Land of Evangeline Route.

* * *

THE Service of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, the far-famed "Evangeline" Route is worth commenting on. The trains and steamers that make close connecting links are among the best of their kind. Palatial saloon coaches and as fine specimens of parlor buffet cars as ever left the Pullman workshops run daily during the season between Halifax and Yarmouth and vice versa. The magnificent electric-lighted ocean steamers of the Yarmouth S. S. Co., that traverse the remainder of the route, sailing from Lewis Wharf, Boston, land the passenger alongside the Dominion Atlantic Railway's expresses, standing waiting on the Yarmouth wharf. It has been aptly asked who would of set purpose be cribbed and confined in the narrow quarters of a sleeping car when the airy state-rooms of these fine steamers invite to "balmy sleep." The best similar facilities are afforded at Digby to the Halifax or Boston traveler going to or coming from St. John. The Route is of all-round excellence, and is the natural highway of travel between Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and the States. A glance at the map will supply ready conviction.

at the offices of

T. COOK & SON, and H. GAZE & SON, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Newark, Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Chicago and Quebec; at Maine Central R. R. Offices at Portland, Danville Junction, Bangor, &c. But if in a difficulty about choice of route, don't puzzle over it. Write straight-away to

INTRODUCTORY.

THE main purpose of this Work is to be useful. Those who may be interested in the business affairs and people of Yarmouth are invited to consult its pages with confidence that they will find reliable information upon all matters upon which a Town Directory is supposed to speak.

The Author has aimed at absolute correctness. To what extent he has succeeded in that aspiration, he will leave those to judge who may have occasion to refer to the details he has gathered with great patience and labor. No pains have been spared to make the Directory as complete as possible.

Yarmouth was settled in 1761. It has had a slow but steady growth in population, wealth, and in all those other elements which ought to characterize a progressive, intelligent and prosperous community. It has been noted among the towns of the Maritime Provinces not only for the commercial enterprise of its people and for the ever increasing evidence of the social comforts with which its citizens have been able to secure themselves, but for their interest in religious and educational movements as well.

Its churches, schools and philanthropic institutions show an elevated and generous public spirit, and its Municipal Government is fully ahead of the times in all matters relating to the observance of good order, the protection of property and the preservation of the public health.

For half a century and over Yarmouth was one of the largest shipowning ports, in proportion to population, in the world. With the decline which begun about 1879 considerable of the capital formerly employed in that enterprise has been transferred to other undertakings.

The present population of the Town is about 8,000, but there is still room for that expansion which the present large facilities for business invite. With railway extension which seems imminent, with an increased travel to and fro between the United States and Nova Scotia via Yarmouth, and with the improved and yearly improving hotel accommodation now afforded tourists and visitors, there can be no doubt that Yarmouth must continue that course of development which in the past kept her at the head of the Towns of the Province in substantial growth. She has had an interesting and prosperous past, and all the indications are that her future is to be equally fortunate. So mote it be.

London & Lanc. Life.

POLICIES

World-wide and Non-

Opinions differ regarding Life Assurance methods as in everything else, therefore the London & Lancashire Life offers a choice.

1. The Older Method is to pay small premiums and continue them during life, leaving the sum assured as a legacy to survivors.

2. The Newer Method is to regard a Policy both as a provision for dependents in case of premature death and as an investment for one's self should a certain period be survived.

3. A combination of the Two Methods with special terms is now offered.
