and of tossing and groaning all hours of the night—you must attend to sundry sins of omission as well as commission, t will not down unless you do—and if you are a properly selfish man you will see to thes things right away. You can't afford to los your rest. No selfish man can. Self-preservation is the first law of nature, self-gratifica selfishness, sonny. It's a noble quality. The other thing which people miscall selfishness is simply stupidity, and devilishness. The man who sees others lack enjoyment which he could give, yet withholds, is stupid; because he denies himself the most exquisite enj ment in life, the luxury of making oth

THE BABY FARMING CASE

THE INQUEST CONTNUED BY CORO-NER DUNCAN.

Additional Evidence Given by Medical Men—An Adjournment Made at Mid-night Till To-Morrow.

The adjourned inquest on the body of the child who was supposed to have been starved to death by Christina Leslie was held last night at the morgue before Cor ouer Duncan.

The first witness called was Jessie Mary Jones, mother of the child. She said that on June 10 Mrs. Leslie came to the lyingin-hospital. I gave her the child and $6 in advance. The $6 was to pay for keep of the child. I visited the child at Mrs. Lesdealers will be held at the store of Kennedy & Fortier, 186 Yonge street, at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning to discuss the closing of their places of business at 7 o'clock, instead of at 10 and 11 p. m. as at present. All dealers are requested to attend, and any members of the trades unions who are in favor of shorter hours and who will lend their aid are invited to be present.

The Mount Zion congregational church Sunday school, East Toronto, held their annual picnic at Victoria park on July 28. About 475 friends and scholars spent a very enjoyable day. The various games were enjoyed by the scholars, and a liberal supply of good things satisfied their hunlie's house on Montrose street five weeks Woods) took the dead child to an undertaker.

Dr. Carroll sworn, said: I was called to attend a case at Mrs. Lealie's. I found several children sucking at bottles, and reasonably clean. One child was in its mother's arms. It was covered with sores. I said it was not likely to live. I could not say the children were not properly seen after, but I considered they were too much for one woman. I held a post mortem examination on a child in the morgue on the morning of July 28. There was a slight abrasion on the skull. There was no mark on the brain corresponding with the mark. This was not the cause of death. The state of the body showed a lack of nourishment. The body was so decomposed that the post mortem was unsatisfactory. The stomach contained half a pint of watery fluid, and the bowels were shrivelled up to half size. The stomach only contained two teaspoonsful of food. There was no appearance of milk in the food. In my opinion the child came to its death from chronic wasting caused by insufficient nourishment. It is possible a neglect of cleanliness hastened death.

To the coroner—I did not attend the child on whom I made the post morten to my knowledge. There were six children in the house when I called at Mrs. Les-

THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 31, 1884.

This is the title of a pamphlet of 184 pages recently published by Mr. J. Travis. a leading lawyer, late of the New Bruns wick bar. The author's aim seems to have been to produce a work that can be digested by the lay as well as the legal reader, and it may be said at the outset that he has accomplished his object. The book is timely, because it devotes itself to such portions of the Canadian constitution as are every day being variously interpreted, and giving rise to confusion and the clashing of legislative authority The chief points with which Mr. Travis concerns himself are the two principle ways in which the overlapping phraseology i the 91st and 92d sections of the B. N. A. act relating to the distribution of legislative power has been interpreted. Accord ing to the author's view, the meaning of the act is clear, and there is not any real contradiction of terms in it. He proceeds to elaborate proof of his contentions and it must be admitted makes out a very good case. His style is vivacions direct and trenchant; he strikes straight at the mark, and calls everything by its proper name. A fearful scathing doe ne give the judges of the supreme no respect for the legal insight of these gentlemen, but the decisions of Chief Justice Ritchie call forth his frequent approbation. When Mr. Travis errs, he errs on the side of sincerity and frankness. We do not agree with him in his estimate of some of the judges arraigned, and we should be sorry that the general reader of his pamphlet should. The book is having a very extensive sale, is creditable to the legal skill and the industry of the author. and is well worth getting and reading. The University Question.

cussed from the point of view of the recent onference of representatives from the denominational colleges with the minister of education, held in this city last week. In the course of the article the Guardian

Should the federation scheme fall from that cause, the blame must rest on those whose zeal for University college was not controlled by patriotism and wisdom. As far as we can understand the situation, it seems to be this: The minister of education has, on behalf of the Ontario government, consulted with the representatives of all the university colleges The minister of education has, on behalf of the Ontario government, consulted with the representatives of all the university colleges and theological schools, in order to get infor-mation as to the state of sentiment on this subject; and we have no doubt the govern-ment means to take up the matter in good earnest and formulate some scheme for the university work of the country.

Now the Guardian, we take it, has made a great mistake if it imagines that the government is going to take upon itself the formation and formulation of the scheme in question. The province has now a system of education of its own, and so have the denominations. If the latter wish to come forward and join in federation, all well and good, but to formulate a scheme on which this shall be done does not devolve on the government. We are confident that no minister of education could devise a scheme that would meet with the approbation of all, or the majority of the colleges, and some of them we know only await the opportunity for the minister to commit himself so that they may have a continuous describing Tennyson, and yet it bears its Affennoon Board — Montreal 184-187.

A city contemporary which has sought a fair wind in many quarters and found it in none, is now trying to raise a Mowat v. Blake boom. The attempt must fail, because there is nothing behind it. The provincial position to which Mr. Mowat lined with thought is still full of calls.

The minister, we believe, is prepared to entertain any proposition the denominational colleges may make, and to try and harmonize the provincial system therewith, but he is not prepared we should judge to do the work that the denominational colleges must perform themselves.

The new premier of Nova Scotia, Hon, W. S. Fielding, is in the best sense of the expression, a "self-made man." He is a Bluenose by birth, and at a very early age entered the office of the Halifax short time after his advent, both John Chronicle, then owned and edited by the Hon, William Armand, a personal friend through his efforts. Mr. Blake has his and political adherent of the late Joseph weaknesses, particularly upon the trade Howe. Mr. Fielding raised himself by his question, but to say he has accomplished ability and perseverance through all the nothing for his party is to fly in the face of gradations of the Chronicle office, from the notorious facts. We do not go into the position of a carrier of papers to details of the case, simply because there is that of managing editor, which he has occupied successfully for several years. He became a member of the legislative supplant Mr. Blake as the reform leader in the seame a member of the legislative assembly in 1882, being one of the four representatives elected for the city and county of Halifax. On the defeat of the conservative government in that year he was offered the premiership, but declined it, and the task of forming a liberal administration was entrusted to the late premier, Mr. Pipes, whose resignation brought about the present reconstruction. Mr. Fielding was born in 1848, and is therefore in the very prime of life. Our western journalists remained him as gifted with a manner that may be described as a combination of affa. billity and energy. To has excellent conversational powers, is a good public speaker, possesses good administrative abilities,

The racing associations and jockey lubs seem honestly anxious to reform horse racing, and to this end they have be gun a system of punishment of those con victed of improper practices that ought to end in the comparative cleansing of the turf. The punishment is a very effective one, namely, the ruling off of all horse owners or jockeys caught in any kind of dishonesty in regard to a horse, and the further disqualification of any horse that has been dishonestly run. Any man or

Ever since the know-nothing days of ome thirty years ago, when the houses of German and Irish residents in American cities were wrecked because the occupant were Irish and German, the Irish vote has gone solidly with the democrats. The motive for this line of conduct may not have been a lofty one, but it was perfectly in-telligible. In the present campaign an effort is being made to deflect the Irish vote to Blaine, because of his alleged hostility to England. This sort of thing is fair in war, as party warfare goes, but the character of the man who heads the movenent will make every decent Irish American ashamed of it. The most regrettable part of the dispute which arose in the four-oared race at the amateur regatta on Tuesday is the fact that a large amount of money was put up on the race, and that men are going around shouting about the foul and the decision of the referee, governed more by regard for their money which they have ventured on the result than regard for amateur sports. To say that he has "failed, irretrievably failed," is to contradict the party history of the last decade. Up to the time of his advent upon the scene the reform party had accomplished nothing subsequent to confederation. I ask, sir, is it natural for men to bring themselves down to the level of the brute beast and strike and tear each other until their faces are nothing more than a mass of blood and cut up flesh. I prepose that our city council at once take hold of the matter and put a stop to it in Toronto, and I have no hesitation in saying that by our example other cities will be led to abolish this wretched evil. I hope to hear the opinion of others of your readers on the subject.

All the hard words used merely expose the hypocrisy of the writer in assuming the title of Truthseeker.

In 1866 the laws regulating taverns and drinking resorts were made more stringent in most of the German states, but the trade law (Gewerbe-Gesetz) of 1869 adopted by the imperial government made inoperative many of the provisions of those laws. VOT OF THIS WORLD.

There entered one day the church of a certain secure convent in Madrid, the name of hich tradition has not preserved for us, Petr Paul Rubens, the great Flemish master, accompanied by a few of his chosen pupils.

It was a habit the master had, this of entering the various churches he passed on his y by through the streets of the Spanish capital. But the faits apparently gave imittle pleasure, for he always emerged into the street again inveighing against the barbaric want of taste displayed by the Castilian friars in their sacred edifices.

To-day the bare, dismantled interior of the church to which he had penetrated offered him even less inducement than usual as targer.

He was about to depart when his eyes happened to fall on a canvas balf hidden in the gloomy recess of a tawdry chapel.

"To do with the world. Let him die in peace."

"You ask a strange thing of me, father. When God lights the sacred fire of genius in a human soul, it is not that it may be hidden under a bushel and go out in darkness. It should accomplish its sublime mission and give light to other men. Tell met he rionastery where this great artist hides himself. I will seek him out. He must be given back to his country. What glorious fame awaits him!"

"And," said the prior, in a low voice, "the should, I shall apply to the pope, who honors me with his friendship, and perhaps his holiness may convince him."

"Ah, you see I was right in refusing to give you his name, or that of the monastery in which he conceals himself."

"Then, father," cried Rubens, a flush mounting to his brow, "perhaps the pope and the king may induce you to break your silence. I shall see that it be done."

"Oh, no, no; you will not do this thing, Senor Rubens!" exclaimed the monk. "It will be wrong—very wrong. Take the picture if you like, but leave him who is at stant.

"What is it, master?"
"Look—look there!" said the author of the Descent From the Cross, and pointed the Descent From the Cross, and pointed to the canvas.

It represented the death of a monk.

The monk was young, and his face hat a beauty which neither long penance, no fasting, nor the throes of death had succeeded in obscuring. He lay on the bare bricks of his cell, the one hand grasping a skull, the other pressing a wooden crucifix to his breast, and over his eyes the deathfilm had gathered.

In the background of this picture there was a second one. It hung over the narwas a second one. It hung over the nar-row pallet from which, one inferred, the monk had risen to die with greater humility on the bare floor. It represented a beautiful woman stretched on a bier shrouded in sumptuous black draperies, and with the light of wax tapers in tall candlesticks streaming upon her dead a teal

As the eye rested on these two scenes, the one contained in the other, the meaning of each, the fact that one completed and explained the other, forced itself clearly on the mind.

An unhappy love, dead hopes, a blighted life, a renunciation of the world—this was the mysterious drama reproduced on the canvas at which Rubens and his pupils now gazed.

And in drawing, in coloring, in composition, the picture attested the hand of a that in drawing, in coloring, in composition, the picture attested the hand of a genius.

"Who can have painted this magnificent work, master?" came in a chorus from the master's pupils.

"There has evidently been a signature in this corner," said Rubens; "but it has been crased, and quite lately, I should judge. The picture is not more than thirty years old, I think, nor less than twenty. As to the author, judging from the merit of the work, he might be Velasquez, Zurbaran, Ribera, or that young genius Murillo, of whom I am so much enamored. But Velasquez does not conceive things in this way; nor is the coloring or composition in Zurbaran's manner. Murillo is more tender, and Ribera has a more some style; besides the work does not belong to the school of either.

"No, I do not know the author, I am sure, and I should be willing to affirm that I have never before seen any of his work. I go still further. I do not believe the artist, unknown and perhaps no longer living, who has given the world this wonderful legacy, ever beloaged to any school, or ever painted anything but this one picture, or ever could have approached it in point to fine man's life. But what a conception! Do you want to know who painted this picture? Well, that dead monk there!"

"Master, you sare joking."

"No, no. I know what I say. To join eartain monastic orders, you know, is to die to all intents and purposes—to die to the world."

"Ah, you think—"

"Ah, you think—"

"At think the woman stretched on that "We work, we ken a genius and blies of that the was all and life of that the was right when he said is dead monk was the portrait of the art himself, and, moreover, that the west picture is the first the with of the art himself, and, moreover, that the west picture was painted, and think when he said is dead monk was the portrait of the art himself, and, moreover, that the which, the master holds, have elapseed, nee the picture was painted, and think when he said is dead monk was the portrait of the art himself, and, moreover, that the w

"Ah, you think—"
"I think the woman stretched on that bier there was the soul and life of that monk, that when she died it was his death, too; that he did die, in point of death, too; that he did die, in point of fact, to the world, from that moment. I believe this work represents his spiritual dying to the world of its author rather than his spiritual death. Accordingly he may still be living to-day, and as in the thirty years' time the traces of many a tragic episode have a chance to become effaced, I should not wonder at al! if he were a very fat and jolly old gentleman. We must certainly look him up, and, above all, find out if he ever painted anything else."

thing else."
An elderly monk was kneeling in an adjacent chapel. Rubens approached and asked him where he could find the prior of asked him where he could find the prior of the convent. The monk rose to his feet with some difficulty.

"I am the prior," he said in a low, rather broken voice.

"Pardon me, father, for interrupting your devotions," said Rubens with the bright courtesy which lent so great a charm to his manner; "but can you tell me who is the author of that picture?"

"Of that picture? What will you think of me if I tell you I have forgotten?"

"Of that picture? What will you think of me if I tell you I have forgotten?"
"What! You know and you have for-"Yes, my son. I have forgotten—forgotten completely."
"Your memory is poor, father," cried Rubens, with an indignant tone of irony he did not try to suppress.

The prior turned from him without answer, and knelt down as before.

"Father, I am here in the name of the king," said Rubens, haughtily. The pamd pet of royalty was little accustome pered pet of royalty was not to this sort of treatment.

The monk slowly raised his head.
"What more do you wish, my son?"
"I wish to buy that picture." "It cannot be sold, my son."
"Then tell me, at least, where its autho may be found. The king will want to know him and I must congratulate him, tell him of my admiration—"

"All that cannot be. The author is no longer of this world.
"Not dead, father—not dead? And no "Not dead, father—not dead: And to one knew him—his name has been forgotone knew him—his hame has been ingotten! It should have been immortal! It would have eclipsed mine—I am Peter Paul Rubens, father," he added simply.

At that famous name, familiar all over the civilized world, and connected in the heart of every man leading a monastic life with innumerable, religious paintings of marvellous beauty, the prior's pale face flushed, and his sunken eyes fixed themselves on the stranger's face with a look of weneration and surprise.

"Ah, I see that you know me!" cried Rubens, smiling with naive satisfaction.

"Well, perhaps you will treat me better now. So, then—will you sell me that picture?"

"I must repeat, it is impossible."

"Then do you know of any other work by the same hand? At least, tell me when "You misunderstand me," began the prior. "I told you he belonged no longer to the world; but that does not signify—"
"He is living. Then I must know him."
"To what end? He has renounced all that belongs to this life—he has nothing

The largest organ in the world has just been completed by Walck of Ludwigsburg, and placed in the cathedral church of Riga. The instrument measures thirty-six feet in width, thirty-two feet from back to front, and is sixty-five feet high. It contains 6826 pipes, distributed among 124 sounding stops.

An eccentric character in Milwaukee, known as the "Count," who has just been arrested for swindling a bank in Sweden, distinguished himself particularly by spending as much as $1000 a week for wine. One way of accomplishing such a feat was to use bottles of champagne as tenpins, and smash nearly a case of Clicquot at one "strike."

M. Gottinger, a distinguished Alpinist from Zurich, was making, with two guides, the ascent of the Grande Jorasse, one of the summits of Mont Blanc, when the party was surprised by an avalanche of stones. After a few minutes the guides coming out of their hiding places, found M Gottinger with a foot cut off and badly wounded on the head. He soon expired.

Seth Green states that the cause of the death of the vast number of alewives, the bodies of which are found floating on Lake Ontario, is starvation. He says they travel about in large schools, the strong ones naturally taking the lead and getting most of the food. Those in the rear get positively nothing at all, yet they will follow the school day after day until they die of actual starvation.

A very interesting curiosity is shown in a show window in Pittsburg. It is a miniature working model of the largest steam hammer in the world—the Cruzot hammer in France. The model is simply a clock, and the great hammer which in one case weighs a hundred tons, in the other is a pendulum that moves noiselessly up and down. Not a single detail in the great hammer is omitted in the smaller.

Much has been said as to women physical Much has been said as to woman physicians in Russia, but according to a competent authority there are only some 250, and whatever their acquirements and abilities they are only allowed to treat the diseases of women and children. Even in country districts, where there is, perhaps, no male physician within fifty miles, apothecaries have been forbidden to put up a prescription emanating from a woman. Some of the Italian papers are crying out for a return to the death penalty on the score of economy. "Lifers" have, it is argued, their lives actually prolonged by the kind care the government takes of them. Such prisoners are not assailed by thetroubles which befall men mingling in the battle of life, and have no other receives battle of life, and have no other occupa-tion than to eat repasts which they know will never fail them. They thus lead a will never fail them. They thus lead a regular life, protected from the excesses which abridge human existence, and it has been found that prisoners for life live to an age far beyond that of other prisoners.

Santa Clara county, California, is, perhaps, the only place in this country, pro-bably in the world, where three crops of fruit have been taken off trees in one year. As an instance the San Jose Times recently asid: "Mrs. J. M. Water Colors of John A. Fraser.

From the Boston Post.

Examples of the work of John A. Fraser ave been only occasionally seen in a few of our local exhibitions but a number of important works in water color, which he has shown privately in his studio in Lawrence building, have been greatly and very justly admired by those who have had the pleasure of examining them. The pictures were principally views in the great Northwest along the line or in the vicinity of the Canadian Pacific railroad and were painted

Canadian Pacific railroad and were painted on commission for parties who had ordered them from the eriginal sketches. As a water colorist Mr. Fraser adheres to a considerable extent to the traditions of the English school with its painstaking attention to details, but his method departs a great deal from that in the direction of breadth and strength and a certain quality of impressionism. His work displays those different qualities, happily balanced, in a very effective manner. He is exceptionally good as a draughtsman and in his color, which is strong, pure and clear. Two or three of his larger drawings are remarkably strong works. One is a view of a waterfall in the mountainns, notable for the ad-

Her own high ideas of her art were well expressed in the rebuke she administered to one of her admirers in Milan, who begged her to shorten her dress "just a little." "Signor," replied the dancer, "I do not dance for men. I dance for wives and for daughters."

The number of splendid old trees in the duchy of Coburg is due to the forethought and liberality of the father of the reigning duke. Beer Drinking and Heart Diesase. From the Philadelphia Medical News. The habitual consumption of beer in ex essive quantities tends to hypertrophy by the direct action of alcohol upon the heart by the enormous amount of fluid intro duced into the body, and by the easily assimilated nutritive constituents of the beer itself. Furthermore, such habita are often associated with great bodily activity and at least relatively luxurious manner of life. The average weight of the normal heart in men is relatively greater in Munich than elsewhere, a fact, without doubt, dependent upon the excessive consumption of beer in that city. The characteristic changes in the form of hypertrophy under consideration consist in the participation of both sides of the heart and in an enoromous increase in the volume of assimilated nutritive constituents of th three of his larger drawings are remarkably a strong works. One is a view of a waterfall in the mountainns, notable for the admirable manner in which the rocky canon is painted, and for the clear, limpid quality of the water. A more picturesque subject shows a river, with a rudely constructed ferry wharf and steps in the foreground, a broad statecth of land and a few houses in the middle distance, and a range of mountains in the back ground. The composition is very pleasing, and the picture is full of light and air. The sky is beautifully about the mountain summits, are as effective bits of work of their kind as one often sees. These, with other works which Mr. Fraser has lately completed, are the surest evidence that he is one of our strongest water colorists, and we are certain that a fuller display of his work than he has yet been able to make here would create a very positive and pleasing impression in art circles.

MILITIA. SEALED TENDERS Marked on the left hand corner of envelope, "Tenders for Militia Clothing and General Store Supplies," and addressed to the Honorable the Minister of Militia and Defence, will be received up to noon of

MONDAY, the 11th AUGUST, 1884. PRINTED FORMS OF TENDERS. taining full particulars, may be obtained in the department at Ottawa and at the owing Militia Stores, where also sealed terns of all articles may be seen, viz.:

The office of the Superintendents of Stores at London, Toronto, Kingston, Montreal, Quebec and St. John, N. B. Tenders not in relation with sealed patterns of the Department or accompanied by special patterns will not be received. No tender will be received unless made on printed forms furnished by the Department.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted Canadian bank check for an amount equal to 10 per cent of the total value of the articles tendered for, which will be forfeited if the party making the tender declines to sign a contract when called upon to do so, or if he fails to complete the service contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the check will be returned.

The Department will not be bound to accept the lowest or any tender.

C. EUG. PANET.

Deputy of the Minister of Militia and Defence. Ottawa, 4th July, 1884.

INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY

The direct route from the West for all points in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Cape Breton and Newfoundland.

All the popular sea bathing, fishing and pleasure resorts of Canada are along this line. Pullman cars leaving Montreal on Monday, Wednesday and Friday run through to Halifax and on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday to St. John, N. B., without change.

Close connections made at Pointe Levis or Chaudiere Junction with the Grand Trunk Rallway and at Pointe Levis with the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company's Steamers from Montreal.

Elegant first-class Pullman and Smoking cars on all through trains.

First-class refreshment rooms at convenient distances.

IMPORTERS AND EXPORTERS will find it advantageous to use this route as it is the quickest in point of time, and the rates are as low as by any other.

Through freight is forwarded by fast special trains and experience has proved the Intercolonial route to be the quickest for European freight to and from all points in Canada and the Western states.

Tickets may be obtained and also information about the route and about freight and passenger rates from western Freight and Passenger Agent,
