An Agreement is in Sight
Ottawa, Ont., March 8.—A basis of agreement has practically been reached between the United States and Canada relative to the final settlement of the fisheries question of all the boundary waters. Correspondence is now being exchanged between the two governments looking to the drafting of terms of a special treaty which will be made between Great Britain and the United States. It is understood that provisions are being made for joint regulations, framed by a board of six commissioners, three appointed by the United States and three by Canada in respect to close seasons, size of nets to be used, granting of licenses, etc., for the waters of the Passamaquoddy Bay, St. John River, St. Lawrence River, westward from the beginning of the international boundary at St. Regis, Quebec, Great Lakes, Lake Champlain, Rainey River, Rainey Lake, and Jean de Funo Straight, B. C. The treaty will be for four years and would probably be continued after that, as both governments are anxious to end the present unsatisfactory state of affairs, which is rapidly leading to the destruction of the fisheries in these waters. By making an international treaty the industry will be bound by its regulations according to the construction of the public. Hitherto the chief difficulty in the way of reaching an agreement has been owing to the fact that each state along the boundary has had charge of its own fishery laws and a common agreement could not be reached. Canada has everything to gain by the new treaty, as our fisheries regulations in the waters referred to are much more strict than has been the case with the states across the border. The new agreement will practically mean that the Canadian standard of inland fisheries protection. Lake Michigan will be exempt from the application of the treaty and to off set this on the Canadian side Georgian Bay will also be exempt. The fisheries question is the first to be settled of the outstanding issues between the two countries which were discussed by Hon. James Bryce with the government here during his recent visit. In respect to the other questions negotiations are making slow progress.

A Commission On Pulp Wood
Premier Gouin declares himself ready to support a proposal that the Federal Government shall name a Commission to inquire into the whole question of Pulp wood export and see what should be done about it. It would, perhaps, be a better idea that such a Commission, if appointed, should represent the Provincial Governments interested as well as the Federal; for there are those who imagine that the most effective and acceptable way in which the pulp wood question should be handled would be by regulations imposed by the Provincial Governments.
The true policy of Canada is to insist that our raw material shall be manufactured in Canada or Canadian labor and capital; and that nothing but the finished product shall be exported. We should not permit it to be fed into factories and mills of our rivals, there to employ foreign labor and pay dividends on foreign capital. We should not allow the petty profits of the present to blind us to the immense profits we can make in the future by keeping our natural resources for the upbuilding of our country.

Island Sardine Schedule
The Deer Island Weirman's Union and the Maine packers have agreed upon the following rates for sardines during the coming season:
April 15 to July 1 $9.00
July 1 to Aug. 1 6.00
Aug. 1 to Sept. 1 5.00
Sept. 1 to close 4.00
The packers say this is the only schedule they will recognize.
On the other hand, the president of the general Union says that the rate of $5, as decided on at the annual meeting, will remain without change.

Emmerson for Railway Commission
St. John, March 9.—A report from what may be considered an authoritative source has it that Hon. H. R. Emmerson will at once, be appointed to a position on the Railway Commission, and that Hon. C. W. Robinson will succeed him as the Liberal candidate for Ottawa, in Westmoreland. Premier Robinson is expected to tender his resignation as a member of the Legislature, as soon as the Government resigns, and it is stated that Mr. Robinson will enter the Hazen Cabinet as Commissioner of Public Works.
The above opportunity of Hon. Mr. Emmerson will be a popular one, though many of his friends have long thought he should have been reappointed Minister of railways and canals.

March
A bird note thrills the thicket thin and bare.
And lyric mood is warming yonder stream;
Hark! through the roughened whistling of the air,
Spring's reed-pipes echo with a softer theme.
O hearts that loved this woodland path last year!
O dear dead feet that went the way of leaves!
Methinks these echoes I can sometimes hear—
Or is it but Earth's loom as slow she weaves?

CHRONIC CATARRH NOSE AND THROAT

"At the Advice of Friends I Tried Peruna and the Results Have Been Highly Satisfactory." — So Writes Mr. F. P. M.
M. R. BAOUFILON, 118 Rue Notre Dame, Quebec, P.Q., Can., writes: "I write you a few words to express to you my satisfaction at being cured. I was afflicted with catarrh of the throat and nose and suffered much. I was greatly discouraged. I had a bad breath and had taste in my mouth in the morning.
"I took treatment for some time without obtaining relief. At the advice of friends I tried Peruna and the results have been highly satisfactory. At the end of four months I was completely cured."
Neglected catarrh becomes chronic. Having developed into the chronic stage, a longer and more persistent treatment will be required to cure it than if the disease were treated at the onset.
However, Peruna will bring relief, whether the catarrh is acute or chronic. If you are wise you will keep Peruna on hand and take a few doses at the first appearance of a cold or cough, and thus save yourself both suffering and expense.
Patients have the privilege of writing to Dr. Hartman for free advice. A book on "Chronic Catarrh" will be sent upon request.

A Flirt's Adventure

From Modern Society

Mrs. Cunningham was worried, and she knew that she could hope for little sympathy, for Tom Cunningham her lazy, easy-going husband, merely laughed at her troubles; while her sister, Laura Freeman, who was, in fact, the cause of her anxieties, had long since frankly told her she was "a dear old fuss."

Laura Freeman was an heiress, and she was also a most egregious flirt. Flirtation was to her indeed not a pastime, but a fine art; and she would enter into the dangerous game with all the zeal and energy that so many of her friends and contemporaries reserved for their exploits on hockey-ground or tennis-court. Most men, from 18 to 30 were interesting to Laura.

Tom Cunningham, her brother-in-law, considered her such capital fun that he declined to take her seriously and merely laughed at her conquests; but his wife, who had suffered considerably from the spiteful tongues of ladies who disapproved of Laura, regarded these frequent flirtations in a very different light.

Mrs. Cunningham and her sister sat down to dinner a few hours later with anticipatory feelings of a very different nature. While Laura's eyes sparkled with pleasure and curiosity, her chaperon nervously watched the door, fearful of seeing two new weak-minded visitors enter ready for conquest. If they came they could hardly fail to notice Laura among the assembled guests. The Cunninghams and their precious charge sat at a small table by themselves, the long centre table being occupied by five extremely loquacious ladies varying in age from 45 to 70, and two English school girls, who were conscientiously practising their French on a smart mademoiselle from Marseilles; while their mother listened with complacent approbation.

The soup had been served before the expected strangers entered the room. One was of middle height, with huge shoulders and an air of immense strength and energy, and though hardly handsome, he was yet pleasant to look at, with a humorous expression on his bronzed face, and a cleanly trimmed beard. His companion was evidently a good many years younger.

"Why, it's good old Bob Johnson!" exclaimed Mr. Cunningham. And, evidently fancying himself in Leicester rather than in a Swiss pension, he startled his fellow-guests by jovially shouting "Hi! Tally Ho! Bob come and sit near us, old man!"

"Dr. Johnson, I am glad to see you," said Susie, earnestly, when a few minutes later, the new arrivals had been accommodated with a table near the Cunninghams.

"Thank you! It is indeed a lucky chance that we should have met. I knew you were abroad; but when I started for this little holiday, I had no idea that you were at Lucerne." Dr. Johnson spoke rather absently, and his eyes were gravely fixed upon his friend, whom he had introduced as Capt. Mellor, and who was already deeply engaged in conversation with Laura Freeman.

Mrs. Cunningham noticed his abstraction; but she was not offended, nervousness. She wondered if Capt. Mellor had been drinking. Yet it hardly seemed likely. Oh, no. He was unconventional; he was just having a joke; nothing more.

Away they flew. He had turned the car and they were racing down the dusty white road at a terrible pace. On they rushed, leaving the old town far behind them, and narrowly escaping several collisions.

But surely this pace was not right. Even Laura felt frightened. "Go slower! I don't like it!" she cried.

Captain Mellor stretched out a free hand, tore the hatpin from her motor cap, snatched it from her head, and tossed it on the road. "Something must go. The car is too heavy? You or I next—who knows?" he exclaimed excitedly.

The girl screamed, for now her nervousness had developed into abject terror. Her mind had worked fast and she understood only too clearly that Captain Mellor was of course not merely the chosen friend and companion of Dr. Johnson, he was a patient under his control! Evidently in a frenzy he had escaped from his keeper, and would probably end in killing both himself and her.

"Bob, I want you to make me a solemn promise." It was six months later. Laura had been married for exactly three days to Dr. Johnson and in the interest of her satisfactory marriage the Cunninghams had almost forgotten the horror of that terrific afternoon at Lucerne when their sister had been carried back senseless to the Pension Rouge with more than one broken bone and completely shattered nerves. Susie had at last ceased to discuss the different health reports and rest cures which had assisted the girl to make a complete recovery, and the extraordinary case of Captain Mellor, who, having wrecked the motor-car and half-killed Laura, had escaped without a scratch, while the shock had completely restored him to his right mind after temporary insanity caused by sunstroke in South Africa.

"What is the promise?" asked Bob. "That you will never take charge of an eccentric patient again."

Her husband's face clouded, for he could seldom think without horror of the terrible risk she had run; but he tried to speak lightly when he answered, "Never again."

Remember that when the Stomach nerves fail or weaken, Dyspepsia or indigestion must always follow. But strengthen these same weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and when you see how quickly health will again return. Weak Heart and Kidney nerves can also be strengthened with the Restorative, where Heart pains, palpitation, or Kidney weakness is found. Don't drag the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Go to the cause of these ailments. Strengthen these weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and get well. A simple, single test will surely tell. All Dealers.

begging the question, for they know very well that there are a lot of us old fellows who make out to do a very satisfactory job at chewing our food; though we may not have a tooth in our head. Neither can the argument that hens do not require spruce chewing gum in their business be produced against the affirmative side of the contention, for not until some 50 years ago did any of us realize that we needed tomatoes on our tables. Perhaps if hens were taught how to chew gum every member of the race would at once become as passionately addicted to the gum-chewing habit as Cape Cod school-ma'ams are said to be. They would become so devoted to gum that they might sit around on the fence and cackle for it, and coax the roosters to crow for it, and refuse to deposit eggs until the gum was forthcoming.

The foregoing question was suggested from reading many magazine articles, and from reading the announcement of many more magazine articles upon the question—"Is Mars inhabited?" At such times as we have discovered anything striking or new in the debate we have striven to tread the subject seriously, and to give both sides a fair hearing. We have summarized the arguments of Professor Lowell of Harvard University, who after years of close observation contends that Mars is inhabited by beings who think and make plans and execute labors for their own welfare and preservation. Later we took up the case as presented by Professor Pickering of the great Harvard observatory, and made out from mathematics and analogy and from common sense that Mars is not inhabited, that it never was inhabited and that it never can be inhabited.

Last of all, we quoted extensively from Professor Todd of Amherst college, who has spent nearly a year among the high altitudes of the Andes mountains, and who has taken some very clear photographs, which seem to indicate the presence of some energy that is akin to human, or else the laws of chance are all wrong and misleading.

Here it was hoped that the matter would rest until 1909, when Mars swung around again and came so near the earth that with improved telescopes and improved cameras we might learn all about those canals and about the beings that built the canals and learn real facts so clearly and so far past disputing that never again should there be any argument about those debated and debatable canals.

But alas! it was not to be. In the magazine bulletins of what is coming in the magazines of March, 1908, are filled with advertisements of what is about to be said about poor old Mars and its canals and the builders of its canals. A learned professor in the great Chicago university with a whole alphabet of titles tacked to his name is going to prove that Mars is just a big iceball, that is 4000 degrees colder than the grave, and that the most vigorous man living would be converted into refrigerated meat some 10,000 miles outside the first Maritime port of call, should he undertake to visit the ruddy planet. And coincident with this, another very nice and very reliable magazine blazons to the world that a wise German astronomer has written and is about to publish in its pages a complete proof that Mars is no more than a hegyard on a gigantic scale, and what the learned men have mistaken for canals were in fact scratches in the ruddy loam, which were made by the industrious hens in their unceasing search for earthworms.

Now we would like to know what we are supposed to think in a case of this kind. We cannot believe all the claims put forth, and we mortally dislike to go on record as giving endorsement to anything false, and copies of that issue should get to Mars and be read by its residents, we should be in a pretty fix! Of course one wants to give the news and all the news, though on the other hand one can never be too careful when he is announcing any event that is of interest to humanity.

On considering the matter we believe we will debate things that are several miles nearer home. Suppose we ask the children in the public schools regarding the valuation and population and geographical area of Bangor! Suppose we learn how many aldermen and councilmen there are in the city, and what their respective duties are. Let us discover how many regular policemen and firemen there are in Bangor. What is the salary of the mayor? Do the aldermen and councilmen receive regular pay, or must they rely upon glory and whatever else they may pick up and be able to carry away? How many gallons of water does Bangor consume in 24 hours? How many gallons of whiskey in the same time? How many miles of paved streets? What did the paving cost a mile? How many school-ma'ams are there under pay in Bangor? What is their average rate of compensation? Is it most profitable for a girl to work a year at teaching school or serving in a restaurant or doing plain housework? As a relief to our overstrained imaginations, let us converse intelligently upon subjects right at hand and concerning those which can impart real facts.

Pain can be quickly stopped. A 25 cent box of Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets will kill any pain, everywhere, in 20 minutes! Besides they are thoroughly safe. Painful periods with women, neuralgia, etc., quickly cease after one tablet. All Dealers.

Month of the Verdant Equinox

Several interesting features are presented in the movements of the five brighter planets this month. Mercury which is in February, passed rapidly by the sun and entered the morning sky, reaches its greatest apparent distance from the sun on the 27th. It is then nearly 28 degrees distant from the sun, in the constellation Aquarius and rises at 4:43 a. m., or fifty-five minutes before the sun. It may be seen for a few mornings at about five o'clock, but not readily, as it shines with only one-half its greatest brilliancy and is nearly 10 degrees south of the equator.

Venus is advancing ahead of the sun, and marks out in a general way the path which the sun will take in the spring months. This month it passes across the constellation Aries and draws near the Pleiades. The dull red star which it is nearing is the planet Mars, shorn of the glory with which it was adorned last summer. The conspicuous feature of the motion of Venus is that it is getting higher in the sky each day, just as the sun is, and that it sets north of the west point, remaining in the sky until after nine o'clock. At the close of the month it sets at ten o'clock, at the same time as Mars.

Jupiter finishes its retrograde, or western motion among the stars on the 30th. It is in the constellation Cancer, a rather blank region between the brilliant twin stars Castor and Pollux and the Sickle of Leo.

Saturn closes its period of visibility in the evening sky. It sets on the 1st at 6:58 p. m. and on the 20th passes behind the sun.

An important feature of the apparent motion of the sun and the planets Venus and Mars is its rapidity. The sun seems to move among the stars at the same rate that the earth moves in its orbit. This is almost exactly 1 degree a day this month, for in the thirty-one days the sun advances thirty degrees 50 minutes in its apparent path. Venus actually moves faster than the earth all the time in its real orbit around the sun, but its apparent as viewed from the earth depends upon their relative positions. This we ask the children in the public schools regarding the valuation and population and geographical area of Bangor! Suppose we learn how many aldermen and councilmen there are in the city, and what their respective duties are. Let us discover how many regular policemen and firemen there are in Bangor. What is the salary of the mayor? Do the aldermen and councilmen receive regular pay, or must they rely upon glory and whatever else they may pick up and be able to carry away? How many gallons of water does Bangor consume in 24 hours? How many gallons of whiskey in the same time? How many miles of paved streets? What did the paving cost a mile? How many school-ma'ams are there under pay in Bangor? What is their average rate of compensation? Is it most profitable for a girl to work a year at teaching school or serving in a restaurant or doing plain housework? As a relief to our overstrained imaginations, let us converse intelligently upon subjects right at hand and concerning those which can impart real facts.

Pain can be quickly stopped. A 25 cent box of Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets will kill any pain, everywhere, in 20 minutes! Besides they are thoroughly safe. Painful periods with women, neuralgia, etc., quickly cease after one tablet. All Dealers.

Venus actually moves faster than the earth all the time in its real orbit around the sun, but its apparent as viewed from the earth depends upon their relative positions. This month it seems to move over 35 degrees and, therefore, increases its distance from the sun. Mars seems to move but 22 degrees and so is rapidly overtaken by Venus and gradually by the sun. At the beginning of the month Mars is 54 degrees and Venus 39 degrees east of the sun, all moving eastward. At its close Mars is 45 degrees and Venus 43 degrees from the sun, the two planets, therefore, seeming to be near each other. Venus is getting brighter, Mars fainter, and the contrast in brilliancy is now very great.

The fainter planets, Uranus and Neptune, are both in position for telescopic study, the former less favorably situated because low in the south and not seen until early morning. Uranus rises on the 1st at 3:44 a. m. in the constellation Sagittarius, Neptune is visible until after midnight. It may be found in right ascension 6h 53m, declination N. 22 degrees 5 minutes in the constellation Gemini.

The satellites of Jupiter should be observed this month especially for their eclipses by those who have telescopes. Satellites I. and II. enter the shadow when behind the planet and emerge from it at a distance from the planet toward the east. Satellites III. and IV. come out from behind the planet before entering the shadow and their disappearance as well as their reappearance may be observed.

A man named Fred Hanson was found frozen to death on a lake near Norcross, Monday. He was about 45 years of age and belonged in Natick, Mass. With two companions started to walk the previous Saturday from a camp in the woods where they were employed, to Norcross. Hanson became fatigued, and at his request was left behind by his companions, and expected to return to the camp.

George M. Shippy, chief of the Chicago police department, Monday, shot and killed an anarchist who invaded his home, wounded the chief, shot the official's son, Harry, in the lung and severely wounded the family coachman, James Foley. Harry Shippy is seriously hurt. Foley will probably recover and the chief was stabbed in the hand, his wound being slight.

On Sunday in heavy weather when off Musquash, in the Bay of Fundy, James Clark, one of the crew of the St. John pilot boat Howard D. Troop, fell overboard while working on the main boom. Efforts to save him were futile. He was about 30 years old, and a native of Scotland.

The Charm of Beauty

Nothing of More Value to Women

The glory and satisfaction of beautiful womanhood can be known only to those possessing the unlimited advantages of health.

No weak woman can be happy or enjoy half the pleasures of life. Pallid cheeks, sunken eyes, exhausted nerves, all tell of a terrible struggle to keep up.

What the weak woman needs is Ferronine; it renews restores and vitalizes instantly—it's a "woman's remedy"—that's why.

Ferronine makes women strong, plump and beautiful because it contains lots of nutriment, the kind that forms muscle, sinew, bone and nerve.

Vitalizing blood courses through the body, making delightful color, happy spirits, true womanly strength.

To look well, to feel well, to enjoy the unlimited advantages of robust, bounding health use Ferronine; sold by all dealers in 50c boxes, and refuse a substitute.

A mammoth codfish, which tipped the scales at 97 pounds, was brought in to T. wharf Boston, on Thursday, in the hold of the Provincetown fishing sloop Vesta, says the Post. It is said to be the largest cod ever landed at T. wharf. The giant fish was caught in the Bay of Plymouth. The men who brought it up at first thought that they had captured a whale.

The New Premier

Mr., or as he will be called in a few days, Hon. John Douglas Hazen, Premier of New Brunswick, is a native of Ontario, son of the late Mr. J. King Hazen, but spent his youth and early manhood in Fredericton, removing to St. John eighteen years ago. He will be forty eight years old on the sixth day of next June.

Mr. Hazen was educated at the Collegiate school and University of New Brunswick, graduating from the latter in 1879. He studied law with Fraser, Wetmore & Winslow in this city, and was admitted to the bar in 1883. He practised in this city at first alone, and later as a member of the firm of Black & Hazen. He was an alderman of Fredericton for three years, representing Kings ward, and was mayor for nearly two terms, retiring from the latter position when he removed to St. John in 1890, on inheriting the fortune of his kinsman, the late F. B. Hazen.

Mr. Hazen was a candidate for the legislature in York, in the by-election of 1885, but was defeated by the present Judge Wilson. He was elected to the house of commons for St. John in the federal election of 1891, and at the session in that year moved the address. He was defeated in 1896, but in 1899 was returned to the legislature for Sunbury, and re-elected in 1903 and 1908.

Mr. Hazen married in this city Sept. 22, 1884, Miss Ada, daughter of the late Mr. James Tibbits, and they have a family of five children, the eldest son, Mr. D. King Hazen, being a graduate of the U. N. B., and student at law in St. John. Politics aside, Mr. Hazen has many warm personal friends and admirers in Fredericton, who will be ready to congratulate him on the success he has achieved in the political field, and on his peculiar good luck in Tuesday's contest, which will elevate him to a position he has coveted and labored earnestly to obtain during the past nine years.—Fredericton Herald.

Prince Rupert

Mr. Cy Warman, the well known author and journalist, writing on "Prince Rupert" in the Canadian Magazine, says:—

"Prince Rupert is new and attractive. It is to be a model city in every sense of the word. It regards what is said to be the finest natural harbor on the coast, if not in the world. It is the terminal town of a transcontinental railway which bids fair to surpass anything ever attempted in the way of railway construction on this continent, crossing from ocean to ocean without a single mile of mountain grade or grade that can by any stretch of imagination be considered an obstacle to the economical operation of the road. Prince Rupert is also at the end of the long portage on the shortest route around the world. Any scheme which has for its ultimate object the swift circling of the sphere must reckon Prince Rupert on its right-of-way. The mineral wealth of all that vast mountain region, the forest produce of Northern British Columbia, as well as the food products of the Prairie Provinces and the fur of the far north—that is to say, all the export wealth of this resourceful Dominion originating north and west of the South Saskatchewan, bound for the Orient by the Occidental route—will funnel down and pass out by way of Prince Rupert."

Why Liquid Catarrh Remedies Fail

They go direct to the stomach, have very little effect on the linings of the nose and throat, and entirely fail to cure. Only by cleansing the air passages by relieving the inflammation and killing the germs is cure possible. No combination of Antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhose. In breathing it, you send the richest pine balsams right to the seat of the disease. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, hoarseness, coughing and hacking are cured. For a permanent cure for catarrh, nothing equals Catarrhose, 25 cts. and $1.00 at all dealers.

With the landing of eight hundred immigrants at Halifax, N. S. the Salvation Army exodus into Canada has begun in earnest. Four other steamer loads are to follow soon. They are bound for the northwest provinces.

Don't Get Blue

Don't ever get blue, or get gloomy or down on your luck where you're living, in country or town. Don't think you're selected to stand all the brunt of misfortune forever, and that your luck won't take a turn for the better; you know that it will! The sun's rays are lighting the top of the hill That rises before you, and though shades of night Are enveloping the valley the hills are alight. —Houston Post.

The report is again current in railway circles that now the Shore Line is an acknowledged branch of the C. P. R.

The scheme of connecting that line with the C. P. R. at a point near the bridge will go into effect during the coming summer. In making this connection, which would require a cut-off line of only a little more than a mile in length, the idea is to make the C. P. R. offices and facilities in the city answer also for the Shore Line, and thus to do away with the expense of keeping an establishment with operators, clerks, etc., on the West side. The handling of freight which comes by the C. P. R. to and from St. Stephen and points similarly situated with regard to the two lines, would also be greatly simplified. On more than one occasion the latest of which was last fall, the C. P. R. engineers have surveyed the line proposed to connect the Shore Line and C. P. R. The projected line leaves the Shore Line at a point not far from the Provincial Hospital annex, and crosses the main C. P. R. line to West St. John just to the east of the Fairville crossing gates. To do this last a house and barn will have to be torn down, and it is understood that the C. P. R. already has a line out for the property. The line also crosses the Provincial Hospital field, circling around before it joins the C. P. R. extension track to the city. The junction point is just to the west of the bridge. It comes from an N. B. Southern official that the track will be built during the coming summer. In view of this the operations of the steam shovel at Bay Shore last fall were cut short until spring, so that the gravel taken out could be carried directly to the new line and there used to fill up the hollows which it will have to cross.—Globe.

How To Gain In Weight.

You know you are too thin—you eat and eat, but never get an ounce fatter. Nerves are weak, color is bad, strength seems exhausted. It's not hard to get fat. You must eat more, digest more, exercise more. Try Ferrozone and watch your appetite grow. It turns all you eat into nutriment and building material—fills your veins with rich, red blood—gives you ambition and vigor. For a tissue builder, a fattening tonic, one that restores permanently, there is nothing to compare with Ferrozone. Try it and see, 50 cts. at all dealers.

Lube Herald: Who ever heard of fresh water lobsters?

Many have seen them and there are many who have not heard of them. They thrive, according to our informant, in the eastern part of the State, in the Mattawankeag river near Dudley Mill some three miles above Smyrna Mills. These lobsters are small seldom attaining a size of more than three inches but they are a perfect specimen and swim backwards with great rapidity, they are of a brownish red in color and are found by the millions. Some men that were fighting fire there some three or four years ago took a painful of them inland from the stream some rods and turned them out on the ground and every one with one accord started for the brook. This seems rather strange as the brook was nowhere in sight. Some instinct in the little lobster seemed to tell each one in which direction to go. It is claimed that they make the best kind of bait for bass and pickerel as they are very active in the water and of a size and shape to tempt the most fastidious fish. Will some one kindly give us the origin of this fish if it is common in the waters of the State.

RATHER COSTLY.

A good sharp opposition in the house either Federal or Provincial, is a good thing but when it comes to wasting the country's time by unwarrantable obstruction it becomes very expensive.

Such was the case in the Federal house last week in connection with the passing of the estimates for the Marine and Fisheries Department. Mr. Borden had been absent from the house for some days, and Mr. Foster—acting in Mr. Borden's stead, refused to pass a single item until Hon. Mr. Brodeur complied with the request for certain information which had little of any bearing on the item under discussion.

The "longest session of the Commons since Laurier came into power," lasted through Saturday ending with the near approach of Sunday when Hon. Mr. Fielding arose and stated that whatever differences there might be on other matters, both parties were Christian and as Sunday had come he would move the adjournment of the house.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Foster accused Mr. Brodeur of "stealing" the money necessary to pay the expenses of himself and officers of his department in England on business in connection with the new ice-breaker for the P. E. Island winter service. It appears that the money was not available when the vote for the trip was passed, so the Minister for convenience sake transferred a sum from the ice-breaker account, which sum he subsequently refunded, thus balancing matters.

This action was condemned by Mr. Foster when he used the strong word "stealing." But strange to say Mr. Brodeur was able to point out from Hansard that Mr. Foster had himself while in office made precisely the same temporary loan, on making a trip to England, which he justified then by saying it really makes very little difference I suppose, to what they are charged as they come out of the same pocket. Evidently a politician needs to have good memory. The ex-minister afterwards apologized for using the word "stealing" saying I might have used the word transferred and if the minister objects to the word stolen I take it back frankly and fully. Looking at it now in print it does seem a bit strong. These obstruction tactics may be interesting to the participants but they are expensive.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

It is difficult to reconcile the many divergent opinions expressed by business men regarding the future trade. Some stoutly maintain that any departure from a quiet steady business for the next few months would be a mistake and might result in another set-back or crisis. Caution is the word.

Others just as prominent in business circles, talk just the reverse urging that we are on the eve of brighter business conditions than we have enjoyed for many years. Possibly both of these representative classes are a little extreme but the prospects are, to say the least, not such as should discourage business men. Just the reverse, for a while it may be necessary to go slowly, if times are sure and so soon as the banks get a little more confidence in men and themselves, things will move more rapidly and hopefully. We are not "in it" in the hard times cry compared with our friends across the border where many banking institutions have suspended and their vacated premises have been occupied by respectable restaurants.

Work At Lepreaux Being Pushed

Since the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. entered upon the development of the Lepreaux iron deposits there has been a lively demand for the stock of the St. John Iron Company, but all those who can afford to hold it are refusing to sell. The work of drilling is going forward as rapidly as the weather will permit, and the staff of men employed there is being augmented from time to time. By the first of June there will probably be a hundred men at work. The Dominion Iron and Steel Co. have unbounded confidence in the great value of the property and will spend a lot of money in development operations the coming summer.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it causes the hearing to be imperfect, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Labor Organizations in Canada During 1907

According to information received by the Department of Labor, the total number of labor organizations formed in Canada during 1907 was 232, and organizations dissolved, 38, being a net increase during the year of 174 in the number of organizations in existence. Compared with the three preceding years the returns show how a marked increase in the activity of organization. In 1906 the number of organizations formed was 154, and of organizations dissolved 85, a gain of only 69. In 1905 there was a net loss of two, the unions formed numbering 103, and of unions dissolved 105. There was an increase of 44 in the number of unions during 1904. The year 1903 alone, since the inauguration of the present record of the department, was more active than the season just past in respect to the organization of workmen, the number of unions formed in that year being 275, and of unions dissolved 54, a net increase of 221.

Export Duty On Pulp Wood

Ottawa, Ont., March 11.—A beginning was today made in the Commons with a debate on a rather large question. It was precipitated by Mr. Lewis, a Conservative member from Ontario Mr. Lewis asked the House to join him in declaring that such an export duty should be placed on pulp wood as would be sufficient to induce its manufacture to Canada into paper. He declared that if this were done the country would be saved at least six million dollars annually.

He was of the opinion that the United States was not at the mercy of Canada in the matter of pulp wood supply. However, there was no doubt that the shutting off of the six hundred thousand odd cords which the United States drew on Canada for annually would cause some inconvenience across the line. Canada with 2,600,000 square miles had the richest forest areas in the world, and if this area half was pulp wood.

At the rate of a million cords a year of exportation to the United States it would take 4,144 years to exhaust the supply in Canada. The number of mills in Canada was increasing so fast that there was no question of a market for all of the products of the Canadian pulp wood men. In twenty years the number of mills had increased from 34 to 58 and their daily output from 154 to 2,361 tons. He asked for a committee of the House to look into the question.

Dr. Belland of Beauce, opposed the resolution. He declared that the forest areas of Canada if properly treated, will last for centuries under the system which they will be placed of furnishing pulp wood.

The passage of the resolution would not serve the public interest from either an economic or from a diplomatic point of view while the carrying out of the principle embodied in the resolution would seriously injure private interests. There was no doubt that it was the duty of the country to preserve the forest resources, but the imposition of an export duty would not accomplish this result.

The preservation of the forests could only be accomplished by the various provincial governments. They were the controllers of the forests and they alone could make regulations concerning fire, stumpage fees, the diameter of the trees to be cut. It would not be fair to shut off the limit holders of Canada from the great American market for their products.

Mr. Hunt and Mr. Tobin, two Quebec members approved the resolution.

Leddie—a valuable coolie dog, the property of Rankine McIntyre, was poisoned on Monday last. The one absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves unfaithful is his dog. The person who deliberately poisons a dog will hesitate at Nothing.

The school board met on Friday evening, in the town hall. The lady members of the board visited the school on Friday afternoon and submitted a report dealing with the condition of the school house. The following trustees were present at the evening session: Edward McGrattan, chairman, James O'Brien, Secretary, Dr. Taylor, Dr. Alexander, James Boque and George E. Frauley.

The financial condition was discussed at length and it was the general opinion of the board that steps would have to be taken to provide accommodations for the increased number of pupils. The advisability of building an annex on the present building was discussed, it was pointed out that the amount now paid out in rent and fuel would pay the interest on the annex. The school house, it was thought needed a thorough renovation and steps should be taken to provide other methods of heating the building, perhaps by putting in a furnace. The board met again on Monday evening, and a number of resolutions were passed to be submitted to the town council.

The marble season is here. Boys in the habit of awaiting the school bell, in the mornings are now clamoring for their breakfast before eight o'clock and it takes the last clang of the bell to get them away from the all absorbing game of marbles. Watch the game for a few minutes and observe the interest a good shot raises in the onlookers. Nothing is perhaps so filled with the memories of "boyhoods happy days" as a good old game of marbles.

OUR PROBLEM CONTEST.
Have You Tried—Send in Your Solution Today—It's a Brain Stormer.
Here's a chance to exercise your brains. This is a problem that will keep you guessing. Get your paper and pencil ready and send in your answer. You may be right. It will do no harm if you are. It's a teaser, the hardest since a hen and a half problem that puzzled all the wise ones.
This is the problem:
A dog is chasing a rabbit, and the rabbit has thirty yards' start on the dog. The rabbit runs at the rate of eight yards in a second and the dog at the rate of ten yards a second. How long will it be before the dog catches
the rabbit?
The following are some of the answers received yesterday:

MABEL'S ANSWER.
Dear Problem Editor—In answer to your interesting problem, published last week
I would say the dog will catch the rabbit in one minute and eight seconds.
MABEL'S
HOW A HIGH SCHOOL BOY FIGURES
IT.
Problem Editor—Let X = the rabbit and Y = the dog. Then X Y = the dog running after the rabbit. Now, the dog runs ten yards a second, therefore 10 X = Y or X = 10. The dog will therefore catch the rabbit in ten seconds.
HIGH SCHOOL BOY, NO HIGHER MATHEMATICS NECESSARY.
Problem Editor—As a lover of all wild creatures I wish to protest against the needless cruelty of your recent problem.
Any one who has seen, or has the tortured, quivering, innocent furry thing in the cruel jaws of the savage murderer can take no delight in speculating on the all too short term of the allotted life of the poor rabbit. NATURE LOVER.
P. S.—I hope the dog will never catch
the rabbit.

NO, THERE IS NO PRIZE.
Problem Editor—The dog will catch the rabbit in just one minute. Thus, 10 X = Y; 2 X 30 = 60. Sixty seconds is one minute. There is no prize for correct answer?
R. T. D.
A SOLUTION FROM BOSTON.
Problem Editor—The velocity of the dog minus the velocity of the rabbit will equal the difference of velocity between the two quadrupeds. The dog is subtended by a chord described in an equilateral circle having a radius of thirty yards and readily be determined. The dog would therefore overtake (not necessarily catch) the rabbit in 17.1468 seconds.
PUBLIC LIBRARY.
AN ANSWER FROM WASHINGTON.
Problem Editor—The problem is calculated to give grossly inaccurate ideas concerning rabbits to every child who reads it and may do great harm. A rabbit does not run, but bounds or leaps, and I have never known an ordinary rabbit to run sixty yards in a second. A jack rabbit may do so, but does not travel faster than I have killed thousands of rabbits and never knew one to travel faster than seven yards a second, so any one stating or implying the contrary is guilty of deliberate mendacity.

ENGLAND'S ROYAL HOME

HIS MAJESTY'S PRIVATE APART-MENTS AT WINDSOR CASTLE.
Where Foreign Potentates Are Entertained—Queen Alexandra's Treasure House—Famous "Long Corridor"—Unique Collection of Rare China—Enviied by French Royalists—Drawing Rooms at the Castle.
The private apartments which are occupied by Their Majesties King Edward and Queen Alexandra when the court is in residence at Windsor Castle are separate and distinct from what are known as the state apartments, which the public is permitted to see on certain days. The private apartments, says G. Aston, writing in The Woman At Home, lie beyond the state-reception-rooms adjoining the Waterloo chamber and are entered by a massive oak door the hinges of which are made of solid iron. This door opens on to a short corridor that has recently been converted into a study. It is probably the most magnificent china closet in the world; it contains in electrically-lighted cabinets at either end of the marble walls some hundred sets of Sevres, Worcester and Chelsea china, each set a long and interesting history of its own and each absolutely perfect.

Rare China.
The china closet opens on to the long corridor which runs the whole length of the private apartments, and the plan of its arrangement was mainly devised by Queen Alexandra. The long corridor is a treasure house of innumerable interest. Pictures on either side with pictures, cabinets, chairs, tables, clocks, ornaments of silver and gold and every article the product of an artist famous all the world over and replete with historical interest. Queen Alexandra spent several months planning how these treasures should be placed, and when the work of arranging these was finally begun a daily report of its progress was submitted to her. In this corridor Queen Alexandra sometimes entertains at afternoon tea a few guests who have the privilege of being on terms of intimacy with Her Majesty.

Best Liked.
The crimson and green drawing-rooms are the Queen's favorite apartments. From the former a lovely view is obtained, and it is Her Majesty's favorite room at Windsor. Though the crimson drawing-room is, of course, of considerable size and very beautifully furnished, it has, perhaps, a more homely appearance than the others, and contains more of Her Majesty's personal possessions than any other room in Windsor Castle. It was in this room that the Princesses Patricia and Victoria of Denmark took their first dancing lesson, in the presence of the Queen, and it is here that Her Majesty entertains her guests in a small one. The green drawing-room is also used a great deal by Her Majesty, but it is more stately in appearance than the crimson drawing-room. It is upholstered throughout with green damask silk, and contains several beautiful cabinets filled with Sevres china. These were originally intended to be placed in the china closet, but the collection took up more room than was anticipated, and it was therefore placed in the green drawing-room. The great object of interest, however, in this apartment is the model of the figure of Louis XV., by Girardon, which stood in the Place Vendome in Paris. It is the only model in existence of that wonderful piece of work, and is at once the despair and envy of French royalists who come to stay at Windsor Castle.

Smallest in the World.
Mr. J. Beale, who lives in Kent, has reared a pony which he claims is the smallest in the world. It is only 12 inches high.

A Large Sponge.
A record sponge, ten feet in circumference and two feet thick, was found a few years ago by some sponge fishermen off the Bahama Islands.

THE POOR CAT.

One Occasion When the Animal Did Not Come Back.
When the cat died the whole family went into mourning, figuratively if not literally. No common back door cat this, but one that must be buried with all honor. The question was how and where.
Some one proposed cremation, but this was rejected on the ground that it sounded too much like lynching. It was finally proposed that the feline who had to cross a ferry every day to his place of business, should drop it on board, and as a burial at sea rather appealed to the sentimental attitude of the family this idea was received favorably.
The following morning the remains of the cat were made into a package and securely tied. It was a lovely day, and the ferryboat was crowded with passengers, and what first seemed so simple at home assumed unexpected difficulties in the face of a curious crowd, ready to imagine anything and to put the worst construction on an apparently mysterious action.
Finally it occurred to the father that the best time would be the evening, and he could slip the cat overboard without attracting notice in the dusk. Through the day it occupied a corner of his office, and he was glad when the time came for the return trip.
He waited until the boat was well out in the stream and then, flanking around the ferry, laid his hand on the package. Suddenly it struck him what would seem strange in broad daylight would seem doubly so at night.
With a smothered groan he replaced it on the seat beside him. There was no help for it—he would have to carry it home again.
As he took his seat in the train that was to convey him the rest of the way he placed the cat on the shelf above his head and for the first time that day forgot all about it. Hurrying to get off the car when he reached his destination, he was halted by some one behind him, who thrust into his hand the ill-fated package.
When he reached his house he threw it down on a chair in the hall and went in to supper. In the middle of it the maid came in and asked "how she should cook the meat he had brought with him?"
"Meat?" he exclaimed. "That isn't meat! It's"—
But at this moment the maid produced the package and showed him a choice piece of meat. History does not say what the man said who got the cat.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.
A boy's idea of a hero is another boy who runs away from home.

Excuses for drinking are always at hand. Here are the five familiar ones:
Good wine, a friend, or being dry, or just what he needs to be by and by—Or any other reason why.
If they don't suffice one can always fall back upon Dr. Sam Johnson's, "He who makes a beast of himself gets rid of the pain of being a man."
On the other hand, here are three reasons, one of them cogent, that a Bostonian gave for not drinking:
"First—I can't drink, for I've just lost a near relative. Second (which must precede)—No, I really can't. You know I'm president of a temperance society. Third (when he was much more pressed)—No, I can't, indeed. I've just had four or five cocktails."

Shopping in London.
One of the first things an American man or woman rushes out to buy in London is a serviceable well cut mackintosh, and the second article to be purchased is usually an umbrella. A man can buy in London a smart waterproof which with occasional reproofing will last him a lifetime for 3 or 4 guineas. In New York a very bad imitation will cost him from $40 to $50. The British umbrella is not only a thing of beauty in workmanship, but it will outlast all competitors across the seas.—London Express.

Mixed.
Here is a mixture of kingdoms, if not of metaphors, taken from a history examination paper: "He stretched his sultry length beneath the ewe tree's shade." Indigestion

Stomach trouble is not a symptom of, and not itself a true disease. We think of dyspepsia, flatulency, and indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the origin of that now very popular stomach remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that remedy and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach disease, flatulency, indigestion, bad breath and slow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tastes on Food—and you will see what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

Sudden Sunshine

"Oh," snapped the girl with gray eyes who was hastily trying to button her gloves, "I might have known that it would be out of the question for anything to go right today!"

She got down on her knees to search under the chiffonier for the button which had come off. When she struggled to her feet her hat was over one ear and her veil was crooked and she had not found the button. Her lips were compressed as she hastily grabbed the button bag. An unfortunate tilt spilled its contents as if she were going to cry.

"There's not another button that'll match!" she wailed. "And these gloves are the only ones—"

With eager hands she panned over the contents of her top bureau drawer. When she finally pulled out some gloves with a satisfied cry the drawer looked as if an egg-beater driven with horse-power had stirred it up.

"I forgot that I had another pair of tan long gloves, she said as she worked her fingers into them. "Jack is so particular that he'd have noticed that button was missing as sure as fate—"

An ominous rip sounded and across the back of the right glove a slit appeared.

The girl turned pale. "I wish this day was over!" she sobbed. "Everything goes wrong; I'll miss that train and be late to dinner and Jack hates to wait. Oh, dear! How I loathe black gloves with a brown suit, but I'll have to wear black gloves now!"

She caught her heel and nearly fell as she descended the stairs. The front door shut on a fold of her skirt and the resultant tug at her belt loosened the fastening, so she had to go back and repair the damage to her appearance.

When she emerged again she began to run toward the suburban station, four blocks away. A flash rose in her cheeks and her breath came quickly. When she was still a block away she heard the oncoming train and redoubled her efforts. As she slammed her dime down before the ticket window the train was at a standstill. She staggered up the stairs just in time to get a good view of the last car platform as it pulled away.

"Well!" she said violently. "Well!"

For a moment she walked the deserted platform. Then she went inside the stuffy waiting-room. She stared for the window her eyes flashing. As she reconsidered all the ill-luck of that afternoon she began to feel abused.

No man could comprehend how intolerable it all had been. No man ever had things happen to him like that. All he had to do when he wanted to go anywhere was to put on a clean collar and tumbler into his overcoat and hat and there he was! Trains always seemed to wait for men—at least men always caught them.

It would be useless to try to explain to Jack, when he met her on the arrival of the next train in the city, why he had been kept waiting a half hour thinking things about the unreliability and unpunctuality of women! And the pleasant little dinner which might have meant so much would be spoiled—just spoiled by his annoyance and her nervousness. When one had to hurry so and things went wrong one never looked one's best. She felt irritably certain that she never before had looked so dreadful in all her life. Nothing felt right—she knew her waist skewed around and her hair was on the point of coming down and she was positive that the heel on her left shoe needed polishing. Besides, the next train was sure to be late!

At this point the girl she hated worse than any other walked into the waiting-room and headed straight for her, so she was obliged to sit and talk to that awful girl the rest of the time!

When the train came at last and she stepped in she remembered with a pang that her new goldmesh handbag, which she had intended to carry, was reposing in its case at home.

Half way to the city something happened and the train stopped for five minutes, which seemed hours to her.

In her perturbation she gave the girl she hated the address of her pet dressmaker, which ordinarily could not have been dragged from her by wild automobiles.

Getting out of the train a big man trod on my toes and she also remembered she had forgotten her handkerchief with the real lace edge.

When she reached the place where Jack was to meet her she was tired to death and ready to go back home and cry herself to sleep. She looked horrid, she knew, and she loathed all dinners and theatres.

As she hastily glanced around and it dawned on her that Jack was not standing there with anxiety and annoyance on his face, she realized that the worst had happened. He had got tired of waiting had concluded that she had broken their evening's engagement and so had gone away!

It was the last straw. She hated him even worse than she hated herself. Everything was his fault.

Just then a red-faced, anxious young man tore madly through the crowd and made for her corner.

"I'm so sorry!" he gasped. "And you've been waiting all this time! I've nearly broken my neck trying, but I simply could not get here a minute earlier. I don't know how to excuse myself—"

"Oh," breathed the young woman with noble generosity, the world suddenly righting itself and her toilet as suddenly setting into perfection and beauty. Oh that's all right, Jack! I understand perfectly! You don't need to feel bad about it at all!"—Chicago News.

World Monument

A World Poet

As the pendulum of public taste may be counted on to have found, in the course of three hundred years, its perpendicular in the matter of an estimate of a dead author, the project of a world memorial to Shakespeare to be erected in London has no fustian about it. In company with fewer than six others, great Elizabethan is what we call a world poet, and takes his place among those colossi under whose huge legs our living pettiness is observed to walk. The thirty odd plays attributed to his brain have come to be so intimately bound up with our life, and such common currency of our everyday speech that the performance of an unfamiliar play sounds like a collection of familiar quotations.

London's failure to provide a suitable memorial hitherto has been doubtless due to the poet's burial in Stratford, together with the genial malediction on his tomb. From time to time there has been talk of a removal to the Abbey, fortunately no more than talk. But now the time has come for a permanent monument it is eminently fitting that the nations at large should be permitted to share in the undertaking. A great poet whose works have passed into all the languages of Christendom and several of heathendom; ceases to be national property, except in the matter of his birthplace. Shakespeare, more than any other poet, Dante and Homer not expected, belongs less to a place and period than to all places and all periods, this being the point wherein his greatness consists. The same scene in one of his plays prompted a gardener to a better week's work, and De Quincey to a philosophical essay. After three hundred years, covering alternate periods of worship and neglect, he is world property, and the world should unite to do him honor.

It was with this in mind that the plans were outlined for the $500,000 memorial to be completed on the 500th anniversary of the poet's death. Competition for the design of the architectural monument and statue will, therefore, be thrown open to all English-speaking races, selection to be in the hands of a committee of sculptors. The projectors of the monument also hope to raise an additional $500,000 to be devoted to the foundation of a "Shakespearean Institute, whatever they may be. All this, while a somewhat tardy architectural expression of praise, is less in token of a debt which should be paid, than a symbol of a debt which is being paid daily, the acknowledgment of a standing obligation. When the invitation to contribute comes, there should be little delay on the part of those who speak the English and the romance languages, to respond. Shakespeare belongs to us all, and we should all have a share in erecting an enduring monument.—Boston Transcript.

Up Two Stumps

Little Johnny was in the habit of wanting more victuals put upon his plate than he could eat. His papa decided to break him of the habit. One day as Johnnie insisted upon being served until his plate was well filled his papa said, "Johnny, if I give you this you will have to eat every bit of it or I will punish you." Johnny promised that he would, and bravely did the little fellow try to do so, but in vain. It was too much for him. He would try again and again and then look sorrowfully at his papa. Finally, laying down his fork, he said: "Papa, if you was me which would you rather do, get a licking or bust?"

The mayor of St. Stephen, the mayor of Milltown and the warden of the county are ex-officio members. Dr. Dienstadt, Dr. Blair, Dr. Deacon, Dr. Lawson, Dr. Murphy, and Dr. Langhite are the visiting staff of the hospital, three of whom for this year, Dr. Deacon, Dr. Lawson and Dr. Murphy form a consulting staff. All-Red Line Must Have Its Terminal on Atlantic Coast

Maritime Provinces will stand together in the fight for the fast mail port—enthusiastic audience endorses the Board of Trade's resolution at a mass meeting in the Academy of Music, Halifax—many forceful speeches by representative men—all red line in the interests of the Empire, the Dominion and the Maritime Provinces.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the mass meeting in the Academy of Music, last night:

Whereas, the project of a fast mail and passenger steaming service to connect Canada and Great Britain has been continuously discussed by the people of the Dominion for more than a quarter of a century, and in the light of great Imperial and National prospects involved in the enterprise, it has always been held that only a service of the highest type of marine architecture and speed could satisfy the requirements and aspirations of the Dominion, and successive Canadian governments have steadily recognized this feature of the undertaking by renewed offers of immense public subsidies, while the specifications for the service to be supplied require it to be at least equal to the best afloat; and

Whereas, it has been demonstrated that the quickest route for European mails and passengers destined to the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, Ontario, and the West is through a port on our Atlantic seaboard, and vice versa, and consequently that this route is the best for Canada at large and her Imperial connections, and it has been further shown that the fast service desired by the people of the Dominion and popularly described as a ferry, operating swiftly and with regularity, and giving the Dominion the results and benefits that should flow from the expenditure of the large proposed subsidy, can only be effectively accomplished by an all-year-round terminus on the Atlantic seaboard;

Therefore Resolved, in the interests of the Empire, the Dominion at large, and the Maritime Provinces, this meeting is of the opinion that any contract which may be entered into by the Canadian Government for the payment of a large subsidy for a Fast Atlantic Service should stipulate that the Canadian terminus be at a port on the Atlantic seaboard of the Dominion the year around;

Further Resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to the members of the Senate and House of Commons at Ottawa.

Startling Story of a 17-year-old Girl

New York, March 14.—A startling story of how five girls, who came to New York from St. Paul a year ago, took their own lives, was told today by seven-year-old Helen Baxter, after she had made a vain effort to commit suicide also. Helen said she was one of the party of six girls who went to New York to make their fortunes after receiving a course of training in a business school in Minnesota City. She turned on the gas in her furnished room in 43rd street last night, but was resuscitated this morning.

When asked why she had tried to end her life, the girl replied: "Why should I not be allowed to die? My five girl friends who left St. Paul with me a year ago, after we left school, have all committed suicide. I want to die as they did and join them."

"Was it a suicide pact?" she was asked.

"My five friends are all dead, and they died as they chose," was her reply.

The girl said she and her five friends decided while in the business school in St. Paul to come to New York together, thinking there was more of a future in the metropolis. She refused to give the names of any of her girl friends. A short time after their arrival in New York, she said, one of the girls married. She did not live happily with her husband however, and killed herself a few months after she became a bride. In the meantime another girl has been seeking employment without success. She sought death and found it by the same means her friends had used. The next to go in the same way, according to Helen's story was one of the girls who had fallen a victim to a man's false friendship. With three of her companions dead, the three that remained worried constantly and when hard times came and employment was hard to find, two voluntarily followed their friends to the grave. That left Helen alone. Then a man came into her life. The man was represented to her as immensely wealthy, she said, and for a time she was happy. Then he suddenly started for Europe, she had nothing to live for after that she said, and decided to join her five friends in death.

Helen said her father is dead, but that her mother still lives at St. Paul. She refused to give her mother's address.

When it was found that the girl would
