—A number of Chinamen had been claudestinely landed on the shore of Cane Reston. The customs officer at Sydney detailed the defendant to look after the matter, who with the aid of the Sydney police rounded them up and put them in prison. Their names were unknown, and no warrant had been issued. Subsequently a warrant was issued, but no offence having been disclosed, the prisoners were discharged. Another information was then laid, and these men were again put in custody, and the County Judge convicted them, but the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia discharged the prisoners. Eight of them now brought actions against defendant for false imprisonment. No malicious prosecution was alleged. Damages awarded plaintiffs. Chen Fun v. Campbell, 7 E. 1. B. 147.

Claim for restitution of moneys to trust fund — Rechequer Court Act, s. 16 (4).— Biserction of Superintendent-General-Aurisdiction of Exchequer Court to interfere — Crown as trustee—Effect of treaties.]— A claim against the Crown based upon s. 111 of the British North America Act, 1867, and upon Acts of the legislature of the province of Canada, is a claim "arising under any law of Canada," within the meaning of clause (d) of s. 16 of the Exchequer Court Act. Yule v. The Queen, 6 Ex. C. R. 123, 30 S. C. R. 35, referred to 2. Where the Court has mo jurisdiction to grant relief in an action, it has no authority to make a declaration binding the rights of the parties. This rule should be strictly followed in all cases where the jurisdiction of the Gourt depends upon statute and not upon common law. Barractough v. Brown, [1807] A. C. 623, referred to 3. It does not follow that hecause the Crown is a trustee the Court has jurisdiction to enforce the trust or to make any decision of the court has jurisdiction to enforce the trust or to make any decision of the court has jurisdiction to enforce the trust or to make any terestee. Into authority, it is exists, obusted to be found in the statutes which give the Court Jurisdiction. The real question in such a case is not whether the Coven may of more access in our whether the Coven may of more jurisdiction with respect to the execution of the trust. 4. While under the provisions of certain treaties and of certain statutes of the legislature of the province of Canada and of the Parliament of Canada, the Crown stands in the position of trustee for the Indiana in respect of certain lands and moneys, such position is not that of an ordinary trustee. The Crown does not personally exsente the trust; the Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs having, under the Governor in council, the management and central of such lands and moneys. For the mamer in which the affairs of the Indiana are administered the Doubtston Government and the Superintent, and Parliament alone has authority to review the decision arrived at or the action taken by them. In all such cases the Court has no jurisdiction to review their discretion. Then there is this further difference between the Crown as a trustee and an ordinary trustee, viz., that the Crown is not bound by estoppel, and no lackes can be imputed to it; neither does it answer for the meligence of its officers. 5. Under the treaty of the 28th February, 1820, there is nothing to prevent the Crown from making provision for the maintenance of the Mississauga Band of Indians out of any capital moness arising of surrown-surface leasing or other dississation of surrown-substitution is to pay the Mississaugas of the Credit a fixed annuity cannot be impaired by any departmental adjustment of the Indiana funds to which the Indiana

O. 1897 c. 91, s. 5. The Medical Act does not in terms profess to be applicable to Indians, and the question was really whether it could be interpreted as applicable to them, not whether it was ultra, viros if applicable to them. Rev. V. Hill, 15 O. L. R. 406, 11 O. W. R. 20.

Half-breed — Indian Act — Band — Repute.)—The Indian Act, R. S. C. c. 43, defines (s. 2 h) "Indian" as meaning inter alia "any male person of Indian blood protect to have actually belonged to a particular band."—Held. (1) against me of full interval of the person of Indian blood as parter patterns — that a half-breed of Indian blood as parter patterns — that a half-breed of Indian blood." (2) Arainst the contention that the defendant having been shewn to have actually belonged to a particular band, this disproved, or was insufficient to prove, that he was reputed to belong thereto—that the intention of the Act is to make proof of mere repute sufficient covidence of actual membership in the band. (3) Against the contention that by virtue of s. 11 the mother of the defendant by her marriage to his father, who was a white nan, ceased to be an Indian, and that therefore the defendant was not a person of Indian blood — that while the mother lot therefore the defendant was not a person of Indian blood — that while the mother lot the rehardered of a Indian by such marriage, except as stated in that section, it did not affect her blood which she transmitted to her son. Regina v. Hoteson, 1 Terr. L. R. 492.

Intexienting liquor — Sale — Knonelegg of licensee—Hall-hread.]—Section 94 of the Indian Act (R. S. C. 1886 c. 43) products that "Every person who sells, exchanges with, barters, supplies or gives to any Indian or non-treaty Indian, any intexicant shall on summary conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months:"—Held, following Regime v. Horson, 1 Terr. L. R. 492, that a half-breed who has "taken treaty" is an Indian within the meaning of the Indian Act. A conviction of a person licensed to sell liquor, for the sale of an intoxicant to such half-breed was, however, quashed, because the licensee did not know and had no means of knowing that the half-breed shared in Indian treaty payments, Mens rea must be shewn. Regima v. Mellon, 22 C. L. T. 343, 5 Terr. L. R. 301.

Sale of intoxicating liquor to—Quarter-bred alleved to follow Indian life—In-dian Act — Mens reg — Conviction—Notice of appeal. — A quarter-breed is as much entitled to purchase intoxicating liquor as a white man provided be does not come within the amendment to the Indian Act by 57 & 8 V · 2 32 s. 6.—The defendant was convicted for selling intoxicating liquor to an Indian, but the evidence shewed that N, the alleged Indian, was a quarter-breed, and there was nothing to shew that the defendant knew or had reason to suspect that N, was reputed to belong to a particular band or followed the Indian mode of life:—Held, that the conviction must be quashed.—Held, also, that the notice of appeal was sufficient, being in accordance with s. 879 et seq. of the Code, which governed in the absence of any provision in that behalf in the Indian Act. Rew v. Hughes, 12 B. C. R. 290, 4 W. L. R. 431.

—The locate of Indian lands is, except as against the Crown, in the same position as if the land had been granted to him by letters patent, and can assign his interest in the land or in the timber. Actual notice of such an assignment, even though the assignment has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Act, is sufficient to prevent a subsequent assignme from obtaining priority. Judgment of Ferguson, J., 6 O. L. R. 370, 2 O. W. R. 738, 23 C. L. T. 287, affirmed. Bridge v. Johnston, 24 C L. T. 316, 8 O. L. R. 196, 4 O. W. R. 36.

R. S. C. 1906, c. 55, and in August, 1901, when she was under 18 years of age, received a certificate shewing that she was so entitled. The father of the plaintiff, in her presence, on the 25th November, 1901, when she was still under 18, sold the certificate or scrip to the defendant. The plaintiff swore that she objected to the sale and expressed her objection to the defendant, but that her father gave the evidence, that the plaintiff was a willing party to the sale, and received the beneath of at least a portion of the money paid by the defendant; and the defendant became lawfully entitled to the possession of the scrip.—The plaintiff was, however, an infant under the age of 18, and any dealing with her scrip could, on her attaining her majority, be repudiated. — Descreted "— Payment for maintenance.]
—The law of this province knows nothing of is not legally binding upon them.-By R. S. O. 1897, c. 259, s. 12, where the parent of any child applies to the Court for an order for is of opinion that the parent has abandoned or deserted the child, or that he has otherwise so conducted himself that the Court should refuse to enforce his right to the enstody of the child, the Court may, in its discretion, decline to make the order.

—Held, that "abundoned" and "descried" involve a wilful omission to take charge of the child, or some mode of dealing with it calculated to leave it without proper care; and leaving a child with those who had contracted to take proper care of it could not be called "abundonment" or "desertion," nor could the subsequent act of giving up all claim to the child.—Therefore, where the parents of an infant placed her in charge of a stranger, agreeing to pay for her maintenance, and afterwards signed an agreement to give up all claim to the child. Custody — Children's Aid Society — Foster porent — Magistrate's order transferring custody to another society—Failure to notify foster parent — Subsequent proceedings based on order — Halyas corpus—Children's Protection Act, ss. 7 (17, 30.]—Pursuant to an order made by a police magistrate, under the authority of the Children's Protection Act of British Columbia, an inflat was committed to the custody of the Children's Aid Society of Vancouver, and a few months later was placed by that society with P. as her foster parent, pursuant to s. 7 (1) of the Act. More than a year afterwards another society, upon notice to the Children's Aid Society of Vancouver, but without notice to P., applied to the same manistrate and obtained an order for delivery of the child so that society, and the same and obtained an order for delivery of the child so so of a different religion from that of the first society. Upon that application it transpired that the child had been placed in a foster home, but an officer of the first society who appeared before the magistrate, refused to state where the child was. The second society ascertained later that she was with P., and obtained an order for a writ of habeas corpus directed to P., and issued and served the writ. P. made a return to the writ, produced the child, and moved to the writ, produced the child on moved to

Custody — Ruhts of father — Fitness—Religious faith—Temporal velfare of child—Abandoment.]—Tpon an application by the father of a girl of 11 years for an order against the maternal grandmother for delivery of custody, it was shewn that the mother of the child was dead, that the child had lived with the grandmother since she was 3 years old, and had been brought up as a Protestant, while the father had become a Roman Catholic and desired to educate the child in that faith:—Held, upon the evidence that the applicant was not an unfit person to have the custody of his daughter; that there was no agreement that the child should remain with the grandmother always or until her death, and the father had not abandomed his percental rights; that the child that she would have a better home and a better education in her father's house than with her grandmother; that it would be for her advantage to be brought up in the same home with her only brother; and that no case had been made out which would justify a refusal to give effect to the father's right to the custody of his child.—While the welfare of the infant is in one sense paramount, the paternal right to custody and control is supreme, unless a very extreme case can be made out shewing that it is imperative for the protection of the child that the Court should interfere with that right.—The relucance of the Court to separate brothers and sisters is very grent.—It is the duty of the Court to enforce the wishes of the father as to the religious education of his children, unless there is strong reason for disregarding them. The Court has jurisdiction to interfere, even against the father's wishes, to prevent the religious convictions of his child being interfered with; but the circumstances must be such as to satisfy the Court that there has been an abandoment or abdication of the paternal right, or at least that the training of the child has imbuned it with such deep religious conscictions that to distance of the constitution of the paternal right, or at least that the training of the child has imbuned it with such deep religious conscictions that to distance of the constitution of the child has a properly of the constitution to the case of a child simuted any of the constitution to the case of a child simuted education was order of Auxilia, J., affirmed. Guardian — Family council — Domicil — Territoria jurisdiction of Superior Court — Resignation — Discharge — Procedure— Action — Petition, — The domicil of the guadianship being considered as unchange— she during the whole course of the guardianship, a meeting of the family council to settle certain differences between the guardian and the infants must be held in the district where the guardianship was created, and not in the district in which the guardian lives—2. The guardian having entered on his office cannot voluntarily and upon his own initiative resign by offering to do so before the family council, even if the council is of opinion that another member of the family is better qualified to fulfil the duties of the guardianship.—3. A guardian having entered on his office may demand his discharge by means of a simple petition.—4. A demand for revocation of the guardianship must be made by action and not by petition. Aubin v. 8t. Onge, 10 Que. P. R. 13.

Guardian — Infant residing abroad — Property in Quebec — Action against infant — Service of process — Pro-lutor — Petition to set asside appointment.] — Action may be appointed for minors domiciled in the province of Quebec, if they have property in the latter province.—A guardianship of property or special guardianship will not be created simply for the purpose of suing a minor, when there is already a tutor appointed, seeing that it is always upon the tutor, properly speaking, and not upon the pro-tutor, that process in the action must be served—One who has been thus appointed guardian of the property of infants may refuse to accept the office and apply to set aside the proceedings by a simple petition, without recourse to an appeal. Boucher v. Boucher, 34 Que. S. C. 215, 9

Guardian — Married woman,]—A married weman will not be appointed sole guardian of the person and estate of an infant. Re Freeze, 26 C. L. T. 385, 3 N. B. Eq. 172.

Guardian — Percut — Periofamilistica - Interest of infant, — The guardinaship of an infant of 8 years of are will be awarded to his father, where he is a solver man, has employment, and is consider of beinging up the child well; and this even when the father has previously abandoned the guardinaship to a third person, who is a drunk-ard, a quarreller, and leading a scandalous life, Prouts v. Prouts, 10 Que. P. R. 131.

Guardian — Petition to obtain possession of the effects — Opposition and set decided — U. P. 62/1.]—The guardian is not obliged to represent the effects esteed during the time an opposition is still undecided, and a petition on his part to obtain possession of the effects will not be granted. Laverdure, University (1010), 11 Que. P. R. 223.

Guardian — Removal — Grounds.]—If on any ground, a tutor can be deprived, even temporarily, of the guardianship of his wards, it will only be for grave reasons. Fitz Allan v. Reiutord, 5 Que. P. R. 387.

Guardian — Removal.]—It is a ground for the removal of the guardian of the persons of infant children that he has removed out of the jurisdiction of the Court. In re Lawton Infants, 3 N. B. Eq. 279, 1 E. L. R. 201.

Guardian — Removal — Superior Court

Guardianship — Administration by the guardian — Inability of the guardian to take his ward's goods at a revalal. —The law forbidding a guardian from buying or taking his ward's goods at a rental is absolute. Hence the appointment of a guardian "ad hoc" on the advice of the head of the family and his acceptation by the prothonotairs to effectuate the renting to the guardian of his ward's real estate and the lease made in consequence, are all stamped with a radical defect. Belanger v. Beauchamp, 38 One. S. C. 1.

Habeas corpus — Confinement in industrial school — Jurisdiction — Recorder—Mayor, — Habeas corpus will lie to set at liberty an infant detained in an industrial school, when the sentence of confinement pronounced by the recorder has not been requested by the mayor, as required by Art. 3140, R. S. Q. Aron v. Les Dames de l'Asile du Bon Pasteur, 7 Oue, P. R. 207.

Habeas corpus — Paternal authority— Confinement.]—An infant has a right to petition for habeas corpus, where his liberty is restrained. — Paternal authority over a child as to discipline and the choice of a school or institution in which to educate, or even temporarily confine, the child, is absolute; and the Court will not interfere by habeas corpus on the child's behalf. Macdowald v. Macdonald, 14 Que. K. B. 339.

Hightimate child under seven years—Custody — Rights of mather — Rights of father — Welfare of innat.]—The puttive father of an illegitimate boy, in whose custody the child was, who was under seven years of age, was allowed to retain the boy on an application for his possession by the boy's mother. Re Bestuciek & Austin, 11 W. L. R. 73.

Interest in land under will—Approval by Tourt of settlement.)—Under G.'s will Ik, was to have the use of a certain room and to have his residence remain a home for her until she married. The administrator of the devisee of the land on which the residence was situate agreed to pay $800 for a release. The adults interested in the estate approved. A Court order was issued approving on helnif of the infant, and reciting the adults' consent. Re Bastedo, 12 O. W. R. 1087.

Judgment by default against—Excution—Febre imprisonment—Contract of sale — Passing of property — Trespass.]— An exception issued out of a magistrate's court on a judgment by default against an infant on his promissory note is a good answer to an action for false imprisonment under the execution.—An infant can not maintain trespass for taking property held by him under a contract of sale with the defendant, which stipulated that the property should not pass until payment, where there has been a default in payment of part of the purchase money. Metiane v. Fisk, 38 N. B. R. 354, 4 E. L. R. 512.

Lease — Repudiation at majority—Partition — Partites — Treant in common — Meeme profits — Damagos.]—The plaintif, while an infant, joined with an adult brother and sister in a lease to the defendants of a park property, of which all three were tenants in common, for a period of tenyears. The defendant pulled down some old buildings, put up pavilions, made roads and paths, turned is into a pleasure ground, ran a branch of their electric railway into it, and hought crowds of people there. During the term the plaintiff came of age, and at once repudiated the lease, refusing to be bound by it, and effected a partition with the other two tenants in common of the land, to which the defendants were not partition with the other two tenants in common of the land, to which the defendants were not partition with the defendant were not partition was binding, or for a new partition between him and the company; for a declaration that the lease was not binding on him, and that he had been excluded from possession; and for meane profits and damages:—Held, that the partition made could not be declared binding on the company, who were not partites to it.—Held, also, that the brother and sister were not necessary parties to any new partition between the plaintiff and the company.—Held, also, on the evidence, that the company's conduct in the use of the park was practically an exclusion of the plaintiff from any use he might make of it, and that he was entitled to recover messe profus from the time he became of age, and damages; and a partition was ordered between him and the company for the residue of the term. Judgment of Meredith, C.J., 1 O. W. R. 25, reversed. Monro v. Toronto Rec. Co., 22 C. L. T. 231, 4 O. L. R. 33, 1 O. W. R. 316, 313, 2 O. W. R. 207, 3 O. W. R. 14, 290, 4 O. W. R. 302.

Legacy — Payment at age of 18—Payment into Court — Payment out—Discharge —Official guardian.] — Notwithstandling a direction in a will that a legacy is to be paid to a legace when she reaches the age of eighteen, the executor is not bound, in the absence of a provision that the infant's discharge shall be sufficient, to pay the legacy to her upon her attaining that age; but there is no reason for applying the rule where the legacy is in the hands of the Court, no discharge being in that case required; and in a proper case an order will be made for payment out to the infant upon her attaining that age, with the privity of the official guardian. Re Robertson, 17 O. L. R. 568, 13 O. W. R. 208.

Legacy — Payment into Court—Surrogate guardian. Re Laughlin, 2 O. W. R. 1140.

the period mentioned for payment of the gracy. The gift of an immediate share in the residue indicates a fund or source from which maintenance was derivable, but not in such form as to preclude recourse for maintenance to the interest upon the legacies. But it should be taken into consideration in dealing with the allowance to be made for maintenance out of the interest of the legacies, having regard to their shares of the residue and the income derivable therefrom, they are entitled to have recourse to interest on their legacies, but only to that extent. It follows that the order was proper at the time it was made, and that the whole sum of $8,000 must be set apart to provide maintenance, if necessary. But that sum was manifestly arrived at without reference to the income from the infants' shares in the residue; and the question of the proper amount to be allowed, having regard to such shares and the time when they were ascertained, should be now settled by the Master unless otherwise agreed upon. Re McIntyre, V. London & Westlern Trust Co., 5. O. W. R. 137, 6. O. I., R. 439.

Marriage — Pleading.] — An infant emancipated by marriage has the right to appear in Court, either as a plainti\(\tilde{a}\) or defendant, without the intervention of a guardian, in a personal action.—2. The defendant pleading his minority, it is proper for the plaintiff to reply the emancipanton. Cloutier v. Cloutier, 2 Que. P. R. 397.

Married woman — Party to action — Authorisation — Husband — Curator.] — An infant, being a married woman, may appear in Court in a personal action (ct mobilier), without other assistance and authorisation than that of her husband, made a party for that purpose, and has no need of the assistance of a curator. Galerneau v. Bertrand, 20 Que. S. C. 283.

Money in Court — Application for payment out for majntanance—Fosts to be she're—Persons to be notified—Pertition.]—
The administrator of an estate in distributing it paid into Court $590, the share of an infant, one of the next-of-kin of intestate. The infant now applied for an amount to be paid out necessary for her support and maintenance, she being in ill-health and unable to work—Held, that the application could be naturalned if brought in proper way by petition duly verified, setting out amount in Court, in what way she is next-of-kin, the country of the proper share of the property of the pro explained.—The applicant's counsel requested that the Official Guardian be appointed to sue on behalf of the infant. By the King's Bench Act., x. S. 2 at, the Official Guardian, besides acting as guardian ad litem for infants, under Rules of Court and other orders, is to nerform such other duties as the Court or a Judge may from time to time direct:—Held, that if the Court has power to direct the Official Guardian to bring an action on behalf of an unfriended infant, the power should be very sparningly used a successful defendant could not be compelled to pay the costs of the unsuccessful next friend, in addition to bearing his own costs. The Official Guardian could not be appointed without his consent to assume the ordinary responsibility attaching to the position of next friend. One of the objects of having a next friend is to give security to the defendant for costs. Re Sturgeon (1911), 16 W. L. R. 415, Man. L. R.

Next friend—Father out of jurisdiction—Security jur cots—New acxt friend.]—Motion by defendants to stay the action unit the planting should name a next friend in the jurisdiction or give security for costs. The plantiff sued by his father as next friend; both resided in the province of Quebe, as appeared by endorsement on the writ of summons:—Held, defendants entitled to their order. The next friend of an infant plantiff stands in the same position as any other litigant. Any indulgence is given to the infant and not to the next friend.—If, for any reason, the infant's father does not wish to give security, and no other person can be found in the jurisdiction willing to act, then, as was said in Taylor v. Wood, 14 P. R. at p. 456, the Court has power to appoint the official guardian to act as next friend in the case of commendable liquidion. Tutor — Removal — Grounds — Insolvency — Inmovality — Action — Interior of the Interior — Code — Insolvency is not a sufficient ground for the removal of a father from the office of tutor to his minor children, more especially where it is not established that his insolvency is the result of misconduct, dishonesty, or inespecity—2. A person cannot be deprived of the tutorship of his children on the ground of immorality unless it be notorious, that is to say, the acts with which the tutor is reproached must be known to a large number of persons, and be the subject of common talk. However opposed to the principles of morality the conduct of a tutor may be, he cannot be removed from office so long as the knowledge of his confluct for extraction of the person and property of the minors, and he cannot be treath the administration of the person and property of the minors, and he can only be dispossessed thereby by an order made by the Court under the provisions of Art. 289, C. trial by plainion. The notice of motion to continue:—Held, that it need not be by summons and notice was proper. It was urged that the exports injunction had been improperly granted, it naving been withheld that plaintiff had registered a carced against the property in question. The injunction would have been granted even if the Court had been informed of the carcett. It was prudent to obtain the injunction to preserve the ventor's lien; a Rs penders would have been of no use. Bushford v. Bott (1990), 12 W. L. R. 429.

Nuisance — Injunction to restroin — Breach—Motion to commit.)—An injunction had been granted restraining defendants from using their factory so as to cause noise and vibration to be felt in complainant's house which adjoined the factory. Defendants then removed their machinery to a building 29 feet from the factory, leaving the steam engine in the factory, such by a shaft 35 feet long running underground connected the machinery with the engine and couldness to use the state of the Object of suit attained — Discontinuaare — Costs — Expense of complying with order, |—A plaintiff, in a naction of damages for a wrongful publication against the author of it, who obtains an interim injunction ordering the publisher, mis on cause, but not as a joint tori-fensor, to suppress the publication, and who, having attained his object by the execution of the order, discontinues his suit and pays the costs, is further liable to the publisher for the expense of so complying with the injunction. Bell Telephone Co. v. Canada Asbestas Co., 29 Que. S. C. 104.

Obstruction of river — Removal—Dismiscal of sail — Fosts — Assessment of damages—Remedy at low.] — The plaintiff was prevented from driving his lumber down a tributary of the Saint John river by the closing of the passage by a pier and boom erected by the defendant in connection with his saw mill, and by logs of the defendant.
The defendant was the owner of both sides of the river. The sain was for a mandatory injunction to compel the removal of the pier, hooms, and logs so as to open up and to keep open a passage for the plaintiff's lumber, and for an assessment of damages. The bill was filed and motion heard on the 23rd May,
two days before the passage had been opened:
—Held, that the injunction in respect of future obstruction should be refused, and the plaintiff left to recover his damages, if any, in an action at law, but that the bil should be dismissed without costs; the plaintiff to have costs of obtaining and serving an interium lajunction obtained in the matter, Watson v. Patterson, 23 C. L. T. 28S.

Parties — Action — Practice [--], Injunction proceedings can be taken against parties to a suit only.—2. Such suit may be instituted simultaneously with the application for the injunction.—3. The service of a petition of notice of any kind, without a writ, does not suffice to constitute the person upon whom such service is made a party to a suit. Paradis v. Paradis, 19 Que. S. Cl. 375.

Patents for invention — Action for infringement of patents and breach of contract— Invalidity of patents — Liveuse—Interiminjunction, I—Plaintiff moved for interiminjunction to restrain defendants from infringing plaintiffs—patents for certain inventions relating to the manufacture of glucose, maltose, modified starch, etc. Motion enlarged before trial Judge as evidence was of technical character and so conflicting as not to justify issuing an interim injunction. Duryea v. Kaufman (1910), 16 O. W. R. 800, 1 O. W. N. 1127.

Payment of money to debtor — Request for useignment—attrachment of debts.]
—Where a cryditor approach at certain sum of money due to the debtor (where as refused to assign for benefit of creditors) will, if paid to the latter, be placed where creditors cannot get at it, be is not entitled to a judgment restraining the person who owes the debtor from paying to him and the debtor from receiving; his only remedy is by garnishing proceedings. Darker v. Lynn, 17 Que. S. C. 220.

Peremptory writ — Petition — Trial —Patent for invention, —A petition for a peremptory injunction cannot be heard before the regular and ordinary trial of the action, and cannot be the subject of a special early hearing, even in an action for the infringement of a patent. Consolidated Car Heating, Co., v. Caine, 2 Que. P. R. 401.

Personal services—No injunction to restrain.]—Injunction, like any other remedy borrowed from foreign systems of law, is subject to the fundamental rules of the civil law, and particularly to the rule that no one can be compelled to do or not to do something. Hence, it does not lie to prevent one who has hired his services to another, even by an exclusive agreement, from hiring them to a third party. Under Art. 1056 C. C., the violation of such an obligation only gives rise to an action in damages. Pitre v. National Amateur Athletic Assoc. (1910), 20 Ouc. K. B. 41.

Petition — Invendment.]—Under Arts and 180 a writ of injunction can issue only upon a petition supported by affidavit, but that does not prevent the perition being amended after the issue of the yrit unbeing amended after the issue of the yrit unbeing is not to contradict or withdraw any of the allegations of the petition upon which the order for the issue of the writ was based. And in a case where the amendment was supported by affidavit, a motion to set it aside was refused. Royal Electric Co. v. Morrice, 2 Que. P. R. 563.

Petition — Municipal corporations Resolution — Final judgment — Separate hearing.]—An interlocutory injunction was issued upon a petition made as an incident in a pending cause, whereby the annulment of certain resolutions of the police committee and of the council of the defendant city corporation was prayed for—the petition, besides praying for an interlocutory injunction, praying also for the annulment of said resolutions:—Held, that under Art. 908, C. P., the conclusions of a petition for injunction, other than those upon which the interlocutory injunction issues, are to be adjudicated upon by the final judgment which at the same time adjudicates upon the merits of the petition for injunction, separately from the main action. Martin v. City of Montreal, 17 Que. 8, C. 95, 2 Que. P. R. 475.

Practice — Ontario Rule 57.1 — As interim injunction had expired, motion to continue refused. Reith v. Rainy River (1900), 14 O. W. R. 530.

Preservation of rights — Change in premises, |—The object of an interim injunction is to maintain the status quo between parties until it shall be otherwise ordered by the Court; no provision of the law authoriess the issue of an injunction to change the condition of the premises occupied by the parties, Houle v. Beaumier, 9 Que. P. R. 110.

President of a mining company elected at annual meeting — Directors removed the president and elected defendant in his stead. |—Paintift had been elected president of Peterson Luke Silver Cohalt Mining Co., Limited, at the annual meeting, and subsequently by vote of the directors removed and the defendant elected in his stead. Then this motion was made to restrain defendant from acting or assuming to act as president of the company, until the next annual meeting:—Held, that the motion should stand for heaving as a by-law of the company seemed to give the directors power to remove officers of the company. Steindler v. Maclaren (1909), 14 O. W. R. 647.

Prevent transfer of property.]—The Court will not, at the instance of a nonjudgment creditor, interfere by injunction to prevent a transfer of property by debtor. Fairchild v, Elmslie (1900), 2 Alt. L. R. 115.

Prohibition by-law — Publication of the requisition — Delays — Interested parties—C. P. 957; R. S. O. (1888), 1998, 1998, 1999, 1999, 1—A demand for an interlocutory injunction to restrain a municipal corporation from holding a public meeting to consider a by-law imposing prohibition for irregularities must be directed against the corporation and its secretary treasurer, and not against the signers of the requisition—An interested party may ask for that interlocutory injunction before the vote is taken on that prohibition by-law—The publication of the requisition by-law must cover four full weeks; the publishing of it once a week upon any day of the week during four consecutive weeks is insufficient. Moir v. Huntingdon (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 319.

Railway — Order of Board of Railway Commissioners—Supreme Coart—Co-ordinate jurisdiction—Appeal—Sixy of proceedings.]—In an action by a municipality for an injunction against a railway company to restrain the second of Railway Commissioners had made an order authorising the railway company to divert a portion of the said road and construct their line between certain points of such diversion. The trial Judge decided that the municipality could maintain such an action only by the Attorney-General as plaintiff:—Held, on appeal, while the Court had jurisdiction to grant all proper relief, the Board of Railway Commissioners having dealt with the matter, the plaintiffs should apply to the Board for relief, as they had complete control over their order. Delta v. Vancouver, Victoria & Eastern Rue, & Navigation Co., 14 B. C. R. 83, 9 W. L. R. 238, 467, 8 Can. Ry. Cas. 362.

Receiver — Balance of convenience— Company,1—An application to continue until trial an interim injunction granted exparte, and to appoint a permanent receiver, was dismissed, where the plaintiff right of it appeared that the injury that would be consistend to the defendants by the granting of the injunction and the appointment of a receiver, if the plaintiff ultimately failed, would be very great, while that which would result to the plaintiff by its refusal, if he ultimately succeeded, would be comparatively small. Application of this principle to an incorporated company. Reynolds v. Uryubart, 5 T. L. R. 413.

Repetition of slander — Public entertainment — Imputation of murder.] — Injunction granted until the trial to restrain the defendants, who professed to be mindreaders, from pretending to give information at their public entertainments as to the cause of the death of the plaintiff's husband, intimating as they had done at such entertainments, that he met with his death at the hands of a supposed friend, and thereby suggesting the idea that his late partner and the plaintiff were concerned in the matter, Monson v. Russand, [1891] i Q. B. 671, referred to. Quirk v. Dudley, 22 C. L. T. 388, 4 Q. L. R. 532, 1 Q. W. R. 637.

Restrain defendants dealing with notes or proceeds thereof — Payment into Court-Rule 1096.]—Payment into Court under Rule 1096 was refused where defendant C. beld proceeds of a note which she had cashed, as it could not be said any sum would assuredly go to plaintiff or that the case would probably result in plaintiff's favour so as to warrant transfer of money from defendant to the Court. McDonald v. Curran, 13 O. W. B. 272.

Restraining civic committee from enquiring as to whether an employee of a municipal corporation was a Free Mason. Portier v. Guerin (1910), 12 Que. P. R. 108, Restraining disposition of property before judgment — Extending statutory remedies — Fraudulent disposition of property.]—Semble, per Richardson and Wetmore, JJ. (Rouleau, J., dissentiente). that a plaintiff is not entitled before judgment to an interim injunction to restrain a disposition of property by a defendant. To obtain any relief of that nature before judgment, a plaintiff must make out a case within the statutory provisions dealing with garnishee and attachment proceedings:—Held, by the Court, that in this case the material was in any event insufficient, and that no injunction should be granted upon it. Pacific Investment Co., Sisan, 3 Terr. L. R. 125; 20 Ct. I. T. 132.

Restraining public corporation from performing its serks.].—An injunction will not lie to restrain a public corporation, such as the Harbour Commissioners of Montreal, from carrying on statutory works in discharge of their trust, even though such works should interfere with, or obstruct, the operations of a public utility (i.e., drainage), by the municipality in which they are performed. More particularly will such be the case, if it be particularly will such be the case of it consequences is obstructed danger of ill consequences is obstructed to the monicipality to operate the utility (i.e., to extend its sewers), through their works, in any manner approved of by their engineers. Maisonneuve v. Harbour Comrs. of Montreal (1910), 39 Que, S. C. 36.

The defendants sought to take some of this gravel and plaintiffs applied for an injunction:—Held, that they cannot succeed, they not having possession, the gravel belonging to the Crown. Edmonton v. Cristall (1969), 12 W. L. R. 562.

Right to — Contract — Municipal corporations — Street railleass — Performance of work — Irreparable injury — Britisch — Identical — In Where one of two parties to a mine. — In Where one of two parties to the contract, he has specially reserved the right to do, the other party to the contract is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the doing of the thing, on the ground that the work is proceeding in a way which indicts more damage than would be caused if another method, more expensive, bad been adopted. So, in the present case, the defendants, who but had reserved the right to the plantiffs, but had reserved the right to the plantiffs of the streets when necessary for road operations, were not bound to adopt a more lengthy and expensive though less injurious method of performing the work. — 2. In order to obtain an injunction in such circumstances, where there had been no invasion of a legal or equitable right, it must be established that irreparable injury will be caused if an injunction be not granted. — 3. A temporary includes the contract of the property of the

rived satisfaction from the thought that the exercise of their rights would cause the plain fiffs damage, yet malice alone does not open any right of action, where, as here, there was a real intention to accomplish the work, and the defendants were eating within their right. Loss of guest's property — Deposit of traceller — Negligence — Damagae, 1—A person who prolongs his stay at a hotel and menains for a month or more, is a traveller within the meaning of Art. 1233 (4), C. C. and can prove by witnesses that he left his luggage in the hotel. He can do this also by clause I of the same article, because a hotel keeper is a tradesman (commercant), and the deposit of luggage a matter relating to trade. A hotelkeeper who places the luggage of a traveller in a baggage room, which is not under lock and key and open and accessible to every one at all times, is guilty of negligence within the second exception of Art. 1815, C. C. The loss of luggage, in these circumstances, renders him liable not only for the $200 mentioned in that article, but for the full value. Judgment in Greene v. Windsor Hotel Co., Q. R. 26 S. C. 97, affirmed. Windsor Hotel Co. v. Greene, 14 Que. K. B. 56.

Loss of guest's property — Negligence— Contributory negligence.]—On the plaintiff's arrival at Winnipeg, be delivered some luggage to the driver of a transfer company, to be taken to the defendants' hotel, to which the plaintilf walked, and at which he registered and was assigned a room, to which he took his value. The driver brought the luggage, but in a place not visible from the office, and informed the elerk in the office that he had done so. The hotel was crowded, the city was unusually fall of visitors, persons going to and from the hotel bar passed the place where the parcels were, and it was not in a safe place for mwatched is a parcels there how the contribution of the injury of the place where the parcels were, and it was not in a safe place for mwatched is a parcels there how the contribution for the injury to the document of the contribution of the next day he noticed that the parcels were not in the hall, but said nothing about it until the third day, when he asked for the parcels. They could not then be found, and the presemption was that they had been stolen. Notiter the defendants nor any of their screams had paid any attention to the parcels or moved them in any way:—Held, per Richards, J., that the parcels got into the custody of the defendants when the driver who brought them reported to the hotel clerk that he had done so; that the plaintiff was justified in assuming, when he saw the parcels in the hall, that they were being cared for by the defendants, and that, when he missed them the next day, be had a right to make the parcels in the hall, that they were being cared for by the Dagrage room; and that he had not been guilty of such negligence as to discretize the parcels when the next day, be had a right to reduce the parcels, when he saw then the parcels, when he saw them lying in the hall, and taking no steps to have them removed to a safer place, as to relieve defendants from their common law limits of the plaintiff of the plaintiff was found to the plaintiff was dismissed without costs. Beneficiary — Application — Incomplete gift — Traat — Act to secure to wives and children the benefit of life insurance — Declaration. — C. made a written application to an accident insurance company for $2,000 accident insurance, the policy "to be payable in case of death by accident under the provisions thereof to M." wife of the deceased. The company issued its policy, payable to the representatives or assigns of the assured. M.'s name was not mentioned in the policy, neither was there anything in it to indicate neither was there anything in it to indicate an inistratrix of C., brought on a M., as at ministratrix of C., brought on the $2,000. The action was afterwards settled by the company paying the $1,000 now in dispute to the administratrix in discharge of the policy. that the administratrix should account for 81,800 as assets of the estate, and on behalf of M., that she was the sole beneficiary under the policy, and the money formed no part of C's estate. It appeared that it was not the practice of the company in a case of this kind, notwithstanding the terms of the application, to issue a policy payable to the beneficiary named therein, but they held themselves bound, in case of death, to pay the amount due to the beneficiary named three application. It also appeared that C. told M. that the policy was payable to her, and he gave it to her when he took it out. The Judge held that the money paid under the policy belonged to the estate of C. From this decision the administratrix appeared Held, that there was no complete gift inter-circus of the policy and fund to M. from her handled and declared in her favour. Apart crowded and declared in her favour. Apart from 58 V. c. 25, no interest would not complete it, and there was no trust created and declared in her favour. Apart from 58 V. c. 25, no interest would be policy and it C. wished such interest to pass he must have left the money to her by will or settled it upon her during his life. The Act 58 V. c. 25, for securing to wives and children the benefit of life insurance, does not apply to accident insurance. The application can not be said to be a declaration under the Act, as under s. 6 the policy must be in existence before there can be a declaration affecting 10. Cornwall V. Hallfax Banking Co., 25 N. Construction of policy-Contract for one year - Continuation or renewal-Period (1)-Authority of agent. |-Section 148 (1) (I)—Authority of agent.]—Section 148 (1) of the Insurance Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 203, is not applicable to a contract of insurance which the assured has no right to continue or renew without the consent of the insurers; commonly contracted-for grace given to the assured to renew, after forfeiture or default, a contact renewable, or not, at his will.— In this case a policy of accident insurance by mutual consent; and it was held, that had happened to the assured, from the effects of which he died two weeks later, accepted not for such purpose. Death of assured by drowning -Proof of condition of assured-Influence of expired-Payment of money into Court-Admission of cause of action-Waiver. ]-One of the terms of an accident insurance policy at the moment when last seen, about 9, he had become considerably more soper, though still noticeably under the influence of in-toxicating liquor. There was nothing to shew the exact time when he met his death. Six months after the day when he was last seen, his dead body was found in the Red river, and the inference was that he had river, and the interence was that he had been accidentally drowned, and probably on that day:—Held, per Richards, J.A., in an action by the administrator of the estate of the deceased upon the policy, that, while the onus was on the defendants to prove a de-fence based on the above term of the policy, that onus was discharged by the evidence given; and the finding of the trial Judge, who tried the action without a jury, should, on that issue, be reversed—the facts not being in dispute and the appellate Court being in as good a position as the trial Judge to form an opinion thereon. — Condeau v. American Accident Co., 25 S. W. R. 6, distinguished.—Per Perdue, J.A., that the trial Judge properly found that the onus had not been satisfied .- Condition 6, which by the policy was made a condition precedent to the right to recovery, required written notice of the death, with particulars, to be given to the defendants within 10 days thereof; "and any failure to give such notice and and any latture to give such notice and particulars shall invalidate and render void all claims under this policy." The plaintiff and beneficiary had no knowledge of the death till the discovery of the body, 6 months afterwards:—Held, per Richards and Perdue, JJ.A., that the notice was a sufficient compliance with the condition.—Cassel cient compliance with the condition.—Casse: v. Disability - "Immediately disable" -Causation or time — Notice of accident — Condition precedent.] — An accident policy issued to the plaintiff contained a contract that "if accidental injuries shall immediateafterwards, when he notified the defendants, the insurers:—Held, that the word "im-mediately" in the contract had relation to causation and not to time, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover, Williams v. Co., 91 Wis. be immediately given to the company at the office in Montreal, and "that if in any other respect the conditions of this insurance are disregarded all rights hereunder are forfeited to the corporation."—Held, that the giving of notice forthwith was not thereby made a condition precedent to the right of recovery on the policy. Shera v. Ocean Acc. & Guarantee Corp., 21 C. L. T. 138, 32 O. R. 411.

"External violent and accidental means" — Death by drowning—"Contra proferentem."]—British Columbia Full Court dismissed an appeal from judgment at trial in favour of plaintiff in an action on an accident policy. Deceased while fishing fell, no one being present, in shallow water, and was drowned. The jury found deceased had been rendered unconscious by a fall, therefore through accidental means and not by a fit. Contra proferentem applies. Young v. Maryland, 10 W. L. R. S.

"Immediate notice."]—A condition in the event of injury, immediate notice should be given in writing, and failure to give such notice should be given in writing, and failure to give such notice should invalidate all claims:—Held, that a notice two months after the accident was sufficient where it was given as soon as serious injury from the accident was apprehended.—Held, also, that the notice given was, under the circumstances, sufficient, although written notice was not actually served upon the insurers. Warne v, London Guarantee & Accident Co., 20 C. L. T. 227.

Information withheld by insured—Previous issurance—Cancellation or surrenceder—Facts material to risk—Jury — Misdirection.]—A policy of needent insurance was issued upon an application containing a warranty that the applicant had not withheld any information which was calculated to influence the decision of the directors as the application even and a warranty that no accident policy issued to him had been cancelled by any company. The plaintiff had effected previous insurance, which, on a settlement of a disputed claim, was put an end to during its currency with the consent of the plaintiff, but at the request of the company, the uncarrency with the consent of the plaintiff, but at the request of the company, the uncarrency with the consent of the plaintiff, but at the proper question for the jury was whether the withholding of this information was in fact material, and it was misdirection to tell the jury that they were to consider whether the palaintiff believed it material; that the putting an end to the policy with the consent of the plaintiff was a surrender and not a cancellation, and was not a breach of the warranty that no policy issued to him had ever been cancelled. Smith v. Dom. of Can. Acc. Ins. Co., 36 N. B. R. 300.

Locomotive engineer — Total and permanent loss of sight — Practical blindsess—Rules of benefit society.]—Plaintiff held an accident policy in defendant society. His eyesight was badly injured, practically a loss of sight so far as being an engineer. Defendant's rules required a total and permanent loss of sight, and refused to allow plaintiff sight he hampered by the loss of vision, yet he was not totally and permanently blind, and while it was a hard case nearly blind, and while it was a hard case law to help him out. Action dismissed with costs. Copidand v. Locomotive Engineers' Ins. Assoc. (1910), 16 O. W. R. 739, 1 O. W. N. 1089.

Married woman—Absence of authorisation — Void contract — Action on, by husband — Terms of policy.]—A contract of insurance against accidents by a married woman, even one who has no community of property with her husband, must be authorised by the husband, and if such authorisation is wanting the contract is absolutely void: Arts. 177, 183, C. C. 2. Therefore, the husband cannot bring an action founded upon such contract of insurance. 3. In this case the policy of insurance upon which the action was brought, stipulated that the insurance company should pay an indemnify of the policy and therefore there was no right of action. Beneficiary — Supposed wife — "Dependent"—Fifter of payment into Court.]— The plaintiff was the wife of Philip Crosby, deceased, having been married in 1869. In 1886 the deceased went through a second ceremony of marriage with the defendant, who did not know that she was marrying a man whose wife was living. In 1990 the deceased made an endorsement on his certificate of insurance in a benevolent society, revoking his former direction as to payment, and directed payment to be made to "Mary Iball, otherwise known as Mary Crosby," The defendant was the holder of the certificate, and claimed the money as a "dependent" of deceased:—Held, that the defendant, having lived with the deceased, believing herself to be his wife, and being supported by him, was, under one of the rules of the society, No. 174, entitled to the fund as a "dependent" of the deceased:—Held, also, that although the society had not stood upon their strict rights, but had paid the money into Court to be dealt with by the Court, that fact did not affect the rights of the parties, which must be determined according to law, and not ex equo et bino, Croably v. Ball, 22 C. L. T. 324, 4 O. L. R. 495, 1 O. W. R. 545.

Friendly society — Registration — Certificate — Reneficiary — Change by will — Rules — Conflict with Insurance Art.] — "The Catholic Order of Foresters" we incorporated in the State of Illinois, and had brunches in Ontario, and in 1842 became registered as a friendly society in Ontario under the provisions of the Insurance Corporations Art. 1862, and had since kept and had not at any time been registered as an insurance company. A member of one of the Ontario branches was the holder of a certificate of the society, whereby they promised to pay to the defendant, a brother of the holder, $1,000, upon satisfactory proof of his death. The holder was resident in Ontario; the application for the certificate was made in Ontario; and the certificate was wadelivered in Ontario. The holder made a will whereby he bequenthed the certificate was delivered in Ontario. The holder made a will whereby he bequenthed the certificate to the wife of one of the plaintiffs, naming the plaintiffs executors: — Held, that the Order were leasily entitled to do business in Ontario; that the certificate in question was a contract of insurance. Contract — Alteration after execution—Agent—Authority.]—A local agent of an English insurance company, without authority from any one, upon the request of the assured, and after some correspondence with the chief agent for the company in Ontario as to other changes which had been refused, to the knowledge of the assured, altered an employer's liability policy which had been sent to him for delivery to the assured by making it comprehend the workman at a place other than those named in the policy, and then handed it to the assured, who paid him the premium. He then sent the premium to the chief agent for Ontario, and advised him at the same time of the alteration made. The power to make any change in the policy did not rest in the local agents nor in the chief agent for Ontario, but only in the manager and attorney for Canada, who was not notified of the alteration:—Held, that the company could not be considered to have authorised the alteration and were not bound by the contract as altered. He was injured by the fall of a goods elevator and recovered $1,500 damages against plaintiffs on the ground that it was negligence on the part of a company to employ a boy contrary to the prohibition of the Ontario Factories Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 256, s. 3 (5). Plaintiffs then brought action against defendant company to recover amount paid Jones, claiming under an Employers' Liability Insurance policy issued plaintiffs by defendant company. Defendants contended that they were relieved of liability by a clause in the policy to the effect that the insurance did not cover injuries caused or received by any child illerally employed with the knowledge of the insured —Held, that the plaintiffs had no knowledge that Jones was under the age of 14 years, and was employed contrary to the provisions of said Act, and that the defendant company was liable to repay plaintiffs amount which they had paid Jones, See S. C. 11 O. W. R. 828, 12 O. W. R. 269. See, also, Jones v. Mortos, 14 O. L. R. 402. Morton v. Ontario Acc. Ins. Co. (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1010, 1 O. W. N. 199.

After the fire but before action, the B. policy was assigned to the same bank.—Held, that the bank was not a necessary party to the action on the T. policy, but was in the B. policy action, and submitted to be added as defendents. Foreral class were delivered by plaintiff to the defendants on the St. April and completed proofs on the 1th May. The actions were commenced on the 10th June:—Held, that as the first proofs were insufficient the actions were premature, and defendants were allowed a set-off of costs against the amount of loss allowed to plaintiffs. National Stationery Co., V. British Am. Assoc. Co., National Stationery Yo., V. Traders Fire Ins. Co., (1909), 13 O. W. R. 367, affirmed, 14 O. W. R. 261, 281.

Application—Answers by soliciting agent—Diagram of premises—Immaterial misdescription—Attention in use of building—Unoccupied house. —A statement in an application for insurance that "if answers to the question are made by the agent of the considered for those purposes the agent of the applicant and not that of the company," must be construed strictly, and cannot therefore be extended to a diagram of the premises made by the agent on the back of the application—2. A statement in an application that a diagram on the back of it disclosed the exact situation of the property insured, when it shewed another building as distant 30 feet instead of 23, and the company charged the premium at a higher rate, such as would have been charged had the distance been correctly given, is not a material misdescription sufficient to wifiate the policy.—3. statutory condition "That the terms shall be deemed to be in accuratione with the application unless the defendants point out in writing to the assured the particulars wherein the policy differed from the application."—Falconbridge, C.J.K.B., dissenting, held, on the facts plaintiff estopped by his laches, gross carelessness and acquiescence. McCutcheon v. Traders Fire Ins. Co. (1911), 19 O. W. R. 275, 2 O. W. N. 1336.

Application — Untrue statement — Materiality—Statutory condition,—In an application for insurance against fire, to the question "Have you ever had any property destroyed by fire?" the applicant answered, yes. "Give date of fire, and, if insured, name of company interested," "1892. National and London and Lancashire." The evidence shewed that there was a fire on the applicant's property in 1882, and two fires in 1892, and the insurance granted on this application was on property which replaced that the strength by the latter fires:—Held, related that the above questions was one of the latter fires:—Held, related that the above questions was not properly which replaced that the above questions was not properly which risk, and the answers untrue. The first statutory condition, therefore, precluded recovery on the policy. Western Assurance Co. v. Harrison, 33. S. C. R. 473.

Application for policy—Warranty—Addition to statutory conditions.1—Every statement in an insurance application was, by a provision in the policy, made a warranty. This provision being an addition to the statutory condition, the terms of R. S. N. S. c. 147 must be compiled with, to make the warranty effective. McNutt v. Western Assurance Co., 40 N. S. R. 375. Apportionment of loss — Concurrent policy, Davidson v. Insurance Co. of North America, 2 O. W. R. 621.

Appraisement of loss — Agreement — Arbitration — Notice to parties — Necessity for — Award set aside.]—An agreement for the ascertainment of the amount to be paid by an insurer to the insured, called an "appraisement bond," is in reality a submission to arbitration, and the rules prescribed by Arts. 1431 et seq. C. P. C., are applicable to it, as well as to the subsequent proceedings of the appraisers, who are in reality arbitrators, and not amiables compositeurs. Therefore, the default by them to give notice and the subsequent of the subsequent is a violation of Art. 1436, which involves the nullity of their award, Judgment in 28 Que, S. C. 68 reversed, Beauharnois v. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co., 15 Que, K. B. 235.

Apprehension of incendiary danger—Application filed in by local agent—Untrue anaerer.]—An application for insurance on the contents of a barn contained the question. 'Is there any incendiary danger threatened or apprehended," to which the answer was, "No." The plaintiff, who had not previously carried any insurance, staring learned that the effected the insurance, having learned that the owner of the barn had placed a high insurance of it, as well as on the adjacent dwelling-house. This was told by the plaining to the company's agent, who filled in the application and the answers to the questions. The application was then signed by the applicant, who was not an illiterate man, but he did not read over the application, and was not told that the question had been answered in the negative:—Held, that the plaintiff was bound by the answer to the question, as inserted in the application, it being material to the risk, and that it was untrue, for the reasonable inference was that the apprehension of incendary danger as a fact existed. R. 358, and Chatillon V. Canadion Method Fire Ins. Co., 27 C. P. 450, considered and Fire Ins. Co., 27 C. P. 450, considered and commented on—Quere, whether the inquiry raised by the question was not as to the apprehension of the applicant of incendiary danger, and not whether, as a fact, any incendiary danger, and not whether, as a fact, any incendiary danger, and not whether, as a fact, any incendiary danger was to be apprehended. Kniseley v. Br., Am. Assec. Co., 21 C. L. T. 117, 32 O. R. 376.

Arbitration as to loss—Terms of submission — Estimate of value — Powers of arbitrators — Misrepresentation — Functus officio — Setting axide avard — Assignment under Collection Act — Effect of.] — An agreement was entered into between the plaintiff and the defendant company for the appointment of two arbitrators to appraise the loss to property damaged and destroyed by fire, the arbitrators appointed being empowered to select a third, who should not with them in matters of difference only—The arbitrators first appointed made an arbitrators first appointed made an estimate of two comply with one of the face being empowered to comply with one of the face being entired to the comply with one of the face being terms of submission, in failing to make an estimate of the value of goods actually destroyed, or to determine the sound value of goods and destroyed—Held, that when the award was signed the authority of the arbitrators cased, and that it was not within the power of either of them to re-open it or deal further with the matter; that the fact that one of the arbitrators was misled by his co-arbitrator in connection with the signing of the award, if true, would form good ground for an application to the Court to set it aside, but did not justify him in good ground for an application to the Court to set it aside, but did not justify him in another award difference within the meaning of the award, the flat of the court of the award difference within the meaning of the award the plaintiff made an assignment under the Collection Act to a bank, which subsequently reassigned to the plaintiff. In the meantime, before the reassignment, the plaintiff made an assignment, also under the Act, to M., who notified the company—Outer, whether the action could be brought in the name of the plaintiff, and whether any legal interest properties of the plaintiff, and whether any legal interest properties of the plaintiff, and whether any legal interest properties of the plaintiff, and whether any legal interest properties of the plai

benefit of etained by 4—Effect T company ce for the urred and defendants set up the defence that clause 4 of the statutory conditions voided the policy. That clause provides that "If the property insured is assigned without the written permission of the company, the policy shall be void," but this condition does not apply to a change of title by succession or by the operation of law, or by reason of death." There was no consent and the assignment did not come within the exception.—Middleton, J., held (16 O. W. R. 1004, 2 O. W. N. 59), that the words of this condition must be construed strictly and all that they prohibit is an absolute assignment which divests the insured of all his property in the goods, and by which he does not retain to himself an insurable interest. That here there did remain a beneficial and insurable interest in the assignor, his debts were to be paid and the residue was to be held in trust for him. Judgment for plaintiff for $2,402 and interest from time when it became payable, and costs.—Court of Appeal dismissed defendants appeal with costs. Mercellit, J.A., dissenting. Wade v. Assignment of policy — Formallities—Notice to insurers — Admission — Representation of value of goods insured—Fraud—Undiscoload insurance — Proof of claim—Undiscoload insurance — Proof of claim—Time — Waiter, I—A transfer of a contract of insurance, by a private writing made in duplicate, signed by the transferor and transfere in the presence of two witnesses, is good and valid. 2. The admission of the debtor that he received a duplicate of such transfer is a sufficient signification (1571, C. C.). An estimate by the insured in round figures of the value of the stock, at the time of the application, should not be considered a ground of nullity, unless it contains such an exaggeration as A. The fact that an interim receipt had issued for an insurance and the company, which insurance was afterwards declined by that company, does not establish a plea of undisclosed insurance. 5. The time limit for furnishing statement of loss is waived by a letter from the company to the insured, dated after the expiration of the delay, and enclosing a blank form of policy in order that the insured might know exactly what it was necessary that he should do. Western Assec. Co. v. Garland, 12 Que. K. B. 530.

Avoidance of policy—Untrue answers of sawred — Fires on premises — Knowledge of agent of insurers — Agent filling up application.]—Action on a fire insurance policy dismissed. In the application the insured said there were no fires on the premises. This turned out to be untrue. Plaintiff claimed that defendants' agent knew there was, but this the agent denied. The agent had filled up the application, therefore he was agent of insured, not of company. Parsons v. Alberta-Can. Ins. Co. (Sask.), 10 W. L. R. 161, 2 Sask. L. R. 76.

Breach of statutory condition—Subsequent insurance —Notice — Knowledge of sub-agent — Dismissal of action on policy—Helund of premium, —Hy a condition of a policy of fire insurance (statutory condition No. 8) the insurance company were not to be liable if any subsequent insurance were effected unless and until the company should assent thereto, etc. A subsequent insurance was effected by the insured, and no notice was effected by the insured, and the fact of the existence of the non-approximation of the insured premises were injured by fire:—Held, that the circumstances that the subsequent insurance was effected by a sub-agent of the company such and the fact of the experimental content of the company and the prior insurance with the company should not be recarded as affecting the company with constructive notice of the subsequent insurance—An action upon the policy being dismissed, the company were ordered to refund the last payment of premium, which was received in ignorance that the policy was no longer in force. Imperial Bank v. Ropal Ins. Co., 12 O. L. R. 519, 8 O. W. R. 148.

Builder's risk—Building in "course of construction"—" Vacant or unoccupied"—
Knowledge of company—Higher premium charged — Estoppel — Insurable interest—Question of fact.]—Action to recover $2,000 on an insurance policy in plaintiff's favour as second and third mortgagee. Defendants plended: (1) that the buildings were not in course of construction, but were really abancourse of the course of construction the insurance was void under 4th additionable insurance was void under 4th additionable insurance was void under 4th additions; (3) that plaintiff had no insurable interest in the property, it not being worth more than the insurance in favour of first mortgagee.—Falconbridge, C.J.K.B., gave effect to the first ground of defence and dismissed plaintiff's action.—Court of Appeal, held that the evidence as to the facts did not substantiate defendant's pleadings. Appeal allowed and judgment entered for the plaintiff, Meredith, J.A., (dissenting), agreeing with Falconbridge, C.J. Dodge v, Fork Fire Ins. Co., (1911), 18 O. W. R. 241, 1 O. W. N. 1088, 2 O. W. N. 551

Cancellation—Notice — Statutory conditions.]—The insured sent to the company his policy with an indorsed surrender clause executed, and a letter asking that the insurance be terminated and the uncerned promisdirection by the insured, the letter was delayed in the poet office and did not reach the company till the morning after the insured property had been destroyed by fire:—Held, that the letter did not take effect from the time of its being posted, but only from the time of its being posted, but only from the time of its receipt, and that the relationship of the parties had been so changed by the occurrence of the fire before its receipt that the attempted surrender did not operate, and therefore the company were limited to the company with the statument of the company were limited to the company with the statument of the company were limited to the company with the statument of the company were limited to the company with the company were limited to the company with the company with the company were limited to the company with the company with the company were limited to the company with the Co-insurance clause — Time of taking effect.]—In an action for recovery of a fireloss, upon a policy which contained a condition worded as follows: "It is a part of the consideration of this policy and the consideration upon which the rate of prenium is based, that the assured will maintain insurance concurrent with this policy, on all the items of the property insured by this policy to the extent of at least eighty per cent, of the actual cash value thereof and that in default of the insured soding, the insured default of the insured soding, the insured will become co-insurer or the amount in default, and in such event shall bear his portion of the losses which may supervene :—

Held, that the value to be considered in applying the condition, was the value of the items of the insured property at the time of the loss and not the value at the date of the contract. Guardian Assec. Co. y. Trempe (1910), 16 R. de J. 431.

Co-insurance condition.]—Where the premium is reduced in consideration of the insertion in a policy of fire insurance, in the manner prescribed by the Ontario Insurance Act, R. S. O. c. 203, s. 169, of the condition commonly known as the "co-insurance condition," that condition is prima facte valid, and should not be held to be "not just and reasonable" within the meaning of s. 171 of the Act, without evidence to that effect; Burton, C.J.O., and Moss, J.A., dissenting.—Judgment in 29 O. R. 695, 18 C. L. T. 361, affirmed, Eckerdt v, Loncathire Ins. Co., 20 C. L. T. 297, 27 A. R. 373.

Concurrent policies — Contribution to loss — General and special insurances. —An insurer of a stock of mechandise under a general policy, who has to contribute to a loss with insurers under special policies, each upon a part of the same stock, is liable in proportion to the loss in each part. For this purpose the general policy is divided into as many parts as there are special insurances and proportionately to the losses on each, and each such part contributes ratably with the special insurances. Bloomfeld v. London Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 1 Q. R. 29 S. C. 143.

Condition—Certificate of magistrate Weiver — Proofs of loss,—A policy of five insurance contained a condition provided in seasoned, in case of loss, to precure restricted as to the matters contained in the statement of loss under the hands of two magistrates most continuous to the place of the five. A further condition provided that no condition should be deemed to have been waived unless the waiver was expressed in writing indorsed on the policy—Held, per Tuck, C.J., Hanington, Barker, and Gregory, J.J., that the production of the certificate of the magistrates most continuous to the place of five was a condition precedent to the assured's right to recover. Per Landry and McLeod, J.J., that the magistrate most continuous within the meaning of the condition, though not the nearest in point of distance in those place of the five. Per curium, that it there is the most condition without host hence the policy, the acceptance of the proof of lost by the continuous without molorsment on the recomplex without objection, was not as every Ralme v. Condition for notice of additional naurance—Brackh.—H. insured in the defendant company's office, the policy containing a condition that if any additional insurance should be effected, notice must be given the company, of the policy to be void. When the company's agents took the application plaintiff objected to this condition and the agents told him he could insure in some other company, but it did not appear that they told him he need not give notice of such other insurance. Plaintiff effected other insurance of which he gave no notice. Plaintiff's property having been burnt, he brought an action on the policy, and the company pleaded (1) that plaintiff was not interested to the amount insured, (2) that plaintiff delivered a fraudulent account that plaintiff delivered a fraudulent account insurance, (4) that defendant was directly fraud to make the policy. The jury did not find a verdier for either party but found a special state of facts from which the Court should direct for whom the verdiet should be entered:—Held, (Peters, J.), that the condition as to notice of subsequent insurance had not been waived by the neats of the agent and that the verdiet must be entered for defendant or want of notice, and for plaintiff on the other pleas. Haydon v. Stadecom lance, Ca. (1877), 2 P. E. I. R. 242.

Condition in policy as to salvage in case of fire—Failure by the insured to comply with the conditions of the policy that he conditions of the policy that he will use all means in his power to save the goods insured, in case of tire, is a bar to his right to resever any insurance at all. Condition of nolicy — Gunpowder on premises — Stock-in-trade — Usage, Folcy v. Norwich Union Fire Insce, Society, 40 N. S. R. 624.

Condition of policy—Notice and proof loss.— Weiver by insurer — Representations.— Finding of trial Judge.— Appeal, —The condition in policy of insurance against fire, that notice and proof of loss must be given within a stated delay, is not one of liability but of recovery, and is imposed in the interest of the insurer. The assured may therefore be relieved from it either expressly, or impliedly, e.g., by the insurer putting him off when applying for a settlement, on the ground that the insurer is himself investigating the circumstances of the loss.—2. The finding of the trial Judge, in such matters as the representations by the assured as to the value of the property insured and the extent of the loss, will not be interfered with on appeal when the evidence is contradictory. Mount Royal Ins. Co., v. Benott, 15 Que. K. B. 90.

Condition requiring occupation of premises—"Untennated," meaning of, I—A condition in a policy of fire insurance that "if the premises insured become untennated or vacant, and so remain for more than ten days without notifying the company," etc., "the policy will be void," is a reasonable condition, and the word "untennated" therein must be read as synonymous with "unoccupied." Where, therefore, the occupant the furniture and clothing therein, while a person went there to feed the pigs and chickens and water the flowers, and on two occasions the insured's husband slept in the house, it was held that the house was untenanted and vacant within the meaning of the condition. Spahr v. North Waterloo Formers' Mutual Fire Inz. Co., 20 C. L. T. 177, 31 O. R. 525.

Conditional purchase of real estate — Legitimate interest in conscring the thing — Right to insure — False declarations and failure to disclose.]— The purchaser of real estate by a sale (wrongly described in a deed as a lease) with a condition suspending the passing of the property until the full payment of the price has a legitimate interest in protecting it, which gives him the right to insure it against fire.
Hence, the statement in his application for insurance that he is the owner is not a false declaration nor a concealment which might affect the validity of the policy, Donaldson v, Providence Mutual Fire Assoc. Co.
(1900), 36 Que. S. C. 439.

Conditions—Limitation of risk—Amount of loss — Arbitration, 1—1. Where it is a condition of the polley that the total insurance on each item of the property insared shall not exceed two-thirds of the cash value of such item, and that notice shall be given of all previous insurance effected by the insured on the same property, and it appears that the insurance exceeds two-thirds of the cash value, and that other insurance, on two items, to the amount of $100, exists without having been declared to the company, the policy is not appeared to the company, the policy is not spire, the amount of the damages shall be determined by arbitrators, and that no action shall be brought until the amount of the loss is so determined is a legal condition. Phoroad v. Laucushire Ins. Co. 18 Que S. C. 35.

Conditions-Prior insurance - Abandonment — Subsequent insurance — Interim receipt — Estoppel.]—B., having a policy of insurance for $2,000 in the M. Co., wrote to D., a sub-agent of the R. Co., that he was going to abandon that insurance, and insure in the R. Co. for about $3,000. B. gave D. his note for $51 and paid him $25 in cash. and D, sent B, the usual interim receipt of the R. Co., promising the subsequent issue of a policy which was to be subject to the conditions indersed on the receipt. One of these discounted the note and in due course ac-counted to the R. Co. for the full amount of The goods insured were destroyed by fire before the maturity of the note, which B, paid at maturity. No formal application for the insurance was signed by and sent to D., who did not, however, deliver it to B. In actions brought upon the two policies by the assignees of B.:-Held, that B,'s statement that he was going to abandon he insurance in the M. Co. was not merely an expression of intention, but was a term or condition that affected the very existence of the proposed insurance in the R. Co., which was not to become effective until that condition was fulfilled, and, as B. never did so abandon, there never was any effective insurance on his goods in the R. Co.; and therefore the M. Co. could not set up the conditional contract of insurance in the R. Co., as a bracch of the statutory condition against a subsequent insurance. Commercial Union Assec Co. v. Temple, 29 S. C. R. 206, and Western Assec. Co. v. Temple, 31 S. C. R. 373, followed. Whitla v. Royal Ins. Co., Whitla v Manitoba Assec. Co., 22 C. L. T. 69, 72, 206, 14 Man. L. R. 90.

Implied ascent — Adjustment of loss —
Mairer, 1—n an application for insurance, particulars of prior insurance in two other companies of $8,000 in each company were given, but in the policy in question prior insurance for only $4,000 was assented to, neither company being named. The defendants pleaded as a breach of the statutory conditions non-disclosure of prior insurance for $4,000 in one of the two companies:—
Held, that the plen must be read strictly and without amendment of the two companies:—
Held, that the plen must be read strictly and without amendment of the prior insurance for $4,000 in one of the two companies:—
Held, that the plen insurance of $4,000 might be treated as an assent to the prior insurance complained of in the plen; and semble, that had the defendants not intended to assent to the prior insurance of $8,000, they would have been bound under the second statutory condition to point out in writing the particulars wherein the policy differed from the application—Held, also, that to a subsequent insurance for $4,000, in another company, in substitution for a prior insurance to that amount in one of the two companies mentioned in the application, the assent of the defendants was not necessary, surface is sufficient even if given after the loss has occurred. In this case such assent was held to be sufficiently shewn by the defendants joining in the adjustment of the loss and allowing the insured to accept from the subsequent insurers their proportion of the loss as so adjusted. Mutkmor v, Waterloo

O. L. R. 606, 10 W. R. 667.

Conditions — Sale and unconditional owner — Mortgagor — Other insurance — Estoppel, 1—A policy of irre insurance contained a condition that if the insured were not the sole and unconditional owner of the property, the policy should be void. At the time the policy was issued there was an according to the contained of the property of the policy should be property of the policy was such as a more result of the policy of the property. While the policy was in force, the insured's son, without his knowledge, applied to another insurance company for a policy on the same property, but, before he was notified of the acceptance of his application, the property was destroyed by fire—Held, following Commercial Linion Assurance Co, V. Temple, 29 S. C. R. 203, that the policy was not avoided—Held, also, that the plaintiff was not under the circumstances arising at the trial, estopped by his admission in the declaration from claiming that there was no other insurance. Temple v. Western Assec. Co., 21 C. L. T. 427, 31 S. C. R. 373.

Conditions - Subsequent insurance -Destruction of property insured-Sole owner - Mortgagor - Pleading. 1-A policy of insurance against fire contained the following condition: "If the assured have or shall hereafter obtain any other policy or agreement for insurance, whether valid or not, on the property above mentioned, or any part thereof . . . this policy shall become void. unless consent in writing by the company be indersed hereon:"—Held, following Commer-cial Union Assec, Co. v. Temple, 29 S. C. R. 206, that where additional insurance was aphad no application. A mortgagor is the "sole and unconditional owner" of property within the meaning of a condition in a policy of insurance against fire stipulating that the policy shall become void if the assured is a condition that it should become void if any building intended to be insured stood on grounds not owned in fee simple by the as-sured. The land upon which the buildings sured. The find upon which the condings insured stood was subject to a mortgage:— Held that the defence that the lands were not owned in fee simple by the assured mortrepresentation in the application for insurance, in that he stated that the property insured was not mortgaged or otherwise incumbered, whereas, etc., it was mortgaged. Temple v. Western Assec. Co., 35 N. B. R.

Conditions-Variation - Requirements of Insurance Act - Imperative provisions-Exception in body of policy — Negativing in pleading — Proofs of loss — Interest — Value of insured property. |- In an action upon a fire insurance policy, it appeared that tiff's note given for the premium was unpaid. and the defendants relied upon a condition indorsed on the policy that the company should not be liable in such a case. What purported to be the statutory conditions prescribed by the Fire Insurance Policy Act, R. S. M. c. 59, were printed on the back of the policy, and following these, under the heading "Variations in conditions," were several other conditions, including the one relied on, printed in ink of a different colour, but in type apparently of the same size as that of the statutory conditions from the words found in the statute, and the heading prescribed by s. 4 of the Act was omitted:-Held, that the requirements of the statute were inoperative and the plaintiff was not bound by the condition on which the defendants relied, Sly v. Ottawa Agricultural Co., 25 C. P. 28, Sands v. Standard Ins. Co., 27 Gr. 167, and Bellagh v. Royal Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 5 A. R. 87, followed. 2. from the "Royal," and while the interim receipt was still in force the property insured was destroyed by fire and B. had not in the meantime formally abandoned his policy with the Manitoba Assurance Co. The latter policy was conditioned to lapse in case of subsequent additional insurance without the consent of the company. B. filed claims with both companies, which were resisted, and he subsequently assigned his rights to the plaintiffs, by whom actions were brought against both companies: — Held, reversing both judgments appealed from, 14 Man. L. R. 90, 22 C. L. T. 63, 72, 206, that, as the Royal Insurance Company had been informed through their agent, of the prior insurance by B. when effecting the substituted insurance, they must be assumed to have undertaken the risk, notwithstanding that such prior insurance had not been formally abandoned and that the Manitoba Assurance Co, were relieved from liability by reason of such substituted insurance, being taken without their consent; and both companies did not deprive him or his assignees of the right to recover against the company liable upon the risk. dwelling-house against loss or damage by dweiling-nouse against loss or damage by fire to the amount of $1,000:—Held, upon the evidence, that the household goods de-stroyed or injured by fire were the property of the plaintiff.—The plaintiff claimed for the loss of furs and wearing apparel of a woman who lived in the house with him, and was said to be his wife: there was some was said to be his wife; there was some doubt about this; and the defendants alleged that the articles belonged to the woman, and that she kept a house of ill-fame. The plaintiff swore that he was her husband, and that he supported her. — Held, that the Court was not concerned as to the validity of the plaintiff's marriage, and that the plaintiff had an insurable interest in the articles. Semble, that allegations as to the character of the woman should have been stricken from the record as scandalous and irrelevant .-Held, on the evidence, that although there connected with the fire the defendants had wilful act or procurement and connivance of the plaintiff.—Held, also, that proofs of loss were duly furnished; and that inflation of the value of the goods destroyed was not fraudulent to the extent of vitiating the policy. — Held, also, that keeping a small quantity of gasoline upon the premises for domestic purposes did not avoid the policy under statutory condition 10.-Thompson v Equity Fire Insurance Co., 30 C. L. T. 807 (Privy Council), followed.—Held, also, that a clause in the policy providing for arbitration in the event of a difference as to the amount of the loss did not make an arbitration a condition precedent to the bringing $400. Contract - Authority of agent - Subagent - Notice of termination of authority.] -Delegatus non potest delegare. the defendants were held not bound by a policy signed by the general manager and countersigned in the name of one who had been their agent, by one of his clerks, but though the insured may not have known of the cessation of the agency. The policy contained a stipulation that it should be valid lised agent of the company. Walkerville Match Co. v. Scotlish Union Co., 24 C. L. T. S. 6 O. L. R. 674, 1 O. W. R. 647, 2 O. W. R. 1016.

Contract - Lex loci-Lex fori-Principal and agent — Payment of premium — Interim receipt — Repudiation of acts of sub-agent.]—The lexi fori must be presumed to be the law governing a contract, unless the lexi loci be proved to be different. The appointment of a local agent of a fire insurance company is one in the nature of a delectus personw, and he cannot delegate his authority nor bind his principal through the medium of a sub-agent. Summers v. Com-mercial Union Assurance Co., 6 S. C. R. 19, followed. The local agent of a fire insurance company was authorised to effect incountersigned by himself, on the payment of the premiums in cash. He employed a canvasser to solicit insurances who pretended to effect an insurance on behalf of the company by issuing an interim receipt countersigned by him (the canvasser) as agent for the company, taking a promissory note payable in three months to his own order for the amount of the premium :-Held, that the canvasser could not bind the company by a contract on the terms he assumed to make, as the agent himself had no such authority. Held, further, that, even if the agent might be said to have power to appoint a sub-agent for the purpose of soliciting insurances, the employment of the canvasser for that purpose did not confer authority to conclude contracts, to sign interim receipts, nor to receive premiums for insurances, Canadian Fire Ins. Co. v. Robinson, 22 C. L. T. 8, 31 S. C. R. 488.

Contract - " Valid in Canada"-Policy in company not licensed in Canada - Premium.]-A contract to procure fire insurance is some office valid in Canada, means. ada, and a premium paid under such a contract may be recovered back, as upon a failure of consideration, if the insurance is effected without the knowledge of the insured in a company not so licensed. Barrett Elliott, 24 C. L. T. 344, 10 B. C. R. 461. Barrett v.

Contract of re-insurance - Limitation clause imported from original policy—Construction — Unreasonable and inapplicable clause.]—In a contract of re-insurance which was engrafted on an ordinary printed form of fire insurance policy, and incorporated all its terms, there was a clause which purported to prohibit an action thereon unless commenced within twelve months next after the fire:-Held, that, having regard to the true construction of the contract, which carelessly purported to include many conditions inapplicable to re-insurance, the above clause must also be regarded as inapplicable. Such a clause is reasonable in the original policy, where the assured can sue immediately on incurring loss; it cannot apply where the insured is unable to sue until the direct loss is ascertained between parties over whom he has no control.-Judgment in Victoria-Montreal Fire Ins. Co. v. Home Ins. Co. (1907), 25 C. L. T. 3, 35 S. C. R. 208, reversed. A. C. 59, 16 Que. K. B. 31.

Failure to state prior insurance—Renewal of policy — Effect of.] — Where, at the time of effecting an insurance against fire, there was a prior insurance in force, and no statement thereof was made, either in the application or policy issued thereon, the renewal of such policy, without any such statement being then made-such prior insurance having then expired-does not validate the policy, for the renewal constitutes merely a continuation of the policy, and not a new insurance. Foreign company not registered in Foreign company not registered in Ontario — Cause of action cognicable in Ontario—Place of payment — Ontario Insurance Act, s. 132—Rule 162 (c)—Delivery of policy of agent of assured—Prohibited confract—Insurance Act, s. 85.] — Defendants were incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware, and their home office was at Wilmington, in that State, but the president and secretary reside in Chicago, where the policy was executed. George Wilson & the policy was executed. Georze Wilson & Co., of St. Catharines, applied for this policy through one Nairn, an insurance broker ear-rying on business in Montreal. According to the evidence of the president of defend-ants, taken under commission, Nairn was not an agent of defendants, nor had they any Canada, By order of a Divisional Court (3 O. W. R. 372), it was directed that defendants should be allowed to enter a conditional appearance, and that plaintiffs "do prove at the trial of this action a cause of the defendants within the province of Onthe decenoants within the province of On-tario," No place of payment was named in the policy. In Clark v, Union Fire Ins Co., 10 P. R. 313, 6 O, R. 223, it was decided that where no place of payment was menoffice of the company was situated. The evidence bearing upon the delivery of the policy consisted of that of the assured, Wilson, who swore that he received the policy through the president of defendants that the policy was delivered to the assured's agent, Mr. Nairn. The evidence does not disclose whether such delivery was made personally in Chicago or by mail in Montreal :- Held, that the provision in s. 143 of the Ontario Insurance Act, son in s. 145 of the Omitro Insurance Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 203, as to committing a policy to the post office "to be delivered or handed over to the assured, his assign or agent in Ontario," contemplates a committing to the post office of the policy by the insurer, addressed to the insured, his assign or agent stances such as those in this case. Further, that the provision in such event that the moneys should be payable at the office of the chief officer or agent in Ontario, shews that the section was intended to apply to companies having an officer or agent in Ontario, and not to a company which has in no way brought itself or its business within the limits of Ontario. There was no evidence of any request or authority from defendants to Nairn to forward the policy to Wilson, and there-fore the plaintiffs have failed to shew that the policy in question was, by or with the authority of defendants, committed to the post office to be delivered or handed over to the assured, his assign or agent in Ontario, and therefore plaintiffs have failed to prove a cause of action upon which they are entitled to sue in Ontario. The address of the insured was not given in the policy, which simply insures "George Wilson & Co." for the term of one year against loss by fire, to the amount of $1,000, to the property therein de-scribed, located at St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada, loss, if any, payable to the Quebec Bank; and there was nothing in the evidence to shew that defendants knew that Wilson & Co. resided at St. Catharines. Even if it were intended by defendants that the policy should be delivered to the insured at St. Catharines within the meaning of s. 143, then the plaintifs have not proved a cause of action for which they are entitled to sue within Ontario. Action dismissed with costs. Burson v. German Union Ins. Co., 6 O. W. R. 21, 10 O. L. R. 238.

Forfelture clauses in policy — Non-occupation of premises without notice — Failure to furnish proofs of loss—Bui'ding and plant-Separate insurances - Supervision of premises - Knowledge of agent -Pleading-Cancellation of policy. ]-The tribunal seised of an action for the recovery of fire insurance moneys cannot escape the application of the forfeiture clauses in the policy invoked by the insurers, even where proved that the circumstances in view of which these clauses were framed, have had nothing to do with the origin and develop-ment of the fire. Therefore, an assured who, in breach of these clauses, leaves the insured buildings unoccupied without notice to the insurers, and neglects to furnish preliminary proofs of his claim within the time preproofs of his claim within the time pre-scribed, is deprived of the right to recover the insurance moneys.—2. The forfeiture stipu-lated for in a policy of insurance on a fac-tory and its plant, in the case of non-occu-pation of the building, or cessation of carrying on the work, without giving notice to the insurers, is incurred when, the work ceasing, the building is no longer occupied, even though it is under the constant superdaily by one or the other .- 3. Knowledge acquired by the agent of the insurers of the increase in the risk resulting from the nonthe forfeiture which he incurs by the neglect to give notice to the insurers,-4. The above forfeiture is incurred in regard to the insurance of the plant as well as to that of the the plant incorporated in the workshops or consisting of utensils necessary to its ex-ploitation forms part of it and is immov-able, in the one case by nature and in the other by destination. As to the surplus, even other by destination. As to the surplus, even considering it as distinct from the building, the forfeiture will be none the less incurred by reason of the increase in the risk resulting from the non-occupation .- 5. The insurers, in an action against them for the recovery of the insurance moneys, are not obliged to ask for the cancellation of the policy although they allege the forfeiture. Their defence does not involve the rescission of the contract, but asserts grounds for their being freed from the obligations of insurers, while leaving those of the assured to stand. Masson v. Liverpool & London & Globe Assec. Co., 35 Que. S. C. 455.

Goneral allegation of fraud—Pleading — Duplicity — Amendment allowed dyfedemurre orgued.]—Plaintiff claimed under a policy of insurance against loss by fire and the d-claration averred that immediately after the fire he sent in as particular an account of his loss as possible. The defendants pleaded non actio, because plaintiff did not send in as particular an account of the loss as alleged, and in the same plea added "nevertheless for a plea in this behalf," alleging fraud in general terms. To this there was a special demurrer on the grounds of duplicity, and that the allecations of fraud were too general!—Held, Peters, J., and that the traverse at the beginning of the plea was an introductory part, which was waived as an introductory part, which was waived as ciently specific, as the allected fraud was within the knowledge of the opposite party.—That plaintiff should be allowed to withdraw his denurrer and reply. Hazerd v. Charlottetoen Mutual Ins. Co. (1868), 1 P. E. I. R. 275.

Goods destroyed and damaged by fire — Appraisement — Property included in policy, i—In an action to recover amount of a fire insurance policy, held that "lumber manufactured or in course of manufacture" covered lumber in process of manufacture for cradles and washing machines. Kreutsinger v, Standard Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 13 O. W. R. 753.

Goods destroyed on premises described in policy — Had been transferred to other premises—Later re-transferred to other premises—Later re-transferred to original premises—Assent to transfer by New York agents—Not endorsed on policy —Not ratification after loss—Mistake of fact—Action dismissed with costs. I—An action by plaintif company to recover $2,000 on a policy of insurance on a stock of merchandise consisting of leaf to-bacco, etc., contained in a building in the city of Quiecy, Florida, destroyed by lire.—Sutherland, J., kelf, that plaintiffs deallings mever endorsed on or added to the policy and never came to defendants' knowledge and were not mitfied by defendants.—Action dismissed with costs, Kline Bros v. Dom. Fire Ins. Co. (1911), 18 O. W. R. 876, 2 O. W. N. 917.

Illegal and immoral contract — Premises occupied as a "sporting-house"— Statutory conditions — Variation — Noncompliance with statute as to printing-Unoccupied premises - Agreements for sale -Changes material to the risk.]-In an action on a fire insurance policy the first defence that the policy was void because the building insured was, at the date of the policy, being used as a bawdy-house, being described in the policy as "occupied as a sporting-house,"—Held, that the rule established by Clarke v. Hagar, 22 S. C. R. 510, is that any instrument purporting to pass title and any instrument purporting to secure was in the mind of the vendor the intent and purpose that the property should be applied by the transferee in the accomplishment of the illegal or immoral purposes; but mere knowledge on the part of the transferor of the intent or purpose of the transferee to use the property for an illegal or immoral purpose is insufficient. And a contract for the insurance of a building cannot fairly be taken to be a participating in the purpose for which the thing is used—the purpose being a matter of indifference to the insurer, and one not induced or furthered by the fact of the creation or existence of the insurance. The question of insurance or no insurance upon the building can have no bearing by way of encouragement or otherwise upon the business carried on in the building insured the insurance is wholly collateral to and independent of the immoral business—and the policy was valid as against this objection.—Distinction as to policies of marine insurance pointed out.—The second defence the policy, the building was vacant and unoccupied for a period of 30 consecutive days prior to the fire:—Held, that the addition made to the 3rd statutory condition was not binding on the assured, not being printed in accordance with the provisions of the statute with reference to variations; and, suming that there was a vacancy, that fact was not material to the risk within the meaning of the 3rd statutory condition; and the circumstances of the case did not make it co-Reardess of the case and not make it so.—Reardess of the case and not make a co-Reardess of the first defence was, that, in breach of the 3rd condition, there were changes material to the risk within the control or knowledge of the insured, namely, agreements for the sale of the premises:—Held, that this would not be a breach of the 4th statutory condition, nor a change material to the risk under the 3rd statutory condition.—Sovereign Fire Insur-ance Co. V. Peters, 12 S. C. R. 33, and Trot-ter and Douglas v. Calgary Fire Insurance Co., 12 W. L. R. 672, followed.—Judgment of Stuart, J., 12 W. L. R. 387, affirmed, Morin v. Anglo-Can. Fire Ins. Co. The company refused to pay the claim thus made, upon the ground that poperation has been described by the great fire of the 26th april, 1900. The company refused to pay the claim thus made, upon the ground that poperation the ground that the person who signed the receipt was at the time a duly suthorised agent:

Interim receipt — Estoppel — Statuser productions — R. S. O. 1897. C. 203. s. 1681. — The plaintiffs, through an agent of the defendants, only applied on the 7th November, 1901, for an insurance for one year, and the defendants accepted the risk for one year at a premium of 823.00, and gave an interim receipt, which, however, provided in terms that the insurance should be for 30 days only. On the 30th November, 1901, the plaintiffs paid a full year's premium to the agent, and believed themselves insured for the whole year. According to his usual course of dealing with the defendants, the agent did not pay over the premium to the latter till the 20th January, 1902, and the defendants accepted it, knowing for what it was paid. They did not, however, issue a policy, and affect the first had accurred repudiated lastic the first had accurred repudiated lastic the first had accurred repudiated at the defendants were liable, for, if they included to treat the insurance as terminated at the end of 30 days, it was their plain duty to have so informed the plaintiffs and returned them a proper proportion of the prenum paid; and not having done so they were legally, as well as morally, liable both y virtue of the second statutory condition, R. Misdescription in application—Correction in policy—Rate of premium—Change

-Renewal-Acceptance of premium-Policy in force.]-The furniture in the plaintiff's hotel, consisting of a brick building and a hotel, consisting of a brick building and a frame addition, was insured by the defend-ants for $2,000. The application was dated the 2nd March, 1907, and an interim receipt was issued by the agents on the same day for the premium of $48 for one year from the 20th February, 1907. In the application the building was described as "the brick building only." A policy was issued by the building only." On the 11th Feb-ruary, 1908, a renewal receipt was issued, signed by the Winnipeg manager, for $50, being for the renewal of the policy for 12 months from the 20th February, 1908. The local agent called attention to the fact that the premium should be only $48, and that was the amount actually paid by the plaintiff. With regard to the rate and a proposed change in the policy there was correspondence between the local agent and the man-ager at Winniper, and the former called on the plaintiff, and suggested that the insur-ance should be allowed to stand on the fur-niture in the brick part only, and the agent said that the plaintiff agreed to that. The plaintiff denied it, however. No change was made in the policy, and shortly afterwards $650, made up of $155 on furniture in the brick building and $495 on furniture in the frame addition :- Held, that the policy was not invalid by reason of the misdescription not invalid by reason of the misdescription in the application; there was no mistake on the part of the defendants, and the policy was exactly what was intended by both inwas exactly what was intended by both in-sured and insurers. — Held, also, that the validity of the policy was not affected by what took place between the local agent and the plaintiff, and at the time of the fire it remained effective as regards all the furni-ture in both parts of the building. Malin v. Union Asscc. Soc. (1910), 13 W. L. R. 653.

Misrepresentation.]—In plaintiff's application for insurance the question as to inclumbrances was left blank and was afterwards filled up by defendants' agent in the negative. Property was destroyed, Plaintiff sued defendants for insurance money and defendants refused payment on the ground that the plaintiff's property was incumbered when insurance effected, and plaintiff's failure to answer the question about incumbrances was equivalent to a false answer or misrepresentation. Verdict for plaintiff:—Held, Peters, J., that verdict was properly found. LePago v. Canada Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1880), 2 P. E. I. R. 322.

Misrepresentation by applicant in answer to question — Argument upon C. C. 2368 that fact was already known to insurer—Effect upon such misrepresentation of provision of R. S. Q. 7034 that if application is made out by company's agent it shall be deem to be the sate of the company—R. S. Q. 7028, C. C. 288-2889, —In nauwer I a question in the application "have you (or a question in the application "have you (or if it is a partnership, has one of its mem bers) previously sustained any loss by fire?" the applicant's answer was "no."—In fact, the applicant's place of business, situated in another part of the province, at a considerable distance from the property offered for insurance, had been destroyed by fire about five years before the date of the application for the insurance in question and the applicant had received from the present defendant $500 in settlement of insurance upon such previous loss. It was proved that the fire, which caused the loss sued for, occurred the day after the date of the application made to the defendant's local agent, and that the application had not been sent into the company, though an interim insurance receipt had been given to the plaintiff by the local agent. It was also proved that the application had been made out by the defendant's local agent before having been signed by the plaintiff:— Held (a) That, though the insured is not bound to represent facts known to the insurer, it was not a proper inference upon the facts, in view of the applicant's denial that he had previously suffered a fire loss, to conclude that the fact that the plaintiff had had a previous fire loss was known to the defendant; and that there had consequently been a misrepresentation by defendant as to a matter material to the risk, such as rendered the contract null; (b) That notwithstanding that the application had been made out by the defendant's agent and was, for that reason, to be deemed to be "the act of the company," the plaintiff was still a party to it, and it was to be considered with the contract (art. 7028 R. S. Q.). Rimouski Ins. Co. v. Caron (1910), 17 R. de J. 139.

Although a false declaration by the insured vitiates the policy, it must be on some material point of a nature to increase the risk. The burden of proof as to its materiality is on the insurer who raises this de-Hence, if he does not furnish it, the fact that a stove was on the premises, although the insured had stated in his application that there was none, is not admitted as a ground for cancelling the policy. It is as a ground for canceling the policy. It is the same with regard to the fact that the insured had lost a mill although in his ap-plication he denied it. In the absence of agreement, the fact that after the fire the insured premises were unoccupied, without any proof of the increased risk, does not entail a forfeiture. It is the same with regard to additions made to the mill insured without giving notice to the insurer. The covers those of the same kind that replace the ones lost in the fire. The circumstances of the owner of the thing insured taken by the assured in the offer to insure is justified notwithstanding the imperfection and irregularity of his title, if it depends on the circumstances that he had the same interest in preserving the thing that he would have had as an owner with incontestible title. The in-surer suing to recover the amount of the policy is not permitted to set up at the hearing on the merits a lack of capacity of which he has made no mention in the pleadings, Moreover, after taking the premiums for sevthis point after a fire has happened. Mortgage - Machinery - Vendor's lien -Priorities - Subrogation.]-Under a contract with the owner of a mill and machinery which was subject to two mortgages, each containing a covenant to insure, the plaintiffs took out the machinery, replacing it with new machinery, reserving a lien for the balance of the price, the lien agreement providing that the mill-owner should insure the machinery for the plaintiffs' benefit. Before any further insurance was effected, the mill and machinery were destroyed by fire:—Held, upon the evidence. Maclennan, J.A., dissenting, that the second mortgagees had consented to the purchase of the new machinery upon the terms specified, and, as a result of that find-ing, that the plaintiffs were entitled, subject to the mortgagee's claim, to payment of the insurance money on the machinery, and to be subrogated to the first mortgagee's rights against the land to the extent to which that insurance money was exhausted by him. Notice of loss — Statutory condition 18—"Forthwith" — Strict enforcement of condition — Notice to agent 17 days after fre.]—The plaintiffs had insured a part of their building and their stock of oils, etc., with the defendants, and had received a policy, which stated that it was made and accepted subject to the stipulations and conditions printed on the back, which were made requires that "any person entitled to make claim under this policy is to observe the following conditions: (a) he is forthwith company; (b) he is to deliver, as soon afterwards as practicable, as particular an account of the loss as the nature of the case permits." On the 13th November, 1908, the policy being then in force, the plaintiffs' premises were totally destroyed by fire. The defendants' head office. He also engaged an adjuster to adjust the claim on behalf of the statutory declaration, which was subsequently filled up and made by an officer of the plaintiffs and dated the 27th November, 1908. It was handed to the local agent on due course to the head office. No other notice statutory condition 13, as soon after the fire must be given forthwith, and that, as soon afterwards as practicable, a particular ac-count with a statutory declaration must be furnished, strengthens the view that "forthwith" means that the assured must without delay take some vigorous action. The de-claration could not be considered notice to the company until received by the local agent on the 30th November, and that was not in time. The plaintiffs, not having complied time. Other insurance — Limitation on plac-ing.]—A person who has his insurance policy endorsed by the company carrying the risk so that he may obtain other insurance to the extent of $2,000, cannot take out a policy in another company to the extent of $2,500; if he does so the first policy becomes null and void .- Steps taken by the assured to secure the information required for the to scale the mornation required for the purpose of fixing the loss thereunder, is not a renunciation of his right to question the validity of the policy. Goldstein v. Richmond & Drummond Ins. Co. (1910), 17 R. L. n, s. 85.

Ownership of property-Husband and wife-False representations - Insurable interest of husband in property of wife.]-A contract of insurance of movables in favour of a husband, who represents himself to the insurer as the owner of them, whereas they belong to his wife, is null and void for false representation .- Quarc, has the husband, on a true representation of the facts, an insurable interest in the property of his wife on which to found a valid contract of insur-ance? Lemicux v. Equitable Fire Assec. Co., 30 Que, S. C. 490, Policy - Application-Misrepresentation Ownership - Agent.]-An application for insurance made by the plaintiff contained the following question: "Are you the owner of the land on which the above described build-ing stands?" Before the written answer to this was put down the plaintiff told M., the defendants' agent, that he was not the owner of the land, but that the building stood on the highway. Whereupon M. said: "We will put it down as yours," and, with the consent of the plaintiff, wrote "Yes" as the answer of the plaintin, whole tes as the answer to the question. The application contained this provision also: "If the agent of the company fills up or signs this application, he will in that case be the agent of the applicant and not the agent of the company." The jury found that the house stood on the highway:—Held, in an action on the policy (Tuck, C.J., and VanWart, J., dissenting), that, notwithstanding the foregoing provision, the verbal communication made to M., the agent, must be taken as if made to the company, and, therefore, there was no misrepresentation on the part of the plaintiff. first condition in the policy was as follows: " If an application, survey, plan, or description of the property herein insured is refor the property herein insured is re-ferred to in this policy, such application, survey, plan, or description shall be consid-ered a part of this contract, etc." The only reference to the application in the policy was as follows: "Situate on the north side of the Great Road from Dalhousie to Bathurst, in the Parish of Durham, Restigouche County, N. B., as per diagram filed with application." The diagram was on the back of the application, but it was not put there until after the plaintiff had signed it. The presumption was that it was so put there by M., the company's agent:—Held (Tuck, C.J., and Van-Wart, J., dissenting), that, as the diagram was treated as a separate piece of paper, the was treated as a separate piece of paper, the words of reference in the policy were not sufficient to incorporate into it the whole ap-plication. La Bell v. Norvich Union Fire Ins. Co., 23 N. B. R., 515. Reversed, 19 C. L. T. 239, 29 S. C. R. 470.

Policy - Condition avoiding - Non-oc-- Justness and reasonableness -Materiality.]-In an action for a loss on a fire policy, containing a condition that any change material to the risk should avoid the policy, unless promptly notified to the company, and that any change of occupancy or non-occupancy should be deemed material to the risk, it was proved that the premises insured had been vacant for some months during the currency of the policy, but were occupied at the time of the loss, and it did to the non-occupancy. Under a proviso in the policy that certain conditions (including the one in question) should be in force only it to be just and reasonable, to be exacted by the company, the trial Judge declared the condition as to occupancy made at the time the policy issued, but tested with relation to the circumstances which afterwards arose, to be unjust and unreasonable. He sub-mitted to the jury the questions whether the change from occupancy to non-occupancy was material to the risk in this case, and whether it was material generally. To the former question the jury answered, "No," and to the latter, "Yes." On these answers a verdict was entered for the plaintiff :- Held, per farker, C.J., Hanington and McLeed, JJ. (Landry, J., dissenting), that the condition as to occupancy was to be tested as to its being just and reasonable in the light of circumstances at the time the policy issued, and not at the time of the loss, and being so ap-plied was just and reasonable, and the breach of non-occupancy avoided the policy, and a verdict should be entered for the defendants Payson v. Equitable Fire Ins. Co., 38 N. B. R. 436, 5 E. L. R. 186.

Policy—Form of—"Co-insuro ce" clause—Statutory conditions — Variations, 1 — A policy of fire insurance issued on the 2nd January, 1896, contained the clause known as the "co-insurance clause" (requiring the insured to keep the property covered by other policies to at 1-bast seventy-five per cent, of its value), printed under the heading "variations in conditions," as prescribed by ss. 115 and 116 of R. S. O. 1887 c. 167:—Held. affirming the judgments in 27 A. R. 373, 20 C. L. T. 297, 29 O. R. 695, 18 C. L. T. 331, that, whether or not the alteration introduced into the policy was of a nature of a variation of any particular statutory condition, or in addition to statutory conditions, the clause was neither unjust nor unreasonable, and that it formed part of the contract of insurance to the same extent as the statutory conditions indorsed on the policy would have, if the alteration had been printed therein. Proof of loss - Condition-Waiver-Delay — Agent — Adjuster.]—A condition of the policy required that proof of loss "shall be made by the assured." The son of the assured filled in and signed the statement of ial power of attorney :-Held, that this was a sufficient compliance with the condition of the policy. 2. Where the insurer retains the proof of loss, without objection as to its sufficiency, for more than sixty days before action taken, the company will be considered to have waived the condition which requires a delay of sixty days after filing claim before the institution of suit; and the fact that a blank in the statement was filled in, at the request of the company, within the period of sixty days before suit, will not affect the right of action. 3. The condition which re-quires proof of loss to be furnished within thirty days after the fire may be waived either expressly or impliedly; and the assured is held to be relieved from this condition if the presentation of the claim has been delayed by the company's investigation of the loss, or if the representations of the com-pany's authorised agents have led the assured to understand that compliance with this condition will not be required. 4. While adjusters of fire losses are not, as a general rule, agents of the companies under an authority sufficient to make their statements binding upon the companies for whom they act, yet an adjuster may become a duly authorised agent of the company by the course of procdure in a particular case, e.g., where the adjuster was the only medium of communication after the fire between the company and the assured, and was engaged by the company to look over the proofs, advise as to a settlement. &c. Proofs of loss-Increase of risk-Appeal - Questions of fact. !- A departmental peat — Questions of fact.;—A departmental store company, whose premises were de-stroyed by fire in 1897, had insurance on the stock amounting to $219,000, and actions were brought against five companies by a bank, as assignees of the claims by an assignments in the proofs of loss; that the fire was caused by the act of the insured; that the risk was increased by overstocking and heavy insurance; and that the bank was not in law the assignee of the policies. sulted in a verdict for the bank, which was sustained by the Court of Appeal. On appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada :-Held, Gwynne, J., dissenting, that the appeal proofs were defective, it being claimed that according to the evidence the accounts of stock were padded and the true value was much less than the insurance, the reuse is given by the trial Judge and Judges in appeal were conclusive; that the explanation of the discrepancy had been accepted by the trial Judges; and that, on the question of increase of risk, the Ontario Courts had adopted too narrow a construction in holding that such increase could only be effected by direct dealing with the property insured; but there was no increase in fact. Provincial company-Goods out of the province — Application — Concealment — Transfer of debt — Notice to debtor.] — A company incorporated by the Legislature of Quebec to carry on insurance business in that province may insure, in that province, merchandise which is out of the province. 2. The fact that the assured has not disclosed that he has contracted to keep for a creditor everything that he receives, and to transfer to him the policy of insurance, if desired, does not constitute a concealment which annuls the contract of insurance. 3. Notice of the transfer of a debt should be given in such a way that the debtor shall have no doubt that it is the assignee who is now his creditor, and notice given by to vest the claim in the assignee as against the debtor. Representation-Denying previous fires —Materiality — Conditions of policy.] — One who was insured against fire, who had been burned out three times, in answer to oven burned out true times, in answer to the company's agent said that he had only had one fire:—Held, that this reply was material to the risk and invalidated the policy. 2. That the following clause, "and the said applicant hereby covenants and agrees to and with the company that the forecalize is time! "so of foll securities." foregoing is a just, true, and full exposition of all the facts and circumstances in regard to the condition, situation, and value of the property to be insured, so far as the same are known to the applicant and are material to the risk, and agrees and consents that the same be held to form the basis of the liability of the company, and shall form a part and be a condition of the insurance contract," does not constitute an absolute warranty, but the replies given by the assured risk. Specific goods - Substituted goods -Construction of policy — Termination of in-surance — Notice — Reinsurance — Breach of warranty - Limitation of actions -Statutory condition — Unjust and unreasonable variation. The policy of plaintiffs bears date 24th February, 1899, and was for coffee while stored in the 3-storey patent roofed building occupied by the assured situate 37 and 39 Dalhousie street, Brantford, Ontario." The policy was, in pursuance of Ontario." The policy was, in pursuance of one of its terms, renewed in each of the years 1900, 1901, and 1902. The loss was made payable to the Bank of British North America. The business of the Snow Drift Co. was that of dealers in coffees, spices, exerable amount, besides the policy on the green coffee. The reason for effecting the insur-ance of 4th February, 1899, on the green coffee, was that the Snow Drift Co. had exceeded their line of credit with their bankers, the Bank of British North America, who regive the security was the effecting of this insurance, and providing by the policy that the loss should be payable to the bank. fire occurred on 18th September, 1902, which resulted in the total destruction of the whole of the company's stock in trade, including the green coffee. . . The loss on it was $1.321 at the lowest; . . . it is more likely $1,321 at the lowest; . . . it is more likely that the loss exceeded $2,000;—Held, such of green coffee, but for any 120 similar bags of green coffee. The assured had on 10th September, 1902, written to the agents at Brantford of plaintiffs in the following terms: "In reference to policy 2958, in amount $2,000, held by the Bank of British North America, on 120 bags of coffee, we wish to cancel this policy and have you give us a new one for $1,000, as there are now only 50 bags of coffee in stock."—Held, the letter was not such a written notice as the condition relied on refers to. It was only an intimation of the intention of the assured to terminate the insurance if and when there was substituted for it a new policy for $1,000; to that plaintiff's never agreed, and it was never done. . . . It was contended lastly that, as the action was not begun until more than six months after the loss occurred, it was barred, and condition 22, as varied by the indorsement on defendants' policy, was relied on in support of that contention .- Held, the variation of the statutory condition 22 which defendants attempted to impose upon the assured, by reducing the time allowed for bringing an action from one year to six months, to be both unjust and unreasonable. Merchants' Fire Ins. Co. v. Equity Fire Ins. Co., 5 O. W. R. 27, 9 O. L. R. 241.

tiff-Limitation clause in policy.]-A policy of fire insurance was issued by the defen dants to H. in respect of a house owned by her, described in the policy as a "sporting buildings 100 feet." The local agent of the defendants who obtained the risk said that he knew that other houses would be erected within this distance, and charged a rate to meet these anticipated changes in conditions: -Held, per Macdonald, C.J.A., and Galliher, J.A., that, although, subsequently to the policy, buildings were erected within 100 feet, and the assured did not notify the company thereof in writing, the policy was not on that account void under statutory condition 3, as the change was contemplated by the defendants' agent and he charged the higher rate on that account,—Held, also, per Macdonald C.J.A., and Galliher, J.A., following Clark v. Hagar, 22 S. C. R. 570, that the contract of insurance was not void as contrary to public policy; and, although it apis charged by insurance companies upon risks in respect of houses of the character described, and it might be said that the contract was tantamount to a division of profits of the immoral business, this could not avail the defendants, as it did not appear that H. was aware that she was being charged a higher rate.-The policy was made out in favour of H., with loss, if any, payable to W., a lienholder, as his interest might appear, and W. assigned to the plaintiff company.—Held, per Macdonald, C.J.A., and Galliher, J.A., that the plaintiffs were entitled to maintain the action .- Per Irving, J.A., that the plaintiffs were entitled to maintain the action by virtue of the trust created in W.'s favour, by the request of H. and the assent of the defendants to hold the moneys payable in respect of loss (if any) for the benefit of W .; spect of loss (if any) for the benefit of W.; but, following Pearce v. Brooks, L. R. 1 Ex. 213, and Cowan v. Melbourn, L. R. 2 Ex. 230, that the contract was an illegal one, and the plaintiffs could not succeed.—Por Martin, J.A., that the contract was not void as contrary to public policy; but that the plaintiff company were not entitled to sue by virtue of a contract or trust or otherwise; and that the addition of H. as a party plaintiff at the trial did not help the case, as her right had then become barred by statutory condition 12, owing to the lapse of twelve months since the time she could have brought an action. By the statute law of Maine, when "property" is injured by fire communicated by a locomotive engine, the railway company is made responsible, and it is declared to have an insurable interest in the property along its line for which it is responsible :- Held, that the policy was a valid policy of fire insurance, but did not, under the insurance company's statutory powers, cover standing Statutory condition-Gasoline "stored or kept" in insured building. ]-A statutory condition applicable to fire insurance in Ontario provided that the insurance company should not be liable for loss or damage occurring while gasoline was "stored or kept" in the insured building.—The appellant insured a building used by him as a drug store and furniture shop. He had an assistant, a qualified chemist, who used the upper part sistant had a gasoline stove which he had used occasionally for domestic purposes and later on he brought it down to the shop and used it in making syrups, and while doing so the building took fire and was burnt down, The only gasoline in the building was the Held, that the expression in the statutory condition as to gasoline being "stored or kept" imported the notion of warehousing or depositing for safe custody or keeping gasoline in stock for trade purposes, and did not apply to the small quantity which was in the stove for consumption and, conthe condition, and that the appellant was entitled to recover from the insurance company.—Decision of Supreme Court of Canada, 41 Can. S. C. R. 491, reversed by P. C. Thompson v. Equity Fire Ins. Co. & Union Bank (1910), 30 C. L. T. 807.

Statutory conditions-R. S. O. (1897). c. 203, s. 168, s.-s. 10 (f)—Gasoline stored or kept.]— The Ont. Ins. Act. R. S. O. (1897), c. 203, s. 168, s.-s. 10 (f), provides that an insurance company is not liable for loss occurring while gasoline inter alia is stored or kept in the building insured unless permission is given in writing by the company.—T. affected insurance on a building used as a drug and furniture shop, having in his employ a qualified chemist who occupied rooms in the upper part as tenant. The clerk had a gasoline stove which he used occasionally for domestic purposes and later on he brought it down to the shop and used it in making syrups, and while doing so the building took fire and was totally destroyed.—Privy Council held, that this was not a keeping of gasoline on the insured premises within the meaning of the statutory condition, and the insurance companies were liable for the loss .- Judgment of Supreme Court of Canada reversed; judgment of Court of Appeal for Ontario and Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell, at trial, restored, Thomp son v. Equity Fire Ins. Co., C. R., [1910] A. C. 151, 80 L. J. P C. 13, [1910] A. C. 592, 103 L. T. R. 153, 26 T. L. R. 616.

Statutory conditions — Variation — Appraisement in place of arbitration—Condition No. 16—R. S. O. 1897 c. 293—Action —Stay of proceedings.]—In a policy of fire insurance it was provided, by way of variation of statutory condition No. 16, providing for reference under the Arbitration Act in case of differences, that if any difference arose as to the value of the property insured, of the property saved, or the amount of the damages or loss, the same should be submitted to and ascertained by appraisers, one to be appointed by the assured and one by the company, who were to select an umpire, pay the appraisers respectively selected by each of them, and that each should pay on half of the expenses of the umpire: -Held, that the variation was not binding upon the assured, not being "just and reasonable to was more stringent and onerous than the statutory condition; both because (1) the plaintiff would be bound by the findings of the majority of the appraisers as the result of be deprived from examining witnesses on oath touching the amount of his loss; and because (2) it imposed upon the insured the payment of certain of the expenses in any event, whereas the statutory condition pro-vides that, where the full amount of the claim is awarded, costs shall follow the event, and in other cases be in the discretion of the arbitrators; and a motion to stay the proceedings in an action brought upon the policy until after the appraisal required by the insured of the benefit of the provisions of the Arbitration Act, which the statutory more stringent and onerous than the latter Cole v. London Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 15 O. L. R. 619, 10 O. W. R. 930.

Subletting of premises - Change in nature of risk — Absence of notice or know-ledge by landlord — 3rd Statutory condi-tion — Control of landlord — Omission to notify insurers. ] - After the owner of dwelling-house property had effected an insurance thereon, he leased the premises to a tenant who, without the owner's knowledge, changed the occupation thereof, by bringing in a stock of goods, which he sold to pedlars:-Held, that the owner was not affected by the third statutory condition, R. S. O. 1897, c. 203, s, 168 (3), which requires notice of any change material to the risk within the control or knowledge of the insured, to be given to the company, for, being under lease, the premises were not under the owner's control while the change in the occupation was without his knowledge, and the fact that the change was made by the tenant after the making of the policy was immaterial. London & Western Trusts Co. v. Can. Fire Ins. Co., 8 O. W. R. 273, 872, 13 O. L. R. 540.

Subsequent insurance — Notice — Mortaguec. — A policy of insurance on a mortagued property contained a condition that the insured should give notice of any other insurance already made, or which should afterwards be made elsewhere on the same property, whether valid or not valid, and whether concurrent or otherwise, so that a memorandum of such insurance might be indorsed on the policy. The mortgagee, without such notice or indorsement, effected another insurance with another company in the name of the plaintiff's wife, with the loss, if any, payable to himself as his interest might appear:—Held, that the mortgagee's insurance, without the notice and indersement, voided the plaintiff's insurance. Perry v. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co., 24 N. B. R. 380.

Transfer of policy — Defect.] — The transfer of a policy of fire insurance to a mortgage creditor of the insured, as security for the debt of the latter, has no retractive effect, and does not protect the transferce against defects and nullities in the policy existing prior to its transfer to and neceptance by him. So, where the insured had no valid title to the property insured, the transferce cannot recover.—2. The neceptance by the insurance company of a transfer of fire insurance company of a transfer of fire insurance company of the transfer set at transfer, but does not create a new contract of insurance with the transferce, Stanstead and Sherbrooke Mutual Fire Ins. Co. v. Gooley, 9 One. O. B. 294.

Variations in statutory conditionsance with statute-Existence of incumbrance -Failure to disclose - Materiality - Unjust and unreasonable variation - Alteration in risk - Notice to local agent-Variation requiring notice to company - Just and reasonable variation — Policy avoided.] — Indorsed upon a policy were the statutory conditions, with certain variations printed below in red ink. One of the variations was as follows: "Any incumbrance by way of mortgage . . . shall be deemed 'material to be made known to the company,' within to be made known to the company, within the provisions of the first statutory condi-tion:"—Held, defendant company had failed to make out their defence on this branch of the case. By another variation it was provided that "the words 'or its local agent vided that 'the words 'or its local agent' in the 3rd statutory condition are struck out, and whenever the words 'agent' or 'authorised agent' occur elsewhere in the said statutory conditions, such agent or authorised agent shall be held to mean the company's secretary only."—Held, this to be a just and reasonable variation. The particular company had between 400 and 500 local agents in all .- Held, when a company had their head office in the province, and had no general agents away from their head office. but local agents having limited duties to perform, it is not unjust or unreasonable in their stipulating that notice of an important change in the character of the risk should be communicated to their head office, particularly as the 23rd statutory condition permits it to be given by the sending of a registered letter to the head office of the company, and the address for the purpose is printed on the back of the policy. The plaintiff made a material alteration in the risk by substituting steam for water power; that she did not give notice in writing to defendants; and she could not recover upon this policy.

Verbal contract of insurance — Is it valid in Quebec?—Promissory note—Given in payment for premium—Dishonoured at maturity-Loss by fire-No policy ever issued - Action to recover.]-The Montreal Assurance Company was incorporated by the Assurance Company was incorporated by the Canadian Ordinance, 4th Vict. c, 37, and the Statute, 6th Vict. c, 22. By section 4 of the latter statute, it was provided that all policies of insurance should be subscribed by three directors, countersigned by the secretary and manager, and under the seal of the corporation. By a by-law of the company, made in conformity with the powers conferred by the Ordinance and Statute, a resolution to the same effect was passed. H. mortgaged a house in Lower Canada to R. Some time afterwards R.'s representative being dissatisfied with the security, applied for repayment of the mortgage money, when H. agreed to insure the mortgaged premises in a certain sum for the benefit of the mortgagee's representative. In pursuance of this arrangement, H. applied to the Montreal Assurance Company, through M., their manager and agent, to insure the premises against fire, H. was unable to pay the premium and proposed to M, that the company should take his promissory note, payable in twelve days. This was agreed to by M. and a promissory note given, M. at the same time promising to send the policy. The particupromising to send the policy. The particulars of the policy were entered in the books of the company, but the note being dishonoured when due, the entry was erased. The policy was never issued. Shortly afterwards the premises were burned down.—

Held (reversing the judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench in Canada), first, that the powers of M. as manager, being public, must be taken to have been known to H., the insurer, and that the acts of M, in the transaction were ultra vires and void, not being within the scope of his general authority as manager, and, therefore, not binding upon the Montreal Assurance Company. Second, that as such a contract was not binding on M.'s principals, it did not become binding upon them by reason of its having been entered into through the medium of M., their tered into through the medium of M., their agent, his powers as agent being restricted by the limitation of the powers of his principals. Warranty in application not part of policy—Failure to disclose enumerrance — Chattel mortgage, — Action on a fire insurance policy. In this case it was held that vendor's lieus were not material to the risk. Nor was the giving of a chattel mortgage subsequent to the application for insurance a change material to the risk. Any variation or condition added to the statutory ones which is intended to prevent a Judge or jury from determining the materiality of any statement is not reasonable or just. Fidelity of servant - Interim receipt-Conditions - Prosecution of servant. |- The appellants effected an insurance with the respondents for the fidelity of certain of the appellants' employees, amongst whom was B. An interim receipt for the premium was given, in which it was stated that it was issued "subject to the conditions of the company's general form now in use for the class of risk." Before the expiration of the three Before the expiration of the three months allowed for the issue of the policy under the conditions of the interim receipt, there was a shortage in B.'s accounts, for which the appellants made a claim under the contract of insurance. The respondents pleaded that by one of the conditions of their ordinary policy the insured was obliged to prosecute the defaulting employee to conviction with all diligence, and that, as this condition had not been complied with by the appellants, they could not recover: — Held, affirming the judgment in 16 Que. S. C. 78, that the conditions of the respondents' ordinary form of policy for this class of risk must be included and read into the text and meaning of the interim receipt. The acceptance of the receipt in this form must be held to indicate either that the appellants knew what these particular conditions were, or had such a knowledge of the general conditions in use by guarantee companies, that they were willing to be bound by them. 2. It was not an unreasonable condition that the employer should, as a condition precedent, use all possible diligence to prosecute the defaulting employee to conviction. Can. Life Assoc. Co. v. Mutual company—Assessment of premium notes — Discount for prompt payment.] -Action to recover the amount of an assess ment on a premium note given by the defendant for an insurance against loss by hail. Section 35 of the Mutual Hail Insurance Act R. S. M. c. 106, under which the plaintiffs were incorporated, provides that the assessshall always be in proportion to the amounts of such notes or undertakings. In making the assessment of five per cent, upon the amount of each policy, the directors added a proviso that all members and policy-holders who should pay the full amount of the assessment on or before the 1st November, 1899, should be entitled and should recent a discount of 25 per cent, upon the amount of such assessment:—Held, that the plaintiff had no power to allow a discount for, or to ment, and being a mutual company, the direcof the Act and preserve equality amongst the members in assessing them; and that the effect of the resolution was really to assess 75 per cent, of five per cent, upon those who should pay before a certain date and the full five per cent, upon all others, and that the assessment was therefore void under s. 35 of the Act. Mutual company-Assessment of premium notes - Withdrawal from membership -Presumption of continuance of policy-Im-In an action by a company incorporated un der the Mutual Hail Insurance Act, R. S. M. c. 106, to recover the amount of an assessment imposed by resolution of the directors upon one of its members for the second crop season after the issue of the policy, it is imcumbent on the company to shew that by the terms of the policy the person called on to pay the assessment is still a member of the company, and if no evidence is given to shew what the terms of the policy were in regard to the period covered by it the action should be dismissed. If a member of such a com-pany is entitled to withdraw from membership upon certain conditions, including the surrender of the policy issued to him, he cannot exercise such right without surrendering the policy, although the loss of it has ren-dered it impossible for him to perform that condition. Application-Withdrawal before acceptance - Return of premium-Contract-Interim reccipt, |-- Appeal by defendants from judgment of County Court of Wentworth in favour of plaintiff in an action for the return to defendants. On 19th May, 1904, plaintiff signed a written application to defendants for an insurance on his life of $10,000, and on the same day paid to the local agent of defendants $51.90 and gave him his (plaintiff's) promissory note for $300, the two sums making up the amount of the first annual premium, for which he received the company's receipt in full, stating: "The insurance will application by the medical director. In case the policy should not be issued, the money will be refunded; provided, a completed application for such insurance is made and submitted to the company, at its home office, and that the applicant, if he shall not receive his policy within 30 days from date hereof, shall notify the company." On 1st June. 1904. and before any acceptance by defendants of the offer of plaintiff which was contained in the application, plaintiff gave notice to de-fendants of the withdrawal of his application. and requested the return of the money he had paid and the promissory note he had given: -Held, that what took place between the parties amounted merely to an offer by plaintiff to defendants of the risk on his life, on the terms mentioned in the application, and the payments by plaintiff of the sum required to pay the first premium to be applied for that purpose if and when the offer of plaintiff should be accepted, and that defendants before the application was withdrawn had neither accepted the risk nor bound themnermer accepted the risk nor bound themselves to do anything in consideration of what plaintiff had done. Apportionment of insurance moneys - Revocation by will - Application of foreign law — Lien for premiums,1 — A contract of life insurance entered into by a company whose head office is in Ontario, the policy having issued from the head office and there, is an Outario contract, and must be interpreted and carried out in accordance with Ontario law, although the assured lived in Manitoba and made application there to a local agent for the insurance, but an assignment of or dealing with the benefits of the policy made by the assured in Manitoba the pointy made by the assured in Manitoba will be governed by the law of this pro-vince relating thereto. The deceased, who was a resident in Manitoba, insured his life with a company whose head office was in Ontario, and by the policy the insurance money was appropriated in favour of his wife, but by his will he absolutely revoked this appropriation and directed that the money should become part of his estate and should be paid to his executor. Section 12 of the Life Assurance, R. S. M. c. 88, as re-enacted by 62 & 63 V. c. 17, permits such a revocation and new disposition of the insurance money, but the corresponding statutory provision in Ontavio (R. S. O. 1897 c. 203, s. 160), forbids it:—Held, that the law of Manitoba must be applied to the determination of the question as to the right of the assured to make such new disposition, and assured to make such new disposition, and that the insurrance money must be paid to the executor as part of the deceased's estate. Toronto General Trust Co. v. Sewell, 17 O. R. 442, and Lee v. Adby, 17 Q. B. D. 309, followed: — Held, also, that a will is an instrument in writing within the meaning of the Manitoba statute above referred to. Assignment — Insurance moneys—Tontine life policy—Right of assignce to select cash surrender value — Declaration by insured in favour of wife under Insurance Act.]-On 18th April, 1905, defendant assigned all his right, title, and interest in and to life insurance policy No. 364,467, in the New York Life Insurance Company to his solicitor, to whom he was at that time indebted to the amount of (about) $40. The assignment, though absolute in form, was on the following conditions: The assignce was to apply to the company for the cash value of the policy, and, if the company consented to pay such cash value, the debt of the deto pay such cash value, the debt of the de-fendant to the assignee was to be deducted, and the balance paid to Mrs. Marshall, the wife of defendant. On 30th May, 1305, plaintiff obtained judgment for $75 debt and $19.22 costs against defendant. On the same day notice of the assignment was given by the assignee to the New York Life Insurance Company, and on the same day the assignee made, in writing, what purported to be a selection of the cash value of the policy. On 31st May plaintiff served an attaching on 31st May painting served an attaching order upon the garnishees. On 23rd June the assignee, the garnishees having made no acknowledgment of his selection, revoked in writing his selection of option, which revocation the garnishees declined to recognise. On 29th June, 1905, defendant made a declaration under the Ontario Insurance Act, s, 159, declaring the policy and the money to be derived therefrom to be for the benefit of his wife, subject to the assignment above mentioned:—Held, 1. That the declaration in favour of defendant's wife was valid. The judgment of his late brother Robertson in Weeks v. Frauley was very strong, and, al-though this point did not come up directly for decision in that case, the rest of the Court seem to have taken no exception to his remark. The wording of the statute seems clear and plain. The appeal will thereseems crear and plain. The appeal will dere-fore be dismissed with costs. 2. That the money was not attachable. There was no sum of money or debt due or payable, the time having elapsed and the selection having been made too late. The assignee's revocation was communicated to the garnishees before their acceptance of his selection, and they had no right or power to prevent such revocation. 3. That an assignee holding a life assurance policy as security for a debt would have no right to make a selection of the cash surrender value, thus completely changing the character of the security. R. 530, 9 O. L. R. 517, declaring Mary Lawson Farley entitled to the proceeds Mary Lawson Farley entitled to the processor of an insurance policy in the friendly society called "The Royal Templars of Temper-ance." The policy in question, dated 12th September, 1901, was upon the life of de-ceased, the father-in-law of Mary Lawson Farley. The insured had, when the policy issued, designated the beneficiaries in these terms:—"Harold E. Peagam, Charles R. S. Dinnick, and William W. Farley, executors, in trust for legal heirs." At that time his son William W. Farley was alive, as was also his grandson John Arthur Farley. No other descendants of Arthur Farley were living in September, 1901. His son William predeceased him; his grandson John Arthur survived. In November, 1903, the insured executed the following memorandum:— "Toronto, November, 1903. I, Arthur Far-ley, hereby declare that the money payable under the benefit certificate upon my life issued to me by the Royal Templars of Temperance, of which I am a member, shall be paid to my daughter-in-law Mary Lawson paid to my daughter-in-law Mary Lawson Farley for her own use and benefit. Arthur Farley." The question for determination was the efficacy of this memorandum, the appellant contending that the original de-signation was that of a preferred beneficiary, within R. S. O. 1897, c. 203, s. 159, and as such irrevocable:—Held, at the time when the insured declared that the policy should be payable to his executors "in trust for his heirs," his son William alone answered that description, so far as any person can be said to be the heir of one living. Had he survived the insured the present claimant, John Arthur Farley, would have no status. On the other hand, had both the son William and the grandson John Arthur predeceased the insured, the words "legal heirs" would have described persons incapable of designation as "preferred beneficiaries." The provision of the Insurance Act referred to by the learned Chief Justice, R. S. O. c. 203, s. 2, s.-s. 36, puts the matter beyond doubt, This sub-section, adopt insurance beirs' or clude all t assured; o lawful sur shall mean cording to garding an with a-s. children a dying "wt and unmai the phrase titled to ta tions." tion, adopted in 1897, reads as follows: "In insurance of the person the phrase 'legal beirs' or 'lawful beirs' shall mean and include all the lawful surviving children of the assured: or, where the assured died without shall mean those persons entitled to take ac-cording to the Statute of Distribution." Recording to the Statute of Distribution." Re-garding and applying s-s. 36 and reading it with s-s. 35, which distinguishes between children and grandchildren, of an assured dying "without lawful surviving children and unmarried," with the consequence that the phrase "legal heirs" means "those entitled to take under the Statute of Distribu-tions." This precludes any argument that "legal heirs," so interpreted, can be deemed a designation of preferred beneficiaries under *. 150. The appeal fails and should be dismissed with costs. Condition - Pleading-Burden of proof -Waiver.] - A life insurance policy contained a condition providing for payment in ninety days after satisfactory proofs of death were furnished to the association; another that death from consumption and certain other diseases was not covered by the policy; and another setting out what proofs must be given. In an action on this policy the plaintiff alleged that she had furnished proof of the death of the insured on a certain date and that all conditions were performed and all times elapsed to entitle her to payment The defendants denied these allegations and put the plaintiff to strict proof thereof:— Held, that under the Ontario Judicature Act, differing in this respect from the practice in England, the plaintiff was bound to prove the truth of her above allegations; that giving of satisfactory proofs was a condition precedent to her right of action, performance of which she had to allege and prove; that no rule of law obliged the defendants to prove non-performance; that there was no evidence waiver of proof as contended by the plaintiff and that in any case the plaintiff could not recover, as the proofs given, taken in connection with the evidence, shewed the deceased to have died of consumption, which was not covered by the policy. Judgment of the Court of Appeal, 9th May, 1899, reversed. Randall v, Home Life Assoc., 20 C. L. T. 49, 30 S. C. R. 97,

Condition of policy—Payment of prenium — Promistory note. —When the renewal premium of a policy of the them the renewal premium of a policy of the them agent of the company a note for the premium, with interest added, which the agent discounted and had the proceeds placed to his own credit in a bank. The renewal receipt was not countersigned nor delivered to the assured, and the agent did not remit the amount of the premium to the company. When the note matured a part was paid and a renewal note given for a part was paid and a renewal note given for the balance, which was unpaid at the time of the death of the assured. A condition of the policy declared that if any note given for a premium was not paid when the clark of the control of the premium of the premium, it is not the premium in cash, and that the policy had lapsed on default to pay the note at maturity. Conditions — Misrepresentation — Nondisclosure — Accident policies—Warranties —Jury — New trial.]—Unless the evidence so strongly predominates against the verdica as to lead to the conclusion that the jury have wilfully disregarded the evidence or failed to understand or appreciate it, a new trial ought not to be granted. On an application for life insurance, the applicant stated, in reply to questions as to insurances on his life then in force, that he carried policies in several life insurance companies named, but did not mention two policies which he had in accident companies insuring him against death or injury from accidents. The question so answered did not specially refer to accident insurance, but the policy provided that the statement in the application should constitute warrants and form part of the contract:—Held, affirming the judgment appealed from, Taschereau, C.J.C., dissenting, that "accident insurance" is not insurance of the character embraced in the term "insurance on life" contained in the application, and, consequently, that the questions had been sufficiently and truthfully answered, according to the natural and ordinary meaning of the words used, and, even if the words used were capable of interpretation as having another or different meaning, then the language was ambiguous and the then the linguage was ambiguous and the construction as to its meaning must be against the company by which the questions were framed. Construction of policies-Non-payment of premiums — Lapse — Forfeiture, ] — A life insurance policy issued by the defendants was dated the 20th May, 1901; the premium was $31.20, payable in advance on premium was $51.29, payable in advance on the 30th May in each year for 29 years. The premiums were paid for five years. Now was paid on the 20th May, 1906, or there-after. The insured died on the Sth Novem-ber, 1906. It was provided on the face of the policy: (1) that if, after the payment of three full years' premiums, the policy should lapse for the non-payment of any premium, the insurers would, upon application, the payment of all indebtedness, and the surrender of the policy and the last renewal receipt within three months after such lapse, issue a non-participating paid-up policy for as many twentieth parts of its principal amounts as complete annual premiums shall have been paid, or apply the same towards the purchase of extended insurance in accordance with the schedule indorsed; (2) that if, after the payment of five full years' premiums, the policy should lapse as aforesaid, the insurers would, upon application, etc., within three months after such lapse, pay to the holder of the policy the cash surrender value shewn in the schedule or, at the option of the holder, lend him any sum not exceeding the sum shewn in the schedule for one year, the premium for the ensuing year and interest on the amount lent being first deducted. The schedule shewed that a policy in force for three years would entitle the holder to a paid-up policy for $150, or to have the existing policy extended for one year, and at the end of 'hat year a paid-up policy for $47; that a policy in force for five years would entitle the holder to $66 in cash, or a loan of $85, or a paid-up policy for $250, or the extension of the existing policy for two years, and at the end of that period a paid-up policy for $84. Clause 5 of the printed conditions indorsed provided that one calendar month would be allowed for payment of renewal premiums, at the expira-

-Held, that it was not necessary for the holder of the policy to make application in order to have the policy to make application in order to have the policy extended; the in-surers were bound to apply the money in hand to the credit of the holder, namely, the find to the credit of the holder, hamely, the $66 shewn in the schedule, towards the pur-chase of extended insurance; there was no lapse, and the policy was in full force when the assured died .- A second policy for $1,000 was dated the 31st March, 1903. By it the defendants, " in consideration of the application . . . and of the sum of $17.95, being the premium for one year's term insurance, on the delivery of this policy, and the fur-ther sum of $33.90 payable annually for an additional term of 19 years, the first of such day of March, A.D. 1904, insured the life, The premium said to be payable on the 20th March, 1906, had never been paid. An indorsement upon the policy provided that if the policy should be void .- Held, that the terms of the policy not being clear and excontention, must be construed most favourably to the insured, and so as to avoid a the first and second were payable in advance, and the policy was in force on the 8th November, 1906, when the insured died .- Held, by that upon the proper construction of the policies sued upon, in the circumstances dis-closed, both policies had lapsed and ceased to be in force at the time of the death of the person insured, and there could be no re-covery thereon. Contract - Condition-Payment of premium — Belivery of policy — Concurrent death of assured.]—The husband of the plaintiff had, on the 24th February, 1900, made to the defendant company, an application for insurance containing the following condition: "The policy applied for, if it is issued, will not come into force until the premium shall have been actually paid to the company and accepted by it, while the person whose life is offered for assurance is alive and in good health." In making this application for insurance the plaintiff's husband paid $4 on account of the premium, and, the medical examination having been satisfactory, the company issued a policy of insurance at New York on the 8th March, 1900, and deposited it in the post office of that city on the 9th March, addressed to its agent at Montreal, to whom the letter containing the policy was delivered upon the 10th March (a Saturday). On the 8th March the plain-tiff's husband was seized with an illness, of which he died on the 10th March between half-past nine and ten o'clock in the morning. The plaintiff afterwards offered the balance of the premium to the agent of the company, who refused to give her the policy: —Held, that if, in principle, the acceptance of the proposal for insurance constituted a valid contract of insurance (Art. 2481, C. C.), in this case the acceptance of the proposal was subject to the condition stated, and such condition not having been complied with, no contract of insurance existed. 2. That, in view of the condition, the deposit of the policy in the post office at New York did not constitute a delivery to the deceased, Girard v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 20 Que. 8. C. 782.

Contract made by minor — Plea of lesion, I—Action on a promissory note for SUSI-25 given in payment of the first premium on a policy of life insurance for SUSI-25, one in a policy of life insurance for SUSI-300. The defendant pleaded that he was a minor when the contract was made; that it was disadvantageous to him, as it absorbed nearly all his annual revenue; and that as soon as his tutor had heard of it he had served a protest on the company on the ground that the contract was injurious to his pupil:—Pled, that the defendant had established his plea, and that it was not his especially as his health was not good, and the premium took up nearly all of his fixed income. Action dismissed, but without costs, inasmuch as the plaintiffs had been led into error as to the defendant's age, health and financial circumstances. Imperial Life Ins. Co., v. Charlebois, 22 C. L. T. 417.

Days of grace-Assignment of policy by beneficiary subject to charge — Death of insured when renewed premiums overdue — Right of beneficiary or representative of insured to tender during-Insurance Act-Conduct of insurers-Dispensing with tender-Estopped. —Appeal by the defendants from judgment of Idington, J., upon the findings of a jury, in favour of plaintiff, the widow and administratrix of the estate of Richard Tattersall, for the recovery of $3,950,50, with interest and costs, in an action upon a policy of insurance on the life of the deceased. The company defend on the following grounds: (1) Fraudulent representations by Tatter-sall on application for insurance. (2) Denial that plaintiff was assured that the policy was all right, or misled. (3) Statement that plaintiff was told that premium had not been paid, (4) All liability ceased on the death of Tattersall with overdue premium unpaid (5) On his death, not possible to renew or revive policy by tender because no beneficiary who could make tender under the con-tract. (6) Tattersall having died in default, and no tender made by any one within 30 days from due date of premium, liability ceased on policy :- Held, as to the matters of fact the jury found in favour of plaintiff's contention, and the evidence was sufficient to support such finding as right and proper. On matters of law it was argued that there was no right to tender after death of assured, and if such right existed, there was no beneficiary in this case to make ten-der. The last premium of $49.50 fell due on 10th April, 1903, and was not paid. The death was on 22nd April, 1903, intestate, and plaintiff was administratrix. On 15th December, 1902, the wife, in whose favour was the policy, assigned her interest to the husband, subject to the terms of an agreement referred to in the assignment. This was not notified to the insurance company till after the death. These words, in case of life policy, exclude the right so to renew or revive the contract by after-payment when death has happened by alter-payment when death has nappened to the person insured. But this qualification was expunged by the legislature in the amendment made in 1897, 60 V. c. 36, s. 148 (1), the section now in the R. S. Endowment policy-Assignment of Revocation of assignment.]-Plaintiff placed an endowment insurance on his life for $5,000, and by a subsequent writing ap-pointed defendant beneficiary under said policy, but later desired to change the appolicy, but later desired to change the ap-pointment to his niece, as beneficiary, but was told that the policy was already as-signed and it could not be changed. The policy matured and defendant claimed the amount, being $6,709.30. Plaintiff asked for a declaration that he was entitled to be paid asid moneys, and that the assignment to the defendant had been revoked. Britton, J., held (15 O. W. R. 309), that plaintiff was entitled to the money due and that the paper called the assignment had been revoked. Divisional Court held (16 O. W. R. 857, 21 O. L. R. 623, 1 O. W. N. 1138), that the gift was complete; that the assignment and regis-tration thereof with the company and notice by the company to defendant of the registration were sufficient to entitle defendant to the money. Husband and wife — Life assurance policy—Wife's chose in action—Administration.]—R. Orr effected a policy of life assurance for $1,000 for sole use of his wife (payable in New York) if living and her children, and if no children to the administrators of R. Orr, 60 days after notice of death. R. Orr died 21st December, 1878, his wife one week later, both in Colorado, U. S., and each intestate. Plaintiff was administratrix of the wife, defendant was administrator of the husband. The assurance company paid the money into a bank to the joint account of both administrators. A special case was agreed upon to decide who was entitled to the money. Plaintiff urged that it belonged to her as administratrix of the wife. Defendant contended it belonged to him as administrator of the husband under the law of New York, the locus contracti, as no notice had been given of the husband's as no notice had been given of the husband's death to the Assurance Company before the wife died, and as the husband's creditors would otherwise suffer "He'd. Information withheld by insuredanswers in an application for insurance the beneficiary's claim—Condition that the decision of an officer shall be final—Decision given without notice to the interested party be heard. |-A general expression joined to one specified. Thus, in the question, "have nature of chronic dyspepsia, or which might. in the way it might, increase the nature of the risk. Hence, a negative answer by the applicant for insurance, although he may have attacks of acute dyspepsia, ordinary indigestion, is not information withheld sufficient to annul the policy. The same princi-ple applies to the answer "never been sick," to the question "for what disease or diseases have you consulted or been attended by a physician, or taken any other treatment dur-ing the last five years?" The condition that, insurance society, the member or the beneficiary will have no other claim but that recognised by the by-laws, and, particularly, that failure to appeal within twenty days from an unfavourable decision of the officer appointed for the purpose will have the effect of extinguishing all claim, does not provide the society with a good ground of defence to an action upon the policy, if it is shewn that the officer's decision was reached and given without notice to the beneficiary and without giving her the opportunity of asserting her claim. In the examination the plaintiff stated that he had not consulted or been attended by a physician for six years prior thereto, whereas he had consulted four before the examination. He also stated that he had not had any illness, except a slight attack of "la grippe," for three years next before his examination, whereas he had been ill for two months immediately before his examination, and had consulted two doctors, who had told him that he was suffering from, at any rate, anemia. The plaintiff also concealed several symptoms of phthisis or tuberculosis from the examining doctor, which he afterwards admitted to him that he had at the time of the examination. He also warranted that he was free from disease, wherethough undeveloped by physical signs, were existing :-Held, that these statements and a breach of the warranty; and therefore the policy was void. Misstatement in application as to age—Evidence of bona fides—Admissibility—Burden of proof — Findings of jury.]—In an action on a policy of life insurance a defence was that the insured in his application. made in 1891, stated that he was 41 years of age, whereas in fact he was 44. The evidence shewed that 44 was his actual age at the time Evidence of statements made by the insured. many years before the application, tending to shew his belief that he was born in 1850, was rejected: — Held, that the evidence should have been admitted for the purpose of shewing that the statement in the application as ing that the statement in the application as to age was made in good faith, and without intention to deceive. In answer to questions the jury found that the statement in the application that the insured was born in 1850. was untrue, and was material, but that the insured made the misstatement in good faith, believing it to be true, and without intention to deceive:—Held, that on these answers judgment should have been entered for the defendants, if the jury could not properly find that the statement was made in good faith and without intent to deceive; but, as the plaintiff was not allowed to elicit evidence on this point, there should be a new trial. Where the statement as to the age is found to be material and untrue, an avoidance of the contract follows, unless that result is prevented by its being made to appear that the statement was made in good faith and without intent to deceive; and it must lie upon the person seeking to uphold the contract to make proof of it. The rates having been increased, A. paid the assessments for some years under protest, and then allowed his policy to lapse, and suse for a return of the payments he had made with interest, and for a declaration that the contracts were void ab initio:—Held, Sedgewick and Nesbitt, JJ., dissenting, that the statements in the circulars only expressed the expectation of the managers of the association as to the future, and did not prevent the artes being increased in the discretion of the directors. A note given, payable with interest, in payment of a premium, provided that if it were not paid at maturity the policy should forthwith become void. On the maturity of the note it was partly paid, and an extension was granted, and on a part payment being again made a further extension was granted. The last extension was overdue and balance on note was unpaid at the death of the assured. A receipt by the company, given at the time of taking the note, was of the amount of the premium, but at the bottom of the face of the receipt were these words: "Paid by note in terms thereof." While the note was running the policy was assigned for value, with the assert of the company, to the plaintiff, to whom the receipt was delivered by the assured:—Held, that no estoppel was created by the receipt; that there was no duty upon the company to have afforded the plaintiff an opportunity of paying the premium; and that the policy was void. Wood v. Confederation Life Assoc., 21 C. L. T. 149, 2 N. B. Ba. 217.

Payment of overdue premium—Acceptance — Consent—State of health of assured.]—Where, by the conditions of a policy of life insurance, the non-payment of a premium when it falls due renders a policy void, and where it is also declared that no premium in arrears will be accepted by the insurance company unless with the consent in writing of the president, vice-president, or secretary, the acceptance of a premium, after it was due, and the sending of a receipt signed by the secretary, are equivalent to the consent required to validate the late payment of the premium—2. The fact that the assured was dying when the premium in arrear was paid, the insurance company not having inquired as to his state of health, and no false representation as to it having been made, does not invalidate the payment. Continental Life Ins. Co. v. Boxeling, 21 C. L. T. 240.

Premium note — Non-payment — Forfeiture — Extended insurance.] — A life policy was issued on the 27th June, 1894, for $5,000, an annual premium of 884,50 being payable on the 20th March in each year. The second premium was paid on the 20th March, 1895, but the third was not paid, the insured giving a promisory note dated 20th March, 1896, at ninety days, the note providing that if it was not paid at maturity the policy should become null and void, but subject, on subsequent payment, to reinstatement under the rules for lapsed policies. Fayments on account of the note were made, and in February, 1898, the insured died:— Held, in an action by the beneficiary, that the giving of the note was not a payment of the premium such as would entitle the insured to the extended insurance allowed in case three full annual premiums had been paid. Tilley v. Contederation Life Assoc., 20 C. L. T. 184, 7 B. C. R. 1344.

Somerville, who was insured in defendant company for $6,000, for an order declaring that the said Wm. J. Somerville, who had not been heard from by his family since Dec., 1897, should be deemed to have died, within one year after 20th December, 1899, $7,055.90 and interest from 1st April, 1907, being amount of policies and premiums paid subsequent to alleged death. Defendants denied due notice and proof of death of the insured. Magee, J., held, that judgment should be entered, declaring that Wm. J. Somerville should be, and is, legally presumed to have died before 15th May, 1908, but that the defendant company had not received sufficient proof of his death before the action, and dismissed the action, but without pre-judice to another action, Somerville v. question: "What cash premium has been paid to make he assurance, under this application, binding from this date, providing the risk be assumed by the delivery of the company's policy? 8 2"—Held, that the bianks to the agent afford reasonable ground for the belief that the person thus employed was their mandatory to receive the first premium on an insurance applied for by a client. Therefore, when the latter, in signing his application, gives at the same time his promissory note for the first premium, payable to the agent by name, who negotiates it and appropriates the amount of it, the insurance company incur no responsibility, either as principals, or as warranters of the net of their officer in the exercise of his functions. Tender of premium — Refusal to accept—Vecessity for tender of future premiums.]—In an action by the widow of a man whose life was insured by the defendants for $1,000, upon payment of a monthly premium of $1,33, to recover the amount of the insurance upon proof of his death, the plaintiff alleged that she tendered the monthly premium for January, 1892, but the defendant refused to accept it, or any future premium, nuless the insured should be re-examined. He died in June, 1893:—Held, upon the evidence at the trial, that the plaintiff had not discharged the burden of proving the tender; but, in any case, one tender would not have been sufficient, the circumstances not being such as to justify a reasonable belief that future tenders would be rejected. Webb v. New York Isife Ins. Con. 22 Ct. L. T. 179.

Assurance broker — Chance in policy—Authorisation — Deviation — Custom — Necessity.]—When an insurance company has insured a carge for a voyage from Montreal to New Carlyle, and the assurance broker has of his own motion changed the description of such voyage by adding to it the words "and to Bonaventure River." which was the voyage the ship was to make, the contract of insurance is void ab initio, even when the loss takes place between Montreal and New Carlyle, the insurance broker not being able to change the description of the voyage without a special authorisation, and the parties not being agreed upon a port of destination. Judgment in Q. R. 15 S. C. 469 affirmed on this point. When a eargo is insorred for a voyage described as "from Montreal to New towage described as "from Montreal to New distribution that the ship will touch at intermediate ports, the fact that the ship is delayed at Levis for six or seven hours, and for four days and six hours at St. Miebel de Bellechasse, constitutes a deviation and vitiates the contract of assurance. would not cover them—"sur-losser not liable for price of goods lost.]—Large ordered plaintiff to "insure and ship him" certain goods by first vessel. On the trial it appeared that plaintiff sent the goods to the wharf and caused them to be insured by a policy which only covered goods if shipped under deck. The goods were placed without plaintiff's knowledge, on deck, and on the voyage were lost. Large refused to pay for them on the ground that they had not been "shipped and insured" as ordered. The Judge told the jury the order was one transaction, though consisting of two parts, viz., to ship, and to insure, and that the plaintiff must show he both shipped and insured the goods so as to cover them where they were, viz., on the deck, and not lawing done so there was no insurance and plaintiff was not entitled to recover them where they were, viz., on the deck, and not lawing done so there was no insurance and plaintiff was not entitled to recover, and they were the work of the first three the law where they were, viz., and the lawing done so there was no insurance and plaintiff was not entitled to recover them where they were, viz., and they have the lawing the law of t

Partial loss — Abandonment — New trial. — Pinniffs shipped a enrgo of fish to the West Indies, but the vessel was caught in the ice and remained there all winter, whereby the enrgo was damaged. She got into Halifax in May, and the owners gave the underwriters notice of abandonment, and the expermed, and the palaintiff claimed for a constructive loss. The fish were re-dried and repacked by the purchaser and shipped to the West Indies, and, though discoloured, were not much injured. The jury found a total loss, and defendants moved to set the verdict askle and for a new trial, on the ground that the evidence shewed there was only a partial hos.—Held, Peters, J., Hodgson, C.J., and he jury was wrong, the loss being partial and not total, and that there must be a new trial. Policy on freight — Constructive total loss — Prastration of object of voque by peril insured against.]—Plaintill's steamer, while on a voyage from Halifax to Hawana with a cargo of fish and potatoes, was disabled by the breaking of her shaft, and was towed into Hamilton. Bermuda. It was found impossible to repair the ship in time to enable her to carry the cargo forward, and at the request of the shippers, the cargo was returned to them and brought hack to Halifard the ship of the cargo was returned to them and brought hack to Halifard brought action against the defendant company to recover the amount insured upon freight to be carned. The jury found, in answer to questions submitted to them, that the ship could not have been repaired at Bermuda in time to have carried the cargo forward to Havana, without material deciroration of the cargo, or its becoming worthless, and that the shaft was broken by perils of the sea:—Hed, that plaintil was perils of the sea:—Hed, that plaintil was required to be carried forward to its destination without delay, and the object of the voyage having been made of no effect by a peril insured against.—Held, also, the venture having been made of no effect was a superil as the was a superil marted by a peril insured against, that there was a

Prohibited waters — Breach of verently avoiding policy — Time — Port! — A policy of insurance issued by the defendants on the plaintiffs' steamer "Richard" covered the steamer for the period of one year, from the Gth July, 1905, to the Gth July, 1906. By a clause in the policy, the steamer was prohibited from using certain waters, including Cape Breton, between the last December and the last May, but, by a clause written in on the face of the policy, permission was given to use Cape Breton ports until the last January, 1906. The steamer left Halifax in ballast on the 31st December, 1905, for Port Hastings, in the island of Cape Breton, and arrived there on the last January, 1906. See took in a cargo of coal on the 2nd January, and left for Yarmouth on the 37d, having been prevented from leaving sooner:—Heid, that the use of the Cape Breton port, accoling the policy, and a breach of warranty that avoided the policy, Richard S. Re-insurance — Salvage — "Special charges" — Contribution — Constructive total loss. ]—The plaintilis, having insured a large number of cattle and sheep, for the voyage from Montreal to Manchester, re-insured part of the risk with the defendants raining the following clause: — "Insured against absolute total loss of vessel and animals, but to pay general average, and apecial charges." The ship carrying the animals struck a reef, and was finally abandoned three weeks later. In the meantime part of the animals had been landed on an island, whence they were carried to linifiax and other places. The amount payable for salvage of the live stock so transported was fixed at one-third of the gross passes of a discussion of the salvage of the live stock to transported was fixed and to make the salvage of the live stock to the plaintilis, and were paid as for a constructive total loss. The plaintilis alleged that all the expenditure for salvage, transportation, and maintenance of the animals, constituted "special charges," within the meaning of the reinsurance policy, and sued the defendants for their proportion of the anount: —Held, that their particular charges and includes expenses for salvage, preservation, and sale of the object insured. The word "special" merely distinguishes an expense incurred in a particular interest from an expense incurred in a particular interest from an expense incurred in a particular interest from an expense incurred in the general interest, which latter gives rise to general average contribution. Special charges cover all expenses occasioned by a peril insured against, when they have been paid, and the circumstance that the effectionation and the circumstance that the effection that any oth have been interested in incurring

That evidence of a witness as to what he understood or did not understand generally was properly rejected, where the underwriter was wrongfully interfering with the control of the ship, the insured the underwriter had accepted the abandon-ment. 8. That if the renewal of the notice of abandonment, when the project of the insurers to repair failed, did not conclude the the sale. 9. That the Court, even if dissatisfied with the verdict, especially after a second trial, will defer to the opinion of a special jury of men peculiarly able to understand the subject matter. 10. That where such jurors were furnished with a shorthand report of the evidence of witnesses on a former trial, it was not important that they amount claimed by the plaintiff for services of the master and crew, while the vessel was in the hands of the underwriters, did not come within the "sue and labour" clause, sought for services of the plaintiff's special agent, who was acting adversely to the underwriters. "When clear of the ice," meaning of — Policy differing from application —
Mistake — New trial — Construction of policy.]—Plaintiff had filled up a slip for insurance on a vessel from Charlottelown to Hawkesbury, C.B. and swore that the de-fendant's agent, N., agreed to the terms mentioned in the slip, and that he then left it with N., who, after plaintiff left the office, added to it the words, "when clear of the ice," and a few hours later gave a policy containing those words to plaintiff, who put was driven on shore and run over by ice that night. N. denied having agreed to insure without the condition, or that he accepted the slip filled up by plaintiff as the contract; on the contrary he said he had refused to accept it without the condition as to ice, and that he filled in the words "when clear of the ice" in the slip as a guide to his clerk in making out the policy. Plaintiff brought his action on the policy and on the agreement alleged to be contained in the slip. On the latter point the jury found for defendant but found for plaintiff on the policy, and defendants took out a rule for a new trial :-Held (Peters, J., Palmer, C.J., and Hensley, J., concurring), making the rule absolute, that the agreement in the slip (if any), was for insurance and not one of insurance.— 2. That the words, "when clear of the ice" in this policy meant that the vessel must arrive at some point on her voyage, where and from which the ordinary risks of the voyage would not be sensibly increased by icc. est, though interest was asked for before payment of the principal. Defendant Alice R. Cox moved for an order for payment by plaintif of interest at 5 per cent, from date of payment to plaintiff to date of repayment, nearly 11 months:—Held, the prima faciright to interest, in the circumstances of this cuse, is established by Rodger V. Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris, L. R. 3 P. C. 465, where the whole question is discussed by Lord Cairns. This was followed by Baccan, V.-C., in Merchant Banking Co., V. Maud, L. R. 18 Eq. 659, and by our own Court of Appeal in Sherk V. Feans, 22 A. R. 224 (see especially judgment of Osler, J.A., at p. 248). Counsel for plaintiff contended that, in view of the conflict as to who was entitled to the principal, interest should not be allowed. But it was open to him to have guarded himself either by an order to pay the money into Court, or by getting a waiver of any right to interest from the rival chimants. The present lawful rate being 5 per cent, I think defendant Alice R. Cox is entitled to what she asks, Adams v. Cox, 5 O. W. R, 449, 10 O. L. R. 96.

Recovery of — Debt—"Time certain" —Writing, 1—The defendant F., in October, 1889, contracted with C. to build certain fences and gates along the line of the G. N. Central Railway, and associated the defendant M. with him. They sublet the contract to the plaintiffs by a written agreement which provided for payment to the plaintiffs as follows: "Estimates for the said work shall be made monthly by the engineer, and shall be paid forthwith upon same being paid to said P. and M. by said company." After payment of two estimates for part of the plaintiffs' work, difficulties arose, and the plaintiffs' work, difficulties arose, and the engineer, to prevent the bringing of an action, withheld further estimates; but in September, 1891, after ligitation between C. and the company had commenced, P. accepted a judgment against the company for the balance due to him by C. upon his fencing contract. This judgment, however, was not paid until 1898, and then it was paid without interest: —Held, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to interest on their claim before action, as it was not payable by virue of a written instrument at a time certain within the meaning of 3 & 4 Wm. Conviction for first offence—Costs—Mode of enjorcing penalty—Dom. Acts, 1888, c. 34, s. 14, c. 51.1—Defendant was convicted before a stipendiary magistrate for unlawfully selling intoxicating liquor contrary to the provisions of the second part of the Camada Temperance Act, being a first offence, and was adjudged for such offence, to forfeit and pay the sum of $50 penalty and $25.05 costs, and in default of payment to be imprisoned for the term of two months:

—Held, that the conviction was good, and that the application to set the same aside must be disassed. The proceedings being each such as the same aside must be disassed. The proceedings being costs were allowed. Since the amendment of the Camada Temperance Act, Acts of 1888, c. 51, and c. 34, s. 14, it is clear that the mode of enforcing payment of the penalty is to be fixed and included in the conviction. Conviction—Certiorari—Sale of liquors—Delivery by agent.] — Trenholm was the agent of the Dominion Express Company at Botsford in the country of Westmoreland, One S. T., had ordered from L., a merchant residing and doing business in Amberst, Nova Scotia, some whiskey, directing that it should be forwarded to him at Botsford, by express C.O.D. The company in due course of business sent the package to S. T., the purchaser, and it was delivered to him at Botsford by Trenholm, the company's agent, to whom S. T. paid the price and charges, which were remitted in the ordinary way to the company's agent at Amherst. Tpon these facts Trenholm was charged and convicted for selling liquor contrary to the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act:—Held, that there was no sale by Trenholm, and, even if a delivery was necessary to complete the sale, it only completed a sale which took place in Amherst, and with which Trenholm was in no way concerned, Ex p. Trenholm, 21 C. L. T. 55.

Conviction — Several prosecutions pending at same time—Evidence—Inflaence on magistrate. [—The defendant was summoned to appear before a stipendary magistrate to answer two informations for selling intoxicating liquor, in violation of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act. Evidence was heard in both cases, and both cases were then adjourned until a subsequent day, when judenent was given, convicting the defendant under one information, and quashing the other—Held, that the conviction must be quasiled, the magistrate having heard evidence that the convention must be quasiled, the magistrate having heard evidence that the convention must be quasiled, the magistrate having heard evidence in the one case, although disherence in the one case, although disherence in the the defendant was convicted. Regina v. McBerney, 26 N. S. R. 327, followed. Rev. Burke, 36 N. S. R. 605.

Conviction — Stipendiary magnistrate— Jursidiction — Statute—A mendment.]— The defendant was convicted at Canning, in the county of Kings, of an offence against the Canada Temperance Act alleged to have been committed at Aldershot, in that county, The stipendiary magistrate who made the conviction was appointed under the authority of R. S. C., c. 33, in which it was provided that "one or more stipendiary magistrates may be appointed by the Governoria-Council, for each county in the province, to hold office during pleasure." Subsequent to the appointment, and before the making of the conviction, the Act respecting the appointment of stipendiary magistrates was amended by the Acts of 1996, c. 11, by striking out the word "county" and substituting therefore the word "municipality." No new appointment was made for the municipality and the boundaries of the municipality were the same as those of the county:—Held, Weatherlee, C.J., dissenting, that the stipendiary magistrate before whom the matter was heard had the application for a certiforn and the the application for a certiforn and the the conviction made by him must be dismissed. Rex v. Tounshend (No. 1), 39 N. S. R. 172.

Conviction — Stipendinry magniture of county—Offence in town—Jernédiction.)—
The defendant was convicted of a violation of the Canada Temperance Act by selling intoxicating liquor at Sydney in the county of Cape Breton. Sydney is an incorporated town within the county of Cape Breton. The convicting magnistrate was appointed to be "a stipendiary magistrate in the county of Cape Breton: "—Held, that the magistrate had jurisdiction. Res v. Convoy, 21 C. L. second part of the Canada Temperance Act. then in force in and throughout the county of Cumberland, the conviction being a con viction as and for a third offence against the second part of the Canada Temperance Act. On application for a writ of certiorari the chief point argued was that it did not appear from the conviction that the offence for which the defendant was convicted, was com-mitted after an information laid for the first offence, as required by R. S. C. c. 106, s. 115 (d). Affidavits were read in reply shewing that, although it was not so stated in the conviction, such in fact was the case :-Held, that the affidavits were receivable :-Held, that the provisions of the statute having been complied with, although it was not so stated in the conviction, the conviction in form "V" provided by the Dominion Act. torm v provided by the Dominion Act, 1888, c. 34, s. 14, was sufficient. Conviction for third offence—Proof of previous convictions—Certificates of convicting magistrates—Oral evidence of contents of previous informations. Rex v. Hoare, 2 E. L. R. 314.

"County"—Incorporation of city — Reduction of area.]—The word "county." for the purposes of the Canada Temperance Act, simply means "geographical area," and there is therefore no reason for constraing the Act in such a way as to effect a reduction of the prohibited area, when a city incorporated under provincial legislation is carved out of it.—By order in council dated the 15th October, 1881, the second part of the Canada Temperance Act, 1878, was declared to be in force and take effect in the county of Cape Breton. In the year 1994, by Act of the legislature of Nova Scotia passed in that year, the city of Sydney was incorporated. The defendant was convicted of having unlawfully kept intoxicating liquor for sale in the city of Sydney, contrary to the provisions of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act, then in force in sale city:—Held, affirming the conviction, that, so far as the Canada Temperance Act was read as applying to the county as it existed when the Act was brought into force by order in council, and that the incorporation by the provincial legislature of a portion of the territory as a town or city would not have the effect of displacing the operation of the Act. Ker v. McMullin, 25 Occ. N. 108.

Date of offence—Date of information— Jurisdiction, 1—A conviction under the Canada Temperance Act for selling between two dates, where one day in such period would be more than three months before the date of laying the information, is bad. Dismissal of charge—Appeal to County Court—Costs of appeal—Addition of to penatgs.—I peop the trial of an information the provisions of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act, before two sustices of the peace, the justices dismissed the charge and made a formal order of dismissal. From the order so made the prosecutor appealed to a County Court, which quashed the order made by the justices, convicted the defendant of the offence charged, and ordered that he pay, in addition to the fine imposed, etc., the prosecutor's costs, amounting to the sum of $27.10, and that the same be levied by distress, etc.—Held (Ritche and Henry, J.I., dissenting), that the County Court Judge had jurisdiction to include in the penalty imposed the costs of appeal to that Court. Regina v. Husboth, 33 N. S. R. 105.

Fourth conviction — Imprisonment—Release on buil—Repress—Discharge,! — B, was originally imprisoned under a warrant of two justices on a conviction for a fourth offence against the provisions of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act. He applied for an order for his discharge to a Judge, who referred the matter to the Court for advice, bailing the prisoner to appear on a day certain in term, to submit to whatever order the Court might make. The Court, by a majority of its members, advised the Judge that D, was illegally imprisoned and to refuse the application. D appeared on the day and at the place mentioned in his recognizance before the Judge, sixting the prisoner in the place that D, was to remain until discharged according to the condition of the said warrant "(original warrant of the justices)" and according to the condition of the recognizance and the consecutive discharged the said warrant of the justices) "and according to the condition of the recognizance and the consecutive for the Court."—D, was by consent of counsel allowed to go at large from Saturday until Tuesday, on which day he surrendered himself to the gaoler, who refused to take or retain bins. On the following day D.

was arrested by a provincial constable on the order of the Court, without any process, and loaded in gool:—Held, that the Judge had a good on the first application to hail D. Dower on the first application to hail D. Dower on the size of the property of Conviction — Certiovari — Improper errest.]—The fact that the defendant was arrested and brought before the magistrate who made the conviction, by a constable who was not qualified as required by C. S. N. B. e. 29, s. 69, is no ground for a certiovari under the Liquor License Act, 1896. The improper arrest does not go to the jurisdiction of the convicting magistrate, Exp. Gibberson, 34 N. B. Conviction - Certiorari - Magistrate-Rejection — Certiforari — Magistrate— Rejection of evidence — Disqualification — Bias — Ratepaper — Witness.] — An order nisi having been obtained to quash a conviction for selling liquor without a license upon the ground, among others, of the improper rejection of evidence tendered on behalf of the defendant: — Held, that this was no ground for certiorari. There was a number of other objections going to shew that the magistrate was disqualified by reason of his relationship to the real prosecutor and by reason of bias, etc., but it was held that these objections were not established in point of fact. The defendant applied to call the magistrate as a witness, but, as he declined to state in any other than in a general way trate refused to leave the Bench to be sworn. In this he was sustained by the Court, notwithstanding the defendant swore that the application was made in good faith. The magistrate is not disqualified because of his being a ratepayer in the district where the case was tried. Certiorari is taken away in cases of convictions for selling without li-cense by the Liquor License Act, 1896, s. Ex p. Hebert, 34 N. B. R. 455.

VII. c. 91 authorises the town of Woodstock to regulate the sale of beer of all kinds (not, however, to include any intoxicating liquor) within the town. Under the authority conferred, a bylaw was made, providing in one section a retail license fee of $100, and in another that no license should be granted to any person who had been convicted of an offence against the Canada Temperance Act within one month prior to the date of application. The defendant, who had no license and had not applied for one, was convicted for selling without a license:—Held, on an application to quash the conviction, that the section of the bylaw imposing the license was not ultra vires, as imposing such an excessive tax as to be in effect prohibitive, and not merely regulative; that while the section excluding the persons indicated therein from the privilege of obtaining a license might be beyond the limits of the authority conferred, it was no ground for quashing the conviction against the defendant, he never having applied for a license. Rex v. Dibblec, Ex p. Smith, 38 N. B. R. 359, 4 E. L. R. 226.

Conviction — Sale — Unlicensed premises — Colourable lease — Hilegal contract—Appeal — County Count.] — The defendant Appeal — County Count.] — The defendant provides the country of the defendant was intoxicating liquors contrary to law, on the ground that the property of the defendant, were at the time of the sale under lease to M., and that defendant was in possession solely as the agent or servant of M. The evidence shewed that defendant was in possession solely as the agent or servant of M. The evidence shewed that defendant was not in receipt of wages from M., that no books were kept containing on inventory was made of the contents of the premises at the time of the alleged lease, that no method was provided of fixing or accounting for the value of any article lost, that no method was provided of fixing or accounting for the value of any article lost, injured, or destroyed during the term of the lease, and that no change was made in the occupation or management of the premises, the defendant's name remaining on the door as proprietor:—Held, that the lease was a time the business, that the defendant was the occupant of the premises within the meaning of the Liquor License Act, 1805, s. 128, and that the contract between defendant and M., being to do a thing which could not be performed without a violation of law, was void:—Held, also, that the effect of the appeal to the County Court was to vacate the judgment appeal of ron, and that the Judge of the proposed of the propose

Conviction — Sale of liquor — Place of Sale—Evidence.]—The defendant's clerk received, at Trure, N.S., an order, addressed to Bigelow & Hood, Ltd., Halifax, for one bottle of whiskey. The order was sent to Halifax, and was returned the following day, endorsed

"Deliver this order from our Truro warehouse, and charge," etc. Bigelow & Hood rented from the defendant, who was president of the company, premises at Truro, which they used as a bonded warehouse; but the evidence shewed that the order in question was filled, not from the bonded warehouse, but from an open case in the defendant's cellar, which was kept there for that purpose, put in the defendant's light and a memorandum of it entered in the cash book, as a sale:—Held, that the evidence shewed a sale, by the defendant, in Truro. Rex v. Bigelow, 36 N. S. R. 550.

Conviction — Third offence — Proof of previous convictions — Procedure before the convictions — Procedure before used as evidence upon which to have a conviction for a third offence against the provisions of the Liquor License Act, as often as such offence is charged and proved. It is not now necessary, under the statute (s. 131) to ask the defendant whether he has been previously convicted, unless he is present in person. Where at the conclusion of each of several cases tried before him, the magistrate decided to convict, but, at the instance of the defendant's counsel, refrained from a conviction of the defendant of the provision of the convictions are all the convictions:—Held, that the magistrate was not precluded from proceeding with the convictions at a later stage. viction for an offence against the Nova Scotia Liquor License Act, the offence was stated to have been committed "within the space of six months last past previous to the information:" — Held, that an offence committed within six months before the laying of the information was not disclosed; and the defendant, who had been imprisoned pursuant to the conviction, was discharged upon habeas corpus. Rex v. Wambolt, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 160.

Infraction — Conviction — Travellers obtaining liquor at meals.]—K, having left his home without breakfast, was on his way to North Sydney, when he called at defendant's hotel and obtained breakfast and liquor;—Held, that K, was a "bons fide guest," within the meaning of R. S. N. S. (1900). C. 190, and that the conviction should be quashed. — Meagher & Laurence, JJ., dissented.—Semble, that defendant might have been convicted if he had been charged under s., 73 of the Act for selling "otherwise than during regular meals," Reg v. Byng, 6 E. L. R. 240, 43 N. S. R. 43.

intoxicating nature of the beverage is no defence. R. v. Sidovski, T E. L. R. 18. 397.

Irregularity — Stated case — Jurisdiction of Court to amend conciction—N. S. Summary Convictions Act. s. 73, s. s. 6.]—
The magistrate had imposed a fine of $20 and costs and in default of payment 60 days in prison. Under ss. 103 and 105 of above Act. the imprisonment should not have exceeded 30 days. Conviction amended by reducing imprisonment to 30 days. Rev v. Power, 6 E. L. R. 412, 43 N. S. R. 235, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 264.

Keeping for sale without license—Presumption of—Search of premises—Evidence—Presumption—Rebuttal.[—Upon appeal from an order of a County Court Judge affirmation and order of a County Court Judge affirmation for the purpose of sale, barter, and traffic therein, without the license therefor by law required, the evidence shewed that the defendant occupied a house in the town of Truro, opposite a building occupied by his son-in-law as an hotel where liquor was believed to be sold illegally. The defendant had previously occupied the hotel himself, and had been convicted of unlawful selling, and was believed to be selling in collision with his son-in-law, to whom he had rented the premises, the liquor being kept on the defendant's premises and carried across the street to the hotel as required. On making a search of the defendant spremises, the inspector found a quantity of liquor conceated in a hole below the floor of a room occupied as a bed-room, and also in a validant declined to open. In both places he found a large quantity of straw wrappers, such as are used for packing bottles, and in the wood house some empty liquor cases. There was also evidence that as the inspector left, the defendant said there was a barrel that he had not got, though this remark was denied by the inspector, and was denied by the defendant:—Held, that the evidence of search coupled with the provisions of the Act R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 100, s. 165, s. 2, 2, was ample to justify the conviction unless displaced. That defendant had to evereone the presumption raised against him and to explain the circumstances to the satisfaction of the Judge, and having failed to do so, the Judge could properly ind as he did, and the Court would not disturb the conviction. Rex v. McNatt, 88 N. S. R. 339.

Warrant - Estoppel.]-Section 4 of the Liquor License Act (1900) provides that every inspector shall give security by bond to duties. A municipal council by resolution appointed the defendant inspector, and also resolved "that he be required to file a bond which is satisfactory to the license committee." A bond was executed and approved A bond was executed and approved by the mayor. It was contended that be-cause there was no evidence that the bond was satisfactory to the license committee in accordance with the resolution, the appointment of the defendant was illegal and his subsequent acts invalid:—Held, that, as it was not necessary that the satisfaction of the license committee should be expressed in writing, it should be presumed that the bond was satisfactory to them until the contrary was proved; also that the appointment of the defendant was valid, he having acted as such officer.—The defendant, in seizing liquor, on being asked for the warrant under which he was acting, produced the wrong warrant, and stated in evidence afterwards that he seized the liquor under that warrant. In an action against the defendant for breaking open the premises of the plaintiff, it was contended that the defendant was thereby estopped from justifying under the other warrant: Held, that, as there was no evidence that the defendant gave the wrong warrant to the plaintiff with the wilful intent that he should act on it, estoppel would not apply. Brown v. Laurence, 40 N. S. R. 379.

Offence—Vince of committing — Information—Conviction — Warrant of commitment —Discharge I—To an order in the nature of a habever of the discharge of the defendant, prisoner the discharge of the defendant, prisoner the discharge of the defendant, prisoner the discharge of the signed by the stipendiary majistrate for the county of H., recting a conviction under the Liquor License Act made signist the defendant "for that he, the said L. B., within the space of six months last past, and previous to the information herein, which information is dated and laid on the 22nd day of April, A. D. 1994, did sell liquor by retail without the license therefor by law required," etc.— Held, that the defendant was entitled to his discharge, it not appearing from the warrant that the offence charged was committed within six months before the laying of the information. Rev. y, Boutliner, 24 C. L. T. 240.

Prosecution-Witness for defence-Compelling attendance—Fees — Jurisdiction of magistrate—Habeas corpus.]—On a prosecution before the stipendiary magistrate for the License Act, proof was given of service of a summons on M., who it was asserted, was a material witness for the defendant, but without tendering witness fees, and an application was made to the magistrate for a warrant to compel the attendance of the witness, the fees being at the same time tendered to the magistrate. The application was refused on the sole ground that fees were not tendered in the first instance to the witness, and the trial was proceeded with, and the defendant convicted. On application for a writ of habeas corpus: -Held, Weatherbe, J., dissenting, that the question whether, in a case un der the Liquor License Act the witness could be compelled to attend, or the party was entitled to a warrant, unless the fees had been paid, was open to debate, but that, even if the decision of the stipendiary magistrate was erroneous, it could not be reviewed upon habeas corpus; and the application must be dismissed. Stated case — Evidence of defendant—Protection against incriminating questions.]
—There is no provision for stating a case under the above Act. Defendant was charged with illegally selling liquor. In giving his evidence he denied selling to a witness between the 15th and 29th of March. On cross-examination he was asked as to his transactions with this witness on the 29th March. His counsel objected that he could not be compelled to answer. Under s. 164 of above Act the prosecutor cannot call the accused, when he goes on the stand, is entitled to claim the same protection. The claim for protection is a personal one and must be made by the party himself and under oath. The objection of his counsel will not do. Rex v. McIatyre, 7 E. L. R. 50.

Conviction - Commitment - Habeas corpus Proceedings anterior to conviction-Second offence — Admission of previous of-fence—Record — Magistrate's minute — Uncertainty-Discharge of prisoner-Excessive penalty - Power to amend. |-- Although a conviction on its face appears sufficient to support the commitment of the defendant, the Court will, on the return of a habeas corpus, examine the proceedings anterior to the conviction to see if they warrant his de-tention, and, if they do not, will order his discharge. Regina v. St. Clair, 27 A. R. 308, followed.—The defendant was convicted on the 15th September, 1908, for selling liquor without a license; the conviction recited that the defendant had been convicted on the 17th October, 1907, of having unlawfully sold liquor without a license; and the punishment adjudged was imprisonment for four months without hard labour—the statutory penalty for a second offence. The only record in the proceedings in respect to any previous conviction was contained in an indorsement upon the information, in the handwriting of the magistrate, as follows: "The defendant makes a statement that he was convicted of selling between 4 Oct. and 14 Oct., 1907, and I find the within charge a second of-fence for selling. I commit the defendant to the county gaol for four months without -Held, that s.-s. 6 of s. 101 of the Liquor License Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 245, requires that the subsequent offence and the earlier offence shall each be an offence in the earner of the search of the sections num-contravention of one of the sections num-bered 49, 50, 51, 52 or 72, or an offence against some other section for which no penalty is provided except by 8, 66. The ad-mission as recorded might mean that the defendant had previously been convicted of an offence against s. 78 (2) or against s. 124 (1), or of selling on licensed premises in prohibited hours; proof or the admission of a former conviction for any of these offences would not warrant a later conviction under s, 72 being treated as a second offence under s.s. 6 of s, 101; and this fact sufficed to render the admission of the accused as recorded by the magistrate so uncertain that it was inadequate to sustain his conviction as for a second offence; and he should be discharged from custody under the commitment.—Semble, that the Court had no power to amend the conviction by substituting the maximum penalty prescribed by s. 72 for a first offence. S. O. 1897, c. 88, s. 22.]—The plaintiffs were on the 9th July, 1996, convicted by a magistrate of keeping intoxicating liquors for sale without license, contrary to the Liquor License Act. The conviction was not form-ally drawn up and signed until the 25th October, 1906, when it was made part of the return to a writ of certiorari. The conviction as returned contained a declaration that a large quantity of liquor found on the plaintiffs' premises, including portions alleged by the plaintiffs to be proprietary medicines. should be forfeited, and an order and direction to the defendants, who were police of-ficers, to destroy the liquor and the vessels containing it. This direction was given orally at the time of the conviction, and was acted upon by the defendants about three weeks later. On the 10th December, 1906, the order for the destruction of the portions the order for the destruction of the portions of the liquor alleged to be medicines was quashed by an order of the High Court of Justice. In an action for damages for the destruction of those portions: - Held, 11 came within the protection of ss. 2 and 3 of 61 V. c. 30 (O.), as proprietary medicines or medicine wines.—(2) That in destroying the liquors in question the defendants in good faith believed they had the right to do so in their capacity as police officers, and it was their duty to obey the direction, though merely oral, of the police magistrate.—(3) That the goods being in the custody of the law, and under the jurisdiction of the magistrate, and the destruction being a ministeristrate, and the vertice of the absence of statutory requirement or other authority, for the direction to the police officers to be in writing.—(4) That the defendants had reasonable and probable cause part was shown .- (5) That the notice of action was sufficient, as the defendants, according to their own evidence, understood the nature of the complaint and when and where the act complained of happened.—(6) That, in view of the provisions of R. S. O. 1897 c. 88, s. 22, the successful defendants could not be deprived of their costs of the action, and were entitled thereunder to costs as between solicitor and client. Arscott v. Transfer of license — Premises to be made suitable — Powers of Commissioners— Injunction — Costs ]—License commissioners appointed under the Ontario Liquor License Act have no power to say to an applicant for a transfer of a license that, if he will put certain premises into a suitable state for compliance with the law in the future, they will transfer a license to such premises; they are entitled to act under the statute only with regard to the existing state of facts, not to make promises as to the future, in such cases. O'C., having no interest in the premises proposed to be licensed, and having no valid license at all, presented a petition to the commissioners for the transpertuon to the commissioners for the training fer to these premises of a license standing in his name for other premises in which he had no longer any real interest. The commissioners decided that they would allow the transfer of O'C.'s ficense to the new premises when they should be made suitable; but be-fore that time arrived O'C., whose fitness for the transfer was one of the subjects of the the matter, and was allowed to make over his right to K., who in this way escaped the necessity of obtaining the certificate of the ratepayers as to his fitness: -Held, that this was illegal, and if the plaintiff had asked promptly for an injunction to prevent O'C., when he had no valid license and no interest in the new premises, from obtaining rights by asserting that he had, he might have obtained some relief; but at the trial it was too late to interfere, for K. had obtained rights which could not be interfered with in his absence, and the license commissioners whose should have been accepted by the plaintiff, and, as it was not, the plaintiff was not en-titled to costs against O'C.; and the license commissioners should not have costs against the plaintiff. —"Permit" — Mens rea.]—The defendant was the owner of an unlicensed public house or hotel, which he had leased to his son; the defendant lived in the hotel as a boarder:— Held, that he was not an "occupant" within within the meaning of that portion of s. 50 of the Liquor License Act which provides that the occupant of an unlicensed house shall not "permit any liquor, whether sold by him or not, to be consumed upon the premises." — Held, also, that the word "permit" indicates authorisation, either expressly or tacitly, proceeding from the occupant personally, and involves a mens rea; and, there being no evidence that the defendant knew or in any way authorised or connived at the drinking on the premises for "permitting" which he was convicted, that, even if he were an occupant, the conviction could not be sustained. R. v. Irish, 18 O. L. R. 351, 13 O. W R. 769.

Unlicensed premises Search Stranger - Warrant - Sale - Proof.] - The right of entry under s. 130 of the Liquor License Act, R. S. O. c. 245, into any inn, tavern, etc., to make search for liquor, is limited to the persons named therein, namely, "any officer, police constable, or inspector."

and it is only under s. 131, on the procuring a warrant as therein provided, that the officer, etc., can take with him a person not being one of those named. Where, therefore, a license inspector took with him a person, not being one of those so named, without having procured a warrant, his act was illegal, and the defendant justified in resisting it; and the defendant justified in resisting it; in the discharge of his duty was quasiled. The defendant's premises had been licensed as a tavern, but the license had expired, and the only evidence of liquor being sold or reputed to be sold therein, was the statement of the inspector that the defendant's barroom remained the same as before, i.e., before the expire of his license. Per Meredith, C.J.,—This was not sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the section. Per Meredith, C.J., also, that under the circumstances of grounds had not been shewn for suspecting that some violation of the Act was taking place or was about to take place, was not tenable. Regina v. Ireland, 23 C. L. T. 4, 31 O. R. 207.

Warrant of commitment - Failure to recite convictions - Habeas corpus-Motion for discharge - Application by Attorney General for certiorari - Right to ex debito —Invalid warrant — Power to amend—Dis-charge — Stay — Terms.]—The defendant magistrate, directed to a constable and the keeper of the gaol, reciting that the defendwas charged before the magistrate for unlawfully selling, at a place and on a day named, intoxicating liquor, and reciting an information for a third offence against the Liquor License Act, and then, without any allegation of a conviction, commanding the defendant's conveyance to the gaol and de-The defendant procured a writ of habeas corpus, declining a certiorari in aid. Upon a motion made for the discharge of the defendant, counsel for the disenarge of the defend-ant, counsel for the Attorney-General ap-peared and asked for a certiorari to bring up the papers. This was granted, subject to all objections, and the motion for discharge adjourned till the return of the certiorari: to a certiorari of absolute right and absol utely in all cases; and that the recent statute 8 Edw. VII. c. 34 (O), and the corresponding rules do not affect such right.-Held, also, and that the proper practice was followed .-Held, however, that the warrant was bad, and could not be cured or amended under s. 1123 of the Criminal Code, R. S. C. 1906, c. 146, nor under s. 105 of the Liquor License Act, R. S. O. 1898, c. 245. The defendant was entitled to be discharged and the discharge should not be stayed for a new warrant, nor should terms be imposed. Will — Devise of hotel premises to widow —Benefit of children — Division of income —Transfer of license to widow — Creditors —Receiver.]—A testator by his will devised hotel premises to his wife during her widowhood, for the benefit of herself and four chilaren, the income to be applied for their support and mainteannee until the children became of age, and in case of daughters until marriage. On the widow marrying, the property was to go to children, the widow being paid $1,000. On the testator's death in 1896, the widow applied to the license commissioners and obtained a transfer of the license to her for the remainder of the year; and for the subsequent years until 1900 the license was granted to her, she carrying on the business and maintaining herself and the children thereout, no money of the estate going into the business *LP-Id-d, that, after the testator's death, the license and good-will of the hotel business belonged to the widow personally, and formed no part of his estate, nonget the widow and children as in Allen v. Parness, 20 A. R. 34.—Held, also, that reditors of the widow were entitled to attach the widow's interest in the property, which could be reached by the appointment of a receiver. Taylor v. Action for price — License—Production — Pleading,1 — The plaintiff was a grocer, and sued to recover the amount of an account for intoxicating liquors sold. The defendant moved for an order that the plaintiff should be directed to declare whether at the time of the sale of such beverages he had a license required by law and to produce such license:—Held, that the plaintiff was not obliged to allege that he was the holder of a license nor was he obliged to produce one as long as the defendant did not by his pleading allege that the plaintiff bad not obeyed the law upon this point. Martel v. Paquet,

Adjournment for more than 30 days. —The sentence or judgment and its delivery in a suit taken pursuant to the Quebec License Act (Art. 903 and following R.

S. Q., 1909), are not a part of the hearing of the case within the meaning of Art. 1117. Hence, for the purpose of rendering his decision, the magistrate may adjourn the case for more than thirty days from the close of the hearing, Plante v. Cliche (1910), 38 Que. S. C. 535.

Certiorari.] — No appeal being allowed from a conviction under Que. License Act, the Court, on an application for certiorari, will not look into the evidence with a view to revise the decision of the magistrates. Dubuo v. Maclaren, 37 Que. S. C. 59

Collector of revenue — May take action to recover penalty. —In a manicipality in which a prohibition by-law is in force, the notice given to the council to prosecute those who have broken the law, in conformity with sent by register. Eigense Act, and which is sent by register Eigense Act, and which is sent by register to the star of the collector of revenue to the star of the with names of the law breakers, and of the with names of the law breakers, and of the with names of the law breakers, and of the with names of the law breakers, and of the with names of the law breakers, and of the with names of the law breakers, and of the with names of the law breakers, and of the with names of the law to the date upon which the law was broken, is sufficient. A reply from the secretary-treasurer to the collector authorizing the latter on behalf of the major to take proceedings is proof of the fact that the municipality has refused to act itself. From that moment, the collector may take action at the expense of the municipality and he may recover such expense from it in case the defendants in the suit are insolvent or it is found impossible to enforce payment by them. Bruneau v. Black Lake (1910), 39 Que. S. C. 91.

Commitment, under a condemnation to pay a fine, a specified sum for costs, or, in default, to imprisonment for a stated period, "unless the said several sums of money and costs and charges of arrest of commitment and of conveying to common gnol, shall be somer paid," is not bad under Que, License 20%, for the payment of such subsequent state. Dubuc v. Muclaren, 37 Que. S. C. 50.

Complaint signed by the collector of revenue—4rt. 176 and following.]—When an action or suit, in virtue of the Quebec License Act, is instituted in the Circuit Court, Article 176 of the Act does not apply to proceedings before that Court, and the declaration does not require to be signed by the collector of revenue, Paquin v. Lallier, 16 R. de J. 3.

Conclusions in suits to recover penalties are superfluous, a fine being provided by law, or, when the penalty is an alternative one, the point is left to the discretion of the magistrate. Hence, a decision ordering imprisonment for an offence which is punishable by a fine or imprisonment, is legal, although the suit contains conclusions for a fine merely. Plante v, Cliche (1910), 38 Que. S. C. 535.

Brunelle v. Princeville, 30 Que, 8 C. 19.

Confirmation of Heenses — Necessity for notice — Imperative Statute, 1—The Liquor License Act of Quebec requiring on the part of a municipal council, at the time of the confirmation of certificates of license, a preliminary notice, is imperative and of public order, and the absence of such notice will justify any one interested in demanding the setting aside of the confirmation of such certificate within the time and in the manner indicated by the Municipal Code, Plessis-ville v. Mofet, 12 Que. K. B. 418.

Conviction — Certiovari — Informant— False name — Date of summons — Fee of clerk, — The fact that, upon a penal prosecution for selling intoxicating liquors to a minor, the complainant (the alleged minor), who has also given evidence as a witness to prove the offence, has given a false name, does not take away from the Recorder's Court the jurisdiction which it has over such offences, and is not a ground for a certi-vir.— 2. Conviction — Payment of costs — Suspended sentence — Mandanus 1—In a prosecution under the Quebec License Act, 63 V. c. 12; in which the defendant pleaded guilty, a judgment by the magistrate suspending sentence on payment of costs, is illegal and ultra vires. Had the magistrate merely suspended sentence, a writ of mandanus would lie against him ordering him to proceed to adjudicate under s.-s. 3 of Art. 992, C. P. Lambe V. Lafontaine, 20 Que. S. C. 132.

Conviction — Sentence — Changing — Payment of costs only — Certiforari, 1—Under the Liquor License Act of Quebec a Judge has no discretion to change his sentence for the offence of keeping liquors for sale without license into a sentence imposing payment of costs only, and a certiforari will be granted to remove a conviction so drawn up. Lambe v. Desnogers, 6 Que. P. R. 439.

Conviction — Validity — Temperance Act 1864 — Concurrent statutes still operative.]—The Temperance Act of 1864, commonly known as the Dunkin Act, has never been repealed, and is still in force. Its operation, however, is not incompatible with that of the Quebec License Act, 63 V. c. 12, and both statutes take enect concurrently. A conviction, therefore, under the latter for selfing liquor without a license, in a unnicipality in which a by-law has been passed under the former, to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor, is valid, although the offence is also a brench of and punishable under the Temperance Act, 1864. Exp. O'Neill, 28 Que. S. C. 304.

Depositions of witnesse present in Court taken down in writing b leave of the magistrates, under s. 189 of Que, License Act, need not be signed by the witnesses and are sufficiently attested by the signatures of the justices to the minutes of proceedings that declare each one of the witnesses was sworn and gave the evidence written in the depositions. Dubue v. Maclaren, 37 Que, S. C. 59.

General opposition to confirmation of any Heense certificate. —In considering application for confirmation of certificates for licenses for the sale of intoxicating Heureston for licenses for the sale of intoxicating Heureston for the sale of intoxicating Heureston for numerical council to ascertain if the requisite numbers of electors have since the same, and to refuse the confirmation if the demand for a license is opposed in writing by the absolute majority of the electors resident in the municipality or polling subdivision, as the case may be, and where the council disregards such opposition on the ground that it is made in general terms against all application and not directed nominatively against the applicant, the resolution of confirmation will be set aside. Montangly V. Bellagare (1910), 16 R. de J. 298.

Granting of licenses — Opposition — Powers of municipal corporations — Interpretative laws and their application. — Municipal corporations cannot grant hotel licenses when there is a written opposition on the part of a majority of the electors under the part of a majority of the electors under the pretext that a certain number of those who signed the opposition, and in the absence of which there would not have been a majority, had signed the certificate. Hotel license—Nale of spirits in greater quantities than a quart—Intention at time of sale—Construction of saturtes.]—The defendant, the holder of a hotel license to sell liquor by retail, was convicted of selling liquor in greater quantities than that authorised by the Act. It was shewn that one

G. applied to the licensee to purchase three quart bottles of whiskey, the quantity which the licensee could under his license sell being one quart. The licensee said to G. "one at a time," and gave him one quart, which was paid for. The purchaser understood 'the licensee to mean that he would sell the three bottles, but separately. Subsequently, and at intervals of fifteen minutes each, two other bottles were purchased, and these were stored in the bar until called for by the purchaser. On appeal:—Heid, that the evidence disclosed that the real nature of the transaction was not a separate and distinct sale of separate and distinct quarts, but one sale of the statuse being to prevent the sale of liquor by hotel licensees in greater quantities than one quart, the Court should so construe it as to suppress evasions and defeat attempts to avoid in an indirect manner that which is by the statute prohibited. #### 3. LOCAL OPTION By-LAWS

Action to set aside by-law should be directed against the municipal corporation and not against those who signed the petition. Piche v. St. Agathe (1911), 12 Que. P. R. 295.

Application to quash - Alleged irreguplication to quash a local option by-law of 1889, under the Liquor License Act, 52 V. c. 15. Three objections were taken: (1) that 15. Three objections were taken: (1) that the by-law was not signed by the reeve; (2) that the by-law fixing the day, hour, and places for taking the vote was not signed by the reeve, or sealed with the corporate seal; and (3) that the notice of the by-law and of the property of the pr and of the purpose to take the vote thereon was not published during the period in which it was required to be published. By s. 428 of the Municipal Act, R. S. M. 1902, s. 116, an application to quash a by-law cannot be entertained unless the application is made within one year from the passing of the by-law, "except in the case of a by-law requiring the assent of the electors or ratepayers, when the by-law has not been submitted to, or has not received the assent of the electors, or ratepayers." A similar provision, differing only as to the period of limitation, was in force when the by-law in question was enacted; see 49 V. c. 52, s. 328:— Held, that the above provision meant a submission in fact, and an assent in fact, without reference to the validity of the formalities attending the submission. The alleged by-law was submitted to a vote of the electors and received their assent, and it stood without rejection for over thirteen years. The summary method of quashing a by-law was the creature of the statute, and must be taken with the limitations imposed by statute. In re Houghton & Argyle, 23 C. L. of clerk — Summing up of votes — Adjournment—Time for by-law to take effect—Missische Leiden an application to quash a local option by-law passed under the provisions of ss. 61 to 73. inclusive, of the Liquor License Act. R. S. M. 1902. c. 101:—Held, that none of the following objections to the proceedings were fatal to the by-law!—1. That, instead same printed heading, each having a number of signatures, were tied up in a roll, the of signatures, were tied up in a ron, the sheets not fastened together, and presented to the council, it being admitted that the heading of each was sufficient for a petition. heading of each was summer for a parameter.

—2. That there was no entry in the minutes of the proceedings of the council shewing receipt of the petition, such receipt having been recited in the by-law.—3. That there was no proof that the petitions altogether had was no proof that the peritions altogether as been signed by one-fourth in number of the electors. It was for the council to satisfy itself that this condition had been compiled with, and it must be assumed that it perwith, and it must be assumed that it per-formed its duty in that respect.—4. That, in-stead of preparing and posting up "a list of those entitled to vote on such by-law," as re-quired by s. 67 of the Act, the clerk of the municipality posted up and supplied merely copies of the last revised list of electors of the municipality for the year, cers. 63 of the Act the two lists would contain law by a wrong number. Repealing by-law Con Mun. Act. 338% as amended by i fidu, VII., c. 22, s. 3,8-1.—The action was to set aside a by-law repealing the local option by-law, submitted to the electors and voted down, as never validly submitted to, or voted upon, or so dealt with by the council as to be operative, and to have another by-law ordered to be submitted to the electors.—Clute, J., at trial dismissed the action, with costs. Divisional Court dismissed an appeal therefrom, with costs, as there were no grounds disclosed upon which the action was maintainable, Vandyke V. Grinsby, 19 O. L. R. 402, 14 O. W. Submission to electors - Bribery -Treating. 1—A cattle drover, who was not a "temperance man," nor an agent in any way of the "temperance people" who were promoting the passage of a local option by-law, having a grudge against a local hotel keeper, took an active interest in the passing of the by-law and endeavoured to promote it by treating freely as he travelled through the township, with a view, as he admitted, of influencing the electors to vote for the by-law. There was no general drunkenness, and it was not proved definitely that any one elector bad been treated. The by-law was carried by a majority of 205 in a vote of over 1,200: -Held, in the circumstances, that such treating and conduct were not the means of the passing of the by-law in violation of the provisions of ss. 245 and 246 of the Consolidated Visions of 88, 249 and 246 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903. One was scarlet, the other pink. (5) Knowledge by the council, when finally passing the by-law, that the three-fifths majority has been obtained, is voting on the by-law can properly be used for concurrent voting for other objects, the Act in no way restricting their use to voting on the by-law only. (7) Objections that the voters' lists were not properly prepared, that the list for one of the polling divisions contained more than the requisite number of voters, and that certain deputy returning officers and poll clerks were not properly appointed, were overruled. (8) The declaration of inability to read or physical incapacity to mark the ballot is a pre-requisite open voting, and its absence invalidates the vote, even though it is done with the consent of the scrutineers for and against the by-law: but the defect was immaterial, for, even if struck off, the result here would not have been affected (9) A voter is not to be de-prived of his vote by reason of the submission to him by the deputy returning officer of a useless form of oath. (10) The fact that a public harbour, which is subject to the legislative authority of the Dominion, was within the territorial limits of the township, does not necessarily raise the presumption that the council intended the by-law to apply thereto,

Plea, that the defendant was not personally served with the first process in the suit withserved with the first process in the suit with-in the jurisdiction of the Court where the judgment was obtained, and that the defend-ant was never indebted to the plaintiff in the claim on which the judgment was obtained. Replication that the contract on which the judgment was recovered was made at M., within the jurisdiction of the Superior Court of the district of M.; that the said Court had jurisdiction of the subject matter of the said suit, and the said judgment was regularly obtained according to the practice of the said Court, and that the sum mentioned in the said judgment and ordered to be paid is justly and truly due and payable by the dejusty and truly due and payable by the de-fendant to the plaintiff. Demurrer to the re-plication, and notice of objection to the plea:—Held, that the plea as an allegation that the enforcement of the judgment by this Court was contrary to natural justice, was bad, as it did not negative the existence of all facts which, if proved, would render the judgment enforceable, that it was not sufficient to enable the defendant to go into the merits of the original cause of action under C. S. c. 48, as it did not set out the cause of action. That the replication was bad, as it did not join issue on the conclusion of the plea "never indebted," and merely reiterated in another form the right to enforce the judgment. Shearer v. Equitable relief — Deciaratory judyment — Simple contract creditor — Statute of Limitations. —A creditor under a Quebec judgment asked a declaration that the judgment debtor was beneficial owner of a cerment.—Held, that being in this province in the position of a simple contract creditor he was not entitled to such relief, for the same reasons which debar a simple contract creditor from taking garnishee proceedings or proceedings for equitable execution; and also because, the claim being one against the Crown, no consequential relief was or could be asked.—Held, also, that the judgment, being more than six years old, would under ordinary circumstances have become harred; but since the judgment debtor was not at the time of the recovery, nor had been since, in this province. the plaintiff's remedy was awed by R. So. 1897 (vol. 3) c. 324, s. 40, Stevent v. Guibord, 23 C. L. T. 242, 6 O. L. R. 262, 2 O. W. R. 198, 554.

The order was in the printed form in use by the plaintiffs, and contained a provision that any action for the price of the engine might be entered, tried, and finally disposed of in the Court having jurisdiction where the head office of the defendants was situated. The plaintiffs sued the defendant in the Court of King's Bench for the province of Manitoba (which was the Court answering the above description), and recovered judgment for the price of the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan upon the to the forum in which judgment was obtained, the plaintiffs, in suing in Manitoba. acted within their rights, and were entitled to judgment in the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan for the amount of the judgment recovered in Manitoba.—Copen v. Thompson, L. R. 9 Ex. 345; Schibsby v. Westenholz, L. R. 6 Q. B. 155, and Rousillon v. Rousil-lon, 14 Ch. D. 351, followed.—It was objected that, as the order had not been read over to the defendant, and his attention had to jurisdiction in the foreign Court, before he signed the order, he was not bound by that condition:—Held, that another clause in the order, just over the signature of the defendant, whereby the defendant acknow-ledged that he had read over the order and thoroughly understood it, estopped the defendant from setting up this objection .-Held, also, upon the evidence, that the enand incapable of performing the work which it was represented and intended it should perform, and wholly failed in doing satisfactory work, and there was a total failure of consideration for the giving of liennotes for the price, and the defendant, un-der the contract and his counterclaim, was him for loss of time and expense in running the engine and for freight, etc., and the value of the engine, which had been returned. -Held, also, that the plaintiffs should have the general costs of the action, but not the costs of the action in so far as the lien-notes were concerned, and the defendant the costs of his counterclaim; the judgments and costs

—In an action brought in the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan upon a judgment recovered in the Court of King's Bench of Manitoba, it appeared that the Manitoba action was commenced in 1904; and that in September, 1904, the defendant was served with process at W., a place in the North-West Territories, beyond the jurisdiction of the Manitoba Court. The defendant did not appear, and judgment against him was signed on the 29th January, 1900:—Held, upon the evidence, that the defendant was not domiciled or resident within the territorial jurisdiction of the foreign Court when the judgment was obtained; and, as he had not appeared or submitted to the jurisdiction of the Manitoba Court, and had not contracted to do so, the action could not be maintained.—Sirdar Gurdyal Fingh v. Rajah of Faridkote, [1894] A. C. 670, and Emanuel v. Symon, [190°] 1 K. B. 302, followed.-The defendant was born in Manitoba and lived in that province until shortly before the action was begun: and it was contended that, although he was living in W. when the action was begun, his stay there was merely temporary, and his domicil and permanent residence were still in Manitoba:—Held, that the circumstances which would warrant the inference of a change of residence from one province in Canada to another would not necessarily warrant the inference of a change to a foreign domicil.-Walsh v. Herman, 7 W. L. R. 389, referred to.-The acquiring of a residence in another country of such a character as would deprive the Courts of the country in which a man has his domicil of birth, of jurisdiction over him, is the result of a com-bination of fact and intention. There must be a removal to the new residence in fact, with the intention to remain there. And the onus of proving that a new residence or domicil has been chosen lies on him who asserts that the domicil of origin has been lost .- Winans v. Attorney-General, [1904] A. C. 287, followed,-There was no evidence as to whether, when the defendant first went to W., he intended to make that place his permanent abode; but he testified that when he was served with process he was resident in W., and that ever since he has resided there or at M., a place in Saskatchewan :- Held. in the absence of anything to shew a contrary intention, that the defendant had sufficiently established that he acquired a new residence in W. in 1904. The defendants appeared in the Quebec action and defended on the merits, and judgment went against them. The plaintiffs having brought an action in Ontario on the Quebec judgment, and moved before the Master in Chambers for speedy judgment, under Rule Chambers for speedy judgment, under Rule 603, the defendants opposed the motion upon affidavit that the Quebec judgment was re-covered by fraud, and deception practised upon the Court by the plaintiffs, and that they, the defendants, had a good defence to the action upon the merits:—Held, affirming the orders of the Master in Chambers and Britton, J., and reversing the decision of a Divisional Court, that the motion for judgment must be dismissed, and that in an action founded upon a foreign judgment the defendant is at liberty to plead, and prove, decenant is at therry to plead, and prove, if he can, that the judgment was recovered by fraud and deception practised upon the Court.—Codd v. Proof of - Exemplification - Void contract — Company — Extra-territorial con-tracts of carriage.]—A default judgment obtained in a foreign jurisdiction, though liable to be set aside so long as it stands, is "final and conclusive," within the meaning of that expression as applied to foreign judgments, and consequently it may be sued on in this province. In an action on a foreign judgment the defendant is entitled to challenge the validity of the judgment on the ground that it is manifestly erroneous, such as being founded on an ex facie void contract. The province may create a company with power to undertake extra-territorial contracts of carriage, and so it is not ultra vires of a company incorporated in British Columbia to contract to carry goods from British Columbia to a point in the Yukon Territory, Per Martin, J.: -An exemplification of judgment under the seal of the Court in which the judgment was pronounced, is equivalent to the original judgment exemplified, and notice under the Evidence Act of intention to produce it in evidence is unnecessary. By the terms of the contract, the delivery was to be at the port of shipment in America, and payment was to be made on receipt of and in exchange for shipping documents in England :-Held, that the breach upon which the action was based took place at the American port, and the defendants, not having been subject to the English Court, either by residence or by submission in the contract, there was no jurisdiction in that Court under Order XI. to summon the defendants to appear before it, or to entertain the action; and the judgment obtained in England in that action (the defendants not appearing), however effectual it might be in England, not having been moved against there, was of no avail to support an action upon it in Ontario.—Held, however, that the original cause of action had not merged in the judgment; and the plaintiff was entitled to succeed upon an alternative claim thereupon, made in the action brought in Ontario.—The trial Judge held both causes of action to be proved, and the plaintiff elected to take judgment in respect of the claim based upon the English judgment. — Held, that the plaintiff was not so bound by his election that he was prevented from having judgment upon the alternative claim ce of gislac. 5, cott, the delaw; been erved

Warrant of attorney — Confession—
The general rule is, that a judgment valid by the law and practice of the state where it is rendered and confessed, may be sued upon as a ground of action in any other state. A judgment by confession is an instance of a party voluntarily submitting himself to the jurisdiction of the Court, whereby competence is acquired to deal with the matter submitted:—Held, that a judgment recovered in the State of Pennsylvania, after the defendant has crased to be a resident of that state, apon a warrant of attorney executed there, was valid, and that the Courts there had jurisdiction to deal with the matter. Ritter v. Fairfield, 21 C. L. T. 73, 32 O. R. 350.

2. AMENDING AND VARYING.

After entry — Costs — Practice — Supreme Court of Connada,—The minutes of judgment as settled by the registrar directed that the appellants' costs should be paid out of certain moneys in Court, and in this form the judgment was duly entered and certified to the clerk of the Court below. Subsequently it was made to appear that there were no moneys in Court available to pay these costs, and upon the applicant of the appellants the Court amended the judgment, should be appelled to the costs of the appellants could be considered to the costs of the appellants after the costs of the appellants after taxation. Ainsworth v. Wilding, [1896] 1 Cb. 673, followed. Mitchell v. Sparling (1909), 15 O. W. R. 37.

Application to vary — Cots.]—The deendant K., an auctioner, advertised at the instance of the defendant M. certain land for rule at public auction claimed by the plainial and M. This suit was brought for an injunction restraining the sale and for a declaration of title. An interim injunction was granted. An ejectment action was also brought by the plaintiff against M. in respect of the same land, and judgment therein was given for the plaintiff. The defendants appeared by the same solicitor and joined in their answer in this suit. At the hearing at decree was made against the defendants with costs. K. now applied to vary the decree so that since putting in his answer be had had nothing to do with the conduct of the suit, believing himself to be but a nominal defendant, and his co-defendant to be responsible for the defence:—Held, that the application should be refused, but without costs. Correction of errors in indement as entered — Rule 688.]—Intil the judament pronounced in an action is entered, the Court has full power to rehear or review the case; but, after the judgment has been entered, the Judge who pronounced it has no power to amend or alter it if it correctly represents the actual decision, even although based on a misapprehension.—In re Sufficied v. Watts, 20 Que. B. D. 6035, In et Lyric Syndicate, 7 Times L. R. 162, and Preston v. Allsup, 11895] I Ch. 141, followed.—Clerical mistakes or accidental slips or omissions may, however, be corrected under Rule 638 of the King's Bench Act. Monroe v. Heubach, 18 Man. L. R. 547, 10 W. L. R. 416.

Correction of interlocutory by final indgment.]—A judgment dismissing an exception to the form, in which the defendant, a married woman, separate as to property, complained of being such alone, can be corrected by the final judgment. Ogilvie v. Praser, 8 Que. P. R. 5-de.

Date of -Amendment -Death of plaintiff between argument and judgment — Administrator ad litem.]—Plaintiff died after the argument of an appeal by him from a judgment of High Court dismissing his action with costs, but before judgment was given on such appeal. The Court was not informed of the death, and gave judgment dismissing the appeal with costs. The defendants, in ignorance of the death, obtained the issue of the certificate of judgment, which bore date as of the day on which the judgment was pro-nounced. Upon an application made by de-fendants some months later, the Court directed that the certificate should be amended by dating it as of the day of the argument, by dating it as of the day of the argument, and by inserting in the body thereof a direction that it be entered as of the day of the argument. Turner v. London and South-Western Rv. Co., L. R. 17 Eq. 561, and Ecroyd v. Coulthard, [1897] 2 Ch. 554, followed. Pillet, ib, 75.

Motion to vary — Custody of infant—Neglect to provide for — Inscription in review.]—Where the plaintiff, in an action for separation from bed and board, also prays for the custody of a minor child, some order should be made by the Court of first instance, in delivering judgment, with respect to this portion of plaintiff's conclusions. 2. Where the Court of first instance has omitted to make such order, the plaintiff's not entitled ment, disposing of the prayer for the guardianship of the minor, it appearing in this case that the omission complained of was not a mere clerical error. 3. On an inscription in review from the first judgment, the Court of Review may either make such order, or, if it seem to be more desirable, may send the record back to the Court of first instance, proper or necessary to enable the latter tribunal to adjudicate as to the custody of the minor. Smith v. Cooke, 24 Que. S. C. 14.

Order-in-Council — Varying.] — An Order-in-Council, founded upon the report of the Judicial Committee on an appeal from the Court of Queen's Bench in Lower Canada, simply directed the reversal of the judgment. Upon the Order being transmitted to Canada, the Court of Queen's Bench recorded it, but was of opinion that it was unable to act further, on the ground that as a Court of Appeal, it had no jurisdiction to make of its own accord such an Order on the Court below as would give effect to the Order of Her Majesty in Council. Upon petition by the appellants, the Judicial Comittee varied the Order-in-Council by adding to the reversal of the judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench, a further direction, that the judgment from whence the appeal was regionally be also reversed, and the verdict breen vacated, and that the cause be remitted back to the Superior Court, with directions to that Court to award a venire facias de nor. Company.]—A confession of judgment by a joint stock company, signed on its behalf by its president and secretary and bearing its seal, is irregular and will be rejected from the record on motion. Rouleau v. Bishop Construction Co. (1911), 12 Que. P. R. 307.

Conditional and partial — Refusal of plaintiff to accept it—Right of plaintiff to discontinue in part his action—C. P. 527.]—When an in part conditional confession of judgment is not accepted by plaintiff, said confession does not limit or disturb plaintiffs control over his action, which he may discontinue in whole or in part. Moreau v. Jodoin (1999), 10 Que. P. R. 353.

Defence arising after action—hudgment for costs—Waiver of other defences.— Action for damages for trespass to land and for an injunction. An interlocutory injunction was granted, but afterwards discharged by consent, the right to acquire the land having been obtained after action. The defendants then obtained leave to plead, and pleaded that since the commencement of the action, the town of B. had expropriated the plaintiff's land, etc., and had paid him the damages awarded, and that the said award included all damages done to the plaintiff's land by the defendants, as well as all the trespasses, acts, and grievances complained of in the statement of claim. The plaintiff for his costs to be taxed:—Held, that this defence operated as a waiver of other dences; and a motion to set aside the judgment was refused. Calder v. Middleton & Victoria Beach Rec. Co., 23 C. L. T. 22.

Defence arising after action brought Confession — Judgment for costs without Judge's order — Other defences.]—The defendant under Order 24, Rules 1 and 2, pleaded a defence arising after action brought, which was a good answer to the whole action, The plaintiff confessed this defence and signed judgment against the defendant for costs under Rule 3 of Order 24, which provides that the plaintiff may deliver a confession of such defence, and may thereafter sign judgment for his costs up to the time of pleading such defence, unless the Court or a Judge shall otherwise order. The defendant moved to set aside the judgment because (1) it was entered up by the prothonotary without a Judge's order, (2) such judgment could not entered while the other defences remained undisposed of:—Held, that the words of the Rule specifically enable the plaintiffs to sign a judgment without further proceed-ings except taxing costs, unless the defendant obtain an order otherwise. The subsequent defence amounts to a waiver of the original defence pleaded. It would be futile to go to trial on the remaining defences, as there is no question remaining to be tried as in Hoght Tottenham, [1892] W. N. 88. Bridgetorn, de., Co. v. Barbadoes, de., Co., 38 Ch. Invalidity.]—A confession of judgment signed by the attorney, and not by the party, is void as such, but is valid as an admission that the defendant owes the amount which he has confessed. Thurston v. Hughes, Q. R. 16 S. C. 472

Motion to reject—Costs—Confession by the wife—Authorisation—C. P. 527, C. C. 210.1—In an action to recover the possession of some movable and immovable property, defendant may confess judgment, but with costs against plaintiff; it is for the latter to declare whether or not he will accept such an offer—A wife separate as to property may, without her husband's authority, admit, by a confession of judgment, that some life of the property but is not property and the plaintiff; she does not thereby alleanted any of her property but simply does an act of administration. Picher v. Gaumont (1910), 12 Que. P. R. 391.

Offer to suffer judgment — Particulars]—A defendant is not obliged to give particulars of the amount offered by a confession of judgment, nor the grounds of his confession. Lusher v. Watson, 9 Q. P. R. Partnership — Validity — Non-acceptance — Notice — Time, 1—A partner cannot confess judgment, either for the firm or the other members thereof, in an action brought against the co-partnership.—If the plaintif, relying on his objection to the validity of a confession of judgment, has not filed in writing his retisant to accept it, judgment will be rendered for the amount so offered, unless he that he does not accept the same and pay the costs of the inscription. Marazza v. O'Brien, 8 Q. P. R. 4.u.

Qualification in—Interference by appellate Court with estimate of domages made by trial Court.)—In view of the qualification attached by the defendant to his consistency of the confession of judgment, there was ground upon which the Superior Court could disregard the confession and proceed to fix the amount of damages, and that judgment should not have been varied by the Court of Review by reducing the amount by fifteen dollars, Appeal allowed, and judgment of trial Court restored. Desbiens v. Tremblay (1910). 17 R. de J. 178. R. de J. 178.

7. DECLARATORY JUDGMENTS.

Rule 152-Consequential relief - Assessment and taxes-School taxes. |- In an action brought in the Supreme Court the plaintiffs asked for a declaration that the defendants were "owners" or "occupants," within the meaning of the School Assessment Ordinance, of certain lands, and that the defendants had an estate or interest in those lands liable to taxation under the Ordinance, There was no allegation that the lands had ever been assessed by the plaintiffs, or that they were liable to pay taxes to the plain-tiffs, and it was admitted by the plaintiffs that the defendants had not been assessed for the lands by the plaintiffs:—Held, that, as there could be no consequential relief, the plaintiffs were not entitled, under Rule 152 or otherwise, to the declaration sought .or otherwise, to the declaration sough.— Scope of the Rule defined.—Offin v. Defendant not appearing—Submission to jurisdiction.]—The Court will pronounce judgment in favour of the plaintiff where the defendant has not appeared, even where there is no jurisdiction ratione persona, Massey-Harris Co. y, Bélanger, 9 Que. P. R. 303, Delay in entering—Order for leave to enter—Terms—Leave to apply, Millar v. Bingham, 11 O. W. R. 264.

Dismissal of action—Default of plaintiff—Application by plaintiff for relief—Service on defendent's solicitor—Duration of retainer—Absent defendant.]—On 20th December, 1904, the usual praceipe order for security for costs was taken out and served. Owing to a change in the firm of plaintiffs' solicitors, the order was not compiled with; and on 18th January, 1905, an order issued under Rule 1203 dismissing the action with costs; but no judgment was entered or costs taxed. On 23rd January this order came to the knowledge of plaintiffs' solicitors; they at once moved under Rule 358 to be allowed to put in security and proceed with the action. Notice of this motion was served on defendant's solicitor (as appeared by admission endorsed thereon). But on the return of the motion on 28th January, he stated that defendant had been informed by him that the action had been dismissed, and that defendant had left the province, without giving any address; and that the solicitor did not consider himself any longer entitled to act:—Held, wherever a judgment has been entered on default of either party, a possible remedy is provided by Rule 358; and that, so long as that Rule can be invoked, the action is still pending. In all such cases the motion has to be made in the action, which must therefore be viewed as still pending-otherwise no motion could be madeand the only remedy would be by petition, if any remedy existed. Then it follows that if the action is pending, the solicitor on the record is still solicitor until a change has been record is still solicitor until a change has occu-made as directed in Rule 335, [See New-combe v, McLuhan, 11 P. R. 461.—Ed.] Muir v, Guinane, 5 O. W. R. 324, 6 O. W. R. 64, 10 O. W. R. 367, see, also, 6 O. W. R. 383, 844.

Ex parte application — Default noteMotion to set aside judgment—Costs, —A statement of defence filed after the pleadings have been noted as closed for default of defence under Rule 26%, is irregular, but not a nullity, and should be regarded as evidence of an intention to defend; and where, as now permitted by Rule 58%, a motion for judgment upon the statement of claim is made ex parte, and the fact of the defence having been filed is brought to the knowledge served in order to give the defence to portunity to make his defence regular. In his case judgment having been granted ex parte, it was ordered that there should be no costs of the defendant's motion for relief under Rule 35%, which was granted. Jackson
v. Gardiner, 20 C. L. T. 177, 19 P. R. 137,
v. Gardiner, 20 C. L. T. 177, 19 P. R. 137,

Ex parte proceedings—Setting aside— Practice—Petition.]—A defendant cannot by simple motion demand the dismissal of an action which has been adjudged against him ex parte by the Court; whatever allegations of irregularities in the procedure of the plaintiff are made, the defendant can only proceed against them by petition presented under Arts. 1175 and 1176, C. P., for the purpose of reviewing and annulling the judgment already entered against him, and by observing the procedure laid down in Art, 1176, La Banque Nationale v. Desrochers, 9 Que. P. R. 59.

Failure to comply with order for security for costs — Judgment issued ex parte—Terms of order—Motion to set aside judgment—Merits. Thomas v. Clark (Y.T.), 1 W. L. R. 512, 2 W. L. R. 126. Interrogatories — Default of reply— Company — Service, 1-Paits et articles addressed to a corporation, and served at the domicil of the secretary, are not to be take as admitted; and a judament rendered thereon, upon the ground only of default to reply to these faits et articles, will be reversed. Backland v. Club de Chasse à Courre Canadien, 8 Que, P. R. 136.

Irregular delivery of statement of claim—Validation by agreement of solicitors—Date of validation—Time for delivery of defence—Judgment entered prematurely—Setting aside—Costs. McDowell v. Martin, 12 O. W. R. 1263.

Irregularity — Motion to set aside — Merits—Delay in applying—Questionable defence — Counterclaim — Affidavits — Inituling — Misnomer — Re-swearing—Amendment. Sandhoff v. Metzer (N.W.T.), 4 W. L. R. 18.

Irregularity — Time for pleading—Confession of judament—Refusal to accept—Notice.]—The production by the defendant of a confession of judgment, within the delay to plead, is a bar to the plaintiff's obtaining a default judgment against him. He must be served with a notice that the confession is not accepted, and from such service the delay to plead is computed. Hence, when a defendant files a confession of judgment on the sixth day after his appearance, a judgment by default, registered against him on the seventh by the prothonotary, is irregular and will be set aside on an inscription for review, Bruncau v. Magnan, 34 Que. S. C. 179, 9 Que. P. R. 318.

Issue as to validity of default judg-ment—Motion to set aside judgment after 15 years — Service of writ of summons — "Signing judgment" — Sufficiency — Form of judgment—Special endorsement of writ—Price of goods sold—Stated account—Interest — Nullity of judgment — Irregularity — Setting aside judgment—Terms, *Green v. George, 8.0. W. R. 247, 787.

Judgment entered for more than amount claimed in writ. Fawcett v. Norton, 2 E. L. R. 146.

Leave to defend — Solicitor's slip — Merits—Discretion of judicial office — Appeal.—When a judgment is regularly entered in default of a defence, a good defence on the merits should be shewn on an application to set it aside and allow a defence to be filed, even if it was by the error of the clerk of the defendant's solicitor, in not carrying out his instructions, that the defence intended was not filed in time, Watt v. Barnett, 3 Que. B. D. 363, approved. Where, however, the Referce has exercised his discretion in favour of the defendant and made an order giving leave to defend, such order should not be reversed on appeal, although the Judge cannot find that any defence on the merits has been shewn. Moore v. Kenney, 12 Man. L. R. 137, followed. McCawl v. Christie, 15 Man. L. R. 358, 1 W. L. R. 332.

—A judgment rendered against one who has been served and who is named in the writ of summons as the defendant, but who is in reality only a person of the same name as the true defendant, does not afford ground in favour of the latter for a petition, upon the ground that process in the action has not been served on him. He is only a third person in regard to the suit. A discontinuence of the suit of which is given to the party served and against whom judgment has gone, puts an end to the proceeding. A petition by the debtor will, in such case, be dismissed, regard end to the circumstances in the disposition of costs. Moreault v. Thibaudeau, 34 que. S. C. 270, 10 que. P. R. 92.

Service of writ of summons - Company—Abuse of process of Court—Right of parties interested to intervene.]—The plaintiff obtained judgment by default in an action against the defendant company, of which he was president. The writ in the action was served upon the plaintiff only, and there was no other service upon, or notice of the pendency of the action, given to anyone connected with the company or concerned in its affairs. The judgment having been set aside at the instance of the respondents, who were trustees for the bondholders of the company, and had recovered judgment against the company for a large amount :-Held, that the mode of service was one that could not be adopted, and that it should be set aside as an abuse of the process of the Court .- Per Weatherbe, J., dissenting, that as plaintiff's judgment was one which could not be set off against respondents' claim, they were not prejudiced by it and should not be allowed to set it aside. Holmes v. Stewiacke Rw. Co., 32 N. S. R. 395.

Setting aside.]—To set aside a default indement the affidavit in support of the application must shew not only a good defense on the merits, but disclose what the character of the defence is, as judicial discretion must be exercised according to the rules of law. Jones v. Murray, 9 W. L. R. 204.

Special indorsement — Nullity—Irregularity — Account stated — Interest — Setting aside judgment — Terms — Signing and entry of judgments-Directing issue.]-The claim for interest on an account stated was not a proper subject of special endorse-ment under Con. Rule 245 of 1888, and is not under the present Con. Rule 138, inasmuch as an account stated does not of itself entitle the creditor to interest. Interest is not chargeable upon such an account unless a fixed time for payment was agreed upon or a demand for payment was subsequently made, or upon an account endorsed shewing that the parties have themselves in balances outstanding, though a jury might and probably would allow such interest as damages .- A judgment signed for default of appearance to a writ, the endorsement upon ised by the Rules of Court, would be a nullity and not merely irregular, and susceptible of cure by amendment, but by virtue of Con. Rule 711 of 1888, and now of Con. Rule 575 of 1897, notwithstanding such a claim for interest, final judgment may be rightly signed for the liquidated demand upon the account stated, while as to the rest of the claim, the judgment should be interlocutory only; and if under these circum-stances judgment for the whole claim has been entered, it is not a nullity but merely irregular, and terms may be rightly imposed on setting it aside: -Held, also, that the requirements of Con. Rules 764 and 775 (1888) (cf. now Con, Rules 628 and 637 (1897)) as to the signing and entry of judgments. as to the signing and entry of judgments, were satisfied by the proper officer placing his signature upon the back of the judgment under the words "judgment signed October 6th, 1890," followed by a memorandum in the oth, 1830, followed by a life signed by him, although he did not sign the judgment on its face.—The propriety of directing that a question as to the validity of a default judgment impugned because of alleged defects in the endorsement of claim upon the writ should be determined by the trial of an issue, is open to grave doubt. Green v. George, 8 O. W. R. 247, 787; George v. Green, 13 O. L. R. 189. Affirmed by the Court of Appeal, Mercelith, J.A., dissenting, 10 O. W. R. 292, 14 O. L. R, 578.

Stewert, 20 C. L. T. 414.

Validity of judgment.]—The propriety of directing that a question as to the validity of a default judgment impugned because of alleged defects in the endorsement of claim upon the writ should be determined by the trial of an issue is open to grave doubt. George v. Green (1907), S. O. W. R. 247, 787, 13 O. L. R. 189, 10 O. W. R. 292, 14 O. L. R. 578, affirmed, 42 S. C. R. 219.

Want of jurisdiction ratione personae vel loci-Wairer-Duty of Court.]
—Want of jurisdiction ratione persona vel loci is only waived by the appearance of the defendant and his default to plead it within the delays; it does not give a Court power to condemn by default a defendant improperly summoned. If want of jurisdiction is pleaded on appeal by the defendant, the duty of the Court is to put the parties out of Court, reserving the plaintiff his recourse before the competent tribunal. Account — Time fixed by judgment for rendering — Damages in default — Death of defendant during time fixed — Revivor —

Universal legates — Payment of costs.]—On 16th November, 1901, the judgment of the Court required the defendant to render to the Court required the defendant to reaser to be plaintiff, within 30 days, an account of a quantity of wood which defendant had to dispose of for plaintiff, and, in case of default to render the account, to pay to the plaintiff $9,000, with interest, and costs in any case. On 30th November, 1901, the defendant died leaving his wife his universal legatee. His decease was not entered on the roll. decease was not entered on the roll. On 2nd December, 1901, the widow, as universal legatee, paid the costs of the action. On 13th January, 1902, the plaintiff served the judgment on the universal legatee, with a demand for payment of the 80,000 within eight days, in default of which the judgment eight days, in default of which the judgment would be executed against her. On 21st January, 1902, she presented a petition alleg-ing the death of her husband, her capacity of universal lecatee, and asking that she should be added as a party to the suit in place of her husband and nilowed to proceed in it. The plaintiff answered that the 30 days having expired, the judgment had become final as to the $9,000; that the petitioner had acquiesced in the judgment by paying the costs; and that there was no suit paying the coast, and that there was no suit to which the petitioner could be made a party:—Held, that the plaintiff had not at the time of the defendant's death acquired a right to the $9,000, since it was not due till after the expiry of 30 days, and then only in default of the account being produced within that time.—2. That the decease of the defor a dead man cannot render an account and it was not a case within Arts. 268, 269. C. P., which say that suits are valid up to the day of service of notice of a party's death, for as against the defendant there had been no suit since his death,-3. That the universal legatee, in paying the costs of the action, acquiesced in the judgment, but did not acquiesce in the default to render an account and to pay the $9,000 .- 4. That the universal legatee was in a position to take up the suit at the point where it was at the death of the defendant.—5. Quare, as to the effect of the judgment, whether the defend-ant, if he had lived, could, after the expiry of the 30 days, have demanded and obtained further time to render the account. Girard v. Letellier, 21 Que. S. C. 192.

Appeal — Plea of compensation.] — 1. Leave to appeal from an interlocutory judgment will not be granted where in the opinion of 'he Judge, the judgment a quo is correct.—2. In an action on a promissory note, an appeal will not lie from an interlocutory judgment rejecting a pien of compensation for work done; this allegation must be pleaded in an appropriate form of separate action. Laplante v. Laplante, 11 Que. P. R.

Appeal from an interlocutory judgment—Motion to strike out the inscription.] A judgment maintaining a partial inscription in law is an interlocutory judgment and there is no appeal to the Court of Revision from this judgment. St. Jacques v. St. Jacques (1909), 10 Q. P. R. 411.

Assessment of damages — Slander.]—
The action was commenced by writ of summons indorsed—" The plaintiff's claim is for damages for slander." No appearance having been entered, the plaintiff signed interlocutory judgment against the defendant according to form 146, and set the cause down for the figure of the first signed in the first signed of the High Court:—Held, that there being nothing to shew that the action was brought under R. S. O. c. 68, s. 5, it must be treated as an ordinary action of slander; Rule 578 therefore applied to the cause; the delivery of a settlement of claim was unnecessary; and the plaintiff had no right to sign interlocutory judgment and have the damages assessed as he proposed. Origin of Rule 578. Stanley v. Lett, 20 C. L. T. 64, 19 P. R. 101.

Court of Review-Power of the Court of original jurisdiction, as to the same, when dealing with the case upon the merits-Action to account—Consistency in pleading thereto
—Admission of position and acts involving accountability and denial of the same on the accountantity and denial of the same on the ground of nothing to account for.]—A judgment of the Court of Review, reversing that of the Superior Court, which had dismissed an action on the ground that the evidence tendered by the plaintiff was inadmissible, and ordering a re-trial with leave to adduce and ordering a re-trial with leave to adduce the same evidence, is not conclusive, nor binding on the Court, when dealing with a case upon its merits, but is subject, like all other interlocutory judgments, to be then set aside. A party sued to account for his administration of an estate as trustee, can-not, while admitting his accommod of the trust and the performance of such acts as paying small debts and funeral expenses. deny his accountability on the ground that he never was possessed with any money or property of the trust to administer or account An account rendered, judicially closed, is intended not only to cover and dispose of the matters in it, but also to establish that there is no further accountability. Slater v. Currie (1908), Q. R. 18 K. B. 246.

75.1—A judgment dismissing a dilatory exception, which asks that certain other parties be called into the case, reserving defendant's right to appeal from the judgment, is an interlocutory judgment from which an appeal does not the as of right.—If it is the Court itself which raises its want of jurisdiction, no costs will be allowed. Letang v. Decarie,
11 Que. P. R. 87.

Interim injunction—Leave to appeal.]
—The judgment granting an interlocutory injunction does not fall under Art. 46, C. P., and leave to appeal therefrom will not be granted. Wright v. City of Hull, 4 Q. P. R. 52.

Judge at the trial—Review by.]—The Judge at the trial cannot review an interlocutory judgment of the i-perior Court, for, although it may be this Court that sits at the trial and becomes seised of the merits of the case, it is only so seised of the merits when the trial is over, and it is only in deciding on the merits that it can review the interlocutory judgment. Whilst the case, he sideration by the Judge, he is not in a position to judge of the merits even, and he plainly cannot modify an interlocutory judgment on a question of law. Galindez v. The King, Q. R. 26 S. C. 171.

Revocation of stay of execution—Leave to appeal.—An interlocatory judgment is one which is rendered in a cause between the institution of the suit and the final judgment therein, and is given in an intermediate state of the cause on some intermediate question before the final decision. A judgment revoking the stay of execution previously ordered by the Court, and ordering the bailiff to proceed with the execution of the property seized, is a final judgment, and a petition for leave to appeal therefrom cannot be granted. Shannon v. Turgeon, 4 Q. P. R. 49.

Creditor in England who obtains a judgment against a railway in Quebec may recover interest at 4 per cent. per annum against the company. Royal Trust Co. v. Baie de Chaleurs Riv. Co. (1908), 13 Ex. C. R. 9.

Interest Verdiet.]—The plaintiff obtained a verdiet at the trial, but the trial Judge dismissed the action. The Court es bane allowed an appeal by the plaintiff and ordered that judgment be entered for the amount of the verdiet:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to interest from the date of the verdiet, Gordon v. City of Victoria 7 B. C. R. 339.

Judgments bearing interest pronounced before the coming into operation of 62 Vict. ### 12. Relief Against Judgments.

Action — Petition—Fraud—Affidavit.]—
The revocation of a judgment may be demanded by a direct action, while it may also be effected by means of a petition.—2 One who attacks, on the ground of fraud, a judgment against him, and alleges that it causes him serious prejudice, is not obliged to make it appear in his declaration that, but for the alleged fraud, the judgment would have been different from what it is.—3. A petition should be accompanied by an affidavit, but if, upon an inscription in law against a direct action, the absence of such affidavit is not set up as a ground, the Court cannot, of its own motion, take notice of the absence of the absence of the arbitavit. Charette v. Levicilé, 4 Q. P. is.

Action to annul — Fraud — Parties— Creditors.]—A decree, like a contract, may be attacked for fraud by a party interested. on judg inter on.

2. An action to annul a decree is subject to the same rules as an action to set aside a conveyance, and, in the same way, enures to the benefit of all the creditors interested. McNally v. Préfontaine, 4 Que. P. R. 125.

Action to rescind-Right of appeal.]-A direct action to set aside a judgment does not lie if the judgment is appealable. Crepault v. Provencher, 35 Que. S. C. 377.

Action to set aside - Assignment of salary—Previous garnishing proceeding in Division Court—Res judicata—Fraud—False testimony. Johnston v. Barkley, 4 O. W. R. 453, 6 O. W. R. 549, 10 O. L. R. 724.

Action to set aside-Fulse evidence-Materiality.]-When an action or petition in revocation of judgment is founded subsequent discovery of the falsity of docu-ments, or of evidence adduced at the trial, or on the subsequent discovery of new evidence is essential that the documents or evidence according as they would have been omitted in the first case, or adduced in the second, the judgment sought to be revoked would have been different. Hence, an action to revoke a judgment settling boundaries will not be maintained on the ground that the report and evidence of a surveyor, heard at the trial, was subsequently discovered to be false, if it tion not been before the Court. American Asbestos Co. v. Johnsons Co., 34 Que. S. C. 185.

Action to set aside — Jurisdiction — Fraud—Pleading.]—Where a judgment has been obtained by fraud, the Court has jurisdiction, in a subsequent action brought for that purpose, to set the judgment aside; but a statement of claim alleging that "the plaintiff believes and charges the fact to be that no service of the writ of summons in the said action was ever made upon him, and that the said liability of the plaintiff to the defendants and co-indorser was satisfied and discharged either prior or subsequent to the institution of said action, as defendants well knew at the time, is insufficient as not alleging that the judgment in question was obtained by fraud, or, if it can be held to do so, as not positively averring the recovery of the judgment against the plaintiff, which is also essential. Richards v. Williams, 11 B. C. R. 122, 1 W. L. R. 9.

Action to set aside-Superior Court-Territorial jurisdiction - Parties. ] - A party cannot, in another cause, begun in another district, have annulled and set aside a judgment rendered by the Superior Court cause in which the parties were not identically the same as in the second cause, Henderson v. Harbec, S Que. P. R. 73.

Application to set aside judgment of Court after trial in absence of defendant—Delay in applying—Negligence of defendant — Reference for taking accounts under judgment proceeding without notice to defendant—Setting aside report on terms—Costs. Siemer v. Johanson (Yuk.), 6 W. L. R. 156.

Consent - Misrepresentations - Motion to stay-Motion to vacate-Forum. Dominion Syndicate v. Oshawa Canning Co., 2 O. W. R. 674.

Consent-Provisions for payment of purchase money for land-Date of payment fixed Mistake as to date-Default-Power of Court to relieve — Terms—Costa.]—Defendant purchased land from plaintiff on an agreement. Defendant made default. An action was brought and judgment was pro-nounced at the hearing by consent of counsel. The judgment intended to place the rights of the parties upon a clear and de-finite basis. By the judgment defendant was to pay $75 on 28th December, 1910, or stand absolutely debarred from all rights under the judgment. This date was named as one month after the 28th November, 1910, a date formerly arranged between the parties. De-fendant thought he had one month from date of judgment, 8th December, 1910, in which to make the payment. On default ac-cruing, plaintiff issued a writ of possession. Defendant moved for an order relieving him from the consequences of his mistake. — Middleton, J., held, 23 O. L. R. 29, that de-fendant should be relieved upon payment within a week (a) the $75 and interest upon that sum at 5 per cent, until paid, computed from December 28th, 1910; (b) the costs of the writ of possession and incidental to its issue, fixed at $10, and the sheriff's fees in addition; (c) the costs of this motion, fixed at $25; (d) and upon his paying now as an evidence of his good faith, the next instalment, $75, which under the judgment would fall due on June 28th, 1911. Lovejoy v. Mercer (1911), 18 O. W. R. 176, 2 O. W. N. 531, 23 O. L. R. 29.

Consent judgment - Setting aside.]-A judgment declaring the contestation to an opposition maintained by consent cannot be set aside upon petition, unless it is attacked by way of improbation. Beaubien Produce and Milling Co, v. Corbeil, 3 Que. P. R. 435, Construction-Order to refund money retained by executors-Joint or several liabilities—Reference—Leave to appeal from re-ports—Terms — Interest. Boys' Home v. Lewis, 3 O. W. R. 625, 779, 4 O. W. R. 243, 5 O. W. R. 39.

Default-Application to set aside-Delay -Discovery of defence - Condition of payment into Court. Cayley v. Graham, 2 O. W. R. 400.

Default - Opening up-Terms-Alimony. Edgeworth v. Edgeworth, 2 O. W. R. 404, 3 O. W. R. 71.

Default judgment-Motion to set aside Order reducing amount— Power to make — Costs — Mala fides.]—An action having been brought in a County Court to recover an amount claimed for taxes, an agreement was entered into on behalf of the defendant to pay the amount claimed for debt and costs within a day or two from a time fixed, the 16th or 17th May, 1901. On the 18th May an amount was paid on account of costs, and on the 21st, the balance not having been paid judgment by default was entered for the full amount claimed for debt and costs, without giving credit for the amount paid on account. An application to set aside the judgment was refused, but an order was made reducing it to the proper amount:—Held, that under O, xiii, r. 10, the Judge of the County Court had power to make such an order. Inasmuch as the application was a necessary one, the defendant should have had the costs of the motion below, but, as there was a substantial condition in respect of which he had not appeal.—Schoole, that, if the judgment had been entered in breach of good faith, the amendment should not have been granted, but that in this case it was the defendant's duty to have seen that the terms of the arrangement as to payment were complied with. Halifax v. Bent, 33 N. S. R. 546.

Default judgment — Statement of defence—County Court.)—An order made in an action in a County Court for services of notice of a writ out of the jurisdiction provided that the defendant should have twelve days after service "wittin which to appear to notice of the writ and file his defence to the action." Within the twelve days an appearance in the usual form was entered, the following words being added: "The defendant admits only $103, but otherwise disputes plaintiff's claim in this action."—Held, that this was in effect a statement of defence; that filing was, under the order, all that was necessary, and that a judgment entered for default of defence was void. Vojaht Breuery Co. v. Orth, 23 C. L. T. 168, 5 O. L. R. 445, 2 O. W. R. 304.

Default judgment—Petition for review—Declinatory exception.]—A defendant who does not reside in Canada and has been summoned by way of publication, may, with ispetition for review of a judgment rendered against him by default, file preliminary exceptions, and notably a declinatory exception, if the contract set up by the plaintiff has not been made in the province of Quebec and the cause of action has not arisen there.
Levy v. Arkbulatoff, 5 Que. P. R. 204.

Default of appearance—Motion to set aside service of verit of summons out of jurisdiction—Stay of proceedings—Irregular judgment.]—A notice of motion by the defendant to set aside an order for service of a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction, on grounds of irregularity, operates as a stay of proceedings until finally disposed of, so that the time for entering the appearance does not run in the meanwhile. A judgment signed by the plaintiffs, for default of appearance on the same day that an order dismissing the defendant's motion was issued, was set aside as irregular. Confederation Life Assoc. v, Moore, 24 C. L. T. 25, 6 O. L. R, 603, 2 O. W. R. 944, 1030, 1087, 1120.

Default to shew cause—Motion to set aside—Morits—Improvidence.]—On a motion for judgment under Order XIV., after due service of notice of motion, affidavits, and exhibits, the defendant did not appear, and the plaintiff secured an order. This was an application to set aside the order, on the ground that the defendant's affidavits to resist the motion were misdirected to Toronto instead of to Halifax. The order was set aside on payment of costs. On such an application the merits will not be looked at, the sole question being: "Has the judgment been improvidently entered?" A subsequent day was appointed for the argument of the merits. Le Gresley v. Le Moine, 21 C. L. T. SS.

Defendant ordered to complete contract—Loss of the money deposited as security — C. P. 541, C. C. 1254.1—When a final judgment orders the plaintiff to complete his contract with the defendant within a certain delay, under pain of foreiture of a sum of money deposited with the defendant, there is res judicate as to the foreiture of such deposit if the plaintiff does not comply with the terms of the judgment; and the plaintiff cannot afterwards ask for another decision respecting that part of his conclusions concerning such deposit. Brazer v. Elkin (1909), 11 Que, P. R. 292.

Exception to petition — Validity at iterce-opposition.]—A Court document intitude "petition for revocation of judgment," but not containing any of the necessary grounds, will not be rejected upon exception to the form if it can be held valid as a tierce-opposition, Re Montreal Cold Starage & Freezing Co., 5 Que. P. R. 91.

Fraud of defendant — Judyment procured by—Remedy of plaintiff — Petition to set aside — New action for same cause — Res judicute.]—The remedy open to a plaintiff whose action has been dismissed by a judgment procured by the fraud of the defendant, suppression of evidence, false testimony, etc., is by way of petition. A new action, although described as an action for damages, and for different amount, interest being added, is, under this disguise, an action for the same cause as that already disposed of, and will be dismissed, upon inscription in law, upon the ground of res judicata. Dusaunt v. Fanguay, 17 Que. K. B. 97.

Inferior Court—Res judicata—Collateral attack — Confession — Proof of execution.]

—A judgment of an inferior Court signed on a confession obtained by fraud is void, and may be attacked collaterally.—A confession is not such a written instrument as is contemplated by C. S. N. B. 1993 c. 121, s. 35, and judgment cannot be signed on it in an inferior Court without proof of its execution. Rogers v. Porter, 37 N. B. R. 235.

Interpretation—Reasons for judgment.]
—If the reasons for a judgment shew that there is a mistake, ambiguity, or obscurity in the adjudication, they may be taken into consideration in order to shew the meaning. Adam v. Gagné, 22 Que, S. C. 367.

Laches. |—Judgment was signed against the defendant for $542.68 and costs, in default of appearance, on the 2nd July, 1862. In 1801 he moved to set it aside on the grounds that he was never served with the writ of summons and that he did not owe appearance, on the summons and that he did not owe about the summons and that he did not owe about the summons and that he did not over a summons and the summons in the was well acquainted, with the writ of summons in the usual way, in the presence and hearing of the plaintiffs solicitor, and the affidavit of the solicitor shewed that he was present on the occasion in question, when the defendant, after being served with the writ of summons, admitted that the amount set out in the endorsement was correct and that he had no defence:—Held, that, the defendant not having explained the delay on his part of nearly nine years, nor satisfied the Court that he had any merits, and the judgment being regular, the application should berefused. Pooks v. Coz. 22 C. L. T. 44.

Man. Rule 585.]—A company and 8, both being defendants, judgment had, before trial, been signed by plaintiff against the company. The company delivered a defence, but it was struck out for default in discov or, the effect of which was, under Rule 308 of the King's Bench Act, as amended by 5 & 6 Edw. VII. c. 17, s. 5, that the company was in the same position as if it had not defended. Rule 585, as amended by 7 & 8 Edw. VII. c. 12, s. 12, declares that, where there is more than one defendant, judgment may be signed against such as do not defend, without prejudice to the right of the plaintiff to proceed with the action against any other defendant:-Held, that this latter Rule, if it was to have the effect of avoiding the usual result of judgment against one of several joint debtors, must be confined strictly to the case for which it provided, namely, of default of defence in the first instance; and the defendant S. would be entitled to the benefit of the defence that the plaintiff had elected to take judgment against the co-debtor, leave to amend by adding that defence being given. (1911), 16 W. L. R. 403, Wilson Man. L. R.

Motion to issue execution.]—Where the enforcement of a lien of a judgment creditor against unsold lands involves questions of value and deductions by reason of partial releases, it must be made the subject of an action, and, where the proper parties are not before the Court, it cannot be accomplished on motion for leave to issue execution. Re Bank of Liveryool, 6 E. L. R. 321, 43 N. S. R. 203.

Motion to set aside-Action for value of services — Appearance — Aff davit—Ac-count — Service of copy — Defau t judgment -Evidence.]-An action by a civil engineer for the value of services rendered, detailed in an account, such services consisting in the preparation of a plan, is not a summary mat ter within the meaning of Art. 1150, C, and, therefore, when the writ is returned during the vacation, the defendant is not obliged to file with his appearance an affidavit stating that such appearance is entered in good faith and not with the object of unjustly delaying the proceedings. 2. The neglect to serve upon the defendant with the original process a copy of the account sued upon is not a ground for setting aside a judgment rendered ex parte against the defend ant, where such account has been filed with the writ and afterwards served upon the solicitors for the defendants, with a notice to plead within two days, the time for pleading having then expired. 3. In an action by a civil engineer for the value of professional evil engineer for the value of processional services, with a detailed account to support it, the plaintiff, when the defendant has been noted in default of a plea, is not obliged to set the case down for enquête, but he may at once set it down for judgment, filing with his inscription an affidavit that the amount claimed is due to him; and the defendant cannot move against the judgment upon the ground that he has had no opportunity to cross-examine the plaintiff, inasmuch as he could have subpensed him for that purpose if the had thought well. 4. In such an action viva race evidence is admissible to prove the plaintiff's claim. Kennedy v. Canadian Construction Co., 18 Que. S. C. 507.

Motion to set aside—Service of writ— Departure from usual practice — Leave to enter appearance — Coats.]—On a motion to set aside a default judgment. Master in Chambers allowed defendant leave to defend and enter an appearance forthwith, so trial could be had before the close of the year. Costs to plaintiff in the cause, *Borrette v. Stewart (1910), 17 O. W. R. 295, 2 O. W. N. 219.

Motion to set aside consent judgment—Jurisdiction of Master in Chambers —Third party notice after judgment. Mc-Lean v. Can. Pac. Rw. Co., 6 O. W. R. 369.

Non-service of process—False return—Opposition—Merits.)—The defendant may, in an opposition to a judgment rendered against him by default, allege reasons based upon the default of service of the process in the action and the falsity of the balliff's return, and reasons based upon the invalidity of the plaintiff's claim; and an inscription in law against the opposition based on the ground that such reasons cannot be invoked as the process of the process

Opening up judgment—Delay in moving — Notice of trial — Deleace on merits.] —Application to open up a judgment, dismissed, as defendant had not sufficiently accounted for the delay and his affidavit as to merits was lamentably insufficient, McKay v. Chisholm, 6 E. L. R. 241, 43 N. S. R. 227.

Opposition—Defendant not served—Petition in review — Exception to form.]—An opposition to a judgment, based upon the fact that the defendant has not been served with process in the action, must shew the grounds and, if it is begun affection in the action, and, if it is begun affection in review if it does not contain such grounds, 2. Semble, that an exception to the form must reserve the recourse of the plaintiff. Hénault v. Fulton, 5 Que. P. R. 213.

Opposition — Petition for review—Nullity of service — Saisie-gagerie — Irregular asle — Damages — Res Judicata, ]—The defendant may proceed by way of opposition to a judgment or of petition for review of a judgment or called upon, and in such a case it is sufficient to allege the nullity of the service without any other ground of lefence, and the sufficient of the service without any other ground of lefence, as with the service without any other product have been found on the service with the service with the service with the service of the service with the service of the service of the service of the service with the service of the service of

Persons affected by judgment—Right of appeal.]—Any person who has a real interest in a cause, though not a party to it, may appeal from the judgment rendered in the cause if it puts his interest in peril. Prévost v. Prévost, 14 Que. K. B. 309.

Petition — Alimentary allowance.]—The rescission or revocation of a final judgment granting an alimentary allowance cannot be obtained upon summary petition. Roach v. Morahan, 17 Que. S. C. 372, 3 Que. P. R. 141.

Petition—Discovery of fresh evidence— False swearing — Delay.] — The plaintiff claimed against his father, the defendant, five-twelfths of a parcel of land which he said had belonged to his deceased mother, but, on default of proof of the ownership of the mother, and the defendant having sworn that he had the land from certain persons to take ne had the find from certain persons to take care of, paying the taxes, his action was finally dismissed by the Supreme Court of Canada on the 1st May, 1897. On the 11th May, 1897, the plaintiff discovered two documents: one, a deed of sale of the 25th November, 1867, whereby his mother had acquired the land, the defendant having signed the deed to authorise his wife; the other, a report of experts dated the 30th March, 1868, by virtue of which a builder's privilege had been registered against the land as the property of the mother. The defendant moved against the judgment of the Supreme Court by a petition which was to have been pre-sented to a Judge of the Superior Court on the 25th October, 1897, but which was adjourned to a later date by agreement between the solicitors. The petition was presented on the 3rd November, but the Judge having granted an enlargement to the defendant to granted an enlargement to the detendant to allow him to file an answer in writing, it was not received until the 3rd Dec., 1897:—Held, that the discovery of these documents, added to the fact that the defendant, who must have known of them, had sworn falsely in affirming that he had himself acquired the land, was a good ground for the petition and justified the opening up of the judgment, 2. That, as the reception by the Judge of the petition referred back to the date of its presentation, delay could not be urged aginst the applicant. Durocher v. Durocher, 16 Que. S. C. 370.

Petition — Decuments since produced— Peremption.] — Letters or documents addressed to the attorneys of the plaintiffs and in their possession at the time when a demand for peremption is made, if not produced at the time when the demand is contested, cannot after judgment thereon afford ground for a petition to set aside such judgment. Durocher v. Bildodeu, 17 Que. S. C. 119. Petition for revocation of a judgment granting provisional allowance, — The revocation of a judgment cannot be pronounced upon a motion; it must be demanded either by an action under the common law or by a writ of prohibition upon the execution of the judgment, Owimet v. Gaudreau (1919), 16 R. de J. 421.

Petition in revocation of indement—Personal rand by dependant—Aver cridence — Coroner's engage — C. P. 1177.]—
The articles of the Code of Civil Procedure concerning the requete civile must be strictly interpreted, especially where the parties have been heard contradictoirement at enquete and merits. If it is alleged that fraud and artifice were employed by the adverse party, at must be fully described in what consisted the fraud, and that the opponent was a party to it. The allegation that new evidence has been discovered, namely, the evidence taken before the coroner's jury, is no ground for the granting of a requete civile, especially when the petitioner's attorney was present at the taking of such evidence. Duchaine v.
Dussault (1910), 11 (Que. P. IR, 256)

Petition to open up—Cause heard exports.]—Where judgment was given by a Court without hearing one of the parties, in consequence of a misunderstanding between the solicitors, such party may, on petition, have the judgment opened up. Fabien v. Gaugean, 18 One, S. C. 242.

Petition to open up—Error as to statute.]— Where the parties and the Judge have, by a common error, supposed that a certain statute had been promulgated and was applicable to the case in hand, whereas, though it had been pased by the Legislative Council so as to make it inapplicable that the Council so as to make it inapplicable active Council so as to make it inapplicable active Council so as to make it inapplicable active the control of the control of the council so as to make it in applicable ceeding by petition against a judgment redered in accordance with such supposed iaw. Lamalice v. La Campagnie d'Imprimerie Electrique, 4 Que. P. R. 63.

Petition to reopem—Discovery of fresh evidence,1—A party cannot by petition demand the setting aside of a judgment upon the allegation that he has since found letters of such a nature that they would have the effect of changing the judgment, if such letters were in his possession at the time of trial, Warin v. Werthemer, 5 Que. P. R. 462.

Petition to set aside — Con. Rules 17, 8, 290, 368, 1—On a petition to set aside a judgment of a local Judge, it appeared that the petitioners were not formally parties did not the action, and that the solicitors for all those who were formally parties did not reside in the county. —Held, that before an order could be made by a local Judge binding those not formally before the Court, they must either agree that the motion be heard by him or have a solicitor residing within the county. A local Judge is not "the Court and has my power under Con. Rule 20. dekender of Elliott, Co.-Ca, at London (1909), 120 met of Ell

Powers of Court—Con. Rule 261—Interpretation—Nummers judgment on plead-coping axide judgment.]—Divisional Court held, that where the merits of a case pear the pear to the court held. In the work the merits of a case parties have been dealt with and the rights of the parties have been rightly determined, the Courts are very loath to set aside the adjudication on any ground—especially where the whole complaint is as to practice. When a Judge acts under C. R. 261, his judgment cannot be set aside unless it is wrong in law. None of the cases pertaining to C. R. 261 decide that the Court has discretionary jurisdiction or power to act under the rule. Judgment of Latchford, J. 18 O. W. R. 422, 2 O. W. N. 625, varied. Kennedy v. Kennedy (1911), 19 O. W. R. 346, 2 O. W. N. 1173.

Procedure — Opposition.]—A defendant who has had judgment entered against him ex parte after default regularly noted cannot proceed by way of require civile to have the judgment rescinded, but must apply by way of opposition to the judgment. Cantin v. Braham, 16 Que. S. C. 225.

Procurement by fraud and perjury-Right to attack in subsequent action Fraudulent assignment - Action to set aside -Res judicata - Garnishing proceeding in Division Court. - When it can be shewn that a judgment, whether foreign or domestic, has a judgment, whether foreign or domestic, has been obtained by fraud, it cannot be held binding upon the party against whom the fraud has been practised; and such fraud may be shewn although it may involve a reconsideration of the very facts upon which the former judgment was recovered, and although it may consist in the presentation to though it may consist in the presentation to the Court of evidence that the judgment im-peached was obtained by perjured evidence to which the Court upon the first trial gave credit. There is no distinction between the fraud which consists in presenting perjured evidence to the Court, and that which is col-ialeral to the merits of the case.—In an acassignment of salary by one defendant to the assignment of salary by one defendant to the other, the defendants pleaded res judicata, upon which the plaintiff joined issue. At the trial the defendants proved a judgment of a Division Court, in a garnishee proceeding, to which the plaintiff and defendants were par-ties, and in which the validity of the same assignment was the question for determina-tion. The trial Judge found that by sup-pressing material facts and by giving evidence that was wilfully false, the claimant in the Division Court proceeding, who was one of the defendants in the action, procured from the Judge in the Division Court an adjudication that the assignment was valid:-Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to impeach the judgment in the Division Court, though he had not directly attacked it, as he though he had not directly attacked it, as he should have done by amendment when res judicata was pleaded; and, upon the evidence, that the assignment was fraudulent and void. Abouloff v. Oppenheimer, 10 Que. B. D. 205, and Vadala v. Lauces, 25 Que. B. D. 310, followed.—Woodruff v. McLennan, 14 A. R. 242, and Hilton v. Guyat, 159 U. S. 113, not followed.—Judgment of Anglin, J., reversed. Johnston v. Barkley, 10 O. L. R. 724, 6 O. W. R. 549.

Proposition of settlement for smaller amount—Without prejudice—Default judgment signed — Motion to set aside — Master allowed defendant four days to deliver stanment of defence — Judgment to stand as security in meantime — Costs of motion to plaintiif in any event — No breach of faith in entry of judgment. Whelihan v. Kehoe (1910), 17 O. W. R. 202, 2 O. W. N. 169.

Revocation — Amendment — Default of adjudication. —A petition in revocation of judgment will lie against a final judgment which does not adjudicate upon the issue raised by an amendment to a pleading. Lusher v. Pulmoti, 6 Que. P. R. 331.

Revocation — Contestation of account— Grounds. —If a petition in revocation of a judgment is granted and a party allowed to contest an account by means of newly discovered evidence, he cannot, nevertheless, insert in the contestation which he is allowed to file, grounds of contestation not set forth in the petition in revocation. Hill v. Campbell, 6 Que P. R. 424.

Refusal by trial Judge of application to vacate—Execution of judgment— Subsequent petition to set aside — Appeal.)——Where the trial Judge has refused the plaintiff's application to vacate a judgment dismissing the action, and further proceedings have taken place in execution of the judgment, a petition to set aside the judgment will not be entertained, as it would, in effect, be an appeal from it. Gamache v. Desnoyers, 9 Que. P. R. 349. Setting aside — Grounds — Defective notice—Lackes, ] — Defendant failed to appear on the property of the action against him, and judgment was entered against him. An application to set aside the judgment so entered was dismissed, on the ground that defendant had not sufficiently accounted for his delay in moving, and no merits were disclosed in his affidavit.—Before the order was taken out, defendant discovered that the notice of trial given by plaintiff was insufficient, and gave notice that when the order was applied for, he would oppose the granting of it on the control of the cont

Stay of execution pending trial of counterclaim — Landord and transt.]—
In an economy for rent the plaintiff obtained summary judgment for 8800, but the defendant, asserting a counterclaim for 82,000 for damages for injury to goods on the demised premises caused by non-repair, asked to have execution upon the judgment stayed pending the trial of the counterclaim:—Held, following Sheppard v. Wilkinson, 6 Times L. R. 13, that the stay should, in the circumstances of the case, be granted. The counterclaim was so far plausible that it was not unreasonably possible for it to succeed if brought to trial. It was suggested that the defendant was not able to pay his debts as they matured: but that was not a reason for depriving a defendant of his right to wipe out the plaintiff's claim by a counterclaim. Wells v. Knott (1910), 15 W. L. R. 285.

14. Satisfaction of Judgments.

Arrest of defendant—Unsutherised release — Action to review judgment — Satisfaction.] — The defendant, having been arrested under execution issued on a judgment recovered against him by the plaintiff, was discharged from arrest without the authority of the plaintiff or her solicitor;—Held, that such unauthorised discharge did not constitute a satisfaction of the judgment, and was no answer to an action to revive the judgment. Conrad v. Simpson, 2 E. L. R. 53, 3 E. L. R. 115, 41 N. S. R. 468.

Evidence of—Payment out of Court of judgment creditor of money paid in by parnishees—Arrangement between solicitors out of Court — Practice — Affidavit — Irregularity.]—Money paid into Court by a garnishee was paid out to plaintiff solicitor. In reality there had been an arrangement between the plaintiff's solicitor and the solicitor for the delimant that only a portion should be applied on plaintiff's claim:—Held, that defendant not entitled to have suitsfaction entered on record. Proof of — County Court — Entries by Clerk in book — Irregularity, 1—To prove a County Court judgment the planniff produced the procedure book of the County Court shewing the entries therein of the different proceedings in the action in which such judgment was alleged to have been recovered, and also filed a copy of such entries, certified as a true copy by the clerk of the Court, present to s. 46 of the Court, Court, and the court is the court of the court is considered by t

dure book constituted the judgment, and as the Court itself was a Court of record, the entry of the judgment became a record of a Court of record. If so, its production, or the statutory proof of it by a certified copy, proved the jurisdiction of the Court over the matters in respect of which the judgment was recovered, and the recovery, existence, and validity of such judgment. It was argued that the procedure book shewed on its face that the judgment was invalid, as it did not shew the note required by s. 195 to be made in such book:—Held, that the making of such note was only a ministerial act to be performed by the clerk; it was not a part of the judgment itself; the validity of the judgment did not depend on such note being made. The failure to make it would seem to be merely an irregularity. Dixon v. Mackay, 22 C. L. T. 374.

Prothonotary — Irregularity.]—A judgment rendered by the prothonotary in an action for wages is valid on its face, although it appears to have been rendered by the Judge. United Counties Ric, Co. v. Letendre, 3 Que. P. R. 205.

Collection Act, N. S.— Examination—Power of examiner to direct wasignment—Piscretico — Statute—Imperative or directory.]—Section 28 of the Colletion Act of Collection Act, N. S .- Wilful and malicious tort-Committal. | - Action for assault. The defendant, with a defence denying liability, paid money into Court. The plaintiff took it out of Court and entered judgment under Order XXII., R. 7. Upon an examination of the defendant before a commissioner under the Collection Act, the plaintiff made application to have the defendant committed to gaol under s. 27 (f) of the Act, The commissioner refused the application, on the ground that the evidence that the tort was wilful and malicious was not receivable, as there had not been an adjudication of a tort by the Court :- Held, that the commissioner was in error in assuming that it was necessary to have a formal adjudication by the magistrate that a tort had been actually committed. The expression in this sub-sec-tion—"cases of tort"—does not mean cases where a judgment has been given expressly finding a tort, but is merely intended to deal with all actions of tort in the same manner as preceding sections cover actions upon contracts. Etter v. Graham, 21 C. L. T. 484.

Commitment of judgment debtor.]—
An order of committal against judgment debtor, under Manitola King's Bench Rule 755, for contempt in refusing to make satisfactory answers on examination for discovery is not a "matter" or "judicial proceeding," within the menning of s.-s. (c) Supreme Court Act, s. 2, but merely an anchilary proceeding by which the judgment creditor is authorised to obtain execution of judgment, and no appeal lies in respect thereof to Supreme Court of Canada. Danjou v. Marquis. 3 Can, S. C. R. 25S. referred to. Bateman v. Svensson (1900), 42 S. C. R. 146, affirming 18 Man. I. R. 493.

Committal—Conditional order — Service
—Arrest—Terms of discharge—County Court Practice—Registrar's minute.]—An order to commit a judgment debtor under s. 193 of the County Courts Act must be absolute, not conditional. Where an order to commit a party is made in his absence, he must be served with a copy of the order before arrest.
Orders to commit should be drawn up and should contain the terms on which discharge out of custody may be obtained, as required by Order XIX, R. 13. Where a registrar is present and takes a minute of an order, the minute so taken is conclusive, even though the Judge's recollection of the order is different. Wallace v. Ward, 9 B. C. R. 450.

Committal — Imperial Debtors Act, 1869, is in force in the province of Alberta (Sifton, C.J., and Newlands, J., dissenting). Fraser v. Kirkpatrick, 5 W. L. R. 287, 6 Terr, L. R, 463.

missed, because notice of it was given in the missed, because notice of it was given in the mane of a firm of solicitors not on the roll of the Territorial Court. A second motion was then made, upon the same material, properly served and filed:—Held, that the dismissal of the first motion was not a bar to the second, the merits not having been passed upon so as to make them res adjudicata .- Held, also, that copies of the affidavits in support of the motion having been served with the notice of motion and the affidavits filed before the return-day, the motion was regularly made: Rules 292 (a) and 467; and it was not necessary that the affidavits should be filed before the notice of motion was served .- Held, as to the merits, that it is not compulsory upon the Judge to make an order of commitment upon an affidavit proving default, as provided for in s. 9, s.-s. 4, of the Ordinance; and the Judge has no power to vary or suspend the order for payment by instalments, or to give a new date; the powers of the Judge are confined to the making of the first order and enforcing it strictly on default; but he has a discretion to refuse to commit.-And held, that, if the plaintiff had moved promptly on default, he would have been entitled to a committal order; but he had himself suspended the order for payment and allowed it to lie dead for 2 years, and he must have done so because he conceived that the defendant was unable to pay; and he had, by his own laches, unable to pay; and he had, by his own latenes, put himself in a position where he could not ask for a committal order; and the motion was refused. Examination-Making away with property-Committal. Hunt v. Robins, 1 O. W.

Examination - Opposition pending. ]-A judgment debtor cannot be called upon for examination as such while an opposition to the seizure made under the judgment against him is pending. Duplessis v. Quinn, 6 Que. P. R. 222.

Examination-Refusal to attend-Contempt of Court. ]-A defendant who has been duly summoned under Art. 590, C. C. P., upon a writ valid in form, for examination as to his property and assets, and who has made default to appear on the day fixed, is not entitled to be heard by counsel on the rule issued for contempt, or to ask for security for costs of contestation of the rule, until he have first obeyed the writ. Knitting Co. v. Coté, 16 Que, S. C. 425.

Examination - Scope - Rule 610-Arrest and Imprisonment for Debt Act, s. 19.]-Under Rule 610 of the Supreme Court Rules, 1906, the debtor must answer all questions affecting his property anterior to questions affecting his property anterior to the recovery of the judgment.—Section 19 of the Arrest and Imprisonment for Debt Act has not been displaced by Rule 610. Jackson v. Drake, Jackson & Helmeken, 6 W. L. R. 44, 13 B. C. R. 62.

Examination - Scope and relevancy of questions—Rule 380 — Enquiry as to property alleged to belong to wife of debtor. Clinton v. Sellers (N. W. T.), 6 W. L. R. 367

Examination - Second examination-Application for-Rule 900. Kingswell v. Mc-Knight, 10 O. W. R. 15.

Examination-Unsatisfactory answers-Committal to goot for contempt of Court— Manitoba Rules 748, 755—Meaning of "satis-factory" answers.]—On the defendant's examination as a judgment debtor she admitted having on her person sixteen thousand dollars in cash and diamonds worth from fifjudgment was for five thousand dollars. On being asked if she would pay the judgment and why she did not pay it, and if she refused to pay it, on the advice of her counsel, she refused to answer these three questions and was subsequently committed for contempt to one year's imprisonment, On appeal the Manitoba Court of Appeal was equally divided as to the meaning of "satisfactory" answers on such an examination. An appeal has since been taken to the Supreme Court of Canada. Subsequently the defendant was released on bail, she having purged her contempt and her solicitor having undertaken to pay the judgment and costs if appeal not allowed. Bateman v. Svenson, 10 W. L. R. 361.

Examination-Unsatisfactory answers-Disposition of property — Pending actions. Gault v. Pentecost, 2 O. W. R. 636.

Examination-Unsatisfactory answers-Preference - Committal. Hepburn v. Vanhorne, 1 O. W. R. 506.

Examination of Committal Incurring debt by fraud—Appeal.]—The defendant re-ceived from the plaintiff several sums of money, part of which was to be invested and part expended on the plaintiff's farm, defendant placed these moneys to his wife's credit, made no investments, kept no accounts, and could not account at all for a large portion, although he said it had been expended on the farm. Before the plaintiff got judgment, and while the action was pending, the defendant allowed his wife and sister-in-law to get judgments against him:Held, by the full Court, reversing the order of Drake, J., that the defendant had not incurred the debt by fraud or false pretences within the meaning of s. 15 of the Arrest and Imprisonment for Debt Act. An appeal lies direct from an order committing a debtor to gaol, and no preliminary motion to the Judge for discharge is necessary. Bullo v. Collins, 21 C. L. T. 191, 8 B. C. R. 23. Bullock

Examination of-Examination of transferee-Disposition of costs, Traviss v. Hales, 8 O. W. R. 118

Examination of-Order for-Refusal to obey — Contempt of Court — Attachment for—Privilege—Judge of Supreme Court.] The proceedings for the oral examination of judgment debtor under s. 36 of 59 V. c. not by an ex parte order in the first instance A Judge of the Supreme Court has no privilege against an attachment for any contempt The process of attachment which may be issued under the provisions of s. 36 of 59 V. c. 28, against a judgment debtor for contempt of an order calling upon him to appear and be examined orally as to any and what property he has, which by law is liable to be taken in execution, is punitive or criminal in its nature; therefore, a Judge of the Supreme Court cannot protect himself by his privilege against an attachment issued against him for refusing to obey such an order. In Re Burkhardt v. Van Wart — Ex p. Van Wart, 35 N. B. R. 78.

Examination of Unsatisfactory answers -Committal for contempt—"Satisfactory" -Rules 748, 755—Release pending appeal,1 The defendant, on her examination as a judgment debtor under Rule 748 of the King's Bench Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 40, admitted that she had upon her person more than enough money to pay the judgment, but refused to answer whether she would pay it or to say why she would not. Afterwards upon the plaintiff's application, under Rule 755, the defendant was ordered by Mathers, J., to be committed to gaol for twelve months on the ground that, within the meaning of that Rule, she had not made satisfactory answers to the questions. On appeal :- Held, per Howell, C. J. A., and Perdue, J.A., following Merrill v. McFarren, 1 C. L. T. 133, and Metropolitan Loan Co. v. Mara, 8 P. R. 360, that the order was justified and should 300, that the order was Justined and should not be set aside.—Per Richards and Phippen. JJ.A., that the word "satisfactory" in Rule 755 only means "full and truthful," and as Rule 748 does not provide for any questions as to the debtor's willingness to pay or as to his reasons for refusing to pay,

Examination of transferee—Evidence of transfer. Holme v. McGillivray, 2 O. W. R. 519

Examination of transferse — Third mortgage — "Exigible under execution."]—
A third mortgage upon real estate made by a judgment debtor is not a transfer of property exigible under execution," within the meaning of Rule 966, and the third mortgagee is not, therefore, liable to be examined as a person to whom such a transfer has been made. The words quoted refer to legal execution and do not include equitable execution or the appointment of a receiver. Canadiam Mining & Investment Co. v. Wheeler, 22 C. L. T. 123, 3 O. L. R. 219, 1 O. W. R. 103.

Fraudulent disposition of property-Order for committal — Refusal to execute assignment — Term of imprisonment—Collecassignment — Term of imprisonment—Codec-tion Act.] — A judgment was recovered against the defendant for debt, the amount of which at the time of the proceedings to be referred to was $50.32, and was unsatisfied. The defendant entered into a recognisance for $45, and justified on oath as being worth, in personal property, consisting of household furniture, $45, over and above all his debts, including the judgment mentioned and another, which were specifically brought to his notice. An execution was issued, and the sheriff, five days later, demanded the property, but the defendant replied that he had sold it for $60, which he gave to his wife to buy household supplies. The defendant, be-ing examined under the Collection Act, shewed that he had conveyed away other property to relatives, etc. The examiner property to relatives, etc. The examinande an order under the Collection Act, 27 (e), committing the defendant to gaol for two months for a fraudulent disposition of his property, or until he should pay $61.42, the amount due on the judgment: — Held. that the examiner was fully justified in making the order for imprisonment, - 2. That where the debtor refuses to execute the assignment mentioned in s. 28 of the Collection Act, and the Judge or examiner determines to commit him under s. 27 of the Act, the warrant or order of committal cannot then direct an assignment to be executed, but such refusal of the debtor to execute it can be taken into consideration by the officer or Judge only in fixing the term of imprisonment. ### JUDICIAL SALE.

Agreement not to bid—Consideration—Validity—Limitation to particular sale.]—An agreement by which a person undertakes an agreement by which a person undertakes a judicial sale. In the sale with the condition that the year of the sale, with the condition that the person to whom the undertaking is given shall become the purchaser, is to be regarded as made in view of this particular sale only, and the condition not being realised, is extinguished. It is vain to attempt to revive the undertaking and exact the consideration several years later, under pretext that the condition has been realised at a subsequent judicial sale of the same property made in different circumstances. Duhamel v. O'Sullieran, 15 Que K. B. 109.

Application to vacate sheriff's sale—Should it be made by petition or by suit-at-law—Prejudice—C. P. 787.]—It is not also-intely necessary that the application to vacate a sheriff's sale should be made by petition; it may form the subject of a direct suit-at-law. Henry v. Mackay & Lemieux (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 355.

Notice — Publication on non-juridical day, it may lawfully contain notices of judicial sales. Wallace v. Honan, 9 Que. P. R. 292.

Order setting aside-Defective advertisement—Absence of notice to defendants— Requirements of order for sale not complied with—Sale by tender—Reserve bid—Sale to plaintijs—Conduct of sale—Inadequacy of price—Irregularities—Judgment.—In an action by the vendors against the purchasers for specific performance of an agreement for the sale of land, judgment was given for the plaintiffs by the terms of which the dedue for principal and interest when ascertained by the clerk of the Court at the time and place appointed by him, and, in default of directions and with the approval of a Judge, and the purchase-money was to be paid into Court, and thereafter a sufficient sum paid out to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, and, if the purchase-money should not be sufficient, the defendants were to pay to the plaintiffs the amount of the deficiency. The account was taken, the amount due ascertained, and a day and place appointed for payment; the defendants failed to pay; and the plaintiffs proceeded to bring the lands to a sale. After some negotiations between the solicitors for the plaintiffs and defendants, an order was drawn up for sale of the land by sealed tenders. Conditions of sale were inserted in the order and the reserve bid was fixed there-in at $10.500. The order was consented to by the solicitors for the plaintiffs and de-fendants, and was thereupon signed by a Judge. No copy was served upon the defendants or their solicitors. The land was advertised for sale by tender, but the advertisement was settled without notice to the defendants, and was not approved by a Judge. It contained no information as to the location and condition of the property, and did not state where further information and did not state where riftner intordation might be obtained. The defendants had no notice of the sale, and did not hear of it till some months after it had taken place. There was only one tender, that of the plaintiffs, for the amount of the reserve bid. $10. 500; the plaintiffs had obtained leave to ten-der. The tender was accepted by the clerk, and the plaintiffs declared the purchasers. Two months later i.ie plaintiffs entered a part satisfaction of the judgment, acknowl-edging that $10,500 had been paid thereon, as judgment, without leave of a Judge, against the defendants, for the balance due to the plaintiffs over and above the $10,500. The order for sale provided that one-third of the accepted bid should be paid into Court, and the remainder paid from time to time. This term was absolutely disregarded, and, without any leave being obtained, the plaintiffs simply entered satisfaction for the amount of the bid. The bid was only two-thirds of the original price of sale to the defendants, and more than $2. 000 less than the price at which the plaintiffs sold to another purchaser a few weeks later. No application was made to confirm the sale,—Held, that, if there is any case where a strict compliance with rules and orders should be insisted on, it is in such a case as this, where the plaintiffs attempt to purchase at a sale of which they have the conduct: and, as there had been neither a ordinary requirements, and an injustice would ordinary requirements, and an injustice would be done the defendants if the sale should be confirmed, the order of Stuart, J., setting aside the sale and the judgment and other proceedings, should be affirmed. Whitney v. Burn (1910), 15 W. L. R. 392, Alta.

Party having conduct purchasing—Inatidity — Objection — Person interested in proceeds.]—In the absence of any order of direction, the plaintiff and not the clerk of the Court is to be considered to have the conduct of a judicial sale. Where the plaintiff, who had conduct of such a sale, purchased he limid without leave, confirmation was refused. Such a sale is void, not merely void able, and it is unnecessary for the person opposing to show that the purchaser has perpetrated fraud, or acquired the property at less than its value, or obtained under earlier and the condition of the condition of the condition of the proceeds. Any person having any interest in the proceeds of a sale, whether a party or not, has a right to object to confirmation. Pruden v, Squarchriga, 2 Terr. L. R. 200.

Perishable things — Sale—Execution—Discretion of the Judge — C. P. 3, 634.]—As a rule, a Judge has the power to issue every conservatory order when the interest of the parties requires it. This principle of law is indeterminate and is only subject to the discretion of the Judge applying it. This power of the Judge should be exercised principally in matters of a preliminary nature and in which despatch is required; the sale of cattle which have been seized may, according to circumstances, be considered such an occasion. Paricau v. Meloche Heirs (1910), 12 Que. P. R. 161.

Report on sale by Local Master— Application to set aside — Irregularities— Inadequacy of price—Right of purchaser.]— Where a judicial sale of lands was well advertised and the Local Master acted fairly and took every precaution to get the highest price for the pared to was obt v. Coust R. 995.

JURISDICTION.

Appeal to Privy Council—Stay of proceedings.—When, as provided by a. 58 of Spp. Court Act, a judgment of that Court has been certified by the registrar to the proper officer of the Court of original jurisdiction, and the latter has made all proper entries thereof, the Supreme Court has no power to stay proceedings for purpose of an appeal from said judgment to the Privy Council. Union Investment Co. v. Wells (41 S. C. R. 244), overruled. Peters v. Perras (1909), 42 S. C. R. 361.

Application for shares in a company was signed at Granhy, district of Bedford, where defendant had his domicil:—Held, that defendant could not be sued in district of St. Francis, because said application was accepted, by directors of plaintiff company, at Richmond, district of St. Francis, Richmond & Drummond Fire Ins. Co. v. MacDonald (1911), 12 Que. P. R. 274.

Arbitration in disputes between provinces exceeded their jurisdiction. Quebec v. Outario (1909), 42 S. C. R. 161.

Assignation — Defendant suced out of puriodiction— Closing or acting aside the action with judgment for a part of the debt.]—A defendant summoned before a Court not of his domicil, may insist on the cause being tried before it, or to set aside the action on acknowledging the amount of the debt. Art. 170, C. P. An exception to the jurisdiction which permits judgment for the plaintiff for only part of the debt, is irregular and must be set aside. Belleau v. Dufault (1909), 36 Que. S. C. 306.

authorising the Mayor's By-law Court to adjudicate upon fines imposed by the city is void. |-The Charlottetown Incorporation Act gave the corporation power to make by-laws for the good rule, govern-ment, etc., of the city, provided such by-laws were not repugnant to any public law. Section 47 vested all the executive powers of of the peace. The city, under the Act, passed a by-law to regulate the sale of liquors by retail in Charlottetown, section 22 of which required the city marshal and police constables or either of them to summon any party guilty of a breach of the by-law before the police Court, at the suit of the city on the prosecution of the city marshal, D, had been prosecuted in the Police Court for a breach of the by-law, convicted and fined. On appeal he contended that the prosecution was improperly brought in the Police Court. which was really the Court of the mayor and councillors of the city, and as the city was the prosecuting party and was to receive the fine the prosecution ought not to have been brought in their own Court:—Held, (Palmer, C.J., Hensley, J., concurring), that the by-law so far as it authorised the city to prosecute in their own Court was void, and that the conviction must be quashed. Downing v. Charlottetown (1875), 2 P. E. I. R. 1.

"Carrying on business" — Absent — Foreigners — Service of verit set aside.]—
"Carrying on business" means the possession within the jurisdiction of a place of business held in the name of the firm by a partner or by a person or persons in the pay of the firm. Assumption of jarisdiction over absent foreigners can only be supported on the grounds of constructive residence or attornment to the jurisdiction. Service of a writ would be valid only if at the time of service the defendants were carrying on business in the province. Murphy v. Pharias Bridge Co. (1899), 18 P. R. 435, followed:—Held, on the evidence, that defendants were not carrying on business within the province at the time of the service of the writ, and the service should therefore be set aside. Ryekman v. Randolph (1909), 14 O. W. R. 108, 1 O. W. N. 150; affirmed, 14 O. W. R. 1024, 1 O. W. N. 171. Leave to appeal to Divisional Court refused, 14 O. W. R. 1013, 1 O. W. N. 201, 20 O. L. R. 1.

Cause of action arising partly in one district and partly in another gives no jurisdiction under sub-sec. 3 of Art. 94 C. P. Richmond & Drummond Fire Ins. Co. v. Macdonald (1911), 12 Que. P. R. 274.

Choice of jurisdiction. —When a declinatory exception is founded upon a denial of the allegency of the desired which tend to support a jurisdiction cuttom to the domicil of the defendant, the burden of proof rests upon the plaintiff to justify his choice of jurisdiction. Tanquay v. Dale (1910), 12 Que. P. R. 245.

District Magistrate's Court is a Court of inferior jurisdiction, within the meaning of Art. 1003 C. P., and is subject to the control of the Superior Court. Desormeaus v. St. Therese (1909), 19 Que. K. B. 481.

Division Court Act — Amendment 10 Educ VII. c. 32. s. 86 (di )—Construction of —Established a new and independent test of jurisdiction—Costs of action in County Court—Scale — Ascertaining amount involved—Production of documents and proof of signature.] — Divisional Court held, that 10 Edw. VII. c. 32. s. 62 (d), which reads "an amount shall not be deemed to be so ascertained where it is necessary for the plaintiff to give other and extrinsic evidence beyond the production of a document and proof of the signature to it," gave Division Courts and wan and independent jurisdiction, therefore actions depending entirely upon documentary evidence are within the jurisdiction of Division Courts. That costs of such action brought in County Courts should be taxed upon Division Court scale.—Stater v. Laborce, 9 O. L. R. 545, 5 O. W. R. 420, 539, specially referred to. Methbargey v. Queen (1910), 17 O. W. R. S72, 2 O. W. N. 384.

Ex parte order allowing other pleas with general issue—Setting adia.]—An order allowing other pleas to be made with a plea of not guilty by statute should not be made cx parte. If such an order is made cx parte even inadvertently, the Judge who made it has no jurisdiction to set it aside. Any application for that purpose must be made to the Court on bane. Jackson v. Can, Pac. Ruc. (1907), 6 Terr. L. R. 423.

Exception to — Cause of action—Property of defendants.]—Where the cause of action arose out of the province of Quebec and the defendants had no residence or principal office in that province, but had certain goods therein in the hands of an agent for sale on commission:—Held, that such goods were property within the meaning of Art. 94 (4), C. P.; and an exception to the jurisdiction was dismissed. Lumsden v. Coucan, 3 Q. P. R. 155.

Exception to — Time — Prejudice.]—An exception declinatoire filled within the time allowed by Art. 164, C. C. P., but of which notice has been given for a date beyond the three days after the entry of the cause, will be maintained, if it causes no prejudice to the other party, Price v. Fournier, 17 Que. S. C. 333, 3 Que. P. R. 73.

Foreign defendant illegally summoned before a judicial district may by declinatory exception ask that the record be referred to the Court of one of the places where the whole or part of his property is situated, and the plaintiff, having sued before a Court which was manifestly without jurisdiction, has lost his option between the districts which would otherwise have jurisdiction. Germain v. Shices Lumber Co. (1910), 12 Que. P. R. 252.

Foreign defendant having property in province of Quebec—Declinatory exception—C. P. 94, par. 4, 179, 63 V. c. 41.—A foreign defendant can be sued in the province of Quebec, if he has property in said province which can be taken in execution for his debts. In the present case the action being for the cancellation of a sale, the price whereof has not been entirely paid, and the goods being at Montreal, in the province of Quebec, these goods, or the value thereof, are to be considered as aftendant's property, and the latter who resides at Manchester, England, may be sued in the district of Montreal. Porter v. Can. Rubber Co. (1909), 10 Q. P. R. 4.22.

Hypothecary action—Defendant's domicil—Action dismissed on Court's own initiative—Costs—C. P. 10a, 53a.]—An hypothecary action, even when not contested, will be dismissed by the Superior Court in Montreal on its own initiative when the hypothecated property is situated in the district of Quebec, and when the defendant is domiciled and is served with the writ in that district. The action will be dismissed without costs in view of the fact that the defendant made default to appear, La Fonciere v. Bolduc (1909), 11 Que P. R. 309.

Judge in Chambers has no power to order viva voce examination of a witness debene esse. Hodgson v. Dawson (1868), 1 P. E. J. R. 281.

Judge of Superior Court in the district of Quebec may hear, at Quebec, an application made under the Combines Investigation Act against a company having its principal place of business in the district of Montreal; said Judge being an officer acting under a Dominion statute, the order given to the company is not a judicial proceeding. A declinatory exception to have the case referred to the district of Montreal will be dismissed. United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Drawin (1911), 12 Que P. R. 289.

Re Doran & A. O. U. W., 3 Que. P. R. 441.

Opposition for payment — Rejection after mation—Vacation—Leaser and lessee—Insolvency—Distribution of moneys amongst creditors: — 1. The Court has jurisdiction, during the long vacation, to dismiss, upon motion, an opposition for payment, in a case between landford and tenant—2. An opposition for payment alleging the defendant's insolvency, and praying that the bailiff charged with the writ make return of the moneys paid into Court, that the creditors be called in and that the moneys be distributed necording to that the moneys be distributed necording to motion, although it is alleged that the jument of the seizing creditor is sufficient to offset all the moneys obtained by the sale, and that the opposant is without interest, but that, even in such a case, the moneys should be deposited in Court to be distributed according to the respective rights of the creditors—C. P. 15, 670, 672, 673, 673, 733. Hult V. Mc-Fadden & Hodyson Summer Co., 16 R. L. ns. 7.

Personal hypothecary action — Concurrent jurisdiction of the Superior Court and of the Circuit Court.]—With the exception of the districts of Montreal and Quebec, in which its jurisdiction is exclusive, the Superior Court has concurrent jurisdiction with the Circuit Court, sitting elsewhere than at the chief place of the district, over a personal hypothecary action for the sum of $33.34. Campeau v. Deschambault & Northern Conication Rev. Co. (1993), 37 Que. S. C. 542.

Provincial Court — Foreign lands— Trusts,]—An action will not lie in Ontario for a declaration that land outside the province is held by the defendant as mortgages from the plaintiff and for redemption, even though both parties reside in the province. Judgment of Meredith, C.J., 30 O. R. (350, 19 C. L. T. 281, affirmed; Maclenana, J.A., dissenting. Gunn v. Harper, 21 C. L. T. 552, 2 O. L. R. 611.

Quashing municipal resolutions.]— District Magistrate's Court has a jurisdiction limited by Art. 100 M. C. to cases of illegality—Hence, a petition to quash, presented to such Court, should state the reasons why the proceedings before the municipal council were illegal in order to give the Court the right to take cognizance of the case. Desormeaus v. Therese (1909), 19 Que. K. B. 481.

Ratione materiae and ratione personae — Reference of ease by incompetent Court to competent one—Reference when demanded by defendant — Reference by the Court itself.]—It is only at defendant's request in every case, or by the Court itself in a case of want of jurisdiction ratione materia only, that the incompetent Court may refer a case to a competent one. It follows that, when, in an hypothesery action, the immovable being situated in the district of Montreal, the defendant, domiciled at Quebee, does not prevail the district of Montreal, the defendant, domiciled at Quebee, does not prevail the defendant of the district of proposed of the district of Quebee and should dismiss it. #### 1. APPOINTMENT AND QUALIFICATION.

Stipendiary magistrate. | - Appointment of town clerk as magistrate - Incompatible offices - Automatic vacation of one -Canada Temperance Act - Prosecutor related to magistrate - Constitutionality of Nova Scotia Act preventing disqualification on this ground — Keeping liquor for sale— Previous conviction for same offence on previous day — Continuing offence — Evidence of liquor being the same — Magistrate's refusal to give evidence, R. v. Murray, 2 E. L. R. 80.

2. Disqualification.

Bias—Litigation.] — A magistrate is not disqualified from trying the accused upon a charge under the Canada Temperance Act by reason of an action having been begun by the accused against the magistrate for alleged misconduct as a judicial officer, and the writ of summons therein being in the hands of the sherifi for service, it not having been actually served before the conviction was made. R. v. Byron, Ex. p. Batson, 37 N. B. R. 383, 1 E. L. R. 364.

Interest.]—Justices of the peace, who belong to an association (a temperance allamee) of which the president is the party prosecuting, and the fine to be imposed upon the accused will ultimately be paid over to said association, have no jurisdiction, and are prevented from acting on account of interest sufficient to disqualify them. Daigneault v. Emerson, 20 Que. S. C. 310.

Relationship to accused.]—A conviction under the Canada Temperance Act made by two justices of the new will not be quashed on the ground made in the district of the property of the property

Reensation — Proof of facts alleged — Appeal — Prohibition — Prosecution—Complainant,]—Where, in a complaint brought before a justice of the peace, by virtue of Art. 5051 et seq., concerning damages to property, the justice has been challenged by the defendants, it is for them to prove the facts alleged in their recusation, and that even before the justice challenged, preserving the right to appeal or to move for prohibition. If the justice persists in sitting, the not applying in such a case. 2. It is not necessary that such a prosecution should be brought in the name of the complainant as well as of the municipal corporation. Refuertin & Beauchemin, 18 Que. S. C. 316.

Stipendiary magistrate — Prosecutor related to magistrate — No disqualification. R. v. Murray, (N.S.) 2 E. L. R. 89.

3. Jurisdiction.

Adjournment—Commencement of "hearing"—Waiver—Irregularity—Habeas corpus — R. S. O. 1887, c. 39 — Criminal Code, ss. 708, 722.]—A Judge in Chambers had refused a motion for discharge of defendant from custody. An appeal therefrom was made to a Divisional Court. Without deciding if appeal lay or if a new writ of habeas corpus might leave application dismissed with costs, any irregularities having been waived by defendant. R. v. Miller, No. 1 (1909), 14 O. W. R. 149, 19 O. L. R. 125.

Conviction — Certiorari—Costs of conveying to goal.]—The Superior Court has jurisdiction to take cognizance, upon certiorari, of every decision rendered by a justication of the peace, even in criminal matters. 2. A consider has no right, in imposing a fine an exception has no right, in imposing a fine an experimental control of the consideration of the consideration of the defendant, the payment of the costs of prosecution and conveying to goal; and a conviction containing that provision will be quashed upon certiorari. Leonard v. Pelletier, 24 Que. S. C. 331, 6 Que. P. R. 54.

Conviction — Certiorari — Selling un-wholesome meat — Public Health Act — Criminal Code. — A charge was laid against the defendant of exposing and offering for sale on a public market meat unfit for food for man. The charge was so worded as to leave it doubtful whether it was intended for one under s. 122 of the Public Health Act or under s. 194 of the Criminal Code. The magistrates treated the charge at first as one of an offence against the Code, and, the defendant electing against a summary trial, took evidence, and adjourned for a week. They then announced that a case had been made out under the provisions of the Public Health Act, but not such as to warrant sending for trial under the Code, and adjourned for some days to enable the ac-cused to put in a defence under the new conditions, if he so desired. The defendant objected to the case being proceeded with under the Public Health Act, and offered no defence, and the magistrates then convicted derence, and the magistrates their conviction must be quashed. It is not competent for magistrates, where the information charges an offence which they have no jurisdiction to try summarily, to convert the charge into one which they have jurisdiction to try summarily, and to so try it, on the original information. R. v. Dungey, 21 C. L. T. 435, 2 O. L. R. 223.

cuice his of usay mined a habeas corpus and certiorari in aid, alieging that a single justice of the peace cannot issue a warrant of imprisonment, and that the conviction was illegal:—Held, that a single justice has no jurisdiction to issue a commitment under s. 785. 2. When it appears on the face of the conviction that the justice has exceeded his jurisdiction a certiorari in aid is not necessary. 3. In such a case the writ of habeas corpus was maintained and the conviction and commitment were quashed. Cot v. Durand, 25 Que. S. C. 33.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Conviction not conformable to municipal by-law — Payment of fine—Acquies-cence.]—A by-law of the town of Levis enacted that all umbrella-menders, whether residing in the town of Levis or not, but carrying on that trade or business there, before carrying on such trade or business should take out a license, and that on failure to do so they should be liable to a fine of $50 or The apto imprisonment for one month. plicant was convicted and ordered to pay a fine and in default of immediate payment to be imprisoned for 15 days, because he "was arrested by Constable Odillon Houde at sight within the limits of the town of Levis, whilst, in contravention of the town by-law, soliciting orders as an umbrella-mender without having taken out the license required by the said by-law and the law. The applicant thereupon paid the fine:— Held, that the conviction was not conformable to the by-law, which did not require that those who solicited orders as umbrellamenders should take out licenses; that the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace. (2) The applicant must be presumed to have paid his fine to obtain his liberty, and such payment did not therefore constitute acquiescence. Cardoni v. Robitaille, 25 Que. S. C.

Departure from port without a clearance — Customs' Management Act, ss. 98 and 230.] - A complaint was preferred against the respondent, who is master of the "Southern Cross," charging that the said steamer departed from the port of Bell Island without a clearance. Upon the hearing the justice dismissed the complaint on the ground that he had no jurisdiction to hear and determine it, and thereupon at the request of the appellant stated a case for the opinion of the Court:—Held, that section 98 of the Customs' Management Act which created the offence and provided the penalty of $400 for an infringement of the section, did not include the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace; and that in the event of proceedings being taken before a justice under s. 230 of the Act, he could not impose a fine exceeding $200, and that the matter be remitted to the justice for hearing and determination. Cashin v. Ba. Royal Gazette, Nfld., 22nd Feb., 1910. Bartlett, Hearing in absence of accused — Appearance for sentence — Right to adduce ceridence.]—A justice of the peace has no right, after having heard the case in the absence of the accused, and issued a new warrant, to compet the accused to appear before him to receive sentence, to prevent the accused from adducing evidence when he appears in answer to that warrant. Levesque V. Asselin, 6 Que. P. R. 64.

Husband and wife — Proceeding under 8,24% of Criminal Code — Order under Deserted Wixes' Maintenance Act — Invalidity.]—An order was made by two justices of the peace, purporting to act under the Deserted Wixes' Maintenance Act, R. S. O. 1887 c. 167, whereby the defendant, described as an Indian of the Six Nations, was directed to pay $1 a week for his wife's maintenance; but, it appears to the Criminal Code, under which all proceedings were had, and that it was only at the last moment, when the justices were drawing up their minutes of the order, that they decided to proceed under the first named Act, without any notice thereof to the defendant, the order was quashed. Re Woodruff, 16 O. L. R. 348, 11 O. W. R. 450.

Information — Date of offence — Liquor License Act — Prohibition.]—An informa-tion was laid at Halifax on the 25th April, 1904, by the chief inspector of licenses for the municipality of Halifax county, who resided 35 miles from the city of Halifax, before the stipendiary magistrate for the county of Halifax, against the defendant, charging him "for that he within the space charging nim for that he within the space of six months last past previous to this information at . unlawfully, . . (a) did sell, . . . and (b) did keep for sale . . . intoxicating liquor contrary to the provisions of the Liquor License Act." The only eviof the chief constable for the county of Halifax, who swore that in company with the inspector on the 23rd April, 1904, he visited Halifax, and found a gallon of liquor in his bedroom, but there was no bar or other appliances generally found in a place where liquor is sold, and that he had on former occasions served the accused with papers under the Liquor License Act. The defendant but asked for a dismissal of the complaint on several grounds. The justice adjourned to consider the application of the defendant who in the meantime applied ex parte for a Held, following Rex v. Boutillier, 24 C. T. 240, that, as it did not appear by the inafter the commission of the offence, or that the defendant had committed the offence within six months previous to its being laid, and as the evidence given on the trial in the presence of the defendant did not amount to a charge for violation of the law so as to dispense with the formality of an information, the magistrate was acting without jurissidiction, and should be prohibited from further proceeding in the matter. Regina v. Bennett, 1 O. R. 445, referred to. R. v. Breen, 24 C. L. T. 325.

Information — Warrant for arrest — Canada Temperance Act — Suspicion.] — A sworn information stating that the complainant had just cause to suspect, and did suspect and helieve, that the party charged had committed an offence against the Canada Temperance Act triable under ss. 558, 559, and 843 of the Criminal Code, 1902, and will not authorise a justice to issue a warrant to arrest in the first instance. It is the duty of the justice before issuing a warrant to examine upon oath the complainant or his witnesses as to the facts upon which such suspicion and belief are founded, and to exercise his own judgment thereon. Ex. p. Boyce, 24 N. B. R. 347, followed. R. v. Mills, Ex p. Coffon, 37 N. B. R. 122.

Information — Warrant for arrest — Summary Convictions Act — Suspicion.]—A magistrate has no jurisdiction to issue a warrant on an information under the Dominion Summary Convictions Act without examining upon oath the complainant or his witnesses as to the facts upon which the information is based.—Ex. P. Boyce, 24 N. B. R. 347, and R. v. Mills, Ex. p. Coffon, 37 N. B. R. 122, followed. R. v. Carleton, Ex. p. Giundy, 37 N. B. R. 389: R. v. Lizotte, 1 E. L. R. 355.

Austice's Civil Gourt—Uniasion to give security for costs — Foreign corporation—Gordon who were a company incorporated abroad, but having a place of business in the prosence, brought an action against the defendant in a justice's court for goods sold and delivered. To prove their case they put in evidence a paper in the form of a promissory note, whereby the defendant promised to pay the plaintiffs a sum certain with interest. There were certain conditions as to the poscorporated in the note or paper. Security for costs was not demanded at the trial, and none was given:—Held, that indebitatus assumpsit would lie, and that the omission to give security for costs did not deprive the magistrate of jurisdiction to try the case. Per Tuck, C.J., that 49 V. c. 53, s. 1, does not apply to companies incorporated abroad, not some production of the companies incorporated abroad, not provide the companies incorporated abroad, not apply to companies incorporated abroad, not apply to companies incorporated abroad, not by not demanding the security at the trial waived the benefit of 49 V. c. 53, Massey-Harris Co. v. Stairs, 34 N. B. R. 591.

Keeping common gaming house.]—
(1) Code s. 738 (f) which confers the power of summary trial for the offence of keeping "any disorderly house, house of ill-fame or bawdy house," includes as a "size orderly house." a common gaming house. (2) The definition of the term "disorderly house" contained in Code s. 198 (Part XIV. "Nuisances") applies to the same sent in Code s. 783 (Part IXIV. Collection of fine and costs — Presumption of proper disposition — Duty, where conviction quashed, —Held, in an action against a justice of the peace to recover the sum of $15 paid to him as a fine and costs, upon a conviction under a Territorial Ordinance, which was afterwards quashed, that it must be presumed, in the absence of evidence, that the moneys were properly applied, i.e., the fine transmitted to the Attorncy-General, and the costs paid over to the compliance of the costs paid over to the properties as agent. There is no duty imposed on the justice in such case to obparation of the complainant, against whom he had the right to retain them. Kauditzki v. Telford, 5 Terr. I. R. 488.

Hiegal arrest — Action against magistrate — Warrant of commitment — Ministerial Act — Excessive punishment.]—The defendant, a stipendiary magistrate, made a conviction against the plaintiff under the Canada Temperance Act, which was admittedly good. When he issued the warrant, he departed from the conviction and directed imprisonment with bard labour. The plaintiff was discharged on habeas corpus proceedings, and brought this action for damages for illegal arrest: — Held, that the magistrate was liable. If the issue of the warrant were a judicial ext. the plaintiff was the warrant was a function of the warrant was a functional act. Banister v. Wakeman, 15 L. R. A. 201, Briggs v. Wardell, 10 Mass. 336, Nozon v. Hill, 2 Allen 215, referred to. The case was distinguishable from Mott v. Mine, 21 N. S. R. 372, because the latter case proceeded on the assumption that the issuing of a warrant to arrest for an indictable offence by a magistrate upon an information had before him was a judicial act. The defendant was not entitled to the protection of R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 40, s. 16, because the plaintiff was undergoing a greater punishment than the law assigned for the offence. Mclever v. MacGillierry, 24 C. L. T. 142.

Order for imprisonment for nonpayment of costs—No conviction — Ab-sence of accused — Order quashing—Condition. |-After a magistrate had entered upon the hearing of a complaint of having used insulting and abusive language, the charge, at the complainant's instance, actuated apparently by compassion, was withdrawn, the accused to pay the costs. Subsequently, such costs not having been paid, the magistrate, in the absence of and without convicting the accused of any offence, made an order directing the payment by her of the costs; and, in default of payment, directing that the same should be levied by distress, and, in default of sufficient distress, directing imprison-ment. The costs were then paid by the accused, but before the launching of this application they were tendered back to the ac-cused and refused:—Held, that the order was invalid and should be quashed without costs, but on condition under ss. 889 to 896 costs, but on condition under ss. 881 to 890 ft be Criminal Code—made applicable by 1 Edw, VII. c. 13, s. 1 (O.)—that no action should be brought against the magistrate, etc.; otherwise the motion was to be dismissed with costs. Penalty — Eccessive fee — Information for indictable offence — Pleeding—Amendment.]—An information having been laid by the plaintiffs before the defendant, a justice of the peace, for an indictable offence under so. 210 (2) and 215 of the Criminal Code, over which the defendant had no summary jurisdiction as a justice:—Held, that he was not entitled to any fee whatever, and that the plaintiffs, while they were entitled to recover by action the amount of the fetch of the following the state of the feed of

Summary conviction quashed — Action to recover fine and costs.]—In an action for the recovery from the defendant, a justice of the peace, of the fine and costs paid to the defendant by the plaintiff upon a summary conviction made by the defendant under an Ordinance of the North-West Territories, which conviction had been quashed, it was held that the action did not lie against the magistrate, since, under s. 11 of the Ordinance respecting justices of the peace, Con. Ord. (1898), c. 32, he was bound to transmit the fine to the Attorney-General forthwith upon its receipt by him, and, in the absence of evidence that he had not remitted, must be presumed to have done so, and the costs were, by the conviction, directed to be paid to the complainant, whose agent to receive them the plaintiff must have known the defendant to be. Kaulitski v. Telford, 24 Ct. L. T. 108.

Trespass — Issue of search warrant Want of juvisdiction — Proof of malice — Arrest — Complaint — Damages.] — In an action for false imprisoment, where the justice who issued the warrant acted wholly without jurisdiction, proof of malice or want of probable cause is unnecessary.—A complaint in writing under oath for a search warrant under which a warrant was issued, and goods named therein were found in possession of the accused, will not justify arrest without further or other complaint.—The expense to which a party complaining may have been put by an illegal arrest is a proper element of damages. Melanson v. Lavigne, 1 E. L. R. 520, 37 N. B. R. 539.

Unlawful distress - Conviction-Certiorari — Costs — Jurisdiction — Res ad-judicata — Pleading — Admissions—Adopt-ing unlawful act — Damages.] — Plaintiff had been convicted by defendant, a Justice of the Peace, and adjudged to pay a fine of $10.00 and $8.15 costs. To satisfy the fine, two cows were seized and sold under distress warrant by one Stoddart, a constable, for $61.00. The sale of the first cow realised more than sufficient to pay the fine and all costs, but nevertheless the constable sold the second cow. Subsequently the con-viction was brought up by certiorari and quashed by Wetmore, J., who held that he had no jurisdiction to make an order as to costs on such proceedings, but left the plaintiff to recover at law as damages such costs as he might be entitled to, if any. The plaintiff brought action claiming damages accordingly:—Held, (1) that the constable was not the servant or agent of the Justice in making the seizure or sale, but inasmuch as the Justice had received from the constable the full proceeds of the sale, he had thereby adopted the constable's unlawful acts. (2) That the measure of damages for the unlawful sale was the market value of the cows sold. (3) That the plaintiff was en-titled to recover from the Justice as damages his taxed costs of certiorari proceedings inasmuch as the quashing of the conviction was a condition precedent to the plaintiff's right to sue under Imperial Statute 11 and 12 Vic. c. 44 s. 2, in force in the Territories. Simpson v. Mann (1898), 6 Terr. L. R. 445.

Warrant of arrest — Grounds — Issue without enquiry — Liability. — A justice of the peace who issues a warrant of arrest without enquiring into the grounds which the complainant has for suspecting the accused, is responsible to the latter when the complaint is not justified by any serious, reasonable, or plausible ground. Before he issued the warrant under which plaintiff was arrested, defendant had before him the affidavit of the shewing that he had not paid his tax for three years, and that the trustees had authorised the secretary to collect the amount. In such a conviction the magistrate has authority to award costs under s. 788 of the Code, and to sentence to imprisoment with hard labour in default of payment of fine and costs. The conviction, however, was had because it did not adjudge that the accused should forfeit as well as pay the fine imposed. R. v. Cyr. 12 P. R. 24, followed. R. v. Burtress, 20 C. L. T. 308.

Conviction for obstructing peace officer — summary trial.]—When a person is charged before a magistrate or two justices of the peace with resisting and obstructing a peace officer in the lawful performance of his duty, the magistrate or justices should observe the directions of s. 786 of the Criminal Code, and obtain the consent of the accused before proceeding to try the case summarity, notwithstanding the provisions of s. 144. Such offence is practically the same as is referred to in s. 783 (**), and the charge can only be heard in a summary way subject to the provisions of s. 786. R. v. Crossen, 19 C. L. T. 347, 12 Man. Sub-5, proceedings against that district were discontinued, and proceedings were commenced before another justice with a view to having the pauper made chargeable to the defendants' district. On the depositions taken before the magistrate applied to in the second instance, the stipendiary magistrate for the county (who was also county treasurer) took further depositions, and made an adjudication that the pauper was legally chargeable to the defendants' district:—Held, that the adjudication so made was bad, both because of the failure to give notice of discontinuance of the original proceedings, and because the stipendiary magistrate, as county treasurer, was a party to the proceedings and should not have acted.—Held, that the order made under the circumstances mentioned was open to attack either by certiorari or by appeal. In March 1900, Kitchen applied for and obtained a prein April one Boutilier obtained a pre-emption record of a certain portion of the lands in question. Boutilier abandoned his pre-emp-tion right, and Kitchen and Butters entered into an agreement whereby Kitchen agreed that Butters pre-empt the land on his paying for the improvements $200 in cash and the balance when he should realize the same out of the land, and Kitchen, until so paid, should retain an interest in the land. Bessette's application, which set up non-occupation of the land by Butters, and collusion between Butters and Kitchen, was refused by the assist-ant commissioner, who found against the charge of collusion, and on that of non-occupation he came to the conclusion that there was no provision in the Land Act for cancelling a certificate of improvements when once issued :- Held, that the arrangement entered into between Butters and Kitchen was Butters from making the statement set forth in form 2 of the Land Act, as the term "collusion" as used in the form means collusion with somebody to defeat the provisions of the Act.—The legislature has refrained ex-pressly from conferring upon the commis-sioner any jurisdiction to cancel a record on the ground that the original application for the record contains false statements of fact. - Semble, it is a condition of the power con ferred by 8, 13 that the commissioner shall find a cessation of occupation in fact, and the section has no application to any ques-tion arising under s. 7 or s. 8. Assurance fund-Failure of registrar to register mortgage — Certificate of title not produced — Retention of mortgage — Duty of Registrar - Necessity for production of mortgage a second time - Second mortgage gaining priority — Abstract of title—Omission of Registrar — Liability — Damages. -The plaintiff sought to recover from the assurance fund under the Land Titles Act, in an action against a District Registrar, damages for having omitted to register a land mortgage, made by H. to the plaintiff. in priority to a mortgage upon the same land, made by H. to a machinery company, and also for having furnished the plaintiff with an abstract of title of the land covered by his mortgage, without shewing thereon the prior mortgage in favour of the machinery company. The mortgage to the plaintiff was executed on the 8th May 1905, and forwarded to the Registrar on the following day. At that date the patent for the land had not been issued to H.; it was issued on the 13th May, 1905; and a certificate of title was issued thereon on the 29th August, 1905, subject to two liens and a mortgage in favour of a loan company, which had been registered before the issue of the patent. On the 31st August, 1905, H. executed the mortgage in favour of the machinery company, and it was registered on the 30th October, 1905. Up to this time the plaintiff's mortgage had not been registered. On the 30th December, 1905, the plaintiff's solicitor wrote to the Registrar requesting him to register the mortgage. On the 17th January, 1906, it was registered (baying been in the Registrar's registered (naving been in the average possession ever since May), and returned to the plaintiff's solicitor, with an abstract of title, which did not shew the mortgage to the machinery company. That company sold the land under their mortgage, and, as it did not realise the amount of their claim, the plaintiff was deprived of his security to the extent of the amount due on his mortgage, $100.90. By the statute in force in 1905, the Registrar shall not receive or enter in the day-book any instrument until the duplicate certificate of title for the lands affected is produced to him:—Held, that this was a clear statutory prohibition against the receipt by the Registrar of the plaintiff's mortgage unaccompanied by the duplicate certificate of title. When the Registrar received the mortgage, he was prohibited by and, therefore, while he retained it in his possession, it was not in his possession as Registrar; and when the patent came to his office, and the certificate of title was issued thereon, the mortgage not being in the office for registration, there was no obligation on the Registrar to register it; and as Registrar he could not deal with it until it was again produced to him by himself or some one else, accompanied by the duplicate certificate of title. The plaintiff's mortgage was not again produced to the Registrar until January, 1906, when, on receiving the letter of the 30th December, he brought the mortgage into his office and registered it. Therefore, the Registrar registered it as soon as he was under any obligation to do so, and the plaintiff was not entitled to recover for the failure of the Registrar to register it sooner. Re Greenshields Co., 2 W. L. R. 421, and Re American-Abell Engine and Thresher Co. and Noble, 3 W. L. R. 324, followed .- Held, as to the omission in the abstract, that under sec. 30 of the Dominion Land Titles Act, 1894, and by sec. 151 of the present Land Titles Act, which came into force on the Sth September, 1906, the Registrar would, as nominal defendant, be liable for the damage resulting from the omission; but the plaintiff had failed to shew any damage except an item of $7, money paid to H. which the plaintiff would not have paid had he known that the machinery company's mortgage was registered in priority to his own. Action by tenant—Pleading.]—A tenant who sues by virtue of his lease is not obliged to allege that he has fulfilled all the conditions which it imposes upon him; that is implied by his setting up the lease. Trempe v. Larivière, 6 Que. P. R. 367.

After expiration of lease tenant estopped from disputing title of lessens, I—Defendant in December, 1863, took a lease for five years from Haviland and DeBlois, after expiration of lease Haviland and DeBlois conveyed the land to E. McK., to whom defendant paid rent. E. McK. in December, 1876, conveyed to plaintiff, who brought an action of ejectment. Defendant disputed title of Haviland and DeBlois, the original lessors. Verdiet for plantiff: — Held (Peters, J.), that defendant was estopped. McKinnon v. McKinnon (1878), 2 P. E. I. R. 279.

Agreement for — Construction — Condition—Waiver, 1—The defendant contracted to let to the plaintiff a house, then under construction, for the term of one year from the list June, 1900, at the rental of $20 per month, payable monthly in advance. It was agreed that in the event of the house not being completed by the 1st June there should be a proportionate reduction in the rent. The house was not completed by the time arrest, but the plaintiff moved in on the 24th June hore should be a proportionate reduction in the rent. The plaintiff paid rent in advance for the months of July, August, September, and October, and continued in occupation of the premises until the 1st May, 1901, when he moved out. In an action by the plaintiff for damages for goods distrained by the defendant for rent in arrear:—Held, that the trial Judge was right in construing the agreement as a letting for a year from the 1st June, 1900, with a condition that if the occupancy was prevented by reason of the house now defined that the painting the greenest as a letting for a year from the 1st June, 1900, with a condition that if the occupancy was prevented by reason of the house now and the provision made in respect to the period of time during which the house was not occupied.—Held, also, that the payments mode by the plaintiff shewed a waiver of the provision made in respect to the reduction which was to be made in consequence of its not being finished. Acora v, Hill, 34 N. S. R. 50.

Agreement for - Municipal corporation — Lease to railway company — Settling — Taxes—Rent—Covenants.] — Property of a other than a servant or officer of the corporaother than a servant or officer of the corpora-tion occupying the premises for the purposes thereof, is subject to taxation (Assessment Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 224, s. 7, s.-s, 7); and such tax is a tenant's tax payable by him. and not in any event payable by the landlord as between him and the tenant. Section 26 as between this and the country section 20 of the Act, as to remarks deducting taxes from their rent, has no application to such a case, as it applies only to taxes which can be legally recovered from the owner. The reason of the rule embodied in that section disappears when the property is in the hands of the landlord exempt, and becomes liable to be taxed only when in occupation of a tenant, Semble, also, that where the tenant, as in this case, holds in perpetuity under a renewable lease, he may be regarded as the "owner." within the meaning of the Assessment Act. and as such is liable to taxation without recourse to the owner in fee. Where the nunicipality had entered into an agreement to grant a lease for a rent specified, but no mention had been made of taxes:—Held, that the fixing of the rent payable to the city did not interfere with the right of the latter in its governmental capacity and exercising its sovereign power to lay taxes upon the property when no longer exempt, by reason of its being under lease. Taxes and rent are distinct things and collectible by the corporation in different capacities, and the imposition of the yearly taxes is not a derogation from or inconsistent with the contract. A covenant by a tenant to pay taxes is a "usual" covenant, and it lay upon the tenant here objecting to give it, to shew by competent evidence that it was not so in such a case as that in question here or in this country, which the tenant had falled to do. No covenant to repair should be inserted in the least, the jurisdiction to keep the railway in effective operation being in the Railway Committee of the Privy Council, and it not having been shewn that this was insufficient to protect the city. Re Can. Pac. Re. Co. & Toronto, 22 C. L. T. 235, 4 O. L. R. 134, 1 C. W. R. 255, 2 O. W. R. 385, 5 O. L. R.

Agreement for—Specific performance.]—
Where the lessee refuses to sign a notarial lease in the terms of the agreement between him and the lessor in respect of the premises leased, the lessor has a right to bring suit, and have the lessee condemned to sign the lease, and, in default of his so doing, to have it ordered that the judgment of the Court shall serve as such lease. Walsh v, Brooke,

Agreement for lease—Specific performance—Immuses for breach — Measure and quantum — Loss of profits.] — Action for specific performance of an agreement for lease, damages for wrongful exclusion and other relief. Under circumstances, discretionary remedy of specific performance refused. Damages allowed, the basis thereof being compensation for loss of lease and not punishment of landlord for his breach, Rental to new tenant indicates actual rental value when breach occurred. Tenant cannot recover for loss of prospective profits. Jarvas V. Tormen, 13 O. W. R. 432.

Agreement to lease timberland and woodland-Portion of lands not in possession of plaintiff when agreement entered into Subsequent grant by Croun — Effect of Trust—Estoppel—Obligation to lease subsequently granted lands — "Belonging.")—On appeal, held, that certain lands which plaintiff claimed "belonged" to him, and for which he subsequently obtained a Crown grant, were included in the agreement for a lease, and he is now estopped from saying that these lands were not intended to be in the agreement, as he had represented they were his and defendant had acted thereon. Woodworth v. Lantz, S. E. L. R. 60.

Arbitration and award—Valuation of buildings—Interest on amount fixed by accard, —In a lease of twenty-one years it was provided that the buildings should be valued at the end of the term by three valuators or arbitrators, whose award should be made within the six months, next preceding the lat November, 1900, and the value paid by the lessor within six months from that date, with interest from that date, Valua-

tors or arbitrators were duly appointed, and possession given by the lessees on the fitse October, 1960, the last day of the term, log the award was not made until the 30th November, 1901; — Held, that the lessees were entitled to interest on the value of the buildings, as ascertained by the award, from the Ix November, 1900. Assignment of lease-Non-registration -Land Titles Act-Rent in arrear-Re-entry by landlord-Action by assignee of lease to recover possession - Parties - Original lessee — Subletting by assignee—Terming-tion of sublease — Tender of rent—Costs. -In an action against the landlord by the assignee of a lease under the Land Titles assignee or a lease under the Land titles Act, 1894, duly registered, to recover pos-session of the premises upon which the landlord had re-entered for default in the payment of rent:-Held, (1) that the fact that the assignment was not registered was no bar to the action .- (2) That the original lessee was not a necessary party.—(3) That the lessee was entitled to relief without the issue of a writ of ejectment upon payment of the rent due, but that the plaintiff, although he tendered all the rent due before action, should bear the costs of it, except in so far as these were increased by the defendant's resistance to the claim. - The plaintiff had sublet the lands, the sublease providing for re-entry in the event of the sublessee permitting an execution to be levied against his goods. This event had happened, and the plaintiff had distrained through the sheriff, who was in possession under a writ of attachment and writs of execution when the defendant re-entered. Held, that the plaintiff's distress and the bringing of this action shewed that the bringing of this action shewed that the plaintiff intended to terminate the sublease, Tucker v. Armour, 5 W. L. R. 35, 6 W. L. R. 93, 6 Terr. L. R. 388,

Assignment without leave - Forfeiture — Election — New lease — Waiver— Distress — Acceleration — Assignment for benefit of creditors—Notice.]—A lease of a store was made for five years, at a yearly rental, payable by even portions quarterly in advance, with the covenant that the lessee should not assign or sub-let without leave, and with a proviso that if the lessee should make an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the then current and the next quarter's should immediately become due and payable as rent in arrear and be recoverable by dis-tress or otherwise. During the term, the lessee made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors to the plaintiff, who sold the stock of goods in the store to the defendant. By the terms of the sale the defendant was to with the landlord of the premises as to ten-ancy. The defendant's husband went into possession of the store and of the stock of goods, which had remained therein, and continued thereafter in possession of the store. On the 5th April, 1898, the lessors distrained the goods of the defendant in the store for $644, made up of $175 rent due on the 1st October, 1897, $175 rent due on the 1st January, 1898, $175 "the next quarter's rent," by virtue of the proviso in the lease, and $119 an act of the second of the se for the taxes for 1898, in respect of which sums they claimed to be preferred creditors on the estate of the lessee. The plaintiff paid the claim and costs under protest, and brought an action against the lessees to recover back $319.32 of it, which action was dismissed. On the 17th December, 1898, the lessors made a lease of the store to the defendant's made a lease of the store to the defendant's husband to hold for three years from the 14th February, 1898. The lessors never con-sented in writing to the assignment of the sented in writing to the assignment of the demised premises to the plaintiff, and the plaintiff never assigned the premises to the defendant, and the lessors never recognized as rightful the occupation of the premises by the defendant. The plaintiff did not give notice to the lessors, under R. S. O. c. 170. notice to the ressors, uner R. S. O. C. 105, 34, s.s. 2, electing to retain the store for the unexpired term, or any portion of it:

Held, that the lessors, by granting the lead of the 17th December, 1898, elected to avoid in the meantime to waive the forfeiture thereof incurred by the assignment to the plaintiff. The distress was no waiver of the forfeiture. The election to forfeit the original lease referred back to the time when the ing the forfeiture took place, that is, the date of the assignment. The forfeiture of the the rent and taxes might have been avoided tion of the assignment, a notice in writing to the lessors electing to retain the store for the unexpired term or a portion of it :-Held, also, that the condition that the defendant was to assume the rent and taxes ancy, did not mean that the defendant was to assume any part of the rent and taxes which by virtue of the provision of the lease had become due on the previous 24th January, but rather that the defendant should arrange with the landlord as to tenancy and assume the rent and taxes payable in virtue of the tenancy so arranged. tenant could not meet the amount when due and arranged to have the bailiff take the piano in storage and hold it until he could pay it all up. The piano in question was subject to a chattel mortgage to plaintiff, who brought action to recover possession.
Defendant contended that he was holding the piano under the distress warrant:— Held, that so soon as the piano, in accordance with the arrangement, was removed from the demised premises, the distress was bandoned and the landlady's lien ceased and the mortgagee was entitled to possession of the piano under his morttage. Gosnell v. McTanney (1910), 16 O. W. R.

Construction — Unincorporated society—Lease signed by officers—Action for expulsion from demised premises—Parties—Damages. Trudeau v. Pepin, 3 O. W. R. 770.

Construction of covenant - Taxes Partial exemption.]—A society owned a building worth about $20,000, which, by statute, as it was used exclusively for purposes of the society. A portion of the building having been used at intervals for other purposes, was assessed at a valuation of $1,000, and the society paid the taxes thereon for some years, Such portion was eventually leased for a term of years to be used for other purposes than those of the society, and the valuation for assessment was increased to $10,000. The lease contained this covenant: "The said lessees . . . shall and will well and truly "The said fees, taxes or other rates or assessments or chargeable against the said premises by which are chargeable or levied against any property belonging to the said lessees (the and ordinary taxes, water rates and assesspremises, and the personal property thereon belonging to the lessor)."—The society was obliged to pay the taxes on such increased valuation and brought action to recover amount so paid from lessees: - Held, Fitzamount so paid from lessees: — Hetd, Filv-patrick, C.J., and Anglin, J., dissenting, that the taxes so paid were "regular and ordin-ary taxes" which lessors had agreed to pay as theretofore and lessees were not liable therefor on their covenant, St. Mary's v. Albec, 6 E. L. R. 582, affirmed; (1910), 30 C. L. T. 530, 7 E. L. R. 435, 43 S. C. R. 288.

Construction of lease — Rent.] — A clause in a lease providing for a renewal stated that the renewal lease was to be "at such increased rent as may be determined upon, as hereinafter mentioned, payable in like manner and under and subject to the like covenants, provisions, and agreements as are contained in these presents, including the covenant for renewal, such rent to be determined by three different disinterested persons as arbitrators." The lease further provided for payment of the yearly rent as follows: "For the first ten years of the said term eighty dollars per annum, for the remaining all the said payments to be made half-yearly on the first day of January and July in each year;"—Held, that the proper manner by which the rent should be increased during the renewal term was by adding to each payment during the twenty-one years, that is to

Contracts — Interpretation of contracts — Offer to purchase and acceptance—Conditional contract.]—The acceptance, purely and simply, by the proprietor of a factory of an offer of purchase made to him, in which it is stated, "but F. (the tenant), giving me a lease of five years after his present lease," does not obligate the purly accepting the offer to obtain a lease for such period of time. It forms, with the offer, a conditional contract, i.e., subject that and conditional contract, i.e., subject that and condition is about the contract is rescained and has no ulterior effects. Delicato & Biondi (1909), 19 Que, K. B. 425. (An appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada is now under advisement.)

Covenant—Breach of—Assignment without leave—Recentry — Formal execution of assignment after action.]—The right of reentry under the short form of lease applies to the breach of a negative as well as an altimative covenant, so that there is a right of re-entry for breach of the covenant not to assign or subtle without leave. Toronto General Hospital Trustees v. Denham, 31 C. P.
203, followed. The making of an agreement for the assignment of a lease, the settlement of the terms thereof, and the taking of possession by the assignee, conduct covenant, so that the fact of the document shewing the transfer not having been executed until after action brought, is immaterial. Methods v.
W. R. 265.

Covenant—Goods on premises to secure rent—Valuation.] — Where, by a lease, the lessee undertook to furnish the leased premises with "a sufficient quantity of household furniture or goods to secure the payment of one year's rent," the effects upon the leased premises should be valued in accordance with their ordinary merchantable value, and not in accordance with what they might bring as a forced sale. Rousseau v. Archibeld, 12 Que, K. B. 14.

Covenant—Implied covenant to crop and cultivate—Danagos for deterioration.]—The plaintiff leased to the defendant's husband and for five years, yielding and paying therefor the clear yearly rent or sum of one-third of the crop. The lease contained covenants by the lessee that he would cultivate in a good husbandlike and proper manner so as not to improverish or injure the soil, and plouch and crop the same in a proper farmer. He may be a summary of the soil of the contained of the crop the same in a proper farmer. He may be a summary of the soil of the contained of the resulting the defendant as lessee, instead of her husband. This did not contain any of the above-mentioned covenants, or anything specially applicable to leases of farms, but contained the following: "Yielding and paying therefor yearly and every year during the said term . . the sum of one-third of the crop grown, to be payable, . . . the first of such payments to become due and to be made when threshed in the full of each year." and a covenant become due and to be made when threshed in the full of each year." and a covenant seem, which was written into it. It did not contain express covenants to cultivate or crop:—Held, that there should be judgment for the plaintiff for deterioration in value of land from defendant's omitting to plough, cultivate, and crop in 1902, $300, and for less of wheat, barley, and oats, $291.76, in all $391.76, in all $391.76, in all $391.76, in all $591.76, in all $591.76, in all $591.76, in all $591.76, in the second lease: Melstyre v. Belcher, 14 $2, 18, 48]. The defendant bound berself to plough four inches deep in each year. That must mean that she would plough for the purpose of cultivating and cropping. The wording of the provision as to the payment to the lessor of a third of the crop in each year, would imply that a crop was to be grown in each year of the term. Dunsford v. Webster, 23 C. L. The demandant bound berself.

Covenant — Improvements — Resecuel — Independent corecants—Option, 1—A lense contained a covenant to the effect that the lessee might make improvements upon the demised premises; that at the expiration of the lease or any renewal thereof the same should be valued and paid for by the lessor; and concluding as follows; "And upon such payment, upon such valuation not being duly made, the party of the first part, his heirs or assigns, shall, it so required, give or renew a lease including the covenants of the present lease to the parties of the second part for a further period of five years, with the like agreement of valuation and payment for a further period of five years, with the like agreement of valuation and payment for the remained of the term, a dispute his lease expressed and at the same yearly rent." On the expiration of the tensor—the former claiming that it was optional with him either to renew the lease or pay for the improvements after valuation, the latter that he was entitled to have the improvements valued and paid for by the lessor—a special case was stated in equity for the opinion of the Court, Each party was ready and willing to perform the covenant as interpreted by him:—Hedd, that the covenant was single, and therefore that the lessor was discharged upon his shewing that was ready and willing to renew the lease; (2) that, even if there were two separate and independent covenants, one to pay the appraised value of the improvements and the other to renew, only one was to be performed, and the option lay with the lessor, he being the first person called upon to act. Quare, per Tuck, C.J., whether a special case stated under the provisions of 53 V. c. 4, s. 139, should not be first heard by the Judge in Equity. Ward v, Hall, 34 N. B. R. 600.

Covenant — Lease by tensul for life—
Straue and manure — Property in — Emblements, 1— During the lifetime of the widow and tenant for life, two of the farms belonging to the estate were leased for five years, dependent on her living so long, and the lessees covenanted to cultivate, till, manure . . . and not spend, use, and employ in a proper husbandlike manner all the straw and manure . . and not to remove or permit to be removed from the premises any straw of any kind, manure, wood or stone, and to not in actual occupation or cultivation of the lands on which it was produced. — Held, also, that the lessees would have been entitled to the straw and the manure, which had been piled into heaps, but for their covenants, which precluded them from making any claim; and that the covenants might be constrand on held to operate as a reservation of the straw and manure to the lessor to be dealt with it the stipulated manner, and, as the lessees' right or power and obligation so to deal with it came to an end with the death of the lessor, it passed to her represervatives unrestricted thereby. Sackinger

Covenant—Not to cut timber—Statutory coreant — Common law rights.]—Under a covenant in a lease made in pursuance of the Short Forms Act, the lessee was not to cut down timber for any purpose whatever, except for fire wood, but he was to have the privilege of using for any purpose all lying down hard wood timber, cedar only excepted:—Held, that the covenant was a restriction of the statutory covenant, under which the lessee could cut down timber or timber trees for necessary repairs or for fire wood, but was an extension of the common law right, which was limited to lying down dead timber, and that the covenant allowed the lessee to use all the lying down hard wood timber, sound or unsound, except in so far as restricted by the exception as to cedar. Snellie v. Watson. 7 O. L. R. 635, 2 O. W. R. 118, 3 O. W. R. 475.

Covenant — Not to sublet—Lodgers.]—A condition in a legse, prohibiting sub-letting of the premises in whole or in part is not violated by a tenant who lets furnished rooms to lodgers, the tenant retaining the entire care and control of such rooms, and the lodgers not even being in possession of keys thereto. Covenant — Railway company — City lease—Usual covenants — Covenants to pay taxes and repair—Right of re-entry—Rent in arrear — Interest on.] — An agreement made between the corporation of the city of Toronto and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, provided, amongst other things, for a lease renewable in perpetuity, in such terms of fifty years, at an agreed rent, payable on paned days, nothing being said about covenants:—Held, that the lease should cenain a covenant by the appellants to pay the same, partly because the effect of the Assessment Act in force at the date of the contract was to impose such liability on the lesses of municipal lands without recourse to the corporation, and partly because a covenant to that effect was shown to be a usual covenant, in the sense that the corporation in variably insisted on it in their leases. Judzment in 23 C. L. T. 218, 5 O. L. R. 717, affirmed in the main, but varied as to interest, Can. Pac. Rw. Co. v. Toronto, [1905] A. C. 33.

Covenant—Rent.]—A lease of land, upon which there were no buildings except an old shed, contained a covenant by the lessor to grant, at the expiration of the term, if requested, "another lease" to the lessee "for the further term of twenty-one years," at such rent as might be agreed on or fixed by arbitration, "such renewed lease to contain a like covenant for renewal:"—Held, that he rent for the renewed lease to the interest of the renewal, and not upon the value of the land at the time of the renewal, and not upon the value of the land and of buildings erected by the lessee during the term. Van Brocklin v. Brantford, 20 U. C. R. 327, affirmed in appeal, 26th June, 1842, followed. Judgment below. 31 O. R. 335, 20 C. L. T. 39, affirmed. Re Allen & Nasmith, 20 C. L. T. 425, 27 A. R. 536.

Estoppel - Malicious civil proceedings-Estoppel — Malice — Evidence — Onus. —
Pleading — Malice — Evidence — Onus. — Action for a balance of rent. The defendant relied upon a surrender by operation of law. In 1886 the defendant and his cotenant, with the plaintiff's consent, leased a part of the land to one S., who entered into possession and paid the rent direct to the plaintiff, at the request of the defendant. On the 17th April, 1897, according to the defendant's story, at a time when he owed $100 for rent, the plaintiff agreed, in consideration of getting this money, to cancel the lease. This the plaintiff positively denied. The receipt alleged to have been given was not produced, nor was its disappearance accounted for. The defendant's evidence was taken on commission, and he was not examined in open Court. No new lease was granted and the plaintiff had not resumed possession:—Held, that there can be no estopped by mere verbal agreement; there must be, in addition to such agreement, some act which is inconsistent with the continuance of the case. And in this case there was no surrender of the lease by operation of law. The defendant counterclaimed for damages against the plaintiff for (a) filing a plaint in the County Court claiming a lien; (b) causing a lis pendens to be issued against lands not included in the lease; (c) for registering such lis pendens. -Held, that to sustain such an action there must have been, by means of civil process, some unwarrantable interference with the person or property of the defendant in the original action.—Held, also, that the counterclaim did not disclose a good cause of action, because neither malice and want of reasonable and probable cause nor special damage were sufficiently alleged.—Held, also, that the onus of shewing malice or special damage was upon the defendant, and he had not succeeded in his proof. Trim v. Baines, 20 C. L. T. 145.

Evidence of — Commencement in verifing—Third party—Confession of judgment.] —A lease for a year at more than 850 rent cannot be proved by verbal testimony, even as against a third party, without a commencement of proof by writing, and such commencement of proof by writing is not to be found in the allegation, by such third party, of a monthly lease. 2. A confession of judgment by the tenant in an action brought against him by the landlord is not proof of a verbal lease against a third person who has been made a party. Laliberté v, Langelier, 9 Que. Q. B. 398.

Evocation — Suit between landlord and tenant — Future rights — C. P. $9, 1152 (recersing Fortin, J.),—Although an action whereby the cancellation of a lease and a claim in addition for rent in an amount under $100, is within the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court, evocation of the case to the Superior Court will be permitted if the future rights of the parties are affected to an extent exceeding $100. Poiré v. Lavigne, 11 Que. P. R. 187.

Execution of lease by party not understanding its effect—thence of fraud—Denial of lessor's title—Estoppel.]—A lessee can not deny his lessor's title and set up title in himself in an equitable replication in an action brought by him against the lessor for an illegal distress for rent in arrear under the lease by alleging and proving (no issue of fraud being raised) that he did not understand the effect of the lease, and believed that in executing it he was completing an option of purchase of the december of the defendant's prediction of prior lease from the defendant's prediction. Supplying the defendant of the description of prior lease from the defendant's prediction.

Expiry — Continuance of possession by tenant — Special agreement — Tenancy at will.1—The reservation of a pear, it, the leading circumstance which turns tenancies for uncertain terms into tenancies from which the Court or jury may find the fact. And the circumstances may be shewn to repet the implication:—Held, therefore, in this case, where the inadioral before he accepted any rent after expiry of the lease, expressly told the tenant that he would not consent to any tenancy from year to year, so as to require any notice of termination to be given, but that they should remain in the same position as they were on the expiry of the lease, to any notice of termination to be given, but that they should remain in the same position as they were on the expiry of the lease, to the transfer of the pear of the same position of the control of the court of the pear of the pear of the case, to the transfer of the pear of the pear a certain amount, and is not obliged to limit his demand to three months' rent to fall due. Bélanger v. Dubois, 5 Que, P. R. 342.

Forfeiture - Waiver-Estoppel-Cove-Sub-lease-Company - Assignment for creditors. ]-A lease to a joint stock company provided that, in case the lessee should assign for the benefit of creditors, six months' rent should immediately become due, and the lease should be forfeited and void. The two lessors were principal shareholders in the company, and while the lease was in force one of them, at the meeting of the directors, moved, and the other seconded, that a by-law be passed authorising the company to make an assignment, which was afterwards done, the lessors executing the assignment as creditors assenting:—Held, reversing the judg-ment of the Court of Appeal, 1 O. L. R. 172, 21 C. L. T. 111, that the lessors and the company were distinct legal persons, and the individual interests of the former were not affected by the above action. Salamon v. Salamon, [1897] A. C. 22, followed. The assignee of the company held possession of the leased premises for three months, and the lessee accepted rent from him for that lowing.—Held, reversing the judgment, that, under the facts of the case, the lessors could not be said to have waived their right to claim a forfeiture of the lease. Mortgagees of the premises having notified the sub-tenants to pay rent to them, the assignee paid with the assent of the lessors, against whose demand it was charged.—Held, that this, also, was no waiver of the lessors' right to claim a forfeiture,-Quare: Was a covenant by the company to supply steam and power on surrender of the original lease, have bound the lessor and a purchaser from him of the fee? Littlejahn v. Soper, 22 C. L. T. 45, 31 S. C. R. 572.

Formal denial — Absence of — Recognition.] — A lease under seal which is not denied in the manner provided by Art. 208, C. P., must be considered as recognized by the person against whom it is set up. Thurston v. Hughes, 16 Que. S. C. 472.

Hotel-Proviso for reasonable rebate of rent in case of a prohibitive law being en-acted—Prohibitive law passed — Reference to ascertain amount of rebate — Replevin— Excessive distress]—Plaintiff was a tenant of defendant's hotel, the Orillia House, unany law being enacted to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors upon the premises, a reasonable rebate in the amount of rent during such prohibition should be allowed.
Plaintiff was prohibited from selling, demanded the rebate, refused to pay rent until it was fixed, and while rebate was unascertained, defendant distrained for rent, Plaintiff brought action, claiming that right of distress was suspended or non-existent until rebate ascertained, the amount for rent being no longer a fixed and ascertained sum. This action is in replevin and for damages for excessive distress:—Held, that the action should be dismissed, in so far as it is founded in replevin. On the claim for damages for excessive distress, $100 damages allowed plaintiff. On the counterclaim, judgment for defendants for (a) the rent dunder the lease claimed for the period distrained for and up to and inclusive of the St. October, 1900, subject to a rebate on the same being ascertained under the judgment of Riddell, $J$, 13 O. W. R. 907, in a former action; (b) the additional rent at $10 per month agreed to be paid for the hotel in consideration of putting in a heating plantand apparatus; (3) and for the rent duat and for the same period for the six rooms used in councection with the hotel. Defendant's claim for double value for holding over these six rooms dismissed. Plaintiff to have the six rooms dismissed. Plaintiff to have the six rooms dismissed. Plaintiff to have held the six rooms dismissed.

Divisional Court varied above judgment by reducing the damages allowed to $5.— (1910), 16 O. W. R. 628, 21 O. L. R. 519, 1 O. W. N., 1039.

Hotels — Distress — Sale of furniture... Lessor's right to bid at auction, —Held, (1) that there had been an excessive distress so far as one month's rent was concerned, and one dollar damages allowed; (2) that a landlord may buy at an auction sale of goods sold under his distress warrant. Spain v, McKay, 7 E. L. R. 503, Reversed 7 E. L. R. 529.

Hotel premises — Requirements of by law — Illegal lease, 1—Premises leased for use as an hotel did not fulfil the requirements of a by-law in regard to the number of bedrooms, and of this both the lessor and lessee were aware at the time the lease was entered into. The lessee was prevented by the municipal authorities from using the premises as an hotel :—Held, in an action by the lessor on covenants for rent and repair, that the lease was void ab initio, and the maxim. In pari delicto potior est conditio defendents, applied. Even if the lease were not void ab initio, it became void by the action of the authorities in stopping the further use of the premises as an hotel. Hickey v. Sciutto, 24 C. L. T. 106, 10 B. C. R. 187.

House not completed — Requirements as to heating.]—Where in a lease of a house in the course of construction, it is provided that the lessee shall take the house in the condition in which it shall be at the time of delivery over, provided that the work is finished, and the arrangement of the house shows (the owner having placed in it pipes for a system of hot water heating) that the house is to be heated by hot water, the tenant, especially if the house, by reason of its construction, cannot easily be heated with stoves, may require that the owner shall place radiators in every room where the visible indications make it apparent that the intention was to so place them, and a fur-intention was to so place them, and a fur-intention was to so place them, and a fur-intention was to so place them, and a furnace of a capacity sufficient to heat the water for such system. Bazinet v. Collectte, 21 Que, S. C. 508.

Immoral purposes of lease — Void tons — Action — Nasiscengeric, — The lease of a house for purposes of prostitution, making an illicit order, and heing contrary to good morals and public policy, is void, and can give no cause of action to any of the parties to it.—The fact that the tenant is about to leave the demised premises and to remove his goods and chattels therefrom does not give rise in favour of the lessor to a remedy by way of satisf-agoric, especially when the lesser is leaving because he is forced by law to do so, Lachance v. Roy, 29 Que, S. C. 478.

Implied covenant to crop and cultivate-Rent in kind-Damages for deterioration.]—In April, 1898, the plaintiff leased by deed to the defendant's husband a half section of land for five years at a rental of one-third of the crop grown on the premises yearly. The lease was on a printed form of tion, in a good, husbandlike, and proper manner, and would plough the land in each during the term in a proper farmerlike manland was made by deed, ante-dated so as to tuting the defendant as lessee instead of her husband. It was intended that the new The new lease, by mistake of the solicitor who prepared it, was written on a printed form of "statutory lease," not containing the special clauses applicable to farm land. It provided for the same rental as the other lease, payable in the same way and at the written into it, but no express covenants to cultivate or crop. By the end of 1901 the cultivated portion of the farm was 117 acres, but in 1902 the defendant only ploughed and cultivated four acres out of the 117, and weeds grew up all over the rest. The plaintiff's claim was for damages for breach of in the lease to defendant in the circumstances: — Held, following McIntyre v. Belcher, 14 C. B. N. S. 654, The Moorcock, 14 P. D. 68, and Hamlyn v. Wood, [1891] 2 Q. B. 491, that such covenants should, in the estimated value of one-third of the crop that and for deterioration in value of the land on account of defendant having allowed it grow up with weeds, Dunsford v. Landlord undertaking to erect new warehouse. I—Agreement for a lease for five years, from the 1st of April, 1840, the landlord undertaking to erect by that time a new warehouse, on part of the ground to be demised, and to put the old warehouse in repair, the amount of rent to be determined with reference to the amount of the landlord's expenditure on the buildings. The new building was not erected, nor the old warehouse repaired, on the 1st of April, but no objection made by the intended lessees, who then occupied part of the premises under a former agreement, and shortly afterwards the whole premises were destroyed by fire. In such circumstances:—Held, upon a bill filed by the landlord, for specific performance of the agreement, and for the decept a lease; that the premises, and to accept a lease; that the premises and to accept a lease; that the premise should be put in repair before the lense was granted, and that, as the landlord had not performed his engagement within the time limited, the contact could not be enforced in equity, and the bill dismissed. Lease executed as security for past indebtedness and future advances-Share of erop reserved as rent—Seizure under execu-tion—Claim of landlord—Interpleader.] — S. was indebted to a bank, and, to secure the indebtedness, made a mortgage upon certain lands to the plaintiff, representing the bank; the mortgage was dated the 11th January, 1909; and the moneys secured thereby were made payable on the 15th February, 1909. The mortgage was subject to a prior mortgage to a loan company. On the 15th March, 1909, the bank demanded further security. and a lease of the mortgaged lands was made to S. by the plaintiff and executed by S. on that date, for 9 months, the reddendum being one-third of the crop which should be grown upon the demised premises. On the 1st March, 1910, S. was in arrears in respect to the first mortgage, and the bank advanced him $700 more to pay the arrears, S. then executing a lease to the plaintiff for two years, reserving a rental of two-thirds of the crop. On the 30th August, 1910, the sheriff seized the grain upon the land under the defendant's execution against the goods the detendant's execution against the goods of S. The plaintiff claimed two-thirds of the grain seized:—Held, upon an interpleader issue directed to determine whether the plaintiff was entitled under his lease to a twothirds share of the crop, that the crop re-served as rental was not in reality a rental, but a security for a past indebtedness, as well as for future advances; and, therefore, the issue should be determined in favour of the defendant. Mortgage of lease—Discharge.]—J. demised lands for a term of years, with a provision against assignment by the lessor without his consent. The lessor assigned the lease by way of mortgage, and the consent of J. was indorsed thereon. The mortgage, in an action by J., was adjudged limble as assignee for payment of rent and taxes, and, the lessor having died insolvent, was about to register a statutory discharge of the mortgage, when J. brought an action claiming a declaration that it could not be insolvent, and the state of the court of Appeal, 26 A. R. 116, ante 132, that under the Judicature Act the Courts are bound to treat a mortgage, as Courts of equity have always done, as a mere accessory to the debt; that, the lessor having consented to the specific assignment, such consent included all such incidents as the law attaches to the covenants and agreements between the parties set forth in the ded, as well as the covenant and agreements themselves; one of such incidents continuously and the mortgage lands; that the lessor could not prescribe the dealings between the mortgage would be obliged to re-assign the mortgage lands; that the lessor could not require a further license from the did not require a further

Option — Mortgage — Redemption.]
Under a covenant in a lease that the lessors would, at the expiration of the term thereby granted grant another lease, "provided the said lessee . . . should desire to take a further lease of said premises," no notice or demand by the lessee is necessary. The lease is all that is essential, and that desire may be indicated by conduct and circumstances. A lease of land, subject to two mortgages contained a covenant by the lessor and the second mortgages with the lessor, that he lessee might if he desired to do that case the sum paid for redemption should be a first charge on the land:—Held, that the second mortgage's right to redeem the first mortgage, after its acquisition by the lessee, was not taken away. Breuer v.
Consor, 20 C. L. T. 75. 9, 27 A. R. 10.

Option for lease—Absence of consideration—Acceptance too late.]—An netion for damages for alleged breach of agreement by defendants to lease to plaintiff certain premises in Ottawa for 2 years at $50 per month, clear of all taxes except business tax. Oral lease — Admission—Commencement of proof is verting — Special conditions.)—
The admissions, by a party, of a verbal lease of premises and of occupation thereof, are not a commencement of proof in writing of special conditions attached to it. Hence, they will not avail to allow proof by testimony that the tenant, by the terms of the lease, was to permit alterations, etc., without compensation, Men's Wear Ltd. v. Arnold, 34 Que. S. Personal action — Territorial jurisdiction — Superior Court.] — An action for cancellation of a lense for a long term or a sale, on account of default in payment of the price by the purchaser, or for non-personance of the obligations arising from the lease or sale, is a personal action, and should be brought in the Court of the district in which the contract was made, although the domicil of the defendant and the demised premises are in another district. Marsolais v. Grenier, 3 Que. P. R. 39.

Possession—Personal action—Territorial jurisdiction.]—Where the lessor, in a lease for a long term, demands against the holder of the lease that it shall be cancelled because of failure by the holder to perform his covenants, and that the possession of the demised premises shall be given up to him, the action is a personal one which is within the jurisdiction of the Court of the place where the lease has been executed. Possession taken in expectation of lease — Encroachment on adjacent land of lessor by tenant—Covenant for renewal —

Use and occupation-Action for 1-The defendant, in 1882, went into possession of certain lands situate on Toronto Island, under the expectation of obtaining a lease thereof for twenty-one years, which was shortly afterwards granted to him by the plainting owners of the freehold, the lease containing a covenant for renewal. The lands leased were owners of the Irechold, the lense containing a covenant for renewal. The lands leased wer-three lots, described in the lense by their numbers on a plan. The defendant, in the belief that a piece of land, not so included, formed part of the lands leased, took posses-sion of it with the land actually leased, and occupied the whole. In 1891 the defendant allowed a person to occupy the encroachedupon land as tenants, the latter paying the defendant a yearly rental, it being stated by the defendant in a receipt therefor that such land formed part of his leasehold lands. The defendant's tenant continued to pay the derenant's tenant continued to pay the yearly rent until 1905, when the plaintiffs, in making a survey of the lands, discovered the mistake made by the defendant, and notified the tenant not to make any further payments. In an action for use and occu-pation of the part encroached upon:—Held, that the defendant could not claim to have upon, for his possession was in his character of lessee, and would therefore be deemed to be that of his landlords, the claim made by plaintiffs for the use and occupation not conclaim to have the encroached-upon lands inof the lands actually comprised in the old lease:—Held, also, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to claim for the use and occupabut were entitled thereafter to be paid therefor. Judgments in 11 O. W. R. 653 and 12 O. W. R. 426, affirmed. Toronto v. Ward. 18 O. L. R. 214, 13 O. W. R. 312.

Privileges not specified—Injunction.)— Hefore the construction of a building by the defendant, the plaintiff agreed to rent a shop in the proposed building. The lease, in the short form made in pursuance of the Leaseholds Act, described the premises by metes and bounds, without specifying any privileges. The plaintiff, after entering, demanded the use of a water-closet and of a place for storing coal, and the defendant conceded the right:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with his right of access to the closet and with his right to store coal in rear of the premises. Ross v.
Henderson, 21 C. L. T. 219, 8 B, C. R. 5.

Produce of farm — Agreement as to— Execution against tensut,! — The plaintiff leased a dairy farm and thirteen cove. by lease in writing, in which was contained the following clause: "All the hay, straw, and corn stalks raised on the . . farm to be fed to the said cows on the said . . . farm:"—Held, that, while the property in hay produced on the farm might be legally in the tenant, yet his contract was to so use it that it should be fed to the cattle and consumed on the premises; he was not to have the beneficial use of it, and could not er a gran 157,

Proof of tenancy—Rent exceeding $35 O-Oral evidence — Occupation — Remedy is of landlord.]—The lease of an immovable for a rent exceeding $50 cannot be proved by the oral testimony of witnesses, but, when there has been occupation by the alleged lessee, the owner may, in accordance with Art. 1698, C.C., exercise against him all the remedies which the law gives to lessors against lessees. Superior v. Withell, 14 Que. K. B. 396.

Provisions of — Damage by fire—Re-pairs — Abandonment — Lien of landlord— Stock-in-trade—Sale en bloc.]—1. Where a lease contains stipulations to the effect that the lessee shall deliver the premises at the expiration of the lease in as good order as they were at the commencement of the lease, reasonable wear and tear and accidents by fire excepted, and shall pay extra premiums of insurance exacted by insurance company in consequence of the work carried on by the lessee, the effect is to do away with the presumption, which would otherwise exist by law in favour of the lessor, that the fire which occurred in the leased premises was due to the fault of the lessee, or of persons for whom he was responsible, and it is for the lessor to prove fault before he can recover damages. Evans v. Skelton, 16 S. C. R. 637, followed.—2, Damage by fire so inconsiderable in extent that repairs may be made in three or four days does not justify the lessee in abandoning the premises. His remedy is to put the lessor in default to make the necessary repairs, and then, if the repairs be not made, to ask for the cancellation of the lease, —3. The application of Art. 1623, C. C., which says that in the exercise of the privito be the property of the lessee "-is not restricted to daily sales of merchandise in de-tail. The article applies to any sale which a merchant may make in the ordinary course to seize in recaption, in the possession of the purchaser, a damaged or partly damaged stock purchaser, a damaged or partly admared stocks bought from the lessee in good failth, even when such merchandise has been sold en bloc. Judgment in 14 Que. S. C. 396, affirmed, but damages increased. Liggett v. Viau, 18 Que.

Provise for subletting — Right of landlord to refuse consent.] — Action for cancellation of a lease on the ground that the defendant, in violation of one of its terms, sublet the premises without having obtained the plaintiff's written consent. The defendant pleaded that the plaintiffs refused their consent without cause, being only ready to grant the same upon the condition that the rent should be increased; that the subtemant was solvent and was willing to pay the rent yearly in advance, or to furnish security. Against these allegations the plaintiffs in-scribed in law, claiming that they were irrelevant, and that the plaintiffs had an absolute right to refuse consent:—Held, following Mackenie v, Wilson, 10 L. N. 113, that the clause in the lease being absolute, the plaintiffs had the right to refuse consent, and that, therefore, the grounds urged by the defendant did not constitute any legal justification for his conduct in subletting. Inscripcion-in-law maintained and paragraphs of plea complained of struck out with costs. Racette v, Carriere, 23 C. L. T. 117.

T. 13, that the lessees had made a valid appointment of an were entitled to resort to the Court to have a sole arbitrator and to have a determination of their contention that the lessors had no right to insist upon a renewal. Renewal — Arbitration or valuation— Irregularities—Acquiescence—Waiver. Gray v. McMath, 1 O. W. R. 445.

Renewal - Construction of lease -Rent. ]-A clause in a lease providing for a renewal stated that the renewal lease was to be "at such increased rent as may be deto the like covenants, provisions, and agree-ments as are contained in these presents, including the covenant for renewal, such rent to be determined by three indifferent or disthe said term eighty dollars per annum; for the remaining eleven years one hundred dollars per annum; all the said payments to be made half-yearly on the first day of January and July in each year:"—Held, that the proper manner by which the rent should be increased during the renewal term was by adding to each payment during the twenty-one years, that is to say, adding to the rent of $80 per annum for the first ten years of the renewal term and to the rent of $100 per annum for the remaining ten years of the renewal term, -and not by adding together the annual payments for twenty-one years and making an addition to that, nor by adding to the sum payable during the last year before the renewal :- Held, also, that the condition as to the rent for the new term being an increased rent, might be satisfied by making a merely nominal addition, whereas here there was no increase in the rentable value of the premises. Re Geddes & Garde, Re Geddes & Cochrane, 20 C. L. T. 455, 32 O. R. 262.

Renewal — Increased rent — Arbitration. —In a lease for twenty-one years the rent fixed was, for the first year $106.88, for the next four years $130 a year, for the next five years $145 a year, and for the remaining eleven years $178 a year. The lease contained a covenant by the lessor to renew for a further term of twenty-one years, "at such increased rent as may be determined upon as hereinafter mentioned, payable in like manner, and under and subject to the like coveas are contained in these nants . . . as are contained in these presents." The lease provided for the appointment of arbitrators to determine the rent to be paid under the renewal lease:

Held, that the arbitrators were bound to award an increased rent under the terms of the reference to them, but they might award a mere nominal increase if they thought proper; the increase was to be based upon the rent reserved for the whole term, and not for any particular year or years of it: might be upon each year's rent or upon the average of the whole twenty-one years, but so that in the result the average annual rent should be greater for the future term than the past. Re Geddes & Garde, 22 C. L. T. 455, 32 O. R. 262, approved. Re Geddes & Cochrane, 22 C. L. T. 54, 3 O. L. R. 75, 1 O. W. R. 15.

Renewal—Subsequent attempt to cancel—Sub-tenant — Payment of rent direct to landlord — Surrender—Release — Estoppel, Yukon Trust Co. v. Murphy (Y.T.), 2 W. I. R. 298.

Renewal lease — Arbitration to determine rental — Award — Appeal — Reimbursement of lessee for buildings — Potential value of property — Expenditure of money by lessee. Re Denison & Foster, 12 O, W. R. 1106.

Repair of premises — Injury to third person.]—A tenant, bound by the terms of his lease to make repairs, is not responsible (as between himself and his landlord) for an accident to a third person happening on the premises which he occupies tenant, when he has not been guilty of negligation on his part, and the accident has happened by reason of faulty construction of a structure upon the premises. Allan v. Fortier, 20 Que. S. C. 50.

Repairs—Liability of landlord—Factory—Insurance,—Repairs to a furmer, such as substituting a new section for one that is cracked and leaks from long vage, are not tenant's repairs, and the cost must be borne by the lessor—In construing a lease, in which the lessor and lessee are both described as manufacturers of tohocco, and the premises as "a four-storey building, etc., and the premises as "a four-storey building, etc., and cocupied by the lessor as a factory," it is fair to infer that the premises were lessed to be used as a tohacco factory. Therefore, a clause in the lease that "the lessee shall pay all extra premiums of insurance of the premises, exacted in consequence of the business or work he carries on therein," does not make him liable for the difference between warehouse and factory rates of insurance. Fortier v. Youngheart, 28 Que. S. C. 118, Repudiation by tenant — Breach of contract — Surrender — Acceptance — Re-letting—Measure of damages.]—The plaintiffs made a lease of an hotel to the defendant, but before the day when the lease was to become operative, the defendant notified him the plaintiffs that he refused to carry out the contract. There was no acceptance of the attempted surrender. The plaintiffs were entitled to damages based on the difference between the rent agreed to be paid by the defendant and that at which the plaintiff subsequently lensed—Judgment of Ryan, Co.C.J., affirmed. Arden Hotel Co., Mills (1910), 14 W. L. R. 410.

Rescission — Immoral use of premises— Knowledge — Costs.] — The fact that the lessor's auteur, who was also manager of the company appellant, was aware, during several years, that a portion of the leased premises was being used for immoral purposes, and that he acquiesced therein, does not deprive the purchaser and transferce of such premises of the right to demand the resiliation of the lease on the ground of such immoral use of premises. Such knowledge can only affect the question of costs, Proxident Trust & Juvestment Co. v, Chapleau, 12 Que. K. B. 451.

Rescission — Tenant quitting possession — Rent to full due — Domagos — Injury to premises, ]—Where the tenant leaves the demised premises before the expiry of the lease, the landlord cannot claim as damages a sum equal to the rents which would fall due under the lease, unless he also claims cancelation of the lease,—2. The landlord, in these circumstances, cannot, before the expiration of the lease, claim damages for injury done by the tenant to the demised premises, Amiot v. Bonin, 23 Que. S. C. 42.

Short Forms Act—Lease—Surrender— Evidence of destruction of building by fire— Obligation of tenants to rebuild—Covenents to repair—Breaches—Assignment of lease— Assignment of reversion—Parties—Amendment.]—The male plaintiff, being the owner of a farm in the township of Polham, by indenture of bease, dated 29th June, 1801, and expressed to be made in pursuance of the Act respecting short forms of leases, R. S. O. 1897, c. 106, devised it to the defendants the Brown Brothers Co. for the term of 12 years, to be computed from 1st April, 1892. The lesses covenanted "to repair," "and that the said lessor may enter and view state of repair and that the said lessor may enter and view state of repair and that the said lesses will repair according to notice," "and that they will leave the premises in good repair, ordinary wear and tear only excepted." After the making of the lease, planitiff Ira Delmantier conveyed the lands demised to plaintiff Emma C. Delmarter, and defendants the Brown Brothers Co, conveyed all their interest under the lease to their co-defendants, who accepted the lease and became liable to all the covenants. In August, 1992, one of the buildings on the demised premises—a barn—was destroyed by five, and was not rebuilt. The action was brought to recover damages for the leases:—Actd, Mages, J., dissenting, that words amount of the short form which are designed cannot introduce into the form an exception from it, or annex to the form a qualification of it, and the covenant must be construed as it stood without the aid of the long form. Therefore the covenant as to damage by fire and tempest did not apply. Delmanter v. Brotan Bros., 5 O. W. R. 423, 9 O. L. R. 351.

Surrender—Existion—Surrender by operation of law. 1-eThe plaintiff let a store to H. A. & Co., who afterwards executed an assignment for the benefit of creditors to the defendant, who did not take possession of the premises. The plaintiff, on the third day after the assignment, requested and obtained from H. A. & Co. the keys of the premises, which she proceeded to clean up and repair, and she took down a sign board having on it the firm name of H. A. & Co., and painted the name out. The plaintiff afterwards sued for a declaration that she was entitled to a privileged claim against the estate for rent accruing due after the assignment:—Held, that there had been a surrender of the premises to the landlord by act and operation of law. Phené v. Popplecell, 12 C. B. N. S. 334, applied. Gold v. Ross, 23 C. L. T. 253, 10 B. C. R. S0.

Surrender—Forfeiture of breach of covenant—Eviction by notice.] — The plaintif, tenant of the defendant's farm under a lease for three years from March, 1965, containing a covenant by the plaintiff to buy three horses and to pay for them by delay creatity of the pay for them by the plaintiff of the threshing, being embarrassed financially, about the 1st December, 1968, met the defendant and asked him to assist him by guaranteeing certain accounts, in default of which he said he would be unable to go on working the farm, and terms were discussed, on which the plaintiff should abandon the lease and give up possession of the premises. While the defendant was willing to assist the plaintiff, they failed to agree, whereupon the former told the latter that he would cancel the lease for non-performance of covenants, gave him the following written notice: "Take notice that I have this day cancelled lease of my farm to you on the grounds of non-fulfilment of terms of said lease." On the same day the plaintiff vacated the premises, after selling to the defendant some oats, barley, and feed he had there. The defendant resumed possession at once. A few days afterwards the plaintiff came back and sold to the defendant his poultry, and then left the farm altogether:—Held, that there had been no surrender of the lease, and that the defendant was liable in damages as for an eviction of the plaintiff. The defendant also contended that he was entitled to terminate the lease for breach of the covenant referred to. As to this, it appeared that the plaintiff had done some of the work stipulated for, and that there was a dispute over their ac-counts, but that at all events there was not more than about $38 due on the horses :-Held, that there was not such a clear breach of the covenant as to entitle the defendant to declare the lease forfeited on that ground. Watson v. Moggey, 15 Man. L. R. 241, 1 W. L. R. 438.

Valuation of buildings-Extension of time for making award - Interest. |-By a lease made on the 1st November, 1879, land was demised for a term of twenty-one years, and it was agreed that all the buildings on the land at the end of the term should be valued by valuators or arbitrators, and that the reference should be made and entered on and the award made within six months next preceding the 1st November, 1900; and it was further agreed that within six months from that day the value of the buildings found by the arbitrators should be paid with interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum from that day, and that until paid it should be a charge on the land. By deed dated the 23rd October, 1900, the parties agreed that the time for making the award should be extended to the 1st December, 1900, and until such further day as the valuators or arbitrators might extend the same. The time was duly extended until the 30th November, 1901, on which day an award was made fixing the value of the buildings. Possession of the land and buildings was given up by the lessees to the lessors on the 31st October, 1900:—Held, Osler, J.A., dubitante, that, supposing the extension of time and delay to have been agreed to for the convenion the value of the buildings from the 31st October, 1900, to the 30th November, 1901, for the first six months at seven per cent and for the remainder of the time at the legal and for the remainder of the first rate of five per cent. In such a case, the lessor has the right permium as best he can and to recover the premium as best he can and to recover the ordinary rates. Bannerman v. Consumers Cordage Co., 23 One. S. C. 441.

Covenant to renew or pay for improvements - Exercise of option to paypossession — Equitable lien — Ejectment —Equitable plea.]—A lease for years prohis option, could renew or pay for improve-ments. When it expired, the lessor notified the lessee that he would not renew, and that he had appointed a valuator of the improvements, requesting her to do the same, which she refused, on the ground that valuable improvements had not been appraised; and, as she refused to give up possession when demanded, the lessor brought ejectment. By her plea to the action the lessee set up the invalidity of the appraisement, and asserted that, as the lessor's option could not be exercised until a valid appraisement had been made, he was not entitled to possession, By a plea on equitable grounds she again set up the invalidity of the appraisement and asked that it be set aside and the lessor ordered to specifically perform the condition in the lease for renewal and for other and further relief: — Held, affirming the judgment in Purdy v. Porter, 38 N. B. R. 465, 5 E. L. R. 350, Idington, J., dissenting, that, though the appraisement was semilisty that fact did not defeat the action of ejectment; that the acts of the lessor in giving notice of intention not to renew, demanding possession, and bringing ejectment, constituted a valid exercise of his option under the lease; and that the lessor was entitled to possession—Held, also, Idington, J., dissenting, that s. 289 of the Supreme Court Act of New Brunswick did not authorise the Court to grant relief to not authorise the Gourt to grant relief to not authorise the world for the defeat and to retain possession, which the plea in this did not do. Ground floor of building-Lease for of heating apparatus-Breach of covenant-Loss of right of renewal-Overholding tenans — Possession — Provide admages — Special damage.]—The plaintiff leased to L. et al. for one year the ground floor of a building. The lease provided for a monthly rent of $275, payable in advance monthly factorily heat, at their own expense, during the term of the lease, the rooms of the upper lat of the building; and also that they would, at their own expense, keep the basement of the premises and all plumbing work in proper sanitary condition. The plaintiff, the lessor, by a clause in the lease, guaranteed that the heating apparatus and the plumbing of the building was in a good working and proper condition and competent for the purposes for which they were in-tended. The lease also contained a clause tended. The lease also contained a clause giving the lessees the right to a renewal of the lease for a further term of one year, "provided always, and these presents are upon this express condition, that, if the said yearly rent hereby reserved . . . shall at any time remain unpaid for a space of 10 days . . . or if a breach or default shall be made in any of the covenants herein contained, by the said lessees, then the covenants herein which relate to a renewal lease for a period of one year on the expira-tion of this lease shall become null and void and of no effect:" and it gave the lessor a right to re-enter after a breach of these covenants. The defendants were the assignees ing, but the defendants took possession of it and used the furnaces there for the purpose of heating the building, with the consent of the lessor. The plaintiff, alleging that the fore the defendants had lost their right to a renewal of the lease, and were overhold-ing after the end of the year, brought this action to recover possession of the demised premises: -Held, that the covenant to heat system, such as it was; that there had been a breach of the covenant; that there had been nothing to constitute a waiver of the breach; and, therefore, the right to a renewal was gone.—Held, therefore, that the plaintiff was entitled to possession, but not pannelli was endtled to possession, but not to double damages, the holding over not be-ing wilful and contumacious, and not to special damage, none having been proven. Payment by lessee — Notice — Laches — Waiver,]—A covenant in a lease that the lessee should pay, in addition to rental, any or work he carries on therein," does not impose on the lessor the obligation to notify the lessee when such extra premiams are cervacted, even though the premises were oc-cupied for a number of years by the same tenant, carrying on the same business, un-der a lease containing the same clause, paid.—Dilatoriness on the part of the lessor and his not making the demand of such extra premiums for several years cannot be construed as a waiver of his right to re-cover them. Lessor and lessee-Covenant to renewwould be entitled to a renewal or payment for their improvements at the option of the latter. Part of the leasehold premises were sold by the lessees to the C. P. Rw. Co., and who gave the required notice for renewal as their portion and remained in possession for some time after the lease expired with no intimation from the lessors that it would be refused. The C. P. Rw. Co, proceeded to expropriate a further strip of the pensation on the basis of the term being renewed:—Held, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeal for Ontario (18 Ont. L. R. 85) that the covenant for renewal could only be enforced for the whole of the lands and not for the part held by appel-lants.—Held, also, that though the lessors by consenting to the assignment to the C. P. ltw. Co, had recognized the existence of some right of renewal which was also assigned, it was the right to renew for a part only. The appellants, therefore, were not entitled to the compensation claimed. Brown Milling Co. v. Can. Pac. Rw. Co. (1910), 30 C. L. T. 335.

Laurin v. Meunier dit Legack, 30 Que. S.

Neglect to deliver premises - Damages. —The obligation to deliver the premises leased at the time agreed upon is of the very essence of a contract of lease, and a resulting from the failure to carry out the obligations of the lease, Davignon v. Chevalier, 8 Que. P. R. 104.

Not to sublet - Equity - Abragation-Receipt of rent from sub-tenant—Estoppet.]

—A clause in a lease prohibiting subletting is always to be strictly observed, and the Court will not consider whether it is equitable or not. It cannot be abrogated unless Oue. S. C. 25.

Not to sublet without leave-Breach all the covenants, etc., and have given six months' notice that they required a further term. While the lease was current it was assigned by the lessees to the two defendants. who were partners, with the written con-sent of the lessor, and before the expiry of the lease one of the defendants, by deed. interest in the lease to his co-defendant, and in exclusive occupation: — Held, that the execution of this deed, followed by the change of possession, constituted a breach of the covenant of the lessees not to assign or sublet, for which the lessor was entitled to enter, and had the effect of putting an end to the right to a renewal provided for by the lease. Varley v. Coppard, L. R. 7 C. P. 505.

Obligations of lessor—Keeping premises in repair — Apparent defects.]—The legal obligation to keep the premises in a condi-tion to serve the purpose for which they have been let, being of the nature but not of the essence of the contract of letting, the lessor may validly stipulate that he shall not be bound to do so .- The lessor incurs of which the lessee was aware at the time of the making of the lease. Rivard v. Pel-

Permitting the lessor to re-letpromicer loand for inadiord's advantage if the lessee weather than, I — The lease beween the parties provided that in case the lessee abandomed the leased premises or any part thereof before the end of the lease, the lessor was free to take possession of them immediately and re-let them in whole or in part for his own advantage by way of damages, without prejudice as to his rights against the lessee for the fulfilment of his obligations and the payment of the rent. The lessee abandoned the premises and the them:—Held. That the clause cited of the lense did not give the lessor the right to receive double rent for the premises, but, on the contrary, he was, and is, obliged to account to the lessee for what he has received or will receive from his new tenant. Richardson v. Leonard & Cote, 16 R. de J. 1953.

Prohibition to sublet.]—Knowledge by a lessor during several months that the leased premises are sub-let in violation of a prohibitive chause, is no bar to an action brought by him against the lessee to have the lease rescinded for such violation. Venner v. Thienel (1909), 36 Que. S. C. 220.

Prostitution — Immoral contract — Knowledge by lessor — Clause providing for re-letting — C. C. 1637.]—A tenant cannot refuse to pay his rent under the pretext that he leases the premises for the purposes of prostitution, unless he prove that the lessor knew that the premises were leased and occupied for such purposes.—A clause in a lease wherein it is stipulated that in case the lessor would have the right to take possession of them and re-let for his own benefit, without prejudice to his right say have been considered to the contract of the provider of the contract of the contr

Quiet enjoyment — Lease for term — Park oxneod by landlords — Company — Charter — Subdivision into lots and streets — Imposition of admission fee — Right of access.] — Under letters patent issued in 1875 incorporating the defendants, power was conferred to acquire a tract of land and to improve, sell, or otherwise dispose of the same in lots, plots, or parcels, as the by-laws might provide, which the defendants did, and by plans duly registered subdivided it into lots with streets or avenues giving access to the lots. By s. 6 of 47 V. c. 83 (O.), the company were authorised to impose and collect an admission fee from any person seeking an entrance into "the premises occupied by the company," and those claiming under them; but such payment was not to prevent the company from excluding or ejecting any person from the premises for disorderly conduct. In 1885, by a leake under the Short Forms Act, the company leased two of the lots for 909 years, subject to the letters patent and the company's by-laws then or thereafter to be enacted, the lease containing a covenant by the lessee, on behalf of herself and her assigns, at all times during the term to observe, keep, and perform all such by-laws. etc., there being also a covenant by the company for quiet enjoyment. In 1889 the lease was assigned to the plaintiff. In 1902 a gate was placed at the entrance to the sons seeking admission to the grounds, un der which the company claimed the right to demand payment thereof from the plainand by-laws were subsequently passed in 1904, 1906, and 1907, raising the amount of the fee:—Held, that the plaintiff, by virtue of the lease, was entitled to the reasonable use of the roads, streets and avenues and, though it was doubtless intended that the lessee personally, if not his lands, should with it the right to impose an admission fee, with the corresponding right to exculde for non-payment, etc.; and that s. 6 of the Act was applicable to those, such as casual to the premises of others, and not to a person such as the lessee who sought an en-trance to the grounds for the purpose of reaching his own premises; Macharen and Meredith, JJ.A., dissenting. Irving v. Grimsby Park Co., 16 O. L. R. 386, 11 O. W. R. 748.

Renew or pay for improvementslien — Ejectment — Defence on equitable grounds — Relief — Incomplete appraise-ment, |—A lease (a renewal of a former lease of the same premises) contained a covenant to renew at the end of the term or pay for improvements "heretofore erected, or which may be hereafter erected or made by the said A. C." (the lessee); be conclusive as to the value. The lessor failing to agree, appointed a third. The three met, and the appraisers of the plaintiff and the third chosen agreed on the sum of $2,500 as the value of the improvements, which sum the plaintiff tendered and the the plaintiff brought ejectment. At the trial, titled to compensation had not been conment was not full and complete. In addition to denying the plaintiff's title, the defendant, by plea, asserted the right to hold possession on equitable grounds, asked to have the award set aside, and a renewal lease decreed to be executed:—Held, that the lease neither expressly nor impliedly on or set Por B pari tena ant tena perciena

Specific performance by lessor—Right to sue for a reduction of rontal.]—The right of the lessee to sue for specific performance, under s, 1 of Art. 1641 C. C., applies only, as stated therein, to repairs and ameliorations stipulated in the lease, or which the lessor is bound by law to make; it does not extend to the erection of works (especially outside the premises leased), required to procure a covenanted state of things. Hence, an undertaking in a lease by a lessor to heat the premises conceablement et confortablement, does not give the lessee a right of action to compel the lessor to build a furnace, for that purpose, in a cellar under the leased premises. Failure by the lessor to carry out the above agreement does not give the lesse a right of action to have a different lessor rental substituted to that agreed upon in the lease. Lepointe v. Vinecut (1969), 35

Sub-letting forbidden without consent in writing of lessor — Verbal consent — Proof — Verbal acknowledgment of lessor — Plaintiff in action to received — Tacit consent to sub-lessee, |—A clause in a lease forbidding sub-letting without the written consent of the lessor is not so indexible that a verbal consent cannot be given to the lessee, so that in an action brought to set aside the less by the granter die grantor may plead that he has never admitted him as a tenant. Acceleration clause in lease—Distress for three months' rent in advance—Gircumstances not justifying acceleration—Distraining goods of third person on premises—Wroneful distress—Right of third person to doubtle danges under 2 W. & M., sexs. I, c. 5. s. 5—Liability of landlord and builifi, 1—A lease of a shop by the defendants H. to L. for one year from the 7th January, 1900. contained a covenant by L, that he would not assign or sublet without leave; and any of the goods and chattels of the lessee should be at any time taken in execution or attachment by creditors of the lessee, or if the lessee should make any assignment for the benefit of creditors, or become bankrupt, or attempt to abandon the premises, or so that there would not in the event of such sale or disposal, be, in the opinion of the lessors, a sufficient distress on the premises for the then accruing rent, then the current month's rent, together with the rent for the succeeding 3 months next accruing, should immediately become due and payable, and the term should, at the option of the lessors, forthwith become forfeited and deter-There was also a proviso for reor non-performance of covenants or seizure or forfeiture of the term for any cause aforesaid; and a provision that the word "lessee should include the heirs, executors, and administrators of the lessee, and also, if the the lessors, should include the assigns of the lessee. After two months L. sold his busi-ness, stock, and good-will to the plaintiff, and placed him in possession of the demised tiff continued to occupy the premises, paying rent to the defendants H.; he was not an assignee under the terms of the lease, as ment; there was no forfeiture or deter-mination of the lease because of any sup-posed subdemise. The rent was payable been paid, on the 17th May a distress war-rant for the amount thereof, $35, was signed by the defendant W. O. The defendants justified under the covenant in the lease to L .. alleging that the seizure under the warrant for the $35 and another seizure under a that the lessee had attempted to abandon the premises, and attempted to dispose of his goods, etc. The goods seized were the -Held, that the covenant in the lease did not justify the distress; that putting the plaintiff into possession of the premises was that the sale of the business as a going concern, and without any indication of intention to withdraw the property from the reach of the landlords, did not come within the covenant; and, at any rate, the defendants H. had never formed an opinion, as required by the covenant, the only cause of the distress for $105 being the non-payment of $35 on the 7th May.—Held, also, that, as the goods of the plaintiff had been seized, he came within the statute 2 W. & M., sess. 1, ch. 5, sec. 5, and was entitled to recover double the value of the goods seized; and damages were assessed on that basis; and judgment given therefor against the defendants H. and the defendant W., the bailiff, Choderker v. Harrison (1910), 15 W. L. R. 687, Man L. R.

Action for — Abandonment of part of claim—Amendment — Desistment - Resists sion of lease.]—Where a plaintiff renounces a part of the conclusions of his action, and amends accordingly, such proceeding on his part is in reality a desistment and must be treated as such.—2. An action for a resistion of a lease is of a different nature from an action for rent, and a plaintiff who sat tires samply chained a certain amount of the object of asking the recission of the lease, because such amendment would change the nature of his action. Lachance v. Desbiens, 23 Que. S.C. 524.

Action for — Defence—Disturbance of possession.1—A tenant being sued for rear may plead that he has not had the peaceable enjoyment of the demised premises, or that he has only a part enjoyment. Symod of Diocese of Montreal v. Kelly, 20 Que. S. C. 19.

Action for — Defences—Eviction—Entry by landlord to protect property — Demised premises becoming uninhabitable. Harrod v. Watt (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 216.

Action for - Mortgagee in possession-Executor de son tort.)—The defendant and her husband resided in a house which he rented from the plaintiff, the rent being At his decease some rent to another house. She was about to take widow paid the funeral expenses, over $50. $200. The lease expired on the 1st May, from September, 1899, to the 1st May, 1900, that the plaintiff brought this action. Before mortgaged by the plaintiff to a company, action standing on the premises for $2,300. The company on the 27th July, 1899, took future rent to them, which he did. The disand the property was still at the date of the action in the possession of the company, who, as mortgagees, were receiving the rents: - Held, that the company, having entered into possession by collecting and receiving the rents of the premises, alone had the legal right, as mortgagees, to take them, or to bring an action for the rents due; and the plaintiff could not therefore recover in this action, Morrison v. Jackson, 21 C. L. T. 85.

Action for—Time for bringing.]—When a gale of rent is payable on a day certain, a the tenant has the whole day to pay, and an action begun on that day is premature. Robert v, Gagnon, 10 Que. K. B. 237.

Attachment for rent — Rent due—Beacht of the term—Leaves's intention to remore effects—C. P. 952, C. C. 1989. — The dies ad quen, the day upon which something is due or nayable, belongs whelly to the debtor, and he has the whole of that day to discharge his indebtedness.—Thus, if rent is due on the lat September, the lesses has the whole of that day to pay it; the landlord cannot issue an attachment for rent on that day even though the tennat may have refused tennatis intention to remove his effects does not deprive him of the benefit of the term.
Decary v. Poulis (1910), 12 Que. P. R. 211.

Attachment for rent.]—When movable effects garnishing the leased premises are frauddlently and secretly removed and are acquired by a third person, the delay within which to attach them by recaption only commences to run from the date upon which the indudrd is made aware of their removal. But he should attach them within the next following eight days, otherwise, that delay having expired, he is deprived of his privilege and all recourse against the third person in possession of such effects. Lallemand v. Larue (1910), 39 Que, S. C. 218.

Attachment for rent and damages— Destinent as to damages.]—There is nothing to prevent the plaintiff in an attachment of goods for rent and damages from abandoning the claim for damages, and such desistment will not be rejected on motion. Ourley v. Poulin, 4 Que. P. R. 109.

Bonus for improvements — Rent by anticipation — Cancellation of lease — Recovery of house — Commercial establishment — Civil contract.]—A sum of $300 paid by the tenant to the landlord as a house for improvements made to the demissed premises, is equivalent to an additional rent paid by anticipation. 2. If the lease is afterwards by a judgment, cancelled at the suit of the tenant, for default of the landlord to make repairs which it is his duty to make, the latter will be ordered to pay back such hours in the same way as any other rent paid by anticipation. 3. The letting of an immovable for a commercial establishment is a purely civil contract. Cote v. Cantin, 21 Que. S. C. 432.

Claim to goods — Notice to landlord -Service — Proof.]—A bailiff is not empowered to serve upon a landlord the noticerequired by law to be given him by the owner of clattels in order to deprive the landlord of his right to a lieu upon goods on the premises demised; and the bailiff's certificate alone is not sufficient evidence of the notice required by law in such cases. Duperreault V. Pausé, 25 Que. 8, C. 401.

Claimant of goods seized—Formal defects in sciure — Purchase of goods from tenant,] — The plaintif, being the defendant's landlord, seized under a writ of saistgageric goods which the defendant had removed from the demised premises. These goods were claimed by an intervenant:— Held, that he could not rely upon defects of form which the defendant had neglected to invoke within the time allowed; if the seizure was regular as against the defendant, it must be held regular as against the intervenant.—2. The intervenant, the purchase refrom the defendant of the goods seized, refrom the defendant of the goods seized, landlord; the tenant could not by selling the goods deprive the landlord of the privilege nequired before the sale. Wilson v. Metzog, 2 Que P. R. 440. Gommon wall—Teering down—Lessee—
Damages — Warranty — C. C. 1818.1—A sub-tenant whose dwelling is made uninhabitable by the tearing down of a common wall has the right to be released from his rent from the date upon which he was obliged to vacate the premises. When a lessee to suit his own convenience persists to remain in an uninhabitable house, it cannot be considered as acquiescence on his part in the state of affairs nor a renunciation of his right to take advantage of the uninhabitable condition of the premises if he deems proper to do so. When, for the foregoing reasons, the lessee's action against the sub-tenant for rent field dishibition of the premises of the call the rent lessee may be adjudged to pay him, besides what he receives from the subtenant, but he has no such action in warranty if the rent received from the subtenant exceeds the rent payable by such lessee, and in this way covers the amount representing the diminution in rent obtained by the sub-tenant. Lanctot v. De Boeck &
Latreille, 16 R. L. N. S. 195.

Default in payment of rent—Proviso for re-entry — Fortietive — Waiver — Pleading — Demurrer.]—A plea in an action of trespass by a tenant against his landlord alleging that it became lawful under a proviso in the lease for the landlord to reenter for non-payment of rent, without setting out the proviso, is bad on denurrer, as stating a conclusion of law—A landlord can not, during the currency of the lease and for non-payment of rent for which he has distrained on goods and chattles still held by him under the distress. Distress for rent—Goods of sub-tenant
— Replevin — Forfeiture of rent — Proof of breach of covenant—Cross-examination of landlord.]—In an action of replevin by a sublessee against the lessor for goods taken by the lessor under a distress for rent, the plaintiff is entitled to prove, on cross-examination of the lessor, that there had been a breach of a covenant in the less which forfeited the rent claimed.—A sub-lessee in such an action is entitled to the benefit of a covenant in the lease which forfeits the rent as a penalty for a breach, though there has been no assignment of the lease in writing. Rinquette v. Hebert, 37 N. B. R. 63.

Evidence—Hypothec—Nature of action.)—
The hypothec security of a certain rente cannot be extended beyond the limits of the piece of ground described in the deed constituting that rent.—2. No hypothec can result from any alleged verbal contract to pay an annual rent forever cannot be proved by mere parel testimony.—4. If the ground occupied is greater than that described in the deed constituting the rent, the action should be to compel the defendant to restrict his possession to the limits expressed in the deed, and to obtain a "quantum meruit" sum as the value of the past use and occupation of the excess. Bourk v. Cormier, 16 Que, S. C. 225.

Excessive rent—Device to protect tenant
—Seizure of tenant's goods under execution
—Ulaim by bank under lease—Interpleader.]

—Where the rent fixed by the document creating a tenancy is so excessive that a Court might come to the conclusion that it was never intended to create a real tenancy, but that the provision reserving rent was a mere device to enable the landlord to obtain an additional security on chattels which would otherwise be available to creditors, such provision, and the distress levied under it, are invalid.—Fig. p. dackson, in re Bouce, 14 Ch. Debted to a bank, in $5,200, transferred to the bank all bis interest in certain lands, and the bank made a lease of the lands to the defendant at an annual rental of $8,000. Under the execution of the plaintiffs against the defendant, the Sheriff seized the crop upon the land, and the bank chimed the crop upon the land, and the bank chimed the crop upon the land, and the bank chimed the crop upon the land, and the bank chimed the crop upon the land, and the bank chimed the crop upon the land, so the lease. The evidence shewed that a fair annual rental for the land would be $2,000 - Held, in interpleader, that the tenancy was not a bone file many control to the defendant and prefer the bank; and, therefore, the claim of the bank to the crop should be barred. Waterous Engine Works v. Wells (1911), 16 W. L. R. 274, Sask L. R.

Exemptions—Goods of bolder — Notice.]
—Goods declared exempt by law belonging to a person who lives with the tenant of a house cannot be seized for the rent by the landlord, with those of the tenant, the latter having by his lense renounced the privilege conferred by law as to exemptions from scizure—2. A notice to the landlord in such case is not necessary; it is necessary only in a case where the lodger has upon the premises goods which are not exempt. Notin
v. Ratté, IT Que. S. C. 182.

Exemptions — Machine.] — A machine which a workman keeps habitually going as a means of gaining his livelihood, is exempt from seizure under distress for rent, according to Art. 598, para, 10, C. P. Thurston v. Hughes, 16 Que. S. C. 472.

of the debtor. New York Die Ins. Co. v.
Garceau, 18 Que S. C. 241.

Expired lease — Renewal — Sufficiency of goods — Pleading — Jurisdiction — Superior Court.]—The landlord's privilege in respect of goods upon the demised premises may be exercised even in respect of rent due by virtue of a lease which has expired.

— The allegation that the defendant has unflicient goods is an allegation of fact, which may not be pleaded in a defence in the state of the state o

Fault of another tenant.]—The owner of a house is not responsible for the damage which the tenant of the cellar suffers by reason of the infiltration of water escaped from a supply pipe broken by the fault of the tenant of the storey above the cellar, these damages resulting from a plain invasion of the enjoyment of the tenant of the cellar, which makes Art. 1616, C. C., applicable. Beaulieu v. Beaudry, 16 Que. S. C. 475.

Goods fraudulently removed—No rent is arrear—Heard distress—Bill of sele—Damages.]—Goods fraudulently or clandestinely removed to avoid distress can not be seized under distress if there is no rent in arrear. Host v, Stockton, 13 N. B. R. 60, considered.—In an action for an illegal distress the plantiffs are entitled to recover the value of the goods sold, although they are subject to a bill of sale by way of mortisely are subject to a bill of sale by way of mortisely are subject to a bill of sale by the plaintiffs have med to be subject to a bill of sale by the plaintiffs have med defendant specifies the plaintiffs, which goods the defendant way, gives the defendant the right to demand the return of the proceeds by way of damages, Clark v, Green, 1 E. L. R. 552, 37 N. B. R. 525.

Goods of stranger and of tenant.]— A landlord, having distrained on property found on premises occupied by his tenant, is not bound first to sell all the property of a third person found on the demised premises. Notes of other cases relating to distristic, Miller Bros. v. Twohey, 40 N. S. R. 424. See, also, Gunning v. Sutherland, 4b, 425n; Williamson v. Andrews, 426n.

Goods of tenant — Refusal to delice from the defendants until the 1st May. On the the defendants until the 1st May, On the LSt Marche he notified the defendants that is abandoned the office from that day, and engaged to pay $85, the amount due up to that day, on the 2nd April. At the end of Marche plaintif claimed his goods left in the office, which the defendants refused to give up :—Held, that the defendants had be right to retain the goods of the plaintiff until payment of the $35. This principle was a result of the right to follow which expressly belongs to a landlord. The goods are his piedge, and he cannot be forced to part with them until the sum for payment of which they are security has been paid. Mcteoy v. 48c chants Bank of Halfiags. 3 Que. P. E. 48c chants Bank of Halfiags.

Goods of third party — Exemptions—Claim by third party, —A landlord has no right to seize the chattels of a third person found on the demised premises, which are exempt from seizure, or those which should be left to the debtor at his election; and, as the law does not make any distinction of persons, this choice may be exercised as well by the third party interested as owner of such chattels, as by the debtor himself, Bathism v, Potxin, 27 Onc. S. C. 165.

Goods of third person—Claim—Natice —Opposition, 1—The landlord's lien for his rent upon the goods which are on the demissed premises extends to those which belong to a third person, and an opposition made by such third person to a seizure for rent which is based solely upon his right of property, and not upon a notice given to the landlord before seizure, will be dismissed as frivolous and ill-founded. Quebec Bank v. Tozer, 4
Que, P. R. 131.

Goods of third person-Claim-Notice to landlord - Description of goods-Intervention-Costs. ]-A third party, the owner of goods in the possession of a tenant, who wishes to take advantage of the provisions of Art. 1622, C. Ground rent-Arrears-Movable or immovable-Promise to pay - Acceptance.]-A ground rent established before the coming A ground rent established before the coming into force of the Civil Code, even if it were immovable under the law as it existed at the time the rent was settled, has become mov-able by the operation of the Code, under the able by the operation of the Code, under the provisions of which it is convertible into money, and redecmable, and consequently movable: Arts, 388, 389, 390, 391, C. C.—2. Where there is a personal promise by the purchaser to pay the rent to the vendor at parenaser to pay the refit to the vendor at a given date each year, there is a personal liability to pay the amount so soon as the time has elapsed, and the arrears are movable.—3. Acceptance of such promise, by the person by whom the rent was created, is sufficiently established by the fact that he received payments and gave receipts to the purchasers in their own names, and entered them in his books as owing the amount. Laviolette v. Toupin, 21 Que. S. C. 538.

Action dismissed with costs. Blanshard v. Bishop (1911), 19 O. W. R. 28. 2 O. W. N. 996.

Illegal distress — Abandonment—Agreement to suspend right — Violation — Trespass.]—Under a distress for rent issued on the 12th March the defendant took possession of the plaintiff's store and evicted him, On the 13th March, discovering that the distress was illegal, he induced the plaintiff to go to the store with his attorney and the bailiff him that the distress was illegal, and a new ene would have to be made, and they then handed him the key of the store and an in-ventory of the goods distrained, and tendered him $17 as damages for the eviction. The bailiff immediately informed him that he had they left the store. In an action for illegal distress, it was not left to the jury to say whether there had been an abandonment of the distress under the first warrant, but they found, in answer to a question, that the bailiff warrant gave up the possession and control of the goods under the first:—Held, that it should have been specifically left to the jury to say whether what took place, and what was done on the discovery of the mistake made on executing the warrant, and making the distress after sunset, was done with the intention of abandoning the distress. Per McLeod, J., that the evidence and the answers of the jury to the questions submitted shewed that the defendant at the time the second warrant was issued had the goods in his possession by virtue of an illegal warrant. warrant had issued. Where an agreement was made between the plaintiff and the defendant that if the plaintiff would pay the rent on the 1st April and give up the premises so that the defendant could have the month so that the decement could have the month of making repairs for a new tenant coming in on the 1st May, he, the plaintif, would not distrain for the rent until after default on the 1st April:—Held, that the agreement to distrain, and, if the defendant in violation of it distrained, he would render himself a trespasser. Intervenant who claims ownership of goods attached for reat and against whom plaintiff, although acknowledging such right of property, sets up the privilege to which they are subject as being on the lensed premises, and who proves neither notice to plaintiff nor "knowledge acquired" on the latter's part, under provisions of Art, 1622 C. C., has no right to a declaration of ownership in his favour in a judgment dismissing the intervention. He will be also condemned to pay costs without any reduction therein, even if the amount for which his movable effects are declared to be subject to said privilege is established by the Court at a sum less that that for which the attachment for rent was issued. Gosselin v. Morin & Ethier (1910), 38 Que. S. C. 385.

Judgment for costs—Priority.]—On a landord silters upon the goods of a tenant the costs of an action brought by the tenant, which has been dismissed, are costs "de justice," and ought to be ranked as such par privilege, by virtue of Art. 1994, C. C. Roberge v. Loper, 27 Que. S. C. 32.

Defendant having assigned the agreement for purchase to M., applied for leave to amend his counter-claim, so as to claim amount going to plain-tiff, defendant being surety to M., or to have payment made to M. Leave refused, M. had also served notice of cancellation of the agreement, Sutton v. Hinch (1900), 12 W. L. R. 500.

Lease of hotel by executors—Effect of one not joining—Provise for reasonable rent in certain event — Reference,! — Action to have declared amount of rent payable for an hotel. Two of the three executors and trustees along with the beneficial owner executed the lease, which is therefore valid during the latter's life. The lease contained a clause providing for a rebate in the rent, if any prohibitory law passed. A local option by law had been passed, and then S Edw. VII. c. 54. s. 11, was enacted:—Held, planitif, the tenant, is entitled to a rebate, with a reference to ascertain same. Hessey v. Quinn, 13 0, W. R. 907, 18 O. L. R. 487.

Lease of part of building—Damos to root by storm—Injury to tround's goods—Obligation to repair.]—The plaintiff was tenant under the defendant of the "dwelling portion" of a building, the remainder of which was occupied by the defendant as a shop. During a storm a skylight was blown from a neighbouring building and single the troof of the defendant's building and single the troof of the defendant's building and injured it. The plaintiff notified the defendant, who gave an order on a builder for the requir of the roof, but before this could be done the weather conditions became such that the repairs could not be effected, and, later on, water from rain and from the melting of a heavy accumulation of snow on the roof, came through and damaged the plaintiff; came through and damaged the plaintiff came through the consistent of the property:—Held, that the defendant was under no obligation to repair the roof which would make him responsible in damages, and that his promise to have the injuries made good was without consideration to support it and was not binding. Betcher v. Hagell, 28 N. S. R. 517, 1 E. L. R. 20.

Lessor boarding with lessee.]—Action for board. Defendant contended that plaintiff agreed to accept the supplies in the house in payment of board:—Held, that defendant's statement correct. Finley v. Miller, 7 E. L. R. 103.

Lodger's goods — Action for damages—Pleading—Cause of action,! — In an action for damages for the alleged wrongful distress of a piane, the property of the plaintiff, the statement of claim set out that the plaintiff was a lodger; that her property was seized and illegally removed, for which she claimed compensation under the provisions of R. S. N. S. e. 172, s. 15, that the property seized and removed was only returned under order of the Judge of a County Court:—Held, per Townshend, J., that, as the whole of s. 15 was necessarily made a part of the statement of chian, its provisions, read in connection with the other facts alleged, disclosed a good cause the country of th

Notice provided for by Art. 1622 C.

To withdraw the goods of a third person from the landlord's privilege, should be in writing, but the proof of the "knowledge acquired" by the landlord of the property rights of third person, referred to in the same article, may be made by witnesses. In either case, the notice and the "knowledge acquired" must refer to definite movable effects and distinct from the others. Outnet V. Heirs of Greene & Willis, 37 Que, S. C. 130, followed. Gosselin v. Morin & Ethier (1910), 28 Que, S. C. 355.

Payment in kind—Act of bailift, I—Act there for the marks default under a lesse providing that in the continuous problems are supported by the continuous problems and the when the continuous properties are supported by the continuous and the when the continuous problems are supported by the continuous and the problems are soon as it should be threshed, and that the landlord should be threshed, and that the landlord should be lit and pread on the problems as soon as it should be lit and pread on the problems are soon as the should be lit and pread on the continuous problems. As so, and Novery v. Connolly, 20 U. C. R. (39, followed. The distress in this case was made more than six months after, but under a warrant given to the bailiff four weeks before the expiration of the tenancy, and there was no direct evidence that the landlord was aware of the library and the learned of the fact of science he did; but he learned of the fact of science he did; but he learned of the fact of science which he allowed not and without making any equity, so far as the evidence shewed, and afterwards accepted the proceeds of the set—Held, that the proper finding of fact was that the landlord either ratified the bail its illegal act with knowledge of the circumstants.

cumsiances, or meant to take upon himself without enquiry the risk of any irregularity the bailiff might have committed, and to adopt the bailiff might have committed, and to adopt all the bailiffs acts; and, following Lewis V. Ricad, 13 M. & W. Si3, that the landlerd was liable for the damages suffered by the tenant, Dick v. Winkler, 19 C. L. T. 330, Man. L. R. G24.

Probabition to sub-let—Jamages subjected by sub-tenart throws fourt of principal tensor—Leeponsibility of uniford principal tensor—Leeponsibility of uniford towards to be sub-lettered to the sub-lettered towards to be sub-lettered to the sub-lettered to the tool should be kept clear of snow by the lesser and that the lesser could not sub-let without the consent of the bessor. A part of the building was sub-let without the lessor's consent, and the sub-tenant sub-let to another, also without the consent of the lessor. The roof having collapsed from the weight of snow upon it, the tenant of the sublemant sued the principal lessor to recover damages to his goods caused by the collapse, alleging that it was free from any contractual relation to the defendant (the principal lessor), and that it could recover damages from him irrespective of his lense with the principal lesses—Held, confirming the judgment of the Superior Court by which the action had been disabised, that the plaintiff had derived its title from the principal lesser and could have no greater right than the latter against the principal lessor, Brantford Carriage Co, v. Ecans, 16 R. d. d. J. 210.

Promissory note for rent—Suspension of remedy — Accommodation—Burden of proof.]—Where a promissory note was given and accepted for rent due:—Hebl, that the landlord's remedy by distress was suspended during the currency of the note. Per Meacher, J., that the burden of shewing that the note was given for his accommodation, and not for the rent, was upon the defendant by whom the defence was set up. Colpitts v. McCallongh, 32 N. S. R. 502.

Reduction of rent—Repairs to be made by tenant — Obligation of landlord to repair occarelly—Roweledge by tenant of condition of premises.1—A clause in a lease whereby the bennal, in consideration of a reduction in the rent, undertakes to make repairs to the inside of the premises, must be interpreted strictly and against the landlord. Such an undertaking will not dispense the landlord from the obligation imposed on him by law to make gross repairs and to maintain the demised premises in a habitable state and fit for the purpose for which they were let. —The knowledge of the tenant of the lad condition of the premises at the time of letting cannot be set up as a defence to the demand for such repairs as the landlord is bound to make, O'Comor v, Flint, 23 Que, S. C. 491.

Removal of goods — Foliowing—Replic vin—Theore—Depositary.)—The privilege of the landlord ceases after the lapse of S. days from the senoral of goods from demised privations being the owner where the tenperature being the owner of such goods, has piedged them to the landlord; and the true owner may replevy them from the landlord. —2 In this case a merchant with whom the goods had been deposited was to be considered

Removal of goods - Fraud - Illegal distress - Pretended sale-Title to goods-Counterclaim-New trial.] - A landlord is not justified in distraining goods which had been removed off the demised premises before the rent accrued due, though had the rent been due the removal would have been fraudulent; and the tenant is not precluded from setting up his title to the goods because of a pretended sale of them, the effect of which was to vest the possession, but not the property in the goods, in the alleged purchaser. To an action for illegal distress brought in a County Court the defendant counterclaimed for rent due, but such counterclaim not having been tried, the action was remitted back to the County Court, to be there dealt with, and regard there to be had to the finding of this Court upon the rights of the parties. Whitelock v. Cook, 20 C. L. T. 171, 31 O.

Renewal lease — Arbitration.]—An appeal from an award was dismissed, the Court not being able to say that the arbitrator was wrong in not providing for the reimbursement in whole or in part of the lessee for the buildings on the lease, It is not improper in fixing a rental to take into consideration the potential value of the property, Re Denison v. Foster, 12 O. W. R. 1006, 1102, 18 O. L. R. 478.

Seizing the effects of third party—Opposition—Notice to the landlord—Proof.]—No special form is prescribed as to the manner of warning a landlord that a chattel placed on the denised premises does not belong to the tenant. It is sufficient if the bailor has been warned in sufficient time that this chattel belongs to a third party. The knowledge of the landlord himself that the notification of the right to property which is mentioned in s. 1822 C. C., is simple facts, proof of which may be made by any manner of proof, not only in obtaining a written achnowledgment of the bailor, but by oral testimony and even presumptions. Outmet v. Seinre under execution — Interpleader, — Where goods are seized under execution on leasehold premises and are claimed by a third party, who extablishes his title thereto, the S Anne c. 14 does not entitle the landlord to be paid rent by the sheriff. Where, however, goods seized by the sheriff were claimed by a third party, and under an interpleader order were sold and the proceeds paid into Court pending the trial of an issue as to the ownership of the goods, and the trial of a second issue had been directed between the landlord and the execution credition as to the landlord's right to the rent claimed and the claimants in the first issue consented to the landlord's claim being satisconsented to the landlord's claim being satisisure, the landlord was held entitled to be paid out of the fund in Court the arrears of rent not exceeding one year's rent, without awaiting the decision of the issue as to the ownership of the goods. Robinson v. McInton, 4 Terr, L., R. 102.

Sublease—Right of lessee against sublessee—Reversion by estoppel—Payment of real.]—The common law right of distress for reat in arrear can only be exercised by the owner of the reversion, which must be vested in him at the time of the distress.—Staveley **, Alloeek. 16 Q. P. 554, 1452—Advocates' tariff, No. 10.1—In an action for the cancellation of a lease, the consideration price of which is $252 a year, the fact that no rent is asked, but only $50 damages, does not prevent the class of the action to be regulated by the value of rentals for the year during which the action was taken, i.e., in the present case, of the third class. If Court fees have been paid as in a fourth-class action, the winning party will be ordered to affix in the various proceedings field by him such increase of stamps as the tariff requires, Gilbert v. Boscen (1990), 10 que. P. R. 358.

Tenant may maintain an action against his landlord, for damages suffered by the collapse of a building, from defects in construction on two crounds; (1) for breach of covenant for quite enjoyment, and (2) under Ari, 1055 C. C. Ender (1) the landlord owes damages which were or could have been foreseen at the time the lease was signed under Art, 1074 C. C., and under (2) he owes damages which are immediately or directly caused by the collapse, provided the action is brought within two years. The action may be based on both grounds simultaneously or upon either of them. Cranger V. Muir (1989), 38 Que, S. C. 68.

4. Fixtures.

Building erected by lessee — Right to remove — Sale of land by licitation — Claim of purchaser to building — Right of action by lessee, !—A building erected by the lessee of a lot of land under an agreement with the lesser by which he has the right to remove it at the expiration of the lanes, does not become a part of the lot. A sale by Ricitation of the latter, even though described in the proceedings as "a lot, etc., with the building thereon," does not pass the ownership of the one so erected to the purchaser, and the lessee has an action to recover its value from him. Gaudet v. Marsand itt Lepierre, 33 Que. 8. C. 37.

Chattels left on premises by tenant—Abandonment — Fixtures — Delime—Bond fide helief in right to retain possession — Double the yearly value of premises—Breach of covenant to repair — Taxes — Judgment in previous action — Reasons for — Evidence, Dundas v, Osment (N.W.T.), 4 W. Expiry of term — Ejectment—Right to remove machinery—Trade fixtures—Wooden buildings — Compensation for buildings not removed—Provisions of lease. Carturight v. Herring, 3 O, W. R. 511.

Hay cut by lessee of farm—Substances intended for manure.]—Hay cut on a farm by lessee is movable property and belongs to him; it is not a "substance intended for manure," and in no wise immovable by destination. Masse v. Chaticr (1910), 38 Que. 8 C 278.

Heating apparatus put in by tenant —Annexation to freehold—Surrender of lease —Acceptance of new lease — Waste, |—The defendants leased premises from the plaintiffs and put hot water apparatus in the Before the lease expired, a dispute arose which resulted in the defendants surrendering their lease and executing a new one. Subsequently the defendants sublet the premises and removed 'he heating apparatus: -Held, that, as the defendants had not removed the heating apparatus when they surrendered the first lease, the apparatus became by virtue of the surrender the property of the plaintiffs; and the defendants in accepting a new lease with this apparatus in the building, had thereby recognised the plainbe maintained during the currency of a lease for the purpose of determining whether the removal of articles annexed to the freehold is warranted.-Heating apparatus put in by the tenant should be regarded as a permanent portion of the building and not a removable fixture. Cullen v. McPherson, 40 N. S. R.

Rights of landlord over fixtures in the demised premises, —The lessor who in the exercise of his right of pledge seizes and solls the fixtures of the demised premises and having bought them at the sale sells them to a third party who leaves them on the premises, does not retain his right to seize these fixtures for rent falling due after the sale. Therefore, he cannot seize them in a suit against the tenant, and the buyer has a right to replevin to contest and annul a seizure brought about in this way. Pontbriand Co. v. Fieng, 36 Que. S. C. 25.

Temporary structure erected by tenant — Removal—Oral agreement with landlord — Sale of revision. Butterworth v. Ketchum, 3 O. W. R. 844.

Vault doors placed by tenant on demised premises — Annexation to freehold —Removal — Waste—Damages.] — In 1886 the landlord of the defendants constructed a vault in the premises occupied by them, the defendants supplying a steel lining and a bank vault door. On the 1st April, 1890, the defendants leased another portion of the same building from the same landlord for 10 years from that date, a vault being built there by the landlord, and the defendants bringing to it the same door. The lease was made in pursuance of the then Short Forms of Leases Act, and contained no reference to fixtures, but had the covenants by the tenant to repair and leave in good repair. During the currency of the lease the landlord sold and conveyed the premises. On the 10th November, 1899, the defendants obtained a new lease from the owner for 5 years from the 1st April, 1890, made pursuant to the statute, which contained the clause "provided that the lessee may remove his fix-tures." On the 10th November, 1904, the owner granted the defendants another lease, made in pursuance of the statute, for 18 months from the 1st April, 1905, with the same clause as to fixtures, and during its currency the defendants removed the door :-Held, that under the above provisoes the defendants were not restricted in their right of removal to those fixtures placed subsequent to the dates of the last two demises, and that they were entitled to remove the door. Crank-hite v, Imperial Bank, S.O., W. R. 18, 9 O. W. R. 326, 14 O. L. R. 270.

5. INJURY TO TENANT.

Governant not to sublet—Herach—Damages of sub-tenant — Demand for improbations of the control of Defects in demised premises — Linbility.]—Where the tenant suffers personal injuries resulting from the giving way of a portion of the structure leased, the fault is not contractual but delictual, and the lessor is responsible therefor without having been put in default, even where the defect was not apparent, and was unknown to either proprietor or tenant. Vineberg v. Foster. 24 Que. S. C. 258.

Defects in premises — Apparent defects, —A landlord is not responsible to his tenant for damages for injuries sustained on account of defects in the denised premises which were apparent and existed at the time of the execution of the lease. Cartier v. Durocher. 22 Que. S. C. 255.

Demise of part of building - Defertive condition of other part, 1-The plaintiff was tenant of a store on the ground floor of a building owned by the defendant, and such for damages to her goods caused by rain of the building. The water, flowing over the first beautiful to the second floor of the building. The water, flowing over the building. the ceiling, and caused plaster to fall which damaged the plaintiff's goods. The defect complained of existed at the time of the demise to the plaintiff :- Held, following Hummase to the pinnini:—Hea, tollowing Humphrey v, Wait, 22 C. P., S89; Collebeck v, Girdlers' Co., 1 Q. B. D. 234, and Carstairs v, Taylor, L. R. 6 Ex. 217, that the defendant was not liable. Miller v. Hancock, [1893] 2 Q. B. 177, distinguished. A ten ant taking part of a building, in other parts of which are defects likely to result in damage to him, should examine the premises and contract for the removal of such defects as are apparent, otherwise he will have no remedy afterwards against the landlord for damages caused by such defects. Rogers v. Sorell. 23 C. L. T. 247, 14 Man. L. R. 450.

Disturbance of enjoyment—Escape of seater from adjoining premises, 1—A landlord is liable to his tenant for injuries done to tenant's goods arising from the fact of thieves having entered an adjoining dwelling thouse belonging to the landlord and there upset a cistern, which caused water to escape into the house leased to the tenant, such act not being a simple trespass committed by a third person, within the meaning of Art.

Disturbance of tenant's enjoyment-Wrongful acts of neighbour — Liability of landlord.]—A lessor is liable for a disturbance in the enjoyment of his lessee arising ance in the enjoyment of his lessee arising from the acts of a neighbour performed in the exercise of his proprietary rights. So, when the owner of property contiguous to the leased premises builds a mitogen wall, and in doing so cuts off means of access to them, shuts off light openings, and by sinking foundations puts a strain on the frame-work of the building, opening cracks and fissures therein through which rain gets in, the lessor who allows the performance of such acts, becomes liable to a reduction of rental pro-portionate to the loss of enjoyment of the lessee, and further to pay damages for deteri-

1616, C.C., but a substantive act which modified the enjoyment in a manner prejudicial to the tenant. Brisker v. Larue, 23 Que. S. C.

Disturbance of tenant's possession— Trouble de droit—Trespass—Crown lands.]—The cutting of hay, and hunting, upon leased property, by a third party not pretending to have any right upon the property which he cut hay and hunted was not part of the property leased, is not a trouble de droit, but a mere trespass, against which, in the terms of Art, 1616, C.C., the lessor is not obliged to warrant the lessee.—2. The pretension of a third party that he had acquired a right by prescription to cut hay on the leased property, which pretension was never brought to the notice of the Crown, lessor, by a legal proceeding or otherwise, and which was manifestly untenable as regards property of the Crown, would not constitute a trouble de droit under Art. 616, C.C. lessee, and further to pay damages for deterroration of his goods. Judgment in Saint-Onge V. Gauthier, 27 Que. S. C. 232, affirmed. Gauthier v. Saint-Onge, 15 Que. K. B. 264.

From civic corporation-Foreshore or water lots-Damaging erections-Legislative authority - Injunctions. |-Plaintiff leased a authority — Influctions, — Finith leased a water lot from the city of St. John on which a wharf had been erected. Defendants leased an adjoining water lot, and plaintiffs now ing with the building of a wharf thereon:-Held, that plaintiffs were entitled to an injunction restraining defendants from obstructing their access to their wharf. The right of ng diefr access to their wharf. The right of access to one's property by water or by land is governed by the same principle. Seely V. Kerr, 7 E. L. R. 123, 4 N. B. Eq. 184, 261.

Lease - Repairs - Part destruction of premises-Rent during reconstruction - Collapse-Hidden defects-Liability.]-A clause in a lease "that indispensable repairs shall be performed without reduction of rent, damages, or compensation," does not apply to the reconstruction of the premises leased, when partly destroyed so as to render them unfit for the purposes of the lease and to compel the lessee to vacate them. In such a case, the latter is relieved from the obligation to the latter is releved from the conjugator to pay rent during the period of reconstruction. —2. The lessor is liable for the damages sus-tained by the lessee by the collapse of the premises leased, caused by bad construction and defective materials, even though such defects were hidden and could not have been ascertained by any ordinary examination of the building. Central Agency Limited v. Les Religieuses, etc., de L'Hotel Dieu de Mont-réal, 27 Que, S. C. 281.

Lease and hire of things-Enjoyment by the lessee — Disturbance caused by the lessor—Cancellation of the lease—Damages C. C. 1612.]—When a tenant lives in the same premises as the landlord, but in a lower flat and when, owing to the noise made by the landlord and by the disorderly, bad and scanlandlord and by the disorderly, but and scandalous conduct of the landlorl's wife, the tenant is deprived of the peaceable enjoyment of the leased premises, he has a right to ask for the cancellation of the lease and for the damages he has suffered. Musse v. the damages he has suffered. M. Brunelle (1909), 16 R. L. n. s. 270.

Lease of farm and cattle-Ownership Lease of farm and cattle—Ownership of hay grown on leased farm—Movables and immovables—Rights of lessee's judgment cre-ditors—C. C. 378, 379.]—When the deed of hay, grown upon the leased farm, belongs to the lessee; the lesser cannot, in law, be considered as the owner of such hay. The judgment creditors of the lessee may cause such law, although the lessor contends that he is is the custom to feed the cattle during the winter with the hay grown upon the farm on which it is cut. Masse v. Chartier (1910), 16 R. de J. 427.

Repair of premises-Injury to tenant.] —The lessee is not obliged to notify the lessor of the need of repairs to the leased premises, which the lessor is obliged to make. own property from time to time, and ascer-tain what repairs are necessary. He is, theresponsible in damages for an accident which happened to the tenant in consequence of the weakness of a railing on the leased premises, Troude v. Meldrum, 21 Que, S. C. 75.

Repairs-Landlord exceeding time specifield for doing—Damages—Measure of—Con-templation of purties at time lease was made.]—A tenant can claim from the landlord, who has exceeded the time specified in the lease for making repairs, only such damages as result directly from non-compliance with the conditions of the lease, and which might have been foreseen at the time it was granted. As a consequence, if he did not know that the premises had been leased for a place of business, the owner could not foresee that he might be called upon to pay any other damages than those resulting from the lease of an ordinary dwelling-house; and, therefore, he cannot be held responsible in damages which arise from the fact that the tenant has been prevented from carrying on the trade of a tailor whilst the repairs were effected at a place leased for the purpose of a residence only. Léveillé v. Pigeon, 26 Que. S. C. 73.

Threatened disturbance - Injunction —Damages,]—A tenant threatened with dis-turbance of his enjoyment of the demised premises by reason of works of construction instituted by the owner has a right to an interlocutory injunction to stop them, besides his remedy in damages, if injury should arise. Haycock v. Paccad, 27 Que. S. C. 464. 6. LIEN OF LANDLORD.

Landlord's lien — Restriction of upon morebles — Effect of third parties in the leased premiers— C, C, 1682,1—The landlord's lien upon the effects of third parties and found in the lensed premises, is effective only to the extent of the sums which have become due by the lessee prior to the notification given to the lesser of such property rights, or to the day only, and not longer, upon which the lesser or cutres knowledge of such rights of third parties, Allard v, Maillet & Archambautt (1910), 16 R, de J, 482.

Lien of landlord — Contract—Security
—Diminishment — Rent,]—The lien of the landlord who leases a farm is a security given by contract, within the meaning of Art.
1002, C. C. Consequently, a farmer who removes from the farm leased, crops growing thereon, loses, by diminishing the security, the benefit of the term which he could have for payment of the rent. Egglefield v. Babeu,
28 Que. S. C. 382.

Notice of rights of third person—Assigns of landlord,—I fin notice to the landlord of the rights of property of third persons in the goods upon the demised premises affects a subsequent purchaser of the freehold, it is not so with regard to mere knowledge of the fact nequired by the landlord. Therefore, such purchaser may enforce his lien upon the goods in the possession of the tenant, notwithstanding the knowledge which his grantor had of the rights of third persons. Re Boddec, 19 Que. S. C. 524.

Privilege of landlord - Removal of tenant's goods - Claim of landlord against third person removing - Right of action-Possession — Title.] — As possession of property presumes a good title, one who claims chattels or a right to chattels against the person in possession must allege and prove, besides his own right, defects in the possession and title of the possessor .- 2 A landlord who claims damages occasioned by the fault of the defendants, who have deprived him of the privilege which he possessed as such by removing the goods which were subject to his privilege, does not thereby claim the goods themselves, nor his rights with regard to the goods, nor a right of pledge; a judgment maintaining an inscription in law on this ground will be reversed and proof avant faire droit will be ordered. Lallemand v. Larue, 10 Que. P. R. 118.

Proceeds of sale of tavern license—Assignment for creditors — Costs — Priorities.]—The proceeds of the sale of a tavern license (sold upon an assignment for the benefit of creditors) are not subject to the lien of a landlord. 2. The only costs which have priority over special liens are those incurred in the interest of privileged creditors and for the preservation of their lien. Therefore, in the case of an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the costs of the assignment and of the administration and liquidation of the insolvent estate have not priority wise with the cost and londord, but it is other wise with the cost and continuous process of the sale. It is the subject to his lien, of the inventory of such articles, and of the distribution of the proceeds of the sale. Poulin v. St. Germain, 11 Que. K. 1, 253, Saisie gagerie—Motion to diemies action—Sale of demiaed premises—Remedy farerent,1—A motion to diemies the action and declare the saisie-gagerie illegal, because the plaintiff is no longer owner of the premises, will be rejected; even if the plaintiff has no lien on the furniture, that is no reason for dismissing the action. Shippel v, Sayan, 7 Que, P, R, 429.

Sub-lease—House used for prostitution—Liability of sub-tenant to principal land-lord.]—The sub-tenant of a house under a lease mide to him by the principal lessee for purposes of prostitution is only, as recards the landlord, a third person whose goods are on the premises by his consent (Ar. 1622, G. C.), and such goods are subject to the landlord's lien for reru and damages by reason of the breach of the obligations of the principal lessee.—A sub-tenant who rents a house from the principal lessee for purposes of prostitution commits a tort for which he is responsible to the owner in damages. Montanguette v<sub>2</sub> Berman, 29 Que, S. C. 183. Montanguette v<sub>3</sub> Berman, 29 Que, S. C. 183.

Tenant assigned for benefit of creditors-Tenant's goods destroyed by fire after assignment - Substitution of insurance assignment assignment moneys for goods in hands of assignee R. S. O. (1897) c, 170, s, 34 — Preferential lien of landlord.]—Plaintiff was landlord of premises occupied by one Mitchell, just be-fore the day when $626.38 was due for rent, of which $300 had accrued within one year prior thereto. Mitchell made an assignment to defendant for benefit of creditors. On 2nd November, 1908, defendant, as assignee, entered into possession, and on 4th November. 1907, the premises and goods thereon were totally destroyed by fire, and defendant received $6,450 for insurance thereon. Plainting claimed to rank on this insurance money in the hands of the defendant for $626.38, and as a preferred creditor for $00.508, and as a preferred creditor for $300 of it. Defendant admitted the claim to rank with other creditors for the $625.38, but did not admit the "preferential lien" for the $300. At the hearing Boyd, C., held, 14 O. W. R. 207, that plaintiff was entitled to rank as a preferred creditor for the $300. On appeal the Divisional Court reversed Boyd, C., hold-ing that plaintiff must, in respect of his debt, rank rateably with other unsecured creditors, Miller v. Tew (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1173, 1 O. W. N. 269, 20 O. L. R. 77.

Threatened removal of tenant's goods — Saisie-conscrutoire.]—A landlord, in order to assure his lien, may obtain a asisie-conscrutoire to bring under the supervision of the Court the chattels which the tenant has placed upon the denised premises, and which he intends to carry away; and this especially where no damages are claimed. Lefebre v. Piton, 9 Que. P. R. 119.

Claim for double yearly value— Counterclaim in tenant's action—Lease for one year terminable on one month's notice, Dundas v. Osmont (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 363.

"Colour of right."] - An agreement dated the 4th May, 1900, was entered into whereby L. acknowledged that he was a weekly tenant of the premises in question to H., is tenant of the premises in question to Li.
and agreed that his lease might be terminated at any time by "the party of the first part" (evidently an error for "the party of the second part") or by J. O. or J. A. M. A. whom L. acknowledged to be the agents for that purpose of the party "of the first part," meaning H. At that time the property was vested in H., but he was merely a trustee for the railway company. Afterwards the propthe railway company. Afterwards the property was conveyed to the company. At the time the notice to quit was served L. was tenant of the premises to the company as landlords under the terms of the agreement of the 4th May, 1900. Notice to quit was served on L. on the 29th June, 1903, and demand of possession was served upon him tempted to prove an understanding with S. A., one of the agents of the landlords, by which he should be permitted to remain on the premises until the company should build on the land. It was urged that the tenant had a colour of right to the possession of the premises, and that his right could not be tried on this application :-Held, that the tenant occupied the premises in question under a lease from week to week, that it was duly terminated by the landlord, and that the tenant continued to overhold without colour of right after written demand of possession by the landlord. Order to issue for writ of possession. No costs. Whether there is colour of right or not, and what consti-tutes colour of right, are matters of law to tutes colour of right, are matters of any to be determined by the Judge: Wright v. Mat-tison, 59 U. S. R. 50. To constitute a colour of right there must be some bond fide question of right to be tried: Price v. Guinane, 16 O. R. 264. The tenant had not shewn ane, 16 O. R. 204. The tenant had not snewn any claim which should be construed as a colour of right. Re Can, Pac. Rw. Co, & Lechtzier, 23 C. L. T. 339.

Colour of right—Indefinite promise.]—
In naiwer to a summary proceeding under the Landlords and Tenants Act. R. S. M. 1992, c. 93, to recover possession of the premises in question, which were held under a written lease creating a tenancy from week to week, the tenant gave evidence tending to shew that agents of the landlords had, prior to and at the time of the execution of the lease, agreed and promised orally that the tenant would not be required to give up possession until the landlords would build on the land. This was denied by one of the agents, and the tenant admitted that that agent had refused to put such a term in the lease, although requested to do so:—

Held, that the alleged promise, if proved, was of too indefinite a character to support the contention of the tenant that he was not holding over without colour of right, Price

Demand — Notice — Copies.]—In pro-ceeding for an order for possession under the Overholding Tenants Act, R. S. M. c. 112, the demand in writing served by the landlord under s. 3 was unsigned, but was otherwise sufficient in form. When it was served, its purport was verbally explained to the tenants, and they were told that it was from the landlord's agent, and one of them then went to see the latter about it :-Held sufficient. Morgan v. Leach, 10 M. & W. 558, followed. At the hearing it was objected that the copies served with the notice of the application, as required by s. 5, were not annexed to the notice .- Held, that delivery of the copies with the notice was probably sufficient; but at any rate the objection should have been taken as a preliminary objection. Re Sutherland & Portigal, 19 C. L. T. 257, 12 Man. L. R. 543.

Demand for possession-Uncertainty-Evidence of overholding - Writ of possession. ]-An application was made by the landlord for a writ of possession against a tenant under the Overholding Tenants Act, R S. N. S. 1900 c. 174, based on a demand for possession, served on the tenant on the 9th March, 1904, as follows:—"Your lease of the premises expired on March 1st last. You are hereby notified to deliver up said premises to me forthwith." The tenant had held under a lease by deed dated in the year 1901 for a term of three years, but, owing to erasures and alterations in the indenture. there was some doubt as to whether or not the tenancy terminated on the 1st March. 1904, or the 1st May, 1904. Before service of the demand the landlord had, on the 1st February, 1904, given to the tenant a three months' notice in writing to quit (not called for by lease) on the 1st May, 1904. On hearing it was contended that no evidence had been given that the tenant had refused after the service on the 9th March, 1904, of the above demand in writing, to go out of possession :- Held, that the written demand for session—Rea, that he witten demand of possession was bad for uncertainty, and in all the circumstances, following Re Magann and Bonner, 28 O. R. 37, and Re Snure and Davis, 4 O. L. R. 82, as the case was not one clearly coming within the true intent and meaning of the Act, the application should be refused. Re Myers & Murrans, 24 C. L.

Ejectment — Delay to remove from the demised premises.]—It is permitted in an action of ejectment to allege that more than three days have passed since the term of the lease and that the defendant is still occupying the demised premises. The fact to conclude whether a writ of ejectment or a writ of possession is the proper proceeding cannot give place to an inscription in law. S. Carsley Co. v. Scroggie (1909), 10 Que. P. R. 415.

Ejectment — Statute of Limitations— Tenancy at will concerted into tenancy at sufferance — Construction of statute, 1—The defendant was a tenant at will until 1834, when his tenancy was determined by a demand of possession and became a tenancy at sufferance. The Statute of Limitations was passed in 1837, and the question arose on the construction of the statute, as to whether a tenancy at will created and converted into a tenancy at sufferance before the passing of the Act would be a bar under it, provided the tenancy at will and the tenancy at sufferance taken together have continued for 21 years, without payment of rent or acknowledgment of title: — Held, Peters, J., that such tenancies taken together would be a bar. Colville v. Martin (1853), 1 P. E. I. R. RS.

Foreible entry—Cots.]—In an action for damages for forcibly and unlawfully entering the premises occupied by the plaintif, as tenant of the defendant, and ejecting the plaintiff therefrom, the trial Judge found that, although the defendant had technically violated the plaintiff sright of possession, the plaintiff was retaining possession in violation of good faith, and that her evidence as to the circumstances and manner of her removal was untrue:—Held, that the trial Judge was justified (following Rice v, Ditumars, 21 N. S. R. 140), in depriving the plaintiff of costs. Ruscell v, Murray, 34 N. S. R. 548.

Holding over after expiration of tenancy for a year-implied tenancy from year to year-Rebuttal of, 1—A letter from the landlord posted to the tenant before the expiration of a lease for a year, proposing that after its expiration the tenant should hold from month to month, is not sufficient, if the letter is not received by the tenant, to displace the tenancy from year to year, which arises by implication from the tenant's hold-air of the tenancy from the tenancy in the property of the tenancy from the first tenancy from the te

Action for ejectment brought by lessor since expiration of term to recover possession from lessee. The lessor, by bringing ejectment, has concluded himself from setting up his mistake as a ground for withdrawing from the position he had assumed. The Court will not interfere with the deliberate decision of the proxincial Court as to the question of procedure unless there was a departure from the requirement of substantial justice. The lessec cannot, in this action, obtain the cross relief sought, namely, the setting aside of the award and directing a re-appraisement. Parter v. Pardy, 6 E. L. R. 440.

Monthly payments of rent — Notice to quit — Right of appeal.]—The respondents became tenants of the appellant for a period of 11 months, for which they were to ply real "nonths, for which they were to ply real" at the rate of $400 per year." In the property of the rent monthly. After the expiration of the sent monthly entired in passession, paying monthly rent months are the session, paying monthly rent months are session, paying monthly rent months are session, paying monthly rent months are the session paying months are the premises of the paying the premises in pursuance of their notice. No arrangement was made as to the terms upon which the respondents were to continue after the expiry of the term. The action was brought for $66.66 rent for the months of May and June:—Held, that the tenancy was a tenancy from month to month, and was properly terminated by the notice to quit.—Held, that the matter in question related "to the taking of an annual or other rent," and that consequently an appeal lay without leave. Easiman v. Riebards, 3 Terr L. R. 73.

Negotiation for new tenancy - Tenancy at will — Notice to quit—Demand of possession — Jurisdiction of County Court Judge.]—Upon a review of proceedings taken under the Overholding Tenants Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 171:—Held, that the evidence sustained the finding of the County Court Judge was ever made, but that the tenant held over expecting an agreement would be arrived at, The tenant, overholding after the 1st March, did so with the consent of the landlord pending negotiations. When the negotiations came to an end, the landlord, on the 19th March, served a notice requiring the tenant to give up possession on the 23rd March. Upon the tenant's failure to give up posses sion on that day, the landlord took proceedings under the Act without further demand of possession :- Held, that the tenant was after the 1st March, a tenant at will; the notice had the effect of extending his right of occupation till the 23rd March; and a demand of possession after that date was necesary to give the County Court Judge jurisdiction under s, 3 of the Act. In re Grant & Robertson, 24 C. L. T. 366, 8 O. L. R. 297, 3 O. W. R. 846.

Notice of hearing — Affidavit—Prohibition — Wainer, 1—On an application under the Overholding Tenants Act by a landlord for possession, a copy of the affidavit filed on the application was not served on the tenant, as directed by s. 4 of the Act. Oral lease — Notice to quit — Month's notice — Tacit continuation — Rights and remedies of overholding leannt — Defect in demised premises — Presumption of fault.]— Notice to quit is necessary to put an end to an oral lease, even where the term of it is certain.—2 This notice to quit must be a monthly.—3. The notice to quit must be a monthly monthly end to the lease must be express and formal. Where it is conditional, A letter formal to the lease must be express and formal to the result of the continuation of the lease must be express, and monthly—3. A letter metal indicate to the tenant giving him permission to remain in the denised premises, in consideration of an increased rent, written within eight days from the expiration of the lease, is a sufficient notice to prevent a tact continuation of the lease.—6. A person who continues to occupy the demised premises after the expiration of the lease has not the rights of a tenant and cannot exercise the remedies of a tenant.—6. When it appears that a chimney has no fault of construction, there is a presumption, if it smokes, that the cause of the smoke is attributable to the tenant who uses it. Canada Newspaper Syndicate v. Gardner, 32 Que. S. C. 452.

Order for possession — Review by Caurt — Evidence — Reveach of covenant in lease — Notice specifying.] — Under the leverholding Tenants Act, R. S. 9. Rescission or Forfeiture of Lease.

Absence of water supply — Right to enjoyment of premises.]—A landlord who lets a locking turnished with apparatus, pipes, a locking turnished with apparatus, pipes, and the supply of the supply of waterworks, is bounded in the supply of water on the landlord's part a violation of the obligation to afford full enjoyment of the demised premises, and is a ground in favour of the tenant for an action to cancel the lense. McKillop v. Tapley, 32 que. S. C. 380.

Breach of provision against subletting — Necessity for action—Discretion of Court — Termination of sub-lease.]—The violation of the provision against sub-letting contained in a lease does not of itself avoid the lease; it has the effect of a resolutory condition, and is ground for an action for cancellation; in such an action the Court has a discretion to grant or refuse the relief where the lessor's rights are not affected, e.g., where the sub-lease coased before the action for cancellation was brought. Brunet v. Goldwater, 33 Que. S. C. 240.

Delay in giving possession—Days of grace — Cancellation of lease—Damages — Statis-gagarie. —The lessee of a house has the right to take possession on the first day of the term for which it is let, but subject to the crupant to remove his belongings. Therefore, a mere dispute arising on the first day between the lessor occupying the demised premises and the brother of the lessee, who wishes to have access to the upper floor, is not a refusal to deliver possession, and will not suffice as a ground, in favour of the lessee, without other mise en demeure. The lesser who, in these circumstances, variety of the lesses when the key to the few second day and sends the key to be the second day and sends the key to the terms of the lessee where the refuses to enter and hires other premises, and also the remedy of satisf-gagarie to seize the chattels of the lessee placed in one part of the house. Disrepair of premises—Defective heating—Right to cancel lease, Vennat v. Ship, 5 E. L. R. 381.

Grounds for cancellation—Change in demised premises—Installation of machinery—Danger of fire.]—A lessee who undertakes in the lease to make no change and to do no not of destruction in the denised premises, without the express permission in writing of the lessor, gives the lessor cause for cancelling the lease; (1) by installing a machine heated by gas and moved by an electric motor which produces a vibration; (2) by making an opening in the roof and passing an escape-pipe through it, such opening having the effect (the roof being double) of raising the temperature in winter, in the intermediate space, and thus forming lee upon the exterior roof; (3) by increasing the risk of fire, and, therefore, raising the rate of instrance premium. The lessee cannot successfully invoke a clause in the lease which obliges him to pay such excess of premium; the additional risk of fire supplies by itself a ground for cancellation sufficient for the lessor. Volois v. Marceau, 17 Que. K. B. 31, Judgment for cancellation — Error-Repudiation — Tacit continuation.)—There cannot be tacit continuation of a lease, the cancellation of which has been judicially declared. The lessor, who obtained the judgment, is estopped from allezing that it was rendered in error and that he repudiated it as soon as he was aware of it. There resulted from it for the lessor which the latter cannot remove by a simple immaterial manifestation of his election.—Judgment in 32 Que. S. C. 236, affirmed. Wallace v. Honan, 17 Que. K. B. 289.

Judgment for cancellation—Susmary ejectment.]—The remedy by way of action of ejectment in summary form is open to a landlord against a tenant who continues to occupy the premises more than three days after a judgment for cancellation of the lease. Waltace v. Honara, 34 que. S. C. 28.

Landlord agreed to obtain aubtenant — Premises reaant — Landlord let premises temporarily — Letting by landlord not exiction.—No termination of lease by landlord not exiction.—No termination of lease by landlord landlord.—Plaintiff tenants leased part of a building from defendant for one year and after a time vacated the premises. Plaintiffs requested defendant to secure a sub-tenant for them. Defendant put up a "To let" notice. Defendant, destring to after his adjoining building, had a cobbler move his bench, cit, nito plaintiffs' premises, on the understanding that the "To Let" notice should remain in the window, and that the cobbler would remove at any time that defendant had should let their lease by putting the cobbler in possession, and that they were no longer liable for rent. Defendant counterviaimed for rent and interest. Tested, J., held, that to a terminated that they were no longer that the continuation of the did not amount to a termination of the Mickelorough v. Strathy (1910), 16 O. W. R. 265, 21 O. L. R. 259.

Lease — Cancellation — Surrender— Termination of lease.]—Action to recover the value of seed wheat and seed oats supplied by plaintiffs to defendant pursuant to the terms of a lease. Counterclaim for value of work done by defendant for plaintiffs:— Held, that as the lease had not been terminated until some time after action brought, there had been no breach committed by defendant of the covenant to return the oats in question. Defendant's counterclaim allowed for work done, but claim for tillage disallowed as no provision therefor in lease. Ellis v. For, 11 W. L. R. ST. Lease — Improvident contract — Misrepresentation—Fraud.]—Plaintif sought to set aside a lease made by her to defendants on the ground that it had been procured by fraud and misrepresentation, and failing that, asking for a restilication:—Held, that the plaintiff understood what she was doing in making the lease in question. By consent the words "or more" were struck out from the covenant for "renewal for a further term of five years or more," otherwise action dismissed. Robinson v. Estabrooks, 7 E. L. R. 131, 4 N. B. Eq. 108.

Lease — Rescission—Effect of sub-lease.
Action for possession by lendined against sub-tenant.]—The voluntary cancellation by the parties, for inability of the tenant to pay the rent, or of a lease with a stipulation that failure to pay rent should dissolve it, extinguishes a sub-lease of part of the premises, motivithstanding the fulliment of his obligations by the sub-tenant; and an action will le against the latter, in favour of the lessor, to recover possession of the part sub-leased, Duncan Co., Bridge, 14 Que, K. H. 133.

Lease — Rescission—Premises animbalistable—Smoke and smell—Evidence. —A lessee has an action to rescind the lease of a flat which is unimbalistable by reason of smoke and obnoxious odours. Evidence of smoke and obnoxious odours, in it during a stated period, is not sufficiently rebutted by proof that it was free from both, immediately before and after the period in question, and that the building of which it forms part was well constructed with all modern improvements. Nor is it an answer to the action to say that the smoke and bad odours complained of came from neighbouring chimneys, while windows were opened, or from two flats underneals, and that the landlord is not responsible for the acts of neighbours or 6 co-lessees in the building. Beardmore v, Bellevue Lond Co., 15 Que, K. B. 43.

Lease—Rights of lease:—Failure of lease:—When to make repairs—Receivin of lease.]—When a lessor, after due notification (make the lease may be able to make necessary from the lease may, by action, decfare his option to obtain a resession of the lease, and recover judgment accordingly. Vennat v. Fischelship, 34 Que. S. C. 529.

Lease of building as hotel — Lease ceasing to conduct as hotel—Rival establishment — Cancellation of lease — Damages, |
—The obligation of the lessee to use the premises rented only for the purposes for which they are leased, is violated by a person who, having rented a house as an hotel and lodging-house, ceases to conduct it as an hotel, in order to conduct an hotel in another building, 200 feet away. The lessor may, in consequence, demand the cancellation of the lease and damages, Caron v. Lamarche, 17 Oue, K. B. 495.

Lease of farm—Share of produce—Partnership — Maludministration by tenant— Negligence—Remedy, — A lease of a farm. for a share of its produce and an undertaking by the lessee to pay the lessor one-half the value of the stock and agricultural implements on it, partakes of the nature of a Misto bank feet.

Lessee's rights — Legal disturbance—Work done on a middle wall—Action for dimination of rent — Sub-letting.]—Inconvenience caused by lessee by work being done to a middle wall by adjoining proprietor is a legal disturbance which gives him the right behave the lease cancelled, or the rent reduced, but does not extend to recovery of damages. Where there is a sub-letting it is the rent due under the principal lease which is reduced, without considering the rent derived from sub-tenant. Lanctot v. Boeck (1910), 38 Que. S. C. 228.

Non-payment of rent—Cancellation— Damages—Rent to accuse—Rent received under new lease.]—Default in payment of a single gale of rent affords ground for an action on the part of the landlord for cancellation of the lease—2. A landlord sing for the cancellation of the lease has a right to recover from the tenant as damages the rent which will accuse for the time which has still to run under the lease which is cancelled, on condition of accounting for rents received under a new lease during such period. Guardian Assec. Co. v. Humphrey, 33 Que. S. C. 303.

Non-payment of rent—Ejectment—Demand of possession, no necessity for, where rent overdue—Refusal of landlord to necept rent for one month—Waiver of tender for subsequent months—Distress for rent after action brought—Waiver of forfeiture—Costs of action—Appeal. Fenny v. Casson, 12 O. W. R. 404, 722.

Non-payment of rent—Relief against forfeiture—Oral arrangement — Option to purchase — Restoration with lease — Rule 976—Casts—Supreme Court Act, B. C., 220 (1).—The plaintiff, a. lessee, and the defendant, as lessor, on the 1st January, 1906, entered into a lease for a term of five years, at a rental of $70 per month, in advance, with a proviso for forfeiture and re-entry after 15 days' default in payment of rent, together with an exclusive option of purchase on terms named. The plaintiff, being absent in December, 1906, and up to the 23rd January, 1907, inadvertently allowed the rent for January to fall into arrear, but, on the latter date, tendered the defendant, through her solicitor, she herself being inaccessible, the rent for January and costs incurred. The defendant had in the meantime, through her bailiff, taken and retained possession. There was evidence of an oral arrangement that in the event of the plaintiff's absence at any time the forfeiture clause for non-payment in advance would not be enforced: — Held, following Newbolt with the plaintiff was entitled to relief against forfeiture, both as to the term and the option, and that, the case coming within Rule 976 of the Supreme Court Rules, 1906, the plaintiff was entitled to relief against forfeiture, both as to the term and the option, and that, the case coming within Rule 976 of the Supreme Court Rules, 1906, the plaintiff was entitled to relief against forfeiture, both as to the term and the option, and preme Court Act.—Decision of Hunter, C.J., or W. Darveent v. Montbriant, 31 Que, S. C. 54, 22 E. L. 13, 549.

Rule nisi for new trial need not set out grounds - Estoppel-Death of land lord terminates tenancy at will Grounds not taken at trial—Costs.] — Joseph Green laid off part of his farm in building lots and streets, all delineated on a plan. In 1854 he gave defendant a lease of a lot which purported to be bounded on the east by one of the new streets, called Cedar Street, and in 1856 gave him a deed of the same land, Defendant had encroached some twenty feet on the area of his lot, and the action was to recover possession of the part of Cedar Street, On the trial defendant gave evidence to shew that Joseph Green had gone to the place with him and pointed out the land, and that he had built on the land so pointed out. It also appeared that Joseph Green, after giving the lease, having found out that defendant had built on Cedar Street, went and told him so, and that on another occasion he offered defendant £10 to move back, adding that if de-fendant did not do so he (Green) must, and finally when defendant had neglected to move he told him that he (defendant) must move at his own expense. wards died, having devised his lands to the lessors of the plaintiff. Defendant contended that he was a tenant at will, and entitled to had not been given. For the plaintiffs it was contended that Joseph Green's acts and declarations were in themselves a determination of the tenancy. At the trial the Judge told the jury that if they found Joseph Green had gone down and pointed out the land, as contended by defendant, that his subsequent acts and declarations were not sufficient to so found. Plaintiff moved to set aside the verdict and for a new trial on the ground of misdirection, and also on the ground, not taken at the trial, that the tenancy at will was determined by Joseph Green's death:— Held, Hensley, J., that the direction to the jury was right.—That Joseph Green's death was a termination of the tenancy, and a new having been taken at the trial, plaintiff must pay the costs of the first trial, and each party must pay their own costs of the present rule, etc. Green v. Higgins (1873), 1 P. E. I. R. 466.

10. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES APART FROM CONTRACT.

Injury to property arising from aggligence of tenant - Action against landlord of tort-feasor—Art, 1053, Quebec Civil Code — Liability. Thurston v. Dawson, 4 E. L. R. 168.

Injury to wife of tenant-Bad condition of demised premises — Form of action
—Summary procedure — Amendment—Exception to form — Wife separate as to property — Husband joined as plaintiff — Misjoinder - Exception to form-Pleading -Declaration - Necessary allegations. An action will not be dismissed upon exception to the form because, being brought by the wife of the tenant against the land-lord to recover damages for injuries recondition of the demised premises, the action should have been brought in a summary way and made returnable in two days, such irregularity not being without remedy. Adding the husband as a plaintiff with his wife, separate as to property, does not make the writ of summons void, but may afford ground for an exception to the form for misjoinder.—It is not necessary to allege by virtue of what the plaintiff is separate as against the landlord for damages caused by the bad state of the demised premises will be dismissed upon exception to the form, if it does not appear that it arises from the fault of the defendant and in what respect he is responsible for the injury caused. Raso v. Miller, S Que, P. R. 329.

Insurance premium—Change in use of building. I—An action brought by a tenant against his landlord for the recovery of the excess of an insurance premium paid by him, when, in the course of the year for which such insurance was effected, he changed the destination of the building, and gave proper notice of such change. Bénard v. Préfortaine, 6 Que. P. R. 327.

Jurisdiction — Costs — C. P. 172, 549, 1152.]—If in an action between lessor and lessee, the plaintiff asks that some repairs be made, or that he may be authorised to make such repairs, and that, at all events, the defendant be condemned to pay him the sum of $75 as damages already suffered, the Superior Court has no jurisdiction rations materia, and the Gircuit Court is the proper Court to take cognizance of the case. Construction.]-Held, after detailed review of the cases, that Yellowly v. Gower, 11 Ex. 274, which decided that a tenant for years is liable for permissive waste, was rightly decided, and that its authority has not been impugned or affected by any subsequent case or displaced by the provisions of the Judicature Act.—Held, also, that the provisions in the lease in question in this case whereby the covenants to repair and to repair ac cording to notice were qualified by the exceptions in the covenant to leave the premises in good repair, namely, "reasonable wear and tear and damage by fire or tem-pest," had not the effect of tenant from any liability which but for them he would have been subject to for permissive waste. Such exceptions are to be construed as exempting from damage which is the reas exempting from damage which is de result of accident, not from damage which is the result of negligence. Taylor v. Taylor, L. R. 20 Eq. 297, specially considered.—Semble, a person entitled to the income of land under a trust or direction for payment thereof to him during his own or any other life, is entitled to exercise the power of leasing conferred by s. 42 of R. S. O. 1897 c. 71.—Judgment of Boyd, C., 7 O. W. R. 834, affirmed. Morris v. Cairneross, 9 O.

Title by possession — Statute of Limitations — Encroachment by lenant — Reneval lease. —On appeal it was held that where tenant has encroached without land lord's consent upon the latter's property not demised to tenant, such possession is not adverse and he must deliver it up at expiration of term or pay for its continued use and occupation. The tenant has no equitable right to have such property included in the renewal lease of the premises which were actually demised to him. He is confined to what the covenant in the lease actually gave him. Toronto v. Ward, 13 O. W. B. 319

Trespass to demised premises—Action by tenant — Assertion of title by defendant — Landlord brought in en garantic.]—
Where a tenant has sued a third person, in this case one of the other tenants of the same property, for a trespass, and the third person pleads that the tenant has not the right of enjoyment which he claims under his lease, but that he (the defendant) alone has such right, the tenant may call upon his landlord to defend him against this contention of the defendant. Hamilton v. Royal Land Co., 24 Que. S. C. 411.

11. TERMINATION OF TENANCY,

Action by landlord for possession of for use and occupation—Evidence established—Tenancy from year to year—Not determined by notice to quit—Statute of Limitations has no application—Plaintiff's claim dismissed with costs—Defendary proved $530,80 on counterclaim—Judgment accordingly with costs. O'Connell v. Relly (1911), 18 O. W. R. 918, 2 O. W. N. $23.

Agreement for lease — Option for renetal of lease—Option of purchase—Sale of free—Assignment by lease—Rights of assignee to compel renewal of lease—Notice of acceptance of renewal—Equitable, jurisdiction of Court-32 Henry VIII., c, 34, applicable -Counterclaim for declaration of assignee's right. — An action by plaintiff to recover possession of lands and for meane profits. Mitchell, the owner in fee of the property in question, entered into an agreement with one Peares to let the same to be the same t one, Pearce, to let the same to Pearce for five years from September 1st, 1905, to be used as a drug store and dwelling, and agreed that he would, at the end of the five years, give the said lessee the option of a further term of five years, and the lessor further agreed that in case of sale he would turther agreed that in case of sale he would give the said lessee the first option to purchase. Pearce accepted this and entered into possession. In July 1967, Mitchell sold and conveyed the property to the plantiff. Before doing so, however, he offered the land to Pearce, but Pearce refused to buy, Pearce. in August, 1907, assigned all his interest in the agreement to one Smuck, and he in October, assigned all his interest in the property to the defendant, who entered and paid rent to the plaintiff until the end of August 1910. On the black and the state of the control of the plaintiff until the end of August 1910. August, 1910. On the last day of August, 1910, the defendants wrote the plaintiff:
"We hereby give you notice that we accept the lease for a further term of five years as provided in the said lease." On 1st September, 1910, the plaintiff demanded posses sion, which was refused. Plaintiff ther brought this action.—Riddell, J., held, that as defendants were before a Court having ande, in which case 32 Henry VIII., c. 34, would apply: That plaintiff failed and the action should be dismissed with costs. Counterclaim by defendants for a declaration of their right to a further term of five years allowed with costs. Manchester Bridge Co. v. Coombs, [1901] 2 Ch. 608, followed. Ropers v. National Drug & Chemical Co. (1911), 18 O. W. R. 686, 2 O. W. N. 763, O. L. R.

Cancellation of lease.]—The sole default on the part of one or other of the parties to the lease to discharge his obligations, does not of itself and of right have for effect the cancellation of a contract in such a way as to give the injured party an accellation of a contract for non-execution of the contract for non-execution, the cancellation of a contract for non-execution of the contract, and matter within the discretion of the Court which, according to the facts of the case, either affirms or dissolves the contract, and may allow further delay to permit defendant to discharge his obligations, and this even when the contract is clearly regular and well-founded; the dissolution of a contract is a serious step which can only be taken for good reasons, clearly established, and the burden of proof resting upon the plaintiff, the defendant should have the benefit of any doubt. Stagy v. Frigon (1910), 17 R. L. n. s. 49.

Days of grace — Computation — Holidgys,]—The period of three days allowed to a tenant to give up possession, according to Art. 1989, C. P., is a delay in procedure which is extended to the jurifical day following, if it expires on a Sunday or a holiday. Beauday v. Harrigan, 5 que, P. R. 99.

ises temporarily — Letting by landlord not eviction — No termination of lease by eviction — No termination of teast by landlord.] — Plaintiffs, tenants, leased part of a building from defendant for one year and after a time vacated the premium. Plaintiffs requested defendant secure a sub-tenant for them. Defendant put up a "To let" notice. Defendant desiring to alter his adjoining building, had a cobbler move his bench, etc., into plaintiffs' plaintiffs' premises, on the understanding that the "To let" notice should remain in the window, and that the cobbler would remove at any time that defendant should let the premises.-Plaintiffs brought action for a declaration that defendant had terminated their lease by putting the cobbler in possession, without plaintiffs' consent, and that they were no longer liable for rent. Defendant counterclaimed for rent and interest. Teetzel, J., keld (16 O. W. R. 265, 21 O. L. R. 250, 1 O. W. N. 846), that what the landlord had done did not amount to a termination of the lease Action dismissed and judgment entered for defendant on his counterclaim. — Divisional Court affirmed above judgment, Mickleborough v. Strathy (1911), 18 O. W. R. 206, 2 O. W. N. 537, 23 O. L. R. 33.

Lease by Hfe tenant—Death of—Expiry of lease.]—The lease of a farm made by an usufructuary for a term of years expires at his death, but if it occurs after a year of the term has begun, the lessee has the right to continue his enjoyment to the end of that year. Hence, when the death of the usufructuary lessor takes place in May, when the hay crop is standing, the lessee having the enjoyment of the farm till the first of November following, has the right to cut the crop in the interval, and thus make it his own, Peckham v. Parizeau (1910), 39 que. S. C. 9.

Lessor's privilege.] — No particular manner or form of the "notification" required by Art. 1622 °C. C. (as amended by 16 Vict. c. 14, Que.) having been prescribed by law, it may be proved, as any other fact, by written or oral evidence or even by presumption. Onimet v. Heirs Green & Willis, 37 Que. 8, C. 136.

Notice to quit the premises leased within three days—interpretation—C. P. 1089.1—If a lessee, after having received a notice in the following words: "The houses having been leased from the 1st July, next, we take the liberty of notifying you to leave the house before that date," leaves the premises within three days, he is discharged from all rent he might have owed at the time, the notice fulfilling all the requirements of Art. 1089 C. P. Pontbriand Co. v. Chateauveri (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 242.

Time—Computation—Non-juridical day.]
—Article S. C. P., which says that the day upon which a thing ought to be done being a non-juridical day, the thing may be one with the same effect on the next following juridical day, does not apply to the three days which the landlord may give to the tenant, by virtue of Art, 1968, C. P. C. the leave the demised premises, therefore, when the last day is non-juridical, the tenant cannot delay his removal to the next day, Beaudry V. Hannigan 23 Que. S. C. 232, 5 Que. P. R. 366.

Time—Holiday.]—Where the last of the three days which follow a notice to quitiven by a landlord under Art, 1989, C. P. C., is a Sunday or holiday, it is not reckoned, and the tenant has the following day to abandon the demised premises, Reaudry V. Harrian, 19 One, S. C. 421.

Verbal lease-Dispute as to duration Action to terminate-Statute of Frauds-Evidence-Onus.] - Action to terminate a verbal lease by plaintiffs to defendants. Plaintiffs alleged that the lease was from year to year. Defendants contended that the year to year. Perendants contended that the lease was for the same term as plaintiff's lease, plaintiff being lessee and defendants sub-tenants. Statute of Frauds was not pleaded but plaintiff asked leave to amend and set it up.-Falconbridge, C.J.K.B., held, that without any agreement being proved, the circumstances of the holding would constitute a tenancy from year to year and the notice to quit relied upon by plaintiff would be good: That it was not necessary to allow the amendment to decide the case as the onus was on defendants to prove their agreement and in this they had failed. Judgment for plaintiff for immediate possession and for $50 per month for occupation rent since 1st May, 1910. Galbraith v. Connell Anthracite Mining Co. (1911), 18 O. W. R. 393, 2 O. W. N. 615.

Waiver. ]-A lease at a yearly rent payable in even portions, in advance, on the first day of each and every month, contained a provision entitling the landlord to give the tenant three months' notice to quit in case the landlord received an offer to purchase which he was willing to accept. On the 22nd August the landlord gave the tenant notice to quit three months thereafter. On the 2nd November the applicant, the original landlord's successor in title, accepted the rent due in advance the previous day, for the whole of the month of November, though the time limited by the notice to quit would expire on the 22nd November:—Held, that the notice to quit was waived.—Held, also, that the acceptance on the 3rd December of a cheque for that month's rent, although it was not presented for payment, would also be a waiver. A notice to quit in pursuance of such a special provision may be given for any broken period of the term, and need not expire at the end of a month of the tenancy. Smith v. MacFarlane (No. 2), 5 Terr. L. R.

Privilege of posting bills on walls-Contract — Construction — Seal — Sale of premises—Revocation of license — Contract by grantee with another bill poster-Damages.]-An agreement was entered into between the owner of a house and the plaintiffs, an advertising company, whereby the owner, therein called the lessor, agreed to sell, and the plaintiffs, called the lessees, agreed to take, for a term of five years, all the advertising privileges on a wall of the house, at the yearly rental of $5 with the right of cancellation to the lessees on one month's notice, should the location become valueless for advertising purposes, either from buildings or other causes. The document was not sealed, but the word "seal" was printed opposite the owner's signature. The plaintiffs painted an advertisement on one of the walls. In 1908 the owner sold the nouse, giving the purchaser a conveyance thereof and stating that the plaintiff's right was merely from year to year, and that the rent was paid up to January, 1909, when the plaintiff's rights ceased. The purchaser, plaintiff's rights ceased. after January, 1909, made a contract with the defendants, another advertising firm, for the right to paint on the wall, and they, thereupon, painted out the plaintiff's advertisement, painting thereon one of their own, which the plaintiffs painted out, repainting their own, and brought an action against the defendants for damages, etc.: - Held, that the action was not maintainable; that the agreement made with the plaintiffs amounted merely to a revocable license, which was revoked by the sale and conveyance to purchaser, Kerrison v, Smith [1887] 2 Q. B. 445, followed: Wood v, Leadhitte (1845), 3 M. & W. 838; Lone v, Marie (1845), 13 M. & W. 838; Lone v, Marie (1901) 2 Ch. 598, and London County Comment v, Dundas, [1904) P. 1, referred to and discussed, — Quare, whether an acknowled; ment by the purchaser of the plaintiffs rights would enable an action to be brought against her. Charge on land - Beneficial ownership -Parol trust - Mortgage-Priorities-Voluntary conveyances. 1 - The defendant, who had been for some years in possession of a farm purchased by his father with the in-tention of giving it to him, purchased a machine from the manufacturers, giving his notes therefor, and at the same time executed a document (which was registered) in which it was stated that the land had been so

"willed" to him that he had a good title thereto, and would not further incumber it, and he thereby charged it with the payment of the notes. The father subsequently conveyed the land to the defendant, but upon the condition of his executing a mortgage, which he did to certain persons who had advanced moneys to him. The defendant, on the ground that the land had been conveyed to him on an alleged trust for his family, con-veyed it to his wife, the consideration being $1 and love and affection, and the wife, for the like consideration, conveyed it to an infant son :- Held, that the charge in favour of the manufacturers was enforceable against the defendant and those claiming under him, by the assignee of the manufacturers, but was subject to the mortgage, and the evidence displacing any trust in favour of the defendant's family, the conveyances by the defendant and his wife must be treated as merely voluntary and subject to the plaintiff's charge, Abell v. Middleton, 2 O. L. R. 299.

Charge on land - Unregistered documents - Land held temporarily by debtor as trustee - Subsequent conveyance to person entitled-Notice. ]-J. R., one of the defendants, owned a half section of land which she conveyed to her son, the defendant A. G. R., who mortgaged it to a loan company While the title was so vested in A. G. R., he purchased a threshing machine and engine from the plaintiff's agent, and signed an unregistered document charging the land for the price, on which this action was brought. Later on A. G. R. mortgaged the half section to another loan company; he paid off the first mortgage and reconveyed the land to J. R. for an expressed consideration of $100; that conveyance was registered. After the reconveyance to J. R. this action was brought for payment by A. G. R. of the balance due on the machine and to have it declared that under the unregistered document the plaintiffs had a charge on the half section for the unpaid purchase-money due them for the machines; that J. R. knew of the plaintiffs' lien under the document signed by A. G. R.: and that the conveyance from the latter to her should be set aside and the land sold to satisfy the plaintiffs' claim. The defence set up that A. G. R. was under 21 when he executed the unregistered document in the plaintiffs' favour, that the conveyance from J. R. to A. G. R. was given voluntarily to enable him to raise the money under the first mortgage that he put on it, and on the condition that, when so required by J R., he would reconvey to her, and that the re-conveyance complained of was made pursuant to that understanding and on the actual payment of $100 which A. G. R. exacted before he would reconvey: - Held, on the evidence, that the allegation that A. G. R was under 21 when he executed the unregistered document, was not proved; also, that J. R. conveyed to her son A. G. R. to enable him to put on the first mortgage and in trust to reconvey to her after so doing; and that she was entitled to the reconveyance from him. Judgment against A. G. R. for the debt, but action dismissed as against J. R. with a declaration that the plaintiffs had no claim on the land. Fairchild v. Ray. 24 C. L. T. 281.

Manufacturer's Hen — Logs saven — Possession. I—McK. entered into an agreement with M. to saw lored for the latter, and accordingly McK. set up his saw mill on the land of M. One portion of the lumber when sawn was removed from the mill by McK.'s men, and piled near it on M.'s land. McK. subsequently moved his mill to the land of a third person, or whose land M. had obtained permission to have the lumber piled, and, after another portion of the lumber was sawn on this land, it was piled near McK.'s mill, on this land. McK. subsequently claimed a lien on all the logs sawn by him:—Held, that McK. had not sufficient possession of the lumber to be entitled to a declaration of lien. Repairs on launch—Lien for storage— Launch sold on condition—Right of purchaser to incur lien—Liability of vendor to pay liens on re-taking possession—Costs.]— Mackie gave certain promissory notes in payment of a launch and engine. The notes contained the condition that the right of ownership in the property should remain vested in the ventors until paid for in full. Mackie had the defendants make certain repairs on the launch and engine amounting to $9. He took the launch away and shortly after had defendant make ther repairs thereon amounting to $24.24, when defendants requested Mackie to take the launch away and pay for the repairs $33.24. This Mackie failed to do, and defendants notified him that they would charge him $3 per month storage until defendant's claim was paid in full. Plaintiffs as assign. session of their property. Defendants claimed a lien for $95.72, made up of $33.24 for repairs and balance for storage: -Held. that defendants lost their lien for the first repair, by allowing Mackie to take the launch out of defendant's possession. Harltcy v. Hitchcock, 1 Stark 408, followed. That defendant had a valid lien for the second repairs, as Mackie was entitled to possession of the launch and as such was entitled to take it with him and have necessary repairs take it with him and have necessary repairs made when out of order, Singer M'f9 v.o., V. Stumpage Hen — Menufacturer of lumber — tortract — Sale — Pledac. 1—The plaintiff, who was manufacturing lumber, agreed with the defendant that the lumber should be subject to the lien of the defendant for stumpage. The agreement, in effect, was the same as a common law lien, with is addition, that, as between the plaintiff and defendant, the lien existed whether the defendant was in nossession of the lumber or not. The defendant sold a portion of the lumber and delivered it to the purchasers, and, subsequently, the plaintiff, in disregard of the defendant's lien, sold to a third party the remainder of the lumber. ful sale of part of the lumber destroyed his claim for stumpage and his lien, and was not entitled to recover anything:—Metal, that, although by the sale the defendant lost his lien upon the property sold, his other rights under the contract remained unaffected, and his lien for his whole claim could be asserted upon the remainder of the property.—Distinction between "lien" and "pledge" pointed out. Threshers' Lien Act, 1908—Non-com-pliance with—Notices—Attempt to take grain after sixty days — Expenses — Contract to thresh-Non-completion of work-Divisible contract—Recovery for work actually done contract—Recovery for work actually done-Counterclaim Damages for non-completion— Pleading—Special damages—General damages— Interest—Demand—Notice—Judicature Act, 1997, s. 37 (2)—Rate of interest,— In October, 1909, the plaintiff entered into a contract to thresh the defendant's grain, concontract to thresh the defendants grain, consisting of wheat and oats, at 9 cents per bushel for wheat and 7 cents for oats. On the 10th November the plaintiff began the threshing and continued till the 17th, when his men declined to go on, and he was ob-liged to leave the threshing unfinished, although it might have been completed on that day if the work had been continued. The plaintiff never completed the work, and the defendant failed to secure any one else to complete it, though he endeavoured to do so, and, in consequence, the grain was not threshed. On the 22nd November the plaintill sent the defendant a statement of the grain threshed, shewing the sum of $439.10 grain threshed, shewing the sum of 8439,10 to be due. On this statement there was a written notice that "8 per cent. will be charged from the 1st of December until paid," and a printed notice that the defendant's grain would "be held by thresher's lien until payment of this account in full." A few days after this, the plaintiff sent a let-ter to the defendant demanding payment. On the 11th December the parties met, and the plaintiff offered to accept $400. The de fendant agreed to this, and said he settle the account on the following Wednesday. He did not do so, but on the 21st December he paid the plaintiff $100 "part pay on threshing account." On the 28th December the share of the country of th ber the sheriff, at the instance of the plaintiff, served a notice on the defendant, under the Ordinance respecting Threshers Liens, claiming a lien on the grain. On the 18th January, 1910, pursuant to notice given to to the defendant's place to take the grain, but the defendant would not permit him to take it; and on the following day the sheriff, at the instance of the plaintiff, went with teams to take the grain, but was also unsuccessful:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the amount claimed for threshing; the contract was not an indivisible one, and payment by the defendant was not intended to be conditional upon the threshing of all the crop. But the plaintiff was under obligation to complete the threshing; he contracted to do so; and, having failed, he must suffer the consequences. As the defendant claimed only general damages by his counterclaim, evidence of special damages was inadmissible; and the amount to be allowed for general damages was that fixed by the parties themselves on the 11th December, viz., $39.10.—

Held, also, that the plaintiff, by his account rendered, notice as to interest, and letter demanding payment, had complied with subsec. 2 of sec. 37 of the Judicature Act, 1907, and was entitled to interest from the 1st December, 1909; but at the rate of 5 per cent. only: R. S. C. 1906 c. 129, s. 3.—Held, also, that the plaintiff was not entitled to a declaration that he had a lien on the grain; when Act, 1908, s. 1. expired after the lapse of 90 days from the completion of the threshing. The statute, being in derogation of the common law, must be strictly complied with. Neither the sending of the notice on the 22nd November, claiming a lien, nor the serving of the notice by the sheriff on the 28th December, was a compliance with the Act. There must be an actual "taking" of the grain within the 00 days. The more statement that the plaintiff —hereby takes the strictly complished the strictly strips to the defendant's place after the expenses of the 90 days could not be allowed against the defendant. Thresher's Hen on grain — Measurements — Weights and Measures Act — Hlegality — "Dealing,"] — The defendant contracted with the plaintiff to thresh his grain at a price per bushel. The quantity threshed was not measured with a Dominion standard measure, or weighed, but was subsequently ascertained by the defendant by cubic measurement:—Held, that so measuring the grain was not a "dealing" within the meaning of s. 21 of the Weights and Measures Act, which could relate back and render the contract void, and that the defendant was not therefore disentitled to a lieu under the Threshers Lieu Ordinance, Macdonald v, Corrigal, 9 Man, L. R. 284, and Manitos Electric and Gas Eight Co. v. Gerrie, 4 Man, L. R. 210, considered, Judgment of Wetmore, J., 22 C. L. T. 345, reversed. Conn v. Fitzgerald, 5 Terr, L. R. 346.

Thresher's lien on grain — Price of threshing other grain — Science of excessive quantity — Natice of claim of lien.] — A thresher canot, under the Threshers' Lien Act. 57 V. c. 36, maintain a lien on grain for the threshing of which he has been paid, to recover the price of a subsequent unpaid threshing. The plaintfil, by his notice put up on the granary, asserted his claim to a lien upon all the grain contained in it, which was worth about 886; but the Court found that the amount of the claim for threshing for which he could, under the Act, at the time of the posting of the notice, enforce a lien on such grain, if the proper steps were taken, was only about 250;—Held, that the quantity of grain which the plaintiff attempted to retain was unreasonably large for the amount owing, and that, under s. 2 of the Act, he had forfeited his right of retention of any of it. Simpson v. Oukes, 23 C. L. T. 54, 14 Man. L. R. 262.

and trespass - Damages. |- The plaintiff's grain on his farm was seized by the defendant, purporting to be assignees of C., who had threshed the grain for the plaintiff, and who was, as the defendants alleged, entitled to a lien on the grain under the Threshers' Lien Ordinance. At the time of the seizure only $38.89 was owing by the plaintiff to only $55.59 was owing by the plaintin to C., and that sum was, by agreement between the plaintiff and C., not then payable. The alleged assignment to the defendants was after this agreement. It was a general asserter this agreement. signment of all earnings of a threshing ma-chine used by C. in threshing the plaintiff's grain:—Held, that the defendants had no legal right to make the entry and seizure; and, the defendants' seizure being for $160. it was, at all events, for an excessive amount, and illegal.—There is no authority under the Ordinance to seize any quantity of grain and claim a lien thereon without ascertaining positively the amount owing and also ing positively the amount owing and also the quantity of grain seized.—Quare, wheth-er a thresher's lien could be considered as assigned by virtue of a general assignment of earnings .- Semble, also, that the seizure was illegal by reason of the provisions of the Threshers' Employees Act, 1909.—Held, also, that the plaintiff was entitled to substantial damages; the annoyance caused to him and the injury to his credit and reputation by the seizure were to be considered. Semple v. Sawyer-Massey Co. (1910), 13 W. L. R. 428.

Threshers' Lien Ordinance - Contract - Construction - Contract performed in part - Right to payment for part performed.]-The defendant agreed to thresh the plaintiff's whole crop of grain. The contract was oral, and there was no specific provision that the payment was to be conditional upon the threshing of the whole crop. not having been paid for what he did, seized the plaintiff's grain when he was marketing the painting a flen under the Threshers' it, asserting a flen under the Threshers' Lien Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 167:—Held, that the defendant was justified under the statute in making the seizure; upon the proper construction of the contract, the promise of one party (not the performance) was the con-sideration for the promise of the other, and payment was not intended to be conditional upon the threshing of the whole crop. -Judgment of Locke, Co.C.J., reversed. Woodman's lien - Statute - Limitation to wage-carners - Exclusion of contractors — Insolvency — Time for filing of hen — Saisic-conservatoire — Identification of property - Property passing. | plaintiff, a sub-contractor under the defend-ant, made a certain number of ties during ant, made a certain number of thes during the winter of 1901-2. The defendant had these ties made for one S. The plaintid, not having been paid, issued a writ of saisie-conservatoire against the defendant, and seized all the wood which the defendant had in hand for S., which wood was in a boom upon a river, without making S. a party. The latter intervened and contested the seizure :- Held, that the statute which creates a lien constitutes an exception to the common law and must receive a strict interpretation; it is for the person asserting the pretation; it is for the person asserting the lien to establish that it exists by reason of the special statute creating it. 2. The lien given by Art. 1994 (c), C. C., applies only to wood-cutters or labourers and extends only to the payment of their wages, and does not apply to contractors or sub-contractors in respect of payment of their contract price or advances or disbursements made by them. 3. One who, under a contract or sub-contract, cuts wood upon his own property, converts it by his work into ties, logs, etc., and delivers it to the person with whom he has contracted, cannot claim in respect of this wood the lien given by Art. 1994 (c), even when the value of the wood is trifling. 4. In the case of insolvency, the lien of the vendor must be asserted within 30 days after the delivery of the wood; a saisie-conservatoire issued after the expiry of this time can-not be maintained. 5. The lien of the vendor can only be exercised when the goods sold remain in the possession of the purchaser in the same state, and when the identity can be stated in a clear and certain manner. 6. The affixing of the trade mark of dealers in wood upon logs which have been got out for them by contractors, is a sufficient taking of possession and a proof of the transfer of the property in the logs. Dallaire v. Gauthier, 24 Que, S. C. 495.

Woodman's Hen — Subject of lien — The fine given by Art. 1964c, C. C., is given only to a workman who has worked in getting out the wood, and he has it only for his wages; it is not given to one who is merely a creditor for the hire of a horse employed to cart the wood. Rhéaume v. Batiscan River Lumber Co., 23 Que, S. C. 166.

Woodmen's Lien Act - "Logs and timber" - Contractor - Bona - Estoppet.]

"The appellant under a contract in writing made by this with the responden. for an acreed price per thousand, cut upon the land of the respondent a quantity of logs, and hauled them to a portable mill upon the inad, where they were manufactured into deals, planks, &c. The work was performed in part by the appellant himself with his team, though there was no stipulation to that effect between the parties, but chiefly by labourers and teams, by the terms of the contract bird and paid by the appellant. A portion of the amount due to the appellant under the agreement being unpaid, he caused an attachment to be placed upon the above metitioned deals, planks, &c., claiming a lieu thereupon by virtue of the Woodmen's Lieu Act. 1894:—Held, that the words "logs and timber," as employed in see, I of s. 2 of the Act, were not intended to Include deals and other magnificatored immers also deals and other magnificatored immers also to be a contractor, and not within the class of persons for whose benefit, by s. 3. Hens were established; also, per Hanington, J., that he respondent by giving a bond in order to secure the payment of the amount claimed if the lien should prove effectual, and thus obtaining a release of the deals, &c., attached, did not estop himself from disputing the validity of the lien, Baxter v. Kennedy, 35 N. B. R. 179.

—Hire of horses.]—The defendant hired a team of horses from the plaintiff for certain longing operations, and, no set which were driven by a man employed by the defendant, the plaintiff field a lien gaainst the logs for the amount due:—Held, that the plaintiff was not a woodman within the mening of the statute. Muller v. Shibley, S. W. L. R. 42, 13 B. C. R. 343.

Woodmen's Hens — Action to enforce usages — Suspension of lieu and right of action during currency of note — Acceptance for action—Woodmen's Lieu Act — On the day before the maturity of promissary note accepted by the plaintiff from the defendants in payment for the services in getting out logs for the defendants, the plaintiff filled a lieu under the Woodmen's Lieu Act, and brought this action, in which the ought to enforce the lieu and to enforce the lieu and to defendants for the amount against the defendants for the amount—Hold, that he plaintiff, before the maturity of the only the plaintiff, before the control of the lieu, and the action therefore failed Willy V. pretation Ordinance — Judicature Ordin-ance, Rule 554 — Personal judgment.] — Claims of lien under the Woodmen's Lien for Wages Ordinance were filed on the 21st for Wages Ordinance were fined on the 23rd May, 1910, the 20th May being the last day for effective filing under secs, 6 and 7 of the Ordinance. By sec. 21 of the Interpre-tation Ordinance, if the time limited by any Ordinance for any proceeding, or the doing of anything under its provisions, expires or falls upon a holiday, the time so limited shall be extended to and such thing may be done on the day next following :- Held, that the 20th May, being the day proclaimed by the Governor-General as a day of general mourning for King Edward VII. was not a "holiday" within the meaning of the Interpretation Ordinance nor of the Dominion Interpretation Act .- Semble, that, if it had been a holiday, the plaintiffs would have been entitled to maintain their liens by filing on the 21st.—Held, also, that Rule 554 of the Judicature Ordinance did not apply, because the reference in that rule to "Sunday or other day on which the offices are closed or other day on which the offices are closed means "or other day on which the offices are legally closed."—The plaintiffs' actions to enforce their liens were dismissed, but the plaintiffs were awarded personal judgments for the amounts claimed, under the amending Ordinance of 1909. Action for possession — Damages for respass — Injunction—Geouption by permission of onener—Payanen of taxes—Rogi-work performed—Entry by owner—Lease—Reidence—Real Property Limitation Act—Alloicance for taxes—Reference to Master—Costs.]—Taintiffs brought action for trespass and to have it declared that they were passed to the land in question, entitled to percentle the land sessession and for an injunction. Defendant sessession and for an injunction, Defendant upon and in reference to the land were in recognition of the right of true legal owner; that the occupation of defendant was not exclusive of owner, but by his sanction and permission, and the Statute of Limitations never began to run in defendant's favour. Injunction granted, and possession ordered to be given forthwith. Damages assessed at $50, and costs allowed plaintiffs, Dom. Improv. & Devol. Co. v. Lally (1910), 17 O. W. R. 151; 2 O. W. N. 155.

Acts of ownership—Evidence.]—Co. C. Judge held, that plaintiff was owner of certain lands in question and granted injunction restraining further trespass by defendant but refused plaintiff damages for trespass and ordered each party to pay their own the party of the parties appealed.—Divisional Court, the parties appealed of the party of the clearly shew in what manner the plaintiff ceceived her title, the above judgment should be varied by striking out that part which declared plaintiff owner of the land, and in lieu thereof there should be inserted a clause to the effect that the plaintiff was entitled to possession thereof as against the defendant. Both appeals dismissed with costs. Cookey v. Detlor (1911), 18 O. W. R. 479, 2 O. W. N. 698.

not under cultivation; the defendant said he kept it for pasture, and that there was still some brush upon it: he admitted that strangrey animals ran at large to pasture upon this arthur Held, as to the north part, that the acts of ownership and possession performed by the defendant were not sufficient to enable him to secure the protection of the Statute of Limitations.—McConaghy v. Denmark, 4 S. C. R. 690, Sherren v. Pearson, 14 S. C. R. 585, and McIntyre v. Thompson, 1 O. L. R. 163, followed.—Held, that the defendant's possession of the strip to the south was sufficient to enable him to take advantage of the statute if he was otherwise entitled to do so.—The plaintiffs were the registered owners of this strip by vitue of a certificate gers' animals ran at large to pasture upon owners of this strip by virtue of a certificate owhers or this strip by virtue of a certificate of title issued under the Land Titles Act in 1894, which was still the existing certificate of title. Section 44 of the Land Titles Act of title. Section 14 of the Land Three Nor-provides that every certificate of title granted under the Act shall, while in force, be conclu-sive evidence in all Courts, as against the Crown and all persons, that the person named Crown and all persons, that the person named therein is entitled to the land, subject to cer-tain exceptions not important here. By s. 2 of c. 31 of the Consolidated Ordinances, 1898 (continued in force in Alberta by virtue of the Alberta Act), the provisions of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874 (Imp.), are declared to be in force and to have been in force in the Territories since the passing of that Act. The Imperial Act provides that after its commencement, no person shall make an entry or distress, or bring an action or suit, to recover any land or rent but within twelve years next after the time at which the right shall have first accrued, etc. Section 9 of the same Act introduces the provisions of 3 & 4 Wm. IV. c. 27, s. 34 of which enacts that at the determination of the perenacts that at the determination of the period limited by that Act to any person for making any entry or distress or bringing an action, the right and title of such person shall be extinguished:—Held, applying and following Beliese Estate and Produce Co. v. Quitter, [1897] A. C. 367, that the Land Titles Act and Statute of Limitations stood together; and, the defendant having shewn consistency of the west strip for more than possession of the south strip for more than possession of the south strip for more than 21 years, the plaintiff's action, brought after the expiry of the 12 years, failed. The Statue of Limitations is still effective, in a proper case, to protect the actual possession of a person who has been in continuous adverse possession of land for 12 years or more, even against a person who appears to be the registered owner of that land under the be the registered owner of that land under the Land Titles Act.—Quare, whether s. 44 of the Land Titles Act overrides s. 34 of 3 & 4 Wm. IV. c. 27, That question did not arise, as the defendant did not claim a declaration that the plaintiff's title was extinguished.— Held, also, that, although the plaintiffs had succeeded as to the larger portion of the land. there were circumstances which disentitled them to costs against the defendant; and there should be no costs to either party. Harris v. Keith, 16 W. L. R. 433, Alta.

Boundary — Absence of enclosure — Occasional acts of ownership — Evidence — C.C.L.—81 Rejection.]—In a question of boundary between two persons claiming under a paper title, where there has been no enclosure, occasional acts, which would be merely act of treepass if done by one not the owner, do not operate to give a statutory title; and evidence of such acts offered by the defendant was in this case properly rejected. Wason 4, Douglas, 21 C. L. T. 521.

Character of possession — Occupation of house as compensation for services, Coulter v. Coulter, 4 O. W. R. 65.

Colourable title — Possession — Eridence, — The possession of a part of land claimed under colour of title is constructive possession of the whole, which may ripen into an indefeasible title, if open exclusive, and continuous for the whole statutory period.
Carrying on humbering operations during successive winter- with no acts of possession during the remainder of each year does not constitute continuous possession. And it is not exclusive where other persons lumbered on the land, continuously or at intervals, during any portion of such period. Wood
w. Leblane, 24 C. L. T. 295, 34 S. C. R. 627.

Conditions surrounding peasession—Precarioneness—Actual possession,—It is not necessary, for the purpose of an action for repossession, that the possession by the plaintiff should contain all the elements prescribed by Art. 2193 C. C.; it is sufficient if the plaintiff establishes that he had actual possession and that he has been deprived of it by violence and trespass on defendant's part.—There is sufficient loss of possession when a boundary fence has been moved in such a way as to enclose part of the land in dispute. Conture v, Browillette (1909), 37 Que. S. C. 521.

Constructive possession — Acts of conversity—Colourable title.]—Mcl. by his will devised sixty acres of land to his son, charged with the maintenance of his widow and daughter. Shortly afterwards the son with the widow and other heirs conveyed away four of the sixty acres, and nearly thirty years later they were deeded to McD. Under a judgment against the executors of Mcl., the sixty acres were sold by the sheriff, and fifty, including the said four, were conveyed by the purchaser to McL's son. The sheriff's sale was illeral under the Nova Scotia haw. The son lived on the fifty acres for a time, and then went to the United States, leaving his mother and sister in occupation until he returned twenty years have. During this time he occasionally cut hay on the four acres, which was only partly in an action for a declaration of title to the four acres:—Held, that the occupation by the son under colour of title to the four meres:—Held, that the occupation by the son under colour of title to the four which he had conveyed away, and his alleged acts of ownership were merely intermittent acts of treepass. C., is absolute, and runs from the date of the instrument, without regard to the time agreed upon for payment of the price or performance of the obligations. Galarneau v. Leychere, 27 Que. S. C. 466.

Court of Equity — Declaratory decree— Cloud on title—Jajunction.]—A Court of equity will not grant a decree confirming the title to land claimed by possession under the Statute of Limitations, nor restrain by injunction a person from selling land of another, Miller v. Robertson, 24 C. L. T. 205, 35 S. C. R. 80.

Description - Possession beyond boundaries-Deed-Plan-Length of possession.]-In June, 1868, by deed of gift, P. granted to his son F, an emplacement, described by metes and bounds, and stated to have thirty feet frontage, "tel que le tout est actuellement et que l'acquereur dit bien connaître." declaring, in the deed, that the donation had actually been made in 1860, although no deed had been executed, and that since then I had been in possession as owner:-Held, that the deed in 1868 operated as an interruption of prescription and limited the title to the thirty feet of frontage as therein described A similar description in a deed of 1885, by F, to the plaintiff's wife, which made a reference to the number on a plan, thereby implying a greater width, left the true limits of emplacement subject to a determination according to the title held by the plaintiff's auteur, which granted only thirty feet of frontage; that, by the registered title, the implied notice of this fact; and that, consequently, he had not, in good faith, possessed this deed, and could not invoke an acquisitive prescription of title to the disputed six feet by ten years' possession thereunder; and further, that no augmentation of the lands originally granted could take place in consegunney of the cadastral description of the em-placement in question. The words "tel que le tout est actuellement et que l'acquereur ait bien connairre," used in the deed of gift, can-not be interpreted in contradiction of the special description that precedes them, and can only be construct as extending "danles limites ci-desaus d'écrites". A prescriptive title to lands beyon the boundaries title to lands beyon the boundaries by the prescription in the deed of convenuecan only be nequired by thirty years' possession. Chalifour v. Parent, 21 C. L. T. 332, 31 S. C. R. 234.

Paul v. Paul (1910), 12 Que. P. R. 151.

Exchange of lands-Change of boundary line-Executed agreement-Removal of fence - Enforcement against successors in title - Deed - Mistake in description,] -The predecessors in title of the plaintiff and defendant, for the purpose of "squaring" their respective lots of land, entered into an oral agreement to make a change in the direction of the boundary line between them, and to exchange the triangular pieces of land lying between the old line and the new, The arrangement so entered into was completed by the erection of a new fence on the substituted line, and by the making of improvements. By an inadvertence in drawing the plaintiff's deed, the original instead of the amended description was followed: - Held, that both the plaintiff and defendant were bound by the arrangement entered into by their predecessors in title; that the defendant had acquired equitable rights which the Court would protect; and that, irrespective of the Statute of Limitations, the fact that, at the time of the conveyance to the plaintiff, the land claimed was in the adverse possession of another party, was sufficient to prevent her from recovering. Holesworth v. Fitch, 37 N. S. R. 143.

Gift of land — Passession — Exclesive occupation for 30 perers—Acts of onercable, 1—A gift of land by a father to his son, accompanied by actual delivery of pessession, and followed by a continuous and exclusive possession by the son extending over a period of 20 years, confers a title upon the son under the Statute of Limitations, which will be bound by a judgment recovered against him, and will pass to the purchaser at a sheriff's sale.—The operation of the statute will not be suspended by acts of the father, such as the pasturing of sheep and the occasional cutting of fire wood, where the acts are done with the assent of the son and not with the intention of interfering with the possession, or in the way of rental for the property. Grant to uses - Deed of appointment Intervening adverse possession. ]-The purchaser of land in 1870 had it conveyed by the vendor to grantees named by him, to hold to such uses as the purchaser should by deed or will appoint, and, in default of and entil appointment, to the use of the grantees The purchaser put his mother in possession of the land, and she remained in possession till her death in 1878, her two daughters, the defendants, living with her, and they after her death continued in possession down to 1897, no rent having been paid, nor any acknowledgement of title made. In 1892 the purcuted a deed of appointment in favour of his solicitor, who, on the following day, conveyed to him in fee simple. He died in 1804, having devised the land to the plaintiffs :-Held, that the grantees to uses took an estate in fee simple, which was barred before the execution of the deed of appointment, and that that deed did not give a new starting point to the statute, the estate appointed not being, within the meaning of the statute, a future estate coming into existence at the a future estate conting into existence time of the exercise of the power. Interruption of prescription—Action—Want of jurisdiction—Transfer to another district.]—There is no interruption of prescription by an action when the service of process is set uside; but the transfer of the action to another district for want of jurisdiction does not prevent the action being an interruption of prescription, Grenier v. Connally, 7 Que. P. R. 184.

Thereafter Finley built on the lands a row of 4 houses, one of which, into possession of about 1st November, 1875, as tenant of Finley, at a rental of $150 a year. . . . Joyce had been tenant of Finley in another house for some years. . . He had fallen much in arrear for the rent. Mortgage Interest — Default — Acceleration.]—Under a mortgage containing the statutory provision that in default of the payment of the interest the principal shall become payable, default in payment of interest has the effect of making the principal payable as if the time for payment had fully come, and a right of action therefor then arises, and the Statute of Limitations then begins to run. Judgment of Street, J., 6 O. L. R. 247, 2 O. W. R. 623, affirmed. McFadden v. Brandon, 24 C. L. T. 393, 8 O. L. R. 610, 4 O. W. R. 349.

Mortgage - Payment of insurance premium — Interest — Bond — Absentee.]—
J. G. borrowed money from C. in 1877, and gave as security therefor his own bond and a mortgage made by A. G. An action on the bond and for foreclosure and ejectment in respect of the mortgaged premises was begun in 1900. The last payment of intersext on the bond and morigage had been made in 1879, and no payment of principal was ever made. The insurance clause in the mortgage was in the usual terms, and con-cluded as follows: "And in default thereof that the said (mortgagee), his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, shall and tors, administrators, and assigns, shall and may as required, effect, renew, and continue such insurance, and charge all payments made for or in respect thereof, with interest after the rate aforesaid, upon the said mori-gaged premises." On the 5th September, 1883, B., the mortgagee's agent, paid to an insurance company $5, being the premium due on the 12th February, 1883, on a policy of fire insurance covering the premises, and charged the same to A. G., who in January, 1887, repaid it to B. There was no insur-ance on the property when this policy was taken out, nor was there any other insurance afterwards:-Held, that, when B. paid the $5, it became, under the terms of the mortgage, a part of the principal, and as such a charge on the land, and the subsequent payment by A. G. was a payment on account of principe, within twenty years, and it was not necessary for the mortgage and it was not necessary for the morigage to do any act indicating an intention to add it to the principal. 2. That the plaintiffs were entitled to only six years' interest. 3. As C. was not in the province when the right of action accrued on the bond, he was entitled to the additional period allowed by s. 25 of R. S. N. S. c. 112 for one absent. Cogswell v. Grant, 21 C. L. T. 351.

Mortgage — Payments on — Insurance premium — Entrics in books—Acknowledgments in utiling — Remedy on bond—Absorbee, — A mortgage and bond given by G. to C. to secure the repayment of a sum of money were dated the 7th January, 1877. The last payment of interest was made in September, 1879. C. was absent from the province when the mortgage and bond were given, and did not return until 1880. The plaintiffs, as executors of C., on the 30th June, 1990, brought two actions; (1) to foresteen the mortgage and to recover the amount of the control of vision, in terms, making the advance a part of the principal sum secured by the mortgage -Held, that the effect of the provision was merely to make the advance a lien upon the land for its payment with interest, and was only in the nature of a further charge or additional mortgage. The repayment by the mortgagor of the amount advanced was not such a payment on account of the principal sum secured as would take the case out of the Statute of Limitations. An entry in the books of the solicitor for the mortgagee shewing the payment of the amount advanced for insurance, and the subsequent repayment of the amount, was not sufficient evidence of an advance by and repayment to the mortgages, such entries being consistent with the view that the solicitor advanced the money on his own account on the credit of the mortgagor, Renewal receipts for premiums of insurance, taken in connection with a clause in the policy making the loss, if any, payable to the mortgagee, were not acknowledgments in writing within s. 21 of the statute.—Held. also, following Sutton v, Sutton, 22 Ch. D. 511, and Steward v, England. [1895] 2 Ch. 820. that the limitation imposed by s. 21 of the Act applied as well to the remedy on the bond as to that under the mortgage against the land. Cogswell v. Cemetery -R. S. O. I was the 98, block Palmersmicipality of 9 of s. O. 1897. c. 223, s. 577. By deed, dated the 26th August, 1885, the defendant municipality conveyed to the plaintiff lot 98, habendum " to her and her heirs and assigns to and for her and their sole and only use forever." There were no other terms in the deed. In June, 1888, the defendant municipality caused the body to be removed from lot 98 and buried in some lot, now unknown, and sold lot 98 to the defendant H., whose deceased wife was buried in it on the 20th of that month, and the defendants, by deed dated the 19th June, 1888, similar in terms to that given to the plaintiff, conveyed the lot to H., who in June, 1889, erected a monument and put up an iron fence, both of which still remained. This action was brought for damages for trespass and removal of the body of the plaintiff's husband, for a declaration of title, and a mandamus to compel the defendants to remove the body of the wife of the defendant H. and to replace the body of J. At the trial, it having appeared impossible to discover the whereabouts of the body of the deceased J., the relief sought by mandamus was abandoned, the defendants undertaking to supply the plaintiff with another lot :-Held, assuming the deed to the plaintiff to be valid, and that it passed the fee, that the causes of action, were barred by the Statute of Limitations, the trespass having been committed more than six years before action, and the defendant H. having peen in possession for more than ten years since his erection of for more than cen years since its executed of the monument and the iron fence, which, within the authorities, were acts of owner-ship.—Quarc, as to the validity of both deeds under the statute (R. S. O. c. 223), because they were simply conveyances in fee, without limitation or restriction, and therefore in violation of its provisions. Sternson v. Town of Palmerston & Hyndman. 25 C. L. T. 147.

Nature of possession — Acts of our-crahin, —The acts relied on in support of a claim to title by possession were that the claimant had sold the timber off the land in question; had afterwards cleared it, and had sowed and harvested one crop of wheat; had then for some years taken hay from it; and had then used it as pasture land. The land was not wholly enclosed, one end being bounded by a marsh, and through this marsh cuttle could and did stray into it:—Held, that there had not been such possession as snecessary to bar the right of the true owner. McIntyre v. Thompson, 21 C. L. T. 109, 1 O. L. R. 163.

Damages assessed at $50, and costs allowed plaintiffs.—Court of Appeal held, that in view of all the circumstances of the case, and of the fact that the paper title was not questioned, judgment of Boyd, C., affirmed.—Per Garrow, J.A., that even where the use of land originates in a trespans, the Statute of Limitations does not run unless the possession is actual content of the content of the possession is actual content of the content o

Parent and child-Tenancy at will-Right of entry-Commencement of statute-Carctakers-Entry by consent - Assessment -Agreement-Concealment of facts-Family arrangement - Will - Devise - Charge -Election-Mistake. |- In 1879 the defendant was put by his father in possession of a farm of which the title was in the father, who said he had bought it for the son. The defendant continued in possession until his father's death in 1900, occupying for his own benefit, taking the profits, paying no rent, and giv-ing no acknowledgment of title; he also made improvements at his own expense. There was no evidence that the defendant was a caretaker or servant:—Held, that the father's title was extinguished before his death by the Real Property Limitation Act. 'The defendant became upon his entry a tenant at will, and that tenancy never having in fact been determined, the father's right of entry first accrued at the expiration of one year, when the defendant became a tenant at sufferance. The effect of s. 5 s.-s. 7, of R. S. O. c. 133. is that it is for the purposes of the statute only that the tenancy at will is to be deemed determined at the expiration of a year. But there was no entry by the father sufficient to prevent the running of the statute; a visit to the son, not being against his consent, would not be such an entry. The assessment of both father and son in 1882, at the request of the son, as freeholders of the farm, was not evidence of a new tenancy at will. Doe d. Bennett v. Turner, 7 M. & W. 223, dis-tinguished. An agreement made a few days after the death of the father between the devisees and legatees under his will, whereby the defendant admitted that the father was the owner of the farm, and agreed to abide by the will, which devised the farm to him charged with a large sum, was not under the circumstances set out in the case, even when viewed as a family arrangement, binding on the defendant. Fane v. Fane, L. R. 20 Eq. 698, applied and followed.—Held, also, that if there was any election by the defendant to take under the will, it was made under a mistake as to the defendant's rights; and besides, if the agreement fell, what the de-fendant did which was relied on as being an election, being a part of the same transaction, must fall with it, McCowan v. Armstrong, 22 C. L. T. 55, 3 O. L. R. 100.

Possession — Extinctive prescription— Declaration of title—Adverse possession of portion of building - Injunction, ]-The title therein may be extinguished by possession for the statutory period.—In a two-storey wooden structure, the only entrance to the upstairs portion was from the street door on to a small landing and up to the stairs. a workshop since 1889, paying no rent, and he and his customers had also used the landing and staircase for access thereto. He ing and staircase for access thereto. He had not slept on the premises, and in sum-mer he usually closed up his workshop on Saturday, returning on Monday, and once went to New York for three weeks, leaving his goods on the premises and his brother in charge :- Held, that there had not time, and he had had a continuous and peaceextinguished their title to the upper floor as well as to the landing and staircase.—The owners notified the plaintiff that they inthe part of the building occupied by him. the plaintiff brought this action for a for an injunction :- Held, that the plaintiff should be left where the statute had placed him, and it was not a case in which to give him a declaration of ownership; but that he had a right as against the defendants to the possession and enjoyment of the portions of the building mentioned, with which the defendants could not interfere, and was entitled to the injunction. Iredate v. Loudon. Robberg and the injunction, Iredate v. Loudon, 8 O. W. R. 963, 14 O. L. R. 17.—An appeal from the above decision of Mahee, J., was allowed by the Court of Appeal and action costs.-Held, that it is very doubtful if the Statute of Limitations is applicable to pos session of an upper room or flat in a building, but at any rate the plaintiff was not entitled to annex to what he might acquire by force of the statute any further right or implied obligation of support; and it is doubtful if he could acquire easement of support even by a possession of 20 years. Iredale v. Loudon, 10 O. W. R. 725, 15 O. L. R. 286.

Possession — Title.] — In 1821 M, obtained a grant of land from the Crown, and in 1823 permitted his eldest son to enter into possession. The latter built and lived on the land and cultivated a large portion of it for more than ten years, when he removed to a place a few miles distant, after which he pastured cattle on it and put up fences from time to time. His father died before he left the land. In 1875 he decided the land by different conveyances the till 1875, and by different conveyances the till the possession of the younger children of M, gave a deed to B, who proceeded to cut timber from it. In an action of trespuss by P,:—Held, that the jury at the trial were justified in finding that the eldest son of M. had the sole and exclusive possession of the land for 20 years before 1870, and that his possession had ripened into title. If not, the deed to his one in 1870 gave them exclusive possession, and, if they had not a perfect titlen, they had twenty years after, in 1800 Bentley v, Peppard, 23 C. L. T. 212, 33 S. C. R. 444.

Possession as against mortgagee Foreclosure decree, ]-In an action for posunder a sheriff's deed made under direction of the Court in foreclosure proceedings, and dated 23rd July, 1896. The defendant relial upon the Statute of Limitations, and gave evidence of more than twenty years' passes sion of the land in dispute without payment of rent or acknowledgment of title It and pearing that the defendant went into possession at a date subsequent to the date of the mortgage under which the plaintiff claimed:—Held, that the defendant could not It is enacted by the Statute of Limitations, R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 167, s. 23, that "any gage of land may make an entry or bring an action to recover such land at any time within twenty years next after the last paysecured by such mortgage, although more time at which the right to make such entry of the section quoted .- Held, also, that a third party could not, by a possession of the provisions of the statute, and that plaintiff's title could not be defeated by defendto be of a more definite kind than was disclosed by the evidence. Archibald v. Laudor, 35 N. S. R. 48.

Possession by mortgagor — Devise of life interest by mortgagore to mortgagor Election. — In 1862 J. M. conveyed land to W. by a deed which, although absolute in form, was intended to operate by way of mortgage, as security for a debt due from the grantor to the grantee. The last will of W., ande seveneteen years after the date of the deed, directed that the land in question should not be sold during the lifetime of M. M., the wife of J. M., and that if, at any time before the death of M. M., the grantor, J. M., should remay the amount of his indebtedness with interest, then the property should be reconveyed, &c. W. died in July, 1881, and M. M. died in February, 1993, laxing continued in possession of the land down to the time of her death:—Held, notwithstanding the clause in the will of W. restraining action brought by death of M. M., the Cover possession of the land, was barred by the Statute of Limitations, Whitman v. Hiltz, 30 N. S. R. 220, 1 E. L. R. 83

A party who claims a title to property by 30 years prescription can rely only on his own possession, or on his own and that of anterior measurements of the property in the nature of a demise.—When a piece of land is set apart or granted by the Crown as a site for a town, any part of it that becomes unfit or useless for the purpose (e.g., by submersion), reverts to the Crown. Judgment in Q. R. 30 S. C. 143 reversed. Chicoutimi Pulp Co. v. The King and Price, 16 Que. K. B. 142.

Possession of Crown lands — Bar to Crown after 60 years. 1—A person in possession of Grown lands under a license obtained for valuable consideration, may impose the invasion of his right by the Crown in the same manner as he could against any other person, and such a possession during more than sixty years is a complete bur to the claim of the Crown, Judgment of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland affirmed. Atty-Gen. for Nfd. v. Cuddily (1836), C. R. 1 A. C. 8.

Possession of Crown lands—Nullum tempus accurit regit—When any portion of the public domain of the Crown is demised to a public corporation in trust, they hold it independently, and not as agents of the Crown. Hence, they have the power to alienate it, provided they do so in conformity with the purposes of the trust, and when thus fallen into the private domain, it is taken out of the operation of the rule nullum tempus accurrit regi, and the law of acquisition by positive prescription applies to it, initiation, by 10 years, of the right of action for rescission of the alienation. C. 12/5.]—In arriving at a decision in possessory action, the Judge should only consider the material fact of the disturbance of which the plaintiff complains; having but the actual fact of possession to determine, he should refuse to consider, as useless, means of proof which, in the end, would have for effect simply to establish possession.—The Judge should grant acte to plaintiff of the defendant's admission and by the conclusions of his judgment maintain the plaintiff's possession.—Recognition of the plaintiff's possession disposes of all the other means of defence raised against plaintiff's action. Paul v. Paul (1910), 16 R. de J. 432; 16 R. L. n. s. 373.

Possessory action — Petitory, I—There is ground for a petitory action when the possessor is simply disturbed in his possession without being deprived of it. The action for repossession lies when the possessor is deprived of his right by violence. Differing in this respect from the case of a petitory action, it is not necessary for the plaintiff in an action for repossession to have possession uniting all the requirements of the articles referred to below, it is sufficient to have actual and material possession, so long as it is peaceable and public. A petitory action having for its sole object either the putting an end to the disturbance or the repossession of the property, it is quite immaterial whether the possession has been in good or bad faith. Although the petitory action does not depend upon the titles the parties may have, nor upon their rights of ownership, still the Coar, may admit of their being filed as evidence to add in establishing the fact of possession of the land in dispute.—C. P. 1664; C. C. 2192, 2193. Conture v. Brandlette, 16 R. L. n. s. 46.

—Payment of taxes is not a payment of rent such as will prevent the statute running in favour of the person in possession of land. P., an employee of defendant, was allowed to take possession of some property in 1870. occupying in part payment for his services, and agreement to pay taxes. From 1874 D. was assessed as owner. About 1888 D. quit working for defendant, be remained in possession until his death in 1890, dying intestate and leaving an estate worth less than $1,000. D.'s widow remained in possession until 1902. Shortly after D.'s death she conveyed all her interest to the plaintiff:—Held, plaintiff's title good. Bowman v. Wate, 315 O. W. R. 4815.

A right of way may be acquired although the dominant tenement is not contiguous to the servient tenement. Guthrie v, Can. Pac. Rw. Co., 20 C. L. T. 56, 27 A. R. 64.

Room in building - Adverse possession — Incidental rights — Implied grant— License or easement. 1 - Possession of an upper room in a building supported entirely by portions of the storey beneath may ripen into title thereto under the provisions of the Statute of Limitations.—I., one of several owners of land with a building thereon, sold his interest to a co-owner, and afterwards occupied a room in said building as tenant, for his business. The room was on the second storey, and inside the street door was a landing leading to a swarth was a landing leading to a which it was reached. I, had the only which this street door, and all key provided for this street door, and all the whon leaving at night. He landing leading to a staircase, by paid rent for the room at first, and then remained in possession without paying rent for 12 years. The annual tax bills for the whole premises were generally, during that period, left in the room he occupied, and were sent by him to the managing owner, who paid the amounts. In an action to restrain the owners from interfering with his possession of said room and its appurtenances:-Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 15 O. L. R. 286, 10 O. W. R. 725, and restoring with a modification that of the trial Judge, 14 O. L. R. 17. 8 O. W. R. 963, Idington and Maclennan, JJ., dissenting, that I. had acquired a title under the Statute of Limitations to said room and to so much of the structure as rested on the soil to which he had acquired rested of the soft to which he had acquired title:—Held, per Davies, J., that he had also acquired a proprietary right to the staircase and the portions of the building supporting said room. — Per Fizpatrick. C.J., and Duff, J., that the Statute of Limitations does not, as against the party dispossessed, annex to a title acquired by posses sion incidents resting on the implication of a grant. I. had, therefore, acquired no rights in the supports.—Per Idington and Maclennan, JJ., that the use of the landing and staircase was, at most, an easement, and must continue for 20 years to produce the statutory title, and to give title to the supports there would have to be actual possession, which was not the case here. W. continued to reside on the remainder until the end of 1846, when he removed and subsequently died. T., sister to R. W., sought to recover the farm on the ground that he had acquired a title by possession: — Held (Peters, J.), that W. W. was in possession until May, 1806, when he conveyed to K.. and the statute did not begin to run until then.—That K. being a resident abroad, the presumption is, in absence of evidence to the contrary, that he remained there and that the disability of absence was not removed and that, therefore, he or those claiming un-der him would not be barred until the lease of 40 years, and as O., entered in 1842, R. Tenancy—Acquiring a new title—Acts in-consistent with the right of joint tenancy.]— The universal legatee of a joint tenancy who has letter of administration of the goods registered along with a description of the real estate to guard his title, who from that date acted as the sole owner of the real estate for twelve years, administers it and receives all the fruits and pays all the charge and sells the timber cut and sells a part of the real estate, does so many acts inconsist-ent with the right of the original joint tenants and works in this way a conversion of title to such an extent as to acquire the exclusive beneficial possession of the real estate. Hence he has a cause of action against those who disturb him in his possession. Danish v. Thibault (1909), 36 Que. S. C.

Tenant at will — Devise for life to ten-ant upon condition.]—A testator, dying in 1873, devised land of which his brother had been in possession since 1848 to his (the testator's) son after the death of his brother to whom he devised a life estate, "on condition that he neither sells nor rents the same without consent in writing of my son." The brother continued in possession, and on the 1st April, 1895, leased the land (with-out consent) for one year. The plaintiffs, claiming under the son, sought to recover possession from the devisee of the brother, possession from the devisee of the brother, by an action begun on the 29th May, 1905: —Held, that the brother, having openly set at naught the condition of the will, should not be presumed to have accepted the de-vise, and the Real Property Limitation Act was a bar to the action,-Semble, upon the evidence, that the brother went into possesevidence, that the brother well into possession as tenant at will, and that the statute had run in his favour before the death of the testator. — Judgment of Falconbridge, C.J., affirmed. Cobean v. Elliott, 11 O. L. R. 395, 7 O. W. R. 13, 495.

Tenants in common - Death of co-Tenants in common — Death of co-tenant—Adverse possession by survivor.]— Land was conveyed in fee to two brothers as tenants in common. One brother died on the 9th May, 1876, intestate, leaving him surviving his co-tenant, his mother, and three sisters, of whom the plaintiff was The mother died on the 5th September, The surviving brother had from the time of his brother's death until his own time of his proher's death into his own death on the 8th November, 1896, exclusive possession and use of the land, and the receipt of the rents and profits therefrom without accounting. He and his sisters lived together on premises situated elsewhere until his marriage in 1890. He always con-tributed to their support, but the contributions were not meant, and were not underbuttons were not meant, and were not understood, to be a share to the sisters in the rents and profits of the land. In a suit commenced on the 21st September, 1899, by the plaintiff for the partition of the land; -Held, that the plaintiff's title was extinguished by C. S. N. B. c. 84, s. 13. Ramsay, Ramsay, 21 C. Tenants in common - Exclusive possession—Onus — Pleading—Partition—Occupation—Improvements.] — In an action for damages for trespass to land, the defendant justified under his wife, who was alleged to be a tenant in common with the plaintiffs of the locus.—The land in question was originally granted to A. B., through whom both parties claimed. It was agreed that the only issue for trial was whether the title of the defendant's wife, as tenant in common, was barred by the Statute of Limitations: was barred by the statute of landau-Held, that the burden was on the plain-tiffs of establishing exclusive possession of the common lands for a period of 20 years, and that, in the absence of such evidence, the defendant must succeed.—Where the defendant, by the erection of a house on the land held in common, exceeded his rights, taking possession of a piece of the land to the exclusion of plaintiffs and other tenants in common, but no claim as to this was set up in the pleadings or on the trial: -Held, that the defendant's possession could not be adjudicated upon in the action, but must be raised in partition proceedings, when the defendant could be protected as to his occupation and improvements. Boudroit v. Sampson, 3 E. L. R. 219, 41 N. S. R. 493.

Title - Cancellation of deed - Cloud-Plan and survey-Acts of ownership-State of nature-Fences-Commencement of statutory period-Knowledge of true owner.]-The plaintiff claimed cancellation of a deed as a cloud on his title to 14 acres of land. and an injunction and damages in respect of trespass: -Held, upon an examination of the defendant's title deeds, that they did not in fact convey the 14 acres, nor profess to do so, and the plaintiff was not entitled to cancellation of the deed. Upon the evidence, the plaintiff had established his proper title to the 14 acres, and had sufficiently proved the correctness of a survey and plan shewing that the 14 acres were outside the land covered by the defendant's title deeds. The 14 acres had never been built upon, or cleared, or cultivated, or resided upon. The defendant relied upon the building of a brush fence along the south limit in 1880, by his predecessor in title. At that time, the title was still in the heirs of the patentee, who had never taken possession:—Held, that the building of the fence was of no significance as an act of ownership. Being built on the land while it belonged to the heirs of the patentee, it became their pro-perty, and the plaintiff having become the owner, and having entered in 1888, before the statutory period had run, it became his property absolutely. Acts done since 1888, such as cutting and removing wood, and pasturing cattle, being intermittent and isolated. were merely occasional acts of trespass and insufficient to constitute possession of the kind required by the statute to bar the true Semble, also, that the land being in a state of nature, and there being no evidence that the grantee of the Crown, or his heirs or assigns, had taken actual possesheirs or assigns, had taken actual posses-ston, by residing upon or cultivating any portion thereof, until the plaintiff acquired the title of the heirs in J887, or that they or any of them had any knowledge before that date of the land having been in the actual possession of the defendant or of actual possession of the defendant or a large of the land the property of the condefendant's acts amounted to possession, he could not claim to have acquired a title to it, for in such a case time runs from knowledge for in such a case time runs from knowledge by the true owner of the entry on his land, and must have run for 20 years to bar his title. Judgment of Teetzel, J., 2 O. W. R. 486, reversed. Reynolds v. Trivett, 24 C. L. T. 305, 7 O. L. R. 623, 3 O. W. R. 463.

M. with the other tile deeds on conveyance of the land to him, and it was received in evidence as an ancient document relating to the title and coming from proper custody. It was not executed by the lessees, and no counterpart was proved to be in exstance:—Held, that it was properly admitted in evidence. Dods v. McDonald, 25 C. L. T. 117, 36 S. C. R. 231.

Title by adverse possession-Evidence —Claim of wife living with husband—real Property Act—Issue—Amendment — Indulgence. ]-1. A party asserting a title to land by adverse possession should prove it most clearly, and, although there is no statutory requirement that the evidence of such party and members of his family must be correborated, it would be unsafe, unless such evidence appears to be correct beyond reasonable doubt, to hold that a title by possession has been gained in the absence of strong additional evidence by disinterested wit-nesses.—2. When a husband and wife are living together, the possession of any property on which they are living or which is occupied by them must ordinarily be attributed to the husband as the head of the family, and the wife cannot acquire title to the property for herself by length of possession under the Real Property Limitation Act, R. Title by possession to undivided little by possession to undivided half of lot — Husband and wife—Joint occupancy — Rights of husband surviving wife—Declaration of title—Rights of true owner.]—On and after 1st March, 1872, defect. fendant Beaque Ruport and one Adam Ruport were the owners as tenants in common ing 50 acres, and Adam Ruport alone was in possession. He died on 30th March, 1872 having by his will devised his undivided half to his wife Caroline Ruport for life. He made no disposition of the remainder, and dided without issue; consequently the remainder descended to his father. Levi Ruport, After Adam's death his widow continued in possession of the whole parcel. On 4th March, 1873, she intermarried with plaintift, and they continued in sole possession until 24th December, 1887, when they conveyed the south half of the south-west quarter to defendant Beaque Ruport, who entered into possession thereof. Plaintiff and his wife continued in possession of the whole of the north-west quarter during their joint lives. On 3rd March, 1903, plaintid's wife died without issue, and plaintif has remained in possession of the whole. Levi Ruport died in the year 1885, leaving a will whereby he devised his undivided estate in remainder to defendant Beaque Ruport. Upon the death of plaintiff's wife, defendant Beaque Ruport became entitled, as devisee of his father, to the undivided one-half of which she was tenant for life, and he claimed that he was the owner of the other undivided half, notwithstanding the possession commencing with that of plaintiff's wife from 3)th March, 1872, and continuing until her death on 3rd March, 1963;—Held, Macienan and Maclaren, JJ.A., dissenting, that the plaintiff's marriage was after the coming into force of the Married Women's Property Act, 1872. Ills wife was in sole possession, and, as against defendant Beaque Ruport's un-divided half, the Statute of Limitations had begun to run in her favour. The possession was in her and it was such as was capable was in her and it was such as was capable of ripening into a title under the statute as against Beaque Ruport. It was an in-terest in real estate which was capable of transmission by will or by transfer inter-views. As against everybody but Beaque Ruport she was the owner in fee. This interest in real estate was secured to her on her marriage by virtue of the 1st section of the Marriage Women's Property Act, 1872. She owned it at the time of her marriage, and it was hers to be held and enjoyed for her separate use free from any estate or claim of plaintiff. The marriage did not disturb her right of interest in Neither could her husband's possession, for she was in possession at the same time. possession which she had begun against Beaque was continued by her notwithstanding her coverture. She made no assignment or transfer of her rights or interests or any part of them to plaintiff. Plaintiff could not become seised or entitled jointly with his wife, and thus acquire some or ner rights, simply because they lived together on the land, any more than he could thus acquire her estate in other lands owned by her at the time of the marriage. But for the fact that there was a lawful marriage, the nature of plaintiff's possession resembles that of the person who had gone through the eeremony with the wife of plaintiff in McArthur v. Egleson, 43 U. C. R. 406, 3 A. and during her lifetime. The plaintiff was not entitled to a declaration of title, but he could not be dispossessed by the defendant. Myers v. Ruport, 4 O. W. P. went into possession under the ticket of lot R. into possession under the ticket of lot R. into the secribing it by metes and bounds, and stating that it contained 300 acres, more or less, In 1828 the Crown, having ascertained that there were not 200 acres between lots A. and it by metes and bounds, and stating that it contained 134 acres, more or less. The plain-tiff acquired the title to lot B. by mesne conveyances from P., referring to the grant and describing the lot by metes and bounds as therein described. In an action of tres-pass by the plaintiff against the defendant, the successor in title of lot A., where the question in dispute was the location of the eastern boundary of lot A. and the western boundary of lot B.:—Held, per Landry, Bar-ker, and McLeod, JJ., that, as the title of the plaintiff was by conveyances describing the lot by metes and bounds as given in the grant, the possession of her predecessors in title under the ticket of possession, or otherwise outside of the bounds of the grant. would not enure to her benefit, and the ticket of possession was improperly received ticket of possession was improperly received as evidence of either title or possession.— Per Tuck, C.J., and Hanington, J., that, as the plaintiff was claiming the land in dispute by continuous and exclusive possession for the statutory period, the ticket of possession was some evidence of the extent of the possession, and was properly received.—Per Tuck, C.J.:—A copy of a will certified by the deputy registrar of probate after the death of the registrar, and during a vacancy in the office, was properly received in evidence. Unregistered deed - Subsequent registered mortgage for value without notice-Right of entry—Registry Act—Real Property Limitation Act.]—The defendant was owner in fee simple in possession of a farm, and being about to marry the co-defendant, desired to convey to him an undivided one half share thereof, so that they might become tenants in common. She consulted a local unlicensed conveyancer, who prepared a conveyance to himself and a re-conveyance to the two defendants, as tenants in common. The conveyances were left with him for registration, He registered the conveyance to himself, but fraudulently omitted to register the re-conveyance. The defendants con-tinued in possession, but the conveyancer without their knowledge, mortgaged their farm to the plaintiffs, who brought action to enforce their mortgage: - Held, that under the Registry Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 136), the re-conveyance was void against the plain-tiffs, who had advanced their money without notice .- Held, also, that the right of entry did not accrue until the mortgage was registered, and the Statute of Limitations (R. S. O. 1897, c. 133), was not a defence to the plaintiffs' claim, the writ having been issued within the period of the limitation. Judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada. 36 S. C. Wild land — Boundary.—Entry—Occupation—Evidence of possession—Survey.]— In an action of trespass the dispute was as to the ownership of a strip of land about 53 links in width, which the plaintiff claimed as part of his lot, 16, and the defendants as part of theirs, 17, or if not, as having become theirs by the operation of the Statute of Limitations. Neither of the lots had ever been cleared or cultivated, and no fence been cleared or cultivated, and no fence separating them had ever been built. Both parties had cut timber, and that was the only use that had ever been made of either to :—Held, that the statute did not apply: to render it applicable it would be necessary to shew, if not an entry and cultivation of some part of the land, at least an entry and actual occupation. Semble, that, even if the statute applied, there was not, upon the facts, that clear and unequivocal evidence of possession by the defendants of the strip in dispute which was necessary to bar the right of the control of the strip in the statute applied. The strip is the strip in the strip in

Account - Claim against estate of deceased person-Corroboration-Special agreement—Running account—Terms of credit— Demand—Fraud upon creditors—Pleading.]
—The plaintiff claimed from the executors of his father-in-law payment of a running account for work done and goods supplied to the testator from 1888 till his death in 1895. No demand for payment was ever made upon the deceased, nor was any account rendered until one was sent in to the defendants on the 16th May, 1895. This action was begun on the 4th May, 1901. The plaintiff and his wife gave evidence of an agreement with the deceased that the plaintiff should keep the account separate from his other accounts, that he should try, if possible, to get on without the money, and to leave it in the hands of the deceased, who said he would save it for the plaintiff and put it in a house for him or his wife. The plaintiff did keep the account in separate books, which were produced, as also the general books. A witness said that the deceased told him about a year and a half before his death that he had requested the plaintiff to keep the account between them in a little book at home, not in the regular day book, so that, if anything happened, the account would not go into the wholesale men. and that he intended to buy a house for the plaintiff's wife. Similar evidence, although less distinctly, was given by another witness: —Held, that there was sufficient corrobora-tion of the plaintiff's statement:—Held, also. that the plaintiff was not obliged to prove a definite term for which credit was given; the agreement was in effect one that the testator was to hold the money at least until the plaintiff demanded it; and, as there was no demand before the 16th May, 1895, the action was in time :-Held, also, that the agree ment was not one which offended against the Annuity Will — Charge on land— Arrears—Lunatic.]—By a will made in 1872, a testator who died in the same year devised land to two sons, "subject to the payment by my said two sons, of the sum of $200 per annum, for the benefit of my son Thomas Anson, which said sum, or annuity, or so much thereof as shall be reasonably necessary for the support and maintenance of my son Thomas Anson, shall be paid, yearly and every year for and during the natural life of my said son Thomas, to the person or persons who may be his guardian or guardians." The son Thomas Anson was of age at the time of the testator's death, but was of unsound mind, and he was declared a lunatic in 1898, and the plaintiffs were appointed committee of his person and estate. After the father's death, the son lived with his mother, to whom from time to time till February, 1889, payments were made on ac-count of the annuity:—Held, that the annuity was charged on the land; that it was, therefore, by virtue of s. 2 (3) of the Limitations Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 133, rent within the meaning of that Act; that the payments to the mother, who was the natural guardian, were good; and that the statute did not begin to run till the last of them were made; that apart from the question of dis-ability the right of action would have been barred at the expiration of ten years from that time; but that by ss. 43 and 44 the time therefore, an action brought in February, 1900, was in time; and that six years' arrears could be recovered. Judgment in 31 O. R. 534, 20 C. L. T. 120, affirmed. Trusts and Guarantee Co. v. Trusts Corporation of Ontario, 21 C. L. T. 373, 2 O. L. R. 97.

Assignment of debt — Sheriff s ale—Equitable assignment—Payment to stranger—Ratification.]—In Nova Scotia, book debts cannot be sold under execution, and he act of the execution debtor in allowing such sale does not constitute an equitable assignment of such debts to the purchaser. The purchaser received payment on account of a debt so sold, which, in a subsequent action by the creditor and others, was relied on to prevent the operation of the Statute of Limitations:—Held, that, though the creditor might be unable to deny the validity of the payment, he could not adopt it so as to obtain a right of action thereon, and the payment, having been made to a third party who was not his agent, did not interrupt the prescription. Foreign contract — Pleading.]—The plantiff should allege in his declaration all that is essential to the maintenance of the right of action which he asserts.—If his declaration discloses an action absolutely prescribed according to our law, he cannot, in reply to a plea of prescription, allege that his nection is governed by the law of a foreign country which does not recognise such prescription, even when the declaration discloses that the contract was made in that country. Shatutack v. Tyler, 16 Que. S. C. 401.

Goods sold and delivered — Division Court—Amendment of defence — Misleading particulars of claim.]—Action in a Division Court for the amount of an account for goods sold and delivered to the defendant by the plaintiffs. The particulars attached to the summons gave the dates of sale as in 1886, and the action was brought within six years from the earliest date given. The defendant entered a dispute note, but did not give notice of a defence of the Statute of Limitations. When the plaintiffs' books were produced at the trial, they shewed that the entries were all made in 1895, more than six years before action:—Held, that the defendants should have leave to amend by setting up the statute as a defence, and were entitled upon that defence to defeat the action. Mechan v. Berry, 22 C. L. T. 23T.

Judgment - Revivor-Time-Notice.] -In 1894 the plaintiff obtained ex parte (the defendant being out of the jurisdiction) an order reviving a judgment for the payment of money which he had recovered against the defendant in 1875, and allowing the entry of a suggestion on the judgment The plainroll, and the issue of execution. tiff entered the suggestion in 1894, and afterwards examined the defendant as a judgment debtor, whereupon the defendant made an offer of settlement, which was not accepted. The plaintiff died in 1895 and the defendant in 1899, after which the personal representative of the plaintiff obtained an order on præcipe reviving the action in his name as plaintiff and in that of the personal representative of the defendant as defendant: Held, that the last order should have been made on notice, but it was proper to treat an application to set it aside as a substanthe order should be confirmed. The order made in 1894 reviving the judgment should have been made on notice, under the Com-mon Law Procedure Act, then in force, but, under the circumstances of the defendant's absence from the country, his subsequent examination, and the attempted settlement, it was a valid and binding order.—Held. also, following Mason v. Johnston, 20 A. R. 412, that the judgment remained in force for twenty years, and the entry of the suggestion within that time was effectual to renew the time from which the statute begins to run. Money in Court — Payment out by mistake — Lapse of time—Restitution—Interest.]—Statutes of Limitation have relation only between subject and subject—the Crown cannot be bound by them. The Court is a public trustee as to all moneys and securities in its hands. Moneys in Court are in custodial legis—in this case tuntamount to custodia regis — and to such a fund and such a custodian the Statute of Limitations has no pertinence. Suitors and claimants are not barred by any lapse of time in their application for payment out of Court of moneys to which they are entitled, and reciprocally they should not be protected by lapse of time from making restitution if they have improperly or fraudulently received moneys from the Court to which they had no just claim; and an order was made order-mars, altitude after a period of Courteen cours, altitude after a period of course cours, altitude after a period of course course after a fundion of the course of the Courteen course after a fundion of the proper procedure. Nuisance — Injury to property by misuse of neighbouring premises — Starting point for period of limitation.]—The extinctive prescription of the remedy for the recovery of damage caused to an immovable by the injurious effect of chemical agents in use in an adjoining factory, begins at the moment of the arising of the right of action, and that right arises as soon as the injury manifests itself in an appreciable fashion. L'Huissier v. Brousseug, 33 Que. S. C. 345.

Overpayment of debt — Action to reconvergence access—Commercial debt—Period of prescription.]—Where by error a person in paying a commercial debt pays more than is due, the obligation to repay the excess creates a commercial debt; and, therefore, an action to recover the excess is prescribed by the lapse of five years. 8t. Payment of money - Order for - Instalments - Commencement of prescription. ]-The defendant had given to the plaintiff an order on the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company to receive $20 a month on his wages till the whole amount which he owed to the plaintiff should be paid. Subsequently he left the employ of the company, and thereby deprived the plaintiff of the benefit of the order. He contended that the whole balance due to the plaintiff was prescribed because more than five years had elapsed since he had left his employment :-Held, that the debtor cannot invoke against his creditor Art, 1092, C. C., so as to make it imperative on the latter to sue before the lapse of the term stipulated between them. It is optional on the part of the creditor to avail himself of that Article or not.—2. The prescription, in cases like this one, begins to run only on each instalment as it matures, according to the terms of the order or draft. Laliberté v. Gagnon, 16 Que. S. C. 292.

Personal injuries — Subsequent danages — Reservation of rights.]—The reserve, in a judgment awarding damages for bodily injuries, of the plantini's recourse for danages cesulting from the same accident subsequent to the judgment, has the effect of interrupting prescription, and therefore an action may be brought for the recovery of subsequent damages, although more than a year has elapsed since the date of the accident. Racicot v. Ferns, 17 Que. S. C. 337.

Personal injury — Second action — Right reserved.]—In 1895 the plaintiff sus-tained bodily injuries through negligence on the part of the city, and recovered judgment for $1,000 damages therefor, recourse being reserved for any further action she might have for future damages which might result from the same accident. On the 3rd December, 1897, she brought a second action for further damages said to have been ascer-tained since the institution of her first acrecovered $5,000 additional tion, and damages :- Held, that at the time the second action was brought any right that the plaintiff may have had was barred by the limita-tion declared in Art. 2262, C. C., which commenced to run from the day on which the right of action accrued; that the Courts should, of their own motion, take notice of prescriptions acquired in such cases, as provided by Art. 2188. C. C., and dismiss the action; that tacit renunciation of such acquired prescription cannot be presumed from the failure of the defendant to plead the limitation that the reservation in the first judgment did not constitute a judicial condemnation within the meaning of Art. 2265, C. C., for the purpose of interrupting prescription already acquired or causing a new prescription to begin; and that there could be no reservation of an action the right to be no reservation of an account the reservation which is absolutely denied by the provisions of the Civil Code. Such a reservation amounts merely to a declaration that, in a second action, such judgment could not be pleaded as chose jugée, provided the future damages so reserved did not appear to be included in the demand by the first action; and could have no effect after the expira-tion of one year. Montreal v. McGee, 21 C. L. T. 3, 30 S. C. R. 582.

Personal injury — Second action — Right renessed.] — The plaintiff was employed by the defendant as a stevedor. On the 29th September, 1805, he was injured by the 29th September, 1805, he was injured by a month later he broughened to five the second at month later he broughened to for $1,509 damages, alleging that he had suffered permanent injuries and that the accident was caused by the negligence of the defendant. On the 16th March, 1809, the plaintiff obtained judgment for $300 for damages sustained up to that date, the Court reserving the right of the plaintiff to bring another action for future damages. This judgment was satisfied by payment of the amount awarded. The present action, brought under the reserve contained in the first judgment, was for $4.700 additional damages. It was only commenced on the 12th October, 1899, more than a year after the date of the accident;

Principal and agent — Collection of rents — Agreement to account.] — Where the defendant received the rents of a property for a period of 25 years, without during that time accounting to the plaintiff, it was held that the right to an account was not burred by the lapse of time, the defendant having taken possession of the property under an agreement with the plaintiff, which had never been terminated, to hold the property for him and to account to him for it. Pick v. Edwards, 2 E. L. R. 232, 3 N. B. Eq. 410.

Principal and agent — Reformation of agent's account.] — An action for the reformation of an agent's account is prescribed by a period of five years. Grange v. Sauve, 5 Que. P. R. 100.

Promissory note - Acknowledgment -Interest. ]-After the expiration of six years from the making of certain promissory notes, the maker wrote to the payee's solicitor stating that he acknowledged his indebtedness on the notes so as to prevent the operation of the Statute of Limitations, and that in no event would it have made any difference, for, statute or no statute, the debt was one he would pay, if it took his last penny. He en-closed a letter to the payee himself, stating that he thereby begged to acknowledge his liability to him on the notes, and that the acknowledgment was made by him to prevent the running of the Statute of Limitations. The maker died a couple of years afterwards:—Held, that the claim was taken out of the operation of the statute, both as to principal and also the interest due, not only at the maturity of the notes, but also after maturity, by way of damages, Re Williams, 24 C. L. T. 91, 7 O. L. R. 156, 1, 0, W. R. 534, 2 O. W. R. 47, 3 O. W. R.

Promissory note — Acknowledgment— Promise to pay—Conditional promise.]—In an action upon promisory notes, the defendant pleaded the Statute of Limitations:— Held, that a letter written by the defendant to the plaintiff's solicitor, in answer to one from the solicitor demanding payment of the notes, in which the defendant wrote: "I am coming up in a week or two and will fix it ya all right," was a sufficient acknowledgment to prevent the statute running—Edmonds v. Goater, 21 L. J. Ch. 290, and Collins v. Stack, 1 H. & N. 605, followed—Another letter in which the defendant wrote that he had been looking for the money, and had not got it yet, but as soon as he got it, the plaintiff would get his, was regarded as a promise dependent upon a condition; and semble, that it would be insufficient as an acknowledgment. Judgment of Ryan, Co.C.J., affirmed. Egre v. McFarlane (1910), 14 W. L. R. 247.

Promissory note — Acknowledgment after period of prescription—Conditional renunciation.]—A promissory note signed by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff had been barred by the Statute of Limitations since 1897. In 1902 the defendant wrote to the plaintiff: "You ask me for money; at this moment I have none. I have bought land and paid all I had; but I am negotiating for the sale of my land and I will pay you as soon as I sell it." The plaintiff contending that this letter constituted a renunciation of the prescription acquired, sued the detection of the prescription acquired, sued the land:—Held, that this letter did not amount to a renunciation of the rights acquired, but only to a conditional offer to renounce the prescription acquired; and therefore the creditor, in order to acquire again the right acquired on the summary of action which he had lost, should have waited for the fullilment of the condition. Perrier v, Perrier, 25 Que, S. C. 183.

Promissory note — Acknowledgment in writing — Revival of liability — Agent of executor - Letter to third person-Admissibility.]-The executor of the will of one of the joint makers of a promissory note proved the will after the debt on the note as against the testator or his estate became barred by the Statute of Limitations. The will di be paid by his executors as soon as possible to the other joint maker of the note, who was primarily liable on it, and against whom it had been kept alive by payments, to enable him in Ontario "to do all things which ing and carrying out of the provisions the will-the executor having at this time no knowledge of the note:-Held, that a letter written by the surviving maker shortly after the execution of the power of attorney, even if in its terms sufficient, was not such an acknowledgment, within R. S. O. c. 140, s. 1, as would revive the liability after the exp ry of six years; for there was no trust created by the will for the payment of debts, nor was there any legal obligation on the part of the executor to pay statute-barred debts, and the surviving maker was not an agent "duly authorised" to exercise the discretion which an executor has to pay such debts. Three years later the executor wrote to the holder of the note to the effect that the holder ought to look to the surviving maker for payment, as he was now doing well .- Held, that this, though some recognition of the debt, was not sufficient—there must be such a recognition as amounts to a promise or undertaking to pay. Just before this action was brought to recover the amount of the note, the executor wrote to the palnitiffs' solicitors asking them not take any further steps till be could hear from the surviving maker; and to the latter he wrote: "The debt is owing, and they are anxious to get their estate settled up.—Held, insufficient as an acknowledgment, and that the letter to a third person—not the Boyes, as not admissible. Goodman v. Boyes, 17 A. R. 528, (ollowed. King v. Rogers, 20 C. L. 7, 209, 31 O. R. 573.

Promissory note — Action on — Absence decindant — Service of process by publication — Period of prescription expiring before second publication.]—The service upon an absence of the writ of summons in an action is not perfect and complete until there have been two publications in newspapers; a promissory note overdue for five years, when the five years expire between the dates of the two publications, is prescribed for all purposes of law. Gauthier v. Charlebois, 10 Que. P. R. G.

Promissory note — Collateral security by mortgage — Period of prescription—In-terest — Commencement of period — Action - Renunciation, |-Prescription of five years and not 30, applies to a promissory note, notwithstanding that part thereof was for money lent, for securing which hypothec was given. Interest on demand note runs from the date thereof. Prescription begins the date of demand of payment. Acknowledgments made by one party to a note interrupt prescription as to the others. Acknowledgments can be proved by the oath of one of the parties defendant. A transfer of property by one defendant to the plaintiff, though signed by the defendant before the the defendant that the consideration, whatever it was, was to be placed to the credit of the said note, is a "reconnaissance per écrit" at the date of the transfer, and sufficient to interrupt prescription. alone of one defendant is in itself enough to new promise to pay, clearly expressed, to acknowledgment of a debt is sufficient to interrupt prescription, while running, Bank of Ottawa v. McLean, 26 Que. S. C. 27.

Promissory note — Commencement of statutory period.) — The last day of grace upon a promissory note was the 19th September, 1884, on which day it was presented for payment and dishonoured:—Held, that an action thereon begun on the 19th September, 1900, was one day too late to save the Statute of Limitations, Sinclair v, Robson, 16 U. C. R. 211, followed in preference to Kennedy v, Thomas 1894 2 Q. B. 759. Bank of Toronto v, McBean, 21 C. L. T. 44.

Promissory note — Covenant in mortgage — Foreign lands — Sealed instrument —Foreign law — Foreign judgment—Jurisdiction — Defendant resident in territories—Subject of foreign state — Allegiance — Natural justice — Purchase by mortgages at judicial sale. Dakota Lumber Co. v. Rinderknecht (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 481, 2 W. L. R. 86, 275, Promissory note - Joint note-Statute of Limitations — Payments by one maker— Agency — Evidence of — Cos's, ] — Action upon a joint promissory note made by W. W. Greenwood, deceased, and his wife, defendant Mary J. Greenwood. The defence chiefly relied upon was that of the Statute of Limitations, in reply to which plaintiff proved several payments on account by W W. Greenwood within six years of the commencement of the action, and plaintil sought wood was entitled, and were made by her husband with her authority :- Held, that the consent, or that in making any of the payments the husband was acting as her agent ority to collect certain assets belonging to the wife, and was allowed by her to apply her agent so that by payments (out of money would be barred by the Statute of Limitspressly as his agent and by his authority: Creighton v. Allen, 26 U. C. R. 627. See also Paxton v. Smith, 18 O. R. 178. While the husband did make collections for the by him upon the note. It was clear that, of incumbered real estate, the equity of rein his hands to pay plaintiff. against defendant Mary J. Greenwood, dismissed. Harris v. Greenwood, 4 O. W. R. 140, 25 C. L. T. 72, 9 O. Promissory note—Payment on account —Conflict as to source of payment — Evidence — Inference, Gerolamy v, Cameros, 6 O. W. R 425.

Promissory notes — Acknowledgment in writing — Inference of promise to pay.]

—Held, that in order to take a case (in this case a claim upon promissory notes) out of the Statute of Limitations, there must be an acknowledgment or promise to pay, and where there is a clear acknowledgment a promise to pay will be inferred, but if such acknowledgment is coupled with words which prevent the promisement is no out of the v. Black, ?

of, the worlds "current year" mean the year in which the action is brought. When therefore, an assessment became due on the 24th March, 1898, an action to recover it brought and process served on the 5th February, 1902, was still within the delay, and had not become prescribed. Vannier v. Montreal, 15 Que. K. B. 479.

Sale of goods — Warranty—Fraud.]—
The defendant, who was a nurseryman, sold to the plaintiff a number of peach tree, giving a warranty that they sold to the plaintiff a number of peach tree, giving a warranty that they sold that this was a warranty on name."—Held, that this was a warranty that the trees were of the varieties contracted for, not that the fruit would be of those varieties; that, the trees not being of the varieties contracted for, the warranty was broken at the time of the sale; and that, in the absence of fraud, an action for damages for its breach brought more than six years after the sale was barred, although until the trees came into bearing shortly before the action it was impossible to tell that they were not of the varieties contracted for. Bogardus v. Wellington, 20 C. L. T. 388, 27 A. R. 530 ellington, 20 C. Santant 20

Simple contract debt - Conversion into specialty debt-Payment or acknowleg-ment of debt-Evidence of . Two promissory notes payable to a bank not having been paid, a trust deed was entered into, to which the defendant, the maker of the notes, the de-fendant's father, an agent of the bank as trustee, and the bank itself, were parties. The deed recited the defendant's indebtedness to the bank and also to his father, and that the father held certain lands as security therefor, and the father thereby conveyed the same to the trustee as security, in the first place for his indebtedness, and then for that of the bank, power being given to the trustee to sell the lands on one month's default in payment and notice in writing of the trustee's intention to sell. The deed contained an acedness, but there was no covenant by him to pay the same. In 1893, on the bank pressing by the defendant and the other heirs and next of kin of the father, who was then dead, on the understanding that the father's debt had been paid, whereby, after referring to the recitals in the deed of 1884, and reciting that the releases were given to save the expense of a sale, they released to the bank all their interest in the said lands, and subsequently

The plaintiff was entitled to a declaration of right only, and the Court declared that he was within his rights in making the payments before notice of the adverse claim; that the lis pendens did not affect the interest acquired by the plaintiff under his contract; and that the defendant company had a charge on the lands for the amount of purchase money unpaid. So long out the judgment in an action, the action is pending. Upon a contract for the sale of land, purchase price of which is payable by instalments, the vendor retains an interest in the land proportional to the amount of purchase money unpaid, which interest is capable of being affected by lis pendens,-Semble, generally a cause of action imperfect at the issue of the writ is not perfected. either at law or in equity, by subsequent events. Peck v. Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, 11 B. C. R. 215, 1 W. L. R. 302.

Cancellation of - Security-Speeding trial. |-On a summons to cancel lis pendens, tiffs could not succeed in the action, ordered that the lis pendens be cancelled on the applicants giving the nominal security of $1:-Held, that it was not a case for cancellation of the lis pendens, but that the plaintiffs should be put on terms to speed the action. Merrick v. Morrison, 7 B. C. R. 442.

$5,500 was realised by the bank from a sale of a portion of the lands or the timber thereon:—Held, that the effect of the deed of 1884 was not to convert the debt into a specialty debt, nor did the reference to the recitals in a deed of 1884 or the deed of 1803 to an acknowledgment of the debt; nor did of the interest, if any, which the defendant had in his father's estate, as one of his per-sonal representatives; nor did the receipt by the bank of the $5,500 constitute a payment by the defendant on account of the debt; so that no bar was created by the running of the Statute of Limitations, and it could, therefore, be validly set up by the defendant as a defence to an action brought by the bank as a generic of an action brought by the bank in 1902; Maclennan, J.A., dissenting, Judg-ment in 2 O. W. R. 332, affirmed. Bank of Montreal v. Lingham, 24 C. L. T. 123, 7 O. L. R. 164, 3 O. W. R. 182.

— Reference to another Referee.] — This mutter had been referred back to a local Master. Without taking further evidence he disagreed with the findings of the Court.
His report was set aside, and the case was remitted to another referee. Anderson v.
Ross. 13 O. W. R. 625:—

Held, on appeal, that the new referee had much exaggerated the amount of damages proved and the damages were fixed at $500. Ibid. (1910), 15 O. W. R. 240.

Resignation—Concurrent appointments.]—While an appeal from his report was pending a local Muster sent a letter of resignation to the Attorney-General's department, and, without any acceptance of this resignation, a commission was issued appointing another gentleman "a local Muster" for the county in question. Subsequently the appeal was allowed, and the report was referred back to "the Muster" for the county:—Hold, that there could not be two local Musters: that the action of the executive was equivalent to an acceptance of the resignation; and that the reference must proceed before the new the reference must proceed before the new Fleming v, Curry, 20 C. Property—Rights to finder—Third person—Master and servant—Property found by servant on master's premiers.]—The usefendant was a shop-keeper, and the plaintiff a salesman in the employment of the defendant in the shop. One day the plaintiff picked up from the floor of the shop a roll of bank-notes, and handed it to the defendant, who caused inquiry to be made for the owner, and put the notes in his till for safe-keeping. No claim was made, and the defendant kept the notes:

—Held, that the property in question was 'lost,' in the legal sense of the word; and in such a case, as against all other persons than the owner, the finder becomes the substantial owner of the thing found by him, and may maintain trover or other appropriate action to enforce such right of ownership. Bridges V, Hawkewsorth, 15 Jur, 1079, 21 L. J. Q. B. 75, and South Staffordshire Water Co. V. Sharman, [1886] 2 Q. B. 44, referred to. And the plaintiff was not, by reason of being in the employment of the defendant, deprived of his rights as a finder. McDoucell V. Ulster Bank, 00 Abb. L. Action by — Dismissal — Reservation — Costs.]—If the plaintif in an action is not in full possession of his mental faculties and is notoriously of unsound mind, and incapable of giving a valid consent to the suit begun, it will be dismissed (reserving rights), upon exception à la farme, without costs, Parizeau v. Belanger, 2 Que. P. R. 388.

Action by committee — Recovery of debt due to lunatio—Defendant rations quasition to the control of an interdiction for lunacy can only be demanded by the party himself or one of his relatives; an exception to the form raised by a debtor such by the committee of the interdict, demanding the dismissal of the action, on the ground of irregularities in the procedure in interdiction will be refused. Chevalier v. Nuan 9 Que. P. R. 98.

Appointment of committee—Security and undertaking — Practice. Re Simpson (B.C.), 7 W. L. R. 36.

Appointment of guardian — Married woman.—Capacity to act.]—Where a married woman, possessed of property in her own right and otherwise qualified, is appointed guardian of the person and estate of a person of unsound mind, the appointment will not be set aside on the sole ground of her standing as a married woman.—Since the Married Woman's Property Act, R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 112, many of the objections formerly urged against the appointment of a married woman as trustee have been swept away, and a married woman may now accept a trust by virtue of her power to contract as a feme sole. Re White, 42 N. S. R. 248, 4 E. L. R. 307.

Commitment — Documents required — Documents authentiques—Attack by "Pinscription de fausse."]—The documents required by Art. 3196, R. S. Q., for the confinement of the insune, although made underoath before a justice of the peace, are not authentic documents liable to be attacked by "Finscription de fausse." Rousseau v. Sisters of Charity, 27 Que. S. C. 106.

Commitment to asylum—Certificate of mayor—Texts to be shewn.]—The mayor of a municipality cannot be compelled to sign the certificate (form E) provided for by the statute concerning asylums for the insane, except upon sufficient proof that the person whose confinement in an asylum is sought has had his domicil in the municipality during at least 4 months, that he is insane or idiotic, and that he or the person bound by law to maintain him has or has not property available. Torrance v. Weed, 24 Que. S. C. 364.

Committee-Funds in hands of - Payment into Court—Reference — Report of Master — Revision of costs.]—The rule has for many years been that when the Court intervenes in respect to the property of persons not sui juris, the money shall not be left to private investment, but shall be general system of administration by which the interest will be punctually paid and the corpus will always be forthcoming when needed. The general rule to be observed by local officers, when it is advisable that the estate should be realised and turned into money, is, that the fund so realised shall be paid into Court; and when part of the estate is converted and part kept for the abode of a lunatic or otherwise, the scheme for dealing with the whole shall be reported to the Court, that proper directions may be given. In two cases where local Masters had retics, and made provision for the moneys of the estates being collected by the respective committees, and thereafter for their investment by the committees on securities of different kinds at their discretion, and in one case had taxed the costs and inserted the amount in the report :- Held, that it is imperative that the costs in lunacy matters be revised by the proper officer in Toronto; and that the moneys in the hands of the commitsale of the land must be forthwith paid into Court. Re Norris, Re Drope, 23 C. L. T. 49, 5 O. L. R. 99, 1 O. W. R. 817.

Committee of estate—Moneys advanced by committee on mortgage of hundic's lands —Accounting.]—The committee of a lunatic's estate expended money on the estate without authority of the Court and failed to pass accounts yearly:—Held, that the mere failure to account yearly should not ipso facto disentitle the committee to costs of accounting and other allowances in analogy to Rule 766. If there is a good excuse for not accounty yearly, as, e.g., the reasonable belief that the property had depreciated, or for some reason had become worth less than what had been paid upon it by the committee to clear it of claims of mortgages pressing for payment, and so a yearly accounting would be merely adding to the financial burden, that aspect should be considered by the official referetable of the country of the considered by the official referetion of the country of the country of the allowed if a case should be made sufficient to have obtained an order permitting the expenditure. Action against police officer - What constitutes arrest and imprisonment-Necessity for notice before action - Acts done in performance of duty-Not guilty by statute.] Two persons having died under circumstances suggesting murder, suspicion was directed against two Chinamen, one of whom was arrested, but the other could not be found. The police made search diligently for suspected man. Believing that he was being harboured by his fellow-countrymen in the city, and that, if a general search was made, they would conceal him, it was determined to visit every Chinese resort in the city and take the occupants to the police station, keeppleted, and so ascertain if the man for whom they were searching was in the city. plan was carried out, a man being stationed at each entrance to the various buildings, and a search made, and the occupants removed in a conveyance, accompanied by an officer, and placed in charge of another officer at the station, and not permitted to depart until all places had been visited. The police they any strong reason for suspecting any man. Actions were brought by some of the Chinamen against the officers for false arrest and imprisonment. The uefendants pleaded that they had not detained the plaintiffs, and the gist of the offence is a restraint whereby the party complaining is hindered and prevented from going where he pleases; and therefore, as the evidence shewed that the plaintiffs were prevented from going where they pleased, they must be held to have been imprisoned.—2. That, as the police officers had no warrant nor any reasonable ground of belief that the plaintiffs were harbouring a fugitive from justice, they could not be said to be acting in pursuance of any statute or in discharge of their duty, and were not therefore entitled to notice of action. County Courts Act. B.C., ss. 23, 31 -Waiver of objection to jurisdiction-False imprisonment — Interference by complainant.]—The plaintiff took possession of the defendant Mason's float, which he found adrift on a lake. Mason, although aware that the plaintiff claimed a lien for salvage, made no move towards recovering the float until after three weeks, when he, in company with a constable, demanded it, and on the plaintiff refusing to give it up without compensation, he was arrested without a warrant and taken to gaol, and subsequently an information laid against him under s. 338 of the Code for taking and holding timber found adrift, was dismissed. Mason provided the tug which got the float and carried the plaintiff to gaol, and accompanied the constable with the plaintiff to the gaol :- Held, on the facts, that the arrest was the joint act of Mason and the constable, and that Mason was therefore liable for damages for false imprisonment. An action for malicious prosecution was tried in a County Court, which has no jurisdiction to try such an action unless a signed agreement consenting thereto is entered into by the parties. Criminal prosecution—Reasonable and probable cause — Belief — Malice—Jurg.]—In an action for malicious prosecution the Judge intimated that he thought there was no evidence to go to the jury, but he decided to let the case go to the jury so that the full Court might have the benefit of the findings in case an appeal was taken. The jury found that defendant had not taken reasonable care to inform himself of the facts before he proceeded against the plaintiff, and that he did not honestly believe in the charge, being actuated by an indirect motive, viz., to obtain ages were assessed at $2.90. The Judge dismissed the action, holding that there was not a want of reasonable and probable cause:—Held, by the Court, that on the findings the plaintiff was entitled to judgment. Shrosbery V. Criminal prosecution—Reasonable and probable cause — Nonsuit.]—The defendant had the plaintiff arrested on a charge of fraudulently disposing of her property to defendant earlier for money due. The plaintiff was acquitted. She was a married woman, carrying on business for herself, her husband driving a delivery waggon for her. She denied that she owed the defendant anything. The defendant supplied goods for the plaintiff's business to the husband, who, according to the plaintiff's story, was given the cash for each purchase. Apparently he did not pay it over, as the defendant charged the price of the goods to the plaintiff. She said she had told the defendant not to give her husband any goods for her unless for cash. The defendant told the constable not to arrest the plaintiff if she would pay the amount due, but she refused if believed, would go to shew the absence of reasonable and probable cause on the part of the defendant. The credibility and effect of that evidence was for the jury, and the trial should have proceeded in the ordinary way, and the case should not have been withdrawn from the jury. Burns v. Clark, 21 C. L. T. 24.

Damages—Charge of theft — Permission to take property.]—The plaintiff was committed for trial on a charge of stealing two loads of wheat straw, the property of defendant, but was afterwards acquitted, and sued for damages for malicious prosecution:— Held, that the evidence strongly supported plaintiff's contention that defendant gave him permission to take the straw, and that the damages were properly assessed at $400. Hulme v. Chant, 22 C. L. T. 216.

Damages—Responsibility—False arrest— Probable cause—Malice—C. C. 1053.]—Held, that malice is not always evil intention or hatred that one person has towards another. From the legal point of view, malice is often inferred from the gross negligence of a person who, without informing himself and on simple suspicion, causes another's arrest: that there is probable cause for a flour merthat there is probable cause for a flour mer-chant, proprietor of a trade mark, who caused the arrest of another for selling flour in bags bearing his trade mark, for a lower price, without buying any goods from him, and when the bags had been handled, and the twine with which they were seven up was not a selling when the narry equipment that the second no malice when the party causing the arrest of another only acted on the advice of his lawyer who made all due diligence to find out the truth; and when that party on the first advice of his counsel refused to proceed against plaintiff, alleging that "he knew him well, that his relations with him were very good and that he didn't like to do such a thing;" that in an action for damages for false arrest, it is for the plaintiff to prove that the defendant acted through malice and without reasonable or probable cause; that in this action, as the defendant had acted in good faith and with probable cause, and that the plaintiff has been put to large expense in defending himself, each party should pay his own costs in both Courts. False imprisonment — Action against magnistrate—Warrant of commitment — Usauthorised imposition of hard labour—Notice of action—Requisiter—Address of solicitors.]

—The defendant, a stipendiary magistrate, issued a warrant of commitment, imposing hard labour during the imprisonment, which conviction did not impose and which was not authorised by the statute upon which the proceeding was founded. — In an action by the defendant for false imprisonment:—Held, that the issuing of the warrant was a ministerial, not a judicial act, and that the magistrate was label for including in the warrant was a bable for including in the warrant was a bable for including in the warrant was the defendant substantially of the grounds of complaint, and the notice ought not to be construed with great strictness.—Where the address of the solicitor as given is attacked, it is incumbent on the defendant to shew that he was misled, and that the address given comprised neither the solicitor's place of abode nor his place of business. McIeror v. McCillitray, 40 N. S. R. 450.

False imprisonment — Action for damages—Chincae Immigration Act—Arrest of defendant eithout warrant—Information—Trial—Conviction quashed—Fine directed to be returned to defendant —Jurisdiction—Erroneous proceedings—Liability of officers serveuting process.]—At the trial the plaintiff was allowed as part of his damages for false imprisonment the sum of $100$, the amount of a fine he had paid in connection with an alleged violation of above Act. On appeal, held, that as defendant had not directly "set in motion" the trial Judge to impose this fine, he was not liable in damages in respect to it, judgment must be varied by striking out this amount. Cheng Fun v. Campbell, 7 E. L. R. 421.

False imprisonment — Irrest under cepius—Validity of enjus—Right to skeen—Malice—Want of reasonable and probable cause—Towns Incorporation Act, s. 261.1—The plaintiff had been arrested under a writ of capius and brought before a magistrate, who decided that the capius and service were void, and that therefore he had no jurisdiction in the matter. This action was then brought against the defendant for false imprisonment:—Heid, that the defendant was the country in the action, from shewing that the capital this action, from shewing that the capital in the person arrested was not, in itself, a sufficient ground for finding "malice" or "want of reasonable and probable cause,"—The proviso in s. 201 of the Towns Incorporation Act, 1815, covers the case of a writ of summons only, and not of the case of a writ of summons only, and not of the case of a writ of summons only, and not of the case of a writ of summons only, and not of the case of a writ of summons only, and by San (1977).

"Did the defendants honestly believe that the plaintiff was guilty of the offence for which he was arrested?" but may, with a proper charging the jury, the Judge should not sugin the plaintiff's place, and consider how much they ought in that case to be paid. damages allowed being excessive, the verdict Evidence to prove the bad character of the paintin in such an accord was properly re-jected at the trial. Newsan v. Carr. 2 Stark, 69, Jones v. Stevens, 11 Price 235, and Downing v. Butcher, 2 Moo. & R. 374, followed.—4. The Judge's charge to the jury the misdirection was not a ground for ordering a new trial, the verdict not having been attacked as excessive.-5. There is no result of a complaint laid before a magisfact, removed by another person and put under a table in a near-by restaurant. The under a table in a near-by restaurant. The plaintiff had been in the hotel hall after the valise was left there, and before it was moved. The hall was open to the public, and there was no evidence as to how many people, other than the plaintiff, had entered it during the same period. The plaintiff afterwards went into the restaurant and sat at the table under which the valise was, but did not know it was there. The arrest was made before the valise was found :-Held. that such facts were not sufficient to justify the arrest of the plaintiff without a war-rant. Sinclair v. Ruddell, 3 W. L. R. 532, 16 Man. L. R. 53.

Favourable termination of prosecution — Pleading—Declaration—Discharge.]
—In an action for malicious prosecution, a statement in the declaration that the plaintiff was discharged from custody under a habeas corpus order, whereby the prosecution was determined, is not a sufficient allegation of the determination of the prosecution, and is bad on demurrer. McKinnon v, Mc-Laughlin Carriage Co., 37 N. B. R. 3

Findings of jury — Domages—Issue of varrant — Absence of unitice—Evidence — Misdirection—Mistake of magistrate.]—The mere finding by the jury, in an action for malicious prosecution, that the plaintiff dissufer damages, and fixing the amount of the damages, is not a ground for a condemnation to pay such damages. And where the jury find, in addition, that the warrant of arrest was issued by the magistrate as being, in his opinion, the proper means of giving effect to the information, and in accordance with the practice of the police office; that the complaint was not dismissed on the merits, but because the case was not in the helm of the magistrate, one in which the law allowed the issue of a warrant; that the facts alleged in the information and complaint were not true, but that the defendants (complaints) used proper care to inform themselves of the facts of the case, honestly believed the same, and were not actuated by malice—the verdict is really a verdict for the defendant—2. Complaint of rejection of evidence is not well founded where the record shews that proof of the facts desired to be proved by the evidence alleged to have been rejected has really been made in the cause.—3. A direction by the Judge presiding to the effect that "if the magistrate made a mistale, the defendants, unless they acred maticiously not, the defendants, unless they acred maticiously not, the state of a magistrate," is well founded in law.—4. The Judge at the trial is not bound, and is right in refusing, to instruct the jury when they come in with their verdict, that it is their duty to find the defendant at fault on some one of the special facts, is-fore they can award damages. Martin v. Montred flast Co., 22. (20. S. C. 222.

Forgery and theft—Questions for jury to forgery not submitted—Damages—Plaistiff entitled to have question re forgery tried out.]—Plaintiff sued for damages for malicious prosecution and false arrest on the charges of theft and forgery. One sheet of paper containing five questions for the jury not the charge of forgery, became detached and was only discovered after the jury had left the jury room—Mulock, C.J. Est. D., held, 14 O. W. R. 835, 1 O. W. N. 119, that the forgery charges must therefore be treated a untitled. As to the charge of theft the jury found that there was an absence of reasonable and probable cause for the information—Held, that plaintiff was entitled to justice the charge of the damages in respect to the charge of thetr and could go on trial on the was impossible to say that defoniants had acted without reasonable and probable cause in laying the information for theft, and the there could be no different conclusion reached as to the prosecution for forgery. He is therefore presumed to have been actuated by malice and is responsible for the prejudice caused to the servant.—2. The employer called upon by letter, in the above circumstances, to acknowledge the innoceace of his employee, aggravates the injury and adds to it the wrong of defamatory libel, where he, by letter, states that he is by no means satisfied of the servant's innoceace. Under this plaintiff was arrested and brought before the police magistrate (since dead), and was let out on bail. That was on Saturday, and she says she was to return on Monday before the magistrate, but did not do so, and heard no more of the matter. Tisadle, the high constable of Oxford, who arrested the plaintiff, said the case did not come on for trial, but he did not did not eno on for trial, but he did not know why. He served 11 summonses for the Crown preparatory to the hearing. Before the day of trial the prosecutrix obtained information which caused her to believe the plaintiff could not have set the fire in question. The proceedings were dropped owing to some instructions given by the magistrate to the chief constables, the result of which was that no witnesses appeared. The prosecutrix or her mother paid the costs and nothing more was done in the matter. Three months later the plaintiff brought this action for malicious prosecution:—Held. Functions of Judge and jury—Actual malice—Inference—Connection of plaintiff quashed on grounds of law—Evidence—Decease of sciiness—Depositions before magistrate.]—

In an action for malicious prosecution the question of reasonable and probable cause is for the Judge. The jury may be asked to find on the facts, from which reasonable and probable cause may be inferred; but the inference from the facts found must be drawn by the Judge. Actual malice need not be proved, but may be inferred from the absence of probable cause. It is no answer to an action for mulicious prosecution, that the conviction against the accused (plaintiff) was creating the effence excessing the act charged. The evidence of a witness taken before a magistrate on a criminal charge is admissible in an action for malicious prosecution founded on that charge, where the witness, at the time of the trial, is dead. The first was: "Did the defendants take "No." The second was: "Did the detendants honestly believe the case which they laid before the magistrate?" This the jury did not answer. The third was: "Were the they believed to have offended against the criminal law, to justice?" The jury answered, "Yes," They found a verdict for the plaintiff, assessing the damages at $5,000:—Held, that the first question should not have been left to the jury; it was in effect the question which the Judge had to decide, namely, whether there was reasonable and probable cause; and, upon the evidence, he should have decided that question in favour of the defendants. There was no evition before arresting him, but in that also upon the undisputed facts, there was a com-plete absence of malice. It was not evidence of malice on the part of one of the defend-ants that he said in the witness-box at the trial of the action that he still believed the of a search warrant under which the plaina separate cause of action; it was merely an ancillary proceeding to the prosecution of the plaintiff on the charge of conspiracy.-The trial Judge should have ruled, on the practically undisputed facts as to what was before the defendants to cause them to make the arrest, that the plaintiff failed to shew the absence of reasonable or probable cause, for the defendants' action, and the Judge should have nonsuited the plaintiff: Howell, c.J.A., c ing of e trial.—L 521; Ab Q. In determining that the plaintiff has failed to shew absence of reasonable and probable cause, and withdrawing the case entirely from the jury, the Judge must assume in favour of the plaintiff all facts of which he has adduced any reasonable evithe defendant's consent, in exchange for lum-ber of his own:—Held, that it must be asof fact for the jury, and so too the existence in the mind of the defendant of an honest belief in the plaintiff's guilt.—The plaintiff admitted that the defendant, before laying information, charged him orally with the theft of the lumber, and that he (the plaintiff) made no answer to the charge, no allusion to the exchange :-Held, that these facts did not warrant an assumption by the trial Judge that the plaintiff's evidence as to the exchange was untrue, or his drawing an inference that, if any such exchange had in the defendant's mind .- Judgment of Mabee, J., nonsuiting the plaintiff, set aside, and a new trial directed:—Semble, per Anglin, J., that s. 112 of the Judicature Act expressly prohibits the putting of questions to the jury in actions of this kind and of the other kinds specified therein. Reasonable and probable cause in prosecution for criminal offence—Special damages.] — The defendant went before a justice of the peace with the intention of laying an information against the plaintiff defendant swore to, an information for "unlawful taking the defendant's calf into his (plaintiff's) possession." The plaintiff appeared before the justice and was held to bail to appear for trial. The defendant honestly believed the calf to be his, but not that plaintiff was guilty of a theft; he believed him guilty of some criminal offence. The Crown prosecutor examined the papers sent up by the magistrate, and, without having had an interview with defendant, laid a charge of theft. The defendant, then becoming aware that the charge was theft, assisted the point of the consequence of the consequence of the point of the poin

Reasonable and probable cause -Nonsuit—Search warrant—Theft—Informa-tion — Amendment.] — A dog having been claimed by the plaintiff and taken from the defendant, the latter stated the facts to a magistrate, who drew an information that plaintiff did "unlawfully have and keep in was sworn to by the defendant. Before the magistrate the plaintiff's counsel objected that the informatiff with any offence, and at the request of the defendant and his counsel the informa the defendant and his counsel the informa-tion was amended by inserting the words "steal and take away." The magistrate dis-missed the charge. In an action for mali-cious prosecution:—Held, that the defend-ant, having fairly stated the facts to the magistrate, was not liable in damages for the erroneous view of the magistrate that he had jurisdiction to issue the search warrant, nor for summoning the plaintiff apparently nor for standard the plaintil apparently to dispose of the question as to the property in the dog:—Held, also, that there was evidence that the defendant assented to the alteration charging the plaintiff with the crime of theft and his prosecution on that charge, and that the defendant was not justified in charging the plaintiff with having stolen the dog, because he believed the dog was his own; that the real question was not whether he believed that the plaintiff had stolen him. that is, taken him without any belief that he had the right to take him; and that the trial Judge should have left the case to the jury, telling them that, if they found that the defendant had authorised the charge of theft and honestly believed when the amendment was made that the plaintiff had stolen his dog, they should find for the defendant; otherwise they should find for the plaintiff; the case should not have been taken from the jury upon the ground that reasonable and probable cause for a criminal prosecution had been shewn; and a new trial was ordered. Reasonable and probable cause—Question for Court—Evidence—Reasonable belief in truth of charge—Matice—Motive—Honest attempt to ascertain true facts. Wainwright v. Villetard (N.W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 242.

Reasonable and probable cause—
The plaintiff was employed as the defendants agent, and in that capacity received and disconsisted and the property of the plaintiff was employed as the defendants agent, and in that capacity received and the property of the plaintiff and the property of the plaintiff and the plaintiff and the plaintiff and the plaintiff and the plaintiff arrest and examination before a magistrate and his committal for the plaintiffs arrest and examination before a magistrate and his committal for trial. He was acquitted, and brought this action for mallelous prosecution:——Held, that, on the facts shewn, the defendants had reasonable and probable cause for the course taken by them, and that the trial Judge should have so found and dismissed the action; also, that the trial Judge was wrong in submitting the question of reasonable and probable cause to the jury, that being a question which he was obliged to decide for himself, and that the fact of his subsequently signing an order for judgment in the plaintiffs favour was not equivalent to a decision of this point. Meaney v. Reid-Verefoundbau Co., 1 E. J. R. 100, 39 N. S. R. 407.

During the night, the plaintiff entered the room and searched the pockets of both defendant and his companion, and then took the defendant's pocket-book from his coat pocket and commenced to examine the papers contained therein. The defendant got up and accused the plaintiff of robbing him, and he afterwards laid a complaint to that effect be-fore a justice of the peace. The criminal case had not terminated when the plaintiff brought the present action of damages for malicious prosecution :- Held, that the defendant had reasonable and probable cause for laying the complaint, and acted in good faith and without malice. A person cannot be sued for damages by reason of anything said by him while testifying as a witness before a Court of justice, when he states, in answer to questions put to him, what he honestly believes to be true, and is acting in good faith. To establish a cause of action for malicious prosecution, it must be shewn that the prosecution was terminated. Municipal corporation — Highway — Removal of barriers - Railway crossing — Government relikesy — Porcers of Railway Commissioners.]—The concurrence of 3 conditions is necessary to give the right to proceed by way of mandamus: (a) an imperative official duty to be done by a public body or a public officer; (b) the refusal to do it; (c) the absence of any other recourse to remedy the consequences of such refusal.—A municipal corporation is not imperatively obliged to remove barriers placed on one of its roads by the federal government, at the place where a railway owned by the latter crosses the road. The Railway Act of 1962 gives to the Board of Railway Commissioners the power of entertaining and adjudications such jurisdiction is exclusive of that of the ordinary tribunals. Upon this ground the recourse of mandamus against a numicipal corporation is not open, Carrier v. 8t. Henri, 30 Que, S. C. 45.

Municipal corporation—Keeping roads in good condition.]—Unless there is a special by-law obligating a municipal corporation to repair a road, a mandamus does not lie to compel it to repair either a front road or a by-road. Lichtenheim v. Pointe Claire, 11 Que. P. R. 89.

Municipal corporation — Requir of pringer—Joint duty—Defoult of minicance.]
—The remedy of mandamus to compel a cerporation to perform a legal duty is not open to another corporation jointly bound to perform the duty, and in default in that regard. Therefore, where two municipalities are charged with the maintenance, in different proportions, of a bridge which lies between them and is in need of repair, one cannot have a mandamus against the other, unless it has furnished its part of the cost of maintenance. Action for declaration of invalidity —R. S. O. 1897 c. 162, s. 31—Motion for judgment in default of defence—Suspicion of collusion — Trial in open Court—Oral exidence.]—The plaintiff, a girt under 19 years of age, brought this action, by her next friend, against a man with whom she went through a ceremony of marriage withen only 15, the was not effected or entered into. The action invoked the jurisdiction conferred by s. 31 of R. S. C. 1897 c. 162, as added by 7. Edw. VII. c. 23, s. S. (O.), and by the statement of claim the plaintiff alleged such facts as brought her ciaim within that enactment. The defendant did not appear or defend, and the plaintiff moved for judgment upon the statement of claim, supported by affidavits of the plaintiff in which is the procured a marriage icense without obtaining the consent of either of the plaintiff was then 18 years of age:—Held, that, in the circumstances, the motion for judgment was properly refused, and the plaintiff left to proceed to trial in the ordinary way.—Fer Riddel, J. —No ceremony of may may have the recumstance establishing the invalidity are proven in open Court, coram populo, by rice voce evidence.—Judgment of Tectel, J., affirmed. Action to annul marriage—Status of plaintiffs — Pleading.]—The status of the plaintiffs to demand the annulment of a marriage cannot be brought in question except by a plea to the merits. Agnew v. Gober, S Que. P. R. 217.

Annulment—Rights of parents—Infant children—Attainment of nuloviry,1—No astion to annul the marriage of children conracted during minority, without the consent of their father and mother, can be brough by the latter after such children have attained their majority. Agnee v. Gober, 32 Que. S. C. 206, 5 E. L. R. 237.

Competency of Protestant minister to marry two Roman Catholics — Isralisity of ecclesiastical decrees, —The plainiff, who had been baptised and had made his first communion as a member of the Roman Catholic church, was married to the defendant, who, at one time at least, had also professed the same religious belief, by a minister of a Protestant denomination, by virtue of a license issued in the regular form under the hand and seal of the Leutenant-Governor. Subsequently the plainiff applied to the ecclesiastical Court of the diocess in which he resided for a decree pronouncing the marriage mult, on the ground that according to the exclusion of the court was confirmed on appeal to Rome. The plainiff asked by this action that the protended marriage should be declared unil as to its civil effects; and that the Court should recognise and affirm, and give full force and effect to, the ecclesiastical decree:—Held, that, even if both parties were Roman Catholics at the date of the marriage could be validly solemnized by a Protestant minister; and (2) that, according to law, the sentence of the ecclesiastical curt had competence or jurisdiction partings in question, year value, and accelesiastical court had competence or jurisdiction to pronounce the annulment of a marriage tie. Delpit v. Coté, 21 C. L. T. 307, 20 Que. S. C. 338. C.

Declaration of nullity — Evading laws of Province of Quebec—Celebration by person not authorized—Church law.]—A marriage celebrated by a priest or minister professing a faith other than that to which the parties belong, is void. 2. If, before the coning into force of the Civil Code, any church whatever has established for its members a rule in restraint of marriage, and a marriage is celebrated contrary to the law decreeing such restraint, the Court must, upon an action brought to declare the marriage void, and upon proof of such restraint, declare the marriage void and upon proof of such restraint, declare the marriage void and upon proof of such restraint, declare the marriage void and upon proof of such restraint, declare the marriage void for civil purposes only. 3. In this case the parties (Roman Catholics) having, during their minority, and without the consent of their parents or the publication of banns, left their domicil in the province of Quebec in order to go to be married before a Protestant minister in the United States of America, such marriage is void on account of having been contracted

De Grandmont v. Societé des Artisans, 16 Que, S. C. 532.

Infant—Absence of parents' consent—Dissolution — Action brought after majority.]—The remedy of a declaration of the nullity of the marriage of a minor, for default of the consent of his parents, is open to the parents, within six months from the time of the knowledge they have of it, although the minor becomes of age in that interval.—Judgment in 32 Que. 8, C. 266 reversed. Agnew v. Gober, 17 Que. K. B. 508.

Legitimacy of offspring — Condition of Territorics in 1878 — Presumption of merriage—Evidence.]—In the year 1878 a white man and an Indian woman, domiciled in the North-West Territories, entered into a contract of marriage per verba de præsent in the Territories, without a ceremony of any kind, and cohabited as man and wife until the former's decease;—Held, in view of the legal provisions for the organisation of the Territories and the actual condition, with reference to the facilities for the solemisation of marriage, at least in the portions of the Territories in the vicinity of the contracting parties' place of residence, that there was not a legally valid marriage. In bizanty cases, strict proof of marriage is required; a different rule prevails in legitimacy cases, where strict proof of the marriage of the parents is not required, but may be presumed from cohabitation and repute; but where the evidence shews the actual terms upon which the parents were conhabiting and the facts relied upon as constituting the marriage, no such presumption can arise. Lyric artist — Immoral song — like bedience — Cancellation of the contract — Created and actual interest.]—The partie to a contract are bound by whatever it entains expressly and by its antural consequences. A lyric artist who sings immoral songs in a theatre thereby breaks his contract of hiring which forbids his doing so; and, for that reason his employer may dismiss him. If the artist reluese or neglects to submit his songs to a censor named in the contract, he commits an act of disobedience and may equally be dismissed. In a case in which the employer dismissed his employer from his service for good reasons, and the employer persists in attempting to fulfil his employer persists in attempting to fulfil his week for his salary, the employer has a read and actual interest to have the emcellation of the contract, which he has already effected himself, indicially declared to be good and valid. Monthly hiring — Contingent yearly hiring — Dismissal — Notice — Reasonable time.]—The plaintiff was employed by the defendants as their manager, at a salary of $200 per month, until a mill, which they were constructing, was completed and working, when he was to be engaged at a salary of $2.500 per annum, payable monthly. He worked under the $200 per month arrangement a certain time, and for a portion of a month after the mill had been completed, when he was dismissed without notice:—Held, that it is usually an implied term of hiring in similar cases that the service could be determined by a reasonable notice, and the jury here having fixed on three months, that was a reasonable notice in the circumstances. Henderson v. Canadian Timber & Sam Mills, 12 B. C. R. 255.

Payment of bonus — Cooldition — Recommendation of "management"—Exercise of discretion—Good cause, 1—A covenant in an agreement between master nuls servant to pay to the servant, besides his salery, a bonus of 2½ per cent, upon the profits, thus qualified, "subject to the recommendation of the management," does not depend upon the caprice or good pleasure of the "management," for, if so, the covenant would be potestative and void. Lien Act is: se a mechanic's oper for another ac same subjection, because all by a lien-holder on behalf of all lien-holders who became parties within the time limited for instituting proceedings."— Semble, that where a lien-holder is plaintiff in an action on his lien, it is improper to join offer lien-holders as parties defendant:— Held, that such other lien-holders may become parties by order of a Judge on exparte application under s. 18.—Consolidation of actions, costs, and procedure discussed. Gardner v. Gorman, Ross v. Gorman, 7 W. L. R. (30), J. Alta. L. R. 106.

Actions to enforce — Jurisdiction of Suprease Court of Alberta — District Courts — Amounts involced — Mechanics' Lien Act — Suprease Court Act — District Courts Act — Costs.]—Section 21 of the Mechanics Lien Act is merely permissive, and does not excinde the ordinary procedure by writ of summons:—Held, that the combined effect of the Mechanics' Lien Act, s. 2, s.-s. 1, and the District Courts Act, ss. 23 and 24, and the Suprease Court Act, ss. 9 to 25, is to vest in the District Court in Indication in mechanics' lien 84:90; but in such cases the Suprease Court has concurrent jurisdiction.—Semble, costs as between party and party will, however, in such cases, as a rule, only be allowed on the scale or tariff applicable to the District Court, in whichever Court proceedings are instituted.—Held, that the two principal clauses of s. 22. Supreme Court Act, are to be dissociated. The first clause refers to jurisdiction generally, without prejudice to the part concurrent jurisdiction of inferior courts; the second clause deals only with the jurisdiction concreted by miscellances in Sattices, Acc, and the Court of Freeze v. Carey, Jerkey v. Carey, T. W. L. & 25.7. I All L. R. S. 14. La L. R. 14. L. R. 14. L. R. 15. L. R. 15. L. C. A. L. C. Carey, Jerkey v. Carey, T. W. L. R. 25.7. I All L. R. R. 15.

Building contract — Abandoment by onear — Poynests to contractor — Completion by onear — Poynests to contractor.] — The Alberta Full Court held that payments made by owner will not discharge him from liens existing at the time of such payments. Where trial Judge finds defendant had promised to pay plantif, and there was sufficient consideration, it is not open to the Court to reverse that finding. Union v. Potrer, 9 W. L. R.

Building contract — Action to enforce liens — Payment in full to contractor — Prejudiec to existing liens — Deduction of damages for delay — Evidence — Conflict of testimony — Credibility of party as witless—Costs, Gorman v. Henderson (Alta.), 8. W. L. R., 422.

Building contract — Death of contractor — Payments by owners directly to mechanics — Payment of full amount of contract price — Limitation of liability of owner — Alberta Mechanics Lien Act — Time of attachment of lien — Payments to contractor — Prejudice to existing liens—Costs. Ross Bros. v. Gorman, Gardiner v. Gorman, 9 W. L. R. 319.

Building contract — Price papelle in instalments—— Drinkt — Alberta Rechanica' Lieu Acta, 7, Further proceedings in actangent of the Acta of the Acta of the Acta compliance with s. 17 — Costs. — Where the contract price is payable in instalments, if default is made in payment of an instalment, the contractor, prior to the fulling due of the later instalments, can commence proceedings under the Mechanics' Lien Act to enforce his lien. The words in a, 7 of the Act, "No further proceedings shall be taken in the action until after such extension of time," are to be construed distributely, and default in payment of any deferred payments entitles the lien-holder to take any further proper proceedings in the action. — Costs thereof allowed.—Section 17 of the Act, requiring the contractor to post up a copy of the pay-roll, etc., is intended solely to protect the lisbourcers, and to afford the owner the means of securing limself from liability to the lisbourcers, and non-compliance by the lien lisbourcers, and non-compliance by the list lien coming into existence, or multify a lien already existing, or prevent the lienholder from keeping it alive by commencing proceedings, in accordance with the Act, Spears v. Bannerman, I Alta, L. R. 98.

Building erected by lessee—Liability of oneser — Alberta Meckanies' Lien Act—6 Ldw, VII. c. 21, ss. 4 and 11.]—Section 4ct—6 Ldw, VII. c. 21, sives to any contractor or material man furnishing labour or materials for a building at the request of the owner of the land a lien on such land for the value of such labour or materials. Subsection 4 of sec. 2 provides that the term "owner" shall extend to and include a person having any estate of interest "in the land upon or in respect on which the work at whose bequest and upon whose credit or on whose behalf or with whose privity or consent or for whose direct benefit any such work is done," &c. By sec. 11, "every building. . . mentioned in the fourth section of this Act, constructed upon any lands with the knowledge of the owner or his authorised agent . . . shall be held to have been constructed at the request of such owner," unless the latter gives notice within three days after acquiring such knowledge that he will not be responsible. The lessee of land, as permitted by his lense, had buildings thereon pulled down and proceeded to creet abandon the work before it was finished. The owner of the land was aware of the work being done, but fave no notice disclaiming responsibility therefor, mechanics' liens having been filed under the Act:—Held, that the interest of the owner in the land was subject to such liens. Judgment in Secratch V. Anderson, 2 Alta, L. R. 169, 13 W. L. 113, varying that at the trial in favour of the lienholders, affirmed. Limoges v. Keratch (1910), 31 C. L. 7. 256, 44 S. C.

Building exected by tenant on demised premises - Alberta Mechanics' Lien Act, s. 11 — Termination of leave by notice for default — Richts of Renholders—Superintendents of construction.] — Actions to enforce mechanics' liens. L. leased certain premises to defendant for seven years, the latter having the right to remove a building, and erect another in lieu thereof, new building to become property of L. Defendant also had an option to purchase. Plaintiffield liens in connection with erection of new building. Defendant having become in arrears for rent, L. forfeited the lease:—Held, that the liens were valid against the land The tenant should have been mentioned in lien as filed. Superintendents of construction are entitled to a lien. High River Trading Co. v. Anderson (Alta.), 10 W. L. R. 1992.

A few days afterwards he was paid the sum of $1,200 by cheene, stated on its face to be "re Mrs. Hemshaw." This cheque Horrobin indorsed over to his bank, making good his overlraft, which he had obtained on the strength of the promise of the defendant Henshaw's payment. The plaintiffs applied the overdue note. Horrobin, through injuries received from a fall, was unable to give evidence at the trial, so that the statement by the plaintiffs' accountant that there was no appropriation by Horrobin of the $1,000 to the defendant Henshaw's account, was not contradicted. The plaintiffs' placed at lien on the building for $948,45. The trial Judge came to the conclusion that the $1,100 to the defendant Henshaw's account, and that the defendant Henshaw was entitled to a credit of some amount which the accounts ought to show, and dismissed the action as against the defendants:—Held, on appeal, that there had been no appropriation by Horrobin, but, on the facts, that, as there had been a shortage in delivery of lumber entitling the defendant Henshaw to a certain credit of some and the state of th

C. did not exercise his option:—Held, Irving, J., dissenting, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to liens under the Mechanics' Lien entitled to liens under the Mechanics' Lien

Act. There is no lien given for cooling under the Act. Anderson v. Godsal, 7 B. C. R. 404.

Missescription of land — Right to amoud line—Interest of timber licensee.]— Where the land sought to be charged by lien is misdescribed in the lien affidavits, the Court will not give leave to amend by correcting the description, as that would in effect be creating a lien, and the statute provides a specific mode for creating a lien.—Section 54 of the Land Act, which vests in the holder of a special timber license all rights of property in all trees, timber, and lumber cut within the limits of the license during the the land itself chargeable under the Mechanics Lien Act. Rajuse v. Hunter, HaeDonold v. Hunter, 12 B. C. R. 126, 3 W. L. R. SSI.

"Owner" — Interest in land — Vendor and purchaser.]—The plaintifis claimed a mechanics' lien for $633 against the estate and interest of L and T, in certain lots in the vicinity of New Westminster, for lumber farminded under the following electromatance of the land for $1,290 to L; $20 was paid down, and the balance was to be paid immediately. No agreement in writing as required by the Statute of Frauds was executed, but L entered into possession of the premises and proceeded to fit up the buildings for the purpose of his business as a butcher for a slaughter house, spending a large sum in so doing, and the lumber in respect of which the lien was claimed was used in building and repairing the slaughter house and putting up a fence on the land:—Held, that the lien attached only upon whatever interest. L. might have in the land.

Preservation of Hen — Work done after final certificate and acceptance of building—Sub-contractor — Alteration in work—Personal liability of owner—Request of husband—Proof of agency].—Where a plaintif claims to revive a mechanic's lien by means of material supplied and work done after the completion of a building, and after the architect has given the final certificate, it is incumbent on him to prove clearly that the material was supplied and the work done in pursuance of and as a part of his original agreement. The defendant built a on the agreement of the property of the supplied of the property of the property

—Amendment of judgment—"Mine"—"Appurtenances." ]-An application to set aside an order for judgment under the Mechanics' Lien Act was made on the ground that the order was taken without notice to prior incumbrancers. These prior incumbrancers had been served with notice of trial under s. 31, but did not attend the trial. It was, sary to give any further notice to them : Held, that the provisions of ss. 28 and 31 required that notice of taking the order for judgment should be given to prior incum-brancers, so as to protect their rights.—It is competent for a Judge to amend an order granted on judgment after trial, when he sees that the order does not correctly represent his decision, or exceeds in terms what has been decided.—The word "mine" used in the Mechanics' Lien Act, R. S. N. S. c. 171, includes areas and the deposit of ore, and the word "appurtenances" refers to articles of movable property used in working the mine. Pelton v. Black Hawk Mining Co., 40 N. S. Lien of sub-contractor - Special agreement between owner and contractor agreement between owner and contractor— Failure to retain percentage — Absence of notice—Ascertainment of price—Time for commencement of lien.]—B, contracted with the defendant company to transfer to them a quantity of land, and to erect and equip a mill and to do other work, for an agreed sum in bonds and shares of the company and other considerations. It was subse-nently aspeed, orally, that a portion of the quently agreed, orally, that a portion of the proceeds of the bonds and shares transferred to B. should be retained by a trust company as security for the performance by B. of his contract for the erection of the mill. to be paid out as the work progressed. In an action against the company by the subcontractor by whom the machinery for the mill was supplied:—Held, that, in the absence of notice, the company were not liable to the plaintiff for failure to retain out of the moneys paid to B. the percentage required to be retained under the provisions of the Mechanics' Lien Act; that the transaction which took place when the title to the property was transferred to the company, and the bonds and shares, the consideration therefor, were delivered to B., was not one within the provisions of the Mechanics' Lien Act, s. S. and that the company were not required to retain anything on that date for the benefit of future sub-contractors: that, of the mill, but for the land and other property transferred to the company, the price

to be paid for the construction of the mill could not be ascertained so as to enable the claim for work or machinery to be enforced against the property; that the lien for goods or materials placed or furnished under s. 3 of the Act, commences when the goods or materials are so placed or furnished, and that, as against the owner, this cannot be said to have occurred until they have reached his property. Practice in action to enforce Statement of claim—Screice out of jurisdiction.]—The plaintiff registered a mechanic's lien against the defendant company, and subsequently filed his statement of claim. He obtained an order for the service of the statement of claim out of the jurisdiction, and service was effected in pursuance thereof. The defendant company applied to have the order and service thereunder set aside, on the ground that there was no statutory Mechanics' Lion Act, R. S. N. S. o. 171:—Held, that the service was good by reason of a 28 of the Act, the ordinary procedure of the Court with respect to the service of a writ laving been followed in serving the statement of claim. Macdonald v. Consolidated Gold Mining Co., 21. C. l. T. 482.

Sub-contractor — Material man Notice to noner—Pailure to retain percentage of fighting of premises.]—C. & W., who were awarded a contract to place heating apparatus in a hotel building owned by the defendant D., ordered materials required from the plaintiffs in a letter stating, "We have secured contract for hotel which requires above goods. The sub-contract was made on the 29th September, 1902, and the final payment was made by D. to the principal contractor on the 21st November, 1902, when the work was all done, without quired by the Mechanics Lien Act, I. S. N. S. 1909 c. 171, s. S:—Held, that the letter sufficiently identified the building for which the goods were required; and, distinguishing Smith v. Sissiboo Putp Co., 30 N. S. R. 348, that D. was required to retain the percentage whether he had notice of the sub-contract or not, and that he paid it at his

On the 18th May, 1900, Dempster & Co. White and the property of the contractors were instituted by them to realize the claim until the 18th August, 1900. On the application to set aside Dempster's lien—Held, that the word "contract" in s. 20 of the Act means the original contract with the owner, and not the contractor. If no claim had been registered, Dempster & Co. could have registered one at any time within thirty days after the completion of that contract. In view of s. 9, an abandon-ment would be equivalent to a contract days from the abandonness of a contraction of the contract of the contract of the contractor of the contract of the contractor of the co

Material men — Agreement between owner and contractor—Drawback—Value of plant-Completion of work - Judgment -Estoppel. ]—The plaintiffs furnished materials to the contractors for certain works, and the action was brought against the contractors and the owner to realize a lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act. After work to the value of $24,290.88 had been done, the owner took possession of the works, the materials of the contractors, and no work had since been done by them under the contract. An some supplies taken by the owner, and also to recover a large sum on account of work done, had been dismissed: — Held, that the 15 per cent, which, under s. 11 of the Act, R. S. O. c. 153, the owner was required to deduct from any payments made in respect of the contract and to retain as a fund for the discharge of liens, was to be computed on the value of the work and materials, but not upon the value of the plant as well, notwithstanding that for the security of the owner the plant was declared to be for the purposes of the contract his property :-Held, that, if the judgment dismissing the action brought by the contractors were binding on the plaintiffs, they would not be benefited by a postponement of the trial until the final completion of the works, for the effect of that judgment was that the contractors had forfeited all right to payment for any work which they had performed and for which they had not been paid; and, even if the judgment were not binding on the plaintid's, the case should not be sent back for a new trial. Brickett v. Brexeder, 22 C. L. T. 93, 1 O. W. R. 62.

Material supplied — Request, privily or consent or credit of otener—R. S. O. ISS7, C. ISS, R. S. S. In the circumstances of this case, it was held that the person who had furnished the materials had a direct lieu upon the land as against the owner, and not a sub-lieu upon the moneys owing by the owner to the contractor or upon the statutory druwback, Graham v. Williams, 8 O. R. 478, 9 O. R. 458; Blight v. Ray, 25 O. R. 415; Gearing v. Robinson, 25 A. R. 304, considered, Stattery v. Lillis, 10 O. L. R. 607, 6 O. W. R. 532.

Trial — Procedure — Parties — Mortgagee—Materials on land—Conversion.] c.c.l.—S6 The procedure for the trial of an action under the Mechanics' and Wage-Parners' Lien Act, R. 8. 0. c. 153, is the ordinary procedure of the High Court, which is not affected by ss, 35 and 36 of the Act; and therefore a mortgage against whom relief is sought must be made a party to the action within the time limited by s. 24, s.-s. 1. Materials were placed on the land by the owner thereof and paid for by the mortgage, to be used in the construction of buildings being erected thereon, but not actually incorporated therein. The materials were taken by the owner to a planing mill to be planed for placing in the buildings, and having been left there for some time, and storage charges incurred, the owner sold them to the millionness:—Helb, per Meredith, C.J., the most proportion thereof in the building being an essential element—Per Rose and Mac-Mahon, JJ., that such lien would attach, notwithstanding the absence of such incorporation, but, there having been a conversion, no relief could be granted, for there is nothing in the Act which could be made applicable to Henholders, Larkin, v. tiffs in December, 1907, and to other liens The action was brought by the plaintiffs to enforce their lien; and by an order made on the 21st May, 1908, the amount which the plaintiffs were it was directed that, in default of payment of that sum, the land should be sold, and the proceeds of sale applied; first, in payment of B.'s claim; second, in payment of the expenses of the sale; third, in payment of the costs of the action; and the balance was to be paid into Court, to be distributed among the lien-holders as their interests might appear. On the 6th May, 1909, an order was made directing the Local Regisvant to the determination of the question of the right of B, against the land and his right to priority over the plaintiffs. Local Registrar reported that the land was sold to B, on the 16th April, 1910, for $1,725; that the materials in respect of which the plaintiffs were entitled to a lien were delivered between the 26th September and the 12th December, 1907; and that the sums advanced by B. for the purchase of the land and improvements thereon amounted to $1,189.60, and was advanced in various sums between May and October, 1907-$500 being for the purchase of the land-and that B. also advanced to his co-defendants the further sum of $783.40, no part of which was expended for work or materials which enhanced the value of the lands. The Local Registrar did not find, nor was there any evidence to establish, to what amount the selling value of the land was increased by the placing of the materials supplied by the plaintiffs :- Held, upon consideration and construction of sub-sec. 3 of sec. 7 of the Me-chanics' Lien Act, 1907, that the onus of proving that the selling value of the land was increased by the materials furnished and placed above what it was before they and pinced above what it was before they were so furnished and placed, was on the plaintiffs, and they had failed to establish it. It did not follow from the mere fact that materials were furnished and placed upon the land by the plaintiffs and other lienholders, that the selling value of the property had been thereby increased to the ex-tent of the materials furnished or at all. Kennedy v. Haddow, 19 O. R. 240, applied and followed.—Held, also, that paragraph 3 of sec. 2 of the Act deals simply with the definition of the word "owner," and does not apply to a mortgagee, or at any rate to one who has registered his mortgage prior to the registration of the lien. The right of priority as between the lien-holder and the mortgagee is fixed by paragraph 1 of sec. 13 of the Act; and, so far as a mortgage, equitable as well as legal is concerned, it would have priority over a lien, if registered before the lien. Richards v. Chamberlain, 25 Gr. 402; McVean v. Tiffin, 13 A. R. 1, and Reinhart v. Shutt, 15 O. R. 325, specially referred to. Notice cannot affect the ques-tion of priority. Where the lien-holder has not registered his lien, the mortgagee need not hesitate to advance money legitimately holder might thereafter register his lien. The whole amount advanced by B., $1,973, was found to be a charge on the land under the fore any of the Hens were registered, and the question of an increased value was out of the road, and the land was sold for only $1.725, B. was entitled to the whole of that sum, Independent Lumber Co. v. Bocz (1911), 16 W. L. R. 316, Sask, L. R.

Materials supplied to person as "owner" — Erection of building—Sale of building by "owner" — Removal by purof person ordering materials-Acquisition of land by claimants of lien-Merger of lien-Pleading. |—In an action to enforce a me-chanics' lien, the plaintiffs, by their state-ment of claim, alleged that they furnished materials to the defendant McK, for the pur that they registered a lien under the Methat they registered a nen under the Me-chanics' Lien Act against the land and building, and thereby acquired a valid liea against the estate and interest of McK. in the lot. The claim was to enforce the lien against the building. The evidence shewed that McK, ordered materials from the plainthat they were delivered there, and went into the erection of the building; but the evidence did not shew that McK. ever had any interest or estate in the land except such possessory interest as was to be presumed from the 3rd July, 1900, the plaintiffs registered their lien. On the 30th November McK. executed a chattel mortgage on the building in favour of the defendant company. By the statement of claim it was alleged that on the 7th December, 1909, the plaintiffs became owners of the land, and this was not denied by the defendants. On the 17th December McK, gave the defendant company a bill of sale of the building, and on the 30th Decemthe plaintiffs were not entitled to enforce their alleged lien. Per Wetmore, C.J.:—A person in actual possession of land has a title thereto as against all the world except to come within the meaning of "owner," as defined by paragraph 3 of sec. 2 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, 1907; but, in order to amount to an interest which would support a lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act, at the time the materials were ordered, because sec. 4 of the Act provides that the work has to be performed or the materials furnished for the owner (as in this case) or the contractor or sub-contractor; and there was no evidence to establish that, prior to the time that McK, ordered these ma-terials, he had ever been in actual possession of the lands, nor that he was so at the time he ordered them; there was no evidence that McK, had any interest or estate when he ordered the materials, and he could not be held to have acquired such an estate or in-terest by the wrongful act of causing the materials to be placed upon the property. tiffs had a valid lien on the lot and building, the action was not maintainable, because on the 7th December the plaintiffs (as must be taken to be admitted) became owners of egistered, and alue was out sold for only whole of that Co. v. the land on which the building was then standing, and whatever interest they could claim in the property under their lien merged in their title as owners, no contrary intention appearing. If the building was part of the freehold when the plaintiffs acquired title, their action should have been for trespass quare clausum fregit, as the acquisition of the freehold necessarily carried with it all buildings that were a part thereof. Per Johnstone, J.:—The plaintiffs wholly failed to establish an interest in McK, sufficient to satisfy the statute during the time the unterinks were being placed on the land, or even that McK, had ever been in possession of the land, rightfully or otherwise, Galzin-Walston Lumber Co. v, McKinnon (1911), 16 W. L. R. 310.

Saskatchewan Mechanics' Lien Act, 1907 — Proof that material supplied actually used in building — Application of Act—Retroactive effect — Sections 17, 18, 19 of said Act—Lien attacking on equitable interest in land,!—Action to enforce a lien under the above Act by a sub-contractor:—Head, that sub-contractor is in same position as contractor, and is only required to have furnished materials with the intent and expectation that materials are going into the building. The time of the filing of lien determines the law to be applied. A reduction in the amount of the claim will not rener the lien void. Defendants held the land under an agreement to purchase:—Held, that they had an interest or estate on which the flem would attach, Montjoy v. Heward School District Corporation (Sask.).

Fees of physician — Action for—Pleading — Irrelevant allegations.]—The plaining, a practising physician, suce the defendant for $3,000 for professional services. In his declaration he set up the fact that the case was notorious, and that the public had been daily kept aware of the defendant's condition, and of all details connected therewith, thus patting the plaintiff's professional reputation at stake. These facts were alleged as partly justifying the large amount of the fee claimed. The acfendant inscribed in law against these allegations:—Held, that the allegations complained of could not be connected with the amount of the fee due to the plaintiff. The inscription was, therefore, maintained, and the allegations complained of were struck out of the declaration. Marie ny, Lussier, 22 C. L. T. 418.

Malpractice - Limitation of Actions -Ontario Medical Act - Termination of services — Trial-Jury.]-An action against barred by s. 41 of the Ontario Medical Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 176, not having been commenced within one year from the date when, in the matter complained of, the defendants professional services terminated, although the plaintiff had twice visited the defendants at their offices within the year, the Court finding that on these occasions she did not go as a patient, but as a person with a grievance, she having previously consulted another surgeon and also a solicitor. Actions of malpractice are now more properly tried without a jury. Upon the evidence, it was held, also, that the plaintiff upon whom the burden rested, had failed to make out a case of negligent malpractice; and the action was dismissed. Town v. Archer, 22 C. L. T. 258, 4 O. L. R. 383, 1 O. W. R. 391.

Malpractice — Negligence — Evidence, Bennett v. C — , 1 W. L. R. 740. Malpractice — Negligence — Fullet to detert dislocation.] — The plantifi, who had been severely injured as the result of a full, sought to recover damages from the defendants, three medical men, by whom he fendants, three medical men, by whom he was attended, for their failure to discover an injury to one of the bones of his left hip and to adopt suitable measures to relieve him of the pain and suffering caused thereby. When the defendants were first called to attend the plaintiff, they found several of his risb broken and a dislocation of his right hip, and treated him for these injuries. On a subsequent examination his left hip was found to be dislocated, and the dislocated some days later, and another physical measurements of the defendants make the distort of the recipient of the cup or socket, and applied splints as a means of treating this flagrey. The evidence that there was a fracture of the rim of the cup or socket, and applied splints as a means of treating this flagrey. The evidence here first and the time the defendants make their first and the subsection of the fracture, and that it was only when the hip came out again after having been reduced that there was no evidence of negligence on the part of the defendants making them liable to damages. Stamper v. Rhis-frees, 2 E. L. R. 1894, 41 N. S. R. 45.

Malpractice — Questions for jury, [—1] nection against a surgeon for malpractice, the plaintiff has the right to a decision by a jury of a fact in controversy—not where that decision involves the consideration of difficult questions in the region of scientific inquiry, but where the fact to be found is as to what neutrally took place in the history of the plaintiff's malady, and the defendant's trainment, for example, where there is a conflict of testimony as to what the surgeon did not do in the process of reducing or attempting to reduce a fracture. In the present case there were facts in dispute as to which the plaintiff was entitled to the jury's findings. Jackson v. Hydr. 28 U. C. R. 284, explained. McVally v. Morris, 21 C. L. T. 501, 2 O. L. R. 636.

Malpractice - Trial without jury -Negligence — Evidence — Costs.] — It is now the general rule, as recognized in Town v. Archer, 4 O. L. R. 383, that actions be tried without a jury. - The negligence treating a fracture of the plaintiff's leg, the everted foot :- Held, that this result could not be invoked as sufficient evidence of negligence, on the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur; and that the defendant's treatment was not to be condemned because somebody else of perhaps equal skill would have pursued another course; and there being no lack of care and attention on the defendant's part, and the evidence not disclosing any piece of negligence or ignorance which could be classed under the head of malpractice, the action was dismissed .- Upon consideration of a number of circumstances, one of them being t medical relieved defence of the paid, 117, 7

Militia Act—Relations of officers and privates—Obeying orders—Arrest—Lubility for.]—Persons belonging to the regular army are always subject to military law and regulations, and they are obliged to obey orders which their superiors give them, the sole condition being that such orders relate to militia affairs and are not so evidently illegal that they lead to the belief that the person giving them is mentally incompetent.—2. It is otherwise in the case of those who belong to the volunteer militia: they are not subject to military law and regulations and are only obliged to obey their superiors in the cases expressly enumerated in the Militia Act. Outside of such cases, they are only ordinary citizens, and their superiors have no more right to give them orders than they have to give orders to persons who do not belong to the militia.—3. A militia officer who causes to be illegally arrested a man who belongs to the militia, makes himself liable to damages. Judgment in 22 Que, S. C. 25, affirmed. Cole v. Cooke, 12 Que, K. B. 319.

1. Abandonment of Claim.

By insufficient staking.]—Insufficiency of staking works an abandonment of a claim and leaves the lands open to be staked by another licensee. Re Milne & Drynan (1909), M. C. C. 455.

By insufficient staking.]—Failure to go around the claim, ontiting the planting of 3 of the corner posts, and the blazing of 6 of the corner posts, and the blazing of 8 of the corner posts, and the blazing of 10 mark the discovery post, renders the staking of a mining claim invalid.—Held, also, by the Commissioner, following the judgment of Britton, J. in Re Cashman and the Cobott & James Mines, Ltd.—contrary in this respect to his own decision therein—that the existence of a claim which was invalid by reason of 1 a calim which was invalid by reason of a claim which was invalid by reason of sufficient staking prevented until it was disposed of the staking out of a valid claim upon the same lands by another licenses; but keld by the Divisional Court, overruling the judgment of Britton J., and the Commonwest decision following I., that it did not the Milme & Gumble (1968), M. C. G.

By insufficient s*aking.]—Where, in surveyed territory, the alleged discovery and the discovery post were outside the limits of the claim as applied for and as required by the Act to be applied for, though within the boundaries as actually staiced out on the ground, the boundaries through want of reaground, the boundaries through want of reatered and the stain state of the claim of the the above defensed in staking H of a finite the above defensed in staking H of the claim to mark the name and license number of the staker or the description of the lot on any of the posts worked an abandonment under s. S3 (Act of 1908) and left the lands open to restaking, Re Burd & Paquette (1909), M. C. C. 419. By insufficient staking.]—A staking in which two of the corner posts were not numbered and none of the lines were freshly blazed and half of one boundary had never been blazed, was held in the circumstances to work an abandonment and to leave the land open to restsking, the staker being at all events disqualified by a prior staking which he failed to record. Re Kollmorgen & Montgomery (1909), M. C. C. 397.

By insufficient staking.]—L. on 26th February, 1907, staked out 17 acres of the prescribed 40 acre portion of the lot which prescribed 40 acre portion of the lot which the unstaked part. In this is the unstaked part. In this is the unstaked part. In this is the unstaked part in the period of the lot, and falling to connect it by a blazed line with his No. I poet, and as a fact had no real discovery of valuable mineral at the post or on the claim. C., on 21st June, 1907, discovered valuable mineral on the unstaked part of the claim and staked out and applied for the 40 acres.—Held, by the Commissioner that L.'s claim was invalid, and that as it was not staked out an provided by the Act nor in substantial compliance therewith, it must be deemed to be abandoned under s. 16th, and that the lands were therefore, nowithistanding that it was upon record, open within the meaning of a considerable of the control of t

By insufficient staking.]—Held, that it might not be too strict a ruling in the circumstances to hold that failure to blaze a discovery line worked an abandonment of the staking. Re Munro 6 Dozoney (1908) M. C. C. 193, 14 O. W. R. 523, 19 O. L. R.

Delay in staking.]—A discoverer who fails to stake out his claim within proper time, in at least substantial conformity with the Act, abundons or orders as with the Act, abundons or orders as with a stake of the conformal stake of the conformal stake of the conformal completes staking before him, Re McDermott & Dreany (1906), M. C. C. 4.

Delay in staking.]—T. made a discovery and planted a discovery post on 10th September, doing nothing further till the 24th, when he completed the staking out of his claim; F. meanwhile made a discovery and on the same day, 14th September, completed the staking of his claim (being as a fact incorant of T.'s discovery).—Held, that F. was entitled to the property, T.'s delay working an abandonment and leaving the lands open to F.—It seems doubtful whether anything except inability to complete the actual staking out of a claim will excuse delay. Re Trombley & Ferguson (1908), M. C. C. 180.

Delay in staking.]—Delay in staking is fatal only where someone else effectively intervenes, and a person disqualified cannot do so or in any way prevent another claim accruing to the property. Re Munro & Douney (1908), M. C. C. 193, 14 O. W. R. 523, 19 O. L. R. 249.

Lack of discovery.] — Held, by the Commissioner, that a claim invalid for lack of sufficient discovery is not an abandoned one within the meaning of ss. 168 and 131 (1907), and does not until disposed of leave the lands open to a subsequent staking. Redectrimmon & Miller (1907), M. C. C. 79.

Lack of discovery.] — Held, by the Divisional Court, that a prior stating which is invalid for lack of a real discovery is deemed to be abandoned within the meaning of the Act, and so does not stand in the way of another staking or prevent the making of the necessary adiavit as to the lands being open, (But see amendment to s. 83 made in 1969 by c 26, s. 31 (11), Re McNeil & McCully & Plothe (1908), M. C. G. 262, 13 O. W. R. 6, 17 O. L. R. 621.

Location—Abandonment — Defects in title—Certificates of work—County lover — Evidence.]—The "Trilby" mineral claim lapsed by abandonment in July, 1896. Before lapse the same ground was located as the "Old Jim" by the defendant's predecessor in title, and certificates of work were recorded in respect of it in 1897, 1898, and 1899. In Pebruary, 1890, the plaintiffs located the same ground as the "Herald Fraction" claim:—Held, that the defects in the defendence of the same from the same from Notice under the Act—Abandonment by. See Wright & Coleman Devel. Co. & Sharpe (1909), M. C. C. 373.

Partnership—Abandonment — Evidence of Equitable relief - Laches.] - The plaintiff and the defendant, as partners, acquired a lease of forty gold mining areas at Mahone. For convenience, the title was taken in the name of one of the defendants. The partnership expended some moneys on the areas, but was unsuccessful in finding gold. In 1887 the plaintiff decided to leave Mahone to study medicine. There was con-tradictory evidence as to whether he did or did not at this time abandon his interest in the areas. The defendants at all times sub-sequently treated the areas as theirs alone. The plaintiff took no further interest in the areas apparently until January, 1899, some twelve years after first leaving Mahone, and, although he had made several visits thereto in the interval and had seen the defendants, he made no enquiries. The defendants all had kept the lease alive until 1894, when the lease was forfeited by the Mines Office. An agreement was then made by which the defendants received $2,400 and conveyed the areas to one F. The plaintiff hearing of this brought an action to recover one-third of the $2,400 :- Held, that the plaintiff, when he left Mahone in 1887, gave up and abandoned to the defendants all the interest he had in the areas; and, although he did not do so in writing, the Court would not assist him after such laches as he had shewn. Dunlop v. Nicoll, 21 C. L. T. 84.

Subsequent applications by same person. | —C. staked out a mining claim 1st June and recorded it 15th June, 1996; made a discovery upon the same lands 16th July, but the Recorder would not receive his application because C's was on record; W. had formed a partnership with S., who was a foreman of the C. D. Co. which had had men prospecting on the lot; on 9th August the Co. staked on W.'s dison our August the Co. staked on W.S dis-covery but its application was also rejected. On 14th Sept., W., by giving C. a half in-terest, got C.'s claim abandoned and his own on record. The Co. staked again on 6th on record, The Co, staked again on an October and 21st November, 1906, and 17th January, 1907, on an alleged discovery of 29th June, which was not in reality a discovery within the meaning of the Act making successive applications which the Re-corder rejected at the time but which were afterwards recorded under mandanus,— Held, by the Commissioner, following Australian and United States authorities, that the Co.'s subsequent stakings and applications on a different discovery worked an abandonment of its first staking and application, and that as the subsequent ones were admittedly not founded upon a real discovery all its applications were invalid; and he de clined to deal with its equitable claim to the W. discovery and application until S. should be made a party and proceedings taken in the form prescribed by the Act.—Held, by the Divisional Court, that the subsequent

The plaintiffs contended that a Crown grant porting to convey mining location J.S. 14, as shewn to them on a plan, conveyed to them the right of way of defendants' railway subject to an easement in the defendants for the The plan in quesuse of the right of way. The plan in ques-tion shewed the railway lands in green running through a 40-acre tract, and on either side 36 95/100 acres described by metes and bounds in a description accompanying the plan.
