Magistrate Woodrow Rules Against Barrister On Point of Law.

Special to The Advertiser. Sarnia, Jan. 23. - A one-roun restling bout between Chief of Poice William J. Lannin and Wilfred S. Haney, local barrister, ended with both contestants on their feet, and the magistrate judicating between the two, in the county police court Monday afternoon. The chief gained the magistrate's verdict with regard to the point of law. "I've had trouble with him before and if it occurs again I'll lock him up," was the heated exclamation of the police chief. "You might do that, but I'll get in a couple of pokes first," Mr. Haney said as a parting shot.

Arose Over Prudhomme rdered defendant back to the prison-r's inclosure. Mr. Haney objected and the chief stepped forward and took Prudhomme by the arm. Mr. Haney forced his way between the defendant and the police chief, and with hands on each other's shoulders a scrimmage ensued.

Magistrate C. S. Woodrow was talking to another lawyer at the time, and hearing the commotion in-quired the cause, Mr. Haney stated his case and the magistrate de-cided that as the defendant was surendered to the police on bail his place was in the box

Living on $20 a Week.

Is it possible to keep house on $20 a week in London or in any other city in this district? The Omaha World-Herald went into the question to find out if it could be done, and also how many people would be willing to try it. Before the reporter had gone very far he was convinced that it would be a life of sacrifice and the man would have to: Cut out smoking, wear shirts made at home; forego most amusements, and give up associates who are making higher incomes. The woman's part would be doing her own cooking, sewing, washing and ironing, and make shirts for her husband; walk downtown to save car fare; buy in quantity and in third of the married men are workthere get from 35 to 45 cents an hour. Fifty-seven people were asked the on $20 a week and support a wife. All admitted the possibility; 21 deemed it highly imprudent to try it; 27 thought the venture could be successful. Some real estate men knew it could be done because they had on their books clients who were doing it and making small payments on a lot on which they hoped to question if it were possible to live

The mayor of Qmaha could see where there would have to be some real thrift practiced, but concluded: "If both will buckle down and work together, they can do it. Those who are afraid to marry on $20 a week will never make a success anyway.'

Growing out of the story came some suggestions that were real and worth while. For instance: "There should be perfect frankness between man and wife about money matters. The wife should know exactly what the husband makes, and there should be no covering up of what becomes of the income. One sure way to shatter a bank account and a home as well is a lack of perfect confidence in money matters."

Girls in various walks of life looked at the matter in different ways. Several of them were certain they could get along on $20 a week if they had the man who was worth making sacrifices for. Others simply hit the roof when the matter of living married on $20 a week was mentioned. "I don't want any man to share $20 a week with me." "There isn't a man in the world I would think enough of to marry if he only made $20 a week." There are two opinions expressive of many others Living on $20 a week is like many other things. It can be done-it is being done, and there are plenty of houses in London and in every city around here where the income is not over that amount year around. And yet they live, and the fact that conditions are still wholesome is a wonderful tribute to the management of a wife and the care and sacrifice of the husband. No doubt a $20 income produces more thrift and care than is developed at $40 or $60.

Find Out Why.

It would be interesting to know how many abandoned farms there are in Ontario. Also to know why they are vacant-whether they are poor, run down, away from markets, or what.

We hear references every now some of them as we drive through the country; we know some of the boys who have left these places.

It is hardly likely there can be poor land in districts filled with good farms. It hardly seems possible that two adjoining farms could, with equal treatment, be marked down as one good and one bad.

While we are working away at the big west, and also in northern Ontario, wouldn't it be worth while to do a little arithmetic right around home and see if we can't find out what's been the matter here?

Some go as far as to say we have deserted farms by thousands in Ontario. Suppose we take only 100 in a given area, with the history of each, the reasons for its abandonment: the problems the farmer couldn't overcome: changes that would have kept him on the farm. If the thing were studied out in this way we might learn much. Too often we have simply taken the notice on the sale bill, "The owner is leaving the farm." And we have let it go at that.

Woodstock, Jan. 22.—The Red and White intermediates tonight clinched the group championship when they defeated the St. Thomas crew by 10 to 2, while Tillsonburg was walloping the London outfit. The game here tonight despite the one-sided score, was very closely contested, and the large crowd if spectators witnessed some clever lockey. The locals especially showed up well, and had barrels of speed. Their combination was the best of the season and the way they went down with two ind three-man rushes brought cheers from the rooters. They skated, sticklighted and played the game geneally ike a bunch of champions. The visitors wave some very good players individually, but so far as combination is conserved they failed to show any here onight. The home crew scored five innes in the first session, while the saints annexed a single counter. In he second period the vistors plcked up and held the locals to two goals. The third period brought the teams ack with lots of pep, and the crowd njoyed some fine hockey mixed up vith a little strenuous play on both ides, and Joe Richardson was called in to bench quite a few players. New York Boxing Commission to the proposed Dempsey-Gibbons match because of the disparity in weight and size, resulted today in the withdrawal of the Gibbons' forfeit and challenge.

"Having failed to get Dempsey in this way, we will now go after the championship match in the other and the best way," Eddle Kane, manager of Gibbons, said today. "We will fight our way to the match and the commission will not be able to stop it," he said.

Kane took the action of the commission will not be able to stop it," he said.

Kane took the action of the commission without much fuss. He seemed to think like the rest of the fight fans in New York that the commission's ideas do not amount to much and that if Gibbons beats Johnson he will get the Dempsey match regardless of what the commission thinks about it. William Muldoon, chaiman of the commission, it also said that Gibbons could find plenty of work among men his own weight without going out of his class.

He said he was opposed to any boxer leaving his class. He took the position that the commission could not put itself in the role of a matchmake by suggesting a light heavyweight opponent for Gibbons. In all of these statements Muldoon shows the inconsistency for which the New York commission has become noted all over the world.

LOCALS LEAD 2-0

Ingersoll Got Four Quick Goals To End First Period 4--2.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Ingersoll, Jan. 22.—Ingersoll juniors, playing consistent two and three man combination, came from behind after London had scored two fast goals, bulged the twine behind Tozer four times in the first period, and from them on were never headed. The final bell found the scoreboard reading: Ingersoll 8, London 4.

The game opened fast with London 1. 8, London 4.

The game opened fast, with London doing the forcing. Noe was playing a great game in the nets for the home team, and stopped a barrage of pucks from London's individual stickwork. Mowry made a neat backcheck, nursed the rubber along the boards, but could not beat Noe, who made a brilliant stop of Blackwell's bullet-like shot a moment later. Tozer proved equal to a couple of shots, and it looked like anybody's game.

JEWTRAW. STEINMETZ AND MOORE IN 300-POINT RACE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Three skaters led in points in the Maxwell "300 point" cup competition, which will be resumed when the final meets of the Adirondack gold cup skating champlonship series opens here Feb. 8. They are: Chirles Jewtraw of Lake Placid, Joe Moore of New York and William Steinmetz of Chicago.

The three-foot silver trophy, presented by Harry Maxwell of New York City, is to be awarded to the first skater scoring 300 points in the major meets held annually at Lake Placid. As an outcome of the inland diamond trophy races here last year, Jewtraw has 190 pounds, Moore 150 and Steinmetz 140. Other skaters considered in the running are Charles Gorman of St. John, N. B., and Roy McWhirter of Chicago, with 90 points each, and William Stowell of Chicago and Duke Donovan of St. Paul, with 20 each.

URGES NEW FAIR HALL FOR MUNICIPAL ARENA

Alderman John Greer Would Economize in Manufacturers' Building.

TO BATTLE FOR SPORT

Urges Further Development of Legitimate Athletics in City of London.

The construction of a new industrial building at the Western Fair grounds should solve another probem, reasons Ald. John Greer, who questioned this afternoon why the contemplated structure could not be built in such a manner as to serve as a municipal arena for winter

Ald. Greer is a member of the xecutive committee of the London Amateur Athletic Association, and is naturally interested in any movement that will tend toward the further development of legitimate sport in the city That he is prepared to battle in civic circles for more satisfactory results is self-evident. To The Advertiser this afternoon he voiced this imely and valuable suggestion, one that will without a doubt claim the earnest consideration of his colleagues in the council chamber.

Awaits Hockey Season.

"I had not anticipated introducing the municipal arena problem at this time," he explained. "I was waiting until the hockey season had terminated. It has occurred to me, how-ever, since the Western Fair extension and so forth has been broached that there is a logical solution for the their followers, and it would seem hat it is meeting with more and more favor. While in past years the civic administrators have acknowledged London's lamentable handicap in

London's lamentable handicap in this respect, no material assistance has been forthcoming, other than moral support and an indefinite promise that "something would be done as soon as possible."

There is now ample reason to suppose that something definite will transpire and adequate accommodation provided, if only of a temporary nature.

The Advertiser understands that a meeting of the Amateur Athletic Association will be held this week or early next week, when the mooted civic arena will be one of the chief ivic arena will be one of the chief items for consideration.

Result Is Problematical. Just what action will result is, of problematical at this moment. course, problematical at this moment, but it is freely intimated, however, that a direct appeal to the city that a direct appeal to the city fathers is not at all unlikely.

As a hockey center, London's reputation extends to every corner of the province, and beyond. This city has trained and developed players who have brought credit to the Forest City in distant leagues, both amateur and professional.

On the other hand, however, London has achieved, quite recently especially, another reputation—it has no real accommodation to offer. This can be righted nevertheless, and those interested in this phase of the city's development believe that 1923 will prove the banner year in this respect.

detrimental to the sport, and an imposition on the public.

Of the thirty-four experts involved, eighteen declared themselves as strongly opposed to such a match under any circumstances, twelve declared that Williard should be given a chance to meet the man who overwhelmed him at Toledo, provided he first proved his fitness against worthy opponents, and four expressed the beflef that Willard was entitled to another chance at the world titleholder. The four experts who favor the match advanced excellent argument in support of their stand.

R. A. Cronyn, sporting editor of the Seattle Times, said: "Let them fight again and settle a burning argument. I think Willard proved to fans out here that he can get in shape and in such event I cahnot see where such a match would injure the game."

Wellington Jones, sport editor of the Harrisburg Telegraph, wired: "Fight fans in this section want to see a battle between Dempsey and Willard Patrons are clamoring for more action and less controversy. The sooner either Willard or Dempsey is licked, the better for the ring game."

and less controversy. The sooner either willard or Dempsey is licked, the better for the ring game."
Raymond Johnson of the Nashville Tennesseean, said: "Willard is the only logical opponent for Dempsey in my opinion. Press despatches say he is in better condition than when he fought Dempsey before. If that is true, I believe he would last longer than Brennan, Gibbons, Johnson or any others." Scherwitz of the San Antonio Light, said: "Let them fight, it will at least keep Dempsey from going stale, and may be Jess really was caught unawares at Toledo."
Opposed to these opinions were many, of which the following are typical:
J. Lynn Fredenburgh, St. Paul Despatch: "There is no public demand for this match. It is merely an effort to pry open the purses of the fans for the benefit of Willard, Dempsey and the promoters."
Sporting Editor McGinley, Hartford Times: "Don't think Willard should fight Dempsey, age and physical condition not favorable."

Ankn-Amen. The rims of the wheels are clevely bound with tough leather, the slightly worn surface of which indicates that the king probably held indicates that the king probably held the reins on many state occasions, either at the review of his troops or when welcoming some neighboring potentate. The chariot was drawn by two horses, harnessed to a single shaft (not shown in the picture), with collars and bits gaudily be-jewelled. The driver was accustomed. when going into battle, to tying the reins to his belt, thus leaving both arms free for the use of his bow and arrows and spear. Tut-Ankh-Amen seems however-from all indications seems, nowever—from all indications so far found in his tomb—to have preferred a life of luxurious ease to that of warrior.

Quite skillful wood-turning went in-warped so that each piece served as a half of two spokes, the elbows being thus made being joined at the hub. The wooden axle was saved from friction by the use of grease made from animal fats. The Assyrians were apparently the original inventhe chariot, which was copied by the Egyptians. Only a few are in existence, the one found in Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb being the most emarkable yet unearthed. Aside from its wonderful beauty, and the great value of its jewel and gold decorations, the present chariot is unique in having the axle placed in the exact centre of the cart. All examples hitherto discovered have had the axle in the rear of the cart, throwing all the weight of the vabicle and its all the weight of the vehicle and its occupants on the horses' shaft. OBJECT NO. 2—Treasure Chest. The above is one of the several elaborate treasure caskets found in the dusty interior of King Tut-ankhamen's mausoleum. A single gem from its richly embellished cover would be highly treasured by any jeweler in the world. ing Bowl. From this bowl, beautifully carved from the white Egyptian alabaster—a soft, crystalline stone taken from the hills near Luxor— King Tut-ankh-amen and other rich rulers drank their wine and beer. (Yes, the Egyptians made beer from barley and grain much as we make it, or did make it, today.) The chis-eled scroll-work on the present bowl, which had lain covered with dust for 30 centuries, is said to be minutely perfect. The design on the outside of the receptacle represents the lotus leaf, the sacred flower of Egypt. The handles are of novel shape, a design unfamiliar to researchers. Further investigations into the records and hieroglyphics of the tomb may disclose its origin. It is possible that Tut-ankh-amen had among his workers an artisan of peculiar originality

RAILS ARE PROMINENT ON NEW YORK MARKET

Group Gains More Favor on Street Than for Some Time Past.

By STUART P. WEST.

New York, Jan. 23 .- The prominence given to the railway list was one of the features of the stock market here today. This activity was in accord with sentiment around the street, which is inclined to look with more favor on this class of stocks than it has in some time.

The reason is that every day that passes seems to make it less likely than an extra session of Congress will be called.

If that proves the case it would not be until next December that radical members of Congress would have a nance to bring forward an anti-railroad campaign. Buying in the rails, such as it was, started with Lehigh way to New York Central, Reading, Atchison, Southern Pacific and the St. Pauls. In the case of the last named and also in Baltimore and Ohio, covering of a short interest helped along the rise.

The market as a whole was very irregular. It was quite strong during the first two hours of trading, and then sagged off again. At one time such leaders as Baldwin Locomotive, American Locomotive, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel were up a half point to a point. General Asphalt ran up on the announcement that the tors had declared the regular preferred dividend, although a section of the street insists that unless there is a change for the better in the emopany's affairs, this dividend si

$1,000 at maturity in 1934. $950 can be invested safean income of $65 a year until 1940, when the principal sum of $1,000 is repayable.

$1,000 well invested at 7% gives you $70 per year payable half-yearly. Principal sum is repayable any year from 1930-1940, according to maturity selected. $1,035 will purchase for you an assured income of $80 per year for 10 years ($800), and will repay you a principal sum of $1,000 within that time. $1,050 will purchase a mortgage security carrying 8% interest for 18 years ($1,440), and repay a principal sum of $1,000 in 1941.

The above are just a few examples of how money can be safely and profitably employed if invested now.
We will be glad to supply you with particulars of any of the above opportunities, which could be added to if space would permit. Particulars

CITY COUNCIL DROPS NEW HALL PROPOSAL

Civic Fathers Think It Wise To Leave Construction Till Next Year.

HATCHET SWINGS

Adopt Richter Assessment System, and Eliminate 18 Temporary Employees.

The hatchet swings. Mayor Wenige's fight for "greater efficiency and economy in municipal circles" commonced last night with a vengeance, when members of the city council in special parley recommended the adoption of the Richter system of assessment; the elimination of 18. temporary assessors, and the abandonment of the new city hall project. A special committee, comprising Mayor Wenige, Ald. A. M. Judd. chairman of the finance committee and Ald. Leonard Douglass, chairman of the board of works, will confer with Stephen Grant, assessment comdissioner, with reference to his probable superannuation.

Should Be Treated Fairly.

The members of the council were insistent that in view of Mr. Grant's long and faithful service with the council did not. municipality, about 51 years, he should receive every courtesy and fair treatment. Mayor Wenige felt that this was only right, and his opinion met with the unanimous apopinion met with the unanimous approval of the councillors, all of whom were in attendance, with the lone exception of Ald. John May, who is in Ottawa as the city's representative at the deep waterways convention.

The city hall project "goes by the board" for, another year, it being ruled that it would be the desire of the greater number of ratepayers that no hall be commenced in 1923, as such was deemed impossible without another debenture issue. another debenture issue.

"There has been no camouflage of the issue." Mayor Wenige asserted to The Advertiser following the session. "It was the choice of two evils. Build the hall and issue debentures for such additional money as we would require for a decent building, or else abandon the project. We could not build half a hall."

Try To Keep Promise. The council has chosen to leave the matter until next term. The people clamored for a lower tax rate and our pre-election promise was definite that we should live within our means. My pay-as-you-go policy has meant no issuance of debentures greater than the amount retired. We had to do one thing or the other. We are therefore endeavoring to keep our promise."

The suggested reorganization of the nt office was the initial item assessment office was the initial item for consideration. When the meeting opened, Ald. Douglass questioned whether the meeting was public and if the press was to be admitted. Mayor Wenige left the issue to his associates. "You know my personal feeling," he said. It contains just sufficient flavor of the ludicrous to lift it to a fairly high rank.

The story of a Russian family, miserable under the harsh rule of the czar, attaining happiness in America, is one that depends for its success on the ability of its director to blend pathos with comedy, and in "Hungry Hearts" that combination is admirably worked out. Hannah Levin, whose role is well taken by Rose Rosanova, arrives in the land of the brave and the home of the free with her family. As usual things go rather badly; her husband isn't familiar with American business methods. His fruit stand is stolen, so Mrs. Levin works herself sick trying to procure the wherewithal to support the struggling brood.

At the crucial moment the hero, in the form of Bryant Washburn, comes along and gets engaged to Mrs. Levin's daughter. The love element here is a trifle maudiln, but no doubt appeals to some. What makes the picture good are the streaks of rare

"When Knighthood Was Flower," At Allen's, Gorgeous Film.

MARION DAVIES LURES

Justifies Claim of Ranking Among Sensations in Moving Productions.

About a dozen times a year the honest moving picture critic can truthfully announce to a long-suffering public that a certain show comes up to expectations. With "When Knighthood Was In Flower," howknighthood Was In Flower, now-ever, he can go further, and declare that the picture more than justified the most sanguine accounts of it. At first glance the title conjures up visions of King Arthur and his satel-lites riding cumbrous chargers, lites riding cumbrous chargers, spreading bones over the arena and nnui over the audience.
But "When Knighthood Was In

Flower" takes us no further back than to the time of naughty King Henry VIII. of England, perhaps that is one reason why it enthralls as much as it does. It can certainly be ranked with the best dozen or so pictures ever produced.

Achieved Definite Triumph.

The investment more for a first content of the Alberta Farmer 1.

The inveterate movie fan will agree that Cosmopolitan productions achieved a definite triumph in their selection of a director. Each scene is one of rare beauty. Especially pleasing is the part which depicts the pursuit of the French king's hirelings after Charles Brandon and his petite beloved, Mary Tudor. The flash of torches in the darkness have the crimson brilliance of gleaming the crimson brilliance of gleaming rubies. The effect is delightfully satisfying—a fact, indeed, for jaded eyes.

The romance of the mad-cap Mary Tudor is remarkably well portrayed by Marion Davies, whose claim to a permanent niche in beauty's hall of fame no one can deny. Forrest Stanley is aptly cast in his role of Charles Brandon, the alluring captain of the king's guards.

Historical Love Story. The tale of Mary Tudor's love af-airs is known to all of an historical turn of mind. Promised by her brother, the king of England, to the brother, the king of England, to the ancient king of France as a bride, the fiery little princess tickles all with her pretty rebellion. The call of youth to youth is strong in the soul of the king's sister, and though forced to wed the enfeebled first citizen of France, she makes certain of annexing the man of her choice after the left. Princess Mary again.

How he disobeys orders and ultimately gains the hand of the diminutive vampire through the exercise of wits and flashing swords is best left untold. It would be a crime to spoil the suspense for those who have not as yet seen the picture.

Harding Great Impersonator.

Lyn Harding, the eminent English actor, who has taken the part of the much-married King of England a thousand times on the legitimate stage, amply vindicates the assertion often made that he is the greatest impersonator of King Henry in the world.

But to Marion Davies go the premier honors. Erratic, temper-mental, vivacious and beautiful withal, she is a pulsating answer to the question, "Why men leave home?" Anyone who could resist Mary Tudor must have been of peculiar species. But what is the sense of going on. It is a fine picture; so fine that it places. But it's well worth seeing.

Name Committee to Confer With T. G. Meredith to Obtain Information.

Pending the opinion of the city solicitor on the question as to whether the city can guarantee the decentures of the fair board proposed to offset the outlay needed for the extension of the fair grounds, no action will be taken. This was the agreement of the directors of the Western Fair at their special session late yesterday afternoon.

On the motion of Ald. Leonard Douglass, a committee was named by the president of the fair board, consisting of directors George McCor-mick, Mayor Wenige, Ald. Leonard Douglass and President J. H. Saunders from the fair board, and T. W. McFarland representing the manufacturers, to confer with the city solicitor with the intention of ascertaining whether the city would b sponsible for any deficit, should the revenue from the proposed new manufacturers' building not be sufficient.

Messrs. Richardson and Patterson, and the Rev. W. L. McIntosh spoke briefly, in support of the petition, President J. H. Saunders assured. the petitioners that the matter would carefully gone into before anything was done, and moreover that nothing detrimental to the property, owners in that vicinity would be con-

"Pay As You Go" Plan. George McCormick and Ald. Franks McKay advocated getting the pro-posal in the city of London bill, so that no time would be lost in getting the building under way. Ald. Leonard Douglass was against this, stating that he stood strictly for a "pay s you go" plan.

T. W. McFarland read a lengthy report, going into details of such matters as revenue from the proposed new machinery building, the extent of space, and the manner of allotting the space. The revenue, he would more than take care of the interest on the principal, and the sink ing fund as well. The building would be a distinct acquisition to the fair board, and to the city, for it could be used as a "civic arena," and would be a very fine thing for the manu-

President Saunders however, certain that the new building would not take any exhibitors out of the palace, but would house those exhibitors who were unable to obtain space last year, and previously. It might take some out of the machinery and stove buildings. It was proposed, however, to carry on a campaign in the west, for national exhibitors and Secretary A. M. Hunt stated that during the last week he had been called on the long distance phone by a large man-ufacturer, who had never exhibited in this city, asking for information regarding the space and rates, and signifying willingness to contract for same. The space, Mr. Hunt said, would be let on a ten-year contract. Mayor Wenige stated that when the promise was made to the people that no more debentures would be issued than were retired, he had not taken into consideration such a proposal a of guaranteeing debentures is sued by the fair board, if that pro-cedure was legal at all. Chamber of Commerce Will Discuss Matter at Meeting Tomorrow.

COVES MENTIONED

Many Declare Cost of Changing Site Has Been Overestimated.

Notwithstanding the recent Highland Park session of the fair board, the chamber of commerce and mem-bers of the city council, the Western land Park session of the fair board, the chamber of commerce and members of the city council, the Western Fair extension plan is not yet in sight of settlement, as is evidenced by a questionaire sent out by the chamber of commerce to its members outlining questions that will come up for discussion at a dinner meeting in the Tecumseh House tomorrow night. In recent years, there has been much talk of relocating the grounds of the Western Fair on a new site, and the general opinion of the city.

Will nothing be gained in dollars and cents, but money will actually be lost, in the cost of land alone. Then new builtings will have to be built, such as a palace, a horticulture, machinery and Holman out, a to start growing up on Nova Scotia, to remove from there to Montreal, in the cost of land alone. "It can't all be done in a year," said ne official who claimed to have been watching proceedings with interest for some time past. "It will take five years to completely establish the Western Fair on a new site, and there will be cost attached. But where is London's citizenry? I venture to say, that if the matter were put to a vote, the electors would vote almost unanimously in favor of new grounds. It will have to come some time, so why build expensive building Race.

grounds. It will have to come some time, so why build expensive build-ings on already crowded grounds." Others interviewed, stated that on the face of present endeavor, it ap-peared that the fair board were intending gradually extending the present location to eventually take in that property now bounded by Campbell, Rectory and Dundas streets.

Cost Enormous. "If that is the intention," the cost will be enormous, as property in that section is very valuable, and not only will nothing be gained in dollars and animated discussion over the whole en better than the one of 1894, the year of our first championship. It vas practically the same team; that is, the individual players were the same, but the machine was being perfected by more accurate adjustment of the various cogs. Each player knew the function of the other and did his part to bring about perfect co-ordination.

Other clubs had good batters, good fielders, good catchers and good pitchers. It was very clear to us that an advantage would lie in the way we got the most out of our strength. We sat up at nights and talked these matters over. Every suggestion was given consideration, sometimes in the form of hot argument and sometimes in calm deliberation. We all had the same aim -to win-and we wanted it to be a victory of the team, not of the in-

Obviously the secret of advantage was in base running-getting the larger number of runs out of a given number of hits. Right there is the mark of superiority of a ball club. That, I suppose, is true in any walk

The Orioles had speed and could hit. By constant experiment we developed a system of base running that soon became famous. At the same time we had to develop a system of defence against base running by our opponents. I think I can truly say that we were pioneers in the present art of getting the most runs out of the least number of hits.

That hit and run play was our best form of attack, though we often varied it. If, when the first man up got on base and the next batter was good place hitter, we were almost rtain to signal, or give the sign, as pall players call it, for the hit and The runner would start from first base with the pitch and if the patter hit behind the runner he would ball back to the plate in time to catch get him at third the batter would go n to second. We always took chances. There is always an advan- attempt this play, though, would be tage in taking close chances. It puts the other fellow up against the worry bout what to do. In other words, we would test his nerve instead of letting Amateurs could hardly do that. him test ours. That, incidentally, is one of the secrets of Ty Cobb's success. He always tests the other play that was called "steal and slam." It was simply a variation of the hit and run. The man on first would take a lead to actually steal the base. In that case, if the ball was a good one, the batter would slam at it. If bert Robinson to do it, was for the Thum the pitcher, expecting a hit and run, catcher to make a bluff as if to throw pitched out, the batter would simply to second. Instead he turns and let it go and take a chance on the whips the ball to third, catching the runner stealing the base. In a majority of cases a fast runner would not be worked too often. Otherwise be safe. The batter then would be the other side will get wise and signal in a better position than ever. With the man on third to stick to his bag. in winter. a runner on second he could take his If he did so both runners would be time and wait for a good one. He safe. It is up to the nimble mind of could even sacrifice so as to advance the runner to third and have a man make and act simultaneously with his on third with only one out.

I think we were among the first to traditional double steal when there with the Orioles. It was the perfecare runners on first and third. In tion with which they were carried the early days, before my time even, it was almost certain that if the man on first started for second and throw was made to get him the man on third would score. To this day that is a hard play to stop, but we manage to handle it rather successfully now.

Our first plan was to let the second aseman cover the bag. The shortstop would run in, crossing in front of second, and take the throw and whip the ball to the plate in time to get the runner from third. That was known as "the short throw." It also had its disadvantage. Soon the able to get that lead by being behind runner on third got to expect the the pitcher. If he has the lead then play. As a result he would run back there is no excuse for his being to third and both would be safe, it being too late to get the man going strengthen weak kidneys and put them in condition to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Strong healthy kidneys are absolutely necessary if the blood is to be pure and the body healthy. Pure blood coursing through the body carries to the different organs, the nourishment they need, keeps them sound and enables them to throw off disease of different kinds.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely a kidney remedy. They tone up and strengthen weak kidneys and put

Now, instead of taking chances on base running stunts, I find that often there is more percentage in letting the runner hold his base and wait white crust outside the Old Pasture.

That accounts for the falling off in base stealing. The runner sees nothing to be gained by taking desperate chances when a long hit is likely to come any time and drive

I am sorry to see the fine art of base running go into the discard, but it would be foolish to take chances that do not gain anything. In fact, the chances of the batter hitting one through are greater than those of the runner stealing the base.

There are other serious drawbacks to the lively ball.

TY COBB, THE ARTIST OF THE UNEXPECTED.

The only way to beat that play successfully is to have a nervy second baseman or shortstop with a good arm. Simply let the throw from the catcher go through. If the second baseman is quick and accurate he can take the throw and then whip the to to third. If a play was made to the runner from third. If the man on third does not start then he can tag out the runner from first. To stupid unless the catcher and second baseman were both accurate throwers and able to get the ball away quickly.

In the last world's series both the taking a chance on the long throw. In a college game, where the players extremely foolish. He didn't have a Of course, opponents got to know are not so expert, the short throw

It was not so much the originality

The did so both runners would be safe. It is time to be moving. I am afraid that if we don't get down there pretty soon I won't have strength enough to get there at all."

So Peter led the way and Old Jed Thumper followed down through the Old Pasture to the edge of the Green Meadows which, as you know, were lope out a scheme for preventing the of these various plays that counted

Though it never seemed to strike ball players that way, it is really easier to make a steal of third than of second. That was one of my long suits. It was rare that I was ever thrown out stealing third. In fact, no ball player ought to be thrown out. His eye should tell him when to start. His judgment of time and distance must be naturally accurate. In other words, he should never start for third until he has sufficient lead. He is thrown out. If he does miss it is because his judgment is bad. Fred Merkle was not what one could call a very fast man on a sprint, but he was an adept at stealing third base. He never started unless he had the right lead. Once started, he rarely missed. And to steal third is f enormous advantage. There is no doubt but that the art of base running has fallen into decline due to the lively ball. That is one of the questions asked by those who have sent in filled out questionnaires. The answer is obvious. Base running is really a matter of taking chances so as to profit by a succeeding hit. In the old days the single was to be expected. . We didn't look for doubles, triples and home runs as we do now. Singles are also more frequent now because with the lively ball any kind must go wandering off. I suppose t

The four buccaneer ships un traordinary manoeuvers half a mile off the Boca Chica and little more than half a mile away from the remainder of the fleet, and from their flanks flame and smoke were belching each time they swung broadside to the great round fort that guarded that narrow entrance. The fort was returning the fire vigorously and viciously. But the buccaneers timed their broadsides with extraordinary judgment to catch the defending ordnance reloading; then as they drew the Spaniard's the Spaniard's fire, they swung away again, not only taking care to be ever-moving targets, but further, to present no more than bow or stern to the fort, their masts in line, when the heaviest cannonades were Gibbering and cursing, M. de Rivarol stood there and watched this action, so presumptuously undertaken Meanwhile the fight went merrily on. The fort was suffering badly. # Cut Down the Cost of Electric Lighting

How Do You Know This Lamp Is Good?—

Power Cost Plus Lamp Cost-

That's what you pay for electric light.

Perhaps you think so because it burns with a clear brilliant light when you turn the power on.

That may be a deceptive test. Any manufacturer can make a lamp burn brilliantly by reducing the thickness of the tungsten filament. A thin wire will come to a white heat with a small amount of power, but the strain will soon kill it. Lamps like that die a natural death too soon, and the cost of lamp renewals makes your lighting bill excessive.

Or perhaps you think the lamp is good because it actually gives long service.

Neither can you gauge lamp value by length of service alone. The manufacturer can use a filament so heavy that the lamp will wear like an old-fashioned carbon bulb, but it will need an excessive amount of power to make that heavy wire glow; and the saving in lamp renewals will be gobbled up in increased power costs,

There Is a Way To Be Sure of the Happy Medium!

You have not got a laboratory equipment at home, but use the laboratory you own and pay for, maintained for the benefit of hydro consumers by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Hydro engineers have designed a lamp with a filament thin enough to give a brilliant hight on a minimum power consumption, yet heavy enough to sell with a 1,500-HOUR GUARANTEE. If any Hydro Lamp fails to deliver this unmatched combination of essential features, you will be given a replacement FREE.
