UNB EXPECTING TOP ENROLMENT

The University of New Brunswick opens for the 1958-1959 term this week. Formal lectures start Thursday for all students.

New students reported to the campus Saturday to participate in a program of orientation lectures. Monday and Tuesday they undergo registration and counselling.

Second Time

This is the second year for the freshmen's orientation program. Its purpose is to help acquaint the students with life on the hillside campus. Returning students register Wednesday.

While an official estimate of total enrolment was not available at press time, A. A. Tunis, UNB's public relations director, said it would probably easily exceed last year's record 1,381.

An unofficial but usually reliable source claimed this year's freshman class will be 500 strong, compared with last year's 398.

Many Changes

Students coming back for another year will find many changes on the campus.

Two new men's residences—Aitken House and Jones House—are completed and ready for occupancy. Each will accommodate 100 students.

Aitken House is named for Lord Beaverbrook, the university's chancellor and great patron. His family name is Aitken.

The other new residence is named after the late Dr. C. C. Jones, UNB president from 1906 to 1940.

The residences actually had their first use Sept. 15 when students writing supplemental examinations arrived on campus.

Funds Raised

Funds for the three-storey brick buildings were raised through donations from the general public in a campaign led by Lord Beaverbrook, with a matching grant of $422,000 from the Canada Council.

The residences each have 50 two-bed students rooms, a library and a recreation room. Main entrances are classical, with four large white pillars supporting a canopy.

Each room is approximately 15 feet square with built-in desks, cupboards, drawer and wardrobe space.

Residents of the new buildings, as well as many other students living in the city, will dine in the enlarged cafeteria of an expanded Memorial Students' Centre.

Costs $100,000

Total cost of this summer's additions to both floors of the centre will run about $100,000, J. C. Murray, executive secretary of the Associated Alumni, said.

Originally opened in 1955 at a cost of about $250,000, the centre was a gift to the university by the alumni and alumnae. It is dedicated to the memory of former UNB students who died in the two world wars.

The alumni donated $10,000 and the alumnae, $500, to help the university finance this year's expansion program.

Construction was substantially completed by Sept. 1, and the additions were first used during the 10th annual conference of the Canadian Institute of Public Administration, held at the university Sept. 3-6.

As in the past, the cafeteria will be operated by Canadian Food Products Sales, Ltd., which does all catering for UNB's student residences.

Colwell Manager

However, the company's UNB operations has a new manager, Merritt Colwell, a Fredericton man who succeeds Bob Carleton. Mr. Carleton is now assistant manager of the firm's operations at Mount Allison University, Sackville.

Mr. Colwell took up his new duties during the summer.

The addition to the second storey of the building provides extra lounge space for students.

A new central heating plant is also approaching completion. The plant will service the new men's residences, the Bonar Law-Bennett Library and other buildings.

Other work during the summer included paving of campus roads and establishment of additional parking lots.

MacLaggen To Direct New Nursing School

Miss Katherine E. MacLaggen has assumed her duties as first director of UNB's newly-established school of nursing. She is currently laying the groundwork for the school's opening next fall.

Announcement of the starting date for classes was made during the summer by the university's president, Dr. Colin B. Mackay.

Leading Educator

At the time of her appointment, Miss MacLaggen, one of the country's leading nurse educators, was assistant to the director of the public health nursing service of the provincial government, and also was health instructor at Teachers' College.

Commenting on Miss MacLaggen's appointment, Dr. Mackay said: "The university is fortunate in having found, at close hand, a person of her calibre to assume the important task of initiating nursing education at UNB."

A grant of $250,000 from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation will help establish the school. The grant is to be spread over an eight-year period.

Gives Millions

The Kellogg Foundation, with headquarters in Battle Creek, Mich., was established in 1930, and each year grants millions of dollars to aid medicine and public health in North America.

A native of Fredericton, Miss MacLaggen graduated from the Royal Victoria School of Nursing, Montreal, in 1943. Two years later she received her diploma in public health nursing at McGill University, and in 1948 she was awarded her diploma in supervision in public health from the same institution.

In 1952, McGill granted her a bachelor of nursing in administration and supervision, and in 1957 she received a master of arts degree in administration of nursing education from Columbia University, New York City.

She has been active in the New Brunswick Association of Reg-

OTTAWA BOOSTS COLLEGE GRANTS

OTTAWA — The federal government has increased its annual aid to Canadian universities by 50 per cent to $25,600,000.

Previous yearly allowance was $17,100,000.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming said the new operating grant will be made on the basis of approximately $1.50 for each living Canadian. Before the change, the per capita aid was about one dollar.

The money is paid to the National Conference of Canadian Universities, which in turn distributes it to the schools.

Reduces Deficit

The president of UNB, Dr. Colin B. Mackay, said the increase will substantially reduce his school's forecasted operating deficit for the current academic year.

However, the boost does not supply the university with adequate funds for necessary plant expansion, he added.

istered Nurses, the Canadian Nurses' Association, the New Brunswick Teachers' Association and the International Council of Nurses.

Storied Lord Beaverbrook Visits Boyhood Province

UNB's chancellor and great benefactor, Lord Beaverbrook, is currently on his annual visit to New Brunswick.

He arrived by chartered Viscount at Fredericton Airport Sept. 2, a day ahead of schedule. The exact length of his stay was not known at press time.

While in New Brunswick, he is residing at his Fredericton home, Somerville House on Waterloo Row.

Lord Beaverbrook's many gifts have greatly aided education and enriched the cultural life of New Brunswick. His most recent, the Beaverbrook Art Gallery on Queen Street, is due to open later this year.

World Renown

He is world famous for his career as Churchill's aircraft production minister during the Battle of Britain and as owner of Express newspaper organization, which includes, among others, the London Daily Express, Evening Standard and Sunday Express.

Born William Maxwell Aitken at Maple, Ont., on May 25, 1879, Lord Beaverbrook spent his boyhood days in the Miramichi region of New Brunswick and attended public school at Newcastle.

Although his academic achievements were seldom spectacular, he soon showed a flare for business.

His dealings made him a multimillionaire, and he decided to move to Great Britain.

Soon he was established there as a leading politician, serving as MP for several terms and as minister of information in 1918.

Through the years, he has boosted closer ties for first the Empire and later the Commonwealth.

Began Awards

In 1920, he began to award scholarships to deserving high school students wishing to attend university. In 1946, he inaugurated the famous Beaverbrook Overseas Scholarships, which allow graduates of N.B. universities to take up post-graduate work in Britain. He also has supplied funds to help provincial grade school teachers continue their training at the University of London.

Other Beaverbrook scholarships help English students, and each year a number use them to come to New Brunswick to study.

In addition, he has presented UNB with a number of buildings, valued at millions of dollars, and has aided many campus activities.

Although his life has always been busy, he has managed to find time to write a number of books. His latest is Men and Power.

Student Band Looking For Talent—Trythall

A. F. Trythall, director of music, says the forthcoming university year will be the busiest yet for the four-year-old UNB Band.

As in the past, the band will perform at a wide variety of campus functions, including the Winter Carnival, sporting and cultural events.

In addition, there are plans to supplement the Christmas concert with a second recital in the spring.

Students Key

However, success of the projects depends on the co-operation of student musicians, Mr. Trythall said.

He invites all students interested in the band to get in touch with him. He said enthusiasm and hard work are more important than experience in achieving the band's objectives.

During this week's registration sessions, the director will man a desk in the Lady Beaverbrook Rink. After that, he will be available in his office in the Lady Beaverbrook Gym.

Fresh Wanted

He said he was particularly interested in freshmen, because "it is only by encouraging new members to enroll that we shall be able to grow... and maintain the high standards already set."

Three members of last year's 26-piece band graduated in May. They are Clarence Parker, first trumpet; Jack Colwell, clarinet, and Ron Cowan, drums.

These vacancies and Mr. Trythall's plans to enlarge the unit open wide opportunities for new students with even the slightest experience on reed and brass instruments.

Free Tuition

The director says he will be happy to supply free tuition to students without previous experience. He will also try to provide instruments to students who do not have them.

The band practices from 7 to 9.30 o'clock every Wednesday evening in Memorial Hall. Other sessions are held whenever necessary.

Paul Stewart is president of the Band, and Sheila Caughey serves as secretary.

Enthusiastic students formed the first UNB band about four years ago, with Emery Fanjoy, class of 1957, as leader. They played at pep rallies and football games, and soon attracted the attention of university officials.

Donates Instruments

The chancellor, Lord Beaverbrook, was impressed by their performances, and, to encourage them, he presented the university with a complete set of band instruments. In addition, he secured the services of Mr. Trythall as full-time campus musical director.

By the fall of 1956, the band was proficient enough to play at the convocation ceremony. Later, the bandmen won 83 marks and a first place in the Fredericton Music Festival.

Last year, the band, including eight freshmen, staged a full two-hour Christmas concert, the first it ever attempted. Also appearing on the program was its sister organization, the UNB Choral Society.

Dance Band

Several members of the band also play in the Collegians, a student dance orchestra which has received wide acclaim both on and off the campus.

Band President Stewart leads the dance combo, playing saxophone and clarinet. Trumpeter George Bryson is manager.

Last year, in addition to playing at dances, the Collegians also supplied the music for Stephen Patterson's original musical comedy, Around The World In 80 Minutes, a smash hit at last year's Winter Carnival.

FLETCHER, EAMES RESIGN

Members of last year's faculty who have resigned include Norman C. Fletcher, assistant professor of psychology for two years, and Dr. William P. Eames, assistant professor of mathematics for one year.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Albert M. Stevens, associate professor of civil engineering, starts a leave of absence this month. He is to spend the year at the University of California.

First Teaching Degree Features May Exercises

Presentation of UNB's first bachelor of teaching degree highlighted the May encaenial exercises in the Lady Beaverbrook Rink.

The degree went to Dorothy Williams Peer. A graduate of Saint John High, Mrs. Peer came to UNB after a year at Teachers' College and several summer schools.

Her husband, Donald L. Peer, also graduated during the program. He had earned a bachelor of science degree.

In all, 207 students received parchments. Of these, 18 were presented with diplomas above the bachelor's level.

Noel J. Gaspar, a 1954 bachelor, and Stuart Hurlbert became doctors of philosophy (chemistry). Ten students were made master of arts; two, master of science; two master of science in forestry; one, master of science in electrical engineering; and one, master of education.

Artsmen Number 47

Of the bachelors, 47 were artsmen. Other primary degrees included: 42 in civil engineering, 19 in science, 18 in mechanical engineering, 16 in business administration and forestry, 13 in electrical engineering, 10 in law, and seven in education.

Candidates for bachelor's degrees were presented by Prof. R. E. D. Cattle, approved by the Senate, and capped by Dr. Colin B. Mackay, university president. Deans of the various faculties presented the parchments.

Awarding of six honorary degrees also featured the program. The most famous of the guest graduates was David Low, the renowned political cartoonist, who also delivered the encaenial address.

Made Doctors

Mr. Low received an honorary doctor of law, as did Premiers Matheson of Prince Newfoundland and Stanfield of Nova Scotia. Made honorary doctors of science were Dr. James S. Coles, president of Bowdoin College in Maine, and J. Herbert Smith, a member of the 1932 graduating class and now president of Canadian General Electric Company, Ltd.

The then lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick, Hon. D. L. MacLaren, was in the chair. (Since encaenia, Mr. MacLaren has been succeeded as lieutenant-governor by J. Leonard O'Brien, and has offered as a candidate for mayor in this fall's Saint John civic election.)

Musical selections both before and after the program were played by the band of HMCS Cornwallis.

Jim Bruce Dies During Summer

James Bruce, a senior forestry student last year, died during the summer. Mr. Bruce became ill last fall and was forced to withdraw from university at midyear.

Jim emigrated to Canada from Belfast, Northern Ireland, in 1948, making his new home in Toronto, Ont. He began studies at Dominion Business College, Toronto, but later decided to take up forestry at UNB.

JIM BRUCE

While a student here, he was active in many extracurricular activities, including the local branches of the World University Service of Canada and the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

Mr. Bruce also served as co-chairman of the Forestry Association's social committee, and as chairman of the ticket committee for the Red 'n' Black, the students' annual revue.

He was probably best known as coach of the cheerleaders.

RETURNS TO UNB

H. Douglas Long, professor of silviculture, returns to UNB this month after a one-year leave of absence.

It's Your Money

Rising costs continue to plague the newspaper business. In recent months many daily papers in both Canada and the United States have had to raise their prices from five to ten cents. They are no longer able to subsidize their readers.

Unfortunately, The Brunswickan now must follow in their footsteps, and with this issue raises its non-students' subscription price to $3.50 a year.

If the old price of $2.50 a year were maintained, the paper would actually lose money on every subscription accepted—an intolerable state of affairs, because it would force UNB students to subsidize off-campus readers.

The Brunswickan is financed chiefly by advertising revenue and an annual grant from the students through the Students' Representative Council.

When a student pays his SRC fee, he receives a number of benefits, one of them a subscription to The Brunswickan. On every publishing date, the paper is distributed to the various buildings on the campus, and students then pick up their pre-paid copies.

Each student should remember this fact:
 If he doesn't obtain his copy, he is actually throwing away his own money.

Hey, Mom and Dad!
 "The BEST way to

 is to read

The Brunswickan is the students' best friend—helping them tell their parents about life at the University. Letters seldom cover the college scene as broadly as they prefer, but The Brunswickan does the job—and twice every week.

As an introductory offer the staff is sending a complimentary copy of this Freshman Week Issue to parents of new students and inviting them to subscribe for the remainder of the school year.

If you're not already a subscriber, why not start now? Only $3.50 brings 40 issues right to your door.

Let Victims Vote!

(Reprinted from our issue of May 15)

Today, for the first time, the human race faces the prospect of annihilation.

The governments of the major powers have an atomic arsenal sufficient to destroy human life. They contaminate the earth's atmosphere with persistent and reckless nuclear testing. They commit history's foulest crime against humanity.

This they do though the world's scientists unite to condemn their actions.

These governments act for the people they rule. But do they act for humanity? We think not.

We declare that the people of the world have the right to choose their ultimate fate.

We propose a world-wide plebiscite on atomic arms and tests.

* * * * *
 This plebiscite would be history's greatest display of democracy, a just way for dealing with history's greatest danger.

If common man voted for more atomic arming and testing, the major governments would be justified in continuing to plot his murder.

But if he united with his fellows to denounce such madness, how could any government ignore him?

In Norman Cousins' phrase, "two billion angry men" would thus restore sanity to a troubled world.
 * * * * *

Some claim that man's past shows that war is inevitable. But we can no longer accept this cynicism, for the price of conflict has become too great. Modern war is intolerable.

In this time of torn and twisted beliefs, each individual still has faith in his own importance: he wants to survive.

We believe that, given a chance, he will demand a halt to mass murder.

We ask, in all humanity, that he at least have the opportunity.

The medal, donated by Garnett Copeland, class of 1936, is in memory of Ken Corbett,

Brunswickan Extra Marks Encaenia Day

The Brunswickan published a special Encaenia Extra this year. The four-page paper was issued May 15, the day of the graduation exercises, and 2,000 copies were distributed in the Lady Beaverbrook Rink.

Editors were Barry Toole, the retiring editor-in-chief, and Jim O'Sullivan, his successor. Other staff members included Gino Blink, Iain Barr, Bruce Gates and Stephen Fay.

David Low, the world-famous cartoonist, joined the staff for the issue, drawing a special cartoon for the occasion. Mr. Low was in Fredericton to deliver the encaenia address and to receive an honorary degree.

The front page carried an editorial protesting the testing of atomic weapons.

Also featured was a survey of the 1958 graduating class. The report stated that about one-third of the grads planned to work in the Maritime Provinces. Almost half had chosen other regions of Canada, with concentration in Ontario and Quebec. Seven per cent were leaving the country.

Just over 7 per cent were without jobs at the time, while eight per cent were planning to take up post-graduate studies.

Yearbook Distribution Scheduled This Week

Returning sophomore, junior, intermediate and senior students receive their copies of UNB's 1958 Yearbook this week.

The Yearbook staff has arranged to distribute the books in the Lady Beaverbrook Rink, where the students are signing up for another round of studies.

Chem Building Finally Dedicated

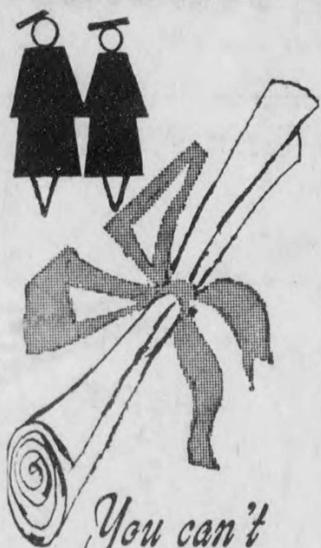

The new chemistry building was officially dedicated during encaenia week—a full academic year after it went into regular use.

Though the building was completed in time for the university's 1957 opening, no one had gotten around to dedicating it until a group of dignitaries happened upon the site on the morning of May 15.

Dr. James S. Cole, president of Bowdoin College of Brunswick, Me., was special speaker during the ceremony. Among others present were Dr. Colin B. Mackay, UNB president; Premier Hugh John Flemming of New Brunswick, and Dr. Frank J. Toole, head of the chemistry department and dean of graduate studies.

Costing close to $1,000,000, the building was designed by Marani and Morris of Toronto, Ont., and built by Diamond Construction Company of Fredericton.

UNIVERSITY BOOK STORE

Freshmen do not receive books, because they did not attend UNB last year and so did not pay the required fees to the Students' Representative Council.

Original plans were to distribute the books before the university's closing in May, but they did not clear customs in time.

Ian Collins, senior artsman who is editor-in-chief of the 1959 Yearbook, said members of the 1958 graduating class received their copies by mail shortly after graduation. In addition, a large number of undergraduates had acquired their books by calling in person at the Students' Memorial Centre during the summer months.

The rest of the books are being handed out this week.

SMITH WAS EDITOR

Editor-in-chief of the 1958 Yearbook was Derek M. Smith, a May graduate in business administration. Mr. Collins was co-editor.

Two other May graduates were on the staff. They were Roland J. Lutes, business manager, and Paul E. Crocker, advertising manager.

The latest Yearbook is a leatherbound, 246-page volume. Advertising confined to the back section, amounts to 55 full pages.

Printing was by the Yearbook House of Kansas City, Mo.

Already plans are well advanced for the next edition of the Yearbook. Staff members in addition to Editor-in-chief Collins are: Dave Case, co-editor; George Lemmon, business manager; and John Williams, advertising manager.

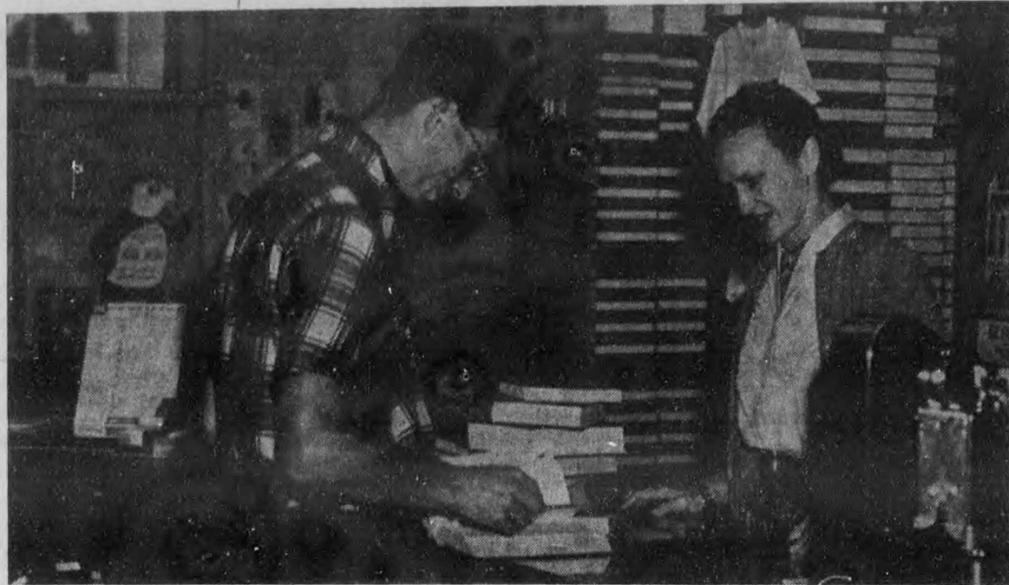

One of the first jobs facing the new staff is to secure an artist. Editor Collins says the need for one is "desperate".

MORE OF THE SAME

Eight members of the 1958 graduating class were sons or daughters of alumni. They were Michael Caughey, Edward Connell, Kenneth B. Lawson, Robert Wightman, Elizabeth Steeves, Constance Trecarten, Anne Marie Williamson and Murray Cain.

Bookstore Faces Annual Rush

Normally a quiet, relaxed place, UNB's Bookstore will experience its annual traffic jam this week as hundreds of students scramble to buy textbooks for the new university year.

18 Earn Awards For Activity

Eighteen members of the 1958 graduating class, most of them former staff members of The Brunswickan, received non-athletic awards during encaenia week.

J. C. (Jack) Murray, executive secretary of the associated alumni, made the presentations during the senior class dinner-dance at the Lord Beaverbrook Hotel.

First class awards (gold rings) went to George Andrin, Iain Barr, Gino Blink, Ron Pearsall, Bill Ray and Barry Toole.

Receiving second class awards (gold pins) were Ted Corbiere and Steve Fay.

Awards are made by the Students' Representative Council on the basis of a points system. To earn points, students must participate in extracurricular activities of a non-athletic class.

graduated in engineering from UNB in 1933. He also serves as general manager.

The manager, Mrs. Marjorie A. Logue, estimates that the store will have distributed some 15,000 books by week's end. To complicate matters further, about 600 different titles are involved.

The bookstore, located in the basement of the Forestry and Geology Building, normally has a staff of two: Manager Logue and her assistant, Mrs. Rhoda Chapman. During the rush period, however, two extra clerks will be on hand. Both students, they are Ethel Smallwood and Arthur MacKay.

Cheapest required text this year is Our Land, a publication in the Canadian Citizenship Series. Priced at 10 cents, it is for use in Business Administration 110.

The most costly is Marks' Mechanical Engineers' Handbook. Students must lay down $14.40 a copy for it.

Seniors Only

The store will maintain its regular year-round schedule of operating Monday through Friday from 9 to 12.30 o'clock in the morning and from 2 to 4 in the afternoon. In addition, special evening service is offered to senior students only. Those in their final year can pick up their books between 7 and 9 o'clock on Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

A limited number of used text books is available at reduced prices. These books move on a first-come, first-served basis.

Budget-conscious students take advantage of the used-book policy to make considerable savings. In addition to obtaining lower prices in the fall, they sell books back to the store in May when next fall's supply is bought.

Besides supplying texts, the store has a number of other services. If a customer wants a copy of any book in publication, the staff will order one for him. Moreover, reference books and the latest paperbacks of general interest are on display throughout the year.

The store also handles students' supplies such as pencils, pens, paper, and clipboards, as well as UNB stationery, T-shirts, ashtrays, beer steins, greeting cards, and other souvenirs.

MARGARET VISITS UNB

Princess Margaret visited UNB as part of her Canadian tour this summer.

The princess was guest of honor at a civic luncheon tendered in Lady Beaverbrook's Residence by Mayor William Walker and the Fredericton City Council.

The luncheon, held Aug. 7, recalled another Royal Visit to the residence. In 1939, Princess Margaret's parents, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, had stopped at the Beaverbrook building.

Bishop LeBlanc New Senator

Premier Hugh John Flemming has announced the appointment of Most Rev. Camille LeBlanc, Roman Catholic bishop of Bathurst, to the UNB Senate.

Bishop LeBlanc succeeds Dr. J. Andre Doucet of Paquetville, former minister of industry and development, who becomes the university's first senator emeritus.

Bishop LeBlanc was ordained as a priest in 1924. He became bishop of Bathurst in 1942.

Long interested in education, he has been associated with Sacred Heart University of Bathurst and St. Thomas College of Chatham, and also serves on the board of governors of the Beaverbrook Art Gallery.

Summer School Turnout Passes Thousand Mark

Enrolment at this year's combined summer school of UNB and Teachers' College passed the 1,000 mark, said Prof. R. J. Love, director of the university's part of the program.

Most of the students came from New Brunswick, though Quebec, Prince Edward Island and the United States were also represented. About 90 per cent of those taking part were grade school teachers.

Began In 1928

The university's summer school was started in 1928 with an enrolment of about 12. Attendance remained relatively small for many years, and was still less than 100 after the Second World War.

During the first 21 sessions,

PROF. R. J. LOVE
... permanent director

UNB faculty members were directors on a year-to-year basis. In 1949, however, Prof. Love, head of the education department, took over as permanent chief.

The following year, the UNB school combined with the Teachers' College sessions previously held separately in Saint John. The move allowed teachers to take degree courses not available at the TC sessions.

Enrolment has swelled since the combination, forcing an expanded selection of courses. This year, for instance, students could choose from a total of 97.

Combined teaching staff at this summer's six-week session numbered more than 50.

PERKINS SCHOLARSHIP

The will of the late Perry B. Perkins, a native of Centreville, provided for establishment of an entrance scholarship for UNB. Named The Emma Porter Perkins Scholarship in memory of Mr. Perkins' wife, the scholarship (interest earned on the bequest of $7,500) is available to a student entering the university with high junior matriculation marks, with preference to students from Carleton County.

Macaulay Weds Prof. Warren

Dr. Althea Warren, former associate professor of biology, and Beverly F. Macaulay, UNB's former business manager, were married during the summer. The wedding took place in Fredericton.

Mr. Macaulay was with UNB seven years before leaving last January to accept an industrial position in Toronto. He was succeeded as business manager by R. Rainsford Henderson.

Prof. Warren resigned from the staff at the close of the past academic year.

Mr. Macaulay was a member of the class of 1928, and Mrs. Macaulay, the class of 1939.

Day Marries Former Co-ed

A former lecturer in forestry, Bob Day, from Oxford, England, and Miss Sue Laverty, a former UNB co-ed from Quebec City, were married May 31 at St. Anne's Parish Church in Fredericton.

Mr. Day came to UNB on a Lord Beaverbrook Overseas Scholarship in 1956, and joined the forestry faculty in 1957 after completing his studies.

Miss Laverty was an arts student from 1955 to 1957. During the past school year, she took a course at the Fredericton Business College.

Mr. and Mrs. Day are now living in Blairmore, Alta., where Mr. Day is employed by the federal government.—PETER KENT

Canada Council Gives $6,500 Aid To Culture

The Canada Council has made two grants to promote cultural development at UNB. The grants total $6,500.

The first, amounting to $5,000, is to bring a well-known artist, poet, musician or other creative figure to the campus for one year. The visitor, as yet unnamed, will carry out his own work and at the same time try to stimulate the arts at the university.

The second grant, set at $1,500, goes to the university's poetry magazine, Fiddlehead. The money is to help the editor, Prof. Fred Cogswell of the English department, expand both circulation and contents of the periodical.
