Quebec, Sept. 29 .- The train with the rescued passengers of the steamship Scotsman on board arrived at 7:05 p.m., and has just left again. The cabin passengers are being carried sight through to Montreal, while the tion, South Quebec. The scene as the train drew in was a striking one. The whole of the large platform was women and children. As the string of carriages with their living freight came in a cheer rose from hundreds of throats, while from every window peered anxious faces. The train consisted of eight coaches, including a dining car, which was greatly appre-

QUEER COSTUMES.

The costume of the majority were Strange combinations, many of them compromises between men's and women's garments. The women, as a rule, wore handkerchiefs on their heads, and the men cloth caps. Refined cabin passengers were so dressed that they could easily be mistaken for immigrants or seafaring men. As the passengers disembarked from the train they were speedily surrounded by eager questioners, and the difficulty of obtaining information was very great.

The ship's doctor and a third officer refused to talk at all. Both went through to Montreal. All of the passengers confirm the stories of

He was among the first to receive the intelligence of the wreck and the first to inform them of the mishap. Among the others at the Chateau were Mr. Hyman, of London, and Mr. Dowaker, of Montreal, who were waiting to meet their daughter and niece respectively; Mr. A. W. Stevenson, of Montreal, his Second cabin-Mrs. Dechene, of Port Hope, Ont.; Mrs. R. Weavers, New York; Mrs. Talbot, England; Mrs. Scott, Port Arthur, Ont.; Mrs. Skeltown and an infant of Mrs. Roberts. Mrs. Dwight and Miss Dwight, of Toronto, were saved. The passengers lost all their luggage.

THE DISASTER. The passengers tell a harrowing tale. According to it the magnificent steamer, the pride of the Dominion Steamship Company's St. Lawrence fleet, was proceeding on her way, when between 2 and 3 o'clock on the morning of Friday last, while in a dense fog. a whistle was heard. Capt. Skrimpshire says, according to the story, that he concluded it was that of another steamer, and altered his course accordingly. A few minutes later there was an awful crash, and the vessel was upon the rocks. Formerly the fog signal on the end of the island was a gun, but a short time ago a whistle substituted, and this was the whistle that was heard.

CHANGE IN SIGNALS. The captain, it is reported, asserts that he was never notified of the

Col. Caldwell lives at Syracuse, N. Y., and tells of his remarkable experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the following letter:

For the good of the community I volunteer this testimonial to the won-derful value of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pilis. I used them for nearly one year for urinary troubles, kidney aliments, torpid liver and constipation. I never before met with such a mild and efficacious laxative. change, and so it was that the disaster occurred. At once the vessel began to fill, and then listed and threatened to back off into the sea, while the bewildered and thoroughly terrified passengers rushed on deck in their night dresses. The officers has tened to reassure them to the best of the courage displayed by the women passengers. They behaved nobly. It is hard to say what was the cause of the accident but it was evident to all while the bewildered and thoroughly terrified passengers rushed on deck in their night dresses. The officers hastened to reassure them to the best of their ability, but if all that is told is true, they were not by any means seconded in these efforts by some of the crew who it is stated broke into the crew, who, it is stated, broke into the store rooms, etc., in search of liquor and valuables, and even rifled the cabins and robbed the passengers Others say that these statements are megnified, but if they are true it is probably due to the fact that the men of the stokers' union are on strike, and riff-raff had to be engaged in their

Position of the Steamer Unknown FIRST LIFEBOAT WAS SWAMPED. The boats were at once lowered, and by the captain's orders none but women and children were allowed in the first boat; but hardly had it reached the water when it was swamped, drowning those whose names appear above. The other boats were got away more suc-cessfully, and the greater part of the passengers reached land in safety, but scant of wearing apparel, and without provisions. They had to walk a distance variously estimated at from 8 to 16 miles to reach the lighthouse, which was the nearest point where anything could be procured. At this time it was bitterly cold and wet. As a result, it is said, five persons perished of expos-ure on the island.

On arriving at Rimouski all the rescued passengers, with the exception of one or two who could not even borrow sufficient clothing, disembarked. It is also stated that pirates attacked the ship, but some of the officers are standing by her, and a warship was also dispatched from Newfoundland to keep off intruders. The story of pirates is denied by the passengers. VALUE OF THE VESSEL. At present the possible loss is a mere matter of speculation, but as far as the Scotsman herself is concerned, if she goes to pieces it will mean not less than $750,000. She was built originally at a cost of $500,000, but since she was floated $250,000 extra had been spent in fitting her for the place she held on the Dominion Line. The cargo was a most valuable one, but it would be absurd to guess at its value. It is admitted that it is the largest that sailed for this port during the present sea-

"We were then lowered down on to the rocks, and remained there till Monday. Accompanied by Mr. Matthews, R. N. Green and Miss Trecell, I started for the lighthouse on Monday morning. It took us 71/2 hours to reach the lighthouse. The conduct of some of the crew while we were on the rocks was disgraceful. They were drunk and singing ribald songs. MR. EMERSON'S STORY.

Mr. Emerson, who was representing the firm of Messrs. Christy & Co., the weil known hatters, of London, was a assenger on board the Scotsman. According to his story the vessel struck at 2:30 on Friday morning, the 22nd. All the passengers were in bed. There was a dense fog at the time, and the first warning the passengers had was when the vessel struck the rock. There was a crash and a heavy crushing sound as the ship piled head on the rocks. In a moment all was confusion. Passengers crowded on deck, partly dressed. There was a high running sea at the time, and the ship's officers, fearing she would slip from the rock onto which she had struck and into deep water, had the boats lowered. The women and children were lowered into the boats with great difficulty. One of the boats foundered after it had been filled with women and children. It is said by those who were in the boat that the plug was out and the boat filled in with water, and it was through this accident that the loss of life occurred. FOUR BOATS LOWERED.

Four boats in all were lowered, and each was crowded with women and children. They put out to sea and remained as near the wreck as possible until daylight. Passengers in the meantime were lowered to the rocks by means of ropes. By Saturday noon all the passengers had reached The women and children were carried over the wrecked vessel to the rocks. But the Boers Are Not Unlikely to Precipitate a Conflict.

Alleged New Proposals Submitted by Mr. Chamberlain.

Active Movements of British Forces-Intense Excitement Prevalent in the Transvaal.

London, Saturday, Sept. 30.-In a few words the position, as left by yesterday's cabinet council, is that President Kruger has been given another breathing spell, and that another council will be called next week, probably Tuesday, to give final consent to the dispaten which Lord Salisbury and Mr. Chamberlain are engaged in drafting, and which will formulate the British demands. The government is actively chartering transport vessels in every direction. The exigencies of the transports service are likely to necessitate the continued p eacemeal embarkation

KRUGER ADVISED. A London friend of President Kruger has cabled, advising nim to accept the British proposals, as there is no desire on the part of England to take away Boer independence, and a fairure to reply will mean war. To this President Kruger replied: "It is impossible to act on the lines desired without losing independence."

It is stated, with some show of authority, that from the dispatches received they recommend further com-munoatons with Sir Alfred Milner and the reassembling of the cabinet next Tuesday, before the new proposal of the British Government can be definitely settled.

PROBABILITIES.

London, Sept. 29.—Indications this evening lead to the belief that in view of the cabinet meeting the Boers will probably commit an overt act, which will bring on hostilities before the assembling of parliament. All the latest dispatches from the Transvaal show the liveliest activity on the part of the burghers. Telegrams from Pretoria announce that artillery is being rapidly loaded at the station for the front, and military trains have preference on

FRESH DEMANDS. The Pall Mall Gazette says it understands that Mr. Chamberlain submitted a dispatch to the cabinet council, containing the following demands on the

from the executive and its independence of the Volksraad. 4. The abolition of the dynamite monopoly. 5. The removal of the fort dominating Johannesburg, though the defences at Pretoria may remain.
6. The teaching of the English language in the schools. ANOTHER DISPATCH.

An official of the foreign office this evening told a representative of the Associated Press that the cabinet, in the absence of the Transvaal reply, had agreed to draft a dispatch, formulating its own proposals, which will be communicated to the Transvaal Government in a few days. Parliament will be called shortly to consider the situation. The government declines to furnish exact information at present regarding the military movements.

AT JOHANNESBURG.

Johannesburg, Sept. 29.-There is great excitement here owing to orders to the commandos to take the field Rumors are current this morning that the Boers will take the initiative on Monday on the border east and west of Charlestown.

The Johannesburg Leader says: "We believe that the Transvaal Government is framing an answer to the charges contained in Mr. Chamberlain's second dispatch. A formal note will then be presented to England, stating that the Transvaal is willing to await imperial suggestions, but that a further landing of troops will be considered an intrusion, leaving the Transvaal free to take steps to defend its independence

A dispatch from Glencoe, Natal, says: Telegraphic communication between here and the Transvaal is temporarly interrupted. This is supposed to have been caused by a thunderstorm.

London Township Fair Scores the Usual Success.

Every Department of the Show Was Up to Standard.

Good Music and Good Sports-Results of the Races-The Prize-List.

London Township Fair was held at Ilderton yesterday, and was a decided success. About 1,500 people were present. The Melbourne Brass Band rendered a capital programme of music, which was greatly enjoyed by the crowds. The weather was cloudy in the morning, with a strong northwest wind, and very cold; but by noon the clouds cleared away. The live stock was a fine lot of animals. The poultry show was above the average in quantity and quality. The dairy, horticultural, agricultural, ladies' work and fine art exhibits were very good. Great interest was taken in the races. The free-for-all and farmers' trot were both weil contested. As usual there were a number of fakirs on the grounds. Numerous Londoners patronized the fair, but no doubt the cold northwest wind prevented a number from going. Take it all around, the fair was a success.

LIFE SAVED .- Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a triai, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good.

London, Saturday, Sept. 30.

The Dewey Celebration. The Dewey enthusiasm shows a tendency to slop over, but the spirit of the effair is praiseworthy, and there is no occasion for Canadians or others to ridbecause our neighbors are a trifle ebullient. The celebration is not an outburst of martial or jingo senwhich has been somewhat squelched of late by events in the Phil-Ippines, but is purely personal, and is rooted in the hero-worship inherent in human nature. Without doubt Dewey is the principal figure thrown up by the war. It produced a number of pasteboard heroes, like Hobson, who crumpled at the touch of popular adulation, but Dewey, since he burst into fame, has kept an even keel, amid a hurricane of acclaim that would have swamped a man with less ballast. He seems to have a good deal of the simof character often allied with true heroism, which saves him from having too sublime a sense of his own worth and consequence. Britishers are not apt to forget his outspoken admiration of Great Britain and British polfcy, and his gratitude for the conduct of the British naval officers at a critiral juncture in the Bay of Manila. His achievement in sinking a fleet of Spanwarships inferior to his own was not remarkable, taken in itself, but his night sortie into a fortified bay was splendid feat of intrepid seamanship, and deserves a place in history. He has since conducted himself with the greatest tact and modesty, and if he can survive the present ordeal without cranial enlargement he will prove himself to be made of true heroic stuff, and will deserve the honors crowded upon him by his countrymen. The latter are not discriminating enough in their heroworship, and have set up some pretty shabby idols, but the popular instinct has evidently not erred in giving the supreme laurels to Dewey.

returned greatly benefited in health, needing only a little time to become restored to the pink of condition. He had hardly arrived on this of journals politically opposed to him began with one consent to assail him. uttered. These attacks may be taken is a man of keen perceptions and great retary for Finland will be abolished. executive ability. His ambition is to see Canada take a leading part on the front street of the world. He is not afraid of expenditures that can show their object to be the development of the practically unlimited resources of this great Dominion. It is true that It is possible to spend money in excess of prudence, but no one can say that the expenditures on public works, past, present, or prospective, since the Laurier Government came into power, are not justified abundantly. What has been already done to develop our natural resources by means of the fostering care of a progressive Government may be measured by the leaps and bounds in Canadian trade, especially in the products which rely on the cold storage system introduced by the Minister of Agriculture. No one has taken a larger, or, as we believe events will show, a wiser view of the necessity of striking the iron while hot at a time when through the Jubilee celebration Canada attracted the attention of the world to a degree never known before. Mr. Tarte has no cause to be disturbed by abuse or misrepresentation, but will continue to devote his great energies to the work of building up Canadian prestige and Canadian commercial progress, especially in connection with the problem of transportation, in which he is so deeply inter-

The Imperial Government have hinted that ther can do without Canadian troops in the Transvaal. The blow will almost kill Major Sam Hughes.

The Disaster

The villainies attending the wreck of the Scoteman are painfully shocking to British people, who have justly taken pride in the history of British naval disasters, which is bright with deeds of disciplined heroism. If resaddle British seamanship with the dastardiy conduct of some of the Scotsman's crew. Owing to the seamen's strike in England, a green crew, who proved to be riff-raff, were taken when the boat struck wretches broke through all restraints of discipline, and took advantage of the panic to raid the liquor supply and loot the passengers' belongings. As a usual thing, it is a very inferior class of men who will stoop to take strikers' places, and more than one of the steamship companies have found this out since the present trouble began. With a true British crew on board the passengers of the Scotsman would have had a different tale to tell.

Important to Canada.

Russia has appointed M. Von Plehwe, member of the Russian Imperial Council, to be acting Secretary of State for

Finland, is likely to prove a matter of great importance to Canada, as it may divert 100,000 or more of the best type of settlers to our vacant lands in the Northwest and British Columbia. The appointment is regarded as not only a sign that the recent aims of Russian policy towards Finland will be pursued in the same sense as before, since M. Von Plehwe is known to be heart and soul in the movement for the thorough Russianizing of Finland, but it also constitutes a new breach of the fundamental laws of the Grand Duchy, which provides that all officials and functionaries of Finland shall be Finnish citizens. The London Times' correspondent reminds us that it is in conformity with this principle that Alexander I. prescribed, in a rescript dated Nov. 6, 1811, that "the Secretary of State will be graciously appointed by us from among the inhabitants of Finland." In the administration of that country there is only one Russian official, viz., the Governor-General The Minister of Public Works, who in a way represents the interests Hon. J. I. Tarte, Minister of Public of Russia in the Grand Duchy. On Works, who went to Europe, where he the other hand, the Secretary of State underwent a critical surgical operation, for Finland is the only Finnish authoraccess to the monarch's person, and who can watch over the interests of the country. If the Secretary of State side of the Atlantic before a number in the future is to be a Russian, the Finlanders cannot effectively lay their views and wants before their Grand the Montreal Star going so far as to Duke. This innovation thus means put words in his mouth which he never a very serious blow to the rights of Finland. It is true that up as the Opposition's tribute to Mr. to 1811 Count Sperainsky, who Tarte's importance and strength. Our was a Russian, held the office of contemporaries are no doubt right. Mr. Secretary of State for Finland, but this Tarte is a strong man, not alone in was before the final settlement of the his native Province of Quebec, but he affairs of Finland, after the cession to has grown in the estimation of every Russia. M. Von Plehwe, it is noted. part of the Dominion. This fact seems has not been actually appointed Secrenot to have been lost on his opponents, tary of State, but only acting secrewho are illustrating the remark made tary. This may possibly be due to the by Sir John Macdonald with reference circumstance that he is still to remain to attacks on himself, that one always in his office as member of the Imperial sees the greatest number of sticks Council of Russia, but it also may sigunder the best apple tree. Mr. Tarte nify that the office of a separate sec-

> In these developments there is much that must have an interest to us in Canada. What is now occurring tends but to aggravate the unsatisfactory conditions under which the frugal, industrious people of Finland have for years lived. That matters have reached a crisis was proved the other day when several leaders of the people arrived in this country to examine the conditions and decide whether they were such as to warrant the wholesale immigration of the Finlanders to Canada. The delegates first inspectthe unsettled lands of Newfoundland and then proceeded to the Northwest. There they were conducted through the prairies and were shown millions of acres of fertile soil, only waiting for the hardy settler to occupy it. It did not take the delegates long to decide that Canada was the land for their people, and after having chosen several townships, in the vicinity of Red Deer, N. W. T., they started back to announce the success of their mission, and in the event of Czar failing to keep the compact under which the country became a part of the Russian Empire, to inaugurate a system of wholesale immigration to Canada. Though we must all sympathize with a patriotic and sturdily independent race in their endeavor to maintain what are their rights as free men, it is satisfactory to know that the fruits of their oppression will be a desirable addition to our populaand the business hitherto conducted there be transferred to the Imperial

Council of Russia.

The Finlanders are a well-to-de race. They have shown, in Canada to a limited extent, and in the United speaking people. Indeed, the second generation is as thoroughly Ameriports be true, it would be unfair to canized as any race could well be. If any person has misgivings in this regard let him visit the localities settled by Finlanders 25 or 30 years ago in Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota, Indeed, it seems natural for the races of the northwestern part of the European continent to coalesce with their neighbors from the British Isies. When they do so they are but repeating history. Very few of us whose forefathers came originally from the eastern seaboard of the British Isles are without the blood of the Norsemen. On this continent, we are repeating the process by means of which the race was built up that made Britain mistress of the seas and a controlling force on numerous continents. So Bad that Water Would Ooze Out and Drop on the Floor. Hands Full of Water Blisters. Doctor Could Not Relieve. First Application of CUTICURA Stopped Itching and Induced Sleep. Cured in One Month.

I had eczema on my hands so bad that when I shat them, the matter would coze cut and drop on the floor. My hands were full of water blistors of a white color. I was under the care of a doctor for about a month, but he did me no good. was advised to try CUTICURA remedies, and did so, and it was wonderful what effect they had. The first application stepped that dreadful stching. I slept at once, was cured in four weeks.

There is a popular delusion that literary men are good for nothing except their own particular trade-a silly theory which there is an army of witnesses to confute. If Conan Doyle's popularity as a novelist were to desert him tomorrow he could always revert to his original profession. Before he created Sherlock Holmes Dr. Conan Doyle had an excellent medical practice at Southsea, and is still young enough to find fame and fortune as an eye specialist if by any chance he should grow tired of writing stories.

Women Delegates. [Union Observer.]

While the great Methodist Church has been discussing and voting with earnestness and solemnity as to whether it is the proper thing for women to sit in the general conference, women have been quietly taking their seats in the International Council of Congregational Churches without argument or comment. At the recent meeting of that body in Boston, there were eight women delegates, three from the United States, four from Engand and one from Canada. According to the year book of the Congregational Churches of this country there are 24 ordained women preachers in that denomination.

HIGH CHURCH PARTY DEFEATED

Last Year's Standing Committee, of New York P. E. Diocese Was Re-elected.

New York, Sept. 19 .- The second day's session of the annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the diocese of New York was called to order in the Church of the Incarnation by Bishop Potter. There was a contest over the election of the diocesan's standing committee, the so-called high church party opposing the re-election of last year's committee because it had presented Rev. Dr. Briggs for ordination to the priesthood. The opposition ticket was composed of Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, Rev. Dr. Brown, Rev. Dr. Richey, Rev. Dr. Ferguson, Chief Justice A. B. Parker, Prof. Howard Van Amringe, William Bispham and Capt. A. T. Mahan.

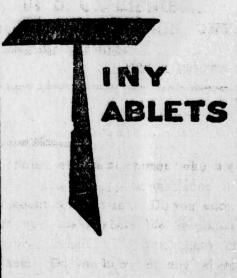

The old committee, consisting of Rev. Dr. Dix, Rev. Dr. Applegate, Rev. Dr. Harris, Rev. Dr. Shipman, Geo. Mac-Culloch, D. Miller, William Zane, H. C. Vonpost and George Zabriski, was also renominated.

While the tellers were at work on the vote, Col. Wm. Jay was elected a trustee of the episcopal fund, to succeed Cornelius Vanderbilt. The vote on the standing committee resulted in the re-election of the old committee, thus sustaining Bishop Pot-

London, Sept. 18th, 1899.

Advertiser Printing Company, London, Ont.: Dear Sirs,-I wish to thank you for the most gratifying returns given me through the advertising placed in The Daily and Weekly Advertiser this month. I offered special inducements to visitors for the recent Western Fair, and the results exceeded any idea of what I would reap

To The Advertiser alone is credit due, for the trade brought me, as used no other newspapers, nor any other means of publicity, outside of your mediums.

Not alone was my trade direct to customers, many of whom brought the advertisement chipped from your paper, but I received a large number of mail orders, proving conclusively that the circulation of The Daily and Weekly Advertiser covers the territory completely. It was the best Fair trade ever done by me, and I hearthly extend you my thanks for controlling such a vast field with such admirable mediums as The Daily THOMAS GILLEAN. and Weekly Advertiser.

TO STATE OF STREET Local Market.

London, Saturday, Sept. 30. Seldom have the new butchers' pavilion and the new produce market-house been more appreciated by sellers and buyers than they were this morning. All goods not under shelter were covered with a wet blanket of snow, and the owners stood by shivering in two or three inches of slush. In the basket market the scene was a pleasing contrast. Each side of the building was lined with women offering butter, eggs and poultry for sale to a continuous throng of buyers. Considering the disagreeable weather the attendance at the market today was very fair. The meat supply was much greater than the demand, and lamb dropped in price. Poultry offerings were unusually large and a decline in price there was also noticeable. Butter and eggs remained

American Markets. CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—September trading was prominent in all the grain markets today, and prices covered a remarkably wide range. Heavy covering by shorts in corn advanced September nearly 2 cents, but closed at %c decline. September wheat broke 2c to 214c on liberal offerings. December closed at 1%c to 1%c lower. Oats closed at %c lower for September, and a shade lower for December. The excitement in the New Orleans cotton market caused free covering by shorts early in the day. Provisions closed unchanged to 5g lower. An increase of stock at Minneapolis and Duluth indicated a good increase in the visible supply next week, which was a factor toward the end. Minneapolis and Dujuth receipts were 869 cars, against 948 ears last week, and 1,266 a year ago. Chicago receipts were 161 cars, one of contract grade. Total primary receipts were 974,000 bushels, compared with 1,542,000 bushels a year

BRIGHTON, Ont., Sept. 28.—At the Brighton cheese board today ten fac-tories boarded 845 boxes of cheese, 785 white and 60 colored, mostly September; 11%c was offered; no sales. Buyers present: Whitton, Thompson and Brower and Bird. Next meeting on WINCHESTER, Sept. 29.-At meeting of the cheese board here to-day 610 boxes were registered, 405 col-ored and 205 white; the price offered for both was 114c, at which figure 140 were sold to J. Fault; another lot was sold on the street at 11½c to C. H. Wood, representing Lovell & Chyst-mas. The one other buyer present was A. A. Logan.

PERTH, Ont., Sept. 29.—On account of the wet waether today business was not so good at the cheese market, only 1,074 boxes were offered, all white and September make; Fowler secured 700 boxes, Scott 339 and Bissell 35; all cheese was sold at 111/2c.

SHELBOURNE, Sept. 29.—At the cheese board here today, five factories boarded 720 boxes, all September make; 114c and 114c offered; no sales, salesmen holding for 12c.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29—Twenty factories were all that the Ottawa cheese board held today. The dealers seemed to have been affected by the wet weather. too, for they did not seem to be at all anxious to sell, at least for 11e; this was half a cent drop on the price paid last week, and as a result not half of the 1,007 cheese boarded were disposed of. The bidding started at 11c, and remained. The buyers would not put up the price, claiming they had more cheese than they wanted. The total boardings were 591 white nad 416 col-

KEMPTVILLE, Ont., Sept. 29 .- Nine hundred boxes were registered at to-day's cheese market, but only about one-third of that number changed hands. The price was 111/2c.

SOUTH FINCH, Ont., Sept. 29.—Regular meeting of the South Finch cheese board. Owing to the downfall of rain several factorymen did not turn up. Number of cheese boarded, 530 white and 50 colored; price offered, 11c; none sold.

OF THE MAD DOG

George Mills, of Nissouri, Leaves for the Pasteur Institute.

Thamesford has a fresh sensation in connection with the mad dog scare that BILITY. excited the community a few weeks

Dr. McWilliam, of Thamesford, yesterday received a report from Dr. Bryce, Toronto, on the analysis of a cow, that was bitten by the supposedly mad dog. The report states that the cow's brain shows unmistakable signs of rabies. On Sept. 10, Mr. George Mills, of con. 10, Nissouri, was bitten by the same animal, and has been awaiting Dr. Bryce's report with the greatest anxiety. Upon learning the nature of the report yesterday, Mr. Mills left

The entire performance is one of continued interest.

A New Appointment.

The Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada, whose head office is ing to the rapid extension of its busi- suicide. ness in Western Ontario, to make a central office at London, and has appointed as its resident manager Mr. George R. Hamilton, formerly the company's inspector. The company's offices are in the Huron and Eric Loan and Savings Company's Building. Mr. Hamilton is to be congratulated upon securing the appointment, and the company upon obtaining such an able representative.

The business of the Imperial, of which the Hon. Sir Oliver Mowat is president, and among whose directors are the Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the Hon. William Harty, Dr. Eccles, of this city, etc., has been rapidly developing. During the year 1898 it wrote a volume of business considerably exceeding $3,000,000, a record surpassed by only three out of the 33 life companies operating in Canada. One policy issued last year by the company was for $100, 000, secured by a single premium of $50,000, which was paid in cash. Probably in no small degree is the success of the Imperial Life due to the strong financial basis upon which the company commenced and is now operating. Its aim from the commence-ment has been to make policyholders' security first and paramount, and this would appear to have been accom-plished probably to a greater extent by the Imperial than by any other company. Its reserves in respect to its policies on insurance are based upon 3 per cent interest, a basis more con-servative than that of any other Canadian life company, while its Dominion government deposit, for the security of policyholders, is several times greater than that of any other Canadian life company.

With such favorable prospects and such an excellent institution to repre sent, Mr. Hamilton's career in Western Ontario will be exceedingly bright, and will be watched with much interest. **

But Mr. Bullitude, though he longed for peace and queetness, dreaded doing saying anything to favor the impression and he was the schoolboy he unluckily appeared to be, and he had not skill and tact enough to dissemble and assume a familiar, genial tone of equality with these rough boys.

Mr. Bultitude submitted to be kissed with some reluctance. He was a scrue pulously proper and correct old gentleman, and inwardly hoped that Dri Grimstone might never hear of ".
Mrs. Grimstone, it may be said here, was a stout, fair woman, not in the a warm heart, and a way of talking to and about boys that secured her the perhaps, than the most polished conversation and irreproachable deport-ment could have done.

She did not reserve her motherliness for the reception-room, either, as some schoolmasters' wives have a tendency to do, and the smallest boy felt less honesick when he saw her.

She opened a green baize outer door, and the door beyond it, and led them long, high room, with desks and forms placed against the wall, and a writing-table and line of brown-stained tables down the middle. Opposite the windows there was a curious structure shelves partitioned into lockers, and filled with rows of shabby school-

On the forms opposite the fire some ten or tweive boys were sitting, a few comparing notes as to their holiday experiences with some approach to vivacity. The rest, with hands in pockets and feet stretched toward the blaze, seemed lost in melancholy abstraction.

"There!" said Mrs. Grimstone, cheerfully, "you'll have plenty to talk to one another about, I'll send Tom in to see you presently!" And she left them with a reassuring nod, though the prospect of Tom's company did not perhaps elate them as much as it was intended to do.

Mr. Bultitude felt much as if he had suddenly been dropped down a bear-pit, and, avoiding welcome and observation as well as he could, got away into a corner, from which he observed his new companions with uneasy apprehension.

"What was it like?" asked one or

"Oh, awfully slow! They've a poky

"Pratty! they're and they read "Pretty! they're just like young Skidmore—only uglier; and just fance his mother asked me if I was Skidmore's favorite companion, and if he helped me in my studies?" The unfortunate Skidmore, when he returned, soon found reason to regret his rash hospitality, for he never heard the last of the cake (which had, as it happened, been paid for in the usual manner) during the rest of the term. There was a slight laugh at the enormity of Mrs. Skidmore's presumption, and then a long pause, after which someone asked suddenly: "Does anyone know whether Chawner really has left

THE SECOND

Presentation of a Gold Loving Cup to the Admiral-Immense Land Parade -Dewey's Comments on the Demonstration.

BEHIND THE WARSHIPS. New York, Sept. 30 .- Fololwing the formidable-looking warships in yesterday's naval parade in honor of Admiral Dewey, came the civic and mari-time features of the pageant. Flying the flag of the State of New York, and having on board the representatives of the naval militia, came the steamer least intellectual or imposing, but with Monmouth, followed by other beats, with members of the haval militia. Then came steamers with the members confidence of mothers more effectually, of the general committee of citizens; the legislative branch of the city government, and members of the press.

NINETY-EIGHT YACHTS. Then followed, two abreast, 98 graceful, magnificently appointed yachts, led by the Corsair, the flagship of Commodore J. Pierpont Morgan, and Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Erin. After the yaches came 100 steamships of the merchant marine, with three flagships, then five steamers abreast, and the remainder in files of two. The third and last division of the parade consisted of more than 100 handsomely decorated tugs, yazhts, pleasure craft, etc., coughing, snorting and churning the water and making ten times the fuss of a big warship. There were side-wheelers, propellers, electric boats and every kind of craft, except a sailing vessel. A MIGHTY SHOUT.

As the Olympia came abreast of the battery a mighty shout from the people began. As the flagship moved up the river waves of cheering rose, and blasts from all the steam craft at the wharves and in the river. Men and women both became hysterical as they shouted and screamed their tributes to the admiral. After the warships Sir Thomas Lipton's steam yacht, the Erin, was much applauded. Sir Thomas Lipton had taken up a position on the bridge of the All grocers sell Tea, but all Erin, the mement she got under way, to guide the starboard column, and except for a few minues spent on the quarter-deck, just after passing the battery, he remained at the side of the skipper, Capt. Matthews, waving his yachting cap in response to the of human and steam tongues, until after the Erin had rounded the turning point off Grant's tomb. DISTINGUISHED GUESTS. There were many distinguished guests on the Erin, including the Hon. Charles Russell, who arrived from Charles Russell, who arrived from England yesterday; Str R. Burdett, Halford Burdett, Hugh C. McGildoway, James Craig, Col. Sharman-Crawford and Dr. F. Makay. In the line of yachts were two other visitors, the Erl King and the White Ladye. From some points on shore Admiral Dewey could be seen standing on the bridge of the Olympia, and wherever this was the case the noisemaking and waving of handkerchiefs by the crowds surpassed that at other points.

George W. Abercrombie. proprietor of the Boulevard Hotel, Newark, N. J., was stricken with apoplexy while hoisting a flag in honor of Dewey yester-day. He died soon after.

THE SECOND DAY. New York, Sept. 30.—The second day of New York city's official welcome to idmiral Dewey opened cool and clear. Many people were out at sunrise to secure desirable points from which to view today's land parade. The first ceremony today was the presentation at the city hall of a gold loving cup to the admiral by Mayor Van Wyek, on behalf of the city of New York. All along the streets were cheering crowds and City Hall Park was filled to the limit with people who shouted a noisy, enthuslastic welcome as Dewey came in

As Dewey greeted Schley the crowd sent up cheer after cheer for Dewey and Schley. When the greetings were over, the mayor began his speech, presenting the city's loving cup. Admiral Dewey replied, saying: "It would be quite impossible for me to express in words how deeply I am moved by this-all these honors, one after the other-that beautiful cup, the freedom of the city, this great magnificent reception. I cannot say what I want to, but speaking for myself and the gallant squadron I had the honor to cammand at Manila, I thank you from the bottom of my heart." The loving cup presented to the admiral is Roman form and is made of 18-carat gold; it stands 13 inches high, has a capacity of four and a half quarts, and cost $5,000. Speaking of the demonstration, Admiral Dewey said: "It is a great thing when such a grand city as New York stops work for two days to do honor to one man."

The admiral, the reception committee and the mayor go by boat to Grant's tomb. The land parade starts from Grant's tomb. Admiral Dewey and the mayor will be near the head in an open carriage. The admiral will leave the carriage at Madison Square and review the parade from the official stand at the Worth monument.

WHAT LONDON TALKS ABOUT

Comment on the Fighting Ma terial Sent to South Africa.

Criticism of the Soldiers, Their Commanders and Their Welcome.

Alaskan Boundary Question-The Re ception to Admiral Dewey.

[Special London Cable Letter.] London, Sept. 30 .- Comment regarding the personnel and material of the British force which is expected to be fighting within a short time in South Africa, continues to occupy a large share of publication. Many criticisms appear blaming the government for not permitting the war office months ago to put an adequate defensive force on the probable scene of action; but the rumors of the forthcoming departure of an army corps somewhat appease these critics. It is almost certain Cen. Sir Redvers Henry Buller, the former adjutant-general, will have supreme command in South Africa. In the meantime the military responsibility is divided between Major-Gen. Sir George Stewart White and Lieut.-Gen. Sir Frederick William Forestier Walker, the latter at the Cape and the former in Natal, each being supreme over his own district. Gen. White, who is described as A FIGHTING MAN,

"keen as mustard," has not yet arrived in Natal. Upon him will devolve the duty of checking any desultory Boer raids, or, in case of a premature outbreak of actual hostilities, of holding Natal until Gen. Buller's army corps arrives, when the aggressive British campaign will probably occur. Some dissatisfaction is expressed because Gen. White has never served in

But it is gene South Africa. thought his fighter abilities will more than make of the his lack of topo-graphical knowledge. Under Gens. White and Walker will be a host of officers, special by their knowledge of Hear and South African compaigning Gen. Sir Wm. Symons, Gen. White's second in command, is one of the few survivors the massacre of Isandiwhena.

THE ARTILLERY IN NATAL will be accompanied by Col. Downing, late chief instructor at the School of Gunnery, Shoeburyness, who has the highest scientific and practical reputation.

Major-Gen. French, commanding th eavairy, is a dashing officer, some what on the lines of an American offi cer. Gen. Young served through the early Egyptian campaigns. Much has been said regarding the physical unfitness of a large percentage of the British rank and file going to South Africa, or already there. A great difference of opinion on the subject exists. But it can be said that the regi ments selected are believed to have the highest standard of physique, and all are comparatively long-service men. COMPARISON OF ARMS.

Many of the British officers believe the Mauser, with which the Boers are armed, is superior to the Lee-Metford rifle of the British, for use against civilized troops. A small-arms expersaid to a reporter of the Associated Press: "The Lee-Metford will stop savages, but that is not the object most desirable when fighting against civilized forces. Under a well-man-aged Mauser fire troops will come on, dropping gradually from the effect of galling wounds, and not realizing the necessity of cover or retreat until, when within the deadly zone they find half their number disabled and unable to face the full weight of short range fire. In other words, Mauser-armed troops are more deceptive to the enemy than those armed with Lec-Metfords, the effect of the latter being immediately visible to the officers directing the fight."

The Indian and Mustralian which will be much used by the cavalry and mounted infantry will probably suffer more from the change of country than the men, being obliged to live on oats and mealies, a form of fodder they are utterly unaccustomed

DIRECTION OF THE CAMPAIGN. The apparent inclination of the secretary of state for war, the Marquis of Lansdowne, to run the campaign preparations on his own idea, and his tendency to consult subordinate ficers have called forth a published reminder that he has a capable com-mander-in-chief at his elbow. Some comparisons are made as to the status of Field Mashal Lord Wolseley compared with that of Major-General Miles, when the latter was reported to have been disregarded by Secretary Alger.

ALASKAN BOUNDARY MATTERS. Alaskan boundary matters are still taking up considerable attention at the foreign office. The Canadian minister of marine and fisheries, Sir L. H. Davies, is daily visiting the officials, who are busy drawing up maps illustrating Canada's contention. He ex-pects to finish his share of the matter in two weeks. He will propably return home October 19. The negotiations at Canada, the United States embassy taking little or no part in them until Sir L. H. Davies reaches an undersettlement continue to appear, but these are as unreliable as they are "It is impossible to give out any statement at present." Asked if he was going over the Tower-May propositions, he said: "No, not exactly; I am here solely to represent the stand of the Canadian Government." It is inferred that no definite settle-ment will be reached until after the convening of the high commission.

Pros and Cons Laid Before the Hospital Trust.

Discussion of the Proposed By laws of the Hospital.

They Are of Vital Importance to the Medical School.

The Hospital Trust Besieged by Depu tations-Action on All the Questions Raised Was Deferred.

Court was held by the board of hospital trustees at the city hall yesterday afternoon and a hearing given deputations from the Ministerial Association, from the medical faculty of the Western University, from the medical men in the city not connected with the faculty of the Western University, and from the city council. All but the municipal deputation came to have that effect.

The crustees listened to the suggestions and adjourned until Tuesday afternoon, when they will give the bylaws their final consideration. The members of the trust present were: Col. Lewis (chairman), T. H. Purdom, James Gilmour, M.P., Thomas McCormick, Mayor Wilson and Dr. Balfour (medical superintendent).

Rev. Dr. Saunders and Rev. W. J. Clark were first heard. On behalf of the Ministerial Association they asked that a room to be used as a chapel shall be set apart for the regular Sunmay service and for funeral services; that the hour for the sunday services shall be 9 a.m.; that the Ministerial Association shall arrange for four successive Sabbath services, and that every fith Sunday shall be arranged for by the Clerical Association. A representative of the Clerical Asociation will be heard later. Drs. Hodge, McCallum, Meek, Engsociation lish, Williams, Kingsmill, McDonaid, Moore, Drake. Roome, Burdon, Hogg. Jento, and George Wilson were the medical men present.

Dr. Hodge, secretary of the medical faculty of the Western University, presented a resolution passed by the faculty Thursday evening, asking the hospital trust to make two changes in the proposed bylaws. One was in bylaw 1, chap. 4, which, as it reads, provides that the time for the visiting and treating of patients by the staff be equally divided. The medical faculty asked the trust to strike out the words "provided that the time be equally divided," and substitute therefor-"provided the medical faculty of Western University have charge as heretofore, of the appointment of the active staff for the months constituting the college session." The other change desired was in bypresent apparently are confined to con-bultations between Great Britain and law 1, chap. 8, which says the house staff shall consist of one recent graduate of the C. of P. and S. of Ontario year medical student, a standing with the imperial government. Sir L. H. Davies said the Western University, shall the pointed by the board upon the recomposition of the medical faculty of the archive university. They shall the said the the Western University. They shall hold office for one year." In support of the resolution,

Hodge said the changes desired were essential to the existence of the medical department of the Western University. The Ontario law provided that each college term should be eight months, and if the trust would not give the faculty eight months they would have to close their institution. The request was a modest one. The faculty merely wished the continuance of the conditions which had existed for many years. They had long had the appointment of the house staff and there was every reason why they should continue to have it. The medical college had been built up by the labors of the members of the faculty, and it was rapidly growing. This year saw the largest freshmen class in the history of the school. It made London a medical center, and was a great benefit to the city generally—as much of a benefit as the Normal School

Dr. McCallum said that if a change was made, which would lead to the closing up of the school, a great hardship would be committed on the faculty who had straggled for years to build it up.

Dr. Meek stated tersely that the ques tion for the trust to decide was whether or not the school was a benefit to the hospital and the city. Unless the trust acceded to the request of the faculty the speaker would strongly favor closing the school.

Dr. Williams explained that if it were possible the faculty would willingly divide the time evenly with outingly divide the time evenly with outsiders, but the Ontario Medical Council fixed the term at eight months, and it was therefore necessary to have that portion of the year. The great hospitals in England in Edinburgh and in Dublin are each under a medical Dublin are each under a medical school," said Dr. Williams.

Dr. Moore, on behalf of the medical men outside the school, said there were only one-third the practitioners in the city on the medical faculty of the eity on the medical faculty of the Western University, and for the other two-thirds to ask an equal division with the one-third was, he thought, not unreasonable. However, he wanted it distinctly understood that if it meant the destruction of the school he would not urge the request. The school had raised the standard of the profession in the city, and was an advantage in many ways. No desire existed on the part of outside doctors

Dr. Hodge, in reply, said that on to close it up. the strength of the prospective crease in hospital advantages school recently obtained recognition from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, of London, England. While he did not think there was any desire on the part of anyone to close up the school, the bylaws, as they read, would

The deputation from the hospital building committee of the city council came next, and got a chilly recep-tion. They asked that James F. Mc-Lean be appointed second engineer at the hospital, and were told that no fault had been found with the present assistant engineer, Mr. Harding. The committee's action was considered presumptious.

Mr. Merchant was given a seat on the platform and the following address was read by Mr. Little, acting as chairman on benalf of the staff: Dear Mr. Merchant,-We could not allow the occasion of your departure from our midst to pass by without the expression on our part of the mingled feelings with which we view the severance of the ties that have so long bound us together.

We recall with pleasure and gratitude the long term of years during which it has been our good fortune to be associated with you in the work of our collegiate, and we desire to bear testimony to the sterling qualities of mind and heart, which you have shown during those years. We are mindful of the active and unswerving support. which we have always received from you, and the pleasant relations which have always existed between yourself at 2:30, and the speakers are to be Rev. and us. We reflect with gratitude that under your inspiration and management it has been an honor to serve on the staff of the London Collegiate Institute, and that largely through your instrumentality we have had the privilege of being connected with the first collegiate in the province.

While regretting the severance of The annual provincial convention of those ties that bind us together, we rehigher position. We feel assured that the same success that has always attended your work and efforts will accompany you in your new field of labor. As a memorial of our good wishes and hopes for a long and successful career, we ask you to accept this gift, and as you wear it we hope that day by day it will call up happy memories of pleasant years spent among us London Collegiate Institute.

President Everett Considers the Present Time Inopportune

To Enter Into Negotiations With burg. the City.

Finance Committee Has a Tight Hold on the Purse Strings-Board of Works Will Have to Hunt for

There is no immediate prospect of the London street railway being purchased by the city. Yesterday afternoon Chairman Rumball and Ald. Plant and Graham waited upon President Everett, to talk "purchase," the matter having been referred to them as a sub-committee of the finance committee of the council. The interview took place in the office of the company's solicitors, Messrs. Hellmuth & Ivey, and besides Mr. Everett there were present Vice-President Thomas H. Smailman, Manager Carr and Director Brodrick. The result was reported by Chairman Rumball at the regular meeting of the finance committee last night, as follows: "The company does not consider this an opportune time to enter into ne-gotiations for the sale of the road, but as soon as things are in their normal condition will gladly enter into nego-tiations with the city, and if a price can be agreed upon will sell out.' The report win be sent to the coun-

There was some discussion about Cotton & Moore's account for $150, which No. 2 committee were unable to pass for payment the other evening, owing to the fact that the appropriation for the breakwater is exhausted. Similar accounts were considered probable.

"We can't get vnese moneys," said the chairman. "It will have to come out of some other appropriation to the board of works. In the contingency fund there is barely enough to carry us through the year in consequence of the account for $3,400 from the militia department for calling out the soldiers.'

Ald. O'Meara-Will we not get some of that back? Mr. Pope-Yes, $14. The statements furnished by the department showed that balance

But what Ald, O'Meara had in view was a petition to have the amount refunded, and it was decided to recommend the council to ask the government to make such refund. With regard Mr. A. H. Amos' Contribution to Twen to No. 2 committee's account, the council will be informed that there are no funds.

J. F. Hunt objected to paying taxes on property which he claims is a por-tion of Hyman street. The city engineer reported that the property assessed was 28 feet, formerly known as London Lane, and now called Hyman street. "It is still private property, having never been conveyed to the city," the report stated, "and should be assessed to the owner of it previous to its being laid out as a lane or street. According to the plan made at the time the pavement was laid, the C. W. Kent estate were owners of it.

sessment commissioner to report. Ald. Carrothers' notice of motion in council to repeal a number of bylaws under which a rental of 8 cents per foot per annum for 25 years is imposed upon 17 sewers throughout the city, was

Ald. Carrothers pointed out that rates had been paid on 7 of the sewers for 19 years, and on the balance for 17 years, and the rentals so paid amount to a sum in excess of the cost of the sewer, thus placing the ratepayers at a disadvantage as compared with those having sewers constructed since He urged, therefore, that a bylaw be introduced to repeal the old bylaws, to come into effect after Dec. 31. 1899, and that thereafter no rates be imposed on these sewers. The present condition of affairs was not equitable,

The other members of the committee wanted more information as to the effect such a bylaw would have on the debentures, and it was voted to lay the matter over.

The city clerk reported that the amount of rentals on the 17 sewers refer-red to is $1,946 14, and would be the same each year until the 25 years had Several petitions for remission of taxes were dealt with, and a batch of accounts passed for payment. The finance committee is a striking example for all other committees of the council. Last evening sharp at 7:30 five of the six members were on hand and the business of the meeting begun. Ald. Rumball was in the chair, and around the table were Ald. Graham. O'Mears. Plant and Carrothers, and Treasurer Pope.

THE SUBURBAN LIMITED.

"Phew," said Mr. Suburbs, dropping into the seat partly occupied by his friend Mr. Rhubarbs in the smoker of the Surburban Limited

"Did you have to sprint this morning, or merely plug across the country?" asked Mr. Rhubarbs. Mr. Suburbs mopped his brow.

"It was a long sprint this morning," said he between gasps. "I made the station in eleven minutes and fortyfour seconds.'

Good," said Mr. Rhubarbs. 'Ate my breakfast on the run," said

'Nothing like living in the suburbs," said Mr. Rhubarbs.
"How many more years do you suppose I can stand?" asked Mr. Suburbs anxiously. "I should say about two more," said Mr. Rhubarbs. "They seldom last longer than that when they get to your stage.' "How long have you been at it?" inquired Mr. Suburbs.

"My wife took the notion to move out in '95," said Mr. Rhubarbs.

"How do you feel?"
"Me? oh bless you I can stand it for-

" said Mr. Rhubarbs. "Doesn't the rushing to catch the train right after breakfast and sprinting to catch the train in the evening on an empty stomach have any effect you?" asked Mr. Suburbs.
"Not the slightest," said Mr. Rhu-

"How's that?" "How's that?"
"I use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets," said Mr. Rhubarbs. "It's Dyspepsia that breaks up us Surbanites, and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are of course the best cure for Dyspepsia on the

So I believe," said Mr. Suburbs; "I must try some."
"You can get them et any druggist's for fifty cents a box," said Mr.

THE RAILWAYS

Projected Air Line From Minueapolis to Foot of Rainy Lake.

S. Tillson, of Blenheim, has been appointed L. E. and D. R. R. operator at the station at the G. T. R. crossing

M. C. R. Agent Young, of South Woodslee; has resigned. He, together with Mr. McNorgan, will embark in the grist mill business near Amherst-

Ten new passenger coaches are under construction at the Point St. Charles shops on the Grand Trunk, and will probably be finished in about two months!

Aylmer Express: Mr. John Simpson who for 22 years has been the G. T. R. station master here, has tendered his resignation, and it is expected that his successor. Mr. N. A. McCallum, of Simcoe, will be here today.

The fight between the present board of directors and the protective com-mittee of the Boston & Albany Railwhich developed at the annual road. meeting on the question of postponing the election of a board of directors until Nov. 15, when the question of leasing the road to the New York Central is to be acted upon, was compromised and the old board of directors, with one exception, and the addition of three new names, will serve for the coming year. The protective committee claim that this is a victory for their side, which opposes the New York Central lease.

An important railway is about to be entered on in Northern Minnesota, and the initial work may be undertaken this winter. It is for what will be practically an air line from Minneapolis and St. Paul to the Canadian boundary at the foot of Rainy Lake, about 150 miles porthyeat of Duket. about 150 miles northwest of Duluth. The line will also connect Duluth and the Canadian boundary in almost an air line. It is about 250 miles from Minneapolis to Koochiching, at the foot of Rainy Lake, where there is water power of some 25,000 horse power. North from Minneapolis to Milaca the new railroad will follow the Great Northern's present track, and a section, 85 miles long, will be built from there around the east side of Lake Milaca to a junction with the Duluth, Mississippi River and Northern, at the mouth of Swan River. The D., M. and R. H. is a sub-line of the Great Northern Rallway system. From its northern terminus at Hibbing, 75 miles of line will be built down the Little Fork Valley to a connection with the trans-continental Canadian line at Rainy Lake. The entire line may be under Great Northern ownership.

GAVE $19,000 AS A STARTER

tieth Century Fund.

Toronto, Sept. 29 .- A special meeting of the board of regents of Victoria University was held in the library room of the college yesterday after-noon. The object of the meeting was to consider the interests of Victoria University with regard to the Methodist Twentieth Century Thanksgiving fund. The proposal is to raise $200, 000 for the college, and of this amount it is hoped the alumni will subscribe $50,000. Dr. Carman, general superintendent, presided. The board requeste wash to arrange to devote his time and energies for the next three months ex-clusively, as far as possible, to the Methodist connections, with a view to securing the amount necessary to put the college in a better financial posi-tion. J. W. Flavelle, A. E. Ames, W. E. H. Massey, Senator Cox, and Dr. Potts were appointed a committee as to ways and means, with power to add to their number. As Dr. Potts represents the general conference in the Twentieth Century Thanksgiving rund,

AT THAMESFORD

A Good Crowd Took in the Fall Show Just the Same.

The Exhibits a Fair Average-The Full Prize List.

Thamesford, Sept. 30.-Fair day in Thamesford yesterday, when the fall show of the East Nissouri Agricultural Society was held, was far from an ideal one. It was too cold. The north wind gave visitors a very chilly reception, and made life on the grounds miserable for all excepting a few fortunate enough to possess fur coats and heavy wraps. There was an abundance of good nature there, though, and the people made the best of a bad day.

The entries in a few cases were short, but, generally speaking, the list was well firled, and those who won prizes were especially pleased with the outcome of the day. The speeding amounted to very little, as only one race filled, and that was a snap for Growing Modelle. George Neely's Mona, who won first money, with A. Lackie's Aladdin second and J. Swartz's Farmer Boy third. There was no great existement caused by the event. Before 5 o'clock the grounds were almost deserted, the people. seemingly having made people, seemingly, having made straight for home, as the streets were almost cleared a little later. The con-cert in the evening, furnished by Dave Walsh, Daisy Lewis, Jack Birmingham, Sandy Drennan and Frank Gruber, was enjoyed by a good crowd.

NOTES ON THE GROUND. The main building was so long in being opened that many people left without taking a look around. Those glasses of lemonade made the people shiver more than ever.

Not a fakir present. Messrs. Young and Morrison have been appointed agents for The Advertiser in Thamesford in sucession to John Shewan, deceased, who, for so many years worked that district so faithfully in the interests of this jour-nal. Following is the

A History of Prayer

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Lymon Abbott, Formerly of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

Sabatier in his "Philosophy of Relision," says: "Perhaps a history of prayer would be the best history of the religious development of mankind. The history would seem to commence in the crudest cry for help, and to complete elf in perfect prayer, which, in the life of Christ, is simply submission to and confidence in the Father's will." It is this sentence in Sabatter's "Philosophy of Religion" which has suggested to me the topic of this sermon.

begin in the patriarchal epoch of the world. As yet the Jewish nation has no existence. There is no temple; there is no public place for prayer; there is no even so much as a tribe; are only homes. In this home the father is king, commander-in chief, priest, prophet. The household consists of the father, the wives (for there were generally more than one), children and the grand children, who sometimes were numerous, and the slaves and retainers. The household moves from place to place. Its wealth is in flocks. It lives upon the pasture-land. Wherever the house-hold goes, it builds a rude altar of stone, and there the family are gathered together for worship. Such a pa-triarch has two sons—Jacob and Esau twins-but Esau, the first-born of the twins, the eldest son, after the custom as it then existed, as under the it exists today in Russia, takes his father's place. By right of his birth, he has, when the father dies, the privilege of being commander-in their children about them. The tents chief, king, priest, and prophet. Of in which for a while they worshipped, these two sons, Jacob and Esau, the younger brother desires this privilege, makes a sort of bargain with his rash brother to get the birthright, then cheats his dying father in order to win the blessing from the father; and Esau says, I will bide my time; I love my father too well to sadden his last days with bloodshed; but when my father dies, my brother shall account for the wrong he has done me; and the mother hears, and counsels Jacob, and Jacob flees away. He has sought to have birthright, but is now banished by own misdeed from his own home. his own misdeed from his own home. He lies down at night and sleeps, and as he sleeps he sees a ladder, the lower round upon the ground, the upper round lost in the heavens, the angels scending and descending; and when he awakes he says; Surely this is sacred ground; God was in this place. One would have thought that even would have been solemnised and uplifted and made repentant; but no, his only thought of religion is this. What can I get out of it? His only thought of God is this, How can I make Him my ally? That is all. And his prayer, the prayer of the self-seekis a bargain with the Almighty: And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, if God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace; then shall the Lord be my God: and this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house: and of all that Thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto

BARGAINING JACOBS OF TODAY. Many centuries have passed since then, but there are a great many men and women in Christian communities and Christian churches who think that prayer in only a shrewd bargain. Their question is not, How can I serve God? but, How can I get God to serve me? Their question is not, How can I do God's will in the world? but, How can I get God to help me accomplish my will in the world? and they do not often, perhaps, make so generous a bargain as Jacob; they do not often, perhaps, give a tenth of their income. And yet God answers such prayers. He answered Jacob's. He was with him. He did bless him; He gave him raiment and food, and He brought him in peace to his father's house. But that was not all; life did not end there. In his old age Jacob stood before Pharaoh. His favorite and loved wife was dead. Of two sons he had been bereft, though one he had found again, and then the other. His other had been strangers to him and cruel to their brother. Famine had robbed him of much of his property. He had been obliged to leave all the sacred associations of the past; he was a stranger in a strange land. And then he narrates his autobiography: 'And Jacob said unto Pharaoh, The days of the years of my pilgrimage are an hundred and thirty years; few

A PLACE OF PRAYER.

Seven hundred years pass away, and we come to the prayer of the churchman. Years of exile in Egypt, of wandering in the wilderness, of hounding and harassing by enemies, had brought the various tribes together and merged them into one compact nation. These people no longer worship at the stones piled here and there; they no longer worship alone, with their retainers and as the tents in which for a while they lived, have been broken down, and the rich king, Solomon, has built a great temple to Jehovah, with its porch and its priests' house and its holy of holies; and, finally, when all was done when this house which men and women have reared by their toil and by their innumerable gifts is finished, the platform is erected and the great chorus of music goes up to God, and then Solomon goes in and offers his prayer. Of course I can read only a little of "But will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain Thee; how much less this house that I have builded? Yet have Thou respect unto the prayer of Thy servant, and to his supplication, O. Lord my God, to hearken unto the cry and to the prayer which Thy servant prayeth before Thee today; that Thine eyes may be open toward this house night and day, even toward the place of which Thou hast said, My name shall be there; that Thou mayest hearken unto the prayer which Thy servant shall make toward this place. And hearken Thou to the supplication of Thy servant, and of Thy people Israel, when they shalt pray toward this place; and hear Thou in heaven Thy dwelling place; and when Thou hearest, forgive." The churchman identifies worship with a place. He has built a house, and he asks that when people gather in that house, or, if they stay away from it and turn their thoughts toward this house, God will hear their prayer.

That was a thousand years before Christ. Now it is eighteen hundred years since Christ. And through all those twenty-eight centuries men and women have been gathering in temples and lifting up their hearts and their hands to God. They have been coming, as you have come here this morning, to sing praise, to confess sin, to ask for help. They have done it in all varied forms and methods. Not house has been sufficient to hold all; not many houses have been sufficent to hold them; sometimes with the splendid ritual of the Roman Catholic or an Episcopal cathedral, sometimes with silent, uplifting hearts from a Quaker meeting-house, sometimes with the simple form of a Congregational or Presbyterian service, sometimes singly, they have come into the house where prayer is wont to be made. THE TESTIMONY OF MILLIONS.

What does this mean? How happens it that not thousands or ten of thousands, or for one year or a score of years, or in one locality or one city or one state or one nation of after one form, but countless millions, through twenty-eight centuries, in all varied forms of worship, in all different utterances of expression, calling God by different names, having a different conception of Him, some intertwined with many errors, still have come and still do come? Is it possible that men come year after year and century after century, in crowds and ficks— come to drink at a mirage where there is no water? Is it possible that tens of thousands of men, in great crowds such as no one man can number them, through twenty-eight centuries, come and feed upon the ashes of Sodom, are but ashes to their taste? What does it mean but this: that these men and women have found God here, have found a reality in prayer, have found courage in worship? There are some of you in this house today who know There is a God who dwells in His temple, and the men who think there is no meaning in praise and penitence and prayer must set aside the concurrent testimony of uncounted millions, running through twenty centuries of time, spoken in all languages, dialects, forms of utterance. God is in His holy temple. If that be not true, human witness is all false and nothing that man testifies to out of a great heart can be trusted. But is not only in the temple that God is witnessed; from the temple God's witness comes. Three centuries pass, and the young boy, just out of his teens, goes into the temple, which has been more than once dismantled and more than once polluted by idols. As he sits or stands there, the glory of the temple fades and another and greater glory fills it place. He sees the Almighty sitting on a great white throne, he sees the cherubin before him, veiling their faces with their wings, and crying, Holy holy, holy Lora God Almighty! He hears a summous, and he hesitates. I, he cries, am of unclean lips; there is nothing in me to give a message to this generation. Some men go out, and from a congre gation gather their message and give back to them; but there is nothing in this great people from whom I can anything; they are a corrupt, duli, heavy people. And then he says: "One of the seraphim flew unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar; and he laid it upon my mouth, and said, Lo, this hath touched thy lips, and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged. Also I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me."

prayer of one who, having received the vision of God into his own soul, desires to give that vision to other souls; who, having fed on the bread of life, desires to give the bread to others that are hungry; who, having quenched his thirst at the fountain, desires to lead others to the living fountain, or at least to carry to their lips some of its water.

"PRAYER IS SOMETIMES LISTEN ING."

Prayer is not always asking for things—that we have seen; prayer is not always worshiping—it is sometimes listening. It is talking to God, it is talking with God. And this young man, just emerging from his teens, and coming into the temple, was not so busy in asking something for himself, but that he could listen to hear what the Lord had to say to him. Prayer is listening as well as talking. In strange ways comes this message of God to us; and it never comes, I think, until one is reverent and humble. So Moses sees the burning bush, wonders at it, starts with curious quest to investigate it, and is checked. "Take off the shoes from thy feet, this is holy ground"; and not until he realizes that this is holy ground, and takes off the shoes from his feet, does he enter into communion with Jehovah, and get the message which he is very reluctant to accept. Sometimes through strange influences it comes to us. To Christ, you will remember, God's message came through the devil. He went out into vilderness to study the problem of his life, and temptation after temptation was presented to him. He would undertake to make stones into breadhe can be the world's civilizer. that was not enough. He would fling himself from the crest of the city, and have all the people admire him. not admiration, but love, he wanted. He would compromise with the world, bow down to it, pay it some little allegiance. And then he saw it was the devil who was talking to him, and he said "Get thee behind me, Satan, for the Lord thy God, and him only, will Through temptation God's voice sometimes comes to us, through the very reaction against a proposition which has been suggested to us; but sometimes in one way, sometimes in another, sometimes by an event, sometimes in silence, sometimes by an evil suggestion, sometimes directly, the voice of God comes. And at all events, however it may come, to pray is to

There are some of you who have had many messages from this church, whose hearts are nobler, whose hopes are highwhose love is richer, whose life is better equipped; there are some of you who have seen, not merely the church or the choir or the preacher here, but sometimes forgetting them, have seen the vision of God himself and the seraphim surrounding him. Is that all? Is that enough? No. If you have but the two ears, humility and reverence, you will hear this message of the Lord "Whom shall I send?" and you will answer with eagerness, "Here am I; send me"; and God shall find for your hands, or for your lips, or for your life, some service to render for him. That also is prayer. One hundred years pass away, and Israel is carried away from its holy land. Its temple is razed, its city is destroyed, it is carried off into captivity to Babylon, and there it is without a church and without a priesthood and without any of the institutions of religion: and the pious and devout Jews know not what to make of life. And out of this exile are many prayers wrung from saddened hearts. them is to be found in the Forty-second and Forty-third Psalms, which we read together this morning. I read a few verses from it again: "As the hart panteth after the water-brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God! When shall I come and appear before God? My tears have been my meat day and night. while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God? When I remember these things, I pour out my soul in me; for I had gone with the multitude, I went with them to the house of God, with the voice of joy and

WRESTLING - NOT WITH GOD. Prayer is not always peacefully talking to God, it is not always quietly listening to God; it as sometimes nard wrestling, not with God, but with ourselves. It is true that we are sometimes to wrestle in prayer, never with God. as though he were holding gruagingly back his gifts, but with ourselves, that we may find our way to So this intense saint of oiden time struggled with his fears, his doubts, his disbellers. You remember the story of the other prayer of Jacob how he wrestles all night long with the angel. We think of the angel as someone standing apart from him; but I think it is the angel in Jacob, that is wrestling with the bargaining spirit in Jacob; and when, at last, the angel wins, and the bargaining Jacob is lame in the thigh, and can wrestle no longer, then he conquers, when he surrenders. There would have been no eighth chapter of Romans if there had not been a seventh. Prayer is the struggle of the soul to break away from despair into hope, from selfishness into love, from sensuality into virtue We have seen prayer, beginning with self-seeking, rising into churchmanship, and centering on a building, broadening out into the conception that the influence of that temple is to be carried elsewhere and everywhere, issuing in a struggle with the soul that is exiled from the temple and from the institutions of religion, on which it has too much depended. And so we come to the last prayer of which I shall speak this morning, the pastor's prayer for his people. Paul has been at Ephe-He has lived and preached and wrought there for two years. He has made enemies there; he has battled, as he expresses it, with wild beasts there, and he has been surrounded by dear friends there, and he has seen blessed results of his labors there; and when he goes away he sends them back a letter, and tells them he is praying for them. And what does ne ask? For a new and better preacher? for another minister? for a greater hurch prosperity? For none of things. "For this cause I bow my knees unte the Father, of whom the whose family in heaven and earth is named, that he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengyour hearts by faith; that ye, being footed and grounded in love, may be able to apprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height, to know the love of Christ, which passeth all knowledge, that ye may be filled with all the fullness of

No asking here for things; no centering here of life on a church or a room: no carrying here of ministry, even from an altar and a temple, no Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith that ye may know the illimitable bounds of boundless love, that ye may know the love of God that fills all the universe with his mercy and his love,

Strange Experience in the Heart of Abyssinia.

A District of Demons-Marvelous Phenomena.

[London Times.] Reuter's representative has had an interview with Capt. Wellby, who has just arrived from his remarkable expedition in the unknown portions of Abyssinia and the countries lying north of Uganda, between Lake Rudolf and the Nile Valley. Capt. Wellby has mapped on a scale of four miles to the inch the whole of the unknown country traversed, the greater portion of which had never been indicated on any map. He has accurately located and mapped a whole chain of lakes between the Abyssinian capital and Lake Rudolf, and has discovered two of the sources of the Sobat River. He has also visited and lived with some twenty different tribes, several of whom are quite new to explorers. Perhaps the most curious of these were races of giants living near Lake Rudolf and the people who inhabit the devil-possessed district of Walamo.

During the whole journey of about 4,000 miles the explorer did not have occasion to fight the natives. A little fox terrier which went through the Tochi campaign accompanied his master during this African expedihis tion.

In conversation with Reuter's representative, Capt. Wellby gave some additional particulars of his journey to those already telegraphed by Reuter's Agency from Egypt. "On the onward journey," he said, "I was stopped at the Abyssinian frontier by an official who detained me until permission arrived from Ras Makonnen, the governor of Harar, for me to proceed. At Harar I met Capt. Harrington, and traveled with him and Ras Makonnen and M. Lagarde, the French resident, to the Abyssinian capital. The day after my arrival at Adis Abeba I had my first audience of the Emperor Menelek at his palace. The interview took place at 7 in the morning, and for the occasion I had to don a dress suit Two days later I accompanied the emperor and empress, who, escorted by an Abyssinian army, were on their way to Tigre. The force was an immense one, and during the march large numbers of cavalry and infantry joined in on either flank as we went along. The emperor, surrounded by his generals, rode at the head on a mule, preceded by a band of musicians. The empress, also riding a mule, with an extensive guard and escort, brought up the rear. When a suitable site was reached mimic battles would be organized, on which occasion the emperor would ride a pony. The most perfect order prevailed throughout the enormous force, and the whole camp was pitched or struck with the greatest precision, and in a far shorter space of time than in the case of our own troops. No tent was pitched until that of the emperor. In fact, the whole gus was in readiness, and in like man-ner none was struck until Menelek's had been taken down. Then in an incredible short space of time the whole army would, as the case might be, be either settled for the night or again on the move. Every man had his allotted task, and worked like part of a huge machine. The generals' tents were ranged in great circles round that of the empreor. In fact, the whole camp was arranged in a system of circles. The discipline was good. praise, with a multitude that kept hoty- a few days I returned to Adis Abeba day. be conveyed home."

After giving some additional particulars of his subsequent journey through unknown lands, Capt. Wellby referred in the following terms to the district of Wajamo, visitors to which are supposed to become possessed of devils: "One of the most weird and remarkable scenes I have ever witnessed was in Walamo, some fortnight's journey south of Adis Abeba. The place had an evil reputation, and I had frequently heard that any person venturing to enter the country became the special prey of demons-in fact, became possessed by demons. Of course, I poohpoohed their idea, but nevertheless it made me more determined than ever to go there. My Abyssinlans did not even demur when I told them of my resolve, but the fact really was that they did not think I should be permitted to enter the devil-infested zone. On reaching the mysterious place I found it to be one of great beauty. It was a fertile country, with luxuriant vegetable growth, intersected with streams. I was, moreover, very hilly and well timbered. The inhabitants I found to be most friendly, although they told me they had never seen a white man before. So far all had gone well, and I was more certain than ever that the evil reputation of the place was only based on superstifious nonsense. I do not say that subsequent experience has left any very clear idea in my mind, and I can in no way explain the marvelous phenomena which I witnessed. I only state the facts. The first sign of anything wrong was when one of my Somali escort rushed into camp shouting 'Walamo! amo!' He was frightfully excited; he shock violently and kicked like a madman, and in the intervals between his shrieks he told me that he was pos-sessed by a devil. The whole of that night he was neither more nor less than a maniac, but the next day he was perfectly well. I had been pre-viously told that once a man had become 'Walamo,' or devil-possessed, he was always liable to a second attack, come and as a simple measure of precaution the man's rifle was taken from him. thened by might by his Spirit in the the man's rifle was taken from him. inner man: that Christ may dwell in While on the march he had another access of this curious madness, in the course of which he drew a knife and. rushing about, threatened to kill every body. When all was prepared I had something like a hundred of these people watching me. due time the meal was over, and I thought no more about it. Here I thought no more about it. Here I should state that I had not had a day's filness during the journey, and was in the best of health at the time. The next day, however, I felt thoroughly ill. Needless to say, I did not let any of mry people know that anything was wrong, nor can I attempt the cause. I was quite unable to find a cause for this mysterious business. As I said before, I merely confine myself to a bare statement of the facts. It was a most anxious time for me,as I did not know whether at any moment the whole camp might not be-

A Grateful Woman.

Says Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Saved Her Life.

Confined to Bed for More Than a Month and Wholly Unable to Move-Food Had To Be Administered to Her as to a Child - Thankful Words of

[From the Tribune. Deseronto.] Mrs. Wm. Doxtater, whose husband works on the Rathburn Farm, Deseronto, is well known in the town and surrounding country, her home hav-ing always been in this vicinity. Mrs. Doxtater has passed through a more than usually trying illness, and it was said she ascribed her cure to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a reporter of the Tribune was sent to investigate the case. It appears that Mrs. Doxtater's illness dates from the birth of a child on Feb. 15, 1899, when the attending physician found it necessary to administer chloroform. The shock was greater than she could stand, and the result was partial paralysis, during which her life was despaired of. Mrs. Doxtater gives the particulars as follows: "Previous to the birth of my child I had enjoyed very good health, but following this my health gave way entirely. I was in bed for over a month, and had two doctors attending me. I was so weak that I could not turn myself in bed and had to be moved like a child. The little nourishment I took had to be administered by my friends. During this time I suffered great pain especially in the hip joints, and one side was paralyzed from the shoulder to the foot. doctors could not tell me what my trouble was and the medicine they gave did me no good. I became de-spondent and thought I would surely die. I got into a highly nervous condition and sleep was almost im-possible. Just as I would fall in a sleep I would start us as though in a fright. This was the state of affairs when a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pirk Pills and I can never tell how thankful I am that I took that advice. After I had used the third box I was able to leave my bed and move around the house a little. By the time I had used six boxes I had gained greatly in strength and able to do my own housework. I could eat my meals with relish. I sleep and am still constantly gaining in strength. My friends were surprised at my speedy recovery after beginning the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I believe that but for them I would not be alive today. I will be glad if my testimony is the means of pointing to some other sufferer the road to health. People who are run down, weak or nervous will find renewed health and strength through the fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They enrich and build up the blood and stimulate tired and jaded nerves. Substitutes should always be refused, as they never cure any one. The genuine pills may be had from all dealers in medicine or from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2 50.

MACHINE

[J. N. Larned in the October Atlantic.]

Is Manipulated - Military Discipline.

To the mastery and management of all controllable elements in the body politic the professional politicians bring training, experience, constant thought, ceaseless labor, systematic combination and organization among themselves, says J. N. Larned in the October Atlantic. They can afford to give time, thought and energy without reserve to the work; it is their vocation: it is what they live forcommonly what they live by; and the vast tribute levied for their "committee funds" puts every possibility of action and influence into their hands. The Tammany organization in New York maintains, as is well known, a paid captain in each election district, whose business is to know each voter in the district; to establish friendly relations with him; to flatter him with attentions: to bring all appropriate influences to bear on him; to him, if possible, as a recognized Tammany man: and to foster an effective esprit de corps among such supporters by means of social clubs, balls in carry about with them. Round winter, excursions in summer, and the necks they were a large number like. For the fruit of his exertions, gathered in substantial votes, each captain is responsible to a responsible committee in his assembly district. He is liberally supplied with funds and with bits of petty patronage, for use in employing assistants and covering his expenditures. His position depends on his success. He loses it if he fails to keep the Tammany vote of his district up to an expected mark. His superiors in the assembly district committee are similarly accountable. in their turn, for the work of all their captains, to the executive committee of Tammany Hall, which is made up of responsible district leaders. It is a system of more precision and more efficiency than that of the city government. The discipline maintained is stricter than in the military organization of the state. At every moment the forces of Tammany are ready for call; for every need they are exactly known. This is the perfected machine organization of party in American politics—the model to which all of its explorer found an incrustation looking kind, state or municipal, are more or like salt. This, he found, the natives less closely corformed. It is a costly piece of administrative mechanism. It involves the employment of an army of paid agents, picked for cleverness and energy, with a great staff of able chiefs, whose services claim high re-wards. The maintenance of such a system demands revenues of a state and the taxing power of a state; and it is because the "machine" and the "boss" have acquired that power and those revenues, under conditions lately developed, that they have become

"My dear Mrs. Steyn-Browne," she read, "May I so far trespass on our friendship as to offer you a word of warning. You know something of me now. But you do not know me so well as I know myself. I may truthfully say that my knowledge of mankind has been gained by dint of much study in a mirror of my own personality, and in the process I have naturally and in the process I have naturally arrived at some idea of my own perfections. This you will say is vanity. I disagree. Vanity is the child of ignorance, and cannot be born of knowledge. So much by way of explanation of what follows. I know, unfortunately, that to some women I am undoubtedly attractive. I cannot help it. I cannot be other than myself. But my knowledge of the fact imposes upon me a most irksome duty. "Yours very sincerely,
"AUGUSTINE DOBBS." Mrs. Steyn-Browne had not known Mr. Augustine Dobbs for long. The acquaintance had only dated from the time of her introduction to "the move-Now what the movement was may be easily explained. It is within easy memory of every one that but a short time ago socialism was within an ace of becoming fashionable. Politicians wagged their heads wisely, declaring that "we are all socialists now," and quite a number of people with balances at their bankers and a superfluity of leisure became mildly iconoclastic as regards the fabric of society. society. Among such socialism was too crude a term for every-day use, so they referred to it as "the movement," and not to be in the move-ment was in their minds synonymous with a condition of benighted ignor-

Naturally many of the recruits to the movement were women, some of them young, more of them of uncer-In the former category was Mrs. Steyn-Browne; in the latter The two was Miss Steyn-Browne. ers by marriage, and the similarity of their names was the only point of resemblance between them. Physically, the dividing gulf was a vast one. Mrs. Steyn-Browne was a tall, slender, gray-eyed, well-groomed matron of two and twenty, while Miss Steyn-Browne was a short, sturdy, black-haired and brown-eyed maiden of forty-one, whose lack of grace was weefully accentuated by the Liberty gowns she mostly affected. In the movement Mr. Augustine Dobbs was undoubtedly a shining light. Whenever and wherever he lectured, whether at a workingmer.'s club in the East End or in the drawing-room of an up-to-date clergyman in the West, he had his own particular bevy of feminine admirers. They did not send him slippers, as would have happened been a curate; nor locks of their hair, as might have been the case had he been an actor. No, their idolatry took the form of treating his utterances upon any subject as being last word of wisdom in regard to Truth to tell, he had a pretty turn for paradox, which invested his speech with fictitious smartness, and made him an agreeable novelty in drawingrooms where conversation languished.

Of his band of admirers Miss Steyn-

Browne had speedily become a member, and at her request, with the os-tensible object of setting the feet of a number of recruits upon the path of economic salvation, he had made his first appearance in Mrs. Steyn-Browne's drawing-room. There, by the hundred devices known to the feminine mind, Mr. Augustine Dobbs was made to realize that he was a welcome guest. Mrs. Steyn-Browne had a reason for her cordiality, but it was one less flattering to Mr. Dobbs than that gentleman imagined. She looked upon him as a socialistic St. George, but the dragon was not society; it was Miss Steyn-Browne, and the dragon once conquered, she cared very little as to what should happen to the knight. Truth to tell, there was little love lost between the two ladies. Sophia Steyn-Browne had deeply, though silently, resented her displacement as head of her brother's household by his marriage, and could not find it in her heart to forgive her sister-in-law either her youth or her beauty. In re-turn Lilian Steyn-Browne heartlly wished that her husband's sister could be persuaded to set up an establishment of her own, instead of domiciling herself for three parts of the year as a guest in her house, an infliction to which she found it difficult to take exception, because her husband invarlably met her hints with a laugh and the remark, "Poor old Sophy! not a bad sort. We must give her a chance of getting married, or it will soon be too late." "Soon be too late!" To Mrs. Stevn-Browne the remark had seemed ridiculous. She had been married at eighteen, and naturally looked upon a spin-ster of 41 as hopelessly upon the shelf. Needless to say, however, Miss Steyn-Browne did not share this view, and the appearance of Mr. Augustine Dobbs upon the scene of her existence

Mrs. Steyn-Browne accepted the offer with a smile. "What we were discussing was this: Miss Steyn-Browne was declarated." declaring that you were a confirmed celfoate. That you had consecrated your life to the movement. Isn't that "I heard so on good authority," said Miss Steyn-Browne, with emphasis. "My contention was that such a standpoint meant either that you have lighted. She had determined not yet met the woman you would care to marry, or else that you have met to assist in the progress of such an her and you fear that she is unattaineventuality by every means in her

> Mr. Augustine Dobbs seized the opportunity to pose as a martyr. "Perhaps it is the unattainability of my ideal that makes it so alluring," he said.

"No woman is unattainable," replied Mrs. Steyn-Browne, with a bewitching upward glance of her eyes that set Mr. Augustine Dobbs' heart throbbing beneath his Jaeger shirt.

It seemed clear that she had received his warning and equally apparent that she had determined to disregard it. Well, the responsibility was hers. He wished that Miss Steyn-Browne would leave them alone to finish the conversation. He was disappointed. It was Mrs. Steyn-Browne who rose suddenly and begged to be excused, as she had just remembered that she "had a most important letter to answer." "Meanwhile," she said, "Sophia will give you some tea and prove to you that the unattainable has its limits." An important letter to answer! His letter! He lapsed into a brown study and paid no attention to Miss Steyn-Browne's coughs and delicate flutterings. Even the words with which his companion broke the silence fell upon deaf ears. She repeated them.

She would not be able to blame him afterward, or accuse him of having decayed her "I agree with Lillian, no woman is unattainable by—by a man of—of your—" She paused in some slight confusion. By some unfortunate chance his letter had reached the wrong person, and, morethe same handwriting to Miss Sophia over, that person had chosen to read Steyn-Browne, lay upon the table.
"I wonder if Sophia has been warnin its discreet phrasing a veiled declaration of love. He saw only one ed, too," thought Mrs. Steyn-Browne.

I knew at once that you merely wrote that to test me. Oh, Augustine! Augustine Dobbs rose hastily from his chair at the sound of his first name from the fair Sophia's lips. "I would not have intruded upon you only Harding will be bringing in the tea directly, and I thought that you would rather I disturbed you than one of the servants. You must not mind me, Mr. Dobbs, and I am sure Sophia will not. I suppose I may congratulate you both? I am so glad that I am able to be the first to do so.' There was no help for it. As Augustine Dobbs told himself afterwards, "Moments like these make fatalists of men." He smiled. The smile was a watery one, but nevertheless it was a smile of acceptance. Mr. Augustine Dobbs has still a bevy of feminine admirers, but there is no

JAPANESE WRESTLERS

Their Physical Development Is Some thing Truly Remarkable.

[Medical Record.] Although the American is willing to concede to the Japanese the possession of a mental capacity almost, if not quite, equaling that of the majority of white races, he is apt to form a some-what slighting opinion of him as viewed from a physical standpoint. The specimens met with in this country do not tend to convey a favorable impres-sion of their athletic powers. After, however, reading an account of the physical measurements of some of the most prominent Japanese wrestlers, a more respectful attitude regarding the muscular development of these little men will probably be taken. The Jiji Shimpo has recently published a table giving the measurements of six of the foremost Japanese fighters. From this table it is gathered that the most bulky of these modern gadiators weighs at the age of 22 years about 300 pounds; height, 5½ feet; girth of chest, 58 inches; lung capacity, 4,450 cubic centi-meters; upper arm, 18 inches.

Another one weighs over 250 pounds; height, 6 feet 5 inches; girth of chest, 48 inches; lung capacity, 6,000 cubic centimeters; upper arm, 16 inches. The smallest of these fighting men weights more than 200 pounds, measures in height 5 feet 7 inches; while in lung capacity he exceeds them all. There are few wrestlers in this or any country who attain the these dimensions. try who attain to these dimensions. those who have seen some of the best exponents of Japanese wrestling are willing to back them when pitted against the pick of the European or American expents, as it is said that they are as skillful as they are power-

Quebec, Sept. 29.—John Ball, a brick-layer, of this city, living on 57 Little Champlain street, says he was cured of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Asked how a kidney medicine would cure him of Lumbago, Mr. Ball said:

"Because Lumbago is the most direct symptom of Kidney Disease.
Lumbago is Rheumatism of the back.
Rheumatism is uric acid in the system. Uric acid is caused by poor tem. Uric acid is caused by poor work on the part of the kidneys— that is, if the kidneys worked right they would sift it out and there'd be no trouble—that's the way it was explained to me. Dodd's Kidney Pills neys work right, and they certainly do that all right.

"I had Lumbago for two years.

Couldn't do my work. Had to get up every little while in the night to urinate, so couldn't get a decent night's sleep. I heard of what Dodd's Kidney Pills had done so I got some. Autumn Styles.

Coral is to be one of the most fashconable colors this fall. It is to be used for the neck and belt, and also in dress trimmings.

Afthough few people will welcome their advent, fringes are to be worn this coming season. With the overskirt drapery they can be used to good

Plaids in skirts are already seen, many of them worn with shirt waists, which are matched in color. Later, according to the fashion magazines, we may see them used for the polonaise as

Tailor-made suits are to be worn as much, if not more than they have been this summer. They fit the figure with willing to give up this useful as well as trim-looking costume.

China silk hoods for evening are quite in vogue according to Paris styles. They are made large enough so that the hair need not be disarranged in adjusting them, and in some places they are displacing hats and bonnets almost entirely.

Nothing is prettier for the firstneeded thick waist this fall than a stylish shirt waist. If the collar is made adjustable, this will give an opportunity for a great many changes in eckwear. Nowadays this is as important as to have a good many changes in the waists themselves. The belt worn should be narrow, of silk or beads.

A Significant Utterance.

Coming as it does from Mrs. Ellen Henrotin, for four years the chief of American club women, this recent utterance is significant. "The older I grow, and the more I see of the world, the more firmly I am convinced that it is inherent in the divine order of so-ciety that the highest intellect among women, the best she has to offer, should be given to the home."—Bertha Damaris Knobe, in the September Woman's Home Companion.

+++ Sewing in Schools.

Ninety thousand children were instructed in sewing in the public schools of New York city last year. The value of such teaching, in inculcating neatness, precision and economy, can be seen by a single contrast. "What is that sharp thing with a hole at one end?" recently inquired a girl at a vacation school. She had never seen a needle before. "What does your mother do with your clothes when they have holes?" asked the patient teacher. "Throw them away, of course. What else could she do with them?"

+++ Longfellow's Advice.

Madame de Navarro gives some charming pictures of Longfellow in "A Few Memories." She says that every conversation with him led to some good result. His first advice to her was: "See some good picture—in nature, if possible, or on canvas—hear a page of the best music, or read a great poem daily. You will always find a free half-hour for one or the other, and at the end of the year your mind will shine with such an accumulation of jewels as to astonish even Longfellow was a great lover of music, and Wagner appealed to him strongly. We heard several operas to-gether in Boston after my engagement there. He generally appeared before us, armed with flowers, and full of delightful anticipations. On one of these occasions someone sent a mag-nificent bouquet to our box. Not knowing the donor, I did not take it up. He insisted on my doing so. Put down my simple flowers,' he said, 'and take up the beautiful flowers. It will gratify the giver, who is no doubt in the house. Try never to miss an opportunity of giving pleasure; it will make you happier and

The Art of Carving

A saddle of mutton should be carved in long slices, half lean half fat. A cut should be made down the whole length parallel with the backbone, and slices cut diagonally from the center of the back to the end of the ribs. A leg of mutton should be held with the fork, so that the inner side is toward the carver. The knife must be inserted near the thickest part, but must not cut through to the bone. The slices should not be too thin, but rather wedged-shaped, the first one not being removed until two or three incisions have been made. The knuckle end is more glutinous than the other, and is consequently regarded by some as a delicacy. When the center of the meat is insufficiently cooked to please a guest, the knuckle end will often be found in much more suitable condition. In carving a loin, a chop should be given to each person.

A shoulder of mutton is as easy to manipulate, once the right side to cut is decided on; this can easily be ascertained by trying where the fork goes through on the forepart, the meat being then cut in rather thick pieces. The under or inside should be carved in thinner slices, lengthways.

A sirloin of beef, having two qualities, requires different treatment, the upper part being cut lengthways with the rib, the undercut being sliced across. Some very delicate fat will be found at the end of the undercut, a tiny portion of which should accompany each helping.

A loin of veal should be cut across through the thick part in very thin slices, and a small piece of the kidney and its fat should be sent to those who like it. The fillet is carved in thin slices horizontally, like a round of beef. When carving a tongue, cut straight through the thickest part, the two parts together. The slice should not be too thin, and of a wedge shape. A ham should be cut from the knuckle end (which should be turned to the carver's left hand) in thin slices, sloping toward the right.

It is usual to carve the undercut before commencing the upper side, and the slices, though cut thinly, should be less so than those from the top. Cut right down to the bone, very straight, leaving no holes or ridges, a portion of the streaky fat or thin end, being given with the meat from the upper side.

The carving of a fowl is not such an easy matter, and a certain amount of practice is required before complete success can be obtained. Insert the fork into the breast of the bird and pass the knife between the legs and the body, pressing the former outward and dividing the joints. Next cut along the breast, a little way down the side, leaving some of the white meat on either side of the breastbone; then cut down until the joint is reached, and take off the wings. Now re-move the merry thought by inserting the knife across the breastbone, sloping it outward, and cut the slices on each side the central bone. In carving a cupon, a succession of slices must be cut from the breast, taking the first slice from near the wing.

Pheasants should be carved in like manner, but smaller birds, such as partridges, pigeons, snipe, etc, should be divided down through the center, unless, of course, the partridges are large, when the leg and wing may be taken off and the breast divided.

Do not forget to give a portion of any accompaniment sent to table with the various dishes, such as stuffing, sippets of toast, fat, etc.

Mr. Green's Garden.

Next to the small red cottage where Archie and Nellie King lived there was a large vacant lot with a high fence around it. The only yard the Kings had was a narrow strip back of the house, and as they had once lived in the country this seemed very small to the children, and they used to peep through the cracks in the dence and wish they could get over there among the weeds to play.

Archie was nine years old, but a hurt received when he was a baby made him lame, and Nellie, wno was two years younger, was almost as tall. Their father was dead, and Archie was very anxious to help his mother, who to work hard to support them; but there did not seem to be anything for such a little boy to do except to be useful at home, and he tried to be that. On the other side of the vacant lot there was a shop that had been unoc-cupied for a long time. One morning when the children passed on their way to school, the door was wide open, and a tall, rosy-faced man stood there superintending the carrying in of a quantity of lumber. He nodded pleasantly to them in a way that said quite "And on the perfect pathway plainly, "I like little people. I was! See happy souls go by plainly, "I like little people. I was young once myself."

It was not long before they found out that his name was Green, and that he had rented the shop for some sort of carpentering work.

One day when they were at play in the back yard, the children uscovered some men cutting down weeds in the vacant lot.

"What do you suppose they are go."

See happy souls go by But, O! my soul is weary As wearily I plod, And all because I've wand So far away from God.

Fate.

"What do you suppose they are go-ing to do?" asked Nellie. Build a house, I guess," said

Archie. The prospect of this was exciting, and with the aid of some barrels and boxes they contrived to get up high enough to see over the fence. And there was Mr. Green busily directing the man! He saw them and would there was Mr. Green bushy directing the men! He saw them and waved his hand. "I'm going to have a gard-en in a short time," he said. This made Archie think of the garden

they used to have in the country, where cabbages and potatoes and all kinds of vegetables grew. He had helped his father to take care of it. and he wondered if Mr. Green would not want a boy to weed his. He spoke to Nellie about it, but she was sure it would be a flower garden, for peo-ple didn't have vegetable gardens in

That might be. Mr. Green had not said what he expected to raise; but then, flowers would have to be weeded and watered. So without saying anything to anyone, Archie slipped over to the shop next day. When he was fairly inside the door his heart almost failed him, and when Mr. Green looked up from his desk, where he was writing, and exclaimed, "Hello! Where did you come from?" he was so startled he came near running away. He didn't, however, but went bravely up to the desk.

'I've come to see if you don't want a boy to weed your garden, sir. I know how, and could do it, and I am anxious to find a place, because there is no one else to help mother. Nellie would help, too, and we'd be very care-

Mr. Green looked down at him with an odd expression in his eyes, as he said, "So you want to weed my garden, do you? Well, I may need a boy by and by, when my crop begins to

The children went away for several weeks and came home late one even-ing. Early next day they ran out to see how Mr. Green's garden was coming on, and behold! instead of potatoes and cabbages, or even flowers tatoes and cabbages, or even nowers, there were two rows of gaily-painted swings! There were single swings, and double swings to hold four persons, and some had awnings over them to keep off the sun. The ground was covered with tan-bark, except around the edge, where there was a border of the sun. grass, and the board fence on the street had been replaced by an iron one with a gate, above which was the "The Automatic Swing Comsign;

While the children were gazing at this surprising sight, Mr. Green came walking down between the rows of swings and asked them how they liked his garden. They liked it very much, indeed, but Archie couldn't help feeling disappointed until Mr. Green said, "I have to be in the shop most of the time, and I want someone to stay around here and let me know when customers come in. Do you think you and Nellie could do this? Of course, I expect you to swing a good deal, for that will help to advertise."
So it happened that all through the summer, in pleasant weather, passersby saw two blue-eyed children in a swing near the gate, and if anyone entered, he was met by Archie with. Do you want to look at swings? We have some very nice ones. I'll call Mr.

The Automatic Swing Comp a good business that season, and every Saturday the children dropped a silver quarter into their bank, and even town a swing-garden was better than town a swing-garden.

CONUNDRUM LUNCHEON

Young Hostess Got It Up for a Number of Classmates-Each Menu a Tiny Booklet, With Courses To Be Guessed.

Few events of a social nature have been conducive of more genuine amusement and pleasure than the conundrum luncheon given not long ago by a young lady for a number of her classmates going off to school. As nothing was said in the invitations to indicate wherein it differed from the usual afternoon luncheon, the guests were unprepared for the novel feature which awaited them. The class colors being lavender and white, the table was decorated with a bow of violets encircled by white carna-

The violets were tied up in separate bouquets, and after the repast was over one of these was presented to each guest as she left the table. At each place was a dainty little booklet, the outside being decorated with a tiny bunch of violets, which were passed through a slit cut in the cover and fastened with a marrow white ribbon; in the lower left hand corner was written the date and the name of the guest. Inside was the menu, the different courses being designated by conundrums, each one of which. the hostess explained, must be guessed before it was brought on the table.

At this last announcement the guests looked a little dubious, but they were all bright girls, and, as the conun-drums were not so very difficult, no one was obliged to go hungry. Later, when they had adjourned to the next room, very pretty prizes were given to the best guessers.

NUGGETS OF GOLD

Some World-Famous Finds in the

Please mention this paper.

Klondike and on the Pacific Coast. [Leslie's Weekly.] There is nothing so fascinating to a miner or prospector as the discovery of a placer mine that yields some $50 and upwards of gold to the pan, unless it is the accidental unearthing of a nugget of the precious metal. Gold nuggets are scarce even in the Klondike; but when the miners begin to search the mountain sides and rip up the rocky basins of the rivers and brooks, stories of rich finds of nuggets will undoubtedly be added to those already circulated concerning the wonderful placer yields. A nugget of gold that contains a small fortune in itself is a rare sight, and it is little wonder that men have lost their minds in discovering them; but nature has buried quite a number of them at odd and unexpected places in the earth.

The past record of mining shows that wherever gold is found in large quantities nuggets of more or less large size are apt to be found. Daniel Hill was one of the unluckiest miners of the Pacific coast back in the sixties, but one of the luckiest for picking up nuggets of gold. He made two rich finds in chunks of yellow metal that should have prepared a better fate for him. He died in delirium tremens in Los Angeles only a few years ago. In 1866 he dug up a lump of gold in the Ruby Belle claim, north of Plumas, which he sold for $17,000 cash. This was the biggest amount of money he ever owned, and he lived high on it as long as it lasted. Again in 1871, when down to his last dollar, he made another lucky strike, unearthing a nugget of gold and quartz in Dutch Flats that sold for $14,200 in San Francisco. This money went like the first, and the miner was poor once more in less than a year, but he never found the third nugget, which he constantly looked for up to the time of his death. On Aug. 14, 1859, a nugget that weighed 54 pounds, and was worth $10,690, was found at Magalia, Butte county, by Ira A. Willard. Another was unearthed near Columbia which weighed 50 pounds and sold for $8,500. Not far from this, in the same county, a nugget was picked up in 1849 that sold for $7,168, although it weighed only 28 pounds. A $10,000 nugget was washed out in 1855 at French Ravine, Sierra County. Two years later a second from this same place was found that sold

Four-and-five-thousand-dollar nuggets were found in considerable numbers in California in the '50s, '60s and El Dorado County produced one that sold for $4,700, another valued at $8,000, a third worth $5,625, a fourth worth $5,000 and a fifth valued at $6,-Sierry County, besides the chunks already mentioned, is famous for producing nuggets of lesser size. Some dozen or more, ranging from $1,000 to $6,000 in value, have been found in this county. Plumas County has been one of the richest mining sections of the state; but only three large nuggets have been found there. The largest weighed 420 ounces and was worth $6,700.

To offset these large and small nuggets, Australia, in addition to the first one mentioned, comes to the front with nuggets that are justly famed through-out the world. The "Welcome Stranger" nugget was found at Dunolly, Victoria, in 1869, and weighed 2,280 ounces gross. The "Welcome" lump was found ten years before this in the mines at Ballarat, Victoria, and weighed 2,217 ounces. After these two big chunks came the "Blanche Barkly," found at Kingower, Victoria, in 1857, weighing a trifle over 1,743 ounces gross. The "Precious" weighed 1,621 ounces, and was washed out at the Berlin diggings in 1871. The Berlin diggings also produced the "Viscount Canterbury," the "Viscount-ess Canterbury," and the "Kum Tow."

The first of these nuggets weighed 1,105 ounces, the second 884, and the third ounces, the second set, and the third 718. Ballarat produced, besides the "Welcome," the great lump known as "Lady Hotham," in 1854, weight 1,177 ounces, and the "A. N.," weight 1,619 ounces. A mass of gold and quartz was found at Burrangdong, New South Wales in 1858 which weighed 1 285 Wales, in 1858, which weighed 1,286 ounces, and another near Bathurst, in 1851, with a gross weight of 1,272.
