CARD OF THANKS.—I BEG TO OFFER my most grateful thanks to the Hartford Insurance Company, of Hartford, through their efficient agent here, Horace Horton, Esq., for the prompt manner with which my insurance of $3000.00 has been paid. The first took place on the 13th inst., and the money was paid me on the 15th inst. Each receipt from the company is duly acknowledged. Signed, HENRY WELLS, Sept. 15.

TENDERS WANTED.—THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL of West Wawanosh wishes to receive tenders for the improvement of Young's Creek, from a point in Colborne Township to the Blind Line, which divides the fifth and sixth concessions of West Wawanosh. The work will be let in Sections of one concession to the 24th day of September, 1881. Tenders must be lodged with me not later than the 24th day of September, 1881. Tenders may be inspected at the office of the Town Clerk, West Wawanosh. ROBERT MURRAY, Clerk of West Wawanosh.

Wawanosh Township Clerk's Office, St. Helena, September 18th, 1881.

HURON LIVE STOCK ASSOCIATION.
The annual sale under the auspices of the Huron Live Stock Association, will be held in the town of Clinton, on WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1881. Parties desiring to enter stock for this sale, should go up to the morning of the sale; but only such stock as is entered with the Secretary on or before the 15th of September, can appear in the Sale Catalogue. All entries must be accompanied by the required fee, and owners of stock must send in the pedigree of their animals fully made out and plainly written.

Terms of Entrance.
For each thoroughbred Stallion, Mare, Bull, Cow or Heifer, $2; for each pair of sheep or swine, 50 cents; and for each calf, 25 cents. A commission of 1 per cent. will be charged on all stock sold. All who intend entering should have the pedigree of their animals fully made out and underwritten, having two dwelling houses, a barn, an orchard, stable, workshop, driving shed, and other outbuildings. For particulars apply on the premises, or to H. H. HORTON, Silburn P. O. Sept. 13-34.

FOR SALE, CHEAP.—LOT 34, Lake Range, Ashfield, Huron County, 151 acres, containing a good farm, well fenced and underdrained, having two dwelling houses, a barn, an orchard, stable, workshop, driving shed, and other outbuildings. For particulars apply on the premises, or to H. H. HORTON, Silburn P. O. Sept. 13-34.

FOR SALE.—LOT 9, LAKE SHORE Tp. of Colborne, containing 112 acres, 30 acres cleared, balance excellent timber. Soil a good clay loam. As this property adjoins the Point Farm it is in consequence most eligible situated. For particulars apply to J. Wright, March 1st 1881.

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE.—AT Dungsannon, 12 miles from Goderich, consisting of 1 of an acre of land, well fenced; a frame house, a good well and pump are also on the premises. The lot has been well improved. Terms reasonable. Particulars can be had from Mr. J. M. HORTON, Merchant, Dungsannon, or R. E. BROWN, Nile P. O.

HOUSE, AND LOTS NOS. 33 AND 34, corner of Victoria and East streets, in the town of Goderich, for sale cheap, or will be exchanged for farm property. For particulars apply to JAS. SMALL, Architect, office Crabb's Block, or J. C. CURRIE, auctioneer.

SHEPPARDTON—FARM FOR SALE.—Brick Cottage 25x30, stone cellar full size of house. A large creek runs through the lot, and there is a good well. A very fine orchard surrounds the house. Good barn and other outbuildings. Terms very easy. Apply to R. HAYES, lot 10 Lake Shore Road, Colborne Township, or to GARBROW & PROUDFOOT.

FARM FOR SALE.—BEING LOT 9, con. 13, Colborne, about seven miles from Goderich, containing 50 acres, 30 cleared, a frame house, and a new frame barn 50x35 and a stable and other outbuildings are on the premises. A young orchard, good pump, etc. on the farm. The farm has a road on two sides of it. Four acres of fall wheat are sown. Distant only 10 miles from a post office. For particulars apply to Wm. SHIELDS, Sheppardton P. O.

SHEPPARDTON—STORE, WITH POST OFFICE, for sale or rent, with 2 acres and stock of all kinds. Will sell on very easy terms, having other business to attend to. For further particulars apply to R. T. Messrs J. Russell, Goderich, and J. McIntyre, Salford, are exhibiting plums at the Provincial Exhibition, London.

Mr. M. C. Cameron, of this town, will conclude the Crown business at Stratford and Hamilton during the coming season.

One of the shade trees on Kingston St. a fine vigorous maple succumbed to the gale on Friday evening, was literally snuffed in twain.

Mr. James Doyle, G. T. R. mail clerk, has just returned from a two weeks' trip to Saginaw, Bay City, Alpena and other points.

A runaway horse belonging Mr. J. McNair caused great consternation on the Square on Tuesday. Happily but little damage was done.

Miss Tilley Starling, of Belleville, left for home on Monday, after spending a pleasant fortnight in Goderich. She was the guest of Mr. F. Price.

FOR PENITENTIARISM.—A lad named Wannamaker was sentenced to the Reformatory for three years for stealing a watch from A. Bennett, of Sheppardton.

Messrs. Chrystal & Black have been very busy during the past season. One of their latest jobs has been the putting in of salt pans at Duluth for Mr. Joseph Kidd.

On account of the illness of Mr. H. McDermott, Mr. D. McDonald, very kindly performed his duties at the recent Court of Chancery in a most efficient manner.

Mr. W. H. Murney represented Goderich at a special meeting of the Grand Black Chapter of British America of Royal Black Knights of Ireland held in Toronto recently.

We have been forwarded a press badge from the managers of the Northern Fair which will be held at Walkerton on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th.

The Holman opera troupe placed "Olivette" on the boards at Crabb's Hall on Saturday evening last. There was a good audience, and a number of the solos and choruses were well received.

The Watford Advocate informs us that a trial of the Seegmiller and Copp plows, which took place on the farm of Mr. Burns, 14th con. Bosanquet, on Friday last, resulted in a victory and praise of the Seegmiller.

Finaly McGregor, the Scottish vocalist and character delineator, gave an entertainment in Victoria Hall on the evening of Monday last to a fair audience. It is not necessary to say that Mr. McGregor filled the bill to the satisfaction of the audience.

Rev. W. J. Brandon, who for the past two months has supplied the place of Rev. Dr. Williams, during the latter's absence in Europe, will preach his final sermon on Sunday. We understand that Mr. Brandon's ministrations gave much satisfaction, and that he made many friends during his stay in Goderich.

A NATIVE POET.—Mr. A. M. Taylor, of Clinton, a young man of recognized ability as an educationist, has now in press a book of original poems. Before giving his work to the printer, Mr. Taylor submitted the manuscript to a gentleman in Toronto who has the reputation of being one of the first literary critics in Canada, and himself a poet. The result was a critique so gratifying to the young author and his friends that the work of publication was immediately gone on with. From previous knowledge of Mr. Taylor, we expect some good work in his poems. We shall be pleased to read the advance copy daily expected, and will give a candid opinion of the entire work shortly.

A special religious service will be held in the basement of the North Street Methodist church this (Friday) evening, at 7.30.

Dr. Roseburgh, of Toronto, the celebrated oculist, will visit Goderich professionally on Saturday, Oct. 8th. He will be the guest of Mr. J. R. Miller, I. P. S.

A jubilee is being held in the R. C. Church, Wawanosh, this week. Rev. Messrs. Shea and Rowland are assisting the pastor of the district, Rev. Father O'Connor.

THE GODERICH MARE.—By Telegraph from New York we learn that Lucy took second money at Fleetwood Park. There were eight horses started, and the time was 2:10.

Mr. and Mrs. Young of Havana, Cuba are the guests of Mr. James Wilson. This is the second visit Mrs. Young has paid Goderich this year. Her health has been vastly benefited by the pure air from our Lake.

L. O. L.—The regular meeting of L. O. L. No 182, will be held on Tuesday evening next, when business of importance will be transacted. The members of Lodge 153 are invited to attend.

Mr. A. A. Mackie, of the Bank of Commerce, Brantford, and bride, have been spending a portion of their honeymoon in Goderich. Mr. Mackie is quite enamoured with Brantford, which he thinks is the town of Canada.

When it rains all the week you may know that there is a fair going on somewhere. There is nothing unless it is a picnic, that will bring rain like a fair, and we sometimes wonder, in time of drought, why the farmers do not get up a country or State fair.—[Peck's Sun.]

A MYSTERY.—Some time ago, as Mr. Wm. Campbell, Sr., of McKillop, was digging a well and while down at the depth of 25 feet from the surface, he came upon a live toad firmly imbedded in the clay. By what means the creature came to find its way there, or how long it had remained in that position, is a mystery to all.

The Point Edward correspondent of the Sarnia Observer says: "Mr. McKenzie of Goderich, has opened up a cabinet shop in the east half of the Mechanics' Institute building. As we have not had a cabinet shop in the village there is little doubt that Mr. McKenzie will succeed."

HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.—A Government engineer has been surveying a portion of the harbor during the past week. We understand that a channel sixty feet in width is to be dredged around the northern end of the harbor, thus enabling vessels to make the entire circuit of the piers and load or unload at any point.

Stratford Advertiser.—It is no small praise to say that THE HURON SIGNAL, which has entered upon the second year of its existence, under its new management, may be safely put into the hands of our boys and girls. Our esteemed contemporary never goes down to their quarters or arguments wherewith to assail its opponents.

On Saturday Mr. J. Morphis, of Goderich, passed through here on his return from Michigan. A week previously he had gone over there to purchase a saw mill, taking an engineer with him to inspect the same, but they found on arrival, that the whole thing had been consumed in the fearful fires raging there.

The following is from the Brussels Post: "Last week we omitted to notice our esteemed contemporary the Goderich SIGNAL which has entered upon its second year, under the present proprietors, McGillicuddy Bros. THE SIGNAL is a credit to Goderich. Its editorials are written in a spicy style, and any quantity of local news gathered every week. We wish the McGillicuddy Bros. the success their energy and enterprise deserves."

OUT OF BUSINESS.—After a successful career of five years in the millinery business, Mrs. E. J. Copeland retires from the Chicago House. She made a host of friends and patrons, and many will regret her withdrawal from trade. We understand that she will spend the coming winter in New York. Miss Wilkinson, a niece of Mrs. Copeland's, succeeds to the business, and we trust she will meet with the success which attended her predecessor.

WON A MEDAL.—In addition to the prizes alluded to in our last issue, the North American Chemical Company, were awarded a medal for the superiority and excellence of their dairy salt at the recent Toronto exhibition. The company exhibited some two and a half tons of salt at this exhibition, two tons being taken as a fair criterion of their general make. This company has also taken first prizes at the exhibition now being held in Montreal, with the recommendation from the judges that they should be awarded specially a diploma and bronze medal for the merit of their table and dairy salt. Taking into consideration that in both cases the majority of the judges making the recommendations are practical chemists, and the further fact that of the 3,000 snaks sent over already shipped this season to Chicago the agent writes that they give universal satisfaction in the cheese and butter factories of Missouri, and not one complaint—it seems that the company must be turning out a superior article. The salt is sold to Canadian consumers at prices much lower than the best brands of English salt with which it competes.

A little barge, two masted and venerable, was seen drifting off the harbor, five days ago. She was brought into port. She is supposed to have been driven across the Lake by the recent gale. Mr. Nicholson was the first to call attention to the deserted craft.

Miss Nettie Seegmiller has gone to London to continue her musical studies under Mr. Sippi. She will also take lessons in drawing. Miss Seegmiller is a general favorite here, and her presence and talents will be missed at local entertainments during the winter.

As Others See It.

Mr. N. B. Colcock, editor of the Canadian Farmer, Welland, recently made a trip to the North-west, and the following reference to Goderich will be interesting to some of our readers:

Goderich however, 62 miles off, was reached without much trouble, and a couple of hours were given the passengers. There before a desk was an ascending high hill by means of steps, we found ourselves on a nice street leading to the business portion of the place. A large town hall stands in the centre of a large circle, with a beautiful street all around it.

Our first move was towards the printing office. After alighting to a rather ludicrous error of mistaking Mr. D. Doty, collector of customs, for the editor of the Star, and being rather coolly received by that official, Mr. Colcock further remarks: From there we struck across to the SIGNAL office, and, before entering we formed a better opinion of the newspaper men of Goderich. There before a desk we saw a gentleman with happy countenance, surrounded by three or four good looking young ladies. We were not mistaken in our man, for on presentation of our cards, the gentlemanly editor, greeted us in a whole-souled manner, and excusing himself to his lady friends, he took us out to see the sights. We received an introduction to the editor of the Star, a hearty laugh and a short tele a tele, and the two editors accompanied us to the boat, pointing out to us the way the beautiful residence of H. Y. Attrill, the celebrated thoroughbred cattle raiser.

News has been received that the schr. "D. R. Van Valkenburg," corn laden for Buffalo, went down with all hands off Whitefish Bay, Lake Michigan last Friday. No particulars. The crew probably consisted of six persons. She had 38,000 bushels of corn on board.

The steamer Asia, of the Beatty Line, recently sunken in Lake George, was taken out of the Detroit dry dock, where she had been placed to repair the damage caused by collision with the barge Helena, and arrived Sunday morning. Her upper works are yet to be repaired, which will be done here. Judging from her looks, so far, they have made a good job of the repairs. Mr. John Doble has the contract of fixing up her cabins, etc., which is a guarantee that the work will be well done.

SARNIA, Sept. 19.—The steamer Ontario arrived here from Duluth to-day, at two o'clock, after a rather dangerous trip. There were over a hundred cabin passengers on board, and some of them, in order to express their appreciation of Captain Robinson's skill and discretion in weathering as he did the dangers of the passage, and prudently remaining a day and a night at Silver Islet Harbor at the request of the passengers, presented him with an address, thanking him for his courtesy and kindness, and also speaking in eulogy of the skill and sound judgment he displayed, whereby the lives of his passengers were saved and the safety of his ship ensured. The passengers were doubly grateful to Capt. Robinson when they heard of the loss of the Columbia and other vessels in the same gale.

WEEK-END.—During the gale on Saturday of last week the schooner William Wallace, owned by Mr. Simmonds, living near Goderich, which was beached about three months ago near the Kincaird railway station, and has since been undergoing repairs on stocks, was battered to pieces by the force of the waves—the loss is complete. About eleven o'clock the schooner Nemesis, Capt. Spence, master, was making for the harbor. The bow struck the north pier very hard, and swimming round with her bow to the north, the wind carried the vessel to the north side of the dock and drove her on the beach without sustaining much damage. On Sunday afternoon a number of men, captained by R. Keyworth, attached a cable to the vessel and succeeded in towing her off, took her round the pier and safely tied the vessel up in the basin. Capt. Spence drove home to Southampton after his vessel had been beached Monday to find everything all right and his vessel ready to proceed on her trip.—Reporter.

BOWLD SOGER BOYS.

Putting in the Annual Drill at Goderich.

The Camping Ground—At the Officers' Mess—Drill—Target Practice—The Lawn Party—Incidents, etc.

There's not a thrade that's goin' Worth knowin' or showin'. Like that from glory growin'. For a bowld soger boy. For every street we march through. The ladies lookin' arch through. The ranks to find their joy; a week or so we knew in civil life transformed into "defenders" of the country, undergirding drill, fatigue duty, and bearing with their self-assumed and voluntary privations, so far as subject to military discipline is concerned, seems at first a sight strange to the onlooker.

Samuel Lover, when he penned the foregoing, must have had a clear idea of the manner in which the ladies' hearts were liable to be captivated by the brilliant uniforms and military appearance of the gallant sons of Mars. Certainly, the red coats of the rank and file are second only in attraction to the darker uniforms of the commissioned officers to the eyes of our young lady residents, and visiting the camp has been the fashionable practice during the past week with the Junos and Venuses, of the town and surrounding section. And there is much to be seen by those to whom camp life is a novelty. From the officer to the bugler can be viewed objects of interest; and to see those whom we know in civil life transformed into "defenders" of the country, undergirding drill, fatigue duty, and bearing with their self-assumed and voluntary privations, so far as subject to military discipline is concerned, seems at first a sight strange to the onlooker.

THE TESTS.

are pitched in rows of four to each company, with the exception of the Seaforth company, which being numerically small, occupies but two tents of their row, the other two being occupied by the Battalion Band. The officers' quarters are between the tents of the men and the town side of the ground, and form two sides of a square, extending South and West. In the centre of the camping ground is situated a large marquee, where the OFFICERS' "MESS" is held. Across from this is situated the kitchen, which is superintended by culinary experts. The officers of the 33rd have been lavish of their hospitality, and many of the prominent residents of the town have been invited guests at the festive board. A goodly number of red-coated waiters are in attendance, and an excellent meal, served up in first class style, is the portion of all who have the privilege of partaking.

THE MEALS OF THE BARK AND FILE are prepared by a cook and assistant from each company, and although not gotten up in the high order of art, as is the officers' "mess," are yet wholesome, nutritious and healthful in the extreme. The men appear to thrive upon their regular meals, regular exercise, and regular sleep, and will, beyond question, return home much improved after their two days' drill. The large majority of them are beginning to enjoy camp life, and would prefer to have the time extended.

THE DRILL HOURS of the Battalion are from 7 o'clock to 8 a. m., at which time the men are dismissed for breakfast; from 10 a. m., until noon, when intermission for refreshments is again indulged in; and from 2 o'clock to 4 p. m., when they are dismissed and seek recreation until the "upper bugle" sounds at 6 o'clock.

THE PARADE FOR DIVINE SERVICE on Sunday was largely attended, the majority of the Battalion availing themselves of the opportunity afforded them of worshipping at the church of their choice. Headed by the band, playing martial airs, they proceeded from the camp to St. Peter's Church, thence to the Episcopalian and Methodist churches, at each of which a contingent was left, after which the remainder, with the band, proceeded to Knox church on East street. After service, the different church parties, reformed on the Court House Square and marched back to the camp to the air of several lively quick-steps. The music and the military procession on the Sabbath created a commotion among some of the "unco guid," but the men looked so neat and clean in their bright uniforms, stepped so nicely to the music, and behaved themselves so decorous a manner at worship, that even the most straightlaced admitted that it was better for them to have the opportunity afforded them of marching to church, than to have remained idling around the camp on a day when no drill or fatigues, excepting guard duty, are allowed.

On Monday afternoon the officers of the Battalion were received by the Mayor at his residence, and a most enjoyable time was had by all. After refreshments had been partaken of, a short stroll through the pleasant grounds of Mr. Horton was indulged in, after which the guests hied to the camp.

THE LAWN PARTY given by the officers of the Battalion on Tuesday afternoon was a success in every particular. Shortly after 4 p. m., the guests began to arrive, and by 5 o'clock over 300 had gathered, the majority being of the fair sex. The band, which belongs to Brussels, and is under the leadership of Bandmaster A. H. Kay, gave a number of very fine selections, the Scottish medley and "I'm a soldier, with vocal chorus," being specially admired. The sports by the rank and file were then indulged in to the great amusement of the spectators. Two elephants' under the vigilant care of trained keepers, meandered over the grounds, and a short exhibition of "blanket-tossing" was given. A "country dance" was also indulged in by the men, the ladies being represented by coatless volunteers, and the manner in which the principals balanced, "passed up the centre, and down again," and "swung their chickens," as one caller graphically termed it, elicited bursts of merriment from the onlookers. "Excellent refreshments had been provided at the marquee for the guests, but the number being so large, it was decided to enlist waiters into the service, and deal out the viands in trim picnic style. This was done, and the manner in which the officers acquitted themselves won praise from one and all who accepted their hospitality. Shortly before sundown the gathering began to disperse, but not until the officers had been thanked by the guests of the afternoon. By their hospitality and courtesy on Tuesday the officers of the 33rd have placed their stock at a premium with the residents of Goderich.

TARGET PRACTICE began on Tuesday morning, when Nos 1, 2 and 3 Company, took their places at the "butts," and were followed on Wednesday and Thursday by the other companies. The targets, three in number, are placed at the foot of Attrill's hill, two being arranged for shooting at 200 yards' range, and the other at 400 yards. Considerable interest is taken by the different companies in the competition, and the flags at the "butts" are closely scanned by the marksmen to see whether an "outer," a "magpie," a "centre" or a "bull's-eye" rewards their efforts.

THE STAFF OFFICERS. General Luard arrived on Wednesday evening, and left on Thursday, immediately after inspection. There were also present, Col. Jackson, District Deputy Adj. Gen.; Hon Col Aylmer, Brigade Major, and Major Starr, District Paymaster.

THE REVIEW on Thursday morning before Major General Luard, was a success. After the men had formed, the general salute was the first proceeding, and the inspection of the arms, accoutrements and clothing of the men was then proceeded with, the General and staff passing down the centre and up the rear of each company. The band then struck up and the Battalion marched past by company. A series of light infantry manoeuvres was next indulged in, wherein considerable steadiness was evinced by the men. Twenty rounds of blank ammunition per man had been served out, and the Battalion was tested in volley firing, after which a feigned attack was made on the bridge by the force. After the skirmishers had been thrown out, the attack was made on the bridge by the main body and it was captured. At the close of the shafting drill the Battalion was drawn up in position, and ADDRESS AS FOLLOWS BY GEN. LUARD: Officers and men of the 33rd Battalion. Doubtless you have already discovered that it is impossible to become trained soldiers in twelve days' drill. You have yet much to learn, although you have exhibited an evident willingness to attend to your drill and other duties. The army is a profession in itself, and requires months, if not years of careful training before perfection is attained. I am much pleased with what I have seen of the Battalion, and have heard most favorable accounts of the behavior of the men while in camp. I will have great pleasure in submitting a favorable report in reference to the 33rd Huron Battalion. I have nothing further to say to you.

THE COOKS' PARADE is always looked for with pleasure by the lovers of the ludicrous. It was held about 1:30 p. m. on Thursday. The "kitchen knights" and their assistants formed in procession, dressed in raiment so grotesque that Joseph's celebrated coat of variegated hue would have appeared a very ordinary garment, if placed in comparison. The musical instruments of troops consisted of horns, bugles, tin whistles evidently troubled with bronchitis, an aged and infirm fiddle, and tin pans, dishes, pokers, tongs, and other aids to harmony, too numerous to mention. After parading the camp to the delectation of the rank and file, the procession was headed toward the officers' marquee, in front of which they stood and gave melody until a $5 bill made its appearance, accompanied by a touching appeal to the musicians to put as great distance between them and the marquee as the camping ground would permit.

MISCELLANEOUS. Hospital-Sergeant Alex. Wilson, of Seaforth, the crack shot of the Canadian Wimbledon team, and the winner of the Governor-General's badge for 1881, is with the 33rd in camp. His brothers, Major Charles Wilson, the winner of last year's Governor-General's badge, and Captain Wilson, familiarly known as "Captain Jack," are also with the Seaforth contingent, and are able marksmen.

Brussels company heads the list of averages at the shooting at 200 yards. If they keep up to their work, the Battalion cap will be carried in triumph to the carpet town.

On Tuesday last an ungalant civilian endeavored to sway the bridge as the lady who superintends the "cudinary department of the officers' "mess" was wending her way homeward. Fortunately the cook held on to the bridge, but not so her tormentor, who lost his footing, and rolled off into the "big drink" as Adjutant Cook puts it. Served him right.

That Lass o' Lowrie's,

A STORY OF THE LANCAIRES COAL MINES.

By FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT.

CHAPTER I. A DIFFICULT CASE.

They did not look like woman, or at least a stranger, new to the district, might easily have been misled by their appearance, as they stood together in a group by the pit's mouth. There were about a dozen of them there—all "pit-girls," as they were called; women who wore a dress more than half masculine, and who talked loudly and laughed discordantly, and some of whom, God knows, had faces as hard and brutal as the hardest of the collier brothers and husbands and sweethearts. They had lived among the coal-pits, and had worked early and late at the "mouth," ever since they had been old enough to take part in the heavy labour. It was not to be wondered at that they had lost all bloom of womanly modesty and gentleness. Their mothers had been "pit-girls" in their time, their grandmothers in theirs; they had fared hardly, and worked hard, they had breathed in the dust and grime of coal, and somehow or other it seemed to stick to them and reveal itself in their natures as it did in their bold unwashed faces. At first one shrank from them, but one's shrinking could not fail to change to pity. There was no element of softness to rule or even influence them in their half-savage existence.

On the particular evening of which I speak, the group at the pit's mouth were even more than usually noisy. They were laughing, gossiping, and joking,—coarse enough jokes,—and now and then a listener might have heard an oath flung out as if all were well used to the sound. Most of them were young women, though there were a few older ones among them, and the principal figure in the group—the centre figure about whom the rest clustered—was a young woman. But she differed from the rest in two or three respects. The others seemed somewhat stunted in growth; she was tall enough to be imposing. She was as roughly clad as the poorest of them, but she wore her uncouth garb differently. The man's jacket of fustian, open at the neck bared a handsome unbrowned throat. The man's hat shaded a face with dark eyes that had a sort of animal beauty, and a well-moulded chin. It was at this girl that all the rough jokes seemed to be directed.

"I'll tell thee, Joan," said one woman, "we'st ha' the sweetheartin' w' him afore th' month's out." "Aye," laughed her fellows, "so we shall. Tha'st ha' to turn soft after aw. Tha conna stand out again' th' Lunnon chap. We'st ha' the sweetheartin', Joan, I th' face o' aw tha'st said." Joan Lowrie faced them defiantly. "Tha'st mean ha' me sweetheartin' w' siss an' a fo', she said, "I amna over o' men folk at any time. I've had my fill o' em; and I'm nae loike to tak' up w' such loike as this un. An' he's nae an' a Lunnoner neither. He's on'y fro' th' South. An' th' South is na Lunnon."

"He's gotten Lunnon ways tho'," put in another. "Chopin his words up an' mince' em sma'. He's mean Lancashire, on'y gowk could tell." "I dunnot see as he mince's so," said Joan roughly. "He dunnot speak our loike, but he's well enow o' his way."

A boisterous peal of laughter interrupted her. "I thout tha' could him a fo' a minute sin'," cried two or three voices at once. "Eh, Joan lass, tha'st goin' to change thy mind, I see." The girl's eyes flashed.

"There's others I could ca' fo's," she said. "I need nae go far to find fo's. Fo's huntin's th' best sport out, an' th' safest. Leave th' engineer alone an' leave me alone too. It'll be th' best for yo'."

She turned round and strode out of the group. Another burst of derisive laughter followed her, but she took no notice of it. She took no notice of anything—not even of the two men who at that very moment passed and turned to look at her as she went by.

"A fine creature," said one of them. "A fine creature," echoed the other. "Yes, and you see that is precisely it, Derrick. A fine creature—and nothing else."

They were the young engineer and his friend the Reverend Paul Grace, curate of the parish. There were never two men more unlike, physically and mentally, and yet it would have been a hard task to find two natures more harmonious and sympathetic. Still most people wondered at and failed to comprehend their friendship. The mild, nervous little Oxonian barely reached Derrick's shoulder; his finely cut face was singularly feminine and innocent; the mild eyes beaming from behind his small spectacles had an absent, dreamy look. One could not fail to see at the first glance, that this refined, restless, conscientious little gentleman was hardly the person to cope successfully with Riggan. Derrick strode by his side like a young son of Anak—brains and muscle evenly balanced and fully developed. He turned his head over his shoulder to look at Joan Lowrie once again.

"That girl," said Grace, "has worked at the pit's mouth from her childhood; her mother was a pit girl until she died—of hard work, privation and ill treatment. Her father is a collier and lives as most of them do—drinking, rioting and fighting. Their home is such a home as you have seen dozens of since you came here; the girl could not better it if she tried, and would not know how to begin if she felt inclined. She has borne, they tell me, such treatment as would have killed most women. She has been beaten, bruised, felled to the earth by this father of hers, who is said to be a perfect fiend in his cups. And yet she holds to her place in their wretched hovel, and makes herself a slave to the fellow with a dogged, stubborn determination. What can I do with such a case as that, Derrick?"

"You have tried to make friends with the girl?" said Derrick. "Grace coloured sensitively. 'There is not a man, woman or child in the parish,' he answered, 'with whom I have not conscientiously tried to make friends, and there is scarcely one, I think, with whom I have succeeded. Why can I not succeed? Why do I always fail? The fault must be with myself—'

"A mistake that at the outset," interposed Derrick, "There is no fault in the matter; there is simply misfortune. Your parishioners are so unfortunate as not to be able to understand you and on your part you are so unfortunate as to fail at first to place yourself on the right footing with them. I say 'at first,' you observe. Give yourself time, Grace, and give them time too."

"Thank you," said the Reverend Paul. "But speaking of this girl—That Lass o' Lowrie's as she is always called—Joan I believe her name is. Joan Lowrie is, I can assure you, a weight upon me. I cannot help her, and I cannot rid my mind of her. She stands apart from her fellows. She has most of the faults of her class, but none of their follies; and she has the reputation of being half feared, half revered. The man who dared to approach her with the coarse love-making which is the fashion among them, would rue it to the last day of his life. She seems to defy all the world."

"And it is impossible to win upon her?" "More than impossible. The first time I went to her with sympathy, I felt myself a child in her hands. She never laughed nor jeered at me as the rest do. She stood before me like a rock, listening until I had finished speaking. 'Parson,' she said, 'if tha't leave me alone, I'll leave thee alone,' and then turned about and walked into the house. I am nothing but th' parson to these people, and th' parson is one for whom they have little respect and no sympathy."

He was not far wrong. The solid heavy-natured colliers openly looked down upon th' parson. A "bit of a whipper snapper," even the best-natured called him in sovereign contempt for his insignificant physical proportions. Truly the sensitive little gentleman's lines had not fallen in pleasant places. And this was not all. There was another source of discouragement with which he had to battle in secret, though of this he would have felt it almost dishonour to complain. But Derrick's keen eyes had seen it long ago, and, understanding it well, he sympathised with his friend accordingly. Yet, despite the many rebuffs the curate had met with, he was not conquered by any means. He was not an easily subdued nature, after all. He was very warm on the subject of Joan Lowrie this evening—so warm, indeed, that the interest in the mere sight of the girl had awakened in Derrick's mind was considerably heightened. They were still speaking of her when they stopped before the door of Grace's modest lodgings.

"You will come in, of course?" said Paul. "Yes," Derrick answered, "for a short time. I am tired and shall feel all the better for a cup of Mrs. Burnie's tea," pushing his hair back from his forehead, as he had a habit of doing when a little excited.

He made the small parlour appear smaller than ever, when he entered it. He was obliged to bend his head when he passed through the door, and it was not until he had thrown himself into the largest easy chair, that the trim apartment seemed to regain its countenance.

Grace paused at the table, and with a sudden flash, took up a letter that lay there among two or three uninteresting-looking epistles.

"It is a note from Miss Anice," he said, coming to the hearth and applying his pen-knife in a gentle way to the small square envelope.

Not a letter, Grace," said Derrick with a smile. "A letter! Oh dear, no! She has never written me a letter. They are always notes with some sort of business object. She has very decided views on the subject of miscellaneous letter-writing."

It was a compact, decided hand, free from the suspicion of an unnecessary curve.

"DEAR MR. GRACE,— Many thanks for the book. You are very kind indeed. Pray let us hear something more about your people. I am afraid papa must find them very discouraging, but I cannot help feeling interested. Grand-mamma wishes to be remembered to you. 'With more thanks, 'Believe me your friend, 'ANICE BARHOLM."

Derrick retold the note and handed it back to his friend. To tell the truth, it did not impress him very favourably. A girl not yet twenty years old, who could write such a note as this to a man who loved her, must be rather too self-contained and well-balanced.

"You have never told me much of this story, Grace," he said. "There is not much to tell," answered the curate, flushing again. "She is the Rector's daughter. I have known her three years. You remember I wrote to you about meeting her while you were in India. As for the rest, I do not exactly understand myself how it is that I have gone so far, having so—so little encouragement—in fact having had no encouragement at all; but, however that is, it has grown upon me, Derrick,—my feeling for her has grown into my life. She has never cared for me. I am quite sure of that, you see. Indeed, I could hardly expect it. It is not her way to care for men as they are likely to care for her, though it will come some day, I suppose—with the coming man," half smiling. "She is simply what she signs herself here, my friend Anice Barholm, and I am thankful for that much. She would not write even that if she did not mean it."

"Bless my soul," broke in Derrick, tossing back his head impatiently; "and she is only nineteen yet, you say?" "Only nineteen," said the curate, with simple trustfulness in his friend's sympathy, "but different, you know, from any other woman I have ever seen."

The tea and toast came in then, and they sat down together to partake of it. Derrick knew Anice quite well before the meal was ended, and yet he had not asked many questions. He knew how Grace had met her at her father's house an odd, self-reliant, very pretty and youthful-looking little creature, with the force and decision of half a dozen ordinary women hidden in her small frame; how she had seemed to like him; how their intimacy had grown; how his gentle, deep-rooted passion had grown with it; how he had learned to understand that he had nothing to hope for.

"I am a little fearful for the result of her first visit here," said Grace, pushing his cup aside and looking troubled. "I cannot bear to think of her being disappointed and disturbed by the half-savage state in which these people live. She knows nothing of the mining districts. She has never been in Lancashire, and they have always lived in the South. She is in Kent now, with Mrs. Barholm's mother. And though I have tried, in my short letters to her, to prepare her for the rough side of life she will be obliged to see. I am afraid it is impossible for her to realize it, and it may be a shock to her when she comes."

"She is coming to Riggan then?" said Derrick. "In a few weeks. She has been visiting Mrs. Galloway since the Rector gave up his living at Ashley-wolde, and Mrs. Barholm told me to-day that she spoke in her last letter of coming to them."

The moon was shining brightly when Derrick stepped out into the street later in the evening, and though the air was somewhat chill it was by no means unpleasant. He had rather a long walk before him. He disliked the smoke and dust of the murky little town, and chose to live on its outskirts; but he was fond of sharp exercise, and regarded the distance between his lodging and the field of his daily labour as an advantage.

"I work off a great deal of superfluous steam between the two places," he said to Grace at the door. "The wind coming across Bogart Bross has a way of scattering and cooling restless plans and feverish fancies, that is good for a man. Half a mile of the Knoll Road is often enough to blow all the morbidity out of a fellow."

Tonight by the time he reached the corner that turned him upon the Knoll Road, his mind had wandered upon an old track, but it had been drawn there by a new object,—nothing other than Joan Lowrie, indeed. The impression made upon him by the story of Joan and her outcast life was one not easy to be effaced. The hardest miseries in the lot of a class in whom he could not fail to be interested, were grouped about that dramatic figure. He was struck, too, by a painful sense of the inequality.

"If she had been in this other girl's niche," he said, "if she had lived the life of this Anice—"

But he did not finish his sentence. Something, not many yards beyond him, caught his eye—a figure seated upon the roadside near a collier's cottage—evidently a pit girl in some trouble, for her head was bowed upon her hands, and there was a dogged sort of misery expressed in her very posture.

"A woman," he said aloud. "What woman, I wonder. This is not the time for any woman to be sitting here alone." He crossed the road at once, and going to the girl, touched her lightly on the shoulder.

"My lass," he said good-natured, "what ails you?" She raised her head slowly as if she were dizzy and bewildered. Her face was disfigured by a bruise, and on one temple was a cut from which the blood trickled down her cheek; but the moonlight showed him that it was Joan. He removed his hand from her shoulder and drew back a pace.

"You have been hurt?" he exclaimed. "Aye," she answered deliberately, "I've had a hurt—a bad un." He did not ask her how she had been hurt. He knew as well as if she had told him, that it had been done in one of her father's fits of drunken passion. He had seen this sort of thing before during his sojourn in the mining districts. But shamefully repulsive as it had been to him, he had never felt the degradation of it as fiercely as he did now.

"You are Joan Lowrie?" he said. "Aye, I'm Joan Lowrie, if it'll do yo' any good to know." "You must have something done to that cut upon your temple."

She put up her hand and wiped the bloody away, as if impatient at his persistence. "It'll do well enow as it is," she said. "That is a mistake," he answered. "You are losing more blood than you imagine. Will you let me help you?" She stirred uneasily.

Derrick took no notice of the objection. He drew his handkerchief from his pocket, and after some little effort, managed to staunch the bleeding, and having done so, bound the wound up. Perhaps something in his sympathetic manner and the quiet consideration of his manner touched Joan. Her face, upturned almost submissively, for the moment seemed tremulous, and she set her lips together. She did not speak until he had finished, and then she rose and stood before him immovable as ever.

"Thank yo'," she said in a suppressed voice, "I canna say no more." "Never mind that," he answered, "I could have done no less. If you could go home now—"

"I shall nae go whomeo to nee," she interrupted him. "You cannot remain out of doors," he exclaimed. "If I do, it will not be th' first time," meeting his startled glance with a pride which defied him to pity or question her. But his sympathy and interest must have stirred her, for the next minute her manner softened. "I've done it often," she added, "an' no'wts never feared me. Yo' need nae care, Mester. I'm used to it."

"But I cannot go away and leave you here," he said. "You canna do no' other," she answered. "Have you no friends?" he ventured hesitatingly. "No, I ha' not," she said, hardening again, and she turned away at it she meant to end the discussion. But he would not leave her. The spirit of determination was as strong in his character as in her own. He tore a leaf from his pocket-book, and writing a few lines upon it, handed it to her. "If you will take that to Thwaites' wife," he said, "there will be no necessity for your remaining out of doors all night."

She took it from him mechanically, but when he finished speaking, her calmness left her. Her hand began to tremble, and then her whole frame, and the next instant the note fell to the ground, and she dropped into her old place again, sobbing passionately and hiding her face on her arms.

"I wunnot tak' it," she cried. "I wunnot go no' wher, an' tell as I'm turned loike a dog into th' street." Her misery and shame shook her like a tempest. But she subdued herself at last.

"I dunnot see as yo' need care," she protested half resentfully. "Other folk dunnot. I'm left to mysen most o' times." Her head fell again and she trembled from head to foot.

"But I do care!" he returned. "I cannot leave you here and will not. If you will trust me, and do as I tell you, the people you go to need know nothing, you do not choose to tell them."

It was evident that his determination made her father, and seeing this he followed up his advantage and so far improved it that at last, after a few more arguments, she rose slowly and picked up the fallen paper.

"If I canna go, I canna," she said, twisting it nervously in her fingers, and then there was a pause, in which she plainly lingered to say something, for she stood before him with a restrained air and downcast face. She broke the silence herself, however, suddenly looking up, and fixing her large eyes full upon him.

pen as yo're a gentleman yo' know what I'd loike to say and canna—happen yo' do."

Even as she spoke, the instinct of defiance in her nature struggled against that of gratitude; but the finer instinct conquered.

"We will not speak of thanks," he said. "I may need help some day, and come to you for it."

"If yo' iver need help at th' pit will yo' come to me?" she demanded. "I've seen th' time as I could ha' gien help to th' Mesters of I'd had th' mind. If yo'll promise that—"

"I will promise it," he answered her. "An' I'll promise to gi' it yo'," eagerly. "So that's settled. Now I'll go my ways. Good neet to yo'."

"Good night," he returned, and covering with as grave a courtesy as he might have shown to the finest lady in the land, or to his own mother or sister, he stood at the roadside and watched her until she was out of sight.

CHAPTER II.

"Th' owd lad's been at his tricks again," was the rough comment made on Joan Lowrie's appearance when she came down to her work the next morning, but Joan looked neither right nor left, and went to her place without a word. Not one among them had ever heard her speak of her miseries and wrongs, or had known her to do otherwise than ignore the fact that their existence was well-known among her fellow-workers.

When Derrick passed her on his way to his duties, she looked up from her task with a faint, quick colour, and replied to his courteous gesture with a curt yet not ungracious nod. It was evident that not even her gratitude would lead her to encourage any advances. But, notwithstanding this, he did not feel repelled or disappointed. He had learned enough of Joan, in their brief interview, to prepare him to expect no other manner from her. He was none the less interested in the girl because he found himself forced to regard her curiously and critically, and at a distance. He watched her as she went about her work, silent, self-contained, and solitary.

"That lass o' Lowrie's," said a superannuated old collier once, in answer to a remark of Derrick's. "Eh! hoo's a rare un, hoo is! Th' fellys is hauf feart on her. Tha sees hoo's gotten a bit o' schoolin'. Hoo can read a bit if tha'll believe it, Mester," with a touch of pride.

"Not as th' owd chad iver did out far her if that road," the speaker went on, nothing loth to gossip with "one of th' Mesters." "He niver did nowt far her but spend her wage I drink. But her wur a neet skoo' here a few years sen an' th' lass went her ways w' a few o' th' steady uns, an' they say as she gotten ahead on 'em aw, so as it wur a wonder. Just let her set her mind to do owt an' she'll do it."

"Here," said Derrick to Paul that night, as the engineer leaned back in his easy chair, glowering at the grate and knitting his brows. "Here," he said, "a creature with the majesty of a Juno—though really nothing but a girl in years—who rules a set of savages by the mere power of a superior will and mind, and yet a woman who works at the mouth of a coal pit,—who cannot write her own name, and who is beaten by her fiercest of fathers as if she were a dog. Good Heaven! what is she doing here? What does it all mean?"

The Reverend Paul put up his delicate hand depreciatingly. "My dear Fergus," he said, "if I dare—if my own life and the lives of others would let me—I think I should be tempted to give it up, as one gives up other puzzles, when one is beaten by them."

Derrick looked at him, forgetting himself in a sudden sympathetic comprehension. "You have been more than ordinarily discouraged to-day," he said. "What is it, Grace?"

"Do you know Sammy Craddock?" was the reply. "Owd Sammy Craddock?" said Derrick with a laugh. "Wasn't it Owd Sammy, who was talking to me to-day about Joan Lowrie?"

"I daresay it was," sighing. "And if you know Sammy Craddock, you know one of the principal causes of my discouragement. I went to see him this afternoon, and I have not quite—quite got over it, in fact."

Derrick's interest in his friend's trials was stirred as usual at the first signal of distress. It was the part of his stronger and more evenly balanced nature to be constantly ready with generous sympathy and comfort.

"It has struck me," he said, "that Craddock is one of the institutions of Riggan. I should like to hear something definite concerning him. Why is he your principal cause of discouragement, in the first place?"

"Because he is the man of all others whom it is hard for me to deal with,—because he is the shrewdest, the most irreverent and the most disputatious old fellow in Riggan. And yet, in the face of all this, because he is so often right, and I am forced into a sort of respect for him."

Grace rose from the chair, flushing up to the roots of his hair,—

"Right!" he reiterated. "Yes, right I say. And how, I ask you, can a man battle against the faintest element of right and truth, even when it will and most arraign itself on the side of wrong. If I could shut my eyes to the right, and see only the wrong, I might leave myself at least a blind content, but I cannot—I cannot. If I could look upon these things as Barholm does—". But here he stopped, suddenly checking himself. "Thank God you cannot," put in Derrick, quietly.

For a few minutes the Reverend Paul paced the room in silence. "Among the men who were once his fellow-workers, Craddock was an oracle," he went on. "His influence is not unlike Joan Lowrie's. It is the influence of a strong mind over weaker ones. His sharp, sarcastic speeches are proverbs among the Rigganites; he amuses them and can make them listen to him. When he holds up 'Th' owd varson' to their ridicule, he sweeps all before him. He can undo in an hour what I have struggled a year to accomplish. He was a collier himself until he became superannuated, and he knows their natures, you see."

"What has he to say about Barholm?" asked Derrick, without, looking at his friend, however. "Oh," he protested, "that is the worst side of it—that is miserable—that is wretched! I may as well speak openly. Barholm is his strong card, and that is what baffles me. He scans Barholm with the eye of an angle. He does not spare a single weakness. He studies him—he knows his favourite phrases and catches by heart, and has used them until there is not a Riggan collier who does not recognize them when they are presented to him, and applaud them as an audience might applaud the staple jokes of a popular actor."

Explained even thus far, the case looked difficult enough; but Derrick felt no wonder at his friend's discouragement when he had heard his story to the end, and understood it fully.

The living at Riggan had never been happily managed. It had been presented to men who did not understand the people under their charge, and to men whom the people failed to understand; but possibly it had never before fallen into the hands of a man who was so little qualified to govern Rigganites, as was the present rector, the Reverend Harold Barholm. A man who has mistaken his vocation, and who has become ever so faintly conscious of his blunder, may be a stumbling-block in another's path; but restrained as he will be by his secret pangs of conscience, he can scarcely be an active obstructionist. But a man who, having mistaken the field of his life's labour, yet remains amiably satisfied, and unconscious of his unfitness, may do more harm in his serene ignorance than he might have done good if he had chosen his proper sphere. Such a man as the last was the Reverend Harold. A good-natured, broad-shouldered, tactless, self-sufficient person, he had taken up his work with a complacent feeling that no field of labor could fail to be benefited by his patronage; he was content now as always. He had been content with himself and his intellectual progress at Oxford; he had been content with his first parish at Ashley-wolde; he had been content then with the gentle-natured, soft-spoken Keutish men and women, he had never feared finding himself unequal to the guidance of their souls, and he was not at all troubled by the prospect Riggan presented to him.

"It is a different sort of thing," he said to his curate, in the best of spirits, "and new to us—new of course; but we shall get over that—we shall get over that as easily enough, Grace."

So with not a shadow of doubt as to his speedy success, and with a comfortable confidence in ecclesiastical power, in his own ever vested, he called upon his parishioners one after the other. He appeared at their cottages at all hours, and gave the same greeting to each of them. He was their new rector, and having come to Riggan with the intention of doing them good, and improving their moral condition, he intended to do their good, and improve them, in spite of themselves. They must come to church; it was their business to come to church, as it was his business to preach the gospel. All this implied, in half an hour's half-friendly, half-ecclesiastical, conversation, garnished with a few favourite texts and religious platitudes, and the man felt that he had done his duty, and done it well.

Only one man nonplussed him, and even on this man's effect upon him was temporary, only lasting as long as his call. He had been met with a dogged resentment in the majority of his visits, but when he encountered "Owd Sammy Craddock," he encountered a different sort of opposition.

"Aye," said Owd Sammy, "an' so tha'th' new rector, art ta? I thout as much as another ud spring up as soon as th' owd un wur cut down. Tha parson is a nettle as dunnot see dee oot. Well, I'll leave thee to th' owd lass here. Hoo's a rare un fur gab when hoo talks th' notion, an' I'm nae so mich i' th' humour t' argy mysen to day." And he took his pipe from the mantlepiece and strolled out with an imperturbable air.

"Right!" repeated Derrick, raising his eyebrows. "That's bad."

CAMP MEETING.

The Methodists camping out near Holmesville—Good Accommodation—Large Audiences.

From the Clinton New Era.

On Thursday last a Union Camp Meeting for all the circuits in the Goderich District, was commenced on the farm of Mr. J. H. Elford, at Holmesville. The spot was well chosen, for it is one equally suited for its attractions and accommodation. The grove is tolerably clear of underbrush, and has been well cleared. The tents enclose a place which seems to have been an auditorium by nature. The tents number over twenty, and look as if, Phoenix-like, a village had arisen in the woods. A good preacher's tent, preaching stand and choir gallery, have been combined in one, and there are besides the ordinary single and double tents, a large and well conducted boarding house tent and prayer meeting tent. In the evening the encampment has a weird and fairy like appearance. Beside the lights hung outside the tent doors, four large fire stands have been erected, upon which pyramidal fire columns blaze out their light and make the place quite comfortable for the evening services. Seating accommodation was made for the largest audiences, and in the committee acted wisely. We have heard no one complain of the arrangements made, and we doubt anyone could, for all concerned exerted themselves to the utmost to make the meeting a grand success. One very noticeable thing was the hospitality displayed by tent holders to casual visitors and the hearty welcome all received who went on the grounds.

"What's the good of all this fuss," said a supercilious sojourner, one day last week, to a prominent camp meetinger, "where do you get your bible authority for this kind of going on?"

"Is there nothing like this mentioned in the bible?" quietly asked the questioned one.

"No," was the reply, "I have read it through and never found anything like this in it."

"You had better read it again," said the camp meeting friend, "and towards the close of the 23rd chap. of Leviticus, you will find some directions given by God to the Israelites to build and dwell in booths for seven days and 'to rejoice before the Lord their God.'"

The reference there is, of course, to the feast appointed by God to be held on the 15th day of the seventh month—from a Sabbath to a Sabbath—when the harvest had been gathered, in commemoration of Israel having dwelt in booths when brought up out of the land of Egypt. The fault finder was not disposed to argue the matter any further and left abruptly.

The services commenced on Thursday last, the first sermon being preached by Rev. W. McDonagh, of Clinton, being followed by Rev. Mr. Birks, of Blyth, in evening. After an early prayer meeting on Friday morning, Rev. Mr. Smith, of Manchester, preached an excellent discourse, Rev. Messrs. Hamilton and Teske preached respectively in the afternoon and evening. Saturday was taken up with discourses from Rev. Messrs. Cook, Bayfield; Harris, Brussels; and Livingstone, Bayfield. At all these services the congregations were very fair, and there were indications of good being done. Sunday, however, was looked forward to as the great day of the meeting, and such it proved to be. A prayer meeting was held at nine o'clock, led by Rev. Mr. Hamilton. At 10 o'clock the first regular preaching service was held. A number of ministers took part in the opening exercises, and the Rev. Mr. Harris, of Brussels, preached from the words—

"The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him and saith 'Behold the lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world'."—John 1, 29.

The congregation, fully 2,000, listened attentively to a thoughtful sermon on this text, occupying over an hour in delivery. After dinner, during which large crowds continued to arrive, Rev. Mr. McDonagh took the stand, and after reading and commenting very pointedly on the last chapter of Revelations, preached a master sermon on Ezekiel 47-9. "And it shall come to pass, that every thing that liveth, which moveth, whithersoever the rivers shall come shall live, and there shall be a great multitude of fish, because these waters shall come thither, for they shall be healed, and every thing shall live whithersoever the river cometh."

The immense congregation, now swelled to about 3,500, paid the greatest attention to a discourse which could not have failed to awaken much serious consideration. Immediately following, Rev. Mr. Livingstone led a short prayer meeting. The evening service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Harris, of Teeswater, who discoursed on Isaiah, 21—11-12. "Watchman, what of the night? The watchman said, the morning cometh and also the night."

The day closed with several prayer meetings in the tents. The conduct of the large audiences was almost unexceptional. During the evening some young men and some that were not young, persisted in standing up and talking contrary to the wishes of those in authority, and much to the annoyance of those sitting around them. Only the intervention of some friends saved the participants from exposure before a magistrate.

Monday's services commenced with a prayer meeting at 6 o'clock, followed by a conversational meeting on the subject of "appropriation of faith," led by Rev. Mr. McDonagh. This was one of the most interesting meetings, so far held. The sermons during the day were preached by Revs. Messrs. Hadwin, London; L. O. Rice, and Brandon, Goderich.

Tuesday morning and afternoon were given up to a Temperance meeting, which proved to be of great interest. Rev. A. E. Edwards presided, and addresses upon the different phases of the question were delivered by Rev. Messrs. Harris, Walker, Rice, Hamilton, Birks and McDonagh. In the evening the regular services were continued. Rev. Mr. Caswell, Duncannon, preaching a powerful sermon on Matt. 16—26. "For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul." A large congregation was present and the majority remained for the prayer which followed. The first service on Wednesday morning was a 6 o'clock prayer meeting, followed by another at 9 and the regular preaching service at 10 o'clock. In the afternoon, Rev. Mr. Keefer, of Wingham, delivered an able and appropriate discourse. Rev. W. Birks, of Blyth, preached at the evening service.

Clinton.

Mr. E. Finch, of this place, has a grape vine that has on it ripe grapes, young grapes and several bunches of bloom; also a grape vine that was cut down within a foot of the ground, having been winter killed, which has shot forth from the stump, and now covers a space of 16 feet by 12, one branch being 21 feet long, with several bunches of bloom on it, all from this summer's growth.

Mr. Enus Hull, of this place, who was visiting his brother in Michigan, on the 3rd inst., was an unwilling witness of the fire raging in the woods there, (and which has since worked such terrible destruction.) His brother's property being in danger of destruction, they worked day and night, and by terrible work succeeded in saving the property, at the risk of their lives. Going with others to a neighbor's to render assistance, they found the wife lying dead on the road, and when placing her in a box for burial, it was necessary to break her arms and legs to get them in, so fearfully were they twisted by the fire.

Before leaving here last week with their car of horses just purchased, the Hon. F. Moore, Mayor of St. Clair, and John L. Morrison, of Detroit, spoke very highly of the quality of horses in this section, and were well satisfied with their purchases, as well as the treatment they met with from those with whom they had done business. Although they had been purchasing horses for the Michigan lumber woods for the past six or seven years they had never visited this section before, but did not intend it to be their last. They told Mr. Pike, at whose house they staid, they would be back, if possible during our fall show. —[New Era.

During the next term in the Cincinnati Public Schools technical grammar will be abolished from all the grades up to the fourth reader, and elementary lessons in English for home and school use will be substituted. The Superintendent says that he believes the time which has been devoted to grammar in the first five years of school has been practically wasted. One hour a week is to be given to literature in the schools, and a system of letter writing will be introduced in the two higher grades of the intermediate departments. It is rather astonishing that this discovery has not been made and practically acted upon in our Canadian schools before this. There are but few who do not believe that our present method of teaching Grammar is at least a very round about, if not a doubtful way of acquiring correct English.

THE DEAD PRESIDENT.

By the death of President Garfield the civilized world has been plunged into grief. His noble character, the unexpected and cruel wound, the terrific and admirable struggle for life—all contributed to make the death of the exalted victim of a miserable assassin's bullet peculiarly sad. Truly the whole world is in tears. Not his own nation only, not his own people alone, but the people of every nation and clime join in mourning the dead ruler.

CENTRE HURON'S MEMBER.

We understand Sir Richard Cartwright, M.P. for Centre Huron, will hold a series of meetings in this section of the Province during October next. He will address the first meeting at Lucknow on the 13th, and it is expected that shortly afterward he will meet the electors of Centre Huron at Smith's Hill and at Brucefield. Since being elected representative of Centre Huron, Sir Richard has made it a point to visit his constituents annually and give to the electors an account of his stewardship during the previous session of Parliament.

OUR NEW STORY.

We this week publish the opening chapters of our new story. We hope all our readers will read them. The story is a good one; the characters are admirably drawn, and the interest never flags. Begin it now, and don't miss a number. We will send THE SIGNAL to any address until 1st January, 1882, for $1.50 or until 1st January, 1882, on trial for 25c. Our friends will do us a service by mentioning these rates to their neighbors.

It has been said that a man can easily enter into a law squabble but the chances are against his ever getting out with a whole skin. And this was illustrated in the recent chancery sitting held here by the fact that out of eleven cases entered only four were dealt with by the Chancellor, owing to the shortness of time at his disposal, and wearisome length of the cases. In some instances witnesses had been summoned from a distance and expenses incurred, which will prove a hardship owing to the hearing of the cases being postponed.

TRADE is suffering in Goderich for lack of proper railway facilities. The G. T. R. cannot or will not supply one-third of the cars needed for the lumber and grain trade. Messrs. Williams & Murray are dealt with very unfairly, we think. At least three cars a day were promised them, but they do not average more than half that number. Their stock is fast accumulating on the pier, and large orders cannot be as promptly attended to as the enterprising firm desires. Mr. Payne, the wheat dealer, also experiences much annoyance and loss from lack of box cars. The need of another railway is badly felt here, and any reasonable offer from a line running east would be readily accepted.

OCTOBER 20TH has been fixed upon as Thanksgiving Day for 1881. Princess Louise is booked to sail from England on the same day. Isn't it possible that some Lord Lorne, fixed the day with intent, knowing that the days of his "grass-widowhood" were numbered. Now he will have an opportunity once again extended to him of enjoying the pleasures of home; and can bid good-bye to junketing trips, Indian legends, prairie sunsets, and $1,200 packages of liquors brought upon prohibitory ground, free of duty. Pleasure and pain are mixed in the Gov. Gen's cup on this occasion.

THE fall shows are now upon us, and the men who complain of the frothy character of ordinary news matter can settle down to some good solid reading in the prize lists. The man with the big pinkin will for the next three weeks be a greater man in his own estimation than the Premier.

DEATH OF GARFIELD.

Another Martyr—President Gone to His Rest.

His Last Hours—"The People, the People My Trust"—A Record of Fortitude.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 20.—The President died at 10:30 last night. From what has been ascertained his death was from sheer exhaustion. McVeagh was the first to notify Arthur of the President's demise. The sad news has caused intense grief and mourning throughout the country.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 20.—I am sorry to hear of his death. The only words spoken by the President were that he had a severe pain in the heart. It is supposed by the surgeons that death was occasioned by a clot of blood forming on the heart. Bliss was the first one noticed of the President's expression of pain, and upon entering the room he at once saw the end was near. The members of the family was immediately summoned to the bedside. All arrived and perfect quiet prevailed.

Mrs. Garfield bore the trying ordeal with great fortitude and exhibited unparelleled courage. She gave way to no display of grief, and after death became a quiet, self-controlled woman. She quietly withdrew to her own room. There she sat, a heart-stricken widow, full of grief, but to those about her. But despite her efforts tears flowed from her eyes, and her lips became drawn by her noble attempt to bear the burden with which she had been afflicted.

Mollie Garfield was greatly affected, and bursts of tears flowed from the child's eyes, notwithstanding her noble effort to follow the example of her mother. The death scene was one never to be forgotten. Perfect quiet prevailed, and there was not a murmur heard while the President was sinking.

After death had been pronounced the body was properly arranged by Dr. Boynton. MacVeagh made the following statement: "I sent my dispatch to Lowell at 10:30 p. m. Shortly before that Bliss had seen the President, and found his pulse at 106 beats to the minute, and all conditions were then promising a quiet night. The doctor asked the President if he was feeling uncomfortable in any way. The President answered, 'Not at all,' and shortly afterward fell asleep. Bliss returned to his room. Swain and Maxwell remained with the President. About 15 minutes after 10 p. m. the President awakened and remarked to Swain that he was suffering great pain, and placed his hand over his heart. Bliss was summoned, and when he entered the room he found the President substantially without pulse, and the action of the heart almost indistinguishable. He said at once the President was dying, and directed Mrs. Garfield to be called, and also the doctors. The President remained in a dying condition until 10:35, when he was pronounced dead. He died of some trouble of the heart, supposed to be neuralgia, but that of course is uncertain."

MacVeagh sent the following to Arthur: "It becomes our painful duty to inform you of the death of President Garfield, and to advise you to take the oath of office as President of the United States without delay. If it concurs with your judgment, we will be glad if you come on the earliest train to-morrow morning." Signed, William Windom, Secretary of the Treasury; W. H. Hunt, Secretary of the Navy; Thomas James, Postmaster General; Wayne MacVeagh, Attorney General; S. J. Kirkwood, Secretary Interior.

IMMEDIATE CAUSE OF DEATH.

A post-mortem examination disclosed the facts that the fatal bullet, having passed through the spinal column, fractured the body of the first lumbar vertebra, driving numerous small fragments into the adjacent soft parts, two of which inches to the left of the spine and behind the peritoneum. The ball had become completely encysted. The immediate cause of death was secondary hemorrhage from one of the mesenteric arteries adjoining the track of the ball, the ball rupturing the peritoneum, causing a pint escaping into the abdominal cavity. The hemorrhage is believed to have caused the last severe pain complained of by the President. An abscess cavity, six by four inches, was also found near the gall bladder. The lungs also showed evidences of severe bronchitis.

HIS LAST WORDS.

Garfield's words when he found the fatal pang attack him were, "I am suffering great pain, I fear that the end is near. One of the most touching incidents of the sick room yesterday was when the President, awakening from a semi-sleep, murmured: 'The people, the people my trust.'"

THE LAST TERRIBLE PAIN.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 20.—Swain, who was the only one with the President when he began sinking last night, says: "On entering the President's room I found Mrs. Garfield sitting by his bedside. I said to her, 'How is everything going?' She replied, 'He is sleeping nicely.' I then went into the doctor's room, found Bliss there, and asked him what was to be given the President during the night. He answered, 'I think I had better give him a list.' I then went into the President's room and had a little conversation with Mrs. Garfield. She felt the President's hand and said, 'He seems to be in good condition.' He passed out of the room. I immediately felt his hands, feet and knees. I thought that his knees seemed a little cold, and got a flannel cloth, heated it at the fire and laid it over his knees. He also heated another cloth and laid it over his right hand, and then sat down beside the bed. I was hardly seated when Boynton came in and felt the President's pulse. He said it was not as strong as it was this afternoon, but very good. He said, 'He seems to be doing well.' 'Yes,' he answered, and passed out. As he turned his head on awaking he took hold of his hand. I remarked, 'You have had a nice, comfortable sleep.' He then said, 'Oh Swain, this terrible pain,' placing his right hand on his breast about over the region of the heart.

I asked him if I could do anything for him. He said, "Some water." I poured about an ounce and a half into a glass, and gave it to him to drink. He took the glass in his hand, raising his head as usual, and drank the water very naturally. I took a napkin and wiped his forehead as he usually perspired on awakening. He then said, "Oh Swain, this terrible pain; place your hand on it." I laid my hand on his chest; he then threw both hands up to the side and about on a line with his head and exclaimed, "Oh Swain, can you stop this?" and again, "Oh Swain!" I then saw him looking at me with a starting expression; I asked him if he was suffering much pain. Receiving no answer I repeated the question with a like result. I then concluded he was either dying or was having a severe spasm and called to Daniel (the colored servant), who was at the door, to tell Bliss and Mrs. Garfield to come in immediately. It came within two or three minutes. I told Daniel to bring a lighted candle, and the light shone full on his face. I saw he was dying. When Bliss came in a moment after, I said, "Doctor, have you any stimulant; he seems to be dying." He took hold of his wrist as if feeling for the pulse, and said, "Yes, he is dying." In a very few moments Mrs. Garfield came in and said, "What does this mean?" and a moment after exclaimed, "Oh, why am I made to suffer this cruel wrong?" At 10:35 p. m. the sacrifice was completed. He breathed his last calmly and peacefully.

He was the greatest man as a patriot, said Bliss. "I have ever seen. Never a murmur came from him. All but he is now so changed in appearance."

HIS POOR MOTHER.

The President's mother will not be present for to come to Long Beach. She is much prostrated, and pronounced unable to stand the journey. She will, however, attend the funeral of her son in Cleveland.

THE FUNERAL.

The remains will lie in state in the rotunda of the Capitol Thursday and Friday, and be guarded by deputations from the Executive Departments, and officers of the Senate and House of Representatives. Religious ceremonies will be observed in the rotunda at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon. At 5 o'clock the remains will be transferred to the funeral car and will be removed to Cleveland, Ohio, via the Pennsylvania Railway, arriving there at 2 p. m. In Cleveland the remains will lie in state until Monday at 2 p. m., and be then interred in Lakeview Cemetery.

WHERE THE REMAINS WILL LIE.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19.—The President's remains will be interred in the same cemetery where repose the body of the President's uncle, Thomas, killed by a train a fortnight before the assassination, and his cousin, who died a few years ago.

GUTEAU TOLD THE NEWS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The jail warden to-day informed Guteau of the President's death. The assassin instantly sank down on the bench, appeared much agitated. After remaining in this position a few moments he arose and paced the floor, muttering something to himself as if praying. He then said he was glad the President had at last been relieved from his sufferings, as he would not have committed the deed if he had known the victim was to suffer as he did.

CANADA'S SYMPATHY.

The following was issued: GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA, Sept. 19. The flags at the citadel, Quebec, at Fort Henry, Kingston, and at all the military posts, and also on all Government buildings and vessels, will be hoisted to-day half-mast high, and so maintained on each day from sunset to sunset until after the funeral of the late President of the United States, General James Garfield, and it is requested by His Excellency the Governor-General that the flags of all public, municipal and private buildings, and on all ships, be placed and maintained in like manner from sunset to sunset during the same period, in token of the sorrow felt by Canada and the people for the calamity which has befallen the great nation with whom the Dominion is connected by so many ties of friendship and of kindred.

JOHN A. McDONALD.

HISTORY OF THE CASE. On Saturday Morning, July 2nd, President Garfield, accompanied by Jas. G. Blaine, left the White house with the object of taking the train at the Baltimore and Potomac depot for Long Branch, where he intended joining his family. While passing through the waiting-room, and arm-in-arm with Mrs. Blaine, two shots were fired at him by Charles Julius Guteau, a disappointed office-seeker. One of the balls took effect and Garfield fell, whereupon the assassin exclaimed, "I have shot Garfield. Arthur will be president, and I am a stalwart." The wounded president was carried upstairs and an ambulance was sent for. While lying in the state room he was surrounded by Blaine, James and Windom, members of the cabinet, and soon after was carried to the White house. On making an examination, the doctors found that one of the bullets had taken effect in the back and passed either through or near one of the lungs, but it was some time further on in the history of the case before the exact nature of the wound was known. On Saturday evening the president sank very low, and his death was momentarily expected. Throughout Sunday, however, he rallied, and on Monday the physicians were full of hope. During the remainder of the week the bullet continued to be favorable, though it was necessary to administer morphia. The wounded man continued to improve, and his appetite to increase until Friday night, July 24th—three weeks after the shooting—when a turn for the worse took place and the knife had to be used in order to remove an obstruction in the stomach. On July 28th the bullet again became favorable, and from that time on his condition was one of alternating ups and downs. On August 8th Dr. Agnew made another incision into the wound and aided the flow of pus thereby. On August the 24th the paroid

GODERICH GIVING.

A Liberal Donation to the Michigan Sufferers.

A List of Cash Contributors—$3,000 Worth of Clothing, Bedding, etc., Gathered here.

The call for aid for the unfortunate residents of the burnt districts of Michigan, as stated last week, been liberally responded to by the citizens of Goderich.

During the past week Hon. J. Hibbard paid a visit to the head committee for the relief of the sufferers, at Port Huron, and paid over $226 to the treasurer. The money was gratefully received, and words of commendation spoken for the noble action taken by our town in the matter.

In addition to the cash donations, about $300 worth of clothing, blankets, quilts, etc., have been generously given by citizens; yet the call is for more articles of bedding, as many of the sufferers still lack the comforts of even a bed of straw on the floor. Any persons who can spare anything in the way of blankets or bedding are requested to communicate at once with the American Consul here.

The following is a list of the money contributors, but more has lately been received, and will be acknowledged in our next:

GODERICH GIVING.

A Liberal Donation to the Michigan Sufferers.

A List of Cash Contributors—$3,000 Worth of Clothing, Bedding, etc., Gathered here.

The call for aid for the unfortunate residents of the burnt districts of Michigan, as stated last week, been liberally responded to by the citizens of Goderich.

During the past week Hon. J. Hibbard paid a visit to the head committee for the relief of the sufferers, at Port Huron, and paid over $226 to the treasurer. The money was gratefully received, and words of commendation spoken for the noble action taken by our town in the matter.

In addition to the cash donations, about $300 worth of clothing, blankets, quilts, etc., have been generously given by citizens; yet the call is for more articles of bedding, as many of the sufferers still lack the comforts of even a bed of straw on the floor. Any persons who can spare anything in the way of blankets or bedding are requested to communicate at once with the American Consul here.

The following is a list of the money contributors, but more has lately been received, and will be acknowledged in our next:

THE BRUSSELS GAMES.

Large Attendance.—Sports Hotly Contested.

On Thursday the annual games and sports in connection with the Brussels Caledonian Society were held on the Park, and were the most successful ever held here.

The following athletes of note were present and took part in the games: E. W. Johnston, M. McDonald, R. Harrison, A. Robinson, Cummings, Woods, Colwell, Gibb, Arthur, A. Scott and others.

Among the many guests present we noticed J. D. Stewart, of Hamilton; D. McKenzie, London; L. McIntyre, M. Campbell, Drs. McCrimmon and Tennant, and McKid, Geo. McHardy, J. B. Hunter and D. Campbell, Lucknow; R. Elliott, W. Bright, J. Curtis, McBeth Green, of Listowel, Messrs. Urquhart, Toronto, and many others from neighboring towns and villages.

Pipers—Messrs. of Buffalo; D. K. Henderson of Toronto; J. Hendry, of Renfrew; P. McCarthy, T. Ballantyne and D. Stewart of Brussels, were present and enriched the proceedings with many Scottish airs.

Ian McKenzie, Hamilton; J. L. Henderson, Toronto; H. Henderson, Hamilton; W. Campbell, Dundas; Capt. Inglis, Brantford and a number of others appeared in Highland costume competing for dress and dancing.

Horace McCrimmon, a boy eight years of age, from Lucknow, delighted the spectators by his dancing. The Hendersons and Mathesons were in splendid form, giving various exhibitions on the platform during the day.

The presence of Piper Hendry, the old veteran of Lucknow, India, awakened memories of long ago. He lost a leg in the terrible contest inside the walls of Lucknow.

In some of the games the competition was very close, Johnston, Gibb and Scott chasing each other up at a pretty lively rate. In an exhibition running hop, step and jump McDonald made 46 feet 8 in and Gibb 45 feet 5 in. In the running long jump four competitors cleared over 29 ft. 3 in.

The whole programme of games and sports was carried through without a break, every event being completed for the day. The tug of war was decided in favor of the east side of Main St. We are unable to particularize in the various games as space will not permit, the following prize list will give a very fair idea of the work done by each.

A. Scott won 13 prizes, E. W. Johnston 14 and M. McDonald 11. This gave Scott the Society's Medal, valued at $25, as Johnston had been barred.

Standing Jump—1st, E. W. Johnston, 10ft. 10in; 2nd, A. Scott, 10ft. 7in; 3rd, M. McDonald, 10ft. 5in.

Standing 3 Quicks—1st, E. W. Johnston, 34ft. 4in; 2nd, A. Scott, 32ft. 10in; 3rd, M. McDonald, 32ft. 4in.

Stead Hop, Step and Jump—1st, Johnston, 32ft 8in; 2nd, Scott, 32ft 1in; 3rd, McDonald, 31ft 5in.

Running Jump—1st, Scott, 29ft 9in; 2nd, Johnston, 29ft 6in; 3rd, A. Robinson, 29ft 4in.

Running Hop, Step and Jump—1st, McDonald, 44ft 5in; 2nd, G. Gibb, 44ft 3in; 3rd, Scott, 40ft 5in.

Standing High Jump—1st, Scott, 5ft. 1in; 2nd, Johnston, 5ft. 3in; 3rd, McDonald, 4ft 9in.

Running High Jump—1st, Johnston, 5ft. 8in; 2nd, Scott, 5ft 7in; 3rd, McDonald.

Hitch and Kick—1st, Johnston, 8ft 9in; 2nd, Scott, 8ft 8in; 3rd, McDonald.

Vaulting with Pole—1st, Scott, 9ft 11in; 2nd, Gibb, 9ft 10.

Putting Light Stone—1st, Johnston, 42ft. 7 in; 2nd, Scott, 42ft 5in; 3rd, R. N. Harrison, 42ft 3in.

Putting Heavy Stone—1st, Scott, 33ft 5in; 2nd, Johnston, 32ft 3in; 3rd, Harrison, 31ft 9in.

Throwing Light Hammer—1st, Johnston, 105ft 6in; 2nd, McDonald, 104ft. 10in; 3rd, Harrison, 104ft.

Throwing Heavy Hammer—1st, Johnston, 87ft. 2nd, McDonald, 86ft 5in; 3rd, Harrison, 85ft 10in.

Throwing 36 lb. Weight—1st, Johnston, 22ft. 3in; 2nd, A. Morrison, 20ft 4in; 3rd, Scott, 20ft.

Tossing the Cobler—1st, Johnston, 36ft 11in; 2nd, Scott, 36ft 2in; 3rd, Harrison, 36ft 1in.

It is not for the rain would have been crowded. The singing of Prof. Jones and his lady excellent, while the members of his family performed their part in a very satisfactory manner; the singing of his little daughter delighting the audience.

Messrs. Henderson and Matheson in the dancing of the Lorne Reel, Gillie Callum, Highland Fling and other dances sustained their reputation. Piper Hendry played the tune when marching, at the head of the 75th Highlanders, to the rescue of Chief Alexander presided and made several grand speeches which showed he had a leaning towards the Scotch.

The Brussels Caledonian Society is gradually working its way upward, and if the advance since last year's games may be taken as a guarantee for the progress expected each year, we will before many years stand on the same footing as our sister Society in Lucknow. The receipts over and above all expenses, will leave a nice nest egg for forthcoming years.—[Post.

Be True. Thou must be true thyself. If though the truth would't teach; The soul must overflow, if thou Another's soul would't reach; It needs the overflow of heart To give the lips full speech.

Wedding-Day Wishes.

Since I have not for your bridal Any precious offerings brought— Gold, or gems, or costly fabric, By the curious workman wrought— Let your thought admit the fancy.

Daily, loving words of kindness, These for jewelled rings should be; Better than the diamonds' radiance Is the light of charity.

And for fairer, best adorning, Never wanting, ever bright, Wear the "meek and quiet spirit," Pricedless in the Giver's sight.

These will fall not, though misfortune Sweep all earthly good away; God's dear smile of love and favor Turneth darkness into day.

Fun and Fancy.

The duck that hatched her brood is said to have been the first one known to "pool the issues."

Peter the Great was a man of iron will. There is generally a great deal of iron in all grates.

When a rural-resort landlord thinks a city man is putting on too many airs, he merely says, as he hands him his key to his room, at night "Be careful to turn out the gas. Don't blow it out."

A six pound orange has grown in California. It weighed only one pound when it was picked, but twelve editors have seen it since and there's nothing in California like editors to make things grow.

"Our chairman," said a man who had got home from a public meeting that ended in a general row—"our chairman tried to pour oil on the troubled waters, but it all ended in a turmoil."

Lesson for young housekeepers—"How can you tell a young fowl from an old one? By the teeth." "By the teeth? But fowls have no teeth." "I know they haven't, but I have."

"When was Rome built?" asked a school committee-man of the first class in ancient history. "In the night," answered a bright little girl. "In the night?" exclaimed the astonished examiner. "How do you make that out?" "Why, I thought everybody knew that 'Rome wasn't built in a day.'"

Household Hints.

Sliced lemon is a very appetizing addition to cold roast veal, also to minced veal on toast.

To Fry Fish.—Sweet, fat salt pork should be fried out, in which to fry fresh fish. Nothing gives the fish a better flavor.

FRENCH POTATOES.—Cut boiled potatoes in thin slices, and simmer them in a few spoonfuls of plain gravy, a bit of butter rubbed in a little flour, chopped parsley, pepper and salt.

VEGETABLES.—Don't wash vegetables until just before you are going to cook them. The earth is a preservative and absorbent of the volatile element of the root, which, as soon as washed, evaporates rapidly into the air and is lost.

JELLY ROLL.—Three eggs, one cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of cream tartar, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one cup of flour; pour it thin in a baking; bake slowly; spread jelly over it, and roll it up. Wrap it in a cloth.

CHOCOLATE CANDIES.—Scrape one-half of a cake of Baker's Chocolate, and add to one cup of sugar, one cup of butter. Let it cook slowly till it hardens by dropping into cold water, and pour it on buttered plates.

QUEEN BISCUITS.—Rub four ounces of butter into eight ounces of flour and six ounces of lump sugar, the yolk of two eggs, the white of one and a tablespoonful of brandy; roll the paste thin and cut with a tin cutter; egg over top of each with remaining white, and sift on white sugar; bake in a warm oven.

OYSTER SAUCE FOR COBBLERS.—One quart of oysters when buying them ask for a little extra liquor, put over the fire, rub up pieces of butter the size of small eggs with two even tablespoonfuls of flour, stir this in the oysters till dissolved, pepper and salt to taste, and on no account let it boil more than one instant—the oysters must not be hard. This is enough to serve with eight pounds, for twelve persons, as first course before meat.

Words of Wisdom.

Let not the stream of your life always be a murmuring stream. It is better to be laughed at for not being married than to be unable to laugh because you are.

We expect submission and amendment from the wrong person; we should expect them from ourselves.

While his mother lives, a man has one friend on earth who will not desert him when he is needy. Her affection flows from a pure fountain, and ceases only at the ocean of eternity.

To dream gloriously, you must act gloriously while you are awake; and to bring angels down to converse with you in your sleep, you must labor in the cause of virtue during the day.

He who betrays another's secret because he has quarreled with him was never worthy of the sacred name of friend; a breach of kindness on the one side will not justify a breach of trust on the other.

Happy is the man who is out of debt let his property be ever so small. The evils of debt have been most formidably illustrated during the prevailing stringency of the hard times. Many a man who had money enough to make him comfortable, has lost every dollar by having it invested in property on which he had given a mortgage.

There were four good habits a wise and good man earnestly recommended: in his counsels, and also by his own example, and which he considered essentially necessary for the management of temporary concerns; these are, punctuality, accuracy, steadiness, and dispatch.

Without the second, mistakes the most hurtful to our own credit and interest; and that of others may be committed; without the third, nothing can be well done; and without the fourth, opportunities of great advantage are lost which it is impossible to recall.

Everyone may not know what a "normal" pulse is. To such the following table may be interesting:

Table with 2 columns: Pulse rate and corresponding age/condition. Includes: Pulse in the newly born infant 130 to 140, Pulse during first year 115 to 130, Pulse during second year 100 to 115, Pulse during third year 95 to 105, Pulse during 7th to 14th year 80 to 90, Pulse during 14th to 21st year 75 to 85, Pulse during 21st to 60th year 70 to 75, In old age 75 to 80.

In inflammatory or acute diseases the pulse may rise to 120 or even 150 in the adult, and become so frequent in the child that it cannot be counted. Muscular exertion, mental excitement, digestion, alcoholic drink, and elevation above the sea level accelerate the pulse, and, as a general rule, it is more frequent in the morning than the evening. It is slower in sleep, and from the effect of rest, diet, cold, or blood-letting.

The pulse of a grown woman exceeds that of a man of the same age as much as 10 to 14 beats a minute, and, according to some authorities, is less frequent in the tall than in the short person, the variation being about 4 beats for each six inches of height.

Some of the latest nuisances are the cads who get into cars or stages with lighted cigars in their hands and fill the whole vehicle with the detestable odor of burnt cabbage-leaves, in spite of the presence of ladies and the notice "No smoking."

I have tried complaining to the drivers to get rid of these nuisances; but the result was a lot of foul slang-whang-ing more offensive to the ladies than even the stench of the cigars. On the next occasion, when two well-dressed cads brought their cigars in, I tried another method.

"Here," said I, tendering them a nickel each, "take this and buy another cigar when you leave the omnibus."

"What do you mean?" indignantly inquired the elder of the cads.

"Nothing but charity," I replied. "Of course you must be too poor to lose a cigar or you would never carry that one in the presence of ladies. Throw it away and buy yourself another with this nickel."

The cigars went out of the window; my nickels on the floor, and, after glancing sullenly around for some minutes, the cads left the stage, angrily inviting me to step on the pavement and have it out.

"It is out, now, thank you," I mildly answered, "and you ought never to have brought it in. Go ahead driver!"

SEE TO IT.—ZOFESA, (from Brazil) will cure the worst case of Dyspepsia. A single dose will relieve in a degree that shows its wonderful curative powers, and its peculiar action upon the Stomach and Digestive Organs. It is a positive and absolute cure for Costiveness and Constipation, acting in a remarkable way upon the system, carrying off impurities. As a Liver regulator its actions are most remarkable. It tones and stimulates the Liver to action, it corrects the acids and regulates the bowels. A few doses will surprise you. Sample bottles 10 cts.

NEW AND RECHERCHE.—The most exquisite little toilet gem extant for the teeth and breath is "TEABERRY." Sample 5 cts.

Would Not be Without It. One who has fairly tested Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, though prejudiced against proprietary medicines in general, writes—"I would not rest over night without this reliable remedy for sudden attacks of Cholera, Cramps and Cholera Morbus so prevalent in the summer season. I keep a bottle at hand."

Could Draw an Inference.

"I liked your sermon very much today, with one single exception, and a worthy reason to a minister who had occupied his pulpit a part of the Sabbath. 'Well, what was the exception?' I think you used too many technical phrases. 'Did I?' I don't think of it. 'You repeatedly spoke of drawing inferences. Now that was Greek to many hearers. 'Oh, no. Most every one, of course, knows what we mean by drawing an inference.' 'You are mistaken, brother, as sure as you live, I do not believe one-half of my congregation would understand the phrase.' 'You certainly cannot be right.' 'I am. Now, there is Mr. Smith—pointing out a man just turning a corner—who is quite an intelligent farmer. We will overtake him and I will ask him if he can draw an inference, and I do not believe he will understand me.' Accordingly the two ministers quickened their pace, and as they came up to the said Mr. Smith his pastor said to him: 'Brother Smith can you draw an inference?' Brother Smith thus summarily interrogated, looked at his pastor for some fifteen seconds, quite surprised, and then rather hesitatingly said: 'Well, I suppose I could. I've got a pair of horses that can draw anything to which they are hitched. But I shouldn't like to on Sunday.'"

THE WORLD OVER.

Mr. Thos. Lee, of Varna, has taken up 360 acres of land beyond Brandon, and intends disposing of all his effects in this county and becoming a permanent resident of the northwest.

The vote on the harbor by-law at Port Elgin resulted as follows:—for the by-law 120; against the by-law 6.

About three weeks since, Mr. James Cruikshank and Mrs. Coleman of Elderslie were united, ages amount to 154 years, 86 for the groom and 68 for the bride. Very ancient lachelors and maidens of uncertain age take courage.

The British flag waves over the President's cottage at Long Branch. The cottage is owned by an Englishman, but as he was kind enough to offer it to the President, free of charge, let us not growl because the red cross of St. George disputes title with the stars and stripes. The two greatest nations in the world pray earnestly for the President's recovery, and the flag of the two waves over his head. It is something to be proud of, not to resent.

Lord Lorne, wishing to get a real Indian scoutage at Long Branch, told an interpreter the other day to take down in writing one of those related about the camp-fire and to translate it for him. The man accepted the commission with great alacrity, far-seeing, as was afterward discovered, what a Silver Iaket it would be to him. Luckily he was questioned later on as to how long the legend had been in the country. Call and see. It would take a year or so to tell, at the rate of three hours a day. The first commission was withdrawn, and he strictly limited to the supply of half a dozen sample sheets.

Dr. Carson never claimed for his Stomach and Constipation Bitters any Miraculous Power of Healing, but he did, in the quiet consciousness of the medicinal virtues he prescribes them to all those who suffer from any derangement of the Stomach, Bowels, Liver and Kidneys. In large bottles at 50 cents. Geo. Rhyms special agent for Goderich.

The celebrated swimmer eclipsed by Lord Byron and Leander have just been eclipsed by Lord Claudeboye, eldest son of Lord DeLorin, who swam across the Bos-phorus in a little over an hour. The swim is considerably longer than Byron's swim from Lesos to Alydos.

These who are subject to Biliousness, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any Kidney Affection, should take the advice of an able physician and use Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. In large bottles at 50 cents. Geo. Rhyms special agent for Goderich.

Never Give Up. If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle, by all druggists.

What Every One Says Must be True. All unite in praise of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry who have tried its efficacy in curing Cholera Morbus, Cramps, Dysentery, Nausea, and Stomach and Bowel Complaints, generally in children or adults. Every person should keep a supply on hand.

The First Step. Self-respect is the first step in all reformations; and when your blood is laden with impurities and you are suffering from biliousness or dyspepsia, the first step to a radical cure is to take Burdock Blood Bitters. Price $1.00, trial size 10 cents.

A Safe Remedy. Many medicines check too suddenly attacks of Bowel Complaints, inducing dangerous inflammation, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, cleanses, strengthens and heals the diseased and weakened mucous surface of the Stomach and Bowels, and safely cures every form of Summer Complaints.

Worthy of Praise. As a rule we do not recommend Patent Medicines, but when we know of one that really is a public benefactor, and does positively cure, then we consider it our duty to impart that information to all. Electric Bitters is truly a most valuable medicine, and will surely cure Biliousness, Fever and Ague, Stomach, Liver and Kidney Complaints, even where all other remedies fail. We know whereof we speak, and can freely recommend them to all.—[Exch.—Sold at fifty cents a bottle, by all druggists.

Dungannon. Mr. Wm. McArthur, postmaster, is authorized to receive subscriptions for THE HURON SIGNAL, and give receipts therefor. If report speaks truly, our village will have a barber shop shortly. "Good enough."

Mr. Spool, undertaker, added business with pleasure while in Toronto last week, by ordering a new stock. The store stock of T. S. Reid, amounting at invoice price to $2,357, was sold in London on Friday last for 79c on the dollar.

We are pleased to hear that Mr. Robt. Wallace, who left here on the 7th inst. for Duluth, has been successful in securing employment. A medical gentleman from Clinton was in the village on Thursday, the 15th inst., and purchased a fine mare from Mr. John Martin.

Mr. B. J. Crawford has at last got comfortably settled in his new house, which is indeed a beautiful place. We trust the time is not far distant when our village will be able to boast of many more such handsome residences.

BACK FROM THE SHOW.—Most of those who went to the Toronto exhibition came back safe and sound, also "right side up," Saturday evening last. They all appeared to have enjoyed their trip immensely, and as a matter of course are brimful of news relating to the wonderful things they saw in the city. In fact they are so full of intelligence it will require fully the whole of this week for its expenditure. In the meantime they are trying to see who can talk the fastest, and give the most information, without getting the lock jaw.

CHURCH.—The Methodist Church choir appears to be falling into decay, to judge by the look of the choir seat the last two Sundays. The organist is the only one clinging to the sinking ship, and the way she keeps it up admirably and worthily of support, and how it is she has not got it? Where are all the ship's company? In short what is the matter? It seems too bad to put the whole burden on the organist, when there is such a large congregation to select singers from.

CAMP MEETING.—On Tuesday evening 19th inst., Rev. James Caswell, of this place, occupied the platform in the Holmesville camp grounds, where he delivered a very instructive and interesting sermon to a large and appreciative audience, from St. Matthew 16-26. "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" We understand that it is the managing committee's intention to try and purchase the above grove from Mr. Elford for the purpose of holding camp-meetings in the future.

LAGOON.—There are many kinds of amusements, none of them, probably, quite so satisfying in their results as was anticipated by those engaging in them, but nevertheless a general knowledge of that fact does not seem to prevent most persons from desiring to take part in anything which seems to afford sport to others. These observations are peculiarly applicable to our merry friends who did not arrive home from the Caledonian games until the following day, and when they did arrive, they took particular pains that our peaceful residents should be aware of the fact. Reader, picture to your mind's eye six or eight gents in a rig, driving into the village, and flying around the block at a "two-forty" pace, each the bearer of a long maulen stalk, their handkerchiefs attached to one end and held in a horizontal direction, and the other inserted between their teeth, by which they were blowing, or trying to blow, for all they were worth, making many odd grimaces, and grunting and grunting, and writhing and distorting their whole bodies, and acting altogether so strangely as would lead one to believe they were all going into convulsions. I say picture to yourself all this, and what inference would you draw from it? Would it not strike you that the "boys" were about "three-quarters" so-so? I think it would. And this being a fact, would it be strange if they should imagine all sorts of absurd things, as for instance the maulen stalks the bag pipes, and the noise they were making the music of those instruments? I think not. There is an old saying that the first glass is for our health, the second for our friends, the third for good-humor and the fourth for our enemies. To judge by their actions, our friends evidently had aboard "the third." Taking everything into consideration I suppose they were all Scots, and probably of the opinion that

When a day like this comes round, Natives of Auld Scotia must be free. The bottle eye comes uppermost. We must all grieve and have a spree.

HE DIDN'T WANT TO GO.—As three young ladies were driving through in a buggy a few days ago, rather an amusing incident occurred. The maidens were to all appearances off for a pleasure trip, and as far as Dungannon everything went "altogether lovely," but while ascending a hill at the north of the village a road resembling the exhaust steam of an engine greeted their ears. Not being very well acquainted with the horse they thought the noise came from a locomotive, and began uneasily to look about for one, but being a considerable distance from a railroad track they of course could see none. They stopped the horse and the noise ceased, what could the matter be? Had they got a high-pressure horse, and was playing locomotive for their amusement? They all dismounted from the buggy, and started him up the hill when he commenced playing locomotive again, one of them remonstrated with him—said "remembrance" being the best end of a whalebone whip—but it was of no use. The faster they urged him along the more he wouldn't stop blowing, and to make matters worse he began to show signs of stubbornness, in fact that element seemed to be running with startling velocity out of his heels, up into his head for in short he balked. At this juncture a sedate pedestrian came along and thus he addressed them: "Young ladies your horse has been drinking hot water and if you don't allow the steam to escape faster there will be an explosion sure." They asked him to show them the kindness to examine the animal." He complied with their request and his answer was—"Your horse is not only balky, but he has the heaves bad, he's a regular 'blower,' however I can't cure him of the latter, I think I can of the first, at any rate I'll try." And he did try, and the result was he sent the girls on their way rejoicing, and was a gallant and generous act, and skillfully done.

Big Fish.—Mr. John Mack of this place, caught one day last week a fine speckled trout, weighing over 2 1/2 lbs in Dishar's dam. This is the largest fish of the kind ever known to be caught in that river.

[COMMUNICATION.] To all whom it may concern. This is to certify that I hereby exonerate Mr. J. M. Roberts from all blame in reference to, or as regards his having in any manner been the cause of my late financial difficulties, any rumors to the contrary notwithstanding; and I make this statement as an apology, if I or any member of my family have in any way connected his name with this matter, knowing as I now do that any rumors or reports to that effect are false and untrue in every particular, so far as Mr. Roberts was in any way concerned, as any such assertions or statements have arisen from what has been proven to be a deliberate falsehood in every respect.

T. S. Reid. Witness, ANDREW SPROUL. Dungannon, Sept. 19th 1881.

Whereas certain false rumors and reports were put in circulation by some evil disposed and malicious person or persons, to the effect that I had been in some way connected with, or partly the cause of, the late financial difficulties of Mr. T. S. Reid, of this village, I take this mode of showing to the public the untruthfulness of these assertions. Mr. Reid has evidently been misled. Such conduct upon the part of those who were instrumental in doing so, will need no comment from me. I leave that for an intelligent public to judge. Any apparent delay upon my part to act in this matter has arisen from the fact that I was perhaps the last to hear of it, and from the hope that time would enable me to prove the facts of this case through the evidence of others, as I have done. In conclusion I would simply state that I now leave this matter in the hands of others, that if possible justice may be done, and those who are deserving may be brought to a sense of their true position.

J. M. ROBERTS.

Religious.—Revival services will be held in the Methodist church, Nile, commencing the first of next week.

Sickness.—We are very sorry to learn that Mr. Jas. Carter is lying dangerously ill of diarrhea. Nearly all the members of the family have been afflicted in the same way but are recovering.

Matrimonial.—Mr. Bennett Graham, acting upon the Scriptural injunction, "It is not good for man to be alone," has taken a help-mate in the person of Miss G. Edlin. May our friends have much happiness.

Seed Drill.—Mr. W. Morrow, Nile, has on exhibition the finest model of a seed-drill I have ever seen. It is so simple in its arrangement that a little boy is able to drive, the team can arrange it so as to sow different quantities of various grains per acre. Noxon & Co., Ingersoll, are the manufacturers.

Crop.—I had growing in my garden this fall a natural curiosity in the shape of an ear of corn. I planted in the spring some sweet and common corn mixed. This ear of corn had the seeds of common and sweet corn growing alternately on the same row throughout the ear.

Auburn. Mr. W. J. Wilson has returned from Iowa. He is very much pleased with the country. He was there about three months.

The bridge here has not been re-floored yet. It has a very dilapidated appearance at present.

Mr. J. C. Richards, our harness maker, has taken to himself a wife. Isaac is one of the happiest looking men in town now.

Seaforth. OUR MARKSMEN at OTTAWA.—The Epistolary says, "As we hinted last week the Seaforth team which attended the Dominion Rifle Association's match at Ottawa last week, both collectively and individually, distinguished themselves as marksmen and brought credit to the town. They all did well, but it will not be considered at all invidious to make special mention of the splendid shooting of Mr. Alexander Wilson. This gentleman had just returned from Wimbledon, and it would have been very creditable to him had he not done more than secure a place in the team for the second time in two successive matches, but he has made even a much better record than this. He took a prize in every match, obtaining the Governor General's prize of $250 and badge; the second prize of the Dominion Rifle Association, and the National Rifle Association medal for being the highest of the Ontario members of the Wimbledon Team for 1882, heading the team by 12 points. So far as we can recollect, this is the best record ever made by a marksman at our Canadian Wimbledon. We beg to congratulate our young friend on his skill and the distinguished honors he has won. He reached here on Wednesday, after having attended the formal reception given Colonel Graham by the citizens of Hamilton on his return from England. He looks as if shooting and odd country air agreed with him, and seems to wear his honors lightly.

Lucknow. Mrs. R. Copeland and Miss McIntyre, left here on Thursday to visit friends in Collingwood.

Mr. and Mrs. W. U. Little are spending a few weeks with friends in St. Thomas.

Mr. A. P. Kennedy, formerly of Lucknow, now traveling for Clary & Co., Hamilton, paid his friends a visit last week. We are pleased to see that traveling agrees with him.

Show.—Our fall show was held on Wednesday and Thursday. There was a large turnout. The hall was open on Wednesday evening and was crowded, the centre of attraction being the string band. Will give you the particulars next week.

A DEBILITATED CONSTABLE.—On Monday last two of our young sports having imbibed rather freely, and wishing to settle matters satisfactorily, adjourned to the street where they exercised their muscle for a short time, while one of the constables looked on and admired the sport. The constable did his duty and put them in the lockup, it would have been more to his credit.

Was THE CUP.—The quoting cup presented to the Lucknow Caledonian Society by Robert Band Esq., Kincardine, to be competed for annually till won by the competitor twice, was played for here on Tuesday last, and won by W. H. Treleven. He becomes owner of the cup, having won it twice in succession. The competitors were, W. H. Treleven, G. Greenwell, J. G. Treleven, M. Corrigan, and Alex. Lawson.

BRUSSELS GAMES.—About a hundred of the citizens of Lucknow, attended the Caledonian Games in Brussels on Thursday 15th inst, your correspondent being among the number. We must thank the officers and members of the Society for the kind manner in which we were received. The games were a grand success, the largest gathering they have had yet, and if they keep on improving they will have done in the past, they will hold their own with any society in Ontario.

VAMOOSE.—It is very consoling to return at night expecting when you get up in the morning to hear that some one has "skipped out" and forget to call and settle that little bill. It is quite a common occurrence here now, and we are getting kind of used to it. Mr. W. Peart had the supplying of the refreshments at the Caledonian grounds the day of the games. Made a couple of hundred dollars, thought it was a good opportunity to visit our friends on the American side, and has not been heard of since. Some of our merchants are very anxious to hear from him.

Joderich Township. SKEDADDLED.—Last week Mr. John McMillan, of the Dayfield road, took his unexpected departure for the other side, leaving a number of unpaid accounts behind him.

Mr. Jos. Churchill, of the 16th con., who, a short time since had his collarbone dislocated and one of his horses killed, by running away, is around again, having about recovered from the effects thereof.

As the sons of John Johnston were working on the timbers of Gardner's barn, near Porter's Hill, one of them badly cut his leg with an adze. The other, on seeing his brothers blood, raised, stating he was a short distance from the square log of timber.

DEATH.—Mr. Wm. Weir, (father of Mr. John Weir, of the 16th con.) who died in Kincardine last Thursday, was an old resident of this neighborhood and had only resided in the county of Bruce for a short time. He was a member of the Methodist church, and enjoyed a large circle of acquaintances.

ACCIDENT.—On Friday last, while Mr. Jas. Johnston, of the 16th con., with his daughters, were engaged in clearing up a piece of ground near a short distance from his residence, a stump that had been pretty nearly burned through at the but, fell on two of the children; both were somewhat hurt by the accident—one being insensible for some time, but their injuries were not serious.—(New Era.)

ACCIDENT.—One night last week while Mrs. J. Miller, of the 9th con., was milking a cold boresher head, and in the act of driving it away was kicked, and had three of her ribs broken. She is not expected to live.

Brussels. Bishop Ward, of Wingham, has been appointed baggage master at Brussels station.

George Colvin, sr., and wife returned this week from Ireland where they have been nearly a year, and Mr. Armstrong played with North Huron against South Huron in Seaforth last Saturday.

Mrs. Humble, well known around here, who went to Kansas some time ago was seriously injured by being thrown backwards out of a stage she was riding in.

Dr. Mackie, who has been practicing in Brussels for the past four months, expects to leave for Portage-la-Prairie, in a few weeks. He is quite taken with that section of the country.

SOMETHING NEW.—The directors of the East Huron Fall show intend introducing a new wrinkle this year in connection with the forthcoming fall show. On the evening of the first day there will be prizes offered for the best vocal music. The competition will come off in the agricultural hall at 7:30 p. m. The many friends of J. B. Armstrong, of Hamilton will be pleased to read the following: J. B. Armstrong, who has been on employee of the insane asylum here, for the past year, left Saturday for Rochester, N. Y., where he has secured a situation in a wholesale music house. Mr. Armstrong possesses all the qualifications necessary to make him thoroughly successful in his new venture, and his hosts of friends here will be glad in the future to know that he meets with that success which he deserves. Friday evening the employees of the insane asylum surprised Mr. Armstrong with an address, couched in the most complimentary terms, and accompanied by a purse containing a handsome sum.—[Post.]

CLINTON FALL SHOW. The Best Yet Held—Entries far Ahead of Last Year—Splendid Indoor Display—Fine Weather and Crowd of People. From the New Era.

The annual show of the township of Hullett Agricultural Society was held here on Monday and Tuesday. The arrangements were more complete than usual, and were due in a great measure to the indefatigable exertions of Mr. W. C. Searle and Mr. W. Jackson. On Monday evening the indoor-department was first thrown open to the public, and the exhibit there, in almost all classes, was much larger than had been anticipated. Several of our business men made use of opportunity to tastily display their wares, among them being a beautiful drawing-room set of furniture in creton and velvet, and a very attractive drawing room set in creton and silk, by W. B. Crich & Co. Messrs Broadfoot & Co. had a neat drawing room set in creton, and a beautiful bedroom set in ebony and gilt; these exhibits were much admired.

Messrs. Crabb, McWhirter & Co. had a display of carpets, lace curtains, tidy patterns, etc. Mr. W. Jackson displayed a general assortment of gent's furnishings; P. Robb showed a pile of Bartlett blacking. Mr. Jas. Twitchell, heavy and light harness, trunks, valises, and boots and shoes. Harland Bros. several of the cup, having won it twice in succession. The competitors were, W. H. Treleven, G. Greenwell, J. G. Treleven, M. Corrigan, and Alex. Lawson.

BRUSSELS GAMES.—About a hundred of the citizens of Lucknow, attended the Caledonian Games in Brussels on Thursday 15th inst, your correspondent being among the number. We must thank the officers and members of the Society for the kind manner in which we were received. The games were a grand success, the largest gathering they have had yet, and if they keep on improving they will have done in the past, they will hold their own with any society in Ontario.
