BRUTALITIES IN CONVICT CAMP

Legislature Committee Hears of Death Following Whipping

Florida Investigation of Conditions—Former Guard Tells of Brutal Beating of Martin Tabert.

(Canadian Press) Tallahassee, Fla., April 18.—A joint commission of the Florida legislature investigating reported brutalities in state and county convict camps yesterday heard gruesome testimony in connection with the death of Martin Tabert of North Dakota, who died while serving a sentence in the camp of the Putnam Lumber Company near Clara, Fla.

A. B. Shivers, former convict guard at the Putnam Camp, held the committee spell-bound as he related how prisoners were flogged by the "whipping boss." He declared whipping was a daily occurrence and that from one to five men were whipped each day. He said he was employed by the company for more than six months. Shivers, named Walter Higginbotham, now under arrest on a first-degree murder indictment, as "the whipping boss" of the camp and who gave "whip" more than 100 licks, he said, with a heavy strap four days before the youth died. He declared this whipping administered to Tabert was done in the presence of 80 to 90 convicts and guards that after more than 100 strokes had been given the youth "the whipping boss" followed Tabert to the camp, hitting him over the head with the handle of the strap.

R. Jones, Tallahassee, testified as to the arrest, conviction and leading of Tabert to the lumber company. He admitted he had entered into a contract with the Putnam Company, whereby he was to receive $2000 a month for the use of his property. He further admitted that after adding various fees and deducting the cost of transportation of prisoners under guard from Tallahassee to the camp a distance of 60 miles, he would average a profit of approximately $200 on each prisoner.

HELD TRAIN HOUR WHILE VALENTINO WENT ON DANCING

Passengers in Ten Coaches Had to Wait Until Tango was Finished in Toronto.

Toronto, April 18.—"While a dancer at a local hotel finished his special tango, a whole train of ten coaches carrying passengers, mail and express, and operated by the Canadian National Railways had to wait for an hour and ten minutes," says the Globe. "Grand Trunk train No. 21 due to leave the Union station at 11:45 p. m. was held on Monday night for seventy minutes for Rudolph Valentino and his wife, Winifred Lindquist. "While the title of the movie 'flappers' was going through all the motions of the famous Argentine tango, passengers on the train fretted over the delay and grew indignant. Union station officials first informed them that the train would be held ten minutes in order that the private car in which Valentino traveled could be looked up.

"Most of the passengers on the train were from the towns and villages between Toronto and Hamilton. In many cases they were business men and women returning home late. They wanted to know the reason why the train did not start. The train is the last one out of Toronto in the evening and is due in Hamilton at five minutes past one. It left Toronto at five minutes to one, when the world's greatest love got aboard."

ALLEGED "VICIOUS PATRONAGE" BY PETTY OFFICIALS

Matter of Temporary Employees Referred to at Civil Service Investigation.

(Canadian Press) Ottawa, April 18.—Before the special committee investigating the operation of the Civil Service Act, T. G. Mathison, Toronto, president of the Public Works Federation, embracing 2,500 civil servants, claimed that in classes outside the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission "vicious patronage" on the part of petty officials was going on. He was warned he would be expected to prove his statements and will likely be called again. S. McCarty, Montreal, of the same organization, followed. He said that own hands by laying off temporary employees for a few days before they had finished six months' employment. Thus, the employment of these men remained in the hands of officials and did not go to the Civil Service Commission.

In Saskatoon the jury disagreed in the case of Peter Bagatoff, on a charge of murder, for the killing of Henry Kinahan, a farmer. A new trial was ordered.

A DIFFERENCE ABOUT A BIRD

"Here, Frenchy, that's no good. If you kill the goose, you'll lay our golden eggs." "John, that bird isn't going to lay any golden eggs for us. It is only going to hatch more hawks."

FOUND BONDS, GEMS AND BURGLARS' TOOLS BURIED UNDER TREE NEAR TORONTO

Rich Discovery Made on Farm at Richview—May be Linked With Bank Robbery of Some Months Ago

Toronto, April 18.—Victory bonds to the value of between $25,000 and $30,000, a quantity of valuable jewelry including some diamonds, a complete set of burglars' tools and all the other things blowing from a hole in the ground near a large oak tree on the farm of John Hutchinson, at Richview, just west of here yesterday afternoon. The property is now in police possession.

Officials of the police department refused to make any official statement, but it was learned that details had been detailed to investigate the case which it is thought may be linked up with a bank robbery at Stouffville and Mount Forest some months ago.

Jury Decides She Set Herself Afire in Moment of Insanity.

Amherst, N. S., April 18.—Mrs. Sanford Boomer, 27, of Joggins, died on Monday night following burns received when she is thought to have set fire to herself. She had been in a delicate state of health and it is thought that in a moment of insanity "she" set herself on fire. She was found in an outbuilding with her hair and clothing burning. Paralysis had set in and she was found before death by a neighbor. Her husband was in the hospital at the time of her death. A verdict of "suicide in a moment of insanity" was returned. Mrs. Boomer is survived by her husband and an eight-year-old child.

Segregation of Asiatics in Africa Urged

(Canadian Press, via Reuters) Cape Town, April 18.—The House of Assembly yesterday debated a motion presented by the ministerial member, McKean, urging the segregation of Asiatics. By that means only, he contended, could Indians obtain citizen rights. An Amendment was moved by the labor member, Strachan, providing for equal pay for equal work and demanding a more vigorous repatriation policy. Hon. Patrick Duncan, Minister of the Interior, emphasized the impossibility of dealing with such a delicate problem without considering outside interests. He declared that other Asiatics besides Indians were watching developments. The minister pointed out that a majority of the Indians in South Africa had been born there and could not be emigrated wholesale. He doubted whether segregation in urban areas would solve the problem, but he proposed to introduce a measure providing for residential and trading segregation next session.

Bob Shawkey, oldest member of the team in point of service, was announced, despite the injury to his ankle, thus avoiding a possible break in his string of consecutive games, which has but fourteen to go to reach the one thousand mark.

Fair weather and a capely crowd were in prospect for the game which will be in the line-up, it was announced, despite the injury to his ankle, thus avoiding a possible break in his string of consecutive games, which has but fourteen to go to reach the one thousand mark.

Minus the services of George Sisler, St. Louis will open the American League season with a new pitcher, Eddie Collins, who is the youngest, in the game and Donnie Bush, Washington tactician, who is managing his first game.

DEFENDS FRENCH POLICY IN RUHR

Senator Chapais Draws a Comparison Between the Economic Conditions in France and Germany—If One Nation is to Collapse it Must be Germany.

(By Canadian Press) Ottawa, April 18.—Hon. Thomas Chapais in the Senate last night delivered a two hours address in defence of the French occupation of the Ruhr district.

Senator Chapais maintained that Germany was capable of hearing the demand for the reparations proposals. Germany had quit the war beaten but not disabled. She had no devastated territory. Her recovery was marvellous in trade, production and shipping. When the peace treaty was signed, Germany had 400,000 tons of shipping; now she had 2,138,000 tons. In 1920 her twenty-four largest industrial companies paid dividends from fifteen to thirty per cent. The Krupp company in 1920 showed a profit of 75,000,000 marks. The German budget called for one billion marks for the construction of houses where none had been destroyed, and yet it was said she could not pay for those destroyed in France. Germany was spending five billion marks annually on her army and navy. There was no doubt that Germany could pay for the devastated areas in France if she used economy in government.

France had quit the war victorious but exhausted. One-fifth of the revenue in France had been lost during the war by German destruction, yet the French were paying today for government five times as much as in the pre-war days. From the resources they had left they had built 350,000 houses, re-established 8,800 industries, France had done this by retrenchment in government and by taxing the people, while the Germans were extravagant in government and were not taxing their people. France was spending but one-half on her army and navy of what Great Britain was spending. The great burden of the French Government had been for restoration and pensions, both of which the peace conference had said that Germany should pay, and Germany had agreed to pay but wouldn't. France was faced with bankruptcy if Germany was permitted to escape responsibility. France could not further pay these abnormal annual costs.

Senator Chapais held that if one nation must collapse it should be Germany and not France, as civilization needed France, and concluded with an appeal for the maintenance of the Anglo-French alliance.

As Hiram Sees It

"Well," said Mr. Hiram Hornbeam to The Times reporter, "I went down to that there City Hall again yesterday, and I come to the conclusion this here hydro talk won't be wound up in my time. I kin see where there's a hull lot of things set for you."

Spozen the load factor got loose—the old candle got mixed up somewhere between here and Masquah. Who knows how many hoo-see they is at back? What guarantee has anybody got that four cents aint ten cents? How much is molasses potter cost next fall? If I bought potatoes by the peck an' sold 'em by the pound the money would it take to fill a barrel. The more I listen to that there talk down to City Hall the thankfoller I become for the old candle moulds in the sullen-thinkin' they might come in handy some time. But facts and other dignitaries, music by several bands and flag raising ceremonies were included in the program.

Bob Shawkey, oldest member of the team in point of service, was announced, despite the injury to his ankle, thus avoiding a possible break in his string of consecutive games, which has but fourteen to go to reach the one thousand mark.

WARNS OF DANGER OF DISRUPTION OF CONSERVATIVE PARTY IN ENGLAND

London, April 18.—(Canadian Press)—A warning against disunion in the Conservative party was uttered by Viscount Younger, former chairman of the Unionist party, who was recently elevated to the peerage, in a speech last night. He referred to the attitude of the former coalition ministers of the Conservative party and said the rift in the party was daily widening. Unless some drastic step was taken, he declared the Conservative party, like the Liberal party, would be split from top to bottom.

Irish Irregulars, Tired Of Fight, Flock To The U. S.

Arrive, 750 in Number, with British Passports, Countersigned by Free State—Irish Lawyers Move to England.

Montreal, April 18.—The army of Eamon De Valera is across the Atlantic, says a special despatch from New York to the Montreal Star. Seven hundred and fifty Irishmen admitted to be such by several of their names reached this country on the Carmania which docked on Monday. Two hundred of the men left the ship at Boston, the remainder passing through Ellis Island.

All carried British passports countersigned by the Free State Government, which one immigrant confessed, was glad to get rid of them. Many of the men frankly said that Ireland was too hot for them, that the Republicans are cornered and that hundreds were anxious to get going while the going was good. Those landing refused to give their names, fearing vengeance by the insurgent sympathizers on this side. The party, it was said, was taken quietly aboard the Carmania at Queens-town under cover of darkness.

Matter of Importance. London, April 18.—The Labor party has issued a long report by John W. Muir and Arthur Greenwood, M. P.'s, as a special committee appointed by the executive to investigate the purpose of investigating the intention of the party to accept the offer of Great Britain of nearly one hundred Irishmen and women changed were being transported in a plot against the King and state and an attempt to overthrow the Free State Government. The report was consulted with President Cosgrave and other prominent officials, but were not permitted to see the president.

Their report adds little to what is already known, but it does point out that the British and the Free State Government are both prepared to take care of these men and their dependents, for whom the Free State Government has agreed to support. Mr. Cosgrave contended that if the deportees were put on trial many of them would be sentenced to long terms in prison, and when the trouble was over if the Free State Government wished to release them serious difficulties would arise, whereas if they were simply detained in Mount Joy prison they could be liberated without formality.

Irish Lawyers Leave Home. London, April 18.—Irish lawyers are reported to be concerned over the influx of Irish members of their profession who are coming here to practice. Various reasons are assigned for the transfers. Some of the Irish attorneys are boycotted at home and others find it difficult to make a living in their own country. It is reported that the movement is to be viewed with equanimity in London but in provincial cities where the profession is much overcrowded, considerable alarm is felt. This is particularly the case in Liverpool, where the large Irish population gives the newcomers an advantage.

In Strong Position. London, April 18.—Hidden in a cave 100 feet from the top of a cliff near the Causeway, North of Kerry, a desperate band of Irish Republicans has been holding out against the Free State troops since Monday in one of the most spectacular of the government's struggles with the irregulars, according to a message to the Evening Star from Dublin today.

Although the Republicans do not seem to have a chance to escape they are able as yet to guard effectively the entrance to the cave. The body of one Free State soldier has been buried by the waves at the bottom of the cave, since the government's first attempt to dislodge the irregulars on Monday.

Ontario's Fight On Redistribution

Toronto, April 18.—Unless one of those dramatic incidents which are not uncommon in the Legislature the end of the debate on the redistribution bill is not within sight. The Conservatives apparently are determined to go the limit in opposition, and two Liberals yesterday added their protests. It would not be surprising if the bill, the clause upon which the whole attack is made is that giving the committee the right to determine where proportional representation shall be tried out. Another criticism is that the bill was introduced too late to be given adequate consideration.

WANTS WORK FOR FRENCH CONTRACTORS

Paris, April 18.—The Ottoman railway administration, which constitutes most of the French concession affecting the Chester project, is pressing its claims rather as a means of getting work for French contractors through U. S. capital than because of an actual desire to develop the original contract, company officials said today.

MUST HAVE PERMIT TO ENTER WOODS

Regulations in New Brunswick in Effect on May 1

Apply to Travelers, Campers, Fishermen and Picnic Parties—Designed to Prevent Fire Loss Through Carelessness.

(Canadian Press) Fredericton, N. B., April 18.—In the Royal Gazette today is a proclamation issued by Hon. C. W. Robinson, Minister of Lands and Mines, proclaiming all forest land within the province as "a protected area," to which certain regulations apply. It is provided that no person may enter upon any forest land from May 1 to November 1, 1923, for traveling, camping, fishing, picnicking, or for other purposes, without first having received with a local fire warden, county councillor, game warden, or other person duly authorized to register and issue a "travel permit." The particulars required for registration are the name of the person, route, destination, purpose and duration of the trip, together with dates. The penalties ranging from $10 to $100 with a maximum jail sentence of thirty days are provided.

The inauguration of the permit system has been deemed necessary by the government to prevent a repetition of the points of view held up last year but were not placed in operation on account of the wet season.

Extra precautions are also being taken by private land owners this year, several of whom are placing special controls to prevent all persons entering upon their properties.

A review of the fire damage of previous years shows that persons entering the forests have been responsible for an average of fifty per cent of the loss. In 1921, a year of particularly heavy loss, 78 per cent of the responsibility was traced to carelessnes on the part of those entering the woods.

Candidates Balk In Examination at Presbytery Meeting

Compromise at Montreal Session Over Questions Relative to Points of Doctrine.

Montreal, April 18.—Inability to subscribe to certain long-standing points of doctrine held up the passing of three young men to the Presbytery ministry for more than an hour yesterday while members of the Montreal Presbytery debated whether their refusal to accept these doctrines would invalidate their candidature. Finally, the Presbytery decided to act on its own initiative, substitute other questions for those the candidates could not meet, and report their action to the General Assembly with the risk of their being censured.

The first point related to the acceptance of the Old and New Testaments as the Word of God. For this reason was substituted a somewhat similar question containing the words "at least insofar as it was teaching." The candidates also balked at accepting the Westminster standard as the basis of their belief and which, at least insofar as it was included in the question put to them, they finally were willing to comply with.

Somehow parallel rule of the Scottish Church which was suggested as a way out of the difficulty.

MISSING METEOR FOUND BURIED IN 'SKY PAMPA'. Trace of Large Aerolite Lost After War of Independence by Argentina. Buenos Ayres, March 12.—(By Mail) The whereabouts of an aerolite of great size, which was revealed to the Spanish conquerors by Indians about the middle of the seventeenth century, and of which traces have been lost since the year 1812, have again been ascertained, according to a communication received by Professor Clemente Orelli, an Argentine naturalist, from a Senor Leberton, who claims the rediscovery. The aerolite is located in the uninhabited Otumpa pampa, which is also known as "Sky Pampa," after the celestial origin of the stone. Up to the year 1812 the situation of the aerolite was well known, and from several flint-lock muskets were made in the middle of the seventeenth century, that the Spaniards, guided by the Vilelas Indians, discovered the great meteoric mass, half buried in the sands. Reports say that a large portion was brought to Buenos Ayres and a part sent to the British Museum.

After the war of independence and the long period of formation of the Argentine nation had passed, several expeditions were sent out to search for the aerolite. According to certain analyses alleged to have been made in 1812, the meteorite was constituted of pure metallic iron, nickel and cobalt.

At the third day's proceedings of the Educational Board of the Methodist Church in Canada, held yesterday in the Wesley Buildings, the members discussed the proposal for the amalgamation of Mount Allison University, Ladies' College and Academy of Sackville, N. She Preferred Tile. Tiled Linoleum was her idea of a nice bright Kitchen floor covering. It was a good thought, too—one nobody would criticize. But when she looked in on Marcus Linoleum Week with its wealth of sparkling patterns in Congoleum Squares, Linoleum and Olcloth, she found many other smart suggestions and so made a selection of wider choice. You, too, will find a greater breadth of design this week at Marcus. Come any night if you like before the second show. J. Marcus Furniture, Rugs 30-36 Dock St. Open Evenings.

CHILD BURNED AND LASHED. Foster Parents of Georgia Negro Girl Arrested After Her Rescue. Greenville, Ga., April 18.—After being tortured with hot irons and whipped with a lash until she could hardly stand, eleven-year-old Hattie May Rosser, a negro girl, was rescued by white people. They were so terrified that investigation was made, with the result that both the Rossers were taken into custody on charges of assault and battery and the child was brought here. Hattie May, who appears to be as obedient as any girl of her age, is now in the hands of Judge M. Z. O'Neil of the Ordinary's Court. She says that her punishment has been going on for nearly a year, because she was unable to do the volume of work that her foster parents, Bishop and Nanny Rosser, negroes, thought she should. The child's screams were heard by white people. They were so terrified that investigation was made, with the result that both the Rossers were taken into custody on charges of assault and battery and the child was brought here. Women designated by the Ordinary to examine the child reported that her body is scarred by burns and lash marks from her neck to her feet.

LETTER CRITICIZING THIRD MARRIAGE KILLS WOMAN, 76. Worry Over Anonymous Note Denouncing Hasty Wedding Blamed for Her Death. London, March 30.—(By Mail) The receipt of an anonymous letter is said to have caused the death of Mrs. Sarah Ann Freegard, 76 years old, of Brentnall, Wiltshire, who died two months after her marriage to her third husband, reports "The London Daily Mail." Mrs. Freegard's second husband died early last November. After a very brief courtship, Mrs. Freegard proposed to her and was accepted on Christmas Day, and they were married in the village church on January 17. The bridegroom had also been twice married before and had celebrated his golden wedding on his second wife. Mrs. Freegard's health had always been good and her friends believed that she would live for many years. However, she received an anonymous letter a few days after her wedding, which she read with a shudder. It was a warning to her to be careful of her health, and to be sure to have a good doctor. She began to suffer from heart attacks, and finally died, a victim, so her husband declares, of the anonymous letter-writer.

COOKING IN A MODERN WAY. A great deal of interest was manifested yesterday afternoon at the cooking demonstration on a McClary Electric Range held in the show-room of the Jones Electric Co., 213 Union street. The method of cooking, somewhat of a novelty in St. John, was a revelation to many who were present and witnessed the demonstration. Mrs. I. E. Tapley, turn out some splendid samples of the culinary art, and all were astonished to learn that this was Mrs. Tapley's first experience in handling or working with an Electric Range, a fact which in itself emphasized the simplicity of the apparatus. Then again, the cleanliness, the lack of any dust or any odor, whatever, was very noticeable—most agreeably so, and it was easy to realize the tremendous strides that have been made in this modern means of cooking our food—why it is fast becoming standardized. It is a subject which interests every housewife and every one should try to visit the demonstration which, being continued this afternoon and every afternoon this week, excepting Saturday, from 8 to 5 p. m., at 213 Union street, corner Waterloo.

A CIVIC ABATTOIR. Fort William shows the way in municipal abattoir administration. It rents gratis from private owners and last year showed a cash profit to the city of $19,750 over and above the cost of rent, salaries, supervision and upkeep. The city has avoided capital investment for a municipal abattoir. That it is fulfilling its purpose, is evidenced by the year's work—Animals slaughtered, 3,558; meat condemned as unfit, $545 pounds. The Health Department's annual report states that the people of the city are being fully protected. The Health Department demands that all local animals for human consumption in the city be killed at the city abattoir, by the city staff, who dress the meat at cost. This insures perfect inspection and provides the money necessary to conduct this public health activity.

Town elections in New Brunswick yesterday resulted in the election of new mayors and councils in Newcastle, St. Andrews, Sunny Brae and Chatham. In Newcastle, D. S. Creighton was elected mayor; in St. Andrews, J. E. Worrell was elected to that position and in Sunny Brae the successful candidate was W. R. Co.

TROUBLES FOR ITALY'S PREMIER

Four Ministers, Members of Catholic Party, Tender Resignations to Mussolini.

Rome, April 18.—The Minister of Social Welfare, Stefano Cavasozzi, and Under Secretaries Vassallo, Milani and Gronchi, all members of the Catholic popular party, have placed their portfolios at the disposal of Premier Mussolini.

Signor Cavasozzi, referring to the Premier's demand that all cabinet members belonging to the Catholic party state whether they intended loyally to follow his policy or consider themselves bound by the resolutions adopted at their recent party conference, told the Premier that the great majority of the party wished to continue in collaboration with the Government. Signor Mussolini reserved final decision on the resignations.

The Italian Government interpreted the resolutions adopted at the Catholic party congress as only transitory acceptance of the present Fascist Government.

Washington, April 18.—On top of the announcement by General Fries that the Chemical Division of the Army had developed a new gas mask which would greatly lessen the hazards of poison warfare comes the news that the Bureau of Mines has perfected another mask with an application more strictly to civil life. It is expected to safeguard workers in metallurgical and chemical plants and firemen from the deadly effects of any type of gas vapor, including carbon monoxide, which warns its victim neither by taste nor odor.

PRACTICAL POINTERS CONCERNING WIRELESS

Be Careful When Soldering. When soldering connections, it is well to use a piece of cardboard or sheet asbestos to prevent drooping solder from injuring insulation and the surface of panels.

The Efficient Receiver.

Winding for tuning coils and loose couplers should not be heavily coated with shellac or varnish, since this practice increases the distributed capacity of the coil.

Importance of Perfect Connections.

A common source of trouble in home-made receiving sets is in the fixed condenser, where the terminal wires connect with the tin foil.

GOVERNOR'S DRY PARLEY AT WHITE HOUSE IN MAY

Washington, April 18.—President Harding will issue a call for the conference of governors on prohibition to be held in May. The White House held before May without embarrassment to some of the governors. It is definitely stated that the conference will concern itself with prohibition and prohibition enforcement. It will not deal with the narcotic problem.

The Breaking Point

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

Judson Clark had taken his yacht and gone to Europe, and was reported from here and there not too favorably. But when he came back, in early September, he had apparently recovered from his infatuation, was well, carefully dressed self again, and when interviewed, declared his intention of spending the winter on his Wyoming ranch.

Of course he must have heard of Lucas's breakdown, and equally of course he must have seen them both. What happened at that interview, by what casual attitude he alluded to Lucas's probable jealousy and the girl's own nervousness, Bassett had no way of knowing. It was clear that he connected them both of his good faith, for the next note in the reporter's book was simply a date, September 12, 1912. That was the day they had all started west together, traveling in Clark's private car, with Lucas, twelfth slightly smiling and waving farewell from a window.

The big smash did not come until the middle of October. Judd and Bassett sat back and considered. He had a fairly clear idea of the conditions at the ranch. Daily riding, some light reading, and a great deal too much of each other. A sick man, too, unhappy in his exile, chafing against his restrictions, lonely and irritable. The girl, easily seeing her mistake, and Clark's jealousy of her husband. The door into their apartment closing the thousand and one unconscious intimacies between man and wife, the break for two going up the stairs, and how that hot-eyed boy, agonized and passionately jealous, yet meeting there and looking after them, their host and a gentleman.

Lucas took to drinking, after a time to ally his sheer boredom. And Judd Clark drank with him. At the end of three weeks they were both drinking heavily, and were politely quarrelsome. Bassett could fill that also. He could see the girl protesting, watching, increasingly anxious, as he saw that Clark's jealousy was matched by her husband's.

A queer picture, he reflected, the three of them shut away on the great porch, and every day some fresh drama some strain.

Then one night at dinner, they quarreled, and Beverly left the table. She was going to pack her things and go back to New York. She had felt, probably, that something was bound to happen. And while she was upstairs Clark had shot and killed Howard Lucas, and himself disappeared.

He had run, testimony at the inquest revealed, to the corral, and saddled a horse. Although it was only October, it was snowing hard, but in spite of that he had turned his horse toward the mountains. He had started on a path from Norada had started out, and another up the Dry River Canyon, but the storm turned back, and they were obliged to turn back. A few inches more snow, and they could not have got their horses out. It was a few days later, with a crust of ice over it, a few of them began again, with no expectation, however, of finding Clark alive. They came across his horse on the second day, but they did not find him, and there were some among them who felt that, after all, old Eliza Clark's boy had chosen the better way. It was better to let someone else do what he would rather than be tried and convicted.

Bassett closed his note-book and lighted a cigar.

There was a big story to be had for the seeking, a whole of a story. He could go to the office, give them a hint, draw expense money and start for Norada the next night. He knew well enough that he would have to begin there, and that it would not be easy. Witnesses of the affair at the ranch would be missing now, or when found the first accuracy of their statements would either be dulled by time or have been added to with the passing years. The ranch itself might have passed into other hands. To reconstruct the events of ten years ago might be impossible, or nearly so. But that was not his problem. He would have to connect Norada with Haverly, Clark with Livingston. One thing only was simple. If he found Livingston's story was correct, that he had lived on a ranch near Norada, before the crime, and as Livingston's story would acknowledge that two men could look precisely alike and come from the same place, and yet not be the same.

But, after he had turned out his light and got into bed, he began to think of the distant fate for his self-appointed task. If Livingston was Clark, it was years of effort he had put forth, and it was his own boot straps, had made himself a man out of the reck-

On his third reading the reporter began to visualize the human elements of the fight to save the boy; he saw morning before him the most pitiful struggle; the indomitable range manager, his heart-breaking struggle with the blizzard; the shooting of his horse; the careful disarming of suspicion; the latter the intrepid woman, daring that night ride through snow that had sent the posse back to its stables; to the boy, locked in the cabin and raving. His mind was busy as he packed his suitcase. Already he had forgotten his complaints of the early morning; he moved about methodically, calculating roughly what expense money he would need, and the line of attack, if any, needed at the office. Between Norada and that old brick house at Haverly lay his story. Ten years of it. He was closing his bag when he remembered the little girl in the blue dress, at the theatre. He straightened and scowled. After a moment he snapped the bag shut. Damn it all, if Clark had chosen to tie up with a girl that was on Clark's conscience, not his.

But he was vaguely uncomfortable. "It's a queer world, Joe," he observed to the waiter, who had come in for the breakfast dishes. "Yes, sir, it is that," said Joe. During all the long night Dick sat by David's bedside. Earlier in the evening there had been a consultation; David had suffered a light stroke, but there was no paralysis, and the prognosis was good. For this time, at least, David had escaped, but there must be in other time. He was to be kept quiet and free from worry, his diet was to be carefully regulated, and with care he still had long years before him.

David slept, his breathing heavy and slow. In the morning there would be a nurse, but that night Dick, having meant Lucy to bed, himself kept watch. On the walnut bed lay Doctor David's pretty figure, dimly outlined by the shaded lamp, and on a chair drawn close sat Dick.

He was wide-awake and very anxious, but as time went on and no untoward symptoms appeared, as David's sleep seemed to be more natural, Dick's thoughts wandered. They went to Elizabeth first, and then on from that starting-point, through the years ahead, and on a chair drawn close sat Dick. Elizabeth waiting in it for his return; he saw both their lives, united and flowing on together, with children, in bed; horses and dogs; a corral with a high fence and sometimes cattle, sometimes horses, milling around inside it, while men on horseback would single out one and rope it. But he could not remember any names at all.

He had a general impression that there had been plenty of money in those days. He could hardly have told how he felt that. But the ranch had been sold on his father's death and had barely paid the credits on it. There was in the east, an occasional desire to go back and see that early home again. Later on, he knew that if he were ever to fill up the gap in his life it would be easier in the environment of one familiar thing. But in the first days he had been totally dependent on David, and money was none too plentiful. Later on, as the new life took hold, as he went to medical college and worked at odd clerical jobs in vacations to help pay his way, there had been no chance. Then the war came, and on his return there had been the practice, and his knowledge that David's health was not what it should have been.

But as time went on he was more and more aware that there was in him a peculiar shrinking from going back, almost an apprehension. He knew more of the mind than he had before, and he knew that not physical hardship, but mental stress, caused such lapses as his. But what mental stress, in a man of twenty-two or so, could be great enough for such a result, also, and he did it with distaste. He had never found himself lacking in courage. Certainly he would have fought a man who called him a coward. But there was cowardice behind all such conditions as that of the mind to face reality. It was weak, weak. He hated to think of that first failure of his.

But that night, sitting by David's bed, he faced reality with a vengeance. He was in love, and he wanted the things that love should bring to a normal man. He felt normal. He felt strengthened by love, that he could face whatever life had to bring, so long as it also brought Elizabeth.

He had taken his tears to David that Sunday night and David had scoffed at them.

"Don't be a fool," he had said. "Go ahead and take her, if she'll have you. And don't be too long about it. I'm not as young as I used to be."

"What I feel," he had replied, "is this: I don't know, of course, if she cares." David had grinned. "I do know I'm going to try to make her care, if it's in the wood. But I'd like to go back to the ranch again, David, before things go any further."

Curiously enough, they all referred to his childhood. There had been David's brother, his father, a rather elderly man, who had taught him to ride. He had taken his tears to David that Sunday night and David had scoffed at them.

Letters from all over America tell how this fresh corrective food is restoring health to thousands

Already we have received thousands of them. Hundreds more come every week—letters from men and women of all ages, in every walk of life.

All telling how Fleischmann's Yeast has helped them.

One of the most universal ailments is constipation. Comparatively few people realize what it means to be wholly free from it—the strength and vigor of a body really free from poisons. That accounts for the enthusiasm of these writers who have suffered from constipation for years, and now suddenly realize that they are restored to normal health.

Every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast consists of millions of tiny living plants which soften and increase the bulk of the waste matter. This greater bulk gently encourages the intestinal muscles to act, and at the same time strengthens them by offering just the resistance they need.

These such action gives these intestinal muscles normal, natural exercise

Constipation corrected—skin and complexion cleared—run-down condition built up

The following are typical extracts from the letters we receive every day: "Nothing equal to it as a strength builder and corrector of constipation." "My vitality is back to normal and every morning I get up full of pep and ambition." "Constipation has completely disappeared." "The boils disappeared after the first week, and now I never need laxatives." "I can truly say it has made me feel 100% better than I have felt since I left the farm some 15 years ago."

Chronic Constipation
Relieved Without the Use of Laxatives

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so-called. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Try it today.

Nujol
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

"Why?"
"I'd like to fill the gap. Attempt it anyhow."

What he was thinking about, as he sat by David's bedside, was David's attitude toward that threatened return of his. For David had opposed it, offering a dozen trivial, almost puerile reasons. Had shown indeed, a dogged obstinacy and an irritability that were, somehow, oddly like fear. David afraid! David, whose life and heart were open books. David, whose eyes never wavered, nor his courage.

"You let well enough alone, Dick," he had said, at the end. "You've got everything you want. And a medical man can't afford to go gridding about. When people want him they want him." But he had noticed that David had been different since. He had taken to following him with his faded old eyes, had even spoken once of retiring and turning all the work over to him. Was it possible that David did not want him to go back to Norada? But that would imply—

He bent over and felt the sick man's pulse. It was stronger, not so rapid.

Oddly enough, that was his first memory of David. He had been lying in a rough bunk in the mountain cabin, and David beside him on a wooden box had been bending forward and feeling his pulse. He had felt very weak and utterly inert, and he knew now that he had been very ill. The cabin had been a small and lonely one, with snow-peaks not far above it, and it had been very cold. During the day a woman kept up the fire. Her name was Maggie, and she moved about the cabin like a thin ghost. At night she slept in a lean-to shed, and David kept the fire going. A man who seemed to know him well—John Donaldson, he learned, was his name—was Maggie's husband, and every so often he came, about dawn and brought food and supplies.

After a long time, as he grew stronger, Maggie had gone away, and David had fried the bacon and heated the canned tomatoes or the beans. Before she left she had written out a recipe for biscuits, and David would study over it painstakingly, and then produce a panful of baked and bliskened

DAGGETT & RAMSDELL'S PERFECT COLD CREAM
"The Kind That Keeps"

A detailed description of Judson Clark and a photograph of him accompanied the story. Bassett reread the article carefully, and swore a little, under his breath. If he had needed confirmation of his suspicions, they lay in his hand. But the situation had changed over night. There would be a search for Clark now, as wide as the knowledge of his disappearance. Local police authorities would turn him up in every city from Maine to the Pacific coast. Even Europe would be on the lookout, and South America.

But it was not the police he feared so much as the press. Not all of the papers, but some of them, would go after that story and send their best men on it. It offered, not so much a chance of solution, as an opportunity to revive the old dramatic story. He could see, when he closed his eyes, the local photographers climbing to that cabin and later sending its pictures broadcast, and divers gentlemen of the press, eager to pit their wits against the man of time and the ability of a once conspicuous man to hide from the law, packing their suitcases for Norada. No, he couldn't stop now. He would go on, like the others, and with this advantage, that he was morally certain that he could not be caught at any time. But he would have to prove his case, connect it. Who, for instance, was the man in the blue dress? That made him, like the Donaldson, accessory after the fact, and criminally liable. Small chances of his coming out with any conviction. Yet he was the connecting link. Must be

Council Unanimously Rejects Sanderson Offer Declines to Turn Current Over to Power Company for Two Year Trial—Purchase of Common Stock Also Refused.

Meeting in committee yesterday afternoon the Common Council unanimously rejected the written offer of E. N. Sanderson for a two-year trial distribution of the hydro power by the N. B. Power Co. As an alternative Mr. Sanderson offered to sell the common stock of the company for $300,000. The commissioners, however, took no cognizance of the latter offer as Hon. Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, K. C., M. P., City solicitor, and M. G. Teed, K. C., had last summer given it as their opinion that the city had no authority to purchase. The discussion on the offer was confined to Mayor Fisher and Commissioners Wigmore and Bullock, Commissioners Frink and Thornton taking little part.

Action on a recommendation from the Civic Power Commission regarding copper wire and transformers was deferred as Commissioner Thornton had another engagement.

Mr. Sanderson's offer, which was presented in writing, contained, among other things, the following:

"I wish to present for your mature consideration the following:

"(a) That the city sell to the company for a two-year period the electrical energy it is required to take or pay for under the City's contract with the Provincial Hydro Commission, the company agreeing to distribute same.

"(b) That the city appoint a committee of two or three persons to meet with representatives of the Power Company to determine upon a schedule of rates that will be fair to the citizens and the company alike, the company agreeing during this two-year period to waive its rights to an eight per cent. return on the rate base fixed by the Legislature.

"It has, I believe, been admitted that the Krebs rates, so-called, will result in an operating deficit for the first two years; therefore why not try and teach some middle ground where this loss may be avoided. Two years operation by steam and hydro would give all parties at interest dependable information as to the real extent of the hydro supply and actual operating costs.

"In response to Commissioner Wigmore's question as to whether we would consider the sale of the entire plant, I replied that the Federal Light & Traction Company had on April 2, 1922, purchased substantially all of the common stock of the Power Company on a basis of about $300,000 for all that said purchase had not been made with the idea of selling for a quick turn, but of developing the property; that if it was impossible to establish a pleasant, friendly relationship with the city, which are essential to the carrying on of a successful public service corporation I would, at the request of the city, go immediately to New York City and submit to the owners a proposition of sale of their holdings to the city in consideration of their being reimbursed for their outlay and under the circumstances would recommend their acceptance of such offer.

"I reserve the right to withdraw the foregoing offer if not accepted by the city within three days from date hereof."

Mayor Fisher promptly drew attention to the paragraph referring to the 6.25 cents per k.w.h. rate. "That figure," said His Worship emphatically, "is based on 5,000,000 k.w.h. consumption only." It has no bearing on the offer made, said His Worship.

Mr. Sanderson was silent on this point.

Commissioner Frink recalled that the legal opinion had been given by the City Solicitor to the effect that the city had no power to buy any portion

PESTS KILL GREEKS IN CONSTANTINOPLE

Dr. Post of Princeton Describes the Flight of 25,000 Refugees in City of Death.

Constantinople, March 26.—(New York Times Correspondent)—Dr. Wilfred Post of Princeton, N. J., who has charge of Selimie Barracks at Scutari, where 10,000 refugees are quartered, and makes daily rounds of the other refugee camps within a radius of sixteen miles along the shores of the Bosphorus from Galata, has drawn up a statement of the existing conditions from his personal observation and information. It says in part:

"The Greek and Armenian refugees in Constantinople probably number about 30,000. The Armenians have been here for a long time and are tolerably well taken care of but the plight of the 25,000 Greek refugees is becoming daily more pitiful. The insalubrious aspect of the whole problem has not been made sufficiently prominent, nor has any effective remedy been suggested.

"The majority of the Greek refugees arrived here already in a most wretched condition. For the most part ignorant villagers, they made their long journey into the city with morals thoroughly broken and fell prey to smallpox, typhus and other diseases. Many died on the journey to the sea, many more in the filthy and crowded ships. When they were finally landed at Constantinople, comfortable quarters and good food might have saved many, but instead they were crammed into draughty barn-like buildings insufficient to house half their number and for the most part have received nothing but a limited amount of bread and in some cases one dose of soup a day.

"The Turkish commandant of Selimie told me he had instructions to prepare for the reception of 3,000 people and that these quarters not less than 10,000. Constantinople is the last place in the world fitted to receive and care for a large influx of refugees. Frequent fires and consequent congestion of population, together with the presence of many thousands of exiles already in the city, made this recent addition to the population a veritable calamity.

"In addition to the bad conditions on land, there are ships in the harbor still in place in the world fitted to receive and care for a large influx of refugees. Frequent fires and consequent congestion of population, together with the presence of many thousands of exiles already in the city, made this recent addition to the population a veritable calamity.

"On a similar ship where the people were kept on board for three weeks, 200 died out of 2,000. It was a veritable 'Black Hole of Calcutta.'

"This state of affairs is not only an outrage on humanity, but a very serious menace to the health of the city and of the surrounding regions. Quarantine is ineffective and the presence of so many sick refugees in and about Constantinople is bound to scatter infection.

"One hundred people are crowded into a filthy stable with mud floors outside the Selimie Barracks. Most of them are insufficiently clothed and lying either on the bare ground or on quilts or sackings brought with them. In one quilt were seven people, old and young, all down with typhus and dysentery; two or three days later there were only three left, another two days found only one and the last time I was there this last unfortunate had also passed away.

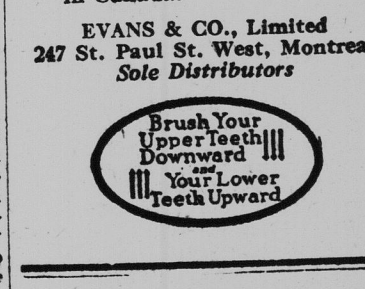

"All this time the rest of the inmates were cooking and eating their stender meals round about the group,

SYNOD TAKES UP CONGRATULATIONS FROM HALIFAX MAN

Temporary Union of Kings and Dalhousie Universities

Change in Number of Board of Governors of Kings is Favored — Telegram of Regret at Death of Bishop Tuttle of Missouri.

The greater part of the time of the business meeting this morning of the Anglican Synod was occupied in consideration of the affairs of the University of King's College, Windsor. Rev. Dr. T. Stannage Boyle, president of the university, and Chancellor Harris of the Diocese of Nova Scotia, were present on their way back from New York, where they had been discussing with representatives of the Carnegie Corporation the terms and conditions under which the proposed amalgamation of Maritime Province universities might be effected. It was made plain that the fate of the college lay in the balance and that early action was essential to the existence of the university. The Diocesan Synod of Fredericton went on record as favoring an arrangement with Dalhousie University by which a temporary union might be effected pending the outcome of the vexed question of maritime university federation. Any arrangement made would have necessarily to have the sanction of the board of governors. A change was favored also in the number of members composing the board of governors and in the method of their election. It was made very plain that the college could not continue at Windsor.

Reference was made to the death of former members of the Synod and to news received yesterday of the death of the venerable Bishop Tuttle of Missouri. The Bishop of Fredericton was authorized to send the following telegram: "St. Louis, Mo. "The Synod of Fredericton desires to express to the diocese of Missouri its deep sense of the great loss sustained by the church in the falling asleep of the venerable and beloved Bishop of Missouri."

Several reports were received this morning. Rev. Dean Neales of Fredericton presented the report of the standing committee on the bishop's charge.

This morning's session of the Church of England Synod opened in Trinity church schoolroom with prayer led by Bishop Richardson. Following some announcements by His Lordship, including among which was a reference to the death of Bishop Tuttle, Bishop of the American Church for fifty-five years, in St. Louis, Missouri, the Bishop of Fredericton, on behalf of the Synod, sent a telegram of regret and sympathy to the Bishop Coadjutor of St. Louis.

Bishop Richardson referred to the pleasure he experienced at seeing such a large delegation of laymen present. Rev. T. Stannage Boyle, D. D., president of King's College, Windsor, and Chancellor Harris were called to the platform and introduced by the Bishop to the Synod. Dr. Boyle referred to the proposed university amalgamation and its relation to King's. He reviewed the action of other Maritime colleges with reference to that matter. The Board of Governors of King's College had gone on record as favoring union. King's was differently situated from others because of the disastrous fire. The college had been saved during the last two years by the loyalty to their alma mater of the student body, and by the Carnegie Corporation of New York. The present question was what to do. He had just returned from New York, where he had been in connection with the matter. The rebuilding at Windsor might be carried on, but he did not consider this practical. The college could go out of business, or it could federate. If the latter course were taken would the college carry on at Windsor or go to Halifax at once? The corporation had urged immediate removal to Halifax and make some arrangements with Dalhousie as near as possible on the lines of the proposed federation.

There was the viewpoint of the graduate to be considered. There was also the viewpoint of the Synod. The college was not of some benefit to the church. It had little right to exist. There was also the viewpoint of higher education.

The corporation was not arbitrary in the matter. He asked the Synod to consider the matter very carefully. The fate of King's College would be decided once and forever in the next six weeks.

Chancellor Harris of the Diocese of Nova Scotia traced the history of King's. The college had been in existence for 130 years and only in the last thirty years had the church been taken in. The present board of governors was too large. Federation had come up some time ago and an agreement, requiring about $2,000,000 had failed. It had not been worked out. A campaign for $1,000,000 had failed and perhaps fortunately so. News of the agreement with Dalhousie reached the Carnegie Corporation and they had taken the agreement with Dalhousie as a nucleus for the greater scheme. This had later turned out to be unsatisfactory.

He urged a reduction in the number of governors and said it was proposed to have twelve members elected by the alumni, and eight each by the dioceses of Fredericton and Nova Scotia. He looked forward to the day when Kings would be part of a great educational system.

Dr. Boyle said he would like the Synod to approve of the legislation reducing the number on the board of governors and have them elected by the Synod instead of by the dioceses. He would also like approval of the federation movement. He was not asking the Synod to undertake any financial obligation. The power of conferring degrees would have to be given up.

Archdeacon Newham moved that the report of the board of government of King's College be taken up at once. This was carried and the report was read by Canon Smithers.

It contained a resume of the year's work. He moved its adoption, which was carried.

Bishop Richardson read a resolution

Business Meeting of Synod Opened

Between 150 and 200 delegates, lay and clerical, are in attendance at the sessions of the fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Diocesan Synod of Fredericton, meeting in Trinity church.

The afternoon session opened with devotions. His Lordship Bishop Richardson when he entered the hall was preceded by Dean S. Neales, Canon W. B. Siam, Archbishop D. Forsyth and Canon A. W. Smithers, who carried the pastoral staff.

The nominating committee consisted of Archdeacon Forsyth, W. H. Teed, Rev. E. Hallstone, H. M. Campbell, Rev. C. G. Lawrence, H. P. Puddington, Rev. A. W. Teed, C. S. E. Robinson, Rev. P. G. Cotton, G. D. Grimmer, Rev. A. I. Fleming, H. Leher Miller, Rev. L. A. Foyster and S. C. L. Ketchum.

Dean Shreve and Rev. Dr. T. S. Boyle, of Kings College, were granted seats on the floor of the house.

The presence of the venerable Dr. J. Roy Campbell was commented on. He was welcomed and applause was given him. He replied feelingly saying he was still able to pray for the progress of the work.

He contrasted conditions of today with those of fifty years ago. Notices of motion were presented that a collection should be taken in the churches on the first Sunday in November for the New Brunswick Protestant Orphanage and that nominations of synod committees should be on Tuesday and balloting on Wednesday at the lunch hour.

Rev. W. P. Dunham was appointed assistant secretary.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

is highly recommended by mothers everywhere for the relief of this trouble as it helps to clear the congested air passages of the mucous and phlegm that has collected, and in this way the cough is relieved.

Healthy Mother Merry Children Happy Home

TO maintain a happy home the housewife must keep in good health. Her duties are many and various, and it seems as if every other member of the family depended very much on her.

"Where is my hat?" cries the boy. "What did you do with my coat?" asks the daughter. "I can't find any handkerchiefs," yells the husband.

The housewife is usually the advisor and general manager of the family. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women to maintain a happy home by keeping them in good health.

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—"I cannot speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and I just had to force myself to do my work."

FARMERS MAP A NATION-WIDE POTATO POOL

Growers in N. Y., Maine, 10 Other States to Market Through Central Body—Plan to Equalize Prices.

New York, April 18.—The farmers of the United States are about to undertake the co-operative marketing of the country's largest food crop, in a number of pounds contained in the nation's 300,000,000-bushel potato crop.

With the organization of the Maine Potato Growers' Co-operative Association just completed, there has been taken the first step in marketing the nation's 300,000,000-bushel potato crop entirely through farmer's co-operative selling organizations commonly directed and controlled by one central body.

Sixty per cent. of the farmers who grow Maine's great crop of tubers already have accepted membership and signed contracts with the Maine association. They have agreed to send every bushel raised on their farms to the warehouses of the association for sale by it.

The Maine association and the groups being organized in other potato producing states are all modeled after the Sapiro plan on which similar co-operatives in tobacco, cotton, rice and other lines of farm produce have been built during the last two or three years.

forced them to look about for some way out. Like growers everywhere, the Maine farmers found themselves unable to grow sufficiently large crops to supply the demand during the war years and the year immediately following the armistice.

Some Maine communities are still suffering from the blight of that tremendous crop. For a variety of reasons the bottom simply fell out of the market. The $8 and $9 prices of a year and two years before tumbled precipitately.
