

A SAD STORY.

MABEL DAVIDSON'S TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE IN DENVER.

Where She Sought Health—Her Property Absorbed and a Small Fortune Vanishes in a Few Months—A Suit for Ten Thousand Dollars Begun.

The very many readers of THE TELEGRAPH remember the charming fancy skater, Miss Mabel Davidson, who created this city a few years ago with her presence at Victoria rink and won the hearts of the thousands who witnessed her many graceful feats on the steel blades. All who were fortunate enough to see this pretty young lady performer were deeply grieved later to hear of her death, which occurred last fall at St. Paul, Minn. Miss Mabel Davidson was known throughout the world as the Queen of the Ice, and she richly deserved that title, as she had skated her way into the hearts of all lovers of the poetry of motion from her western home in Minneapolis to Paris.

She was born in Minneapolis and appeared first at the St. Paul winter carnival and afterwards toured the principal skating resorts of Canada and the United States, and very early won the esteem of all her audience by her graceful evolutions on the skates.

She was a very ambitious young lady and was very anxious to win laurels in Europe, and one day the manager of the greatest rink in the world, the famous Niagara rink in London, received a call from this plucky young lady who was seeking an engagement. "But he had never heard of her, how could he," etc., etc.

In a twinkling she had slipped on her dainty boots with their skates securely screwed on to them, and proceeded to astonish the manager of the rink with her graceful and artistic skating, and the result was that she got the engagement. It was not long before all London rang with the praise of the young American. She received a personal invitation from the Prince of Wales to skate for his guests at the Prince's Skating Club, and he sent her a personal gift in recognition of her wonderful ability.

After such a grand success as she made in London it was easy for her to secure engagements at fancy prices in any of the leading rinks of the continent, and at the magnificent Palais de Glace at Paris she was a regular exhibitor, for a period of eight weeks. Paris had seen all the best skaters in the world, but none could compare with the pretty daughter of Minneapolis.

While on the continent Miss Davidson contracted a severe cold, which finally resulted in consumption. After being attended by some of the best physicians on the continent, the once pretty, healthy and robust young lady left the continent for America, coming home to die.

Singularly sad is the story of this once happy girl after her arrival in America, and in January, 1898, began the saddest part of her story. At the solicitation of a woman, whose acquaintance she made in Baltimore, but who had removed to Denver, Miss Davidson went to the Colorado metropolis to see if the climate there would help her. A Mrs. Dean, a friend of her's from St. Paul, accompanied her, and did four or five weeks' residence with her, and she was very costy.

There were costly presents from acquaintances of both continents, a rich wardrobe that any lady might envy, including both street, ball-room and skating costumes, besides several hundred dollars worth of diamonds and a large sum of money.

Mrs. Dean left Mabel in Denver, with the young lady's supposed friends, and with the former was resident in one of the Denver churches, and was also engaged in the insurance business.

She stayed there for some weeks, and when told by her physician that she could not live more than three weeks she decided to return to her home in St. Paul, and was aided in so doing by a friend of the Davidson family, a Mr. L. N. Scott. On Miss Davidson's arrival in St. Paul she had with her one dress and some photographs in one trunk, together with a few odds and ends of no commercial value. All the rest of her belongings Miss Davidson claimed had passed into the possession of the people with whom she stayed—some of the money loaned, some under duress, and some she said by deliberate larceny.

BARON VON BUELOW

SAYS GERMANY WILL NOT ALLOW CURTAILMENT OF HER RIGHTS IN SAMOA.

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—The foreign minister then discussed the question of Samoa, saying that by the general act of 1889, the triple rule of Germany, Great Britain and the United States was established over those islands. If con-dominium was to be introduced, it would be to the detriment of the German and British interests. Since the act came into force, there had been no lack of friction between the representatives of the different powers, which was due to the disorderly character of the population. As early as 1891, a deep rooted ferment showed itself in Samoa, and in 1893 civil war broke out between the followers of Matalafa and the followers of Matalafa's brother, Matalafa. In consequence of the intervention of the German and British naval forces Matalafa was deposed, and a fresh insurrection broke out in 1894, which was ended after the German and British ships had intervened. In the overthrow of Matalafa last year the three consuls proposed that Matalafa be brought back and Matalafa concurred. The powers assented. At this juncture Matalafa died, but the three consuls declared that his death was no impediment to the recall of Matalafa, who was to be replaced by a successor to Matalafa. There also arose an opposition party who proclaimed a republic, and the German and British consuls refused to recognize the republic. Both parties appealed to the decision of the chief justice, who pronounced in favor of Matalafa. Open fighting then broke out, and the foreign minister then asserted, recognized the fact accomplished and the provisional government was formed from Matalafa's followers.

DIED IN THE FIRE.

SAD CASE OF SUFFERING AND DEATH AT ANTIGONISH.

ANTIGONISH, Feb. 28.—Last night about 12.30 fire broke out in the residence of David Fraser, Pleasant street. When assistance arrived the upper part of the house was in a mass of flames and smoke, and the stairway was burning severely. Both Mr and Mrs Fraser had been ill and it was with difficulty that they were rescued from the burning building.

Nancy McPherson, Mrs Fraser's sister, who slept up stairs, was suffocated by smoke, and was dead when taken out of her room by the firemen. Before the fireman arrived Frank McLean made a brave attempt to rescue Miss McPherson, but the stairway was all in flames, and he was driven back and burned severely about the head and hands. Miss McPherson was 58 years of age and had just recovered from a severe attack of grippe.

Miss McPherson, who has been in poor health lately, slept in a room adjoining the one where the fire originated. As soon as fire was discovered one of the inmates of the house rushed to her room, but found she had left her bed. A few minutes afterwards one of the firemen discovered her crouched in a corner of the room. When removed, she was found to be breathing, but as she attempted to escape from the room, but upon opening the door, the smoke having blinded her, she fell back, and being unable to find the door, she became asphyxiated. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a lighted candle having been left in the room.

VERY POLITE TRAMP.

Another Claw to Work Upon in the Ivory Boot; by Murder.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 27.—The discovery was made today on the morning after the North Saco murder a tramp killed at the residence of Augustus O. Clark, on Grove street, this city, and begged a pair of shoes to replace his own, which were badly worn. A pair of shoes was given him, and he started off with the boots under his arm, but a short distance from there he stopped, put on the shoes that had been given him, and threw his old ones away in a neighboring field.

Discarded shoes, which have since been picked up and handed over to the Saco authorities, are picked over, and tally with the measurements of the tracks that were found in the soft earth beside the body of Farmer Ivory Booth by North Saco, the morning after the murder.

The tramp is described as being of medium height, young, polite and not very shabbily dressed. He was given a breakfast that morning at the house of Mrs Harriet E. McLellan, a neighbor of Mr Clark. She, too, was impressed with his politeness, and concludes that he was not a very hard character.

HEART DISEASE.

SOME FACTS REGARDING THE RAPID INCREASE OF HEART TROUBLES.

Do Not Be Alarmed, But Look For The Cause. Heart trouble, at least among the Americans, are certainly increasing, and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion. Real organic disease is incurable, but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric. In another way, also the heart is affected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food. There is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action, hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Four digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart. The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food. This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach. Full sized package of these tablets sold by druggists at 50 cents. Little book on stomach troubles mailed free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

VARIOUS NOTES.

The Role of Centrif in Receiving Gifts. One important rule of politeness is often ignored by persons who are otherwise well bred. It concerns the reception of presents.

COURAGE DECORATION. Honor. The gift should be immediately examined, its merits praised and the giver thanked. That is the courteous return to make for the present.

FASHION'S CHANGES. Increasing Tendency Toward Tight and Changing Styles. The tendency toward clinging styles is so pronounced that there is a prospect of the return of the old sheath skirt.

YOUNG GIRL'S GOWN. The new is almost straight in front from the bust to the point of the bodice. This is not a graceful form, however, but is, on the contrary, so stiff and unyielding that it is doubtful if even the most infatuated followers of the mode will consent to be straitjacketed in such a manner.

CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.

Suitable and Pretty Clothing For Little People. Very little children, both boys and girls, are usually dressed in Mother Hubbard gowns, as this style allows perfect freedom of movement.

GIRL'S CORSET. The same form is used for cloaks, which are composed of plush, melleasse, velvet, cloth or eider down, or of the same material and color as the frock, but heavily lined.

COSTUME BALLS. Fancy Dress Entertainments of Various Kinds. Now is the season of fancy balls, when hostesses vie with each other in planning brilliant entertainments.

FANCY COSTUME. The character chosen. At a dinner the upper part of the figure is the only part in evidence, and the guests are often very ingenious in contriving to represent recognizably by the head alone some historical, romantic or allegorical character.

STREET COSTUMES.

Fur, Velvet and Cloth For Out of Door Gowns. Fur being more and more fashionable, many of the most elegant gowns are largely composed of it, or at least have fur trimming.

PRINCESS GOWN. Gown and coat of the same gossamer or tulle wrap—is of the same gossamer or tulle wrap—is of the same gossamer or tulle wrap—is of the same gossamer or tulle wrap.

VARIOUS NOTES. Fashionable Flannel Shirt Waists and Fine Underwear. The increasing favor enjoyed by flannel shirt waists has been the means of the production of some very attractive styles in French flannels.

EVENING GOWN. Use should be lined with thin flannel or flannelette or should be worn over a warm underpetticoat. Petticoats for wear with ball gowns are of exceedingly light material and are most frequently trimmed with mousseline de soie with insertions of silk or satin.

DAINGEROUS PLANTS.

WELL-KNOWN COMMON PLANTS THAT ARE POISONOUS.

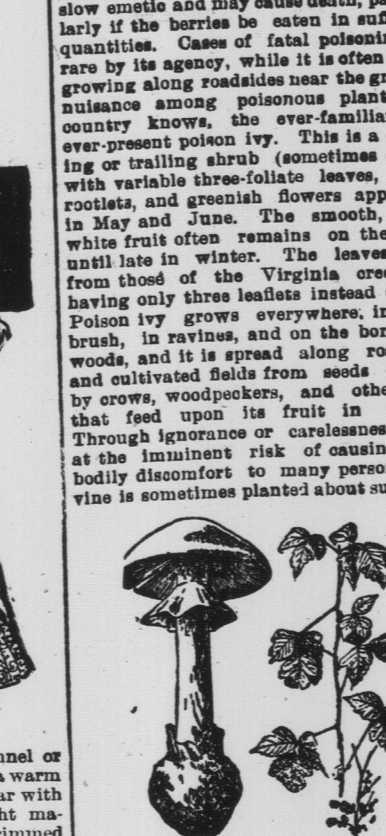

The list of a recent Bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture is so far as it concerns the Dominion of Canada—Six Illustrations of These to Be Avoided.

Thirty of the most common to North America of the poisonous plants deadly or annoying to animals and man have been described and illustrated in a recent bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture. As the bulletin covers the whole country only a few of the plants are of interest to those dwelling in Canada.

POKE WOOD. These features are well pronounced as a rule, but sometimes it requires some searching to find the cup. The fyananilla grows in pine and oak forests and hence is thus distinguished from the common meadow mushroom.

VARIOUS NOTES. The increasing favor enjoyed by flannel shirt waists has been the means of the production of some very attractive styles in French flannels.

DEATH-CUP. POISON IVY. The symptoms in man are such as are due to a general and gradual weakening of muscular power. The power of sight is often lost, but the mind usually remains clear until death ensues, as it soon does from the gradual paralysis of the lungs.

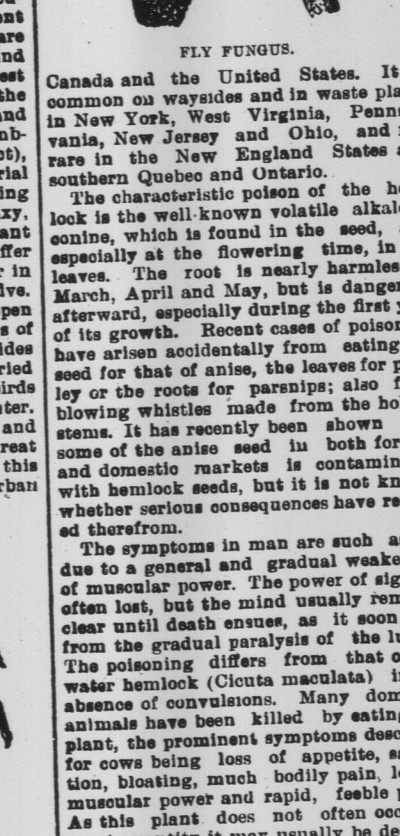

THE FARMERS' MARKET.

Prof. Robertson, in a Recent Toronto Lecture, Holds the Extension Work Right Along in Novel Fashion. Fully 800 women met in the theatre of the Normal School, Toronto, the other day to hear Prof. Robertson of Ottawa lecture on "Food."

Water was the vehicle of the body for carrying foods around. Albuminoids, fats, carbohydrates and minerals composed the body, and foods containing these should be used. Food must contain a sufficient proportion of albuminoids, which in a body weighing 145 pounds made up 90 pounds.

WATER HEMLOCK. POISON HEMLOCK. In practice it is not desirable to use strong alcohol, which is apt to be too irritating to a sensitive surface, but a weaker grade of from 50 to 75 per cent, is recommended.

Read Drainage That Drains. One authority on the subject of road draining claims that in prairie soil a good road can be obtained for 11 months in the year by simply putting in a good system of tile drainage.
