CHAPTER XXX.

Gaunt went down to his cabin—the best in the vessel—and found everything arranged comfortably.

After a few minutes he went on deck, and lighting a cigar, got into a quiet corner and leaned against the side, apparently watching the bustling crowd, but in reality seeing nothing of it. A girl's face, white and terror-stricken, with quivering lips and straining eyes, floated before him. Above the shouts of the men and the clatter of the arriving passengers, he heard Decima's voice:

"Your wife! your wife!"

About half an hour before the sailing-time, Gaunt saw a man come along the gang-way, carrying a bag in his hand. He was a young man, with red hair and a pale face, with small, bloodshot eyes. The collar of his overcoat was turned up, and he looked cold and ill.

He came across the deck and gazed by Gaunt, and looked round. Gaunt watched him listlessly, scarcely noticing him. Presently the steward came to him, and asked him the number of his berth.

The young fellow hesitated a moment, then he said, in a dull, expressionless voice, "My name is Jackson; I wired for a berth this morning."

The steward consulted his list.

"Ah, yes; Jackson. That's right, sir. I got the wire. I'm afraid you won't think the cabin first-class, but it's short notice, you see."

Mr. Jackson nodded.

"I didn't know I was going till last night," he said. "Important business over there—sprung on me suddenly."

The steward nodded. A great many persons had, of late, had important business sprung upon them from Africa, and had been compelled to rush over there suddenly and at short notice.

"No, 63, sir," he said; "if you'll come down, I'll show you."

"Thanks," said Mr. Jackson. "When—when do we start?"

"Almost immediately, sir," said the steward, bustling ahead.

The young fellow glanced toward the quay and round the deck then followed him below.

The bustle and confusion increased, when suddenly the signal sounded for the departure from the vessel of those who were not going the voyage, and the usual parting of relatives and friends took place, and the visitors hurried ashore. A few minutes later the vessel started, and amid cheering and handkerchief-waving, slowed from the quay. Gaunt still remained in his quiet corner, and presently he saw the red-headed Mr. Jackson come up.

Wholesale Arrests Canadians With Coughs

Halt! Who goes there! Someone with a cough! Pass friend! Stop cough! you are under arrest. Thousands of such arrests are being made every day in all parts of Canada. Too long have coughs and colds evaded justice and caused untold suffering to humanity, but at last they have been cornered and overpowered by Canada's famous cough detective—Buckley's Bronchitis Mixture. Did you ever hear of this wonderful remedy? Why, everybody is talking and writing about the great work it is doing in curing coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, etc.

The following is one of thousands of letters received:—"Kindly accept my sincere thanks for the benefit my wife derived by the use of one of your bottles of Bronchitis Mixture. For over thirteen years she has suffered acutely. After spending dollar after dollar upon various remedies, no relief was obtained. Hearing of your most marvelous remedy she decided to give it a trial and I am glad to say one bottle has made her well. You are at liberty to use my name and should be only too pleased to answer any inquiries. Sincerely yours, John Holmes, Yorkville Ave. The original of this letter may be seen at W. K. Buckley, Limited, 148 Mutual St., Toronto. Don't allow a cough or cold to linger with you. Away with it! Hall Buckley's Mixture and have cough arrested. This remedy never fails. On every bottle is a guarantee to refund the money if not satisfied. Delay is dangerous. Order now from your Druggist or by mail from W. K. BUCKLEY, LIMITED, 148 MUTUAL ST., TORONTO. 16 from the saloon. He stood at the entrance for a moment or two, then came across the deck and looked gloomily, and yet vacantly, at the now fast-receding quay. As he did so, he took out a cigar-case, and absently put a cigar between his lips. It was evident that his match-box was empty, for he dropped it into his pocket again and looked round.

Gaunt was standing near, and absently extended his box. Mr. Jackson took it and lighted a match, and Gaunt noticed that the man's hand shook. He looked across the lighted match as he held it to his cigar, and caught Gaunt's eye; and as if he knew that Gaunt had noticed the shaking hand, he said, rather reluctantly:

"Cold, this morning."

Gaunt nodded. He was not in the humor for conversation.

"Beastly cold," said Mr. Jackson with a faint shudder; "but I'm seedy—and—feel it more than I should otherwise do, I suppose."

He was silent for a moment, then he asked carelessly:

"Do we stop at Madeira, do you happen to know? I've had to start suddenly—important business at the Cape—only heard last night—and so I don't know."

"No; this is not one of the regular vessels. We stop at the Canaries."

The young fellow nodded.

"Ah, thanks!" he said in a low voice.

Gaunt moved away, and presently went down to his cabin to avoid any further talk. His heart was aching as badly as any on board—aching with an agony beyond words. He was leaving England and Decima forever! Love, and all hope is lost. Despair stretched darkly before him.

About an hour after Trevor had stolen from Prince's Mansions, the parlor-maid glanced up at the clock in the kitchen.

"I suppose his lordship isn't coming back to-night or he'd have told me to get a room ready," she remarked to the cook, who yawned in sympathy; "and yet he's left his coat."

"Perhaps he's come back and got it," suggested the cook.

"No, or I should have heard him, for I've been listening. I wonder when Mrs. Lalton left? I didn't see her go, and his lordship didn't ring. She and Mr. Deane's sister must have gone together, I suppose. Now, there's a pretty girl, if you like, cook, and the image of her brother. We'd had quite a lot of visitors to-night," and she laughed.

"Perhaps they're in the drawing-room now," said the cook.

Jane shook her head.

"No; it's all quiet. I went and listened at the door just now, and not hearing any one I knocked and looked in. There was no one there. I got a start though," she added, with a smile.

"How do you mean?"

"Well, his lordship had thrown his fur coat on the sofa, and it looked for all the world as if somebody was lying there," replied Jane. She yawned again. "Well, I think we'd better go to bed; it's no use sitting up for Mr. Deane; I expect he's at Cardigan Terrace, and if so, he won't be home till the small hours."

"Better see to the drawing-room fire, hadn't you?" said the cook, as she turned down the page of her novel; but Jane shook her head.

"Oh, it doesn't matter. Mr. Deane always goes straight to bed when he comes in—I hear his door shut."

The two women went to bed after a little more talk, and the place was wrapped in silence.

Bobby was not an early riser—few young persons are. It is the middle-aged and the old who find it easier to get up than to lie thinking, and if Bobby got his breakfast by ten o'clock, he was quite suited and satisfied. Lord Gaunt's servants had an easy time of it in that respect.

It was past nine when Jane went into the drawing-room to light the fire. The electric lamp was still burning, and she looked over her shoulder and called to the cook.

"Mr. Deane hasn't come in yet," she said. "I wonder where he is."

The cook grumbled incoherently: "I suppose I had better get breakfast all the same," she said. "If I don't, he'll come rushing in and want it all of a hurry. It always happens like that."

Jane laughed, turned out the lamp, drew back the curtains. As she did so, she was conscious of a faint perfume. She knew it very well, for it was the scent which always hung about Mr. Deane's clothes when he had been to Cardigan Terrace. But it was stronger than usual in the room this morning.

She opened the window and laid and lighted the fire, then began to sweep the room; but her eyes fell on the costly coat on the sofa.

"I'd better take it into the bedroom," she said to herself, "for it will be smothered with dust. Lor', how careless gentlemen are of their things!"

A moment afterward a shriek ran through the place, and the cook, rushing into the room whence the cry had proceeded, found her fellow-servant leaning against the table with the coat at her feet, and her eyes staring at something on the sofa.

"Good Heavens, Jane! what ever is the matter?" Then she, too, screamed, and the two women stood, clinging to each other, and staring at the motionless figure with terror in their eyes.

Their cries, repeated again and again, brought the porter and the page into the room, followed by two or three occupants of the other flats. Amongst the latter was a retired army doctor, who, taking in the situation at a glance, pushed his way to the couch, and examined the body.

"She is dead," he said, gravely. "Who are the servants here? Ah! Do you know the lady? Who is she?"

Jane, half fainting, gasped out the name:

"It's Mrs. Dalton—Mr. Thorpe's sister! She came here last night!"

She broke into terrified sobs.

"Alone?" asked the doctor. "But stop—better not answer. Let some one go for the gentleman, Mr. Thorpe. Here, boy, take a cab and bring him." He thrust the page-boy from the room, and turned to the porter as he did so. "And you go for the police."

In a very short time two policemen were on the scene. They cleared the room and mounted guard beside the body.

"We've sent to Scotland Yard for a detective officer," one said to the doctor.

He arrived before Morgan Thorpe, and at once, with the sang-froid of experience, took possession of "the case," and with note-book in hand, he was questioning the servants, when Morgan Thorpe burst in.

He was white as death, but the pallor increased to lividity as he bent over the body and gazed at the beautiful face, now placid with the rest and peace of death.

"You know her, identify her?" asked the detective. "Of course, I warn you that anything you say—you understand?"

"Yes; she is—my sister!" said Thorpe, leaning against the table and staring at the dead woman. "My sister; yes!"

"You know she had come here?" Thorpe nodded.

"Why did she come here? Who did she come to see?"

"Deane," replied Thorpe.

In that moment falsehood, evasion were impossible.

"Deane—who is he?"

"He lives here—in these rooms," said Thorpe. "My God—I thought she was at home—in her room! I came back late last night—from the club—it was early this morning. Her door was closed. I—I thought she was in bed. I went to my room and—and I was in bed when they fetched me. Who—was has done it? She has been murdered!"

"I'm afraid so," said the detective, grimly. He looked at the Persian dagger which lay on the floor, as it had dropped from Trevor's hand. "That did it; don't touch it, please," he added, though any of those present would have died rather than do so.

"Why did she come here to see Mr. Deane—a lady—alone—you know?"

Thorpe moistened his parched lips.

"For God's sake, give me something—brandy!"

The detective nodded, and the doctor poured out a glass of brandy for Thorpe. He drank it at a draught.

"I'll tell you all I know. She—she"—he shuddered—"she came here to—to get some money from him."

The detective made a note.

"Go on," she said, gravely. "Come to threaten him?"

"No, no; only—only persuade," said Thorpe. "Oh, Laura! Laura!"

The detective turned to the trembling, shrinking servants.

"Where is Mr. Deane?" he asked. (to be continued.)

Incendiaries at Work in Liverpool.

Fifteen Fires Saturday Night—Fire Bugs Also Active in Cork—Officials of Firemen's Union Will Stoke Olympic—Bank Manager Arrested on Theft Charge.

INCENDIARY FIRES IN LIVERPOOL.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 28. Fifteen warehouses in Liverpool and Bootle suburb, principally cotton warehouses, were set on fire last night. Two of the cotton warehouses in Liverpool were burned out. Gasoline cans and paraffin were found about the premises. Five men were placed under arrest in connection with the incendiary outbreak.

HAVE SINISTER ASPECT.

BELFAST, Nov. 28. Statement issued to-night from Dublin Castle after giving an account of the Liverpool fires and accompanying incident adds, "in conjunction with the documents discovered last week in which plans for Sinn Féin reprisals against the English towns of Manchester and Liverpool were among the number detailed, these things have a very sinister aspect."

BIG FIRE IN CORK.

CORK, Ireland, Nov. 28. In addition to the incendiary fires of Saturday night, an extensive block of buildings in St. Patrick's Street was completely destroyed by fire, involving damage estimated at a hundred thousand dollars. The buildings destroyed included Blackthorn House, which has been twice previously bombed and partially wrecked.

FURTHER CLASHES IN IRELAND.

BELFAST, Nov. 28. Several casualties from clashes with the authorities and from other disorders, occurred here and other parts of Ireland last night and early to-day. A school teacher at Broadford, County Limerick, failed to respond to an order to halt given by crown forces and was shot dead last evening. At Cappoquin, County Waterford a constable was dangerously wounded by three armed men. In Belfast this morning a laborer returning to his home was wounded by gunshot.

BANK MANAGER ARRESTED.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 28. John Stanley Bancroft, Assistant Manager of the branch of the Merchants' Bank of Canada here, was arrested Friday night on a warrant issued by Manager A. G. Fraser, charging him with the theft of forty-five thousand dollars in victory bonds, the property of William Day, Managing Director of the W. H. Day Lumber Company, and placed within the bank for safe keeping. Phil Gevurtz, Broker and President of the Gevurtz Lumber Company, was also arrested and charged with having conspired with Bancroft in the theft.

ROBBERS ARE TOO LATE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. Three employees of a steam laundry in Morrisania District were bound with bed sheets and stretched out side by side in the ironing room table early Saturday, while five robbers blew the safe in the laundry office and escaped with its contents. The robbers evidently had intended to obtain the weekly pay roll for the laundry's two hundred and fifty employees, but the workers had already received their wages.

FIRST APPOINTMENT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. The Rockefeller Foundation announced to-night the preliminary appointment of three millions in aid of medical education in Canada, out-of the five million previously set aside for this purpose. Appropriations now made are of two classes, first, contributions towards increasing permanent resources in buildings and endowment of schools already well established, and second, contributions to annual income of institutions which are undergoing re-organization. These endowments have been to Dalhousie University, Halifax, half million, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, half million, McGill University, Montreal, one million, University of Toronto, one million.

DARING HOLD UP.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. Two tin boxes containing diamonds worth sixty thousand dollars, were the loot of four daylight hold up men who Saturday attacked David Saylor, messenger for a Jeweller's House, as he was leaving the Pacific Bank, where he had removed the jewels from a safety deposit vault. Saylor was set upon as he stepped from the Bank door to the sidewalk, which at that time was bustling with activity. The crowds gasped in wonderment while the messenger struggled momentarily, against heavy odds. Then the four thugs broke away and escaped in an automobile, which waited for them around the corner.

OLYMPIC FIREMEN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. The firemen in the grimy stockholds of the steamship Olympic sailing yesterday for England, were joined by the officials of the National Firemen's and Sailors' Union of Great Britain, who will help stoke by day and spend their leisure with the first cabin passengers. The officials who came over last week on the Aquatania are making the round trip to determine for the Union the number of men necessary to man the boilers of oil burning vessels. Since the Cunard Line has substituted oil for coal on some of the ships, the firemen protested that an insufficient number of men are employed.

MINE SWEEPER ASHORE.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Nov. 28. United States mine sweeper Swan went ashore late to-day one half mile north of Coastguard Station number thirty, near Guernet light. Crew of sixty-two men was landed safely by breeches buoy. Northerly gale and very severe sea prevailed.

FORMER EMPRESS WORSE.

DOORN, Holland, Nov. 28. A turn for the worse in the condition of the former German Empress Augusta Victoria occurred late to-day, it was learned this evening.

Variety enough in hundreds of Men's Overcoats to please every taste. Variety enough to satisfy every requirement. Variety enough to please every individual need. Style that has been developed by master clothing designers. Style that lives as long as the woollens. Style that is certain to produce 100 per cent. satisfaction. Such are the Men's Overcoats now showing at BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD.

Books Reviewed.

AGAIN—THE LABOR QUESTION.

That famous author of war stories has again come to the fore with a most excellent novel on the labor question. I presume my readers understand I mean Joseph Hooking. His recent novel "In the Sweat of Thy Brow" has received many encomiums from the press for his excellent insight into that most distressing of questions, Labor versus Capital. Mr. Hooking evidently is as yet unable to leave in the past, the war, and the first part of his novel deals with the internal state of Germany before the signing of the Armistice in Nov. 1918.

His hero, who is a Captain in the R.F.A., is captured by the Germans by whom he is mistaken for a traitor to the British forces, and is consequently liberated and sent about Germany in the role of a spy. He is in Cologne when it is occupied by British troops and rejoins the army. On his return to England the War Office employs him in an unofficial manner as a Secret Service agent against the Hun, who is inculcating into the British labor leaders the germs of a Bolshevist England. By his means, however, their plots are frustrated and the ring-leaders arrested.

As in all books since the Ark (not Dr. Campbell's) the hero put the "finis" to it by being married. The book on the whole is gripping from start to finish and is typical of the author, which is perhaps its best recommendation. The book is published by Hodder and Stoughton.

North America—Seen through a Southerner's Eyes.

"The Gulf of Misunderstanding" is written by one who obviously knows his ground and who deals with his subject in a most excellent manner. The author is an eminent South American journalist, who in his own inimitable way tries to bridge the Gulf of Misunderstanding in the relations of North and South America and vice versa. Though on such a deep subject, one need not be a political economist to understand and appreciate the matters which is contained between the covers of this latest of Bond and Liveright's publications.

Record Collection.

The annual collection for the Christian Brothers, taken up at the Catholic Churches yesterday, establishes a new record, the total amounting to $9038.34, or an increase of $364.77 over last year. It is expected that this total will be augmented during the present week by contributions from those who were unable to attend the Churches during the day. Immediately after last Mass the collectors repaired to Mt. St. Francis, where Hon. J. D. Ryan, on behalf of the contributors, passed over the amount to the Superior of the Community, Rev. Bro. Ahearn. In doing so, Hon. Mr. Ryan paid a glowing tribute to the great work of the Brothers in the cause of education, and though he considered the collection large, he felt that it was only a small appreciation of the self-sacrificing efforts of the community of Mt. St. Francis. Rev. Bro. Ahearn, in reply, thanked the people for their very generous offering, which he considered a very tangible expression of appreciation. He also dwelt on the great need of religious training in the school, and before closing touchingly referred to the late Mr. J. L. Slattery and others who had passed away during the year. Speeches were also made by Messrs. M. Bambrick (St. Patrick's), Brother Emma, (Mt. Cashel); J. Doyle, (Kilbride); J. Clooney, (St. Joseph's); Hon. Judge Morris, Mr. W. J. Higgins, Sir P. T. McGrath, C. J. Cahill, Dr. V. P. Burke, and F. Murphy, Placentia. Mr. Higgins, who spoke as President of the B.I.S., intimated that a movement was on foot to fittingly mark the Golden Jubilee of the Christian Brothers in St. John's, but in what form he did not say. He also referred to the work of the late Mr. J. L. Slattery in connection with B.I.S. and St. Patrick's Hall Schools and of the very important part he played in the annual collection for many years. These sentiments were reiterated by Sir P. T. McGrath, who hoped that the names of such men as J. L. Slattery and T. Mitchell and others who were so prominent for many years in making the collection a success, would be honored in some fitting way in the near future.

Record Collection.

The total collection was made up as follows:

Cathedral	1920	1919
St. Patrick's	$6,157.20	$5851.00
St. Joseph's	2,562.29	2543.00

Kilbride	85.00	75.00

What the "Standard" Says.

Last week we stated that if Mr. Coaker could pay $8 a quintal for fish at Port Union, he could pay a similar figure here or elsewhere. The warden were used in the hope that the Union Trading Co. would cope with the slack sale of codfish in other places beside Port Union to the good of the fisherman. If codfish is worth $8 to the Union Trading Co. should it not be worth the same price to other exporters? The Fishery Regulations give all exporters the same concessions and the same conditions of sale, and why then should the Union Company be the only exporter to openly offer to buy fish and to publish the prices it will pay for the article? Are there more serious causes why the exporters are not purchasing codfish, than the fishery Regulations?

The world today is suffering from the after effects of the war, and this Dominion is only now feeling her part of general depression when other countries are recovering. We are suffering from our own bad management, our reckless extravagance, our political and financial madness during the war.

There has also been in the past and there is now, too much power centered in the capital city. If the people there are called upon to bear their part of the burden of bad times, the papers cry out and blame the Government, not because they believe the Government is responsible, but because they are against the Government.—Hr. Grace Standard.

At the Fancy Work Stalls, presided over by the Young Ladies' Guild, will be shown exquisite imported Hand Work, a great variety of Handkerchiefs and many other Fancy Articles. nov29,31

Making Enquiry.

Touching the matter of a letter signed "Inquisitive," under the heading "For the Benefit of Insides," which appeared in the Telegram of Nov. 25, we are making enquiry as to certain statements therein and will publish the result to-morrow.

Sugar Again.

"I can tell you, Sir, that if the public knew the details of the mismanagement of this sugar business, the Food Control Board and their sugar held by a manufacturer was 'bor.'" Such were the closing words of a gentleman who knows something of this, our National Scandal, during a conversation with several business men on Saturday evening last. From what could be gathered of the conversation, it appears one of the ironies of the sugar muddle is that the F.C.B. sold in Montreal a large quantity of high price sugar at a loss of $200,000 on the original purchase price and this was followed by a big purchase in the New York market, but a day or two afterwards the market there slumped, resulting in further losses, through the F.C.B. being too hasty. We learn from other sources that a large quantity of granulated sugar held by a manufacturer was bought by a grocer, the manufacturer not needing it, on account of the decline in price of articles manufactured by him, but before the transfer would be permitted the F.C.B. demanded and actually is receiving three cents per lb. on that lot. This effectively stopped the grocer from re-selling below the F.C.B. price.

Police Court.

A man was charged with attempting to steal a tierce of molasses from Geo. Barr's premises. He was seen by the night police, loitering around the vicinity from 11 to 12.45 last night, and was arrested on suspicion. A tierce of molasses was found half way up the arch, and it had evidently been rolled for almost a hundred yards. Some time ago, this man committed a similar offence. He was remanded for eight days.

Xmas Stock Seized.

A resident of the West end is mourning the loss of a Xmas stock of booze which he had safely stored under some bedclothes. FREE

This Week Only

At any drug store named below, a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Simply present the coupon.

Watch the results—they are quick and apparent. You will know then what this method means, both to you and yours. Go get this tube today.

We Invite You

To see how really clean teeth shine

Your teeth are coated with a film. When fresh the film is viscous—you can feel it with your tongue. Later it forms a cloudy coat. It enters crevices and stays. It dims the teeth, and now we know that it causes most tooth troubles. There is now a way to end it. This week your druggist, if you ask, will give you a 10-Day Tube. Get it and see what it does for your teeth. Learn what film removal means.

These methods have been combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Millions of people have come to employ it. You can see the results wherever you look—in glistening teeth, in teeth you envy, maybe. A new dental era has begun, due to these discoveries. And these are benefits everyone should share. So you are urged to let this 10-Day Tube show what Pepsodent can do.

Brings five effects

Pepsodent brings five distinct effects. All are apparent, some are quick. A few days' use will leave no doubt about them. And a little book will tell you what each one means to you.

One ingredient is pepsin. Another multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva to digest starch deposits that cling.

The alkalinity of the saliva is multiplied at once. This is to neutralize the acid, which causes tooth decay.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

Every application brings the Pepsodent effects. Together they mean tooth protection like you never had before.

Watch these effects. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

Compare your teeth now with your teeth in ten days. Then judge this new-day method by what you see and feel and know.

Old ways don't end it

Old ways of brushing do not end film. Millions of people know that. Teeth discolor and decay despite the daily care.

The reason lies in film. It clings and hides, and very few escape its damage.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. All these troubles have been constantly increasing—some have grown alarming. And all because we knew no way to daily fight the film.

A new dental era

Dental science has for years studied to combat film. Ways have now been found to do it. Able authorities have proved those methods by many careful tests. Now leading dentists everywhere are urging their daily use.

Men who smoke

will see a quick, conspicuous change

Tobacco stains the film-coat on the teeth. So men who smoke will see a great change quickly. But millions of teeth have that same film-coat with a lesser stain.

Children's teeth are most affected by the film. Young teeth seem most subject to decay. Dentists advise that Pepsodent be daily applied from the time the first tooth appears. Otherwise, decay is almost certain.

Pepsodent brings to women whiter, prettier teeth. But that means cleaner teeth and safer. The luster comes from constant film removal and the high polish given to the teeth.

Hear the Sleigh Bells Jinglin' on the Ground!

I'M COMING, Says Cheery Joë

There's been too much grumblin' and bickerin' the last ten-months. Too much beating about hard times. People need my bright smile, my cheery greeting that rings so happily across the snow on Christmas morning. And so I've been sent—the advance agent of the great giver. I have been the follower of the sled, pushing it over high banks, digging it out of hollows for many Christmases, but this Christmas I have been sent on ahead—a precursor of joy to make your hearts warm.

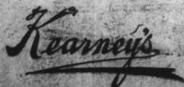

With my fund of joy I also pack a great deal of wisdom—a marvellous amount of knowledge on Christmas Gift choosing, gathered from many centuries following the Trail of the Sled. I know ALL about gifts, where to buy them, and how to buy them.

But I know more about men than about women—a great deal more than most women. I'm going to criticize, analyze, suggest and urge. And before Christmas has passed I hope to gain the love of every woman in this good-old-burg by making every man exclaim on Christmas morning, "How did she know that that was just what I wanted?" So much so that they'll want me to come again—next Christmas and for many Christmases after, so long as this old world continues making Christmas Merry.

I'll be back again

Yours for Joy,

CHEERY JOE.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ARE YOU A COWARD?

RUTH CAMERON

A friend of mine who was staying at the same little inn at which I spent some weeks last Fall, had a dearly beloved sister who was seriously ill. News of her condition came by telephone. A day or two later the telephone rang, if my friend were near it she would have been there. She called to me and I went toward it apprehensively and the clerk anxiously to see if it was for me. "Yes," I said. "You stop it." "How can I help it?" she said. "You have a Great Strain on the Heart." "Wouldn't you think you had to stop it if you were doing work that such a strain on your heart that almost stopped beating?" I said. "You don't know that fear like that does the same drain on your health work that greatly overtaxes your strength?" "But how can I help it?" she persisted. "Cultivate courage," I said. "Yes," she said, "that's easy enough to say, but I don't believe you could do it any better than I can." And there with she dismissed the whole subject. "If I could do it or not anything to do with the fact that she was riled to cultivate courage was menacing her own health! She can't tell me anything about how hard it is to cultivate courage. Now, And I know, too, just how hard a drain is this kind of cowardice. We think of cowardice as fear of physical danger and courage as indifference to it, but there are many other forms of courage that play a bigger part in daily life. The Courage That Refuses to be Afraid of Life. And one of these is the courage of the heart, the courage that will not be afraid of life! I do not see how anyone can live a life which does not give opportunity for fear. If we love anyone there is always the fear that harm will come to them; if we have possessions there is always the chance of loss. The solitary one who cares for no one and has no possessions can fear that he will not get his next meal, or fear for his own health. It is impossible to control the conditions of life—the only control that we can exercise is in our reaction to them. Shall we permit ourselves to have the fear habit or shall we strive for courage? Courage will make us happier, of course. People have long realized that and they are coming to realize more and more that it will also make us healthier. How to Fight this Cowardice. The strain that fear puts upon us, even the little gloomy fears, has as a definite physical effect. A courageous attitude, on the other hand, actually helps our digestion, improves our circulation. "Courage," say the life extension people, "is a foe to constipation." Of course you cannot have courage all in a minute, but you can make up your mind all in a minute to cultivate it. You can promise yourself that the next time fear attacks you—either in the form of a nervous apprehension that the landlord is going to raise your rent or an agonized picturing of dreadful things that might have happened when your husband doesn't get back at the usual hour, or just a spell of the blues—you will straighten up, throw out your chest, smile (these outward manifestations help, "assume a virtue if you have it not") and fight for courage. How Burmese Women Smoke.

Merchants smoke their pipes from dawn until dark, in Korea, writes a correspondent. They squat down when they smoke, and as the stems of the pipes are three feet long, the bowl can rest on the ground. In Bethlehem the hookah is very popular among the women and it accompanies the morning and afternoon coffee drinking hour. Several tubes extend from the water bowl through which the smoke passes in a cooling process, and the women gather about the hookah, each selecting a tube, and all drawing smoke from the common bowl. The Burmese maidens smoke a cigar 10 inches long and as fat as a good-sized candle and with a white paper covering. The longest pipes known are those used by the natives of the Belgian Congo. These pipes have stems 10 or 12 feet long, with small bowls. If matches were used to light them a friend would be needed to apply the flame, but the native gets his light by merely thrusting the bowl into his camp fire.

THERE'S NO RULE.

WIMP WACK

Old Gaffer Jinks should be a wreck; for eighty years he's been on deck; and when a man has lived that long his cylinders are hitting wrong in thirteen cases out of ten, but he's a wonder to all men, for he is chipper, blithe and spry and we all stare when he goes by. And if you ask him for the truth concerning how he's kept his youth, he'll say, "I never smoked or chewed, and no one ever saw me stewed." And this should teach us how to hold the health of youth, which is life's gold. Beware the fagon and the pipe if you would reach an age that's ripe! But now old Gaffer Todd appears, and he has lived for ninety years, and he's so brisk and full of pep it thrills us when we see his step. "How have you dodged," I ask this Todd, "a resting place beneath the sod?" "I've always chewed and smoked," says he; "I like a drink, and sometimes three." And thus we learn, so help us Mike, that we should do just as we like, if we would live to wintry years with supple joints and active gears. Some men, methinks, are pre-designed to leave a hundred years behind, and they will see the journey through—makes no difference what they do.

This Week's Wisdom.

The perfect lover is always the prosaic husband. He who is a law unto himself is a nuisance to others. All girls are alike except the one you happen to be engaged to. A girl with another girl to gossip about is the happiest alive. Love makes the world go round—perhaps that's why the young folk are so giddy. A man does not realize how many friends he has until he has become a financial success. A touch of rouge gives to a woman the same feeling that a drop of beer gives to man. A man likes his wife to do him credit in public even if he swears at her about the cost in private.

FISHIN'. Fishin' teaches me a lot! There's no sure an' certain spot Where I'll always catch a mess. Have to hunt it more or less; Sometimes strike it right away, And there'll come another day When I'll have to work like sin 'Fore I get a big one in. Change the bait, an' move along, Where the current's not so strong Or the wind can't get a sweep Or the pool's aren't quite so deep, Till at last I chance to light On a place where they will bite.

Fishin' teaches me to wait Patiently an' try my bait; Lets me know on many a day I can't always have my way. Things aren't rosin' to suit my whim, I must stick with patience grim If I know that I am right Till at last they start to bite; Times I've hooked a beauty, and Worked a half an hour to land Him alongside of the boat, Then he's split it from his throat, Jumped the hook an' got away. But that didn't spoil my day.

Learned right then from Mister Fish I can't always have my wish; Things won't go the way I choose, There are times I'm bound to lose, Times I'm just about to win, An' I think the prize is in Reach of me, somehow I find That the fates have changed their mind. So it is with life, I guess, Mixed with failure an' success, Gain and loss are bound to fall In proportions to us all; Patient, we must work an' plan Just like every fisherman.

Toronto, Mob After Meighen.

Toronto.—(Canadian Press)—While Hon. Arthur Meighen was speaking at the crowded Massey Hall, Friday night, on what the government had done for returned soldiers, an elderly woman appeared from somewhere on the platform, and before she could be restrained walked up to the premier and commenced to tell, between sobs, some incoherent stories about her boys at the front. She opened her coat and revealed across the front of her dress a line of medals, which apparently were her legacy from dear ones "gone west" in the Great War. It was stated that her two boys were killed overseas. The premier stopped his speech and sympathetically tried to make out her story. Near the close of the meeting the crowd gathered in the vicinity in larger numbers than in the early evening and appeared to be in an ugly mood. Watching for the premier to leave the hall, the crowd stood around a cordon of 50 policemen who were drawn up around the premier's automobile. Hon. Mr. Meighen remained in the hall later than the crowd had anticipated, and they mistook prominent local Conservatives for him. These they hooted by turns. When at last the premier appeared the police pressed the crowd back. He was driven down Victoria street at a rapid rate and quickly outdistanced the crowd, which was running after him at first. Conditions North.

Last Monday this column had an article on the shortage of food supplies in ports of White Bay and along the French Shore, with a recommendation that the Government take instant measures to rush supplies ere navigation closed by reason of the freezing up of the Bays and Harbors of this section. In discussing that article the press supporting the Government made light of the situation and evaded the question entirely, resorting to their principal empty stock arguments and personal abuse of the editors of the Telegram and other papers referring to existing conditions North of Cape John. It will not avail the people of Eastern St. Barbe district to know that their appeal for relief was answered in this way by the Government press. Rather will their disgust and contempt be expressed for those men, who treated a matter of the utmost importance in such an idiotic and unbusiness-like manner. To discredit an opponent is not the easiest way to win a victory. Rather would it have been more manly on the part of those supporting the Government had they accepted the statements made as bona fide, and if they desired to refute them, providing conditions were not so serious as claimed, to have done so in a way that would have removed from them the stigma of acting as buffoons, when suffering humanity was genuinely soliciting aid from imminent starvation. But to argue intelligently and reasonably does not suit the book of a heavily subsidized press. Any old thing is drawn into discussion in order to obscure the real issue, and it was nothing to the credit of the Star and Advocate that they both "with one consent," refused to recognize the circumstances, and ridiculed the stories, told by responsible men, of deprivation brought about by food shortage in parts of St. Barbe district.

Nor have they attempted to accomplish anything in the way of relief since, notwithstanding that corroboration has come from many authentic sources that residents of the portion of coast referred to are faced with a serious shortage. Such men cannot see beyond the political horizon. With them everything is discussed on political lines. Politics become their natural provender and they are unable or unwilling to visualize anything else. The Opposition party is blamed for everything that the Government fails in doing. Its members are charged with all the crimes in the political calendar, and for conditions as they appear, forgetting that in the main the real cause of them all is the bungling incapacity and inattention of the administration to the very real issues of the hour. Everyone remembers the expression "Now fled while Rome was burning." Modernized that should read "Mr. Coaker was playing at Parliament while the people of White Bay and other places were in dire need of food." Same thing gentle reader. The news item of the sailing for s.s. Prospero on Saturday, contained the statement that but little food supplies were being sent to the settlements reported short of flour and other necessities. Who is responsible for this neglect? An admission was made to a representative of the Telegram on Saturday afternoon by one of the Government members, that the Government itself was powerless to cope with the situation, which he averred was brought about by Opposition tactics. When challenged, as to this accusation he could only fall back on the feeble excuse that some one had cabled untrue stories to the New York papers which published them with scare headlines, causing certain contemplated industries to be abandoned for the time being. Asked to put his declaration in writing, for publication, in the Telegram, he hedged, giving as a reason that it would not be printed. This same gentleman further said that the half is not known and if full details of conditions in Northern sections were made public, the result would be appalling. And still nothing has been done to prevent suffering and possible starvation. The people of White Bay ask for bread, and their appeal goes unheeded. How much longer will Newfoundland submit to be governed by Kindergarten rulers, who know little and care less of actual living conditions in the dominion which they so brilliantly misgovern.

Damaged Tramp Arrives

S.S. Salberg, 33 days from Trondheim, Norway, bound for Hampton Roads, in ballast, arrived at St. John's Saturday evening in a disabled condition. The Salberg experienced very rough weather throughout her trip, and being very light in ballast, was not able to withstand the full force of the seas. Finally, her engines became damaged and temporary repairs having been effected, she made for this port. She will berth at the dock whilst repairs, which will take about ten days, are made. Hon. Tasker Cook, Norwegian Consul, is looking after the owner's interests while the ship is here.

Injured by Motor.

Whilst sliding down Pleasant St. on Saturday evening, a boy named Rabbitts was run down by a motor car driven by Mr. J. Duff, the slide colliding with one of the wheels of the car. The little fellow, who was badly cut about the head, was taken to Dr. Tait's surgery by Mr. Duff, where his injuries were attended to. He was not seriously hurt and will be all right in a few days.

Providing for the Orphans.

A Sale of Work, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the providing of clothes for the little inmates of the C. E. Orphanage, will be held to-morrow Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 6, in the Presbyterian Hall. Mrs. Herbert Outerbridge, assisted by a number of other workers, will conduct the affair. There will be candy, home cookery and work stalls, while afternoon teas will also be served. The sum of six hundred dollars is needed at once to provide clothes for the little orphans and this fact alone will induce our citizens to attend. A pleasant afternoon is assured the public and it is hoped the attendance will be large.

$7,400 Thanksgiving Collection.

Cochrane St. Centennial Church congregation was delighted yesterday when the result of the Thanksgiving offering of the previous Sunday was announced by the Pastor, Rev. Dr. Bond. The congregation is evidently anxious to reduce the very heavy debt on their Church Home. The offering amounts to the very generous sum of seven hundred dollars. There was a good attendance at both services yesterday. Timely and able sermons were preached by the Revs. D. B. Hemmeon and Dr. Bond. The Song Service in the evening was much enjoyed. The singing was hearty. Solos by Miss Vincent and Mr. Hatcher were exceptionally well rendered.

New Pastor for Centennial Church.

We understand the Official Board of Cochrane Street Methodist Centennial Church have extended a unanimous invitation to Rev. Charles H. Johnson, B.D., of Barwick, N.S., to become Pastor of the Church at the close of Rev. Dr. Bond's five year Pastorate in June next, and that the Rev. gentleman has accepted the call, subject to the usual conference regulations. Mr. Johnson is a son of the Rev. Dr. Johnson, editor of the Wesleyan, one of the official organs of the Methodist Church of Canada, of which the Mtd. Conference forms a part.

Star Society.

ARRANGE JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS.
The Star of the Sea Association held its regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon, Mr. J. T. Martin presiding. After reading the minutes of the previous meeting the matter of celebrating the Society's Golden Jubilee was discussed. It was decided that the members would hold a church parade on January 6th next, whilst in connection with the celebration, a banquet and dance for the members and their lady friends would be held on the same evening. Rev. Dr. Greene, the Society's Spiritual Director, addressed the members at some length in connection with a jubilee volume, which will shortly be issued. The Society is in a very flourishing condition and enters its 51st year with renewed vigor.

Warship Badges.

The British Admiralty has decided to provide every British warship with its own distinctive badge. These are being designed by Major Charles Fenwick, Heraldic Advisor to the Admiralty, who has already designed 150 badges. Considerable ingenuity has been exercised, as the following examples will show: Venetian, two dice; Sportive, a butting goat; Tactician, a chess knight; Inconstant, a butterfly; Sesame, a key; Stirling, a watchful eye; Vivacious, head of Mr. Lloyd George; Perseverant, a fury; Nile, head of Nelson; Truculent, Britisher smashing a Hun. Each badge will be carved in wood and then cast in brass, colored, and fitted on the quarterdeck as well as on either bow of its boats. Two plaques are to be used, the smaller one for the boats being about 8 in. square. Each badge is designed in some way to represent the name of the boat pictorially, or when that is impossible, embodying some device connected with its history. The designs will be used also on notepaper, and probably on the brass muzzle-caps of guns, which are privately bought by officers of battleships.

Obituary.

MRS. JOHN O'REGAN.
A well-known lady in the person of Mrs. Catherine O'Regan, relict of the late John O'Regan, Water Street, was called to her eternal reward yesterday, after a brief illness. Although her death was not unexpected, yet her demise came as a severe blow to her family for she was a kind and devoted mother and her loss will be keenly felt in the home circle. The late Mrs. O'Regan was one of the old stock, now fast passing away, and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew her because of her many admirable characteristics, notably her charitable disposition and her gentle manner. She is survived by two sons, Michael, of the well-known distiller of Duckworth St., and Ray, Brother Alexius of St. Casel. Three daughters, Mrs. J. P. Cash, Miss Mary and Miss Catherine are, also, left to mourn. The Telegram tenders an expression of sympathy to the bereaved family.

Bp. Spencer College Exhibition.

An exhibition of plain and fancy work, drawings, etc., done by the pupils, was held in Bp. Spencer College on Saturday afternoon. The Telegram was agreeably surprised at the splendid work exhibited. The needlework part of the exhibition was done under the supervision of Miss Mary Bremner, who is to be complimented on her splendid work, the success of which was evidenced by the articles of her pupils, which were on view. They consisted of all kinds of fancy work, such as Kensington Art Embroidery, Drawn Work, Crochet Work, Cross-stitched Work, and Knitting, both plain and fancy. Our attention was particularly attracted by some beautifully worked cushion covers, a very fine middy blouse, and some woolen jerseys and slippers, all of which were excellently done. Even to one so unversed in that sort of thing, the superb quality of the work was plainly apparent. The other part of the exhibition consisted of drawing and its various branches, such as pen and ink work, model drawing, freehand drawing, crayon work, oil paintings, water colours, and sepia. All the walls of the large hall in which the exhibition was held were covered with examples of the pupils' industry and Miss Kelly, who supervised their work, is also deserving of the very highest praise. The water colours were particularly striking, many very fine effects being obtained, and it is very evident that many of the pupils are quite talented in this kind of work. The pencil and the pen and ink work were also very creditable. Mention should also be made of the crayon and other work of the very little girls which was on view in another room. During the afternoon hundreds of people visited the exhibition, amongst them being His Lordship Bishop White, Rev. Canons Bott, M.A., Leonard Jeeves, Field and Rev. Dr. Pacey of Queen's College, Rev. C. A. Moulton and Messrs. Ralph Wood, B.A., Principal of Peild College, Mr. Geo. House of the staff, Dr. Blackall, Geo. R. Williams, S. C. Thompson, Mrs. Frazer (nee Miss Stirling), the former Headmistress, and many of the parents all of whom were loud in their praises of the various articles displayed. We congratulate Miss Richards, the new principal, on having such efficient helpers as Miss Bremner and Miss Kelly, and upon the great talent shown by the pupils of Bishop Spencer College. The exhibition will be open again this evening from 4 to 7.

Boy Drowned at Turk's Gut.

Deputy Minister of Justice Summers received the following message Saturday evening last from Magistrate Thompson of Brigus:—"James Linthorn, whose son was recently drowned from the schooner Blossom, had another son, Benjamin, aged 14 years, drowned in Turk's Gut Pond this afternoon by falling through the ice on his way to attend rabbit slips. The body has been recovered."

A New Industry. VULCANISING RUBBER FOOTWEAR.

Users of rubber footwear are aware that hitherto repairs to these articles always gave dissatisfaction, and no matter how good the mechanic, the boots gave very little service afterwards. Thousands will be glad to learn that one of our ex-soldiers has just installed a special vulcanising machine for the repair of all kinds and sizes of rubber wear. This will be of special welcome to fishermen as for a small expenditure they can have their broken rubbers made as good, if not better than when the articles first came from the factory. Saturday afternoon a Telegram representative paid a visit to the "Fire" repair plant of Mr. Joseph McKinley, corner of Lime St. and LeMarchant Road, and had the pleasure of witnessing the process of repairs. Taking a pair of long rubber boots that were worn-through and through, the proprietor washed the soles, cleaning away all foreign matter, then new fabric was placed inside and the holes and worn spots were filled with rubber. Soles from a sheet of plain live rubber were then shaped and placed in position, the whole being then put on the vulcaniser, where the process was completed. Examination afterwards showed that the new sole and the original had been perfectly welded together and that neither dragging, nor soaking in any liquid, could separate the parts. The cross markings, as on new boots, were perfectly reproduced during the vulcanising process. Mr. McKinley is to be congratulated on his enterprise, and having several returned men in his employ, those of the public who have rubbers to mend would, besides benefitting themselves, help to keep these men in employment. Besides doing a thriving business in motor tire repairs, Mr. McKinley has several side lines such as sharpening skates and tool grinding.

W. C. T. U.

A large number of members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union met on Thursday of last week in the Gover St. Church rooms. President, Mrs. Hunter occupied the chair. The meeting opened with devotions. A letter from Miss Gordon, the U.S. National President, was read, which gave many echoes of the world convention, held in London a few months ago, and at which Miss Gordon wrote no link had been severed since the convention which took place seven years since. Greetings were received from Toronto where a member lately attended a W.C.T.U. social gathering. Important business came up for discussion, and thereafter the election of officers which was postponed until this meeting as some of those holding office could not attend when the annual meeting was held. Officers for ensuing year are as follows:—Pres. Mrs. Hunter; 1st. Vice-President, Mrs. Johnson; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Clouston; Rec. Secretary, Mrs. Withers; Cor. Secretary, Mrs. Grimes; the Evangelistic Superintendent to be appointed later on. The past year has been full of activity and members march forward to the future with faces full of hope.

Want's Seamen's Union.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Please allow me space to make a few suggestions to the public in general and to seamen in particular. At a recent meeting held in the Board of Trade Rooms by ship-owners, it was decided that certificated masters should be paid $150 per month and uncertificated masters $120 per month. But, a master not knowing this, may go to a shipowner for a job, and when told there are two scales of wages, declare his willingness to receive what the owner will pay, which, of course, means $120, no more than an uncertificated man. In the case of mates, there is a difference of $25 between the pay of a ticketed and an unticketed man. But as masters select their own mates, if a mate, whether ticketed or not, is worth $85, he gets it. I would like to suggest that as this and other matters of a similar nature are decidedly unfair, a public meeting be called for the purpose of forming a seaman's union.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,
Yours truly,

Names and Phrases.

London Town (England) has many curious names incorporated in its streets and squares which embody strange incidents or are of peculiar origin. The derivations of the name of the City itself would fill a page but one authority gives the name as derived from the Celtic Luan-dun, City of the Moon, and tradition has it that there was once a temple of Diana where St. Paul's now stands. Similarly Greenwich is supposed to be derived from Grian-wick, also Celtic, meaning the Sun. London is also said to be derived from Lud's Town, so called from Lud, said to be a mythical King of Britain.

Cripple-gate was so called before the Norman Conquest from the number of cripples who resorted thither to beg. St. Giles, who was himself a cripple, is the patron saint of cripples and beggars and St. Giles church is named after him. His churches are usually in the suburbs of the towns in which they are built.

"Tipperary" the marching song which had such a vogue in 1914 refers to Piccadilly. One story is that the place was named after the Piccadilla Hall, where a certain kind of lace much in vogue during the reign of Queen Elizabeth was made. The lace was called piccadilly because of its Early Winter on Labrador.

We are informed by Mr. W. J. Scanlon, wireless operator from Dominio, that the winter has set in unusually early on the Labrador, and for the past two weeks continuous gales of northern and northwest winds, with snow and frost, were sweeping over the coast. Heavy slob ice is making everywhere and harbours and runs are fast filling up.

Piccadillo Lane, peculiarly enough, is now the chief place of business of firms specialising in men's second-hand suits.

Tell it to the marines is an expression frequently heard in England, although it is not so common in Canada. The marines were soldiers placed on battleships in the old days when boarding and hand to hand fighting were common. As these men did not know anything about seamanship it was a common practice to tell them the men the most outrageous sea-stories which they would believe. Consequently whenever any one told a particularly tall story he was adjured to tell it to the marines.

Bosh is of Turkish origin. Bosh lakerd meaning silly talk. The Germans have a word, meaning swipes, which is similarly used.

CREDIT SITUATION.
The country's credit requirements have, during the period under review, reached a maximum level. Pressure may for a time continue at this current high level, but no substantial increase is anticipated in the demand for banking accommodations, either for crop financing or to meet commercial and industrial requirements. The credit position is essentially sound and the future is to be regarded with confidence.

The banks and reserve institutions have financed the enormous volume of current requirements with no weakening of their reserve strength. The beginning of a reduction in the aggregate of these requirements is now evident. Loans of reporting member banks of the reserve system expanded steadily until the middle of October. A moderate contraction is now shown. Interior banks in diverse sections of the country are moderately increasing the volume of their purchases of commercial paper, an evidence of the release of funds from other employments. They have also begun, in a small way, to reduce their borrowings with other banks. Such contraction as has occurred is not of large volume. It is important, however, because, in the present difficult situation, it indicates an ability greater than might have been anticipated, on the part of both the interior banks and their customers to liquidate outstanding obligations. It indicates also that the future trend will be toward the contraction rather than expansion of such obligations.

Money Rates.
Open market rates on commercial loans have continued unchanged on an 8 per cent. level, with country banks purchasing paper in fair volume. Call money was tight, ruling throughout most of the period at from 9 to 10 per cent., but easing at the close to 7 per cent. The continuing high rates in the call money market reflected the general stringency of credit rather than the requirements of a stock market, where sharp liquidation continued throughout the period. Both demands for and offerings of time loans on securities were nominal. Moderate offerings of time money may reasonably be expected shortly, as funds are released from other uses. This would result in lower quotations. Prime bank acceptances were in active demand and in reduced supply.

General Conditions.
The determining factor in the entire situation continues to be the reluctance of consumers to buy, partly because of their expectation that prices may go even lower, and in part because of the curtailment of purchasing power of large sections of the buying public. Farmers are not purchasing actively at present because prices of the products which they have to offer in exchange have declined sharply. Wage earners hesitate to purchase because their earnings are being curtailed by increasing unemployment and in some cases by reduction in wages.

The adjustment of prices to new conditions of supply and demand has proved difficult. Two factors on the buying side of the equation offer much encouragement, however. In comparison with those classes whose income increased rapidly during the period of rising prices, the decline in prices which has already taken place has increased the purchasing power of salaried employees and persons in receipt of fixed incomes from investments. Large crops assure a fair volume of buying throughout the agricultural parts of the country, especially the grain states. Farmers unquestionably are delaying their purchases until the prices of what they must buy sell their crops. As that level is approached, they will buy in increasing volume, because their position is essentially sound.—National Bank of Commerce of New York.

Can Now Eat Bacon for Breakfast, Says This Moncton Man

Cormier Now Enjoys Edibles He Didn't Dare Touch Before Taking-Tanlac.

"Tanlac is the only thing that ever helped me, and that is saying a good deal, for I spent hundreds of dollars trying to get rid of my troubles," was the emphatic declaration made recently by Elie Cormier, of 740 Main St., Moncton, N.B.

"Seven years ago I had to leave my farm because I got too weak to do the work, and from then on my health continued to go down. My appetite left me and I hardly ever ate a mouthful for breakfast. After meals I bloated up with gas so I couldn't walk for an hour. Honestly, I was hardly ever free from that tight, bloated feeling. I dared not touch fats or anything rich, for I knew so well the misery it would cost me.

"Every bone in my body seemed to ache with rheumatism and the pains in my arms, chest and back were almost unbearable. Many a night I didn't get a wink of sleep and some mornings I had such terrible headaches I could hardly get out of bed. I took medicine enough to stock a small sized drug store, but nothing gave me any permanent relief, and things were getting pretty gloomy for me.

"That was the shape I was in when I got Tanlac, but I had only taken a few doses before I got to feeling better. By the time I had finished the second bottle I was feeling fine, though I took two more to clinch the good work. Why, I can eat bacon for breakfast now, or just anything else I want and nothing ever hurts me. I never feel a touch of rheumatism and in fact all my aches and pains have left me, and I can work from sun up to sundown and feel fine all the time. I just can't say too much for Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Ring Once Worn by Queen Elizabeth.

Chicago.—(Special)—A ring once worn by Queen Elizabeth of England and the beauty of which may have intrigued the eyes of Shakespeare, was recently discovered to be among the heirlooms of a French family in Auvergne. It had been presented by an English nobleman three generations ago to an ancestor of its present owners.

"The ring," says a French journal, "is composed of five magnificent baroque pearls disposed in a graduated line, or as a jeweler would say, 'in stream.' The pearls are each surrounded by a simple mount without claws and bound together in the interior by an invisible thread of metal. They are set in their entirety in a mount of milligrams.

"The body of the ring is a half-guard of bold split at the two extremities. Its dimensions are extraordinary in a woman's ring. It is six centimeters in circumference in the interior and eight on the exterior owing to the thickness of the St. Catherine of Siena.

Born on the 25th of March, 1347, Catherine of Siena was the twenty-fifth child of Giacomo di Benincasa and Lapa.

Catherine, a highly-strung nervous child, very early showed a pious and devout disposition and at the age of seven dedicated her virginity to Christ. When only sixteen she persuaded her parents to allow her to don the habit of the Dominican nuns.

For some time she led the life of a recluse in her own home, speaking except to her father confessor, and devoting her days to devotional exercises and religious ecstasy.

This self-control mode of life did not satisfy her for long and we soon hear of her helping the poor and the sick.

She became highly educated and mastered the art of penmanship—an unusual accomplishment in her day—soon acquiring a wide and varied correspondence. Sound common sense and goodness of heart led to her advice being eagerly sought and many were the disputes she settled.

It was in 1374, that in her 27th year, while tending the sick in plague-stricken Florence that she met Raymond of Capua, her favorite confessor and biographer. In 1375 at the invitation of Piero Gambacorti, the ruler of Pisa, she visited that city, in the role of an evangelist, persuading the citizens to undertake a Crusade. At the same time she used her influence to prevent Pisa and Lucca from joining the Tuscan League against the Bishop of Rome.

It was in the year 1375, on April 1st, that what her biographers term Catherine's greatest glory befell her. After partaking of the Holy Communion, while sitting in the church in rapt ecstasy, she is declared to have received the "stigmata"—an impression on hands, feet and heart of the wounds received by Christ at His crucifixion. In answer to her prayer the marks were not made visible during her lifetime.

For over seventy years a papal court had been held at Avignon in France as well as at Rome and every good Italian wished to put an end to what some termed "The Great Schism," others "The Babylonian captivity of the Church"; but the Italian influence proved unavailing until Catherine was asked to negotiate. Finally she went herself to Avignon and persuaded Gregory XI to take up his residence in Rome.

Although the Italians had decided to accept him, Gregory did not find it all plain sailing, at Rome, and so vented his anger on Catherine, who reproved him for devoting too much time to things temporal.

However, she set out for Florence at his behest, and while there news came of Gregory's death. Riots immediately set in and Catherine nearly lost her life. However, peace being secured under Urban VI, Catherine once more returned to Siena.

But before long Urban begged her to return to Rome, whither she went accompanied by her band of followers and workers. A hard worker at all times, Catherine gave herself up heartily to Urban's cause and the healing of schism, but the labor was heavy and Catherine's strength failed and on the 29th of April, 1380, she died.

Catherine's death, naturally broke up the little fellowship of evangelists but the members kept up their good works and her many books still keep Catherine's memory green.

Mystery of British Crown Jewels.

In a recently published book, Sir George Youngusband gives an account of what happened to the Crown Jewels during the war. He starts with the visit of a German lady to the Tower just before the war. "You may think those jewels very wonderful and very wonderfully guarded," she remarked to the yeoman on duty, "but don't be surprised if I say they will soon belong to our Kaiser." When the daylight raids started four bombs promptly fell near the Tower, and later one fell in the river near to the ancient walls. The total casualties, writes General Youngusband, were: "One pigeon, which probably had a weak heart and died of shell shock. One pane of window broken in the Jewel House." "After those narrow escapes," writes the Keeper of the Jewel House, "a Royal car drove into the Tower of London and up to the Jewel House. Into it the more important and valuable portions of the Regalia, already packed in their own cases were handed. It was all a matter

Artificial jewellery is coming into more general use every day, and even to the jewellers the extent to which women have become interested in cheap pearls is a surprise. Artificial pearl earrings which run from the normal pearl sizes up to as large as a quarter of a dollar are worn by women of refinement. Not only pearls, but artificial stones of all kinds are popular, probably owing to the price.

A short string of real pearls, imperfectly graduated, can be bought perhaps for $1,000, but a string of the same length in the finest pearls, perfectly graduated, will cost from $50,000 up, and in the longer strings the price will run to $150,000 at least. Artificial pearls are very skillfully made, and they are not expensive, the price being anywhere from $25 to $1,000. This will include the cost of the clasp.

There are different ways of making the artificial pearls. They range from the cheap little pearl that the children wear, which used to be 5 and 10 cents a string, to the finest made pearl, known as "the indestructible." The children's pearls are of blown glass, with a pearl effect in a coating on the inside, and very fragile.

Regular commercial pearls are known as the half filled, the full filled and the indestructible. The first two are hollow beads, into which is inserted the sacre or fish silver, made from fish scales, a product coming chiefly from Russian sources. This was unobtainable during the war, but is now again on the market. The indestructible pearl has for a foundation usually a composition of opaque glass or crushed mother-of-pearl, on the surface of which is blown the fish silver in various layers, from three to twenty, the finer pearls having the greatest number of coatings.

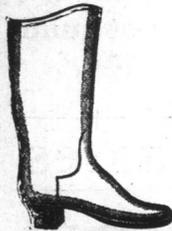

France makes the finest indestructible pearls. Excellent ones are also made in Germany, and Japan in recent years has been producing an inferior grade of hollow, coated pearls, and during the last two years has made some advance in the manufacture of the indestructible pearl. Indestructible pearls made in the United States follow closely the color of real pearls, but though attaining success in durability they have been inferior to the French product.

How the British Ambassador Views the Influence of the Press.

The British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes, in a recent address before the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, at Asheville, N.C., discussed the influence of the public press in shaping international sentiment, and the opportunity possessed by the press to foster peace and good will by promoting better understandings between races and nations. A detailed report of the Ambassador's address has been obtained by the Foreign Information Department of the Bankers Trust Company, of New York, and is herewith reproduced.

"It is with peculiar personal pleasure that I stand here to-day to bring to you a message of good will and friendship from all the peoples whom I have the honour to represent.

There is no need for our nations to gaze suspiciously each at the other; there is every need for you, for us, for the whole world, that they regard one another with mutual respect and understanding. I know of no reason why respect should be lacking; the deeds which each has done proclaim the character, the resolution, the capacity of its citizens.

But I do know of many reasons why each at present does not understand the other. To begin with, each sees the other in a mental atmosphere coloured by misread or misrepresented history; each learns of the other's life mainly through press reports which naturally and inevitably record the most striking and unusual items in the list of the day's, week's and month's doings.

The Rise of Misunderstandings.

Newspapers, by the law of their being, must report events which stand out like mountain peaks above the flat plains of the average man's due performance of his daily round and common task. This leads to no misunderstanding in connection with local news.

The reader has all round him the facts of his own and his neighbours' daily life, but when an untravelled Englishman reads in one issue of some sensation-loving English paper of a railway accident in Texas and another in Maine, shall we say,—he says "Good Lord! It must be more dangerous to travel in an American train than it was to go over the top."

When the same unimaginative soul reads in the paper of his choice of motor car accidents, hold ups, divorces and murders here, and has nothing and no chance of getting anything to correct his impressions,—the inevitable happens—he concludes that if you enter an American train you will probably be killed in an accident but that if you are not you will almost certainly be held up by a bandit and shot, and even escaping that you are sure to be divorced and thereafter killed by a motor car. With the parts reversed the same is true.

Triumphs of Contradiction.

I solemnly read all the news that is printed about the British peoples and their public and private doings, and I find myself getting positively hypnotized into the belief that the British Peersesses are all either drowned or divorced, the Peers bankrupt, the Government effete and useless in its treatment of domestic affairs but diabolically cunning in International matters. When I read some American papers I am almost persuaded with a deepening sense of gloom that my fellow-countrymen left to their own devices, have gone mad in two directions at the same moment—mad with Imperialism and mad with Bolshevism.

But the greatest triumph of contradiction that we have achieved, according to the columns of one paper, is to be at the same moment bankrupt beyond hope of recovery, and a terror to the world because of our unrivalled financial resources. Of course, this is all nonsense.

Yet clearly the daily press is one of the ordained and inevitable instruments for producing understanding of one nation by another. At present all I can say is that with the best will in the world the British press as a whole fails to convey to the people of England a picture of the American people whom I know and admire, and equally the American press as a whole fails to present a picture of the British peoples as I know them.

No sensible man would for a moment blame either press for this. I do not really see how it can be entirely avoided, but I do believe that if every newspaper man puts himself on his guard something, a great deal, can be done.

Some may say, why should newspaper men take the trouble to foster good-will and understanding between nations? Well, newspaper owning and editing is a solemn responsibility which in the vast majority of cases in England speaking countries is honorably assumed and honorably supported. I am not quite sure, however, that the international effects of day to day journalism are fully recognized.

There are journals which create distrust of foreign powers by the gentle art of innuendo. Here is a sentence from a recent issue of a rightly respected daily paper speaking of the position of Russia when she is reconstituted: "Will Great Britain hold oil fields which the Russians own?" The answer is "No, she will not then any more than she does now, and that is, not at all." But note the suggestion to the reader that Britain is now holding Russian oil fields, and he inevitably assumes that Britain has some reason to be hostile to the constitution and recovery of Russia.

Why Friendship Should Prevail.

Now I put it to you—Does the existence of mutual understanding between the British Commonwealth of Great Britain and the United States of America...

Now I put it to you—Does the existence of mutual understanding between the British Commonwealth of Great Britain and the United States of America...

The Cost of Hostility.

On the lowest basis, would it pay you if Britain were to develop cotton growing on a great scale in her African territories because of a sense of instability created by a feeling of American lack of friendliness? Would it help you toward a solution of your problems in the Pacific if Australia were to become hostile to your interests?

On the other hand, would it help us to be unfriendly to you? Again, on the lowest basis, would it pay us? The answer in every case is "No."

Then we have the great political and social-economic problems which require solution—problems as wide as the world and as deep as the human heart. Will they be helped if you and we are unfriendly and bickering with one another? Will it help you or us if large areas of the world lapse from civilization to semi-civilization because you and we fail to co-operate with one another and with the nations whose social existence is threatened by the economic chaos in which they find themselves?

I know of no human good which might not be gained for ourselves and for the world by your and our cordial co-operation one with another.

Co-operation Urgently Needed.

Here is the problem: Co-operation which is urgently needed between us is only possible on a basis of friendship and friendly trust. International friendship is only possible on a basis of mutual respect and understanding.

You gentlemen and all of your profession have it in your power, as have no other to foster that respect and understanding between nations. Practically everybody reads some daily or weekly paper. A few read bound books. A mere handful studies history. On you and your fellows throughout the English speaking world the burden is laid. By force of circumstance, by the nature of your calling, you cannot escape.

In your hands largely is the making of International relations of the future. The hope of mankind that the last great war has been fought could be turned by you either to cruel mockery or advanced toward realization.

An Appeal For Good Will.

With all the earnestness at my command I beg you in the name of all who like myself are devoting their lives to the furtherance of the cause of international peace, to enroll voluntarily in the army of the international peace makers. Try with all your skill and arts to make the nations realize their common essential humanity.

Let them see each other as they are, groupings of plain simple people who love and hate and fear and live and die very much in the same way in all the countries whose civilization is based on Europe. Get them to see that civilization is indissolubly linked at its foundations with Christian ethics—other civilizations were not and are not, but ours is, and assumes in all its customs and conventions a fair distribution of effective Christianity among the people.

Get your readers to realize how civilization has advanced by the genius of the few whose life works have benefited the many without regard to national frontiers. I wonder what percentage of adult American citizens could answer these questions—"What did Pasteur discover and how have his discoveries affected your life?" "What did Schwann discover and how have his discoveries affected your life?" "What did Galvani discover and how have his discoveries affected your life?"

I have chosen a Frenchman, a German and an Italian for my short questionnaire because I venture to urge that it is important for the people to realize that our Western Civilization is not the property of the product of the genius of any one race or people. We who are Europeans by blood and civilization, though perhaps American or Antipodean by birth and residence, are bound the one to the other by ties of thought and gifts of genius individually as slight, as weak perhaps as gossamer but so numerous that collectively they form the bonds and framework of the society and social organization by which and in which we live. They have been spun out generation by generation from their original beginnings in the eternal city—Rome.

Civilization Belongs to all.

Rich and precious is our heritage but we hold only a life rent in our possession. It belongs to our children and to theirs and to the unnumbered generations of the future.

If you and we stand firm together the heritage will be safe, even though the world we have known should crumble around us, but if the unspeakable horror of conflict should arise between us the heritage will be destroyed. You who mould the public thought are among the most influential of the world trustees. I beg you more consciously and more actively day by day and year by year to serve the trust and dom and human liberty.

The C.L.B. Memorial Association will hold a Sale of Work in the Presbyterian Hall on Tuesday, Nov. 30th, at 3 o'clock. There will be Fancy Pantry, Candy and Flower Stalls and Mince Meat will also be on sale. Admission 10 cents. Afternoon Teas will be served—

"It Is Not Our Fault."

The "Advocate's" Feeble Defence.

That the poor "Old Lady" of Duckworth Street is getting more senile every day, is becoming very apparent. Thursday's edition of the Advocate was funny enough, but the article published on Saturday over the non de plume of "Optimist," for its false statements, feeble attempts at humor, and intentional misconception of our true economic status at the present time, would be laughable in the extreme, if it were not for the seriousness of the charges it brings against the Opposition journals. For, it is on the Telegram, News and Herald that the blame is thrown for the failures of Messrs. Moulton and other firms "Optimist," or rather the Advocate, for there is very little doubt but that his article was written in the Advocate Office, makes a very poor attempt to cast the blame of this first result of the Government's Fish Policy on the Opposition press. His arguments are so pointless, that he is forced to descend to that old game of the Advocate's, personal abuse, and in one place he actually breaks into metaphor in which he likens those whom he is attacking (for he evidently believes that attack is the best defence), to the "ghoulish foe of the reptile after striking its innocent victim."

How anybody, possessed of reasoning power in the least degree, can for one moment believe that this financial failure was brought on by statements in the press, is inconceivable. Even "Optimist" cannot believe it, although he tries to make us believe he does. He says that the humorous suggestion made some time ago in the Advocate to the effect that the editor of this journal should be "locked up" is one which is approved by all true Newfoundlanders. I hope that by true Newfoundlanders he does not mean all the readers of the Advocate, for in that case, true Newfoundlanders are few and far between. Furthermore, the great majority of those who read the Advocate do so either because they consider it a cure for ennui, or because they get it for nothing. Few of the first of these are supporters of the Government, and neither are all of the latter. If any paper has helped to get us in wrong abroad, it is the Advocate, for its issues, teeming with vile personalities, are not warranted to leave a good impression. In fact, most people put it down with a bad taste in their mouths. But, I fear I am wandering from my point. The failure of Messrs. Moulton is, according to the Advocate, due to the articles published in the Opposition press during the last year, referring to our precarious financial condition. In making this statement, the Advocate well knows that it is incorrect. If it does not, it is irresponsible. Perhaps, that is the correct explanation. Would the Advocate mind telling us whose fault it is that one of Moulton's schooners has been at Malaga for some weeks, with a cargo of fish shipped on consignment, and which has not been realigned on? Is that the fault of the Opposition press or the fish regulations? Another of Moulton's schooners is in the same position, five others are on their way across all loaded with fish which has not been sold as yet. Again, is the cause of this the Opposition press or the fish regulations? There is no need to wait for an answer. Everybody in the island knows it, the Advocate as well as everybody else. Much has already been written about the fish regulations, and a great deal more is bound to be written, for the simple reason that every man who is capable of taking a pen in his hand, and who has the best interests of the country at heart, will never rest until the leeches which are sucking us dry, which are drinking up our hearts' blood, in other words, the Fish Regulations, are abolished. Then, and then only, will we again be able to put our feet firmly on the ladder of prosperity. Look at the conditions now prevailing in this country. North and South, East and West, the same story is told. In St. John's, business is practically at a standstill. Factories are working half time and with half the normal number of employees. The only trade that is being done is by the retailers, and that does not amount to a great lot. Look at White Bay—destitute, starving. The people there are living on potatoes instead of flour, their fish is unsold, and they are unable to buy even sufficient to keep the life blood coursing through their veins. The Opposition press, say you? No, a thousand times No!—Mr. Coaker's Fish Regulations. Look now at Burin, at Burgeo, at other places on the West Coast. There again, the same conditions prevail—the people starving, business at an absolute standstill. Does the Advocate dare to deny it? But why ask! The Advocate would say that black is white if it could gain anything by it. And yet, in these distressful times, the Government can keep the Premier in luxury abroad, it can send Mr. Hanney on a luxurious trip to Norway, to bring back a few tins of balled fish bouillon and fish pudding! Ye Gods! Is it a Government we have got or a crowd of bloodsuckers, bleeding us white? Is there an ounce of brains amongst those who compose it, or are they a useless mob of nincompoops? Is there even one man amongst them who loves his country? If there is, why does he countenance actions which are driving us to complete financial ruin? The Advocate laughs at the idea of more firms following in the footsteps of Messrs. Moulton. Well it may laugh, but later it may have reason to change its tune, for assuredly, unless the Government abolishes its present policy, we shall be in the unenviable position of a country unable to meet its financial obligations, than which there is nothing that could be less desirable, nothing less shameful to any people which has hitherto had no difficulty in keeping its head above water.
