Thirty-Four Rejected Ones to Be Examined.

Napanee, June 5.—Judge Wilkinson commenced the recount of ballots deposited at the late election in Lennox this morning at 9 o'clock.

Overcame Difficulties

Lord Kitchener had to meet with many difficulties. He had created no fewer than 4000 miles of blockhouses, and in the conduct of the campaign, he had shown the fertile range of his resources, boundless courage, energy and resolution.

Redmond Favored Vote

The Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, who had introduced a motion, paid a warm tribute to Lord Kitchener as a soldier and statesman.

John Dillon (Irish Nationalist), led the opposition in behalf of the Nationalists.

Additional Reason

During the course of his speech, Mr. Redmond indulged in considerable violence of language, and had to be refreshed by a drink, brought in from the bar.

Nothing Done Yet

HON. MR. TARTE'S STRENUOUS IMPERIALISTIC VIEWS MADE CAPTAINS OF INDUSTRY STAND UP AND CHEER

"Canada for Canadians" Pervades the Atmosphere at the Board of Trade Banquet—Fast Atlantic Line Must be Canadian and Outside the Grasp of Morgan—Hon. G. W. Ross Declares Canada Has the Map of the World Before Her and Should Make a Ferry of the Atlantic.

The banquet tendered to the delegates to the conference of boards of trade of the Dominion by the Toronto Board of Trade in the Pavilion in the Allan Gardens last night was a success in the fullest sense. From beginning to end the arrangements were carried out with a pleasingly befitting occasion, and every one in attendance will find it hard to have long and pleasant recollections of the happy event.

Hon. Mr. Tarte Speaks. In responding to the toast, Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Public Works, was the first speaker. He was greeted with enthusiastic applause. At the outset he said: "I hope we have made up our minds to be masters of our own destiny. [Cheers.] We are going to have transportation thru Canadian channels, in Canadian bottoms, transportation on Canadian railways, on Canadian soil and thru Canadian ports and harbors. We must have a Canadian policy on land and sea. [Applause.]"

Mr. Tarte followed. He spoke of the honor and integrity of the British empire. [Cheers.] Happily the war was over, and it had left the empire more powerful and more respected among the nations of the earth than at any other time in its history. [Applause.]

He would echo the sentiment of Mr. Tarte, when he said that the Boers had shown themselves a gallant people. We welcomed them as brothers into the British family. They had lost their flag, it was true, but they had gained far more than they lost, in the enjoyment of civil and religious liberty. It was gratifying to see the descendants of those who fought under Wolfe and Montcalm working hand in hand to promote British institutions in Canada. Continuing the hon. gentleman spoke of the splendid work done by the Canadians in the South African war, and of the steps being taken to establish a steamship service between Canada and Australia, which would be realized in about two months.

Another Union. Judge Morrison of Newfoundland was the next speaker. He hoped the proposal of annexation would be welcomed with the same acclaim as he had been received with. He said the time had come when there should be closer relations between the two countries. His would inform them that there was no sentiment whatever in Newfoundland for annexation by the United States. [Applause.] If it were Canada, that French shore question would be settled by Mr. Tarte within six months. [Applause.] He assured the gathering that with annexation Canada would have practically all the trade with them in a very few years. Proceeding, he reviewed the resources and possibilities of the island.

PAVILION IN ALLAN GARDENS BURNED TO THE GROUND THIS MORNING.

At 2.30 this morning the pavilion in Allan Gardens caught fire and went up in smoke, as if it had been a lace curtain. Caretaker Watson says he left the building at 2. Then some of McConkey's men were removing the utensils of the banquet. That's the last he knew of it till it was in ashes. He retired at a quarter past two, and had no sooner got to sleep when he was awakened by a cry of fire. Patrol Sergeant Willis returned in an alarm and the whole brigade responded. At 10 minutes to three the supporting timbers gave way. The brigade turned its attention to saving the conservatory, in which were kept a large collection of valuable plants, donated by Sir David Macpherson. Many valuable shade trees, near to pavilion, were destroyed. One of the trees was planted by the King when he visited Canada as Prince of Wales. Another was planted by Prince Arthur. The grounds are considerably damaged.

A COLONIAL ZOLLVEREIN
BY WATSON GRIFFIN.

The weakness of the British empire lies in the fact that the colonies, although loyal to the Mother Country, are not in touch with one another. What does the average Canadian know about the Australian colonies? A letter from an Australian, who thought the cities of Vancouver and Halifax were only a few miles apart, was held up to ridicule by some of our Canadian newspapers not long ago. How many Canadians know the location of the leading Australian cities and how many miles they are from each other. At the time of the Colonial Conference in Canada, the New Zealand delegate was astonished when an intelligent Ottawa merchant, being told that he came from Wellington, New Zealand, asked if there was any railway communication between Wellington and Melbourne. The New Zealander had to explain that over 1200 miles of ocean separated his country from Australia. Canadian ignorance of the British West Indies is equally lamentable. The average Canadian knows all about the United States, but he knows almost nothing about the empire of which Canada forms a part.

When four of the British North American Provinces confederated in 1867 to form the Canadian Dominion, it was regarded by many Englishmen as the first step on the road toward separating from the empire. Now, however, every one acknowledges that the confederation of the Canadian provinces was the first great step toward the perpetuation of the British empire. The Australian colonies, after a long delay, followed Canada's example, and it is expected that soon after the restoration of peace in South Africa some kind of federal union will be established there. The union of British North America will not be complete while Newfoundland holds aloof, and the failure to bring that province into the Dominion is not creditable to Canadian statesmanship, but it will probably join the confederation before long, and perhaps the annexation of the British West Indies to Canada may also be brought about. The confederation of the Americas would complete the Dominion; there could be no further extension of territory subject to Canadian jurisdiction. But this does not necessarily mean that our present isolation from the British colonies in the Pacific and in South Africa must always be maintained. The bonds of empire may be very greatly strengthened without any extension of Canadian territory.

The question, therefore, naturally arises, Who is to secure the bulk of the trade to be offered? The fight for commercial supremacy on the Pacific will undoubtedly be fought between the British Empire and the United States. Up to date England has figured largely in the Japanese and Chinese trade, but the Mother Country herself is thus handicapped by nature in the trade with the Orient, Canada is in a position to act as her representative in the pending contest. British Columbia ports are nearer Japan and China than the Pacific ports of the United States, and Canada is just as well able to supply the needs of the Orient as is the republic to the south of us. And Australia is also so situated, geographically, as to be able to take a hand in the competition for the trade of the Far East. Thus represented by two strenuous colonies, the British Empire should procure its full share of the prize offered.

Preparation for the struggle are already being made. The Canadian Pacific Railway's steamship service, now the most famous on the Pacific, is being improved and greatly added to, and the United States commercial fleet for the Orient trade is being increased by several fine vessels, now under construction for the Pacific Mail Company and the Great Northern Railway. J. J. Hill's road. Herein lies another argument for Imperial Federation. Two of England's sister States are in a position to help her maintain her commercial supremacy in the Far East, and in other parts of the world.

It looks as if, aside from the personality of the candidates, the chief issue in the pending presidential campaign of two years hence will be the tariff. Several boards of trade of the Eastern cities have passed resolutions in favor of reciprocity arrangements with other countries, and especially with Canada. At the same time, the West has expressed its unwillingness to see the tariff lowered in order to lower the present duties and secure new markets for American products. There is a feeling of disappointment among some classes that Congress took no action looking to this end at last session, and unless the party in power acts the Democrats are likely to have a strong card in the cry that lower tariff against the world and improved reciprocal relations with other countries.

THE BOARDS OF TRADE CONFERENCE.

Having on Wednesday dealt with the Imperial preferential tariff idea, the Dominion Boards of Trade Conference yesterday considered other means of furthering the trade between the Mother Country and the outlying sections of the Empire. And some of the recommendations adopted were big with possibilities. One was that England and the other colonies should adopt a policy under which subsidized fast steamship lines should be established for the encouragement and control of trade between the United Kingdom and her possessions. The inauguration of a fast passenger service between Britain and Canada was especially mentioned, and the Dominion government was urged to subsidize freight lines between Canadian Atlantic ports and South Africa and Australia and British Columbia ports and the Antipodes.

The discussion of defense measures, however, monopolized the attention of the day's deliberations, and a vote was taken to continue this morning. The majority of the speakers seemed to favor the participation by Canada in Imperial defense, but the feeling was general that some steps should be taken for the purpose should be controlled and administered by the government at Ottawa. In other words, the consensus of opinion was that Canada could best bear her share of Imperial defense by preparing to defend her own section of the Empire.

When the resolutions authorizing the Canadian government to pay five-eighths of the cost of the Pacific cable were introduced in the Canadian parliament, the Canadian parties unanimously supported them. It is unfortunate that another question that came up in the House of Commons, that conference passed the following resolutions regarding preferential trade:

"Whereas the stability and progress of the British empire can be best assured by drawing continually closer the bonds that unite the colonies with the Mother Country, and by the continuous growth of a practical sympathy and co-operation which pertains to the common welfare;

"And, whereas, the co-operation and unity can in no way be more effectually promoted than by the cultivation and extension of the mutual and profitable interchange of their products;

"Therefore, resolved: That this conference records its belief in the advisability of a customs arrangement between Great Britain and her colonies than that which can be placed on a more favorable footing than that which is carried on with foreign countries;

"Further resolved: That until the Mother Country can see her way to enter into a customs arrangement with her colonies, it is desirable that, when disposed to accede to this view, take steps to place each other's products on a more favorable customs basis than is accorded to the like products of foreign countries;

"And, further resolved: That for the purposes of this resolution the South African customs union be considered as part of the territory capable of being brought within the contemplated trade arrangements."

The representatives of five of the colonies, Canada, Victoria, Tasmania, Queensland and the Cape of Good Hope, favored these resolutions, while the representatives of three colonies, New South Wales, New Zealand and Newfoundland, opposed them.

Mr. Alexander McNeill's famous preferential trade motion in the Canadian House of Commons was, precisely the same as the first of these resolutions. Mr. McNeill's resolution was as follows:

"That it is advisable that a customs arrangement be effected between the United Kingdom and her colonies, by which the Mother Country should be placed upon a more favorable footing than that which is carried on with foreign countries."

Every Conservative member of parliament voted in favor of Mr. McNeill's resolution; every Liberal voted against it.

The motion at the Colonial Conference, in opposing Imperial preferential trade, used much the same line of argument as the Canadian Liberals did in opposing Mr. McNeill's resolution. They argued that free trade was the best policy for the United Kingdom, that the British people would never consent to abandon that policy, and it would be wrong and foolish for the colonies to regard the advisability of asking Britain to abandon her free trade policy, and to charge the large users much more than they charge them at present, or to cease developing the business and abolishing their cheaper rates. In either case he has the right to reckon with, as to obtain the right by ordinance to raise rates is one thing, while to get the public to accept an increase without angry protest is quite another.

The experience of the Maryland Telephone Company is about what has been forecast by many observers, both in and out of independent ranks, as the inevitable result of attempting to operate a telephone system in a large city at flat rates, suitable only for a small place. The outcome of the Baltimore situation will be watched with interest by all telephone men, and especially by those interested in telephone co-operations.

The scheme contemplates a line of steamers running to China, Japan and Australia, from Vancouver, B.C., Canada, and Australia is expected to join the line by paying the subsidies. The draft of the scheme involves the total expenditure of $1,000,000, and the Dominion government guaranteeing a small interest on the capital involved. This would have to be ratified by the House of Commons, "where," says The Westminster Gazette, "it will probably meet with opposition."

It is probable that most of them would soon follow Canada's example in making the tariff on foreign imports much higher than 20 per cent.

The present trade between the British colonies is so small that none of them would lose a large amount of revenue by the immediate abolition of all duties on the products of sister colonies.

It may be objected that such a customs arrangement between the British colonies could not with strict accuracy be called a Zollverein. The word "Zollverein" has been generally used in the past to designate a customs union of German states before the establishment of the Empire, and has been said that it can only be applied to a union of contiguous countries under a common tariff and a common system of collecting duties. However, there is no good reason why the word should have such a restricted application. Being derived from "Zoll"—duty—and "verein"—union—it is susceptible of a broad signification, and it is the most convenient word to describe a free trade union of British colonies with protection against foreign countries. The Australian colonies and the Canadian Dominion were contiguous to it would be impossible to arrange for free trade between them without a common tariff as it would be to secure commercial union or "unrestricted reciprocity" between Canada and the United States unless the Dominion and the Republic could agree to impose precisely the same duties on all articles imported from other countries, and have a common system of collecting duties, but the fact that Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa are separated by thousands of miles of ocean makes it possible to arrange for free trade between them without any one of them relinquishing control over its own tariff.

It is not likely that the United Kingdom would very soon agree to impose a protective tariff of not less than 20 per cent. for foreign products for the sake of securing free trade within the empire, but if the British parliament would adopt such a tariff the preference for colonial products in the British market would so greatly stimulate the development of Canada that our manufacturers could well afford to endure British competition. We have greater stores of raw materials than the United Kingdom, and cheaper power, owing to our numerous waterfalls. Under a system of imperial preferential trade the rates of interest and the wages of labor would soon become equalized. It would be a great blunder to reduce the protection which our manufacturers have against British manufacturers so long as our products receive no better treatment in the British market than foreign products, and even a small discrimination in our favor would not be sufficient compensation for free admission of British products into Canada, but if colonial products were given not less than 20 per cent. protection in the British market it would be an altogether different matter. Under such an agreement, free trade with the United Kingdom would be merely an expansion of protection for Canada, and not only would the farming population of the Dominion increase so rapidly as to create an enormous demand for manufactured goods, but the exports of many kinds of Canadian manufactures to Britain would be very large. A preference in the British market high enough to justify the free admission of British goods into Canada could not be expected immediately, but it might eventually come about as a result of a colonial Zollverein, and in the meantime if Canada's general tariff were as high as that of the United States we could afford to offer British products a preference of 50 per cent. of that tariff in consideration of a small preference for all Canadian products in the British markets.

PROTECTING HOME INSURANCE.

New Casualty Company Will Go After Foreign Business.

In spite of the circumstances that in no field of finance have Canadian companies encountered more strenuous opposition from foreign companies than in insurance operations, the business of Canadian accident companies has grown steadily, and their profits have increased accordingly. The fact remains, however, that many American companies have been ready to take a rich harvest in accident insurance in this country, and are now regarding with some concern the formation of the Canadian Casualty Company, which will take over a large amount of this business, amounting to thousands of dollars annually. The Canadian Casualty Company will have upon its directors well-known men, representing public and financial interests in every section of the Dominion, most of whom have already been mentioned in The World. The company is offering for public subscription a limited number of shares of the par value of one hundred dollars each, at one hundred and twenty dollars per share. The general manager of the company is Mr. A. G. C. Dinwiddie and the head office will be at 24 East Adelaide-street, Toronto, Md.

The Telephone Situation in Baltimore, Md.

View to the Editor of The Electrical Review:

There have recently been some interesting developments in the telephone situation at Baltimore, Md. The Maryland Telephone and Telegraph Company began opposition to the Baltimore and Potomac Telephone Company a few years ago, and now has nearly 7000 stations in Baltimore. The Baltimore and Potomac Telephone Company promised a franchise for the city, and agreed with the city to charge not exceeding $18 a year for business service and $36 a year for residence service. This agreement was made part of the franchise.

Mr. Edward H. Bouton, president of the company, now announces that $48 a year in a city size of Baltimore is not a paying rate, and asks for an amendment to their franchise, enabling them to adopt the toll system—or a charge on each call from the subscribers' telephones. He states that the company has spent over $2,000,000 on its Baltimore plant, which gives an average cost per station of about $300. This figure does not include subway ducts, which are rented from the city. The operating expenses of the system, while not given in figures, are stated by Mr. Bouton to be more than twice as high as in the company's exchanges in smaller towns.

Mr. Bouton frankly admits that he is on the horns of a dilemma. He states that the alternatives that confront him are to adopt message rates and so to charge the large users much more than he charges them at present, or to cease developing the business and abolishing his cheaper rates. In either case he has the right to reckon with, as to obtain the right by ordinance to raise rates is one thing, while to get the public to accept an increase without angry protest is quite another.

The experience of the Maryland Telephone Company is about what has been forecast by many observers, both in and out of independent ranks, as the inevitable result of attempting to operate a telephone system in a large city at flat rates, suitable only for a small place. The outcome of the Baltimore situation will be watched with interest by all telephone men, and especially by those interested in telephone co-operations.

the port of departure of the fleet. The scheme contemplates a line of steamers running to China, Japan and Australia, from Vancouver, B.C., Canada, and Australia is expected to join the line by paying the subsidies. The draft of the scheme involves the total expenditure of $1,000,000, and the Dominion government guaranteeing a small interest on the capital involved. This would have to be ratified by the House of Commons, "where," says The Westminster Gazette, "it will probably meet with opposition."

REV. J. A. ALLEN PRESIDENT

Toronto Conference Began Its Sessions in the Metropolitan Church Yesterday.

REV. DR. GARMAN'S ELOQUENT TALK

Rev. Dr. Dewar Celebrated His Fiftieth Year in the Ministry Last Night.

The nineteenth annual session of the Toronto Methodist Conference was opened yesterday morning in the Metro- politan Church, with about 300 dele- gates in attendance. The most impor- tant business of the first day's session was the election of president and secretary, to succeed Rev. J. A. Allen and Rev. T. E. E. Shore. For the head of- fice, Rev. James Allen, M.A., of Sault Ste. Marie, and formerly pastor of Sher- borne-street Methodist Church, this city, secured 211 votes, while the next was Rev. A. Rankin, who was obtained 22 votes. Nineteen others possess one vote each, while five got two votes each. Rev. Mr. Rankin returned thanks for the honor accorded him and was presented with the staff of office by the retiring president.

Rev. Henry Harper of Huntsville was elected secretary on the second ballot. He was opposed by Revs. Mr. Fitzpat- rick and Mr. ...

The new president of the Conference is well known in Methodist circles, hav- ing filed many important papers. He has occupied the past few years in the Metropolitan and Sherbourne-street churches in this city, and has been stationed at the Centenary Church, Hamilton; Grace Church, Winnipeg; Colborne, Brock- ville and other points. He is now locat- ed in Sault Ste. Marie, and is also chairman of the Soo district. The new secretary is also an energetic worker and an able speaker.

Prior to the elections Rev. Dr. Gar- man, general superintendent of the Methodist Church, delivered a masterly address dealing with the prohibition situation and other matters. He re- joiced in the declaration of peace and that it had been brought about by an empire of which all should feel proud. The Boers had taught the English more than one lesson and the world had learned to respect the vanquished. The speaker referred to the loyalty of lay brethren in coming to the aid of the church when in its special difficulty. Referring to prohibition, Dr. Carman said: "Statements have been made that the cause of temperance in the country was being ground. Is this true? It is quite easy to say. But when I look at what governments have done and how we have been teased I am not quite so sure that some supporters of the cause are dropping out of the ranks at a critical moment. I doubt not he said that what was needed in the temperance cause was strenuous men, and it was a time for the develop- ment of men of this kind. He deplored the fact that parties operated to make noble men mean. It was time to turn sharp eyes to party politics when party politics put noble men on a plane with degraded men. The whole matter was resolved into a question of three words, "caucus or conscience," and he reworded that rather but ...

The meeting passed a resolution prohib- iting the circulation of any literature in the church without the permis- sion of the presiding officers. The report of the ministerial session, refusing the application of Rev. Dr. Hunter, who is desirous of becoming an active min- ister again, was sustained.

The afternoon session was opened with devotional exercises by Rev. Wil- liam Burns, after which routine busi- ness was transacted and the Confer- ence properly closed.

Committees Appointed. The Nominating Committee reported, giving the committees appointed and their convenors, as follows: Temperance Committee, T. Dunlop; Epworth League Committee, N. W. Rowell; Missions Committee, Stanley; Rev. Dr. Church Property Committee, Dr. Hough; Sustentation Committee, H. L. Lovering; Sabbath Observance Com- mittee, Rev. Dr. Withrow; State of the Work Committee, D. James; Memorial Committee, Rev. Dr. Parker; Contin- uing Fund Committee, Rev. E. L. Smith; General Conference Secretary Committee, Rev. Dr. Towell; Education Fund Committee, Rev. James Allen; Finance Committee, Rev. J. A. Allen; Wallace; Deacons' Fund Committee, Dr. Chown; Rev. George Wash- ington was appointed treasurer of the temperance fund, to succeed Rev. H. Manning, who has left the Toronto Conference. Rev. R. N. Burns was ap- pointed chairman of the Brampton dis- trict.

Dr. Dewar's Jubilee Sermon. The following were recommended to be sent to college: A. Harrison Booth, J. F. C. Simpson, A. E. Linn, P. J. McNeill, A. A. J. Bruce, Geo. Gray, Austin P. Stanley, E. Barker, John J. Coulter, David Menemese, Jas. F. ...

A reply was read from the Prince of Wales acknowledging the address pre- sented to His Royal Highness by Conference during their visit to Toron- to. After the reading of the letter, which referred in glowing terms to Can- ada's loyalty, the members stood up and sang the National Anthem. Votes of thanks were passed to the retiring president and secretary, both of whom made brief replies.

The various committees met during the afternoon and prepared reports for presentation to the Conference.

Dr. Dewar's Jubilee Sermon. The Metropolitan Church was about half filled in the evening, when a jubilee sermon was delivered by Rev. E. H. Dewar, D.D., after the opening religious proceedings. The president, Rev. James Allen, made a brief ad- dress, in which he congratulated Rev. Dr. Dewar on his jubilee, pointing out that it was a grand sight to see old age. He hoped that the Lord's choic- est blessings would rest on the aged divine.

Rev. Dr. Dewar took for his text a portion of Deuteronomy, vii, 2, Psalm xc, 12. He urged all to work incessantly for Christ, and when leaving this world to bequeath something to those left behind that will help make the world better. He didn't believe the world was getting worse, as many people continue to say. He said, much good is being done. At no time was there such a profound in- terest taken in the education of the young as at present. Looking back over the 50 years he has spent in the ministry, the doctor found that there had been a great movement upward and forward. He spoke of the circum- stances under which the early Metho- dist ministers labored. He saw the self- sacrifice made by godly men, whose work had been faithfully and well done. Back at a Belleville conference the speaker had met 204 ministers. Of these only 13 were now living.

ALDERMEN MAKE A PROTEST

Say Grand Jury's Message on Court- St. Police Station is Grossly Exaggerated.

THEY LOOKED THE PLACE OVER Plans to Improve Dufferin-St.—Half Holiday for Civic Officials—City Hall Notes.

Gross exaggeration on the part of the grand jury was the verdict of the Court-street Police Station yesterday afternoon. Ald. Richardson, the chairman, said so, and so did Ald. Harvey Hall and Ald. Burns. Ald. Lamb had a similar opinion and they all thought that the station could be put in a thoroughly sanitary condition with an expenditure of from one to two thousand dollars. They thought the police themselves might make the place a little more comfortable and healthy if they would devote some at- tention in that direction and would use the same energy they use in mak- ing complaints.

The visit to the station was the out- come of a lengthy argument in the Property Committee. Fault was found with the caretaker, but there were no arguments to justify it. The station, as it is now, is no doubt in a bad shape, but it is not as bad as is claimed to be. The plumbing works inside and the walls want some whitewash, with lots of lime in it. The aldermen searched hard, but could not find a single bug to sub- stantiate the rumors of vermin.

The Board of Control will take a look over the station to-day, and the Property Committee will hold over their report until the board sees what the situation is.

Cyclorama Property. The committee had an interesting session. A letter was received from a legal firm in regard to the Cyclo- rama property. The communication said that, during the negotiations which resulted in the purchase of the property, which was made, a prompt reply was expected, and that, "after you had worked over clients up to the point which you did, that they were satisfied with the offer which we put in, al- though our clients thought that they were paying more than they should." A prompt reply was asked, to show what the city was going to do about the matter, from newspaper reports the firm thought there was no telling how and when the city would arrive at a decision.

The Walker House offer is off. An- other legal gentleman wrote that his clients were not disposed to offer more than has already been offered. The committee decided to again re- commend that the lease be granted to H. W. Petrie. Ald. McMurich, Urquhart and Burns strongly favored giving the cabmen a chance, and wanted the lease to go thru, on the condition that cabmen can have a right to be on Station-street.

City Hall Door. The City Commissioner was instructed to see that the City Hall doors at the James-street entrance are made safe and convenient for the public, whether he has to move the doors or not. A sub-committee on Works met

Idea Grows That Money Should Not Be Given Without Colonial Representation.

FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE APPROVED

Owen Sound Enters a Plea for Public Ownership-Conference Goes on To-Day.

A marked divergence of opinion was evidenced at the conference of the Dominion Boards of Trade yesterday on the question of defence. Not that any of the delegates were opposed to the idea of promoting the defence of the empire, but they differed on the way most effective in reaching that end. Discussion on the question commenced about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and will be continued this morning. It is estimated that there were about 100 delegates, and the deliberations yesterday were worthy of the important gathering that it is.

The first question to occupy the attention of the conference in the morning was that of consular agencies, and after a little discussion the following resolution upon the subject, moved by E. V. Roy of the Chamber of Commerce, Montreal, and seconded by J. X. Perrault, Gaspé, was unanimously adopted: "That the imperial government be requested to recognize and accredit to the government of the agents appointed by the Canadian government, and to grant them the sufficient authority and necessary powers to protect our rights."

Upon the subject of a fast steamship service between Canada and Great Britain, Mr. J. S. Campbell, Halifax, and James Thom, Montreal, spoke strongly on the importance of a better steamship service between Canada and Great Britain.

Mr. J. S. Campbell, Halifax, said that the imperial government would be greatly benefited by the establishment of a fast steamship line, as well as the railroads. He said that the government should be taken over just now, he said the sentiment of public ownership was growing rapidly and would soon be vindicated in practical results.

Mr. Thom submitted the following resolution, which was unanimously passed: "Resolved, that this conference urges upon the representatives of Canada at the conference to be held in London in June next between British and colonial statesmen to impress upon that gathering the importance of the Mother Country and the colonies adopting a policy under which fast lines of steamships will be secured and retained for the development and control of trade between the United Kingdom and her possessions and between the colonies themselves and for the provision of good mail services."

Mr. Watt, Toronto, followed with a motion that on all steamship lines be operated by the government there should be a guarantee that the rates would be as low as those prevailing with the United States. In support of his motion he argued that the fact that American steamship companies gave better rates to immigrants than Canadian lines deprived this country of many settlers who would otherwise come here.

Mr. Thom and Mr. Drummond, Montreal, regretted that the question of regulating rates came up. Some delegates suggested a postponement of the matter, but on Mr. Watt's not being favorable to this, his motion was submitted and defeated on a division of 52 to 42.

Mr. J. D. Allan presented a motion of the Toronto Board of Trade, supplemented by a clause from the Halifax Board, requesting the government to consider the establishment of a cargo steamer service from Canadian ports at so low a rate as to make it profitable for the carrying of goods outward voyage, calling at Cape Town and proceeding to ports in Australia, also a faster service from Vancouver.

John Coates, Ottawa, seconded the resolution, and it carried unanimously. During the meeting Hon. J. I. Tarte, Minister of Public Works, and Hon. Mr. Patterson, Minister of Customs, entered the chamber and were given an ovation.

On the opening of the afternoon session it was decided, with a view to finishing the business in the session, to limit the speaking to 15 minutes for movers and seconders of resolutions and five minutes for the mover.

A. S. Goodieva, Nelson, B.C., moved: "That it is desirable in the interest of Canada that the duties on pig lead and the products thereof should be so increased as to encourage the development of mining, smelting and refining of lead and the establishment of various manufacturing of lead products within the Dominion."

In speaking on the motion, Mr. Goodieva pointed out that the duty against Canadian lead was eight times that upon American lead. As a result, we were absolutely prohibited from entering the markets of the United States. The tariff, under existing conditions, not only prevented the development of our lead resources, but actually offered a bonus to the American producer.

Robert Munro, Montreal, seconded the motion, and it carried unanimously. The question of defence was then introduced by Mr. McPee, Montreal, presenting the consideration by the Dominion board on the subject, as follows: "That in the opinion of this conference it is the duty of the Dominion, as an important division of the empire, to share in the cost of the general defence of said empire, and therefore that an annual appropriation should be provided in the Dominion budget for this purpose, to be expended as the Dominion government may direct."

Mr. McPee said he would draw one conclusion, that they were pretty well united in the one question of the development and consolidation of the empire. They discussed questions all bearing upon the one thought of consolidation. To bring into effect the resolutions passed, it would mean the greater consolidation of the empire. We were all united in the thought that in Great Britain we had the embodiment of justice and freedom, and it was largely due to that that we were so loyal to-day. This was an age of the union of states, and it was a larger one. If the empire contained 13-12 millions of square miles, we as Canadians were now to know that 3-12 million square miles of that were in Canada. The policy of Great Britain was self-government, each colony depending upon itself. This was illustrated in the South African war. Before that war we heard little of New Zealand or Australia; they, as Canada, attended to their own affairs and looked after their own defence. The idea of the resolution was to contribute to the general defence of the empire by centralizing the control of the empire. We, in Canada, had no reason to say that we had a guarantee of peace any more than Great Britain could say that she was free from attack by any of the European countries. If we were asked what we contributed to the defence of the empire we should certainly be ashamed to answer "not one cent." He felt confident that Canadians were willing to contribute their just share to the defence of their country. [Applause.]

Mr. Munro, Montreal, seconded the motion, and in doing so stated that the thing in Canada was the security of the empire at our back. Our greatness rested in the fact that our magnificent resources were fostered and developed under the fostering care of the empire. The burden proposed would be assumed for the safety of the whole. The idea was to place the contribution in the hands of our government, to be expended as the Dominion government might direct within the bounds of Canada. [Applause.]

Opposed the Idea. D. W. Dumble, Peterboro, opposed the idea embodied in the resolution, and offered an amendment to the resolution passed by the Peterboro Board of Trade, as follows: "That Canada having expended in the construction of transcontinental railways vast sums of money, these railways being available for military purposes of the empire, and having in the past done her part in self-defence, and having in the South African war manifested her loyalty by the contribution of men and money, it may be assumed that she can be relied upon to maintain an effective military force at home for self-defence, but that she will make common cause with the Mother Country in time of need; and it is not necessary, in view of her undeveloped condition, to pledge herself to expenditures for military and naval expenses which might cripple her in her course of development."

In the opinion of Mr. Dumble, the question was an issue between voluntary action and compulsion. He was proud of the position taken by the children of Canada in South Africa, and he did not believe that he should again should the hour of emergency arrive. If we wanted to break down and lessen the bond of union, then let us introduce a bond to seal, as suggested by the motion proper. Any bond made in the name of the Dominion government was in the British nature to resent anything like coercion. [Applause.] He, for one, objected to replace his natural bond of love for the Mother Country with a statute regulation. We would make greater progress by going slow in the matter. The matter of self-taxation without representation, something that he was strenuously opposed to. [Applause.]

Point Not Well Taken. Mr. Wickham, Toronto, raised a point of order, stating that it was intended to let the question of the money with the Dominion government. The chairman expressed his disappointment that the point taken, remarking that they would expedite business by letting each speaker express his opinion without interruption.

Continuing, Mr. Dumble said he objected to voting money to be spent by the military authorities of Britain. He did not object to improve the defence of Canada, but the motion implied a complete departure from all traditions of Britain and a total rejection of the Mother Country. Present conditions worked in the past, and would do so in the future. [Applause.]

George McLagan, president of the Stratford Board of Trade, seconded the amendment. He said it was better by far that England should take care of her own defence of the empire and that Canada should confine herself to her own defence. He did not believe the scheme proposed unless it became mixed up in the affairs of the British army and navy. The wisdom of the legislators of Great Britain and that of many in Canada would be to support him in that. The longer we kept sentiment and material interests separate, the better. [Applause.]

H. Lennox, P. J. Barris, thought the time had arrived when such a motion as mentioned in the motion should be taken.

Another Opposing Voice. D. Masson, Montreal, disapproved of burdening our budget by an annual £1,000,000. He said that we were endeavoring to develop the resources of our country. His motion was "Canada First" and he would certainly support the amendment.

Mr. Cockburn, Brantford, supported the motion, stating that it was to maintain peace was to be prepared for war.

Mr. Pattullo, Woodstock, said, while he was one of those who thought Canada should have paid the whole cost of the contingents in South Africa, yet, in this matter, he would advise the government to move slowly. If we voted money to move slowly, intended, the people of Canada would be justified in claiming a share in the control of the British army and navy. Then there would be the danger of coming into collision with the Imperial authorities. It was all right for us to consider the question of defence, so far as we were concerned ourselves, and even in this, neither of the political parties would adopt a policy for less consideration by the government of the support of every Province in the Dominion. [Applause.]

For Canada Alone. Sanford Evans, Winnipeg, said he was unable to vote for the motion of the amendment. He did not believe Canada could relieve the British Empire one cent on her navy. She had not spent one dollar more because of the existence of Canada. If she had "Canada," she would have to make heavier expenditures in protecting her distant dominions. The policy of Canada should be to provide for the defence of our own interests. We could make our interests broad as the empire. It was better to defend our own interests than to waste time in the consideration of matters which were not our own. [Applause.]

Mr. Evans moved, in amendment, seconded by Mr. Russell, that the policy of Canada should be to provide for the defence of its own interests, and that immediate provision be made for less consideration by the government of a system of naval and coast defence.

Thomas McFarlane, Ottawa, devoted the time at his disposal to setting forth an argument in favor of the original motion.

Pleasant Interruption. At this juncture, Hon. G. W. Ross entered the chamber, and was given a warm ovation as he accepted a seat on the right of the chairman.

On motion of Mr. E. D. Allan, Toronto, seconded by Mr. McPee, Montreal, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to that gentleman by a standing vote, for the use of the chamber for the deliberations of the conference.

Mr. Ross acknowledged the thoughtful vote in a few happy remarks. Continuing in the discussion, Mr. McPee stated that he had changed the word "share" in the motion to "participate."

Broad View From Sea. John McKay, Sault Ste. Marie, branched into a broad sphere than any of the previous speakers, and suggested such steps as would not only bring about a closer love and friendship between Canada and Great Britain, but, also, between the United States and these two countries. It would be a great step in the interests of humanity.

It was then decided to postpone the discussion and to meet again to-day, in order to finish it. Before adjourning, Mr. Kemp, P. J. gave notice of another amendment to the effect that any money appropriated for the purpose of defence should be under the control of the Dominion government, and that our military and naval establishments should be under the control of the Dominion, whether for the service of Canada or the empire.
