THE HEIR OF Lancewood

CHAPTER XL.

"Have I then I ought to be ashamed of myself, and I will drive it away. I shall not take the carriage," she continued. "Will you get me a cab yourself? I do not want remarks made about my going out. Get it yourself, Joan, and dress yourself to come with me."

Faithful Joan shook her head gravely, as she hastened to obey. "She may say what she likes, but I am sure there is something wrong. That is just the troubled, harassed look she used to wear, and I have not seen it on her face for many a long day."

Lady St. Just entered the cab and gave the driver the address, and then she turned to her maid.

"I may tell you, Joan, where I am going," she said. "Mr. Dorman is dying, and has sent for me."
 "There is something wrong, I am sure," thought Joan Habley again; "but Heaven only knows what it is."

CHAPTER XLII.

The houses in Victoria street are all of one class, large, respectable, and airy. Many of them are let in apartments, and the lodgers are most of them professional men—artists whose studios are in other localities, musicians who find the central situation most useful, authors and editors, whose ambition is perhaps higher than their means of gratifying it, surgeons of good professional standing. It is a quiet, respectable street, neither lively nor dull, but where people take a quiet interest in each other, and the occasional disappearance of an apparently well-to-do resident filled the rest with concern.

Lady St. Just had never been in the street before. She looked anxiously for the number which Gerald Dorman had given, and when the cab stopped, she looked even more anxiously at the house. It was a large house, with green balconies and a small garden in front—the very ideal of respectability. A few sad-looking flowers grew in the little garden; the windows all had venetians and white curtains.

"Shall I go in with you, my lady?" asked Joan, as the cab stopped.
 "No," said Lady St. Just. "And no matter how long I am, remain here till I return."

In answer to the summons at the door a servant-maid appeared, and she looked wonderingly at Lady St. Just, Vivien had dressed herself as plainly as possible, but she could not hide the magnificence of her figure, or the grand, noble beauty of her face. The girl stared at the unusual vision, and Lady St. Just asked if she could see Mr. Dorman.

"I don't know. They say he is dying," replied the girl.

Lady St. Just recoiled at the words. Poor Gerald, to lie dying there!

"Shall I fetch my mistress or the nurse?" asked the girl.

"The nurse," replied Vivien; and in a few minutes the maid returned with her, a kindly, clever-looking woman, who courted profoundly.

"You are the lady, I think," she said, "whom Mr. Dorman wishes to see?"

"Yes," answered Vivien; "I will go to him at once, if you please. Is he better?"

"No," replied the nurse; "I am sorry to say Mr. Dorman will never be any better in this world, madam. I do not think he has many hours to live; but he told me this morning that he could not die until he had seen you."

Again the words struck her with all the force of a blow. What did they mean?

"Will you follow me, madam?" asked the nurse, who, like the servant, was struck by the wonderful grace and magnificent beauty of the visitor.

She followed the nurse up the stairs into a large, well-lighted, well-furnished room. A bedstead with crimson hangings occupied the middle; on it lay Gerald.

She saw the white face, wan, haggard, with a gray shade on it; she saw two large, wistful almost despairing eyes, glazed and terrible, that fastened on her face with a hungry look; she saw the white hands, so thin and trembling, which were stretched out to greet her, and she knelt down by his bedside unable to repress her tears.

"Vivien," he whispered—and in all her life Lady St. Just had never heard anything so terrible as that voice—"have you come at last—at last!" and the dying eyes seemed to drink in every feature of her beautiful face. "At last—at last! and I have waited such long hours—dark, dreary hours; and death—see, death stands here by my side, but he would not lay his hand upon me until you had been—you, my queen, my darling, my only love!"

She raised her head with a warning gesture.

"Yes, I know," he said, "you are another man's wife, but none the less my darling, none the less my love, none the less my idol, though you have never loved me!"

"My poor Gerald," she said, gently, "you were such a faithful friend to me—so good and so true!"

"Yes, and I am dying because I love you so. I have tried my best: I have tried to live without you, to fill my life with other cares. I could not, so I lie here."

"My poor Gerald!" she said, with weeping eyes.

"Rich Gerald," he corrected, "I have lived for you, my beautiful, proud, stately love—lived, aimed, suffered. I also die for you. You will remember that, and not think hardly of me. I know," he said, faintly, "that the love of you constituted my life; but I did not think I should miss you so greatly, so terribly. Vivien, may I hold your hand in mine just once? I am a dying man, dear, dying for you."

She took the worn, white hand in her own, and held it in her warm clasp.

"Vivien," he said, "I am thirsting to hear something—tell me, have you been happy since you married? Do not imagine that there is any foolish jealousy in my heart—but I want to know. I want to know if you have been happy?"

His eyes were fixed on her face with such desperate earnestness—with such almost fierce craving for her answer.

"Tell me," he said, "have you been happy? Tell me all."

"Yes," she replied; "I have been happy."

A sudden, almost beautiful light

came over his face. She saw how the words delighted him, and she continued—

"I have been so happy that the world has been like a Paradise to me. I love my husband dearly, Gerald; he is noble and generous, he is devoted to me, and spends his life in making me happy. Then I have two beautiful children. Oh, Gerald, how I wish you had come to our house instead of lying all alone here! I would have nursed you and cared for you as though I were your own sister."

"Never mind about me," he said, faintly; "tell me more about your happiness."

"It is so great," she replied, "that it is perfect. I am beloved and happy, Gerald; the days are all bright. What more can I say?"

"You tell me that for these past few years you who have suffered so much have been perfectly happy?" he said.

"Yes," she replied, "perfectly."

"And, tell me, Vivien—clasp my hand more tightly, dear, it is so cool—if you had never been married you would never have been happy?"

"No," she replied, "never."

AFTER SUFFERING TWO LONG YEARS

Mrs. Aselin Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Minneapolis, Minn.—"After my little one was born I was sick with pains in my sides which the doctors said were caused by inflammation. I suffered a great deal every month and grew very thin. I was under the doctor's care for two long years without any benefit. Finally after repeated suggestions to try it we got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking the third bottle of the Compound I was able to do my housework and today I am strong and healthy again. I will answer letters if anyone wishes to know about my case."—Mrs. JOSEPH ASELIN, 628 Monroe St., N. E., Minneapolis, Minn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy we know for woman's ills. If you need such a medicine why don't you try it?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

"Then I am content," he said. "And, Vivien, you would never have married had you not known that Oswald was dead?"

"Never," she replied. "I would never have married with that awful secret on my soul. But, Gerald, that is all past, do not speak of it. I have repented; I have prayed for pardon through long days and long nights; I have been kind to every child for the sake of that one. Do not speak of it."

She saw a gray, terrible look come over his face.

"You have been quite happy, dear, for the past few years?" he repeated.

"Yes, Gerald," she answered; "but why do you ask?"

"You may hate me when I tell you—you may almost curse my name; but I loved you so I was determined that you should be happy, no matter what it cost me, no matter what I suffered, or how I sinned. I would have died over and over again to make you happy."

"But, Gerald," she asked, the same terrible, sickening fear overpowering her, "what is it—what have you done?"

"Do not hate me, Vivien. Stoop down lower that I may whisper. Love—my love—Oswald is not dead, but living!"

She threw up her arms with a terrible cry—a cry like that of one drowning—a cry so shrill in its agony and despair that the dying man was alarmed at it.

"It cannot be true," she gasped rather than spoke; "it is too cruel, it cannot be true!"

"It is true. I swear it before Heaven!" he said faintly, and then for some minutes there was silence between them—an awful silence, more terrible than the quietness of death.

The face she raised to him then was in that short space of time quite changed; the rich coloring, the happy light, the proud, serene calmness were gone, never to return. It was a terrible face, even ghastly in its pallor.

When Women Suffer

No remedy gives greater relief than Anti-kemnia (A-K) Tablets in all conditions generally known as "Women's Aches and Pains." One trial will satisfy any woman that she has at last found the remedy she has so long been looking for.

Indigestion—Dyspepsia

Are you distressed after eating? Do you have nausea when riding in the cars or on the train or boat? Take A-K Tablets and get instant relief.

Genuine A-K Tablets bear the K monogram. At all Drugists.

"It cannot be true, Gerald," she repeated, "it is too cruel, it cannot be true!"

"It is as true as Heaven," he declared.

"But why did you act so? It was cruel, pitiless. Why did you deceive me?"

"Because I wanted you to be happy. I saw that you loved some one very dearly; and I saw that you would be wretched all your life away from that one."

"Not half so wretched as I am now," she returned. "It was cruel of you, Gerald."

"I did not mean it to be so," he said, faintly. "I saw that you were unhappy, and that you would never marry while this secret lay between you and the man you loved. You know, Vivien, that I would have died for you. When I saw you so miserable, I asked myself what I could do to make you happy; and I knew from what you had said that you never could be happy while the boy lived."

He lay quite still for some moments, and then he continued—

"May Heaven pardon me, Vivien, but I loved you so well that I could almost have destroyed him to render you happy. Another idea came to me—to make you believe he was dead. It was for that I went to America. I could not see any other way. I was very kind to the boy; he loved me very much—he loves me now. I took him away from my brother—he traveled with me; and then I deceived my brother as much as you, for I made him believe the boy was dead."

"How could you? How could you?" she sobbed. All her strength, all her courage, had given way at last, and she was weeping like a child.

Canadian Indians Give Their Wheat.

The Indians of Canada have not been behind other members of the Empire in offering their help. "The Indians of Canada," says the Toronto World, "offered to raise a regiment for service overseas, and have actually contributed over $16,000 to the various patriotic funds. These people are poor, and as they number in Canada, in all, barely 100,000, the offer is all the more remarkable. It is, moreover, a remarkable tribute to the kindly government relations that obtain in this country, and though the offer of men has not been accepted, it gives a fine indication of the solidarity of all the various and ethnically widely separated nations that find peace and settled existence under the British flag."

"The young farmers of the File Hills colony became so interested in the patriotic fund that Superintendent Graham called a meeting last fall to explain fully the cause of the war and its progress. The speaker had barely finished when all the young men came forward to offer subscriptions. These were quite voluntary, as Mr. Graham had in no wise urged contributions from them. Threshing had just been completed on the reserve, and the gifts, some 33 in number, took the form of oats and wheat, which when sold amounted to $502."

"The Indian women of the File Hills Agency are greatly interested, and actively engaged in Red Cross work. Yarn has been given out, and the wives and sweethearts of the young men who so generously aided the patriotic fund have been knitting belts, mitts, socks, etc."

"There is no better field in Canada from which to study the progress of the North American Indian toward civilization than on the File Hills Reserve in Saskatchewan. This demonstration of how these children of the plains can lift themselves out of the environment in which they were born has surely proven to the most sanguine that patriotism is not lacking in them, and that the only good Indian is not a dead Indian, but a live one given the opportunity to prove himself a citizen of a great Empire."

New Skin Remedy

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This scientific antiseptic wash has been found to be specially effective in all forms of Eczema, Bad Leg, Ulcers, Pimples, Salt Rheum, Ringworm and all other skin diseases. One bottle will prove it to you.

For Disablement Fund Adding to Pension Scheme.

Provision Will be Made for Men Permanently Injured in the War.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—Details, it is understood, will shortly be announced by Senator Loughheed, acting Minister of Militia, of the creation of a disablement fund to supplement the pensions of men permanently injured in the war.

From time to time, there has been complaint that the pensions awarded under the Government scheme are inadequate, and in certain cases might entail actual hardship. It has been urged that the scale of pensions should be increased, but this, it is felt, is unwise in view of the uncertainty as to the duration of the war and the heavy financial demand which the establishment of an over-generous scheme of pensions would make. There is no intention of leaving the way open to such pension abuses, as have been seen in the States.

The proposed disablement fund will be raised by subscriptions. Already offers have been received of generous amounts and little difficulty is anticipated. Contributions made to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, the Red Cross, machine guns and other funds, have indicated general willingness to give, and the plea of the wounded soldiers, incapacitated from further active work, probably, will be not less strong.

While the definite scope of the scheme is not yet determined, it is assumed that its main object will be to help along the man totally incapacitated and without means. Under the Government pension scheme the pension allowed a private, for instance, varies between $75 and $264 per annum. To get the higher figure a man "must be totally incapable of earning a livelihood as the result of wounds or injuries contracted in action or in the presence of the enemy."

If the injury is such as to require the constant services of an attendant, such as the loss of both legs or both arms or the loss of sight of both eyes, or where the use of both legs or both arms has been permanently lost, the pension may be increased by one-third or to $352 per annum.

Several cases of total incapacity have been noted, and before the war is over these may be expected to be considerably augmented. To such the proposed fund will mean much. Seven dollars a week is cold comfort for a totally disabled man requiring the constant services of an attendant. The case is given, however, merely as an illustration.

So far as the scope of the fund is concerned, it is hoped that it will meet all needs where the pension is inadequate. The cause of the disabled soldier is powerful in its appeal. The response will be given.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Quarrels will come, now and then, even in the best regulated neighbourhoods. As a rule, I permit such difficulties to be adjusted by the older and more peacefully inclined children. But rather than have the children go through the ignominy of complete insurrection, packing up dolls and games, and going "right straight home," for instance, I have sometimes suggested that a committee of three be chosen to tell me just what the trouble is.

"I am sure you will think hard and tell me just right," I say, and at once the sweet faces become serious, and they really do try hard to report just "square." With a few simple suggestions of a tactful little culprit trying not to locate the exact culprit, if possible, and always to include oneself among children, if there is the slightest reason, any mother can easily avert the growing cloud and sunshine and laughter again take the place of angry tones and words.

Suppose all the Saloons Were Closed

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO THOSE EMPLOYED BY THE LIQUOR TRADE?

(By Charles Stehale, in Ladies' Home Journal.)

If we had nation-wide prohibition one million workmen would permanently be thrown on to the labor market, say the defenders of the saloon. Also, the entire capital invested in the liquor business, amounting to nearly $1,300,000,000, according to the liquor men themselves, would promptly disappear. This states the case for the liquor men and their employees. Both groups are stoutly declaring that nothing short of economic and financial ruin would result if all men and women in the country should suddenly stop drinking beer and whiskey—and all the while a good many of us have supposed that beer and whiskey have been the direct cause of every kind of disaster that has beset their users!

Now, what are the facts with reference to men losing their jobs when the saloon is abolished? In the first place the figures given by the liquor interests as to the number of men who will be affected are grossly exaggerated. The census report for 1910 tells us that, in all manufacturing industries there were employed 6,616,046 persons. The liquor industry employed 62,920, or just about one of every hundred persons. But of this number only about one-fourth were brewers and distillers, and the rest were mechanics, carpenters, machinists, teamsters, bottlers, etc., occupations which are not at all peculiar to the liquor business. There were more teamsters than brewers and distillers and mechanics, carpenters, machinists, teamsters, bottlers, etc., occupations which are not at all peculiar to the liquor business.

Furthermore, the above figures refer only to the manufacture of intoxicating liquor—many more were employed in the sale and distribution of liquor. It is contended that these too, will lose their jobs. We need not enumerate the various groups which the saloon defenders insist will be thus affected, only to say that there are included in this list all those who are in any way concerned with the manufacture and sale of all the various kinds of materials used in making or disposing of liquor—as, for example, the farmers who grow the grain and the railroad men who haul it across the country to the brewery and the distillery. It also includes the men who make glass bottles, bar fixtures, barrels, automobiles, signs, as now used wholesale and retail liquor dealers.

This entire argument is based upon the fallacy that if the liquor dealers fail to get the money now spent for beer and whiskey, nobody else will get it. It is assumed that if a man doesn't spend a dollar for "boozes" he will throw that dollar into a bottomless pit instead of using it to purchase some other commodity which will do good instead of harm, which will have a permanent value and which will give the workmen of the country more work, more wages and greater prosperity in every way than if the same amount of money were spent for beer and whiskey. It is inferred from the liquor men's statement that by no possibility can others besides themselves have any use for grain, glass bottles, barrels, automobiles, signs, printed material or cabinet work.

Just now the liquor men are paying a great deal of attention to the farmer. They are telling him that if prohibition prevails he will no longer enjoy the prosperity which has been his during recent years. They are asking what will become of the farmer when the brewers and distillers no longer buy his grain and his grapes, his apples and his cherries. One would think that nobody likes grapes and apples and cherries unless they come in the form of "boozes." The liquor men forget that there are millions of youngsters—and nobody knows how many wives—who for once might have a chance to eat all the fruit they want and really need.

But the liquor men need not worry about the farmer. The fact is that his ability to supply the American market with produce is rapidly decreasing. From 1899 to 1909 the acreage in the United States used for raising cereals—corn, wheat, oats, barley, rice, etc.—increased only 3.5 per cent. The amount actually produced increased only 1.7 per cent.

but the population of our country during this period increased 21 per cent. At this rate it will not take the population long to catch up with the farmer. Meanwhile the value of these cereals increased 78.8 per cent.

There has been a steady decrease in the amount of cereals sent abroad, compared with what the farmer produces, because of the increased demand in our own country for the farmers' products. The percentage of all agricultural imports has remained practically the same during the last forty years, but the percentage of exports has greatly increased. Meanwhile the output per acre has remained practically stationary. The introduction of labor-saving machinery has enabled the individual farmer to care for more acres, but he has not produced more per acre.

In round numbers there are 10,000,000 farmers in the United States. The value of their annual products is about $10,000,000,000—that is, about $1,000 for each farmer. The liquor industry purchases each year about $100,000,000 worth of produce from the farmers—at least, so the liquor men themselves declare—nobody knows exactly how much is purchased. Therefore the liquor industry consumes just about 1 per cent. of all that the farmer produces, or about ten dollars for each farmer in the United States.

Now, the question is, what will the "poor" farmers do with his "ten dollars' worth of produce which the liquor industry cannot purchase when it is put out of business? He may have to feed some of it to his horses, or cows, or pigs; but even in this case, it would not be a loss to him—even a city man knows this. It is absolutely certain that he will never be compelled to throw away this ten dollars' worth of material which is troubling the liquor man so grievously. The chances are that somebody else besides the liquor men will find use for it. Anyway, the farmers are voting out the saloon every time they get a chance, fully realizing the force of whatever there may be in the argument of the liquor men so far as they are concerned.

The railroad men are another group of workers to which the liquor men are devoting themselves. They are saying that transportation companies would be seriously crippled were the liquor business destroyed, and that the loss to the railroad companies could not possibly be replaced.

As a matter of fact, without going into the details of the statistics furnished both by the liquor industry and by the Interstate Commerce Commission, it is easily demonstrable that the railroads secure only about 2 per cent. of their freight business from the liquor industry; and an unprejudiced person would not doubt for a single moment that the railroad men will get as much business and as much money from the transfer of a given amount of grain, whether that grain is shipped to a brewer or a baker.

As for the transportation of the finished product, as well as of the raw materials which the liquor industry now furnishes, other industries which would benefit through the transfer of trade from liquor to some other commodity supply as much business as do the brewers and distillers.

A great deal, too, is being said about the enormous amount of capital invested in the liquor industry. It is only too true that a disproportionate amount of capital is required in this business, from which, however, the great masses of the workers receive comparatively little in the form of work and wages. Combining all of the industries of the United States, and crediting the liquor industry with its fair proportion of wage-earners, wages paid and materials used, the liquor industry requires four times as much capital to operate as does the average industry; which means, in substance, that for every $1,000,000 invested in the average industry in the United States, substantially four times as much raw material is required, four times as much wages are paid, and four times as many workers are employed.

Patriotic Association.

A well attended meeting of the Patriotic Association was held at the Board of Trade Rooms last night, at which His Excellency the Governor presided. Before the general business of the meeting was taken up His Excellency read the latest official war news, and emphasized the fact that the military position of the Allies is now much stronger than it was six months ago. He stated that the reservists on the Niobe had been given 14 days leave to visit their homes the leave extending from the date of arrival. They will probably come via North Sydney, which will deprive those in St. John's from welcoming them in a body as many of them whose homes are on the West Coast will detract along the way. Though we will be deprived of the pleasure of welcoming our boys, His Excellency said that it was most gratifying to notice that out of 102 who left here, 102 are returning. He then referred to the death of reservist Randall Anthony Pike, at Chatham Naval Barracks, on Monday last, which sad news has been communicated to his guardian, Mr. James Lockyer, of Lamaline. He also informed the meeting that Major Franklin has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in the 19th Battalion of the King's Royal Rifle Corps, a crack regiment to which Capt. Moore formerly A.D.C. to His Excellency was also attached. Lt.-Colonel Franklin has seen active service with five regiments in 12 months, and has been highly commended by his superiors. His Excellency then read a letter from Major Macpherson, who related some stirring incidents of work on the Gallipoli Peninsula and stated that Sergt. M. J. Murphy was doing well in France where he is in charge of a station where the gas helmets are impregnated. After thanking those who assisted the local force now on patrol duty, and stating that the men had been forwarded socks and clothing by the W.P.A., His Excellency requested the Secretary, Dr. V. P. Burke to read the minutes of the last meeting. After these had been confirmed, the report of Aeroplane, Finance, Reserve Force and Musketry Committees were submitted and adopted. The report of the Treasurer, Mr. J. A. Clift, showed that the total amount of the Aeroplane Fund, including the contribution of the Officers' Club, was $52,275.90 of which $28,950.51 had been remitted for the purchase of small arms and accessories. The balance of $23,325.39. The report was adopted with the proviso, that after the purchase of two more aeroplanes the committee will consider the suggestions as to the disposal of the balance which will be about $1,600. It was decided that the names of Frederick Bowring, of Liverpool, Frederick Marriott and Dr. Crowley, Frew and Griev, of London, be added to the list from which the Newfoundland representative of the Overseas Club will be selected. The balance of $23,325.39. The report was adopted with the proviso, that after the purchase of two more aeroplanes the committee will consider the suggestions as to the disposal of the balance which will be about $1,600. WEDNESDAY, September 1, 1915.

Lt. Col. Franklin.

We congratulate Lieut. Colonel Franklin on his rapid advance since he left here last October. It will be remembered that he left here with the rank of Captain in the Newfoundland Regiment of which he had been Camp Commandant while the contingent was at Pleasantville. Shortly after his arrival on the other side he was afforded an opportunity to study for field rank, and in due course after his instructions was completed, he passed the examination qualifying for field work. He was gazetted as Major in the Nfld. Regiment, but appointed to serve as Junior Major in another regiment at the front. After acting some time in this capacity he was promoted to serve as Senior Major of a battalion in another regiment at the front, and was put second in command. While at the front, his senior officer in the battalion took ill, and he was left in command of the battalion, remaining in command for a month at the front. At the end of that time a new Lieut. Colonel was appointed, and Major Franklin received the congratulations of the Brigade in charge of the brigade of which his battalion formed a part, for the good and efficient work he had done while in command at the front. This led to a further step upwards, and Major Franklin was promoted to the rank of Lieut. Colonel and given command of the 19th Battalion of the King's Royal Rifles, a crack regiment to which Capt. Moore, formerly A.D.C. to the Governor, was attached. The rise of Lieut. Colonel Franklin since he left here has been rapid, and is a tribute to the keenness and ability with which he has pursued his military duties. It is an inspiration to every one who has joined the Newfoundland Regiment, and particularly to the C.L.B., as it shows the value of the military grounding. Lieut. Colonel Franklin obtained an officer's commission in the Corps, which has enabled him to build upon it the grand success he has already obtained and which gives hope of further advancement, with advantage to himself and his country.

Presentation to Clerical Student.

A very pleasing event took place last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy, Hutchings Street, it being the occasion of the presentation of a gold watch by friends to their son Michael, who leaves here on Saturday evening en route to St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, to study for the Priesthood. An address was read by Mr. James Jackson while Mr. James Darcy made the presentation. The recipient made a fitting reply, thanking the donors for their gift, which he would always cherish, though he regarded more highly the good motive that prompted the donors. Other speeches followed, after which the gathering was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy and a pleasant evening terminated all too quickly. Amongst those present were Messrs. McGrath, Fortune and P. Kennedy who will leave here in company with Mr. Kennedy to study for the Church.

Minaard's Liniment Co., Limited,
Gentlemen.—Ever since coming home from the Boer War I have been bothered with running fever sores on my legs. I tried many salves and ointments; also doctored continuously for the blood, but got no permanent relief, till last winter when my mother got me to try MINAARD'S LINIMENT. The effect of which was almost magical. Two bottles completely cured me and I have worked every working day since.

TO-DAYS BASEBALL.—Much interest is evinced in this afternoon's clash between the Red Lions and Wanderers. LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Aug. 3rd, 1915.

THE KING LUNCHES AT HIS CLUB.

The King on July 28th paid one of his rare visits to the Marlborough Club in Pall Mall. His Majesty had come to town to hold a Privy Council, as well as to receive in audience the Prime Minister and others. As the Court will not return to town from Windsor Castle till some time this week, Buckingham Palace was closed, and the King decided to go to his club for lunch to avoid the necessity of opening the Lord Steward's Department at the Palace. His Majesty's action is a striking illustration of the consideration he displays for his Ministers, for had the Council been held at Windsor at least two Cabinet Ministers would have been out of town for two or three hours.

HENRY JAMES.

It surprises no one to hear that Henry James has become naturalized as a "British" subject. There is no need to accept the explanation given by the "New York Times"—that he has been led to this step by his disapproval of the silence of the American Government on the conduct of the Germans in Belgium. His own reason given in his petition is sufficiently clear—namely, "his desire to throw his moral weight and allegiance, for whatever they may be worth into the scale of the contending nations' present and future fortune." Mr. James has shown himself wholeheartedly on the side of this country in the war, and everyone remembers the letter which he wrote to an American friend expressing his admiration of the strength and unity of spirit of Great Britain. His sympathy with Belgium is known to the public from the touching account he wrote recently of the work of the American Ambulance Corps. The latest expression of his lifelong love of France was the preface to "The Book of France," published about the third week in July. All the world knows from his books that Paris and London have been the twin homes of his spirit. The fruit of the last of his infrequent visits to America was the singularly detached, not to say scintillated, impressions contained in "The American Scene." Most of his friends and interests are now in England. He spends his time here between his flat in Chelsea and his beautiful eighteenth-century house in Rye—the sort of house haunted by gracious associations he has so often lingered over in delicate, filmy sentences. In recent years the novelist's powerful, brooding countenance has become fairly familiar to those who attend such literary events as the meetings of the Royal Society of Literature. His appearance in a prominent position, at the Guildhall meeting to celebrate the rally of the colonies was noted at the time as significant.

A GERMAN DELUSION.

The German press is harboring the belief that sooner or later the Allies will be short of toluene, an essential ingredient of the most important of high explosives. This is a delusion. At the present moment adequate supplies of benzene and toluene are absolutely necessary for many reasons. Crude benzol, which contains the former of these bodies and sometimes the latter, finds great use for internal combustion engines. Purified benzene is a source of synthetic phenol or carboic acid, used to such a large extent as a local antiseptic in surgery and also as the parent substance of the high explosives trinitro-toluol. The main source of supplies of these essential substances has been coal tar, from which by fractionation benzol is obtained and then separated into benzene and toluene. Now, here is the important point with which the German writers are apparently unfamiliar. Recently American chemists have been experimenting on various substances with a view to widening the source of these highly important products, and it has been found possible to obtain them from a hitherto unknown and, fortunately for the Allies, an extensive class of substances. Crude petroleum and petroleum residues when heated to high temperatures undergo what is technically known as "cracking," that is to say, complex substances are broken down. By carrying out the process under high pressures these simple substances recondense and form new products. From the material thus formed experiments have shown that about 10 to 15 per cent. of benzene and toluene and lesser amounts of naphthalene and anthracene can be separated. This is extremely important, when we consider the large natural supplies of petroleum at the disposal of the Allies. The discovery means that the Allies are assured of a continuous and abundant supply of toluene for the manufacture of high explosives, and that another hope of the Germans has vanished.

GERMANY'S SHORTAGE OF GLYCERINE.

The shortage of glycerine in Germany which has long been very pronounced, has now apparently reached a very acute form for an order has been promulgated prohibiting its employment by the public, except in medicinal preparations for internal use. Its use in compounds for external application is now absolutely forbidden. This order supercedes regulations which were enforced some months ago restricting the amount that could be sold to the public to very small quantities, the reason being the heavy requirements for the manufacture of explosives.

INTEREST IN RUSSIAN NOVELS.

I find that there is a considerable demand for works of fiction by Russian writers now in the book shops, as a result of the closer relations between the two countries. The publishers are doing all they can to meet the demand. The Russian novelists, with the exception of Tolstol, were very inadequately placed before the English public. The Viscally translations, which once had a vogue, had gone out of print, and no serious attempt had been made to replace them. Now, however, Messrs. Heinemann have an interesting collection of Turquenev novels on the market at two shillings a volume, including, of course, "Virgin Soil" and "Fathers and Sons," which are the best known here. Of the older writers Dostievsky, the brilliant, but gloomy author of "Crime and Punishment," a being republished and even Gogol is bought now. Gogol's "Dead Souls" is almost as gloomy as Dostievsky's great novel. Intensely interesting as these Russian books are, the English reader must often deplore the morbid tendencies of the Slav temperament as expressed through the medium of letters. Several publishers are bringing out fresh editions of Gorky's books, among them "The Man Who Was Afraid," "The Outcasts," and "Three Men." Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton are publishing a Russian library at two shillings and sixpence a volume, in which Gorky figures, as well as Lermontov, Turgenyev, and Pushkin. A still more recent writer, Anton Tchhoff, is being produced by Messrs. Duckworth, and other novelists as yet unknown to the English reading world are promised to us. The public are buying these books and Tolstol no longer rules supreme among our readers of Russian fiction.

BELGIAN SIGHTSEERS.

The clothing of the Belgian army in khaki has gone on fast, and it is already increasingly difficult to distinguish the soldiers of our Ally on their holidays in London streets from our own men. The soiled and make-shift uniforms they used to wear were unmistakable. There are far more Belgian soldiers in London now than earlier in the war. At present the authorities allow 4 per cent. of the army to be on leave at one time, but they stipulate that those who come over here must have some money or rufuzes with whom they can stay. None of our mixed company of war guests makes the round of the sights with fresher admiration and more childlike awe. Few know English—it is astonishing to find how many know only Flemish—and their plan is to do London on a co-operative method. They form companies of half a dozen or so under the leadership of a comrade who knows enough English to explain things. One is struck in talking to them by the touching sincerity of their pleasure in the peace and security of England. Only those who are both soldiers and citizens and have lost their homes as well as risked their lives can know the wonder and refreshment of that experience. I came upon one of the exploring groups in the Guildhall War Exhibition this afternoon, where they were especially delighted with the portrait of King Albert, painted last May within sound of the German guns. One of them told me a story of the King which I have not seen in print—how when the Belgians were retreating over a bridge the King stayed behind, in great danger, long after the last soldier had gone. I gathered that for these soldiers, at any rate, the war has been rather a boring business of late. They belonged to a piece of the line which is divided from the German trenches by a canal impassable by either side. It was a genuine case of stalemate, they said. At long intervals a man would be wounded or killed, but normally the soldiers spent the days in their hole with nothing much to do, getting what diversion they could out of their imprisonment under fire.

STERILISING WATER AT THE FRONT.

One of the reasons which account for the comparative immunity of the troops, both in the East and West fronts, from epidemic diseases has no doubt been the satisfactory means that have been adopted in all the armies for sterilising water. Various simple methods, which are easily practiced by the soldiers themselves, are in use, and it is interesting to note that the German military authorities are, according to the German technical press, very satisfied with the results that have been obtained from the use of peroxide of hydrogen, as well as by the use of a compound of which this substance is one of the ingredients. It is said, by the way, that this compound, when added to water, will destroy cholera and typhoid germs in 15 minutes at summer temperature, and render the water fit for drinking purposes. It is supplied to the troops in the form of tablets, one of which is sufficient to purify nearly a quart of water.

Another method that is being largely employed by the Germans is the use of tablets containing permanganate of potash and tartaric acid or bisulphate of soda. The use of permanganate for purifying purposes is, of course, well known, and the reason for the addition of one or other of the additional chemicals named is that of the oxidising properties of the permanganate become more active in the presence of an acidified solution. These mixtures are also supplied to the troops in the form of tablets, one of which is sufficient for about half a plate of water, and all the soldier has to do is to dissolve the tablets in the water and allow it to stand for 15 minutes, when the water will be ready for drinking.

THE NAVY AND ENEMY DISTINCTIONS.

It is interesting and yet somewhat surprising to learn from the latest issue of the "Navy List" now available, that over a hundred naval officers appear as holders of "enemy" distinctions. Sir David Beatty, Sir Hedworth Meux, Sir Percy Scott and Lord Charles Boreford are "authorized" to wear the insignia of the Turkish Order of the Medjidie "on all occasions," while Lord Fisher possesses the Ottoman Order of Osmanieh. Among the dozen holders of German orders are Sir John Jellicoe, who possesses the Red Eagle, and Sir Edmund Fremantle, who has the Royal Crown. As there can be little doubt these officers have discarded their enemy decorations, such might now well be omitted from the official publication.

SNAPSHOTS FROM HOME.

At the beginning of the war, when the new armies began to boom and a new era in recruiting was inaugurated all over the kingdom, there was an immense demand for photographs of departing fathers, sons, brothers, and sweethearts as pleasing personal souvenirs for those who were left behind. Now, after almost a year's campaigning, it has occurred to some one that there is room for a process of exchange in this respect. If those who remain at home treasure photographs of their kith and kin with the colors, the latter in their exile from the family circle are not a whit less keen to possess photographic records of what is happening to the folks at home. A good many such photographs have no doubt found their way to the front during the last few months, but the field is very big, and not every home has a photographer in its midst and is in a position to call in the aid of a professional. But it is estimated that there are roughly about 1,000,000 amateur photographers in this country who, now that the usual peace-time pursuit of their hobby has been temporarily curtailed by military and naval restrictions, will be glad to know of a means of using their cameras for a national purpose. The scheme for organizing the effort is in the hands of the Y.M.C.A., under whose auspices branches of the Snapshots from Home League are being started all over the country.

A LUXURY PLEDGE.

Within a short time a letter will appear in the papers signed by titled women giving the terms of a pledge which people are to be asked to take to dispense with luxuries. I believe this proposal was first made by someone connected with the Parliamentary War Savings Committee. It has been taken up enthusiastically and a non-official committee has been formed to carry it out. The idea is to get the people above the motor-car standard to set an example of economy. The stern economists who are looking round just now for signs of extravagance are particularly moved to wrath by the sight in the streets of so many new motor-cars. The pledge contains a promise to give up using motor-cars altogether for private purposes, as well as such self-denying ordinances as the renunciation of restaurant-going—pleasing news for the restaurant keepers—and the ignoring of new fashions—which will please the dressmakers. A dead set is made at the motor-car because it is considered to be a sort of symbol of luxurious expenditure, but that is by no means true without important qualifications. It would be too much to expect all advocates of war economy to know what is sound economy and what is not. The fashion will probably set in for "pledges" adapted to the lives of different classes, and the newspapers no doubt will be enlightened by a good many fantastic puritanical efforts. One fancied that Mr. McKenna's coming Budget will prove a good deal more effective in cutting down luxuries than any number of volunteer pledges.

A CANADIAN SOLDIER.

Major Reginald Pellett, who has been appointed to command a new Canadian overseas battalion for service at the front, is less well known here than his father, Sir Henry Pellett, who has been described as the Cecil Rhodes of Canada. Sir Henry Pellett, who is a leading financier in Toronto, has long been known as one of the most enthusiastic volunteers in Canada. Four or five years ago he brought over to this country at his own expense the whole of his regiment, the Queen's Own Rifles—they are now fighting at the front—to take part in the army manoeuvres. He commanded the Canadian contingents which came over for Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee and for the Coronation of King Edward, by whom he was knighted. He took a leading part in the Society of Knights Bachelor and in the acquisition of the old hall of Clifford's Inn for their meetings.

The change will be wonderful. You need a spring medicine—then take VIGOROL. Sold at all drug stores.

SIDETRACKED

I bought a barrel of gay apparel quite early in the spring, made heavy payment for Palm Beach raiment, and hoped to look a king. "When summer bakes us," I said, "and cakes us with it h' freckles, sunburn, tan, I'll be so gaudy that Lord Topodny will see an also ran. The girls will follow, o'er hill and hollow, my glances to command; and wealthy widowers will then be bidders for my old heart and hand. The other fellows will all be jealous, the way I win the girls, and counts and princes will all seem quinces, and likewise fret and worry to wear my gorgeous rags! Come, weather torrid! It's simply horrid the way the springtime lags!" But summer weather broke loose its tether, and started off dead wrong; the rains were pouring and torrents roaring, the whole blamed season long! I view with loathing the winter clothing this climate makes me do; those grand Palm Beaches, those tailored peaches, were long since placed in pawn. Thus man goes dreaming of triumphs screaming, and dreams go up the spout; the fates sidetrack him and swat and crack him, and put him down and out.

Aching Back Gets Relief Quick! One Rub with "Nerviline" Cures

Every Bit of Stiffness and Soreness Goes When "Nerviline" is Used.

Pain in back or side is awful hard to reach. Deep in the tissue is a congested or strained muscle. It is a long way for a liniment to go. Liniments you have used have not reached it and the pain bothers you, whether moving or lying down.

What a pity you haven't tried Nerviline! Penetrating, you ask? Yes, and so wonderful. Too Nerviline strikes in deeper than any application you have ever used. You might pay a dollar, ten dollars, a hundred, for that matter, but you could not equal Nerviline, either in strength, quickness of action, or permanency of relief.

If you think this too much to say for Nerviline, try it, and be convinced.

If you receive from Nerviline even a little less relief from pain than this advertisement induces you to expect, you can get your money back.

The only pain remedy in the world sold under a guarantee is Nerviline—surely it is safe to try it.

Nerviline is sold by druggists everywhere 25 cents or 50 cents a bottle.

The Essentials!

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"It is admirable to give a child a sponge bath at night. Especially in summer this tends to refresh him and make him sleep better." The little mother who is so anxious to do things just right read that aloud from a magazine.

Her voice was anxious. "I don't see how I can get time to do that," she said. "It's about all I can do to get the children to bed before dinner-time now. You see, I have to wash their hands and faces thoroughly, clean their teeth, spray their throats, wash Ralph's eyes with borax (they're a little weak), and rub the baby's back with olive oil. If I give the baby a sponge bath every night I know I'd be late to dinner and that would make Robert cross. He says I fuss over them too much now."

Poor Little Mother! And Poor Father too.

And in a lesser degree, poor Robert, too.

The education of mothers through magazine articles in the essentials of proper child care is surely a splendid thing, one of the finest things the printed word has ever done. But done and overdone are two different things and there are times when I think the first has passed into the second.

To give one child all the details of care recommended in our various magazines would take most of one woman's time. Obviously for one woman to give that care to two or three children and do even the supervising of the housework (we take one servant for granted, as anything of the sort would be entirely impossible without), would be a nerve-racking, heart-breaking, life-spilling task that would leave her no opportunity to be a wife and a woman as well as a mother.

The Woman Who Drove Herself to Suicide.

Perhaps you read in the newspapers not long ago of the suicide of a young mother. Her husband said that he believed her over-anxiety to do the right thing by her baby drove her to the step. "She was so afraid that she wouldn't do everything exactly right that she became obsessed," he said. "She would go all to pieces if she found a hair on the baby's bottle after boiling."

This case was extreme, but I know more than one woman who is headed in that direction. They lose their sense of proportion. They think too much about it all. They strain at things that should be simple and natural.

Do You Remember When Homes Were Run for Grown-Ups?

Do you remember the days, reader friends, when children in a household were supposed to conform to the routine of grown-ups instead of having a separate routine elaborately created and painfully maintained for them? That wasn't entirely right of course; but isn't the new regime as much on the other side of the line? Wouldn't mothers and children and homes all be better off and happier if mothers wouldn't worry quite so much over being mothers?

To pick out the essentials in this cult of child care and reject the details that are good enough in their way but that only a specialist has time for—that is the task of the modern mother.

One quality and only one will make her equal to it, that misnamed virtue—common sense.

Flames Swept The Allies Back.

Shrub Caught Fire, Turks and British Alike Fleeing for Safety.

London, Aug. 26.—Ashmead Bartlett, who represents the London papers at the Dardanelles, describes in a despatch the operations of the Australians and New Zealanders, which began on August 6th, with a view to seizing the Kojachema Heights, running northeast from the "Anzac" positions.

The New Zealanders, including the Maoris, using bayonets only, drove the Turks before them throughout the night of August 6th, through difficult ravines. The death toll of the invaders was severe.

"The struggle," says the correspondent, "continued on August 7. Much ground was gained, but the advance was ultimately held up by the Turks' rifle and machine guns. The fighting was renewed on the following day at close quarters and was desperate. The Turks finally fled, leaving the New Zealanders in position of the highest point yet gained on the peninsula.

Counter-attacks were repulsed by the military and naval artillery. From August 8th to the evening of August 12, the landing and advance at Anafarta Bay, supported by artillery, was successful, occupying a wide front on the hills beyond the Salt Lake. The enemy's position on the Anafarta ridge, however, remained untouched. The problem was how to take it.

"The Turks made most skilful use of the broken country. Their artillery sought the British reserves and shelled the road leading round the lake, pushing forward the majority of their men as snailrulers into the broken ground front. These men, many of whom were local peasants, knowing every inch of the ground and carrying no kit except rifles and a large supply of cartridges, skilfully used the cover that offered itself to them and proceeded to snipe our lines from all angles. They fought with the greatest courage.

The British, however, continued to gain ground. About mid-day on August 9 a difficulty arose. A strong wind was blowing and either through the bursting of shells or by design of the Turks, the scrub caught fire at several places with amazing rapidity. The smoke and flames swept diagonally toward our front, and forced our infantry to abandon the advanced positions.

"It was a strange sight, for in all directions you saw Turkish snipers and British infantry crawling out of the scrub, putting their backs to one another and running to get out of the track of the flames and the suffocating smoke.

"This effectively stopped our advance on August 9, but the fighting and sniping continued all day, and throughout the night. Great fires lit the darkness, backed by clouds of white smoke, from the midst of which came the incessant rattle of machine guns and rifle fire, while further south the booming of guns and the bursting of shells on top of the hills showed where the other part of our army gradually fought its way from ridge to ridge to join hands with our troops.

"On the Anafarta front there was desultory fighting throughout August 10. It was quite unlike anything now seen in Europe, but it recalled the Boer war. Frequent fresh fires sprang up throughout the day, causing both sides to change their positions.

"By August 11 the complete line between "Anzac" and new-landed forces at Anafarta Bay was established. The commanders voiced unstinted praise for the troops engaged in the struggle."

BRITISH SHELLS BETTER THAN GERMANS.

London, Aug. 25.—"My men, man for man, are superior to the Germans in fighting qualities, and the endurance of my guns is better than the German guns. For instance, my thirteen inch shell is equivalent to their seventeen inch shell. The issue is now one between Krupp and Birmingham."

"This is the message Sir John French asks us to convey to the people of England," said James O'Grady, M.P., who has returned from a visit to the trenches, to a Daily News representative last night. O'Grady went to France with labor colleagues on a mission connected with the removal of the international trade union bureau from Berlin.

"This mission," he said, "was successful inasmuch as the French trade unionists agreed with Great Britain and America as to the desirability of removing the trade bureau to Switzerland, a neutral country, in order that the international union should after the war continue to operate in its old effective way. It now remains to be seen what attitude German trade unionists will adopt toward the proposal, as they constitute a formidable section of the bureau which they initiated."

Old Conundrums.

Which Amused Our Grandfathers Sixty Years Ago.

Half a century ago that form of humour known as the conundrum was thought to be very amusing and one of the highest forms of wit. The really old ones that delighted our grandfathers are for the most part buried in oblivion. Did you ever hear of the one about the watch dog? This is of the brand of 1850, and is pretty good of its kind:— Why is a watch-dog bigger at night than in the morning?—Because he is let out at night and taken in in the morning. This one was a great favourite of the beaux of 1860 who wanted to flatter the ladies:—

When is a bonnet not a bonnet?—

When it becomes a pretty woman. Here are some more of about the same period that may interest you:— What's the difference between a donkey and a postage-stamp?—One you lick with a stick and the other you stick with a lick.

What was the greatest feat in the eating line ever known?—That recorded of the man who began by bolting a window, and then sat down and swallowed the whole story.

Why is a little dog's tail like the heart of a tree? Because it is farthest from the bark.

Which would you rather do—look like a greater fool than you are or be a greater fool than you look?—Let the person choose, and then say, "That's impossible."

What do lawyers do when they die?—Lie still.

What is the most inconvenient time for a train to start?—Twelve-fifty, as it is ten to one you don't catch it.

COAL STRIKE SETTLED.

LONDON, Aug. 31.
An official announcement was made to-day that the dispute which threatened another coal strike in the Welsh coal fields has been settled. The agreement provides that the award made by Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, after the previous strike shall stand. The mine owners undertake to conclude a supplemental agreement which will give engineers and other surface workers who were not included in Runciman's award, the same bonus as the miners. The exclusion of the surface workers was the chief source of dissatisfaction. The men have obtained their demands under to-day's agreement. This has been accomplished without the necessity of upsetting the ministerial award so that ostensibly Runciman's decision has not been reversed.

BIG FORCE ENGAGED.

BERLIN, Aug. 31.
The British employed one hundred thousand men in their attack on the Turkish positions on the Gallipoli Peninsula last Saturday. According to a despatch from Constantinople their losses were extremely heavy. The correspondent estimates that since August 25th the British have been in excess of fifty thousand men.

VILLA WANTS PEACE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.
A Pan American Peace Appeal has now been delivered to all military and political leaders in Mexico. Several leaders in remote sections have just been reached by courier. The appeal gives them time to reply there probably will be no meeting of the Pan-American Conference until next week. General Carranza's reply is still lacking. The conference will proceed irrespective of his attitude. The appeal is in the hands of the army, conferred with Secretary of State Lansing to-day and reported the result of the conference with General Villa and other northern Mexicans. Scott said Villa and his adherents are sincerely anxious for peace.

WANTS FACTORIES AND RAILROADS DYNAMITED.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 31.
Fifty handbills, calling on German and Irish patriots in America to help end the European war by dynamiting the factories and railroads engaged in the manufacture and transportation of supplies for the Allies, were turned over to the postmaster here to-day by G. A. Hollin, editor of a labor paper. The bills were wrapped in copies of the Handover Anzeiger, and were postmarked Bionberg, a small town near Handover. The postmaster here do not take the handbills seriously. The bills were written in English, and signed "German Committee." They contain a pretense offer of one thousand to ten thousand patriots who will help us to annihilate our enemies. Certain factories and railroads were designated by the handbills for destruction.

LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, Aug. 31.
The Russians thus far have prevented the Germans and Austrians from carrying into effect their efforts to force back the two extreme wings of the armies of Grand Duke Nicholas. At the northern extremity of the front that portion of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's army commanded by General Von Buelow, is still fighting for the bridgehead south of Friedriehstadt, while the Austro-German forces under General Bothner, who broke through the Russian lines on either side of Galicia, have been checked at some points on the Strpa River. Along the rest of the front the Germans claim to be gaining headway, although some who got through in the forest region east of Bialystok, suffered a reverse at the hands of the Russian rearguard. The two points of most interest at the two wings of the Germans near Friedriehstadt, well to the east of Riga. Military experts here say that the Russian claim to dispose of considerable forces so as to threaten the Teutonic flank, it appears improbable that Friedriehstadt can be held much longer without grave danger. The threat against the other wing is not so serious, as it is more distant, and the difficulties of the country are too great for rapid advance.

In the western theatre of war the French continue their artillery attacks on the German line at concentrations.

"Don't Worry."

Don't worry about things that you can't help. Worry kills success, some people are worrying all the time about some things that have happened or might happen. Drive out of your mind completely your past troubles and misfortunes, they cannot be helped now. Usually the coming events that you worry so much about are not really so bad when they actually happen and many times the thing most dreaded and worried about never happens. You will get a lot of undesirable things passed out to you in your life which you can't help, and all the worrying you do over them is simply a waste of energy, which might be better employed in the solution of problems of real help to your present and future.

A better preparation is not to be found for helping you to get over all your unnecessary worries than:—

Stafford's Prescription "A."

It gives you Nerve, Will Power and Strength to fight against all your troubles. Try a bottle.

tration points, without any evidences of a general offensive.

The Italians are more active to-night, and report the capture of another strong Austrian position southeast of the forest. According to Italian accounts, Italian progress, while naturally slow on account of the nature of the country to be traversed, is continuous.

Except for the Turkish official reports, already published, there is no news of the fighting on Saturday and Sunday at Gallipoli Peninsula.

It is understood that the Balkan negotiations are moving more quickly. The Bulgarian Minister had a long conference to-day with Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Minister, after which the Ambassadors of the Entente Powers and the Serbian Minister called on the Foreign Minister.

CONSCRIPTION UNPOPULAR.

LONDON, Aug. 31.

It is daily becoming more evident that the outcry of the radical journals against national service, fails to command the general sympathy among the workers. British socialist groups have formed a National Defence Committee, and intend to hold a patriotic demonstration at Colston Hall during the sittings of the Peace Union Congress in that city early in September. The chair of the patriotic gathering will be taken by J. A. Heddon, President of the Congress, and many years a member of the Independent Labor Party, an advanced socialist organization.

The arrival of a mission of workers from Canada yesterday caused considerable comment here, people failing to understand why there are unemployed in Canada in view of the munitions now being made in the Dominion. There is a general feeling that there is lack of organization somewhere, and many would not be surprised should Canada shortly import munition workers from Britain.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY ILL.

THE DROP IN STERLING EXCHANGE CREATES GREAT SENSATION—MAMMOTH LOAN THE REMEDY.

NEW YORK, To-Day.

The tremendous export trade from the States for the first time is imperilled to-day by the alarming drop in foreign exchange rates, notably in sterling. At the close of business to-night, the English pound fetched but $4.55 1/2 American money. This is a drop from its normal value of 31 1/2 cents. From its value August 1st, 20 1/2 cents and from its quotation the day before of 5 1/2 cents. This twenty four hour fall, without precedent, marked the lowest value yet recorded in the excited market where every day recently sets a new record in depreciation. It indicated that Sterling was headed downward with a momentum and velocity which promised to take it lower, unthought of ten days ago.

Except for the Turkish official reports, already published, there is no news of the fighting on Saturday and Sunday at Gallipoli Peninsula.

It is understood that the Balkan negotiations are moving more quickly. The Bulgarian Minister had a long conference to-day with Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Minister, after which the Ambassadors of the Entente Powers and the Serbian Minister called on the Foreign Minister.

His Grace at the Mines.

BELL ISLAND, To-day.

Special to Evening Telegram.

Archbishop of York and party had a fine day at the Mines on Tuesday. In the forenoon the submarine areas of the Scotia Company were visited. Manager Burrows with his able staff were most attentive to His Grace. The plant of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company was next shown, the party being conducted by Manager J. McDougall. His Grace was deeply interested in these great marvels of engineering and machinery. In the night there was a concert with an address by the children at the Mines. The hall was thronged with people, all anxious to see and hear His Grace. The party will leave for St. John's, Wednesday after a very delightful visit to all sections of the Island.

Lessen Your Living Expenses!

"Be economical," is the cry in England, and this slogan has the same significance in Canada. We all must economize. There is more actual waste in our dress expenses than any other item. When a garment becomes soiled we throw it aside, when for a few cents it could be restored to original freshness and beauty by Dry Cleaning.
A saving of at least 35 per cent. in the expense of dressing is possible by using the processes of Dry Cleaning and Dyeing.

Our agents will gladly give you full particulars.
