Discrepancies in McMullen's Statement Pointed Out-An Opposition Dodge to Secure an Adverse Vote without Investigation-Cabinet Ministers Confident of Being Able to Disprove the Charges-A

There are no new developments repecting the Pacific Railway. The Citizen has an editorial commenting on Mc-Mullen's letter, shewing numerous inconsistencies, that no statement is made of nts what agreement was made between the Gov't and Company, and that McMullen's charges are based entirely on what Sir Hugh told him. It urges a full investigation, shows that the Government has not uttered a word in its own defence, believes the charges cannot be substantrial to proceed immediately.

Prominent politicians to day express have been in every possible particular; the opinion that McMullen is acting under line tructions from the Opposition. Sir as the great object is concerned—the successful immigration and placement on the forest-land of hearly one hundred families, who are pleased with their change, think favorably of their circumstances, are doing their work well, and have brought house and land, with recently a wild appearance, into a wonderfully 'home-like" position. A close and careful examiner of these new places in the wood would be surprised to see not only buckwheat, oats, potatoes, turnips and wheat growing nicely around the new log houses; but a considerable stock already collected of cows and calves and other animals common in rural districts; and also little spots marked or railed off as the incliniant garden with Scotch roses. the incipient garden with Scotch roses and flowers, with annuals and perennials, and little plants that may live for outlet to the sea for the greater part of the province, and for the far west during winter. I was present by what might be termed an accident of travelling on Saturday, the 12th, at an Orange festival. I had met some of the parties previously who live on the opposite bank of our great river. They are most respectable representatives of Ulster and Munster feeling, and brought to my mind old 12ths of July in that part of Ireland. I have already referred to the attachment of many of the English and Irish farmers and peasantry to flowers, and I could not avoid the remembrances that even the strength of old semi-political and semi-religious feeling had not conquered—the too prevalent neglect of flowers in New Brunswick. Human being never witnessed in Ulster a celebration of the 12th July without a grand collection of Orange lilies, and they are very pretty flowers although emblematically hateful to one portion of the community. The party assembled at this point on the 12th had apparantly suffered nothing in their temporal circumstances by the emigration of the meselves on their predecessors. Formal Demand on the British Government for the Release of the Gordon Kidnappers.

OTTAWA, July 19. apparantly suffered nothing in their temporal circumstances by the emigration of themselves or their predecessors. Better farmers are seldom met than those of Antrim, Down, Armagh, and Derry, and other counties of Ulster, and in that gathering were present men who illustrate in their history the probability that industry in this Province has its reward. I had an excellent reason for declining an invitation to remain on the right bank of the river on account of the celebration on the left, the marriage of Miss Kilburn, Is the opinion that McMullen is acting under instructions from the Opposition. Sir John having refused allowing Americans control of the road, McMullen seeks to ruin the Government. The Opposition hope by piblishing the letters to create a strong feeling, and, when the House as strong feeling, and, when the House meets, bring on an adverse vote before an investigation can be had.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

I sent to you one statement respecting the progress of this new Settlement, at the period when I considered matters in an established position, which must have gone astray; and I have little now to say on the subject that is not pleasant so far as the great object is concerned—the successful immigration and placement on the consideration and placement on the constant placement of the colony, gave away the b ment as the most ample reason for its ex tension, and he describes the letters in question as the most completely spoiled prediction that he ever read.

HOW THE COLLEGE REGATTA WAS BUN GLED-THE ACTUAL WINNERS OF THE MANCHESTER, RACE CHEATED OUT OF THE HONORS. (From the Bangor Commercial.)
NEW YORK, July 19.

John C Babcock, umpire of the late regatta at Springfield, publishes the fol-

It is proper that the public should be informed of certain facts concerning the late college regatta at Springfield which will explain the confusion that resulted in determining the actual winners. The score or finishing line instead of being located at right angles with the river bank, as it should have been, was, by carelessness or stupidity on the part of those who located it, placed diagonally, the eastern end of the line being one hundred and fifty yards lower down the river than the westerly end where the Judges than the westerly end where the Judges were requested by the umpire to station themselves. By this arrangement all boats arriving at the easterly end of the line, which was some 2,000 feet long, rowed a proportionally longer course than those coming on the westerly shore. Had the line been located properly at right angles with the course of the boats the result of the race would have been entirely different, and the race decided on the merits of the crews instead of the chance in the position of crossing the the merits of the crews instead of the chance in the position of crossing the line, no two points of which were equally distant from the start.

A diagram showing this blunder on the part of the committee locating the finish will explain the fact that certain boats were actual winners that are obliged to have second places assigned. It is a result to be regretted that a race so superbly conducted by the contestants had such bad management. Without wishing to detract anything from the honor done the victors it is but fair to the other competitors that the facts of the case be publicly and officially announced. In justice to myself I would add that the staking-out of the course or changing the same was wholly with the regatta committee, and not within the province of the umpire who supposed it to be corrected. the umpire who supposed it to be correct. These reports of the eleven Judge elected to serve at the scorce will be re-ceived in a few days and the positions of the seven boats, not placed, will then be Special to the News.

Sir Francis Hincks' Denial of McMul-

len's Charges. OTTAWA, July 19. The Toronto Mail contains a communication from Sir Francis Hineks, who first deals with the part of the narrative "referring to himself." He admits that he did not remember all that transpired at the interview with Mr. McMullen and his friends in Ottawa in July, 1871. He admits that he was most anxious that negotiations should fall into other hands than those of McMullen & Co. He believes that he requested Sir Hugh to communicate with the Americans, and never gave any address to Sir Hugh; but on his return from New York, he gave Sir Hugh Allan a list of names. He says he has no recollection of holding any private conversation with McMullen, and cannot believe it possible that he could have discussed with him the views of Sir George E. Cartier. He declares that he never made any authorized communication to Sir Hugh Allan regarding advertising for tenders. He might have talked of advertising as a mode of ascertaining the terms of capitalists. He cannot recollect what passed at those conversations regarding money transactions. But he rays: "I solemnly declare that I never asked and never obtained, either by "loan or gift, any sum of money from Sir "Hugh Allan or from any other person "in his behalf, or from any other person "in his behalf, or from any other person "in his necessaries and the patient of the p The Toronto Mail contains a comm

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

For Purifying the Blood, nothing has ever been offered which can compare with this Extract of Sarsaparilla. It is found a great promoter of health, when taken in the spring, to expel the humors that rankle in the system at this season of the year. Many complaints have their origin in the spring, and in the causes above mentioned, for which no better remedy has ever been devised. By its use multitudes can spare themselves from the endurance of foul eruptions and ulcerous sores, through which the system strives to rid itself of corruptions, if not assisted to do this through the natural channels of the body by an alterative medicine. Cleanse out the viriated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it is obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tall you when. Even where no particular disorder is felt, people enjoy better hralth, and live longer, tor cleansing the blood. Keep the blood healthy, and all is well; but with this pabulum of life disordered, there can be no lasting health. Prepared by Practical and Analytical Chemists,

At school he had the credit of being "the best scholar in his class." He is most unnaturally cool and not in the least alarmed by the predicament in which he finds himself. During his examination, which he appeared to find somewhat wearisome, he held The Fireside Compation in his hand, and occasionally solaced himself by reading it. He also read other newspapers, and now and then cut slips from them relating to his case, one of which he handed to a person near him to read. There is something tascinating in the spectacle of such a small assassin. We figure him like a short fiend in a fairy tale. Considered calmly and apart from the emotions which such a case naturally excites, the murder seems to have been merely the result of a childish rage venting itself with the strength of ten years opposed to the weakness and helplessfies of three. Legally, of course, there can be no homicide in the affair, the older boy not having attained the age of discretion, and being clearly irresponsible for such an act. To be sure, his nusual precocity somewhat modifies 'Etang.
