A Song of The Ages.
Out of the midst of the fiercest battle,
Onslaught of foe men in terrible rush,
The cries and tumult, the noise and rattle,
Or the silence and dread of a fearful hush,
From loss and sorrow and tribulation,
This song has risen through storm and stress,
"God is our refuge" has brought salvation,
And the river of gladness has swift to bless,
God is a present help in trouble,
Therefore, we fear not, though earth be moved
Through the mountains shake and the waters tremble,
The Lord of hosts has our refuge proved;
He breaketh the bow and the spear in sunder,
He maketh the war of the earth to cease;
The nations rage as with fire and thunder,
He uttereth his voice, and lo, there was peace.
No more shall we be troubled by the foe,
God is our refuge, he will be our God.
The kingdoms are moved, and the nations are
But God right early will help and aid;
The Lord of hosts will be with us ever,
He shall be exalted where man has trod,
He still and know, for there is a river
Whose streams make glad the city of God.

"The Purple Cross."
Asthore was an Irish horse, much beloved and gently reared. She knew the wiry spring of bracken under her heels, and the sweet, sweet air of Ireland in her nostrils. Sleepy bird, whistlers and the nightingale's love-song were familiar to her. She did not just know what they were, but they were all part of the world of joy in which she lived, and so she loved them. Most of all she loved her master's voice, low and sweet. He had grey eyes that laughed and laughed. They seemed to hold the sunshine of the world.
Asthore seemed to know his wish always with strange instinct, for she loved her master more than all the world, silently, with a dumb creature's adoration.
So sped by the Irish summer days, gold and grey, with sun shining through the mist, wonderful with roars and opal sunsets.
Then came the change. Soldiers! Horses! Soldier, white-lipped, brave-eyed. Heat, rain and mud, then heat again, and noise—why, all the noise in the world was there.
Asthore, with something still beside her. Asthore standing black and faithful, ears back, nerves quivering, but always keeping watch, an Irish horse, fresh from dear green fields, in a foreign land, deep in war heat and terror.
The heart of the animal was numb with fear. The ground shook beneath her feet, from the noise of the guns. The air was heavy with smoke, and there was only greyness and misery. Instinct told her to gallop away somewhere to clear air and get to her master's side. Something stronger than fear held her there. It was love. Suddenly she heard her master's voice, through the gloom, faint and faraway it sounded, but still with the old time touch or laughter.
Asthore, they must find you—the Purple Cross. Be patient, allans.
Black night, and always the rocking of the ground. The quick swirl of a sharp shooter's bullet through the gloom, and Asthore felt a sudden sharp pain in her leg.
Her master spoke again: "Not a sparrow falleth, you know, have patience!" The sky turned from black to silver, and then to mauve and gold.
The first sun rays fell on the face of a man, still living and un injured, and touched with a kind of glory the figure of a horse by his side.
Far across the trampled ground a small band of men and women saw the slender black figure, silhouetted against the dawn-touched sky. Raggedly they pressed forward, these brave ones who so tenderly care for horses on the battlefield. Asthore saw them, and knew that help had come for her master. The man saw them and thanked God that his horse was saved.
It was the Purple Cross—Katharine Adams.

Talks To Mothers on The Boy Problem.
Miss Mary J. Harrington, a teacher in the Nova Scotia City school, recently gave an address at a Mother's and Teacher's Institute that every mother should read.
Miss Harrington's address was one of special merit in that it was practical and logical and the idea beautifully expressed.

QUESTIONS MOTHERS CAN ANSWER.
Some of the neighborhood questions that might be controlled by the mothers are:
"Why is there a different standard of action and ideal for the boys, than for the girls?"
"Can the night street corner boys be kept at home?"
"Why was home good enough until he was ten, eleven or twelve years old when he answered the call of the street?"
"Why do the girls consider it their place to be at home?"
"Will this double standard of action for the girls and boys ever conflict?"
"I believe the neighborhood problem is chiefly a boy problem. The boy's life is divided into three periods, infancy from birth to six years of age, childhood from six to twelve, and the adolescent period from twelve to manhood. The trying time in the government of a boy is in the adolescence of this city is in the adolescent age and so you see we are dealing with one third of all the people."
"Why should parents relax the reins of guidance for the boy in his teens, when he is in the most critical stage—the 'street gang' stage. This relaxation is not intentional on the part of the parents, it is only that the boy himself feels the call of the street and the gang, and the parent fails to go with him. In a way the gang spirit is legitimate, but the father should in spirit go with the boy and the mother and the home should receive the gang. Recall in memory the pleasures of your young days when you went with a crowd and have sympathy with our child in that same enjoyment."
WHAT CLUB MEETS AT HOME
world in the home kitchen or in the living room. The evening lamp is the home's light and the hour after sunset is the Sabbath of the day. The evening hour and the home ought to be made so that the children will love it. The parents should provide books and paper and magazines and games for school days evenings. On Friday and Saturday evenings extra social affairs may be held, and occasional party and meeting of the crowd or the gang in some home under careful supervision. The boys and girls ought to meet together in these evenings and there should be an understanding and a neighborhood standard for going home in time. So every mother would know just when the children would be at home.
"Do you know your boy's friends?"
Do you ever take time to bake an extra loaf of raisin bread or an extra pan of ginger bread so your boy can share with his friends, who will by that token know that mother is also their friend?"
CHILDREN PLAY AT HOME
We were forcibly struck the other day by the truth of a remark made by a man who at the time was under serious difficulty over the crop that had sprung up from the wild oats he had sown when a boy. A little friend of his was pointing over some chastise ment, when he gently remarked, "Thank you for corrections kindly and enough for you to tell you of your mistakes or warn you when you first begin to go astray. For," he continued, "the more corrections you receive and profit by when young, the less you will receive from the world when older."
A truer statement was never uttered. What a responsibility, then, upon parents. Will it pay to close our eyes to the fact? All our corrections should be made with an eye to the future as well as the present. There should be a principle involved. Let our children see that it is our duty to punish them sometimes, never a pleasure. In our desire that their young lives be full of joy and gladness, will it be wise to refrain from imparting to them a knowledge of the sterner realities of life? Will it pay to allow them to go untaught? We must teach them so judiciously, the difference between the trend upward and the trend downward, that of their own accord they will eschew those pleasures of a doubtful nature. We cannot guard our boys and girls too closely. Many a fair flower withers and dies before its time.

MAN IS AS OLD AS HIS ARTERIES

THE failure of the arteries is one of the tragedies of modern life. Men in the very prime of life, and in the midst of business activities, are suddenly cut off. In many cases the blow comes before they realize their condition.
And what is the cause? Most usually overeating and drinking, combined with too little bodily exercise. The blood becomes overloaded with poisons. The kidneys break down in an effort to filter the blood, degeneration of the arteries takes place, an artery in the brain bursts, a clot is formed and paralysis results. Or it may be an artery in the heart that gives way and causes heart failure.
And how is this condition to be avoided? By moderation in eating and drinking, and by keeping the liver, kidneys and bowels regular and active. If you do not get sufficient exercise to accomplish this, it is necessary to use such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. It is only by the action of these organs that the blood can be purified and the poisons removed from the system. In using you are not making any experiment, for they have no equal as a means of awakening the liver, kidneys and bowels to healthful activity. They prevent such serious troubles as hardening of the arteries, and thereby promote comfort and health and prolong life.
One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

The Real Tragedy.
The war is teaching us great lessons in the value of things. A speculator at a military parade the other day was grieving over the sight of hundreds of young men in the very height of life being gathered together to make mere food for the cannon. He was soon corrected by a young man who pointed out that the real tragedy among us is the number of young men who are being blighted at first hand, and who are then left to their own devices. The casualty lists, which are so long, and which are so full of names, are a sad reminder of the fact that the war is not only taking away the lives of young men, but it is also blighting the lives of those who are left behind. The young men who are being blighted are not only those who are being killed, but those who are being maimed, and those who are being left with physical and mental disabilities. The real tragedy is that the war is taking away the lives of young men, and it is also blighting the lives of those who are left behind.

Just Human Nature.
In a war of long continuance there is always a danger of our coming to take for granted the fortitude, the audacity, the heroism of those who are fighting our battles. It can hardly be helped. The most severe feelings are apt to become blunted. The casualty lists, which are so long, and which are so full of names, are a sad reminder of the fact that the war is not only taking away the lives of young men, but it is also blighting the lives of those who are left behind. The young men who are being blighted are not only those who are being killed, but those who are being maimed, and those who are being left with physical and mental disabilities. The real tragedy is that the war is taking away the lives of young men, and it is also blighting the lives of those who are left behind.

Signs of Kidney Trouble.
In early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders. Later dropsy, stone, rheumatic pains, and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the poisons and aches and make you well again.

Valuable False Teeth.
Speculation in false teeth is one of the latest things in Springfield, says The Republican. It makes no difference how badly the teeth are worn, there is a market for them; and all of course on account of the war. But it is not because anyone wants to wear some other person's cast-off teeth. If you sell your old set the grinders will never grind again. They will be carefully separated for the platinum used in their assembling, for the price of platinum has gone skyward.
A set of teeth for which speculators will pay as high as 50 cents or $1 may have platinum pins worth three or four times that amount. Most dentists will take back the old sets from their customer and allow a credit.

One Result of Prohibition in Russia
During the Russo-Japanese War, the Russian military hospitals for the insane were overrun with insanity due to the use of alcohol; to-day as a result of the prohibition of vodka only one case of insanity caused by alcohol is in the one hospital which cares for all the insane from Russia's vast northern army (larger than all the Russian forces employed in the Japanese War).

Editorial Brevities.

Farm life is often spoken of as monotonous, but is there any reason why it should be? The environment of farming is more varied, more interesting and attractive than city life. Those who must sit at a desk in a shower of dust and endure heat during the summer and dreary weather in winter for from eight to twelve hours a day may find life monotonous, not the farmer surrounded by nature in all her charms.

A convention of the Liberal-Conservative party was held at Kentville on Tuesday, when Mr. J. Everett Kinsman, of Centerville, was nominated as one of the candidates for the approaching provincial elections in place of Mr. Fred E. Parker, who declined to accept the nomination. Mr. Kinsman is a well known and highly esteemed citizen of the county, a successful farmer, and ought to make a good candidate and representative. He sat in the Municipal Council for some time.

Commercial travellers all agree that Maritime Province trade was never so active or promising as it is today and there is a feeling of confidence in business circles that augurs well for the future. This condition applies to almost every line of business. The industrial situation is very bright and if conditions after the war can be as well maintained as they are now, or have been for the past few years, a rapid development may be looked for in the Provinces by the sea.

The student of history will not overlook that Constantinople, when it fell as a Christian city and passed under control of the Turks, did so by virtue of an invasion from Asia Minor and not from Europe. May it not be possible that there lies in the lap of the future a repetition of this historical fact, with the substitution of a Christian for a Mohammedan power? Would it not be the irony of destiny for a Christian power, passing across the Bosphorus from Asia Minor to hammer at the gates of Constantinople as did a Mohammedan power in the Middle Ages?

In his new book Four God and Take Your Own Part, ex-President Roosevelt pays this tribute to Canada: "Canada has faced the time that tries men's souls, and with gallant heroism she has risen level to the time's need. Mighty days have come to her, and she has been equal to the mighty days. Greatness comes only through labor and courage, through the iron will, through the blood of men, if only women it is possible to serve a lofty ideal. Canada has won that honorable place among the nations of the past and the present, which can only come to the people whose souls are willing and able to dare and do and die at need."

Community.

The American Lumberman, through a trade journal, devotes a page each week to a department entitled The Community Builder, which gives some account of community work in various parts of the United States, and also discusses the topic in a general way. The following article is of universal application, and offers valuable suggestions to all communities. "Communities can not be remedied, that is to say, the old cannot be completely swept away and replaced with new. Community building consists in the development and working over of the resources immediately at hand. It is not to bewail the lack of facilities or the lack of appreciation; on the contrary, community building assumes the presence of both facilities and appreciation, the presence of all that is useful for development if forces are organized, unified and utilized.

"Once each year the whole face of nature is changed, and man himself seems to undergo a transformation during the same season that nature herself puts on a newer and fresher dress. It should be just so with communities; they should have an annual season of rejuvenation and reformation, when they shall renew their crafts of their resources, renew their courage and take fresh start in all the fields of community activity. "Each year should hold out for the community, as it should hold out for the individuals composing it, hopes and promises for better things, greater advancements along material, moral and mental lines. Each year should see better schools, better streets, better roads and better people; more neighborliness and greater co-operation, as results of better understanding. All these are brought about through the instrumentality of clubs and other community groups that promote social intercourse and the discussion of community problems and needs. When the physical and intellectual forces of any community are once directed into proper channels and are enlisted in the service of the public advancement to be achieved."

HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden. It is not a matter of strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equalled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining non-toxic ingredients invigorate the blood to distribute energy throughout the body while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way. ## When Will War End?

Mr. F. H. Simonds, the distinguished war correspondent, writes in the Boston Advertiser: "For the American returning from Europe the question is more familiar than this: 'How long will it last?' However impossible the question may be to answer he is confronted by it at every turn. What makes any response more difficult is that the same question was asked of him at every turn in Europe. In France, in England, the same wonder, the same puzzle is to be found. There, as here, the probable duration of the war remains a matter on which few people have even a conjecture and none a real conviction.

All this amounts to saying that the situation in France and Great Britain has undergone no superficial change in the 21 months that the Great War has endured. Neither in London nor in Paris does anyone seriously expect peace at the end of any time that he cares to measure by months or years. For France and for Great Britain the issues of the war remain unsettled as yet. What they undertook to defend remains in danger, and the principle that is in the heart of the Frenchman, who sees more clearly than any of his allies, remains involved.

There is another question, says Mr. Simonds, that is asked of the returning traveler: 'Do you still feel that the Allies are going to win? No one can feel otherwise either in Great Britain or France. No one can feel that there is any outcome of the war possible except the destruction of his terrible German idea which has brought the world to such agony. In fact, the thing that one feels in Europe is that Germany has been seen proven impossible, that it was proven impossible at the Marne, and that Verdun is only a later confirmation of a fact already absolute. But it one asks, 'Will the Allies write their terms of peace in Berlin? That, again, is approximate nonsense. France, Belgium, Serbia are going to emerge from this war as they began it, indestructible and safe.

As far as France is concerned here is universal conviction that the war must go on steadily and without interruption for negotiations until Germany accepts the common humanity that has hitherto bound mankind that believed itself civilized.

Childhood Ailments.

The ailments of childhood are many, most of them are caused by some derangement of the stomach and bowels. Therefore to banish these troubles the stomach must be kept sweet and the bowels regular. To do this nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of mothers have approved this. Among them is Mrs. Thomas Holmes, Blissfield, N. B. who writes: "Every mother in this locality uses Baby's Own Tablets as a medicine for childhood ailments. The tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Women and Thrift.

Upon the women of the land will rest the greatest burden of success in the campaign for thrift that has been inaugurated. As heads of the household they are the chancellors of domestic economies. It is for them to wear in mind that expenditure upon articles that are not actually needed is not alone lessening their own resources but also depriving the country of something that might be more profitably applied. The majority of men will agree that so far as the household is concerned their women are pretty thrifty. But stinginess, parsimoniousness or miserliness is not thrift. The thrifty woman combines with a natural aptitude for economy the wisdom of selection and utilization. She knows when to save and when to spend. She knows what is necessary and what can be done without and she makes the best use of everything. Neither does she do all things herself. When help is at hand she utilizes it with discretion.

The great aid to thrift is thoughtfulness. In fact without that element thrift is utterly out of the question. The thrifty woman, too, not only exercises wisdom herself but sees that her children do the same thing, not by indulging them but by delegating to them sundry offices of which they are capable, by making them self-reliant. But the woman cannot do all these things by herself. She must enjoy the support, countenance, and influence of her menfolk. The greatest enemy to thrift is the promiscuous doling out of the money. It is not to boys and girls a sign of good nature, it is death to the recipient. It poisons their disposition and sows seeds of weeds that can never be eradicated. For that sort of thing women are but little responsible, but where their efforts shine is in allowing nothing to go to waste, in making use of everything, and in exercising ingenuity in food, dress, household labor and the bringing up of children.

An incentive to the accomplishment of these things is a reflection upon the needs and experience of their male relatives at the front, and upon the fact that every man saved is a contribution to the welfare of the country and perhaps to winning the war.

There are two ways of wasting your money. One is to spend it so fast that it doesn't have any time to do good, and the other is to hold on to it so tight that it never gets a chance.

The Pirate's Plea.

Germany seeks to place the blame for submarine piracy upon Great Britain, and attempts to justify the course she has herself pursued. In considering this matter it is well to ask what Germany is fighting for and what Britain is fighting for. Mr. John Buchan, in a recent article points out that Britain is fighting to establish the greatest of all neutral rights—the right to freedom. This is a true statement of the case. The sea has been free for three centuries because the British fleet has kept it so. Germany demands freedom of the sea to fleet her own selfish purposes. Mr. Buchan very properly says: "Now that all nations are subtly linked together the sea is the great common highway of the world, and its routes are the arteries of every nation's commerce. Let us imagine what the situation would be if Germany, holding her present creed, dominated the ocean as she now seeks to dominate the land. This freedom would utterly disappear. The sole security for its continuance is that Britain still rules the water."

Even if it is granted that in the course of the war Britain has been forced to depart from some of the practices of international maritime law it has been justified by changed conditions. And Mr. Buchan adds: "If neutral rights have been infringed in minor matters, Britain is fighting to establish the greatest of all neutral rights, the right of freedom. The intrusions concerned the essentials, the struggle concerns the fundamentals. To quote from an admirable article in the current number of the Royal Navy: 'When one of these fundamentals has been challenged there ought in principle to be no neutral rights and no neutrality.'"

No nation is entitled to say that its rights entitle it to obstruct those who are endeavoring to defend international right and liberty. The United States recognizes the fundamental difference between the British and the German motive in this war, and recognizes also that the real danger to the rights of neutrals is not in the British blockade of Germany, but in German piracy which recognizes no rights on seas and except those which for the moment it is deemed expedient to observe.

Substitute For Gasoline.

Louis Korbent, of Farmingdale, Long Island, says that he is driving his runabout about New York without gasoline, substituting a mixture of water and a green fluid of his own discovery which makes the oil per gallon 15 cents instead of the 25 cents charged for the Standard Oil product.

Erlicht would like to give his invention or discovery to the people of the United States, but thinks that he is entitled to some reward and his difficulty is as to how he is to collect this reward. A patent means nothing, for anybody can buy at any drug-fund the ingredients of his green fluid and anybody can mix the ingredients with water. There is no precedent in America for the state awarding a sum of money, although that is the way inventors are rewarded sometimes in European countries. The manufacturers of automobiles should get together and make Erlicht an offer. A cheap substitute for gasoline would double the sale of cars this year.
