CUBAN LIBERALS REFUSE TO FIGHT.
Refuse to Contest the Presidential Election.

Declare That Gov't. Registration Frauds Have Made Their Success Impossible—Bogus Voters on the Lists

PEACE WAS FORMALLY DECLARED THIS MORNING.
Treaty Was Ratified Yesterday and Went Into Effect Today—A Cold Welcome for Baron Komura in Tokio.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—A special cable despatch to the Sun from Havana says:

At a general convention of the Liberal party held today it was decided to withdraw entirely from the coming presidential election and to inform the head of the Moderate party that the Liberals will not be responsible for any acts that may occur in the future. Manifestos will be published giving the reason for this act.

Senor Zayas, the Liberal candidate for the vice-presidency, who presided at the meetings, says the resolution was unanimous, there being no other course for the party to follow. The idea of withdrawal was presented at the last meeting of the Liberals, but consideration of the proposal was postponed awaiting events.

It is now seen, the liberals say, that it would be useless to continue the campaign in view of the colossal frauds committed in the registration. Senor Zayas declares that in the San Lazaro ward of Havana there are about 3,000 actual voters, and that 12,000 have been registered.

It is deduced from the attitude of the press that moderates desire to avoid the withdrawal of the Liberals and wanted them to accept a few places in congress as an inducement to go to the polls.

This offer was not made officially. At any rate the liberals would not have accepted it. Senor Cinceros recently wrote and factually injured her to the government. The letter was in such demand that the Lucha has reprinted it, perhaps as a good illustration of the feeling among the Liberals.

FUNERAL WREATH FOR CHILD'S DYING PILLLOW.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—With her head resting on a bank of flowers intended for the funeral of an eight-year-old child, Isabella Walker was carried last night by the automobile which had struck and fatally injured her to the office of a physician where she died on the pillow of white roses.

The girl was sitting on a white cushion on a sofa in the parlour of the late Mrs. J. W. Stevens, driver of the machine, was arrested.

She is eleven, with her brother, was hurrying to the home of a friend and the brother held in his arms a huge floral pillow for the funeral of the friend's little daughter.

As he fell in the street Foglio's sons, Peter, 20 years old, and Anthony, 14 years old, who witnessed the fight, both drew their revolvers and fired several shots at the body. Toscano was dead when the police arrived. Foglio was arrested and taken to a hospital, where it was found he had sustained two lateral wounds and two wounds in the face. The sons escaped.

STREET RAILWAY READY TO FIGHT THE SNOW.

The Street Railway Company are making elaborate preparations for the handling of the winter traffic and if machinery and power will do it are bound that the several lines operated by the company will be kept open this winter. Last year they considered that they were well equipped with ploughs and sweepers and in face of the heavy fall of snow feel that they did remarkably well. This year they will not take any chances, and with the object of keeping the entire line open all the time have ordered a big increased plant. The new sweeper will be one of the most powerful machines of the kind built. Another plough has been ordered and both machines are under contract to be delivered here in full working order in a few weeks.

FAMOUS CHESS PLAYER DEAD

PARIS, Oct. 14.—A famous French chess player of unusual reputation has just passed away in the person of M. Arnaud de Riviere at the age of seventy-five. He prided himself on having beaten the celebrated Morphy, the Napoleon of chess, and notwithstanding his age he was a daily visitor to the Cafe de la Regence, the resort of all of the leading players, where he had a special table. He had been a nightly habitué since 1847 and was looked upon as the supreme arbitrator in all disputes. Among the notables that he had played chess with may be mentioned Alfred de Musset, Lord Palmerston and President Grevy.

GIRL INVENTED ASSAULT TO COVER THEFT.
Declared She Was Beaten and Gagged and Bound—Turned Out Like the Orange Street Fake.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Helen is a knowing little maid of sixteen summers, but the law has proved too sharp for her, and she is now in jail as the result of her exploits. She runs the day on which she presented herself to the frightened gaze of her kind mistress lying on the floor of her apartment, apparently in a state of insensibility and with her face bound round with a thick linen bandage. When restored, as was believed, to consciousness, the girl related that two men having got into the place under false pretences had thrown her down, gagged her and dragged her about, after having beaten her cruelly for refusing to tell them where the money was kept. She gave them an elaborate description of these individuals and their dress. One was a little fair man in blue, the other a big dark man in a gray suit. After their attack on her she composed of materials belonging to the girl's mistress, that there was not even a bruise about her, and finally she confessed that she had invented the whole scene for the sake of the money. During her trial the maid answered the questions put to her very kindly and sweetly, and her youth and modest appearance evidently impressed the court. She is now sentenced to eight months' imprisonment as she was allowed the benefit of the Berenger law, so that the sentence will not be a severe one.

BARON KOMURA'S COLD WELCOME.

TOKIO, Oct. 15, 4.30 p. m.—Baron Komura, the foreign minister who acted as chief of the peace plenipotentiaries for Japan at Portsmouth, N. H., arrived here today from Vancouver. His reception at the railroad station was not enthusiastic, those present being principally government dignitaries. The streets were strongly guarded by troops. The baron drove to the palace in an imperial carriage.

SON CHARGED WITH THEFT; AGED MOTHER WEEPS.

Old Mrs. Murphy appeared in the police court about 9.45 o'clock this morning. She was crying bitterly and was supported by a crutch. She asked Sgt. Ross if she could see her son, who had been arrested on Saturday but she was too late as at an early session of the court the wayward son had been remanded to jail on the charge of stealing a horse and carriage. The old lady tried to offer a plea of insanity, but she was allowed to see her son and she was still there at 11 o'clock while the son was in jail in the very kindly and sweetly, and her youth and modest appearance evidently impressed the court. She is now sentenced to eight months' imprisonment as she was allowed the benefit of the Berenger law, so that the sentence will not be a severe one.

INNOCENT PRISONER RELEASED AND SENTENCED ON ANOTHER CHARGE.

FRANKFORD, Oct. 14.—Herr Kraus who some time ago was condemned to four years imprisonment has just been found to be innocent after serving four and one half months of his sentence. He was released and since regaining his freedom he has sent in a plea for compensation. He demands $175, which he states represents the wages which he has lost during his imprisonment. It was discovered, however, that he was out of work at the time of his arrest and a fresh charge of trying to obtain money by false pretences has been brought against him and he has accordingly been condemned to three months' imprisonment.

FIVE ARRESTED FOR SUNDAY GAMBLING.
Prisoners Allowed Out Today on Easy Bail.

Their Lawyer Declares They Were Illegally Arrested and Says They Should Have Resisted the Police.

The police court was crowded this morning with citizens to hear the case against five young men from the West End, who had been arrested on Sunday afternoon on the charge of gambling and of being inmates of a gaming or disorderly house. Jacob Campbell, in charge of being the keeper, and James McConnell, Leonard Lacey, Manfred Follick, George and Martin Wilcox are all charged with being inmates. The arrest was made on information given the sergeant of police by a woman, who told him that gambling was going on in the house.

J. B. M. Baxter is appearing for the prisoners, who are now out on bail. Sgt. Jacob Ross, sworn this morning, said that on Sunday afternoon, acting on information received from a woman between three and four o'clock he went to Jacob Campbell's house, on Prince street. Campbell lives in the basement of a three-story house. Witness went to the side door in an alley and couldn't get in. He rapped on the door and heard a sound like running feet. After a short time elapsed Campbell came and asked who was there, and was informed it was the police. After a short delay the door opened and he went in, and at the left of the door was a table surrounded by chairs. He found a half-dozen playing cards and some "chips" on the table. He also took more chips and cards off Campbell. Campbell was the only one in sight when he went in. He asked where the other men were and told Campbell to bring them out. Campbell said, "They come out," and witness went in a front room and met Martin Wilcox coming out of another room. He went to a smaller room like a partry and found the door locked on the inside. The door opened and one of three men came out and the door was closed again. When witness did get in he found McConnell and Follick hiding in a corner. He told Campbell he was under arrest for keeping a gaming house and the others for being inmates and gambling as well. They were told if they tried to escape they would have another charge against them. Campbell's wife is away and he is living there alone.

To Mr. Baxter witness said that he never had reason to know that the Campbell house was used for gambling for money. He rapped on the side door three times with a baton. The door was opened quite promptly when the word "police" was mentioned. Witness did not see men playing or any one looking on. If a game was played he could not say what the game was. He only procured 44 cards from Campbell. He had no warrant or order, nor had he applied for such for searching the house.

Mr. Baxter said he thought it unfair to adjourn the court without allowing the boys their liberty. If he had been near the house where the raid was made, and knowing the case as it is, he would have advised the men to resist arrest, and he would also say that the prisoners were in court illegally. Mr. Baxter said there was not evidence enough given to convict. After some discussion on the law, Magistrate Ritchie adjourned the case until Wednesday morning, and Campbell was allowed out on bail of $10 and the others were allowed out on bail of $20 each. Mr. Baxter goes as their security.

DEATH OF REV. G. T. PACKARD.

Well-known Clergyman and Writer Passed Away at His Home Yesterday

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—Rev. Geo. Thomas Packard, a well known Episcopal clergyman and contributor to newspapers and magazines, died at his home in Jamaica Plain today, aged 81 years. Mr. Packard was a native of Lancaster, Mass. He prepared for college at Biddeford, Maine, high school and was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1866. Three years later he was graduated from the Andover Theological School, and in 1870 was ordained as an Episcopal clergyman. His first parish was in St. Anne on the heights, Brooklyn, N. Y. Later he was rector of a church in Jersey City, and in 1876 he was called to the rectorship of St. John's church, Boston, Me., where he remained three years. His health failing, he entered newspaper work, and for seven years was connected with the editorial staff of the Boston Advertiser. He was engaged with Noah Webster at New Haven in the revision of Webster's dictionary. For the past ten years he had been confined to his home by illness, but had been a frequent contributor to the leading magazines in this country.

TREATY OF PEACE HAS BEEN RATIFIED.

PETERSBURG, Oct. 16.—The ratification of the treaty of peace is formally announced this morning by the Official Messenger, which says that its operation began yesterday. The text of the treaty is as follows: As a grateful mark of appreciation for the part he took in bringing about the conference at Portsmouth and the resultant peace, President Roosevelt was the first person to sign the treaty. As soon as the Emperor's signature had been affixed to the instrument and before the treaty had been brought back from Petersburg for the counter-signature of Foreign Minister Lamadoff, the news was sent directly to the president. Official notification by the government, according to the foreign office, followed several hours later, when Count Lamadoff had completed the ratification by his signature. The government took no steps to make known to the people of Russia the fact that the Emperor had signed the treaty, before the receipt of the official notification that the instrument had been ratified by the signature of the Emperor of Japan, and the first news, therefore, was communicated through the Associated Press despatch from Washington. As soon as the treaty had been fully ratified, the foreign office communicated the fact to the war, navy and other ministries, and the necessary orders were immediately issued to bring home some of the ships interned in neutral waters. The date for the exchange of prisoners has not yet been fixed. Thomas Smith, American vice-consul at Moscow, sent to Medvid today several thousand roubles which had been received from Japan for the Japanese prisoners there.

WILL GRANT AN INCREASE IN WAGES

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 15.—It is understood in manufacturing circles here that within a short time the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association will grant an advance in wages to the operatives, of whom there are upwards of 25,000 employed at the present time. No action having been taken, but it is expected an official announcement will be made during the week. One week ago today the Textile Council voted to request the restoration on October 23 of the scale which prevailed prior to the cut of 12 1/2 per cent. made on July 25, 1904. While the majority of the manufacturers favor an advance either on that date or a week later, many think that the mills are not yet able to pay an increase of 12 1/2 per cent., and advocate a half-way step, with the understanding that no further advance will be considered until next spring. A number of mills out of Fall River reduced wages in July of last year, and at several of these plants, including the Edwards mills of Augusta, Me., North Fernal mill of North Fernal, Ct., and the Williams-town Mfg. Co. of Williamstown, Mass., advances have been announced.

WEAVER CAUSES "GRAFT" ARRESTS.

Former Director of Public Safety in Philadelphia Under Ball—Relative of Republican Leader in Conspiracy

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—Henry E. Ball, John W. Henderson, of Henderson & Co., a firm of contractors, and James D. Finley, a cousin of Isaac W. Duxson, head of the republican machine, have been arrested on charges of conspiracy to defraud the city of Philadelphia in connection with the construction of a hospital for persons with smallpox. They were held in jail for awaiting to-morrow. Warrants for their arrest were sworn out by James G. Gordon, of counsel for Mayor Weaver.

NAVY MADE TO PAY FOR ITS VISITORS

Only $1,000 Allowed by the American Government for Entertainment of Prince Louis' Squadron.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 14.—Only $1,000 has been allowed by the Navy Department to entertain the British cruiser squadron under Prince Louis of Battenburg, which will pay a formal visit to Annapolis and New York next month. Upon the pocketbooks of the officers and men of the North Atlantic fleet will devolve the heaviest burden of expense for the proper reception of the British naval men. It means, that every officer of the battle ship squadron will be compelled to disburse at least a month's pay for the extension of ordinary naval courtesies to guests of the Episcopal clergyman. His first parish was in St. Anne on the heights, Brooklyn, N. Y. Later he was rector of a church in Jersey City, and in 1876 he was called to the rectorship of St. John's church, Boston, Me., where he remained three years. His health failing, he entered newspaper work, and for seven years was connected with the editorial staff of the Boston Advertiser. He was engaged with Noah Webster at New Haven in the revision of Webster's dictionary. For the past ten years he had been confined to his home by illness, but had been a frequent contributor to the leading magazines in this country.

GLoucester Men RESSENT TREATMENT.

GLoucester, Mass., Oct. 15.—As a result of the policy recently adopted by the Newfoundland government to restrict American fishing rights on the coast of Newfoundland, Congressman Smith, one of the largest vessel owners of this city, left tonight for Washington to discuss the situation with the Secretary of State Elihu Root. Originally it was planned that the collector of the port, Wm. H. Jordan, and a committee from the board of trade should accompany Congressman Gardner and Mr. Smith, but this project was later abandoned, inasmuch as it was felt that Messrs. Gardner and Smith were wholly unqualified to deal with the situation. The object of the trip to Washington is to secure from the head of the department an interpretation of the treaty of 1818, in which American fishermen were guaranteed certain fishing rights on the Newfoundland coast. A similar trip to Washington was made last spring, but thus far no interpretation of the treaty has been made by the department of state. The vessel owners of this port are prepared to make a forceful protest in the matter of fishing rights on the coast of Newfoundland, and it is expected that the Newfoundland government intends to restrict the American fishermen in that Newfoundland waters are intended to be restricted to Gloucester vessels. In order that this cause may be eliminated, the schooner Dauntless, Captain Chas. T. Young, will sail from this port to-morrow with a crew of 24 men, all of whom were shipped here, and those of whom belong to Newfoundland. Captain Young believes that he cannot be interfered with by the Newfoundland authorities.

FATAL ACCIDENT NEAR MAHONE, N.S.

Father and Mother Dead; Child Dying.

HALIFAX, Oct. 15.—Another fatal accident occurred this morning on the Halifax and Southwestern railway, making three disasters, two of which were fatal within a few weeks on this line. This accident took place at the blockhouse crossing, two miles from Mahone. An engine running light at 10.30 Sunday morning struck a riding wagon containing three people, Harry Ernest, his wife and son, and a man who was instantly killed, his head being crushed and the forearm fractured. He was dragged six hundred feet by the engine. The other two were injured, and the mother and child were taken to the hospital. The boy still lingers, he having a fractured collar bone, arm dislocated and a fracture of the skull, and is not expected to live. The team was completely demolished. Mr. Ernest and his wife and son are residents of Mahone and were on their way to church, which is so situated that it was necessary to cross the above mentioned crossing in order to reach it.

MARRIAGE POSTPONED ON ACCOUNT OF ILLNESS

Death of Mrs. Timothy Sullivan—Left for Toronto.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Oct. 14.—Rev. Dr. Duffy, the popular lecturer, returned yesterday from Montreal, where he has been very seriously ill for some days. He had intended to return home as soon as he was able to travel and is much better, but will continue his medical man on the condition of his health. Miss Swan has arrived from Montreal and is the guest of Mrs. Kilder at Glen Lodge. Considerable surprise and dissatisfaction has been displayed on the action of the coroner in submitting Mrs. Briggs to a medical examination such as Dr. J. W. Bridges performed, and legal gentlemen said that this was a practice not at all permissible under the law, as prisoners are not to be compelled to give evidence themselves. Col. Marsh when asked about the matter said: "In my humble opinion I should not have sent her back to the jail today either were given to allow nobody to see her except the members of her family."—Fredericton Gleaner.

MORE RIOTS IN ST. PETERSBURG.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 15.—For the first time since the advent of M. Trepoft as head of the government of St. Petersburg, demonstrations on a large scale took place here today, the occasion being the removal of the body of Prince Troubetzkoy to the Nikolai station for shipment to Moscow. Students, workmen and spectators gathered in thousands in the streets and demonstrators with red flags paraded boldly through the Nevsky prospect, the city's main avenue. The crowds and the processions were several times charged and dispersed by mounted police, but fortunately with no grave consequences. The most serious injuries reported are those sustained by two men who were slashed with sabres. Victims were not employed by the gendarmes or military, and though the first collision was provoked by a shot from the crowd, and a few cases of stoning occurred, the crowds manifested no inclination to resist the police and troops.

IRVING MAY REST IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—That the body of Sir Henry Irving should find a resting place in Westminster Abbey, appears to be a very general desire. An editorial in this morning's Daily Telegraph says: "The nation will, we are persuaded, ask this honor for him with no uncertain voice, and we know we interpret the wish and feeling of the country in favor of a public interment in the abbey." The flood of tributes of admiration and affection is unceasing. From King Edward downward, men of all classes, including the great churchmen, are giving public expression to their feelings on the sad occasion, nearly all dwelling as much on Henry Irving's greatness as on his character as an histrionic talent. It seems to be beyond doubt that Irving sacrificed himself by hard work. He had been advised a long time ago to give up arduous roles like that of Mathias in "The Belle's" owing to the strain thrown on his weak heart, and only last week he had been reluctantly persuaded to omit "The Belle's" in future. "Nothing has yet been decided as to the funeral arrangements pending the meeting of theatrical managers which Sir Charles Wyndham has called for today, and which probably will decide to ask the Dean of Westminster Abbey to permit interment in the Abbey."

SENATOR FULFORD DIED YESTERDAY

As Result of Injuries Received a Week Ago.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—Senator George T. Fulford, of Brockville, Canada, died at the Newton Hospital this afternoon as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident one week ago today. Senator Fulford's injuries, which were at first regarded as slight, developed into paralysis of the vital organs, and for the past two days there was no hope of his recovery. The accident occurred on Walnut street in this city on Sunday afternoon last, the automobile in which Senator Fulford was riding, with William T. Hanson of Schenectady, N. Y., coming into collision with an electric car. The other party, including Louis Zerax of Albany, N. Y., were thrown out. Zerax died three days later. Senator Fulford escaped without serious injury. The body will be taken to Canada to-morrow.

MRS. BRIGGS REMANDED TO JAIL.

Examining Doctor Condemned For Part He Took.

In the police court today Mrs. Susan Briggs appeared before the police magistrate in answer to the serious charge on which she was arraigned. As the coroner's inquest now in progress is not completed there was nothing else for her to do but to remain a prisoner in jail. An immense crowd gathered at the entrance of the police court, and a considerable number were admitted to the court room. Mrs. Briggs appeared in court in charge of Police Sergeant Phillips and occupied one of the chairs reserved for prisoners. Mrs. Briggs was dressed all in black and seemed somewhat nervous, although she bore up very well under everything. In addressing Mrs. Briggs, Col. Marsh said: "You are held under suspicion of being guilty of this offense, and I warn you against allowing anybody to talk to you in the case or to suggest a defence whatever from you, and I remand you until Friday next for examination. Had I known what has occurred before I did I should most certainly have stopped it."

LORD KITCHENER ENGAGED.

And to a "Wifful Young American Girl" it Reports From London Are True. "Stories of Lord Kitchener's engagement are again afloat, and there is good reason to believe that this time they are well founded," says a prominent London correspondent.

When Mrs. Adair was in India, for the Dunbar, there was a particularly interesting and wifful young American girl staying with her (who must for the present be nameless), and she turned the eyelids of his lordship's heart by sheer audacity.

Far and wide and with Lord Kitchener's own authority has been circulated the report that he was determined never to marry, but since he met Mrs. Adair's friend he has been struggling between his affections and the feeling that the world will regard him as inconsistent if he yields.

She proved herself a young woman of determination when she said Lord Kitchener must have altered considerably since Stevens wrote his remarkable description of him: "During all the years of preparation and achievement the man has disappeared; only the stard remains, neither asking affection nor giving it."

"I guess that is wrong," said the girl, "for he has succeeded my hand many a time."

TONIGHT--TONIGHT.

The Gay Matinee Girl received another proof of its popularity with the theatre goers when it entered upon the last week of the engagement at the Circle Theatre. It has been a long time since the patrons of this house have expressed themselves more warmly in approbation of any musical comedy than they have done over the Gay Matinee Girl. The comedy is bright and entertaining and it mingles laughter in just the right measure to give the audience everything to its liking--N. Y. Journal.

This company will be at the Opera House tonight. Matinee Wednesday afternoon.

HE OBJECTED. A certain learned professor in New York has a wife and family, but, professor-like, his thoughts are always with his books.

One evening his wife, who had been out for some hours, returned to find the house remarkably quiet. She had left the children playing about, but now they were nowhere to be seen.

"She demanded to be told what had become of them, and the professor explained that, as they had made a good deal of noise, he had put them to bed without waiting for her or calling a maid.

"I hope they gave you no trouble," she said.

"No," replied the professor, "with the exception of the one in the cot here. He objected a good deal to my undressing him and putting him to bed."

The wife went to inspect the cot. "Why," she exclaimed, "that's little Johnny Green, from next door!" Ladies' Home Journal.

HER OBJECTION. He--"I've half a mind to ask you to be my wife."

She--"Sorry, but I really couldn't marry a man with only half a mind."

THE DIFFERENCE. The next time you get your gas bill sit down and figure out how much it would be if you were paying only 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet—the rate in Glasgow, Scotland, or 64 cents—the rate in Leicester, England.

Other and equally instructive differences between the system which exploits the necessities of the many for the enrichment of the few, and the system which provides that public utilities shall be owned by the public are found in a recent report of the municipal enterprises in Leicester, concisely summarized by the Toronto World.

The gas and electric lighting committee of the Leicester town council reported that for the half-year ending June 30 last, the net profit after paying interest on the capital of the undertaking was £23,783 1s. 5d. (about $150,000).

For the full year ending in March, 1904, the free profit from the gas supply applied in aid of rates was £46,054 (about $230,000). The price of gas in Leicester is 56 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

The same committee reported that the net profit on the electric light undertaking after paying interest on the capital was £5,967 8s. 7d. After allowing for the sinking fund payment for the half year, a balance remained of £2,282 8s. 8d. (about $12,000).

An equally good showing was made by the water committee, which reported the net half-year's profit at about $5,000. After meeting payment to the sinking fund, the balance of $7,000 was carried to credit a special water fund.

of the state, ignored, for many years. By the way, what has become of the movement, so promisingly inaugurated by the Medical Society for the establishment of a sanitarium in this province?

The Conservative party laid the foundations of the prosperity of Canada at the time when the Cartwrights and Lauriers, the Globes, and all the other hostile agencies were decrying the country and jeering at the efforts to promote its interests.

They are in opposition they stand by the great Dominion. There are no speeches of the Cartwright and Laurier species from them. On the contrary, they are more loyal to the interests of the Dominion than ever—Mail and Empire.

FIGHT ON! You say you cannot love me. In this hour Death would be kind, to come where Hope is gone.

Hopeless my passion. Yet of you I Love says, "Fight on!" "Hops springs eternal." You, the prize I crave, Pure as the lily, fair as the dawn, Are far too glorious to yield. "Be brave." Says Love, "Fight on!" —Victor Laurent.

A GREAT MEMORY. Most likely not another brain in the state, possibly not in the world, has verbally acquired so much Scripture as you have woman 10 years of age. With in these 90 days, during which she had an attack of measles, she committed to memory and recited to the committee 12,238 verses of Scripture, covering the entire New Testament (excepting two genealogies of Jesus, in the first chapter of Luke) and including the central selections from Genesis, Psalms, Ecclesiastes and other parts of the Old Testament.

The winner of the second prize was the younger sister of the winner of the first prize. Little Miss Elly Jay Williams is only 11 years of age, yet in this competition there were to her credit 713 verses of Scripture.

The past reports during the entire contest there were more than 13,000 verses memorized.

RADIUM AS CANCER CURE. Inserted into Dissected Parts on Celluloid Rods.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—That five persons have been cured of cancer at the Flower hospital by the use of Radium coatings on celluloid rods inserted into the diseased parts was the substance of a paper read last night by Dr. William H. Dieffenbach, United States delegate to the international medical congress at the Hague before the Homeopathic Medical society of the county of New York.

In only one of six cases which he treated Dr. Dieffenbach admits efforts met with defeat. In that case the disease was far advanced. Dr. Dieffenbach described his method of treatment in detail. It consists in dipping celluloid or hard rubber into solution of salt radium. These rods are inserted into incisions made in tumors. The effect of the radio activity, he said, was to destroy diseased tissues. There are some hopeless cases where the growths have spread over large areas.

Prof. Hugo Lieber, of this city, has been experimenting in injecting radium into the tissues without the use of rods which objects on principle to profits from municipal undertakings being applied in relief of rates. Glasgow, 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, English towns, however, as a rule, 60 so, and for the current year it may be instructive to note some of the estimated profits from gas, which are: Manchester, $300,000; Leeds, $150,000; Belfast, $107,000; Nottingham, $100,000; Salford, $100,000 and Blackpool, $75,000.

THE FIGHT AGAINST CONSUMPTION. The Department of Charities of New York city has stepped to the front in the fight against consumption with a decision to erect at once an immense sanitarium on Staten Island to be open to all. The new hospital is to cost $2,000,000 and will have accommodation for 500 patients. None but sufferers from tuberculosis are to be admitted and none will be shut out from lack of funds.

A more beneficent proposition could not be conceived. The Twentieth Century has few more serious problems confronting it than the stamping out of this scourge of northern lands and no better solution of it has yet been proclaimed by science than sanitarium treatment. But one thing besides the establishment of free sanitarium in sufficient numbers, is needed to extirpate the white plague within the next generation or two, and that is a law to compel the attendance at these institutions of all whom this disease has made a source of danger to the community in which they reside. It is interesting to note that in connection with this New York sanitarium it is proposed to enforce a law to this effect which has been on the statute books

A BOY THE SOLE SURVIVOR OF CREW.

Spanish Lad Rescued at Last Gasp After Awful Hardships—Rest of His Comrades All Drowned.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Orient-Pacific liner Omrah which recently arrived at Plymouth had on board the sole survivor of the crew of the Spanish brigantine Carmine which was wrecked while on a voyage from Gortayal in Southern Spain to Seabul in Portugal.

While passing Cape St. Vincent A. H. Fraser, the third officer of the Omrah saw a quantity of wreckage at some distance from the ship. When the steamer was quickly away on its errand of mercy.

After a difficult and dangerous row the lifeboat reached the wreckage, which was nothing more substantial than a couple of planks lashed together. The Carmine's crew, however, and partially clothed was the body of a Spanish sailor lad.

He was brought back to the Omrah and had soon recovered sufficiently to tell his story.

He said that his name was Juan Delgado Laminano, and that he was one of a crew of seven belonging to the Spanish brigantine Carmine. On Saturday night the Carmine encountered squally weather and early Monday morning she capsized. The crew were thrown into the water by the vessel's raft. The raft frail to which the three men clung was continually swept by the waves.

For two days and three nights he drifted about the waves. During that time two vessels passed within distance, but the boy was so weak from exposure that he could not raise his voice above a whisper. After the last ship went by without seeing him he became unconscious.

He awoke when he found himself washed up on the beach of the Omrah. Rev. Mr. Rideout, pastor of the Free Baptist church, is of the opinion that the less said about the matter the better, so he feels that it will work out all right.

When the congregation of the Free Baptist church took a vote upon the question of church union there were about 170 present. About 100 voted in the negative or against the union. These members who were opposed to union will still remain in the church, notwithstanding the fact that the union has been consummated. What steps these persons will take is not known, as they are not today that he had no plans, although he felt that he was practically without a church.

It has been stated quite openly that the members who were opposed to union should apply for their dismissal from the church now the union is consummated, but so far as can be learned only one gentleman has asked for his dismissal.

Today this gentleman made the following statement to The Gleaser representative: "I am not in favor of this union for the simple reason that we were getting along spiritually and financially all right without the union, and I cannot see what more they wanted. I was opposed to it, as I said a minute ago, so I took the quietest way of getting out of the whole thing and asked for my dismissal. I have heard nothing more about it, except that I am told that the Union doesn't work well across the river, where they cannot agree on one pastor for the two churches."

Regarding the Gibson pastorate at Gibson and Maryville will be held on Tuesday night to take some action up on the calling of a pastor.

POOR DOCUMENT 102934

ST. JOHN STAR, MONDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1905.

"I see," said Montgomery, somewhat puzzled. "But why do you say that I am both fortunate and unfortunate?"

"The situation is so remarkable that you'll consider that a mild way of putting it when you've heard everything. I think you were told in our notes of yesterday that you are the sole heir. Well, it may surprise you to learn that James Sedgwick died possessed of an estate valued at almost $7,000,000."

Montgomery Brewster sat like one petrified, staring blankly at the old lawyer, who could say startling things in a level voice.

"He owned gold mines and ranches in the northwest, and there is no question as to their value. Mr. Jones in his letter to you briefly outlines the history of James Sedgwick from the time he landed in Montana. He resided there in 1856 from Australia, and he was worth $30,000 or $40,000 at the time. Within five years he was the owner of a huge ranch, and scarcely had another five years passed before he was part owner of three rich gold mines. Possessions accumulated rapidly; everything he touched turned to gold. He was shrewd, careful and thrifty, and his money was handled with all the skill of a Wall street financier. At the time of his death in Portland he did not owe a dollar in the world. His property is absolutely unincumbered—safe and sound as a government bond. It's rather overwhelming, isn't it?" the lawyer concluded, taking note of Brewster's expression. "And he—he left everything to me?"

"With a proviso."

"What?"

"I have a copy of the will. Mr. Ripley and I are the only persons in New York who at present know its contents. You, I am sure, after hearing it, will not divulge them without the most careful deliberation."

Mr. Grant drew the document from a pigeonhole in his desk, adjusted his glasses and prepared to read. Then, as though struck by a sudden thought, he laid the paper down and turned once more to Brewster.

"It seems that Sedgwick never married. Your mother was his sister and his only known relative of close connection. He was a man of most perfect temperance, but in full possession of his mental faculties. You may find this will to be a strange document, but I think Mr. Jones, the executor, explains any mystery that may be suggested by its terms. While Sedgwick's whereabouts were unknown to his old friends in New York, it seems that he was fully posted on all that was going on here. He knew that you were the only child of your mother and therefore his only nephew. He sets forth the dates of your mother's marriage, of your birth, of the death of Robert Brewster and of Mrs. Brewster's death. He also was aware of the fact that old Edwin Peter Brewster intended to bequeath a large fortune to you, and thereby leaves a tale Sedgwick was proud. When he lived in New York he was regarded as the kind of man who never forgave the person who touched roughly upon his pride. You know, of course, that your father married Miss Sedgwick in the face of the most bitter opposition on the part of Edwin Brewster. The latter refused to recognize her as his daughter, practically disowned his son and bespied the household with a malicious eye upon the Sedgwicks. It was commonly believed about town that Jim Sedgwick left the country three or four years after this marriage for the sole reason that he and Edwin Brewster could not live in the same place. So deep was his hatred of the old man that he had to escape killing him. It was known that upon one occasion he visited the office of his sister's enemy for the purpose of slaying him, but some thing prevented. He avowed that he hated to the grave, as you will see."

Montgomery Brewster was trying to gather himself together from within the fog which made himself and the world unreal.

"I believe I'd like to have you read this extract—the will, Mr. Grant," he said, with an effort to hold his nerves in leash.

Mr. Grant cleared his throat and began in his still voice. Once he looked up to find his listener eager, and again to find him grown indifferent. He wondered dimly if this were a pose.

In brief, the last will of James T. Sedgwick bequeathed everything real and personal, of which he died possessed to his only nephew, Montgomery Brewster of New York, son of Robert and Louise Sedgwick Brewster. Supplementing this all important clause there was a set of conditions governing the final disposition of the estate. The most extraordinary of these conditions was the one which required the heir to be absolutely penniless upon the twenty-sixth anniversary of his birth. Sept. 23.

The instrument went into detail in respect to this supreme condition. It set forth that Montgomery Brewster was to have no other worldly possessions than the clothes which covered him on the September day named. He was to begin that day without a penny to his name, without a single article of jewelry, furniture or fixture that he could call his own or could thereafter receive. At 9 o'clock, New York time, on the morning of Sept. 23 the executor, under the provisions of the will, was to make over and transfer to Montgomery Brewster all of the monies, lands, bonds and interests mentioned in the inventory which accompanied the will. In the event that Montgomery Brewster had not in every particular complied with the requirements of the will to the full satisfaction of the said executor, Swartrough Jones, the estate was to be distributed among certain institutions of charity designated in the instrument. Underlying this imperative injunction of the will was the motive that prompted it. In almost so many words he declared that his heir should not receive the fortune if he possessed a single penny that had come to him in any shape or form from the man he hated, Edwin Peter Brewster. While Sedgwick could not have known at the time of his death that the banker had bequeathed $1,000,000 to his grandson, it was more than apparent that he expected the young man to be enriched liberally by his enemy. It was to preclude any possible chance of mingling of his fortune with the smallest portion of Edwin P. Brewster's that James Sedgwick in his deathbed put his hand to this astonishing instrument.

There was also a clause in which he undertook to dictate the conduct of Montgomery Brewster during the year leading up to his twenty-sixth anniversary. He required that the young man should give satisfactory evidence to the executor that he was capable of managing his affairs shrewdly and wisely; that he possessed the ability to add to the fortune through his own enterprise; that he should come to his twenty-sixth anniversary with a fair name and a record free from anything worse than mild forms of dissipation; that his habits be temperate; that he possess nothing at the end of the year which might be regarded as a "visible or invisible asset"; that he make no endowments; that he give sparingly to charity; that he neither lend nor give away money, for fear that it might be lent to him later; that he live on the principle which inspires a man to "get his money's worth," be the expenditure great or small.

All the rest of the day Brewster wandered about as one in a dream.

He was preoccupied and puzzled, and more than one of his friends, remarking on his listless and listless, resentfully concluded that his wealth was beginning to change him. His great, so full of statistics, figures and computations that it whirled dizzily, and once he narrowly escaped being run down by a street car. He dined at a small French restaurant in one of the side streets. The waiter marveled at the amount of black coffee the young man consumed, and looked hurt when he did not touch the quail and lettuce.

That night the little table in his room to Mrs. Gray's with its scraps of pad paper, each covered with an incomprehensible maze of figures. After dinner he had gone to his own room, forgetting that he lived on Fifth avenue. Until long after midnight he smoked and calculated and dreamed. "For the first time in my life," he thought, "I'm not sure I can't get that million thrust itself upon him. If on that very day, Oct. 1, he were to begin the task of spending it, he would be out in a few days. Then if he accomplish the end. Taking the round sum of $1,600,000 as a basis, it would mean an average daily expenditure of $2,801.12 for nearly a year, and even then there would be 18 cents left over in providing the result of his rough sum in division he could account for but $900,000.84. Then if he occurs to him that his money would be drawing interest at the bank.

"But for each day's $2,801.12 I am getting seven times as much," he so illogically as he finally got into bed. "That means $19,607.94 a day, a clear profit of $16,806.72. That's pretty good 'yes, too good. I wonder the bank couldn't oblige me by not charging interest!"

The figures kept adding and subtracting themselves as he dozed off, and once during the night he dreamed that Swartrough Jones had sentenced him to eat a million dollars' worth of game and salad at the French restaurant. He awoke with the consciousness that he had cried aloud, "I can do it but a year is not very long in an affair of this kind."

CHAPTER V.
NEW point of view gradually came to Brewster. All it had been spent in wondering how to get enough money to pay his bills, and it had not occurred to him that it might be as difficult to spend as to acquire wealth. The thought staggered him for a moment. Then he cried triumphantly, "I can decline to accept grandfather's million."

"You cannot decline to accept what is already yours. I understand that the money has been paid to you by Mr. Buskirk. You have a million dollars, Mr. Brewster, and it cannot be denied."

"You are right," agreed Montgomery dejectedly. "Really, Mr. Grant, this proposition is too much for me. If you are not required to give an immediate answer I want to think it over. It sounds like a dream."

GUILTY CONSCIENCE.
Mr. Justwilde—Here's some distinguished foreigner who complains bitterly of the different noises in New York. Mrs. Justwilde (blushing)—Oh, Robert, I wonder if he heard us kissing.

"It is no dream, Mr. Brewster," smiled the lawyer. "You are face to face with an amazing reality. Come in tomorrow morning and see me again. Think over; ponder it out. Remember the conditions of the will and the conditions that confront you. In the meantime I shall write to Mr. Jones the executor, and learn from him just what he expects you to do in order to carry out his own conception of the terms of your uncle's will."

"Don't write, Mr. Grant; telegraph. And ask him to wire his reply. A year is not very long in an affair of this kind. A moment later he added: "Hang these family feuds! Why couldn't Uncle James have bequeathed a bit? He brings endless trouble on my innocent head just because of a row before I was born."

"He was a strange man. As a rule, one does not carry grudges quite so far. But that is neither here nor there. His will is law in this case."

"Suppose I succeed in spending all but a thousand dollars before the 26th of next September? I'd lose the seven millions and be the next thing to a pauper. That wouldn't be quite like getting my money's worth."

"It is a very serious before you come to a decision one way or the other. In the meantime we can establish beyond a doubt the accuracy of this inventory."

"All means go ahead, and please urge Mr. Jones not to be too hard on me. I believe I'll risk it if the restrictions are not too severe. But if Jones has put such a thing in my way, I might as well give up hope and be satisfied with what I have."

"Mr. Jones is very far from what you'd call practical and clear headed. He will undoubtedly require you to keep an expense account and to show some sort of receipt for every dollar you disburse."

"In a general way, I presume."

"I'll have to employ an army of scribes to devise ways and means for prodigality."

"You forget the item which restrains you from taking anybody into your confidence concerning the will. He'll have to employ an army of scribes to devise ways and means for prodigality."

"If it isn't too difficult to get the night sleep?"

All the rest of the day Brewster wandered about as one in a dream.

He held up the little sheet of paper ruefully.

CHAPTER VII.
GUILTY CONSCIENCE.
Mr. Justwilde—Here's some distinguished foreigner who complains bitterly of the different noises in New York. Mrs. Justwilde (blushing)—Oh, Robert, I wonder if he heard us kissing.

THE SPITEFULNESS OF DISAPPOINTED BRIDES.

There are two persons whom some women, above all others, they may be in other directions, can never forgive—the man who, having won their love, turns his back, indifferently on them, and the rival who supplants them; and sooner or later they will find such a lady, some twenty years or so ago, was supplanted in the affections of her fiancé, a leading merchant of Pittsburgh. The lady cherished a rival as long as she lived; and when she died, a short time ago she left a will bequeathing $100,000 to her old lover on condition that he survives his wife or divorces her. If he marries again he is to have the money to his second spouse, but he can only enjoy the fortune when death or divorce has freed him from his present wife.

The gentleman, however, will have nothing to do with the money under such conditions. "I am perfectly content with my wife," he says, "and don't think there is any prospect of getting a divorce;" while the wife treats the whole matter as a huge joke, and declares laughingly that millions could not wean her husband from her.

There is no limit to the vindictiveness and perverse ingenuity of some of these losers in the matrimonial race. It was only the other day that we read of a woman driving with some friends to the wedding of her faithless lover in a mourning coach. The whole party were dressed in deep mourning, and taking their seats among the wedding guests, punctuated the service by a liberal use of handkerchiefs. Not content with this mock exhibition of woe, the vengeful lady sent to each of the young couple's friends a deep-edged mourning card in memory of the dead honor of her former lover.

In another recent case the lady (of course) enough, it is almost always the lady who vents her spitefulness in these singular ways) had all the love letters of her faithless suitor amputously bound, and sent the volume on the wedding morning to the bride who had taken her place. This interesting manuscript volume contained the following dictation: "To Mrs. G.—with liberal use of the word 'dear'."

The worst than one can say of such exhibitions of feeling is, perhaps, that they are foolish and bad taste, however richly deserved by the false lovers; but there are women whose love of revenge is not so easily gratified. Some years ago a north-country doctor was pursued with such vindictiveness by a lady whom he had jilted that he was ultimately driven to suicide. She had discovered a dishonorable episode in his early life, the public knowledge of which would have meant professional and social ruin; and under these threats of disclosure she compelled him to leave the town where he had worked as a barrister's practice.

Not content with this punishment, she pursued him from one place to another, until in despair he defied her to do her worst. She then made his secret public with disastrous results. His neighbors she was treated with the utmost frigidity, until her life became so unpleasant that her husband was at last compelled to leave the town.

Gradually, by indirect means, the news became public property, and the unhappy bride's social fabric came tumbling down about her ears. When she was not actually "cut" by her neighbors she was treated with the utmost frigidity, until her life became so unpleasant that her husband was at last compelled to leave the town.

But never perhaps has revenge taken a more subtle or cruel form than the following case: A lady in a Midland town had deserted by her lover in favor of a rival, and vowed that some day, however long she might wait, she would have her revenge. For years she concealed her resentment so effectively that she became the chief friend of her former lover and his wife, and the godmother of their only son. This boy, who was the idol of his parents, grew up full of promise, and it was not until he reached manhood that he was discovered to be a confirmed drunkard and a disgrace to his name.

With the help of a disolute nephew of the lady the young fellow was thrown into the company of a young woman of attractive exterior, but of very questionable character; and in spite of the entreaties of his parents he married her. From that moment his life was wrecked; the woman proved to be a confirmed drunkard and a disgrace to his name, and he was driven to suicide.

Such a powerfully beautiful plea to the students of Harvard is well illustrated in his own person today.

He is 70 years old and has worked hard all his life. Yet he is as erect, as light of foot, and as alert as a youth. He keeps up with the news of the day, discusses events keenly, has a sunny optimism and uncharitableness usually attendant upon old age. Knowing men and boys, he has a good opinion of the human race. He eats well, sleeps well, walks rapidly with his shoulders thrown back, and is as eager to get new facts as when he entered Harvard as a student years ago.

"I am satisfied with the rewards of my life," he said very simply.

GRATIFIED BY THE FIGURES.—
He was a cool, calculating father, and he made his figures on a canary-colored blotting-pad with a blue pencil. When he had finished he called his daughter Rose into the library and said:—

"Rose, that young Randall has asked my consent to marry you."

"Yes, father," she answered, while a blush as red as a tomato mounted her face.

"His salary is three pounds per week."

"I have some figures here to show you. After you have paid the rent on your wobbly cottage, laid in a ton of coal, paid the cook's wages, and allowed for his cigars, you will have something left out of his weekly salary."

"That's the way we figure, father."

"You will have enough to buy half a

PRESIDENT ELIOT AT HOME.—
Simplicity in Which the Head of Harvard Lives in Happy Contentment.

(Cor. New York World).
There is an impressive simplicity about the outside of the small brick house in which the venerable president of Harvard University lives. The patches of old-fashioned flowers, the lawn cluttered with dead leaves, the trinketing squirrels, the sentimental trees before the door, with its pan of water for the birds, and in the distance the huddle and mass of buildings crowded with thousands of students, seen dimly through the trees—these are the surroundings of Dr. Eliot's little home.

When I entered the door Dr. Eliot came promptly to meet me, not even knowing my name or business. Nothing could be more democratic or amiable. The grey eyes shone with kindly welcome, the handshake was warm, his whole manner beamed dignity and courtesy.

This is the great scholar and moral leader of the world, the only man in the world who has been spent at the head of Harvard University—an office openly coveted even by President Roosevelt—has, in the teeth of a civilization given over to the pursuit of money, declared that the only durable satisfaction in life has nothing to do with the attainment of wealth.

He would not utter a word to his left address to the Harvard students. But he declared that next month he would speak publicly about great wealth as a life object.

The clean, honorable, chivalrous, industrious life for which Dr. Eliot made

UNITED BAPTIST CONFERENCE MEET IN SESSION.

In the absence of the president Rev. A. B. Cohoe was appointed to the chair. Those present were: Revs. Dr. Gates, P. S. Bamford, A. J. Prosser, A. B. Cohoe, P. J. Stackhouse, R. W. Ferguson and Dr. Black.

The report of the churches was received. Dr. Gates led to go to Moncton this week to conduct a series of devotional services in connection with the S. S. convention.

Large congregations were present at the arrival of the combined Montreal-Boston express. The cause of all the crush was the expected arrival on that train of the Irish Guards. The crowd consisted chiefly of school girls and there was a general rush to the cars as the train entered the station. The Guards, however, arrived at 5 o'clock this morning while the city slumbered, having made a record run from Montreal and their cars were side-tracked outside the depot, while all the disturbance was going on inside. There has hardly ever been seen a more disappointed crowd than fled out of the depot after the train's arrival.

THREE MEN FELL THIRTY-FIVE FEET.

Serious Accident on the New Globe Building This Morning—Joseph Hudson Badly Injured Internally

Shortly before noon today a staging upon which some men were working at the addition to the Globe Building gave way and the three men working on it fell fully thirty feet to the ground. The stage which was on the Water street end was supported on one end by tubs and it is supposed that these gave way causing the accident.

The men injured are Joseph Hudson, now at the Hospital with internal injuries; Hans Taylor, one arm hurt and Peter Raymond, slightly cut. The last two men are but slightly injured, in Raymond's work on with his work after a slight delay. Turnbull may be laid up for some days. Hudson's case is so serious that Dr. Emery ordered his removal at once to the hospital and he was conveyed there in the ambulance. Enquiry there at a later hour brought forth the information that the injured man was resting fairly comfortable.

GETTING READY FOR FAIR OF NATIONS

The neighborhood of St. Andrew's Rink is very suggestive of Christmas this morning from the abundance of spruce which was lying about the entrance and which was being carted there in great loads. The booths are now rapidly nearing completion and this is the only morning now waiting for a number of the Neptune boys turned out to assist the ladies in arranging the decorations.

Besides the different nations represented, there will be Misses for the Colonies, Days, Rebecca at the Well, Domestic Science, a fancy table booth and Santa Claus. The provincial booth which is to represent the arts and handicrafts of N. B. will be one of the most attractive.

The committee met this morning at which it was finally decided that the admission price should be 15 cents and with tea, 50 cents.

N. B. MAN DEAD IN SIAM

Word reached the city yesterday of the death in Siam of John P. Dibble, a former New Brunswick boy, who has, however, lived the greater part of his life in Boston, where two members of his family reside. He had two brothers in the city, one now waiting for further particulars. The brothers are Frankman Beverly Dibble and G. S. Dibble.

The late Mr. Dibble, who was a great traveler, having thoroughly traversed the Kingdom and other parts of the world, was in Siam, representing an American syndicate. Word reached Boston by the fact that he died in Siam, but the cause of Mr. Dibble's death at the early age of thirty years is not yet known.

TWELVE YEAR OLD HEROINE.

In an issue of the Boston Globe last week is a lengthy article with a cut of Miss Marie Coleman, and as a life saver the young lady receives great distinction. Miss Coleman is a niece of Wm. O'Brien of this city and he is rightly proud of her. The young lady is only 12 years of age and near her home in Danversport, Mass. one day last week she saved Edward Turner, the water commissioner of that town from drowning. Mr. Turner fell into the harbor and the girl ran to his assistance and grasping hold of him held on till help arrived. This is the third person that the little heroine has saved from drowning.

TWO FAST TRIPS.

The steady southwest wind of the past few days has sent along schooners for bay ports at a remarkable rate. The schooner Preference, Capt. Gale, arrived Sunday, having made the run from New York to this port in 72 hours. The schooner Evelyn left Boston on Saturday forenoon and dropped anchor at St. Martins on Sunday afternoon. Both are remarkably good runs.

IRISH GUARDS BAND DELIGHTS CROWDS.

The special train bearing the Irish Guards Band arrived in the city from Montreal shortly after five o'clock this morning, and the cars were side-tracked between the station and the elevator. During the day numbers of citizens went down to greet the bandmen. The band is accompanied by Dr. Orr, manager of the Toronto exhibition and his assistant P. W. Rogers, who are in charge. Aid. Franklin of Toronto on a pleasure trip, Lieut. Viscount de Yessel in command, and bandmaster Haswell. There are forty-one musicians, and they present a fine appearance in their natty red uniform.

Shortly before three o'clock this afternoon the bandmen paraded to Victoria Rink for the first concert. The large building was well filled, those present including many school children, and the children from all the orphan asylums. The rink was warm and entirely free from dampness. The seats are well arranged and the stage is prettily decorated.

In addition requests have been received for Handel's Largo, Boccherini's minuet, and that the selection Albin be repeated at the evening concert.

COMMISSIONER COOMBS

Commissioner Coombs will visit St. John and conduct special councils for officers and local clergymen during part of this month. Considerable enthusiasm is already being displayed by the local clergy in getting things in shape for the coming meetings and official inspection. A varied program is the order of the day, a most special feature will be the playing of the visiting bands, each having their own special program.

The Commissioner is accompanied by Mrs. Coombs who is one of the early day officers and has fought in the ranks, understands well the feeling of facing an opposing crowd, authorities who did not or would not understand the work of the A. In spite of all these difficulties many brilliant victories were achieved. Mrs. Coombs is a very pleasing speaker and is adorned with that personal magnetism which carries her hearers' hearts with the theme discussed.
