HEARD AT PITTSBURG

But Both Sides Seem To Be Standing Es

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 28.-Probable peace for the striking steel workers within ten days was the interesting topic in strike circles here today, but nothing definite could be learned. President Shaffer was averse to talking on the subject. Finally he said that while settlement could be effected without the Amalgamated Association, and while some might hope for such good luck, yet in the face of gains made by the strikers he would not back down from his original position.

The steel officials reiterated their previous statements that no overtures for peace had come from the strikers, and that the strike could be settle only by the return of the men to their Notwithstanding that all preparations had been made, the tin plate mil at Bemiller did not resume. There was much excitement in the vicinity of the plant all night, and several hundred strikers guarded the approache to the property, but no new men ap peared, and there was not the slighter disorder.

It was learned late last night that President T. J. Shaffer has sent out letters to all members of the executive committee of the Amalgamated Asso ciation inviting their approval of the peace plan agreed upon last Saturday by the representatives of the National Civic Federation and the Amalgamated Association headquarters' officials. The plan proposes: That the New York offer of July 27, made by Messrs. Schwab and Morgan this company denies that there are any negotiations on foot looking to a set-

The following summary gives the status in this district: Painter's mill-Six mills being operated, and management says plenty of good material is being turned out. Star mill-Men still at work at two mills; no more men have entered the plant: third turn may be put on at midnight. Lindsay & McCutcheon mill-Several men secured; two mills open with separate crews Strikers say the mills are not running full. McKeesport representatives of the tube workers decided to stand VICTORY FOR THE MEN One place within this district where strikers have scored a victory is at Irondale, Ohio. At this place the American Tin Plate Company was compelled to close down its recently operated plant for lack of men to oper-

Coming Visit of the Famous Westminster

Abbey Cathedral Choir. For the first time in history will be heard in America selected voices of the great English cathedral choir, and the coming visit of the Westminster Abbey Glee and Concert Party will give all the public an opportunity of hearing music which has never yet been rendered in the most complete form in America. The performance of choir numbers will be largely secular n character, and composed of glees. s solos. Such a musical feast, impossible to obtain outside of London, England, appealing as it does both to the musical cultured and popular ear. In the party are three boy sopranos, one of whom is recognized as the leading voice in England, and has wonderfully clear notes. Those who remember the furore that Blatchford Kavanagh made some years ago may expect to hear greater things from Mr. Harold Davies. The members composing the party are: Tenors. Edward Branscombe and William Fell; altos, James A. Brow and Walter Coward; basses, Dan Price and Robert Hilton; soprano boys, Herbert Harden, Lionel Craven and Harold Davis. In addition to the choir itself will be heard one of Eng. land's famous contraltos, Madame

The choir will appear in the Auditorium in this city on the evening of Friday, Sept. 6.

DEATH OF CONDUCTOR MORRI-SON. Toronto, Aug. 28 .- Although extraordinary efforts were put forth to save Conductor Morrison's life, he passed away shortly before midnight. Divisional Superintendent Jones was close to the scene when the accident occurred, and he had the injured man taken into his private car and arranged for the special train which made the fast run to Toronto. An ambulance and surgeons were in waiting at the Union station, and Mr. Morrison was hurried to the general hospital. His wife spent the day by his bedside, but her husband never regained consciousness. Conductor John Morrison was 47 years of age. He had been railroading for 26 years, and latterly had the "run" between Toronto and the Sarnia tunnel. He was a member of the Masonic order, and also of the Toronto branch of the Order of Railway Conductors, and Describing the effect of the approach of the disease, Rev. John M. "Some places are practically depop-ulated, all the people having fied to other towns or to temporary shelters in the fields or on the hillside. In one town back of Swatow, numbering over 3,000, there are said to be only 200 or 300 people now in the place. The plain over across the bay is full of mat sheds, where the poor people are taking refuge from this dread invader. Some weeks ago I passed a village some 60 miles from here, where the people were living in boats or in the fields; last week a young man whom I sent to the town of Nam Leng, where they tried to open a market and failed, came in with the news that he was the only person left in the village. He urges them to bury the rats that died in their houses, but it is absolutely useless to NORTH DORCHESTER.

Winning a Battle Depends on the Officers.

The men, the guns, the ammunition-all must be the right kind, for weakness in any one point may result in defeat. It's the same in business. Likening the proprietor to the commanding officer, the clerk, to the soldiers, the goods to the ammunition, it can truthfully be said every element in store organization must be right to win success. AT THE TORONTO INDUSTRIAL FAIR.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

To the Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, G. C. M. G., P. C.: Sir,-On behalf of the Industrial Exhibition Association we welcome you here today, and beg to assure you that we appreciate your kindness in consenting, notwithstanding the pressure of your great and onerous public duties, to open our annual exhibition.

We desire to congratulate you on the high position you occupy in the public life of Canada. We venture to assure you that you enjoy the personal goodwill and the profound respect of all classes of your fellow-countrymen. We honor your patriotic endeavors to strengthen the common Canadian sentiment in all the provinces, and to guard and promote the freedom and efficiency of British in-stitutions. For these and many other reasons it is a very especial pleasure to write your name in the records of this association with those of Sir John Macdonald and Sir John Thompson, who, when they held the high office that is now yours, discharged the duty which today you have graciously consented to perform.

We would call your attention to the fact that this is the twenty-third annual exhibition held under the auspices of this association. From the first its growth has been uninterrupt-It is now by common consent acknowledged to be the best annual exhibition on the continent. The number of its visitors has increased from thousand to over three hundred thousand. It gives thirty-five thousand dollars in premiums, and spends thirty thousand dollars on special attractions. Its live stock exhibit is unequaled in America, and ranks even with the Royal of England. It is devoting increased attention to arts and manufactures. In short, sir, we aim to make this a Canadian national exhibition, to secure exhibits from all the provinces, to assemble in these grounds and buildings speci-mens of the manifold products and industries of Canada, to contribute to the unity of the commonwealth, promote commercial, industrial and agricultural enterprise, and establish in the Canadian people faith and pride in their own resources, opportunities and achievements. We beg to add, sir, that we still hope to hold under the auspices of this association a great inter-provingial cial exhibition, embracing organized exhibits from all the provinces, and representative of all the conditions of Canadian life in the opening years of this new century, and we bespeak consideration your sympathetic that great enterprise, and trust that your ministers may be led to conclude that such an exhibition would have national value, could advantageously be held on these grounds, and successfully carried out by this association.

And now, sir, we beg once again to thank you for your kindness in con-senting to open this exhibition, and ciation (lapsed) which held county conventions, the last being at Dorchester long life and happiness. long life and happiness.

About Sugar Beets.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,-The wheat crop in this section is rather poor, and of late years has not yielded as large returns the country was new, and land requires more work and more fertilizers. The gin holds a county convention in con- price of wheat and other grain is low, and farm expenses high. The Ontario farmer finds he cannot compete with the prairie farmer of the west and northwest, who can raise large at small expense, and who, with cheap associations, one representative elected and rapid transportation is supplying our home markets with wheat at less than it costs our farmers to raise it. We are raising wheat and shipping it to Germany, France and other countries, selling it at less than it costs to iting, primary and normal, and the produce, and taking in exchange their sugar which can be grown in this section of Ontario at a profit of from $10 to $100 an acre. Our Michigan neighbors have about 200,000 acres in sugar beets this year and expect to realize a profit of, on an average, $25 an acre after paying all expenses. They exgranulated sugar this season. If our farmers would put half their wheat land into sugar beets, and give them the necessary cultivation, they would largely increase their incomes. If the bect tops are left on the land the beets would not impoverish the soil more schools and associations is like that of the provincial superintendent of farmers' institutes to the local institutes— visitation, distribution of literature, and opening schools in the local institutes. beets, potatoes, carrots, or Swede turnips is about the same. TWO WOMEN WHO TOOK PARIS GREEN.

Address Presented by the Association to One Escaped Death by an Overdose, But the Other Succumbed.

> Alliston, Aug. 27.-The Benedicts vs. Bachelors' lacrosse match on Tuesday afternoon nearly resulted in a tragedy in an indirect way. Among the spectators at the match were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Newton, a young married couple. The latter took a deep interest in the match and could not conceal her dis appointment at the defeat of the benedicts. Just as the match was finished she hastily left the grounds without her husband and went uptown and purchased a quarter of a pound of Paris green. She immediately went home and swallowed a large portion of the poison. The dose was too large, however, and this, together with the prompt arrival of Dr. McCullough, saved the young woman's life.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 27.—The loco-motive of an eastbound train on the Long Branch road ran into a bull owned by James Brady, a farmer of Rahway avenue, yesterday afternoon, hurling the beast high in the air. In coming down the bull struck a cow, grazing near the track, knocking her on the rails. She was killed by the locomotive, which hit the bull again. flinging him into a ditch, where he lay

Finally he got up ,and with a roar, scampered off, and began to graze as if nothing had happened. The series of impacts jarred the locomotive, but it kept the track. The flagman at Cartaret stopped a passing train, the crew of which pushed the mangled carcass of the cow off the track. The accident delayed travel half an hour. Brady will sue for the value of the cow.

At Least 36 Cases in One District-May Be Hard to Stamp Out.

Ottawa, Aug. 28.-Dr. Bonnier, of the Quebec board of health, has returned from St. Pierre de Wakefield where he went to look into the smallpox cases. The disease has been running through the district since June, and there have been at least thirty-six cases. All but six of them are now convalescent. The disease was of a mild type, and in fact many thought it was chickenpox. Steps were taken to disinfect all the houses but Dr. Bonnier says he cannot be sure that the disease will be stamped out easily. The district is large and there are rumors of other cases. But we have letters to show that their revival is desired. In some instances a union association for two townships (if small) will serve. Let a few who are specially interested get together, consider the situation, and, if need be, constitute themselves a committee, arrange for an organization meeting, selecting some place centrally located, and issue invitations to the ministers and superintendents of the schools of all the churches in the township or townships to be organized. Choose a date that will not conflict with other gatherings likely to interfere. For the first meeting an elaborate programme need not be attempted, as the work of organization, adoption of constitution and election of officers will take some time. We have seen precious hours wasted, however, debating the technical points of a constitution. Mack it simple.

Results of Human Maladies That Impair and Destroy Brain, Spinal Cord and Nerve Cells.

Symptoms That Indicate the Approach of Locomotor Ataxia, Paralysis or Nervous Prostration.

Helplessness is more to be dreaded than any amount of pain or suffering. It is helplessness that makes the approach of old age so much regretted. In the great majority of cases helplessness of body or mind is the result of a wrecked nervous system. You cannot meet a person having the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion, such as irritability, nervousness, neuralgic pains, loss of energy and vitality, and inability to concentrate the mind, without calling to mind many terrible examples of paralysis, locomotor ataxia, prostration, insanity, or some form of helplessness and suffering.

On account of their gradual and insidious approach nervous diseases are most liable to be neglected. But they never wear away of themselves. The nerve force that has been wasted must be replaced. The most effective means of creating new nerve cells and revolutionizing the nervous system which is known to this age is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Natural and gradual in its upbuilding effects and truly marvelous in its curative influence, this great food cure promptly and certainly arrests nervous waste and sets in action the precess of restoration. It makes pale, weak, nervous men, women and children strong and well. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

If our young men have not remained in Ontario, as we would prefer, very many of them have gone to Manitoba and our Canadian Northwest. While this may not be pleasant for us, it is making the West. At this the formaive period in the life of the vast territory between the Rockies and Lake Superior, the shaping hand of the men from Ontario has been and will be invaluable. It seems odd that Ontario should thus early become a colonizing power, swarming off into the Northwest; which is not true to any considerable extent of the people of Quebec or any other Province. When they swarm off, they go to the United States. But Ontario has been bled doubly, first, by those who have gone to colonize the Northwest, and also by those who have been attracted to the United States, And what a magnet of attraction the big, bustling, growing, prosperous United States has naturally been! It is almost a wonder Canada as a whole, and Ontario in particular, has held and increased its population as it has done. The people of Canada are so homogeneous with the United after crossing the line they think and act like native-born United Statesers. both peoples. Take these hundreds of thousands of capable Canadian Old Boys in the United States; what an influence they must exert in disseminating correct information about Canada, and in keeping the two countries friendly! This is seen to be all the more needed when we consider the presence of strong elements in the United States by no means friendly to the British Empire, and therefore not overly friendly to any component portion of the Empire. The Germans in the United States are naturally friendlier to Germany than to Britain; while the senseless and unstatesmanlike refusal of Home Rule to Ireland, keeps alive in the United States a very influential and permeating hostility to everything British. It is of some advantage, then, that Canada has her hundreds of thousands of friendly children scattered all over the United States, who can exert a quiet but powerful modifying influence on the public thought.

"How the United States Feels Towards England."

Mr. Samuel E. Moffett, of the New York Journal, writes to The Nineteenth Century and After on this interesting and important subject. He professes to deal with the question from the point of view of the American masses. The opinions which have so far been expressed are, he says, "those of individuals, or little coteries in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, or Washington. His qualifications are given by himself, thus: "It has been my business for sixteen years to keep in touch with popular sentiment in this country. I have been engaged for that length of time in newspaper work in San Francisco, New York and Washington principally in 'yellow' journalism; which, however superior people may dislike, is the kind that reaches the masses."

According to this authority, there are two points at least that make it difficult for the American masses to love England-the Transvaal and Canada. He admits that England's friendliness for the United States during the Spanish war had some effect, and he sets forth in the following words his careful and corrected statement of the present state of the case: "Four years ago America's attitude would have been one of sympathy for the Boers, intensified by hostility towards England. Now it is one of sympathy for the Boers, checked by friendship for England." He then states at length the reasons why United Statesers sympathize with the Boers, and regard England's action in connection with South African affairs as foolish and wicked. We need not reproduce this, as it has all been said before. Further, whether England and America can be friends, depends upon whether Britain can accept the United States policy. "The American policy is simple. It is based upon the fact that the United States is, and intends to remain, the paramount power of the western hemisphere. The determination is ingrained in the fiber of that people. It has been growing in intensity for three generations, and it has now passed all possibility of alteration. For other powers, the only question is whether they will accept it or collide with it."

Of course, as to that, something will depend upon what "paramount power" is made to mean, not by "yellow journalists," but by diplomatists and statesmen. After discussing from this point of view Venezuelan affairs, and the Nicaraguan Canal, he seems to suggest that England is unfortunate in not being able, like Russia, to clear cut of this continent. It is easy, according to this gentleman, to be friendly with the people of the United cent years become almost household States, namely, give them

United States has five cities on the lakes. "But for the position of Canada, they would rest in perfect security. No enemy could ever get at them. But Canada is building a system of canals, one of whose avowed objects is to permit the passage of British war vessels to range the great lakes and lay them under contribution." Canada, according to this journalist, is the danger point, and needs to be watched. The logical conclusion of what this gentleman says is clear, though he does not state it; it simply means that Canada as a part of the Empire has no right to exist on this continent.

Canada's Immigration Policy.

The Boston Herald attributes our somewhat disappointing census returns to, what it chooses to term, a questionable immigration system. It claims that subsidized immigration must of necessity be less healthy than that which is spontaneous. This we believe to be true, but the imputation is hardly applicable to conditions in Canada. The inducements offered are scarcely more than a cheap trans-Atlantic voyage and free land upon the fulfillment of certain prescribed conditions. The latter inducement is one which any nation with the amplitude of territory comprised by the Dominion of Canada would be justified in offering. The greater efforts of our immigration department have been directed towards advertising. There is scarcely any question but that a country with enormous capital and population, with industries which manifest their presence by clouds of smoke from their mills, and whistles that proclaim a ceasless activity, will naturally attract people, where the quiet pastoral haunts which, while bearing their increase, must of necessity escape the noise incident to industrial centers. The fact that the term "Republic," applied to the United States, has savored of such ideas as States population that in a short time liberty and equality, has also had the effect of overshadowing the very essence of social and political freedom Internationally, this is advantageous to as it exists in Canada under what we chose to term constitutional monarchy.

In the face of all this, Canadians have found it desirable at least to advertise their country. And advertising means a faithful presentation of things as they are. The methods have been perfectly legitimate. The exhibition of Canadian products in the motherland, and especially the showing of Canada's work at the Glasgow Exhibition, is a proper means of letting the British homeseeker know what our Dominion has in store for him. The Boston Herald makes the following prediction:

its provinces were states of the Union, would receive development with a speed which is hardly probable under existing conditions. taking up and utilization of the natural resources that this country affords, the probabilities are that, within the next few years, more and more American capital will seek investment in Canada, and that with these investments will go increased opportunities for livelihood, thus leading by natural steps to the large inflow of an industrial population. We are inclined to believe that in the next ten years the growth in population of the Dominion will be quite double what it appears to have been during the ten years that have just passed."

We see no reason why United States capitalists should not make investments in Canada any more than why British capital should not be invested in the United States. International rapprochement, if it is ever to be a permanent thing, will doubtless be promoted and established largely through the bonds of commercial intercourse.

What a Difference.

The Democratic convention for the State of Pennsylvania met the other day, and, it is claimed, rose above all party considerations and laid the foundation for one united effort to save the honor of the State and have public affairs honestly conducted. Their resolutions, or platform, declared that "Every department of the State Government is honeycombed with profligacy, dishonesty, and reckless disregard of constitutional and moral obligations;" that "the sanctity of law, the obligations of official oaths, and the demands of common honesty. are there thrust aside by the insatiate greed for money, money, more money.' If this is a fair description, and it is claimed to be so, of the State Government of Pennsylvania, the State is to be pitied. How different from the Government of Ontario! Like good health, we never know its value till we lose it. It would be so likewise with the Government of the Province. We have been so long accustomed to an able, honest Government, doing their best, that we do not sufficiently appreciate what they have done, nor yet feel sufficiently grateful over the prospects of the future of this great Province.

There may be no absolute perfection in any party, but it is well not to forget that the faults of the Ontario Government are small indeed compared with the good they have done. Their worst enemy or strongest opponent will scarcely deny them the possession of ability, or accuse them of dishonesty in the conduct of the affairs of Government. One of the greatest teachers of geography is war. Parts of the map of the world that have hitherto been hidden have come into prominence when pointed out by the red finger of war. Witness, for instance, South Africa, with its Transvaal full of strangling Dutch names, which have within rewords; the Philippine Islands and the

The Casual Column

Talk concerning the literary taste of the public continues. The other evening I had the opportunity of getting, informally, the opinions of a number of persons on this question, "Were you to be secluded on some remote island for, say five years, what six books or authors would you take with youwhat books would you be unwilling to be without?" Those who answered belonged to various walks in life. All sorts of major and minor favorites received recognition-among them Emerson, Carlisle, Longfellow, Scott, George Elliot, Ian Maclaren, Macaulay, Dickens, Justin McCarthy. One friend thought he would not like to be without his books on chemistry, which gave him much pleasure, and another recognized the march of science by including Darwin and Huxley. At least two voted for Boswell's Life of Johnson; while another thought he would like to take with him into his five years of seclusion a general cyclopedia, and some comprehensive book of history. One of the party stood out stoutly for the brave old slave and stoic, Epictetus, whose lame body enshrined a singularly lofty and courageous spirit. Of course, Shakespeare was the first choice of more than one; no, I am forgetting; the first choicethough the gathering was varied, and not distinctively religious-was, in nearly every instance, The Bible. It was an interesting discussion and manifestation of varying literary tastes; to my mind, the result was gratifying; for there is not a poor book among those mentioned; though no doubt, some would "wear" better than some others during a five years' seclusion. What six books would YOU take with you for your only reading during five years?

The Boston Herald expresses my feelings when it triumphs over the fact that a boat-rocking fiend has been brought up with a round turn. Frank Rinehart, one of this class away down of "willfully and feloniously killing and murdering Mary Finifrock," and the "The Dominion possesses enormous act is characterized as one of "criminnatural resources, resources which, if al carelessness. Rinehart, on Saturday last was out rowing with the young woman and one other, and, intending to frighten them, he rocked and upset the boat, and succeeded in drowning one. That he rescued the other did not count with the jury, as, had it not been for his criminal folly, there would have been no fatality. The verdict is only that of a coroner's jury, and it may be difficult to secure this man's indictment, and even should he be indicted, it still will be difficult to find any law under which he can be convicted of murder, as he had neither "willful nor felonious" intentions in drowning the girl. It was simply the act of an idiot rather than of a murderer, of a man who should never be trusted in any position where there is the slightest possibility of danger to others, an act of carelessness and thoughtlessness, which, by its frequent occurrence, has become tantamount to crime. Mr. Ernest H. Crosby, the political economist in the New York Journal, deals pungently with the big trusts. He is an illustration of the attention now being given to "The Social Question" by able men all over the world. If Bishop Potter is correct in holding that "discussion by clever men of the question of wages, common ownership of plants, land-anything to make the people think"-is what is wanted, the want is likely to be satisfied. Here are a few of Mr. Crosby's pungencies:

"You cannot get money without earning it, unless someone else earns it without getting it."

"'Water'" is a pretty word, suggestive of purity and health; but the only water in watered stock is the sweat of other people's brows."

"They are studying the malaria plasmodium on Staten Island and dissecting the anapbill mosquito that carries the contagion. They propose to exterminate this pest by application of Standard oil, but they have not yet touched the Standard oil disease

"Christianity sprang from the Jewish Church, and the Jewish Church had its origin in a strike-the strike of the Hebrew brickmakers in Egyptand Moses and Aaron were the first walking delegates on record."

"I hope that when Tesla gets into communication with Mars he will ask the inhabitants if nine-tenths of them pay rent to the other tenth for the privilege of remaining on the surface of the planet."

A Royal Highness.

[Boston Herald.] A good yarn is told of England's heir-apparent, who was riding on a Lendon 'bus incog, not many months ago, and being of an inquiring turn of mind, asked the driver, beside whom he sat, his reason for exclaiming whenever he whipped up one of his horses, "Come up, your Royal Highness, will you?" "Why do you call him Royal Highness?" asked the duke. "Well, sir," he replied civilly, "'cause he's so 'orty and lazy, and good for nothing see!" His real royal highness did not oursue the subject, but afterward told the story to his friends with great glee, and so it got into print, where it may meet the 'bus driver's eye.

There will be bowling on the green between wellknown players; also tennis, quoits, etc., at the club house. Sir Wilfrid will remain in the city until Thursday. Montreal, Aug. 28.-It is learned on the best authority that Newfoundland has invited, or will shortly invite, Sir Wilfrid Laurier to visit the ancient colony in October, during the tour of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwail. The object of the visit is to discuss propositions for combined action by Canada and Newfoundland to remedy the dangers of navigation along the Newfoundland coast. It is proposed to supply adequate signal stations along the southeastern peninsula, and telegraph communication across the coast to Chauteau Point, and by cable from thence to Belle Isle, is almost completed, but Newfoundland experts say the cable is in great danger of being severed by icbergs which drift The Newfoundthrough the straits. land Government is in treaty with the Marconi Company to establish along the eastern shore of Labrador, which is frequented each season fishermen, a series of stations by means of which news of the movements of fish might be conveyed, with great advantage to the fleet.

AN ASSEMBLAGE OF WEATHER PROPHETS.

Gather in Convention at Millwaukee-Prof-Moore's Review.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 27 .- Over one hundred weather bureau officials from all parts of the United tates gathered here today to attend a three days' convention. Professor Willis Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, in opening the convention, reviewed the important changes, developments and extensions of the weather service that had occurred since the first convention at Omaha in October, 1898. He referred to the stations in the West Indies that have been thoroughly equipped and manned by observers of the weather bureau, and said:

Reporting stations have been established at Turk's Island and Bermuda, and provision has been made for securing daily reports by telegraph from various points in Mexico. Through the medium of the meteorological office (London, Eng.) reports are received daily by cable from various points in the British Isles, and on the west European coast, and also from Azores. The object of the west Indian service is to give warning to shipping, and to American coast interests, of the ap proach of tropical hurricanes. The Mexican reports are useful in detailing the aproach of storms which advance to our southern borders from the southwest. The extension of the region of observation also has been made in the Northwest British Territory to Barkerville, and it will keep pace with the extension of the telegraph lines.

NO GIRLS NEED APPLY. Ottawa, Aug. 28.-The servant girl problem has lately been bothering the authorities of Ottawa University, and the Oblate Fathers have arrived at a practical solution of the difficulty by deciding that the servant girls must go. Policemen Show Regard For Ex-Officer Gilbert Woolway.

Gave Him a Purse, to Which Business Men of the City Contributed Very Liberally.

Mr. Gilbert Woolway, who recently resigned his position on the London police force, on account of ill-health, was surprised at police headquarters last night in a very unusual but happy manner. Just as the night duty men had fallen in at 7:45 p.m., Police Magistrate Love called Mr. Woolway to the front and presented him with two purses, one from Mr. Woolway's former comrades, containing $30, and another from the merchants of the city. containing $230.

In making the presentation, the magistrate gave expression to the sin-cere regret felt, not only by everyone connected with the police department, but by the business community of London, at the circumstances under which Mr. Woolway is leaving the city. His worship assured him that the officers of the department considered they were losing one of their most efficient and reliable men. During his long term of service he has not only won the confidence of his superior of ficers, but the esteem of the public generally. He hoped that his trip to the sunny south would bring about a complete restoration of his health. Mr. Woolway thanked his fellow-offi-cers and the business men who had so generously indicated their regard for him. Mr. Woolway, who leaves for California next week, has been a member of the London police force for over thir teen years, and during that long period has, by his unfailing courtesy and strict attention to duty, won the regard of the public, whose interests he helped to safeguard, and the confidence of his superior officers. Among the rank and file of the force he was extremely popular, and the regret of his old comrades at his enforced absence is very keen. His legion of friends earnestly hope that he will soon be restored to vigor

The promoters of the South Essex Railway have secured exemption from taxation for ten years from the town of Sandwich on the power house which it is proposed to erect in that place. Hazen L. Hays back in charge of the affairs of that road, as has been predicted in some quarters. A plan for the abatement of the smoke nuisance in the tunnel of the New York Central Railroad in New York has been prepared for submission to the directors. It is proposed to operate all the suburban trains by electricity. This surburban traffic is now enormous, and when the smoke from these trains is done away with and a better system of ventilation is completed, the matter will no lenger be a cause for complaint. The improvement would cost about $7,000,000. A contract for building the Crow's Nest south, in from Fernie, B. C., to the boundary, has been awarded to A.

Pekin, Aug. 28.-The imperial edict forbidding the importation of arms and munitions of war is not satisfactory to foreign ministers. A meet- | All Milk and Cream Guaranteed ing of the ministers has been called to discuss the edict. It ignores the vital fact that the prohibition applies to the government, and that is part of the Chinese punishment. The edict makes it appear to be merely the government's voluntary act, prohibiting Chinese subjects from importing arms and munition, as the country is disturbed by brigands.

WEALTHIEST TELEPHONE GIRL. Wichita, Kan., Aug. 27.-Mattie Beal, the lucky winner of claim No. 2 in the Lawton land district, has returned to Wichita and has resumed her old position as operator in the telephone office. Fortune did not turn her head, and she is the same "hello girl" that she was before the drawing. It is possible that she is now the wealthiest telephone girl in America, as her farm, it is said, is fully worth from $20,000 to $25,000. Miss Beal will work in the telephone office until Feb. 1, when she must move to her claim and remain on it for eight months.

THE ANDOVER ELECTION. London, Aug. 28. - The Andover poll, announced yesterday, justified the efforts of the Liberals to contest a seat which the Conservatives have occupied without a struggle for sixteen years. They succeeded in reducing years. the Unionist majority to 223, and were well rewarded for their vigorous canvass. The Liberal journals are not extracting sunbeams from cumbers when they assert that the contest proves that every seat will be worth while fighting for at the next general election. A reaction in favor of the Liberal party will naturally set in when the Boer war is brought to an end, and the country is not forced to vote as soldiers who are fighting. The Liberals may fritter away their chances by faction warfare, but they can hardly fall to gain seats and reduce the Unionist majorities when the full pressure of increased war taxation and bad trade is felt. The Andover election is one of the earliest signs of public discontent with the feeble management of the Unionist Government and the burdens of heavy taxation. Attacks made upon the patriotism of the Liberal candidates reacted against the Unionists, because he was well known to voters as a loyal Englishman.

Often, when near her, Vaughan used

Often, when near her, Vaughan used to watch her face, endeavoring to learn from its expression how she was affected towards himself; whether she cared for him, or whether she was only trying to make a tool of him.

But he could read nothing in her face—absolutely nothing; for neither her eyes nor her mouth betrayed the least feeling. She appeared to take all his attentions, all his adulation, as a matter of course; and she suffered her female companion to be present on nearly all occasions, thereby preventing Vaughan from ever making any positive declaration of love to her.

At length the tale of her betrothed husbano's inconstancy reacned the ears of Elizabeth Alland and her parents. Vaughan was rarely near the young ladynow; and when he did come she saw

Vaughan was rarely near the young lady now, and when he did come she saw plainly that his manner was constrained and cold, and accordingly she waxed jealous; and her feelings grew bitter against her lover, and doubly so against the beautiful woman who had so led his wits astray.

Elizabeth made no accusation against him; she had not the courage to do so. She bore his heartless behavior with a quiet, sullen humor, which made him compare the cheerful temper of Juliana with that of his betrothed; much, of course, to the disadvantage of the latter. Sometimes Vaughan used to break out impatiently, and scenes between Elizabeth and himself became matters of constant occurrence. As time went on, Elizabeth's whole family showed their anger at Vaughan's faulty conduct, and at last they consulted their daughter on the subject of breaking off the proposed match. But the young lady would not listen to them, and tried to find excuses for her lover, firmly believing that she would soon be able to lure him back again to her side.

On the following day Vaughan called npon his future bride, who, contrary to her wont of late, received him with cheerful and kindly looks.

"I have not seen your brother for some time," she remarked, in the course of conversation.

"Ah, Deacon! He still lingers in town,

"Oh, yes," returned Vaughan. "Some years aga he was approved."

"Engaged!" echoed Elizabeth, with interest. "And his intended bride died, stammered Vaughan, in con-

"No?"
"No; the marriage was broken off."
"Broken off! Ah, then, I suppose she was unworthy of him?"
Vaughan flushed deeply.
"No, Elizabeth; nothing of the sort," he rejoined, in hurt syllables. "The lady was no other than the Countess Croitzskie!"

"The Countess Croitzskie!" repeated Elizabeth, in tones of disgust. "Is it possible? Well, I will not recall my words. She must have been faulty, or Deacon would never have—"

But before she could proceed further, Vaughan's hand gripped her shoulder somewhat rudely somewhat rudely.
"What do you know respecting her of whom you speak?" he demanded, passionately. The young girl shrank away from him in alarm, and began to weep.

"What do I know of her!" she cried out, vehemently. "I know that she is destroying my happiness and ruining you, Vaughan. Oh, dearest, fly from this woman ere she becomes our curse!"

"Our curse!" repeated he, starting up from his chair in a state of terrible excitement. "You know not what you say. Must I tell you that every glance she Must I tell you that every glance she casts upon me, every syllable she utters to me, is a benediction from above? Our curse! Heaven shower down such curses on me ever, I say!"

"Merciful powers!" ejaculated the girl, in terror. "Then—then you love her?"
He did not answer immediately; he could not do so, for he felt that his words would inflict great pain upon his listener. Presently he went on. "Yes, I love her," he said, with averted eyes. "Had I not made this confession to you, Elizabeth, I think my heart would have burst in twain. Pay attention to me, Elizabeth," he continued, "It was through me that she gave up Deacon's love."

"Through you?"

"Yes. Then I, struck by remose at having wronged my over.

having wronged my own good brother, forsook her. I thought that I should soon be able to forget her, and that she, forgetting me also, would restore to him which he had never really possessed—her affection. But she was wiser than I—oh, far wiser! She knew that our hearts are our masters, and that it is useless to struggle against their decrees. An abject feeling of duty caused me to act as I did—caused me to refuse the warm devotion she proffered me at that time and tion she proffered me at that time, and wrecked the lives of both for evermore."
"Wrecked your lives!" repeated Elizabeth, in dismay, "Oh, Vaughan, recall your words, I entreat! Do not say that your life is wrecked!" she added, sinking upon her knees before him, with raised hands and eyes.

upon her knees before him, with raised hands and eyes.
Elizabeth's wild, beseeching tones brought Vaughan for a moment back to his better self.

"My dear girl, pardon me!" he said, with some slight tenderness of manner, and at the same time raising her. "Pardon me, for we are not the controllers of our own destinies." "Go!" cried she, in bitter anguish, "go!" Leave me to myself!"

CHAPTER X.

Next day the Countess Croitzskie's law-yer called at the house in Park lane on some particular business. When the ob-ject of his business was dispatched, the lady asked the lawyer what news was

"Well, things are very flat at present," he answered. "The newest thing I have heard is that a serious misunderstanding has arisen between my old acquaintance. Vaughan Prynne, and the lady to whom he is engaged. The report current is that she has abruptly left London, and that all will end in a breaking up of the en-Oh, indeed!" ejaculated Juliana, calmly, every muscle of her face undisturbed.

"Well, people must talk about something.
For my part 1 do not believe the report.
Do you?"

The lawyer did not know how to reply. Her collectedness had completely astonished him. He had longed to be the first to retail this piece of scandal to her—this scandal, for which she, and she alone, was blameable; and, lo and behold! he had produced no effect—no effect whatever upon her! "Is her heart made of stone" he asked himself.

When her lawyer had withdrawn. Juliana nodded her head and laughed softly to herself. "Ah, how well I have learned to know these men! Am I surprised that Vaughan Prynne is once more in my net? No!"

Further on in the day Juliana placed herself at a window, whence she could herself at a window, whence she could command a view of the park. Vaughan had not been near her for a whole day, and she was beginning to grow somewhat uneasy at his unusual absence.

The lady looked down the street and up the street, and afterwards into the park, without discovering the object upon which she was so longing to rest her

There were brewers' drays, butchers' and greent grocers' cart, a wagon loaded with hay, another with household furniture, a carriage and pair, a dogcart, several cabs, an omnibus, a couple of wheelbarrows, and, lastly, a restive horse and its rider.

Juliana recognized the latter, who, notwithstanding the rearing of his steed, managed to raised his hat to her.

"Powers of mercy, he will be thrown!" she cried, as the animal raised himself almost erect on his hind legs, and snorted with terror. "He will never be able to keep his seat," she continued, as the horse made a sudden bound forward.

Juliana had spoken but too truly. Vaughan Prynne was jerked out of his saddle, and now lay on the ground in a quiet, helpless heap.

The lady shrieked out loudly, and without pushing rushed out of the balcony, out of the room and down the stairs, In the following instant she had wrenched open the outer door, and was standing in the street by the very side of the prostrate man, around whom there had her post of observation. But, just as she hor prostrate man, around whom there had her post of observation. But, just as she

TRIBUTE WAS WELL-EARNED

Truthful Pen Picture of the Late Alan D. Scatcherd.

An Admirer of American Institutions, Yet a Loyal Subject of Canada.

The following notice of the late Alan Scatcherd will be gratefully read by very many of our readers, not only because of their respect for him, but because it points out that he was "a true Canadian in heart, in principles, and in practice." It is just what would be expected from one whose father, grandfather, and uncle, were members of the Canadian House of Commons, and whose name, "Scatcherd," has been much respected in Western On-tario for over eighty years. His grandfather, in April, 1821, left England, and settled at Wyten, in Nissouri. He afterwards, in 1854, became the member for West Middlesex, and continued such till his death in 1858. His uncle, the late Thomas Scatcherd, was member from 1861 until his death in April, 1876, and his father, the late R. C. Scatcherd, from that time until his death. The notice is taken from the Daily News of Batavia, N. Y., where Mr. Scatcherd had made his home for ten falo, were taken yesterday afternoon to London, Ont., where the funeral was held at 2 p.m. today at the residence of Mr. Scatcherd's father-in-law, John Labatt. The interment was there. Arthur E. Clark, of Batavia, attended the funeral. Out of respect to Mr. Scatcherd the wood working company's factory and its New York office are closed today

The following is a deserved tribute from a friend, sent to the News today: 'In your announcement of the death of Alan D. Scatcherd reference was made to the constant interest manifestwhere he lived about ten years, and to sisted Knox choir Sunday evening, the further fact that he was not a cit-singing a fine bass song. He has a izen of the United States. The man was always so approachable to his friends that many were led to ask why, in view of his genuine interest, not only in local affairs, but in the great political party whose cause he so warmly espoused, he did not take steps toward becoming a citizen. His answer was always so convincing and so full of the true spirit of loyalty te his native Canada, and of patriotism toward the land of his temporary sojourn, that it never failed to satisfy. No one can do justice to his charming manner of saying it, but he used to question by asking his friends whether, if married to an American wife, they should happen to go to Toronto for a few years, more or less, but with every permanent family and business tie in the States, they would care to renounce allegiance to the country of their birth The question as he asked it was quite

"Those of us who knew Alan Scatcherd well are quite agreed that he was one of the brightest men Batavia has known, and he was equally agreeable and warm-hearted. His death is indeed a great loss to this community, and the sincerest sympathy is felt for his af flicted family. While seemingly a quiet man, he had a fine gift of leading conversation into pleasant and instructive topics. His tastes were studious, and in many directions scholarly, and he had seen much. One meets but few men in a lifetime who are so thoroughly entertaining. Loval subject of his native

In the past it has been usual for them to wait until Wednesday before going to the fair, in the belief that it was then in its best running order; but this year Monday will be made the big day, and the citizens are looked to to support the directors' efforts. Yesterday afternoon a meeting of the executive committee was held, and a committee was appointed to interview the manufacturers of the city to try and arrange with them to induce their operatives to accept Monday after-noon, Sept. 9, as their holiday for attending the fair. As an inducement to have them fall into line and assist the directors in making the affair the success it should be, the association has decided to charge admission fee only at the gates throughout the day, giving the grand stands free for afternoon. All the special attractions have been engaged and will appear in front of the stands. The speeding events selected for that day are the very best in the entire programme. It is also proposed that even special fea-tures should be engaged for this day, providing the above arrangements can be made, and special music will also be provided on the occasion. If the committee's plans go through all right the directors will try to have the schools close on that day. The exhibits even now are beginning to come days on which to visit the fair. From the following programme

Messrs. Stott & Jury:

Your generosity in presenting every man of the Canadian Contingent to South Africa with a box of Foot Elm was the means of giving more comfort and relief to the boys on their long marches than almost anything else they had. A powder in each shoe in the morning would make the feet cool and comfortable all day, and prevent swelling, sweating and chafine. No one who stands on their feet all day should be without it.
