RADIALS OUTCLASS TRUCK AND STEAM

Witness Favors Motor Buses as Auxiliary to City Transportation.

MATCH FOR LAWYERS

Many Motor Truck Failures as Freight Carriers, Expert Says.

Motor trucks and steam railway freight service were both shown up as outclassed by electric radial lines in the evidence given before the Ontario road commission at Osgoode Hall yesterday by Walter Jackson of Mount Vernon, N. Y., whose business is that of expert consultant in matters relating to electric railways and also motor bus and motor truck transportation.

He got the anti-radial lawyers storming and raging, because they could not answer Justice Sutherland's repeated questions for a ruling and invariably found in favor of the witness, who appeared to have an exceptionally good grasp of his subject, and in every instance was able to turn an unfavorable question into a boost for the Hydro project with an ease that surprised even the commissioners.

In citing an instance of the manner in which motor truck men utilize radial roads for part of their long hauls, Mr. Jackson pointed out that the New England Motor Transport Company, in a 205-mile operation to and from New York, finds it economical to load and unload its truck cargoes to an electric railway for 55 miles of the journey, which the electric line covers.

For Long Haulage. In explaining how the motor truck came into use for long haulage, Mr. Jackson said there was no doubt that these trucks had rendered an invaluable service both to Canada and the United States, owing to the steam railways being overburdened with war business. As a result, motor truck transportation sprang up all over the continent, and during that period good money was made from them.

"Even during the most prosperous times enjoyed by motor trucks as freight carriers there were a ghastly number of failures," said Mr. Jackson. "Those trucking companies which have survived, and are still doing business are carrying only about a quarter of their former tonnage. I know, personally, of one operator, who, in 1917, handled with his truck fleet 119,000 pounds of freight per day. Later this went down to 25,000 pounds and today he is carrying only 25,000 pounds, and he told me he has not made a cent since last November."

Regarding the use of motor buses on the lines between Toronto and Hamilton, Mr. Jackson pointed out that the cost per passenger was more than double that which would be obtained on the proposed Hydro radial line, which would result in the radials getting all the business.

THE OLD WAY VERSUS THE NEW

By the out-dated, cumbersome systems of shorthand and class instruction it requires 8 or 10 months of hard, tedious study and memorizing to become a competent stenographer.

By Clarke's new, simplified system and strictly individual instruction students are enabled to qualify in half the time with half the study. Twenty years of experience in the shorthand business has enabled Clarke to perfect a system of shorthand which is simple, practical and easy to learn.

Closing the Special Spring Sale of Women's Footwear Today with Oxford Ties and Pumps

Of the $10 to $15.50 Grade at $8.45

It is not idle to claim that this Footwear Sale, enjoying its last day today, is one of the foremost presented anywhere this season. Certainly the quality of the footwear bears out the claim—the leathers have that fine soft finish that women have learned to accept as assurance of long service, and the workmanship is of a high standard. The choice, too, is quite exceptional—Black Suede, Brown Kid, Brown Calf, Vici Kid, Patent and Gunmetal Calf are the leathers, while the styles comprise both the popular Colonial Oxfords and the Strap Slippers. High and low heels, and medium weight soles. Good range of sizes and widths in all styles.

THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 31

Nationalization of Railways Goes Forward

The Globe came out yesterday for taking over the Grand Trunk at once and amalgamating with the other government lines.

Canadian Mercantile Marine

Opponents of public ownership will receive little comfort from the statement presented to parliament by Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, minister of marine.

Bond Distribution

Quite a number of our western municipalities are falling-down in the interest on their debentures, and representations have been made to the province of Saskatchewan asking for some action on the part of the province.

Copper and Other Commodities

The ramifications of the war broke into various commercial activities; but the process is gradually taking care of itself and will ultimately work out all right, altho in the meantime different classes of investors are feeling the pinch.

THEY GET ONLY THIRTY-TWO MILLIONS

WHY NOT LET RANEY 'DO IT'?

Instead of being a peevy little humbug, which would not cause any considerable trouble, it would be a great benefit to the province, if Raney were to be made of just about the right kind of stuff, and his findings will never be accepted by the public with any degree of doubt.

Remarked in Passing

Good-morning! Have you got your name on the voters' list yet?

Railroads Going After Business

Taking all the traffic will bear has been the motto of the private corporations under any and all circumstances. But against this has been the oft-proved contention that by cheapening rates business can be created and larger profits secured.

Private Agencies to Furnish Help

The meek ticket relief is out off today, and the city should find work for the unemployed. This is a good time to start the Art Museum, and it would be a good idea to give it a new entrance to Toronto, and a very little would set it right.

On Teaching Staff of Married Women

It is to authorize an alteration in school examination dates, so that they would not conflict with the high school days, especially in the case of the high school, where matriculation examinations were held.

Launch Freighter

Port Arthur, Ont., March 30.—The steamer Glenafon was launched at the Port Arthur shipyards this afternoon.

over this—never! Aloud, she asked: "What time of this curfew country, in the cabin which tiny Tess called home, a somewhat similar scene was being enacted. This was one of the rare occasions, which found Cavendish inside the house.

"And so," he said, folding the papers containing an account of his brother's death, "they think I ought to come home and try to fit into poor old Redgild's shoes."

"Tess shivered and stretched her hands toward the blazing rough crowd I will drive you down the hill, a trifle off the road, and I will come back to you in the shortest possible time. I shall only be a few minutes, most-wonderful woman—all-the-world."

"You don't really want me to go, Tess?"

"Indeed, I am GLAD to have you go!" She spoke her words as the hoping to make them absolutely convincing. "It is the only thing for you to do—back to the people among whom you belong."

"That is your honest conviction, is it? That a chap has no right to live his own life, where he pleases. All right, I call it a mind not to go!"

"Oh, Len, but you must! You know you must! You will do what is right, I know."

"Will you help me to do what is right? Will you prove that you honestly believe I ought to go—by coming with me?"

"No, no! Don't put it that way!"

He came to her chair, and she, with folded arms looking down at her bowed head. "Your argument does not carry much weight," he said, and added, "I am not a man of such strong convictions as you are."

He knelt beside her and took one of her cold hands in his. "Look here, Tess," he said, "I have a proposition to make to you. I will marry you, and I will leave her without you. You are going to be my wife and together we will be home."

It was as though her heart were under a heavy weight. She could not speak, and watched for Delany, who usually dropped in for tea.

"The hostess, nor was he ignorant of its cause," he said, "but it is not a matter of which I am not all simulated."

"Dearest! Please—please don't do that! Give me a little time to think about it. You—your immediate consent to do anything I regretted, you know."

He promised to wait until Saturday.

CHAPTER IV

The road from Dawson to Extravaganza, on the Saturday of Tim Meadows' opening, reminded "old timers" of bygone days.

Some of the old-timers, however, were of some description, or one which defied description, and it took a long time to get to the middle of the road.

By noon the big tent—the bar—was never cleared of elbows or of hands reaching out for glasses.

"Takes me back to busy days," said Buck, as he lifted Lizzie from Alphonse Leduc's best dog cart.

"You bet everybody in the Klondike here, don't you, Bill?"

By noon an eerie silence had begun to settle over the Klondike.

Delany had busied himself about the cabin. He made no mention of the nature of his work, but Tess, who was full to overflowing, still, with closed eyes, was aware of the fact that he was doing something.

"Well, how am I to go?"

"Or don't go at all. My interest in your movements ends now."

"No," she said, "I am not going to take me."

MACBRIDE PLEADED WITH DISMISSAL

Says He Is Glad to Be Free From Independent Labor Party.

REFUTES CHARGE

Denies Insincerity in Connection With Hydro Workers' Strike.

M. M. MacBride complained to the legislature yesterday about a report...

With regard to his expulsion from the L.L.P., Mr. MacBride said when a man of Jas. Simpson's stamp...

Mr. MacBride: Don't be too sure of that, Challenges MacBride.

Mr. Halcrow: I challenge any one to point to one single constructive thing Mr. MacBride has ever done in this house.

Dr. Godfrey recalled that James Simpson had said he would rather be a member of the Russian Soviet than the British government and he was pleased that Mr. Halcrow stood for the purging of the Labor party from everything tainted with the suspicion of disloyalty.

C. F. Swayze admitted that he had said that some of the members of the legislative committee inquiring into Hydro affairs were not sincere, but he declined to name them unless asked to do so.

Major Toime, who was a member of the committee, called for fuller explanation from Mr. Swayze.

Rev. Edgar Watson, who was chairman of the committee, thought Mr. Swayze had been unfair and demanded a retraction of the charge of insincerity.

Mr. Swayze: The member for South Brant (MacBride) was the man I had reference to.

Mr. MacBride: I deny it. I have a letter from the member thanking me for my services on that committee. I can disprove the statement.

Hon. G. H. Ferguson: Let the matter be referred to the election and private real estate commissions.

Real estate commissions. Real estate agents will have to conduct their businesses as in the past. The house killed the bill fathered by Mr. Bracken in reference to real estate agents' claims for commissions for sales in cities where real estate exchanges or boards are established.

The bill of Major Gray, extending the hours of voting in municipal elections from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., instead of from 9 to 6 as at present, was also killed.

Spoke in French. J. A. Pinard (East Ottawa), raised a laugh in the house when he read in French a newspaper article declaring that Z. Macceau (Sturgeon Falls), was the recognized leader of the French-Canadian group in the legislature. But few in the house could understand French and Mr. Pinard was obliged to deny the correctness of the report.

Lake of Woods Levels. Representatives of the Dominion and provincial governments met yesterday afternoon in connection with the introduction of the bill to be introduced in connection with the water level of the Lake of Woods.

An agreement was reached at which will be the entire satisfaction of both parties concerned, said the premier.

MEN YOU HEAR OF Seen as Their Friends Know Them

MR. A. E. LANDON, manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co. of the Pennsylvania, was educated in the public and high schools of New York. DISCUSS ADVANTAGES OF INDUSTRIAL COUNCILS

One of the most interesting meetings of the season under the auspices of the Industrial Relations Association of Toronto was held in Foresters' Hall, when Willis MacLachlan, consulting engineer, Toronto, gave a valuable address on the advantages of industrial councils in industry. Mr. MacLachlan covered many points relative to the working out of the different plans in force in various industries.

PROGRESS OF WESTERN HOME AND SCHOOL CLUB

At the luncheon of the Home and School Club yesterday, held at the Ontario Club, the attendance was encouragingly large. Mrs. Witcomb, Vancouver delegate, gave an account of the "parent teacher" organization, which is practically the same as the Ontario organization. Vancouver today had 25 clubs. Among the things done by the western branches were gifts of pianos, libraries, books, pictures and a lantern. Mrs. Brodie, representing the United Farm Women, said the education in rural districts was no further advanced than when she went to school forty years ago. She spoke of the advantages gained by the cities and stated practical things out of the schools—domestic science and manual training. Captain Morse made an appeal for the Armonia President McCready, presided and introduced the speakers.

PROVOST MACKLEM AGAINST COERCION

Total Prohibition Would Be Injurious, He Tells Gathering of Women.

Nearly 200 women and a number of men attended the meeting of the Women's League of Temperance and Government Control, held in Foresters' Hall yesterday afternoon, Lawrence Baldwin presiding. Rev. Provost Macklem of Trinity College was the first speaker, and said prohibition had given rise to a strong, almost sullen, opposition from one portion of the community, and, on the other hand, aggressive and somewhat noisy support. Prohibition laws at present he would not consider wise. Sudden restriction usually meant outbreaks elsewhere. On the other hand, he considered temperance absolutely essential to the well-being of the country and worthy of the amount of patience in the obtaining.
