Home Made Bread

Home made bread is without doubt the cheapest and most healthful food that can be produced for human consumption. It is the most completely digested solid food in the world, over 90% of it being transformed into health and strength. It yields nearly twice as much nourishment as rice or potatoes, and is ten times as nourishing as an equal value of meat. No bread is more truly wholesome or more perfectly satisfactory than that baked at home in which Royal Yeast Cakes are used.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

It was known many years ago that yeast is an excellent thing for constipation, anemia, boils and pimples. Lately eminent scientists have been investigating the matter thoroughly and their conclusions point to the fact that the beneficial effect of yeast has not been overrated. The yeast treatment is very simple and economical—and altogether harmless.

Before each meal eat a Royal Yeast Cake, or take a cake dissolved in water or fruit juices. The scientific investigators say that the curative elements in yeast are the vitamins and nuclein which it contains. It is certainly well worth a fair trial by those who suffer from any of the ailments mentioned above.

"Flatterers"

OR The Shadow of the Future.

CHAPTER IV. MORE FAREWELLS THAN ONE.

In a few short weeks he appeared to have sunk from an important social factor into a mere nonentity. To be sure he had his food, his room, his clothing; and as feebleness increased upon him, a decent body, mother of the young gardener at "The Dale," came daily to and fro as partial nurse. But Mrs. Alwyn never altered one single line of her new life to cheer or console the waning hours of her husband's. The appliances his ever-falling state demanded were allowed so grudgingly as to turn their bestowal into perfect pain, and the sole bit of brightness yet spared to the old lawyer's existence was his child.

That, as he unweariedly thanked Heaven, never failed him. Whatever slight misfortune put upon him her young presence softened their keenest edge. With her happy, unsuspecting nature to lean on—lean on! It had come to that—as coxite rouse out of his clouded retrospect of pain into almost cheerfulness, and could bear the chill indifference of others with full patience.

With too much patience, it seemed to Sydney, who, during the months they were getting settled at the Dale, pondered over and grew utterly puzzled by this state of things.

Why was her father so little considered now in the household, so all but deserted, while her mother glided by degrees into a circle of acquaintances and occasional visits, and Leonard's fancies were humored to the full? Why was their house, smaller by far but just as well arranged as Guywick, furnished, as time went on, with continually fresh bits of luxurious prettiness, while that cheerless north room up-stairs, which Mr. Alwyn rarely quitted, had such a meager allowance of even comforts? And why, again, later on, was the basket-carriage, purchased in their third summer at St. Clair's, appropriated solely to Mrs. Alwyn's daily drives and calls, never to her father's more obvious needs?

These and such things past count struck Sydney's childish judgment as marked injustices, and once upon a time, when she had borne with and meditated long upon them, out of the rebellious fulness of her heart she ventured to speak.

"Mamma, may papa and I change rooms?"

"What for, Sydney?"
"So that he may sit by the window and look over the garden into the fields, mamma. Now he can only see just the bank of laurels and the wooden fence."

"I don't imagine your father would care for gazing out of the window at any view, Sydney. He is best quite quiet, and in the room I chose for him."

"But Dr. Dacie" (the village doctor, who paid, not oftener than once a month, a formal call) "said yesterday he might be better if he had a more cheerful outlook, mamma."

"You had no right to be up-stairs when Dr. Dacie called," said Sydney's mother, sharply. "Why were you not at lesson?"

"Because Miss Stevens" (Miss Foster's less costly successor) "said she had no time to hear me yesterday, she was so busy with Leonard. But may papa have my room, mamma?"

Honestly, there was no reason why he should not. But Mrs. Alwyn's nature was hard to cruelty. Not even helplessness, that stirs the depths of most true womanhood, touched her. In a fit of bitter, petty retaliation on her husband for certain ills she was compelled to share with him, she had located him in the dreary north room, and no softening of mood prompted her to permit a change.

"I would rather you both stayed, as you are, Sydney," she answered; "altering would put me to some trouble, and—and"—under her little daughter's clear, astonished glance the lame excuse halted in utterance—"to a—to an—well," impatiently, "to some expense."

"But, mamma," with eyes opening extremely wide, "would a little money be of any consequence? I always thought papa had—oh, plenty!"

"Had, Sydney, but not has," was the emphatic reply, "for—shut the door and then come here by me," and this being done—"for now you are clever and old enough to understand things, I may as well tell you why we left Guywick. Your father had the fortune of a second word for the one half spoken—the misfortune to lose all his money, and now he has actually nothing whatever of his own."

"Nothing! So now you comprehend why I have to be careful of expenses," this was odd news to the child—at first bewildering. It came like a chill wind on her hopeful design, and for a minute she lost heart. Presently a side-eyed, an upwarding of observant common sense, brought consolation.

"But, mamma, we must have some money," she urged; "rather a good deal, too, for our house is so pretty—the prettiest in St. Clair's, Dr. Dacie said yesterday; and everything is just as nice as it used to be at Guywick."

"Nonsense, child! you can't remember. That was ten times the place this is. We had a dozen servants there, and only three here!"

"But we must have some money to keep three, mamma! And isn't it papa's?"

"I have told you so, Sydney. All that we have to live on—and it's little enough" (the lady spoke conscientiously, for seven hundred a year after her delicious experience of as many thousands seemed a dismal downfall)—"is for the present, mine."

The word shot out like a bolt to the pocket. Somehow Sydney did not require the reasoning even of her eleven years to point out that the syllable cut off all prospect of outlay for her father's benefit. Instinct told her that. And instinct, which after this revelation bound her still more closely to his side, made her now say very wistfully:

"Then he and I" curious conjunction, as if both were alien to her mother, "have to live off your money and Leonard's! So, of course—I see—we ought not to use it, Mamma!"

"Here was a home-thrust, uttered in all innocence, as keen as any age or ability could have contrived. Mrs. Alwyn colored under the steady, waiting gaze, and was angry with herself for so doing—angry with Sydney for causing her confusion.

But however oblique her notions of honor, she was not going to commit herself to a direct falsehood; one, moreover, which would infallibly be found out by and by. So she answered shortly:

"No, Mr. Villiers did not give it to me. I had it from your father when I married him—entirely for myself, though; to use as I pleased. Now, instead of that, I have to keep the whole of you, house and everything, off it. And that is all you need know or I shall tell you, Sydney. Remember you are to repeat nothing of all this to any one. Never mention your father losing his property. It is no concern of any one but ourselves. Run away now, to your father, if you like; Miss Stevens is driving Leonard to Hedyngham for her painting lesson."

But Sydney was tenacious of purpose. Instead of going, she stood, tracing the pattern of the table-cover with one forefinger, revolving all this information, not seeing her way past it—till suddenly a happy thought flashed out of the confusion.

"Mamma!" excitedly.

"Well?" impatiently.

"In the desk that I have had since I was quite little, there is some money. I don't know who gave it to me, but it's my own. May I change papa's room with it?"

"You are obstinate, Sydney," said Mrs. Alwyn, frigidly.

"But may I? Then papa will get the last of the sunshine always. Oh, mother, do say yes!"

Something in the imploring tone, the anxious expectancy of attitude, a tiptoe, with two hands half opened, waiting to seize consent, caught Mrs. Alwyn's fancy. It is hard to rebuff a young voice that says "Oh, mother!" as Sydney said it. A most rare weakness overcame her, and, as much to her surprise as Sydney's, she yielded.

"As you like, then," she said; and the contest was closed by the victor's ruffling the platted lace upon her mother's neck with a terrent, impulsive kiss.

So up-stairs the alteration was effected, swiftly and cheerily. It needed no vast doucer from Sydney's slender fund to secure the co-operation of Mr. Alwyn's attendant, now with him every day; and Maria, an active housemaid, entered zealously into the few hours' extra work, for the housemistress was no favorite with her servants. "And," said this one to her kitchen confidants,

"I'm right, right glad Miss Sydney's got her way, that am. I heard 'em arguing about it till madam bid her to shut the door, and I was mortal afraid she'd only get herself sat on like the rest of us. Her ma seems to think she can harrow rough-shod over every one's head, like she do over the poor old gentlemen's, and it's time she was learned different, I says."

By a wide, west, rose-shadowed window the old lawyer sat now, day after day, delighting childishly in the change; and, as kind Dr. Dacie commented approvingly, Sydney had made his evenings brighter by half than they used to be; the plan was capital.

"Type of herself, sir, of herself," said the father, his hand fondly upon her head, and the words emerged long after from memory, helping her along a path by no means smooth.

There was one other episode that summer wherein her mother's will and Sydney's had a smart tussle, and again the child scored a victory.

People began coming to the Dale for afternoons of tennis or of music, for Leonard was eighteen now, and variety was as the very salt of the young lady's existence. The mirth of many voices would often float upward to the west window, where Sydney was mostly with her father, and though he rarely asked about these gatherings, they always seemed to bring an extra sadness to his deeply lined face. With so many to and fro, perchance the neglect came home to him that the throng never spared him a half-hour's guest. So Sydney interpreted his sigh one day, and, with her little, warm hand stroking his white hair, asked:

ACUTE ECZEMA ON BABY'S HEAD

Face, Neck, Arms. Terrible Slight, Itched And Burned. Cuticura Heals.

"Baby was two months old when I noticed little pimples on her head. They kept getting worse and spread till her head, face, neck and arms were one mass of eruptions, burning, itching, and bleeding. I was told it was eczema. I bathed her with Cuticura Soap and she was cured in ten days. She was a terrible sight. For one year I had no rest night or day."

"We got Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In less than two weeks she began to mend and in a few months she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Florence, 243 McDermott St., Peterboro, Ont., April 19, 1919.

the most part bare and comparatively unproductive. As the ostrich farmers often left their flocks to subsist on whatever they could pick up, and as an ostrich will pick up anything that is not too large for it to swallow, the advent of the British and Boer forces, with the chance that it gave at the levings of the camps, was a great boon to the ostrich.

At Belmont a flock of ostriches came roaming into the British camp. The Canadians had never before seen these birds on their native heath. They were tame, and much on the lookout for rations. The Canadians had heard of the "digestion of an ostrich," and were resolved to test it.

One of the men threw the foremost ostrich a bar of soap. The ostrich swallowed it and, looked for more. Another man tossed out a match-box. The ostrich swallowed that, and looked pleased. An empty jam-can followed, and the bird ate that.

"I wonder if he would eat cartridges?" said an Irish member of the regiment.

Held on the Cartridges.

No one ventured to violate regulations or waste ammunition by trying the experiment, but suddenly an outcry was raised among the soldiers near. While the attention of the men had been centred on the bird that was swallowing matchboxes, soap and jam-cans, another hungry bird had entered a tent and was actually engaged in eating brass-headed cartridges out of the bandoleers! All the ostriches had particularly long and naked necks. The soldier-wanderers from the Far North noticed that any bulky object which an ostrich swallowed went down his throat so near to the skin that its descent could be plainly seen all the way.

So the soldiers stood in a group, throwing bits of all kinds of refuse to a particularly long-necked ostrich. He swallowed one bit after another with lightning speed and then stood upright, while the soldiers laughed till they could hardly breathe to see the objects chase one another down four feet of neck.

As the ostriches helped themselves to many useful and needed articles the soldiers found it necessary to refuse them admission to the camp. But before they were banished an unfortunate accident—for the ostriches are only—deprived two of the big bones of life. They were cut up and sent by the Canadians who found them very good, the flesh resembling both in appearance and taste.

Britain Pleased With Harding's Proposals.

Commons Cheered Statement of Prime Minister---Boycott of Ulster by Southern Ireland--French Government Non-Committal on Disarmament.

ACCEPTED WITH PLEASURE.
LONDON, July 11.

President Harding's message looking to the calling of an International Conference on the limitation of armaments, has been accepted with the utmost pleasure by Great Britain. Mr. Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons to-day. Speaking on the subject, the Premier said, "I need not say that we welcome with the utmost pleasure President Harding's wise and courteous intention." The House cheered this statement, and the Premier added, "In saying that I speak for the Empire, as a whole." The Premier said China would be treated as an independent in the Conference on Pacific affairs. He continued, "The world has been looking to the United States for such a lead. I am confident that this House will esteem it as an act of far seeing statesmanship and will wholeheartedly wish it success. No effort will be lacking to make it so on the part of the British Empire, which shares to the full the liberal and progressive spirit inspiring it." Colonel George Harvey, United States Ambassador, was in the gallery of the House to hear the Premier's statement. "When I told the House last Thursday that I hoped to be in a position to make a statement on the Pacific and Far-Eastern question to-day," the Premier declared, "I was waiting, as I expected replies to a conversation that had taken place between Lord Carson and representatives of the Government of the United States and China, as a result of the discussions in the Imperial Cabinet. I am very glad to be able to inform the House that the views of the Government of the United States, which reached me last night, are extremely satisfactory, regarding the course which discussions of the Imperial Cabinet took. I say this with particular satisfaction, because it will show how very valuable a step forward we have been able to take with common consent. The broad lines of the Imperial policy in the Pacific and Far-East was the very first subject to which we addressed ourselves, having special regard to the Anglo-Japanese agreement, the future of China, and the bearing of both these questions on the relations of the British Empire with the United States. We are guided in our deliberations by their main considerations. In Japan we have an old and proved ally. The agreement, now of twenty years standing, between us has been of very great benefit, not only to ourselves and her, but to the peace of the Far East. In China we have very numerous people of great potentiality, who esteem our friendship highly, and whose interests we desire to assist and advance." This statement elicited cheers from the House. "In the United States we see to-day, as we have always seen, a people closest to our own aims and ideals, and with whom it is for us not only our desire and interest, but deeply rooted instinct to consult and cooperate." There was renewed cheering from the House at this point. Lloyd George went on, "There were main considerations in our minds and upon them we were unanimous. The object of our discussions was to find a method of combining all these three factors in a policy that would remove the danger of heavy naval expenditure in the Pacific, with all the evils that such expenditure would entail, and that would ensure the development of all legitimate national interests in the Far East. We had first to ascertain our exact position in regard to the Anglo-Japanese Agreement. There had been much doubt as to whether notification to the League of Nations last July constituted denunciation of the agreement in the sense of clause VI. If it did it would be necessary to decide on some interim measures regarding an agreement, pending fuller discussion with the Pacific powers and negotiations with this object in view were in point of fact already in progress."

FRANCE WAITING BUT CAUTIOUS.

PARIS, July 11.
Official comment on President Harding's invitation for a conference on the limitation of armaments, is withheld pending receipt of the official invitation, but unofficial opinions gathered in official circles are to the effect that France certainly will accept the invitation, if one is received. It is expected, however, that while France is ready, and would be glad to reduce her armaments and save the heavy expense involved as soon as she can safely do so, any decision on this question must depend upon absolute security from the east.

CANADA-AUSTRALIA RECIPROCALITY.

OTTAWA, July 11.
Reciprocity between Canada and Australia is the subject of negotiations between the Government here and that of the Commonwealth, now that the latter has finally adopted its protective tariff. Sir George Foster has cabled Premier Meighen asking that, incidental to the London Conference, he take up with Premier Hughes of Australia the subject of entering into a reciprocal arrangement between the two countries.

CURFEW IN BELFAST.

BELFAST, July 11.
Curfew was reimposed to-day as the result of the disorders of Sunday. Belfast now is the only place in Ireland under curfew regulations, despite the truce terms by which the Curfew was raised.

CHIEF JUSTICE TAFT.

WASHINGTON, July 11.
William Howard Taft was sworn in to-day as Chief Justice of the United States.

TEARS, IDLE TEARS.

It doesn't help, when trouble's here to shed the brackish, briny tear. I well recall the fateful day when my old hen refused to lay; I needed eggs to poach and boil, and brace me up for honest toil; but when I sought the bird's coop, she's laid no eggs, and cared no whoop. And I had fed her costly hay and kindred grub, that she might lay. I might have wept and torn my hair and rent my bear in my despair; instead of that I seized the fowl, beheaded her, despite her howl, and had her for my evening meal, and then remarked, "How good I feel!" And so I make the best of things when grief in my direction swings. I once possessed a balky steed, and when it balked 'twas vain to plead, or weep, or let-hot language roll, or soak it with a cedar pole. When on a journey I would start, I took some volumes in the cart; when balkiness obsessed the steed, I'd open some good book and read, and spend an hour in comfort there, instead of pawing of the air. And when the horse desired to go, I'd speak a loud, commanding "Whoa!" And as he quit the balking game and as a lord, earned much fame, became the best of bald-faced roans, and brought me in two hundred bones. I always make the best of things, and as happy as nine kings.

Fishery Supply Bill.

(Trade Review).
Considerable attention has been drawn to the Government Fishery Supply Bill, which is entirely different from the propositions first put forward by the Government. It was the intention, at first, to assist any person who would give out supplies for the Labrador, guaranteeing him against loss to the extent of half the money advanced.

THE COMING CONFERENCE.

LONDON, July 11.
It appeared to-day that conversations between Mr. DeValera and Premier Lloyd George would revolve around the granting of a Dominion Status to Ireland, and under conditions that the Sinn Fen demand for an Irish Republic would be abandoned. There were other serious questions to be debated, however, among them being the boycott of Ulster by Southern Ireland, which has brought serious difficulties to the people of Ulster. Truce between Crown forces and the Irish Republican Army became effective at noon to-day, but there were apprehensions that extremists on both sides would be hard to control. Yesterday rioting in Belfast, with fifteen killed and nearly

Nova Scotia Man Says He Has
More Life And Energy Than In Years.

"I eat, sleep, and feel better than I have for years, and I give the entire credit to Tanlac," said John R. Gray, Richmond, N.S.

"For three years I had a bad form of stomach trouble, and after every meal I would bloat up with gas and often had pains in the pit of my stomach that would draw me double. These attacks were so violent, they would almost knock me out, and often I was so weak as a result I could hardly stand on my feet. Indigestion just seemed to wear me out completely, and I got so nervous I couldn't sleep at night and in the morning I felt absolutely worn out. I was going down hill at a rapid rate, losing weight, and feeling weaker and thinner every day, and was feeling as miserable as a man could."

"This was my condition when I began taking Tanlac, and I can say far more for me than I ever expected. It not only gave me an appetite and put my stomach in first-class condition but it has made me feel fine. I can just feel the blood tingling in my veins now and I have more life and energy than I have had in years. I have picked up ten pounds in weight too, and all my friends tell me they never saw me looking as well. Tanlac's great."

Hard on Provision Dealers.

The remission of the Sales Tax on Freight opens the door for more complications. The matter is simple with the Dry Goods Importers, as the freight is almost invariably entered at the bottom of the Invoice. Not so with Pork, Beef, Flour and other provisions. The freight is generally included as an unknown quantity, in the entire bill in C.I.F. shipments from the United States, and Canada. In order to get his remission of duty on freight the Importer here must first know his freight charge, in order to deduct it from the amount that is dutiable under the Sales Tax. He will find it necessary to send special telegrams to the shipper of the goods. There is no other way to get the information and as there are often two or more railway lines as well as steamship lines involved in passing the goods on, it is to be presumed that the Custom House will require the Importer to produce documents from all these before the matter can be settled, and a permit given.

There is foreign inland freight as well as the ocean freight, and the Provision Importers do not know whether these freights will have to be separately obtained and whether freight, duty on one or both has to be eliminated. It is questionable too, if shippers of Pork and Beef out in Chicago, or at Flour Dealers in Western Canada will be willing to give a separate statement of freight even when they are cabled, and the reasons given for wanting the information.

In the close competition of railway lines and steamship, those who are sometimes favored by being able to get a small cut on the rate, would not be able to get it, if it was everybody's information. There certainly is a difficulty here for the Provision Importer, who is at a disadvantage when compared with the Dry Goods man.—Trade Review.

Should Enter Vigorous Protest.

The new United States duty on our fishery products will practically kill the herring export trade, especially Scotch Pack. The duty figures out at about $5.00 per barrel. The duty on cod oil at $32.00 a ton. As to dry cod fish, there is practically no home consumption of ours in the United States, and fully 95 per cent of our dry cod fish that goes there is in bond for transmission to Greece, Italy and the West Indies. This trade fortunately will still be able to go on. The duty on salmon comes to about $5.50 a tierce.

The only course open is to retaliate on Pork, Beef and Flour, etc., and give a preferential duty to Canada for the products that she can sell us that we have been buying from the United States. It is a good opportunity for Canada to get the whole provision trade.

The policy is unreasonable in as much as the United States is unable to harvest supply the herring, cod oil, salmon, etc., that she requires. Alaska, New England and British Columbia are raising the cry through the politicians, but even when working at their full capacity, they cannot, it is well known, supply more than a proportion of the demand.

It is to be hoped that our Government will not allow this tariff to be finalized against us, without showing the United States authorities all the facts, as seen from this side including our $16,000,000 imports from that country against about $4,000,000 exports.—Trade Review.

DIAMOND DUST

Nothing But the Truth - Without Fear or Favour.

TO-NIGHT'S BASEBALL.
This glorious weather means crowded bleachers and a rattling good game to-night. The champion Lions regard with amusement the serious efforts being put forward by the C.E.I. to win to-night's game, but they should remember that "he who laughs last laughs best." It cannot be gainsaid but that Alan Churchill has improved wonderfully after last year's experience on the mound, and he has a wicked punch packed in his good right arm. Even the admission that the Lions have the strongest batting aggregation in the League does not deter the Institute youngsters from entering the lists full of vim and hope. Walter Callahan will be on the mound for the champs, while working with him will be his old battery mate, Coke Cahill, who makes his first appearance for the season. With this pair in double harness it's indeed difficult to put anything over on the Hills crew. The lineups will likely be:

We have received a letter from Mr. A. H. Thomas, as manager for Jack Bell, concerning the proposed race between him and Cyr, the Montreal runner. We regret we are unable to find space for this to-day, but shall endeavour to do so to-morrow.

BASEBALL MEETING LAST NIGHT.
Under the chairmanship of President John B. Orr, the baseballers met last evening at the Board of Trade Room. Important matters were discussed and dealt with, and the various outside summer schedules drawn up as enumerated below. Now that the League has started on its regular schedule even greater interest will develop, and its going to be an exciting race for the pennant.

THE RELAY RACE TO-MORROW.
One of the enjoyable features of to-morrow's G.W.V.A. Sports will be the

was a memorable one. The British Premier spoke to the hushed and crowded chamber, and when he declared that the Government welcomed such a movement, and would do its utmost to make it a success, there was a crash of cheering from all quarters, which in the opinion of an old journalist in the press gallery has never been equalled since the announcement of the armistice with Germany.

DISORDERLY BELFAST.
BELFAST, July 11. Incendiarism, which was one of the worst features of Sunday's disorders, increased to-night, there being frequent outbreaks. The fire at Shorestrand, where the corporation stores are situated, was quenched, but the spirit groceries in Leopold district were burned out. Police were fired upon to-night in York Street, but no one was hit.

LLOYD GEORGE MAY VISIT WASHINGTON.
LONDON, July 11. Premier Lloyd George may visit the United States to attend some of the meetings, at least, in connection with President Harding's proposed conference, according to the Daily Mail.

APPREHENSIVE.
LONDON, July 12. The satisfaction felt by the people of Great Britain over Thursday's meeting between De Valera and Premier Lloyd George, was tempered to-day by apprehension over the situation in the Belfast rioting, which began Sunday, and continued with diminished severity. It was felt that to-day's anniversary of Battle of Boyne, fought in 1690, might be critical.

GREY FOR CONFERENCE.
LONDON, July 12. Viscount Grey, of Fallodon, who was British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs when the war broke out, may, says the Daily Mail, lead Great Britain's delegates to the disarmament conference to be held in Washington. The newspaper declares that a statesman, at least, of the type of Viscount Grey should be chosen, and that he would act as experts from the dominions at the hardly more than just visible to our conference. After the preliminary and technical work of conference is completed, the Mail says, Premier Lloyd George may go to the United States to attend to the final moulting of agreement. It appears to be a consensus of opinion that the conference will be held during the coming autumn, or at the latest, during the early months of 1922. Seldom have such scenes been witnessed in the British House of Commons as that enacted yesterday, when Premier Lloyd George told of President Harding's proposal, and announced Great Britain's hearty acquiescence. It was apparent that the President's invitation was looked upon as most momentous.

W. H. CAVE,

rested a well known English visitor for smuggling. A search of his baggage revealed a dozen complete sets of burglar tools, a list of a dozen names of French crooks, and a London address on the back of a picture. The London house was watched for several days and two crooks, with long records were seen to enter it. A raid was later carried out by a large force of policemen. A search of the house revealed an up to date plant for the manufacture of burglars' implements. An unusual feature was a tailor shop which specialised in the making of suits with cunningly contrived pockets to hold the tools without bulging.

Tools of all kinds were found—silk ladders, which might be concealed under the vest; jimnies, skeleton keys, containers for nitroglycerine; keyhole pickers, which are used for opening doors locked on the inside, and even gas pistols, which would render the victim unconscious for an hour or more.

The most interesting find was probably a small instrument connected to a small battery. Inquiry showed that it was a microphone specially invented for intensifying the sound made by the falling of the tumblers when revolving the knob of a safe. The almost inaudible sound of the falling tumblers was magnified by this instrument into a noise like thunder.

The Crimes of the House Fly.
The house fly stands convicted of the crime of spreading many dread diseases, including typhoid, cholera and tuberculosis, as well as being directly responsible for the prevalence of several minor infantile complaints. Coming straight from a source of contamination, the fly proceeds to investigate the sugar basin, promenade upon the butter and performs its toilet on top of the cake, depositing on everything it touches some of the deadly microbes it has gathered on its hairy little body from its last alighting place.

Fortunately flies are not nearly so numerous as in past days. We no longer tolerate dust and refuse in and about our dwellings; and in dust and refuse and all things uncleanly does the house-fly flourish and multiply. But we have not yet completely routed the enemy, in spite of the vigorous war of extermination waged against him; and this is not surprising when we consider that every fly that escapes our vigilance (presuming it to be of the female sex) will probably, in rather less than three weeks time, give rise to a swarm of a hundred or a hundred and fifty fresh six-legged distributors of disease.

Life History.
To overcome our enemy, the fly we must follow its nefarious career. The egg laid by mother fly is a tiny thing, scarcely more than just visible to our eyes, yet within it lies the minute, ever-resting speck of protoplasm—the germ of life—from which within the space of a few hours the pale, legless maggot is evolved. For five or six days the little creature lives and feeds in the dank, noisome substance which is at once its food and its habitation. Then, after a short rest, the grub shrinks somewhat within its skin, which hardens, forming a water-tight, barrel-shaped cocoon that slowly darkens to a mahogany brown color.

And now within this tiny brown case the most miraculous happenings take place. The fly larva does not gradually change in form, as does the caterpillar of a butterfly; no, the extraordinary little creature positively melts away! Gone is the plump, unpleasant looking maggot; in its place here is, apparently, only a drop of semi-fluid, creamy jelly.

Begins Activities.
This would naturally suppose that one was the end of the creature. But, no, with marvellous rapidity, from the speck of jelly and a few remnants of the original maggot, an entirely new being is built up. In from six to seven days' time the little trap-door at one end of the cocoon is pushed up, and the transformed insect, complete with legs, wings and proboscis, escaped from its prison.

In the summer the entire development of the fly—from egg to perfect insect—is accomplished in about ten days; and in ten days from the time the first takes wing, Mrs. Fly is ready to continue her species. The eggs are deposited in batches—always in some decomposing or fermenting substance. Where there is no refuse of any kind, there the housefly cannot breed. We must checkmate Mother Fly in her egg laying propensities by giving her nothing whatever in which to deposit her eggs; for if, perforce, she must get rid of them, and is constrained to place a bunch in an unseemly, clean spot, the grubs will perish for lack of food.

Manufacturing Burglar Kits.
International burglars who have been captured of late, in various European cities, have displayed "kits" of such beauty and perfection of workmanship that the police felt certain that there must exist somewhere a well equipped factory for their manufacture.

A clue to the location was provided by the French police, who had ar-

Spiders' Webs as Fishing Nets.
Spiders' webs are used as fishing nets by the natives in a little village called Waleay, a New Guinea.

The spider is about the size of a small hazel-nut, but its dark and hairy brown legs spread to about two inches. The web it spins is about six feet in diameter, and its mesh is very strong.

The natives set up long bamboo bent over into a loop at the end, and in a very short time the spider weaves a web on these frames so kindly left for him, and the Pagan has his net made "whilest he waits."

The mesh at the outside of the web is about one inch square, and gets smaller and smaller until near the centre it is only, perhaps, one-eighth of an inch.

Naval Reservists At Bar of House.

Boys in Blue Present Their Prize Money Demands--Government Quibbling and Subterfuge--Appointment of Committee of Both Sides.

For the whole of yesterday afternoon and last night, and until well into this morning the question of Naval Prize Money was debated in the House and fiery addresses were made by various members. The primary cause of the debate was the presentation at the Bar of the House by Naval Reservists of a petition praying that they be given their prize money. It appeared that through some misunderstanding these men signed away their right to Prize Money, which it must be distinctly understood, is entirely different from gratuity money. The matter after lengthy debate was referred to a Select Committee, a motion to vote the money, made by Mr. Higgins and seconded by Mr. Fox being turned down. The House met at 3.15 p.m.

The Prime Minister tabled answers to various questions from the Opposition. Mr. Bennett called the attention of the House to articles in the Daily Star which referred to the report of the debate on the Railway Resolutions by that paper which stated that these were fully explained and outlined. This, he said, was just what did not occur. When members address the House on matters of national importance they at least expect to be reported correctly and certainly not to be grossly misrepresented as had been done in this case. He denied emphatically the charges made against him and he had no doubt but that Sir Michael Cashin would refute those made against him (Sir Michael). If the Prime Minister were in any way responsible for this then he was not worthy of holding his position. Mr. Bennett thought the railway was essential to our public life and it was absolutely incorrect to state that he wanted it closed down.

The Prime Minister supported Mr. Bennett's contention. He had not heard him make the statement referred to.

Sir John Crosbie also took exception to part of the article referred to by Mr. Bennett. It accused him of answering back Sir Michael Cashin when the latter said something to him in the course of his (Sir John's) speech. His views on the Railway policy coincided with those of Mr. Bennett and Sir Michael Cashin. If the present railway programme went through we would be a part of Canada very shortly. There were men in the Prime Minister's party just as much against the Railway policy as he was. If the Prime Minister did not know this he would find out before the House closed. Before the railway policy went through, the people would know that their birthright had been thrown away. He knew it to be one of the worst attempts to obtain Confederation ever made, and he regretted that Hon. W. F. Coaker was part and parcel to it. The Hon. Mr. Wray might wake up to save this country. He concluded by saying he was against the Railway Policy, against the plot to sell Newfoundland to Canada and before the session ended he would nail the confederates.

THE RESERVISTS PETITION.

At this juncture a deputation of R.N.R. men advanced to the Bar of the House and by permission ex-Reservist Frank Doherty read the following petition:

To the Honorable the House of Assembly of Newfoundland in Legislative Session convened:

- HUMBLY SHEWETH
1. Your petitioners are members of the Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve.
2. All have seen service in the late war, and by reason thereof are entitled to Prize Money in varying amounts.
3. No Prize Money has ever been paid to any of your petitioners and it has been intimated to them that it is not the intention of the Government to pay any.
4. It has been brought to the attention of your petitioners that they assigned over to the Newfoundland Government on their discharge all Gratuity, Prize Money, or other moneys to be received from the Imperial Government in consideration of receiving from the Newfoundland Government the same Gratuity as was paid to the members of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment. Your petitioners at that time were not aware of the real significance of Prize Money, and moreover were forced to assign all right to Prize Money in order to receive the aforesaid Gratuity paid to the members of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment. And your petitioners feel that they should not have been asked to give up their right to Prize Money. Prize Money is something over and above War

Gratuity or Pay. It is something dissimilar from, and in no way connected with, War Gratuity or Pay. It is of no settled amount, but depends upon the number of enemy ships captured or sunk, the value of which is divided among the members of the British Navy at the end of War in varying amounts. It has been paid to members of the British Navy for generations past and their Pay or Gratuity has never been lessened on account of this. Prize Money is a bonus which has always been paid to the members of the British Navy for successful work and meritorious service. If the Pay and War Gratuity of the Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve had been entirely in the hands of the Newfoundland Government, Prize Money would still be due your petitioners by the Imperial Government. Prize Money is payable in its entirety by the Imperial Government. For your petitioners to receive Prize Money now, no hardship would be inflicted on this country or the Newfoundland Government, which makes no contribution towards it. Moreover Prize Money is due to each of your petitioners on the amount of actual service of each on the sea, and some are entitled to a larger payment than others. Consequently to take away the right of Prize Money entirely is to take from some more than from others.

Attached hereto is a copy of the correspondence carried on between the Chief Accountant of the Department of Naval Service, Canada and the Great War Veterans' Association of Newfoundland with regard to Prize Money paid to members of the Canadian Naval Service. A perusal of this correspondence will show that the Canadian Government has paid to members of the Canadian Naval Service the same Gratuity as was paid to members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, over and above their Prize Money, which was paid to them on its receipt from the Imperial Government.

Your petitioners most respectfully protest against the holding from them of this Prize Money. It is a course which is not being pursued in any other portion of the Empire and it seems hardly fit that the oldest of its Colonies, and the one which claimed to be the nursery for the material which manned the British Navy, should be the only place where the amounts, which are lawfully due Naval Reservists, should be kept from them.

Your petitioners therefore pray that Your Honourable House may see the justice of their claim, and that provision will be made, before the Session closes, to have right done to those who did their part when the cause of the Empire was at stake.

And as in duty bound they will ever pray,

St. John's, the ninth day of July, A.D., 1921.

Dept. of Canadian Naval Service, Ottawa, Canada, 8th Dec., 1920. The Dominion Secretary, G.W.V.A., St. John's, Nfld.

Sir,—Referring to your letter dated the 29th ultimo, I have to inform you that the members of the Canadian Naval Service are being paid Prize Money in accordance with the Royal Proclamation governing the grant, in addition to their War Service Gratuity.

For your information, however, I have to add that this Department is paying Prize Money only to members of the R.C.N. or R.N.C.V.R., and that applications received from Newfoundland R.N.R. ratings loaned to the Canadian Naval Service during the war are invariably referred to the Registrar General of the Newfoundland Reserve for his attention. I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,
L. J. BEAUSOLEIL,
Chief Accountant.

G.W.V.A. of Nfd., 156 Water St. St. John's, Nfld., 21st Dec., 1920. L. J. Beausoleil, Chief Accountant, Dept. Naval Services, Ottawa.

Sir,—I thank you for the information you have given us regarding Prize Money as per your letter of the 8th inst.

Might we further impose and ask you if your Naval Ratings receive a Gratuity equivalent to the Army as it would appear that Naval Ratings are in receipt of more money than an Army Rating with the same services in rank?

Assuring you of our appreciation in the matter. I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,
G. J. WHITTY,
Dominion Secretary.

Dept. of Naval Service, Ottawa, Canada, 4th January, 1921.

The Dominion Secretary, G.W.V.A. of Nfd., 156 Water St., St. John's, Nfld.

Sir,—With reference to your letter of the 21st ultimo and previous correspondence relative to Prize Money, I have to inform you that Canadian Naval Ratings received War Service Gratuity equivalent to that paid in the Army for corresponding qualifications.

The Naval Prize Money is a grant payable only to the Naval force and it is quite evident that for equal service a naval rank of rating entitled to both War Service Gratuity and Prize Money receives more money than any army rank or rating. I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,
L. J. BEAUSOLEIL,
Chief Accountant.

The Prime Minister said in reply to the petitioners, that the matter had come before various late administrations. He delved into history and reviewed the various deeds of these Governments in connection with the Naval Reservists. The whole purport of his speech was that during Mr. Hickman's administration of the Militia Department the Reservists had signed a form giving up all right to Prize Money in consideration of the fact that their gratuities and pay should be put on an equal basis with those of the men of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment.

He further declared that there was a deficit of $100,000 in the Militia Department and that when the Prize Money was received it would go to make up this deficit.

Sir Michael Cashin expressed his sympathy with the reservists. They had come to the House to demand their rights. If there were a dollar left in the Colony the men at the Bar should be paid in full. He knew he was voicing the sentiments of the majority of the House when he suggested that $100,000 be voted that afternoon for these reserve men. He read an extract from Sir Richard Squires' manifesto in which the latter pledged himself, if returned, to do everything in his power for the returned men. Sir Michael pledged the support of the Opposition for a vote granting the whole amount of the Prize Money. He asked Mr. Bennett to rise and settle all the misunderstandings in connection with the matter.

Mr. Bennett also expressed his sympathy with the Reservists. He explained all the circumstances in connection with the matter of Prize Money and defied any man to say he had not done his best for the returned soldiers and sailors. He explained in detail the processes whereby the Naval Reservists' pay was put on the same basis as that of the soldier's. In this connection the Admiralty had been asked to have an order published throughout the various fleets, at home and abroad, so that the Newfoundlanders scattered over the globe would receive the news. It was six months before he received an answer to his letter, and he was then told that too much trouble would be involved in promulgating this order. It was over a year after the increase in pay had been granted the R.N.R., before it could be announced to the men concerned. Mr. Bennett told of what he had had to go through as Minister of Militia and showed how he had been misrepresented and wronged. The money that the men at the Bar of the House were asking for would not cost the country anything and he hoped the Government would see their way clear to alter their decision.

Sir John Crosbie said the men were there at the Bar in a just cause. If any Prize Money was due them then let them get it. He supported the grant of $100,000 being given to them at once. It would not make much difference on the day they went to Canada. It might as well be thrown away now as gives to the Reds. In any case the money was coming from the Imperial authorities and the Government were exceeding their rights if they kept this money. He wanted to know what the Government intended to do in the matter.

Mr. Sullivan said that the men should get their rights. As an illustration of Government neglect he said that nothing had been done in connection with the Report of the Select Committee on pensions. When the men were overseas nothing was too good for them, but whatever they received had to be pulled from all Governments by continual sagging.

These men are at the Bar of the House asking for what is their own. Newfoundland was prepared to pay the same gratuities as Canada irrespective of prize money. The men should be given their money as soon as the Government received it from the Imperial authorities.

Mr. Higgins said that the deputation had come to the Bar of the House to look for their rights and they had been treated to an historical essay on Governments and those connected with them. All that these men asked for was a straightforward answer to their request. To discover the feelings of the House he would move the following resolution:

"Resolved, that in the opinion of this House the Government of the country should pay the Royal Naval Reserve men the money due them by the Imperial authorities or otherwise."

He thought it time the men should get a straight answer.

Mr. Fox in a brief speech, seconded the Resolution. The House must answer to the men's request if it wanted to do them justice. He asked the Prime Minister if he intended to vote the money and was answered with a statement that the ordinary rules of the House must be applied to the motion. Mr. Fox accused him of quibbling and said it was a gross breach of faith to deprive these men of what was rightly due them. The Militia Department account should be squared up by an ordinary vote.

Mr. Bennett said the granting of this vote would not cost the country a cent.

Sir John Crosbie said the men were entitled to their Prize Money and he was prepared to pay it out of the colony's funds. Referring to the Prime Minister's remarks anent the rule of the House, he said the House itself was out of order.

"The Prime Minister.—'Hear, hear!'" Sir John Crosbie.—"Well, you are the leader. If you were a man of strength, everything would be alright."

Sir John then asked why the Militia Department overdraft was not in the Estimates. He asked Dr. Barnes if he knew anything about it, but that gentleman was as silent as ever, and would give no direct answer. Sir John said that Dr. Barnes' silence was an admission of the fact that he did not know anything about the deficit previously. He demanded a definite answer for the deputation.

Mr. Archibald supported the resolution moved by Mr. Higgins and thought it only reasonable that if Reids could be granted $1,500,000, our returned men should get the $100,000 which was their due. Before he set down he wanted to draw the attention of the House to some headlines in the Advocate about the policy of the Opposition, which was, so the Advocate said, to close down the Railway. He had never heard any person offer such a suggestion.

Mr. Samsen thought there was a lot of politics in the attitude of some honourable members, but on being questioned by Mr. Higgins as to the intention of the resolution, he had to admit that he didn't think politics were at the back of it. He stated that he knew his mind on the matter, which was that in the proper place he was going to vote that these men be given their prize money.

Recess was then taken until 8 p.m.

NIGHT SESSION.

When the House reassembled Sir John Crosbie asked the Prime Minister if he had come to any decision as yet in connection with the Resolution before the chair.

The Prime Minister, in reply, moved as an amendment that the matter be referred to a Select Committee of the House for further enquiry.

The Minister of Justice seconded the Amendment.

Mr. Higgins spoke to the Amendment and said that if ever there were occasion to give vent to political feeling there was none greater than this. The Amendment was only begging the question, and he had too much respect for the men who had gone out to vote for it. A wrong would be done these men if their money was taken through a misunderstanding. No Government could be so petty as to take Prize Money from the men to whom it was due. This taking of Prize Money was either right or wrong. If the Amendment was carried he wanted it distinctly understood that the matter would not be heard of again from the Government.

After notice of question had been given, the House adjourned until 3 p.m. to-day.

Wedding Bells.

CHURCHILL-RYAN.

At the C. of E. St. Michael's, Hill-view, on June 15th, a very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev. Mr. Fowler, when Miss Ethel Francis Churchill was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Simon J. Ryan, of Shoal Harbor. The bride looked charming in a dress of voile blue silk and overdress of white net, hand worked sash and hat to match and carried a bunch of bridal roses. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Earl Baker. The groom was supported by Mr. Alfred J. Ryan, brother of the groom, Mr. Uriah S. Churchill, cousin, The bridesmaids were Mrs. Alex Harris, sister of the bride, from New York City, who wore a saxe blue satin with hat to match; Miss Annie Ryan, sister of the groom, a dress of white voile, with hat to match; Miss Sadie Churchill, cousin of the bride, dress of white voile with hat to match. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome diamond gold ring. After the marriage a reception was held at the bride's home and an enjoyable time was spent until the late hours of the morning. The bride received some handsome presents. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Ryan many happy years of wedded life. Mr. and Mrs. Ryan will return to their future home in October.

VARDY-MACKAY.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at St. James' Church, Channel, on the evening of July 2, when Rev. E. J. Read tied the nuptial knot which united Miss Amelia Vardy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Vardy, of Channel, to Capt. William MacKay of the United States schooner Gladstone. The groom is a native of Bucksport, Maine, and has been no stranger to Channel, having loaded fish cargoes at that port on several occasions. To Capt. and Casualties on the Glorious Fourth.

NEW YORK, July 4.—(By Canadian Press.)—The list of casualties due to celebration of the Glorious Fourth began to arrive in despatches this morning were that the efforts to make the United States National holiday, "Safe and Sound" was not likely to meet with any greater degree of success than in previous years.

At San Jose, Calif., Gladys Flatman, youthful celebrant, is dead and her playmate, Joyce McLaughlin, is not expected to live. Their dresses caught fire while they were playing with fireworks and they suffered severe burns despite the efforts of neighbors to save them.

Damage to property estimated at half a million dollars was reported last night from Marysville, Calif. Small boys setting off fire crackers, started a fire which destroyed twelve city blocks and burned four spans of the Southern Pacific trestle, blocking railway traffic on the east side of the Sacramento Valley.

During celebrations to-day at Springfield, Mass., a young girl was assaulted and badly beaten; Joseph Starary, also of Springfield, is in Mercy Hospital suffering severe knife wounds received during a fight in East Long Meadow. Two Italians in the same city engaged in a revolver duel, said to have resulted from a family fight. Neither was injured. Lockjaw resulting from the explosion of blank cartridges being used to celebrate the Fourth resulted today in the death of Wm. Drumm, and Michael Santello, 14, of Walk, Conn. The sale of explosives for the Fourth of July celebration has been forbidden in Norway, as the police are investigating.

Talking Without Words. Natives in some of the far-away lands have languages in which human voice plays no part.

For instance, in Tierra Del Fuego that cheerless group of islands off the coast of South America, news is conveyed and conversation sustained between the different tribes inhabiting the islands by means of fires on the high peaks of the mountains.

The natives are always on the look-out for these fires, and know by what they are intended to mean.

The Basutos use a drum, consisting of a large gourd across which the dried skin of a kid is stretched. It is beaten with a padded drumstick, the sound having a range of from ten to eight miles. A sort of Morse code is employed.

The aborigines inhabiting the Malabar Islands speak to each other at a distance by whistling, the whistles being selected for their ability to whistle loudly. They make this their livelihood. Messages are sent from one hill top to another in a series of sharp, separate notes, long and short, from fifteen to twenty at a time.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

HOW EASILY WE FORGET.

How easy a change in viewpoint is. That word viewpoint has so long been used in its figurative sense that we are apt to forget that it means just what it says literally—the point from which you view a thing, or a fact.

Pedestrian And Automobileist. For instance, if you view traffic conditions from the street as a pedestrian you get a very different idea of the ins and outs of the situation than you do when you alter your position and view them from the seat of an automobile.

A friend of mine has recently bought an automobile. In this city there is an excellent regulation that requires automobiles not to go nearer than eight feet to any street car which has come to a stop to let passengers off. When he was a daily passenger on street cars he used to fulminate with all the fervor of his excitable temperament against the automobiles which did not obey this regulation to the letter—"Ought to put a few of them in jail!" I have heard him say when some car came too close to suit him. The other day I was out with him in his machine and what was my surprise to find that he got as close as he dared and sometimes even slipped by when passengers were just about to alight. "How's anybody going to make any kind of time when those confounded cars are always stopping right in front of you?" he growled with all the fervor of his excitable temperament and the whole-hearted forgetfulness of past emotions of one who sees an old fact from a new point of view.

We Don't Need to Forget.

That's the trouble with a great many of us. It is inevitable that as we pass from one experience to another we should get different points of view, but it is not inevitable that we should completely forget the old. The person who really grows and develops is he who remembers how things looked from some past position. He can combine the two aspects of the things he is looking at and get a view that approaches the truth.

We Know How Our Parents Felt.

For instance, as a child we see things from a certain angle and then as we become adults we get a totally different angle. We know now why our fathers and mothers wanted us to do thus-and-so, and we proceed to ask the same of our children. But if we have really grown and developed we know why they do not want to do thus-and-so, we do not forget the old point of view and we take it into account in our manner of dealing with our children. A successful life is one founded on a composite viewpoint. It is not possible for youth to have such a viewpoint, but it is possible for maturity to acquire it. And that is why I have less sympathy for narrow old age's criticisms of youth than for impetuous youth's criticisms of old age.

Credit System a Failure.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Thirty years on this coast have not succeeded in making me a believer here or anywhere in the necessity of a credit supply system, much less in its desirability. To my mind, it is inherently vicious. I have seen it break the hearts of many splendid merchants, and the most casual observer can see the bad effect that it has on the consumers. But heretofore is heretofore everywhere, no less in the battlefield of peace than in that of war, and the gallantry of the trader and merchant in this Colony is as notable as that of its soldiers and sailors in my estimation.

Out of the varying reports that reached the friends of this Colony in the United States last May, it became obvious that a very serious financial emergency had again overtaken Newfoundland. Personally I witnessed the troubles of 1896, when bank notes in our pockets became almost valueless and the Governor could hardly find cash to pay the wages of his coachman. The marvellous recuperative power of the island disappeared then, and a great silence to me ever since. But it is the concrete that worries one's soul, not the abstract.

My personal friends in the North I knew owed the traders money from last year, for war prices had still been maintained, and fish had sunk to a paratively no value. Besides, we are brotherly down North and know one another's troubles. The long winter had also exhausted the supplies of a great number of them, and letters and telegrams from such reliable sources as our doctors and nurses and our clerical friends convinced us of the terrible prospect, if the traders failed for any reason to supply again when summer came. Dry flour and raw tea won't support life, unless it be whole meal flour, and the latter is still rare in this country. Even if oleomargarine and molasses are added to white flour you still have a diet that is deficient and dangerous. Moreover, we knew of families who were already on limited quantities of dry white flour only. Weakness spells limited capacity to work on the part of a bread-winner and earners with a mental depression that robs him of ambition.

I have just watched a young friend, with a family of three children, eat a squiggly meal in my kitchen. He had walked more than ten miles over difficult country without a vestige of a road, and all he had for a supper before starting was one slice of sour white bread. His feet were already numb with beri-beri. One of his children had died from marasmus, and his wife was so ill and weak that he had come to beg me to take her in hospital so that he might be able to get out in the daytime and do some fishing. This friend is a keen young sportsman, he has twice carried off our annual dog race prize—a success he owed to his consistent kindness to his dogs. He is one of those few who never uses a whip, unfortunately this is not a unique instance.

Shortly after he had left I was called to see another man, an old, same errand being, he also is young, and it was always had hard times, and has lost two children from under-nourishment only last year, while he himself was the victim, in hospital himself was out. One baking of borrowed flour alone remained, and his neighbor's ability to lend was already exhausted.

We have to gauge heretofore in others by our own personal feelings. Then a little later, a third man, also young, came along, again with three children, plus an eighty dollar debt to a trader and only a little borrowed flour on hand. I realized that we were deficient in some of those qualities that go to make up heroes. The next day a large, but belated looking schooner entered our harbor and came to anchor. It was a trader, and it was the trader of two of my friends. Very soon boats were alongside of him. They came like flies to molasses. I happened to know that he had been sorely hard hit himself last winter by heavy losses made through no fault of his own. It seemed a peerless act of knight-hood to poke his head in amongst the hungry Canadian citizens are practically governed from the United States. The McAdoo award fixed the salaries of its railway men, bringing such conditions into Canada as have had very much to do with the present transportation difficulties which hamper the business of the country. A Canadian leader of railway men, in Toronto, being asked last week, what prospect there was for adjustment answered that nothing could be done until the Railway Brotherhood should meet in Chicago on Dominion Day to consider the official award of the United States Railway Labor Board.

The great strike amongst the printers in the chief Canadian cities is being directed by the International Typographical Union from its headquarters in Indianapolis. The steel and coal men of Canada are similarly dominated by the vast majority of the international associations resident in the United States. The same dominance was evident in the longshoremen's convention which recently met in Halifax.

We do not say that Canadian representatives in the international associations, which effect the most vital economic interests, are not given their proper proportionate influence, but it must be seen that their proportion is so small as to place, by its vast majority, the regulation of all these interests in the hands of the great United States majority. Heretofore is a possibility, if not probable, part to Canada, at the meeting of the American Federation of Labor, held last week in Denver, a determined effort was made to pass a resolution pledging Labor to boycott British goods because of the Irish question. Happily it failed and inflexibly associated with the International Association which practically dominates Labor in Canada. Against Labor Unions, as such, we make no complaint, and Labor has a perfect right to unite in the demand for fair treatment, but we think it would have been very much better for all Canadian interests, economic and patriotic, if Canadian Labor had been satisfied with national rather than international federations. Canadians should be able to settle their own problems, without pinging themselves and the business of the country under the domination of a foreign country—Canadian Exchange.

Just Folks

Just Folks. The thirty ground drank eagerly the rain. The roses filled their petals cups with glee. The drink was sweet to every plant and tree. It brought new life into the growing grain. And saw the brooks to babbling once again. The world was made a lovely thing to see. Saved for the harvest was the fruit to be. The springtime had not done its work in vain! Too much of sunshine makes a barren earth. Parched is the soil which never feels the rain. The spring withers under too much sun. Beauty is born of trial and of pain. If man shall bring to blossom his of beri-beri, there must be days of doubting and of grief.

Shall Canada and Newfoundland BE GOVERNED FROM THE UNITED STATES?

During recent years, Canada desires to be considered an independent nation in addition with the other portions of the British Empire. She has been very sensitive against any suggestion of patronage or interference from the Mother Land. Canada also claims to be a democracy and to be governed by the people. Notwithstanding this claim, a large proportion of Canadian citizens are practically governed from the United States. The McAdoo award fixed the salaries of its railway men, bringing such conditions into Canada as have had very much to do with the present transportation difficulties which hamper the business of the country. A Canadian leader of railway men, in Toronto, being asked last week, what prospect there was for adjustment answered that nothing could be done until the Railway Brotherhood should meet in Chicago on Dominion Day to consider the official award of the United States Railway Labor Board.

LONDON GOSSIP.

FRINCE HIROHITO IN THE CITY.

I saw the Crown Prince of Japan passing through Fleet Street and afterwards through Charing Cross on his way to the Mall, and it was certainly one of the most brilliant state pageants of the kind that have been seen in London. The crowd, too, was noticeably large, particularly at Charing Cross, where it waited for half an hour, although the rain was falling. The sight of the Life Guards, in the full glory of steel cuirass and gold lace and waving plumes on their noble black horses, was itself enough to bring many Londoners in from the suburbs. The state carriages, with the positions in their curious costumes, with a black pocket cap and the little wig, and the footmen sitting behind the carriages, with cocked hats and liveries encrusted with gold lace, looked more antique and incredible than ever. There was the usual amount of cheering but no more than that, and in these dark times it was surprising that there was so much. The Japanese Crown Prince was a figure such as London has never seen before—a prince of a house that until our own day was considered divine,—and there was unusual eagerness to see him. For once in a way the Prince of Wales was of secondary interest. The uniforms of Prince Hirohito and of his staff, too, were unusual and very brilliant, although the naval officers' dresses resembled our own. The Prince acknowledged the cheers with repeated salutes, but looked impassively in front of him. The other Japanese grandees, however, showed much curiosity in the people and the scene, particularly in the Japanese banners that were hung out in many buildings. One noticed in Fleet Street that the tall City policemen there with their many medals, got the attention from them that they so well deserved.

TUBE RAILWAYS AND OIL FUEL.

The national British coal strike which has been in operation since the 1st April is causing an acute shortage of coal. As one result of this the great power station in Chelsea which supplies the electric energy for London's "Tubes," and also for a very large part of the Capital's suburban tramways last week saw the completion of the first stage of the interesting engineering undertaking to which I recently referred. Only a week earlier the order was given for the conversion of sixteen of the sixty boilers in this power station from coal burning to oil burning, and from this week therefore London's "Tubes," will for the first time be run partly on energy developed on oil fuel. In so brief a period as a week it has been impossible to erect the necessary oil storage tanks, but, thanks to the contiguity of the station to the Thames, this difficulty has been overcome by a plan which is intended to be only temporary. Two oil-tank barges, each having a capacity of 250 tons, have been moored in the vicinity, and from them the oil will be pumped into the small service tanks which feed the furnaces. From this conversion, carried out at high speed to meet an emergency, the Underground Railway Company expect to derive a significant permanent advantage—a considerable reduction in running costs by the use of oil fuel in place of coal.

THE WASHINGTON STATUETTE.

The statuette of Washington presented to England by the State of Virginia is not to be unveiled until June 29th. It is a replica of Houdon's famous statuette, and no such controversy as raged about the Lincoln statuette will arise, for Houdon had persuaded Washington, at the age of sixty-one, to let him make a life mask. The matrix of that mask was used by Mr. Frank Ordway Partridge, the American sculptor, who has made the three bronze replicas of the Houdon bust which are being presented this month.

One of these is going to Liverpool. It will be unveiled in the Town Hall on May 27th. A second will be placed in Sulgrave Manor, the old home of the Washington family, and the third has been accepted by the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's.

There will be a service of dedication in the crypt chapel on May 29th, and the bust will then be placed near the tombs of Wellington and Nelson. One might imagine that in the following midnight the ghost of Cornwallis, whose monument is over-head in the Cathedral, might steal down to marvel at the changes time has brought.

The placing of the statue and the busts and of the two bronze plaques engraved with Lincoln's Gettysburg oration, which are to be given to Kingham in Norfolk, and Birmingham, is all part of the Sulgrave Institution's scheme for encouraging friendliness between the two nations. They want people on both sides of the Atlantic to realize their kinship.

MADE IN "FURRN" PARTS.

In the Strand, this afternoon, a wordy fellow was offering a "pocket cinematograph" for a shilling. The machine was a kind of eye piece, through which slips of film are made to turn. "This," he said, "is not made in Germany, though the name on the box looks like it. It comes from Russia, and the name of the manufacturer is there to prove it." The name on the box was "Czecho-Slovakia."

THE CENSUS ADVERTISEMENTS.

The agreement made by Sir Alfred Mond with a well-known advertising firm to allow advertisements to be printed on the back of the census forms constitutes a revolution in the practices of Whitehall. There are several departmental journals, as for example that published by the Minister of Agriculture, which print advertisements. But "Housing," the Ministry of Health's journal, has always excluded advertisements.

For over two years advertising agents have been suggesting to the Government that there is a large source of revenue available in the utilization of blank spaces on Government forms, and it has been officially proposed that the Stationery Office should set up a special department to exploit advertising. There are obvious difficulties. To use publications printed at the public expense for commercial gain might lead to unfair competition, and also some undesirable advertisements might appear to receive an unwarranted cachet because they are printed on official documents. It will be of interest to see whether Sir Alfred Mond's example will be followed by other departments.

ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONS.

I hear that the interviews of Mr. Harvey, the new American Ambassador, already has had with the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary have tended greatly to clear the air regarding the future foreign policy of the United States. The Ambassador, it is said, told Mr. Lloyd George that while he has no power to bind his Government in any negotiations he may enter into with our own respecting matters of purely European concern, he has full power to bring up the question of disarmament in the Council of Ambassadors. The United States will be found willing to limit its forces if the other Powers agree to do the like, and thereby to release to peace productivity the vast sums now being expended on war machinery. President Harding referred to this question again and again in his interviews with Mr. Harvey before that the American Senate will be prepared to support the Administration in any proposed arrangements to prevent future wars. The Prime Minister, I am told, requested the Ambassador to inform the President that this country desires to work hand in hand with America in all matters of world politics, and that it sincerely welcomes the President's views on the disarmament question, adding that any scheme he may put forth will certainly receive the fullest and most earnest consideration of our Government. It is, however, understood that before long President Harding will make concrete proposals to the Allies, and that an International Conference on the disarmament question will subsequently be held, either in London or Washington.

AN OLD LONDON CLIPPER.

One of London's famous old Australian clippers is, after various vicissitudes, about to come up for auction in the city. This is the full-rigged iron ship Hesperus, which in the midgets ran regularly between the Thames and Australia.

The good ship Hesperus, and a smaller packet, the Harbiner, were acquired in 1890 by Messrs. Devitt and Moore, who carried on what was known as the Brassey scheme of ocean training. Year after year the Hesperus ran out to Melbourne, making the passage on one occasion in 69 days from the Lizard. Given the luck of the winds she was a speedy craft, and her old master, Captain Barnett, well knew how to drive the last knot out of her. On her homeward run she came by way of the Cape of Good Hope, making a call at St. Helena.

In 1899 she passed to the Russian flag, and under the name of Grand Duchess Maria Nikolaevna was kept at work as a training ship. She has now come back to this country, being at present moored to Wallasey Dock, Birkenhead. Once again she is under the British flag, and bears the name Silvana. A beautiful example of a Clyde-built clipper, the old Hesperus has had her full share of service, but, being a staunchly-built iron packet, there may yet be before her a further useful spell of employment.

People have to travel many miles before reaching and playing at a Salmon Pool. You have only to go to Brookfield, near Bowring Park, next Wednesday afternoon, 13th of July, to "The Methodist College-Amy Athletic Association Garden Party" and try your hand at the Salmon Pool, the first at any Garden Party. Will your catch be on exhibition the following day? The train leaves the station 2.45 p.m., and Busses run all the afternoon. Train returns at 8.30. jly12,2,3,4

Band Visits Cable City.

The British Band visited Heart's Content on Wednesday last, according to the Harbor Grace Standard, and held a most successful concert and dance that evening. The journey was made by teams and motor cars. The concert was held in the S.U.F. Hall. The programme consisted of solos by Mrs. Wyatt, Miss N. Anderson and Mr. H. Kennedy of Heart's Content, and Mrs. W. L. Ross, Misses L. Joy and M. Chafe; Messrs. W. H. Kennedy and E. L. Oke. Duets were also rendered by Mrs. W. L. Ross and Miss Joy, and E. L. Oke, while general selections were given by the Band. Mrs. N. Davis, Miss M. Chafe and Mr. E. Peach acted as accompanists. Dancing was indulged in after the concert and was kept up until 3.30 a.m. The various items were well rendered and appreciated by the large audience present. Music for the dance was furnished by Messrs. Garland and Forsey, while Mr. E. Peach presided at the piano for a few round dances. Most of the Band party returned after the dance, but some remained over until the morning.

Intertown Football.

The Team of the Shannon Football Club went to Heart's Content on Wednesday, says the Harbor Grace Standard of July 8, and played a game against a representative team of the Cable City. The players went by motor cars and owing to punctures some of them did not arrive until 6 p.m. The game was played at 7 p.m., and after a hard fight Heart's Content won by two goals to nil. Mr. R. Tobin acted as referee. Following the game the Shannons were the guests of the Cable boys at the Mess, where full justice was done to the ample spread provided. Speeches were made and toasts given. Some of the members of the C. L. B. team of Heart's Content were in St. John's taking part in the C.L.B. Sports so the picked team was short of some of their players. The Shannon team was also not up to full strength as two members could not get away, and a spare man was substituted; both teams played ten men. It is expected that a return game will be played here some time next week. The line-up was as follows:—Heart's Content—goal, E. O'Brien, backs, H. Kennedy, Corberry, Baggis, Smith; Forwards, Burton, Price, T. Moore. Harbor Grace, goal E. L. Oke; backs, W. L. Ross, R. Ryan, R. Walsh, E. Whitlaw; Forwards, G. Webber, F. Murphy, L. Wells, A. Walsh, and A. Martin. Our boys speak highly of the cordial reception extended and the treatment accorded them at Heart's Content.

BRITON DEFEATS HIGHLANDERS.

In the League Football game last evening between the Briton and Highlanders the former won by a score of 3-0. The Navy men put up a good game all through, their forward line getting in some excellent work. In the first half Whitehead scored after five minutes play, followed shortly afterward by J. Sharpe who notched up No. 2 for his team. For the remainder of the period both teams worked hard to improve their position, but the teams changed over with the Briton 2; Highlanders 0.

In the second half the Navy team put up a defence game, and despite the Highlanders repeated efforts aided by a high wind they did not succeed in scoring. About 15 minutes after the opening of the half the Briton's through Whitehead scored a third goal. When the final whistle sounded the game stood Briton 3; Highlanders 0.

Tinned Caplin.

A NEW AND PROMISING INDUSTRY.

Mr. I. E. Forsey, manager of the Star Motor, has for some time past been working on a special formula for the canning of fresh caplin. Mr. Forsey has had over ten years' experience in lobster packing, and recently made a trial pack of some fresh caplin. On Monday, 4th inst., a tin was opened as a test and the contents were inspected by several local gentlemen comprising Messrs. Dr. Goodwin, E. Simmons, J. A. Whitman, Rev. R. H. Mercer and Mr. T. Thistle, who is an experienced packer. The caplin were found to be in good order, and the gentlemen pronounced the contents excellent and the packing a success.

The successful packing of caplin has long been an unsolved problem, and yearly hundreds of tons of these edible and fine fish are being used not as food but as fertilizer. With successful packing this food would be a great help and large returns would be derived through the industry. Mr. Forsey intends packing a few dozen tins and having his process further tested, and as the result of his first test is so favorable, he hopes he has discovered the correct one. If the other tests prove successful he will either put his idea into execution and supply the market, or sell his process to some fish firm, who will take up this branch of the fishing industry. Mr. Forsey has been working at this problem for some considerable time and deserves the success his experiment promises.—Hr. Grace Standard.

Insects That Live Inside Us.

Did you know that your body is full of hummer-like insects? In the heart resides a little creature called the strongylo; another variety of the same species inhabits the kidneys, and a third the arteries. The brain and the liver are the home of another species, which also affects other parts of the body. Inside the muscles of movement and other parts are coiled myriads of minute forms.

A tiny fluke, which resembles the scouder in appearance, flourishes in the gall contained in the biliary ducts. There are also little creatures secreted at the roots of the hair, and even in the eyes.

Railway Commission Report.

HUGE DEFICIT FOR NINE MONTHS

The two most serious items of expenditure are coal and labor. We have purchased during the year about 70,000 tons of soft coal which stand in the books for all charges at about $14.00 per ton. This amounts to approximately $980,000. It is understood that in the early days of operation the cost per ton did not exceed $4.50, so that the increases since are of a very serious nature and there is little prospect of a reduction in first cost before November next when the miners "Montreal Agreement" expires. The greatest effort should, therefore, be directed to the cutting down of consumption by doing away with useless mileage, and this can be done by a re-arrangement, as suggested, of the Branch Railway schedules, and by carefully watching the special train service so that as few dead miles will be run as possible and that engines will be made to carry full capacity loads. The engine mileages run in the nine months ending:

March 31st, 1919 . . . 852,506 miles.
March 31st, 1920 . . . 716,698 miles.
March 31st, 1921 . . . 793,740 miles.
The new engines will effect some economy and it is anticipated that freights will be $1.50 per ton less this year than last. In all a saving of about $250,000 might be effected in this item. Your Commissioners in the course of their investigations have been struck by the carelessness with which coal and other valuable materials are distributed and accounted for, and have made suggestions for properly dealing with same. We have no doubt that economies under that heading can be effected, as also by improved methods of handling same by machinery instead of by hand.

As regards labor, we found on taking up our duties that a recent rise of pay had been granted to a number of the employees. This caused dissatisfaction amongst those left out and the Commission had to take under consideration the grievance of these men and to partially meet them. Our pay roll has, consequently, reached the formidable figure of about $170,000 per month, or annually $2,040,000, which includes the steamers. With wages falling in other industries the time is approaching when a reduction must take place in railway rates of pay. A ten per cent. cut (say in July) would represent a saving of $204,000 on a year's operation. If a further cut of five per cent. is made next January the additional saving would be $45,000. Then there is the question of reduction of the force which will be necessary if the prospects of greatly reduced passenger and freight traffic now forecasted should eventuate. It is difficult to put any figure on the saving under this heading, but $100,000 might be hazarded as an approximation.

Much might be said about the adjustment of organization but time does not permit us to go into the matter fully at present. We reserve our remarks on this head until our final report.

We submit the following approximate and an adjusted particular of expenditure and receipts for the nine months ending 31st March, 1921, together with similar figures for the same period in the two previous years. Explanatory notes regarding the increases and decreases are appended. The reason why we say that the account for this year has not been adjusted is that the Reid Newfoundland Company are claiming and including in the account certain sums for insurance and depreciation on the steamers which we do not admit are allowable.

(The total earnings of the Railway and Steamships, controlled by the Commission, according to the financial table, for the 9 months ending March 31st, 1921, were $1,939,334.08. Expenditure for same period, $3,138,191.25. Net loss for nine months' operation, July 1, 1920, to March 31, 1921, $1,198,857.27. The deficit therefore was on an average of roughly Longshoremen's Strike Settled.

MEN RESUMED WORK.

After the conference between the Employers' Association and the L.S.P. Union delegates which lasted from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. yesterday, a meeting of the Longshoremen was called. A large body of men attended the Union Hall, and a letter embodying the decision of the employers to "continue the June scale of wages for July, to remedy some of the grievances, regarding the handling of salt and coal that were complained of, and a further meeting to be called at a later date in July, when the situation and outlook would be further discussed," was read by the Secretary. President Flavin outlined the negotiations which had taken place during the morning, after which the terms of settlement of the strike were discussed until 6 p.m., when the meeting decided to accept the employers' offer. The work of discharging the Sackem was resumed last night, and this morning work along the waterfront began as usual. Citizens generally are glad to see the strike ended as it was feared that in the event of its continuance the men would get out of hand, and although several regrettable incidents occurred there were as many acts on the longshoremen's part which redounded to their credit, amongst which may be mentioned that on Saturday night Delegate Coady, of the Union, was approached regarding some fish on board a lighter at A. E. Hickman's premises which was out in the weather and in danger of being destroyed. The delegate immediately made arrangements and with the assistance of several Union men the property was made secure. Yesterday morning the Delegate and Inspector General Hutchings visited the Furness Wharf pier, where they arranged to have the fruit and other perishable goods on board the Sackem discharged so that the owners may take delivery. They also secured a lighter of oil owned by Messrs. Job Bros.

PYORRHEA.
Pyorrhoea is the most destructive, the most difficult to treat, yet one of the commonest of all the diseases of the teeth. It is present in the mouths of countless thousands of adults who fondly think their teeth are in perfect condition. It progresses slowly, and in its early stages, painlessly. The gums become soft and bleed easily, then they grow sore and become inflamed. Pus forms at the roots of the teeth and they loosen in their sockets. When the disease reaches this stage it affects the general health and usually extraction is the only remedy.
