Technical and Bibliographic Notes / Notes techniques et bibliographiques

The Institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy available for scanning. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of scanning are checked below.

Coloured covers /

Couverture de couleur
Covers damaged/
Couverture endommagée
Covers restored and/or laminated /
Couverture restauree et/ou pelliculee
Cover title missing /
Le titre de couverture manque
Coloured maps /
Cartes géographiques en couleur
Coloured ink (i.e. other than blue or black)/
Encre de couleur (i.e. autre que bleue ou noire)
Coloured plates and/or illustrations /
Planches et/ou illustrations en couleur
Bound with other material /
Relié avec d'autres documents
Only edition available /
Seule édition disponible
Tight binding may cause shadows or distortion along interior margin / La reliure serree peut causer de l'ombre ou de la distorsion le long de la marge intérieure.

L'Institut a numérisé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de numérisation sont indiqués ci-dessous.

Coloured pages / Pages de couleur

Pages damaged / Pages endommagées
Pages restored and/or laminated /
Pages restaurées et/ou pelliculées
Pages discoloured, stained or foxed/
Pages décolorees, tachetées ou piquees
Pages detached / Pages détachées
Showthrough / Transparence
Quality of print varies /
Qualité inégale de l'impression

Includes supplementary materials / Comprend du matériel supplémentaire

Blank leaves added during restorations may appear within the text. Whenever possible, these have been omitted from scanning / Il se peut que certaines pages blanches ajoutees lors d'une restauration apparaissent dans le texte, mais, lorsque cela était possible, ces pages n'ont pas eté numérisées.

THE SCRIBBLER.

ontreal. Thursday: 28 $6 /$ Marcin $_{3}$ 1822. No. Xfis
Tuncfacile ex his est rebus cognoscere quxque.-LUCRExivisd
Sec witli what eaje we vietr e'eu distant scenë, And thue from far and near dravi ways and means.

Ti. Maccuitor,
A friend of mine who is a great astronomet nd stargazer, has erected an observatory proided with a variety of instruments necessary for ${ }^{12}$ prosecution of his favourite science. Amongst rem there is a large telescope which distinguishsobjects at an immense distance, and, when diected towards the expanse of heaven, penetrates eyond our raundane sphere, into the immeasurle space of infinity. He has a nephew whom $e$ is anxious to render as learned as himself in re system of the universe, but the arch-rogue, thenever his uncle's back is turned, talies a deght in levelling the telescope to a horizontal potion, and by turning the glass upon its pivot making discoveries all around him in this nether 'anadian world. His uncle having taught him ) make minutes of his observations on the heaenly bodies, he habitually takes notes in like anner of what he perceives amongst the eairthly odies whom he prefers to contemplate: Some of lese he has communicated to me and has promisd me more. I send them to you for the amusetent of your readers. JEREMY TICKLER.
Turned the telescope towards the mountain, nd directing it to the window of a youing las y's chamber, saw a handsome foot-boy lacing er stays. However, as it is understood she has lade a vow of dying an antiquated virgin, there an be no harm in that.

Gave it a direction a little to the left, an there, at some distance, saw Mr. Boooby Grun acting the part of a drunken Irishman; whiskey blarmey, and fighting: set off with a pair of blac eyes, formed an admirable contrast to the smilin countenance and mellow clarms of his lady; an the youthful beauty', (handsome even in despits of scornful glances and disdainful looks, of hi daughter. In perspective Mr. Commissary Gog gles was perceived tevelling a blunderbuss at a pif
E. S. E. 6 leagues, discovered Uld Sliyloc the money-lender, stretched at full length amids bank-notes and tnortgages, receiving thirty fir per ceit premium from a poor devil who wante a loan, it being against the old gentleman's coi science to take larger interest, except it caméi the shape of a doinceur to madan, who, havil been settled with, appeared in the back groun fering to see if the money was good, and ! spread the news of her good man having rende ed so séasonable a service to a fellow. creature il distriess: Farther' on, Father Saveall's crooken hosed lioustekëeper, was serewing her visage ou offles usial sweetness of aspect to frighten a stra mouse out od the pantry, The next scene tha appeared" by a small turn of the pivot, was $\mathrm{D}_{\mathrm{t}}$ Jalap:-in a säns culotte state, and his lady tryif on his new breeches, and just exercising the pri wilege they entitled her to, whilst the poor dot tor, slunk into a corner, bore it like a hero, edgin in an oceasional "Yyes my dear," wi th that phi lösophy which shewed was not the first time drilling; the lady wore the breeches with gites ease, and they seemed to fit her exactly and shem ed: the sym metry: of her shapes to ad vantage. ( ver the mantlepiece hung a large pestle, with th anscription borrowed from Lenitive, co this is pest le, pestle, not a pinstoly pistal'

Mem. The last corps the dactor served ini was cavalry. Directing the tube across a deer-park, there sat Mr. Honesty Hooper poring over some old returns, and blessing his friends the rats for their good services; several young sparks appeared peeping over the pales; and envying old Honesty the fair mate that fortune, (not the goddess of the ancients, but the demon of the moderns, money;) had given him. Next, up an ancient gatéway, saw Old Bellow, a damned honest fellow, treating his friends with a bottle of his best, and stunning their ears with hiis twice told tales, an easy penance, however, for his good cheer and friendly cordiality. Before turning the tube from that quarter, looked into the post-office, and descried a-prying knave, who, when he wore a red-coat, having been employed as a spy, can not resist the itch of trying to discover secrets. Ho was looking in at the ends of a letter addressed to Li Li Macculloh, and put it by in a pige-oin-hole; labelled, " intercepted dispatches."*

Uncle coming up, turned the telescope towards. the sky, but had, en passant, a glimpse of the western celestial regions, discovered by an uñlucky slip made by a lady in stepping out of a phop in Notre Dame Street.

La Prairie, 14th March, 1822.

To Inspector General Macculloh.

I should have proved myself unwarthy of the name I bear, and the most ungratefil of your aidé-de-camp, had I not, after the polite man-

[^0]pier in which you received my introductory re: port, been on the alert to collect intelligence:

As several of our La Prairie folks are ready ta give an attentive ear to the Scribbler, without subscribing to it, they assemble as soon as it arrives at squire Larry Goat's, who, by some means, is furnished with a number weekly, though he does not subscribe. The last number, as usual; kept them in a continual giggle at the perusal of its interesting contents, until theys perceived that a communication had been received from this place, signed Rob-Roy. Oh, what a change this. produced. The simpering smiles of Mrs. Tim. ber were metamorphosed into frowns terrific, and the whole assembly.immediately concluded that if you had an out-scout here; they should have their follies exposed to merited ridicule. Mrs. T. swore by all the Boder ide Boders that:never was, she was certain that Rob-Roy would surely remember her of the time when she-:-Squire Bluebeard stared with an hideous'grimace which said, intelligibly, Oh , now will all be blazoned; the niggardly way in which I'distributed the lots on the common last winter; the shameful manner: in which I treat my helpless wife; the grovelling: appetite I have for courting the applanse of fools 5 the-_yes every thing bids me say with the great dramatic poet, > ce My conscience hath a thoisand several!tgngues, And every tongue briugs in a geperal toly;? Aud yvery taie condemne mo

Squire Larry Goat imagined that he should be reminded of his electioneering career; Petitur of his inquisitive disposition; and all; in their turns thought of their own particular failings.. The next enquiry was, who is Rob-Roy? we must find him out; we mast exert ourselves $;$ we must dis cover him. A few of the long-nosed chaps, alias

817

Busy bodys, were instantly dispatched as a reeonnoitring party, but they took a wrong scent, and returned much jaded and without success: You see what an alarm my appointment has already freated, which leaves me no doubt of plentiful resources for a oampaign. I will shomtly give you a biographical sketch of each dignified performer on the La Prairie boards. With respect, I remain Your Excellency's faithful forager.

ROB-ROY:

Mr: MFacculloh dear,
Many thanks for your kindness in giving a place to the bit of a hint I sint you some weeks ago. Some folks are quite shy now of horsewhipping poor craturs like myself, that's what I can tell you.

By your laive, I will trouble you agen; axing your honor's pardon for doing the like. A few nights ago as I was coming home from taking tay with a frind of my own, bandy to the owld mar: ket, I hears the voice of a woman shouting out tin thousand, murders, Och; by the holy Saint Patrick, if all the Trishman was' n't upin me in a Jiffy, and away I dash'd as if the divil was in me to see the hullaballoo: and what was it, sure enough, but a poor helpless cratur struggling with a drunken fellow in the bark of a jontleman. Bad luck to you, you villain, says I, you arn't going tò ravish a famale without her own consint, iand be damt to ye, and here's a token on the-head of it, says I, and I floored him dacently enough, lie there, you tief, says I, as long as you plase, and after too, "tis myself washes my hands of you altogether.: Then I:turns to the dare little bit of flesh and blood that was laning against the wall almost kit with the fright: Don?t be alarmed my jewel, says I, "tis an Irishman spakes to yoú, and He is the last person in the world (troth but my heart was as tinder as a new-born babe's at the time, partly by raison of the sup of good whiskey punch I had been after taking, and more so at seeing such an inpocent looking cratur so nigh being ill trated) that will take an advantage of a woman; so give me your oxter, my dare, you may trust yourself wid me, for by the great ram of Kilrush (and that's a woolly oath) 'tis myself will be as tinder of you as if you were my own born mother. Only show me the man that will cast a loving look at you till I puts you within the shade of your owa door, and it will be my own fault if my shillaly does'nt play the divil's tattoo on his head and shoulders. Well, without any more blarneys I saw her home safe and sound, and got a power of thanks and blessings and a sweet kiss into the bargain: Now here Mr . Mac dear, I Wanted to say. something fine, but my pin wouldnt spake as my heart did; so master Phelim O'Carroll, the schoolmaster, and sure was'nt lie edicated at Tipperary callidge, bids me'write. But my reward did not stop here, the pleasure resnltigg fram the consciousness of being. the humble instrument in the hands of divine good:ness of rescuing unprotected innocence from an ninfeeling profigate, was, as it would be to every man of principie, sufficient requital to (Ah; that's just what I nint to say; my dare Phelimp let's see, requital to

318

Four's in trath

HARRY O'BRIEN.

P. S. Pertaps some people, who scarcety know what's whats will be axing what took a young ginh atit so late at night; they'll be aisy after I tells 'em she was a millener's prenticé sent by her mistress, the more shame, on some arrant or other. You have it now.

319

I can not refuse insertion to the following remonstrance to GINGER,

I am quite astonished, Sir, at your having ex. posed any of my friend Lieutenant Old Deil's exploits to the public. You are not acquainted, I perceive, with his modesty. Notning could give him more pain than a relation of that gallant action. Surely you have never attended any of Dr. Catapult's lectures, or you would not have ventured to have raised the passions of such a modest unassuming man as the lieutenant. Had you been present when your letter was read at the teatable in his presence and that of a numerous company, you would have been greatly alarmed. He stamped and raved, and damned his wig, and as the ladies present had not attended the Hon. Tory Loverule's speech against laüghing; shame ful to relate, not one of them cauld hold out, but bursted into fits, particularly when they recollect ed that his wig had stuck to a nail below a form, under which_-In short you will be the caüse Sir, that his friends will soon be obliged to lead him by the hand, as, since your communication has appeared, he wears his wig and his helmet over his eyes. It is, however, a happy circume stance that the editor mistook the date, and seemed to doubt the authenticity of your intelligence. This alone pacified him, and restored him to his senses.

Moreover you have falsely asserted that when searching for his caxon he laid his hands on twa not so sleek as his own. This is point blank denied by the owners of the said wigs, and surely they must know better than you. MARPLOT.
320
FÖR THE SCRIBBLERi.
Cora to Eomund.
Tell me not, Oh, false decciver,You $n^{\prime}$ er strove to win my heart;
That, if you have Cora's favour,It was free on Cora's part.
That no tales of love you've whispered.With soft sighs, in Cora's ear,
T'anght to raise no hopes, nor flatter'd;Those are words 1 can not hear.
Go, false Edmund, go from Cora,Mairr, she will nof, tho' she loved,
Why should swe regret thec, worthless!Now thy worthlessness is proved.
Gó, bưt practise snch deceptionNever more so fonl and deep;Rajse not hopes to disappoint them;Win no heart, or win to keep.
ERIEUS.Port Talbot, U. C.

In consequence botit of pressing solicitations, and of the redundauce of matter, I propose to publish a Sopplement to this number next Saturday; and to continue a supplemental number everyfortnight, till the first volume is completed, which will make six edditional papers during the présent quarter, at an additional charge of 2s. 6d. for the six môntíns, to subgeribert, or 6d. per No. to others: This will give me an opportunity of doing justice to several valuable correspondents with whose favours $i$ am now in arrear, particularly Peto, Humanitas; Scarron Secúndus, Banon Harpax, SOLOMON Scrint'rmi, whose tale will require a few corrections, etc. P's. lines on leaving New England are rather under par, but when space permits me may get'a nook.

LEWIS LUKE MACCULLOH.

[^1]
[^0]:     have taken a letf ont of Tord Goddemptim's book, whot, in a late noTörous case, made ió scruple of intercepitis. Jetters directed to a lady, pail, whth a gitose lio in hisizinouth, ableationg tha pötmaster into the: Lelief that he was autherized to recire the ketters he obtaingedijn: that. tngạ̈ịúa manner:

[^1]:    Mr. Scimersm, and all my correapondents, are assured that the handwritiog of their communications is never seen by any but the Editor, who traisacribes with bis own hand whatever he sends to the grinter.

