ELECTION OF SINN FEINER IS A GRAVE MATTER

British Press to Regard the Outcome - New Member Quoted as Saying He Will Not Sit in the Commons - Unionist Papers Make Bitter Comment

By Courier Leased Wire

New York, July 12.—An Associated Press cable from London this morning, says: The election of Edward De Valera as member of parliament for East Clare, the third Sinn Feiner to be returned to parliament of late, is treated as an event of great political consequence by the morning newspapers, who devote considerable space to the victory. The tendency of the Unionist press, reflecting their advices from Belfast and Dublin, is to emphasize what it always contended—the folly of the government in liberating Sinn Fein prisoners and refraining to deal with revolutionary talk and acts as such would be dealt with in England.

These papers regard the situation as gravely threatening for the establishment of Sinn Fein movement but rebellion. The Liberal press also is alarmed, but rather for the position of the official Nationalist party and for the prospect for the establishment of constitutional home rule. One opinion seems common among all parties namely, that the prospects of the convention in Ireland to consider home rule is seriously impaired, if not entirely doomed. Another view is that the election is an irreparable disaster for the Irish Nationalist party, which many Irish people complain, held the country for years in the dead hand of rigid machine politics.

The Sinn Fein movement is regarded in the same quarter as an expression of discontent and vehement resentment of a long course of administrative folly, indicating rather a lack of confidence with present parliamentary methods than a revolutionary tendency, and in this respect, resembling a state of mind which often leads Russian electors, who themselves are not all Socialists, to support Socialist candidates at the poles.

The Telegraph's parliamentary reporter says all the Irish sections of the House of Commons regard the result as virtually a death blow to the Nationalist party—the end of constitutional agitation and the beginning of republicanism. It is declared that no Nationalist seat outside of Dublin is now safe. Timothy Healy, M.P., frankly gratified, says the English people are mistaken about the Sinn Feiner. They are not rabid extremists, but devoted idealists.

The local correspondent at Ennis quotes Professor De Valera as saying he does not intend to take his seat in the House of Commons. Commenting on the East Clare election of a Sinn Feiner to parliament, the Irish Independent says: "Five out of every six electors who supported the victor, did so out of sheer disgust for the cringing, crawling policy of the Irish party, and the blundering tactics of their leaders."

The Irish Times considers that East Clare voted for a program of revolution. The Sinn Fein policy so far has developed on destruction and bitterness pregnant with menace to the peace of Ireland, yet this policy triumphed over the memory of a devoted soldier (Major William Redmond) and swept the Nationalists out of a seat held without opposition for twenty years, says the Irish Times.

The Dublin Express says the victory is the most portentous ousting in modern Irish political history. "It is clear," the paper says, "that the Nationalists can do little at a convention, but record their pious opinions."

London, July 12.—The Chronicle says the Sinn Feiners receive enormous sums of money from the United States, much of it doubtless from German sources, which enables them to conduct extensive propaganda.

EMPEROR INTERVIEWS CHANCELLOR--LATTER HAS RESIGNED?

By Courier Leased Wire Amsterdam, July 12.—Emperor William had an interview lasting several hours with Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg yesterday and received his report on the political situation, according to a semi-official despatch from Berlin.

Berne, Switzerland, July 12.—The Vossiches Zeitung of Berlin says the German Imperial Chancellor, Dr. van Bethmann-Hollweg, has resigned, Emperor William, the newspaper adds, has postponed his decision whether to accept the Chancellor's resignation.

Summed Crown Prince Berne, Switzerland, July 12.—(British admiralty per Wireless Press)—An official communication issued in Berlin yesterday says Emperor William expressed the opinion that the political and constitutional reforms demanded by the Reichstag are such that they concern not merely himself, but his successor inasmuch as they would be permanent. For this reason the Emperor summoned the Crown Prince to attend one or more crown councils at which final decision regarding the extent to which the crown and the government will make concessions to the Reichstag will be reached.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE HEAD-QUARTERS OF FOE IN GALICIA

By Courier Leased Wire. Petrograd, July 12.—The Russians have captured Kalusz, the headquarters of the enemy in Galicia, according to a semi-official announcement made to-day.

According to information received at the ministry of war, the Russian troops are continuing their successful advance and have taken a large number of prisoners.

Kalusz is a city of about 8,000 population, 28 miles southeast of Styr.

Petrograd, July 12.—Official announcement that Kalusz, in Galicia, had been occupied by the Russians, was made to-day, coupled with the statement that the occupation was effected after a sanguinary battle.

WILSON ISSUES STRAIGHT NOTICE TO ALL INTERESTS

Informing Mine Operators, Manufacturers and Shipping Interests That the Government Will Fix Prices

Washington, July 12.—In an open address teeming with sensational utterance, President Wilson last night served notice on mine operators, manufacturers and shipping interests that the Government intended to fix prices of their products during the war period and that the public must be served on the same basis as the Governmental agencies.

Those who sought to avoid the ruling of the Government, he said, would be held guilty of an equal favorability to the cause of the enemy. The price fixed, he said, must, of course, be a just one.

"We must make the prices to the public the same as the prices to the Government," the President stated, "that pays them or not. They mean victory or defeat. They mean that America will win her place once for all among the foremost free nations of the world, or that she shall sink to defeat and become a second-rate power alike in thought or action. This is a day of her reckoning and every man among us must personally face that reckoning along with her."

Forget the Profits Patriotism and profits ought never in the present circumstances to be mentioned together, the President said, for patriotism leaves profits out of the question. No true man, he added, who stays behind while others go to the front to risk their lives, will ask himself what he is getting for make out of business.

"No true patriot," he said, "speaks of the overseas expedition, 'will permit himself to take toll of their heroism in money or seek to grow rich by the shedding of their blood. When they are giving their lives will be not at least give his money?" The President said he could not believe that men living in easy and peaceful fashion would attempt to "exact a price, drive a bargain," while others were enduring the agony of this war on the battlefields and "bereaved women" and "pitiful children" were about them.

Special attention was directed by the President to the ship owners, favoring the transportation of goods, and foremanpower.

DEPORTED BELGIUMS ARE BADLY ILL TREATED

Object is to Force Them to Work for the German Army—Insufficient Nourishment, Cruel Punishment, and Brutal Intimidation the Methods used

By Courier Leased Wire. Havre, June 29.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The Belgian Government has received from various sources evidence which accords in every detail, proving that deported Belgian civilians are subjected systematically to mistreatment to bring them to forced labor for the German army.

This evidence exposes insufficient nourishment, cruel punishment, brutal intimidation and hard conditions of labor, under which a great many of the deported civilians succumb while a larger proportion return so reduced and weakened that they are incapable of physical effort.

This is the regime of the camp of Soltan described by one of the men who had been interned there and who succeeded in escaping.

In the morning a third of a litre of beverage resembling coffee, but seeming to have been made from a corn, at noon a half litre of soup generally made of beets, but sometimes of potatoes, in the evening a cornmeal or barley, the ration of bread is about a half pound per day. It is made of a mixture of cornmeal and rye. The interned are never given meat, fish or cheese. In certain camps the evening meal was suppressed altogether and even the meagre repairs were reduced for those who refused to work for the Germans.

Besides hunger, the principal measures resorted to in order to bring the deported men to submission, were the supply of the post, stoutly fettered to posts the men are exposed to heat or cold, according to the season, for days together, during which the food rations are reduced systematically until they reach the proportions of a half ration only for two days subsistence.

Another cruelty practiced upon the deported to force them to work is the supply of the tank, or a severe application of the Turkish bath.

Some of them lost consciousness after a few hours of this exposure, and all of them were taken to the hospital the following day.

The son of a manufacturer of Antwerp, a very stout, robust fellow, at the time of the deportation, was sent home a complete physical wreck a short time afterwards. He has since died from the mistreatment. He made the recital of his sufferings to the doctor who treated him, and the Belgian Government is in possession of the evidence as given to the doctor.

Two soldiers from Havre, the Lebris brothers, who escaped from Germany, confirm this evidence regarding the supply of the Turkish bath.

A number of witnesses call attention to the fact that frequently groups of deported men have been the object of a simulated execution, sometimes by a firing squad and sometimes by machine guns to overcome their resistance and impress their courages.

From all the evidence it appears certain that the mortality among the men subjected to these, and other forms of mistreatment is alarming.

ARRESTED ON TRAIN TORONTO STREET CARS May Be Running Again Tomorrow According To a Rumor In The Queen City

By Courier Leased Wire. Toronto, July 12.—It is being freely prophesied this morning that the street cars of the Toronto Street Railway will be running to-morrow. A proposal will be made to the men's mass meeting to-night, which it is thought will be accepted by them. The terms of the proposal are that the Ontario Railway Board take over the operation of the system; that the men go back to work at once at an advance of five cents per hour pending further developments, the men working for the Ontario Railway Board and that the board then conduct an enquiry into the rights of the dispute, making an award at a later date.

In the meantime everything is outwardly calm. There is no violence to the public, but that is nothing new and the striking employees continue to express their pleasure at having a holiday, and their determination to seek other employment rather than go back under the old conditions. It is believed the company will consent to a five cent per hour increase.

ELEVEN LIVES LOST. Paris, July 12.—The French minesweeper Jupiter struck a mine in the British channel Tuesday and sunk. Eleven lives were lost.

ARRESTED ON TRAIN TORONTO STREET CARS

Two Ministers Under Chinese Monarchy Stopped As They Were Attempting Escape

By Courier Leased Wire. Tien Tsin, July 12.—Cheng Chen Fang and Lei Chen Chan, ministers of finance and war, respectively, under the monarchy, were arrested on a train at Feg Tai, while endeavoring to escape from Peking. Feng Lin Ko, the Manchurian general, whose intentions were suspected, was unexpectedly arrested in the Tien Tsin railroad station. He was disguised.

Tuan Chi Jui, leader of the Republican forces, referring to Wu Ting Fang's telegram that he has installed himself minister of foreign affairs at Shanghai, states Wu has been dismissed from office and that all actions after he had left Peking, were irresponsible. Tuan Chi Jui said the cabinet, which had been established at Tien Tsin will be transferred to Peking and that it alone will undertake all diplomatic dealings.

DRIVEN OFF. London, July 12.—A raid attempted by the enemy last night south of Limbaertzyde was successfully driven off," says to-day's official communication. "There is nothing further to report."

NORWEGIAN BARQUE SUNK. London, July 12.—A Central News despatch from Christiania reports the sinking near Iceland, by a German submarine of the Norwegian barque Forella, 1,168 tons gross. The crew was rescued.

IN NO DANGER. Boston, July 12.—James M. Stahl, Canadian immigration inspector at this port, has obtained from the immigration officials at Ottawa assurances that summer visitors from the United States to Canada are in no danger of annoyance from the Canadian military regulations. Men between the ages of 18 and 45 years will be required to satisfy the inspector at the border that they are bona fide residents of the United States, whereupon they will be passed without inconvenience.

ENTIRE STEEL PRODUCT To Be Available For U. S. Government Price to Be Determined On Cost of Production

By Courier Leased Wire. Washington, July 12.—Formal announcement was made by Secretary of War to-day that an agreement had been reached with representatives of the American steel industry in conference here, under which the entire product of the industry will be made available for the government's war purposes at a price to be determined on a basis of cost of production, including a profit of 10 per cent.

Weather Bulletin Toronto, July 12.—Pressure is to these forecasts over the continent, except along the north Pacific seaboard. Unsettled showery weather prevails from Ontario to New foundland. Showers have also occurred in the western provinces. Forecasts. Moderate winds, mostly south and west, occasional showers. Friday—Moderate winds, generally fair and a little warmer, but a few scattered showers. Saturday—Moderate winds, mostly south and west, occasional showers.

quity being conducted by the federal trade commission. On their side the government representatives assured the steel men that reasonable profits be included in the prices fixed and that provision also would be made to care for the expansion of the industry to meet new demands.

The government also assured the steel men that its war orders would be distributed over the entire iron and steel producing capacity of the country, leaving no single producer to carry an unfair share of the war burden.

EIGHTEEN HUNDRED The Total of British Casualties In the Reverse On The Belgian Front

By Courier Leased Wire. London, July 12.—The total British casualties resulting from the German success near Nieuport, Belgium, on Tuesday, were about 1,800, including prisoners. These figures were given by Major General F. B. Maurice, chief director of military operations at the war office today.

The section captured by the Germans, said General Maurice, who made his statement in his weekly talk to the Associated Press, was defended by only two battalions of British. The German claim of 1,250 prisoners he considered probably accurate.

County Council in Special Session
List of Roads Under Improved System
A Resolution Regarding The Press

Simcoe, July 12.—(From our own correspondent)—The County Council was in session here both fore and afternoon yesterday. The chief matter which necessitated the special session was the receiving and disposition of the report of the committee appointed to designate the roads for the county good roads system, and the appointment of a superintendent. The first of these was almost completed in committee of the whole at six o'clock. The committee, which reported this morning, had three other matters of less vital importance to report.

On the request of the purchasers, Ames and Co., a by-law was passed through authorizing the issue of the county patriotic debentures in denominations other than those mentioned in the original by-law, which called for fifteen. The alteration will admit of selling in even thousands. The following resolution, moved by Jno. L. Buck, of Port Rowan and seconded by Dr. O. H. Duncombe, of Waterford, is self explanatory. It was passed without debate and unanimously, and was another indication of what we have claimed since the outbreak of the war—that in Norfolk there is no considerable element outside of those whose first concern is to assist in bringing about a victorious peace. Those who made pardonable blunders in the front ranks of the 133rd recruiting force appear to have resolved to maintain the same attitude towards those higher up, as has been, charitably, if one will use the term for lack of a better, maintained towards them.

The Resolution.
 That the County Council of Norfolk, assembled, record its satisfaction at the marked improvement in the editorial columns of the press of Canada since the beginning of the war.

That the trend in this great moral and educational force should be encouraged. In the past great harm has come to the body politic from prejudiced created and pandered to by the bias of the party press. Our newspapers should be as free from bias as the text books placed in the hands of the students in our schools, and colleges. That still there is room for improvement and we would respectfully suggest that it might be of advantage if other municipal and representative bodies would lend their support and encouragement to the end that the press of Canada may be elevated to a higher plane of moral worth.

In accordance with the instructions given in January, the committee on Education prepared and yesterday submitted, for approval by council, the following draft address: To W. H. Smith, Esq., Port Dover, Ont. Dear Mr. Smith.—The Warden and County Council of the County of Norfolk, on the recommendation of the Education Committee, by resolution, ordered that you be presented with an address, and it is requested that you allow it to be illuminated, framed and hung in the council chamber at the county buildings for reference.

We therefore, in pursuance, have the honor to address you upon your retirement from active service in the profession you have so long adorned. You have been teaching in this county for the long period of fifty-one and a half years, and it is indeed remarkable that for forty-four years of that time you were principal of the Port Dover public school. We feel that this circumstance is an event in the history of the educational life of the Province of Ontario.

It has been given to but few, by direct touch, to influence the lives and characters of so many for good.

Revising the List of Roads
 Reeve McDowell, of North Walsingham, was the only member absent. He is still suffering from injuries received as before stated in this column as to views, and did, perhaps as much in his absence as had been present, and divided honors with Reeve Carter, of Simcoe, in having replaced on the map the original trunk line out to Langton, Charlotteville and on to Langton. This road had been in plans made years ago, and was removed at the suggestion of a man from Toronto. Mr. McDowell objected to any system of whatever kind, but especially to a system which did not connect up the Walsingham directly to the county town for market and business purposes. This was followed by radical changes in Charlotteville. Another change was made in the connection between Delhi and Waterford. The committee's report proposed to pass one concession south of Windham Centre. The line was moved north one concession across to Waterford.

Simcoe and Waterford were yesterday connected via Bloomsburg and all others were minor alterations. As the matter goes up from the committee of the whole, the following are the designated roads: The designated roads with names as the map stood at six o'clock.
 1. The Talbot road—Through Courtland, Delhi, Simcoe and Renison.
 2. The Delhi and Waterford road—Via Windham Centre and Bunker Hill.
 3. The Townsend Centre road—East from Waterford high school to county boundary.
 4. The Port Burwell road—Short road across the exterior corner of Middleton.

5. The Watson road—Mabee to Tillsonburg.
 6. The Tillson road—Courtland to Tillsonburg.
 7. The Simcoe and Langton road—Via the "9th" of Charlotteville.
 8. The Port Rowan and Courtland road—Via Walsingham Centre and Langton.
 9. The Port Rowan and Victoria road—Via St. Williams, then north road east through Victoria and across the Woodhouse Gore, and north to the "Half-way House".
 10. The St. Williams and Lynedoch—direct.

11. The Walsh road—Connecting 9 and 7 through Walsh.
 12. The Simcoe and Port Dover road—Usual route.
 13. The Lynn Valley road—West half of the 3rd Con. of Woodhouse.
 14. The Hamilton and Port Dover.
 15. The Port Dover and Boston—direct.
 16. The Windham Centre road—Middle road from Talbot through Nixon, Windham Centre, Teeterville, Bookton and leading to Otterville.
 17. The Vanessa road—From village through St. to No. 19.
 18.—Simcoe to Brantford—Between Windham and Townsend.
 19.—Waterford and Brantford via Wilsonville.
 20. Boston to Hartford.
 21. Tyrrel to Beaton—east and north through Villa Nova.
 22. Millard road—Lynnville, one Con. south and west to No. 18.
 23. Cultus road—Fairground to Cultus.

Supt. of Construction to Be Chosen.

It is necessary that a superintendent of construction be named by the County Council, and it appears very probable that Guy R. Marston, C.E., will be chosen as a thoroughly qualified, fair, and efficient head for this important work. This is the only name we heard mentioned yesterday. Strawberry Tea at Trinity Hall. As intimated to the congregation of Trinity Church gave strawberry tea in the parish hall yesterday evening from five to eight o'clock. It was designed for the purpose of squaring away a little block of the church's finances and of providing a social function for the congregation at the same time. With fairer weather, it would have been held on the church green, but the storms on both evenings preceding and the threatening third, was responsible for the tables being laid inside among tiags and flowers and laden with nothing less than a full course supper. And the purposes for which it was designed were realized. Nothing less could have happened with Mrs. T. J. Agar, president and a committee in charge with Mrs. Guy R. Marston, Mrs. J. C. Austin and Mrs. Frank Stevenson in the lead. Why! There was a general rally; some came up from the cottages by the side to help roll up a success.  FOUND DROWNED.
 By Courier Leased Wire
 London, July 12.—Captain M. A. Robertson, a brother of General Sir William R. Robertson, chief of the imperial staff, has been found drowned in Howth harbor, Dublin. The cousin of Mrs. A. B. Farney, is visiting at the rectory for a few days, en route to Port Burwell, for the summer.
 Miss Lena Price, of Toronto, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Fred Pursel, of Bloomsburg, had a heater killed by lightning on Monday.
 The barn and out-buildings of Isiah Scott were destroyed by lightning on Tuesday at five o'clock.
 George Boughner, of Woodhouse, had the top of one gable of his barn blown out during Monday evening's storm.
 The County home got a second light touch on Monday evening. The British Canadian suggests that these county buildings should be equipped with lightning rods.
 The L. E. and N. resumed traffic yesterday morning with current supplies by the Simcoe controller alone, and with a steam engine for the freight trade. There was not so much business moving yesterday, but the advent of the road is altering the production of farms along the line with a tendency—owing to the short haul—towards more fruit farming.
 Reeve McSloy described the havoc wrought by the cloud-burst at Lynn Valley, thus: "The whole township has been washed away. Will require 1000 loads to fill one washout."

GOING WEST

"I think a death like theirs gives the true measure of a man's worth; sometimes it is the first revelation of the virtues on which it is based." They ran away from the name of dishonor, but on the battlefield their feet stood fast, and in an instant, at the height of their good fortune, they passed away from the scene, not of their fear, but of their glory. —Pericles.

On my return from France, one of the first questions put to me was, "What impressed you most in the kind of question which is often put to people who have enjoyed unusual experiences, and is generally very hard to answer." But in this case I found no difficulty in replying, for without question, the most impressive feature is the sublime manner in which men leave this world, or, to use the beautiful colloquialism of the trenches, "Go West." I am at the moment particularly referring to those who, not having been killed instantly, are conscious that their wounds are mortal, and often have to travel the last short stage of their earthly journey in pain; even in agony.

Let me tell readers who have read ones at the front a consoling fact which is not perhaps generally recognized. All whom I have met in the firing line seem to possess an extraordinary strength, a Divine source of endurance which makes them less sensitive to pain and suffering. Men whose powers of endurance under normal conditions would quickly evaporate if they were subjected to terrible hardships; whose attitude in the face of death would be far from heroic; whose courage would fade, and, as I know has, in trying emergency, faded; are out yonder, graced with a Divine inspiration which increases the sense of suffering and endows them with almost superhuman powers of endurance.

All enjoy, consciously or unconsciously, the sweets of self-sacrifice in a noble cause. Such self-sacrifice is always ennobling, and a source of wonderful strength. I have seen swagging, cursing, rough men, falling mortally wounded, become metamorphosed during their last moments into beings from whom all former marks of coarseness have been wiped away, leaving nothing but the subtle expression which is the hall-mark of a healthy and pure manhood. Suddenly a revelation has come to them, just as their spirits hovered on the border line of the great unknown, which has washed all stains away, leaving their faces stamped with an expression of placid happiness that one associates in the living with a person who holds the faith and lives the true life. I do not wish to deduce anything from these facts, but the following remark, "I am firmly convinced that how ever evil his past may have been, a man redeems it by giving his life for his country's good. When he goes before the judgment seat of God, his sacrifices for his country will outweigh the sins of his past in the scales of Divine Justice."

The wonderful spirit and attitude towards death which animates those fighting on our various fronts is finely reflected in an extract from a letter written by a fellow officer. He wrote it over a year ago and placed it in the hands of a friend, with instructions that it should be sent to his mother in the event of his being killed at the front. He was a school-master of great scholarly distinction. To him, war was horrible in the extreme. Yet, in the firing line, he performed his duties with a dignity and courage which gained the admiration of all who knew him. He was killed — where he showed conspicuous bravery, but the further dissemination of its contents is justified by the happy expression of the inspiring ideas which the words contain:—"Dear Mother: If I fall in this war I want you to remember that in offering for Imperial service I responded without hesitation to what was an obvious duty; well aware that the achievement of the task which the civilization of Europe has undertaken was worth my life among many thousands of others. My only prayer is to have the courage to play the man. Be confident that no spirit perishes, and wait for a not distant re-union. Much remains for you to do here, and that is your part for the present. Be Resolutely put aside grief. You cannot grieve nobly that I have done my duty, and selfish sorrow must be suppressed. Wear no mourning, but look the best you can in cheer and dress. Do not waste your life because I have lost mine. I have this very much at heart. With deepest love, I shall remain, Your Affectionate Son The spirit expressed in the above letter was exemplified in a remarkable manner by a Lance-Corporal in my regiment, whose "Going West" was of such a nature that all who were with him in his last moments were filled with awe. He was shot on a beautiful summer's morning. We were in trenches not far distant from the heights of Notre Dame de Lorette, whose brown slopes had been splashed here and there with acres of scarlet poppies. There was a strong breeze, and near at hand the graceful blue cornflowers had been mingling with her more gaudy sister. I was going along the trench enjoying the quiet loveliness of the scene when a shot rang out. Not dreaming that one of our men had been hit, I proceeded leisurely on my way. Suddenly, on rounding a traverse, I came upon a group near a wounded man, who was supported by two comrades. This man was shaking the hand of an officer. I then saw him shake hands with a sergeant. The next scene in the drama happened with lightning rapidity. He was hurled away from those around him and hurried to the corner of a traverse, where he fell on his knees and folded his hands in prayer. His companion followed him and placed his arms round the shoulders of the wounded man. Suddenly crying in a clear voice, "Tell mother, I died happy." The brave fellow collapsed into the arms of his friend, and his heroic spirit passed. As I gazed at the body of this soldier, somebody told me that directly he was shot he had known that his time to "Go West" had come, and had at once asked for his platoon commander and sergeant, so before his departure he had said to them, "One of our N.C.O.'s, a gallant soldier, who had seen a good deal of active service in various parts of the Empire, managed to get his son, who was under the requisite age, accepted for foreign service. He was attached to the quarter-master's stores, and his son was in the same department. They were great chums, and would spend their leisure hours in each other's company. One day the boy was killed by a shell. Naturally the man was distraught with grief. For some time it was thought that he would go off his mind, and a friend had to write to the poor mother to tell her that her only child had been killed. Just when everybody despaired of saving the father's reason a letter arrived from the wife. A few hours later a woman in a manner had departed in a calm manner. The miracle had been wrought by his wife's epistle to him, which contained a few loving few words. She said that she was writing after having been to the parish church to hear their son's name read out from the roll of honor during the service. When the vicar read our boy's name," she said, "I kept back the tears and held my head high, for I was proud that my son had died for his country."

HARD OR SOFT OR ANY KIND OF CORN

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison, are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out with the fingers. It is a sticky substance which dries the moment it is applied and is said to simply shrivel the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus. You are further warned that cutting at a corn is a suicidal habit.

ON THE PERSIAN FRONTIER. The map illustrates the situation on the Persian frontier where the Russians driven back presumably have lost touch with the British Army in Mesopotamia. The Russian forces were forced out of Khanikin, the gateway from Persia leading to Bagdad, a town on the main road some miles to the north-east.

ENGLISH GIRLS LIKE BASEBALL

Take Readily To Game As Taught By American Bluejackets

A British Port, Base of American Destroyer Flotillas, July 11.—The baseball season is in full swing here. Every American destroyer has one weekly when their ship is in port are devoted to industrious practice for the "big series" which is to begin next month for the championship of the fleet. Three diamonds have been laid out on the top of the cliffs overlooking the sea. The scene, from home picture on any of these diamonds is picturesque enough to inspire a batter to his best efforts. At the right is the sea, stretching in blue expanse toward America. At the left are the woods of a green more vivid than in America, just near enough so that an ordinary three-base hit will lose itself in the underbrush and lengthen out into a home run. Behind and in front are stretches of fields with low hedges and stone walls, all ablaze with golden gorse and field flowers.

Attendance is Good. There are no grandstands, although every game played attracts only a fine crowd of spectators from the ships and the town. The teams wear regulation uniforms brought from home, with the names of their ships written across the chests. The crowd makes itself comfortable on the green behind the catcher or toward first base, where the sea breeze is a little cooler on a hot afternoon. The crowd always contains a sprinkling of British tars, officers of both navies, the town folk of both sexes. The girls of the village, who probably here of baseball for the first time when the destroyers' teams began laying out the diamonds, are already developing into proficient writers of base ball. The girls as naturally as their sisters on the other side of the Atlantic.

Can't See This Stuff. The same can hardly be said for the men folk, who attend the games, because they like "the American game," but they can't see where the game compares in interest with football or cricket. The British sailor is a little more hopeful, as he has learned to understand the game fairly well from a spectator's standpoint, although it is hardly to be expected that he will try his hand at it seriously for some time yet. Occasionally a British sailor can't see where the game compares in interest with football or cricket. THE SITUATION.

Still the Russians continue their irresistible offensive. According to last night's despatches they were beyond Halicz and in the foothills of the Carpathian Mountains, and over The Courier leased wire to-day comes the word that they have taken Kaluz, where the foe has made his headquarters in Galicia.

The German success on the Belgian coast reported last evening in these columns, is not one of serious proportions, but it constitutes an evidence of the continued alertness and striking power of the foe.

The official report for last week shows the submarine harvest to have been the smallest for some time. The total was fourteen ships of over 1,600 tons and three of less than that figure. Port arrivals 2,838 and sailings 2,798.

There are indications of renewed activity on the Italian front. The U. S. Steamer Kansas, carrying fifty men and a valuable cargo of foodstuffs and steel, was torpedoed off the French coast. No word has been received as to the fate of the crew.

THE RESULT IN EAST CLARE

Reference has already been made in this paper to the growing feeling of rebellion in Ireland, and to the fact that the Sinn Feiners have become a very great and menacing power.

What they are after is an independent nationality, and they make no secret of the fact that they hope Germany will be victorious in the present struggle. Their hands are not only against British rule, but are also against the Nationalists, whom they claim do not go far enough.

After the last general elections, Redmond's followers in the House numbered 84 out of a total representation from the Emerald Isle of 103. Since then, the Sinn Fein candidates have beaten them in every contest, and now there has come the body blow of the loss of East Clare.

It has been a Nationalist stronghold from time immemorial, and W. H. Redmond, brother of the leader, has represented the constituency for a long time unopposed, so helpless was any opposition regarded. He died at the front bravely fighting for Britain's cause, and now there has been elected in his stead, by an enormous majority, one of the leaders of the new movement—a man who avowedly would love to see the dismemberment of the very empire which Redmond shed his blood to help save.

It was generally recognized that the result of yesterday's contest would settle the fate or otherwise of the Sinn Fein agitation, as Redmond's influence was regarded as a talisman there, but his man has been beaten by the overwhelming majority of 5,010 to 2,035, or over two to one.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, now a visitor in the States, recently spoke of the Sinn Feiners as "lunatics," and so they undoubtedly are, as far as their avowed aims are concerned, but this does not alter the grave circumstance that their cause has clearly taken hold of the popular imagination.

An Irish republic could not, of course, be allowed, and in any event would reach an early smash. She has for years been a financial debtor to England, that is to say, her revenues have fallen short of requirements some $10,000,000 per annum and Old Albin has had to make up the difference. Since the war started that balance has about been wiped out, but it is more than likely that after hostilities, the disparity will again occur. Under such circumstances, financial collapse would soon be in order, not to mention civil war for the Ulsterites would ever stand for separation.

Their dream, it will thus be seen, is entirely Utopian, but at the same time, the unpleasant fact must be faced that a large majority of the Irish people are rebellious.

And on top of this comes the anomaly that they would be ready to exchange Hun domination for a system under which they have such freedom that they traduce and deride the authorities and send members to Westminster.

Another thing also apparently spelled by East Clare, is the failure of the Irish convention.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Ontario has gone dry, but most decidedly not the heavens overhead.

Up to date no good citizen has been fined this summer for lawn sprinkling after hours.

When those two notorious characters, Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman tried to interfere with conscription in the States they were each sentenced to two years imprisonment. On the same basis Bourassa and some others of that ilk ought to be incarcerated for the rest of their lives.

The Russian offensive is decidedly that to the Kaiserites. They thought they had the bear Scotch'd for keeps.

That motion pictures affect spectators in a strange manner is not to be wondered at. Indeed, considering the immense popularity of the cinema, it would not be natural otherwise.

Charles D. Wardlaw, coach at Leal's School of Plainfield, New Jersey, gave his team the option of quitting the basketball game. It appears that when a Charlie Chaplin or a Mary Pickford photoplay was shown at the local theatre, the number of baskets shot by the forwards was reduced by one-half. Wardlaw attributed this to the effect of the flicker on the eyes.

An exhibit of my acquaintance found a set of false teeth left on one of the "tip-ups" after the evening performance. Next day he was visited by an old lady who explained that a comedy made her laugh so much that her teeth dropped out unbeknown to her.

An engagement in South Carolina was speeded up by the movies. Two lovers were present at a Wadesboro theatre, where they saw a romantic love story. Occurred in the picture apply the same philosophy to their own case, so they hurried to the altar for the ceremony. When it was over, they returned calmly to the theatre to view the rest of the interesting programme.

Another romance, tinged with sadness, had its bright side also. The man in the case admitted a breach of promise suit, that after a visit to the movies the girl seemed to change suddenly for the better, and said: "I have been nice to you, why don't you be nice to me?"

The photoplay version of Trilby affected a spectator at a New York theatre so much that when the night watchman went the rounds, he found a woman in a trance. It became known when a physician from a nearby hospital restored her to consciousness, that she lost her senses after Svengali did the hypnotizing stuff.

One person who summoned up courage to see "Quo Vadis" evidently did not realize that effects are produced by the orchestra, for, to quote his own words, "What impressed me most was the roar with which the lions bound into the arena!"

An absent-minded California High School teacher announced to the class that "Maurice Costello has written the best essay on the life of Lincoln." The pupil's name was Maurice Maret, hence the mistake.

Charlie Chaplin has countless impersonators in real life. A Finnish mailer on shore leave was hailed before a magistrate for knocking a young woman down in Battery Park, New York, while pulling off Chaplin's trousers. He demonstrated before the magistrate by kicking his left foot in the air and manipulating a pencil like a cane. The magistrate laughed and ordered the culprit's release.

Probably the most remarkable incident occurred in Liverpool, England, however. Corporal Robert cycle policeman, was deaf and dumb for eight weeks from fighting for British "somewhere in France." One night while on leave from the military hospital he spent the time in a Liverpool photoplay theatre. On the programme was a Billy Ritchie picture, which caused him to laugh as heartily as his wounded comrades. "Gee, the 's' funny," he exclaimed, and he was so overjoyed at recovering his speech that an intermission had to be declared. Ernest A. Dench in Illustrated World.

NEW WAGE SCALE

For the Grand Trunk Car Men

Board of Conciliation is Appointed

Montreal, July 12.—It was officially announced to-day that F. H. McGuigan and Charlemagne Rodier, K. C., both of Montreal, have been appointed a board of conciliation to determine a new wage scale for the Grand Trunk Railway carmen. Mr. McGuigan represents the company and Mr. Rodier the men.

The Board was appointed following representations to Ottawa of the Grand Trunk carmen, who are asking that the same scale of wages paid by the C.P.R., C.N.R., and G.N.R. The men are doing the same work on the Grand Trunk Railway get 17 to 23 cents an hour, while the other roads pay 32 1-2 cents.

FATALLY INJURED

Vancouver, July 12.—W. Q. Arnold, a broker, at the Langham Hotel was fatally injured, and M. P. McLeod, a commission merchant, had his collarbone broken, when a large touring car heavily loaded and driven by Dr. O. C. Gilbert, crashed into the curb at the corner of Granville and Pacific street yesterday. Arnold died shortly after being taken to the General Hospital. Mr. McLeod will recover.

NEWS FROM PARIS

Appeal For Furnishing of a Building

Death of Mrs. Clump—Paris Men Wounded

Paris, July 12.—Last evening the provisional committee of the Young Women's Christian Association and a number of friends met at the Y. M. C. A., and among other important business, made arrangements for a public meeting of all who are interested in the above most worthy cause. The meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A., and Mayor Robinson will preside. Miss Lane of Toronto, a lady who has had great experience in Y. W. C. A. work, will speak. Short addresses will also be given by the Ministers, Mr. J. H. Fisher, M. P., Mr. P. Scott Davidson, M.P.P., Mr. I. Bonnar, Mr. C. M. Heddlie and others.

Arrangements are being made for an appeal to the citizens to secure funds to furnish the new building, which is expected to be opened in September. This will fill a long felt need, and will doubtless receive every support that such an institution deserves from the young women of Paris.

The building and site was generously donated by the Penman Co. and is being erected on Broadway, near the Methodist church, and facing King's Ward Park, one of the most ideal spots in Paris. All ladies and gentlemen are especially invited to attend the public meeting Tuesday evening next.

The citizens were grieved this afternoon to hear of the death of Mrs. Clump, beloved wife of Guildford D. Clump, in her 66th year. The deceased was Miss Anna S. Moyle before her marriage, and known to many in Paris and vicinity. Before moving to Brantford, Mr. and Mrs. Clump were members of the Paris Baptist Church, in which deceased for many years had taken an active and prominent part in all its branches of work. Besides her sorrowing husband, a family of three are left to mourn her demise, namely, Mrs. W. C. Brooks, Mt. Pleasant Road, and Messrs. Ernest and Norman Clump of Brantford Township. The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon from the residence of her son-in-law, Lieut. Col. W. C. Brooks, Mt. Pleasant Road, at whose home the deceased passed away, to the family burial plot in the Paris cemetery.

We understand that there may be a big case heard here. The police have a Paris man named Francis E. Wilson, arrested in the States on that charge we believe. The complainant is a Paris girl.

The marriage is announced of Miss Eunice E. Coulter and Mr. Wm. T. Gibbs of Toronto, both formerly of Paris. The wedding took place at 74 Glenholme Avenue, Toronto, the Rev. F. J. Maxwell officiating. A host of friends in town will extend their best wishes and hearty congratulations.

Three pupils of Mrs. Adeney's, Banfield street, have been successful in passing their music exam. recently tried in Toronto, Mabel Robinson, grade 1, introductory; Phyllis Simmons, grade 1, introductory; Gladys Crichton, grade 2, elementary. The above young ladies passed with honors.

The many friends of Mr. Jim Huntley, who underwent a serious operation in the Brantford Hospital on Monday, will be pleased to know that he is progressing favorably.

Miss Hubbs, of Bloomfield, has been appointed to fill the vacancy on the high school staff, caused by the resignation of Miss Black.

Mrs. Marshall and little son, of Detroit, are visiting with relatives in town.

Mrs. H. Tate and children, and Miss Dorothy Blackhurst, who have been visiting at Hespeler, have returned home.

Miss Jean Hayden of Woodstock, is holidaying with her grandmother, Mrs. J. Wright, in the little town of Detroit.

Word was received in town that Pte. Ernest Taylor had been wounded in the face by gunshot. He enlisted in the 84th battalion and went overseas with same. His wife and family reside in Upper Town.

Another Paris soldier on the casualty list is Pte. Stanley J. Snell, who received a gunshot wound in the left shoulder.

Pte. J. Richardson, another Paris man, who went overseas with the 125th battalion, has also been reported seriously wounded. The bullet entered his back and came out through his stomach. This is the second time that Richardson has been wounded.

In Carpathian Foothills. South and west of Stanislaw the Russians have reached the Posiecz-Karnacz line, the central point of which, Leslavka, is four miles west of the River Bystrizza. This line is about seven miles east of Kalusz, the nearest large town west of Stanislaw, and which is situated in a bend of the Stoka River. The extension of the Russian fighting line to Zolotvin brings the battle-ground into the foothills of the Carpathians.

On Tuesday the Russians captured 2,000 more prisoners and 20 guns, bringing their total captured from July 8 to 10 to more than 10,000 officers and men, and 80 guns. A large amount of machine guns and war material also was taken. Berlin gives no details of Tuesday's fighting in Galicia, merely saying that: "Movements south of the Dniester have been executed until now as planned."

Brussiloff Drives Beyond Halicz

Battle Now Extends to the Foothills of the Carpathian Mountains

New York, July 11.—The Associated Press to-night issues the following: Having broken the strong Austro-German line in the vicinity of Halicz, the Russians are pushing forward from Halicz toward Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, and from Stanislaw, south of Halicz, westward toward the line of the Dniester.

After the capture of Halicz, on the front from Halicz to Zolotvin, about thirty miles to the south, General Korniloff forced the Austro-Germans to continue their retreat. In their advance from Halicz, the Russians forced the fleeing enemy across the Lomnica, and occupied two towns on the western bank of the river. The next natural barrier is the River Stoka, about six miles west of the Lomnica.

In Carpathian Foothills. South and west of Stanislaw the Russians have reached the Posiecz-Karnacz line, the central point of which, Leslavka, is four miles west of the River Bystrizza. This line is about seven miles east of Kalusz, the nearest large town west of Stanislaw, and which is situated in a bend of the Stoka River. The extension of the Russian fighting line to Zolotvin brings the battle-ground into the foothills of the Carpathians.

On Tuesday the Russians captured 2,000 more prisoners and 20 guns, bringing their total captured from July 8 to 10 to more than 10,000 officers and men, and 80 guns. A large amount of machine guns and war material also was taken. Berlin gives no details of Tuesday's fighting in Galicia, merely saying that: "Movements south of the Dniester have been executed until now as planned."

HUNS ARE REPULSED

In Surprise Attacks On The Meuse

By Courier Leased Wire.

Paris, July 12.—After violent bombardment the Germans tried several surprise attacks during the night on both banks of the Meuse, but were repulsed, according to a statement issued by the war office to-day.

The statement follows: "The artillery fighting was quite spirited in the Champagne and on the Aisne front in the Laffaux Mill sector. Enemy attacks in the region of the Triangulaire plateau and south of Juvincourt were easily repulsed."

"On the two banks of the Meuse in the sector of Hill 304 and north of the Hardaumont work, the Germans after a violent bombardment, made a number of attacks, none of which were successful. There is nothing to report on the remainder of the front."

Irish Waiter (as chaplain says grace): "Och, an' there's no need to smell of it, it's fresh as a daisy."—London Opinion.

HARD TIMES.

Keep out of debt and save the wheels go round, the forges dimes till they are red and rusted, and so when come the fiercer times, they will not find you busted. But do not pare and hoard and skimp, like some jimtwisted miser; by doing that you'll be a snip, and comfort Bill, the kaiser. A lot of panic-stricken jays at us are daily shrieking, to starve ourselves in forty ways, and end all costly leaking. I don't admire the frenzied bore who jaws us in the journals; a slump in many colonels. We want to see in saving as in spending.

BRANTFORD WOMAN DISAPPEARS

After Eloping With a Spaniard Who Was Sentenced

Welland, July 12.—Miguel Mauri, a Spaniard, 23 years old, was sentenced yesterday by Magistrate Goodwin to five years in Kingston Penitentiary on the charge of attempting to procure a woman for immoral purposes. It was undoubtedly an attempt at white slavery. The girl in the case gave her name as Annie Kelly, and her age as 19 years. Her mother lives in Montreal. When Mauri was arrested there was found on his person a form purporting to be a marriage certificate, he being the groom and Mary Owens the bride. The ceremony took place at Copper Cliff on December 16, 1916. The Mary Owens turned out to be Mrs. Christopher Burgin, aged seventeen, of Brantford, who ran away from her husband, taking their three-months old child, and accompanying Mauri to Copper Cliff. Her husband was here yesterday trying to obtain some information as to her whereabouts from Mauri, but the latter claims that she ran away from him after they had lived at Copper Cliff some time. She has not since been heard of.

T. D. Cowper, Crown Attorney, prosecuted the case, and Mauri was defended by Col. Raymond.

RETURNED THE CHEQUE

Sir Henry Drayton Refuses a $15,000 Fee For Services

Ottawa, July 11.—Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Dominion Railway Board, has returned to the Government a cheque for $15,000, which was sent to him in payment for his services as a member of the Drayton-Ackworth-Smith Commission, which investigated the Canadian Railway situation. In the letter which accompanied the cheque, Sir Henry said he could not accept such payment in the present time of stress and war. He asked that his services as a member of the Royal Commission be regarded as a contribution to the country.

THE MAD MONK OF RUSSIA, AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The Stock Company at the Grand Opera House will present 'The Mad Monk of Russia,' or 'The Romanoff's Fall,' beginning Thursday night and continuing Friday night and Saturday, matinee and night. This is a startlingly powerful melodrama. In the letter which accompanied the cheque, Sir Henry said he could not accept such payment in the present time of stress and war. He asked that his services as a member of the Royal Commission be regarded as a contribution to the country.

ON FRIDAY

Out of compliment to the French War Relief Association, which is holding a garden party at the home of Mrs. W. C. Livingston, Brant Ave. on Saturday afternoon, the regular Saturday tea at the Brantford Golf and Country Club will be held on Friday afternoon instead. A team of lady golfers from Simcoe will be playing a friendly match with the Brantford lady golfers, and a very successful afternoon is anticipated. The hostesses will be Mrs. T. S. Wade, Mrs. C. C. Fairchild, the Misses Shannon, Scarle, R. Hart, Miss Frances Leeming and Miss L. Personal Jones.

THE GERMAN CROP OUTLOOK

Is Not of a Reassuring Nature

Copenhagen, July 12.—At the Reichstag session Herr von Batocki, the Food Controller, declared that the fruit and vegetable harvest was far below the average. Berlin news papers report. The outlook for grain production was characterized as being "as good as in 1915," which will be remembered as a year of great drought and a miserable grain harvest and potato crop. The yield, the controller said, would be "surely better than the serious crop failure of 1916." Gustav Hach, Socialist member of the Reichstag spoke of disorders in the Prussian town of Striegau, which have not been mentioned previously. He said they were due to the fact that Striegau had been almost an entire week without bread. Women who had thus been driven to desperation were punished and many of them being condemned to serve many months in prison.

Obituary

The following taken from the Tacoma Daily Times, Washington, refers to the bereavement of a former well known Brantford man in the regiment. He was Sergt. in "A" Company for six years, and was the crack shot of the regiment, and won the "Dufferin Medal" at the annual shoot of the regiment in 1910, getting a "possible" 50 out of 50, which has not yet been equalled. When war broke out, Mott was a sergeant in the 37th Regiment. Shooting and signalling were his hobbies. He also served six years in South Africa, and went through the Boer War. His large circle of friends and ex-cadets with whom he was very popular, will be sorry to hear of his death, and his smiling face and bright manner will be missed from "A" Co. rooms.

Miss O. Hitchcock, missionary at the Indian school, Le Pas, Saskatchewan, visited Brantford this week, and was the guest of Mrs. (Rev.) Light. While in the city, Miss Hitchcock visited Mohawk church.

INTERESTING LETTER

Sent By Lt.-Col. Genet From The Front

Man For Man The Canadians Superior to Foe

Lt.-Col. Genet, writing to a Brantford friend, says:— I received your interesting letter of 26th April a few days ago. Many thanks for it. Yes, we have had some very interesting and exciting times, but the results are always in our favor. The fact is, the Boche has had his day and is fast deteriorating, whilst we are getting stronger and better every day. Many for man, we were always superior to him, but he had an enormous advantage over us in material and preparation. We have now more than balanced him in every respect. We can and do give him ten shells for every one he gives us, and by our policy of continued worry and raiding, we have broken his morale. His much vaunted discipline has almost gone too, and his men for the most part are civilians in uniform rather than soldiers. The people at home in Germany seem to me to be more under control than their men at the front. It is quite amusing to read the reports they send home. Every time we give them a licking, the Boche reports it as a German victory. I have no doubt but that a great deal of good will come out of this war, for the British Empire, at any rate. The advantage may not be material altogether, but I think it will teach us a good many useful lessons if we will only take advantage of them. Already it has done more to weld us together than fifty years of talking could accomplish. Personally I am very well and so are the others of my family. Jack is not far from where I am, and I often see him. I have not had a day's sickness since I came to France sixteen months ago. I slightly sprained my ankle coming out of the line at the Somme, which kept me quiet for about a week. I think that is a pretty good record. I am now nearly the senior battalion commander in the Canadian corps, there being, I think, only one who has maintained his command for a longer time than I have. I have not heard of Col. Cutcliffe's battalion being over here yet. I do not think they have left England yet. I have no Brantford officers left with me now, and only a few men. I note with interest that the 215th have gone to the seaside. I hope it will do them good. I have not seen Percy Jones for some time, but heard that he was still well. He has done excellently, by all accounts. I have Canon Hedley for our chaplain. He is doing fine work and is a general favorite. He works like a horse. The weather is glorious but rather warm. But we do not mind as long as it is not cold. My kindest regards to all my friends and yourself.

Sincerely yours, HARRY A. GENET.

SEE THAT YOU HELP

"Canadians, help sorely stricken France." England appeals throughout her Empire for aid for the suffering, though undaunted nation, ravaged by three years of incessant war. France has sent one out of every six of her population to the firing line, of whom 2,000,000 will never return. Physical standards have long been abolished; if a man can handle a rifle, his place is in the trenches. Men with one eye are being sent back to fill the depleted ranks, and cripples hobble to the trenches. The British army on the firing line is throwing itself into the breach, in an endeavor to support its stricken comrade. Men of the Motherland are giving their lives, women of England are aiding the French Red Cross and ministering to the needs of those at home. Canadians, what will you do? Give generously of your abundance—help save the starving children and shorten the suffering of the wounded and convalescents, who lack essential food. Give generously and increase your "talent" an hundred fold. The cause of France is our cause. On Saturday, 14th, "France's Day" (commemorative of Bastille Day) let the appeal to help our gallant ally be generously responded to by every Canadian in the Dominion. Subscriptions, large or small, will be received by Mr. H. T. Watt, Imperial Bank, and at Couriers and Exhibitor offices. A garden party will be held at residence of Mrs. W. C. Livingston, Brant Avenue, Saturday from 4 to 8 p.m. for this worthy cause. On Sunday, special envelopes will be placed in the churches throughout city in aid of the suffering French.

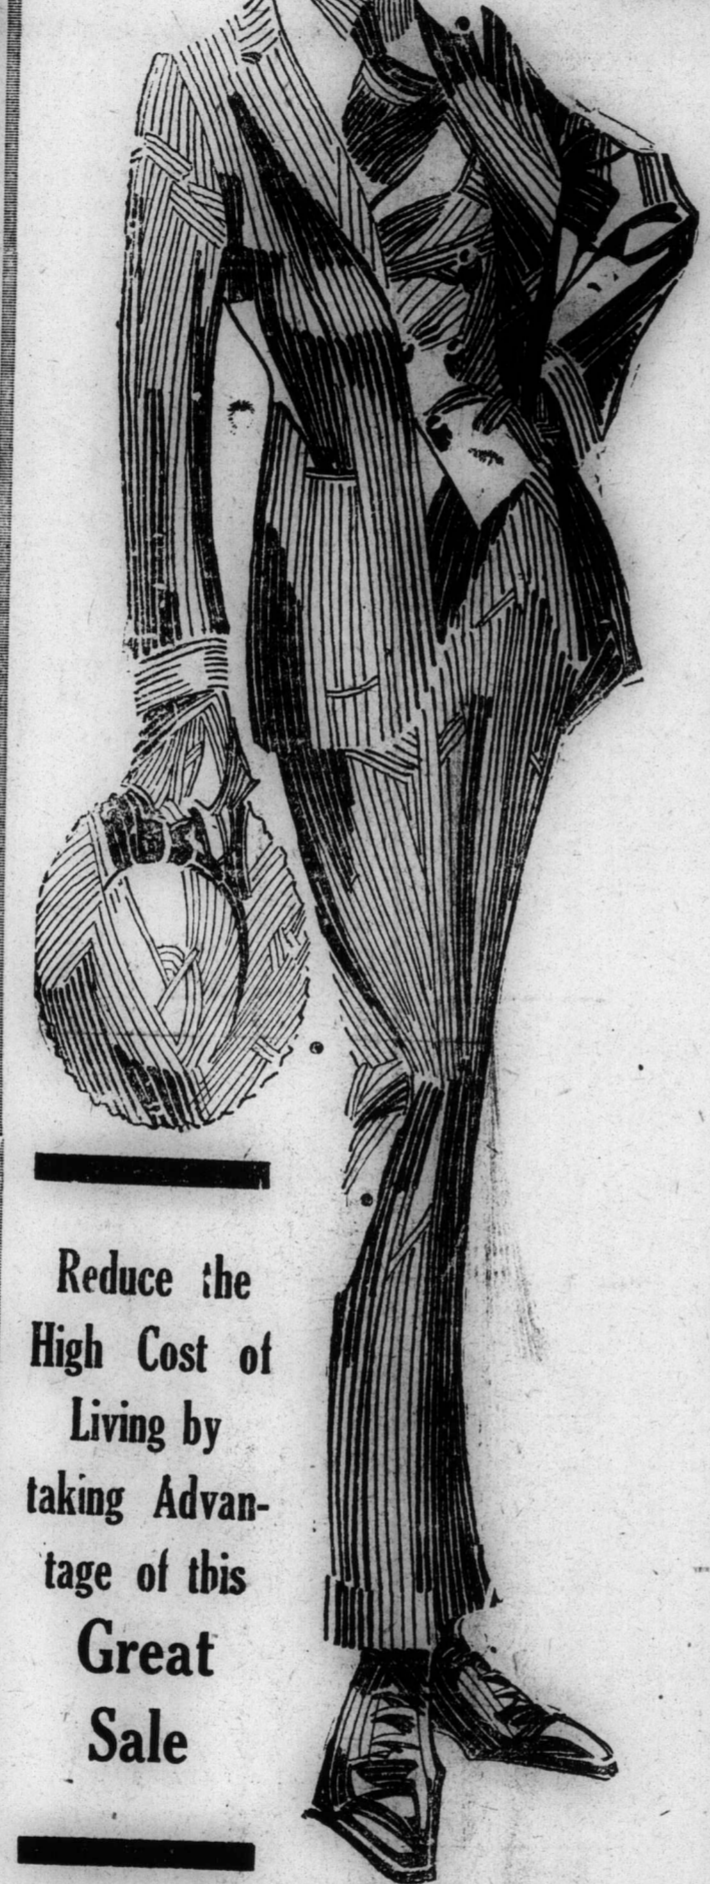

Nuptial Notes

On Saturday July 7th a very pretty wedding took place, when Jane Ellen, daughter of John Phillipson, Dundas Street, was united in marriage to Mr. H. S. Cockshutt, of this city, by the Rev. J. B. Fotheringham, of Grace Church. The bride was attended by Miss Ida Crandall and brother of the groom acted as best man. After a splendid repast the happy couple left for points west, and on their return will reside on Dundas Street.

ONE RUN IN NINTH

Enabled Boston To Beat Detroit
St. Louis Now in Last Place In American League

Detroit, July 11.—Ruth held Detroit to one hit yesterday and Boston won, 1 to 0. With two men out in the ninth, Shorten, a pinch hitter, tripled, and scored. Walker, who previously had hit for three bases, Bush got Detroit's only hit, a hard drive which Ruth intercepted but could not field. Ruth passed four and hit two, but struck out men in the pinches, getting five of his 8 strikeouts with men on second. Dauss also pitched a fine game, striking out seven and was strong with men on bases. Score:

 Boston . . . 000000001—1 7 1
 Detroit . . . 000000000—0 1 0
 Batteries, Ruth and Agnew, Thomas; Dauss and Stange.

Philadelphia and St. Louis changed places in the American league race yesterday when the visitors batted five St. Louis pitchers hard and won, 13 to 5. The locals now are in last place, getting 3 hits and two sacrifices in five trips to the plate, and Strunk got three hits and two walks in five trials. Score:

R. H. E.
 Philadelphia . . . 330030103—13 16 1
 St. Louis . . . 001000040—5 10 0
 Batteries, Meyers, Seibold and Schang; Kooh, Wright, Molyneaux, Martin, Park and Severoid, Hall.

Cleveland defeated Washington 3 to 0, in the opening game of the series, Covaleski holding Washington to four hits. Gallia and Shaw held Cleveland to six hits, but every one but one was utilized in the scoring. Wambegans made a clean steal of home in the third inning. Score:

R. H. E.
 Washington . . . 000000000—0 4 0
 Cleveland . . . 01110000X—3 6 2
 Batteries—Gallia, Shaw and Almsmith; Covaleski and O'Neill.

Would Wish the Kaiser on Pittsburgh Club.

Pittsburg, July 12.—Jimmy Callahan, ex-manager of the Pittsburg Pirates, is now through with the city for all time, having made a satisfactory monetary settlement with Barney Drefus yesterday. He gave a little dinner to a few friends at the William Penn Hotel last night, among them being John P. Harris, theatrical manager and member of the board of directors of the club. Callahan said: "I did the best any man could do with the bunch of ball players they wished on me here, and no man could have done more. If I wanted to wish the worst for the Kaiser when the war ends it is that he be sentenced to manage the Pittsburg Pirates under the present ownership."

Callahan went to his home in Chicago last night.

THESE TWO DECISIONS SIMPLY HELPED LEAFS

Buffalo, July 11.—Buffalo defeated Newark to-day, six to four, by bunching hits in the fourth inning. Gill cleared the bases with a triple to deep centre and scored himself on a wild pitch. Score:

R. H. E.
 Buffalo 0 0 0 4 0 0 2 0 0—6 7 1
 Batteries—Jaynes and Onslow; Ross and Blackwell.

At Rochester—After Richmond had shut out Rochester 1 to 0 in the first game of to-day's scheduled double-header a heavy rain fell in the first inning of the second game with Richmond at bat and one run in and two out, and the contest had to be called off. Richmond made only two hits off Causey in the one game played. Score:

(By Georges Carpenter)

(Military aviator in the French army, heavyweight boxing champion of Europe, and chief pretender to the world's crown now worn by Jess Willard.)

On the French Front—This war is a fight to the finish, the winner the party who can deliver the knockout punch.

And the league of nations fighting Germany has it. Not that I mean to have you think that Germany is now completely exhausted and is on the point of dropping in her corner and taking the count.

But she is like the boxer who, after a long period of training, steps into the ring, strong and resourceful, and scores point after point, only in the end to drop from one smashing blow of his opponent, who has waited the time when his strength would be greater.

We are now forcing the fighting, and the Boches are gradually giving way as our powerful attacks show them only too plainly that we are the stronger.

I as an aviator see and know our superiority just as well as I know how matters stand when I am in the ring with a boxer who gives way at every step I take, and at every blow I deliver.

The English and the French soldiers in the trenches know it—know that the prize of victory will be theirs—and this knowledge in itself means added strength. On the battlefield this confidence is the morale of winning; in the ring it is the spirit that puts new life into tired muscles.

Just as long as there is a German to be knocked out I am going to fight, unless a German bullet makes me take the count.

The German aviators as a whole are clean fighters, but the Boche soldier, and the Boche officer, breaks the rules of warfare continually. Similar dirty tactics in the ring would not be tolerated by any group of boxing fans in the world. The Boche, not satisfied with hitting his opponent below the belt, strikes at the ropes at the weak and innocent non-combatants.

To see what sort of fighter the German is, all you need to do is to look at the women and children in that part of France which the Germans have just evacuated.

So far as I know, my father, mother and sister are in Lens, still held by the Germans, no more nor less than prisoners of the most cruel fighters the world has ever seen.

Every French soldier feels as I do. We feel that the Germans, from the soldier in the trenches to the kaiser, must be punished for their "dirty work," to use the favorite expression of an American aviator who explained to me in English-French that it was American for "less crimes committed in guerre on dans le ring de boxe."

So enormous are the crimes of the Germans that if some all-powerful referee could end the fighting to-day by disqualifying the Germans and letting them withdraw unpunished from France, as a boxer who commits a deliberate foul leaves the ring, there is not a Frenchman who would not insist that the war could not continue under the new conditions very well. The People of Toronto Referred To Other Conveyances

Jitney's Ruled Supreme Aided By Trucks and Bicycles

Toronto, July 12.—Toronto awoke yesterday to greet a city devoid of the hum of car wheels and the clanging of motormen's bells. To many the new order of things was not unexpected. But there were many who had gone to sleep feeling that there would be no carmen's strike, and that their chief source of transportation would be secure for them in the morning. For the thus early unenlightened there was a great surprise. Instead of the street cars to their respective centres of labor, they found in every part of the city, taken altogether there was comparatively little interruption of early morning business in the chief local centres of activities.

The Eaton Company, the Simpson Company, and such like concerns, and the large firms engaged in munition contracts had each provided for the strike by engaging conveyances in addition to their own to bring their workers from all parts of the city to their respective centres of labor, many according to printed schedule so that there was comparatively little dislocation of business, but, of course there were the numerous thousands who had to "foot it" both morning and evening.

Never were more automobiles seen on the streets of Toronto during any one day. Men who had a car had their "buses" out, if not for their own personal use, to place at the call of citizens at so much per trip. In addition Hamilton jitney owners deserted their own city almost without exception, and came to Toronto to reap a harvest born of the carmen's strike.

Also included in the stream of yesterday's city traffic which was more difficult for the police politicians to control than Toronto traffic in normal times, were countless bicycles, some modern and others which had been rescued from the scrap heap. Even messenger boys and apprentices had resorted to roller skates, which they had discarded on getting into long trousers. No matter the locomotive power used by workers Toronto yesterday found business pretty much as usual at regular hours, though there were hundreds of "late-timers."

In short Toronto adapted itself to the new conditions very well. There were many out to take money by providing transportation for the stranded citizens, but there were proprietors of autos who not only gave friends and strangers alike a timely "lift" but returned from the city to distant parts to bring in others. A happy spirit was prevalent. It was well on in the day before it was generally known that the railway companies had inaugurated, at the instigation of Mayor Charrch, an hourly suburban service, but later in the afternoon the "specials" which touched at West Toronto, Parkdale, Sunnyside North Toronto, etc., were well patronized. Until the strike is over the railway companies will continue these hourly services.

Jitneys Were Supreme. Jitneys were supreme. There were all sorts of invitations to the public in general to ride. A few carried the real estate sign, "For Rent," the majority signalled that the tariff was 10, 15, or 25 cents per trip, but one in particular advised the people to "Jump in quick and pay what you like," and another proclaimed "Ten cents a ride for the Red Cross," and the charming young lady who handled the latter car on Yonge Street did a roaring business.

As if to help along the general spirit of things, the Police Commissioners, during the morning, decided to suspend the jitney by-law and to permit any vehicle to carry passengers while the strike lasts, at rates to be decided on between the jitney owner and the public. While most jitney owners were considerate in their fees, others charged extortionate rates, but now that the number of cars on the streets has multiplied, the people can discriminate.

During the day there were reports of speeding by jitney drivers, as the Police Commissioners suspended the civic by-laws relating to traffic, and offenders will be arrested and prosecuted. There were also complaints of overcharging, and while the commissioners are considering a fixed tariff the public is asked to give along with complaints, the number of the auto.

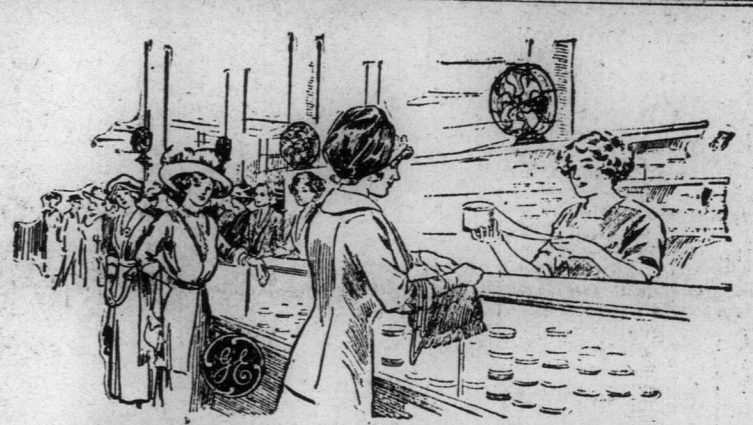

The city is mobilizing motor trucks which will be provided with seats and used to-day in carrying people to and from the Exhibition grounds in connection with the Orangemen's parade but if the strike continues the trucks will be utilized in carrying people through all parts of the city free of charge.

THE CONSCRIPTION BILL

Severe Penalties For Attempts At Hindrance

House Will Now Consider Sections Held Over

Ottawa, July 11.—The most important development in connection with the consideration of the military service bill in committee of the Commons today was an announcement made this evening by Hon. Arthur Meighen in regard to the penalties to be imposed for any attempt on the part of any persons to prevent the proper carrying out of the act. The penalties include fines and terms of imprisonment for any person who advises or urges that the men included in any of the classes shall disobey the law. Newspapers which publish articles designed to persuade or influence the public against the law are liable to suppression until after the war. The penalties are as follows:

Heavy Penalty.

1.—Any person who comes within any of the classes set out in section three, and who contravenes any of the provisions of this act, or of regulations made thereunder, for which contravention no other penalty is provided, shall be liable upon summary conviction, to a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $200 and to imprisonment for a term not less than one month, nor more than 12 months or to both fine and imprisonment.

2.—Any person who by means of any written or oral communication or by any public speech or utterance, advises, urges or advocates that the man, or any of the men mentioned or intended to be described, or included in any of the classes mentioned shall contravene, disobey or refuse, neglect or fail to comply with all or any of the requirements imposed upon them by this act, or by regulations made thereunder, or who wilfully resists, obstruct, hinders or impedes, or persuades, induces or influences, or attempts to persuade, induce or influence, any person, or anybody or class of persons, to assist, obstruct, hinder or impede, the due execution of this act, in any respect, shall be liable upon summary conviction, to a fine of not less than one year nor more than five years.

Must Not Advise Against

3.—No proceeding authorized or pending before any of the tribunals provided for by this act, and no decision of any such tribunal shall, by means of any such communication, publication, advertisement, prohibition, mandamus certiorari habeas corpus, or other process, whether of the right kind of otherwise issuing out of any court, be enjoined, restrained, stayed, removed, or subject to review or consideration upon any ground, whether arising out of alleged absence of jurisdiction in the tribunal, nullity, defect or irregularity of the proceedings, or any other cause whatsoever.

Tribunals in Power.

4.—Nothing in this act contained shall be held to mitigate or affect the punishment provided by any other act of law for the offense of assisting the enemy, nor shall anything in this act be held to limit or effect the powers of the Governor-in-Council under the War Measures Act, 1914.

Stern Measures.

5.—Any person who prints or publishes, or causes to be printed or published in any newspaper, periodical, tract, pamphlet, circular or printed publication whatsoever, any editorial article, letter, correspondence or matter, intended or having effect to advocate, advise, persuade, instigate, resist, obstruct, hinder or impede the due execution of this act, or compliance therewith in any respect or particular according to its true intent, meaning or purpose, shall be liable upon summary conviction, to a fine of not less than one year nor more than

Quote Gen. Haig

Hon. Gen. P. Graham, Col. Taylor, of New Westminster, and Messrs. Nesbitt, Turfitt, Morphy and Sutherland strongly urged upon the Government the desirability of calling out the first three classes together. They all agreed that by calling out class 1 too many youths of tender years would be secured.

Mr. Meighen quoted the opinion of Gen. Haig to the effect that the most effective service given at the front was rendered by young lads of from 20 to 24.

Men for Ballast

Col. Taylor said that while he was not disposed to dispute that statement it was not desirable that a regiment should be made up entirely of boy soldiers. The young men should be sternly drilled and drilled, but older men are required for "ballast."

Mr. Graham thought that the Government should not hesitate to make the change in view of the opinion expressed by Col. Taylor, but Mr. Meighen maintained that if the three classes were all called out together the tribunals would be congested and a large number of men withdrawn from their occupations at one time. He believed that the three groups would be called out so as to effect that they would all be drawn upon for the 100,000 men required.

Clause Passed

The proposal that the three first classes be called together was held over by Mr. Meighen. Acting upon a suggestion by Col. J. D. Taylor, made earlier in the discussion of the bill, that some line should be drawn between the penalties of this act and the penalties of the Militia Act, Mr. Meighen proposed a substitute penalty clause for section four; this amendment was passed.

Mr. D. D. MacKenzie raised the point that trial by summary conviction meant trial by magistrate. He thought that in the case of such a serious offense the trial should be by county court judges or by stipendiary magistrates in cities or towns.

Mr. Meighen agreed that it would be much better to have all the trials by judges. The danger might be too long delayed. He consented to bring the suggestion before his colleagues and the clause was passed on the understanding that it might be further considered.

Good Progress Made.—Preliminary Consideration of Bill is Completed

Ottawa, July 12.—Despite obstruction from Hon. Frank Oliver, whom Hon. Arthur Meighen said was apparently suffering from "cerebral distemper," good progress was made with the military service bill yesterday. The preliminary consideration of the bill was completed, and the House committee will now return to the classes and sections which were held over. Outside of Mr. Oliver, who insisted that the act was drafted to bear lightly on Quebec and to furnish men for profiteering manufacturers, there was no attempt to block and criticism was pertinent.

Few Loopholes

Hon. Arthur Meighen, who is in charge of the bill, has evidently drafted it with extreme care, and the loopholes which have been discovered are few. In answer to questions as to whether the exertions of Canada would be limited by the hundred thousand named in the bill, the Government said that this was not the intention. If more were needed a short act could be introduced in Parliament, it was felt, though, Parliament should be consulted.

Mr. Oliver urged that there should be registration. He suggested that this still be included in the measure. Sir Robert Borden pointed out that registration would be only to duplicate the work and would make it no easier to round up men.

Seek Out Slackers

Mr. Oliver also insisted that if the bill was to be fairly administered with regard to services rendered, provision should be made to register a certain number of fighting men out of a certain proportion of the population. He said that it was not intended that the bill should be fairly administered.

Mr. Meighen said it was intended to seek out the slacker whoever he was and to make the levy according to the proportion of available men in each district.

Point of Nationality

Mr. Oliver drew attention to the recruiting figures of Ontario. Out of the 371,000 men available, he said 158,000 had enlisted, but of these from at least 30 per cent were from amongst the British-born. The casualty lists would show them.

Col. John A. Currie said it was impossible to get data on this point for at least many of the men who were born in Canada gave the nationality of their fathers. Thus many men of Canadian birth were officially described as Scotch, English, Irish, etc.

Mr. Oliver contended that this was a double purpose bill and that provisions had been put in it deliberately in order to exempt men to work in the factories of friends of the Government.

To Enforce Law

Mr. Oliver, continuing, wanted to know when a call was made for men what steps would be taken to insure that everybody responded.

Mr. Meighen pointed out that there were penalty clauses in the bill, and a man was liable to either court-martial or summary conviction before a magistrate. Mr. Meighen explained that it was the intention of the Government to see that the law was enforced. If anyone failed in the enforcement of the Act it would not be the Government of Canada.

Mr. Oliver replied that they had apparently to depend on this Government of Canada for enforcement of this act. He had no faith in the good faith of the Government in the administration of the Act. The statement had been made by a member of the Government that special favor was to be shown to a special province.

Board of Selection

Mr. Robert Borden pointed out that the tribunals were to be picked by a board of selection, which was to be chosen by a board representing both sides of Parliament with equal representation by the judges. The appeal courts were to be selected by the judges. He said the tribunals would be worthless, the judges worthless and the Government worthless. If this were all true then the bill would undoubtedly not be a success. As for himself he had not yet lost faith in human nature. He thought Mr. Oliver during the past few days must be suffering from a state of "cerebral distemper." Mr. Meighen said he would like to reaffirm that as far as they were able the principles embodied in this bill were principles which if acted upon by reasonable men would choose the most men with the least injury to agriculture and necessary industries.

Tribunals to Decide

Mr. Oliver at this point observed that Hon. Albert Seigny, minister of inland revenue, was in the House, he asked him on what basis he had made the statement on what basis he fixed the probable distribution of the men in the various provinces, mentioning 25,000 for Quebec, 25,000 for Ontario, and 10,000 for Alberta, etc.

Mr. Seigny replied that his object was just to show that it would be easy to secure 100,000 men or more in Canada. He added that the tribunals would decide whether the men would go to the front or be used in industrial pursuits.

Ernest Lapointe, of Kamaraska, said that the statement made by Mr. Seigny was taken in Quebec as an assurance of the Government's policy.

25,000 in Quebec

Mr. Seigny repeated that his only object was to show that Quebec could raise 25,000 men. No one at the moment knows, however, how many the province will be called upon to raise.

Mr. Lapointe, St. Marys, Montreal, asked the minister on what basis he figured that Montreal should supply 10,000 men.

Mr. Seigny replied that about 50 per cent of the population of Montreal are of French descent, and that Montreal could afford to spare that number.

If he was in a position, since the Docteur-by-election, to judge of the feeling of the people of Quebec in regard to conscription.

Says Liberals Wrong

Mr. Seigny told the House that since he had made his speech in support of the bill he had received letters from many French-Canadians congratulating him on his stand. Yesterday a young resident of Montreal told him that he'd always been a Liberal, but that he would support the Government on its policy of conscription. He added that he thought the Liberals were wrong in regard to this question.

Mr. Marcell observed that the chief objection to the bill in Quebec was that the Government had refused to consult the people. What was the opinion of the minister in regard to that?

Marcell's Move

"I would advise the honorable member to make his remarks to his friends on the other side of the House who did not vote for a referendum," Mr. Seigny replied.

Mr. Marcell expressed the hope that the prime minister would give the members an opportunity to pass judgment upon the question. If conscription was approved, he would mean that there would be unanimity and its enforcement.

Mr. Marcell inquired if any arrangement regarding the proportion of men to be supplied by each country had been come to between the allies and if Canada had been consulted by the allies regarding the number of men she could send.

Countries Doing Utmost

Sir Robert Borden said no such arrangement had been made and each country was simply doing its utmost. France, perhaps more than any other nation, had given most of national strength. Every man has gone to the front except those absolutely necessary to carry on the work of the nation.

Mr. Meighen, in reply to Mr. Devlin, said that all men heretofore rejected must appear again and claim exemption if they so desired.

Sir Robert Borden, in answer to Mr. Graham, said that no definite arrangement had yet been made regarding co-operation between the United States and Canada as to Canadian subjects resident in the United States and United States subjects resident in Canada. Of course, arrangements had been made whereby Canadian officers had been allowed to go into the United States and recruit, but no definite scheme of co-operation had been formulated.

The district fire had brought steamers from stations to rescue the crook. They were strangers to each other—a which had made the risk of detection infinitely small. Nevertheless, it must have been an iron nerve to have waited. Ling had done, in a back room the blazing building till the morning was ripe for his expedient. He had reckoned astutely ended that the firemen would have their hands full at the front of the building at the commencement of operations and that at the most only one or two would penetrate through the burning staircase to the back to have look at things. On that hypothesis he had acted and the first fireman to get through never known what hit him. Ling dropped a sandbag across the neck of his neck. It had taken little enough time to change the man's outer garments, the brass helmet, the heavy jacket and trousers and big sea-boats—even so, he had to fight his way through the choking and gasping, through a smothering mixture of flame and smoke to the open air. The uniformed police at the end of the street remembered a man with grimed face and wild eyes—one keen-eyed officer had noticed what he took to be a band under the helmet—come toward them at a lumbering trot. As Ling had calculated, there was not the shadow of suspicion in their minds as breathlessly he ordered them to make way, muttering, "We want to see if we can get at it from the back." And so he vanished, leaving one more victim buried in the ruins of the building. Mortifying as it was, no one could justly be blamed. The uniformed lice had acted hastily in cutting access to and from Levoine Street and though one end of the street which backed on to it—Paradise Street—had been included in the cordon, the other had been left open. The mistake had been an easy one to make. Levoine Street itself, straight as a pencil its entire length, ran parallel to Levoine Street, only to effect a change back into normal clothing. All this had now become apparent to Weir Menzies, and blackened brow and roused his temper as he reflected how easily it might have been avoided. His cordon of detectives had been wider and had included Paradise Street until he weakened it by calling in some of the men. However, there was little to be gained by reprimand. The back yard of the houses in Levoine Street had been searched, and now a second party of searchers was at work.

Pattern Service

By Anabel

Very up to date and serviceable is the smart new design No. 8226. It is suitable for young girls or slender women, and will fill the needs of the schoolgirl or the young married woman who attends to her shopping or marketing in the morning. One of the pleasantest things about it is that it is easily slipped on, as the front flaps may cover an opening all the way down the front, or just from the lower button. The frock appears to be loosely waisted, but it is cut out at front and back and the skirt section runs up and gathered to the upper part in yoke effect. The skirt is in three pieces. A broad sailor collar makes the necessary color contrast. The long, full sleeves will be the proper choice for a wool dress, and the shorter flare sleeves for a wash dress. The dress pattern No. 8226 is cut in sizes 14 to 20 years. The 16 year size requires 5 1/2 yards 36 inch material, with 55 yard 24 inch contrasting goods. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

The farmers have produced more food—and now call upon town and city men to help them to harvest it. Five hundred men are wanted now. More men will be needed later.

But we must have five hundred men at once for from two to six weeks. Good wages paid.

Consequently we urge employers to release men temporarily for this work, and keep their jobs open for them. And we call upon all men, who can, to help gather the harvest.

The food crops must be taken off the ground. You need them as much as our own soldiers and Allies in Europe.

There was wailing and gnashing of teeth among the men of the C. I. D. as knowledge of Lings escape spread. Yet the simplicity and audacity with which it had been carried out earned for it a chagrined admiration.

Luck had attended the crook better than he knew. The district fire call had brought steamers from many stations, and some of the firemen were strangers to each other—a fact which had made the risk of detection infinitely small.

Nevertheless, it must have needed an iron nerve to have waited, as Ling had done, in a back room of the blazing building till the moment was ripe for his expedient.

He had reckoned astutely enough that the firemen would have their hands full at the front of the house at the commencement of operations, and that at the most only one or two would penetrate through by the blazing staircase to the back to have a look at them.

On that hypothesis he had acted, and the first fireman who had acted had never known what hit him as Ling dropped a sandbag across the nose of his neck.

It had taken little enough time to change the man's outer garments—the brass helmet, the heavy jacket, the trousers and big sea-boots—but even so, he had to fight his way, choking and gasping, through the smothering mixture of flame and smoke to the open air.

The uniformed police at the lower end of the street remembered a fireman with grimed face and bloodshot eyes—one keen-eyed officer had even noticed what he took to be a bandage under the helmet—come toward them at a lumbering trot.

As Ling had calculated, there had not been the shadow of suspicion in their minds as breathlessly he had ordered them to make way, muttering, "We want to see if we can get at it from the back." And so he had vanished, leaving one more victim to be buried in the ruins of the burning house.

Mortifying as it was, no one could justly be blamed. The uniformed police had acted hastily in cutting off access to and from Levoine Street, and which backed on to it—Paradise Street—had been included in the cordoned, the other had been left open.

The mistake had been an easy one to make. Levoine Street itself ran straight as a pencil its entire length, Paradise Street, on the other hand, ran parallel back to back with Levoine Street for perhaps a quarter of its length, and then swerved widely away at an obtuse angle, which brought its bottom end out something more than half a mile from Levoine Street.

If Gwendie Lyne had sealed the back walls safely she could have reached the house in Paradise Street from the back and escaped through the front without anyone being a whit the wiser. Ling, too, would have made for Paradise Street, if only to effect a change back into normal clothing.

All this had now become apparent to Weir Menzies, and blackened his brow and roused his temper as he reflected how easily it might have been avoided. His cordon of detectives had been wider and had included Paradise Street until he had weakened it by calling in some of the men.

However, there was little to be gained by repining. The back yards of the houses in Levoine Street had already been scoured, and now a second party of searchers was at work among them, though hope of picking up any trace of Gwendie was feeble. The only chance was that if she tried to get away from Paradise Street she might be brought up by one of the outlying detective patrols.

Although the search of the cut off area seemed now a waste of time, Menzies gave no instructions for it to cease. There was always a possibility, however faint it might be. His main hopes were centered on Big Rufe.

"What's the number of that shanty in Paradise Street where you and Ling were hanging out?" he asked. Rufe gave it readily enough. "You don't reckon they'll be waiting there for you, do you?" he asked. "I guess you'll find the curb scorched, they got away so fast."

The same idea was in Menzies' mind. He would cheerfully have given odds of a million to one on it, but nevertheless the place had to be gone through. He drew his chair a little closer to the prisoner.

"What did you mean just now by 'En she quay'?" he asked. Rufe shook his head doggedly. "No guy ain't goin' to say I gave Ling away," he persisted. He was apparently obsessed with something of that curious trick of mind which will induce a dishonest witness with some shreds of conscience to kiss a thumb instead of the testament in court, thereby avoiding the perjury is thereby avoided.

Menzies recognized the attitude. He had had no objections to betraying Ling, but he would not deign to give away his fresh hiding place. He wanted to feel that he could deny having done so if occasion warranted, and he was giving a hint capable of only one construction.

A less self-controlled, less experienced man than Menzies might have been exasperated. The crook had been plain enough except on this one point. To argument and expostulation alike he blandly shook his head.

There was it seemed to Menzies a chance of it being a piece of reconnoitre American slang. If that was so it was new to him, and he had had no experience of the other side.

He sent Rufe away to the police station under escort, and stroled out himself to see how things were progressing. It was getting on for one o'clock, and the house to house search was on the point of finishing. Congreve loomed up through the drizzle.

"No go, sir," he reported. "House as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard except for some tinned stuff, some stale bread and half a dozen travelling rugs. Front door and the yard door were both open."

"I was afraid 'sb," said Menzies. "We don't seem to have any luck, do we?"

"I don't know," Congreve smiled behind his hand at his chief's impatience. "If you don't mind my saying so, sir, it seems to me we haven't much to grumble about. A day or two ago we were right in the dark. Now we do know the story and we know the murderer."

"Yep. And you've been long enough in the service, Congreve, to know that troubles only begin when a man is spotted. Tell me what 'En she quay' means, and you'll be talking sense."

"Give it up," said Congreve, decisively. "Well, I'm going to knock off now and go up and see Mr. Foyle. We've about cleared up here. You might ask some of the boys about that. Perhaps some of 'em may know."

For Maid. Russian Green 'Trio with sleeves and vest section of soft satin. Buckle simulated by embroidery in dull gold, tassel of Chenille with gold bandages.

Where's Royal? "Dry nursing Hallett in the Three Kings."

"On my soul, I nearly forgot about him," declared Menzies, and hurried away.

He found Hallett and Royal, who appeared to have become fairly intimate, swopping tall stories in the public house with Cincinnati Red as an interested onlooker. Peggy Greve-Stratton had long ago been sent away to Menzies's house. Royal stopped in the middle of a creditable imitation of the peculiarities of a certain famous judge. The chief inspector stood regarding them for a minute.

"Well, boys," he said cheerfully. "I suppose you know the show is over for to-night. We've been done again."

"Some gink," murmured Hallett softly. "You don't get my goat, my lad," smiled Menzies.

"Ling seemed to manage fairly well," smiled Jimmie. "You're finding out you've got a man's sized job, aren't you? All right—as Menzies moved threateningly toward him—'I take it all back. You're it. The dozen Lings before the fact, just to get an appetite. Keep off. I apologize. I beg pardon. I eat dirt. I—' he gurgled.

"Serious though," said Menzies. "I'm shutting up shop for to-night. It's after closing hours, but we'll see if we can get one drink if we talk kindly to the landlord—all except Hallett."

"Me," said Jimmie. "You think I'm drunk?"

"Well," Menzies drawled. "I've known men go in the air with less reason. Say, I'll let you have that drink and you'll be sober if you'll answer one question."

"Shoot," said Hallett. "What does 'En she quay' mean?"

"Jimmie bent his brows in painful thought. At last he shook his head. "That's one on me. I'll buy it. He waited expectant.

"It isn't a catch," explained Menzies. "I want to know."

Cincinnati Red looked up. "I've got an idea what you're driving at," he said. "I ought to have caught on before, only I didn't think of it. I've heard that Ling hits the pipe. I don't know for sure. He's never let on."

"An opium smoker?"

"Sure. Only it's 'Yen she quay,' and it means 'smoke opium devil.' They say he's been a dope fiend for years. That explains why he goes all to pieces sometimes. He can't keep away from it for long."

PRISON FOR NOTABLES

Latest Act Of Cruelty To Belgians

Brutality Is Also Reported From East Africa

London, July 12—The Times says. "A Belgian who has just come from Holland brought details of the arrest of 23 notable citizens who have been imprisoned in Germany as a reprisal for so-called ill-treatment of Germans from Tabora. The Belgians were arrested on June 29 and 30, and taken in three groups to Solz and taken to one of the worst of the German civilian camps. They are all men over 50. The oldest is 72. Several are ill, particularly Comte Durssel, ex-Senator, who suffers from heart disease, and Comte John Doultremey, Grand Marechal to the late King Leopold. None of the prisoners were informed of their destination. They were given less than an hour in which to prepare for the journey. The witness was present at the departure of these hostages. One was crippled with rheumatism, and could hardly walk to the train. Most of them had no time to provide proper clothing or gear. The journey, which is one of 30 hours. None had more than $20 in his possession. Some carried nothing but walking-sticks. On the day of their departure the censored newspapers of Brussels published articles anathematizing the cruelty of the Belgian government in throwing upon it the whole of the responsibility for these unavoidable reprisals which were forced on the Germans owing to the way German civilians were treated at Tabora, Africa.

"A colonial authority who was through the East African campaign recites facts in refutation of the German allegations.

German Brutality "The initiative in imprisonment of civilians in Africa was taken by the German government who in defiance of the laws of war, arrested peaceable travellers, Belgian, Italian and English colonists, and kept them in an internment camp for more than two years. There were women among the interned, and according to their testimony and the confession of German officers and soldiers, themselves now prisoners, the regime imposed upon these white non-combatants was odious, and all the worse, because it was imposed upon whites in the sight of the blacks.

"The Belgian Government would have been justified in imposing similar treatment upon German civilians who remained at Tabora when the town was taken by the Belgian troops, but the Belgian military authorities merely secured the persons of the German colonists, so as to avoid the danger of communication with the enemy. Gen. Tombeur even refused to occupy the houses of the German governor because the latter's wife was still residing there. It may be remembered that the first thing German generals did at Brussels in August, 1914, was to seize the official residences of Belgian ministers and install themselves.

"It was by the request of the German civilians, both men and women, that it was decided to bring them to Europe. During the voyage all possible care was taken of the prisoners. Their internment in France is an unavoidable consequence of the state of war. To send these 28 Belgian notables into a reprisal camp only adds one more to the interminable list of unjustifiable actions by which the German war policy has earned the scorn of the civilized world, and swells the account for reparation to be presented by Belgium when the day of settlement arrives."

Good Night Stories

THE VOICE OF DUTY

Polly was a good little girl, but sometimes very thoughtless. One day her mamma was called away, and Polly was asked to watch the meat that was cooking on the stove. Polly turned the blaze up real high under the pan so it would cook quicker. Then gathering up her books she curled herself in the big arm chair and began to read. Soon the water in the pan was boiling at a terrible rate.

"I can't help it, my flame is turned too high," blazed the fire. You'd better let Polly know before it's too late."

"I'll do that, for I'm surely getting too hot," replied the meat as she sputtered and spit, boiled and bubbled at a great rate trying to attract Polly's attention.

"Come quickly and turn down the flame," something seemed to cry in Polly's ear.

"I guess I put plenty of water in that pan," said Polly to herself. The water boiled and boiled until soon the meat was sizzling on the bottom of the pan, for all the water had boiled away.

"Help! help, or I shall burn!" cried the voice again in Polly's ear. Polly paid no attention. She went on reading. The meat fried and sputtered until it finally stuck to the pan, and of course, began to burn.

"Why will people be so thoughtless!" cried the fire. She knew she was burning that lovely piece of meat, and hadn't the thought to turn the flame down.

When mamma opened the front door the house was full of smoke. There sat Polly, her nose buried so deeply in her book that she hadn't noticed the smoke or paid any heed to the small voices that had seemed to call her.

"What on earth!" exclaimed mamma. Polly jumped up and ran to the kitchen. "Oh, I forgot all about the meat. And now it's burned," cried Polly. "Something seemed to keep saying 'Come to the kitchen,' but I never paid any attention to it."

"If we would always listen to the small voices that cry to us in our minds we would never have cause for sorrow, for they are the voices of duty. They never speak unless we have failed to do something we should have done. Had you run at once when they spoke the water wouldn't have boiled away nor the meat burned. After this, dear little daughter, no matter how tiny the voice sounds, when it speaks to you heed and it will save you many a heartache," said mamma.

Polly was very much ashamed, and from that day on when something seemed to call her she listened, and obeyed, for she knew that it was the voice of duty.

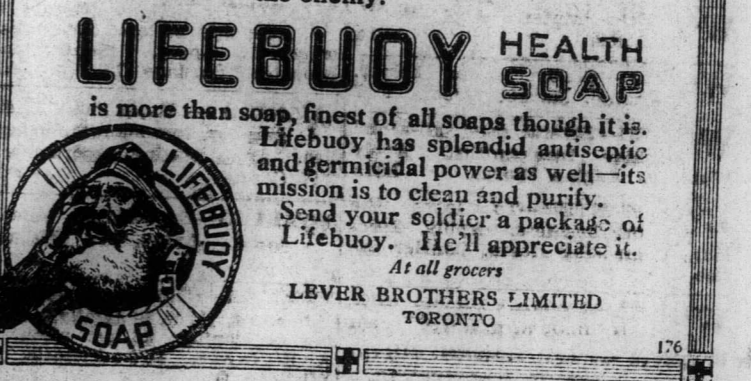

WET WEATHER PREVENTED GAME. The opening game of the series between the Orioles and Leafs yesterday was postponed owing to the inclement weather, and therefore a double-header is down for decision this afternoon. It is likely that Thompson and Hearne will be the local twirlers. "Bunny" has won his last five starts, and thirteen all told this season.

President McCaffery announced last night that Outfielder Dan Costello had been sold to the Kansas City club, of the American Association, and managed by "Jawn" Ganzel.

Lifebuoy for the "Counter-attack"

All day long he's been standing the attacks of dirt, dust, grime, germs and microbes. Now for the counter-attack. Lifebuoy to the front! Its rich, creamy lather for skin, shampoo and bath— or for socks, shirts, handkerchiefs, etc., makes short work of "the enemy."

MISSSES' AND SMALL WOMEN'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Very up to date and serviceable is the smart new design No. 8326. It is suitable for young girls or slender women, and will fill the needs of the schoolgirl or the young married woman who attends to her shopping or marketing in the morning. One of the pleasantest things about it is that it is easily slipped on, as the front tucks may cover an opening all the way down the front, or just from the lowest button. The frock appears to be long waisted, but it is cut out at front and back and the skirt section runs up and is gathered to the upper part in yoke effect. The skirt is in three pieces. A broad sailor collar makes the necessary color contrast. The long, full sleeves will be the proper choice for a wool dress, and the shorter flare sleeves for a wash dress.

The dress pattern No. 8326 is cut in sizes 14 to 20 years. The 16 year size requires 5 1/2 yards 36 inch material, with 2 1/2 yard 24 inch contrasting goods. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

CHATTERBOXES

FAMILY CAT CHWORDS.

"That's a family phrase," explained my neighbor when her husband used some queer little expression, "one of those phrases that are a kind of family catchword."

This neighbor belongs to a family which isn't just a collection of blood relatives, but really a family. You know what I mean.

It was typical that they should have such family catchwords. It is typical of any real family.

I am proud to say we have some in our family. Let me quote some to show you just what I mean.

We Quote It to People who Talk Big One is, "That did have a great influence at the time of the civil war." It was originally said by a member of the family who wasn't alive at the time of the civil war and wasn't in a position to know just what did and what didn't have an influence then. Her elderly didactic way of saying it brought down the derision of the family. It refers to any paper or magazine which in the course of human events has been removed from the table and which the

By Canadians Against The German Defences
Handful of the Maple Leaf
Boys Stalk Forty Huns

By Stewart Lyon.
Canadian Press Correspondent With the Canadian Forces, Canadian Headquarters in France, July 11.—Determined pressure against the defences of the Germans in the vicinity of the City of Lens continues daily. Necessary it is of sort that must be exercised methodically. To send large bodies of assaulting troops into the maze of wrecks and ruins of a mining works, which now constitutes "No Man's Land," might result in the carrying of a few hundred yards of shapeless ruins, but the price that would be exacted by the machine-gunners would be far greater than the new ground won by a coup-de-main of that kind could possibly be worth.

A Chance for Scouters
The least costly mode of advance is gradually encroaching upon "No Man's Land" by patrols, which occupy wrecked houses here and there during the night, and after a sufficient number have been secured, to form a fairly continuous advanced line. This style of preparatory fighting brings into action the scouting faculties of a large proportion of the line at present. An incident which occurred the other night illustrates their methods.

A party of 10 men, with a lieutenant in command, went out to examine an isolated row of miners' houses in front of their own line. The enemy was so near that no light was possible, save that of the moon, emerging at times from behind heavy clouds. Under these conditions the party went to work in pairs, groping their way through the unfamiliar ruins and seeking for signs of occupation.

The lieutenant and two of his men were in one of the houses when sounds outside warned them of the coming of a considerable body of Germans. Taking shelter where the shadows were deepest, these three Canadians lay hidden while more than 40 of the enemy passed through the house in which they lay. The Germans were apparently on the way to a rendezvous for a raiding party for they went out in the direction of the Canadian front.

Stalked the Boches
Collecting his little party, the lieutenant sent a man back to warn their comrades in the remainder of the scouting party. The enemy, stalking them so successfully that they got within bombing distance undiscovered. The crash of bombs falling among them was the first intimation to the Germans that they had been seen. They ran pell-mell, and some of them were badly hurt, judging from the outcry. Fighting of that sort appeals strongly to the young fellows from Canada, whose life at home is often perilous and full of adventure.

Another exploration party in the area to the south of the River Souche came in last night from "No Man's Land" and reported the destruction of a trench mortar which the enemy had been using from which it could have been used during the hours of darkness with serious results to the men in our front line.

SINN FEINER WINS SEAT

Nationalist Proved Winner in East Clare
New Member Just Out Of Prison For Part In Uprising

London, July 12.—Professor Edward De Valera, of Dublin University, a Sinn Feiner, has been elected to Parliament from East Clare. He received 5,010 votes against 2,035 for Patrick Lynch, the Nationalist candidate.

De Valera is one of the Sinn Feiners arrested at the time of the revolution last year and recently released from prison.

Scenes of wild excitement followed the announcement of the result of the election. Prof. de Valera, the successful candidate, addressed the crowd and said it could no longer be alleged that the Irish people did not want independence. The new member headed a crowd of Sinn Feiners who marched through the town, carrying republican flags.

A Dublin despatch says: "It is believed here that the result of the East Clare election will interfere with the arrangements for the assembling of the Irish convention, as it is considered to represent a feeling of lack of confidence in the good faith of the Coalition Government and a belief that the Irish party went too far in its consideration of the Government's war difficulties and received inadequate recognition of the party's reasonable attitude. The outcome, however, has not been taken to mean any permanent estrangement of the parties."

De Valera will hold the seat in the House of Commons made vacant by the death in action of Major William Redmond, brother of John Redmond, and who was Nationalist M.P. for East Clare since 1892.

De Valera, who took part in the memorable Easter week uprising in Dublin, was sentenced to death, but this was commuted to life imprisonment. He was released recently when all those arrested for the Irish revolt were freed in the expectation of creating a better feeling in Ireland for the coming National convention. De Valera was nominated for the bye-election previous to his release, and a Dublin special to the Times said that a number of Catholic priests attended the convention. County Clare is on the Atlantic coast, separated from Limerick, to the south, by the River Shannon.

In May, McGuinness, Sinn Feiner, won the bye-election in South Longford, defeating a Nationalist by 37, and in February County Plunkett, Sinn Feiner, won in North Roscommon by 1,300 over the Nationalist.

RUSSIANS FIGHTING FOR PEACE

By Offensive Alone May Persuade Allies and Compel For Terms

AIM MISUNDERSTOOD

London, July 13.—(New York World cable)—A Petrograd dispatch to The Daily News says the Russian bitterly resent the misunderstanding with which their offensive is cloaked in certain circles in the west. It being made under circumstances of extraordinary difficulty, the message continued. There are daily reports of hunger riots in different parts of the country and of internal struggles of the parties, and even of huge sections of the population, which threaten disaster to Russia. The dispatch says the offensive is being made not because Russia hopes to desire the crushing of Germany; it is made because she believes that by an offensive she alone can persuade the allies and compel the Germans to agree to a general peace of honorable terms. The willful misunderstanding of the Russian attitude reflection on her by giving the enemies of the offensive ground for telling the Russians they are fighting in vain.

Next Step, Strj
Petrograd, July 13.—Now that Halicz is in Russian possession, the eyes of General Korniloff's cavalry cossacks are turned toward the railway centre of Strj, a town of 30,000 inhabitants, a junction of the line from Lemberg to Lawoczne and of a branch line to Chodorow. Military writers describing the defensive, say its chief strength is on the north and northeast, but weaker on the south. There is widespread expectation of an important counter-attack on the northern front.

Financial Problems
Petrograd, July 12.—The serious financial problems confronting the Russian Government were referred to in a report read at a private meeting of the duma yesterday by Deputy Bubnikoff, who said the nation's gold reserve of 1,711,000,000 rubles covered 13.5 per cent of the paper money of the state now in circulation. The debt, which at the end of 1913 was $800,000,000 rubles at the beginning of 1917, was $3,600,000,000. If the paper money issued during the war were added, he said, the total debt would be brought up to about 45,000,000,000 rubles.

Another unfavorable feature of the general situation is a decrease of 30 per cent in the production of coal in southern Russia. M. Boblikoff also referred to the circumstance that 49 per cent of the country's locomotives and cars are in the shops awaiting repairs.

The financial problems, the deputy said, in his opinion could not be solved by the imposition of a fresh taxation which would remove the stimulus for productive labor.
