CHAPTER XXVI.

The next morning brought her mother's letter. Chill though it was, refusal of its offer cost Sydney no little pang. The old hungering for affection asserted itself strongly at the first note of favor. But chained afresh, as now she found herself, not a hundred-fold more temptation than Mrs. Alwyn's measured lines held out would have taken her from Wynstone. Definitely her "no" was written and dispatched. The cause of that "no" she dared not add without permission well knowing it would only reopen the old bitter dispute, and as this permission never came, under Mrs. Alwyn's perverse judgment she had to lie till time, the great redresser of many wrongs, removed the unmerited ban.

One confidant she had, Jacob Cheene. To him she wrote what she suspected was no news, and back came the candid admission that he had known throughout who her employers were.

"But while I heard you were peaceful at Capel Moor, with nothing to complain of, I thought my knowledge best kept to myself. The Hursts are kindly by breeding, and come of honorable stock. There were Hursts, gentle folks, at Stillcote, generations before your own name was transplanted there from the Midlands, Miss Sydney. The father of these two was one of that quartet who used to meet at Stuart's every week. I knew that in their home you might be better done by than among richer and prouder people; and I thought that if ever this which you have just heard did reach your ears, you could come straight to me, if that course seemed best to you. It never entered my calculations you should take it so hard."

Thus Jacob answered her, and urged with even-handed shrewdness and liveliest regard for his old master's daughter, that she might with a clear conscience hold herself exonerated as her father's vicar from every vestige of blame in this loss of the Hursts. What Mr. Alwyn failed to foresee for himself, how could he foretell for others? No professional man would dare to give advice if his actions were to be thus after-weighed. Miss Sydney had magnified the imputation—had accepted it too readily. She must let him, who valued his master's honor second to none but herself, arbitrate for her now. She

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Carried Her Safely Through Change of Life.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—"At the Change of Life the doctor said I would have to give up my work and take my bed for some time as there was no help for me but to lie still. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and kept up my work, and now I am over the Change and that is all I took. It was better for me than all the doctor's medicines I tried. Many people have no faith in patent medicines but I know this is good."—Mrs. E. J. RICKERS, 354 8th Avenue, West, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, back-aches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly headed by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

must give up Wynstone, since she had learned this, and come to him. He would so gladly have her if his home was not beneath her sharing. But he was getting better off—a little. All she had done last summer had set his narrow income free. For awhile it would be plenty for them both. By and by they would see what was to be done. And when would his dear Miss Sidney come?

"Never, good old Jacob!" was her silent verdict; but there came a haze about her downcast eyes, and a chercherous tremulousness about her soft, flexible lips, while, with words loving and gentle as firm, she penned her answer to the friend her father's brotherly humanity had purchased or her fifty years before.

Miss Hurst was watching her with side-glances. Sydney's reticence on matters personal was rather a sore point. That weekly letter, always scented out whether written "upstairs or down stairs, or in my lady's chamber," was a mystery she was burning to dissect. Now the writer's scarcely concealable emotion suggested its tendency as the one which to Miss Jean's then state of mind appeared likeliest.

"Hm!" she said, stopping to regard Sydney sentimentally, with a knitting pin pressed meditatively to her cheek—"No bad news, I hope, Miss Grey?"

"No—oh! no indeed," said Sydney, betrayed into disclaiming eagerness. "It is only that some one is very good to me."

"I see," returned Miss Jean; "very satisfactory." Then she felt compelled to put forward another modest feeler. "Your friend, or friends, is the same you went last autumn to visit, would be quite free to return the compliment to you here any day, if you wished it, for a few hours, I'm sure."

Sydney, at this, knowing that Jacob by name and person too, would surely be recognized, could only falter thanks, confused and blushing. Herefrom Miss Hurst drew her own inference.

"Ah!" she said, "I shouldn't be surprised if your correspondent would rather entice you away than come here to see you. I suspect that this person, who is so very good to you, is not altogether disinterested." Sydney felt headlong into the neat little pitfall.

"Indeed, he is disinterested," she cried, "though he does want me to go—" then stopped with a sudden consciousness that she was saying far too much, and ended, reddening more much, and ended, reddening more vividly than ever, "but I am not going to be so selfish—I mean it would be wrong to take advantage—oh, I mean, Miss Hurst, I am intending to stay here till—"

"Till circumstances fetch you elsewhere!" finished Miss Jean, dryly; and, never imagining the interpretation put upon this interlude, Sydney finished her letter and hastened off to post it.

"Herself, as usual!" cogitated Miss Hurst, sola, for her brother was out on one of his river-side rambles. "She never trusts any one else to do that. I am confident she has had some difference with her family about marrying. It wouldn't hurt her to be more open with me. I might advise her for her good. But I suppose her good might mean leaving us, so perhaps things are best as they are. I don't know where I should find another like her. She seems to leave nothing undone to please me and Gilbert, though he doesn't notice it as I do. The last few days she has been more anxious than ever. Now I come to think of it, she really was quite affected by all I told her the other night. Very likely, though she doesn't talk much, she feels for us."

Very likely she did! That missive to Jacob nailed her colors to the mast. Now she turned all her strength, all her invention, into the channel where henceforth it had to flow. Between the bounds of Miss Jean's elaborate domesticity and Mr. Hurst's more cultivated requirements she must mete out what ability she had—spare money for one; translate life into light for the other—and, while ransacking her faculties for means to these ends, fortuitous chance supplied them.

A sunny January morning exhibited with cruel distinctness the faded state of the drawing room curtains. Miss Jean, apologizing for the contrivance (in which Sydney's fingers helped) of turning sides into middle, lamented that the house, to look as it ought, wanted all the surplus of its owner's income; "whereas mine," she sighed, "must go for Gilbert. I shall get shabbier and shabbier, but there is no help for it. Gilbert can do nothing, of course. If there were any gentlemanly work he could learn, and carry on in the back room, to bring in a pound a week, it would be something. But there isn't, so I give up hoping anything of the sort."

What she gave up, Sydney seized on.

Through an hour of diligent stitching the plan matured; with next day's reading it was initiated, more boldly than it would have been somewhat earlier. For at last some clew seemed to be found to Mr. Hurst's strange manner. His sister expatiated on Mrs. Preece's persisting in shaking hands with him, and "pitying him as if he had been a baby, both of which naturally upset him." Now Sydney remembered sinning in this respect. On a certain September evening she had taken his hand unasked, and, like as not, let her voice tell the pity she was feeling. Since then, assuredly, she had treated her differently, for which he was not to be judged as more fortunate men. Having erred once in this direction, she would do so no more. Withholding every sign of sympathy, whatever she felt, she would win him back to their old footing, and so set her scheme afloat. The book placed for her next morning she asked leave to change.

"Might they read one they had gone through last autumn?" Mr. Hurst had said it was worth a second study.

Surprised, but shirking discussion, as usual now—though Sydney's voice was wondrous winning as she made the petition—be agreed to her wish. The book was on philology. Presently came the paragraph Sydney had craftily aimed at.

"You said before, Mr. Hurst, you had a paper on this very point among your manuscripts."

"Yes," unwillingly, "I think I have."

"I hoped, perhaps, you would let me see it. This is too specialized for me to understand it."

"My few remarks, Miss Grey, were simply local, and mixed up with other subjects. They would not repay hunting out. Something by Skeat on the shelf there would answer your purpose better."

"One touch of misery makes the whole world kin". One box of GIN PILLS made a royal friend of Canada of a lady living in the United States. She suffered with Kidney and Bladder Troubles for years. Found it impossible to get relief from any medicine she could buy at her home. Then she heard of GIN PILLS and sent all the way to Toronto for them. But—here is her last letter. It certainly is convincing evidence of the powers of GIN PILLS to help the Kidneys and make sufferers from Kidney and Bladder Troubles feel better.

Dear Sir,—
I wish to state that I am well satisfied with the results which your Company have given me in connection with my Endowment Policy No. 47,775, which matures on the 17th of March. I find that the returns give me over $424.00 more than I have paid in premiums, in addition to the protection that I have had during the Policy term. I consider this all the more satisfactory taking into account the fact that the dividends were applied as a Bonus every five years. I, therefore, received a return beyond Bank interest, in addition to the protection.

Yours very truly,

The Double Life of a Club Man.

SEE THE CRIMINALS.
A stirring drama that is very interesting and cleverly acted, the principal is J. MacQuarrie whose portrayal of the double life of a society man who by day was a respectable club man and at night a professional thief is shown clearly in the two pictures, "The Criminals," now running at the Crescent Picture Palace. Those who have enjoyed the famous story of "Raffles, The Cracksmen," will appreciate this great two part film. A second drama of merit is "His Imaginary Crime" which is followed with an excellent comedy film, "Her Friend the Butler," featuring the artists Ramona Langley, Eddie Lyons and Donald McDonald.

Sidney Earnshaw received much applause in his rendition of that beautiful ballad, "I will Love you when the Silver Threads are Shining 'Mong the Gold."
On Friday and Saturday the weekend bill will be one of the best ever favoured the Crescent patrons, see the advertisement in the evening paper. On Saturday afternoon a special matinee for ladies and children.

The members of St. Mary's Young Men's Association held a very enjoyable banquet at St. Mary's Hall, South Side, last night. The affair was attended by about thirty couples, and after full justice had been done the sumptuous repast provided, the following toast list was gone through:

Spring Skin Blemishes

ARE REMOVED BY ZAM-BUK.
Why suffer the humiliation of unsightly skin blemishes, such as pimples, boils or eczema, when they are so easily cured by Zam-Buk? Even the most advanced cases of eczema yield to Zam-Buk's great healing powers. Mr. Jos. Johnson, of 584 Broome Street, New York, writes: "I suffered untold misery for twenty years from eczema. Medical treatment was of no avail. I spent hundreds of dollars on salves and treatments, and all I got was mere temporary relief. At last I tried Zam-Buk, and I am pleased to say that perseverance with this remedy and Zam-Buk Soap has effected a complete and permanent cure."
Mr. Jack Snow, the Scotch comedian, of 47 Abbott Avenue, Toronto, writes: "I have used Zam-Buk for boils, and found it very soothing and a quick healer."
You want to end your suffering? To remove these unpleasant face or body sores? Then buy Zam-Buk. Sold by all druggists or store-keepers at 50c. per box. Zam-Buk Soap 25c. per tablet.

She saw a number of different doctors and took many medicines, but could only get temporary relief, till she used Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. "For myself I could not eat much I could not sleep well and I was utterly discouraged, when one of my friends gave me a little book telling of Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. ## Bellaventure Goes to Assistance of Tritonia.

The S. S. Bellaventure, Capt. Raddell, sails to-day to render assistance to the Donaldson Liner Tritonia which has been jammed in the ice in Green Bay since April 28th last.
The ship has been leaking badly for some time past, and all the pumps have been kept going to keep her free. The principal damage is in the forepeak, and during last week, some of the coal had to be shifted fearing the ship would fall too much by the head. The ship is now about half way across Green Bay and the captain considers it imprudent to leave the ice, even if conditions were favourable, without the assistance of another ship.
It is expected that the Tritonia will come here when clear of the ice and receive the necessary repairs.
The Bellaventure is sustaining her title of "rescue ship" this year and in all probability will have to stand by the Tritonia and escort her to port.

St. Andrew's Presentation.

A very pleasant time was spent at the St. Andrew's Club Rooms last night when the prizes won in the card tournaments, held during the winter, were presented. There was a large attendance and Mr. A. G. Gibb presided. After the presentation a concert was held to which the following contributed selections:—
Messrs. Gunn, Pratt, Ellis, McFarlane, King and Parsons, with songs by Messrs. Young, McIntyre, Grant, Stirling, Mitchell, Stevenson, R. H. Anderson, Hon. J. Anderson, McIntosh, Lamb, Alderley and Holde.
A vote of thanks, proposed by Hon. J. Anderson was tendered the Chairman.
The rendition of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem brought the event to a close.

The schooner Ungava is now ready for St. John's to load, freight for her owners, Messrs R. D. McRae & Sons.

The entertainment given by the teachers and pupils of High School in St. Paul's Hall last night was a very enjoyable affair. The proceeds amounting to over $50.00, will be donated to the Disaster Fund. Miss Joy, Miss Dixon, Miss Chafe and Mr. Collis assisted the school with songs and recitations.

Mrs. Ambrose Clarke, of Stretton's Hill, lost a valuable cow yesterday. The animal got its leg broken owing to a bad place in the floor of the stable and perished shortly after.

The diver was down yesterday and to-day making some repairs to the carriage of the railway docks. There is quite a rush on now, and vessels are waiting for their turns. The delays are but trifling as all work is done with despatch.

HR. GRACE, MAY 13, 1914.

For Those in Distress.

Much publicity has been given during the past five or six weeks to the collection for the Marine Disaster Fund, but little publicity has been given to the way the Committee has dealt with the urgent needs of those in distress. People know of the piling-up of the fund, but few know anything of the aid that has been rendered. We have before us now a letter, the writer of which thinks something should be done, "at once, immediately, without delay," to deal with cases, where "people are patiently suffering untold agonies, for want of the money that is piling up and yet no assistance is afforded." The fact is that the Committee in charge has been making strenuous efforts to get in touch with all cases of urgent distress, for which the money is being subscribed. The committee obtained a list of those who had perished or were injured, belonging to the Newfoundland crew. A list of those who had signed on the Southern Cross was also obtained. Difficulties cropped up in regard to the latter list, which we will detail presently. The assistance of the clergyman, magistrate or other person who could get in touch with each particular family was invoked. This assistance was sought to find out what aid was needed immediately, and secondly what persons would come on the fund for a period of years. The sum usually sent out for immediate relief was Twenty-Five Dollars. In no cases was a smaller sum sent. In some few cases, however, where the distress was intense and the family of young dependants many, a larger sum was sent. Every case also which was brought directly to the committee, was immediately dealt with. The circumstances were investigated and aid afforded at once wherever needed. The committee is doing their best to find out every case of distress, but they are not omniscient, and there may be a few cases where distress exists which is not known to the committee. Our object in writing this article is to aid in bringing any such cases to the attention of the Committee. In regard to the Southern Cross, there was much difficulty in finding out for a certainty the names and addresses of some eight or ten seelers who went down with that ship. These were men who had purchased tickets from seelers who signed on but did not sail, and whose names on the ship and whose names on the articles they took for the trip. The sellers of the tickets had to be found and their aid invoked. Unfortunately in two or three cases the seelers did not know either the names or addresses of those who had taken their places and perished. It will be seen then that it is quite possible that there may still exist a few cases of distress, which the committee, though ever so willing, have not been able to get in touch with and assure themselves that they come within the object for which the money was so generously subscribed.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modernly and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. Give Us Half a Chance.

Now don't expect us to do impossibilities in delivering the SAVORY ROASTERS—you will get yours by and by. We cannot supply the whole city in a single day, but we'll complete the job in a week at least. We know you are anxiously waiting and every moment only adds to the suspense. Every one wants the tough roast made tender.

A FEW OF THE TESTIMONIALS:

Mr. J. M. Devine, Water St. April 30th, 1914.
Dear Sir:—We have been using a Savory Roaster for baking meat since last Fall and have much pleasure in stating that it is indeed an article of merit. What I liked most about it is that it entirely does away with the bothersome idea of basting meat and cooks it tenderly and uniformly all round. It is a great improvement on the old way and no house keeper should be without one.
Yours faithfully
CROSBIE HOTEL.

Mr. J. M. Devine, Water St. April 29th, 1914.
Dear Sir:—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works and I found 20.5 per cent of NITROGEN. Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manures. Pure Sulphate of Ammonia contains 21.2 per cent of Nitrogen. Pure Nitrate of Soda contains 16.5 of Nitrogen. Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safe manure to use during a wet season.
Yours truly,
D. JAMES DAVIES, B.S.C., F.C.S.
Analyst and Assayer.
may 14, 1914.

Mr. J. M. Devine, Water Street. April 30th, 1914.
Dear Sir:—When you told me that the Savory Roaster basted and browned the meat itself, I thought it was too good to be true. But I have found out that it is all that you represented it to be and I would not be without it for five times its value. Every cook knows the bother of the old way and all the time it takes putting gravy over meat—almost continuous watching—but the Savory way requires no such attention. Simply place your meat in Roaster lock up, cook fifteen minutes to the pound and take out when cooked. It is the greatest thing yet, and I congratulate you on introducing it into Newfoundland.
Yours faithfully,
Mrs. E. R. Burgess,
Balsam House.

Mr. J. M. Devine, The Right House. April 29th, 1914.
Dear Sir:—I am very pleased with the Savory Roaster you sent me, it is indeed a very nice thing to Roast a Chicken in. What I like about it best, Mr. Devine, is that a person does not have to be pulling the pan out all the time putting gravy over the top. And another good thing about it is that all that goes in the pan comes out, but in the old way want a cover half of the goodness of the roast gets out in the oven and escapes entirely. You understand it is nice to get out of the oven all the meat and juice you put in. Everyone should have a Savory Roaster.
I am, Sir,
Yours truly,
M. BIDELE.

Mr. J. M. Devine, Water Street. April 30th, 1914.
Dear Sir:—I received the Savory Roaster some time ago. I am delighted with it. I would not be without it for anything.
Yours very truly,
E. KIRBY.

NEWS BY CABLE.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day.
 From the Parliamentary standpoint is generally conceded that Asquith played a skilful tactical move but from a practical standpoint, the situation seems more complicated than ever. The note of pessimism, which marks editorial comment, is blended with a pleading tone of moderation; thus the Times, while asserting there is no improvement in the general prospect, since there is a fixed determination to pass the Bill deprecates condemning the amending Bill in advance and recognizes Asquith is in an extremely difficult position, that the issue is too serious to regard as merely a Party one, and enjoins Unionists so long as the door is open to a settlement to be careful to keep it open. The Westminster Gazette, Liberal, admits it became manifest on the course of debate that Asquith's statement was unpalatable to the Irish party and to many supporters of the Government. This Journal also mildly remonstrated with the leaders of the Opposition for their manner of meeting the peace proposals. The Westminster Gazette blames the Ulster covenanters as being responsible for the harder attitude of the Opposition. The Pall Mall Gazette declares the Unionists will do everything possible to secure peace, but it is useless to deny the fact that the exclusion of six counties, pending the adoption of Freerism is the irreducible minimum required to avert civil war. However hateful to Redmond this concession may be the intense earnestness of politics at the present moment is illustrated by the fact that charges are made that the Liberal candidate lost the Grimsby by-election, owing to his refusal to enter politics, preferring to advertise himself in a breezy, humorous way as a personal friend of the electors.

I looked in ten of Jimpson's slats, and he bothered me with cabbageheads and long dead cats, and eggs of '63. I lay upon a couch of pain, and there was no sense, that warlike words are weak. And when again I was on deck, I went to Jimpson's shack, and found that he was but a wreck since I had slapped his back. ## In Search of a Revolution.

(By Luigi Barzini, in the Daily Telegraph, London.)

Mexico City.—Everything in Aztec culture is reminiscent of Asia: from the calendar which contained the day of the snake, the day of the tiger, the day of flowers, to the ornamentation of the sacred enclosures, consisting of great stone serpents, which now twine their coils in the Gallery of Monoliths, similar to the dragon of the yellow people. Their writing was ideographic, their books were written on a species of fibrous paper; their art was refined; ingenious, patient, rich in fancy and color; their buildings had the classical form of the primitive sacred edifices of Japan; the head of the god Tlalhuiz, the "Light of the Morning," has the same expression as the Buddha of Kamakura. How much of the past would not have been revealed to us by the famous Maya library of Yucatan and the Aztec library of Anahuac, if their documents collected in gigantic piles on the square had not been burned by the Spanish clergy? "By the which the natives were marvellously grieved and saddened," wrote Padre Landu, one of the destroyers.

We only know that in these documents was contained the science and the history of the Aztecs and of the people who had preceded them. From Mexico City to the Gulf of Honduras the country is littered with mysterious and grandiose ruins. There the pyramids, pierced by dark subterranean passages, which for grandeur rival those of Egypt; there are tremendous ruins of strangely majestic temples and palaces; there are cyclopean remains of remarkable cities; there are monuments sculptured with figures which might be Assyrian, and hieroglyphics which might be Egyptian. Nobody can tell their age. Innumerable evidences of an Imperial civilization rise superbly in solitary valleys, on deserted plains, in the depths of tropical forests. What people did all this? What was the magnificence, the power, the grandeur of Mexico? Nobody will ever know.

A LOST MEMORY.

A man who loses his memory is annihilated. And it was the memory of the indigenous populations that the conquest destroyed. In order that the people might be paralysed. All the warriors, all the nobles, all the priests all the amanuenses, whose ability astonished the conquistadores, all those who knew how to read, were massacred, and the writings were reduced to ashes. The past was cut off; history no longer existed. Time was abolished. The chiefs having disappeared, a disciplined people is lost. The Aztec masses were enslaved. They accepted the yoke with the docility of ignorance. And even according to their own custom slavery had to follow defeat. From that time the Indian multitudes fell into a fearful state of amnesia, which will never again be dissipated. Yet these Indians constitute the enormous numerical majority of the population of Mexico, they are the basis, the foundation of Mexican life. Of everything that happens here, such as the extraordinary and adventurous developments of politics, the facility of fighting, the inconsistencies of the constitution, one can trace the true and evident reason in the existence of an Indian mass which seems to be foreign to public life.

THE INDIAN QUESTION.

Without taking this into account, it is impossible to understand and judge the paradoxical events of Mexico. The great problem, not to say the sole problem, of the country is the Indian question, to which no attention is given.

Nobody, in fact, speaks of the Indians. They are apparently a neutral quantity. They are ignorant of the organization of the social life which is above them, and they have a very vague idea even of the Government. They count for no more than the trees in a forest. And yet they are everywhere and do everything. Those who carry a manual labor here are generally Indians or foreigners. The Indian is the servant, the domestic, the soldier; he does every trade, and is in every house. He cultivates the fields, bound to them by the servitude of peonage, which is the continuation of slavery; he is the workman in the plantations, on the railways, in the mines; he constructs, erects, transports, digs. There is no industry that does not prosper by Indian labor. Intelligent, patient, badly paid, despised, submissive, the Indian is the motive force of Mexico.

He recognizes in the white man his natural master, and respects him with a spontaneous sentiment which cannot be called resignation, because resignation implies the consciousness of a voluntary sacrifice. He has forgotten that he was ever free, and would not know what freedom is. His faculty of decision and choice has been paralysed. He calls the white "gente de razon"—the people who reason. Long servitude has given him the soul of a dog, with a basis of greed, ignorance, ferocity, and puerility. This was necessary, or the white domination would have been destroyed.

Paradoxical Situation.

The Indian mass has no knowledge, no opinions; it only possesses instincts. In Mexico the national questions, the needs of the country, the necessities of public life, are confided to the brains of a few superior men, but they are not discussed or even understood by the immense majority of the people who live within the narrow orbit of personal interests. For this reason there is no such thing as the great regulating force of public opinion which in our countries binds, limits, and defines the work of administrations and governments, and is at the same time their safeguard and defence.

But the Indian who has no opinions is precisely the man who fights. He is the material arm of politics, the living ammunition of civil war. The Government makes a soldier of him and the Opposition turns him into a revolutionary. Ignorant of motives, indifferent, stoical, heroic, ruthless, he fights, and if he is made a prisoner he fights for the victor with equal hardness. The Indian loves warfare.

Carried on by elements such as these the fighting is atrocious. Cruelty triumphs. Waged in the name of a quantity of ideals—liberty, justice, right—it is a sanguinary war of barbarous tribes running out here and there amidst civilized surroundings. In some places the revolution degenerates into open brigandage.

Tranquil Nation.

But there is no occasion to generalize too much and to imagine that Mexico is under fire and the sword. The greater part of the nation is tranquil and unconscious. The strife has brief spells of disorder, and the battles, if they are obstinate, are also restricted. In itself the profound ignorance of the people is an element of peace; the masses are in the dark as to the development of events, and continue their indifferent and apathetic existence. And the "gente de razon" amuse themselves as if nothing were happening.

In this indifference there is a reflection of the Indian soul. Two races do not live together for 400 years without exercising an influence upon each other. That there should be a revolution, that the revolution should develop as it does, may astonish a foreigner, but not a Mexican. The Aztec proceedings in this matter have an aspect which is perfectly well known. If the Indian blood contains certain globules of ferocity, the Spanish blood is not altogether mild. And a few drops of the former are to be found in many Creole veins.

Mexico has not received from Spain great currents of immigration, bringing labor and peace. The Mexican aristocracy descends chiefly from the conquistadores, from soldiers and the army of domination. If the Mexican has inherited from the Spanish warrior a noble courtesy, an exquisite sense of dignity, a chivalrous susceptibility, an engaging pride, a generous nobility of soul, he has also inherited the Spaniard's combative spirit, his intolerance, his contempt for death, his indifference to suffering, his swift passion, his disdain for material labor. And to all this is added an instinct for Indian tactics, formed by contact with the natives amidst the dangers of an incompletely civilized country.

With these virtues and these defects the white Mexican is a politician by nature. But there is no people more difficult to govern than politicians. If a strong Government is necessary for the mob, it is no less necessary for the superior classes which have a passion for command. For the present peace can only be assured by an imperious authority and a despotic energy.

Enlightened Tyrants.

The men who have done most for Mexico were enlightened and inexorable tyrants, against whose power nobody felt a desire to struggle. Mexico has a feudal composition, and until a complete evolution is carried out it is necessary that the Central Government should be the expression of an overpowering force. It needs courage to recognize this unavoidable necessity. Every step in civil progress that has been made by the nations of the world has not been made in response to a want experienced by the people, it has been desired by a few condottieri, who have had the requisite qualities for triumphing over their adversaries and holding the reins of the State with hands of steel. In this matter, even the good things must be carried out ruthlessly.

Mexico can only have a gendarme Government. That will be sufficient to give her tranquillity, and in peace she will rise again, and advance in virtue of her immense resources and incalculable riches. The long domination of the dictator, Porfirio Diaz, brought the annual revenues of the Government from £2,500,000 to £26,500,000. The treasury reserves reached £37,000,000. The exports exceeded the imports by £16,300,000 in the last year of the dictatorship. Now the country has gone back forty years. Only a powerful severity of Government can save it.

To ask for Mexico a Government based on the suffrage is to ask for anarchy. It is dangerous to say these things; we live under a fetishism of the suffrage; but the proclamation of the rights of man is not sufficient to transform a "Nabab" into a modern spirit. A people that cannot be questioned must be commanded or it will fall into the convulsions of its death agony. But Mexico is a "democratic" Republic divided into independent States, and enjoying the benefits of a Constitution! That is the tragic contradiction which now causes so much discussion.

THE GREATER QUESTION.

At this season of the year for farmers with up-to-date ideas, it is what are the best means to use to get the best returns from the land.

Fertilizers must be used liberally if large returns are looked for. There are several good chemical fertilizers which may be recommended, but Sulphate of Ammonia has been proved to give the best returns, and is the most valuable and economical source of Nitrogen for agricultural purposes.

For vegetables, grass, and all leafy crops, about one and a half cwt. per acre is the best quantity to use, and this should be applied when the plants are making their growth, as well as before sowing the seed.

If a liquid manure is preferred, a ¼ oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water should be used, and applied once a week for a month. This quantity should not be exceeded.

It is a good plan to reduce the Sulphate to a fine powder, and mix with four or more times its own bulk, for the purpose of diluting the manure, which is very powerful.

For potatoes the following mixture is strongly recommended:—

- 40 lbs. Superphosphate.
- 20 lbs. Fine bone meal.
- 10 lbs. Carbonate of Magnesia.
- 15 lbs. Sulphate of Potash.
- 21 lbs. SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.

1 cwt. Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to 43 square yards of Carbonate of Magnesia, in conjunction with Sulphate of Ammonia, is of great importance in potato culture.

For turnips use the following:—

- 60 lbs. Superphosphate.
- 13 lbs. Fine bone meal.
- 13 lbs. Sulphate of Potash.
- 20 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia.

1 cwt. Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to square yards.

Sulphate of Ammonia of excellent quality is now made by the St. John's Gas Light Company, and may be obtained on very reasonable terms.

Full particulars may be obtained at the Gas Works, or at the Board of Trade Building. Ask for special booklet on the use of Sulphate, it will be found of great value in securing the heaviest crops.

PASSED MATTRESSES ON ICE.

When the Lintrose was 28 miles S. W. by W. of Channel Head, on the way to Port aux Basques yesterday morning, she passed seven or eight mattresses on the ice through which the ship steamed. These were presumably thrown off by some of the steamers of the Gulf fleet, when bearing up for home, as is the custom at the close of the sealing season.

When the United States Declared its Independence

in the year 1776 Charles Robin was founding his first fishing and trading post at Pasbeiac on the Gaspe Coast of Quebec.

At the outset he met with many reverses, having his stores plundered and vessels captured by American privateers, and he was after a time forced to leave the country for two years. He returned at the close of the Revolution in 1783, and from that period prosperity crowned his efforts.

From this humble beginning so long ago at Pasbeiac has been evolved, after successive amalgamations with other companies, the great fishery house of Robin, Jones & Whitman, Limited. This parent company now operates 28 flourishing branches in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec, with headquarters at Halifax, and has just published an excellent report for its fiscal year, ending March 31st last.

This report mentions a new dividend disbursement which will prove interesting to investors. A copy of the report may be had on application of our Halifax office.
