

SATURDAY WAS A GOLD DAY FOR THE ESQUIMO

Deacon White's Nine Trimmed to the Tune of 13 to 2 and it Could Have Been More

Calgary took the third and last game of the Edmonton series on Saturday afternoon by the big score of 13 to 2. In a seven innings game. More than that, Carney's bunch drove Lee Samuels and Grady to the tall timbers, and they were two of Edmonton's crack pitchers at that.

The game was one of many features. Lee Samuels got knocked out of the box before the first inning was over. Sam Grady, came out and he only lasted four innings. Then Deacon put in our old friend Barney Barnstead. Calgary got runs off Barney, but they were not three in two innings. It is doubtful if any of the Edmonton twirlers could have held Calgary on Saturday. Every man of them had the eagle eyes on the ball, and they did not fail to fatten their batting averages. Then again, three home runs were scored during the game and there were no nukes about them either. Morse and Ward did the trick for Edmonton, and Willy Smith made the homer for Calgary. Lefty Manning had a lead pipe swing with the support and aid of his teammates gave him. Lefty said it was the easiest game he ever pitched. The first two or three innings Lefty pitched the Esquimos back to the bench in the straight run order. After that, with such a big lead, he slowed down, and Edmonton got their two runs this way. Lefty said it was no use pitching one's arm off with the game won, and he was right there.

Bad Baseball Weather

The afternoon was a bad one for baseball. The wind blew across the diamond, bringing with it clouds of dust, and at times the outfielders were invisible. Then there was a race against the rain. Rain threatened to stop the game before the fifth inning. Calgary did all they could to rush things and Edmonton made a great stall to delay the game. Grady especially had a long talk here. His delaying was more to be admired than his pitching. In the fourth inning Calgary scored four runs. They did not want them, and tried to get caught on the bases. Flanagan walked from second to third with a view of getting caught. Brennan, however, dropped the ball. Flanagan tried again, and started to walk home. He loitered on the way so that Ward could not help tagging him. Had Calgary wanted to they might easily have secured a dozen runs in this inning, but the game was more important. At Edmonton's turn at bat in the fifth, Lefty Manning got rid of Grady, Mills and Olsen in quick succession. The game was clinched against rain. Edmonton tried to get into the game, but found the local sluggers too much for them. Calgary scored against Flanagan in the sixth and got two in the seventh. Edmonton's two tallies came from home runs, but they were unfortunate in not having men on the bases at the time.

Babe Clynes had his eye on the ball. He hit safe the first three times at bat. Tallant also made a two-bagger and a single. Edwards is besting to get his eye in trim and has been hitting the ball during the last two games. Kelly was up twice and got two hits. His only feat was that he was hit by pitcher and a pass. Manning had the bases full against him in the second inning. This did not worry Lefty, although he had nobody out. He struck out the next man up, and worked Luss into a double. Ward filed to first and finished the inning without a score. Manning did the same thing in Lethbridge. He had the bases full twice and got out of it without a run scored against him. Manning has a cool head, besides having all kinds of control. Calgary's five runs in the first came pretty easy. Samuels, the much touted pitcher, passed Duggan and Carney, but the first named got nabbed stealing third. Carney went to second on the throw. Clynes hit each down to right field. Smith sacrificed and scored Carney with a long outfield fly. Kelly hit to left, and Tallant made a two-bagger, scoring and making all hit safeties for three more runs. Flanagan ended the inning by being caught at third when Duggan laid down to Brennan. In the fourth an error followed by Clynes's safety. Grady hit Smith. Kelly's two-bagger, Tallant's sacrifice, Conners got a pass, and Jack Brennan was a couple of errors, all helped to produce the four runs.

The locals are now in their top form and should take the lions and of the Edmonton series, although playing away from home. The Calgary team is batting good and the average of the players up to Saturday is as follows: A. B. R. H. P. E. Carney ..... 27 13 482 Stanley ..... 17 8 470 Duggan ..... 16 4 464 Flanagan ..... 14 4 460 Kelly ..... 22 8 364 Clynes ..... 23 8 349 Duggan ..... 8 2 359 Standridge ..... 23 4 180 Conners ..... 26 5 192 Tallant ..... 23 4 180 Smith ..... 24 4 168

The Western Canada League executive hold a meeting at Medicine Hat today for the transaction of general business. The question of revising the schedule and constitution will come up. The protest of Winnipeg against Regina in two games will also be considered. The second protest of Winnipeg is a knotty one. It will be remembered that the game was called in the fourth with Winnipeg leading 3 to 4 on account of the King's death. Manager Lehr claims that Regina knew of the death before the game commenced. It looks as if Winnipeg will win out on this protest. The game was an evening one and the boys reached Calgary shortly after 5 o'clock and Regina time is an hour earlier than Calgary.

Mr. Pete Richardson left last evening for the Hat to represent Calgary at the league meeting. He also has representation for Edmonton, as the Esquimos are not sending a representative. "The important business," said Mr. Richardson last evening, "will be the revising of the schedule. Medicine Hat, Regina and Moose Jaw are doing the kicking because they have the largest number of home games as the bigger cities. Mr. Richardson is of the opinion that their attendance at games does not warrant them having more home games. "The Medicine Hat is an example. At their opening they only had 560 admissions. Some of the clubs favor a bigger guarantee for the smaller towns in an equal number of games.

Pitcher Padlock of Vancouver has been ordered to report to Calgary at Edmonton, and is expected tomorrow. Padlock was offered to Calgary two weeks ago. Manager Brown then changed his mind and decided to keep him.

LOCAL BASEBALL NEWS

Yesterday morning the Calgary baseball team left for Edmonton where they will open a four game series with Deacon White's huskies in the Esquimo town commencing today. The series will last until Thursday, and the Calgary bunch will be home again on Friday for a long series of games, during which they play most of the teams in the league.

The locals left for Edmonton tied with Regina for first place. Calgary having won six and lost two. Regina has won six and lost two and played a game with Moose Jaw. Two of the Regina games with Winnipeg, however, are under protest, and they may lose one of these.

HILLHURST BEAT THE GLENBOW TEAM

But the Game in the Senior League on Glenbow Grounds Was Keenly Contested.

The Hillhurst Football team journeyed to Glenbow on Saturday, playing the Quarrymen on their own ground. In one of the City Senior League games. The weather was anything but favorable, but the ground was in good shape. A very high and treacherous wind prevailed throughout the afternoon, which greatly interfered with the play on both sides. Hillhurst won the toss and decided to play with the wind in their favor, the slope of the grounds also giving them an advantage over their opponents.

him. The matter was taken up by the Calgary club and Brown, and the latter has decided to keep his word, and send him on to Calgary. This will complete the locals pitching staff, and a warm one will be, too. Padlock is a good twirler and equally good in the outfield and hitting. He has the reputation of being a thorough gentleman, with quiet and unassuming manners.

BATTING AVERAGES OF LEAGUE PLAYERS

Calgary Batters Have Been Doing Better Than Rest of Players and Stanley is Real Leader

The first batch of hitting averages for the Western Canada baseball league, which is up to Tuesday of last week, shows some interesting figures. The Calgary batters have been doing a little better than the rest of the players. Stanley of Calgary is the real leader with .400. Elsay of Brandon is close up with .371, while Crocker of Moose Jaw is nailing the pill on the nose, and has a second of .450. The figures are as follows:

Table of batting averages for various players including Cleveland, Grady, Stanley, Elsay, Anderson, Carney, Duggan, Flanagan, Kelly, Clynes, Duggan, Conners, Tallant, and Smith.

On resuming after the change of ends the Quarrymen with the wind and playing down the hill, immediately passed Crocker and Cooper being called back in to clear consecutively. The Tiger left wing then took the ball up the field. O. Patterson having to stop a fair. Brandon then took the ball up to clear. McKee getting hold passed to Reid, but that player was checked by Cooper before he could centre. Glenbow kept up the attack. McKee cleared a good shot sending the leather over the crossbar. Buckie shooting wide soon after. From the kick out Sear was checked well by A. Wakelyn, who made a swell counter and referred to Stan. Wakelyn, who shot forcing Patterson out to save. Up and down field play followed, each side making strenuous efforts to get within shooting range. Cooper intercepted a pass by Reid, and sent up to Fullerton, who took well to the goal mouth, and making a fine opening, gave to Ward, that player delivering the goods with a dandy shot which Patterson had no chance to save, giving the Tigers the lead by two clear goals. This reverse put new life into the quarrymen, who attacked strongly. Buckie sent a swell pass in to Bertrand, but that player failed to get within the pressure. Cooper, Ross and A. Wakelyn having a busy time in keeping their goal intact, and by sharp checking and good work forced the opponents back. S. Wakelyn taking the ball down, hitting the upright with a close shot. Not to be denied the Quarrymen returned to the attack, and being called on to punch away from Bertrand, who put in a stiff shot. McKee cleared, and making a good opening sent to Fullerton, who in turn passed to Ward, but that player was robbed of the ball through hesitating to shoot, and a good chance was lost. Towill and McLean with good work took play to the other end, and again put the Quarrymen on the attack, who pressed hard. Jenkins fouled Buckie badly in the penalty area, just on time, but the referee allowed the penalty kick to be taken. Jock Towill putting in a dandy shot well out of the reach of Patson, who had no chance to save. Immediately after the goal was scored the whistle blew, two minutes after time, extra time being allowed for the penalty to be taken. The game ended with the Tigers victors by two goals to one.

MINTO CUP HOLDERS WERE DEFEATED

Vancouver Team Outplayed the World's Champions at Every Stage of the Game on Saturday.

Vancouver, May 14.—Vancouver got to New Westminster all the way today and won the big opening lacrosse game of the season hands down, 5 to 2. The strong team that the local management has gathered together was fully up to expectations, and the world's champions never had a show at all. They were outclassed from start to finish and, although the fast Westminster home men fought hard, they were up against a strong defence and could not get through the goal. Despite the defeat handed out to the Minto cup holders they took it well and unlike other close games there was no fighting and little rough work about four thousand people attended.

MANY ACCIDENTS IN AUTOMOBILE RACE

One Man Was Killed, One Seriously Injured and Several Received Minor Injuries.

Brighton Beach, N. Y., May 14.—Charles Basie, driving a Simplex car, won the twenty-four hour automobile race of the Motor Racing association in goal weight, completing 1,145 miles. Ralph Wilford, driving a Stearns No. 1, finished second, twenty-five miles behind. Basie, while Ralph DePalma in a Fiat, was third, with 1,107 miles. The record for the time is 1:18. Ten of the twelve cars that originally started finished.

The race cost the life of one man, the serious injury of a second, and minor hurts to two others. W. F. Bradley, mechanic for Louis E. Strang, suffered injuries that caused his death when his Marion, driven temporarily by Hubert Anderson, ran off the track and capsized. Jack Towers, mechanic, in a Buick, received a broken leg and internal injuries at the same spot where Bradley came to grief. William Endicot and John McCruider, driver and mechanic of the Cole car were also thrown out of the race. The Cole car was not dangerous injuries when they were thrown out while turning into the home stretch.

The Simplex car, driven alternately by Basie and A. L. Pole, took the lead in the twelfth hour and was never headed. Basie, who was 26 miles behind the second at that time, by terrific driving cut down his handicap steadily until rain began falling. At that time he was one mile behind the record, and the hopes of the spectators for new figures were high. Captain dictated, however, and he slackened speed on the wet track and each hour the car dropped farther behind the records. For many the two Buicks, Stearns No. 2 and Fiat, equalled the first hour record.

The Chevrolet in Buick No. 1, took the lead at the beginning of the race and held it steadily until five o'clock this morning, when their car broke a crankshaft. The delay cost them the chance of winning, but Chevrolet, at that time, had a 100-mile lead in the repairing of his car, after the fatal accident to Bradley, also placed Strang under a handicap, and held it steadily until five o'clock this morning, when their car broke a crankshaft. CHOICE OF A NAME

There are not many people in the civilized world, who have any choice in the name by which they shall be known in life.

In the case of the sovereigns who have occupied the throne of England, Scotland and Great Britain, it is an interesting study of the history of the country to look over the names of sovereigns who have filled the throne with honor or dishonor.

Since the union of the Crowns of England and Scotland in 1603, when James VI. of Scotland became king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain.

There have been only five names of kings: James, Charles, William, George and Edward. James I. and James II. were imbued with the idea that they ruled by "Divine Right,"

The late king was especially wise in choosing as his official title the time-honored Anglo-Saxon name of Edward in preference to the German half of his early name, "Albert Edward."

It was a name that had been borne by a number of illustrious predecessors since the Norman Conquest, and before that, in the Anglo-Saxon period.

Edward I. was a great statesman and soldier. Edward II. has been described as a weak character, but he was also unfortunate, and this may, to a large extent, have been the cause of his weakness.

Edward III. was the English hero, under the leadership of Edward the "Black Prince," first proved his superiority at the battle of Crecy and Poitiers.

Edward IV. was an old statesman but was a rather dissolute. Edward V. was a great statesman and soldier. Edward VI. died just as he was beginning to learn the duties of a king.

The future historian will without doubt place the name of the late King Edward VII. at the head of those who have borne the name.

It was in the reign of the four Georges that the British Constitution, as it now is, made its greatest development.

Her royal Majesty Queen Victoria Mary Augusta, Louisa Olga Pauline Clotilde Augusta, is a great-granddaughter of King George III.

The queen's grandfather, Prince Adolphus, Duke of Cambridge, was one of those "who married to oblige" the nation when he had reached the age of 42.

King George and His Friends

The Prince of Wales is not and has never been as fond of society as his father, King George III.

The little princess grew up at White Lodge, Richmond, the property of Queen Victoria, who was taught several languages from her infancy upwards.

Music is one of the queen's greatest accomplishments, having a beautiful soprano voice and singing with great expression. She was a pupil of Sir Tosti.

The intimacy between the queen and her husband began at an early age, and the two families, though King George and the queen were both lively children.

After an absence of eighteen months she returned to London and attended her first royal drawing room in the spring of 1838.

Her charitable work was most excellent, though she had no special duties. The guild clothes had been pouring in ever since about the middle of the century.

NEWSPAPER TO WHICH KINGS CONTRIBUTE

London Gazette, the Official Organ of United Kingdom, Data From 1686
 Which is the most important newspaper in the kingdom? Ninety-nine people out of a hundred would probably say, the Times. But they would be wrong, that is, if one may judge the importance of a newspaper by the official character of its news, says a London exchange.
 The title really belongs to the London Gazette, the oldest and least read of any newspaper in the country. It is issued by the government, and is the channel of communication between royalty, the cabinet and the people. Kings and queens have written for it, while cabinet ministers are regular contributors. Its advertisements are regulated by law, and no great manufacturer could obtain a "puff," even although he were willing to pay $10,000 a line for it.
 The Gazette varies considerably in size. Sometimes it consists merely of one page, and sometimes between 400 and 600. In one memorable week, in 1847—the "Railway Year"—so many parliamentary notices had to be published that the Gazette for one week totalled about 3,000 pages; but the price always remains the same, namely, 1s. and it is said to yield a profit of about $100,000 a year, in spite of the fact that it has never been sold at a railway bookstall and no newsboy has ever tried its name in the street. Practically the only people who buy it are government officials and lawyers.
 The Gazette is the oldest and at the same time the youngest newspaper in the kingdom, as well as being the most important. It was first published in 1665, in the reign of Charles II, and his ever since appeared twice a week, with supplementary issues now and then if required. It was first published at Oxford, as the court was in residence there during the plague, but when the latter abated it was brought ## to London, and for more than 130 years has been published by Messrs. Harrison, the well-known printers of St. Martin's Lane. At the same time, it is the youngest newspaper on account of the fact that it was only a few months ago that it contained the following announcement:

"This Journal has been registered at the G. P. O. for transmission by inland post as a newspaper."
 Previously it had been regarded as a government publication only, and was dispatched "O. H. M. S.," in this way escaping postal charges altogether, but apparently the government saw a way to reap a few extra halfpennies.
 The Gazette is probably the only paper which returns the original copy to its authors along with the proof. This is done in the case of communications from the sovereign and cabinet ministers. In the old days heaps of such documents lay about in the store room.
 Long ago, before the advent of the telegraph and special editions, the Gazette offices were besieged by anxious crowds, who had no other channel from which to learn the news.
 An interesting illustration of the important position held by the Gazette before newspapers and telegraphs were what they are is furnished by the manner in which the news of the battle of the Alma, was made public in 1856. The news was received by the secretary of state on Saturday evening. There were no newspapers until Sunday, and it was important that the public anxiety should be allayed by the widest possible circulation of such a piece of news.
 Mr. James Harrison was sent for, and the position explained to him when he reached Downing street. He immediately thought of the theatre. There were three of them open; why not have the telegram read out there? The plan was considered excellent, and Mr. Harrison returned to St. Martin's Lane, set up the news with his own hands, and sent men round to the theatres with early copies of the Gazette. "See the manager," were the instructions to the messengers. "Take no notice there during the play, but when the latter abated it was brought ## of state while this news is read out." The men obeyed the orders to the letter, and at Downing street the streets the scenes were historic. In the meantime Mr. Harrison made his way to the Mansion House and communicated the glad tidings to the Lord Mayor and sheriffs.

Duke of Connaught Views Body
 London, May 14.—King George's uncle, the Duke of Connaught accompanied by the Duchess of Connaught, arrived in London this evening from their African trip. They were met at the station by the King and Queen Mary and the royal party immediately drove to Buckingham Palace, where the body of the late monarch lies.
 King Edward's coffin was temporarily opened to give his brother a last view of the body. The casket rests in the center of the throne-room, which presents the appearance of a richly adorned private chapel. The chairs of state from which past sovereigns witnessed so many brilliant scenes have been removed and an altar has been erected on a dais beneath a canopy with a profusion of white flowers banked around it. Only members of the royal household, the diplomatic corps and intimate friends of the late sovereign will be admitted to this private lying in state.

EXPULSION OF JEWS FROM RUSSIAN CITY

Seven Hundred Driven Out of Kiev and Those Remaining Only Allowed to Live Outside City Limits.
 Kiev, Russia, May 14.—The expulsion of Jews residing illegally in Kiev will be resumed tomorrow. In some instances a delay has been granted to permit a settlement of their affairs, but all of those marked for expulsion must leave the city before June 14. The order of expulsion was issued as a result of an agitation which began in the Duma and originally provided that the expulsion should take place on April 29th last. Subsequently the order was suspended by Premier Stolypin to permit a further examination of Jewish claims of residence.
 The order was issued to other cities and towns where Jews are residing without the pale, and local commissions were appointed to revise the list of those affected by the order with the expectation that a large proportion would be allowed to remain undisturbed.
 The Kiev commission has considered thus far about 1,000 cases, of which 850 have been found to be subject to expulsion. The governor general has reviewed the decisions of the commission and confirmed the expulsion of 700 of those listed.
 The Jews remaining in Kiev will be allowed to occupy summer villas outside the city, only being granted special permission granted in individual cases.

Affected Canadian Bond Issue
 London, May 14.—The King's death retarded the full success of the new Dominion government issue of $5,000,000, tenders for which closed at the Bank of Montreal today. It is understood that public subscriptions amounted to about 85 per cent, but as the whole loan was underwritten, Mr. Fielding may congratulate himself on securing for Canada the full amount of the loan on the terms secured.

INDIANS HONOR MEMORY OF LATE KING EDWARD

Refuse to Take Part in Indian War Canoe Races at Victoria.
 Victoria, B.C., May 14.—All possibility of holding the Victoria Day celebration was abandoned when the Songhees and Quamichan Indians declined to take part in the Indian war canoe race, because of the death of King Edward.
 The feature of the yearly celebration has always been the Indian war canoe races, for which cash prizes are offered. The Indians were training for the event for three years in advance. "The king was our best friend. He is buried on the twentieth; we cannot race on the twenty-fourth," said Chief Copper of the Songhees tribe to the committee.

Soldiers to Sleep in Parks

London, May 14.—Among many other details of King Edward's funeral on May 20, it is announced that public parks on the night of May 19th will be converted into huge military camps. At least one-half of the 30,000 troops which will be required to line the route of the funeral procession will have to sleep under canvas. The reason of this is that it has been found impossible to bring up and house all of the troops required for the occasion.

TAKE 12 HOURS TO PASS COMET'S TAIL

Earth Will Be Enveloped in Vapor of Tail of Halley's Comet From Noon to Midnight of May 18. Pasadena, Cal., May 14.—At six o'clock the evening of May 18, Halley's comet will pass between the earth and the sun, according to computations completed by Professor George Ellery Hall, director of the Carnegie observatory on Mount Wilson.

Professor Hall estimates that the comet's tail is between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000 miles in length. His observations further lead him to believe the earth will enter the tail about noon on May 18 and will be surrounded by the vapor until nearly midnight.

During the time the earth is encircled in this mist, phenomena such as shooting stars and peculiarly tinted clouds may be noted. This, he stated, however, is purely problematical.

Professor Hall agrees with astronomers at the university of California that the comet will be invisible from May 16 to May 20. This is owing to the transparent nature of the matter which composes the nucleus of the head of the celestial wanderer.

OLDEST HORSE IN AMERICA

"Samuel J. Tilden," Veteran Maryland Equine, is 41 Years Old. Chestertown, Md., lays claim to the oldest horse in America. This horse, which is the property of Joseph Guest, a retired merchant, was foaled May 6, 1869, and was then owned by the late Thomas Van Dyke of near Kennerlyville, Md.

On April 15 last Enoch King of Millington, called on Mr. Guest to take a look at the old horse and said: "I am 49 years old. When a small boy my father lived on Mr. Thomas Van Dyke's farm and I often drove up the horses from the pasture and Stoneville, as it is his name, was among them. On the day of the nomination of Samuel J. Tilden for President of the United States, Mr. Van Dyke drove the horse to Middlestown, Del., a distance of some twenty-five miles, and, being a great admirer of Mr. Tilden, Mr. Van Dyke then and there changed the name of the animal to Samuel J. Tilden."

Mr. Guest has made numerous efforts to discover an older horse in the country than Tilden. He has written to the owners of all the horse raised in the country, but up to the present he has been unable to find a horse in the country that is as old. The nearest approach to it was a horse owned by a gentleman in Pennsylvania who claimed the honor of seniority. A comparison of ages, however, revealed the fact that the Pennsylvania animal was several years younger than Samuel J. Tilden.

Mr. Guest says he will let the horse spend the remainder of his days in peace and quiet, enjoying the verdure of his pasture lot and the comfort of good stable quarters.

AUTO RACING AT BRIGHTON BEACH

One Man Was Fatally Injured at the Start, But His Death Did Not Stop the Dizzy Whirl of the Race.

NEWS FOR GOLFERS

With the competitive golf season in the north well under way, devotees of the game are beginning to turn their attention to the championships.

This year's Metropolitan Golf Association amateur competition will be decided over a new course so far as that particular competition is concerned.

Always good in the spring, Walter J. Travis, the title holder, who won the Metropolitan Golf association championship at Apawamis a year ago, seems showing at Lakewood in any competition.

At Apawamis he defeated Fred Herreshoff in the decisive round after a sensational match.

There will be others to be reckoned with in this year's Metropolitan. Ray back in 1908 Finley Douglas won the National title and since then Jerome Travis has accomplished things.

The Metropolitan affair, now about a fortnight away, will be followed by the open National championship in June and that call attention to the fact that there have been those bold enough to suggest some different method of adopting this all important event.

It seems, however, to be pretty generally agreed that the best way to run off the open championship is at seventy-two holes of play, thirty-six the first day, and a like number the second.

Both amateurs and professionals like this plan. The only departure found necessary from this trying test of golfing efficiency has been in Great Britain, due to a certain number of strokes of the leaders after thirty-six holes will be allowed to continue the second.

HORSES IN GREAT DEMAND ON PRAIRIES

Western Canada's Development May Be Arrested by Shortage

Winnipeg, May 14.—The question of getting a sufficient supply of horses for carrying on the work planned in the Canadian West for this season is becoming a vital one.

Contractors, farmers and dealers have already brought in over 24,000 animals by way of Winnipeg since January 1, but the demand is by no means filled.

Prices have climbed to a figure never before equaled in Canada, but it is simply a case of bidding in a short market where there is not enough to go round.

The more prominent dealers in Winnipeg agree that there is a decided shortage in all classes of work horses.

Reporters from Ontario and Western Quebec indicate that those fields have been swept clear of animals and still the demand holds more vigorously than ever.

Several westerners have recently given voice to the statement that this shortage will have a tendency to delay the development of the country.

Contractors will be unable to push the railway lines forward as rapidly as they desire, and in some instances work which was to have been completed this season will have to be held over till next year.

So too with the farmers. They have been bringing a considerable amount of seed, but being unable to get the necessary horses, they must reduce their acreage.

Many of the settlers arriving this year from the United States and Great Britain have brought money with them expecting to buy horses on this side.

But to the people watching the demand continues to run ahead of supply.

E. W. McLean says that he finds great difficulty in securing horses to fill his orders from customers, and that he has been obliged to pay very high prices.

The demand is constant and seems to be increasing. The prices offered have had the tendency of bringing out practically all of the horses which the East can spare.

The quotations at present are about as follows: For teams of 3000 pounds up, $700 to $800.

This is the type most in demand for contractors and for heavy work about the city.

Good agricultural teams, 2800 to 3000 pounds, $600 to $650.

Farm chunks, 2200 to 2600 pounds, $450 to $480 a team available.

The demand for workers has also affected the price of drivers and delivery horses and quotations on all sorts of horse-flesh have reached fancy figures.

A GOVERNOR GENERAL DIES OF HYDROPHOBIA

Duke of Richmond Bitten by a Mad Dog With Fatal Results in 1818

Pan Sketch of An Alberta Member

In a character sketch of parliamentary personalities in the Canadian Courtes, Mr. Augustus Bridle has the following in regard to two of Alberta's members in the Dominion house:

It's the Year 1913 Already

According to Prof. David Lyon, curator of the Sennett Museum at Harvard University, it is now the year 1915.

Early Symptoms

Early that morning he alarmed his valet by insisting that some trees near his window were people looking in, and when some water was brought to him he evinced great abhorrence at the sight of it.

Proposed walking through the woods of the new settlement of Richmond.

During the progress of the walk a dog was heard to bark in the distance, and his excellency started to run at such a rate of speed that he was with difficulty overtaken.

Had Lucid Intervals

While in this log hut, reason occasionally resumed her empire, and his grace availed himself of these lucid intervals to write a letter to Lady Mary Lennox. In it he expressed his conviction that his disorder was hydro-

Phobia, and he reminded her how he had been bitten by a favorite dog at the Castle of St. Louis five months before.

The dog had subsequently gone mad, and the Duke felt irresistibly convinced of his own approaching fate. He recommended the line of conduct his children were to pursue in the painful situation in which his death would place them, and requested that he be buried like a soldier on the ramparts of Quebec.

Owners of Bridgeland Lots PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

- (1) That a few owners are offering Bridgeland lots at a price around $900.00, which is altogether too low. Any Bridgeland lot that is 4 1/2 feet wide is worth $1000. Any owner selling below this is giving property away.
- (2) Eighteen blocks of sewer and water go into Bridgeland this year. This will begin in two weeks. Now look. Lots twenty-five feet wide, with sewer and water, high and dry like Bridgeland lots in all other directions are selling at $300 each, that is $24.00 per foot, and at that price 4 1/2 feet are worth $1000.
- (3) Remember, 4 1/2 feet is just five and one-half feet short of two twenty-five foot lots. The average person simply thinks of Bridgeland lots as being like most others, viz., twenty-five feet wide, but building lots inside the mile circle are getting very scarce now and soon every one will learn to count the real value of every foot in these big lots. See that you get money for each foot. Bridgeland lots will bring $1,000 each very soon.
- (4) Hold your Bridgeland lots. Don't compare them at all with the speculative property from two to five miles out. You can get a loan any time on Bridgeland property. Hold on and get your price. You are absolutely safe to hold the property because every lot will be needed for someone's home soon.
- (5) There is still a very good chance that certain railroad development will double the price of every foot in Bridgeland. Better hold and get the benefit of this good chance.
- (6) The City Engineer has definitely recommended two street car lines in the city. Calgary does not have to wait for electric power for this. It has power now for the Bridgeland extension. Bridgeland cars will be in fact. Bridgeland lots are good to buy and good to hold. Don't sell till you get your price.

IN THE COURTS OF EUROPE

Monaco's recent tea-cup revolution, which resulted in the grant by the reigning prince of a constitution to his few thousand subjects, recalls the last thing of the kind that took place there about 120 years ago.

In fact, at the end of the eighteenth century the people of Monaco considered it necessary to take their cut, not only in matters of fashion, but also in politics, from the Parisians. Honoré III was the very counterpart of King Louis XVI of France, the one being a easy-going and kindly as the other. When France obtained the concession of a National Assembly from Louis XVI, Monaco immediately insisted on having one conceded by Prince Honoré III. When the French Assembly abolished feudal rights, the Monaco Assembly straightway followed him. When Louis XVI made his vain attempt to escape from France, Prince Honoré fled from Monaco, taking his road to Paris, whereupon his subjects, like those of Louis XVI, organized a national convention. When the Tuilleries was sacked, Prince Honoré's castle at Monte-Carlo underwent similar treatment at the hands of the Monaco mob.

Counterpart of Every Move
Indeed, every revolutionary move in Paris had its counterpart in miniature at Monaco, with this difference: that Prince Honoré did not lose his head. However, he was temporarily deprived of his title of prince, and was styled from henceforth, in communications from his former subjects and by the authorities of Paris, where he resided, as "Citizen Monaco," just in the same way as Louis XVI became "Citizen Capet."

All his property was confiscated, and eventually he was thrown into prison and incarcerated in a jail in the Rue de Sevrès, at Paris. After spending more than a year in captivity he was released in a dying condition, to expire at his home in the Rue de Valenciennes, in Paris.
His wife, Marie de Brignole-Sale, daughter of the last Doge of Genoa, survived him, marrying after his death, Louis Joseph de Bourbon, Prince de Condé, on whose mysterious death by strangulation the late Duc d'Aumale, inherited Chantilly, now the property of the Institute of France.
Honoré III had three sons, the eldest of whom succeeded him as Honoré IV, great-grandfather of the present ruler of Monaco. His second son, Prince Joseph Grimaldi, married Therese Françoise de Stainville, daughter of the celebrated French Marshal de Sédan, who died in Paris during the Terror, she became one of the heroines of that epoch.

Repeated of his
When brought before the revolutionary tribunal the infamous Fouché, as public prosecutor, demanded the head of "the woman Monaco," as she designated her, and she was condemned to be guillotined on the eighth of Brumaire. On the morning of the execution she was convinced that the terror was drawing to an end, and who hoped to save her life by delaying her execution, she announced that she was about to become a mother.

But two days afterwards her conception became troubled with having thus told a lie, she wrote to Fouché himself a letter, which has been preserved, in which she informs him that she is not pregnant, and that she does not wish to save her life, or even to obtain a prolongation thereof by a lie.
The guillotine, it being moved by the letter saw to it that the order for her execution was carried out. She was guillotined on the ninth Thermidor, being actually the victim of the Revolutionary Tribunal, which was overthrown at the very moment when her head fell.

The Princes of Monaco are Grimaldis only through the female line. The dynasty itself became extinct in the male line by the death in 1717 of Anthony I, who was succeeded by his only daughter, Louise, married to James de Goyon-Matignon, Duc d'Estouteville, one of the nobles of the Court of Versailles, who was the grandfather of Louis XV, was permitted to assume his father-in-law's French dukedom of Valentinois. It was the son of this duke, who was Honoré III, the Monaco counterpart of the ill-fated Louis XVI of France.
Honoré IV, (who after the downfall of Napoleon was invested by the Congress of Vienna in the place of his dead father with possession of the throne and principality of Monaco), married Louise de Massin, daughter of the last Duke of Mazarin, and through him the French dukedom of Mazarin, with the consent of Louis XVIII, of France, passed to the Princess of Monaco.

"Lady Fitzgeorge's" Position.
In view of the stories which are being published all over the country to the effect that "Lady Fitzgeorge," who for the past two years has been making her home in this country, and who is now living at a hotel in the suburbs of New York, is about to bestow her hand upon an American, it may be just as well to explain her relationship to the reigning House of England.
She has no title whatsoever, and her correct designation is "Mrs. George William Augustus Fitzgeorge." Her second husband died in Switzerland about four years ago, and was the eldest of the three sons of Prince George of England, Duke of Cambridge, by the latter's union with the Irish actress, Miss Louise Farebrother, the union being invalid in the eyes of English law, and the sons, as such, debarred from inheriting any of their father's honors.
The late Col. Fitzgeorge did not share the regard which his two younger brothers enjoyed on the part of the King, and while they figured conspicuously at the state funeral of the old Duke, at which King Edward was chief mourner, Col. Fitzgeorge was relegated to the background and had no place in the procession.
Col. Fitzgeorge was married to the widow of Capt. E. W. Arkwright, of the Coldstream Guards, she being a daughter of William Henry Bearnes, M. P. of Normanton, Hampshire. Although Mrs. Fitzgeorge thus belongs to the now extremely numerous clan of Bearnes, some of the members of which, such as Lord Northbrook, Lord Revelstoke and Lord Cromer, are accounted rich, yet it has always been understood that she was, both during her second marriage and subsequent thereto, in very straitened circumstances, and that on this account the cost of the education of her two daughters and of her son, who is now a midshipman in the Royal Navy, had been assumed by Rear Admiral Sir Adolphus and Lady Fitzgeorge.

John D. Rockefeller would go broke if he should spend his entire income trying to prepare a better medicine than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is simply impossible and so says every one that has used it. Sold by all druggists.

The Railways Are Making for Fort George

You have been told that the railway lines of Central British Columbia will centre at Fort George. You have seen that the waterways of the interior converge from this point. You realize that the railways must follow the rivers in order to have feasible grades.

You know that the Grand Trunk Pacific is building into Fort George from two directions. You know that other projected lines centre at Fort George, the British Columbia and Alaska Railway, the British Columbia Central Railway, the Victoria and Fort George Railway being among them. The following item reproduced from The Vancouver Province of April 29 shows the status of the British Columbia and Alaska Railway:

Another Railway

British Columbia & Alaska Co. Will Send Out Survey Parties Tomorrow

Two survey parties now being organized here will leave tomorrow for Lytton to start locating a portion of the proposed line of the British Columbia & Alaska Railway Co., which was incorporated at the last session of the provincial legislature.
Mr. J. Early will have charge of one outfit of sixteen men. They will be employed between Lytton and Eagle Lake. The other engineering party will proceed direct to Fort George, where they will work south to Eagle Lake. As soon as this task is completed the surveyors will be transferred to the Lillooet district to locate a branch line into Vancouver. The second survey party will be in charge of Mr. E. C. Simpson. It will also number sixteen members.

Although the charter was acquired by Mr. Ralph Smiles, formerly of Greenwood, and Mr. H. B. Robertson, a Victoria lawyer, it is understood that they simply represented the New York capitalists who are behind the enterprise. Mr. Smiles is a member of the engineering firm of Messrs. L. M. Rice & Co., which was awarded the contract for making the surveys. It is understood that the British Columbia Railway will be only a link in a big railway project, having for its object the building of a through line to Alaska. It is intended by the parent company incorporated for $12,000,000 under the laws of the State of Delaware and styled the British Columbia Railway & Development Co.

The route through British Columbia as authorized by the Provincial Legislature is as follows: Commencing at or near Lytton, thence following the valley of the Fraser through Lillooet to a point at or near Fort George, thence following the valley of the Stuart River to Stuart Lake and the Tacla Lake by way of Fort Connely, thence following the Skeena and Stikine Rivers to Telegraph Creek, and thence northerly to Teslin Lake to a point at or near the northern boundary of British Columbia, or in the alternative by the most feasible route between Lytton and Teslin Lake. The route following the Skeena and Stikine is also authorized to build a branch line to Vancouver along the south side of Anderson and Seaton Lakes, and to Lillooet, Lake and River.
Mr. Smiles is a Canadian by birth, and has a wide knowledge of conditions in the West. The location of the line between Fort George and Lytton as the first step in the company's plans is regarded as a wise move, as the engineers will have the choice of locating over more tardy rivals. Mr. Smiles admitted today that the survey of the branch line into Vancouver would be started as soon as the engineers complete the survey between Lytton and Fort George.

Fort George

while it will centre the railway systems operating in Central British Columbia, will not be dependent upon them. It is the centre of the great internal river system of the province—the centre of 1000 miles of water NOW NAVIGATED BY STEAMBOATS. With very little expense 1000 miles additional can be made navigable. The great rich valleys of the interior, with their coal, gold, copper, silver, their timber and their 50,000,000 acres of farming land, will thus have two mediums of transportation, and BOTH OF THEM CENTRE AT FORT GEORGE.

Three steamboat lines are now operating from Fort George. Additional steamers are being built. A second newspaper is being established. Hotels are being built. Four banks will soon have branches doing business here.
Note.—No lots are for sale in the townsite of Fort George except by us or our accredited agents.

CHRONICLES OF THE KHAN

The Fly in the Ointment
Last Sunday a group of expatriated Americans who had taken up land in the Last West foregathered outside the sod church, where a missionary had baptised the first child born in the settlement.

"There's no use in talkin', boys," said one of them, "but this here is a great country, and we're in on the ground floor."

"The British are all right," said another, "but there's drawbacks, seems to me. Of course," he added apologetically, "we can't expect to have things perfect till we get to Kingdom Come; but I wonder how that old bum got 'lected justice of the peace?'"

"He wasn't elected," explained the First Settler, "he was appointed." "Appointed?" chorused the group. "Who 'pinted him? Why he don't know beans when the bag's open."

"That makes no difference in Canada," elucidated the Oracle. "The only qualification for the bench in this here country is party service. Nobody is elected to office. When a government gets into power they appoint their friends sheriffs, registrars, post-officers, crown attorneys, license inspectors, customs officers, and so forth, as 'what's left is made into justice by the peace.'"

"An' don't they need no qualifications?" "That's all the qualifications needed in this great country. All yiv got to do is to work for yer party and you'll git yer reward."

"Ain't the corners 'lected, either?" "Nobody's elected, I tell you, except the members for con-parliament. He makes all the 'pintments an' 'voe beside the fellow that didn't drill with the terriers when the offices is been distributed."

"I don't look right to me," said one of the new-comers. "Some members air uv the same opinion, fer after they win out they appoint their nephews, their cousins, uncles and all the blood and bloodless relations they've got to office."

"An' who's responsible for them?" "The party in power, and that's what they mean by 'responsible government.'"

"But some of these magistrates that I've seen round here couldn't be elected to keep a hog pound in a white man's country." "That's the advantage uv the British system. You don't hev to waste any time makin' 'polars—all yiv got to do is to vote straight."

"Well, I'll be darned!"
Heigh Ho!
She says I must, so "dinna feah,"
Heigh Ho!
She says I must shave my mustache,
Heigh Ho!
She says that it is full of germs
(Shave that mustache!—there are her terms.)
Heigh Ho!

Now, wouldn't that pretty naturally kill you?
Heigh Ho!
Wouldn't that with woe pretty nearly fill you?
Heigh Ho!

Whatever she says is go, oh, woe!
But I must confess the news is a blow
To cut off my lovely mustache, oh, oh!
Heigh Ho!

I mustn't come near her no more, she says—
Heigh Ho!
She's got such nice and such winning ways—
Heigh Ho!
She shuts me out from my field of bliss;
Nobody knows the things I miss;
Afar's the ecstatic hum and the kiss—
Heigh Ho!

If it can't be helped it's got to be did—
Heigh Ho!
I'll razor my lip and lift off the lid—
Heigh Ho!
But how will she know when my face is shaven?
Heigh Ho!
How will she know when she climbs on my knee?
How will she know that this person is me?
Heigh Ho!

I looked in the glass—I'm a different man!
Heigh Ho!
I'm changed from Beersheba to further than Dan.
Heigh Ho!
I'm shorn of my locks, I don't feel the same;
I really don't feel like playing the game.
Will some kind person please tell me my name?
Heigh Ho!

My ambition in years—the last years of grace—
Heigh Ho!
Was to wear a nice bunch of wool on my face—
Heigh Ho!
But the girl that I love hath filled me with woe.
Once I had fur plumb under my nose;
She said it must go—and everything goes!
Heigh Ho!

God Save the King!

The nation, comforted by prayer,
Lifts up its eyes and heart to Thee,
O God, whose long and gracious care
Made England mistress of the sea,
And gave her souls, and wealth and fame,
And dower of a mighty name—
A new desire to Thee we bring,
Hear us once more—God save our king!

His mother's God, stand Thou by him,
As by the Queen, through all his reign;
If future days are bright or dim,
Let not the light of England veer;
By goodness make Thy servant great;
Anoint him, Thou, for his high state,
And help him all to nobler things,
This honored heir of all our kings!

Grant him to reign through times of peace,
In strenuous days O make him wise,
Let war, and strife and trouble cease,
And let our England soar and rise;
And when the hour, stronger, yet
Erupt the weak and wrongs of age;
So light from out the darkness bring
By the King's rule, God save the King!

Give him to comfort him, through all
The times of strain, his people's love,
And household loves and joys without
And blessings of the heavens above,
Give him Thy help and benison,
He is our Queen's beloved son,
And dear to us—through everything
In life and death—God Save the King!

ANECDOTES ABOUT THE LATE KING.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra won the hearts of the British people long before His Majesty was called to ascend the throne of his fathers. As Prince and Princess of Wales they were probably the best beloved couple in the land. Old and young delighted to do them honor, and every one of their fellow-subjects of Queen Victoria loved them because they showed so much human sympathy with their fellow-men, and so quick a perception of how to do the best thing at the proper time.

Collided With the King. A gentleman was walking quickly down Pall Mall one evening when suddenly a private brougham stopped immediately in front of him, and a rather stout gentleman alighted hurriedly, but, unfortunately, in doing so trod heavily on the tenderly cherished corn of the pedestrian. An interjection quite equal to the occasion, though far more forcible than strictly polite, escaped the sufferer. Judge, however, his horror on looking up into the face of His Majesty the King, who said, however, in his usual cordial manner: "Pardon me, the fault was entirely mine."

The King Didn't Know. His Majesty, who was staying as a guest at a certain country mansion a few months ago, entered the village school one morning quite unexpectedly, and in his usual pleasant way asked the children a few questions. "Now, my young friends," said King

Edward, cheerfully, "I daresay some of you can tell me the names of a few of our greatest Kings and Queens, eh?"

With one accord they cried out: "King Alfred and Queen Victoria, sir!"

Just then a tiny slip of a boy, whom the school-master had whispered something, stood up and raised his hand.

"Do you know another, my boys?" asked the King.

"Yes, your Majesty—King Edward VII."

His Majesty laughed, and again asked: "What great act has King Edward VII. done, pray?"

The boy lowered his head, and stammered out: "I don't know, your Majesty!"

"Don't be distressed, my lad," said our gracious King, smiling. "I don't know either."

He Knew What Was Wrong. King Edward not long ago showed his practical turn of mind during an adventure with an automobile. When he paid his recent visit to Germany he was particularly enthusiastic about motoring. One day he was driving with a gentleman through one of the forests near Wiesbaden, when the automobile ran out of water. Of necessity a stoppage occurred, and for want of a convenient Water Company, the boiler was filled from a wayside spring.

The King and his companion started again, and all went well for a while. Then, for some unaccountable reason, the motor stopped again. An inspection was made, and the King's companion, who is an expert in such matters, went to work in technical exploring fashion. The King stood regarding assistance when he could. But everything seemed right. No bolts were loose, no nuts missing, and not a lever jammed.

"That's very funny, your Majesty," the King agreed, and pondered a moment. Then he smiled.

"I wonder," he suggested, in tentative fashion, "if that water we took in has anything to do with it? You know these German waters generally have some sort of mineral properties in them. The boiling may cause crystallization and so choke the piston."

The piston rod was immediately inspected, and, sure enough, it was so crusted that for all driving purposes it might as well have been heavily coated with rust.

Sandpaper was used, some undiluted water found, and the journey was continued.

The King at a Fire. Once only has King Edward been in a fire. This was when an alarming blaze broke out in Marlborough House, just after the birth of his second son. The Princess of Wales, with her two boys, having been taken to a place of safety, the future King, minus coat and waistcoat, put himself at the head of the servants and set to work to check the flames. He himself helped to tear up a nursery floor to get at the somewhat distorted. When Balmoral Castle was in process of building a fire broke out in a workman's cottage, they had the gratification of being received by a very grimy, smoky prince in his shirt sleeves.

The King a Good Sleeper. On it being mentioned to the King (then Prince of Wales) that the Shah of Persia required continual "patting" in order to make him sleep, the Prince said: "Indeed! Why, I often require patting, in order to keep awake; I have slept in some queer places during my lifetime. I have slept in the folds of the jungle, on an elephant's back, in a balloon, in an English bed. Should it interest any one to know, I must say I prefer the bed."

What the Flag Was For. The following anecdote about the late King will be new to most people. When Prince of Wales he was travelling in the Highlands of Scotland incognito one day, and was very anxious that his identity should remain hid; imagine his feelings, therefore, on coming to a little township to find an enormous flag flying on the hillside. Feeling certain that they must have got wind of his arrival, he nevertheless sent an attendant forward to make guarded inquiries. A short time later this gentleman returned with the cheering news that the lady in the schoolhouse was spring cleaning, and after washing the flag had merely hung it up to dry.

For the Children. A story is told of King Edward when a child, showing how kind-hearted he was, if his sense of proportion was somewhat distorted. When Balmoral Castle was in process of building a fire broke out in a workman's cottage, they had the gratification of being returned by a very grimy, smoky prince in his shirt sleeves.

Prince of Wales went to a neighboring shop and invested his pocket money in what he considered necessary articles for the destitute children—a cap and an umbrella.

Gambetta was an extremely good judge of men, and he formed a very high opinion of the late King when he met and conversed with him as Prince of Wales. "He shows a decided taste for foreign politics. He knows a lot about them. He is well informed and shrewd, but he has not a keen or subtle mind, and I imagine that he would be no match for sharp American or for wily Russians." The King met Lloyd-George had emerged from the comparative privacy of an M. P. into the publicity of a cabinet minister. The King was quick to mark ability in any walk of life, and admired "men who dealt with foreign statesmen."

Nearly all the leading French politicians were introduced to the King, and he used to have long conversations with M. Clemenceau, M. Delcasse and others. This personal intercourse of ten accomplished more in a few hours than months of protracted correspondence through diplomatic channels.

While the King heard what men of all parties had to say, he was most discreet in keeping a non-partisan attitude. A great nobleman who was since Mr. Page had been a page at much concerned with the trend of the Church of England, urged him very strongly as "Head of the Church" to see me," said the King, and when he left the King, he said: "Bring your wife to see me." A few minutes afterwards the King's kindly recollection of his hat, and asked him if he should find it for him. "I am only looking for my mitre," said the King, with a smile at the evangelist-peer.

The same aloofness from controversy governed the King's relations to his ministers. Naturally, he had his personal likes and dislikes for statesmen, but he was remarkably free from prejudice, and followed all questions of the day with an open mind. As soon as a politician looked as if he were destined to greatness the King desired to meet him. In this way some years ago he expressed a wish that Mr. Lloyd George should be at a dinner-party given by Lord Tweedmouth "to meet the King." That was before Mr. Lloyd-George had emerged from the comparative privacy of an M. P. into the publicity of a cabinet minister. The King was quick to mark ability in any walk of life, and admired "men who dealt with foreign statesmen."

was married, the King arrived at the church a few minutes before the mother of the bride. Afterwards at Landsdowne house he remained the marchioness, with a smile that she had kept him waiting several years before, when he attended the christening of Lady Beatrix. Considering the enormous number of social functions the King attended, it was marvellous how exact his memory was for even small details. The power of recollection is of the highest importance to a monarch who has to govern his subjects very largely by precedent. When the ceremonies were being arranged, the King was able to criticize the program from a wide experience and clear memory of such proceedings.

HUNDRED WILD ANIMALS TO BE ROUNDED UP

Wild Animals that Have Been Sounded Near Sounding Lake
May 14.—M. V. Gallows, game warden, has just completed a round-up of a number of horses running in the hills of Sounding Lake. The outfit have the contract for the department of Agriculture for the round-up of all the wild horses in the district. The horses that will be examined for disease sound ones will probably be rounded up in the hills. The round-up will last several weeks. Attempts in the past have been made by private parties to round up these horses, but without success. The opinion is that more horses should be rounded up than any one can capture and that the old settlers and the C. & E. railroad should be rounded up. The horses are now practically wild and it is between two and three years ago that the round-up of these horses was attempted to be covered by the many of these horses are now to go to the Yukon by rail route in the rush of the summer.

RUSSIAN REPUBLIC THAT LASTED ONLY A WEEK

Story of Novorossisk Uprising — A Strange Chapter in History
The port of Novorossisk is situated on the head of a bay in the Black Sea at the point where the main range of the Caucasus, gradually sinking, becomes lost in the scattered hills of the Taurus Peninsula, separating the Black Sea from the Sea of Azoff. The hills that stretch away to the southeast are grey and barren, and unless the sun shines, revealing the deep blue of the Black Sea waters, touching into life soft shadows on the hillsides and down half-discerned clefts, lighting up distant glimpses of hills beyond, Novorossisk is a cheerless place.
The East is here and Russia is here, but both in meeting somehow cease to be picturesque. One has the impression that it must have been hard to discover keen life and vivid color in this bleak spot even in those days of the prosperity of the kingdom of the Cimmerian Bosphorus when a Greek city stood on the site of the present Russian town. There are hundreds of Greeks in Novorossisk today; merchants, petty tradesmen, cafe-keepers, and barbers. Their rivals in business are Armenians from Transcaucasia and Turkey, Russians from various provinces in the north and south of the Empire, and Tartars from the shores of the Caspian. The wharf laborers are Russians, Turks from Anatolia, and Georgians. The port is visited by large numbers of English, German, Greek, Italian and Swedish steamers, which carry away annually thousands of tons of grain—the product of the fertile soil of the Northern Caucasus.
Cut off by hills
Yet for all that Novorossisk has a drab and poverty-stricken appearance. It is cut off, as it were, by the hills, from the main current of Russian life, and though fourteen years ago it was made the chief town of the newly formed Black Sea Government, it seems to have been unable as yet to develop a vigorous and independent life of its own. The grain goes swiftly down from the elevator into the steamers' holds; stevedores, wharf laborers, and seamen shout in various tongues; dusky clerks file invoices and bills of lading; Cossack farmers pour into town to make their slow purchases; the Governor issues his orders; officials transmit them at their leisure, and when the sun sinks behind the hills of the Cimmerian Bosphorus, or play billiards in beer-shops with signs in English or in Russian track-tires. Of anything like organized public life there are in Novorossisk only a few faint signs.

Novorossisk was not always so quiet. Towards the end of 1906 the wave of strikes that had affected most of the towns along the Black Sea coast reached the port, all the wharf laborers and railway employees struck work, and large numbers of foreign steamers lay idle in harbor. The town was practically cut off from the rest of Russia. There was no violence, not a shot was fired, but business was paralyzed. The Vice-Governor, M. Berezniukoff, who was administering the province in the governor's absence, ordered his Cossacks to fire on the strikers. The Cossacks refused. Then M. Berezniukoff, thoroughly alarmed, though he was not even threatened with violence, left the town and hid in a railway carriage some distance along the line.
Republic Movement
With the collapse of the administration the danger arose that the criminal elements of the population might begin looting, and the Council of Workmen's Deputies, which was directing the strike, decided to take the administration of the town into its own hands so as to maintain order. The municipal authorities yielded to the council, a volunteer militia was formed and money was collected from well-to-do residents for the purpose of supplying rations to the families of the strikers. These were the facts that constituted what was afterwards officially described as "The Republic of Novorossisk." Perfect order was maintained, there were no acts of violence, and when the owners of the steamers detained in port wished to break their contracts, and main impetus to recover insurance on the ground that the port was the scene of an armed insurrection, they were unable to secure authoritative evidence to justify their claim. A week after the flight of the acting governor troops came marching over the hills from Ekaterinodar, the "Republic" and the strike collapsed without a blow, the members of the Council of Workmen's Deputies were arrested, and life in Novorossisk resumed its normal course.

Over four years have passed since all these things happened, but the trial of those concerned in the Novorossisk Republic was concluded only a few days ago. In all the strange annals of Russian justice during the last four years there has been no more singular trial than this. In the first instance four hundred persons were prosecuted, including the mayor and many other prominent residents of Novorossisk. During the preliminary investigation the number was reduced, and 106 appeared at the first trial. There have been three trials in all. Of these 66 were acquitted, and the remainder were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment and to deportation, but none of the sentences was exceptionally severe. The Crown prosecutor appealed against the verdict, and a rehearing was granted.
Severe Sentences
As a result of the second trial the sentences were reduced, six of the accused were acquitted, and the most severe sentence was two years' imprisonment in a fortress. At the same time the military court pronounced the actions of M. Berezniukoff and other officials incorrect. The verdict greatly displeased the officials, more especially M. Berezniukoff, who had in the meantime been appointed governor of the province, and although the crown prosecutor on this occasion lodged his appeal a fortnight after the expiration of the legal term the appeal was granted and a third appointed.
The third trial lasted twenty-one days. It was again established that there had been no violence, that the acting governor had run away, and that the result of the seizure of power by the Council of Workmen's Deputies had been the maintenance of order in the town at a critical moment. Yet the court not only increased the previous sentences on several of the accused to more or less prolonged terms of penal servitude; it sentenced Bodransky, had come voluntarily from abroad to be present at the trial, and the latter was at liberty until the moment when the death sentence was pronounced upon him. The charge against Bodransky was that during the strike he had closed the local court. In his defence he explained that he had merely happened to meet a Socialist agitator named "Comrade Lisa," and that she had invited him to go with her to close the court, and that "being unable to refuse a lady," he had consented. For this offense Rodvansky was sentenced at the second trial to four months' imprisonment.

The court added a recommendation to mercy, and the counsel for the defence appealed against the verdict. The victory of the Caucasus has disallowed the appeal, but has commuted the death sentences to penal servitude for terms of from six to fifteen years.

WHEN CANADA HAD BUT SIX MILES OF RAILWAY

Wonderful Changes Since Mr. H. J. Cambie Reached Ontario From England
(The Vancouver Province)
Did you ever permit your thoughts to pause and dwell upon the progress and development of Canada during the past half century? This question is particularly one for the younger generation of the inhabitants of this Dominion because to them the advance made by the country during this period of time are in the main to be learned by application to historical pages. The man or woman who dreams upon seventy years of life in Canada has but to give away to memory to summon a picture of the marvellous and swiftly moving development which has taken place within a lifetime.
Perhaps some of the great changes which have taken place in Canada in half a century cannot be better exemplified in a few sentences than by a reference to the circumstances under which Mr. H. J. Cambie, consulting engineer of the C. P. R. in Vancouver, journeyed from England to this country, or rather to that part of the country clustering about the Great Lakes, the St. Lawrence and the Atlantic seaboard, for there was then no Canada in the broad sense of the term as it is known today. When Mr. Cambie arrived he was but a boy and he came to but a very small Canada. May 25th was the fifty-eighth anniversary of his departure from Liverpool for Philadelphia en route to Toronto and when he remembered the occasion he fell into a reminiscent mood.
"Yes, it was fifty-eight years ago on May 2 that I left England for Canada in company with my parents," remarked Mr. Cambie. "I was only a boy, having left school but the day before I sailed on the steamer City of Manchester, a craft which was lost five years afterwards while conveying troops from England to India. The trip across the Atlantic occupied eighteen days and the City of Manchester was reckoned one of the greyhounds of the western ocean.

"Making 'the Power Travel'."
"In those days there were but three regular lines of steamers plying between England and America, not taking into account some few tramp vessels. The regular lines were the Inverness, the American line, which operated two steamers; the Cunard line with four side wheel paddle boats and the old Collins line with three vessels. No steamer had ever ascended the St. Lawrence river. We landed in Philadelphia and I well remember we could not proceed direct from that city to New York by rail. We managed to get by train from the Quaker City to Perth Amboy, opposite Staten Island from whence we went by boat to New York. There was no railway between New York and Albany and to get to the latter point we had to travel by boat up the Hudson River. We went from Albany to Buffalo by rail and from Buffalo proceeded by sidewheel steamer to Chippewa where we again found a railway, such a one as the younger generation never saw in this country. It was literally a 'one horse' railway. The rails were of wood, capped with iron straps. The road ran from Chippewa to Queenstown and passengers were carried in the old style English cars which had three compartments. When all the passengers were aboard the conductor signalled the engineer to 'open her up,' the latter cracked his whip and the 'power' tore down the line between the wooden rails as rapidly as its legs could take it!
"My first railway journey was over when we reached Queenstown where we embarked for a trip across Lake Ontario to Toronto. Such, briefly, was the manner in which I journeyed to Canada and yet I am not as old as Methuselah!" laughingly remarked Mr. Cambie.
But Six Miles of Railway.
"It is an interesting fact that in those days there were but six miles of real railway in Canada—the road between Montreal and Lachine," concluded Mr. Cambie.
Shortly after Mr. Cambie arrived in

New York Caters For Baby Trade.

There are perhaps two hundred table d'hôte restaurants in Manhattan where the price for a dinner ranges from sixty cents to $2.50, which are making a persistent bid for the custom of babies and doing everything they can to encourage parents to take their children, little and big, to them, as they may become known as family resorts.
There are others older and in many instances better established, which penalize parents for taking their babies to them. Those which favor the presence of babies, however, predominate largely.
Their waiting staff, from the head waiter down, has instructions to pay particular attention to family dinner parties and to make things so pleasant for them that they will return.
The feeling among the restaurant men is that family parties, which include babies in the high chair class are good advertisements and assist in drawing trade, particularly that of women.
