LONDON, CANADA, SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1917

The Catholic Record

LONDON, SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1917

ONE WAY

There is no such thing as an absolutely bad man or woman. The with pity rather than with punishbad-and of course there are bad people—have some little sparks of sympathy with the tempted, with goodness wandering about in them, the fallen, who cannot see or feel ofttimes a great deal more goodness or understand the potency of the than we know, and even the good temptation which led to the act have flaws in their character which in question, is not fit to sit upon the are at any rate a consolation to the bench at all. It is thus that the old mediocre. But we are not so much are so hard upon the errors of the concerned with the absolute, but young, because they have lived down still more, rather than give indirect with the judgments which people the passions, the aspirations, the assistance in the deportation of form and deliver of their neighbors, hopes and the fears which make a and according to those who are turmoil in young hearts and obscure unco good " of course the world is sometimes the dictates of duty by full of bad people. Indeed the diffi. the steam which rises from the boilculty of judging of merit is in the ing pot of youth. We can all be already, for the regime of occupastandard that has to be applied. The virtuous when the temptations have only way to accurately find the ceased to influence conduct. The despised by everything in the whole world. dimensions of anything is to apply a miser can condemn the wanton footrule; and the way to ascertain extravagance and ruthless waste of the merit of our neighbours is to his heir, but the heir on his side compare them with the footrule of can see the sordid faults of the our own excellence. It is by reason money-grubber, whose only interest of our somewhat over-weening esti. is accumulating treasures, where mate of this measure that we are moth and rust corrupt. Many enabled, to our own satisfaction no parents whose hearts have become doubt, to pronounce upon the glaring obsolete can censure the wild passions demerits of bad people. The good of the children and talk sagely, but man keeps his self-respect by regarding his neighbours, as Carlyle did, as mostly fools," and so we are enabled, although not pretending to be saints, to maintain an opinion as to present humdrum respectability. our own excellence by this glaring Anyone who differs from their view comparison with the wicked.

WE OUGHT

But it ought to be remembered by those who, according to this immaculate standard, condemn their fellows, that their fellows, by the application of a similar measure, may be, and probably are, condemning them to the same coventry of bad people; and if they realized that, they might possibly be humbler in their own conceit, and more tolerant in their judgments. At the same time, they certainly might be less happy, for there is no question that this finding fault with others seems to be a great satisfaction to some; for the object of each man and woman is to think well of themselves, and it is easier to do that by comparison with the bad than by living up, as we ought to do. to a higher ideal.

OUT OF THE HEART

Butitisa curious fact that it is those who are not the most excellent that find the most bad people in the world, and that the really good have merciful eyes and understanding, human hearts, and so discover some excellence in out-of-the-way places. Now this is curious, because by compari- ribboned diplomas, our graduates are son with the good the bad should going forth to conquer the world. seem very bad; but the fact is that God bless the young, and in particuthe really good have not the same arrogant opinion of their own footrule as those whose excellence is depression of the hope that now only piebald; for as real goodness beats high, ever bring with it a consists to some extent of humility. consists to some extent of humility, the comparison these people make with the peccable is not so damnatory as that of sinners who judge anxious not only to succeed in the more harshly. It is generally admitted that we can measure the excellence of people by their opinion of others, and it will be found by us, their disillusioned elders that it is the shrew whose Only too often we damp their zeal by gossip is acrid, it is the dishonest man who believes in the dishonesty of others, and it is the man who has no respect for truth that asserts that all men are liars. It the face of this discouragement, the would, in this connection, be quite interesting to compare the verdicts upon "bad people" which are given by two different juries-a jury of people who are worthy of respect on the one hand, and a jury of people who, however "respectable," have cruel natures. It is these latter that judge harshly and punish terribly. Of course the judgments of the world on what seems to be the same state of facts vary infinitely. Those by some would be pronounced a "good sort" by others; and all of us Catholic social are in the habit of condemning the sins we have no mind to, by shutting secure the introduction of Catholic our eyes to the sins of those we are inclined to.

THE JUST JUDGE

But the huge evil in all these is essential to justice. Justice has been figured with a pair of scales, but the duty is not to weigh sins and erimes but to recognize them as human frailties, often to be met ment; and he who can feel this with defective memories of what they were when they were young, forgetting their own hot youth and their hare-brained escapades in their of what is right - anyone whose creed is not like their creed, is bad.

RIGHT SIGHT

But it will always be so while every individual has his own selfish standard by which to scale the merits and defects of others. No one denies nowadays the right of private judgment, but one notes that in exercising private judgment some people lay the whole emphasis on the private and very little on the judgment, and that is the error. As we can understand, if it is only "private" or merely the length of the judge's foot, there is no guarantee of justice; but if, on the other hand, it is judgment, there is at least a probability that mere personal predilections will be kept out of the deliverance. But it is thus that many who might fairly be considered worthy are thought to be bad, and that the person who centures him is only ministering to his own inflated pride by his unjust condemnation of bad people.

DIPLOMAS AND PROGRAMS

when with hopeful hearts and lar these girls and boys, the flower of "The world looks bright to inexperienced eyes;" but may no seem so alluring and easy of attain-

Our young people, as a rule, are temporal affairs of life, but to engage in the work of spreading the Kingdom of God upon earth. But alas what encouragement is offered them a shrug of the shoulders, a permission grudgingly conceded, a deaden. ing, "Go ahead and try it. You probably won't succeed, but I don't think you will do much harm. brightest optimism will soon be dulled unless it has been based upon some definite program of action. The graduating class of Our Lady of Providence Academy, Chicago, has guarded against a common source of failure by providing a modest and thoroughly practicable plan of cam The class has formed itself into an association for the express purpose of doing social work and of advancing the cause of the Catholic Individually, the members pledge themselves to visit the poor or to teach catechism for one hour a who would be called the bad people week, to subscribe for at least one Catholic magazine and newspaper, and to send papers, when read, to some center. Finally, a periodicals and newspapers into the public libraries.'

With characteristic wisdom, these young damsels of Chicago have avoided the error of trying to do too They do not expect to convert the world, but that their zealous cases in the court of opinion is that labors will make their part of the ally the obligations and responsibiliunity of the faith, and Father Kurylo work.

men and women who sit on the banch have not the sympathy which world a great deal better for the fact ties of that contract. The natural that they have lived in it, we do not laws are the laws of God. While the theorem is a superscript that they have lived in it, we do not laws are the laws of God. While that they have lived in it, we do not doubt. May they find many imita-

BELGIUM'S UNCONQUERABLE HERO

New York Herald

Not all of Belgium's valiant fight. ing forces are on the French front. Mercier has been sur rounded by the Germans for three years, yet his powerful assaults on the enemy give no sign that he will ever surrender. In announcing to the Kaiser's governor-general 'that his priests would pay more fines, and their countrymen, the unconquerable prelate savs patience. I am not speaking of our earthly vengeance. We have that despised by everything that is decent of the judgment of history, of the inescapable punishment of the God of Justice. huge guns of Germany silenced Liege, Namur, Antwerp and other Belgian strongholds as the Teutonic hordes swept westward, but they failed to silence the great living fortress which the unhappy country has in Cardinal Mercier, Standing amid the ruins of his country and his people he looms before the world like an impregnable mountain of truth, with a strength infinitely greater than that of all the Teutonic army corps. To his oppressors his voice must sound as that of the prophet of the Day of

FLOCK LEADS SHEPHERD

DO EPISCOPALIANS CONSIDER MARRIAGE A THING OF

HUMAN ORIGIN? The triennial convention of the Episcopal Church, in considering the question of divorce, made the usual mess of things. It defeated the resolution that would forbid the marriage of divorced persons by clergymen of that denomination. While a majority of the clergy favored the resolution, the laity overruled them, presenting an anomalous condition of the flock guiding the shepherd.

The question of morality or revel ation did not seem to enter into the discussion. The gentlemen talked with fervor of the sanctity of marriage, yet no consideration pointed to their sacred view of it. The argument against divorce was drawn solely from expediency. It was freely acknowledged that divorce is working havoc with the American home. Therefore, it should be home. Therefore, it should be curbed by drastic resolution. The friends of divorce, led by a bishop who openly declared himself The logic of this Socialist bishop is beyond understanding, as had on the grave delegates. One does not expect logic or reason from a man who will claim to be a Chris tian and a Socialist, but one would expect that a body of sensible men would quickly grasp the fault of argument from the particular to the general. One would expect that they would know that there never was framed a law of God or man that did not at times demand sacri fice and suffering from the individnal.

The speeches and arguments of both sides revealed that the convention was working on the assumption that marriage was something of human origin that man could cha in any and all its relations. Whatever hope we may have that some day the terrible curse and disgrace may be blotted out of our country. we can expect no help from the Episcopal Church while it retains its present attitude towards the marriage bond. Their conception of marriage is all wrong, Marriage, even considered as a natural contrast, cannot be changed in its essential properties by any human Human society, both in its primitive and organized form, was originated by marriage. Marriage was not originated by human society It is that individual union by which a man and woman by their reciprocal rights form one principle of generation. It is effected by their mutual consent to give and accept each other for the purpose of propagating the human race, educating their offspring, sharing life in common, and supporting each other in undivided conjugal affection by a lasting union.

By its very nature marriage is above human law and cannot be rescinded by human law. It is true that those who contract marriage do marriage is natural in its purpose it is Divine in its origin. Regardless of human opinion, we must obey the mandates of God, whether expressed in the law of nature or in positive legislation. Marriage not having been established by man in its essential properties cannot be annulled by human law. The claim of civil society to control the marriage bond is based on the false assumption that it is a contract of human institution and subject to human legislation. In its essential properties it cannot be abridged or changed by human law, not even by a triennial convention of the Episco-pal Church "by law established."

Under the Christian dispensation marriage is a sacrament. The indissolubility of the marriage bond is not an ecclesiastical regulation. In this, as in all matters of Divine Revelation, the Church teaches and enforces the law of God. It was God Who made marriage indissoluble, and it is with God issue must be taken. Civil society may make laws I am speaking to protect the civil rights of the married couple and their offspring. As a Christian sacrament God alone can regulate it. Civil authority has no right to administer a sacramentmarriage no more than bantism. Its rights and duties begin and end with the purely civil effects of the sacrament. The minister who does not believe in the sacramental character of marriage has no interest in the matter save as a citizen. We never could understand why Protestant ministers, as such, claim the right and power to perform the marriage ceremony. When they perform a marriage ceremony they are acting solely as civil functionaries and not as ministers of Christ.

One representative of the Anglican Church gave definite answer to his confreres in the convention. The aged Bishop of Worcester, England, one of the personal envoys of the Protestant Archbishop of Canter-bury, was asked what he thought of the divorce question. He answered: "There is only one argument on that matter and it is found in the gospe of St. Mark - 'What God hath joined together let no man rend asunder. -B. X. O'R., in Truth.

ENTIRE FLOCK BACK TO UNITY

CONNECTICUT SCHISMATICS FOLLOW PASTOR BACK TO UNITY WITH ROME

Two hundred and fifty Greek Orthodox Church members, the entire congregation of the church at Willimantic, Conn., have been received into the Catholic Church. The abandonment of their schism took place recently at their parish church, It was their pastor, the Rev. Joseph Kurylo, having made his public profession of faith the Sunday previous in the Ruthenian Catholic Church of St. John the Baptist, Newark, N. J.

At the ceremony in Newark Father Socialist, pictured, the hardship of a woman with several small children deserted by her husband, who had the article of the was received by the very nev. Peter Poniatishin, administrator of the Ruthenian diocese of the United States. Father Kurylo was ordained by the very nev. Kurylo was received by the Very Rev. the opportunity of marrying a man who would care for her and her little Evdockim, of the Russian Greek Orthodox " Church, New York, and his priestly orders are therefore conincomprehensible as the influence it sidered valid in the Catholic Church, as are the orders of all the clergy in the Russian schism. He has l pastor of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Willimantic, Conn., and had peen preparing to take this step for some little while past.

His entire congregation was re-ceived into the Catholic Church by the Ruthenian Catholic priest of the Bridgeport (Conn.) parish, the Rev. Orestes Cherniak. Father Cherniak gave general absolution to the con gregation of the Church of the Holy Trinity at Willimantic and relieved them from all canonical and ecclesias tical censures. The congregation They also made a public profession of Catholic faith and declaration of loyalty and obedience to the Pope of

SOLEMN PROFESSION OF FAITH

It was after the gospel had been chanted in the Whit-Sunday Mass at St. John's that Rev. Joseph Kurylo was permitted to enter the church. Attired in his priestly cassock he was compelled to remain outside the church door from the beginning of the service until the Very Rev Administrator, after the Gospel of the Mass, proceeded to the door of the church and there publicly absolved him from all excommunica tion and censure, leading him to the altar, while Father Kurylo recited the Fiftieth Psalm, "Miserere mei, Deus." Then at the altar with his hand resting on the book of the Gospels, he made his solemn public profession of faith, declaring explicitly his belief in the "filioque" of the creed according to the Catholic sense, as well as in the dogma of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary and in the Infallibility administrator, expressing his deep gratitude to God for bringing into the unity of the Catholic Church.

Father Poniatishin in his sermon

In the evening, at the vesper service in the Ruthenian Catholic Church. of St. Nicholas of Myro, Van Buren large Ruthenian and Slavonic population, Father Kurylo was present and participated in the service. was accompanied by Very Rev. Father Poniatishin, who had received him into the Catholic Church at Newark in the morning. An immense co gregation packed the edifice. In the sanctuary were present a number of priests of the Latin rite. The Rev. Eustachij Syderiak, the pastor of St. Nicholas Ruthenian Catholic Church, preached the sermon and introduced Father Kurylo, who also addressed the congregation. The regular choir of the church was augmented at these services by the choir of St.
John the Baptist Church, Newark, under the leadership of Prof. Theodore Kaskiw.

The Church of the Holy Trinity, Willimantic, Conn., has now become incorporated as a Catholic Church under diocesan authority, and the title to the property has been transferred to the new Catholic corporation thus effected, acknowledging the Pope of Rome as the supreme head of the Church. Very Rev. Peter Poniatishin, as diocesan administrator and acting bishop, is president of its board of trustees.-Brooklyn Tablet.

"CHILD LIFE AS USUAL'

In vetoing the Brown bill Governor Whitman did much to turn the tide of war-hysteria. As the Gov-ernor says, no reflection is cast upon the patriotism of Senator Brown by this executive action. But the Sen ator's mistaken zeal would almost certainly have broken down the legislative protection of women and children, won by many years of hard fighting. His plan was, essentially, an emergency measure pro-posed in a time when an emergency neither exists nor seems even prob-

It is to be hoped that the example of New York's Governor will have many followers. Now that the danger of conscripting children has been averted, the ordinary citizen into the hell of hatred that has been may well look back and wonder how one of the ugliest features of the a scheme of such pernicious waste-fulness was able to win so many advocates. The farmers did not want the children, nor did the manufacturers. School authorities, remark of Arthur Preuss in the manufacturers. School authorities, remark of Arthur Preuss in experts in child-culture, protested current number of his Review the measure, and the clergy were quick to point out the manifold know which has developed the most moral dangers which the young workers could scarcely avoid. Yet, Secondly, we must remember that despite the plain facts urged by the mass of our official enemies are delegations representing these classes, the bill was adopted by both branches of the legislature. Happily,

It will be time enough to think of calling the children to the fields and It has, therefore, always been the factories after every slacker has practice of noble nations to treat Catholic people of the city free of been put to digging ditches, and war prisoners with respect, as men debt, hence the announcement of the every contributor to non-productive who lost their liberty in the perform- generous gift. a gun. At any time, but particularly during the cramped circumstances of war, the spectacle of children at hard labor, while a small army of servants minister to the ease of a parasitic millionaire, is an anomaly not to be tolerated in a democracy.

The country's wisest war-policy will insure that the children be kept the normal influences of home, church and school. To close these institutions or to lessen their power, simply "because of the War" is a short-sighted patriotism. Better far to prepare the child of today to meet and overcome the difficulties of tomorrow than to set his weak and futile fingers at work in a munition factory.-America.

DEVOTION TO THE SACRED HEART IN SPAIN

London, June 1, 1917.—The feast of the Sacred Heart is to be celebrated his first breath in extolling Manus with unexampled splendor in Spain. The image of the Sacred Heart is to enthroned in the provincial palace of Navarre in the presence of all the local deputies, and the beautiful statue chosen for the purpose will henceforth look down upon all the debates in the chamber. In Bilbao same ceremony is to take place in the Carlist Club, where another magificent statue has been provided the purpose and an oration will be delivered by the Catholic deputy, Senor de Mella. Masses will be said on the occasion throughout both cities for the prosperity of Spain, peace among the warring nations and the intentions of the Holy Father. Finally, splendid progress is being made with the national monument to the Sacred Heart on mountains danger developing into a man, whose which form the geographical center of Spain. The king has given 5,000 pesos to this work, and now the Pope, having been asked for permission to have his name engraved on one of the so by an act of their own free will, but they must assume unconditioning Father Kurylo's return to the and blessed and indulgenced the

LATE DUKE OF NORFOLK

LEFT LARGE AMOUNTS TO CATHOLIC CHARITY AND INSTITUTIONS

The will of the late Duke of Norfolk has been probated. Out of an estate valued for probate at $1,500, 000 personal, he leaves nearly $500, 000 to Catholic objects. His estates and his five seats with their contents go of course to his son, the little Earl of Arundel, and though the duchess is made executrix of the will there is no provision for her, as she is already well provided for by marriage settle-ments and has property of her own being Baroness Herries before she married. Legacies are left to his brother. Lord Edmund Talbot and his daughter, also to other relatives and to each servant on the great estates in Sheffield, Derbyshire, Sussex, and elsewhere who had been in the duke's employ six months.

To the Catholic Bishop of South-wark a sum of $150,000 is left for the wark a sum of $150,000 is left for the endowment of the splendid Catholic Church of St. Philip Neri, Arundel. This church was built by the Duke. A sum of $150,000 is also left to the Bishop of the diocese for the building and endowment of a Catholic church in Norwich. A sum of $75,000 is placed in trust for the education of students for the secular clergy of England. An amount of $75,000 is set aside for the completion and endowment of the noble Catholic church at Ashby-de-la-Zouche, which he be-gan to build some years ago in memory of his first wife, and $50,000 is left for the building and comple-tion or endowment of the schools or Catholic churches at Houghton and Augmering, Sussex. He was a generous supporter of Catholic charities in his lifetime, and many munificent gifts which saved more than one Catholic charity from ruin came from his purse.—Catholic Bulletin

WAR AND HATRED

God hates sin and punishes it, but He does not hate the sinner as a man. In fact while He punishes sin in this life He wishes to reclaim the sinner and save him for the life to come. In war, as at other times, we should be imitators of God; should strive to assume a god-like attitude towards our enemies.

into the hell of hatred that has been present War. First of all, we must discount to a great measure the stories of horror that are apt to the present War we didn't quite noise : the big guns or the big lies.' simply soldiers under command and bound to carry out the orders of their superiors. Private judgment the arguments lost on these Solons availed with the Governor.

has no place in an army or a navy, and would be resented here in America as severely as in Germany

And lastly, as to the commanders who are responsible for the method of warfare, we ought to Christ's words our own : "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." We ought at least to be inclined to ascribe to them a measure of good faith, as we our selves expect to be credited with good faith for entering the War. This does not mean that we must be slack in pursuing the War. We can victorious issue while we refuse to brutalize ourselves by indulging in savage hatred against our official foes .- S. in The Guardian.

A BOY HERO

In the horrible mine disaster in Butte, Montana, a lad of twenty saved twenty-eight miners from cer tain death. Johnson, the first man abstracted from the awful pit used Duggan :

Duggan. He was the one who directed all the work. None of us would be alive today, if it had not been for him.'

And who is young Duggan? A mere tool boy in the mine, but a man and a hero from the 10th of June, 1917. When all around him was chaos in a pit 2,400 feet from the ground, Duggan calm and collected, controlled his dismayed fellows and showed them how to Caillet; who has been appointed to protect themselves by bulkheading the killing gases that would soon choke then

In a time when the dailies teem with records of crime, it is refreshing to read of a lad in the hour of has brought to the various works Irish name brings a benediction from every human heart that it reaches. - Catholic Columbian.

"All strength is in humility," pared by experience for the charge of the important diocese confided to his source; and all pride is weak."

CATHOLIC NOTES

At Los Angeles, Cal., 80 Japanese children attend the Japanese Catholic schools, and are taught by Japanese Catholic Sisters.

At Tananarive, Madagascar, Prince Ramahatra, a high official, and his family, have been received into the

It is estimated that, in the Church the world over, there are about 450,-000 nuns and Sisters, 20,000 of whom are in mission work in foreign

Rev. John B. DeVille, who has done such effective work for the Belgian people, returned to the United States recently. He said his purpose is to ask President Wilson to send a transport to Holland for 500 refugees that he wishes to bring to this country.

Father Walter, of the Bright Star School, Osaka, is authority for the statement that Catholic schools are making progress in Japan, those taught by the Brothers being espe cially well attended. In evidence of this he states that the Tokyo Morn ing Star School has 950 pupils; the Osaka Bright Star School, 750 : the Star of the Sea, Nagasaki, 370, and St. Joseph's College, Yokohama, 180

The Rev. Michael McCormack, of Ashfield, was presented with a purse of a thousand dollars on the occasion his silver jubilee. Father McCormack's parish has the remark-able record of having given nine priests to the service of God's altar. One of them, the Rev. Father Hussey, pastor of Kinkora, has just gone overseas as army chaplain

The diplomatic mission from Rus sia arrived in Washington, June 19, says the Sacred Heart Review, and were met by Government officials. Many of the Russians were in uniform—khaki coat, blue trousers, and high boots. Ambassador Kakhme-tieff is the head of the mission. The Italian and Belgian missions are also in residence and the flags of Russia, Belgium and Italy are displayed on State, War and navy buildings.

Rome, June 21.—Cardinal Serafini. Prefect of the Propaganda, has just consecrated Mgr. Cattaneo, the newly appointed Apostolic Delegate to Australia, titular Archbishop of Palmyra. One of the co-consecrators was Bishop Cleary, of Auckland, the chaplain-in-chief of the Australasian forces, who came to Rome for this purpose from the French front. Archbishop Cattaneo expects to leave for Australia early in July.

Aton and Herman Hulman recently announced a gift of $36,630.04 to the new Catholic cemetery east of the city of Terre Haute, Ind., as a memorial to their father. Calvary cemetery was planned by the late Herman Hulman, father of Autor and Herman, and his sudden death curtailed his work on behalf of its construction. His sons concluded that it was the intention of their father to give the cemetery to the

The Grand Duchess Adelaide of Luxembourg has decorated the Bishop of the Grand Duchy, Mgr. Joseph Koppes, with the cross of Commander of the Order Adolphe of Nassau, with stars. This is an extraordinary mark of esteem on the part of the young Grand Duchess for a venerable prelate who has been for many years the soul of the energetic resistance that the clergy and people of Luxembourg have opposed to the machinations of the Masonic lodges. The heroic combats led by Koppes, with the support of Pius X. against irreligious education may remembered in the days prior to the

Sir Francis Cowley Burnand died at Ramsgate, England, April 21, aged eighty-one years. Sir Francis was of Huguenot descent on his father's side. He prepared for the Anglican ministry, under Canon Liddon, at Cuddesdon, but at the age of twenty-one he became a Catholic, and for a time he studied for the priesthood, with the Oblates of St. Charles, under Dr. Manning, later Cardinal. Finding that this was not his vocation, he turned to law, and was called to the He wrote for Punch, and later edited that publication for sixteen years, retiring in 1906. He was the author of more than a hundred plays.

France has another new bishop in the person of Monseigneur Alexandre the vacant see of Grenoble. Born at Dovel in 1861 and ordained priest in 1884, Mgr. Caillet has long been distinguished for his apostolic zea and the high intelligence which he entrusted to his care. In 1907 he was appointed inspector of the free school of the diocese, and he was later chosen as vicar-general and appointed Archdeacon of Moulin and Lapatisse. He is therefore pared by experience for the charge of AMBITION'S CONTEST BY CHRISTINE FABER

CHAPTER XII-CONTINUED

THE OLD, OLD STORY OF WOMAN'S HEART

The vast assembly room was fullso full that it appeared to the startled gaze of the three frightened women who stood on the threshold like a sea of forms, swaying backwards and forwards in tumultuous agitation. But on the speakers' stand, at the farther end of the room-that prominent feature in the apartment which had so impressed Ellen on her first introduction to the place-was a young man haranguing; the same whose loud voice had penetrated to Ellen's apartments. It needed not Vinnette's smothered betrayal of his name, to tell to Ellen and Anne Flanagan that he was the Mr. Bronson who had so strangely lit the lamp in the study Both recognized the face—the wonderful eyes—a face so transparently white that the rays from the pendant lamp above him seemed to shine through the skin as they would have done through alabaster; and eyes so thrilling in their glances, that an involuntary shudder convulsed the forms of the three feminine beholders.

The sight of the females in such an assembly occasioned some commotion amid those who stood directly near the trio; but the speaker it was evident he also saw them did not pause for an instant, but continued to thunder his treasonable sentences to make them quiver in the hearts of his hearers. No motion was made to eject the intruders, probably because all attention was directed, immediately after their entrance, to some commotion taking place in the upper part of the room, near the orator's stand - a commotion which appeared to be caused by men attempting to force their way to the speaker, and being opposed by some equally deter-mined party. The speaker—the rapid, eloquent speaker - saw the commotion, but he only spoke with more force and eloquence—with an ex-pression settling into his face which told of his determination to achieve some purpose or die in the endeavor; and above the din of French oaths and expostulations, which in a few moments ensued, sounded his startling voice, rapidly, as if aware that but little time was left him to make desired effect, but with every word increasing in fire and eloquence.

They neared him-the men so desirious of reaching him at last clustered about him—and all was clamor and confusion.

As one in a dream Ellen knew that Vinnette had left her, and was bounding forward between the swaying arms, and sometimes almost over the very heads of the excited throng, in order to reach the young orator who was still speaking-speaking, till a thrust from a weapon in the hands of one of the gendarmes, who had seemed only to enter now at the opportune moment, pierced his breast and threw him back on the velvet cushions, with his life-blood streaming about him. Another body of men entered the room headed by a man in official dress, tall, and stern, and stately; his gesture was suffialready seized the wounded Bronson, relinquish him to some of the members of the club who had hurried to official was accompanied by one whose form was familiar to the affrighted gaze of both Ellen and disper room of all nearly save the members of the club, a couple of gendarmes, Vinnette, who had at last reached the wounded man, and the two frightwild eyes had so long been seeking; perchance the cloak which he wore, effectually disguising his other dress, touched: and the cap descending so low upon his brow, had prevented a previous recognition, but now he passed her on his way to the stand so close that his hot breath fanned her face, and she might have caught his cloak but for Taggart who interposed - Taggart with his false smile and white teeth, the former broader and the latter showing more repulsively than His form came so quickly between brother and sister that Flanagan's side.

latter, having at last recovered her sick man's own, and her face deeply

That Howard is in danger," an swered Ellen, breathlessly, and waiting not for further comment, she hurried after her brother. But ere she could reach him, she felt her hand grasped by some one, and looked up to meet Malverton Grosvenor. Do not be alarmed," he said, " nothing will happen your brother pressing closely after Taggart, heard the words and turned to view motion, and met Taggart's glance; instantly his manner changed from the tender, compassionating attitude with which he had bent to Ellen, to a harsh, stern air.

How much has your treachery availed you?" he said to Taggart.
"Those whom you sought to ruin are saved.

smile. For the first time since Ellen time to be found in the gay capital, knew him he seemed to let his face wear its natural expression--an expression which betrayed the bad passions in his nature — which appallingly of baffled malice told rage. He muttered something that evinced his bitter disappointment, but then, as if doubting Malverton's tement, he turned aside again to follow Howard. The strange official confronted im, and divining by his dress that he was no member of the club, ordered him without the apartment. When he reached the door, to which a gendarme in obedience to an order escorted him, he turned to look of undisguised rage at Ellen Courtney and her companion; but the glance was unheeded, for the two latter were hastening to the stand. Howard Courtney had reached the wounded man, and almost rudely pushing Vinnette aside, supported Bronson's head himself. Too excited to evince much surprise at his sister's appearance, he looked up as she reached him, saying quickly:

"We must take him to your rooms Ellen; there is no other place to bear him for the present."

The young men immediately prepared to convey him, and Ellen, turning to Anne Flanagan, who also made one of the surrounding group, ccompanied the latter to prepare a bed for the wounded man's recep-

Vinnette walked at the head of the motley procession. She had not once relinquished her hold of Bronson's hand, though even before he had lost consciousness he had not seemed to recognize her. They placed him tenderly on Ellen's bed, and made way for the physician who had been hastily summoned. Then, for the first time, Ellen Courtney was afforded an opportunity of closely beholding every member of the society. They were gathered in her own private parlor, waiting in solemn silence the physician's verdict. There were more than the four whom she had been told on her first arrival composed the association-more than a score, and men of every age; from beardless youths, like Howard's self, to those having beard and hair gray alike.

The grim police maintained guard without, and the high official, with Howard, Malverton, and Vinnette, whose piteous entreaties to remain with young Bronson were at length granted, were in the sickroom. Ellen and Anne Flanagan waited just without the door for Howard's coming. He came at last, accompanied by Malverton and the strange official. The latter said to Ellen: "You had better go within, Miss Courtney-that poor young creature will want comforting. The wounded man cannot live till morning."

He turned with Howard to mingle with the group of waiting members. Poor Bronson lay so white and still that both mistress and maid on their entrance thought him dead; but the physician standing above him, watch in hand, made a motion to Miss Flanagan for that lady to suppress the exclamation he divined was about to burst from her lips. Vinnette knelt beside him, never turning her eyes from his face, and so motionless that her very breathing seemed as faint as was that of the still form on the bed. Ellen sought by quiet endearments to draw her cient to make the gendarmes who had away—at least to rouse her from that apathy of grief, but she was impervious alike to whisper remonstrances and quiet caresses, only shaking her his assistance; and this all-powerful head and pointing to the white face beneath.

The group without was evidently sounds of their steps Anne Flanagan — Malverton Grosvenor. The latter accompanied the strange official at every turn, and the sickroom—but neither Howard seemed to prompt the issue of such nor Malverton returned till Bronson orders as effected in clearing the had opened his eyes and muttered some incoherent sentence. The sound of his voice produced some strange emotion in Vinnette; stand and was bending over the she rose suddenly from her knees, lifted his head in her arms, and lookened women in the doorway. Then ing into his unnaturally bright eyes, Ellen saw Howard, for whom her said in a voice, so low and musical and fraught with tenderness, that even the physician appeared to be

"Louie, speak to Vinnette; one word, to say you no angry because

But the wild eyes had not even recognition in their depths, and the fevered head turned impatiently from her grasp. Mon Dien." she said, in the same low, sweet tones, placing his head on the pillow, and clasping her hands with all the energy of a desperate woe, "he no know—no speak! Tell latter was forced to fall back to Anne me" turning suddenly to the physician - "if he die to-night?" What does it mean?" said the eyes were as dry and bright as the flushed from excitement, but medical man could not turn from the desperation in those eyes, could not refuse to answer the broken-hearted pleading in her face. He replied softly in French: 'I fear so. There is little hope for him now.' The flush died out of her cheeks, and she was silent for a moment, as if trying to subdue some violent emo-Then she asked if he would die without recovering his senses Howard, still showing his white teeth, and on hearing that it was very probable he would have a lucid interval, the speaker. Malverton saw the though the latter might be brief, she hiding myself in dark places in the put her hand into one of Ellen's, whispering: Catholic like us — and if you pray he | Thinking that it might serve somemight want priest."

following her example. Vinnette would have the prayer repeated aloud saying, when Ellen's maidenly bash fulness naturally shrank from such a proposition :

Perhaps Louie hear it, and den he get senses. The young girl by an effort controlled her repugnance, and began one of the prayers for the dying

she had learned when her brother had been so dangerously Malverton, the only Protestant in the room, bowed his head as a token respect, but Howard remained standing. His sister did not perceive the wanton disrespect, till her prayer was nearly finished, and then, ah! keener than the agony which was breaking Vinnette's heart, was that which thrilled Ellen's soul. Her prayer involuntarily turned into an impromptu petition apparently for the dying man, but in reality for her apostate brother. So earnest, so thrilling, did it become, so full of the woe which was in the speaker's own heart, so convincing in its simple yet strong terms of the utter nothing. ness of everything which did not contribute to the welfare of the soul, that Anne Flanagan was sobbing when they rose from their knees and even Malverton had turned his head aside as if to conceal some emotion, but Howard was apparently unmoved. The lucid interval which the physi cian had predicted came to Bronson. He became conscious of everything even that it was Vinnette's hand which was wiping the damp perspiration from his forehead. He it in his feeble clasp, and turning his burning gaze upon her, muttered

Poor child !" for woman's weak, weak Alas, heart! which, not alone will do and suffer much for so little return, but which with one single word of tenderness is won to self-censure for the mental accusation it may at any time have made against loved object. It was so with the well-nigh started. poor French girl; she bitterly rehad shed during her attendance upon face and hair.

Poor child !" he muttered again, striving to reach her face that he might wipe the tears away; child, to think so much of a foolish

But it was not of her own repulsed affection that Vinnette was thinking now. Feeling that his end was very near, she was thinking about the last rites of the Church which, as a dying man, it was requisite for him to have and, bending over him, she said with inimitable tenderness of voice You

Louie, you are dying! must have a priest.' Bronson raised his head; but the pain which the effort cost him frightfully distorted his countenance.

"Priest!" he said, in a voice that sounded weird and hollow—"a priest to me? I, who have scorned all the teachings of my faith-who have Bronson was no more. defiled even the counsels learned at my mother's knee; who talks of priest to me? And now-now when it is all over-when the years with gone-when I cannot recall even a speech which may have done harm to others-when I can undo nothing when I have not even longer time to live, that I might try to make atonement!"

He had essayed to gesticulate, but his hands dropped feebly upon the bed, and so he only continued to make his hollow voice sound with such pathos and fervor that it thrilled ante of his splendid eyes flashed as they had innette-Vinnette who hung tearfully above him with clasped hands and agonizing gaze—as if only at that moment comprehending all the devotion which the girl bore him, all her hopeless, unpaid affection of years. His voice sank to a tremuous, tender tone-tender as her own had been, and equally beseeching: "Vinnette, get for me one week of life-your great love may do it for You have faith in prayers—the faith I lost so long since—use that faith for me now. Pray that I may get one week, one day to make reparation. But no! it is too late, too late!" he shrieked the last words, looking wildly around him. She caught his trembling, wandering hands, and by the thrilling earnestness of her look forced him to turn his gaze upon her. She had evidently forgotten the presence of other hearers — was oblivious to everything but that he to whom she had given her love unsought was listening to her and looking at her. She spoke in French, every one in the room, save Anne Flanagan, understanding the import of her words:

knows how dearly. I have watched for you only God knows how well. When, perhaps, no one in the club dreamed of danger to it, I knew; because in the very houses where I went to sell my work I heard them say strange things about it - heard them describe the treason it fostered to the government. I watched closely for your sake-came here nights when no one knew that I came, passage-way outside the room where you all met, to hear what I could of "Pray for him den, Mam'selle, dat he have senses to die good. He but enough to confirm my fears." time in some way to have a key for Ellen knelt, the French girl, Anne that,"—she pointed to the door which and took the impression. A key was made, and I have carried it with but never used it till tonight. Where I went this morning, people talked of this club, and how its members stood in danger; but I did not think the danger so near till this evening, when so many people came here. I watched them from my dark corner, and I saw one face that told me all the company were not friends to the club—for that face belonged to a Looking up and seeing M He man who is high in authority. was in civilian dress, but I knew him, for I had seen him in people's houses where I went to sell my work I grew faint—too faint to leave my corner without falling; and after a while more men came — men in officer's dress. Then I knew the worst was going to happen. I rushed here to Miss Courtney and told her then I opened the door with the key that I had caused to be made and reached you in time to be with you when you fell. But now, Louie last request, and have a priest." The very name seemed to make im furious. With a last effort of his dying strength he wrenched his hands from her grasp, crying :

speaking with less rapidity, "all is over—you are dying fast—grant my

'Don't speak of priest to me again I, who have abjured my faith-what could I do now at this last moment ? placing his hands in hers, voluntarily he lowered his husky voice, and continued in that affectingly beseeching tone which he had used before: Vinnette, I would give all the talent possess, all the learning, and whatever fame I may have gained, for one week, one little week to make my peace with Heaven. They praised me for my splendid mind—what does it avail me now? I am going down to eternal misery, for I tell you I am lost !

He was writhing in a lent paroxysm: Vinnette's strength availed nothing to keep him down, and even from the physician's and Howard Courtney's united clasp he well-nigh started. He was shrieking poor French girl; she bitterly re-proached herself for every doubt she said waited for him, and shrinking had ever entertained of Bronson's appalled from the angry face of God, and tears, the first she which he insisted he saw; then a one instant begging for a moment of the sick man, dropped fast on his life, the next he was piteously re counting some one of the lessons of piety which he had learned when a child from his mother's lips. Vinette's tears rained on his face and In vain each in turn besought hair. her to retire ; she was deaf to every entreaty, replying in a broken voice He will not last long now-and when he goes Vinnette will go." They had scarcely the heart to urge her further. The sudden accession of strength to the dying man spent itself, and white and unconscious he slipped from their arms to the pillow again. Everything became deathly quiet; all were waiting for the last moment, physician having made a sign that it was fast approaching. was a slight heaving of the breast, a kitchen. Presently she glanced quiver of the lips, a sudden change the countenance, and Louie

Vinnette sank on her knees with a low, moaning cry. She took his head upon her breast, and bent to his lips as if watching for another breath every one of their evil works have but the rigid manner in which his mouth had fallen, with the ghastly pallor that overspread his face, left no hope.

It is all over !" she wailed, " and no last word for Vinnette!" TO BE CONTINUED

THE UMBRELLA MAN

Miss White sighed again and again been wont to flash when numbers hung upon his words. He turned to must be confessed that she was in a bad humor. When she agreed to leave her home in Kentucky and go - to keep house for her priest brother, she had not realized how lonely she would be in the big, strange city; how much she would miss her flowers, her old one-horse carriage, and the friendship of her lifelong neighbors; it had occurred to her as possible that the with whom her brother had borne for years would one day take a sudden departure, muttering her manifold grievances, and walking after an uncertain fashion which would have aroused not unfounded suspicions in a breast less guileless than was Miss White's. All these were weighing on her spirits things -and her temper—as she dusted the room, and afterward stood at a window, drumming fretfully on the sill, and feeling very sorry for herself.

Presently she raised the window and looked listlessly into the street. What she saw there was not enlivening. It was a chilly April afternoon. wind was high, and for hours a fine rain had been falling. The shabby houses opposite looked shabbier than usual—neither bright "Louie, I have loved you only God ened by the kindly sunlight nor hal-The lowed by the more kindly dusk. people who passed, walking swiftly, with their umbrellas held at an angle against the wind, seemed to be uncomfortable, and some looked cross as well. A thin, worn young woman hurried by, dragging a whining child by the hand. Two toil-stained men, who argued angrily, were close behind her, and a little girl, and a fat, slatternly negress. A feeble old woman muttering querulously to herself, was rudely jostled by one errand boy and laughed at by another. Afterward, for a long minute, no one passed, and in the unwonted stillness Miss White heard Those whom you sought to ruin resaved."

Ellen kneit, the French girl, Anne gave ingress to the assembly room—Roman Catholic, and one of those the English serving man ceased to few good professional men at that Miss Courtney, put wax on the lock smiled involuntarily, and leaned fordistinctly a low but merry voice ward to see who was coming.

The singer proved to be a man, fifty-five or sixty years of age, miserbushy white eyebrows and a round was tucked a loosely tied, conglomerate bundle of umbrella handles and sticks and ribs; and he carried an umbrella so worn that it afforded

Looking up and seeing Miss White's interested face, the man cut short his song; and, going close to window, asked coaxingly with smile as joyous as his music had been

'Haven't you an umbrella in need of repair-one that wants a bit of attention inside or out ?"

Perhaps it was because she was onely that Miss White found the smiling old face singularly attractive; and it was with real regret she was about to say that she had no broken umbrella when she remembered that a few days before her brother had discarded an automatic one, plaining that it had the unpardon able habit of collapsing unexpected-

'Yes, there is one !" she exclaimed. My brother thinks it worthless, but perhaps you can do something with Miss White opened the door-the back door and led the man into the kitchen. A moment afterward she was sighing ruefully over the big footprints his muddy shoes had made on the floor, laboriously mopped but an hour earlier; and when she could not find the broken umbrella, she began to be sorry for having brought man into the house. Through closets and cupboards she search upstairs and downstairs, finding it at last behind the door of her brother's study. Hastening back to the kitchen, she surprised the man standing at the window, looking across the soaked grass at the church. He was singing again, very softly. Words and air sounded familiar; she Words thought they were part of an old hymn to our Blessed Mother-or they from a popular song were This last seemed the more probable. 'Can you do anything with this?'

she asked, after having explained what the trouble was. The man laughed, his eyes twinkling with merriment. "I can mend it, but probably it will break again. They are no good, those patent umbrellas, except to make fun for the people behind-and that's not a bad use in a gloomy world.

"Well do the best you can with it," Miss White told him-not that she had much faith in the result, but because she was glad to give him work. His clothes looked as if he needed it.

Being one of those people who are persuaded that to be wretched is to steal, Miss White did not leave him again, even for a moment, but, tired as she was, busied herself about the across the room to the corner in which he was at work, and saw that again he was laughing to himself. Her feeling of ill-humor dissipated for a few minutes, had returned with new intensity, and she envied him his light-heartedness. Other lives were happy, she thought: must hers always be dull and wearisome and hard ? Why are you laughing?" she asked, after having watched him curiously for a few minutes.

"Was I laughing?" he said. "It must have been because I have been thinking how good my supper will taste.

Miss White was puzzled. 'You mean—surely you can't mean that you are very, very hungry!" she exclaimed incredulously.

"Yes, pretty hungry. You see, I had a little supper last night, but haven't had breakfast today; so something to eat will taste good You know how it is when you don't eat quite regularly."
"But is this the first work you have had today ?" "No, no! I made a quarter this morning. Instantly Miss White was suspicious. He had wasted those 25 on drink. The more she cents thought about it the more certain she became. No doubt he was half drunk that minute. What did you do with the money you made this morning?" she sudden-ly asked, determined to make him confess his weakness that she might give him the lecture he deserved. The man laughed again, a little shamefaced.

"Why, I happened to-that is there was a child—a ragged little mite of a girl—who had lost the change her mother had given her to buy meat. I chanced to see her and to ask what the matter was-she was crying as if her little heart would Of course she would have been punished, and it was exactly quarter she had lost. I thought I could earn another in a few minutes. But I didn't. I was fooled, you see. It's wonderful how well made most umbrellas are in these degenerate times!" And he laughed again with keen enjoyment. Smiling still, he worked for a few minutes longer, and she watched him, wondering whether he had told the truth. He finished; and, having quickly opened and closed the umbrella two or three times as proof that it was in good condition, he rose stiffly and reached for his hat. But Miss White would not allow him to

"No, no!" she said, yielding to a generous impulse which she had been trying hard to stifle. "No! You must have something to eat.

And, in a flutter of good-will, she got cold meat, fruit, bread and butter sufficient for a dozen hungry men and set them all before him; then, sitting on the opposite side of the table, she plied him with questions

Her curiosity, never long latent, was thoroughly aroused. Who was he, this ragged man, apparently fairly well educated, wretchedly poor, hungry, but so happy that joy overflowed his heart and sang on his lips and beamed in his eyes? What was his secret? "Why, you are wet?" she said, observing that his threadbare coat was soaked. 'Yes; but I should be the last man in the world to complain of that.

Rainy weather is good for my trade or it's supposed to be.' His eyes twinkled merrily as he spoke. He was eating ravenously, but sparingly, of the bread and butter Miss White was still looking at his vet sleeve.

"I hate to be damp. And it's chilly today," she said, talking to herself rather than to him. After a pause she asked: Are you married ?"

"My wife is dead. She died long His smile did fade then, but only for a moment. An instant afterward he looked at her, his eyes bright through their unshed tears, and added tranquilly: "It is better so. She had a hard, hard life; and, as it is, she's been in heaven for have that to be thankful for every hour of the day.'

"And you have no children!" Miss White could hardly have explained why she took for granted that it was Very quickly he contradicted her. Yes, I have three—the finest children! I wasn't able to give them a start in life; but they are well off now, every one of them. The finest children!" He laughed once more, as if he could not but be merry in so happy a world.

'How can you do it ?" Miss White asked, almost irritably. "Do what, Miss?"
"Laugh like that. Everything is

-do you feel like it ? "Feel like laughing?" He laughed again, much amused. "It's all I can do to keep my face straight even in church—and atfunerals. Sometimes I can't-I really can't—when they ing the Gloria, for instance. know how you feel then. How can man help laughing when he thinks about heaven, and how near it isjust around the corner, so to say !"

Miss White asked no more ques but watched him curiously tions, thoughtfully, and a little suspiciously When he was done he said that his dinner had been more than sufficient pay for his work; but she would not have it so. She gave him half a dollar; and when he was gone, stood at the window and looked after him as, struggling against wind and rain he limped down the street, singing softly to himself.

A few minutes later Father White came home, and at once she showed him the mended umbrella. "Fifty cents wasted!" he said teasingly.

But, not heeding, Miss White hurried to tell about the man who had repaired it. She described his appearance; she reported all he had said, and marvelled anew over his laughter and the song ever on his lips.

"What do you think, Father John?"
"Is he she asked, in conclusion. "Is he a fool or crazy or—or only—" Father White shrugged shoulders. "A fool or only—a saint?" he sug-

His sister stared at him amazed. after a moment's thought, laughed lightly. "You can be so silly sometimes, Father John!" she said, with the air of a wise elder sister. Father White laughed, too. He was not greatly interested in the 'Well we'll say he is a fool, if you prefer. Peace at any price! Besides, you saw the fellow: I did not." Before Miss White had time to say more the bell rang and he went to answer it. He came back almost in stantly, grave and in a hurry. dent, and the man is asking for a priest!" In a moment he was gone, but Miss White questioned the messenger to learn the awful details-a boy taciturn or dull, and she gathered little

"A beggar, I guess," he reported carelessly. "Looked like one, any-way. He's just about cut to pieces may be dead by this time.

With this Miss White had to con tent herself until her brother's return. From her station at the window she saw him coming at last. walking slowly and looking serious and abstracted. 'Was it really very bad?" she asked, the moment he entered the "The boy who came for you house. said that the—' "The man is dead!" Father White interrupted. He dropped his hat on the nearest chair, sank into one beside it, and said not another word for some minutes. She knew that would explain in time, and waited with what patience she could com "It was your umbrella man Father White said, at length. He did not seem to see that his sister threw up her hands in horror, or to hear the breathless questions before he continued "It appears that some boys followed him, hooting at him. He turned, is terrible to think that you are really laughing, to speak to them, and did not see an automobile which was she asked. It was quite a minute

Phone Main 6249. After Hours: Hillcrest 3313 Society of St. Vincent de Paul Bureau of Information

Special Attention Cast off Clother Given to Employment Always in Demand 25 Shuter St.

TORONTO Office Hours 9 to 4

AUTOMOBILES, LIVERY, GARAGE R. HUESTON & SONS ivery and Garage. Open Day and Night to 483 Richmond St. 580 Wellington Phone 423 Phone 44

FINANCIAL

THE ONTARIO LOAN & DEBENTURE CO'Y Capital Paid Up. $1,750,000. Reserve $1,450,000 Deposits received, Debentures Issued, Keal Espate Loans made. John McClary, Pres. A M. Smart, Mgr. Offices: Dundas St., Cornel Market Lane, London

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

FOY, KNOX & MONAHAN BARRISTERS, SOLICITORS, NOTARIES, Bto n. J. J. Foy, K.C., A.E.Knox, T. Louis Monaham E. L. Middleton George Keough Cable Address: "Foy"

Telephones (Main 794 Main 798 CORNER BAY AND RICHMOND STREETS TORONTO

H. L. O'ROURKE, B.A. (Also of Ontario Bar)
BARRISTER, SOLICITOR, NOTARY Money to Loan
Suite 5, Board of Trade Building
231 Eighth Avenue West
CALGARY, ALBERT

TOHN T. LOFTUS Barrister, Solicitor, Notary, Etc. 712 TEMPLE BUILDING

TORONTO one Main 632

REILLY, LUNNEY & LANNAN Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries
Money to Loan
Clifford B. Reilly, B.A., LL.B.,
Harry W. Lunney, B.A., B.C.L.
Alphonsus Lannan, LL.B.

Burns Block, Phone M .8429 CALGARY, ALBERTA. P. O. Drawer 1809

DENTISTS DR. BRUCE E. EAID Room 5, Dominion Bank Chambers Richmond and Dundas Sts. Phone 5668

St. Jerome's College Founded 1864 KITCHENER, ONT.

Excellent Business College Department. Excellent High School or Academic Department Excellent College and Philosophical Department Address: REV. A. L. ZINGER, C.R., Ph.D., PRESIDENT

Hotel St. Charles Atlantic City, N. J.

situated directly on the ocean front, with a superb view of beach and board walk, the St. Charles occupies an unique position among resort hotels. It has an enviable reputation for cuisine and unobtrusive service. Twelve stories of solid comfort; ocean porch and sun parlors; orchestra of soloists. Week-end Booklet and rates up NEWLIN HAINES CO.

funeral Directors

John Ferguson & Sons 180 KING ST. eading Undertakers & Emba Open Night and Day

Telephone - House 373 Factory 548

E. C. Killingsworth FUNERAL DIRECTOR Open Day and Night 583 Richmond St. Phone 3971

McShane Bell Foundry Co. BELLS Memorials a Specialty then we-the doctor and I-tried to

The man prayed until the end came. His face was radiant. We It calls upon man, woman and child loosened his clothing, Dr. Forbes and and he-he was not a fool, Mary, but a saint—a hidden saint! We loosened his clothing, and we found -a hair-shirt. And his face at the last-I shall never forget it as long as I live !"-Florence Gilmore, in the Ave Maria.

EX-GOVERNOR GLYNN

ADDRESSES GREAT CATHOLIC PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION

Following is part of the text of the peech on "Catholic Patriotism," speech on "Catholic Patriotism," delivered at the Patriotic Catholic Demonstration at Washington, Cardinal Gibbons presiding, on Memorial Day, by Former Governor Martin H.

'The patriotism of the Catholics of the United States is a self-evident proposition. It needs no demonstra-tion; no substantiating evidence, no mathematical proof. It is written on every page of this country's history man's hand can take it out. Atlantic with Columbus and with shops, in the marts and on the farm where ever more and on the farm Balboa it looks upon the Pacific from the peak of Darien. With Leaf Ericson it skirts the shores of Vineland and with Sebastian Cabot sees the snows of Labrador. With De Soto and Marquette it discovers the Mississippi; with Champlain it finds the lake that bears his name! with Cartier it sails the picturesque St. Lawrence; and with Ponce De Leon it seeks the fountain of everlasting With its early missionaries it blazes the trails of our primeval forests the Cross of Christ in one hand and the banner of civilization in the other. With Verendye it first scales the Rocky Mountains, with Menendez it founds St. Augustine, and with Onate starts old Santa Fe upon its way. It draws the first map of the great lakes and writes the first description of Niagara Falls. With Father Mare it finds out mines of torquoise and with Father Hennepin locates our mines of coal; with a Franciscan it finds the salt springs of Onondaga, and with the Jesuits discovers the oil wells of Lake Erie, the copper of Lake Superior and the lead of Illinois.

And as it was in the beginning so it is now and ever will be.

'God and Country' was the pillar of cloud by day, the pillar of fire by night of the early Catholics of this country : and 'God and Country, Saith and Flag' is the precept and the law of the Catholics of to day.

The patriotism of the Catholics of this country began in 1492, and it will last

" 'Whilst the earth bears a plant And the sea rolls a wave.'

"This, my friends, is a fitting place; this a fitting day for this cele bration.

" Here before us stands the monu ment of the people of the nation to Christopher Columbus. Near here, told a form of government where just a few miles away in Maryland whom no man risked more to make and manhood wear the crown; a this country free. Just below here land where the oppressed of the peake bears the flowers around his grave out to the meeting of the seas, where the winds sing his requiem among the trees ballot is mightier than the bullet, around his tomb, where the rain where lips and hands are unfettered, weeps tears of joy for his glory and his fame and the sun weaves a golden destiny, where labor wears a royal crown above his head sleeps George | coat of arms, where men reap wrote a letter of thanks to the Cathhood of nations, for the sacrifices they made in giving this flag its red stripes and white bars and blue field of stars.

And to this heritage of patriotism we Catholics are true.

We believe that we can live for no better purpose, we can die for no better purpose 'than the ashes of our fathers and the altars of our God.' We believe that if we sink to rest in the calm of peace or the hurricane of war with our country's wishes blest by fairy hands our knell is wrung by forms unseen our dirge is sung.' believe that this country has been a haven of liberty, a bulwark of protection, a treasury of opportunity to our fathers and to us, and, believing that such it will continue to be to our children and our children's children, we repeat as religiously as we repeat our prayers the patriotic sentiment of these poetic lines :

" 'Great God, we thank Thee for this home.

This beauteous birthland of the free, Where strangers from afar may

And breathe the air of liberty. Long may her flowers untrampled spring, Her harvests wave, her cities rise And yet till time shall fold her wing Remain earth's loveliest paradise.'

these tenets we assert that we be-lieve that the Declaration of Independence is the greatest political dled? In England, where the a smaller scale. What a far cry from exposition of a freedman's rights ever clamping down of the law is necest the glorious era of Gregory, Athan penned by the hand of man, that the sary, there is no one to do the clamp-Constitution of these United States ing. The bishop who attempted it irrepressible champions of dogmatic is the most luminous chart by which would find himself deserted by half truth and disciplinary integrity!

coming fast—too fast. He was a nation ever steered a ship of state, horribly crushed, but conscious to that the Star-Spangled Banner, with I heard his confession; all that it symbolizes and all that it actualizes, is the most glorious flag

Again a long pause. When he did go on Father John's voice was very so on Father John's voice was very as well as ideal, industrial as ideal, ind militaristic, physical as well as vocal. alike. It finds illustration in a boy digging potatoes in a New England garden in Civil War times. asked by a stranger what his family was doing for the country's cause the boy replied, 'Well, father is fighting and I am digging and mother is praying.

'Fighting, digging and praying'that is the stuff real patriotism is And 'fighting, digging and praying' is the stuff-Catholic patriotism is made of. Measured by this standard we the industries of peace. We have played the part of the soldier when the War drum throbbed throughout the land and we have played the builder's part when peace smiled upon the avocations of men. We have given our labor to make this country and our blood to save this country. We have cherished the Star-Spangled Banner in our hearts and defended it with our hands. In the piping-times of peace we have toiled in the ditches, in the that civilization may grow and happiness increase. In the woeful day of war we have stood where shot and shell rained thickest and death stalked without a

In peace-time and in war-time we Catholics have furnished this country our quota of the men and the women who stand out on the pages of the nation's history like towering mountains on the plain. In peace-time and in war-time we Catholics have furnished our share of the men and the women who though they may set no rivers on fire still make the wheel of life go round: we have furnished our share of the men and tion in their brains, do their plain duty each day and for it claim no praise; our share of the toiling, struggling, law-abiding men and women who make up the stamina and strength, the backbone and the lifeblood of a republic like this; we have furnished our share of the industrious men and the righteous women who belong to the Grand Army of the Cal changes, especially the estab-Unknown, the Unhonored and the lishment of the Western Empire Unsung, but without whom there will be no song in life, no honor in the world. And to-day, on Memorial Day, Rosemary Day, we Catholics claim our share in the notable contributions to the democracy of the world.

"To-day, we stand within the shadow of the statue of Christopher Columbus, who four hundred and twenty-five vears ago, with a mantle of Catholicity on his shoulders and the Cross of Catholicity in his hands. fell on his knees and chanted a Te Deum for the discovery of this land. "That Te Deum of Christopher Columbus inaugurated a new chapter the voice of the people is the voice over yonder, stands the home of of God. That Te Deum heralded a Charles Carroll of Carrollton than land where kings would pass away at Mount Vernon, where the Chesa- world would find liberty and peace fragrance. of the and prosperity under the flag of Washington who, when the smoke they sow, where the weak find proand dust of battle had cleared away tection and the strong bow to a rule and the Revolutionary War was won, of law. That Te Deum gave an impetus to human liberty, religious olics of the United States for the freedom and individual rights which service they rendered in winning rewrote the law books of the world this country her place in the sister. hurled autocracy in the abyss of decay and placed justice on the throne once occupied by kingly whims .-The Times Union, Albany, N. Y.

A HOPELESS MUDDLE

The Protestant element of Anglicanism is coming to the conviction that it is high time to dam absolutely the stream that is carrying numbers of the High Churchmen Romeward. It is now suggested to lay down the law prohibiting "plainly and firmly" everything Romish from Blessed Sacrament" to the observ-The Anglican article submitting this proposal and the monarch of Russia." This is the American Churchman approves of it, making the distinction, howhere. in another Anglican journal, the Living Church, which includes among the things that a bishop might report but does not, the repeated requests made to him for a 'resident priest' who must be "able young, a good mixer, a powerful preacher, single if possible, and personally attractive, holding no church views that might conflict with any And from these sentiments and of those held by any of his congrega-

Is anything more hopelessly mud-

his clergy and people and attacked in a volume by a churchman who, if inferior in dignity, is intellectually far ahead of him. In America the Romeward tendency is not alarming because the clergyman who wants to earn a livelihood must take his religious views from the monied pews of his church. And there is not much soundness in theology that stands approved under the seal of big business.

Their tardier brethren charge the Rome-bound churchmen with dis-loyalty and shortsightedness. Of course, there is nothing smacking of disloyalty in tempting the creed professed at ordination to meet the fancies of the first charge or of shortsightedness in weighing a salary against eternity. For centuries Protestantism has been extol-ling the courage of its founders for supposedly standing by their convic "Measured by this standard we have won our spurs on the field of battle and written our name large on reformers in the ranks of Protestantism today.-New World.

GENERAL INTENTION FOR JULY

RECOMMENDED AND BLESSED BY HIS HOLINESS POPE BENEDICT XV.

THE ORIENTAL CHURCHES

The Orient is a land which should be dear to the Heart of God; for it was there He spent His earthly career, there He wrought the redemption of the human race, there He established the Church which to continue His work in the world till the end of time. When we recall the early history of the Church the very mention of the Orient holds our imagination by the prestige of the souvenirs it revives. It was in the Orient that Christianity gathered in its first conquests and gloried in its first martyrs. The Orient was particularly fruitful in great Churchmen, men who were devoted to the Church of Rome, who acknowledged the supremacy of the women who with reverence in their heart, iron in their blood, and inspiration of duty and honor to look to Rome for direction. Led by great Bishops whose names are still honored the Church of Rome, the Church in the Orient proclaimed that Rome was the center and the source of all spiritual authority.

Unhappily this state of affairs did not continue. The first great break in Roman continuity followed politiunder Charlemagne. Once the breach was made, the activity of heresiarchs and schismatical leaders began to be felt, and like their forbear Lucifer. those leaders drew millions after them. The authority of Rome was ignored and minor churches began to look to their own Eastern Patriarchates for direction. condition of things has continued more or less ever since; in this twentieth century there are over a hundred million souls in the Orient living in heresy or schism. Many of the sects into which those millions are divided retain nearly all our dogmas, but they scout the idea of one central, world-wide spiritual authority, and are satisfied with their local Patriarchs and Synods, who decide for them what they should believe and what they should reject. Asia Minor, Syria, Armenia, and Mesopotamia contain the greater number of that vast multitude of who are estranged from Rome.

In the thirteenth century the succeeded in bringing back to the Catholic Church the schismatic Greeks, whose representatives formally renewed the link with Rome and accepted the authority of the But political expediency and the old spirit of pride and independence was too deeply rooted to ensure permanent submission. The separation of the Greeks from unity again took place, and misunderstandings. controversies, political jealousies, as the Latin Catholics, have kept up the separation ever since.

The schismatic nation which is now so prominently before the public owing to the present War, is Russia with its one hundred and eighty millions. The Russian Greeks broke away from Constantinople, and set up a Patriarch of their own at Mosbut in 1721 Peter the Great abolished the patriarchal authority and in its stead set up what is known "the extra liturgical cultus of the as the Holy Synod whose members on assuming office are obliged to ance of the feast days of the Blessed take the following oath: "I confess Church and affirm that the sovereign judge Quarterly Review published the of this Synod is our clement lord church in that vast empire, a state ever, that the Romeward trend is ridden church dependent on the will more pronounced in England than of earthly princes, the last of whom Why this is we discover has himself been deposed within authority to ensure unity of faith and discipline has had the usual results. Sects have been multiplying so rapidly that neither the Czar nor his Holy Synod have been able to stor them. Mgr. Mislin tells us that in one Russian diocese alone, Rostoff, there were in the nineteenth century no less than two hundred sects. similar state of affairs exists elsewhere in the Orient, only possibly on Various attempts have been made guage over two thirds of the two in recent years to heal the breach and bring the Eastern Churches back to the bosom of unity. Leo XIII., in three admirable letters, invited the Orientals to forget the past and return to the Catholic Fold; he encouraged them by assuring them that no great differences exist between their faith and ours, and that he would provide for the retention of all their customs and rites. Again Pius X, repeated the invitation and declared that their time-honored rites and customs would be preserved. These invitations, made in the gentlest way and by the kindest of Pontiffs, were not accepted, and the Oriental schisms and heresies are still rampant among Greeks, Russians, Copts, Nestorians, Abyssinians, Jacobites, Malabars, and Armenians. These peoples have their independent rites and national churches, over whom Governing Synods have here and there replaced the ancient Patriarchates. To make matters tists have investigated spiritism and worse, many of them are civilly under the heel of the Moslem ruler, and they will probably continue to grope in error and spiritual darkness until Providence sees fit to inspire them with the desire to return to the one true Fold.

A great obstacle to a return to unity of the Churches of the Orient is, first, the interference and influence of lay Synods in the government and administrative councils of the various rites. To this must be added the lack of Christian instruction among the flocks and of discipline among the shepherds. There is, besides, nothing to arouse religious fervor or enthusiasm in the way of retreats and missions, no frequent Communion to feed starving souls. none of those providential devotions, such as we have in the Western Church, to elevate souls and urge them to work for their spiritual per fection. Hence there exist through out the Christian communities of the Orient only universal languor and spiritual sterility. Perhaps the greatest obstacle of all to unity with Rome are the prejudices, national as well as religious, prejudices centuries old, which do not cease to represent the Roman Pontiff as a real antichrist, with whom it would be treason to have anything to do. These prejudices are widespread, being fostered by writers who publish books and newspapers filled with calumnies and abuse of Rome and everything

However, amid this sad state of affairs there is still a glimmer of hope; there are in the Orient a number of Churches thoroughly Catholic in their dogmas and in their submission to the Sovereign Pontiff. The various schismatic bodies have corresponding bodies which, while preserving their own Oriental rites are still in communion with the center of Christian unity. These are called "Uniates" and are known Byzantine Uniates, Chaldees, Uniate Armenians, Uniate Copts, Abyssinian Uniates, Catholic Syrian Church, Uniate Malabar Church, and Maronites, the last-named being completely Roman in faith since the twelfth century. There is hope that the turmoil the East is in, owing to There is hope that the present War, may break through national prejudice and conservatism, and turn Oriental eyes and hearts in the direction of Rome. Writers who are familiar with the East tell us that if the heads of any of the bodies of schismatics could be persuaded to accept reunion with Rome, the rank and sounds, abnormal writings, drawand file would make no difficulty. unless there be other parties strong enough to convince them that the heads had deserted the nation." Let us hope that the freedom of worship that appears to be dawning in Second Council of Lyons, and in the fifteenth the Council of Florence, lands watered by the Mediterranean.

Meanwhile we are invited to carry out the wishes of the Holy Father and direct our prayers to God for the return to the one Fold and under many millions of souls who, because they inherited schism from their forefathers, cannot be held formally guilty of their error; who are more to be pitied than blamed. Benedict XV. ardently desires to bring back all these Eastern Churches to unity, well as excessive zeal on the part of and has published within recent months a prayer for this purpose. His Holiness wishes to multiply Catholic communities of the Greek tive Uniate rite and to develop those already existing. He does not blame the Orientals for their attachment to their particular rites, their liturgical customs or their language, but his ardent desire is to dispel their ignorance and prejudices as a preliminary greater conquests. We can help him by our prayers.

E. J. DEVINE, S. J.

THE SPANISH MISSIONS

A TRIBUTE FROM A WESTERN UNI-VERSITY PROFESSOR

Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, Professor of American History in the University of California, lately gave the annual Faculty Research Lecture there, his subject being the relation of the Missions (of which California contains so many monuments) to the general colonial policy of Spain. He said in part, as reported in The Tidings, of Los Angeles.

" One of the marvels in the history of the modern world is the way in which that little Iberian nation, a mere matter of convergence. Spain, when most of her blood and treasure were absorbed in European wars, with a handful of men took possession of the Caribbean Archi-

PERILS LURK IN SPIRITISM

CHURCH DISAPPROVES OF SPIRITISTIC PRACTICES

Spiritism, or spiritualism, as it is ommonly called, is regarded by the average man who knows of it only hearsay as a fraud imposed from upon the public. Most Catholics vaguely know that the Church disapproves of spiritistic practices be cause they involve communication with evil spirits. However, spiritism is continually gaining converts, for the man who once regarded it with skepticism, when confronted with spiritistic phenomena, is often over-whelmed with what seems to him to be conclusive evidence. Noted scien have arrived at the conclusion that under certain conditions independent spirit-agencies enter into com tion with those who seek this inter

With a view to sounding a warning to Christians against the dangers to their faith that lurk in spiritism, J. Godfrey Raupert, K. S. G., has written a pamphlet bearing the caption "Spiritistic Phenomena and Their Interpretation." Mr. Raupert, who has written several books on the subject, is a convert to Catholicism. having formerly been a spiritist himself.

In his pamphlet, which is designed for popular perusal, Mr. Raupert dis-cusses the established facts of spiritism, i. e., communication by the spirit world with this world through mediumship.

MANIFESTATION OF SPIRITS

"The questions which are most frequently asked by those drawn into spiritistic practises," says the author, "but not acquainted with the results of the more recent study of the subject, are: How can a spiritbeing manifest itself in such a manner as to become sensibly or objectively visible in the material world? Whence does it obtain the physical force or power by which it accomplishes the familiar results? What precisely is the modus operandi in the production of spiritistic phen-

'Prolonged investigation and servation have shown the process to be as follows: The sensitive, in order to elicit objective spirit-manifestations, passes into a state of insensibility or trance. Consciousness is partially or entirely suspended. The will is in abeyance. The mind is in an attitude of sub mission or passivity. Its thought-activity is brought to a standstill. In this state of suspense and passivthe operating spirit-agencies withdraw from the sensitive's organism a kind of semi-material substance or force, of the precise nature of which very little is known at present. A lesser amount of this delicate matter is also withdrawn from the organism of those taking part in the spirit-evocation. "By means of this 'astral' matter it becomes possible for the spirit agencies to objectivise themselves and to produce most of it, not all, the familiar phenomena. They man ipulate it in a variety of ways and for an infinite variety of ends. They use it to produce abnormal lights ings and paintings; or to fashion human faces or entire bodily forms, often very closely resembling the faces and forms of the dead. Indeed, there would seem to be few abnormal effects which cannot be produced by means of this subtle force

SPIRIT AGENCIES

Many persons who have attended spiritistic seances have been led to believe that a beloved deceased relathe staff of the One Shepherd, of tive or friend spoke through the medium, so startling was the information divulged. As Mr. Raupert points out, while such manifestations as these are obviously the work of spirit-agencies, it would be wrong to conclude that the spirit is really the person it claims to be. It is really the work of evil spirits who practice a deception on the visitor by playing the role of a deceased friend or rela

The spirits adapt their communica tions to the mental and moral state of the person invoking them but gradually they become demoralizing agencies. Says Mr. Raupert :

"It is, of course, an admitted and well-known fact, that many of the communications received from 'the other side ' are of a high and lofty character. This is especially the case at the beginning of the experiment. And where these exalted moral ideas correspond with those entertained by the experimenter or medium, the high tone of these com munications is often long main-But it is also a demonstrated fact that in practically all cases this high tone gradually and often imperceptibly undergoes a change. generally takes place when confidence in the communicating agency has been established. A suggestion has been established. A bugger is then thrown in here and there. It is then thrown in here and there. It time is ripe for locality and what, more liberal ideas of things. 'What, a mere matter of conventionality? What are marriage relations Are they not mere human contracts. often carelessly and thoughtlessly

THE BLESSING A HEALTHY BODY

Has Not Had An Hour's Sickness Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

MR. MARRIOTT 73 Lees Ave., Ottawa, Ont.,

August 9th, 1915. "I think it my duty to tell you what Fruit-a-tives" has done for me. Three years ago, I began to feel rundown and tired, and suffered very much from Liver and Kidney Trouble. Having read of "Fruit-a-tives", I thought I would try them. The result was surprising. During the 31 years past, I have taken them regularly and would not change for anything. I have not had an hour's sickness since I commenced using "Fruit-a-tives", and I know now what I haven't known for a good many years-that is, the blessing of a healthy body and clear thinking brain".

WALTER J. MARRIOTT.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Reason and common sense and instinct are appealed to, and often in such persuasive manner that the mind is confused and perplexed, and unless it be unusually stable and alert, begins to entertain and accept the ideas suggested and to with a kind of disdain upon the narrow and old-world ' ideas of the ignorant multitude."-The Guardian.

THE NEUTRALITY OF THE VATICAN

William E. Kerrish

Like most neutrals, the Vatican has come in for some very severe from various quarters censures regarding its attitude toward the nations engaged in the present world-war. Indeed, he who guides destiny of the Catholic world was, from the outset of the conflict. placed in a very delicate position. This position was made even more delicate by the entrance of Italy into the struggle. Moved by lofty ideas of his mission to mankind and stirred by the thoughts of the noble traditions of his historic office, Pope Benedict has preserved toward all the nations engaged in the fearful contest that benevolent neutrality which, while allowing him to condemn all atrocities, not "in principle but concretely," also permitted him to do much to heal the wounds and dry the tears of this tragedy of nations, of which the relief of Poland, the exchange of wounded prisoners are but two examples.

From his watchtower on the Vatican Hill, the illustrious pr of the reigning Pope, Leo XIII, was not afraid to warn the nations of the disaster which he clearly foresaw With the eye of the sage, he looked into the future of the world and saw the great battle of nations in which the intellect, the genius and the strength of the great and historic races would be prostituted to a con-test of arms surpassing in intensity and disaster all the wars of ancient

These times are now with us and by standing above the immediate issues of the conflict and holding out the hand of charity and blessing to all mankind, Pope Benedict has chosen the better part. He has Ha has understood that the terrible deeds which have been committed were not so much the deeds of the peoples as of their rulers and teachers and that, while condemning with all the weight of his moral authority these 'frightful misdeeds," he has been to the people of every land a father and friend. "Our voice is the voice of the father and friend."

Replying recently to an address by Prince Colonna, the mayor of Rome, who spoke on behalf of the Roman nobility, the Holy Father praised them for their work of charity for the sufferers of the War and added that he prayed that it would come "When reparation had to an end been made to divine justice

Those who presume to censure the Vatican regarding its actions or its attitude towards a nation or set of nations in a time like the present, or, indeed, at any time, have no full conception of its exalted mission to mankind, or the extent of its labors on behalf of those who suffer and those who die in this, the war of nations.

Christian faith brings, for the possession of the Caribbean Archipossession of the Caribbean Archipelago, and by rapid yet steady stincts implanted in us in order to be advance, lasting to the end of the davance, lasting to the end of the law of soul-affinity supersede the law of soul-aff

Our Divine Lord desires that men should return to Him "love for love" and should pay honor and worship to His Heart

STANDARD LIBRARY NEW JUVENILES

35c. Each, Postpaid 50 Copies, $15.00

TUO 25.00

Jarques Coeur. By M. Cordellier Delanoue. ('n all the dramatic and stormy scenes in French History during the 15th Century, there is no more striking figure than that of Jacques Coeur., whose wonderful career fills so large a chapter in the history of Charles VIII's reign, 1 25a pages.

Jean Bart. Firilling Tale of the Sea. By Prederick Koenig. (A story that will be raed with considerable interest, especially by boys, who ever delight in stories of heroism and exploits at sea.) Knight of Bloemendaie, The And Other Stories (Fron.* The Ave Maria.*) (A collection of tales and sketches by various hands, containing every diversity of character and style, but, all alike in their purity of tone and purpose. Small 286 pages. Menshikoff, Or The Peasant Prince, A Tale of Russia. By Paul D'Aveline, (I'his beeutiul story is one that can be placed in the hande of the young with the assurance that the moral to be drawn from it will be a great factor in properly shaping the character of the young reader.) 222 pages.

222 pages,

Moor of Granda. By Henri Guinot. A Catholic Historical Romance in which the young reader has a glimpse of the most romantic of cities, with descriptions of the waring factions, which disturbed the pe-cc of Soain, even during the reign of Ferdinand and Isabella. 274 pages,

Ghost at Our School, The, and Other Stories, By Marian J. Brunowe, Selected from "The Ave Maria," There are in all ten stories, just the kind to interest and delight our children.

to interest and delight our children,
That Scamp, Or, The Days of Decatur in Tripoli,
By John J, O'shea, Containing 12 illustrations.
A Tale of the Sea, Very interesting for boys,
Truth and Trust. By Lady G-orgiana Fullerton, Containing six short stories such as our young readers always admire,
Mabel Stanhope, By Kathleen O'Meara, A Story of French Custom, Very interesting for girls,

Rosemary, By Lady Georgiana Fullerton, A Tale of the Fire of London, A good moral Catholic

Tale,
Edith, By Lady Herbert, A Tale of the Present Day, The scene is laid in-England, telling the many trials of Edith through life, her marriage and discontent, after which she became a Sister of Charity and finally a Mother Superior,

Coaina the Rose of the Algonquins, By Anna H, Dorsey. An Indian story dealing with thrilling narratives of the early French Missions in Canada, Father Etieme's unceasing efforts in persuading Coaina to embrace Christianity, 3 476 Rose of Tannenbourg, A moral Tale, translated from the French, Having been bought up and educated by her good parents, Rose loses her mother through death and is separated from her father, She starts in search of a situation as servant in the castle of the Enemy, and the account of her experience and hardships make the book one of great interest,!
Eliane, by Madame Augustus Craven, Translated from the French by Lady Georgiana Fullerton An exceedingly interesting story of Catholic Life in France, telling of the many good works of Eliane for the poor and afflicted, Fair Maid of Connaught The and other Tales for Old Gray Rosary The. "Refuge of Sinners" b Anna H, Dorsey. The scene is laid in Virgini and a very strong interesting story of the Cathol Faith, is given to our readers, both young and old

RELIGIOUS BOOKS

60c. Each Postpaid 50 Copies, $22.50 (6) 100 44.00

Blessed Margaret Mary Alacoque, by Rev. Geo. Tacknell, S. J.
Divine Life of The Blessed Virgin Mary, by Ven. Mary of Jesus of Agreda.
Dove of The Tabernacle, or the Love of Jesus in The Most Holy Eucharist by Rev. T. H. Kinane.
Duty of a Christian Towards God, by St. John the Bapuist De La Salle. Here nothing is left unexplained, no point unpoticed of all the grand and beautiful system of religion from the most sublime mysteries of our Fatth, to the simplest and most trivial practices of devotino.
Great Saints, by John O'Kane Murray. Over thirty saints, including the Blessed Virgin Mary, St. Joseph, St. John the Baptist, St. Agnes, St. Patrick, St. Bridget, St. Columbkile, St. Francis Xavier, etc. Beautifully illustrated.
Internal Mission of The Holy Ghost by Cardinal Manning.

sternal Mission of the Manning, ish Martyrs, by D. P. Conyngham, LL. D. ish Saints from St. Patrick to Lawrence O'Toole by D. P. Conyngham, LL. D. ite of St. Monica, by M. L'Abbe Bougaud. Vicar General of Orleans. From the French, by Rev. Anthony Farley.
fe of St. Paul Of The Cross, by the Rev. Father

Life of Our Lord Jesus Christ, by St. Bonaventure.

Life of Our Lord Jesus Christ, by St. Bonaventure. With 100 engravings. Maidens of Hallowed Names, Embracing the lives of St. Agnes, St. Gertrude, St. Rose of Lima, St. Catherine, St. Genevieve, St. Teresa, St. Cecilia, etc. By Rev. Charles Piccirillo, S. J. Mattyrs The. This is the famous history of the last persecutions of the Christians at Rome, by Viscount de Chatesubriand Martyrs of The Coliseum, or Historical Records of the Great Amphitheatre of Ancient Rome. By Rev A. J. O'Reilly, D. D. Our Lady of Lourdes, by Henry Lasserre, A complete history of the apparition, together with a number of authentic miracles performed at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes.

Popular Life of St. Teresa, by Rev. M. Joseph. St. Aloysius Gonzaga of the Society of Jesus, by Edwa d Healey Thompson.

St. Aloysius Gonzaga of the Society of Jesus, by Edwa d Healey Thompson.

St. Alphonsus M. Liguori, Bishop of Agatha by Bishop Mullock.

St. Angela Merici, with history of the Order of St. Ursula in Ireland, Canada and the United States, by John Gilmary Shea.

by John Gilmary Shea.

Augustine Bishop, Confessor and Doctor of the Church, by Rev. P. E. Moriarty, O. S. A.

Benedict, the Moor, the son of a slave. From the French of Canon M. Allibert.

Benard, by M. L'Abbe Ratisbonne.

Charles Bortomeo. Edited by Edward Healey Thompson.

Catharine of Sienna, by Blessed Raymond of Capus. apus. Cecilia, Virgin and Martyr, By Rev. Father

it. Cecilia, Virgin and Martyr, By Rev, Father Gueranger, it. Elizabeth of Hungary, by Montalembert, it. Frances of Rome, by Lady Georg'anna Fullerton, with an essay on the saint's life. It Francis de Sales. Bishop and Frince of Geneva, by Robert Ormsby, M. A. it. Francis Assisi, Social Reformer, By Rev, Leo L. Dubots, it. Francis Assisi, Social Reformer, By Rev, Leo L. Dubots, it. Ignatius of Loyola, founder of the Society of Jesus, by Bartoli, Two volumes, 50c, each. it. ignatius and His Companions — St. Francis Xavier, Peter Faber, Simon Rodriguez, etc. L. John Berchmans of the Society of Jesus, and miracles after his death, by Father Borgo, S. J. it. Joseph. From the French of Abbe Bouilan. It. Margaret of Cortons. Translated from the Italian by John Gilmary Shea.

Margaret of Cortons. Translated from the Italian by John Gilmary Shea. Mary of Egypt. The example and model of a Patrick, by Right Rev. M. J. O'Farrell, Bishop of

R. Patira, by Right
Trenton.

St. Rose of Lima. By Rev. F. W. Faber, D. D.

St. Stanislaus Kostka of the Society of Jesus, by Edward Healey Thomson.

St. Thomsof Villauvox.

St. Teress. Written by herself. Translated by Rev.
Canon Dallon. Vincent de Paul, by Rev. Henry Bedford.

mporal Mission of The Holy Ghost by Cardinal temporal sussion of the roly Ghost by Cardinal Manning.

True Devotion to The Blessed Virgin, by the Blessed Louis-Marte, Grignon de Montfort, Translated from the French by Rev. Frederick Wm. Faber, D.D. True Religion And Its Dogmas, The; by Rev. Nicholas Russo, S. J., formerly Professor of Philosophy in Boston College, Artican Council, and Its Definitions, Iby Cardinal Manning.

Manning.
Victims of The Mamertine. Picturing the trials and martyrdom of the saints of the early Church. By Rev. A. J. O'Reilly, D. D.
Year With The Saints, A Short meditations for seach day throughout the year on different virtues with examples taken from the lives of the saints.

The Catholic Record LONDON, CANADA

The Catholic Record

Price of Subscription—$1.50 per annum United States & Europe—$2.00 Rev. James T. Foley, B. A. Thomas Coffey, LL. D.

eciate Editors { Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan H. F. Mackintosh. neral agents: M. J. Hagarty. Vincent S. and Miss Jessie Doyle, Resident agents: 182 B. Hawarty. Vincent S. and Miss Jessie Doyle, Resident agents: 182 B. Hawartson, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. E. Smith, Halifax; Miss Bride Saunders, ey; Miss L. Heringer, Winnipez; E. K. ello, 2256-85th ave West, Vancouver, B. C. Johnson, 211 Rochester st., Ottawa; Miss McKeaney, 149 D'Aigrillon street, Guebec, George E. Smith, 293 St. Urbain street, real, M. J. Mervin, Montreal, B. F. O'Toole, Montague St., Regins, Sask., and E. J. by, Box 125. Saskatoon. lach insertion 50 cents.

See in sertion 50 cents.

In St. John N. S., single copies may be serchased from Mrs. M. A. McGuire, 249 Main section 5, 10 Dwyer and The O'Neill Co., Thermacy, 10 B Trussels street. Montreal single copies may be purch J. Millov, 241 St. Catherine street, west.

LONDON, SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1917

CATHOLIC HUTS FOR SOLDIERS (By an Overseas Chaplain)

From the beginning of the War the Y. M. C. A. has had an ever English people who have more than increasing number of soldiers' they can do for their own? Can we recreation tents and huts. These not have a Canadian Catholic serve as a social centre for the Women's League to help us or organizing an entertainment for this soldiers-a place where they can see a movie, write a letter, hear a concert, buy eats, drinks or smokes, and take it up ? Wake up our dear meet their friends. On Sunday people at home, and tell them that and a full account of the expenditure morning these tents are placed at the disposal of the various chaplains, to people no better off than them- lished. Catholic included. When there is no selves. You may make what use church at hand, Mass is said in a Y. you like of this letter, but use your tent. On Sunday evening, the own experience too." Y. M. C. A. officer, who according to the Constitution of the Society must be a Protestant, usually holds a Protestant song service of some kind. From time to time the Y. M. C. A. evangelist (there are two Baptist ministers doing this work) holds a special Protestant service. That the Y. M. C. A. is not non-sectarian, as once again in its last campaign for funds it claimed to be, is apparent from the above facts. It is a Protestant inter-denominational society. It occupies a unique position in the Canadian forces,-the Y. M. C. A. official in charge of a tent holds the rank of Hon. Captain,-and does much good of a social and recreational nature. Catholic soldiers make use of its advantages, as do all others. Yet we are not quite at home in a Y. tent. No Catholic may be a Y. M. C. A. official, and its own religious service is always Protestant.

Hence, Catholics have felt it their duty, where possible, to erect Catholic huts, which, like the Y. M. C. A huts, would be open to all, but which would have at the same time a Catholic atmosphere. St. Patrick's Club at Boulogne, which dates from the early part of the War, is a striking example of how successfully this can be put into operation. It is run on precisely the same principles as the Y. hut-with this exception that the moving spirit is not a Y. M. C. A. official, but a Catholic chaplain. In many places a combination chanel and tent has been erected. This hold its State Convention and it makes it a real Catholic centre, unanimously decided to donate a per people, a duty to accept and obey? in calling this necessary and where the chaplain can say Mass capita tax of $1, or in all $7,000, to There is abundant evidence that unquestionable authority of the daily, hear confession, give instruct this fund. Alberta Knights followed. tions, meet his men and generally increase his influence for good. McNally, a sum of $1,000 was donated seen in the reasons alleged for the expediency, the wisdom, the prudence The religious convictions of Pro. to the Chaplains' Hut Fund. Assur- passage of the Bill before Parliament or the necessity of such a measure. testant soldiers who frequent these ances have been given that Manitoba Catholic huts are never interfered and Maritime Knights intend to give opposition should it be enacted into with in any way. Needless to say, their support. It is worthy of note law. however, catechetical instruction is that Winnipeg Knights last year given to all who seek it. In some erected a $3,000 chapel in Camp people have the undoubted right to of these Catholic huts, as in the one Hughes. They would seem to have express by every lawful means on the grounds of Westminster the honor of being the first in the their disapproval of any proposed Cathedral, more Protestant soldiers movement. A fortnight ago the Que- government measure, but under can at times be found than Catholic. bec State Convention of the K. of C. ordinary conditions and in normal This hut gives sleeping accommoda- recommended to its subordinate exhibits true Catholic charity the fund. As there are several thoutowards all.

Now the need of such Catholic huts both in the training camps in England and behind the line in the Knights have shared in the honor France, is apparent. It may then of this work. In Ottawa, two conseem surprising that the Catholic certs and lectures have been organ-Canadian chaplains did not before now | ized, one by the K. of C. Glee Club, | in any way limit the legal and conappeal to the Catholics of Canada for the other by the Alumnae of the Confunds for this work. The following gregation of Notre Dame, and each little consideration shows quite is the explanation. Till March, 1917, there was no one in England with St. Patrick's Parish Guild forwarded the rank of Catholic Senior Chap. a contribution of $50. lain, who could speak in the name of our chaplains. For an individual fidently appeal to the Catholic public been extended by the same authority chaplain to make an appeal would to support "The Catholic Canadian not have been satisfactory; for apart | Chaplains' Fund for Soldiers' Huts." | America Act. | That is the essential from the fact that such an appeal This Fund has been formally apwould necessarily be personal, not proved by His Excellency, the Aposofficial the chaplain might have been tolic Delegate, and by bishops in all period of extension all the powers it removed to another sphere and type parts of the country. It is managed of work when the solicited financial by Major Rev. W. T. Workman, A. D. assistance arrived. As soon, however, C.S., assisted by a committee of chapmoney for a Chaplains' Fund for last mentioned will cheerfully for sion of this argument admit its force to Irish strife."

lain in Canada under date of March 30, 1917, from the Department of Militia and Defence (Canada) London, England, he makes the following appeal:

"There is a matter of some im portance I wish you would take up. We are in urgent need of financial help for the Chaplains' work with the men. So far we have depended principally upon the charity of English Catholics for the building and equipping of church huts and incidentals necessary for the proper Catholic Women's League has been our principal benefactor. Only last Saturday Bishop Colter, of Portsmouth, opened a splendid C. W. L. Hut for our men in Bramshott. It is a Godsend to us-a home from perhaps for more speedy service, why not ask the Knights of Columbus to dividual contributions. All contri-

Father Workman's letter was for warded to each Canadian State Deputy of the Knights of Columbus, with the request that the State Convention recommend a per capita tax of $1 per member for this fund. At the same time Major Rev. John J. O'Gorman, who was charged with forwarding this appeal, received the following letter from His Excellency the Apostolic Delegate:

Delegatio Apostolica, N. 13783. Ottawa, April 19, 1917. Rev. J. J. O'Gorman, D. C. L., C. F. Ottawa General Hospital, Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Father O'Gorman :- The appeal of the Rev. Father Workman, O. F. M., M. C., Assistant Director of Chaplain Services (R.C.), about to be conveyed by you to the Knights of Columbus, in order to obtain assistance for the Catholic Chaplain Service of the Canadian Overseas Forces, our Catholic soldiers at the Front. will, I am sure, receive a prompt and effective response. The Knights is the second of Bishop Fallon's have always made it their chivalrous | brothers to volunteer for service as duty to further the interests of re- Chaplain with the Canadian Army. ligion wherever and whenever most necessary. Their generosity in seconding the efforts of Catholic chaplains, working for the welfare of soldiers in the Canadian Forces, will be most praiseworty.

Believe me, dear Father O'Gorman, Yours very sincerely in Xto. (Sgd) P. F. STAGNI, O. S. M. Abp. of Ancyra, Del. Ap.'

Ontario was the first province to tion at an infinitesimal charge and councils a per capita tax of $1.00 for ing the right to disobey once it has mean several thousand dollars.

> Meanwhile organizations other than netted $105 to the Hut Fund. The clearly that it does not. The dura-

The Overseas Chaplains now conas Major the Rev. Wolstan T. Work- lains. Capt. Rev. Frank French, D. A. the matter of conscription, is the life in that amazing battle of light-hearted joyousness in God's man, O. F. M., M. C., was appointed D.C. S., Canadian Corps Headquarters, Assistant Director of Chaplain Ser- France, is in charge of the work in vices for the Roman Catholics of the France. Major Rev. John J. O'Gor-Canadian Forces, and thus became man, Blessed Sacrament Church, official head of our Catholic chap. Ottawa, is at present the Canadian strictly confined within these limits, and light and reconciliation to the lains, he wrote to Canada soliciting representative of the Fund. The The very opponents of the conclu- Irish Convention and perhaps an end

Catholic Huts. Writing to a Chap- ward contributions to Father Workman, and acknowledge them in the Catholic press. Those wishing to ders for the defence of Canada. send money direct, should send it by draft, payable at the Bank of Montreal, Waterloo Branch, Pall Mall, London, England, to MAJOR REV. W. T. WORKMAN, M. C. A. D. C. S. (Canadians) Cleveland House, St. James Sq.

London, England.

The Y. M. C. A. in their recent campaign for funds for their overseas work, asked for and obtained chapels, for rosaries and the many $750,000. The Catholic Chaplains would like an amount one fifteenth carrying on of the work. The of that size, or $50,000 for Catholic Huts, one half of which will be required this year. Of this $8,260 has been contributed already. The Overseas Chaplains now appeal to the reverend clergy, to the officers and members of Catholic societies, and to home-and for the time being a individual Catholics to rally to the chapel for us. It has cost over £500. support of this Hut Fund, which will Now are we to continue to depend on supply a great need of our soldiers overseas.

The money can be raised either by a levy in the case of a society, or by purpose or by collections or by inbutions will be publicly acknowledged we object to go Canadian cap in hand of the money will be likewise pub-

JOHN J. O'GORMAN, C. F.

SIX ADDITIONAL CHAPLAINS On the request of the Department of Militia and Defence for six chap lains for immediate service with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces overseas, His Lordship Bishop Fallon has submitted the names of the follow ing priests

Rev. B. S. Doyle, Penetanguishene, Ont.

Rev. Charles A. Fallon, O. M. I Washington, D. C. Rev. Edward Hawks, Philadelphia

Rev. Thomes P. Hussey, Kinkora Ont.

Rev. Francis P. White, St. Colum ban, Ont.

Rev. Anselm Wood, Victoria, B. C. Rev. Fathers Hussey and White are pastors in the Diocese of London. Their departure makes a total of six priests from this diocese who are ministering to the spiritual needs of

The Rev. Charles A. Fallon, O. M. I.,

THE RIGHT TO CONSCRIPT

In the discussion of the all-absorbing political question of the day ary service from every Canadian. Parliament is filling pages of Hansard | And obedience is a duty binding in by the hundred. But when all is conscience. said and done some fundamental considerations are left untouched. the proposed legislation, a positive, there is confusion on this fundamenas well as in the threats of violent

Under our form of government the times no one thinks of assertbecome law. With regard to con sand Knights in Quebec, this will scription, however, there is a feeling, not confined to Quebec, that Parliament is exceeding its powers.

One reason for this is that the period for which the members were elected has expired. Does this fact stitutional powers of Parliament? A tion of Parliament is fixed by the British North America Act, and the life of the present Parliament has which enacted the British North and fundamental thing. The present Canadian Parliament has during the ever had. Another reason for the feeling that and cogency. They maintain that we are fighting in France and Flan-

The argument and the confusion of thought to which it has given rise centres around the Canadian Militia

Up to 1904 the clause in question of this Act read;

"Her Majesty may call out the militia, or any part thereof, for active service, either within or without Canada, at any time it appears advisible to do so, by reason of war, invasion, insurrection, or danger of any of them.'

In 1904 this clause in the new Act was made to read thus:

"The Governor-in-Council may place the militia, or any part thereof, on active service anywhere in Canada and also beyond Canada, for the defence thereof, at any time it appears advisible so to do by reason of emergency.

A reason alleged at the time was that the clause as it stood in the old Act did not make it clear whether the militia could be sent outside of Canada or not. Objection was taken during the debate that under the new Act Canadian soldiers could be sent to take part in wars in any part of the world so long as they were considered for the defense of Canada. The contention was not denied, Even Mr. Bourassa rallied the objectors on their "little Canadianism.'

There seems to the layman very little difference, so far as the point in discussion was concerned, between the two clauses. But there was a very real and radical change in substituting "The Governor-in-Council" for "Her Majesty." This was a distinct step in advance in self-govern ment. By it the Canadian Govern ment assumed direct control over Canadian military matters and ended any controversy on the subject. And such controversy there was, even if in those far off peaceful days, it was considered purely academic, if considered at all by the mass of the

The sovereign authority to enforce compulsory military service must reside somewhere. In the development of self-government, by tacit aquiescence if not by formal enactment, the Canadian Parliament has been conceded full control over Canadian military affairs. power is not limited and irrevocably fixed by her own Militia Act, no matter what interpretation may be put upon it: or what opinion may be held as to the present War being for the defense of Canada. Canada is at war, and her Parliament has the indubitable right to exact and enforce milit-

To question this is anarchism. Honest and sincere and patriotic Has the Government a right to enact opponents of compulsory military service for Canada in the present unquestionable right the exercise of circumstances do infinite harm to the which implies, on the part of the cause they advocate and to Canada

State into question. Their argu-Upon a motion of Right Rev. Bishop tal point. And that evidence is ment should be directed against the

MAJOR REDMOND

Now that fresh evidence reaches us of the persistence, if not of the spread, of the Sinn Fein form of insanity amongst the youth of Ireland, it is consoling to read of the profound emotion which Major Redmond's death stirred in the heart of

'Such tributes as were paid to Major Redmond have never before been paid to the memory of any private member in the House of Commons," says the Westminster Gazette, "The 'funeral oration' of which Mr. Lloyd George's speech will remain almost a classic example, is reserved for men who have held high office in the service of the title to be in any British Government

State." "'Oh, that this blood were for Ireland, 'said Sarsfield, mortally wounded in exile. Major Redmond's blood was for Ireland indeed, and as she will inherit well from it in these days, through all after-generations she will be proud of him who gave because. it." is the tribute of the Observer.

Public Opinion, which reviews the whole British press, says:

"Major William Redmond, M. P. Parliament is exceeding its powers in brother of the Irish Leader, gave his belief that Canadians not only Messines Ridge. And if the spirit honor should not be compelled to fight ex- which moved the House of Comcept in the defense of Canada, but mons when it paid tribute to him that the authority of Parliament is lasts, then his death may bring life us to cast all our care

Perhaps the most hopeful as well as the most interesting and significant was the speech of Sir Edward Carson

Sir Edward Carson, tribute in the Commons to his much lamented and life long opponent," seized with dramatic instinct on the taking away of Major Redmond from the battlefield in an Ulster am This seemed to him the symbol of the new spirit of reconciliation, which the death of this gallant Irishman has bequeathed to Ireland

"He had been taken away and cared for in an Ulster ambulance by Ulstermen"-Sir Edward Carson spoke these words with a tremour in voice and bowed his head. Then. raising his head, he said:

"If in the trenches we can fight side by side for the common cause of liberty, certainly so far as I am concerned, I would like in my own time to see some solution of the long-continued Irish quarrel which meet the ideals of liberty of all par-

There is everywhere apparent the desire to make amends to the gallant Major's gallant brother, whose peerless services to the Empire were so shamefully requited. In his magnanimous and courageous interpretation of the old bitter, yet natural. Irish saying-"England's difficulty is Ireland's opportunity," the Irish leader was a leader indeed. John Redmond capping the climax of a half century's sustained and statesmanlike effort to bring about the reconciliation of the two races, at the outbreak of the War led a transformed Ireland in ther loyal and enthusiastic cooperation with England in the most difficult hour of her history. England's greatest blunder in the blundering conduct of the War was the betrayal of her Irish ally. Long after this stain on British honor has been removed history will record the disgrace of British statesmanship.

Willie Redmond's life and death illustrates the spirit of that new Ireland which English political exigencies cynically handed over to the evil spirit of Sinn Fein.

Englishmen of all ranks and of all parties now recognize this, and keenly feel its disgrace and its disaster. Of this there is abundant and consoling evidence.

Carson's tribute to William Redmond recalls the open letter addressed to him some time previously by that sturdy and clearheaded English journalist, A. G. Gardiner; it con-

"That is your work. That is the indictment. I shall add no word of reproach. This is no time for reproaches. You know-no one knows | Cuba, and as typical of the same conbetter-how anxious these days are -how near we are to perils from the mind shrinks. Is it possible that at such a time you will add to those perils a danger which will be both a danger and a shame? You have done great wrong; but it is in your power to make atonement for that wrong. You can pluck from the hearts of your Ulster friends the distrust of your fellow citizens which you have helped to sow there. You can if you will, make Ulster listen to reason and feel the breath of Free dom and reconciliation that is blow ing through the world. You can settle the Irish question, wipe out the treason of which you have been guilty, and remove from this Empire the one blot that sullies its name. I am have created. Do not forget this, that if you stand by the monster of Ulster arrogance you are delivering Ireland over to disruption.'

Carson's tribute to William Redmond gives reason to hope that he is beginning to see how much nobler, as well as how much more patriotic and statesmanlike, is the spirit which animated his gallant and life-long opponent than that which envenoms Ulster and has produced elsewhere in his native land the reaction from the Redmond spirit to that of Sinn

It is not yet too late to heed A. G. Gardiner's sclemn warning :

'In this time, when the great mind of freedom is abroad throughout the earth, you block the path of reconciliation. You stand with your ack to the light. You, who have no except as the bringer of appeasement in Ireland, are using your position in that Government to prevent appease ment. If the present negotiations break down they will break down because the war that has taught the world so much has taught you and the little Prussian garrison in Ulster nothing. They will break down, too while you have not surrendered to the great spirit of this time, Mr. Lloyd George has surrender-

Let us copy our blessed Mother in service, remembering Master when our good we show a bright face in service. Has not St. Peter told Him? Why then should we not be happy as a child in it's Father's Let us beg our Lady to win for us this grace.-R. S. G.

NOTES AND COMMENTS ACCORDING TO Lord Inchcape's letter to The Times, meat has been selling in England at a profit to the middleman or purveyor of 400%. As lands and meat-curing plants in Australia, and as chairman of the steamship company carrying their product from thence to England at practically pre-War rates, the noble Lord is in a position to know. And yet, after three years of a death struggle with the most formidable military power in history, it is still possible for mercantile pirates in England to accumulate huge fortunes at the expense of those who have borne the burden and heat of the conflict. It would be interesting to have someone with the necessary inside knowledge tell us something about profiteering of food-stuffs in Canada. The uncovering of that festering sore might go a long way towards solving the problem of the maintenance of Canada's army in

WHY IS it that so many Cana dians are still content to accept colonial status in the affairs of the Empire? While British states. mep have for the most part outgrown that idea, and now recognize in Canada a self-governing Dominion, and an integral part of the Empire. certain English journals of reactionary tendencies, and not, therefore fully emancipated from the insular spirit of the past, still persist, notwithstanding the formal title of the Sovereign, in referring to the 'greater Dominions Overseas' 'colonies." Canadians need quarrel with such survival of feudalism, but it speaks ill for the dignity and self-respect of this great Dominion, that so many of its citizens have not in their own estimation outgrown the bands of colonial

So INTENSELY has the world been engrossed in the great War for the past three years is to have been practically oblivious to the extraordinary development which, during the same period, has been going on in some of the less conspicuous portions of the earth's surface. The remarkable prosperity which the protracted struggle in Europe has brought to the United States and to given classes in Canada and other countries in the two Americas, has been especially marked in the island of dition in other of the lesser nations it may be not unprofitable to take a glance at that "pearl of the Antilles" under war-time activities. We are indebted to Mr. A. T. Quilez, of the Canadian Trade and Commerce service in that island, for some interest. ing facts and figures in this regard.

IT IS A fact that will occasion some surprise that Cuba now figures in deliberately sacrificing this force to statistics with the largest volume of hide a retreat to be made on a much imports of all the Latin-American wider scale than is as yet apparent republics with the single exception the Canadians meet with serious re of the Argentine. This statement is sistance, machine gun fire and uncu the more significant when it is contold that you fear the monster you sidered that Cuba is but thinly populated, and that but a very short time has elapsed since she became independent, prior to which her history is a long and almost uninterrupted series of revolutions which kent the pation in the war. In fact, several island in turmoil and brought to it warlike actions have been taken ruin and desolation. So greatly has against the Allies the aid of a number of fine this condition changed that it has warships. now in constant operation no less than two hundred sugar mills pro- to say a great deal about minor ducing over twenty five million bags, actions. An interesting item in their or more than three and a half million tons of this product. In the throwers caused great damage to the cultivation of sugar, Cuba, owing to English trenches on the coast. the advantages afforded by the Another paragraph states that En climate, soil, rainfall and other elements peculiar to it, is without a rival. That the island should now, of Dunkirk. These statements add under stable government, be reaping | color to the belief that an engage the full benefit of this great heritage contributes but one element to its present era of progress.

> supremacy of Cuba, under the name of its capital, Havana, has become proverbial. The Western section, known as Vuelta Abajo, produces a donia. It is explained that so far as special grade of tobacco, the quality and aroma of which has never been approached by that grown in any other soil. Always a great asset to territory it has gained. Bulgaria the island, this tobacco industry has it is reiterated, is ready to make likewise undergone marked develop. peace. ment, especially in regard to production and manufacture, since the outbreak of the War-this notwithstanding the shutting - off of certain important markets. The Cuban has to carrying on the War fast strides realized as never before the prodigious value of the product and the industry connected therewith, and that the British have greatly improved under the sense of security under on the original tanks, and intend to which he now lives can devote him self, as he could not formerly, to perfecting his processes. The Cuban cigar industry caters to the whole world, and with the advent of one having large interests in pastoral new enterprises and industries it is obvious that immigration will increase, and capital in extending proportion be invested in this direc

> SOME YEARS ago, Mr. Quilez tells us, a wild plant known in Spanish as 'Malva" was considered a pest by the Cuban farmers owing to the facility with which it grew and spread over otherwise productive land. It has now been found that this plant yields a most valuable fibre which will bring good prices in the markets of the world. One hundred acres of the cheapest and poorest land in Cuba will produce at the first crop-four years after planting -a net profit of over $17,000, so that it is bound to figure largely in the future in the wealth of the island. And this is but one of the many products, hitherto unappreciated, which the exceeding fertility of the soil has placed at Cuba's disposal.

UP To the outbreak of the War the mineral wealth of Cuba had not assumed its legitimate place in its table of resources. The attention of the Government being now turned in this direction under the reversed law of demand and supply, an era of development has been entered upon. A geological survey is in process, and it is found that iron, copper, manganese and asphalt exist in large quanti ties while nickel, lead, gold and silver have also been discovered. The islanders are said to have fully awakened to the possibilities before them and with the impetus given by the War Cuba is sure to assume a much greater place among the productive nations than her own sons had previously dreamed of.

ON THE BATTLE LINE

CANADIAN TROOPS, including men from British Columbia, Manitoba, Central Ontario and Nova Scotia, have made another considerable advance toward Lens, capturing the enemy's front line protecting Avion, a suburb of the coal city. This carries the British line to within a mile of the centre of Lens, which is now almost completely surrounded on sides. The attack was pressed home on a front of some two miles, and included the capture of the village of Eleu de Leauvette. There are no indications as yet that the defensive taken up by the Gerpositions mans behind the city have been abandoned, but it is mentioned by Canadian Press correspondthat the ents craters roads around Lens, caused by the use of immense quantities of explosives, and with the idea of delay ing the British advance, are now preventing the Germans themselves from bringing up reinforcements to their force round Lens. It is possible that the German commanders are At only one point in their advance did

BRAZIL HAS revoked her decree of neutrality in the war between the Entente Allies and Germany. It has been clear for some time that Brazil would not long delay active partic against the Hun. Brazil could give wire delaying some of the Manitoba

THE GERMAN REPORTS continue report of yesterday reads: "A bom bardment by our artillery and mine tente artillery bombarded the Ger man occupied town of Ostend in re taliation for a German bombardment ment on the Belgian coast line will not long be delayed.

THE BULGARIANS it is stated in despatches from Copenhagen, have IN THE MATTER of tobacco, the declared that they will not send troops to any other front but their own, with the exception of the few Bulgarians on the Galician front Sofia is determined not to weaken its front against the Allies in Mace Bulgaria is concerned the objects the War have been attained, although it had been hoped that Salonik might have been included in the

Some amazing figures are given by Dr. Addison, British Minister of Munitions, in regard to Britain's out put for war in shells, in steel, in airplanes. In everything essentia have been made. The supplies of use them in very large numbers. The output of steel is now 10,000,000 tons instead of a little over 7,000,000 tons yearly before the War, and by the end of next year will be 12,000,000 The Government was obtaining steel plates in Britain at less than half their cost in the United States. Some interesting figures are given also in respect to the excellent results of salvage work on the front. Speaking of gun ammunition, Dr. Addison mentioned the discovery of "a component of a new type which possessed great advantages for certain purposes." A large supply of this had been produced in a short time, and "was proving of the greatest value in facilitating the advances at the front and in saving life." This, no doubt, is a reference to the new mentioned in various des. patches from the front, the effect of which seems to have absolutely para lyzed the Prussians in the Messines Ridge battle.—Globe, June 29.

ROBBING THE ITALIAN YOUTH OF FAITH

LEADER OF ROME'S DOZEN METHODISTS AGAIN FILLS POCKETS THAT MORE MAY BE WASTED

Rome, May 24, 1917.—The notorious American Methodist minister, Tipple—notorious is a strong net, but it is justified—is announced to have returned to his place of ministry in the Via Vente Settembre, Rome, from a money-collecting tour of the United States, and he is said to have brought back with him contributions for his politico-religious war chest to the extent of some $50,000, to found a school, not for the education of young American Methodists in Rome, but rather for the education in the American Methodist religion of young Roman Catholic children.

A CONSPIRACY TO ROB CATHOLIC CHILDREN OF THE FAITH

No one can prophesy with certainty about the socio-politico-religious situation here after the War is over. Catholics, under the wise guidance and, it is not going too far to say, at the suggestion of a clearsighted Pope, are quietly organizing that Catholic influence may be strong enough throughout the country to ensure the after-war conditions being, if not absolutely established, on sound, pure Catholic lines—which is perhaps too much to hope for—at least not straightly anti-Catholic or even as the expressive phrase goes here "a Catholic." But it is no But it is no secret for the typical "Secolo" and even the officially anticlerical "Idea Democratica" have announced that radicals are working keenly, but without publishing their policy or their operations, to get control of things in the confused state of affairs that may follow peace. And Mr. Tipple, co-worker with the atheists when there is a chance to scratch the Church, is girding on his armor for the campaign. It is rather like a man scratching St. Peter's with a pin, but it is none the less miserable work, this trying to rob Catholic children of their faith.

SCARIFIED BY THE POPE

That is the principle of Mr. Tipple: robbing Catholics of their faith he knows as well as you and I door better, for he has been working at it for years without making much of a job at it—that if you take a Catholic here and rob him of his Catholic faith you leave him empty. And he cannot assimilate anything else. So he dies, religiously. there comes a convenient earthquake o stir him up, when, thank God! he flies to the nearest church and falls on his knees before Our Lady. there is no need for a correspondent to dilate on the principle of Mr. Tipple's and similar operations. His Holiness Pope Benedict scarified them in his speech on the Work for the Preservation of the Faith in Rome, a speech which some people took occasion to criticise, but all who knew Rome knew it was not directed against any honest Protestant who fears God and worships God honestly in his own way and his own on Sunday morning, but against the conventicles here—and they abound-established solely for the purpose of robbing Catholics of the faith that is theirs and the only one that is any use to them.

THE TALE THE STATISTICS TELL

Once upon a time Mr. Tipple used to publish his statistics; he used to thank American Methodists for the millions they furnished him for the perversion of Catholics and announce the number of perversions. But the statistics turned round and bit him, as the following, culled from an old number of "Rome" shows. Lately he has banged his drum and filled his war-chest without giving the outside world his accounts. "Fifty years ago the Methodists began to spend millions of dollars on the perversion of Italian Catholics, and every year since then they have been accounts of their success, but the of people (that is a year or two ago); and the Methodists among them, including both members and probationers, total exactly 3,449; Rome, which is well over the half-million mark, contains 266 members and probationers. How many of the 266 are Italians and how many of them are Eng. lish, Germans, Americans, etc., we do volumes, were his lips unsealed. not pretend to guess, but taking interesting results. It will be found that the present Methodist following in Italy has cost about 7,000 francs per head; that the half million francs spent on Italian Methodism last year has resulted in a net gain over numbers of the previous year of just persons, which works out at 6,666 francs for every additional Methodist; that at the same rate of progress it will take 12,500,000,000 francs and 36,000 years to convert the Ital ian people from the errors of Popery to the light of Methodism."

No wonder Mr. Tipple ceased publishing his figures to the world.

TIPPLE'S POLICY AND METHODS

Not very much has been heard recently about Mr. Tipple. But if he is going to come into the limelight again it is well to have a clear understanding of his policy and his methods. His policy is opposition to the Holy See and the Catholic Church, and among his methods, varied and numerous since American Methodists entered Rome at the tail of the Italian troops in 1870, are open alliance with Italian atheists and, worse, with the "Asino," the scurrility and blasphemy of which are such that no Christian will touch it with a pair of tongs. RELIGIONS IN ITALY

The recently published statistics about religions in Italy do not, un-fortunately, specify the number of American Methodists; they confine themselves to "Episcopalians and Protestants," lumping all denominations. From them we find that at the beginning of 1916 the inhabitants of Italy were 36,546,437. Emigrants, 146,000 (in 1913 they were 873,000), As regards religions, 874,000, among them 815,000 women—a curious matter which requires some explanation—wrote themselves down as having no religion. "Evangelicals and Protestants" are 123,000; Jews, 34,000. All religions are thus categoried in Italy. You are a Catholic; if you are not a Catholic you may be a Jew, or a free-mason, or some sort of a Protestant—this latter as a religion being a discovery here of com-paratively recent years. All sorts of people would enter into the class of no religioners"; Jews, who do not have. The unjust aggressor must practice their religion, a rapidly growing class; nearly all who profess anarchial, socialistic or republican political ideas, and many returned emigrants from places where Catholic priests have not been able to get at them. And among the "Evangelicals and Protestants" there are any amount of sects. The Waldensians are quite strong in the north and have two churches in Rome, where also there must be at least a couple of dozen meeting houses of Italian Baptists, Methodists and other connections. But of the Protestants included in the census many would be foreigners, and far the largest proportion in this category would be the ordinary visitor who goes to the Anglican church or the American church as a matter of course on Sunday morning and is far removed from Mr. Tipple. If he had to choose between Mr. Tipple and the Pope he would certainly go to a Catholic church—as indeed he frequently does when in Rome or When all these are taken from the 123,000 it does not seem as if the residue of American Methodists would be large. WHAT IS TIPPLE'S PROPORTION

But, after all, look at the proportions. Of the thirty-six and a half millions about three and one-third thing less than one per thousand lish his proportion of the three and is which has changed him, and give a third ?-New World.

PAINTED FULL OF TONGUES

On a July dawn last year, a huge quantity of dynamite and shells, stored near Jersey City, suddenly exploded. In the immediate locality the effects of the shock were considerable. Most New Yorkers, howdid not know of the accident until they saw the headlines of the Sunday-morning extras. But across the ocean the affair expanded to huge proportions. An English they are bidden. Every form of journal announced that a large part of the city had been reduced to ashes by the Germans. A yet more enterprising moving-picture manager displayed on the screen what purported be a picture of the ruins of the Woolworth Building. Anxious New Yorkers abroad wondered if ever again they would look upon their familiar domiciles. Rumor, painted full of tongues, had made an entrance, and for the moment occupied the center of the stage. During the last few weeks Rumor has been stalking in our midst with subject, and aids him in attaining a marvelous tale of a great defeat in sending home highly decorative the North Sea. Sixty American and English battleships had been sunk, simple truth is that they have failed utterly to make any permanent impression. In Italy and Italian Switzerland there are about $4.000.000. Switzerlandthereare about 34,000,000 hospitals, Rumor continued, were crowded with wounded sailors who had been rushed for treatment three thousand miles across a sea choked with corpses. Rumor's authority was an old woman who had been allowed to visit her son in a Brooklyn refutation. But they were not, and sober thought. By the blessing of the Rosary well; be recollected; keep formerly were. Secretary Daniels has issued a formal denial. "No such engagement has taken place," writes the Secretary. not been in action. No ship has been lost. There are no wounded

This plain statement is the hook that pulls Rumor off the stage. Meanwhile the Secretary's reference to "this campaign of rumor that is so plainly the product of disloyalty" may be pondered by some with profit. Rumors of this kind are not only disloyal, but the height of cruelty to those fathers and mothers who have bravely given their sons to the service of our common country.-America.

THE DIGNITY OF SUBMISSION

Stern necessity has made the soldier a very familiar sight these days. And you may have observed that he never passes by quite un-noticed. His goings and comings are not rated like the incidental transits of the mere civilian. Rather they are taken to be some thing like an event which one should not ignore, but should recognize by an admiring gaze, a complimentary word, or a salute. The truer, if body of troops goes marching by. They are "our boys," and it is a brave sight to watch them swinging down the street, every movement instinct with youthful vigor and manliness. They are our protectors, strong and brave, trained to the minute, and ready to do their "bit unflinchingly for God and country. But who, as he watches the passing of the troops, with all their arms and accoutrements, thinks of them as the slayers of our enemies? We put that thought away. We could not admire our soldiers under that horrible formality, because we cannot forget that our enemies are our fellow men with hopes and fears and home and country, even as we pay the penalty; yet we put away the thought that our soldiers represent the lawful exactors of punish ment for wrong committed, and, ex-plicitly, at least, we admire them and nonor them for other reasons.

In the end, we shall find that we mostly admire and honor the soldier, because we see in him the hero of duty. He is the man of unquestioning obedience to right authority. He has learned to forget himself, and to sacrifice his individual interests, his likes and dislikes, the better to serve the common good. Now, without discipline there can be no effective arm of defense, and discipline means obedience.

Parents may not always take kindly to their sons' enlistment in the service. But they never fail to be proud of the improvement made in their boys by a few months of training. The poise of mind and body has become so much finer. The no longer slouches, but walks like a man who has learned his worth, who knows he has an honorable place in life, and a high duty to ful-fil. It is not a matter of small conceit, either. The young man may feel a little vain because he is admired, but that is a very venial failing, and wears off with the newness of his uniform. Small conceit cannot explain the change. But the per thousand are Protestants of all fact that he has learned to obey like sorts; twenty two and one half per thousand say they have no religion thousand say they have no religion (until the earthquake comes); some to perform them with a man's sense of responsibility to d write themselves down Jews; the told, and when he is told, and just remainder, something over 973 per how he is told; the realization that thousand, openly profess themselves Catholics. But will Mr. Tipple pub. us the reason why the careless youth has developed, almost suddenly, into a trustworthy man.

In the estimate of sensible people. therefore, due submission and obedience do not connote any such idea as a lowering of man's natural dignity. On the contrary, the dignity of man consists in doing well the business proper to a rational creature. All may not command; else who is to carry out the orders? No organization can persist if there be not superiors with the right of bidding others what must be done; if there be not subjects ready to come when they are called, and go whither they are bidden. Every form of coordination. Indeed, it is daily made clear that only the few can fill capably positions of command, and that the many cannot work out their own destiny and that of the race except by joining their efforts with those whom nature, education and experience have fitted for the higher tasks of planning and executing. Authority is more than the natural that holds together social body. It is further the head which directs the free action of the more easily and securely the ends for which society has been formed.

United we stand," "In union there is strength," "E pluribus unum" are recognized national mottoes. And one of the pleasant paradoxes of nature, at the same time one of her sarcastic thrusts, too, at those who turn their back on her, is that anarchists cannot get on without copying the forms of the civil organization which they disclaim. They may cry out against presidents, but they never fail to install certain officials, particularly a trustworthy treasurer or two.

God, we have been a happy people. Our territory is immense. No land taken place," writes the ever held so great a treasure of gold "The American fleet has and grain. Prosperity has lured us on, musically enough, and has enriched us from her store of plenty. cailors or marines in any hospital. But, like every siren, she has her lf disaster comes, no effort will price. She did not stint milk and honey, she lulled us into careless. ness, and into the dream that pros perity would never fail us. She has made us fancy that, whatever befell other nations, there would be for us no interruption of our pleasant afternoon of peace and material success. Perhaps only the rude shock of war could have roused us from our moral narcosis. But we are beginning to see how we went astray, and what is the cause of our erring. We are beginning to realize, as an eminent professor has said, that :

"We are a loose-minded and a loose-mannered people. Money making and fads . . are the only things we take seriously. I share the conviction that this deplorable state of mind and behavior is in its late. mind and behavior is in no small measure the consequence of our fatuous custom of letting our young people 'go on the loose,' instead of holding them to tasks, duty, discipline and achievement.' We are beginning to see that there is no dignity in treason, and no promise of good in those who oppose lawful authority. We are beginning to value the worth of obedience and loyal submission. We are beginning be convinced that only the law abiding man is the good citizen, and that the welfare of the country is in the hands of those who reverence our lawful governors. We are beginning to call things by their proper names, and to distinguish liberty from license. The conviction growing with us that anarchy in all its forms is but a virulent kind of iconoclasm whose principle is first to smash something that sane men revere, and then, if needs be, to trump up a lame excuse for the smashing. Iconoclasm is an acquired taste, and an appetite easily whetted. But then it requires no excellence in the chef to spoil a succulent chop, and a dunce with a bludgeon can ruin a masterpiece.

Since so much of the truth has come home to us, we must go further. Obedience is a virtuous habit. A habit is acquired by the frequent repetition of the same act. edience is a habit acquired with difficulty. Withal, nature has made it the foundation from which all true progress uprises. Our boys and girls have incentive enough, Heaven knows, to be self-willed and unruly We cannot hope that they will be obedient citizens if they have never learned to obey at home. We can hardly expect them to realize the natural necessity and Christian dignity of honoring the law and its representatives if, during their most impressionable years, they have not een schooled in a well-ordered household. If they can do as they please at home, they will argue that they can do as they please anywhere. The home ought to be a seminary of reasonable submission and obedience. Parents are the natural ence. Farents are superiors, teachers, and protectors of their children. Now, what are our parents doing in their homes to make their children realize daily, by word and example, the great truth that St. Paul urged on the Christians of Rome? "Let every soul be subject to higher powers; for there is no power but from God; and those that are ordained of God. Therefore that her twenty the power resistant has been received. he that resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God the ordinance of God . . Render therefore to all men their dues. Tribute to whom tribute is due; to whom custom; fear, to whom fear; honor, to whom honor." -Francis J. McNiff, S. J., in America.

PERFECTION

When Christian perfection is menunder consideration which has no practical concern for them. They magine that perfection is a subject belonging to priests, monks and nuns. And yet when our Lord spoke the words, "Be ye perfect as your heavenly Father is perfect," he addressed them to all his followers. To strive after perfection, then, is a duty incumbent on all Christians.

Nor will this contention raise any protest when it is understood what is meant by perfection. We quote from The Fortnightly Review, (June 15), which in turn borrows its definition of perfection from Cardinal Newman: "We must bear in mind what is meant by perfection. It Newman: does not mean any extraordinary service, anything out of the way, or especially heroic—not all have the opportunity of heroic acts, of suffering-but it means what the word perfection ordinarily means. By perfect we mean that which has no flaw in it, that which is complete, that which is consistent, that which is sound—we mean the opposite to imperfect. As we know well what imperfection in religious service remarkable fact tending to show the means, we know by contrast what is return of faith in 'La Grande Nation'

ask me what you are to do in order practicing ones. In the army it is to be perfect, I say, first—Do not lie the same. Distinguished generals in bed beyond the due time of rising; set an example by observing their out bad thoughts ; make your even ing meditation well; examine yourself daily; go to bed in good time, and you are already perfect.'

Is that all ? you say. Yes, it is all to make an effort to do our daily duties well. Of course this does not mean that, if you make this effort, you are perfect, but it means that you are striving after perfection. And who would contend that we are not bound to make an effort to perform our daily duties well? Espe cially our religious duties? perfection will come as a matter of course if this method is followed, and as a fruit growing naturally from the root of earnest and persistent endeavor .- The Guardian.

VACATION DUTIES

We give very little for the pupil who will part with his books and eachers as if the one were a task and the other an enemy. Books are beloved by the scholar, and teachers are venerated next to parents, for they parent ideas and enrich what nature gave. So then let the children not fling away their books and eradicate the memory of their teachers. In vacation the teacher be lovingly remembered. should When the child has no set lessons, he should take thought on the hardships of the teacher. The poor nun forever slaves. During the school year, what a nervous strain it is to do the double work of a teacher — to keep order — and to impart knowledge. What patience the one takes, what care and intelligence the other. The nun never gets a vacation. She goes from one work to another. In the convent home she meets the old adage - to labor is to pray, and so she prays in work and word. In addition, the summer school engages her energies. She knows enough to know the need of constant study, and she takes every opportunity to develop her powers of mind.

The grateful pupil should then take time to make a contrast between himself and the devoted soul who never plays and never vacates her strenuous toil. - Catholic Columbian.

CLEANSING FIRES OF WAR IN FRANCE

EVIDENCES OF CONVERSION OF FRANCE ARE FOUND IN MOST UNEXPECTED CORNERS

THESE DAYS In most unexpected corners does one find testimony to the return to eligion that the War has wrought in France. Writers, themselves strange to the promptings in the hearts of the men of the trenches that bring them again to the feet of the Crucifix, behold these conversions and simply wonder. But no one who is in touch with military life, even with civil life, in France to day can even heard his name. When a Cathremain blind to the fact that the olic mind advanced a proposition fires of war, fires that there have near enough to the Church to be burned with raging fury, have cleansed the nation of its greatest and the speaker was pool-pooled as shame. In Dumb Animals, a magazine of the Humane Society, a con- are surrounded by the anti-Catholic

The war has not been all evil. Its horrors, crimes, cruelties, its terrible hosts of death, its hundreds, nay thousands of millions of lost treasure, its demoralizing influence on civilian and soldier, all these keeping pure and clear the teaching evils have a counterpart in the hero-ism, self-sacrifice, pure patriotism long persistence in converting the and unselfishness which have been world. so conspicuous, and which, when peace once more blesses the world, will, we believe, bear good fruit.

"It is only natural that religion "It is only natural that religion should be affected in a very large measure while practically the whole "They could not help their Catholicity" tioned it is perhaps the majority of Catholics who think that a subject is under consideration. with the enemy. The Poilu, the hero assium in water, it began to fizz at and pride of his country, has in the trenches had time to think and reconsider his former attitude towards the religion he once flaunted. Beginning by doubting the justness of his former views, and coming in touch with the men for whom he formerly professed contempt, often that great charge led by Newman, even hatred, his doubts have become conviction and to day he frankly admits his error. The 'Clericals' no longer are his pet aversion. The tial teaching of the Catholic Church 'Poilu' has found in them good, was not getting a stronger hold, but clean living comrades, always ready to help, always at hand to speed him on his way to a heaven he formerly disbelieved in. He has long since seen the folly of attributing to the hadalways begunagain. After giving Clericals, his former arch enemies, an imagined conspiracy to rob him of his freedom, to hold the masses in thraldom by preaching a religion he once believed to be an impossible fable unworthy of credence.
"Although France has had its periods of unbelief, when we say France we mean a considerable portion of its people, for religion never dies, though for a time eclipsed. meant by perfection.

He, then, is perfect who does the work of the day perfectly, and we need not go beyond this to seek for perfection. You need not go out of perfection. the round of the day.

I insist on this because I think it will simplify our views, and fix our exertions on, a definite aim. If you in bed beyond the due time of rising; give your first thoughts to God; make a good visit to the Blessed Sacrament; say the Angelus devoutnot pretend to guess, but taking the inherent sillness of these them all as Italians we reach some reports should have been their best hearts, and trouble a begetter of ly; eat and drink to God's glory; say to be seen going to Mass as they crowd around their priests when Divine help is sought.

mission at the front he said: 'I generally employ priests.' Over two thousand of these devoted men have stricken the dear Motherland. That so gifted a people as the French should once more embrace the faith they had in a great measure abandoned, and the spectacle of crowded churches filled, as we know, to the

CATHOLIC DUTY

Hilaire Belloc, famous Catholic writer, is a member of the Catholic Truth Society. That society met in Cathedral hall, Westminster, England, recently. Somewhat pessimis-tically, Mr. Belloc said that Catholicism was making no progress in Eng-land. However, he believed that the Catholic Truth Society was responsi-ble for keeping the Church in Eng-land from losing entire hold.

"Therefore," he concluded, "I shall with increasing gloom continue to do my work in connection with

An English report of his speech reads :

Mr. Hilaire Belloc put forward, with some apology for presenting a purely personal point of view a somewhat pessimistic outlook on Catholic progress in England. The problem before Catholics in this country was unique, with the exception o before the Catholics of Holland, only Holland was a small country ours a great. Catholics in England lived entirely surrounded by a community not only non-Catholic, but anti-Catholic in its preconceptions. Things which were commonplaces in other countries were in hardly ever mentioned. The war between the Catholic Church and Free masonry; who heard it? The priority of the family to the State, which every Catholic felt instinctive ly; he never saw it advanced. It was taken for granted that the State was prior to the family and that a parent had a very small right over his own child. You did not find Catholic history, even in the hands of Catholics. Mr. Belloc related with sardonic humor his own experiences in this connection, saying that when he was at Oxford there was not a Don there who had read a word of clear, it was received with distaste having a "geometrical" mind. tributor, Edw. Fox Sainsbury, writes from Paris under the date of March how to maintain, let alone how to extend.

Mr. Belloc then referred to two Those two characteristics were with Catholics in general, both bad and good. The former he could not deal with; the latter concerned being exasperated by the views advanced by those outside. Like potonce. How were they to be satisfied under their very peculiar circumstances. He made the personal confession that he had supposed the thing was impossible, the was no longer possible. They were swamped. Look at that great stroke, possible. They were and ending, he might say, with Manning. Their society was no larger today than then. The essenwas not getting a stronger hold, but apparently a weaker one, while Protestantism was getting stronger, not weaker. Mr. Belloc then said that after answering in the negative he a picture of the exasperation caused by such things as the fact that our priests were looked upon and classed as the clergy of one of the many conflicting sects, he pointed out a corrective to the extreme point of view he had put forward. Faith had always been propagated by the appeal to the individual. It got to the mass later. This was true from the Church's foundation. There they came to the function of the Catholic Robinson.....

Nowadays men Truth Society. It dealt in its publications with specific points of Divine help is sought.

"In this terrible struggle the priest has displayed a spirit of fraternity—a self-sacrificing heroism beyond all praise, beyond all belief.

"When General Joffre wanted men for some source of the self-sacrificing heroism beyond the property of the self-sacrificing heroism beyond the self-sacrificing heroism between the self-sacrificing heroism between the self-sacrificing heroism between the self-sacrificing heroism between the self-s cerned, and the little he had written had been on those lines.

He then bore witness to the evidence of the working of the society, given their lives in witness to that in the very large field covered by its pamphlets one had the fact that "From end to end of France religion has become sacred. A new He himself saw it continually hapand purified race will emerge from all the orgies of blood that have position, both general and particular, that had clearly proceeded from some one of the society's pamphlets. Paradoxical as it might sound, thought it almost as important that the pamphlets should be read by very doors, is a comforting fact Catholics as by non-Catholics, be from which legitimate hope of a cause the mass of our own people cause the mass of our own people better future for the nation is per- did not know what ought to be said on points as they arose. The note that Mr. Belloc ended on was the value of the society's work, in spite of his own pessimism. "Therefore," he concluded, "I shall with increasing gloom continue to do my work in connection with it."-Catholic Bulletin.

STANDING THE TEST

"While the Socialists are taking down the flags of the country and opposing the government in way, and while the Knights of Luther are in hiding, Catholics are loyally doing their duty by their country," says the True Voice. "The day when patriotism is put to the test is here; and behold the contrast! Those who in times of peace busied them salves with making charges of unpatriotism against Catholics are now lurking in their hiding places or tear-ing down American flags, while Catholics are supporting their country with all the means at their disposal. and offering their lives as a sacrifice on the altar of patriotism. The people of America can judge who is loyal and who unpatriotic by the action of men when the real test of patriotism comes. The so-called patriotic societies are not volunteering for service. Catholics are volunteering in such numbers as to attract the attention and the praise of secular editors. They can leave Socialists and their kind the notoriety attaching to tearing down flags and cursing the government. That is not their brand of patriotism. Where sacrifices for country are to be made they will always be found in the front rank. In times of pe they are not denouncing their fellow men and seeking to create unjust suspicions of their patriotism; but in time of war no one dare question their patriotic devotion to the country that shelters them.'

No human idea of God, or of God's love, would have been able even to conceive this splendid stretch of God's power,—the Holy Eucharist!

In a Catholic land, the Blessed Sacrament is first and foremost. For It, great churches rise; for It, precious tabernacles, costly vessels, are provided.

FATHER FRASER'S CHINESE MISSION

Taichowfu, China, Nov. 26, 1916 Dear Readers of CATHOLIC RECORD towards m mission is approved by the highest ecclesiastical authorities of Canada let me quote from a letter from His Excellency, The Most Rev. Peregrine Stagni, O. S. M., D. D., Apostolio Delegate, Ottawa: 'I have been watching with much interest the contributions to the Fund opened on behalf of your missions by the CATHOLIC RECORD. The success has been very gratifying and shows the deep interest which our Catholic people take in the work of the missionary in foreign lands. bless you most cordially and all your labors, as a pledge my earnest wishes for your greatest success in all your undertakings." I entreat you to continue the support of my struggling mission, assuring you a remembrance in my prayers and Masses. Yours faithfully in Jesus and Mary, J. M. FRASER, Previously acknowledged... $11,183 45

P. Flynn, Niagara Falls.. 'For conversion of a soul' S. B. MacNeil, Port 1 00 Hawkesbury .. 1 00 Sincere Friend, Mary land ... 5 00 In memory of souls in Purgatory, C. Bay.......... Pupils of Loretto Academy 50 Stratford .. 5 00 Thanksgiver, Paris..... 2 00 Poverty, Lindsay..... 1 00 Love and Thanksgiving to the Sacred Heart of 1 00 1 00

Merchants Bank of Canada

ESTABLISHED 1864 Paid Up Capital, $7,000,000 | Total Deposits, $ 92,102,072 Reserve Funds, 7,421,292 Total Assets, 121,130,558 GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS 236 Branches and Agencies in Canada

Savings Department at All Branches Deposits Received and Interest Allowed at Best Current Rates Bankers to the Grey Nuns, Montreal; St. Augustine's Seminary, St. Joseph's Academy, and St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto.

ABSORBINE STUPS

from a Bone Spavin, Ring Bone Splint, Curb, Side Bone, or smile

trouble and gets horse going sound.

Does not blister or remove the hair and horse can be worked. Page 17 in pamphlet with each bottle tells how. $2.00 a bottle delivered. Horse Book 9 K free.

Horse Book 9 K free.

ABSORBINE, JR., antiseptic liniment for mankind. Reduces Painful Swellings, Enlarged Glands, Goitre, Wens, Bruises, Varicose Veins, Varicosities, heals Old Sores. Allays Pain. Will tell you more if you write $1 and $2 a bottle at dealers or delivered. Book "Evidence" free. Manufactured only by W.F. YOUNG, P.D.F.299Lymans Bldg., Montreal, Can. Absorbine and Absorbine. Jr., are made in Canada.

FIVE MINUTE SERMON

REV. F. P. HICKEY, O. S. B. SIXTH SUNDAY AFTER PENTECOST

THE HOLINESS OF THE CHURCH

The second mark of the Church of Christ is its Holiness. And this character it has derived from its Founder; has perpetuated by the means of being holy, with which He endowed it; and this mark is its lory, witnessed to and proved by the sanctity of the lives of so many who have been steadfast to its faith and doctrine.

The Founder of the Church is none other than God made man. Christ Jesus our Lord. He, before Whom the four living creatures, resting not day or night, exclaim:
"Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God
Almighty." (Apoc. iv. 8.) He is the Founder of the Church, and His merciful object in founding it was to make it holy, and endow it with the means of making the souls of men holy, sanctifying and saving them.

Yes, men say, He did that when He redeemed us, and blotted out the handwriting against us. What need, then, of the Church?

The mission and work of the Church is to apply the effects of the Redemption to the souls of men. If this continued application were not necessary, why did its Founder not only redeem by His Death, but perpetuate His Redemption, by instituting the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass? And saying, this in commemoration of Me," did He not bequeath it to the Church as the great means of holiness?

dear brethren, in our Church, the home of our souls, there is every means and requisite to make us holy, and their efficacy is derived from the Precious Blood of Christ. These means are the Sacraments of

The little child is brought to the font; the waters of baptism wash away original sin, and at once it is a child of God, signed and sealed heir to the Kingdom of God. It is made Later on the stripling and the maiden are anointed with chrism in confirmation to strengthen them and keep them holy. And through life, how many times-seven times, or times seven times?" (Matt. xviii. 22) as our Lord said. does the poor sinner, who has fallen, come to the sacrament of penance? He is there forgiven, his soul is cleansed by the power of the Preci-Blood, he is made holy once

And, day by day, the Holy Mass is offered up, the bread and wine changed into the Body and Blood of offered Himself, a bleeding victim, on the cross to His Heavenly Father. continues to offer Himself in an unthe ministry of priests." And at the gress, whose results have can purify and fortify their souls, by Jesus Christ. This is "the memor-4.) the Almighty's highest effort to

This, then, is the work of holy Church. Who are we to talk of impressed this man in his first-hand being redeemed once? Are we so contact with this period of transition Do we never fall into sin? Have we | trouble which Baltimore has experiin us," (1 John i. 8.) So the work of dry States, he has heard of else-of the Church is to watch over us, care for us, cleanse and nourish our against the saloon is strong enough souls, as a mother does her child. Our holy Mother the Church we call law, it has followed that men and her. Weunderstandaboutourbodies, women accustomed to its ministrastrengthened, not once, but continually all through life. But our soul!

us to destruction! world shall last, it will be found ministering to the souls of men.

The Church holy! yes, in its Founder, and in the means of holiness bestowed upon it. But look around, see the number of careless, indifferent, even bad Catholics, and how can one say the Church is holy? By its children let it be known.

My dear brethren, do not be misled by talk like this. Yes, there are bad Catholics, and they are bad, just because they neglect the means of holiness so kindly offered them by the Church. It is not the Church that has made them bad, but their wilful disobedience to the Church, neglecting the holy Sacraments, despising the Presence of their Lord upon the Altar that has devout, obedient, and loyal to the ment, by poor people who could destiny.

Faith. Even now, how many throughout the world are leading Faith. careful, faithful lives, using the means of holiness afforded them by the Church. And it is not a weary, lonely life that they are leading. They are working before the eye of their hearts, and sees their patience, and their love, and their pure intendoing all for Him. world they seem the same as others: before Heaven they are the holy ones of God. And their hope and courage are buoyed up by looking at the example of the Saints who have gone before them. The Saints, the heroic men and women, who have been witnesses, in every age and in every country, to the holiness of the Church, whose children they were. And if their lives reflect the holiness of the Church and give glory to it remember to each one of us the same Church offers the same means of holiness. To use those means and become holy, or to neglect those means and be lost, depends upon ourselves. We have free will, we can choose for ourselves.

Prayer, after the Sacraments, is the great means of holiness. Let us pray, then, pray daily, pray earnestly for a good will to use all these means with such diligence and per severance that we may become holy children of the Church, that "glori ous Church . . . holy and without blemish."

TEMPERANCE

THE POPULAR MARCH AGAINST THE SALOON

A Springfield business man whose duties carry him to all the principal centers of the Northwest, West and South has been powerfully impressed with the growth of temperance sen timent and action. Year by year he has seen the dissatisfaction with the saloon as a community asset steadily enlarging until results have been achieved that command the attention of the country. This change not been emotional on the lines which begot the Washingtonian novement of long ago and inspired the oratory of John B. Gough and his successors, but has had its origin and strength in practical business considerations. As an economic factor the saloon is being recognized as an undesirable element which does not contribute anything of advantage to the common cause.

The oratory of prohibitionists has played small part in this change of opinion. The local traveler found times, to safeguard their children that the economic factor had taken hold of the minds of leading citizens of localities visited who were pushing against the saloon because of belief that their city or State Christ. This is the holiest doctrine and the holiest practice in the ago railroads and other employers of Church of God. What sanctified the labor began to put the ban upon souls of men? The sacrifice of the employees who indulged in liquor, cross. What continues, then, to and this public recognition that it sanctify them but that same Sacri impaired efficiency has helped to imfice, the Holy Mass, which, as the Catechism teaches us, "is one and our traveler reports that for a long the same Sacrifice as that of the time back the saloon issue has been cross, inasmuch as Christ, Who quite at the front in the talk of his customers. It was always introduced before his visits ended. helped to establish in his mind the bloody manner on the Altar, through fact that a social change was in pro-Mass, the faithful can communicate, placed in large evidence on the map of the United States. The contrast receiving the Body and blood of between the trend of opinion and the pioneer days of the West is ial of His wonderful works," (Ps. cx. striking, of course. The period of the "bad man" who shoots up towns has gone into history.

Another phase of the situation has innocent and holy throughout life? as it relates to the saloon. The never been unfaithful to God? "If enced through an influx of undesirawe say that we have no sin, we de- ble citizens who left Virginia beceive ourselves, and the truth is not cause it has gone into the column to command the enforcement of the that they must be fed and clothed, tions do not care to stay, and in due and diseases checked and weaknesses course a considerable portion of them move on to some locality where the saloon flourishes. This is Oh, it was redeemed once, what obviously to the advantage of the matter how foul a life we have led place of exodus and undesirable for since, no matter the vile habits we the places to which these people go. have fallen into, no matter the burden of grave and awful sins dragging ginia has been duplicated in anything like the same degree elsewhere The Church would have failed in there must have been a great shift its holy mission, if it allowed its children to live like this. To make which remain wet. The first effect us holy is its work. It has every means necessary from the hand of God, its Founder, and as long as the departments. — Springfield Republican.

DON'T BUY BY THE COVER "Writing of Catholic publications and Catholic reading we are reminded of the fact that the Catholic public is often really victimized in this very matter," says the Catholic surely have made much better invest ments in reading matter. What we say of Bibles may be said equally of certain ponderous volumes contain ing the life of the Blessed Virgin Of course these are useful books in themselves but when They know that He reads so gotten up as to be unavailable ex cept for ornament, and when creat ing an obstacle to the purchase of books more easily and more generally read, they do not serve Catholic

SCANDALIZING THE LITTLE ONES

"Why are you priests so insistent," an anonymous correspondent recent ly inquired, "on keeping Catholic children in Catholic schools? I am a devout Catholic myself, but like many other good Catholics, send my children without scruple to non-Catholic schools.

The "devout Catholic," figuring occasionally in our newspapers, is a being curiously and fearfully made. As a rule, he is in a state of chronic revolt against the Church. He adopts the singular policy of proving his devotion to the Faith by slander ing its official teachers, or by doing his puny best to tear down what the Church builds up. Generally he possesses an abysmal ignorance of Catholic belief and practice; much of his correspondence he concludes with his self-assigned title, suppressing for reasons of humility, his illustrous name. Sometimes he masquerades "broadminded Catholic "educated Catholic," realizing no doubt, the serious need of somehow proving the breadth of his intellect nd the general tremendousness of his mental equipment.

CATHOLICS REAL AND FICTITIOUS

But my anonymous correspondent is in error in believing that good Catholics entrust their children, by choice, to non-Catholic schools. the absence of extenuating circum stances, of which the Church proper judge, parents who send their children to non-Catholic schools are, by the very fact, not good Catholics. out disloyal and disobedient Catho-"Good" Catholics make every effort to "think with the Church, and according to the Church's think ing, expressed, for instance, in the Baltimore Decrees, and in countless episcopal pastorals, the only safe place for the education of the Catho child is the Catholic school. 'Good" Catholics gladly sacrifice many things, their real necessities at against the perils to faith and morals so common in a society which is fast persuading itself that it can get along better without God than with God. They know that this necessary training can be had, ordinarily speak ing, only in a Catholic school. They also know that an account of the care they have given their children will be exacted before the judgment seat of God. Therefore they gladly choose the Catholic school for children. These parents are in truth devout Catholics"; our anonymous correspondents obviously have no not silver and fool's gold is not gold Neither are they even passable Catholics who condemn their children to schools, when might easily place them in institu-tions where the name of Jesus Christ is revered, and not, as in the secular school, forbidden.

THE WORDS OF CHRIST

In many cases, moreover, if not in all, they may be thought the objects of one of the most terrible maledictions uttered by the lips of the Saviour of mankind. He said of Judas, that it were better he had never born; for those place the little ones of His flock in the occasions of evil, He reserves a punishment compared with which the death of the body is as nothing. "And Jesus calling unto him a little child, set him in the midst of them, and said . . . he that shall re-ceive one such little child in My Name receiveth Me. But he that shall scandalize one of these little ones that believe in Me, it were better for him that a millstone should be hanged about his neck, and that he should be drowned in the depth of the sea."

Does this condemnation apply to parents who freely send their children to schools not conducted in His name, schools in which God has no

THE DUTY OF PARENTS

By the law of nature, parents are strictly bound to care for their children. This obligation is by no means fulfilled by providing for the child's mother, the child is no mere entity again," of time, capable of mental and physical development within certain limits, but a being truly made to the image of God. He has an immortal soul essentially differentiating him from the brute beast; his destiny Universe. "Books are made up out of old materials, a few facts are added on cognate subjects of present interest, the volume is handsomely after the period of his earthly exist bound, and an agent goes about the country selling the book, receiving an eternity of happiness or pain. payments in installments and making 60% on his sales. Such books within the power of his free will, ornament a table and are little read; cooperating with the grace of God, an incubus of installments is laid on but the line of his choice is deeply

Clean to handle. Sold by all Drug-gists, Grocers and General Stores.

DELEGATING THIS DUTY

In the present constitution of society, this priestly office is delegated in part to the school. For the time being, the instructor shares the duty and the authority of father and mother. Parents, therefore, are strictly bound in conscience not to delegate any part of their duty or authority to any who are either unable or unwilling to watch over the spiritual as well as the physical and mental welfare of their children. If parents are careless or indifferent in sharing an authority which by the law of nature belongs primarily to them, not to the State, they fail grievously in their duty to their children. It is clear then, that except for grave reasons, approved by the proper ecclesiastical authority, a Catholic parent may not give the child into the keeping of teachers who are obliged by law to exclude even the most casual instruction in supernatural religion. "Their angels in heaven always see the face of my Father," said Our Lord of the children He had gathered about Him. But the secular school, unconcerned with life's most important interests, has nothing to teach the neglected child of the angels, of God, its last end, of Heaven. For "secularized" education, narrow in concept and crude in practice, knows nothing of these things, except, perhaps, that they are "sectarian teachings," to be avoided in the class room quite as carefully as profane language.

THE CHILD AND THE FAILURE The enemies of religion understand the importance of the receptive, impressionable years of childhood far etter than many a Catholic parent. In himself small and feeble, as Pere Garaud remarks, the child "is destined to be all. He is the future. is the family, society, the Church, And it is equally true that the child of to-day may be the out-cast of the next generation, a wrecker of all family ideals, a fanatic with hands impotently raised against the Church of God. Our enemies realize, and act upon their realization, that in securing the child, they secure the future. It is this reason precisely which has dictated the complete secularization of education in France, and which through the indifference of the Ameri can public, nominally Christian, bids fair to encompass a like result in our own country.

" SECULARIZING " EDUCATION

"Secularization" is the word of the hour. We have secular educasecular charity, secular tion. churches, and a secular State. Small wonder, then, that we also live in a society, worldly in the Scriptural sense, a society that finds God an unpleasant memory or a curious myth, and deems His commandments an unwarranted restriction upon the freedom of the individual to work out his own destiny. This is the world which our children must soon face. Are we preparing them to pass through it unscathed by entrusting them to schools whose highest religious effort is the furtive admission that any religion is good if one finds it helpful? Plainly, this miserable principle means the substitution of a primitive form of pragmatism for the acceptance, binding on every human creature, of a supernatural revela-tion. Can the Catholic parent who freely subjects his child to schools ruled by this base spirit, escape before the judgment seat of God, the condemnation of those who "scandalize these little ones that believe in me?"-Paul L. Blakely, S. J., in

COMING "TO THEIR OWN AGAIN'

Dr. Arthur Anderson Martin. Protestant physician from New Zea land who joined the first British Expeditionary Force, tells in his inphysical and mental welfare. Enteresting war-book, entitled "A trusted by the Almighty Creator to Surgeon in Khaki." how the Sisters the guardianship of father and of France have "come to their own and pays the enthusiastic tribute to their efficien cy and devotion :

The nuns at this hospital [Bethune] were simply splendid all through, and I can quite understand how the religious Sisters have come to their own again in France. the earliest times and up till about eight years ago all the nursing in the French hospitals was done by Sisters belonging to the various Religious Orders. Then came one of the big political upheavals for which France has been so noted in the past, and their Lord upon the Altar that has made them what they are. But even for them there is holiness in the Church, if they will return to it repentant prodigals.

But their bad example is far more than atoned for by the holy lives of the subjects of the Church, who in all lages and in all lands have been advent chedient, and loval to the subjects of the church, who in all ages and in all lands have been devent chedient, and loval to the subjects of the church, who poor people who could destiny.

Cooperating with the grace of count, and incubus of installments is laid on the buyer; he pays twice as much as ought to be asked for the book and training. In the intention of the Church, every home should, therefore, be a sanctuary, and every father and mother a minister of grace, turning the unfolding mind of dollars, and solely used for an ornative cooperating with the grace of count, an incubus of installments is laid on the buyer; he pays twice as much as ought to be asked for the book and training. In the intention of the Church, every home should, therefore, be a sanctuary, and every father and mother a minister of grace, turning the unfolding mind of dollars, and solely used for an ornative classification.

As they were no longer able to exercise the possional skill, and no more of the younger nuns were the nursing Sisters gradually disappeared from the hospitals, owing to the hostility of the State to the Church and all connected with it. more of the younger nuns were trained in nursing, it followed that on the outbreak of War only the older nuns were capable of under-taking skilled nursing in the many hospitals. The demand for nurses was a clamant one, for from the very beginning of the War there were large casualties. It was said that the nursing by the lay sisters who succeeded the religious Sisters was not of such a high order as in the old days owing to the absence of the strict and rigid discipline, the very fiber of the life of a Sister in religion. I have heard this both from French surgeons and from visiting British surgeons. . . It was at this critical phase that the Franciscan Sisters, and the Sisters of other Religious Orders, quietly took their places beside the wounded French soldiers. Just as quietly they opened up their convents, churches, and buildings, warehouses, chateaux, cottages, railway waiting-rooms, and turned them into hospitals for the wounded and sick men. Working tirelessly night and day, knowing no fatigue and shrinking from no task or danger, and glorying in their mission, they performed marvels. The younger Sisters were put to subordinate nursing duties, rigorously trained by the elder ones in the principles of nursing. . . I do not think that any future government of France will ever dare to oust the religious Sisters from the hospitals. These quiet - voiced, simple-robed women, carrying help and compassionate pity in the welter of blood and slaughter, have come to their own 'again."

The "lay sisters" Dr. Martin speaks of were the secular nurses, it should be explained, who took the place of the banished religious, but whose professional skill was not found to be of such a "high order as was that of the Sisters they supplanted. To the thoughtful Catho lic, however, there is nothing par ticularly remarkable in the spectacle that so impressed the "Surgeon in Khaki." For those noble French Sisters are simply doing now what Church has been doing all through her history. The gift of irresistible energy and resourceful ness is hers, and nothing can keep her from exercising the Divine mis sion of teaching, healing and reconciling. If the Church's enemies refuse to let her undertake this work or that, she will meekly turn to another. If she is driven out of country, she stands just beyond the frontier, and seizes the first opportunity to return and minister to the dire needs of those who banished her. If the Church is not allowed to teach, she will nurse the sick. she is not permitted to preach to Catholics, she goes forth to evangelize the heathen. The Catholic Church is the only institution in the world that can always afford to bide her time and be patient, for against her, according to the Divine promise gates of hell shall not prevail. Not only in France but everywhere as well, the Church will come into her own " at last .- America.

THE UNBELIEVER

(Monsignor 'John Ayscough" Bickerstaffe-Drew) is the kindliest of philosophers, but even he has a rather sharp word to say about the man who poses as an unbeliever. He asserts:

The great majority of those who profess to be unable to believe are taken too seriously. They are encouraged to regard themselves as familiars of Satan, when they are only his Jack-in-the boxes and tin whistles. Such figures as they are intellectually are best reformed by their oddity suggests.

HEED THE WARNING

"At the beginning of the vacation eason the warning is given to Catholics not to go off to some place where there is no resident priest," says the Catholic Columbian. "Abundant Catholic Columbian. "Abundant rest and recreation can be found in localities where there is opportunity to hear Mass on Sunday and to receive the last Sacraments in case of sudden illness. In serious matters it is criminal to take unnecessary

Sorrow's best antidote is occupation .- Young

URSULINE COLLEGE

"The Pines", Chatham, Ontario

College, Preparatory, Commercial

Domestic Science and Art Courses

SCHOOL OF MUSIC affiliated with TORONTO CONSERVATORY

CHERRY HILL

Vacation Camp and Tutoring School

JUNE 15th - SEPTEMBER 20th

For Catholic Boys 12—20 years of age. Competent tutoring in all branches if desired. Healthful location near shore of Lake Ontario.

Facilities for out door sports; good food. Ideal spot for vacation or study. All charges moderate. References given and required.

The Secretary, "Cherry Hill", Cooksville, Ont., Canada

For information and terms, address:

APPLY FOR PROSPECTUS TO THE REV. MOTHER SUPERIOR

Fruit Jars and other Glassware can easily be kept immac-ulate with Old Dutch And remember, this cleanser never harms your hands Cleanser

ASSUMPTION COLLEGE

Write for free

Cook Book.

MONTREAL.

To make these dainty dishes

SANDWICH, ONTARIO

A Boarding School for Young Men and Boys

Offering College or Arts Course High School Course Business Course and Preparatory Course for Younger Boys

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

REV. T. V. MOYLAN, C.S.B.

"THE LILY OF THE COAL FIELDS"

A novel of unusual force, thrilling at times with drama and tragedy, and appealing with tenterest pathos at others. A book that any woman will love because of its sweet, fearless heroine. A book that any man will enjoy because of its vivid pictures of the coal regions and the strong character drawings of the miners A plea for the downtrodden. Tears and smiles run riot through this delightful story. Read "The Lily' once, and you will read it again. Order at once Price 50c. Postpaid

The Catholic Record LONDON, CANADA

PRAYER BOOK PICTURES

Fit-A-Prayer-Book Series

THIS SERIES includes 24 different representations. The subjects are most popular and inspiring, while the text is clearly printed in a tint which harmonizes perfectly with the rest of the picture; it appears in the form of an ejaculation or pious meditation.

Considering the fine cut border, the delicate yet rich colors, the flexible linen-finished paper, and the handy size, we believe we have a series of pictures which will appeal to every one.

Per Pack of 25-25c. post paid " 50-45c. " 100-60c. "

The Catholic Record LONDON, CANADA

CHATS WITH YOUNG

IF YOU WERE BUSY If you were busy being kind, Before you knew it you would find You'd soon forget to think 'twas true That someone was unkind to you.

If you were busy being glad And cheering people who were sad, Although your heart might ache a bit.

You'd soon forget to notice it.

If you were busy being good And doing just the best you could, You'd not have time to blame some Who's doing just the best he can.

If you were busy being true To what you know you ought to do, You'd be so busy you'd forget The blunders of the folks you've met.

If you were busy being right, You'd find yourself too busy quite To criticise your neighbor long cause he's busy being wrong

USE THE PRESENT

Always at some future time it is our intention and expectation to be Death appeared certain. Gemonat what we are not today-to be better, differently, to make more of our lives and work. Isn't it so with you? Aren't you always looking forward to the day when your besetting sins Virgin, I command thee to do me no shall lose their grasp upon you, when the best part of your nature shall assert itself and you shall become the individual you think it is in you to become—in other words, in you to become—in other words, in you to become—in other words, you crush your weakness and give your best nature a chance?

Of course you are-you wouldn't be much of a man if you didn't keep such an ideal before you, if you didn't strive each day to improve upon your performance of the day before. You would be standing still, absolutely stagnating if you did not make such is never too late to be what we might in olden times belonged to a power-have been;" and it's true, too, isn't ful chief called Neal Mor. One day If you drew a blank yesterday, it doesn't follow that you will today. hay, a violent tempest of wind and You have a new opportunity; you rain came on, which quite destroyed You have a new opportunity; you rain came on, which quite destroyed can begin to do what you might have the crop. Then Neal Mor was filled make of it what you will.

We dream dreams of the things we are going to do in the future. Isn't the Lord God Himself to battle. this present good enough for us? But we are alwaws saying "to-morrow." Why not "today?" Why not

Do you know that because we have this putting off habit, because we have learned to say "tomorrow" with the sword in his hand, was instead of "today" we miss half the lifted high up into the air and then joy of living; we miss the pleasure that is in hand looking forward to the pleasure that may be; we to this day, and the castle is still miss the chance of doing good work because we are thinking of the fine thing we are going to do next week. We walk along blind and deaf to so utterly by the vengeance of God. much that is ours for the takingwe're really only half alive, most of us, we use neither our bodies nor horse was cast up out of the earth; our minds to their fullest and best.

reach higher always, to look ahead, but don't let's miss the present; don't let's lose all of today in thinking of The stone figure is still preserved at tomorrow.

IMPOSSIBLE

What do you want to be? What would you like to accomplish? Decide for yourself. Will it firmly. Use the necessary means. Keen if persistently. And you'll

Every day we live we see the thing that is "impossible" performed, the dream of some man with vision commoving by its own power, but today the automobile is too common to cause comment. And the thought of a man flying — impossible again! Look at the place the air craft is taking in the great War. What is impossible? Let no man say.

We take up our appointed task, it looks difficult to us, well-nigh impossible. We're very sure we can't accomplish it, it looms before us mountain high—but we can do this thing. We don't do it in a day nor in a month, but we can do it by keeping it ever before us, by climbing inch by inch. Sometimes we slip back and sometimes the jeers of others, the wet blankets, the prophets of evil, those who have no faith, no vision, discourage us, but we must learn to look ahead, to keep our eyes and our mind on the task in hand.

STRIVING TO IMPROVE

Edison, with his marvelous achievements, has taught us what those can do who take for their motto, "I can do better." When, after a long trial, he received a satisfactory report from the superintendent of his cement plant, the one remark Edison made The only way to keep ahead of the procession is to experiment. If you don't, the other fellow will. When there's no experimenting there's no progress. Stop experimenting and you go backward. If old when he was beheaded by the anything goes wrong, experiment until you get to the very bottom of the trouble."—Catholic Columbian.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE BOY WHO TRIES

The boy who wins is sure of praise, And yet I somehow prize Through stress of dark and cloudy days

The gallant boy who tries.

The lad whose valor hold its own In presence of defeat, Who falls and rises, makes no moan In dust, or cold or heat.

A thousand praise the boy who wins, But twice ten thousands rise Beyond this world of clamorous dins To praise the boy who tries.

LEGEND OF THE SCAPULAR

The following beautiful incident is related in the "Chroniques du Carmel": A Christian named Joseph nat, was on his journey toward Baghdad. He passed through the desert of Killa, in which there were many lions. Whilst nearing Samona, Joseph suddenly heard the roar of the dreaded beast, and in another moment saw it furiously rushing toward him. The poor traveler abandoned all hope of escape, and his horse stood and shook with fear. recommended his soul to God and then taking his scapular from his breast held it before the lion and said: "In the name of the Blessed At this the lion stood still, harm." ceased to roar, turned and fled. The Prefect-Apostolic, together with many and bore testimony to its truth. Thus as on many occasions was verified the promise of our Mother, that the Scapular is "a safeguard in danger.'

LEGEND OF NEAL MOR

There is a great hole or well near the River Suir, always filled with water, whose depth no man has yet It was George Elliot who said: "It sale to be what we might in olden times belonged to a powerwhile his servants were saving the the golden present is yours to with rage, and he mounted his horse and drew his sword, and rode forth to the field; and there he challenged And he swung his sword round his "to- head and struck at the air, as if he would slay the Great Invisible Spirit. There's never a better time than On which suddenly a strange thing happened, for a great whirlwind arose and the earth opened and Neal cast down alive into the great hole, called Poulmor, which may be seen standing by the margin. But no trace of Neal Mor or his steed was ever again beheld. They perished

But, some time after his disappearance, a rude stone figure seated on a and then all men knew the fate of need to have these ideals, to the terrible chief who had braved the wrath of God, for here was his image and the sign of his destruction. the castle, and tradition says that if it were removed the whole castle would crumble to pieces in a single night and be cast into the Poulmor. -The Monitor.

TWO CHILD SAINTS

On May 12 is celebrated the feast day of one of the young virgin martyrs of the early church, St. Flavia Domitilla. She was the little niece ing true. Men said that it was im. of Dometian, one of the cruel emperors of Rome, and also a niece send it across the ocean—and lo, it was done. Men said that it was impossible to talk over a wire—and put to death her uncle he banished Flavia Domitilla to a far island we do it every day without even thinking of the wonder of it. They laughed at the thought of a vehicle on this island she lived with two holy servants, and spent her time in

> After the death of Dometian another wicked emperor ruled in Rome by the name of Trajan. Flavia Domitilla returned to her native city, but was burned to death by the order of Trajan because she would not sacrifice to false gods.

Another youthful saint and martyr whose feast day is also on the 12th day of May, is St. Pancras.

Hundreds and hundreds of years ago, to be exact, in the year 304, a very wicked emperor ruled in Rome whose name was Dioclesian. He did everything horrible to the Christians try to make them give up their religion and adore the heathen gods. Sometimes he would give them to the lions, at other times torture them on the rack and yet again at other times he would have them

During one of these persecutions little boy named Pancras was brought before the emperor and accused of being a Christian. The cruel king tried to make Pancras sacrifice to the false gods, but the little boy knew that would be wrong. He knew that Christ had died for him, so he was brave enough to willingly give his life for the faith of Christ. He was only fourteen years order of Dioclesian.

Children, look in those eyes, listen "God," says St. John Chrysostom, "thunders long before striking with His lightning; and, even then, He strikes but with one spark." God awaits us patiently, pardons us without delay, and triumphs at our amendment, "God," says St. John Chrysostom, to that dear voice, notice the feeling of even a single touch that is bestowed upon you by that gentle hand! Make much of it while yet you have that nost precious of all awaits us patiently, pardons us without delay, and triumphs at our fathomable love of those eyes; the kind anxiety of that tone and look, are of Irish hands have not supported and in which Irish hearts are not found in which however slight your pain. In after life you may have friends, fond dear friends, but never will you have again the inexpressible love and gentleness lavished upon you which none but a mother can bestow.—

CARDINAL GIBBONS ON ST. PATRICK AND HIS WORK

In his profoundly interesting pair of volumes devoted to a "A Retrospect of Fifty Years," His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons has a special chapter on "The Apostolic Mission of the Irish Race," in which the almost miraculous Avatar of St. Patrick on Ireland is dwelt upon in most impressive periods, as to its significance in the province of historical development and the theory of the eternal fitness of things and the choice of instruments by Wisdom, among the multitudinous races of mankind, by which to carry out His mighty plans. The fact that a single Apostle converted a whole nation of Pagan people highly gifted, emotional and warlike, but yet so lofty and spiritual in their native aspirations that their national symbol was the beautiful form of a winged woman, radiating into the shape of a stringed harp, without the spilling of one drop of human blood while the transformation was taking place, has no parallel in history, before or since. The additional fact that that nation, won to the Christian religion solely by love and the grace of God, has clung to it with a constancy that no power of persecution or temptation could shake, for fifteen hundred years, is not less remarkable, in a world of change and vicissitude. Cardinal Gibbons has, no doubt, emphasized the significance of these portents, on more than one occasion, as explana. tory of the title which Ireland had for centuries before the Christian era borne-the Isle of Destiny. In his Retrospect "he selects a discourse delivered by himself in St. Patrick's Church, Baltimore, on March 17, 1871. We select a few of the more striking passages from the noble discourse, as

The conversion of Ireland was effected without bloodshed. The Apostles of other nations had to seal the Gospel with their blood before it bore fruit in the hearts of the people.

"The blood of martyrs was the seed of Christians." The pioneer missionaries of America and of China, as well as the first Apostles of Continental Europe generally sacrificed their lives in the cause of Christianity before their labors were crowned with success.

But to the honor of Ireland be it said that her children were never stained with the blood of martyrs, St. Patrick gained over them a bloodless as well as a rapid victory.

The conversion of the nation bore abundant fruit. So numerous and so flourishing were the religious institutions which sprang up on the Island that it has been justly called "the Island of Saints" (Insula Sanctorum.) The venerable monuments scattered over the country, and imposing even in their ruins, attest the splendor of her ancient churches and monasteries.

Ireland deserves also the title of Island of "learned men," (Insula Doctorum.) During the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Centuries. Europe was devastated by hordes of barbarians who rushed like a torrent from the north, carrying with them ruin and devastation everywhere The Goths and Vandals invaded Italy. The Saracens overran Spain. The Anglo Saxons took possession of England, routing the native Britons. During these disorders and revolutions, literature was abandoned and for "during war laws and letters are

Meantime Ireland was in the enjoy ment of comparative peace and devoted herself to the pursuits of science. While the sons of Europe and Britain buckled on the sword, the sons of Ireland were wielding "the pen which is mightier than the sword." The consequence was that a multitude of young men flocked from the continent and England to Ireland, to pursue in peace the paths of literature which were closed to them in their own countries. The Venerable Bede informs us that poor scholars were not only educated gratuitously in Ireland, but that they were also supplied with books and board, free of all expense. Indeed a temporary residence in Ireland was then considered almost indispensable to acquire literary fame But Irish saints and scholars were not content with fanning the flame of to the birds." religion and knowledge in their own country, they also carried the torch of faith and science to the most dis-tant parts of Europe. Irish missionaries could be found on the banks of the Danube and in the Apennines. They spread the Gospel in Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Gaul, Switzerland, the Low Countries, and even in Britain.

And is not Ireland repeating to-day for the United States what she has already accomplished for Europe Is not this country chiefly indebted to her for its faith? There are few churches erected from Maine to California, from Canada to Mexico which to that dear voice, notice the feeling | Irish hands have not supported and

Guaranteed To Satisfy

The "Sunshine" Furnace gives healthful, warm air heat-and plenty of it. When installed, according to plans furnished by our heating engineers, it is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction. Write for free illustrated said of Irish misrule, which has led to sons interested in the matter, "have I so much forced emigration, adore in seen this clergyman do things that silence the mysterious providence of were extraordinary, to say the least. God who has been pleased to make I saw him administer baptism on you the instrument of His mercy in several occasions when I am positive propagation of the Gospel tive that the sacrament was not valthroughout the land! Say with Joseph banished to Egypt: "It is not attention to it at the time, but I have by the counsel of men that we are often thought about it since." sent hither, but by the will of God, In this, the convert coincides with Who hath made us His humble agents in the salvation of souls.'

M^cClary's SUNSHINE FURNACE

The Catholic religion is as intimately interwoven with the annals of Ireland as the golden threads which are interlaced in a garment of cloth. And as the fibres of the gold give beauty and brilliancy to the tissue. so the ecclesiastical annals of Ireland, intertwined in her secular history, impart to it a thrilling interest and brighten every page.

Tear from Irish history the golden annals of her religious struggles, her flery persecutions, her triumphs of -leave these out, and Irish history becomes a thread-bare narrative without interest, without connection. without glory.

Ireland without her Church, and her priests would be like Rome without St. Peter's majestic dome, or like that Basilica itself without its Supreme Pontiff. Ireland without the Church would High Priest. Ireland without the Church would be like her own desecrated and ruined monasteries, stripped of her ancient glory, with altars dismantled, shorn of their interior beauty, with nothing of them left save tottering walls yield-ing to the decaying hand of time. In a word, the history of Ireland without her sacred traditions would be like the records of the Jewish nation with their religion left out. The Hebrew race are interesting to us not simply because they are descendants from Abraham or because they went down into Egypt, or Blood of Christ. because they settled in the Promised the true religion and because amid all their faults, they still remember

So are the people of Ireland interesting to us, because in every vicissitude they "kept the faith once delivered to the Saints," and because they displayed an indomitable religious heroism worthy of the primitive days of the Church. - Philadelphia Standard and Times.

CONVERT TELLS OF HIS HIGH CHURCH EXPERIENCE

A convert to the Catholic Church, a former Episcopalian, has given The Denver Catholic Register an insight into some of the things that led him to Catholicity, and his story is decidedly interesting, particularly in view of the claims put forward by the High Church party to being a branch of the Catholic or universal Church.

This gentleman was reared a Presbyterian, but never formally affiliated with that Church, turning, instead, to Episcopalianism when he was old enough to decide for himself what fold he wished to join. He was then a resident of New York state, living in a semi-rural district close to New York city, working in the city. The rector of the Episcopalian church there was an extreme low church man.

"Many a time," said the convert, after communion I saw him throw the fragments of the bread left over

Can you imagine this happening with a genuine priest? The minister, undoubtedly, did not believe in the Real Presence, hence his act, from his point of view, was not at all sacrilegious. But many High Church Episcopalians do adhere to the Real Presence, and, in their eyes, the action of the minister was as profane as if a Catholic priest were to open the tabernacle and throw the consecrated Hosts to the birds. While it would be an aid to unity were the Holy Catholic Church able to recognize the validity of Anglican orders — this question was definitely settled in the negative by Pope Leo XIII.—it is fortunate A pious hope that we trust will be indeed, from our standpoint, that realized not only in Cashel, but the New York clergyman was not a genuine priest. His case, however, to revive this beautiful practice that

Children of Erin, whatever may be name we are willing to give to per

a view expressed recently in America by Floyd Keeler, an Episcopalian minister who has made his submission to the Church of St. Peter. Mr. Keeler showed that there is grave necessity for conditionally baptizing converts from the Episcopal church, due to the carelessness of ministers in giving the sacrament. He gave as his belief, based on personal observation, that baptism was not given validly in many cases by the Episcopal clergy.

To resume our original story, the gentleman who was a member of the suburban congregation later joined the parish of St. Mary the Virgin, New York city. This is one of the Highest" churches in the Anglican fold. The clergymen are all called fathers," like our priests, and mass is celebrated regularly, in English. The services differ in some points from ours, but they look so much like Holy Catholic rites that an Irish be like Jerusalem of old divested of girl, according to a story that is her sacred Temple and her venerable told, attended them for an entire year before she knew that she was not in a Catholic church. The English, when chanted or used in the mass prayers, can scarcely be distinguished from the Latin as used in churches. Confessions are our heard regularly.

The clergymen of this parish be lieve in consubstantiation, but not transubstantiation; in other words, they believe that, in the Mass, Christ becomes truly present in the bread and wine, but they do not accept the Holy Catholic teaching that bread and wine become the Body and Bishop Potter, Episcopalian, was a Land; but because they alone of all low Churchman. He did not go to the nations of the earth preserve St. Mary the Virgin's to confirm unless it was necessary, and, when he did go, the priests used to remove the Host and leave the tabernacle door open. They did this, said the convert, because they were afraid that the bishop would do something which might be construed as disre spectful, in order to show his lack of belief in the Real Presence.

"Finally," said the convert, "the inconsistency of it all came home to me, and I started to investigate, with the result that I am a Catholic

Scarcely any conversion to the Holy Catholic Church is without a struggle. This man was forced to undergo a terrific fight with himself. He feared that his conversion meant the severing of all ties that bound him to the past. But he was brave enough to take the step, and has since had the consolation of having another dear relative follow him into the Church.

This same relative, when he was converted, said to him: "You had better deed over all your property to me before those Catholic priests get it."—Denver Catholic Register.

THE ROSARY

Devotion to the Rosary has been the salvation of many a home, for what harm can enter into the place where the Mother of God is loved and honored. Our Holy Father has given to her the beautiful title "Queen of Peace" and has ordered this title added to the Litany. Referring to this fact the Archbishop of Cashel recently made an eloquent plea for "the family Rosary' as a means of obtaining the blessings and graces essential to happy living.

I specially recommend you to have the family Rosary," said the Archbishop. "Say it at home with your family, that will bring a blessing on every member of the family. Have a fixed, definite hour, and insist that every member of the family will be in for the Rosary. By doing that you will bring down the grace of God on your family, and will save every member of your family from temptation. I hope that this grand old Irish practice of saying the Rosary every night will be fully and entirely carried out in the parish."

is very unusual. Few Episcopalian we learned in our youth, but that clerics would act as he did. "Not only in this case, but in others," declared the convert, whose ing the Mother of God out of her

CAPITAL TRUST CORPORATION

Authorized Capital, $2,000,000

BOARD OF DIRECTORS: President: M. J. O'Brien, Renfrew.
Vice-Presidents: Hon. S. N. Parent, Ottawa; Denis Murphy, Ottawa;
R. P. Gough, Toronto; A. E. Corrigan, Ottawa.

A. E. Provost, Ottawa Hon, R. G. Beazley, Halifax F. E. McKenna, Montreal E. Fabre Surveyor, K. C., Montreal Hugh Doheny, Montreal E. W. Tobin, M.P., Bromptonville Arthur Ferland, Halleybury J. B. Duford, Ottawa

Edward Cass, Winnipeg T. P. Phelan, Toronto J. J. Lyons, Ottawa Gordon Grant, C. E., Ottawa Hon. C. P. Beaubien, K. C., Montreal Michael Connolly, Montreal W. J. Poupore, ex. M.P., Montreal Lieut.-Col. D. R. Street, Ottawa

Managing Director: B. G. Connolly Assistant Manager: E. T. B. Pennefather

OFFICES: 10 METCALFE ST., OTTAWA, ONT.

NO MAN CAN FORSEE ACCIDENTS, which may occur to any one of us. If you appoint the Capital Trust Corporation the executor of your will, you provide for the efficient administration of your estate and guard sgainst a change of executors through death, accident or sickness. Our Booklet entitled "THE WILL THAT REALLY PROVIDES," is instructive. Write for a copy.

honored place in the Catholic home. -Sacred Heart Review

USE OF INFALLIBILITY

St. Paul says in one place that his apostolic power is given him to edification and not to distinction. There can be no better account of the infallibility of the Church. It is a supply for a need, and it does not go beyond that need. Its object is, and its effort also, not to enfeeble the free dom or vigor of human thought in religious speculation, but to resist and control its extravagance.—Cardinal Newman

WATER MOTOR, ELECTRIC MOTOR Address me personally—S. T. MORRIS, "1900" Washer Company, 357 Yonge Street, Toronto

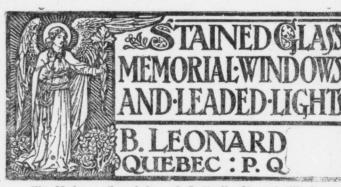

CUT YOUR OWN HAIR 50°CASHGIVEN FOR THIS AD.

PATENT PENDING The Duplex Automatic hair cutter Price to introduce only $1.00 If you can comb your hair you can cut it The stanting feeth prevent pulling

The Duplex Automatic Hair Cutter has 4 times the cutting power of any hair cutting machine ever placed on the market. It is 4 times the size, and will do the work 4 times as well and 4 times as fast as any other machine. We have been so busy filing wholesale orders that we haven't been able to offer this wonderful tool direct to the public before. We now have a large supply on hand, and for a very short time we offer the Duplex direct by mail at wholesale price. Some people will wait until it is too late, and they will have to pay the full price. Get yours now at the wholesale price of $1.00.

THE SLANTING TEETH PREVENT PULLING

special patented comb with the slanting teeth, and the handle to fit the hand, is the only kind. It costs four times as much to produce as the ordinary comb, but it is worth it. Agents Wanted. DUPLEX MANUFACTURING CO., DEPT. C7, BARRIE, ONT.

We Make a Specialty of Catholic Church Windows

The Composition of Coca-Cola and its Relation to Tea

Prompted by the desire that the public shall be thoroughly informed as to the composition and dietetic character of Coca-Cola, the Company has issued a booklet giving a detailed analysis of its recipe which is as follows:

Water, sterilized by boiling (carbonated); sugar, granulated, first quality; fruit flavoring extracts with caramel; acid flavorings, citric (lemon) and phosphoric; essence of tea-the refreshing principle.

The following analysis, by the late Dr. John W. Mallet, Fellow of the Royal Society and for nearly forty years Professor of Chemistry in the University of Virginia, shows the comparative stimulating or refreshing strength of tea and Coca-Cola, measured in terms of the refreshing principle:

Black tea -1 cupful----- 1.54 Coca-Cola-1 drink, 8 fl. oz. 1.21 (fountain) (prepared with 1 fl. oz. Syrup) (rountain)

Coca-Cola—1 drink, 8 fl. oz. _____ 1.12

(bottlers)

(prepared with 1 ft. oz. Syrup)

From the above recipe and analysis, which are confirmed by all chemists who have analyzed these beverages, it is apparent that Coca-Cola is a carbonated, fruit-flavored modification of tea of a little more than one-half its stimulating strength.

A copy of the booklet referred to above will be mailed free on request, and The Coca-Cola Company especially invites inquiry from those who are interested in pure food and public health propaganda. Address

The Coca-Cola Co., Dept. J., Atlanta, Ga., U.S.A.

Bread is the cheapest food known. Home bread baking reduces the high cost of living by lessening the amount of expen-

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

W.GILLETT COMPANY LIMITED

HOME BANK ENJOYS STEADY PROGRESS

The Home Bank of Canada has en joyed steady and substantial progress during its past fiscal year to May 31, 1917. Assets of the bank show a gain of over $5,000,000 for the year, and now stand above the $20,000,000 mark, and the liquid or immediately available assets are in excess of $10,000,000, equivalent to 53 per cent. of the liabilities to the public.

This indicates that the bank has been placed in a comfortable position, and with its organization and business in such good shape should be able to report further growth and expansion from year to year.

The Home Bank has right along advocated before the Canadian public sins under normal, ordinary condipractical plans for thrift. That these tions. campaigns have had beneficial results for the bank as well as for those who are saving their money, is reflected by the marked increase in deposits, this amount now standing at over $12,600,000, as compared with $10,133-735 at the end of the previous year. There has also been a marked increase in deposits by, and balances due, to Dominion Government, these having advanced to $3,360,355, as against only $500,000 last year.

The larger proportion of the increased assets are maintained in liquid form, and during the year the bank has been able on all occasions to carry out its full share of all Government financing. The principal changes in the liquid assets include Canadian municipal securities and British, foreign and colonial public securities, other than Canadian, these now amounting to $1,214,450, against $551,067 last year; Dominion and Provincial Government securities $831,600, while nothing was reported under this heading in the previous

Owing to the special attention the bank gives to the requirements of the grain trade in the west, a special account is this year shown. secured by grain and other staple mmodities, to the amount of 451,888. The call and short loans amount to $1,173,349, and this, with confession would suffice. the amount against grain, being the amount to over $2,600,000, against $2,271,634 reported last year. The general commercial business also indicates that the bank is meeting the requirements of the larger clientele, the other current loans and discounts in Canada now standing at $9,477,640, as against $7,819,466.

The profit and loss account indicates that with the increased ascilities for handling business, the earnings have also shown a substantial gain, the net profits for the year having amounted to $217,059, as compared with $133,406 in the previous year. The profits added to the balance of profit and loss, brought the total amount available for dis-tribution up to $259,850. After the payment of dividends and making special provision for tax on note cir-preparedness, expressing the view that the Dominion should be made the factory of the world.

ture our raw materials and export the manufactured article. To do the manufactured article. To do this, we first must have faith in ourselves and our country and the courage which will inspire confidence in those who will come to make Canada (Catholic can say:

Christians we must obey Christ, in our matter what theories, views, opinions may oppose His demands. To settled so well that it did not again arise till the year 1848.

The official proclamation of the Catholic can say:

ducts to the world's markets.

In view of the improved position of the Bank during the past year and the expansion looked for in the future, it was decided to add to the Board of Directors. Hereafter the Board will number nine instead of Church is in possession of the instiguingly. The new directs the second of Confession. Every scholar the invention of the instiguing of the invention of the invention of the invention of the securing of peace and this not merely of temporary character. He likewise the soil is nothing but the invention of securing of peace and this not merely of temporary character. He likewise the soil is nothing but the invention of the invention of the moral influence towards the securing of peace and this not merely of temporary character. He likewise the soil is nothing but the invention of the invention of the moral influence towards the securing of peace and this not merely of temporary character. He likewise the soil is nothing but the invention of th In view of the improved position of eight as previously. The new director elected was H. J. Daly of Toronto, or elected was H. J. Daly of Toronto, or elected was H. J. Daly of Toronto, or elected was H. J. Daly of Toronto, of it for centuries. To attack her whose position as general manager of the National Cash Register Co. of title to the institution of Confession title to the institution of Confession successfully you must bring proof, you must explain away an historical you must explain away an historical tions throughout the country.

donnell, M. P., H. J. Daly, all of Toronto; J. A. O'Brien, Renfrew; C. A. Barnard, Montreal; Thos. A. Crerar, Winnipeg; John Kennedy Swan River, Man.

CONFESSION

HAS ALWAYS BEEN A FACT IN THE CHURCH

By Rev. H. C. Hengell. Madison, Wis.

In the oldest and best known platform of Christian faith, the Apostles' Creed, we profess that we believe in "forgiveness of sins."

In the twentieth chapter of the Gospel of St. John, we find recorded the means which Jesus Christ Himself established for the forgiveness of

On the very day of His Resurred tion, Easter Sunday, Christ appeared suddenly in the midst of the Apostles and said: "Peace be with

"And when He had said this, He breathed upon them, saying: 'As the Father hath sent me, I also send you. Receive ye the Holy Ghost. Whose sins you shall forgive they are forgiven and whose sins you shall retain they are retained.' "

These words say nothing directly about confession, but they imply its necessity for the purpose of obtaining forgiveness of sins committed after baptism. Evidently Our Lord, in the words quoted from John xx, gave the Apostles judicial power. Judicial power cannot be exercised arbitrarily. That would be a sad abuse of it. Judges must weigh and try each case presented to them.

The early Christians could draw

no other conclusion than that confession was necessary in order that the Apostles and their successors exercise judiciously their might power of forgiving or retaining sins. At first some early Christians thought that open confession was necessary. Imagine confession, even indicating demand loans in Canada in quite general terms, to a priest before the whole congregation of people! But it was soon generally understood that private auricular

> Apostles power clearly implying the necessity choosers. Catholics go to confession because Christ wills it. Theories opposing confession are worthless before this outstanding fact. Since sin is the only obstacle to salvation, Christ would certainly leave with His Church a sacrament to remove baptism to place the soul in grace the first time.

tution of Confession. Every scholar over in safety the crisis of the knows that she has been in possession

The Board now consists of the following: Brig. Gen. James Mason, hon. pres.; M. J. Haney, C. E., pres.; R. P. Gough, V. P., A. Claude Mac-duly of hearing confession? Do you the federation Brother Klaus, for think it is naturally pleasant to hear confessions for hours at a time, to listen patiently to everybody's tale of sin and woe? And do you believe that priests themselves would go to confession, if they knew it to be man-made? Believe me, if it were not for the duty undertaken at ordin ation and imposed by the sovereign will of Jesus Christ, priests would have rid themselves of the burden long ago.

Yes, but how about the money part of it?" says some poor, misin-formed non-Catholic. "Preposteranswers the Catholic. ous! priest is forbidden to receive money or its equivalent for Confession. That would be simony and sacrilege. Ask any Catholic whether he pays anything for Confession before you repeat that old lie about money for Confession."

'Well, anyhow," says the non-Catholic, "I do not like it."

To which the intelligent Catholic replies: "It is not a question of what you or I like. It is a question of doing the will of Jesus Christ. His will is sovereign and we must submit

HONORED BY HIS COUNTRY

THE MEMORY OF BROTHER KLAUS HAS A MESSAGE FOR OUR WARRING AGE

Diminutive Switzerland stands today as an oasis of peace in the midst of the horrible devastation of the world-war. However diminutive, it still has a mighty history of deeds that were brave and noble. From one of these deeds, a great victory of peace, there comes to our war-harried times a noble message splendidly significant.

In a proclamation issued by the President of the Swiss Confederation to the constituent states, the people of Switzerland were recently called upon to do henor to the venerable figure of the saintly hermit, Nicholas von Flue. This remarkable man was born of poor peasant parents on the 21st of March, 1417, lived the simple pastoral life of the average Swiss of his times, fought bravely in the many battles waged to protect their country from the inroads of the many powerful states surrounding them, and in due time married a good wife and raised a family of ten children, all of them to useful and honor able manhood and womanhood.

Always remarkable for his deep piety and saintly life, advancing find an echo far beyond our frontier years drew him closer to God in conin the spirit of the Man of Peace of templation and practices of devotion. With the consent of his devout wife and after providing for her and his children, he retired to a lonely valley, where he spent his years as a hermit in prayer and good works.

Soon his name was known far and wide as a symbol of piety and wis-Why did Christ give such extra-ordinary judicial power to the and his decisions respected. The and their successors, a times were full of stress and danger for his beloved Switzerland. Mighty of detailed confession on the part of the penitent? Strictly speaking, it stronghold of this brave people. But stronghold of this brave people. But is not for us to ask. As penitents the outer foes were less dangerous we are beggars. Beggars cannot be than inner dissensions which threatthe outer foes were less dangerous ened to disrupt the bonds that held these peoples of diverse tongues together.

The Swiss cantons had emerged victorious from the long and costly Burgundian wars lasting from 1466 to 1477. Then arose the question of it, just as He left the sacrament of how the rich spoils of war were to be distributed. Some were for a division according to the number of And yet it is not difficult to see good reasons why Our Lord should have made confession necessary. Added to this was the fact that the Sin involves pride. It is always a cities made a separate treaty with willful offense against God. For Solothurn and Freiburg and then culation, and subscriptions to Red giveness of sins should involve balance carried forward amounted to balance carried forward amounted to $140,239, as against $42,790 last year.

Mr. M. J. Haney, president, in his priest, is a real test of humility bitterly from 1478 to 1481 without address, also dwelt particularly on the financial assistance which Canada should provide for peace preparedness expressing the view. stand our practice of confession often tion seems unsettleable save by restate that it is the one obstacle to course to arms. The delegates were "Canada has passed from a trading post to a nation within the Empire," the other hand Catholics often grow to their homes and arm for conflict said President Haney. With her magnificent agricultural lands in magnificent agricultural lands in every province; her timber, and untold areas of coal and iron; her nickel, silver and gold, and furthermore, the greatest asset in her water more, the greatest asset in her water they will not be himself of Brother Klaus. Straightway he sought him out in his soliteston. All these persons seek excuses for neglecting their duty, and to enlist his authoritative wishing on the greatest asset in her water feature. They attack the practice of confession. All these persons seek and to enlist his authoritative wishing the practice because they will not be himself of Brother Klaus. Straightway he sought him out in his solitest and sincere in going to confession. All these persons seek and to enlist his authoritative wishing the solite to be a solite to the solite to be a solite to more, the greatest asset in her water powers in every province extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, this country of ours should be the Factory of the World. We should manufacted fact and not a mere theory. There are no persons so does not accurately record whether or not the simple hermit came in person to the meeting of dissenting delegates. But certain it is, and all blind as those who will not see. As the chroniclers agree, that within an Christians we must obey Christ, no hour after consulting the hermit of

we must provide increased transportation on land and the Great Lakes. Above all else, we should make every effort to establish firmly a Mercantile Marine on the ocean to carry Canadian manufactured products to the carry Canadian manufactured human origin, name the inventor and the date. If you assert that Confes-local interests, threw the weight of the date. If you assert that Confession is nothing but the invention of his moral influence towards the Reformation."

After thus extolling his achieve ment in behalf of peace the procla-mation goes on to say: "There was thus established the firm foundation fact of every century of the Christian of the present Swiss ideal-the The other directors were re-elect
"Why should priests have invented of diverse tongues, all dowered with

Also in the foreign affairs of

HOME BANK OF CANADA

paid highest bank rate on Savings Deposits of One Dollar and upwards.

66 Dollars into riches run, not all at once, but one by one. 99

BUSINESS CHANCES

GRAND

GARDEN PARTY

IN AID OF CHURCH OF

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL

TORONTO

Sunnyside

Orphanage Grounds

SATURDAY AFTERNOON

AND EVENING

JULY 7th

MEMORIAL ASS
ENGLISH
ANTIQUE NED LYON
STAINER GLASS CO.
141-5 CHURCH ST. TORONTO ONT.

Boys and Young Men who have a religious vocation and are desir-ous of devoting themselves to the service of God and the education of youth in the Presentation Brothers' Order, can now be admitted. For further particulars apply to the Presentation Brothers' Novitiate Longueuil, Montreal

MISSION

SUPPLIES

A DISTINCT SPECIALTY

BEST TERMS

W. E. BLAKE & SON, LTD.

123 CHURCH ST. TORONTO

Christian Brothers

Summer Camp

For Catholic Boys

LAKE SIMCOE

Large summer house, choice of rooms or tents

Apply CHRISTIAN BROTHERS

Religious

Vocations

Rev. Brother Provincial

Branches and Connections Throughout Canada OFFICES IN LONDON AND DISTRICT

London, 394 Richmond Street (Opposite Smallman & Ingram's)
Delaware, Ilderton, Komoka, Lawrence Station, Melbourne, Thorndale whom his piety and wisdom had DON'T PAY COMMISSIONS. WRITE FOR our plan of selling property, any kind, anywhere, without paying commissions. Co-operative Sales Agency, Minneapolis, Minn. 2020-5. gained international honor, asserted himself in the interests of peace. His influence reached as far as the courts of Innsbrnck and Milan. The principles which he so heartily com-mended to the government of Bern have even today a deep significance:

—faithful observance of civic duty, protection of the weak, and above all, and this should be the chief aim, mutual peace founded on mutual charity and esteem.'

Little wonder that the proclamation concluded by ordering all the bells of the land rung on the eve of the fifth centenary of his birth and that the anniversary day was cele brated with great solemnity through out Switzerland. Many cities of Germany even sent messages of congratulation, among them Constance, which at one time in its history had called upon Brother Klaus in a similar need. Special services were held to ask the Almighty to bless Switzerland and to grant that the spirit of Brother Klaus may once again be heard above the death-din

How grandly imposing stands the simple figure of the peasant-hermit, a man of peace, because a man of God. How truly great was he who knew how to assert national unity and rights by moral suasion, authoritative because of a truly great personality.

We cannot but subscribe most heartily to the concluding words of the Swiss President's proclamation: God grant that these chimes may in the spirit of the Man of Peace of Ranft.

ANGLICAN LOGIC

The Anglican Bishop of Exeter while paying an official visit to the Germany did not always remain faithful to the teachings of St. Boniface instead of following Martin Luther. The Bishop logical and recognize the fact that it would have been a good thing also for England to have remained faith ful to the religion of St. Boniface The world to day is reaping some of the evil sown by the revolt against

DIED

Costello. - At Kitchues, Nfld. Aug 30, 1916, Ellen Costello, aged sixty-nine years. May her soul rest in peace.

FORTUNE.-At Dublin, Ont., June 14, 1917, Mr. William Fortune, aged eighty-four years. The deceased is and one son; Sister Fortune of the Sacred Heart, Halifax; Sister Fidelis, of St. Joseph's, London, Ont., and Mary and Joseph of Dub lin, Ont. May his soul rest in peace.

TEACHERS WANTED

TEACHER WANTED FOR SEPARATE S., S. No. 6, Raleigh, holding 2nd class professional certificate. Luties to commence Sept. 4. Salary $550 to $6900. Apply stating experience and qualifications to Wm. A. Dillon, Phone 41-22, Merlin, Ont.

EXPERIENCED TEACHER WANTED FOR the Separate school, town of Oakville. One holding 2nd class professional certificate. Duties to commence in September. Apply stating salary to L. V. Cote, Sec. Treas., Oakville, Ont.

WANTED SECOND CLASS PROFESSIONAL teacher for C. S. S. Kearney, for term commencing Sept. 3rd Salary $500 to $650. State experience, etc., not later than July 15th, to J. W. Brown, See, Treas., Kearney, Ont. 2018-3

TEACHER WANTED FOR SEPARATE school, Kenilworth, Ontario. Duties to commence Sept. 3rd. State salary. experience and qualifications to Sec. Treas, S. S. No. 3, Kenilworth, P. O., Onte. Treas, S. S. No. 3, Kenilworth, P. O., Onte. Treacher for C. S. S. No. 18, Township of Tyerdiraya, for term commencing Sept. the 3rd. Salary $500 per year. State experience. Address Michael Corrigan, Marysville. R. M. D. No. 1, 2020-2, 20

TEACHER FOR S. S. NO. 3, PUSLINCH,
Wellington County, 2nd class professional.
Duties to commence Sept. 4. State salary and experience to M. P. Lynch, Sec. R. R. No. 6, Phone 796-2, Guelph, Ont.

HOUSEKEEPER'S POSITION WANTED MIDDLE AGED LADY DESIRES A POSITION as housekeeper in small family. Western county preferred, near Catholic Church. Address Box I., CATHOLIC RECORD, London, Ont. 2020-1

ALL STEEL FIRE PROOF VESTRY CABINET, $20 To hold your Censers, Charcoal, etc.

MISSION SUPPLIES

BEST ON THE MARKET J. J. M. LANDY 405 YONGE ST. TORONTO WANTED RESPONSIBLE YOUNG GIRL TO assist in the care of two children. Good wages. Apply Box K., CATHOLIC RECORD. London, Ont. 2014-tf

SI. MARY'S HOSPITAL, ROCHESTER, N. Y. S. T. MARY'S TRAINING SCHOOL, REGISL tered by the Regente of the University of the State of New York, offers a thorough and liberathere year's course of theoretical and practical training to young women desiring to enter the nursing profession. Apply to Sister Superior or Sister Supt. of Nurses, St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, N. Y. ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL, ROCHESTER, N. Y

WANTED
WANTED HOUSEKEEPER FOR A PRIEST in one of the cities of the Detroit, Mich dicacese. Must furnish references as to character
Address, The Catholic Pastor, Belding, Mich.
2019-tf

AMERICAN HOUSE LAKE MUSKOKA

Excellent Boating, Fishing, Bathing, Catholic Church close by. Write for rates to Mrs. Walker American House P. O., Lake Muskoka, Ont.

Guaranteed

Every telephone we make is guaranteed strongly guaranteed.

All our construction materials are also guaranteed first quality. You buy with safety, and get full value for every dollar, when you deal with us. You also keep your money circulating in Canada, which is good business in war time. Our "Made-in-Canada"

rural telephones have proved their worth by years of satis-factory service on Indepen-dent Telephone Systems throughout Canada.

Send for list of users. Also ask for our No. 6 Bulletin. Estimates gladly furnished.

Canadian Independent Telephone Co. 285 Adelaide St. West, Toronto

Montreal

AN ENGLISH COLLEGE, UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE JESUIT FATHERS CLASSICAL COURSE leading to the Degree of B. A. Beautiful new fireproof buildings, splendid equipment, spacious playing fields. WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

THE HOME BANK OF CA

Statement of the Result of the Business of the Bank for the Year Ending 31st May, 1917

Balance of Profit and Loss Account 31st May, 1916

Net Profits for the year, after deducting charges of management, interest due depositors payment of all Provincial and Municipal taxes and rebate of interest on unmatured bills PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT $ 42,790 00 $259,850 17 CAPITAL PROFIT ACCOUNT nium on Capital Stock red 144 57 $259,994 74 Dr. Dividend No. 39, quarterly, at the rate of 5% per annum 3,000 00

General Statement, 31st May, 1917 LIABILITIES 462,457 69 $18,332,806 08 THE SHAREHOLDERS—

Capital (subscribed $2,000,000) paid up. $

Rest Account

Dividends unclaimed

Dividend No. 42 (quarterly) being at the rate of 5% per annum, payable

June 1st, 1917

Balance of Profit and Loss Account 2,413,023 28 $20,745,829 36 $ 133,669 47 2,841,874 25 Deposits with the Minister of Finance as security for note circulation... Notes of other Banks Deposits with the Minister of Finance as security for note circulation.

Notes of other Banks.

Cheques of other Banks.

Cheques of other Banks and Banking Correspondents elsewhere than in Canada.

Balances due by Banks and Banking Correspondents in the United Kingdom.

Due from Banks and Banking Correspondents in the United Kingdom.

Dominion and Provincial Government securities.

Canadian Municipal securities, and British Foreign and Colonial Public Securities, other than Casadian Municipal securities and Stocks not exceeding market value.

Railway and other Bonds, Debentures and Stocks not exceeding market value.

Call and Short (not exceeding 30 days) Loans in Canada on Bonds, Debentures and Stocks Demand Loans in Canada secured by grain and other staple commodities. 92,288 00 186,398 10 844,809 86 642,331 74 10,038 88 17,805 27 831,600 00 1,214,450 92 690,291 27 1,173,349 01 1,451,888 51 Other current Loans and Discounts in Canada, less rebate of interest. $9,477.640 40
Other current Loans and Discounts elsewhere than in Canada 32,713 71
Loans to cities, towns, municipalities and school districts 137,049 2 $20,745.829 36

Auditor's Report to the Shareholders

M. J. HANEY, President.

In accordance with sub-sections 19 and 20, of section 56 of the Bank Act, 1913, I beg to report as wa: The above Balance Sheet has been examined with the booke and vouchers at the Head Office. follows: The above Balance Sheet has been examined with the booke and vouchers at the Head Office, and with the certified returns from the Branches, and is in accordance therewith. I have obtained all needed information from the officers of the Bank, and in my opinion the transactions coming under my notice have been within the powers of the Bank. I have checked the cash and verified the securities of the Bank, at its Chief Office, both on the Slat of May, 1917, and also at another time during the ities of the Bank: at its Chief Office, both on the Stat of May, 1917, and also at another time during the year; the cash and securities of one of the Branches have also been checked, and in each case they have agreed with the entries in the books of the Bank with regard thereto. In my opinion the above Balance Sheet is properly drawn up so as to show a true and correct view of the state of the Bank's affairs, according to the best of my information and the explanations given to me, and as shown by the books of the Bank, (Signed) SYDNEY H. JONES.

J. COOPER MASON, Acting General Manager,

The Highest Prices Ever

YOUR

Paid for Wool Are Now Being Paid by Us

Mr. Farmer, you can get more money for your wool by sending it direct to us.
In all probability it will come to us anyway at some time, no matter to whom you sell it.
For over thirty years we have been one of the largest buyers of wool in Canada.
We could not continue in business for this length of time if we had not treated our customers fairly and pay top prices.
We send your money the same day as wool is received, only deducting freight or express charges.
We are now paying for wool as follows:
Unwashed Fleece—fine...58c. to 50c. per lb.

Unwashed Fleece-coarse, 56c. to 58c. per lb. Washed Fleece - fine ... 70c. to 72c. per lb. Washed Fleece - coarse, 68c. to 70c. per lb. Ship to-day or write us telling how much col you have, if washed or unwashed, and breed sheep clipped from. We will then quote you straight price and send you shipping tags with ill instructions.

John Hallam Toronto