BORDER CITIES' STREET CARS RUN UNDER PROTECTION OF SOLDIERS

GERMAN DEMOCRATS AND CENTRISTS TO RESIGN IF TREATY IS SIGNED

GERMAN CHANCELLOR HINTS THAT PRESENT GOVERNMENT WILL NEVER ACCEPT TERMS

Philiip Scheidemann Characterizes Terms Presented by the Allies As a "Brutal Dictated Peace"—Declares Wilson's Fourteen Points Are Not Mentioned as Basis for Treaty.

London, May 12.—The possibility of a change in the Government of Germany as a result of the presentation of the allied peace terms, was discussed by Phillip Scheidemann, German chancellor, at Berlin today, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from that city. The chancellor denounced the peace terms, which he said represented a "brutal, dictated peace," it is said. The statement was made to foreign journalists in the former chancellor's palace, and in part follows:

"We thought that we Social Democrats were strong enough to prevent a peace by violence, but doubted whether the masses in enemy countries could support us, because they are less strongly organized than we. Certain circles in England and France are beginning to advise the necessity of common sense. It is too comic when President Wilson's fourteen points are contrasted with the peace terms. They do not mention Mr. Wilson's terms, but are just a brutal, dictated peace.

Another Government Must Sign.

"It is possible a government might be formed which would sign the peace terms, but it is doubtful whether the Allies would be satisfied with such a government. A reactionary government is out of all question, and a communist and independent government would be acting for the people of whom they would represent only a small minority. Even if such a government did sign the treaty, it would be just as impossible for them to fulfill the conditions as it would be for us."

Germany Now on Her Knees; Must Accept Treaty Terms Says Ind. Socialist Organ

Berlin, May 12.—"Even if important changes are not made by the negotiations begun at Versailles, there remains no choice but to bow to compulsion and sign the treaty," says an appeal of the central committee of the Independent Socialist party in the party organ, Die Freiheit, this morning. "Not signing," continues the appeal, "means the retention of our prisoners of war, the occupation of our raw material districts, the tightening of the blockade, unemployment, hunger and death en masse. It is the proletariat that would suffer the most terribly from the consequence.

"Peace, as hard and oppressive as it may be, is a necessary assumption for the possibility of rebuilding our social and economic life in the spirit of the revolutionary proletariat."

The appeal is prefaced by a denunciation of the severity of the peace terms. It concludes with a demand that the workmen of all countries unite against capitalism for a world revolution.

GERMAN DEMOCRATS AND CENTRISTS TO RESIGN IF TREATY IS SIGNED

Berlin, May 12.—The imperial ministry met today to discuss the peace terms, but no positive proposals have as yet been communicated to the Entente. Practical questions and considerations relating to territorial cessions which were transmitted to M. Clemenceau, president of the peace conference, today by the German delegation, were said to be not of fundamental importance, but of an explanatory character.

It is reported that the German democratic and centrist parties have threatened to withdraw their representatives from the government if the treaty is signed. The Neue Freie Presse of Vienna declares that Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace mission, has informed its representative that he is making every effort to secure the union of German-Austria with Germany.

U. S. Seaplanes Not Expected To Renew Their Flight Today

Prospects For Wednesday, Both Off Coast and At Sea, Are Declared Good.

Trepassey, Nfld., May 13.—Reports of high seas in mid-ocean, with easterly winds over the western half of the transatlantic flight route, made it highly improbable that the seaplanes NC-1 and NC-3 would take the air today for the Azores.

In this vicinity wind and visibility conditions were poor, but weather observers declared the prospects for tomorrow, both off the coast and at sea, were "the best for some time."

POSTPONE FLIGHT 24 HOURS.

Washington, May 13.—Dispatches to the navy department today from Trepassey Bay indicated that the naval seaplanes at Newfoundland could not start on the transatlantic flight for at least 24 hours. Commander John H. Towers, chief of the expedition, said heavy seas were running, and that a storm was coming down on the course to the Azores.

Hummed a Popular Tune While Facing Charge of Murder

Pte. John Cook Is Found Not Guilty in Toronto Court.

Toronto, May 12.—Although facing a charge of murder, Pte. John Cook sat in the prisoners' dock in the assize court today and softly hummed a popular song, while the prosecutor outlined the crown's case against him. Later when the jury, after an hour and a half's deliberation, found him not guilty, sustaining his plea of insanity, the only emotion he showed was expressed by a low-toned grunt.

Cook was charged with the murder of Mrs. Charlotte Huntley, whose throat it was alleged, he cut with a razor following a party, in which a bottle of Scotch whiskey figured at her home last January. Chief Justice Sir William Mulock, before whom the case was heard, expressed himself as satisfied with the decision of the jury. Cook was remanded until tomorrow, when an order will be made, committing him to one of the provincial asylums.

FOREIGNER SHOT DURING QUARREL DIES OF WOUNDS

W. Morar, an Ironworker, Expires in Montreal Hospital.

MURDERER STILL FREE

Two Bullets Were Fired Into the Head of the Victim.

Montreal, May 13.—Shot through the head by two bullets as he stood arguing with two companions near the corner of Mount Royal avenue and Franchoire street at midnight, W. Morar, 24 years of age, died in the General Hospital this morning.

The police have arrested a man named Hatchuk as one of the street corner party and George Bordan is held as a witness.

The man who is supposed to have fired the fatal shots is still at large.

According to the police Morar is an Austrian who has been employed as a steel bridge worker at Welland. His work required frequent visits to Montreal. Months ago, they declare, he fell out with a couple of men and whenever they met a long argument was sure to follow. It is claimed that Morar arrived here a day or two ago and met his erstwhile friends last evening. As usual he wrangled again. It was continued along the street and at the corner where the trio halted before separating to their individual homes, it grew hotter and ended in one of the party suddenly pulling a gun and putting two bullets through the head of the ironworker.

HORATIO BOTTOMLEY DEMANDS THAT FOE PAY COST OF WAR

Gives Notice of Resolution He Will Bring Before British Parliament.

BONAR LAW EXPLAINS

Says Economic Weapons and Occupation of Germany Will Enforce Payments.

London, May 13.—In the House of Commons, Mr. Horatio Bottomley has given notice of a motion declaring "that the peace treaty has not fulfilled the pledges of the British ministers in regard to indemnities, and in view of the fact that the main financial burden of the war has fallen on Great Britain no treaty is acceptable which does not provide for rendering to the enemy a bill for the entire cost of the war and arranging for the recovery of such cost regardless of the period over which it may be necessary to extend the payment."

Replying to a question by Mr. Bottomley as to cash payments as detailed in the peace treaty, Mr. Bonar Law pointed out that bonds for five billion pounds sterling were deliverable as on account of total obligations, but further issues of bonds might be required subsequently as security. The amount payable either in money or otherwise was not limited to the amount of the bonds, but must meet in full all the demands specified in section eight of the official summary any reduction which might be also allowed regarding the first billion pounds would postpone, but not diminish, the total amount of payments. Mr. Bonar Law emphasized the amount of five billion pounds sterling was not the sum total of the enemy countries' obligations. The powers to enforce that payment would be in our economic weapons and lengthy occupation of part of Germany.

LABOR UNREST DUE TO LAVISH DISPLAY OF WEALTH, DECLARES FORMER MAYOR OF WINNIPEG

T. R. Deacon, Head of Large Manufacturing Plant, Urges Greater Production of Live Stock and Farm Products in Effort To Secure Cheaper Food—Gives Evidence Before Mathers' Commission.

Winnipeg, May 13.—T. R. Deacon, ex-mayor of Winnipeg, and president of the Manitoba Bridge and Iron Works, appeared before the industrial commission yesterday, and said he wished to express his own individual views, not to offer any panacea for troubles existing, but because the statement was made that employers were offering passive resistance to the commission by not attending.

A great misapprehension, he said, existed in the public mind that all men at the head of business in this part of Canada had inherited those businesses. They had made their positions by their own efforts, he said, and he gave a sketch of his own career from a farmer's son in Ontario until he started the business in Winnipeg 16 years ago.

Mr. Deacon, stating that manufacturers in Winnipeg were restricted to a market of a million and a half people, said they had not only competition from Eastern Canada, but from the United States and England, too.

It was the greatest mistake, he said, to say that employers wanted to discharge men, and he asserted it had been scientifically determined that it cost $80 to discharge a workman.

Encourage Live Stock Production.

The production of live stock and other farm products should be encouraged, he thought, t'us providing cheaper food.

Uncertainty and fear as to the future was the cause of a great deal of unrest, but it rested with the employers as well as employees.

Mr. Deacon did not think any process could bring complete contentment on this earth. Conditions could be improved by state insurance, insurance against unemployment he would approve; but fraud would have to be provided against.

Replying to questions by Mr. Moore, he said he did not think it would be for the good of the country to eliminate private enterprise, as the whole progress of civilization would become stagnant. He could realize the handicaps and hardships to himself of competition, but did not think it could be dispensed with. He said his firm was losing at the present time, and expected to lose for a couple of years. Unrest was due to a certain lavish display of wealth, which he had protested against for years. He expressed approval of industrial councils to conduct impartial investigation of conditions having been laid before them.

Make Employees Partners.

Ald. George Fisher, manager in the west for the Scottish Wholesale Cooperative Securities, stated the success of industrial councils would depend on the workers having equal authority. He did not believe that employees having a share in the business was so fearsome a proposition as it looked. It may seem revolutionary, but it is not as bad as it seems.

W. E. Knowles presented a statement on behalf of the customs staff of the Government. It was stated that ten per cent of the staff received less than $85 a month, and 74 per cent only about $100. Federal employees should have the advantage of the Whitley scheme.

Matt Hutchinson, a returned soldier, a member of the customs staff, said there was a feeling of unrest among the men in the west at not being consulted in regard to re-classification scheme. He said there were hundreds of returned men unemployed. Mr. Hutchinson said that four days after getting into civilian clothes the majority of the men of the Camerons to which he belonged, were seeking work and could not get it. Most of the returned men are anxious to get settled as soon as possible.

Street Cars in Border Cities Resume Service Today, Troops From London Protect Crews

RAILWAY BOARD ORDERS OPERATION OF STREET CARS

Dispute Between Men and the Company Must Not Stop Service.

Toronto, May 13.—The Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway must proceed forthwith to operate their cars, of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board will go to the border cities, attempt to adjust the differences between the company and the striking employees, or failing this, will operate the system under the direction of the board.

This is the substance of the order issued today by the railway board on application of the municipalities interested, and more or less tied up by the strikes.

Crowds Lined Streets At Windsor Early This Morning, Expecting Trouble, But No Fighting Occurred—President of Trades and Labor Council Threatens To Call a General Strike in Windsor.

Windsor, May 13.—Manned with troops sent from London, the Sandwich Windsor and Amherstburg street railway company made its second attempt this morning to resume its service to the seven border municipalities, since the employes of company walked out on strike over a week ago.

Following the action of strikers and sympathizers yesterday in disrupting the service, an appeal was sent to Brig.-General Shannon, Officer Commanding Military District No 1, for a corps of men to maintain order. The men arrived at 7 o'clock Monday night 260 strong, armed with Lewis machine guns, rifles and 25,000 rounds of ammunition.

They were quartered at the Windsor Jockey Club grounds during the night and at 9 o'clock this morning were marched to the downtown business district of Windsor and then out to the car barns where they were placed on the cars and armed with batons.

Crowds consisting largely of the workingmen, expecting trouble, lined the streets during the morning but no fighting occured.

At a general mass meeting of organized labor, called by President Bell of the Trades and Labor Council, which is directing the strike, for the men, held in the Labor Temple Monday night, Mr. Bell declared his intention of declaring a general strike embracing twenty-one organized crafts in the border cities, should that become necessary. He councelled against any form of violence, however.

The situation here is aggravated to a greater extent in that the provincial contention of war veterans assembles for a three day session tomorrow.

AUSTRIAN TREATY GIVES ITALY ALL STRATEGIC POINTS

Section of Lower Tyrol Placed Within Italian Boundaries.

250,000 GERMANS THERE

Territorial Adjustment Gives Italy Security Against Invasion From North.

Paris, May 13.—In the peace treaty with Austria, now well toward completion, a responsibility clause has been inserted identical with that in the German treaty with the exception that the first clause providing for the trial of former Emperor William is omitted. The remaining clause makes provision for the trial of military offenders by an international court-martial. The frontier delimitation of the new Austria presents the one serious issue in the drawing of the treaty, somewhat similar to that of the Saar Valley in the German treaty. This is as regards the lower Tyrol, a section of which is detached from Austria and placed within the boundaries of Italy. It includes the cities of Posen and Meran and an estimated German population of about 250,000.

Gives Italy Protection.

The reason for attaching this German-speaking population to Italy is the establishment of a strategic frontier giving to Italy adequate protection from invasion from the north. The old frontier ran south of the Alps, with Italy on the downgrade and Austria on the commanding heights. The new frontier reverses this, giving Italy the heights and all the defensive passages. The former status gave Austria seven lines of approach, while Italy possessed but one main line for mobilization and defence. The new status places all these lines of approach under Italy.

As has been stated, the frontier line as drawn in the terms to be presented, the Austrians as the one laid down by the treaty of London, although the treaty makes no mention of this fact. Italy sought this line as a permanent strategic defence, secured its insertion in the armistice terms and now secures its inception in the treaty.

The Faith was the first large concrete ship to be constructed.

Guns Captured by Canadians Arrive on Steamer Vindetia

Pieces of German Artillery Are Consigned to Different Parts of Dominion.

Montreal, May 13.—The steamer Vindetia brings an interesting and historic cargo into port, consisting of a score of captured guns which were wrested from the Germans by Canadian soldiers.

Among the heavy artillery is a big gun which is labelled: "Second Canadian Division, 24th Battalion, No. 930," and this is consigned to the Victoria Rifles, Montreal. No. 917 is for the 21st Canadian Battalion, and it is addressed to the lieutenant-governor of Ontario. No. 260 was captured by the 31st Battalion (a western unit) in August last, and it is consigned to the lieutenant-governor of Alberta. No. 935 is the property of the 25th Battalion of Nova Scotia. There were others, but they were in many cases illegibly marked.

Ice Jam in Yukon Breaks With Crash

Thousands of Dollars Waged On Hour It Would Move.

Dawson, May 13.—Breaking the fetters of winter, the ice in the Yukon River, with a grand crash, began moving out of the river in front of Dawson at noon on Saturday. The historic betting pool on the hour of movement was again enacted, and thousands of dollars changed hands. For the first time in many years no damage was done by the breaking ice. The Klondike clean-up for spring and hydraulic operations everywhere now are under way.

WHEAT DISEASES NOT EXPECTED TO AFFECT TOTAL PRODUCTION

Losses Will Be to Individual Farmers in Certain Areas.

Washington, May 13.—Although the two wheat diseases recently discovered in Madison County, Illinois, and which previously were unknown in this country, may cause heavy losses to individual farmers, the losses in the area affected will have no appreciable effect upon the total production of this year's wheat crop. The first of the two diseases, said the statement, apparently is identical with the "take-all" or "white heads" known in many foreign countries. The second is flag smut of wheat.

PRINTERS REFUSE TO TAKE STRIKE VOTE

Winnipeg Members of Typographical Union Consider Such Action Unconstitutional.

Winnipeg, May 13—At a special meeting called for the purpose of considering the labor situation in this city, caused by the strike of building and metal trades workers, and the request of the trades and labor council that all affiliated unions take a vote on a sympathetic strike, International Typographical Union, 191, last evening declined to take a strike vote, it being deemed unconstitutional.

ITALIAN ISSUE NOW APPEARS NEAR SOLUTION

Basis of Understanding Is Expected To Be Reached Today.

ORLANDO MEETS HOUSE

Italy's Delegates Show a Greater Willingness To Make Concessions.

Paris, May 13.—The Italian problem seemed nearer of solution when today's conferences began among the Allied representatives here, and it was thought probable that a basis of understanding would be reached during the day. The Italian representatives are reported to be evidencing more of a willingness to make concessions. The discussions of the day began when Premier Orlando called upon Col. E. M. House of the American delegation.

The council of four held no meeting during the morning. No further communications had been received from the German representatives at Versailles, and the experts to whom the last notes from Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau had been referred had not yet reported. No meeting of the council being considered necessary, therefore the Allied premiers devoted the forenoon to individual work.

The Italian representatives have resumed complete participation in the pending peace negotiations, by appointing a member of the Italian commission controlling all communications with the German delegation. This commission has hitherto been composed only of British, French and American representatives.

SHOPMEN SUBMITTING GRIEVANCES BEFORE RAILWAY WAR BOARD

Demands Of Men Are Being Presented At Montreal Conference.

Montreal, May 13.—Members of the delegation from the No. 4 Division of the Railway Shops Federation, met this morning, with the members of the railway war board. This session, which promises to last several days, is for the purpose of considering the demands of the shopmen made a few days ago.

A member of the board announced this morning that so far the conference has been most satisfactory. Yesterday afternoon's session was spent entirely in the carrying out of formalities and preliminary discussion. This morning, however, the parties got down to business and began the discussion of the various points in the demands of the shopmen which are up for consideration.

In view of the fact that the United States board has been unable to find an amicable basis of settlement to date, it is feared that the Canadian conference may be similarly piled up.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF INCITING RIOTS

Lawrence, Mass., May 13.—John Baltoua and John Mich, formerly members of the general committee in charge of the textile strike here, were arrested today on warrants charging them with inciting to riot.

Joined British Army 65 Years Ago, Went Through Crimean War; Still Interested in Military Activities

Martin Forrester, One of London's Oldest Citizens, Has Memories of Florence Nightingale and Her Work—Came to Canada With His Regiment.

The anxious days of war have drifted into long periods of peace, and then out into war again, many times during the lifetime of one of London's oldest citizens, Martin Forrester, 8 Ardagh Apartments, father of Charles G. Forrester, superintendent of the London division G. T. R. This Crimean veteran, although 83 years of age, finds the keenest enjoyment in watching the battalions return to their native heath once more after a four-years' struggle on foreign soil.

The story of his military career is a long and varied one, beginning with his enlistment in the British army on September 20, in the year 1854. After a short training at Birr in Queen's County, Ireland, he was sent to Malta and Gibraltar, later going to Russia and engaging in the Crimean war for eight months. At this time he was a private attached to the 63rd Regiment, and now wears two medals won during that war. One is a regulation Crimean War Medal with a bar to indicate that he actually took part in the engagement of Sebastopol, and the other is a decoration awarded by the Turkish Government.

All Worshipped Florence Nightingale.

In connection with the Crimean war, Mr. Forrester speaks the greatest praise of Florence Nightingale and her work among the wounded men, who adored her. Since he was neither wounded nor sick throughout the whole of the war, he was not privileged to be a patient in her hospital at Scutariax, which seems to have been a regrettable fact with him.

It was not until several years later that he made the trip to America with his own 63rd Regiment, when trouble threatened between Canada and the United States over the "Trent Affair." After on 18-days' crossing on the steamship Hamilia, a passenger ship converted for the time into a troop ship, he was stationed at Halifax, remaining there until the year 1862, when he left with his regiment for London.

The troops traveled via steamship to St. John's, N. B., and from there journeyed to Montreal by sleighs, averaging a rate of about 50 miles a day. Travelling was very cold, and as each sleigh held but ten men, it was quite a difficult task to transfer them so great a distance without the assistance of trains. The right and left wings of the regiment arrived at different times, and consequently there was some delay in Montreal until all the men were mustered.

Found Varied Quarters.

From Montreal they proceeded to London on the Grand Trunk Railway, arriving at the old G. T. R. station. One company was quartered in the old exhibition palace and another found billets in Cameron's carriage factory, King street, the remainder of the men taking up their quarters in the old Royal Exchange Barracks, at the corner of Dundas and Ridout streets.

At this time ball fire was used, and the old Komoka race course was often the scene of some very lively rifle practice. Wolseley Barracks, then but a huge farm, on which there were no buildings, was also used as a training ground.

The old wooden barracks, then situated on the site of Victoria Park, was then a rather formidable fortification, with twelve-foot posts, driven in the ground close together, surrounding it. This barricade was punctured at intervals with small rifle holes, to be used in case of an attack. The south half of the park was used as a cricket ground by the troops, and along Central avenue were a drill ground and military hospital.

Went to Hamilton.

In 1864 the regiment was transferred to Hamilton, marching there along the highroad. Mr. Forrester had served his time in the 63rd Regiment by this time, and so transferred to the Royal Canadian Rifles. When they were disbanded at the time of Confederation, he joined up with another rifle regiment, in which he served until his eighteen years of army service was completed, in 1873.

At this time he was 37 years of age, so after receiving his discharge he moved on a farm near London.

For 35 years he has been a constant reader of The Advertiser, and although now he is away beyond his allotted three score and ten years, he is still hale and hearty.

The Olden Days.

He remembers many of the old citizens of London, and can tell when most of the old landmarks were built. He can look back to the days when the late Senator Thomas Coffey served his time as a printer in The Advertiser office; when the ground upon which the C. P. R. station now stands was a miniature lake, called Lake Horn; when butter was selling for 12 and 15 cents a pound and eggs for 6 cents a dozen; when most of the uptown district was a residential quarter, the frame houses being moved bodily farther out as the stores began to encroach upon them, some of these houses being in use even today; when at each corner there was either a saloon or a small store; when rent was from $8 to $12 a month.

Mr. Forrester is the happy father of three sons—G. G. Forrester of this city, the late Henry Forrester, at one time a lawyer in Buffalo, and William, a railway employee in Buffalo. He has one daughter, Mrs. McMahan, a nurse, in New York.

Eighty Long Years Without Repair, But Bricks Are Yielding

Jail Becoming Insecure, So Mending Has Started.

Eighty long winters and summers the old forbidding walls that encircle Castle Carter have stood attacks of the elements. During all that time they had not been repaired nor yet did they sag or crumble down. Of late years, however, water that had found its way into the crevices between the bricks had decayed some of them. It was thought that if something were not done the prisoners who attempt jail-breaking would not have to climb the walls any more, as there would not be any there to climb. This morning the work of reinforcing was commenced.

Minister of Education Has Approved Change of Hours

Believes 8 to 3 School Time in Interests of City.

A telegram from the Provincial Minister of Education approving the local board of education's proposal to open and close the schools at 8 and 3 o'clock standard time respectively, and stating that he takes the view that any action taken by the board of education along this line is done in the interests of the city at large, was received last evening by Secretary McElheran, and will be submitted this afternoon to No. 2 committee of the board.

The minister's communication finally disposes of any question as to the right of the board of education to conform to daylight saving time, and for the remainder of the summer the schools will open and close one hour earlier than under standard time conditions.

The question of submitting to the citizens the proposal to raise by debenture issue the amount the board of education asked for and was refused by the city council will probably not be taken up by the committee. The board's solicitor has been asked to give his advice in this matter, and until a reply is received nothing further will be done.

SOLDIERS WITH MACHINE GUNS GO TO WINDSOR

London Militia, First Time in Years, Called For Strike Trouble.

Once again, after an interval of several years, troops have been called from London militia headquarters to quell rioting which has broken out as a result of a strike. This time they have gone to Windsor, armed and equipped for vigorous action.

Older residents of the city will remember that the last time such a call was made in London itself was in 1899, in connection with trouble among the street railway employees, as it is in Windsor, and that the same branch of labor was responsible for the call that later came from Hamilton for armed protection.

While Brig.-Gen. L. W. Shannon hoped yesterday that the appearance of the military, ready for action, would be enough to stop any outbreak, he took care to provide the means of effective action if such should become necessary.

Two hundred and sixty men, 140 of whom were from the mobile company of the Canadian Garrison Regiment, under Capt. E. H. Shuttleworth, and 60 military police, under Major Hirsch, A. P. M., with two Lewis machine guns and 25,000 rounds of ammunition, left at 5 o'clock last night by the C. P. R., the three cars which carried the men being borrowed from the G. T. R. Two platoons of men who returned on Monday from Siberia and had not been discharged, were also pressed into service and added about 50 men to the party.

While military authorities made no secret of the fact that troops had been asked for yesterday and that they were being sent, they declined to tell in advance what time the train would leave or by which route they would travel.

MOTHERS' DAY OBSERVED IN CHURCH OF EPIPHANY

Mothers' Day was duly observed at the Church of the Epiphany, Manor Park, and in spite of the inclement weather a good congregation assembled. Evensong was said by the lay reader, Rowland Heathcote, and an appropriate address was given by Raymond Smith.

After the service a social hour was held, when a few of the children of the church presented an interesting program. The choruses, "Rally, Rally, Sons and Daughters," and "A Crown of Silver Hair," were sweetly rendered, and the recitations, "I Want My Mother," and "Some Bible Mothers," were carefully recited.

The children were assisted in their program by Mrs. J. Wills, who gave a beautiful rendering of "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and also by Mr. Jolly, who gave a pleasing vocal solo. During the evening Mrs. Husbands gave a helpful address on the "Observance of Mothers' Day," in the place of Mrs. Hardie, who was ill. Ronald Hart presided at the organ, and gave a beautiful solo, which was much enjoyed. The singing of "Home, Sweet Home" brought a pleasing program to a close.

POLICE FIND HOME ON FARM FOR AGED MAN

David Hyde Profuse In Thanks For Kindness Shown Him.

David Hyde, who a week ago asked Chief of Police W. T. T. Williams to help him secure a new start in life, left police headquarters today as the result of efforts made by the officials, to commence life anew on a farm a few miles from the city.

Hyde some time ago walked out of the Goderich jail, where he was a trusty. Following the roads he walked from Goderich to London, and was picked up by the police wandering around the streets here.

Dressed in the garb he was wearing when he left the Goderich jail, Hyde was profuse in his thanks for the kindness shown him by local police officials.

Serze Sidercoft Alleged To Have Stolen Girl's Money.

According to the police officials, Sidercoft is alleged to have made arrangements to marry Mary Snierzk, and after sending her message, he is said to have decamped with $70 of her cold hard cash and an overcoat. In court his remarks was that he would have a whole lot to say when the case came up for a hearing.

GIRLS' HIGH SCHOOL CLUB CLOSES SEASON OF 1919

Mrs. D. C. Macgregor, Guest of Honor, Lauded in Verse.

The last regular meeting of the Girls' High School Club for this season was held in the Y. W. C. A., King street, Monday evening.

The program was provided by one of the discussion groups known as the vocational group. A report of the work of this group made interesting reading, and was presented by Miss Helen Davey, the secretary.

A vocal solo sung by Miss Beryl Wainwright, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Davis, pianist of the club, was received with much enthusiasm.

A unique feature of the program was the reading of several little verses in honor of the guest of the evening, Mrs. D. C. Macgregor. Each of the well-known works of this famous Canadian authoress was made the subject of a verse in its praise, and then Miss Mary Kilbourne read a little tribute of her own composition to "Marian Keith" herself.

After such an introduction, Mrs. Macgregor addressed the girls in a way that will always linger in the memories of those who heard it. Her kindly advice, lightened with many a spark of humor and adorned with exquisite illustrations, aroused the intense interest of the girls. Their appreciation was fittingly voiced by Miss Wilhelmina Darch, president of the vocational group.

Invited guests of the evening who were present were Miss Mary Macpherson of the Collegiate Institute; Miss Reek, dietitian of Victoria Hospital, and Miss Mossop of the Western University staff.

Miss Beatrice Reid, president of the club, presided.

FIFTY WANT MONEY FOR HOUSE BUILDING

City Clerk Baker Has Numbers of Applications.

AMOUNT IS CRITICIZED

Some Declare $3,000 Too Little To Erect Good Residences.

Applications to the number of about fifty have now been received by City Clerk S. Baker for loans under the housing commission's plan, and they are coming in every day in continually increasing numbers. The local housing commission, which is to meet tomorrow evening, will probably make a definite decision as to what sum shall be asked for from the central commission with which to go ahead with the scheme in London.

Limit Is Criticized.

Considerable criticism is heard around the city hall of the arrangement which limits the amount which may be expended for the erection of a house under the scheme, except in special cases, to $3,000, including the cost of the lot on which it is built. It it pointed out that under present local price conditions a four-roomed cottage cannot be built for less than about $2,400, and that a six-room house would cost at least $4,000. Ald. Dr. L. S. Holmes voiced the opinion that the commission should revise its schedule, which was adopted at a time when prices were far lower than they are at present. Under the scheme as it stands now, he said, only chickenhouses could be built.

Done in Ottawa.

Mr. Baker stated that in Ottawa, where the cost of labor was quite as high as in London, contractors were building houses for considerably less than local contractors were charging. He has already secured a number of sample plans, and he believes that if competitive tenders were secured it might tend to reduce the cost of buildings constructed according to specifications drawn from standard plans, which could be adopted by the commission.

He went on to say that about twenty of those who have so far made application wanted to employ their own builders.

Herd of Cattle at Chatham Top All Records in Weight

Register Over 12 Tons--Three in Family Die in Month.

They are described as the best bunch of cattle ever weighed here. One animal went 1,550 pounds. The cattle were raised by Samuel Smyth of Harwich, and were bought by eastern buyers for export.

LONG ILLNESS FATAL.

THIRD DEATH IN MONTH.

The death of Mrs. Mary Ann Hogan is the second in the family within a week and the third within a month. A daughter, Mrs. Liddy, died just a week ago, and was buried today. Another daughter, Mrs. Fife, died in Crestline, Ohio, a month ago. Mrs. Hogan died of pneumonia. Surviving relatives are four daughters and four sons.

DIES IN LONDON.

Harry Rodgers, a returned soldier, died in London after an operation for deafness. He had been undergoing treatment for three weeks. He was a reservist, and just when called to the colors in 1914 his father died, and he was granted permission to remain at home. He enlisted, however, in the 1st Battalion, but was turned down as medically unfit. He enlisted again in the 186th, and got to England, and was sent home in 1917. A wife and five children survive.

CASES DISMISSED.

Charges of manufacturing and having liquor for sale, preferred some time ago against Louis Springer, were today dismissed by Magistrate Arnold. Willie Wong, who was charged with having liquor in a cafe, was also dismissed, and the liquor charges against Charles H. Cohen for having liquor in his fish market were partly heard and the case enlarged.

QUELPH BAKERS MAY STRIKE TODAY; MAKE WAGE DEMAND

Have Given Bosses Until Noon to Accept.

GUELPH, May 12.—The Guelph Cemetery Commission which was authorized by a special act of the Legislature, is now complete and is composed of the following: Guelph Anglican Churches, Miss Constance Cutten and H. Gummer; Guelph City Council, Mayor Carter and Prof. J. W. Crow; Gueiph Township Council, W. W. Buchanan and J. Barber.

G. W. V. A. DELEGATES.

The Guelph branch of the G. W. V. A. will be represented at the annual provincial convention at Windsor on Wednesday by Ven. Archdeacon Macklntosh, A. J. Abbott and Dr. Ross Wing. The later left for Windsor this morning, the other two delegates remaining over till tomorrow afternoon.

HOUSING COMMISSION.

The Guelph Township Council has decided to appoint a housing commission, under the Ontario housing act, and Reeve D. Cameron, John R. Watson and Ex-Reeve George McIntosh were appointed members of the commission. Several applications for the loan of money with which to erect houses in the township have been received, particularly from the college heights district.

EXPECT TO GET OIL.

A visit to the oil and gas wells near Hespeler shows that the drillers are down 2,875 feet. One thousand feet more of cable has been ordered. The drillers are now in the crystal sandstone formation, and expect to strike oil shortly.

BAKERS MAY STRIKE.

The members of the Guelph Bakers' Union are determined to stand by the demands which they made to the master bakers two weeks ago, and the bosses have until Tuesday at noon to sign an agreement. If the wages and hours asked are not agreed to by that time, a strike will be declared. Union officials state that a conference was held with the employing bakers last Wednesday, but the majority of the bosses refused to agree to the new wage scale and hours. The bakers are asking for $20, $26 and $20, and a 50-hour week. Three shops have agreed to the terms demanded.

PAISLEY MAN FOUND DEAD ON ENGINE

PAISLEY, May 12.—A message has been received by David Thomson that his son, John Thomson, who was a railroad conductor in Saskatchewan, was found dead in his cab at Radly. There were no particulars, but it is supposed that heart trouble was the cause of his death. Mr. Thomson was in his 49th year, and had been connected with the railroad since early manhood. He had just returned to the West after a two-months' vacation at the home of his father here.

Besides his father he is survived by four brothers, William in Idaho, Walter, Walton and Harvey in Western Canada, and three sisters, Mrs. Mahon of Southampton, Mrs. Bricker of Port Elgin and Mrs. Irving of Montreal.

On the arrival of the remains the funeral will take place from the residence of his father, Albert street, and will be in charge of Masonic brethren, interment to be made in Starkvale Cemetery.

Changes have been made during the last few days in two of the oldest established places of business here. Wilfrid R. McFarlane recently returned from overseas, and has taken over the mercantile business formerly owned by his father, W. M. McFarlane of Walkerton, registrar of Bruce County. W. H. Davidson has sold his hardware business to Melville Davison of Chesley, also a returned soldier.

TILLSONBURG MILLS AGAIN RUN 24 HOURS

TILLSONBURG, May 12.—A general meeting of the board of trade will be held in the council chamber on Tuesday evening to consider much important business. On Monday, May 19, the local ratepayers will vote on a bylaw to guarantee bonds to the extent of $25,000 of the Tillsonburg Shoe Company, Limited, which in turn will erect an addition to their big factory on Main street. With the passing of the bylaw some 35 to 40 new houses will be needed at once. During the past three months several houses have been sold to retiring farmers, which makes the local scarcity of houses very serious. The board of trade will go thoroughly into the provincial housing scheme. The council has now started on a big program of street and sewer building. A new grandstand at the fair grounds and much other municipal work will also be taken up. The Canadian Cereal and Flour Mills, Limited, again resumed 24-hour operations in their four big local mills, and unemployment is unknown in town. Through the energy of Harry Fabrs, secretary of the soldiers' aid commission, every returned soldier has been placed in a position.

MAN WHO FIRED AT VETERAN ADJUDGED INSANE BY DOCTOR

Duncan Thompson May Be Sent To Asylum.

IS IN CONSTANT TERROR

Thinks He Has Killed Man and Must Be Tried in Georgia.

Duncan Thompson, the aged Yarmouth farmer, who on Sunday attempted to shoot Frank Turnham, a returned soldier, in the Crown Cafe, was today judged insane by County Jail Physician James D. Wilson, and according to the latter, in all probability will be committed to the Asylum for Insane this week.

Cringing in his cell and shaking violently at the least sound near him, Thompson labors under the impression that he has killed a man, and must stand trial in Georgia.

"Life in the penitentiary is the only safe place, where I will be safe from them all," he shouts continually, pacing his cell, while at times he rambles on to dope, stating that "if they hadn't doped me I would never have committed the crime, and I would still be a free man."

Dr. Robinson of the Hospital for the Insane, is expected to attend Thompson at the county jail within the next few days, and it is unlikely that the prisoner will again appear in the Carling street court.

Word received from Frank Turnham from Detroit today stated that the burns on his face, caused by the blank cartridge fired by Thompson, were rapidly healing. Turnham expects to return to London next week.

COMMITTEE TO HEAR DEPUTATIONS TONIGHT

Some Citizens Object to Paying Garbage Tax.

LOT OWNERS PROTESTING

Want City To Pay the Cost of Opening Up Elias Street.

In addition to the Waterloo street paving issue, No. 2 committee of the city council, at its meeting this evening, is likely to have several other questions of importance to consider. Several deputations may be present, among them one consisting of citizens who do not use the garbage service. City Clerk Baker has had a number of inquiries from people who hold the view that they should not pay for something which they do not want and do not use, and although he has explained that the law, as it stands, permits of no other course than that at present pursued, some of the disgruntled ones may be on hand to argue the matter this evening.

A deputation is also likely to be present representing the owners of lots on Elias street, which the council is proposing to open up through to William street. They want the city to assume the cost of this work, which, they say, will cost them more than the actual value of their lots. However, the consensus of opinion among the city fathers is that to accede to the request would be to establish an altogether too dangerous precedent. Already sufficiently-signed petitions for sewers and sidewalks on the street have been received, and the general view is that it is too late to hold back from the proposed extension of the street, and that the owners of the lots must pay up and look as pleasant as possible.

In the Waterloo street paving question, the decision in all probability will depend on the report of the engineer. The fact that curb and gutter are being laid points to the probability that some kind of permanent pavement will go down.

SPIRITUALISM DISCUSSED AT CLERICAL BREAKFAST

Inconsistencies of Theories Pointed Out By Speaker.

An unusually large number turned out this morning for the clerical breakfast, as annual function in connection with the meeting of the Synod of the Diocese of Huron, which was held at 8:30 o'clock at Smallman and Ingram's lunch rooms.

The address today, was delivered by Rev. Dr. G. B. Sage on a subject apparently of very live interest, "The bearing of late psychical theories upon theology," this including spiritualism, reincarnation, limited God. Special reference was made to the "Twentieth Plane" and the "New Realists."

Inconsistencies.

The treatment of the subject mainly exposed the evident weaknesses of these theories. For instance, attention was called to the fact that although the statement is made that Disraeli is the re-incarnated soul of Spinoza, yet both men speak through the medium, Benjamin, in "The Twentieth Plane."

Concerning inconsistencies appearing in books dealing with the late psychical theories, one mentioned by the speaker was the fact that according to "Raymond" they smoke tobacco and have whiskey and soda in the spirit world.

Where Is the Booze?

Dr. Watson's Methodism on the other hand, is reflected in the Twentieth Plane in the fact that there is no reference made by the spirits who speak through Benjamin to anything of the kind.

Rev. W. J. Spence, president, acted as master of ceremonies. The election of officers for next year resulted in the appointment of Rev. D. W. Collins of Windsor, to the presidency, and the re-election of Rev. F. V. Vair of Otterville as secretary-treasurer.

NO BAIL ARRANGED.—Capt. Asa Raymond Minard is still in jail, no bail having yet been furnished. In order to obtain his freedom until his trial on June 3, Capt. Minard himself must furnish $5,000 bail and either two parties or four parties must furnish the remainder of the total $10,000 necessary for his release.

NO COMPLETE 18TH LIST YET.—An officer of the 18th Battalion, who has been in cable communication with the commander of the unit recently, stated to The Advertiser yesterday that a complete, correct nominal roll of the battalion is not yet available. A roll, he said, was received in the city by mail three weeks ago, but this would probably have to be amended to a considerable extent before the unit was actually ready to leave for Canada. Directly it is possible to compile a list which will approximately contain the names of all the men who will return to London with the 18th, the commander of the unit has undertaken to cable it to Canada, and when it is received, The Advertiser will publish it in full.

DEATH KNELL OF "PROFESSIONAL" RELIGION AS A POWER RUNG, SAYS TORONTO CLERIC TO THE SYNOD

Gospel of Reality, Which Stands On Merits of Its Fruit Is Needed—Churches No Longer Will Be Judged by Claims and Genealogy.

Declaring that with the convulsion of the war, the death knell has been rung of "professional" or "official" religion as a power to be recognized in the world, Rev. A. E. Ribourg, D.D., of St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, the preacher at the opening Holy Communion service of the Synod of the Diocese of Huron, proclaimed in St. Paul's Cathedral this forenoon as the gospel of the new age of reconstruction; a religion of reality, a religion that will stand on the merit of its fruits, a religion that is no longer a letter, but a spirit, quickening, leavening, purifying, beautifying, exalting and ennobling all times, places and circumstances. Because all business is God's business, he maintained that all business is the business of the Christian.

The church, he held, that is not willing to part with its pre-war ideas and meet the conditions of the new day in the world, is doomed. Churches will no longer be judged by their claims, but by their fruits; no longer judged by their genealogy, but by their good works; judged no longer by their ceremonies, but by their charity. The church that will be the most honored is the church which in its ideals conforms least to the ideas of the world and most closely to the ideals of Christ.

Church Must Expand.

In addition to its primordial duty of saving the souls of men, said Dr. Ribourg, the church must recognize the necessity for making its fruits felt in the community. It must attend to its business of establishing the kingdom of heaven on earth through bringing about kingdom of heaven conditions, not for a privileged few, but through seeing that equal opportunity is given in life for the many. The church must, therefore, develop a deep sympathy for the problems of the age.

The church, further, must have as simple and efficient machinery as possible for carrying out its program of service.

"In spite of the social service program adopted by the church," he continued, "the program looking to the enthronement of Jesus Christ in the social and individual life, and the making of the gospel of Jesus the state of the human race, we hear conflicting voices regarding the attitude of the church towards many of the problems of modern life.

Two Views.

"One view is that the church has nothing to do with such problems industrial, social, and that these should be left to colleges, newspapers and the government.

"The other group appreciate the care of Jesus for the neglected and for the physical welfare of the very least among men, and seeks to surround souls by the influences of upbuild.

"Schools, and universities can do much in regard to social, political and industrial problems, but such work will be ineffectual without the spiritual impetus which the church of Christ alone can supply.

"The need of the hour is for a practical religion that calls into play all the faculties of man and sets these faculties to work for the service of man in the community."

Can't Run Community.

While claiming that social, industrial and political conditions are the business of God and therefore very much the business of the church of God. "This doesn't mean," said Dr. Ribourg "that the church should undertake to run the community or any part of it. Some churches have made the mistake of attempting to do this. The function of the church is to be the friend and constructive genius to help to run the community according to Christ's ideals."

The church, he held, is on the defensive today. What is the trouble?

"The church has been living its own life, to increase its own membership, strength and organization. It has been self-centred, a centripetal rather than a centrifugal force in the world.

"Men who have taken part in the great war and obtained at the front new visions of the meaning of life will no longer be content with the husks of religion.

Demand Grain of Life.

"They demand the grain of life itself; ecclesiastical religion will not satisfy, but only the religion which is moral towards God and man. While the demand of the new age is for a church that serves, in the past," said the preacher, "the ranks of the church membership have contained a large percentage of those who have actually oppressed their fellowmen and controlled interests detrimental to the welfare and expression of best life of the church.

"Is the church of God ready to help as a leader in the work of reconstruction? Is the church of God willing to bring about unity between scattered bodies? Is it willing to give up pre-war ideas and prepare to meet conditions? If the church is not now inspired with the spirit of Jesus, then the sacrifices of the war have been in vain," he concluded.

The Bishop of Huron conducted the Holy Communion service.

Raised $53,145.

A grand total for all purposes, amounting to $53,145, has been raised by the Diocese of Huron, according to the report of the executive, for the year ending December 31, 1918, which was submitted yesterday to the executive committee for indorsation before being presented to the synod at the evening session today.

This includes the sum of $17,302.19 for regular diocesan purposes and exclusive of special objects, and receipts for the general synod apportionments, amounting to $24,938. FORMER TEACHER IN TALBOT ST. SCHOOL EAGER TO BE HOME

Lieut. H. B. Galpin Writes to Inspector Edwards.

UNREST SEEN OVERSEAS

France and Belgium Scenes of Minor Disturbances—Wilson Unpopular.

Inspector C. B. Edwards has received a very interesting letter from Lieut. H. B. Galpin, formerly a teacher at Talbot street school, who went overseas with the 55th Battery, and is now believed to be in England, awaiting repatriation to Canada.

Lieut. Galpin, in his letter, which is dated April 22, stated that the battery was expected to leave its billets for the base at Havre, France, on May 1 and 2. At Havre a two-day rest was scheduled, and then the battery was to embark for England, going first to Witley and thence to Bramshott. The news that a definite date for leaving had been set, he said, was received with great joy by the men, who had become impatient under the strain and disappointment of continued procrastination.

Some Protests.

He also said that in the early days after the signing of the armistice considerable criticism was leveled at Gen. Sir Arthur Currie because of the announced intention of sending back men in units instead of according to length of service. It was afterwards arranged that they should be gathered into groups according to the district for which they were bound, and in the case of the battery it was found that this arrangement left the unit practically as it was, all of the men belonging to the one district.

Lieut. Galpin said that considerable unrest was evident in France and Belgium, but that up to the time of writing only minor disturbances had occurred. Trouble was expected, he said, on May 1, when the mothers and wives of Belgian soldiers would receive the right to vote. He mentioned that although the population of Belgium was 52 per cent Flemish, the government at Brussels was entirely French.

Omitted Wilson.

A Belgian official, he said, expressed the view to him that the French were talking the council at Versailles to death; that the English were the only practical people at the council. He did not mention President Wilson at all.

Lieut. Galpin referred to a visit he paid to Paris two weeks before the letter was written, and he said that the people of the French capital were very bitter against Wilson, whom they blamed for losing the advantage gained when the armistice was gained. The expression, "c'est la guerre" (it is the war), had given place in France to "c'est l'armistice."

The writer stated that the battery intended to hold a final dinner and reunion at Louvain before leaving for the base, and he expressed the opinion that if it were held according to schedule it would be an event long to be remembered by the men of the unit.

YARMOUTH LAD IS BADLY GORED BY LARGE BULL

Ribs Dislocated and Body Badly Cut When Rescued by Brothers.

CITY STARTS COAL YARD

St. Thomas Purchases Anthracite to Sell at $10.75 a Ton.

ST. THOMAS, May 12.—Francis Teeple, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Teeple, lot 9, concession 8, Yarmouth Township, miraculously escaped death Saturday noon, when he was attacked by a large Holstein bull belonging to his father, and severely gored and butted about by the powerful animal before he was rescued by his two elder brothers, who luckily happened to be near at hand and heard the lad's cries for help. The little fellow was endeavoring to drive the animal into the stable, when it suddenly turned on him and knocked him down, inflicting a number of severe injuries. Several of the lad's ribs were dislocated and his body and face cut and bruised considerably, but no bones were broken. The attending physician has every confidence of a speedy recovery.

Mr. Teeple is unable to understand the cause of the animal's behavior. The bull, which is three years old, has always been an exceptionally good-tempered animal. He is inclined to think that the injuries inflicted on his son by the bull are more through playfulness than ferociousness.

CITY OPENS COAL YARD.

The corporation of the city of St. Thomas is now soliciting orders for anthracite coal at $10.75 per ton, in direct competition with the coal merchants of the city. ELGIN ROADS GOOD.

According to Superintendent Pineo, Elgin County's roads were never in as good condition as they are at the present time. Construction work this year, he says, will be confined almost entirely to grading and graveling with material from the Elgin County gravel pit on the Hathaway farm. The pit was purchased in 1918 for $11,000. The new loading and screening equipment has been purchased and is already installed, so that work will begin in a few days. The pit lies close to the L. and P. S. R., and arrangements have been made to convey the gravel in cars to its destination. A number of roads have been designated during the various sessions of the county council that were not already in the list of designated roads. They will all be included in this year's work.

Dandruff Soon Ruins the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails. —Advt.

DEATH OF PIONEER DRILLER AT BOTHWELL RECALLS FIRST OIL GUSHER AT PETROLEA

Hugh Smiley Helped Itinerant Photographer Whose Faith Brought Real Value of the Lambton Fields to Light.

BY VICTOR LAURISTON.

The passing of Hugh Smiley at Bothwell the other day, in his 81st year, serves to recall one of the most spectacular periods in the romantic history of Southwestern Ontario. For Mr. Smiley as a young man knew the great days of the Oil Springs and Petrolea oil booms, he helped in no small degree to put Canada on the oil map, and he was one of the three men who drilled what was probably the most famous oil well in Canada's history.

All that happened between fifty and sixty years ago. There are old men now living to whom the story will be new. For the romantic episodes of the early Lambton days have unfortunately had few chroniclers.

It was about the year 1857 that J. H. Williams of Hamilton came up into Lambton for the purpose of developing certain so-called "gum beds" on the banks of Black Creek, near where the village of Oil Springs now stands. Williams, who was familiar with the distillation of "coal oil" from shale, erected reorts with which he planned to distil the oil from the "gum" exuding through the ground. In sinking a well for water, he found liquid oil beneath the surface. There was a rush of speculators to the Lambton swales and hardwood forests to dig for oil when the news of Williams' discovery got out; and the rush was accentuated when a simlar discovery in Pennsylvania was noised abroad.

First Rumor Died Down.

The early drilling, undertaken by the most primitive methods and carried to no very great depths, developed no spectacular discoveries. A little oil was secured in a number of shallow wells, some at Oil Springs and others at Petrolea. Interest in the Lambton fields was, however, on the wane by the early sixties.

About this time—that is, in the summer of 1861—a three-cornered partnership was doing some drilling on the flats of Bear Creek, where Petrolea now stands. One of the three partners was an itinerant photographer named John Shaw. The partners had no great luck worth mentioning, and the other two for some reason decided that Shaw was the hoodoo. So, to get rid of him, they gave him an acre of land at Oil Springs.

Shaw, practically kicked out of the Petrolea proposition, went to work on his acre of soggy ground at Oil Springs. He had two good helpers in his drilling. Hugh Smiley was with him on the "kick board," while Jack Coryell turned the tools. The old kicking-in process of drilling, by sheer man power, was used almost exclusively at that early stage of the oil game.

Naturally, drilling was a slow and discouraging business. At sixty-five feet, where Williams had struck oil, there was nothing doing; and men advised Shaw to quit. He refused.

Going Was Hard.

Presently his money played out, but he still hung on so long as his credit lasted. Eventually his credit declined to the vanishing point. His helpers, however, stuck by him like the men they were, and would not let a few weeks' wages stand between them and the success of their employer's venture.

Casing was needed for the well. In those days, "Scotch casing" was used, made by the local tinsmith. The tradition records that the tinsmith shook his head sadly when Shaw approached him on the subject. But Smiley and Coryell went good for the casing, and the drilling went on and still there was not a show of oil.

At last a stage was reached where Shaw himself began to talk of quitting as well, after he had tried a day or two more. But in spite of his talk, he kept doggedly on.

It was on February 19, 1862, that the celebrated Shaw flowing well came in. It had taken weeks and months to "kick down" the scant 158 feet, a depth that a modern drilling outfit could make in a few days.

A rush of gas flung the tools high in air. Then a column of oil went soaring and roaring over the treetops.

The First Gusher.

No such gusher well had ever been known before in Lambton, or, for that matter, in the whole world. For a week the oil gushed unchecked. Three thousand barrels a day it flowed, filling a natural basin that covered several acres, streaming down the surface of Black Creek, and ultimately covering Lake St. Clair with a thin black film of oil.

Eventually a Pennsylvania man experienced in such things showed Shaw how to stop the flow. The great well was capped in some sort of fashion.

The news of the great gusher spread like wildfire. Speculators from far and near joined in the rush to Oil Springs. A dozen outfits went to work in earnest. Close to the Shaw well, a steampower rig drilled the Bradley gusher. To the east of the field, Black and Mathewson of Sarnia got a well good for 7,500 barrels a day. Probably a score of flowing wells were drilled in the spring and summer of that amazing, bewildering oil year, 1862.

At the start, the operators could not stop the flow of oil; before long the tremendous overproduction brought the price down to a figure where the oil was not worth the trouble of capping the wells. Some authorities claim that in the summer of 1862 fully seven million barrels of oil floated away on the surface of Black Creek.

Got Permanent Flow.

The days of the flowing wells, however, were singularly brief. The "top show" oil, as repeated experience has shown, is not lasting; and though a big production was secured, the wells lasted only a few months. The production of the Oil Springs field in 1863 was only a few thousand barrels. Later, by drilling deeper, the Oil Springs operators reached a formation where the production, though less spectacular, was sufficiently permanent to continue to the present day.

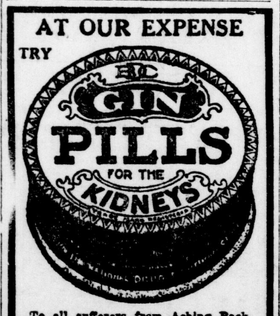

Shaw, erstwhile day laborer and itinerant photographer, had a few glorious months in reward for his dogged perseverance. Intermittent dippings of oil furnished him with lots of funds. In the boom days of the spring and summer of 1862, the ex-laborer, radiant in a loud-patterned suit, was a marked man in Oil Springs. For four months his well yielded lavishly. Then it suddenly ceased flowing. Shaw himself had probably made fairly well before the oil prices dropped to nothing; but according to the general story he was a trustful and easy victim for the many sharpers who came in the wake of the oil boom.

In a short time his money had vanished. He drifted to Pennsylvania, to Titusville and Oil City, then the great centres of the American oil development. Later still, he returned to the scene of his former greatness and eked out a precarious livelihood going about Lambton in an old-fashioned itinerant photographer's "car" or van. He died at Petrolea in 1872, in poverty.

Coryell, his second helper in the drilling of the famous well, was afterward quite prominent in the oil business. Hugh Smiley was, however, the last survivor of the trio. In 1863 he went to Petrolea and formed a partnership with Oliver Chamberlain. For years he was a prominent oil operator, and till his death was more or less identified with the fascinating business of which he had been one of the first and worthiest pioneers.

The site of the famous Shaw well can still be seen at Oil Springs, though all that marks the place is a slight depression in the ground. On more than one occasion it has been suggested that a spot of such historic interest should be marked by a fitting monument.

MAN WITHOUT CREED IS AS BAD AS ONE WITHOUT COUNTRY

"Is One Religion as Good as Another?" Paulist Priest's Question.

At St. Peter's Cathedral last night Rev. James M. Gillis, the Paulist Father, lectured on the question, "Is One Religion as Good as Another?"

He declared that he is heartily in favor of genuine religious tolerance, but that the modern attitude of indifferentism is only a bogus kind of tolerance, and that if the human race, generally, were to act upon the principle, "It makes no difference what a man believes," we should see the ruin, not only of religion, but of civilization.

"Many shallow thinkers," declared the lecturer, "prate of 'creedless religion' and 'non-dogmatic Christianity.' But you might as well talk of a backboneless human being or of a government without a constitution.

"Every constitution is a creed, and that much-maligned thing, a 'dogma,' is nothing more or less than a statement of a fundamental principle.

"The war was fought for a dogma. If it was not sinful to shed blood in defence of a political dogma, if we even glory in the fact that our heroes were really fighting and dying for God, when they fought and died for right principles, how can we maintain that it matters not what fundamental principles a man may attain?

"A man without a creed is as bad as a man without a country.

"If a man maintains that all countries are alike to him, that he considers China or Japan or Germany or Bolshevik Russia as good and as true governments as Canada, we rightly consider him unprincipled and dangerous.

"Why, then, not look with the same disfavor upon the man who says that all religions look alike to him?

"Will you insult Christ by putting him on a level with Confucius, or Buddha, or Mohammed, or even with Moses? You must, if you say that 'one religion is as good as another.'

"The fundamental reason of the spread of indifferentism is really the agnostic philosophy. Hegel, the German philosopher, says, 'To be is the same as not to be,' which is the same as saying that right is wrong, and truth is falsehood, and white is black. If you adopt Hegel's philosophy you are entitled to say that the man who says 'no' while you say 'yes' on the same topic, at the same time, is as right and true as you."

The lecture tonight is on "What Think You of Christ?"

Aged Resident of Ingersoll Passes; Born in England

Milk Producers Asked To Take Action on Sunday Question.

INGERSOLL, May 12.—Death claimed an old and respected resident in the person of Mrs. William Stevens, who passed away at the family residence, Victoria street, aged 87 years. She was born in England and had resided here for many years. About a year ago, Mr. and Mrs. Stevens celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary. Besides the husband, she is survived by two daughters and one son, Mrs. Isaac Smith, Ingersoll, Mrs. A. Bowling, Stratford, and W. A. Stevens, Ingersoll.

At a meeting of the executive of the Ingersoll Milk and Cream Producers' Association held in the council chamber, a letter was read from the Lord's Day Alliance, in which it was stated that the milk condensers would be represented before the attorney-general's department on May 15th to ask for the privilege of taking in milk on Sunday. The producers were asked to send a delegate to show why this should not be done. A meeting of the producers of Ingersoll, Thamesford and Putnam will be held in the near future.

D. D. McGILL GUEST OF ILDERTON LODGE; ENJOYABLE BANQUET

ILDERTON, May 12.—The annual at-home banquet of Doric Lodge, No. 258, A.F. & A.M., was held in the hall, Lobo, the occasion being the official visit of Rt. Wor. Bro. Neil McGill, D.D.

Notwithstanding the rather showery weather the large hall was more than filled. A big contingent of city brethren motored out and made things lively. The second degree was exemplified by officers of Doric who were complimented highly by D.D. McGill on their efficiency. The big banquet, provided by the ladies, proved that they had reached the 33rd degree in the culinary craft. The toast, "Grand Lodge," responded to by Bros. McGill and Wallace of London. The toast, "The Ladies," responded to by Bros. Poad and Colerick of London; "Our Country" by Bros. Essery, city, and Bro. Lieut.-Col. B. Robson; "Our Visiting Brethren" by Bros. Robson, McGugan, Copeland and Legg; "Doric Lodge" by Bros. A. Ferguson, A. Blair and A. Fraser.

Fine solos were given by Bros. Innes, Hastler and Coles of the city.

NO EARLY POTATOES.

In some sections a lot of seeding is still to be done, as the heavy rains of the past week flooded the low lying land. This is said by many farmers to be the most backward spring in many years. Some cattle have been out to pasture, but many are still stabled. Fall wheat is looking well on the well-drained land, but the cool weather has retarded the growth of grass, and very little of the spring sown grain is yet to be seen above the ground. No early potatoes are expected this year. Prospects are bright if warmer weather comes soon.

GOOD PRICES AT SALE.

The clearing auction sale of Peter McIntyre at Ivan brought good prices. One team of heavy Clydesdale horses brought $390; a driving horse, $136; milk cows, $126; two-year-old steers, $105 each; sow with nine pigs, $143; and other stock sold well. Mr. Hielan, a returned soldier, has purchased the front 50 acres of the farm. The remaining 50 acres has been purchased by Robt. Weir of Ivan.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

SENDING TROOPS TO THE BORDER

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I note in tonight's issue, in glaring headlines, that the mayors of the border cities had asked for the military to quell riots in Windsor district, and also that Brig.-Gen. Shannon was going to comply. So that is the reason the officers at the heights wanted us returned men to join the mobile company, was it? To go out and shoot some of our pals down who fought with us in France, and also who at one time or other belonged to the unions, we now do. So Canada's soldier-citizens are to be used by Canada's mayors to fill the pockets of a bunch of money-grubbing Americans, for the border cities railway is owned by the Detroit United Railway, which has been notorious as a low-paying concern for years. So the famed soldiers of Canada are to be taken to Windsor so as the D. U. R. can use its American strike-breakers from 50 cities to run its cars to pile up profits for the D. U. R. shareholders, practically all of whom live and spend them in the United States. Why don't the mayors of said cities see that the Canadian workmen are paid a decent living wage to keep their homes and families, and they wouldn't be troubled with strikes? It is the same, I suppose, as will be done in London and elsewhere. The depot company will be used for hammering the heads of the workingman who is trying to better his position and keeping in a nice, fat job some fussy, old officer, who won't try to get out and earn a living so long as he can get his Government pay. Why did we need to come home from the war and begin to pay taxes to keep these same fellows in uniform and cushy jobs (more often those who never saw France), is the question many a returned man is debating. It's time all the hangover is cleared out at the heights and all the other depots. We don't need troops now (for home defence). We went voluntarily enough when we were needed, and, as for using the returned men, who joined the mobile company or any other section of the home forces, isn't it about time people called a halt to filling the pockets of an American concern with Canadian money? Let's keep it home and get rid of this mob who seek to run all the Canadian utilities to the benefit of American shareholders and of Canadian workingmen's detriment.

Former overseas soldiers do not wish to be associated in any military expedition against men who are asking fair working conditions. Seems as if the patriotism of Canadians vanished with the armistice, and to give all our money to Yankeeland is the cry. Yours respectfully,

R. L. BUSH,
Late 2nd Machine Gun Battalion, France.

JOBS OR RECEPTIONS?

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

One notes with amusement the statement of an officer, that there will be an awful row if the 15th do not get their welcome. Well, I will warrant, not half as much as there will be if they do. There is much criticism among returned men now of the treatment of certain heroic battalions which at the present time are about 70 per cent M. S. A. men (draftees), who joined their battalion about the time the armistice was signed. The only thing the boys think these receptions generally give a few local orators a chance to "spout" and the colonel to say "my boys." Same boys not thanking him inwardly for his trouble. Many a time in France the colonel was cursed for his eternal inspections with shining brass which enabled Fritz to see us better, and you will see all the colonels, would-be ones, and home guards on parade then. If the money spent on these receptions was used to get jobs for the boys (who really belong to the battalions) and to those of other battalions who have returned, there would be more gratitude. We don't want the receptions and the long-winded speeches. We only want our discharges and our jobs, after which we can purchase our own meals. We do not want people to think we don't appreciate the ladies' efforts, but let them do by all as they are doing with a few. All or none is a good motto. And the 1915 volunteer (stie) is generally the reaper. Long live the old boys. The bunk handed by the colonel of a lately returned unit made a fellow weep after losses of good pals sustained through the bull-headedness of said officer. Ask the private soldiers about their colonel. They won't make him such a prince as the banquet parties do, you can bet. Many a pal is dead today, and the colonel is damned for his loss, and he gets $2,500 for his pension and the private $500. Such is a grateful country.

THAT GREENWICH BRAINSTORM.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

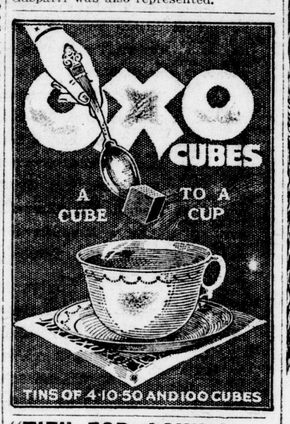

As if London, Ontario, had not already made itself sufficiently ridiculous through its continued and ill-advised daylight-saving propaganda, even after the city council voted to revert to Eastern Standard time, we have certain interests in the city trying to drag in the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, England, in favor of this new "fast" time. They have unearthed the rare "find" that Greenwich is running on daylight-saving time, and therefore, presumably it is now the legal time in Canada. Another "startling" discovery is that the C. P. R. Railway gets its time directly from England. It thus, I suppose, gets its time at first hand—where it is made—if we are to believe the sensational propaganda of these flag-flappers, who would have us ruled, even in the matter of time, through Downing street. Be it known to all and sundry, therefore—and any others included—that Downing street nor the Greenwich Observatory has anything to do with fixing our time standards. We have the same sun here and the same uniform rotation of the earth, and the Government of Canada is supreme in dealing with purely Canadian affairs. Many years ago it adopted standard R. R. time, or "zone" time as it is called, changing every fifteen degrees, by one hour of time, as we travel from east to west. With our long stretches of territory from ocean to ocean, the change was most desirable, as previous to the adoption of Standard time, cities, towns and hamlets only a few miles apart had each its own mean solar time, and which was official as affecting contracts and public documents generally. Now this Standard time is still the legal time in Canada, as it has never been repealed or superceded. Granted even that Greenwich, England, has adopted daylight-saving time for the summer months as a local experiment and as part of a national war measure, is that any reason why all the standard meridians numbering from there east and west should be changed by 15 degrees, or one hour of time?

We, in London, are in the Eastern Standard time zone, and the time for the whole zone is the mean time of the 75th meridian. For the stretch of country to the east, this time is obviously too slow, while it is too fast for places to the west, such as London, where it is nearly half-an-hour ahead of local mean time. Thus London is, in the matter of time at least "faster" than many other places to the east, and should reasonably be satisfied with Standard time, if they are satisfied. But this Greenwich "discovery" gets my goat! We have sent for a town-planning expert, when we might better have secured the services of a mental expert qualified to investigate the peculiar psychology of the origin and contagious character of "brainstorms" as affecting communities.

How To Bathe Face To Remove Wrinkles

Since its remarkable astringent and tonic properties became known, clever women all over the country have been using the saxolite face bath to "tone up" their faces, remove wrinkles and draw flabby checks and neck back to normal. After using the solution, the face immediately feels much firmer. The skin tightens evenly all over the face, thus reducing lines and sagginess. The formula is: Powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint.

These ingredients are, of course, perfectmly harmless, and there is no difficulty in obtaining them at any drug store.—Advt.

A FINE TREATMENT FOR WEAK NERVES

How would you like to have a set of nerves like steel, able to stand up under any kind of a strain? Wouldn't it be great to be so chockful of ginger all the time that trouble fell off your mind like water off a duck's back, so you could go to sleep at night as soon as your head hit the feathers, and bound out again in the morning at the first tap of the bell, feeling you were able to get somewhere in your business that day.

Lots of people fuss around all day like a hen on a hot cake, but never light any place. They are nervous, flighty, fretful and can't get right down to brass tacks. There is something wrong at one time or another with almost every organ in their bodies, and it's all nerves—nerves—nerves; they're keyed up like a fiddle string, and, like a ship without a compass, can't make port.

If you are out of sorts, run down, losing confidence, have nervous dyspepsia, blues, can't concentrate your mind or have that "don't care a hang" feeling so common to nervous people, your nerve cells are starving, and here's a test worth trying on them. Take a little Ferro-Peptine tablet, wait ten minutes and see yourself pick up. Ferro-Peptine tablets go right to the spot, start the digestive organs to working, send the blood coursing through your veins to feed the famished nerve cells. Then you brighten up, put on a smile and feel as happy as a clam at high tide. Ferro-Peptine tablets are harmless, easy to take, inexpensive, and the Standard Drug Company or any other good druggist will supply you. Every package carries a printed guarantee of money back if not satisfied. Ap.15,24

Wm. W. Sutherland Says Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Otter Lake Veteran Accounts for His Splendid Health—74 Years of Age and Going Strong.

Otter Lake, Que., May 12.—(Special.)—Seventy-four years of age, but still far from an old man, William W. Sutherland, a well-known resident here, claims that he owes his good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was a sufferer from rheumatism," Mr. Sutherland states. "It started from a cold, and for three years everything appeared to go wrong. I had stiffness of the joints, my muscles cramped and my back ached badly.

"My sleep was broken, I had frequent headaches, and I often had heart flutterings. I was always tired and nervous and often dizzy; I had floating specks before my eyes, and my memory was failing. Then came the rheumatism, and convinced that my kidneys were the cause, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"It took three and a half boxes to fix me up, but I keep Dodd's Kidney Pills always in the house, and use them occasionally to tone up my kidneys."

If you wish to keep young to a good old age, Dodd's Kidney Pills will help you do it. Ask your neighbors about them.

CAPITAL AND LABOR OF WINNIPEG STATE VIEWS TO INDUSTRIAL PROBE

WINNIPEG, Man., May 12.—This morning's session of the industrial relations commission disclosed mounting interest in the proceedings on the part of the workers and employers. David E. Peddie, locomotive engineer, thought that provision for an economic rental on land would make it possible for capital and labor to co-operate in the interest of production.

Ex-Mayor T. R. Deacon of Winnipeg, president of the Manitoba Bridge Works, stated that his business was operating at a loss, and expected to lose for the next couple of years. He believed that the bulk of the profits went to the middleman, and not to the manufacturers.

Ald. George Fisher, manager of the Scottish Wholesale Co-operative Societies, said the success of councils depended on the worker having equal authority. The morning session ended with the presentation by W. E. Knowles and Matt Hutchinson of a statement outlining the grievances of the customs staff of the Government.

The commission will sit in Fort William on Tuesday.

REBELLIOUS AFGHANS DEFEATED BY BRITISH

LONDON, May 12.—The news from Afghanistan, where tribesmen have been attacking positions on the Indian frontier, was scanty but satisfactory, over the week-end. The British drove the Afghans from Ashrasiakhel on Friday, while airplanes crossed the frontier and bombed the enemy positions at Loidatta, with good results. The Afghans maintained their position west of Loidatta.

Equal Rights for Women

Every woman has the right to be as healthy, vigorous and efficient as her husband, son, brother, or friend. Nature intended woman to be unhampered and unhandicapped by any sex weakness. But, unfortunately, woman is very predisposed to constipation, not of necessity, but due to faults or bad habits of omission or commission.

Constipation is nothing but a bad habit. Taking purgative, cathartic, or laxative medicines to force the bowels to move is another bad habit—even a worse habit.

But Nujol is particularly suitable for the overcoming of constipation and its resulting evils in women.

Nujol is not a drug—does not act like any drug.

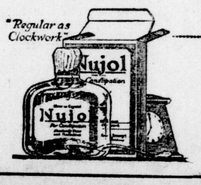

Nujol acts by bringing about a readjustment of the mechanism provided and intended by Nature for the removal of food waste from the body.

Nujol is effective at any age, under any conditions, especially during those periods and conditions in which the use of purgatives, cathartic or laxative medicines is not only harmful, but dangerous. Nujol is safe, pleasant to take, sensible, agreeable in effects, never forms a bad habit.

CANADA'S JOURNALS NOT GREAT COMBINE, CLERGYMAN IS SHOWN

Mr. Ivens' Criticism of Canadian Press, Ltd., Wrong.

ON DEMOCRATIC BASIS

Pastor of Labor Church and Journal Misunderstands the Situation.

WINNIPEG, May 12.—Under the title, "Slightly Mistaken," the Manitoba Free Press editorially says today:

"Rev. William Ivens, pastor of the labor church, and editor of the official labor publication of this city, in his evidence before the industrial commission said that there was a newspaper combine in Canada, and that this fact had been admitted by the editor of the Free Press in an address to the Winnipeg Ministerial Association last year. Both statements are equally erroneous. He has no basis in fact for either of them.

No Newspaper Combine.

"There is no newspaper combine in Canada. The Canadian Press, Limited, is a co-operative news-gathering association whose motto and practice is service, not profit. Every daily newspaper in Canada which feels able to take a daily telegraphic news service belongs to this association. There are no entrance tests as to character or opinion. Papers of the most diverse opinion belong to it, ranging all the way from the extreme radical Calgary Canadian (now deceased) to the ultra-conservative Montreal Gazette. There is, of course, one condition of membership. Newspapers who belong have to pay their bills, and they are naturally high, because the operation of leased wires from coast to coast, night and day, and the collection of news from all parts of the world run into a lot of money. But no daily newspaper which has a sufficient constituency behind it to enable it to pay its bills need forego participation in this service.

"The government of the Canadian Press is absolutely democratic. Every daily newspaper that belongs to it has one vote, and the officers of the association are elected yearly by ballot. The complaint that the 'large newspapers' control it is therefore quite unfounded.

"Here is an institution which is nation-wide in its operation; co-operative in its methods; operated without profit; open to any paper anywhere which has a constituency to serve, and administered and controlled by its members on a democratic basis. It should, by all the tests, meet with the approval of Mr. Ivens, but instead he reviles it."

GERMANS HAVE PLAN FOR NATIONS' LEAGUE

PARIS, May 12.—The German delegation has handed to the council of four the German plan for a league of nations. This plan was drawn up by Professor Schuecking, and the principal feature is an international parliament composed of ten representatives from each nation.

THREE-CORNERED DEAL WILL LIKELY BE MADE

NEW YORK, May 12.—An effort to complete a three-cornered deal for players will be made here tomorrow by representatives of the New York Nationals, St. Louis Nationals, and the Washington Americans, it was learned tonight. Under the proposed deal Outfielder Robertson of the Giants would go to St. Louis for Catcher Gonzales, and the St. Louis club would get Shortstop Lavan of Washington for Robertson.

SOCIALISTS OF GERMANY UNITE AGAINST TREATY

Forced by Pressure of Public Opinion to Modify Views.

WILL COMBAT SIGNING

Opposition Only Leads to Greater Fall, Is Warning of One Leader.

BERNE, May 12.—Press comment and other news concerning the peace treaty, as sent here by the German semi-official weekly news agency, suggest that a campaign has been started to increase German public opinion against acceptance of the treaty, or, perhaps, which is more likely, to give Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau manufactured popular support in demands he may make for alleviation of the peace terms. The closing of the stock exchange in Berlin, Frankfort and elsewhere, and the Government appeal for a "week of mourning," is taken here to indicate that there is a well co-ordinated movement to influence the German people.

VERSAILLES, May 12.—Herr Geisberts and Herr Landsberg of the German peace delegation, accompanied by a number of secretaries, will leave Versailles tonight for Berlin.

The departure of Landsberg and Geisberts is in no sense to be interpreted as a breach in the peace negotiations. These envoys not only have the important ministerial portfolios, respectively, of justice and posts and telegraphs, but are among the most influential political leaders in Germany.

Landberg is regarded as the brains of the Majority Socialists, while Geisberts is very high in the councils of the Catholic party and the Catholic labor unions. Their counsel therefore is required by the Government in determining its attitude toward the peace conditions.

It is understood that both the ministers will return to Versailles in case the peace treaty is signed.

BERLIN, Sunday, May 11.—Although the Independent Socialists at the outset of the discussion over the peace treaty adopted the standpoint that peace must be signed at all costs, the tremendous pressure of public expression, violent in its protest against the treaty's terms, has led them to reconsider their view, many of them joining the multitude that is protesting against the signing.

"Cruel Severity."

In the name of the Independent Socialist party, Richard Weller told the workmen's councils of Greater Berlin that such "a dictated peace of cruel severity" as the Entente desires to impose upon Germany, could not be a lasting peace. Therefore he demanded the assembling of congress of the councils to determine their attitude toward the question, and to appeal to the Entente proletariat to work against the peace "proposed by Entente world imperialism as embodied in the treaty."

Herr Mueller, another of the Socialist leaders, seizes the opportunity again to assail the old imperialistic regime in Germany, which, he says, incurred blood guilt by the invasion of France and Belgium, and the destruction of mines and industries.

Not Complete Downfall.

Arguing against the prevalent protests, Karl Kautsky, writing in the independent organ, Die Freiheit, says:

"Shall we sign the peace if it is not to be modified, or have we not any other choice? If it were a peace of destruction, a death sentence, as it is called, agreement to it would be suicidal. But hard as the conditions are, they do not lead to the downfall of the German people, even though they will make life terribly difficult. A genuine downfall, a physical downfall, would come, however, if we declined to sign the peace and reverted to a state of war. After a few weeks of fruitless opposition, costing millions and lives, we should be forced to capitulate."

WORKERS WANT FOOD.

BERLIN, Sunday, May 11.—Almost unnoticed amid the excitement incident to the receipt of the peace terms, and probably influenced by them, a movement in which the workers are receding from their earlier demands for higher wages and are striving to induce the Government to reduce food prices is gradually gaining ground. The latest organization to adopt the policy is the German Railwaymen's Association, whose representatives, at a conference with Minister Schmidt, agreed to give up demands for higher wages if the Government would reduce food prices.

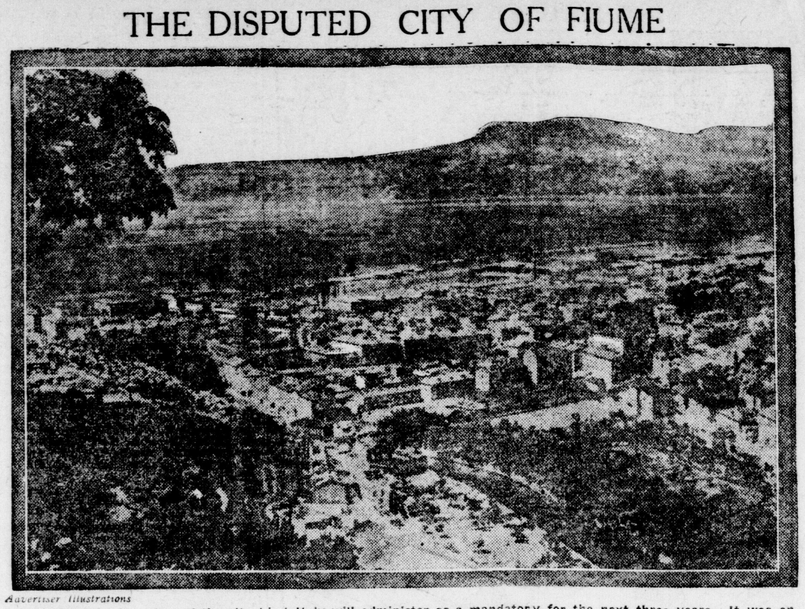

THIS IS DIFFERENT.

BERLIN, Sunday, May 11.—The Independent Socialist Government of the small state of Gotha declined to abide by the instructions for a "week of mourning" ordered by the National Government. The Gotha Government explains that it experiences no "bitter deception" through the publication of the peace terms.

BRITISH VOLUNTEERS LEAVE FOR ARCHANGEL

WINNIPEG FACES BUSINESS CHAOS

WINNIPEG, May 12.—With the object of averting the threatened industrial tie-up in Winnipeg, Premier T. C. Norris and Mayor C. F. Gray, with other men high in public office, are in conference today with representatives of the men now on strike and representatives of other unions declared to be voting overwhelmingly in favor of a general sympathetic strike. Employers are also represented. No newspapermen were admitted.

CANNOT SHIP WINES, BEER FROM QUEBEC TO "DRY" PROVINCES

Conditions of New Prohibition Measure For Dominion.

NO NATIONAL BALLOT

Revised Enactment Makes No Provision For a Referendum.

OTTAWA, May 12.—The prohibition bill to be based on the resolution of which Sir Thomas White has given notice, is expected to come before the House this week. The bill continues existing prohibitory legislation with one change—a change necessitated by the result of the recent plebiscite in Quebec favoring the sale of beer and light wines in that province.

There is no provision for a national plebiscite on the continuance or discontinuance of Dominion prohibitory legislation. Any plebiscites taken will be provincial and applicable only to the provinces concerned. The aim of the Dominion legislation is to implement any provincial enactments. Where, as in Quebec, the sale of beer and light wines is to be permitted, manufacture of such alcoholic liquors will be permitted within the province, but shipment to any dry territories will be forbidden. Importation of French wines, it is understood, will remain forbidden.

The only province which continues the sale of light wines is Quebec, and it is stated here the alcoholic content of wines which may be sold in Quebec under the provincial law is lower than that of French wines. Domestic manufacture of wines which may be sold under the provincial statute is, however permitted.

The bill will be in force until one year after peace is proclaimed.

FRENCH'S ARTICLES IN LONDON PAPER CAUSE QUIZ IN PARLIAMENT

LONDON, May 12.—Replying to questions regarding Lord French's articles in The Daily Telegraph, Col. Winston Churchill, secretary of state for war, stated in the Commons today Lord French was not drawing army pay or allowances and did not occupy any military post. As a field marshal he was technically on the active list, but field marshals in the past had been allowed very considerable freedom in regard to controversial field matters.

Capt. the Honorable Ormsby-Gore: "Do these articles infringe on the army act, especially the official secrets act?"

Col. Churchill asked that notice be given of the question.

ALLIED ARMIES ALL READY TO MOVE INTO GERMANY

LONDON, May 12.—Reuter learns that in the event of Germany not signing the peace treaty, which it regards as unlikely, all military arrangements have been made for the Allied armies to advance in exactly the same way as they would have done had Germany not accepted the armistice terms.

111 GERMAN VESSELS ARE HANDED OVER TO BRITISH

LONDON, May 11.—In the House of Commons at question time today Mr. Leslie Wilson stated that 22 German passenger ships of 168,889 tons, and eighty-nine cargo ships of 663,210 tons had been handed over to Great Britain.

Hon. Mr. MacNamara stated that at the time of the armistice fifteen German liners of 249,754 tons and 649 cargo ships of 2,251,439 tons were interned abroad. Besides these, 230 German vessels of a given tonnage of 91,231, had been captured by the Allies. The figures included ships operated by the Allies.

TORONTO THREATENED WITH A GREAT STRIKE

General Walkout May Be Called To Assist the Metal-Workers.

TORONTO, May 12.—Tomorrow evening the district trades and labor council will meet to discuss a general strike in Toronto to assist the metal trades strikers. The building trades league tonight gave its executive full power to call a strike of the eighteen unions of the building trades at any time it saw fit if the trades council indorsed a general strike. Toronto firemen meet tomorrow morning to discuss action through the failure of the city to meet demands presented to it last October, while on Saturday a monster demonstration of all trades unionists is being held in Queen's Park.

STOPPED AT BORDER, DETROIT MAN JUMPS IN RIVER TO DEATH

Sank Before Hundreds on Windsor Shore—Body Not Recovered.

WINDSOR, May 12.—Michael Garaelelia, a Detroit laborer, was drowned when he jumped from a Windsor-Detroit ferryboat 300 feet from shore today, because Canadian immigration officials refused him admission to Canada.

Garaelelia, who gave his address as 117 Salvay street, Detroit, was turned back after he admitted that he was going to look for work in Windsor, according to immigration officials.

The ferry Garland had just left the Windsor docks when Garaelelia rushed to the side of the boat and leaped into the river before other passengers could stop him. Hundreds on shore and on the boat saw him disappear over the side. The body has not yet been recovered.

RAILWAY SHOPMEN ASK FOR SAME CONDITIONS AS RULE IN STATES

MONTREAL, May 12.—The conference between the representatives of the Federated Railway Shop Trades of Canada, embracing all the railways of Canada, and a committee of the Canadian Railway War Board, in which the representatives of labor ask for a new schedule of hours, wages and working conditions, starts this afternoon. In addition to the delegates already mentioned as representing the Canadian district of the federation, the party will include Mr. Percy Cann of Winnipeg and Mr. J. L. Clarke of Stratford.

The new schedule which the delegates will ask on behalf of 35,000 men of the railway shops of Canada will be practically the same as that asked by the three divisions of the federation in the United States. It includes a 44-hour week, instead of the 48-hour week now worked, the raising of the minimum wage from 68 cents to 85 cents, and 20 days holidays each year with full pay.

EVERYTHING IN FORM FOR VETERANS' GREAT MEETING AT WINDSOR

Provincial Convention of Returned Soldiers Opens on Wednesday.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

TORONTO, May 12.—Everything is now in readiness for the provincial convention of the G. W. V. A., which opens in Windsor Wednesday morning. Secretary W. E. Turley leaves for Windsor tonight. A meeting of the executive will be held tomorrow morning, and the agenda for the convention will be drawn up and discussed during the day.

The delegates will be selected on the basis of the per capita tax returns, which have been paid to the Ontario provincial command by each branch up to the present time, was the statement made by Secretary Turley this morning.

The Year's Record.

"On these returns to date," he continued, "are shown 131 branches in Ontario, with a membership of 18,979. Branches to the number of 59 have been formed since January 1, this year. The Ontario provincial command have directly aided branches with an expenditure amounting to $6,629.59 up to March 31st last. The provincial secretary and members of the executive have made 269 visits to various branches throughout the province during the year.

"Standardized stationary and supplies have been issued gratis to branches to the extent of $3,201.39. The Ontario provincial command has, apart from the settlements made by branches, settled 800 claims for pensions, gratuities, back pay, etc., for a sum closely approximately $3,000."

Mr. Turley stated that there was every prospect for a full attendance at the convention. The new pensions schedule, housing question and amendments to the constitution, together with special claims of imperial reservists, will be among the more vital topics under consideration.

STREET RAILWAYMEN OF WINNIPEG REFUSE TO ARBITRATE CLASH

Unless Demands Are Met in Full Strike Will Follow.

WINNIPEG, May 12.—"Unless our demands are met we will strike."

This is the ultimatum which A. Scobel, business agent of the street railwaymen's union, delivered to the board of arbitration appointed to inquire into the dispute between the men and the company at its session today. Schobel stated that the men would not be a party to arbitration, and they would let the law take its course.

The demand of the men is for 70 cents an hour, eight-hour day, closed shop and a monthly agreement.

The company has offered to grant the eight-hour day and 53 cents an hour, and has declined the closed shop, and has asked that the agreement, as in the past, cover a period of twelve months, according to statements presented to the board.

BILL TO ASSIST SOLDIERS TAKE UP SETTLEMENT

Government Will Loan Up To $4,500, Repayable in 25 Years.

MEN CAN BE TRAINED

Purchase of Privately-Owned Land Is Also Provided For.

OTTAWA, May 12.—The soldier settlement bill introduced by Hon. Arthur Meighen in the House this afternoon extends the scope of the legislation passed in 1917, by which Dominion lands within thirteen miles of a railway were made available for soldier settlement, and it now provides for the purchase of privately-owned lands in any province for resale to eligible soldier settlers. It also enables the soldier settlement board to compulsorily purchase lands which are held to be retarding agricultural development.

Those Who Participate.

Those eligible to participate in the benefits of the act are members of the Canadian, imperial or colonial forces who served with an honorable record in an actual theatre of war, or outside the country of enlistment; or members of the Canadian forces in Canada only who are in receipt of pensions for injury occasioned during such service. The privileges are also extended to widows of such persons.

For the purchase of privately-owned lands in any province the soldier settlement board may loan up to $4,500, repayable in 25 equal annual installments, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent amortized. For the purchase of live stock, implements, etc., the board may loan up to $2,000, repayable in four equal annual instalments beginning the third year, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent, but no interest will be charged for the first two years. A further sum of $1,000 may be loaned for permanent improvements, repayable in 25 years, at 5 per cent.

Provides for Training.

The bill also provides for agricultural training for those eligible soldiers who are not ready to go immediately on the land, and for the payment of allowances for subsistence for the settler and his dependents during the time of training. This training may be at a training centre specially equipped or with specially selected farmers. Instructors and inspectors of the board will visit and assist settlers who participate in the benefits of the act.

With regard to the compulsory purchase of land, the bill provides that a "settlement area" shall be established only in districts wherein by reason of lands remaining undeveloped, agricultural production is being retarded.

The board shall be the sole judge of this.

A settlement area shall be considered established when the soldier settlement board has gazetted such establishments. Within 30 days thereafter each owner of a block of land within such settlement area shall file with the board a return naming the price at which he is willing to sell, and such other arrangements as shall be requested. Provision is made, in case of resistance, for forcible possession.

May Take Crown Lands.

The board may also arrange with the government of any province for acquiring any crown or other provincial lands in such province. Settlement on such lands will be, as nearly as possible, upon the same terms and conditions as those which are provided with respect to settlers to whom the board shall sell lands acquired by it. The board may acquire from the crown Indian lands which under the Indian act may be validly released or surrendered.

The soldier grant will not be made to any settler who has secured land from the board by purchase, or has secured an advance of money for the clearing of encumbrances or the improvement of any land, or is the owner in whole or in part of agricultural land of the value of $5,000. Conversely, the board may not sell lands to any settler who has obtained a soldier grant, or has secured advances of money for the clearing of encumbrances on land owned by him, or who is the owner of agricultural lands which are considered an average farm.

Five Voted Against Windsor Industrial Bylaw and It Carried Spark Plug Company Will Get Tax Exemption.

WINDSOR, May 12.—By a vote of 167 to 5 Windsor ratepayers today passed a bylaw to grant tax exemptions to the Champion Spark Plug Company in return for the company building a $250,000 factory in the civic industrial factory district.

Although the vote was small in proportion to the number of qualified electors, more than usual interest was taken in the election, members of the chamber of commerce taking an active part in assisting voters to the polls. The lack of street car transportation was a factor in keeping down the size of the vote.

The vote by wards was as follows: Ward 1—For 63, against 1. Ward 2—For 54, against 1. Ward 3—For 18, against 1. Ward 4—For 33, against 2.

SPARTACANS DRIVEN FROM LEIPSIC CITY

German Government Troops Now in Occupation.

BERLIN, May 11, via London.—German Government troops have occupied Leipsic. A number of the Spartacan leaders there have been arrested.

COPENHAGEN, May 12.—The occupation of Leipsic by some thousands of soldiers belonging to the forces of Gustav Noske, the minister of defence, was a complete surprise, says a dispatch from Berlin to the National Tidende. The Spartacans were only able to make a slight resistance.

A state of siege was immediately declared and steps were taken to restore the authority of the Government.

THIN, FRAIL FOLKS NEED PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate To Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and To Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves, our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitrophosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance, the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION: Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.—Advt.

What is Indurated Fibreware?

EDDY'S Indurated Fibreware is wood without any of the drawbacks which are commonly associated with wooden household utensils. It is made in one piece without joints or hoops, it will not splinter, will not fall to pieces if dropped, and is impervious to taints and odors. And with all those qualities it has all the lightness and the resiliency of wood.

Eddy's Indurated Fibreware

Washtubs, Pails, Butter Tubs, etc.

are made from wood-pulp, ground so as to preserve the long fibres intact. It is moulded to the required shape, in a single piece, under tremendous hydraulic pressure. This welds the fibres into a homogeneous mass, stronger in texture than the original wood itself.

The moulds are then dipped in oil, put into huge ovens, and baked for hours with intense heat. This produces a hard, glazed surface, which is impenetrable to liquids, and which effectively wards off every outside taint.

The next time you buy a washtub, a milk pail, a household pail or butter tub, ask for Eddy's Indurated Fibreware. You will find it much easier to lift, much easier to keep clean, and much more economical than the ordinary wooden or metal container.

Rebuilding Plans Certain to Make People Think

The man whom the chamber of commerce brought to the city to make a survey of the problems of London, particularly our physical problems, is Noulan Cauchon, a Canadian, for many years identified with railway engineering. No such narrow description may be applied to the man in his present work, for while he tears up railway routes for cities and plans new ones which will make for utility, safety, better economics and art and more scientific methods of handling bulk shipments and passenger traffic, and while he makes plans for new cities, with areas set down definitely for the various departments of effort in a town, he has a broader conception of rebuilding which has its basis in a renaissance not only of material things, but of the whole civic and social system.

Some of Mr. Cauchon's ideas will be called revolutionary. His plan for a cross-town railway link may be regarded as visionary by ninety per cent of the London people who read about it. They cannot believe at present that it would be much short of lunacy to construct a railway line from Grand Trunk to Canadian Pacific, which would cut through between Colborne and Wellington streets in a fine residential district. They would think a municipal building raised above Dundas street and surmounting the whole street with street lines on either side moved back two hundred feet an impossible dream. The separation of the street and railway grades would appeal to them as reasonable; they may even think it a wise thing to plan for the joining of the two main railway lines, but when it comes to altering the face of the city, cutting streets in two, running a line above the house tops from north to south, so that all passenger traffic may be converged at a central station, which would also serve as a municipal centre containing all city buildings, as well as a public hall, they find themselves thinking away from the comfortable unaltered London idea of forty years ago.

But, says Cauchon, who and what is hurt by a railway line built on artistic principles being above the street? What matter if it go through high-class residential property? There must be money spent some day to make the city over, and when this is being done do not look too closely to the old conventional methods which are being scrapped. Come back to Athens, the greatest city of history, in which 80,000 people of another age were inspired to an ethical as well as an architectural culture that has never been matched. The city gate of Athens cost what would now represent $5,000,000, and these people were willing to spend it. Can we think of the mayor of London asking for $5,000,000 to construct a city gate? Would the ratepayers praise his name or seek the first convenient horse pond?

Cauchon might not go in for city gates. He might not want to make much of the customary civic centre display in a town-planning movement. But he would not put a great building on a street where it could never be seen when it might be put in or over the street where it would replace the diminishing point that is all the straight street gives. He does not believe in parks or lawns that restrict business growth in a business area, but he does believe in parks in the proper areas. And he subscribes to a definite zone theory for industries and the building up of revenue-producing railway lines for the city. Industrial development might come along the line of the London and Port Stanley, and further residential development along this line appeals to him, with a right-of-way for motor cars and restricted to motor cars that may run at high speed. Cauchon believes that the steam lines of the future must face the competition of the motor truck and the tractor running over special rights-of-way more than the competition of the electric line.

When London builds anew it must build with the realization that the territory adjacent to the city is quite as much London in one sense as the territory within the city borders. For this reason he urges that the city should strive to have intensive cultivation near the cities, with small farms for soldiers close to the cities and with the advantages of the cities for their children. The more produce grown near the cities the lower will be the high cost of living, and until the cost of food comes down, there is no hope that we shall have industrial contentment. He would have community work on small farms with the most improved implements doing the work of many and forcing the soil, perhaps by means of irrigation, and he believes that all farmers will come to the point where the growing of five bushels at a low price is more to be desired than the growing of one bushel at a high price. Machinery, he predicts, will bring about increased production in farm, and factory as well, and only increased production can pay for our war debt.

Among ideas he advances for the older parts of Ontario is a vast irrigation system by means of which production will be forced during the periods of drought. He has produced a plan to increase production to such an extent in Ontario that the whole war debt would be paid. His plan may only be vaguely suggested here, but let it be sat down, it looks good on paper, anyway.

The visions of this engineer are scientific visions, at any rate. They are going to set the people of London thinking. He may or may not please us with his suggestions. He will show us the possibilities and leave them with us. His report will be a reconnaissance rather than a set of specifications. He will probably interpret those plans at a number of meetings. He will tell us what Athens did, and make us understand something about what is wrong economically as well as with our present system. London should listen to his story, and endeavor to learn something of the possibilities of a city whose destiny concerns each citizen more than ever before.

Fiume and the Pan Handle

President Woodrow Wilson's ardent efforts in behalf of the Jugo-Slavic nation for the possession of Fiume and the strip of the Dalmatian coast suggest to a few Canadians the possibility of reopening the matter of the disputed Alaskan boundary.

The narrow strip of territory known as the Pan Handle, the possession of which was awarded to the United States in 1901, is something of a parallel for the interesting situation that threatened to jam the peace machine. Woodrow was insistent for the ethnical and geographical claims of the Jugo-Slavs, and the Yukon territory might be able to present to Washington some interesting reasons why the Pan Handle would be of greater benefit to Canada than to the United States, why, logically, the Pan Handle strip should be returned to this country. A free port, for instance. In any event it would form an interesting discussion.

The Trouble at the Border

It is many years since troops were called out in No 1 military district to quell strike disorders. The London street railway strike of twenty years ago was the last instance in which troops were summoned from Wolseley Barracks to give service in the city, although about ten years ago members of the permanent force went to Hamilton to assist troops from Toronto.

Violent outbreaks have occurred seldom in connection with labor troubles in Ontario, and almost always in conection with street railway strikes. The attempt to man cars with strike-breakers seems a more open defiance of labor than would be the case with an industrial plant, and furthermore the effort of street railway officials is to keep the wheels moving at any cost. The public usually walks, for safety's sake, and with only the cars and their new crews as targets wrath gets the better of the crowd, often the hoodlum element rather than the strikers.

If the Windsor strikers have a good cause they should not resort to violence. Troops are called only when law and order as constituted in the police force are rendered helpless. And the cause which resorts to violence may be the losing cause in the long run. In one street railway strike the carmen of London had a winning fight; in another they did not enlist public sympathy, and the strike crumpled. Mob violence never gained its end in this country, where the force of reason prevails. The Border Cities will be fortunate if the situation is such that the troops from London may be entrained for the homeward journey almost as soon as they arrive. Public opinion is the mightiest weapon to decide the issue.

The coming to London of the Canadian war photographs for exhibition in the armories is a notable event. The collection is said to be the most remarkable set of war pictures ever taken, and to record Canada's part in the campaigns in an imperishable way.

Canadian milling stocks are soaring to new high levels on the Montreal and Toronto Exchanges. Buyers look upon these issues as particularly attractive investments because of the huge increase in earnings. Wednesday's markets evidenced this when Maple Leaf soared skyward to almost new levels. Despite these reports of huge earnings it is announced from Montreal that the Government will pay the millers an increase of 25 cents on the fixed flour price.

LOVE IN A COBBLER SHOP.

[By Jane Osborn.]

There are advantages in having but one pair of shoes, for when you go to have them mended you can swing along to the cobbler shop with the debonair air of one unburdened by the bundle containing the other pair—if you had one.

For it is only when you are down to one pair that you will wear the worn pair to the shop and sit there in the old rocker in front of the cobbler's bench reading a much begrimed copy of the "Saturday Evening Post" for some time in July, 1915, and wearing—that is the rather dreadful part of it—the carpet slippers provided for such as you.

So Nathaniel in his well-brushed though somewhat shiny serge suit, his carefully tied though mayhap threadbare cravat, and last year's hat well posed on irreproachably arranged locks, stepped rather jauntily into the cobbler's shop, bent on concealing from the world any resentment that he entertained toward fortune for not having made him a millionaire, or toward his superiors at the "plant" for not having increased his salary more rapidly.

For Nathaniel had a mother and some sisters "down state" somewhere who had to be provided for, and living was very high in Burtontown, where his "plant" was located. You surely never would have guessed had you seen him that he was a man with one pair of shoes, a man crossed in love and fully determined since the one girl in the world could never be his that he would remain a bachelor for life.

When Nathaniel put on those old slippers he turned the rocking chair so that those who passed the cobbler shop might not see his face and recognize him. Not that it mattered much but he would rather not have had his associates at the plant know this detail of his poverty. And then—did not she, the incomparable she, live in a country place not far distant from Burtontown, and might she not pass in her limousine and see him sitting there?

He was just pondering the artlessness of a highly colored lithograph calendar, an advertisement for shoe polish, that graced the cobbler's wall when he heard a footstep on the cobbler's floor that somehow thrilled him. The door closed behind some one, and then:

"I want to get some—some shoestrings, please." It was the incomparable voice. It must be Ruth Blithers. Nathaniel seized the out-of-date weekly and began reading an advertisement for the 1916 model of a well-known automobile as if it were of absorbing interest. He felt that she was looking toward him. He could see the cobbler get the strings.

It would be a short transaction, he thought, and she would soon be out. Could anything be worse than to have Ruth Blithers see him sitting there, with his toes thrust in the worn carpet slippers, waiting for his one pair of shoes? Somehow he felt overwhelming ashamed of those bare stocking feet of his, yet there was nowhere to tuck them. It was an agonizing moment, but it would soon be over and then,

"Come to think of it," said Ruth, "I'll have my shoes repaired. Can I sit here? It's so convenient having them done while you wait."

Somewhat surprised, the cobbler pointed to a pair of carpet slippers that lay on the floor and to a little bench, and then cast dark glances from his Italian eyes at Nathaniel for not proffering his more comfortable rocking chair to so charming a lady.

But Nathaniel appeared to be deep in perusal of the magazine. He also appeared to be near sighted for he held it remarkably close to his face.

Thanks to the industry of that same cobbler the repairs were completed on Nathaniel's shoes in fifteen minutes, but it was the longest, most agonizing fifteen minutes that Nathaniel had ever spent. Meantime the cobbler's assistant took the heels from Ruth's shoes and replaced them with some made of rubber. Of course Nathaniel realized that he would have to speak to her. So, he looked up, but by that time Ruth was deep in the perusal of a sheet that had fallen from the 1915 periodical. Then occurred to Nathaniel the reassuring thought.

When he had met Ruth the summer before when on one extravagrant two weeks' vacation at a fashionable watering place—before he had ever gone to Burtontown—he had not told her at first of his poverty. It was the old story.

He wanted to "make believe" for the space of the vacation. But Ruth, whom he danced with at the hotel, walked with and swam with on the beach and in the surf, loitered with on the boardwalk and flirted with in the moonlight, had shown herself to be so much more generously provided with this world's wealth than he that though he felt that she returned in a measure his devotion, the thought of a possible continuation of the friendship was out of the question.

Besides, he could never let her know that he was not as well to do as he had pretended to be, so when she left him, giving him to understand that she wished to hear from him and mentioning that she lived now far from Burtontown, Nathaniel felt convinced that that was the end.

He did not even write to her, but when a little later he went to Burtontown to work he was filled one moment with the fear that he might see her by chance and then with regret that he did not. But to have her see him sitting there in the cobbler's carpet slippers was agonizing. Then came the light. She too had her shoes repaired while she waited. She too possessed but one pair of shoes. Then she was bluffing, too. No doubt she too had been spending her extravagrant two weeks' vacation the same way that he had. That was only a possibility still it gave Nathaniel courage and he peered out of the side of his magazine.

But Ruth, though she peered over at him when he was not looking, refused to permit her eyes to meet his. This Nathaniel felt sure was because she had felt offended because he never had written to her. Well, that was but natural, especially if she had really cared for him. So when his shoes were repaired he tied them on and left the shop and Ruth, determined to write to her that very evening asking permission to come at once to see her.

It might be even that she worked as a stenographer or something in his "plant." Perhaps she was daily under the same roof. For there were thousands of employees there whom he did not know.

He walked along convincing himself that this was true until after walking toward his lodging house for two or three blocks he felt distinctly conscious that some one was following a few paces behind him. He glanced over his shoulder, saw it was Ruth and then turned abruptly about and faced her.

"Hello, Ruth," he said, and Ruth, though somewhat surprised, said "Hello Nathaniel," just as they greeted each other on the beach during those wonderful two weeks of vacation.

"I followed you," said Ruth, "because I realized that you must live in Burtontown now and I at least wanted to know where. I didn't think you would turn and catch me."

"Now you know," said Nathaniel, eager first of all to explain himself, "you know why I didn't write to you. I thought you had all sorts of money, you know, and—well, I had put up a bluff there at the shore, and I knew a poor fellow like me couldn't marry you because you see I thought you had all sorts of money."

"Marry you," echoed Ruth with a funny little grimace. So you wanted to marry me?"

"Wanted to," argued Nathaniel, "you know I did. Only of course when I was thinking you had all sorts of money I couldn't think of it. Really it never occurred to me till I saw you there getting your shoes heeled that you could possibly be anything but awfully rich. Pretty good joke all around, eh? I suppose you took me for a young bondholder, too."

"Would it make so much difference?" faltered Ruth as they walked on through the main street of Burtontown. "You see—well, father owns the majority stock of the plant, and well, I'm his only daughter, but he has told me I could marry just whoever I pleased so long as I loved him.

"He married for love, and he wants me to, too. And truly I love you, Nat dear. When I saw you this morning I just left the car and told the chauffeur to go back home, and I trailed you to the shoe shop and got the strings just to be sure it was you. And I was afraid you'd feel silly and self-conscious sitting there in the old slippers, so I made an excuse to sit there too, in the other slippers so you wouldn't mind. And it was so funny I just wanted to laugh out loud. And you wouldn't speak to me, so then I got a little peeved at first, and then I thought maybe it was because you were so fussed so I decided I wouldn't speak to you, either—as to spare your embarrassment. But I followed you as soon as I could get my shoes on."

And it was remarkable how readily after that Nathaniel's rare ability was discovered at the plant. His salary took a sudden leap upward, and mother and the girls down state never guessed that Ruth had anything to do with it.

AN ODD WAY TO THINK OF IT.

THE CAUSE OF UNREST.

[Montreal Herald.]

High prices are the mainspring of the unrest that is everywhere manifest. If those who are now responsible for the fixing of prices cannot find a way to allow the people to have the necessaries of life at a more reasonable cost, then the people themselves must find a way.

SHOCK TACTICS.

[Westminster Gazette.]

"We are prepared at any moment to submit to the judgment of parliament, and, if necessary, of the country, our efforts loyally to redeem our promises."

DO AWAY WITH INDIGESTION

How to Purify a Sour, Distressed Stomach in a Few Minutes.

Let us talk plain English; let us call a spade a spade.

Your food ferments and your stomach isn't strong enough to digest the food you put into it, so the food sours and forms poisonous gases, and when it does leave your stomach it has not furnished proper nourishment to the blood, and has left the stomach in a filthy condition.

Take Mi-o-na stomach tablets if you want to change your filthy stomach to a healthy, clean, purified one.

If Mi-o-na fails to relieve your indigestion, rid you of dizziness, biliousness and sick headache, your dealer will cheerfully refund your money.

If you want to make your stomach so strong that it will digest a hearty meal without distress, and you want to be without that drowsy, all tired out feeling, take Mi-o-na; it should give you prompt relief. For sale by all leading druggists.

Thus the prime minister to Mr. Kennedy Jones and the two or three hundred other M. P.s who favored him with their views on indemnities in yesterday's telegram. We hope they like the answer, but an onlooker may be allowed to remark that it is early days for the prime minister to deal in hints of dissolution to the faithful Commons so recently brougst into a triumphant existence. These were the methods by which Bismarck brought the Reichstag into submission—the famous "shock tactics" of dissolution on dissolution until an assembly of the requisite equality was obtained.

THE WORKINGMAN'S BANE.

[Toronto Times.]

Chief Justice Mathers, chairman of the relief commission on industrial relations, said at Vancouver: "We have been impressed with the insecurity of labor as one of the great causes of the present industrial unrest—it is hanging over the workingman like a cloud." That is a sentiment to which all fair-minded citizens will subscribe. It is torture for the father of a family to be out of work and without means wherewith to support those dependent upon him. It is pitiable that a great proportion of the human race should forever dwell under the shadow of such a tragedy. A civilization which proved equal to the enormous task of defeating the Hun should not falter at the perhaps even greater task of placing the thrifty wage earner beyond the eternal threat of want.

AS TO PROTECTION.

[Toronto Star.]

If the advocates of protection will size up their case they will find it difficult to defend the enactment of tariff laws which go beyond their professed purpose of giving a native industry its opportunity to succeed—go so far beyond it as to insure fortunes to those who are favored, and make groups of men so strong that they can monopolize lines of trade, coerce and destroy opposition, and in actual fact, charge the public anything they like for what they sell.

The government that goes in for protection will be forced to see that it has heavily resting upon it the duty of protecting the public against injury from the abuses that grow up within the system which the government creates. So far in Canada obligations of this sort have been ignored.

IN STOCKING FEET.

[Hamilton Spectator.]

A Hamilton woman who went to Buffalo yesterday and who spent all her money for footwear and other things that appeal to the feminine fancy, gave an imitation of an aesthetic dancer when she arrived home last evening. She was forced to walk home in her stocking feet, reporting that a woman inspector in the Canadian customs department at the border had forced her to remove her boots when she was unable to pay $5 duty on them. She was told that the United States footwear will be sent her when she remits the duty owing on them.

The woman, who came from the border in her stocking feet, had to walk considerable distance from the station to her home, and was, of course, very indignant that she should be treated so harshly, and intends making a complaint to Ottawa. She admitted that the shoes which were ordered removed from her feet had been bought in a Buffalo store, where she left her old ones.

MAYFLOWER TERCENTENARY.

[London Times.]

In September, 1620, the Mayflower, a little craft of 180 tons burden, sailed from Plymouth Sound with 100 souls on board, bound for the inhospitable shores of the New World. After incredible hardships this little band laid the foundations of the State of New England, destined to become the keystone of the mighty structure of the United States. The 300th anniversary of that event is likely to raise to a high pitch the enthusiasm of the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race—now bound in inseparable brotherhood for the uplifting of the human race. Already a strong committee has been formed, under the Presidency of the Duke of Connaught, with Lord Weardale as chairman, to secure an international celebration of the event. There will be visits and return visits between prominent Americans and British politicians, statesmen, clergymen and all classes. At Leyden, in Holland, preparations are also afoot to celebrate the temporary residence there of the Pilgrims and their families.

DOCTOR PRESCRIBED VINOL

For This Poor Mother Who Could "Hardly Drag Around."

Glasgow Jct., Ky.—"I am a farmer's wife, and was suffering from a nervous breakdown—loss of flesh and poor appetite, so I could hardly drag around and do the work for my family. My doctor prescribed Vinol. It not only made me well and strong, but I have gained in weight."—Mrs. S. M. Gray.

The reason Vinol proved such a wonderful strength creator in Mrs. Gray's case is because of the beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates combined in a pure native tonic wine, which makes Vinol the most successful tonic.

Every Wage Earner An Investor

Every wage earner can be an investor in gilt-edged securities bearing a high rate of interest without sacrifice or worry.

The plan is so simple and secure that it commends itself to everybody.

All of us spend a portion of our earnings thoughtlessly. It is human nature. Yet most of us would be glad if someone would take the money we fritter away and save it for us, because we find it difficult to save it ourselves.

Make your employer do it by means of War Savings Stamps. Say to him: "I want you to take five per cent. of the money in my pay envelope each week and buy me Thrift Stamps. Then with each $4.00 worth of Thrift Stamps buy me a War Savings Stamp. When you have bought each War Savings Stamp, put it in my envelope. Go on doing that for a year."

That is all. Your mind is free. You will not miss that 75 cents or that dollar which you have hitherto squandered on trifles.

But at the end of the year you will have a little package of War Savings Stamps, each bearing the $5.00 mark, but which have cost you but a few cents over $4.00 each. These Canada will redeem in 1924.

In May W-S.S. Cost $4.04

Diligent Search First Step to Cure Joint "Rheumatism"

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG.
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University).

DR. HIRSHBERG

What's in a name?" is perhaps nowhere better illustrated than in the term "rheumatism." Usually to most persons, even many medical men, it is like the flower in Wordsworth's lines:

A primrose by a river's brim,
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more.

"Human nature will always remain human nature," said some philosopher, which is almost thoroughly verified by the death-grip with which many members of the human race have clung to such useless and meaningless parts of speech as "rheumatism," "dyspepsia," "nervousness" and similar absurdities.

In confirmation of my annual "spring drive" against such "heterogeneous ideophones," as such meaningless words have been called, comes now Prof. Le Docteur F. Rolly, who reports the results of a broad experience with a great series of maladies called "acute articular rheumatism," "inflammatory rheumatics" and similar sickly phrases for mysterious ailments.

At the acme of the fever, swollen joints, painful knees, ankles, toes, elbows, wrists, shoulders or hips, 118 victims of such symptoms exhibited no germs in the blood or tissues. Three showed a few bacteria of decayed teeth and tonsilitis types in the blood.

Germs in Many Spots.

Dr. Rolly maintains that the presence of germs on the tonsils is not always proof that they are guilty of the aches, pains and fever for which they are most often blamed. Although he examined 1,450 patients with diseases loosely called by the benighted name "rheumatism," only 59 had had tonsilitis.

Fifty-four others had some sort of "sore throat"; 64 more were querulous of "pains in the throat"; 88 had swollen, red, large tonsils; 46 exhibited spots on the tonsils and 283 showed redness in some part of the throat.

Among the other and more frequently found antecedents and associated conditions were corruption, or "pus pockets," in the roots of the teeth and gums; obstructions in the nose and throat; ulcers of the bowels; pimples, acne, blackheads, boils and carbuncles.

It is certain that the distress and agony which endures all too frequently for six weeks and more in these states of acute joint infection must be treated according to the respective and particular cause at work in the affected individual.

Guarding the Heart.

The origin of this microbic joint invasion in children may be contagion or infected food, drink and air. The treatment then must be directed toward relief of the trouble and prevention of its spread to the heart entrances. The flaps of the heart chambers are made of a material similar to the gristle and tendons of knees, wrists, elbows and ankles. They are susceptible to the same germs.

Rest, cold applications, sedatives and sufficient sleep form the important part of treatment. In grown-ups a search should be made for bacteria that have a curious preference for secret recesses in bones and joints and smooth gristle-like surfaces. These germs, flaring up from some new cause, may disclose the correct procedures and proper mode of treatment.

Answers to Health Questions

J. M. Q.—Kindly advise me what to do for oily hair.

A.—Glycerine, orris root and washing the hair frequently diminishes the oil. Apply a little of the following to your hair on alternate nights:

Glycerine	½ ounce
Tincture of benzoin	1 dram
Rosewater	1 ounce

VINY R. Q.—Kindly advise me what to do for bunions.

A.—The enlarged gristle and bones of the big toe should be removed by a surgeon. If there is inflammation of the part a little vaselin may do much good when applied. Also protect the bunion from irritation and rubbing with absorbent cotton pads.

MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND

ADELE GARRISON'S NEW PHASE OF

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

How Mrs. Stockbridge Accepted the Situation.

Mrs. Stockbridge's mouth flew open in uncontrollable amazement as she looked past Miss Holcombe to me.

"Why—why," she stammered "You're surely not going to wear that polished gown."

"Who said anything about a spoiled dress?" demanded Miss Holcombe. "Please revolve for the lady, Mrs. Graham."

I turned slowly around, giving my hostess a complete view of the refurbished gown.

"I was sure that stuff wouldn't come off," she blurted, and then stopped short, flushing hotly at her inadvertent admission.

"It didn't," Miss Holcombe retorted dryly.

"Then how?" She choked a bit on the question. I saw that she was raging with baffled malice, and wondered whether Alice Holcombe was wise to tease her in the way she was doing. I think the same thought came to my friend, for she dropped her drawling, provocative tone, spoke briefly and to the point.

Real Self-Control.

"Why, you see, Mrs. Graham happened to have a piece of the goods in her opera bag, but it wasn't until after she had tried on your dress—indeed had started to fix it—that we happened to discover the fact that only one panel drapery of her white gown was touched by the calcimine. It was really no task at all to replace it with the new goods. Don't you think we did a good job?"

I believe there were many emotions battling for utterance in Milly Stockbridge's soul of which the strongest was probably keen regret that she had not done a more complete job in the "calcimining" of my gown. But to the credit of the self-control, which rumor attributed to her recent sanatorium sojourn, she crushed them all down, forced her lips to a smile and her voice to courtesy, although both smile and voice were decidedly acid.

"Indeed, you have succeeded admirably," she said, then with a touch of stiffness: "Did you get very far with the alteration of my gown before you found out Mrs. Graham's could be fixed?"

"Nothing that cannot be put back easily," Alice Holcombe replied. "Simply a couple of seams ripped—I'll run over tomorrow and put them back."

"You needn't trouble," Mrs. Stockbridge retorted quickly, then stiffly to me, "Shall we go downstairs now?"

The voice of the maid, Christine, interrupted.

"If you please, ma'am, these just came. Lieut. Graham says they're with his compliments."

A Happy Transition.

She was laden with three florists' boxes. In her surprise Mrs. Stockbridge stepped backward, and I signalled to the girl to lay her burdens upon the bed. I knew that Dicky had intended providing flowers for his hostess, Miss Holcombe and myself, but in the excitement over my gown had completely forgotten them. Miss Holcombe promptly seized the opportunity to obliterate the incident of the gown.

"Three, count 'em, three!" she exclaimed. "By the prickling of my thumbs I feel one must be for me. But what have I done to deserve it?"

"Yet unworthy as you are," I mocked "one is certainly for you. Come let's open them."

I opened my opera bag, took out a pair of scissors, snipped the cords from all three boxes, and handed the ones marked for the other women to them. In another moment the room was full of the fragrance of roses, also of exclamations of pleasure from all of us. Even Milly Stockbridge's dark, spiteful face was lighted at the glowing crimson roses which were in her box, while Alice Holcombe's eyes, as she lifted the deep, creamy blossoms with the golden hearts from their tissue wrappings, were dancing with pleasure. My own offering was a cluster of the real "rose color" roses which I most admire, and I gave an instinctive little shudder of relief as I glanced at the atrocious gown on the bed and visualized how the delicate blossoms would have looked against it. As it was they gave just the right touch of color to my white gown.

"We never can wear all these," Mrs. Stockbridge said.

"We were never intended to do so," I replied. "The rest are for our later pleasure. I would advise that we take what we wish and leave the rest in the boxes. Then if anything happens to our flowers we can slip up and replace them."

"What a lovely idea!" Miss Holcombe said enthusiastically. "I never yet sat through a dinner without some accident happening to my flowers. Now I shan't care. I can just replace them after dinner for the evening reception."

We selected the blossoms we wished and adjusted them. As we did so, the bell rang.

"Oh, I ought to be downstairs this minute!" Mrs. Stockbridge said nervously. "That must be the Prices. Bess Dean came in ten minutes ago."

We followed her down the stairs and into the living-room, where Mr. Stockbridge came forward to greet us. Dicky was also in the room, but it was fully half a minute before he saw us, so engrossed was he in his conversation with Bess Dean.

Who rang the bell, Ken?" Mrs. Stockbridge demanded petulantly. "I thought surely the Prices had come."

"No, it was a special delivery letter for me."

"A special delivery letter! Where is it?"

"It's nothing of interest, dear; a matter of school business purely. Come over and talk to Lieut. Graham."

"Lieut. Graham appears to be well taken care of," she retorted, with a pouting side-glances at Bess Dean, then with assumption of kittenish teasing, which didn't hide the strained look in her eyes. "Please, Milly wants letter."

Without a word he took the letter from his pocket and gave it to her. As he did so I inadvertently caught the expression in his eyes, and I hope never to witness another such look. Of course, he must have known that we realized his wife's demand for the letter was simply an instance of the intolerable jealous espionage which she had established over every act and word of his, and which he permitted because any denial would throw her into frenzy of word and deed. But humiliation, contempt for the woman facing him, above all a sense of the hopelessness of his position gleamed from his tortured eyes.

She tore open the letter, read the brief sheet avidly, then looked up with a hasty little laugh.

"Why, this is really school business," she said, crumpling up the letter into a small ball and tossing it carelessly at her husband. "Got off easily that time, didn't you, Ken? You don't know what it is, Mrs. Graham, to have a fascinating husband who has a dozen or so young women friends so sorry for him. Or"—she hesitated, letting her malicious black eyes rest significantly upon Dicky and Bess Dean—"perhaps you do."

It was a horribly awkward position. Wisely or unwisely, I saw no other way than to answer her as if her whole conversation had been the jest, which she was outwardly pretending.

"Ye-es, fascinating husbands aren't always an unmixed blessing," I laughed.

"Who's taking my name in vain?" demanded Dicky brazenly.

"So you admit you're a fascinating husband, do you?" Bess Dean giggled.

"Admit it? I proclaim it! I say, Mrs. Stockbridge, if my wife has been telling you anything derogatory to me, don't you believe her. Just come to me for the real truth."

Dicky Aids.

I saw with relief that Dicky was in one of his nonsensical moods, one in which he could manage to keep half a dozen women amused at his ridiculous statements. Mrs. Stockbridge, with a little nod to us, responded to the challenge in his laughing eyes, and went over to the corner where he and Bess Dean were standing. I saw a flash of annoyance in the younger woman's eyes as her hostess took possession of Dicky, a flash which deepened when Dicky at once devoted himself to the dark, sallow, unattractive woman with as much impressment as he had just showed to herself. My heart warmed to my husband, for I know the strong attraction a pretty, daring girl like Bess Dean always had for him. It was not from inclination, I knew, that he was bringing an interested, mercy light into Milly Stockbridge's eyes, a coquettish simper to her lips.

"Will you show Mrs. Graham my photographs, Alice?" Mr. Stockbridge said hurriedly. "There is something I have forgotten, and to which I must attend at once."

Miss Holcombe's Promise.

As Alice Holcombe opened a huge folio of really good amateur camera prints in a corner of the library opening into the living-room, she spoke in a low voice, inaudible to the group in the next room.

"Poor Ken," she said. "He didn't dare stay a second near you for fear of spoiling things. Milly's in the best humor now I've ever seen her. What a wizard your husband is! He'll take her into dinner, of course. If he'll only keep up that line of talk, whatever it is, he's handling to her. Do you suppose he can?"

"When he's properly wound up," I retorted lightly, "he's perfectly capable of keeping up any line of talk indefinitely. Mrs. Stockbridge is safe for the evening, unless, indeed, other people take up his time."

"You mean Bess Dean," Alice Holcombe asserted shrewdly. "I'll settle her hash. Kenneth Stockbridge is going to have this one evening go off pleasantly if I have to murder every other person in the room," she added, whimsically. "There'll be slight chance of his having another one very soon, I'm afraid. There's absolute madness in that woman's eye sometimes, I tell you, lately I'm always afraid of getting the news of some tragedy from here."

"Oh, what a darling day!" cried the meadow-lark from his seat on the fence that runs around the open field.

"Hurrah, hurrah, hurrah!" Yes, that was a bluejay calling — and one of the neighbors came and stood at the gate and said that she had counted six robins in the last half-hour.

The people next door were raking up the dead leaves in the garden, and from every point in the compass came the smell of burning fires—yes, it was spring—at last.

Sweet spring, all dressed in green with wild flowers in her hair, shy, illusive, beckoning, lovely spring—and the house needed cleaning, and somebody really ought to take the books out of the bookcase in the hall and dust them and put them back again in the right order, not with "Without Benefit of Clergy," elbowing Jane Austen, and the "Outcasts of Poker Flat" left check by jowl with "Little Women," as some careless hand had left them, but set properly along, volume by volume, as they belong—like a nice set of proper ideas correctly catalogued.

The curtains upstairs are in a dreadful state all at once—they looked all right the last time I saw them. And as for the rugs, how we ever lived without having them beaten by this time I can't imagine.

The new rhubarb is in the market—wouldn't a rhubarb pie be good for dinner? I must speak to somebody about that—but no, the sun shines so warm and bright, the wind is so cool and gentle—where's my old hat—who hid my tramping shoes?

Whatever became of the tall stick that helped me up so many hills last year? If anybody has dared to burn that for firewood—no, here it is, as stout and companionable as ever. Farewell, care—good-by house, I'm going hiking.

"Want a Lift?"

And hiking we went, all out into the green and growing fields.

We followed first a city street and then a wide road winding through the hills, and then a narrow path that wandered where it would, and all along the way we found the wild flowers—gay children of smiling spring, pink and white and delicate blue, and here and there little, shy families of yellow buttercups and soft, yellow and black johnny-jump-ups, looking up at us from the meadow grass like roguish children laughing in the sun.

Our hands were full—our hearts sang—but, oh, our unaccustomed feet were weary.

We fared back to the highroad. And there we met and there we overtook them, and there they passed us by—the motor cars of various sorts.

The limousine, the roadsters, the touring cars—all full of people going calling on Mistress May.

But none of them ever looked at us, or if they looked they didn't heed.

Why didn't we stop this side of the path, we said?

Why did we go so far the very first day?

The thought of the miles ahead of us made us weak and almost faint—when, suddenly, chug, chug, rattle, rattle, rumble, rumble, around the corner he came, the little rosy old man with the weather-beaten face, driving his little old rackety, weather-beaten car.

With a jerk and a whirr and an extra rattle—he stopped.

"Want a lift?" said he.

"Oh!" said we—and in we stepped.

The seat was rickety, the springs were, and every time that car moved it groaned—but, dear me, what a luxury it was to us at that moment.

"A Lot o' Fun."

"Thought you looked kind o' weary," said Santa Claus, for that's what we called him the minute we got a good look at him.

"Nothin' like a little gasoline for that tired feelin'," said Santa Claus. Then he told us how he had worked and schemed to buy a machine—and what fun he had with it, and how he wouldn't be without one for anything on earth, and my friend, who has two touring cars and a limousine at home, agreed with every word he said—and meant it.

"I git a lot o' fun out of my friend, John C. Calhoun," said Santa Claus. "Yes, that the name of my car. I named it after the best horse in the country, that I drove when I was a boy—I don't never ride alone much." He smiled back at us with a smile that lit up the atmosphere like sunshine in a darkened room.

He lived alone, he said. His wife was gone—he had just come from the cemetery, where he had visited her grave and left a knot of spring flowers upon it—his children were married and far away; so he and John C. Calhoun had things about their own way, and they enjoyed life immensely.

"John C. likes children the best," said Santa Claus. "And I always manage to take him along so we pass the schoolhouse about closing time, and then away we go for a rattle through the hills. Oh, yes, John C. is troubled with a little cough—but, pshaw, that doesn't hurt him any, or me either. We'll weather many a year together yet, John C. and I," and Santa Claus gave the wobbly old wheel an affectionate twist.

He took us straight home to our very doors, and then he came in and had a cup of coffee with us, and some salad and things. And now we're richer than we were, just twenty-four hours ago, for we've added Santa Claus and John C. to our list of friends.

I do hope we're either of us half as worth while as either of them.

Daily Bible Question Club

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE UNIFORM LESSON FOR SUNDAY, MAY 18, 1919.

ONE GOLDEN TEXT SUGGESTION.

By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.

The Grace of God.—Genesis, vi., 8. Exodus, xxxiv., 6-7. II. Corinthians, xii., 9. Ephesians, ii., 4-10. Titus, ii., 11-14.

QUESTIONS FOR TODAY.

4. Exodus 34:6, 7. Why would you say, or not, that God was just as gracious and merciful before Christ died, as he was afterward?

5. Why would you say or not that God extended grace and mercy to sinners in that day, on the same conditions, and as willingly as he does today?

6. Quote scripture which emphasizes the grace of God and say if these two verses are not high-water mark of gracious revelation?

Golden Text: We shall be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus. Acts 15:11.

SOLDIERS ARE IN A LOST CONDITION.

Careful students of the history of the human race, recorded in the Bible and in so-called secular history, find nothing so prominent as the fact that mankind has demonstrated human nature to be in a decadent condition, and with the obvious inference that unless the grace of God is permitted to have right of way with men and nations, that such nations will be finally lost and all the unsaved that dwell therein. All people today who are living in known sin are in a lost condition. All traitors of God's government are already condemned. Jesus said, among many other things in the same connection: "He that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God." Men have "loved darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil."

DIARY OF A FASHION MODEL

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE.

She Gives Some Suggestions for a "Distinctly Different" Afternoon Gown.

"An afternoon gown that is distinctly different from anything you've ever had? Now, Mrs. Harriman, you've had so many lovely gowns that I have much to live up to, haven't I?" laughed Madame.

"You certainly have, but I know you will be equal to this task," Mrs. Harriman replied.

"To me the three prettiest fabrics for summer afternoon gowns are georgette crepe, charmeuse and crepe meteor. That is, unless you wish a lingerie frock," Madame answered.

"No, I don't care for a lingerie gown. I'm too long past 'Sweet Sixteen' to be addicted to those frilly hand-embroidered things. I want a gown that will give me length of line and accent the slenderness I have worked to hard to retain." She laughed as she said this, and Madame replied:

"Indeed, your figure is a joy to design for, and you wear your clothes so well!"

Mrs. Harriman was evidently quite pleased with this compliment and said: "Well, what are you going to do for me now?"

"Since you want something very different, and because I know you do not care for conspicuous colors, I am going to make your gown of grey charmeuse combined with white," said Madame.

Mrs. Harriman was about to protest this color scheme, but Madame said: "Now just wait till I visualize my idea for you and see if you don't like it."

Madame picked up her pencil and began to sketch this gown, thinking out the details as she went on with the drawing. When it was completed she handed the sketch over to Mrs. Harriman for her approval.

"The lines are lovely, Madame, so simple and so sweet, just the silhouette I like," said Mrs. Harriman; "but what is what and which is which," she laughed.

"I'm about to explain," said Madame with an air of mock seriousness. "The skirt is grey charmeuse—glittering, glimmering, grey charmeuse, the loveliest fabric in the world, it looks just like moonlight."

"That sounds like a poem," laughed Mrs. Harrimon.

"It will be a poem on you, Mrs. Harriman. Just wait till you see it made up," Madame said. "The blouse is white charmeuse," she continued.

"Won't I look as though I have on a shirtwaist and skirt?" inquired Mrs. Harriman.

"Oh, never," replied Madame. "The collar and turned-back cuffs of grey charmeuse 'marry' this waist to the skirt and make them obviously one. The collar and cuffs are embroidered in black and silver."

"That sounds quite attractive. What are the buttons? Mrs. Harriman asked.

"The buttons are silver, rimmed with black," answered Madame. "The waist fastens at a curious bias angle and the collar opens at this closing. Isn't that different from anything you've ever had?"

"It is decidedly original," said Mrs. Harriman. "What are the sheer sleeves?"

The Skirt of This Afternoon Frock Is of Grey Charmeuse, the Blouse of White Charmeuse.

"The sleeves are grey silk net shirred 'a la mousquetaire.' They are edged with a thread of silver and black. The girdle will be grey charmeuse, but it will be nearly covered by grosgrain ribbon of jade green."

"Madame, I am charmed with your sketch now that I understand the color detail," said Mrs. Harriman.

To-morrow's HOROSCOPE

By Constance Kemble

WEDNESDAY, MAY 14.

This is a day of quite contrary influences—judged according to astrological science. Some of the testimonies augur the most pronounced good fortune—particularly as they bear on finances. Jupiter being under splendid configuration with Luna. The other important benefic, Venus, is in most interesting mutual aspect with Uranus which should manifest in sudden and wholly unplanned adventure in the realm of the domestic, affectional or social. Even an elopement or an unconventional romance—pleasant and entirely satisfactory—might be born of this excitement. However, these affairs call for circumspect conduct. Offsetting these good figures are the operations of two powerful malefics—threatening delays, disappointments and warning against accidents, quarrels and resort to law for reprisal or damages.

Those whose birthday it is may have a successful year in business if they handle it prudently. In other matters both pleasure and profit are prognosticated. A child born on this day will be generous, popular, adventurous, but unsettled, impulsive, and unruly.

The annual meeting of the Wardsville and Mosa Women's Institute will be held in the town hall on Thursday, May 15, when the election of officers will take place.

WOODSLEE W. I.

The Woman's Institute gave a birthday party in the I. O. O. F. hall. Dr. Millen as chairman presented a fine program, the Misses Jackson of Comber furnishing the music and Sub.-Lieut. Plant, R.N.V.R., giving an address.

DRESDEN I. O. O. E.

The regular meeting of the I.O.D.E. held this afternoon was of an unusually interesting nature, on account of the unfurling of the handsome new service flag. The meeting was largely attended and a number of returned soldiers were guests of the society.

Mrs. Osgood McVean, the regent, presided and after Scripture reading and prayer by Mrs. W. C. Pearce, Mrs. Thos. Conway and Mrs. I. A. Kimmerly unfurled the flag, a beautiful one, with two gold stars embroidered on white satin, for the two Dresden young women who served at the front—as nursing sisters, viz., Miss Alice French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar French, and Miss Beatrice Dunlop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dunlop. There are also twelve red stars on the flag telling of the sacrifice of twelve young lives to the glorious cause of liberty, and one hundred and five blue leaves for the other brave boys from Dresden and vicinity who risked their all in the same sacred cause. After the conclusion of the ceremony, "The Maple Leaf" was sung.

Another interesting feature of the afternoon's program was the presentation of an I. O. D. E. service pin to Mrs. Oscar French and a bar presented to Mrs. Andrew Dunlop, whose son, as well as daughter is with the American troops.

A dainty lunch was served during the afternoon. One hundred dollars was voted to the India famine sufferers. The collection amounted to $15.

GALT CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE IS OPENED

GALT, May 12.—After having to postpone the opening program of the City Baseball League, the first game was played tonight, when the Gardiners trimmed the C. M. C. nine to the tune of 6 to 1. Leeds started on the mound for the C. M. C., but before the first frame was over the Gardiners obtained a lead sufficient to win. Graham brothers were the batteries for the winners. The large crowd in attendance was evidence of the support that the G. A. A. A. is receiving in its campaign for a revival of sport in Galt.

The score of tonight's game was as follows:

Cactus Cravath Is Still With Philadelphia Team

Has Been Trying to Break Away From the Old Game Since 1915, But Is Back Once More in the Opening Game.

By Frank G. Menke.

Cactus Cravath is baseball's unique figure.

For more than three seasons the "Grand Old Ruin" has been trying to expunge himself from the national pastime. He yearns to retire into the seclusion of his orange grove or his beer saloon or whatever it is that he's got out in California. But it simply can't be done. While all the other relics of baseball are being tossed—protestingly—into the scrap heap, the bulky and aged Cravath—protestingly—is retained in major league harness.

Oddly enough, during the days of his youth when he was sprightly and full of zip, Cravath had an awful time trying to bust into the big show. And now that he wants to bust out of it he is finding the task even a more difficult one than the original.

San Diego, California, is where Cravath began baseballing—far back in 1902. Six years later the Red Sox grabbed him, but found him wanting. The White Sox then gave him a whirl—and the result was the same. He was passed along to the Senators, but didn't tarry. Washington placed the "N. G." on his expansive buzzum and consigned him to Minneapolis. And there he remained for three full seasons.

Under the warming Minnesota sun Cravath "ripened" sufficiently to warrant another big league chance. And that time, as a Phillie, he made good. He was never especially fast afoot, but he was a sure grabber of fly balls—and my, oh my, how he could whang the baseball.

Cravath was one of the leaders in the Phillie attack in 1912, 1913 and 1914. In the following season—1915—it was his terrific clouting that assisted materially in lifting the Phillies to pennant heights. He crashed out 24 homers that year, a mess and triples and doubles, and raced around the bases so often that when the season had ended his under-pinning wiggled woefully. "Presto! Chango!"—this is where I exit from baseball," ejaculated the portly Phillie, after the last world's series game had been played.

But it couldn't be done. The Phillies needed Cravath in 1916, and Cravath—with reluctance—returned to the fold. Once again his mighty club played a powerful part in the Phillie battling, but age had made its impress, and Cravath found it a bit harder to frisk around the greensward.

"A feller can't play baseball right if he ain't got no legs to run with, and I've been running my legs off for the last couple of seasons, ain't I?" demanded Cravath, with the finish of the 1916 season. "So goodbye, baseball, tra-la-la, the major leagues will never see me no more, amen."

Pat Moran took the retirement ultimatum of Cravath seriously, and chucked Wilbur Cooper into the right field garden of the Phillies. But Pat persuaded Cravath to stay with the team through 1917 "just as a pinch-hitter."

In the very first inning of the first game of 1917 the first two Phillies got on the bases, and then it came Wilbur Cooper's turn to bat. But Pat Moran waved him aside and signalled Cravath to the plate. The big fellow lumbered up and cracked out a two-bagger that scored both runners and sentenced him to a regular job in the Phillie Garden during the 1917 season. Cravath didn't want to play regularly, but Moran pointed out to him the absolute necessity of his presence in the lineup.

"I'm through—honest to gosh, I'm through," declared Cravath, with the windup of the 1917 season.

But 1918 found the big fellow back with the Phillies. The war was largely responsible for that. Drafts and enlistments wrecked the Phillies' outfield. So an S. O. S. was sent to Cravath, and once more he ambled from his fireside and went back to baseballing.

Cravath insisted with all the power in his voice at the end of the 1918 season that he never would frisk around on a major league diamond again. But Jack Coombs, new manager of the Phillies, realized how valuable was Cravath in pinch-hitting roles. So he used all of his persuasive eloquence upon Cravath and finally wrung from the Californian the promise that he would serve through at least part of the season in utility roles.

The youth who was delegated to take Cravath's place in right field didn't look good enough to Coombs on opening day—and so Jack prevailed upon Cravath to play out the full game, whereupon Cactus whanged out two singles and two doubles against Giant pitching in four trips to the plate.

And now, although Cravath is nearing 38, beams beyonds .200, and is slower than a peace conference, Coombs and the Phillie fans are unyielding in their ultimatum:

"Cactus, ol' kid, you simply gotta play regularly in 1919."

SENATORS AND YANKS PLAYED ANOTHER TIE

Game Called at End of Fifteenth Inning on Account of Darkness.

NEW YORK, May 12.—New York and Washington played another long tie game here today, the score standing 4 to 4 at the end of the fifteenth inning, when Umpire Owens called the game on account of darkness.

New York had a victory in its grasp in the ninth, when Pratt threw wild on an easy double play which should have ended the game. The throw enabled Foster to tie the score and placed Gharrity on third base, from where he stole home a moment later.

Umpire Owens at the plate first called Gharrity out, but when the Washington players appealed to Dineen, the field umpire, he reversed his decision. In the argument that followed Manager Huggins of New York was ordered off the field.

New York then tied the score in its half of the ninth, when Ayers gave four bases on balls.

Shawkey and Harper, who pitched the last six innings, were in brilliant form. New York and Washington played twenty-seven innings yesterday and today without a decision.

Score:	R.	H.	E.
Washington	010 000 003 000 000—4	6	4
New York	000 021 001 000 000—4	11	3

Batteries—Shaw, Ayers, Harper and Gharrity; Russell, Shawkey and Ruel.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX WIN

CHICAGO, May 12.—Although outbatted by St. Louis today the White Sox won the game, 4 to 3, by taking advantage of Gallia's wildness. His three bases on balls combined with his error in the second inning gave the White Sox two runs on one hit.

Captain Collins of the White Sox, strained a tendon in his right leg, and will be out of the game several days.

Score:	R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	020 010 000—3	9	2
Chicago	020 020 00x—4	7	1

Batteries—Gallia and Billings; Shellenback and Schalk.

INDIANS BEAT TIGERS

DETROIT, May 12.—Cleveland combined opportune hits with Boland's wildness and two errors by Detroit and won today's game, postponed from the opening series, 6 to 4. Bases on balls, a sacrifice and a single in the fifth inning gave Cleveland two runs and the lead.

Score:	R.	H.	E.
Cleveland	000 120 201—6	8	1
Detroit	100 101 100—4	8	2

There will be no Grand Challenge cup this year, but the Henley stewards have substituted a service race, with crews from Canada, the British Flying Corps, Australia, New Zealand and the United States represented. The climax of the season's rowing will be the inter-allied regatta, which will be held after the Henley events. Crews from France, Belgium and Czecho-Slovakia have been entered.

"KNOTTY" LEE SIGNS UP A NEW PITCHER

BRANTFORD, May 12. — Manager "Knotty" Lee announced here today that he had secured Pitcher Bills from the Binghamton club. Bills will take the place of Winslow, who backed up on his contract at the last minute. The Brantford club is in the market for a shortstop and a left-hand twirler, and the club owners have told Manager Lee to go the limit in securing the right material. It is hoped to have the new men report for the opening at Saginaw Thursday.

ST. THOMAS BASEBALL MEETING WEDNESDAY

ST. THOMAS, May 12.—Much interest is being manifested in the baseball meeting to be held in the city hall Wednesday evening, when it is expected a city league will be formed. It is hoped that at least four strong teams will be organized. The meeting will likely be presided over by Ald. Handford.

LONDON TECUMSEHS HELD WORKOUT AT PARK YESTERDAY

New Third Baseman Made His First Appearance — Will Hold Practice Today.

London Tecumsehs held a workout at Tecumseh Park yesterday afternoon, and Manager Keenan was well satisfied with the infield. Third Baseman Corcoran was out with the team for the first time and made a good showing on the sack.

Gadsby was not out to the practice, as he is suffering from an injury received in an exhibition game with the Detroit Stars on Thursday last.

A few fans attended the practice in the afternoon. Catcher Tree looked good behind the bat. Clark, Flanders and Kelly took the places in the outfield.

Pitcher "Lefty" Quinn, whom George Gibson has released to the London club, is expected to report to Manager Keenan today.

The team practices this morning and afternoon, and also tomorrow. The team will leave tomorrow night for Battle Creek, where they will play the opening game on Thursday.

Gilbert will likely hurl the first game in Michigan. The Tecumsehs will be in Battle Creek for two days, and then go to Flint, where they will play Saturday and Sunday.

The season will be opened in this city next Monday. Special opening ceremonies are being arranged, and it is expected that it will be the best yet seen this season on the tracks in the "high grass" towns or at the big state fairs.

BATTLE CREEK TEAM READY FOR OPENING GAME ON THURSDAY

Special Ceremonies Are Being Arranged—President Jackson Will Attend.

BATTLE CREEK, May 12.—Battle Creek, after winning two exhibition games by low scores, the last being the defeat of Camp Custer all-star team, 3 to 2 today, is awaiting the opening of the Michigan-Ontario League on Thursday and prepared to give London a real battle. Manager Jenkins announces his batting order will be as follows:

Hefter, second base.
Boyle, first base.
Kahler, right field.
Main, centre field.
Schuyler, short-stop.
Lamb, third base.
Heving, catcher.
Horne, a 135-pounder, with terrific speed, a youngster who promises to be a sensation, or Welnicke, a rangy southpaw, are reserved as the pitching choice for opening day, although McMillan, a product of Battle Creek's sand lots, who last year pitched his team to the Camp Custer championship, may get the order.

Battle Creek is expecting the biggest baseball day in its distory, delegations from London and Detroit are expected, while President Joe S. Jackson and Lieut. Mays, honorary president of the league, will be present.

Plans for a parade include an aerial leader, a battalion of soldiers, with musical rifle drill, and several bands. It will be a holiday, with stores and factories closed. Manager Jenkins has had cold, rainy weather to combat and some of his men have not been in the best of shape, but he is confident that his team will be up in the race from the start. Although leading in batting and base stealing in the Southern Michigan League several seasons, he does not now plan to enter the lineup, except as pinch hitter.

LIEUT. ARTHUR KLEIN ENTERS INDIANAPOLIS LIBERTY SWEEPSTAKE

American Officer Will Race With Other Auto Stars on May 31st.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 12.—Lieut. Arthur H. Klein is the first American Army officer to enter the 500-mile Liberty Sweepstakes race at Indianapolis, May 31. The appearance of this overseas veteran on the big brick oval will not be his debut as he was a competitor in the 1914 and 1915 five century events.

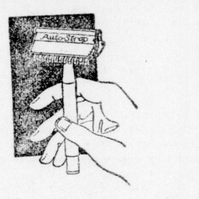

In his first appearance in the Indianapolis classic, five years ago, Lieut. Klein's King was painted maize and blue, the state of Michigan's colors. This time he will again have Michigan colors in that he will carry the emblem and the hopes of the Detroit Automobile Club, of which he is a member. His car will not be of the "made-in-Michigan" variety but will be one of the Grand Prix Peugeots. The car is a mate of the one in which Dario Resta rode to victory in the 1916 A. A. A. championship and also to the one that Jules Goux, the Frenchman who won the 1913 event, will drive on May 31. It has turned some of the fastest miles in the history of speedway racing in America.

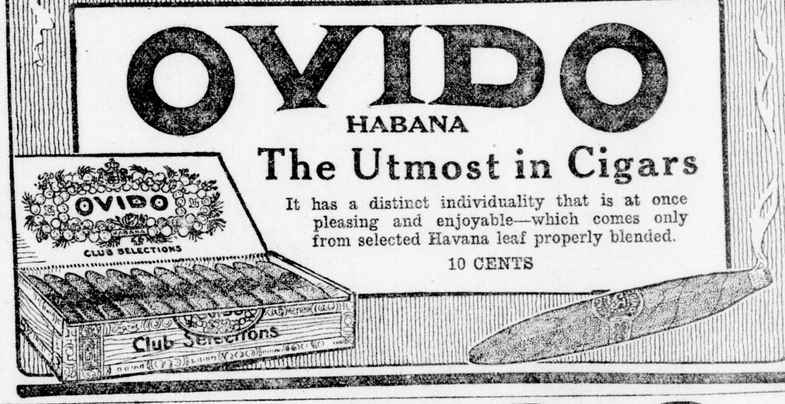

Lieut. Klein's entry is made by Frank P. Book, the Detroit millionaire, who backed Ralph De Palma in his campaign in 1916. Book is one of the sportsmen who support the racing game because of their love for the sport, and not for gain. He is also a driver of some note himself, although he has never chosen to tool his own cars in the big races. He has competed in a number of amateur races.

When the armistice was signed and Indianapolis announced that it would revive its famous races, Book sought Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, the American "Ace of Aces," to drive this car. Capt. "Rick" however crossed Book when he announced that he would compete in the season's speed contests. Being determined that an American officer, who had seen overseas service, should drive his French car, the DETROITER closed his deal with Lieut. Klein, as soon as he had landed in this country and obtained his release from the Army.

Lieut. Klein has always shown a natural aptitude for driving the dirt tracks and for several seasons has been a star in that branch of the speed sport and regarded by the "dust dogs" as a man who is hard to lick. Now he has returned to the "big time" events and will not be

RIOT ACT AND SOLDIERS TO ASSIST IN OPERATION OF CARS

Windsor Mob Cuts Ropes, Breaks Windows, and Company Abandon Effort—Will Make Another Start Today Under Rifles of London Soldiers.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WINDSOR, May 12.—There was an incipient riot on Ouellette avenue early today when five street cars, manned by strikebreakers, attempted to operate in an effort to break the eight days' old strike of motormen and conductors of the Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Street Railway Company.

Waiting until the cars became separated, a crowd of men and boys attacked each in turn. Trolley ropes were cut, a few car windows broken, and one of the car crew was forced to flee to the shelter of a neighboring house, where he remained until rescued by the police.

ABANDONED THE EFFORT.

After realizing that without additional protection cars could not be operated, Manager Anderson ordered the five cars brought back to the barns. As the strikebreakers had abandoned them it was necessary to send out a work car to tow the cars in, which was done without trouble.

For the remainder of the day no effort was made to run the cars. Instead, Crown Attorney Rodd was formally notified by the company that violence had occurred, and the latter, after a conference with the mayors of Windsor, Walkerville and Ford, Magistrate Miers and Justice of the Peace Cheyne, caused a telegram to be dispatched to Brig.-Gen. L. W. Shannon at London, requesting that troops be sent.

This evening 250 men under command of Major Hirsch and Capt. E. A. Shuttleworth of London arrived, and were marched to the race track, where they will be quartered while here. In the morning Mayor Winter will read the riot act from the steps of the city hall, after which the cars will again be started under protection of the soldiers.

CAUSE OF WRECK AT DUNNVILLE TO REMAIN A MYSTERY

Farmer Saw Baggage Car Topple Over.

PULLED THE ENGINE OFF

Engineer Lost Life Saving Train, Was Opinion Expressed.

DUNVILLE, May 12.—That Frederick J. Bechley and Emery Bellows, engineer and fireman on train No. 3 Wabash, came to their death by accident on May 8th at 10:10 a.m., by reason of the engine turning over in the ditch while in operation on the air line of the G. T. R.—Wabash. Cause of said accident unknown. This was the decision of a coroner's jury, who sat at the town hall today before Coroner Dr. William Jamieson. There were a number of witnesses heard, but the actual cause of the accident will remain a mystery apparently. From the evidence, however, it appears that the engine was pulled over into the ditch by an express coach. Whether this coach was defective in any way is not known. It was completely demolished in the wreck, and there is no way of finding out.

E. Deiner of Canboro Township, a farmer who happens to reside near the scene of the accident, was the first witness called. He testified that he saw a baggage car on the train in question rise up over two fet and settle to the south side of the track. He declared emphatically, that in his estimation, this baggage car caused the trouble. He saw the engineer apparently applying the brakes. He saw the fireman come over to the engineer's side of the engine cab. Everything then became hidden by steam. He telephoned to Dunnville, and when he went back, the engineer and fireman were unable to answer his calls. He would not say that the tracks were responsible, and he thought the engineer lost his life in saving the train.

Whole Train Derailed.

George Fisher of St. Thomas, who had charge of the wrecking crew on the night of the accident, said that he found the entire train off the track and part in the ditch. The car behind the tender was the one that he found in the worst condition. He had no theory as to how the accident happened. The cars were not overloaded, and the tracks were in good condition.

Charles Hughey, the conductor on the ill-fated train, stated that he resided in Detroit, but had for some years been conductor on this train. The accident happened at 10:09 a.m. on Thursday, May 8. He was in the combination car, and the sudden jolt caused through the train suddenly stopping threw a passenger right over his head. He could not tell what caused the accident. They were traveling about 35 miles per hour, but the actual cause would probably never be known. Fred Bechley and Emery Bellows were the engineer and fireman of the train. Becheley had been on the road for 20 years. He did not think that the brakes had been applied. That would not be necessary, because the moment the train struck the gravel it would naturally stop.

John Feely of Detroit knew nothing except that all the parts dropped from under the car, and the next thing he knew the train was in the ditch. He had been on the same run since 1898. The car that apparently caused the trouble was sealed from Buffalo to Detroit, and he had never seen it before. It was an old wooden car.

Inspected the Cars.

W. Jennings of Buffalo inspected the train at Black Rock, and found all in good condition. The inspectors, he said, generally spent about two minutes on each car. He had been in the service 20 years.

Detective William Whitehead of St. Thomas stated that he had been to the scene of the accident shortly after it occurred, for the purpose of protecting the railway property. He found the windows of all the cars broken, but further than that he could give no evidence that would throw any light on the accident or how it happened.

Thomas G. Cassidy, trainmaster, of St. Thomas, arrived soon after the accident, but could throw little light on it. He found the cars in the ditch; no wheels were broken, and there was apparently nothing to show the cause. Up to the present time it is a mystery, stated Mr. Cassidy.

A sudden application of the brakes would cause the car to go up in the air, but an engineer of Mr. Bechley's experience would not apply the brakes in such a way. The load might have been over on one side of the car, and in that way pulled the engine over into the ditch. The roadbed at this point was better than anywhere else. The vicinity is generally swampy, but the bed was well drained. An inspection of the engine showed that the engine had never been reversed, and there was nothing to show how the accident happened.

David Britt, road foreman of engines of St. Thomas, testified that he was called from Glencoe to the scene of the accident. He could find nothing to show how the accident occurred.

From the position in which the engine was found he would think that the engine was pulled off the track. The nose and funnel of the engine was on the bank, while the cab was in the ditch. The rear car also pointed to the tracks.

Car Was Added Later.

Hugh J. Rosselet of Detroit, brakeman on the train, was on the last seat of the last car. He noticed the emergency brake applied and his car then left the track. The cars had apparently separated and thrown the train into the ditch. He had been in the service since 1897.

Henry Pendker, car foreman, of Buffalo, explained that he had had charge of the car inspection. The express car was placed in the train after it left his jurisdiction. The train consisted of three cars and another had been inserted after leaving him. He was surprised to find that another car had been added to the train.

R. J. Cotterell, locomotive foreman, of St. Thomas, said he inspected the engine before it left the shop the day before, when the engine was dispatched. The engine came out of the shops in November, 1918, practically new. A list of repairs booked by Engineer Bechley, the day before the accident, was produced by Mr. Cotterell, showing the various parts asked for. These had all been added.

The jury consisted of Bert Edgecombe, foreman; Roy Teeft, J. A. Sordes, W. Walker, Lloyd Warner, W. Gillap, B. Cohan, L. Glenney, F. Hewers, E. Lymburner, W. Patterson and D. Glenney. Crown Attorney H. Arrell, of Haldimand, appeared for the crown. There were no other legal representatives present.

AMERICAN SEAPLANES WILL CARRY 6 MEN FOR ATLANTIC TRIP

Unusual Precautionary Measures Taken to Prevent Disaster.

TREPASSY, Nfld., May 12.—The American navy's hydro-airplanes will set out on their Trans-Atlantic flight, carrying, if possible, crews of six men, instead of five, as originally planned, and with extra propellers aboard, Commander John Towers, chief of the expedition, announced today in a statement detailing precautionary measures adopted to insure, as far as possible, completion of the projected non-stop cruise to the Azores.

May Be Too Heavy.

The extra man and spare parts, together with a maximum supply of petrol, would bring the weight of each plane to 28,800 pounds, the commander said, which might prove more than the 1,600 horsepower engines would lift from the water. In this event, he added, the craft after a surface cruise in the harbor, would "taxi" back to the mother ship, discharge and drain off the excess fuel, reducing the weight to 28,000 pounds, the official full load. The motors of the N. C.1 and N. C.-3 easily carried 25,000 pounds from Rockaway Point, N. Y., to Halifax, and thence to this point. The proposed enlargement of the crews and equipment were the result, Commander Towers stated, of the experience gained in the flight from Halifax.

The planes have been fitted out with belts for the mechanics, so that motor repairs could be made in mid-air.

There are many icebergs in the ocean field immediately ahead of the fliers. On the flight here from Halifax Commander Towers said they were so numerous that the sea in places was fairly dotted with them.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE HELD AT LUCKNOW

LUCKNOW, May 12.—Anniversary services were held yesterday in the Presbyterian Church here with the Rev. M. B. Davison of Central Presbyterian Church, Galt, as the speaker. The choir rendered special music, soloists being Miss Welch and Miss Hayes of London. A special collection was taken to furnish new seats for the Sunday School.

Another Lucknow boy to return from the war was Stanley Agar, who arrived Saturday night. He was met by the band and reception committee, and given a real welcome home. The band and committee also serenaded Pte. McQuaig and Pte. Corrigan, who arrived some few days ago, and presented them with an address and $10 in gold, which is given each returned soldier from Lucknow.

Robt. Johnston, while turning his car Saturday, in trying to avoid the crowd, ran into the car of Adam Johnston, who was coming down street. Mr. Johnston's car was badly wrecked.

FINE IMPOSED ON MOVIE MANAGER IS UPHELD BY JUDGE

Teacher Had No Right to Take Children to Show.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WOODSTOCK, May 12.—Some time ago Patrick Greenlees, proprietor of the local moving picture show, was fined $20 and costs for allowing children to enter his theatre unaccompanied. It came out in the evidence that a school teacher had taken a number of children she met at the door into the theatre Saturday, stayed with them all through the performance, and brought them out at the conclusion.

This was the basis of the charge as laid by the police. Greenlees appealed to a higher court, and today Judge Wallace sustained the verdict of the police magistrate. The judge took the ground that the teacher had not the slightest influence or control over the 25 children she had with her. The judge also assessed Greenlees with the costs of the court.

ST. THOMAS POLICE FIND 27 GALLONS OF GOOD WHISKEY

Special Session of Court To Try the Three Owners.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

ST. THOMAS, May 12.—Two M. C. R. detectives made another haul tonight. After watching the boarding house on the M. C. R. Park here, where a couple of negroes and a white man spend their evenings, they entered the building and placed George Olney (white), W. C. West and Ola James (colored), under arrest. They made a search and discovered no less than 27 gallons of whiskey. The culprits, who have apparently been conducting a blind pig, were taken to police headquarters, and, being anxious to get the trial over without publicity, they asked for a special session of the police court. Magistrate Maxwell soon arrived on the scene, and after each of the men had pleaded guilty to the charge of violating the O. T. A., they were given the option of a $200 fine or four months. Olney and James decided to pay. W. C. West was unable to raise the funds, and he took the four months.

GRAIN.

Chicago, May 13.—Heavy selling by a big commission house did a great deal today to put bears again in control of the corn market. Besides, eastern shipping demand was poor. Opening prices, which ranged from ½c to 2¼c lower, were followed by material setbacks in addition.

Favorable crop reports weakened oats. After opening unchanged to ⅝c down, the market continued to sag.

Chicago, May 13.—Opening: Corn—May, $1 76½; July, $1 67.

Oats—May, 69½c; July, 68¾c.

You Should Own Debentures

While it is absolutely necessary that you should have a savings account, it is not always wise not to use your money in other ways when your savings reach a certain amount.

The best plan to follow is to aim at saving $100, then invest them in debentures like the ONTARIO LOAN DEBENTURES. These net you 5½ per cent interest per annum, payable half yearly.

By saving and investing you protect yourself against poverty in old age. Consult us about this matter. It will mean much to you in the years to come.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

WISHING BRINGS NO RESULTS. You may be very fond of music, AND WISH AS HARD AS YOU LIKE that you could play the piano, but if you do nothing else you will never play.

ACTION ACCOMPLISHES THINGS. If you really would like to play you can do so in a surprisingly short time, but you must make the first move yourself.

STUDY THE MILLIKIN METHOD, and in a very few weeks you will find your wishes "coming true."

COUSIN BRUIN'S MUSHROOM SAUCE.

Cousin Bruin loved mushrooms, and just as you like beefsteak with onions, so Cousin Bruin liked grasshoppers with a mushroom dressing. He fairly smacked his lips at the thought.

Now, the basket that held the mushrooms was more than half full. It was round, and it had a cover held open with a string. Cousin Bruin just rammed his head into that basket, and soon his whole head fitted it very tight. The lid flew back with a snap and hurt his head, so he growled very loud. It made him cross, but he went on eating until the last mushroom had vanished, and then what do you think happened?

Well, Cousin Bruin tried to pull his head out, and he couldn't move the basket a bit. It was as tight on his head as either of his ears, and that was pretty tight.

Now, Mr. Bear thought Jimmy Coon was trying to play a joke on him, and so he growled: "This joke has lasted about long enough, Jimmy Coon. None of your tricks, now, or it will be the worse for you. Come, hurry up, and take this old basket off."

Cousin Bruin soon was so worn out that he sat down.

And Jimmy shook in his furry boots and didn't know what to do. Cousin Bruin tore around the meadow and hit the basket on the ground, and couldn't get it off. The woman who had run away, and whose basket it was, was standing behind a tree. She looked out and saw Cousin Bruin tearing around that field like a circus pony, and she just laughed until she cried.

Cousin Bruin soon was so worn out that he sat down on the ground, and put both his paws up on the basket and tried to loosen it. Jimmy Coon was afraid to say a word, for Cousin Bruin had been roaring so that he couldn't get a word in edgewise even if he had tried. Finally, when he stopped growling, to catch his breath, Teddy Possum spoke up, as brave as a lion: "Now, Cousin Bruin, it wasn't Jimmy Coon at all, but that woman with the book who got you in such an awful fix. Now you just wait a minute, and in less than no time we will loosen your head, but first you must promise that you won't hurt our dear Jimmy." And Cousin Bruin promised, for what else could he do? But he said: "You wait till I catch that woman."

SCREEN'S SPEEDIEST ACTOR IN PHOTOPLAY NOW AT PATRICIA

George Walsh in His Latest, "Luck and Pluck" — Also Comedies and Vaudeville.

George Walsh opened in his latest photoplay, "Luck and Pluck," at the Patricia Theatre yesterday, and he certainly lives up to his reputation for being the speediest actor on the screen. This time George is seen in a somewhat different character. He starts out as a crook, but is a most peculiar one. He doesn't steal anything of real value except a girl's heart; but he has some terrific struggles before he accomplishes that.

He runs across a big conspiracy against the Federal Government, which takes all of his time and puts him to the task of using his brain and brawn. The girl he meets is engaged to the leader of the conspirators, and he finally rescues her in one of the most hair-raising scenes ever screened.

This nimble actor goes through every kind of stunt he can think of. The story is a fast one and shows how George saves the daughter of the head of the U. S. Intelligence Bureau from a band of conspirators, to one of whom she is engaged. It is repete with thrills. George rides a motorcycle right into a house, chases a speeding automobile, rescues the girl from a runaway horse and has a desperate fight in an automobile on a shaky bridge, the machine finally plunging into the waters below.

In addition to this photoplay, a Sunshine comedy and a Strand comedy each brimfull of funny situations are presented.

In vaudeville the Club Trio provide an act that wins their well deserved applause. Their sayings are up-to-date, and rendered in an excellent way. The above bill, which will be repeated today and Wednesday, is good in every detail.

"SAPPERS' CLUB" OF ENGINEERS LIKELY TO BE ORGANIZED HERE

Smoker Staged by Veterans at the Armories.

The officers and men of No. 1 Engineer Depot played hosts last night at a progressive euchre and smoker given in the Canadian Engineers' rooms at the armories, at which a number of men who had formerly served overseas with engineering units were guests. Refreshments and smokes were provided for the visitors and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

Lieut.-Col. R. W. Bishop and Major H. Pardee, late and present commanders respectively of the Engineer Depot, were present during the early part of the evening, and in briefly welcoming the ex-soldiers, stated that an effort was being made to organize an association of engineers for the purpose of providing an opportunity for men who had served with that branch to "get together" again now that they had returned to Canada.

Col. Bishop said he thought it would be unfortunate if these men, some of whom had been close friends in France, should separate and lose altogether the ties which had bound them together overseas. He suggested "The Sappers' Club" as a name for the new association, which he stated the officers of the depot unit had already taken steps to initiate.

Major Pardee proposed that men who had belonged to railway troop units and all other units which were engaged in any kind of engineering work at the front should be eligible for membership. Once the club was on its feet he thought a great many men would probably join it, and it ought to become an important and useful body.

These suggestions were received with enthusiasm by those present, and although nothing was done toward definite organization last night, arrangements were made for a meeting at some future date, to be decided later, at which this could be done.

SOLDIERS' AID PLACED 129 VETERANS IN JOBS DURING PAST MONTH

An excellent report has been prepared by the secretary of the soldiers' aid commission, showing what has been done by the commission for the month of April, 1919. In the month there were 129 men applied for positions. Of this number nearly all were satisfactorily attended to. A larger number of applications than usual were received during the month from employers who desired returned men to fill positions. One firm, which took on several men, offered 50 cents per hour, another firm took several handy men at 35 cents an hour.

The number of advances made in money was 92. This totaled $2,232. The amount repaid during the month was $2,188.04. Donations for the relief fund were: Red Cross Society, $257.99; Parkhill Red Cross, $51.25; Peter Lindsay, Parkhill, $26.70. Disbursements for fuel and groceries, etc., amounted to $189.66. The number of men attended to by the reception committee was 1,924. There were 57 cases handled, 153 calls made and $65.12 expended by the welfare committee.

The chaplains' council, a newly formed feature of the commission, also made an excellent showing. This committee came into existence through the desire of the churches to co-operate with the commission. Their appointment as chaplains has been recognized by militia headquarters.

PROPOSES UNION DEPOT ON AXIS OF DUNDAS STREET

Town Planning Expert Makes Interesting Suggestion.

WOULD ELEVATE TRACKS

Would Connect C. P. R. and G. T. R., With a New Station in Middle.

Noulon Cauchon's solution to the railway situation in London, as he so far sees it, and his choice of a suitable site for the much-talked-of union station, was perhaps the most interesting part of an illustrated address delivered by this celebrated engineer before the London Chamber of Commerce in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium last evening. The remainder of his address dealing largely with town planning in connection with other cities the world over, was absorbing in the extreme, and held many lessons for the City of London, but, naturally, did not so vitally affect his audience as did his references to possibilities in the Forest City.

Mr. Cauchon suggests that a railway line be built on a raised earth embankment, across the town, connecting the G. T. R. and C. P. R. tracks, this line to be constructed through the city between Wellington and Colborne streets. He further suggests that the union station be placed right on the axis of Dundas street, the street traffic to go underneath a series of three arches and the trains to come in, both from the G. T. R. and C. P. R. overhead, backing out to continue their journey.

Suggestion for Station.

"I should suggest that the proposed station be a monumental building, rising high above the street," he declared. "It might be a municipal building, containing offices for rent. It might house the city hall offices and registry offices. One half of the station might be used as the postoffice, as in Toronto, or a portion might be used for a great hotel, the railway companies renting only the portion which they needed. The money invested in such a building would pay a liberal interest. It is my opinion that all monumental buildings should be placed with a long approach, such as Dundas street would afford, so that the people may enjoy them. Your 'welcome arches' are an illustration of this and they are very fine.

"The problem of bringing the C. P. R. trains over the G. T. R. track and so making possible a union station, has been studied, but has not appeared to economic advantage. This would mean greatly enlarging the G. T. R. right-of-way to accommodate both lines and would make the C. P. R. tributary to the G. T. R. for a length of eight or nine miles. If C. P. R. freight, as well as passenger trains, went over the G. T. R. tracks, the problem would be still more complicated. The C. P. R. would have to pay for the raising of the G. T. R. tracks for the right-of-way and still be tributary to that company. And it is almost certain that they could not be induced to do it. Their engines would have to come into the station, then shunt back a long distance east to where the two lines meet, and then travel west again on the C. P. R. lines to the roundhouse. When they had made the return journey to the station they would have completed seven or eight miles extra running, a great economic loss.

Would Still Remain.

"It is almost certain that even if such an arrangement for passenger trains were made possible, the C. P. R. freight would have to go over the old main line, and that would necessitate the elevating of the C. P. R. tracks, as well as the G. T. R. I am almost sure that they would not agree to running out of their main course for freight.

"So the situation, as I see it, is just this: Both C. P. R. and G. T. R. tracks will have to be elevated. I say elevated because already the G. T. R. has gone to great expense reducing their grades west of the city, and they could not be expected to agree to a proposition which would interfere with this. There is also a great hill on the C. P. R. line to the west and they will soon have to reduce this for economic purposes, and elevated tracks in the city would help. A cross line through the city, connecting both tracks, would enable each line to pursue its independent way and yet allow of a union station somewhere between the two. As you know, I would place this union station right on the axis of Dundas street.

"When the scheme is ready, that is if you intend to adopt it, I should suggest that you call into your counsel representatives from both railways and allow them to offer suggestions to help you complete it, so as to please all parties.

Beautify the City.

The speaker urged the citizens of London to get after their river banks, where lies the solution of the city's parks and playground problem.

"Your river is not used for commercial purposes," said the speaker. "Therefore, it may be taken advantage of with a view to beautifying the city. (Cries of 'here, here!' from the audience). "Don't think that you have to spend millions right away. Get a river park scheme laid out and then plant your trees and shrubs. By the time they have grown to maturity, you will have found the money and time to build your driveways and boulevards and there you are, all ready for them. All I propose in town planning, is that you do what you have to do, right, so that you are ready for the greater things when they come.

"Your blocks here are too big from the economic point of view. There is too much space in the midst of blocks which is of no use. You could very well put a street through the middle of some of your blocks to advantage.

London-on-the-Sea.

"I maintain that all the great highways of Canada should be through roads, having the right of way like the railways. The motor truck will carry a large portion of our freight in the future and can only be operated successfully on through lines. In this connection, let me say that I should like to see a London and Port Stanley highway built, so that people would be induced to settle along the road all the way to the lake, or, in other words, I am recommending a policy of London-to-the-sea. For if Ontario wakens up and sees the advantage of a canal built from Cardinal to Ottawa, thus overcoming the St. Lawrence rapids, then Port Stanley will be the ocean port of London.

"Most cities are made out of pure energy. Paris had not so many natural advantages as London and yet see what she is today. I am giving you something big to aim at, but I don't see why London should not be a city of 250,000 within our lifetime. I feel that Canada is just on the crest of a great wave of prosperity. Companies all over the United States are waiting to find a suitable location in Canada, so that they may have privileged trade with Great Britain. Those cities in Canada which rise to the situation and make it easy for these industries to come to them, who get into the market first, are sure to prosper. I am only asking you to look ahead and plan for the future."

J. J. Foote, who is in the city for a short time, was in the chair last evening.

NO CUT IN SERVICE.

Rumor current on the streets last night was to the effect that the Street Railway Company had laid off four cars and ten men, and was intending to maintain the reduced schedule for some time.

This story is contradicted flatly by Manager C. B. King, who declared to The Advertiser last night that no change had been made in the schedule since the new one was inaugurated on April 9. "It is a mistake absolutely," he said. "We have made no alteration in service of any kind."

FIVE EXCELLENT TURNS AND GOOD PICTURE AT GRAND

Clara Kimball Young Excels in "Cheating Cheaters."

Clara Kimball Young, starring in a splendid film version of "Cheating Cheaters," and a vaudeville offering of five above-the-average acts, drew crowded and appreciative audiences at the Grand Theatre yesterday afternoon and night.

Miss Young, at her best, is ever popular with London audiences in the silent drama, and in "Cheating Cheaters" she portrays the leader of a notorious band of international crooks. With the gang, she establishes a home in a fashionable section of the city for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the Palmer family, after which they plan to steal the famous Palmer jewels. The gang of which Miss Young, as Nan Carey, is the leader, takes the name of Brockton. There is a rumor of the presence of Ferris, a famous detective, and the Brocktons plan to work rapidly. Nan obtains an invitation to spend the night with the Palmers, but, instead of stealing the Palmer jewels, she discovers that they are paste, and that her hosts are themselves crooks, who were in turn secretly planning to rob the supposedly wealthy Brockton family.

The leaders of the respective bands get together and call a general meeting of both gangs for the purpose of forming a syndicate. The police are notified, however, and the members are arrested. One of the biggest surprises of the story is when the real identity of Ferris, the detective, is known. The famous operative proves to be none other than Nan, and through the medium of a true romance that has sprung up between herself and Tom Palmer, the leader of the rival gang, the "Palmer" and "Brockton" families are allowed their liberty, while Nan devotes the rest of her time to establishing the reformation of Tom.

Sig, Franz and Company, in "The World on Wheels," put over an act extraordinary, featuring Le Petite Violette. These funmakers on wheels kept the audience in continuous uproars and are far above par.

Joe Whitehead got away from the barrier with a flying start and finished neck and neck for first honors. An eccentric comedian, Whitehead left his audience howling for more after three encores.

Ella La Vail, an aerial gymnast, opened the variety end of the bill with an interesting offering on the trapeze that won her rounds of applause.

Allen and Betty Leiber, in their skit, "Breaking It Gently," offered a playlet that is above the average and secured them favor in the eyes of the audience.

Bissett and Scott presented a dancing act that got them well over with the audience.

NO CHANGE IN TIME FOR SCHOOLS; EARLY OPENING APPROVED

Message of Dr. Cody Makes Legal Action Impossible.

London's schools will continue to open and close at the same time as at present. Last night approval was received here from Hon. Dr. Cody, minister of education, of the resolution passed by the board of education of this city, which set the hour for the schools to open at 8 o'clock standard time and to close at 3 o'clock standard time. The Advertiser was informed by Chairman John S. Barnard of the receipt of the message last night.

The result of the approval of the education department at Toronto will be that though the schools here are now operating on standard time, they are also opening and closing in harmony with daylight saving time. Legal action to make them operated on standard time would now apparently be out of the question.

CANADIAN PICTURE, 'HEART OF HUMANITY,' SHOWS AT MAJESTIC

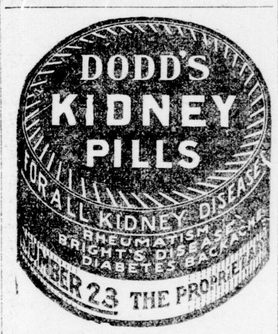

Excellent Bill Has London Singer as a Feature.

Not in many weeks has the Majestic Theatre presented such an excellent program as that of this week. The spectacular photodrama, "The Heart of Humanity"; Miss Cora Tracy, a former London girl, who sings a group of classic songs,

One of the most interesting features of the "Heart of Humanity" is that it is an all-Canadian story. Most of the large spectacular pictures such as this one have been mostly American. In a little Canadian village, Nanette (played by Dorothy Phillips) lives with Father Michael, whose ward she is. She is engaged to John (played by William Stowell), a son of Widow Patricia. On the day of the marriage news that war is declared comes to the young couple, and John enlists, and with four other brothers, leaves with a Canadian service corps. Letters arrive, telling of the suffering of refugees, French and Belgian children, which makes Nanette decide to enlist in the Red Cross. This she does, and is assigned to a convent in France. Here she meets her husband, but he is later captured, falling from his airplane into German territory, and remains a prisoner for some time. Many adventures befall Nanette while in the service of France, and many times she risks her own life in the most thrilling manner to protect the lives of her little charges in the convent. A Hun officer tries to force himself upon her, and Nan, who is half crazed with horror, prepared to stab herself, and is saved at the last minute by her husband.

After being decorated for valor, she returns home to her little son and the mother of her husband, who has lost her other four sons since John enlisted.

Then comes Christmas, and there is a happy reunion in the little village in the Canadian Northwest, when John walks home to his wife, child and mother one day after peace is signed. The French warfare and the life of the soldier in the trenches, with pathos here and a little bit of humor there, is graphically depicted. This performance will be repeated today, Wednesday and Thursday.
