ACADIA DEBATERS WIN FROM KINGS

Winners Contend Time Has Not Come to Grant India Political Status of Dominion

The Acadia debating team was victorious over the King's College team in the Intercollegiate debate held in the auditorium of the Baptist church here Friday evening. The subject was: "Resolved, that the time has now come, when, in the interests of the British Empire, India should be granted the political status of a Dominion."

King's upheld the affirmative, and Acadia the negative. Acadia was represented by R. B. Curry, T. W. Cook, and E. B. Paul, while the King's team consisted of H. B. Ross, T. G. Bennett and F. J. Keble. The judges were D. Macgillivray, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; President, Rev. H. R. MacPherson, of St. F. Xavier; and Rev. George Farquhar, of New Glasgow. Dr. F. W. Patterson, President of Acadia, acted as chairman. The church was well packed with an enthusiastic audience.

Mr. Ross, leader of the King's team, in opening for the affirmative, stated that the issue itself is clear cut: India is a sick person in our midst; temperature and ill feeling are at fever heat. Mr. Ross went through the history of India in its development from a military and commercial province to its present position. The government is divided into the Provincial government and the central government at Delhi.

Although India would seem to have self government under the present condition, such is not the case, he said, for the Indian Legislature has no jurisdiction whatsoever over the handling of the public funds. A responsible government is one that is responsible to the people, but India's Government is irremovable by the people governed. Mr. Ross showed the similarity between the present situation and the one in this Province prior to 1840, when there was need of immediate change, and the change was brought about.

R. B. Curry opened the debate for the negative by agreeing with the opponents that India should be granted self government, but he took issue with them on the question of responsible government, which in India would be impossible because of the present conditions. The record of British rule in India warrants the statement that it is good. It respects the rights of minorities, and before Indian Government would be successful, the race would have to give up its narrowness and intolerance.

The ruling Government in India is supported from wide spread supports. For instance, if the Hindus were in power they would have to show respect for the rights of the Moslems, Parsees, and numerous other religious sects.

Mr. Curry then dealt with the question of India's fitness in terms of national advances. The Government of India would be in the hands of the educated minority who constitute the upper classes, such as the Brahmans, and they would immediately take advantage of their position to further their own ends. Ninety per cent of the men and women, he said, can neither read nor write; they are blindly superstitious, and would inevitably become the prey of their higher brothers. Until these people have shown fit responsibility for the costly experience of self government they have not yet reached the time when they should be granted it.

T. G. Bennett, second speaker for the affirmative, dwelt on the fact that although India pays to England 25 to 30 million pounds every year, she received no direct equivalent for it, and no country can stand such a condition as this without asserting itself. The spirit has spread throughout all India that she must be given the place of a true partner in the Empire, such as Australia and South Africa, or that she will be outside the Empire altogether. Mr. Bennett cited the similarity of India's case to that of France in the Revolution, and also to the U.S.A. in the struggle for independence.

T. W. Cook, the second speaker of the negative, took up the question from the standpoint of the religious barriers, and outlined his case under the three headings: 1. Mohammedan versus Hindu; 2. Caste; 3. Outcaste. Nothing, but Britain has kept the two religious bodies from each others' throats. Gandhi himself has stated that his dream for Muslim and Hindu unity has failed. In dealing with the question of the outcaste, Mr. Cook showed that until India has learned to look after these millions of down-trodden souls she could not hope to achieve democracy.

F. J. Keble, as last speaker for the affirmative, contended that unless India is immediately given self government and political independence, the great bridge between the East and the West will blow up and the explosion would involve one fifth of the total population of the world.

E. B. Paul concluded the argument for the negative and cited the statement of former President Roosevelt that the government of India has been one of the most admirable achievements of the white race. Mr. Paul stated that when India could show the world a statement similar to that drawn up in the Declaration of Independence of the United States, that would be the time to give India her political freedom and independence.

At the close of the debate the teams were entertained at a banquet at the Devonshire Tea Rooms by the Acadia Athenaeum Society. In addition to the debaters and judges the guests included H. B. Jones, E. L. Curry, Dr. J. H. MacDonald, Dr. F. W. Patterson, Dr. Simpson Spidle, Prof. A. B. Baskin, Dr. W. H. Thompson, Dr. V. B. Rhoades, Prof. N. McL. Rogers, Messrs. E. R. Rafuse, R. A. Thorne, M. K. Inman, C. R. Gould and F. S. Crossman acted as hosts.

WOLFVILLE ORGANIZED FOR RELIEF WORK

Committees Appointed to Solicit Food, Clothing, and Money for Destitute Miners.

In accordance with an announcement made at the various churches on Sunday a meeting of citizens in which the ladies largely predominated, was held at the Council Chamber on Tuesday afternoon to consider ways and means of providing assistance to those in need in the colliery sections of the province.

On motion of Rev. Dr. Hemmeon Mayor Chambers was asked to preside, and in a brief address he outlined the purpose of the meeting and his reason for calling it. On motion Mrs. R. W. Ford was appointed secretary. It was suggested that the meeting organize by appointing three committees for the purpose of soliciting food, clothing and money for the benefit of the suffering families of the miners. This action was decided upon and the following committees were appointed:

Committee to collect clothing—Mrs. H. W. Phinney (convener), Mrs. J. D. Chambers, Mrs. L. H. Eaton and Mr. G. K. Prescott.

Committee to collect food—Mrs. Roy Forbes (convener), Mr. J. C. Mitchell, Dr. Leslie Eaton, Dr. J. C. A. M. Hemmeon, Mrs. W. M. Black.

Committee to collect cash—Mr. H. Y. Bishop (convener), Prof. Sutherland, Mr. A. G. Cowie, Mrs. W. O. Taylor and Mrs. (Dr.) J. H. MacDonald.

Mayor Chambers was appointed general chairman of all those committees. Mayor Chambers read a letter from Mr. J. Alfred Elderkin, who suggested that an effort be made to collect and ship a carload of apples, potatoes, turnips and other vegetables, and provisions towards the relief of the sufferers. Mr. Elderkin volunteered to furnish a contribution and solicit other firmen in this vicinity. On motion his name was added to the food committee to which the proposition was referred.

Reference was made to the proposed visit on Wednesday of Mrs. John McPherson, of the Glace Bay relief committee, who is touring the province in the interest of this most worthy work. It was decided that arrangements be made to have Mrs. McPherson meet the several committees at the Council Chamber in the afternoon and at a public meeting of citizens held at the Baptist church in the evening, at which meeting Dr. Marshall was asked to preside.

Mrs. MacDonald generously offered to entertain Mrs. McPherson during her stay in Wolfville.

The secretary was instructed to arrange for advertising the meeting by hand-bills, and Dr. MacDonald and Dr. Hemmeon were appointed a committee to secure the attendance of representatives in Grand Pre, Gaspereau, Greenwich, Port Williams and other sections.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

At a special meeting of the School Board held on Saturday evening last, Mayor Chambers and Councillors Roach and Macpherson were in attendance.

The meeting was called for the purpose of considering matters relating to the teaching staff for next year that required attention before the regular time of meeting.

Miss Olive Wickwire, who has been a valuable member of the staff, tendered her resignation to take effect at the end of the present year.

Misses Troop, Locke, Westhaver and Ritchie were re-engaged for the ensuing year, their salary being increased to $700, the same as is paid to other teachers.

MAY RETURN TO ENGLAND TO DISCUSS INDIAN ISSUES

Earl Birkenhead, Secretary for India in the Baldwin Government, has extended an invitation to the Earl of Reading, Viceroy of India, to return to London on a short leave of absence in order that they may have a personal discussion on Indian affairs. The above is a recent photograph of the Earl of Reading and Lady Reading, who will accompany her husband to England.

OTTAWA, March 30.—"The government has not decided on a date for a general election. So far as I am concerned the matter has not been considered," said Premier King, in the House this afternoon.

The question came up when Robert Forke, leader of the Progressives, read a Canadian Press despatch from Winnipeg, which quoted Hon. E. J. McMurray, Solicitor General, as suggesting an election following the prorogation of parliament.

While Mr. Forke was reading the despatch William Duff, Liberal, Lunenburg, called to the Progressive leader: "Speak for yourself, John," and the House rocked with laughter while the prime minister rose to make a reply.

GASPEREAU

The play entitled "Aaron Slick from Punkin' Crick" was given in the Hall, Thursday evening, was repeated Friday evening, and was greeted with a full house each night. All seemed to enjoy the program very much, as a goodly number returned to hear it the second time. The cast was as follows: Aaron Slick—Kenneth Hunter.

Mrs. Rosy Berry—Miss K. Fraser. Mr. Wilber Merriew—Percy Baker. Clarence Green—Avery Duncanson. Gladys May Merriew—Mrs. E. O. Davison.

The Girl in Red—Mrs. D. L. Coldwell. Little Sis Riggs—Evelyn Miner. Proceeds amounted to over $91.00. We are very sorry to hear Mr. Wyile Nowlin met with a bad accident on Monday last by cutting his finger when sawing wood, the finger having to be amputated.

Mrs. Clara Hunter, who spent the winter in U.S.A., has returned to her home here. Mr. William Millett has returned home after spending several months in Toronto.

Mr. Milford Kinne, who spent the winter with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kinne, returned to Boston on Tuesday of this week.

"THE PEN IS MIGHTIER"

A debate was held recently by the members of the literary society at Paradise, Annapolis county, on the subject: "Resolved, that the Press exerts or has exerted a greater influence for good in the moulding of public opinion than the Platform."

There were three speakers on each side and the discussion was interesting and informing. At the close a vote of the members was substantially in favor of the affirmative.

W.C.T.U. MEETING

The regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held at the home of Mrs. D. G. Whidden on Monday afternoon. The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Nowlan. The business part was conducted by the president, Mrs. Taylor. A goodly number were present and much business was done.

ASSISTANT TO TOWN CLERK APPOINTED

At Regular Meeting of Council Last Evening—Number of Ladies Present—Aubrey Dakin Appointed Superintendent of Streets

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council was held last evening with the Mayor and all the Councillors present. After the reading and confirming of the minutes of meetings of March 4th and 19th the Mayor announced that in consequence of matters which the Health Officer wished discussed the Council would meet first as a Board of Health before proceeding with the regular business.

Dr. deWitt brought up the matter of the tenements in Pleasant street, owned by Mr. J. D. Sherwood, and which had been condemned last fall and ordered to be either made habitable or destroyed.

Mr. Sherwood, who was present, was heard and stated that in the case of one of these the necessary repairs had been made, while in the other case it was found impossible to make the premises fit for occupancy and the destruction of the house would mean turning the occupants out with no possibility of their securing other accommodation.

On the motion of the Health Officer it was decided to request the School Board to place thermometers in each of the departments in the school buildings.

The Council then resumed and heard the reports of the various standing committees.

For the Streets Committee Coun. Leslie reported expenditures during March $362.01; the Committee on Water and Fire, through its chairman, Coun. Porter, reported an outlay of $91.25; Coun. Rosch, for the Sewer Committee, reported an expenditure of $10.75; the outlay on account of Police Committee, according to the statement of Coun. Mitchell, the chairman, was $12.50; and for the Poor Committee, its chairman, Coun. Combs, reported an expenditure of $20.00.

Macpherson, the chairman of the Finance Committee, presented the statement for March, verified by the auditors. It showed receipts $1416.12 and expenditures $1917.71. The debit balance at the end of the month was $13,150.53.

The Finance Committee reported on the request of the V.O.N. for an increase of $200 to the funds of that valuable organization, that the matter had been duly considered and recommended that no increase should be made. This report was adopted by the Council.

A Dauphinee, of Halifax, proposed operating a motor bus between that city and points in the Valley during the coming summer, and that his application would be considered by the Commissioners of Public Utilities at an early date. No action was taken.

The following bills were read and ordered to be paid: Municipality of East Hants... $67.76. H. K. Whidden... 4.35. B. O. Davidson (Review Electoral List)... 20.00.

S. C. West... 20.00. D. L. Harwood... 56.22. N. S. Annet... 62.95. T. S. Sims & Co... 32.57. A. & W. MacKinley Ltd... 51.30. J. M. Woodman... 4.00. Wolfville Fruit Co... 81.50. Municipality of Annapolis... 119.00. Davidson Bros... 1.25. C. E. Harris & Sons... 18.85. C. C. Hancock... 90. W. D. Withrow... 23.50.

Coun. Mitchell reported an application for an additional light on Gaspereau avenue, which was referred to the Streets Committee.

The meeting of the Council was graced by the presence of a number of lady residents, and the Mayor expressed his pleasure because of the fact. He also intimated that if they had any matter to present to the members of the Council an opportunity would be given.

The ladies explained that they were simply present because of their interest in town affairs and in order to secure a better insight into civic conditions. One of them, however, took advantage of the courtesy extended to them to make an enquiry respecting a recently proposed raid upon a place where intoxicating liquor was supposed to be stored and sold, but was not able to secure any satisfactory explanation as to the failure of the undertaking.

Mayor Chambers presented a request of the members of the Fire Co. for permission to use part of the old school building as a gymnasium, which request was freely granted.

Tell The World

You're Proud to Live in WOLFVILLE

Surely, you have all the reason in the world to be thankful you live in Wolfville. Your commercial interests are here. Your social interests are here. Your prospects here are far more promising than they would be anywhere else. Nary a cloud hovers on the horizon of your future. Could things look any brighter?

Compare Wolfville with Toronto, Montreal, or any of the larger centres of the country. There it is - - "Everybody for himself. Get what you can and the best o'luck." It's hustle, hustle every minute with never a thought or a kind deed for a neighbor's welfare.

How different the spirit is here. Your neighbor's interests are your own. He thinks - "What can I do to please others? What can I do to help improve the town, help it grow and make it a better place in which to live?" Your thoughts are the same. And through your actions and his actions, Wolfville has become the best place in the world.

Population doesn't make a great community. It's the spirit of those who live in it.

So, do a little "Oral Boosting". Tell the world you're mighty happy to be here.

We, the undersigned professional and business interests, are doing our share by advertising the fact.

Do yours, by "WORD OF MOUTH".

ON THE USE OF DROPS IN THE EYES

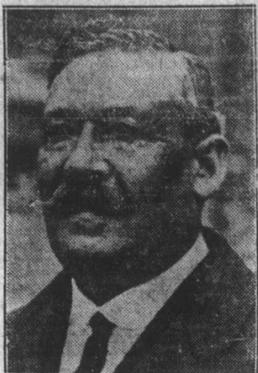

Certain incorrect and misleading statements concerning the use of drops in the eyes for the purpose of examining or testing eyesight have appeared in the public press from time to time.

The following statement has been prepared by the undersigned, licensed physicians, specializing in the treatment of the eye both in disease and health, solely for the purpose of putting the truth of the matter before the public. ONLY LICENSED PHYSICIANS ARE PERMITTED TO USE DROPS IN THE EXAMINATION OF THE EYES. THESE DROPS IN THE HANDS OF QUALIFIED PEOPLE ARE ENTIRELY HARMLESS. Moreover, the use of drops is considered necessary in the majority of cases for refraction of the eyes and invariably so in the case of children and young people, by all Oculists, Medical Schools and Hospitals.

Among Oculists and in Eye Hospitals the world over no instruments have been devised to supplant the use of these drops, but modern instruments are used in conjunction with the drops.

WANTS CORELESS APPLE

(Christian Science Monitor)

Recent information concerning a Fameuse apple tree in the orchard of a fruit grower in Quebec, Canada, which has produced as its fruit solid blocks of edible flesh, without seeds and without core, should spur Burbank to emulate such a "freak" of nature. No credit can be accorded to anyone for securing this achievement because it simply "happened" that an ordinary Fameuse apple tree, in growing by cell division, produced a branch in which the capacity for producing the core in apples was extraordinarily weak. Be that how it may, the fact remains that such a fruit having been discovered, the conditions surrounding its origin need only to be duplicated for a similar result to be produced. In the case of the domestic apple neither the seed sacs nor the core proper are needed—in fact, they constitute a nuisance, no matter for what purpose the fruit is used in the household. Soon, it may be hoped, therefore, that coreless apples will find a place side by side with the well-known seedless oranges.

WHY NOT TRY IT?

If all folks laughed six times a day,
And smiled just twelve times more;
If all folks drove harsh words away,
And turned grey thoughts to door;
If all folks gathered courage-flowers
For heart's brave window-dressing,
There wouldn't in this world of ours,
Be room for things depressing.

Examiner (questioning applicant for life-saving job)—"What would you do if you saw a woman washed out to sea?"
Applicant—"I'd throw her a cake of soap."
Examiner—"Why a cake of soap?"
Applicant—"To wash her back."

The Victoria Cougars won the professional hockey championship of the world, when they defeated the Montreal Canadiens Monday night at Victoria, B.C. The Canadiens won only one of the three games played in the series.

At the regular meeting of Orpheus Lodge, I.O.O.F., on Monday evening, after the business had been transacted, a program of music was given by the recently organized Wolfville Jazz Orchestra, which was much enjoyed by the members.

A recital was given in the Baptist church last Thursday evening by Earle Spicer, celebrated Nova Scotia baritone, assisted by George Chavchavadze, the brilliant young Russian pianist. There was a good attendance and the entertainment was much enjoyed.

The ACADIAN printery entered upon its summer schedule this week, the office being open an hour earlier than formerly in order that its employees may have the advantage of a half-holiday on Saturday. A fine new and fast press was installed last week, in order to the better enable us to handle the increased business which is coming to us.

Sir Robert Falconer, president of Toronto University, sailed from Halifax on Monday for the British Isles, where, beginning May 12, he will deliver the George Watson lectures at the various university centres of Great Britain.

The invitation to Sir Robert to deliver his series of lectures is not only a high compliment to the university president, but to Canada as well. It is the first time that the Watson chair has been held by a Canadian. President Falconer will deal with various phases of the relationship between Canada and the United States, and the lectures are to be published in book form.

A large audience assembled in the lecture room of the Baptist church on Wednesday evening to hear Mrs. John MacPherson, representing the Glace Bay Relief Committee. Mrs. MacPherson, who spent twenty-nine years in the Cape Breton colliery districts, gave a graphic account of conditions there at the present time and told of the organized efforts being made to relieve want and distress.

She declined to discuss the merits of the industrial dispute, her mission being to tirely one of relief. In the absence of the Mayor, Rev. Dr. A. N. Marshall presided. An offering was taken which included a contribution of ten dollars from the Wolfville High School girls.

PUSSY WILLOWS

Capt. Blood will show at the above theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

W. A. Clark, Jr., Castle Theatre, Havana, Ill., says: "Captain Blood with J. Wallace Kerrigan, Vitagraph, sure stepped out and made a real special that should appeal to any audience.

The sea fight between the French ships and Blood's is the greatest ever filmed."

C. C. Dunsmore, Legion Theatre, Marshalltown, Iowa, says: "J. Wallace Kerrigan never will equal again the position he has reached by his wonderful acting."

Evening World-Herald, Omaha: "Be sure to see 'Captain Blood', the best picture Vitagraph has made in many years. We are sure you will like it. We most certainly did. David Smith's direction is inspiring. J. Warren Kerrigan does his work well. James Morrison is unusually fine and Otis Harlan gets much out of the comedy role."

Daily News: "Captain Blood" will transport you out of Omaha and the twentieth century. The whole cast shines. 'Captain Blood' may be considered a perfect picture of piracy."

CANNING WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Arthur Ward, Thursday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Halle Bigelow, Mrs. James E. Kennedy presided. The meeting proved very interesting. The roll call was responded to by each member telling of some labor saving article used in her own home. A duet by Mrs. Alfred Ellis and Miss Marion Eaton, and a quartette, by Mrs. A. D. Payzant, Mrs. Walter Dickie, Mrs. Alfred Ellis and Mrs. Charles Cox, were pleasingly rendered. Miss Marion Eaton gave a paper on "Foods and their function in the human body," followed by a paper by Mrs. Arthur Ward on "Vitamines".

HAD A BONE TO PICK

"Come here, Harry; I have a bone to pick with you," and with that he led me aside, pulled a small roll out of his pocket and peeled off the price of two years' subscription to the Commoner, pushed it over to the editor and put the roll back in his pocket again. Billy has been doing this for fifteen years or more. "I don't like the way you do it," said he, "but I want to let you see that I expect you to keep right on doing it that way."

Not that we feel we always shall be able to please Bill, or that we shall always try; but we know, and he knows, that we do not expect to and he does not expect us to; in short, we know and Bill knows, that we may differ in opinion in many things without breaking ties of friendship.—Enderby (B.C.) Commoner.

THE SATIN TUNIC EXPLOITS BEIGE AND BLACK

Fashion designers are ever on the alert for effective new color combinations. This season they have used beige and black together, with very happy results.

The tunic frock above is quite simple, and it makes a most effective use of this new color contrast. The foundation skirt is a narrow black satin affair. The beige satin tunic shows a deep inset of black satin which extends three-quarters of the way around, leaving the right hip plain. Black is repeated at the cuffs. Note the smart neckline.

WHO IS THE HOME MERCHANT?

The home merchant, who is he? He is the chap who gives you credit when you are financially broke, and carries your account until you are able to pay.

He is the chap who gives you back your money or makes exchanges when you are not satisfied with what you have bought.

He is the chap who meets you at the door with a handshake and lets you out with a message to the "kids" and a real "come again, goodbye".

Minard's Liniment for Colds.

TO IMPOSE GASOLINE TAX

Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways for the Province of Ontario, who is to impose a tax of three cents per gallon on gasoline to raise revenue to keep pace with the expenditures for new highways in Ontario and keep the old ones in a good state of repair. It is expected that at least $3,000,000 additional revenue will result from this tax.

He is the chap whose clerks live in the home town and spend their money with you and other local people.

He is the chap who helps support our churches and charitable organizations, and talks for the home town and boosts for it every day in the year.

He is the chap who visits you when you are sick, sends flowers to your family when you die, and follows your body out among the trees and tombs, as far as human feet may travel with the dead.

He is the home merchant—your neighbor—your friend—your helper in time of need.

Don't you think you ought to trade with him and be his friend and his helper in time of need?

Don't you know that every dollar you send out of town for merchandise is sent to strangers—men who never spend a dollar here? You don't save much, usually nothing, when you send your money out of town. And don't you know that the growth and prosperity of this town and community depend very largely upon the success and prosperity of the home merchant?

Out of town people judge our town by the appearance of our stores and the degree of enterprise shown by our merchants. And our home merchants cannot succeed unless home folks give them loyal support.

NEW $1 BILL

A new Canadian one dollar bill has just been issued showing a portrait of King George V.

This is not the first Canadian bill carrying His Majesty's picture, for a $1,000 note has been in circulation for some time but editors never get a look at it. The King's picture takes the place of the Princess Patricia. In a short time the new one dollar note will attain a wide circulation and gradually will be that most generally seen although there are many bearing the portrait of the Princess Patricia still to be issued and redeemed. The new portrait of His Majesty on the new bill is a strikingly fine one. Otherwise the bill is not materially different from the recent issues of the same denomination.

NEW VARIETIES OF APPLES

A new sweet apple is announced by the Dominion Horticulturist in the report of his Division for 1923. It is a seedling of the McIntosh and has been given the name of "Sweetmac". It is described as of attractive appearance, crimson color, with white flesh showing traces of red. It has the further desirable qualities of juiciness and small core. Its season of use is given as October to January.

This is but one of six new varieties named during the year. Three varieties are Spy seedlings and are named "Spiland", "Spimore", and "Spiretta", and they all resemble the Northern Spy in one or more respects. "Rosetta", a seedling of "Winter Rose", resembles the variety "Sops of Wine" in color and flavor. "Toshkee", a cross of McIntosh and Milwaukee, resembles the McIntosh in color, flesh and flavor and bears a resemblance to Milwaukee only in shape. It is a longer keeper than the McIntosh.

A new crab apple, the "Toshprince", is also reported. It is a cross of the Prince with McIntosh. It bears an attractive fruit up to 2-1-8 inches in diameter, mildly flavored and of good quality, resembling the McIntosh in color.

Of the many new varieties of apples fruiting at the farm during the year under review, these are the ones considered to be sufficiently promising to justify giving them a place in commercial apple varieties.

THAT'S DIFFERENT

An editor and a merchant were discussing the value of billboard advertisements.

The merchant contended that more people read the billboards than the newspapers. After a lengthy conversation in which neither man would give in, they parted. The next week the merchant came tearing down the street to the newspaper office wanting to know why the obituary notice of his wife's mother was not in the paper, especially after he had seen that a copy was taken to the newspaper office. "Well," said the editor, "I knew you wanted the obituary read by the people so I took it and nailed it on your billboard". The next week a half page ad appeared in the newspaper in question.

If you can't boost the town you live in then move to a town you can boost. A man who is living in a town he can't help along, and do something for, is out of harmony with things. He is losing time. He ought to move.

It takes a block of wood two inches wide, three inches high and four inches long to supply the pulp in a 24-page newspaper. A cord of wood, it is estimated, informs 3,600 persons of the day's news.

24th February,

THRILLING CHAPTER OF NOVA SCOTIA HISTORY

(From the Sunday Leader)

At the early period of 1808 only the rudiments of education were taught in the common schools at Falmouth—the home of John Payzant. He lived with his mother on a farm, and toiled for his daily bread. He was about thirty years old when he began to preach. Like the other Newlight preachers of that period, he entered upon the work of the ministry without any literary preparation. All of them were known and spoken of as unlearned and ignorant men.

How was it then that in the circular given above, he seems familiar with the Greek Testament? On this question hangs an interesting and thrilling tale, which, when read, will account for Mr. Payzant's knowledge of the Greek language. I have taken pains to verify all the facts here given. Already there have appeared in print several accounts of this matter, but they have been largely mixed with fiction and fancy. What is stated in this account may be relied upon as substantially correct—correct even in detail. The late Lewis Payzant, of Falmouth, a brother of John, again and again related the events given below, and the circumstances to his grand children, one of whom, his namesake, is now living in Halifax, and well remembers his grandfather's account of the tragic experiences through which the family passed. Another source of information is a brief statement of what took place in the life of John Payzant himself.

The antecedents of Rev. John Payzant are referred to as striking and sensational in the extreme. His father was a rich merchant of France, where he married and had a number of children. On account of one of the persecutions which followed the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, he fled to the Island of Jersey. There he married a second wife and had by her children—Philip, Mary, John and Louis.

About 1753 he emigrated to Nova Scotia, took up a large tract of land in Cumberland county and settled on an estate in Mahone Bay. In the spring of 1756 ten Indians from Brook, River St. John, twelve miles from Woodstock and forty-eight above Fredericton, went on an expedition for furs and prisoners. On arriving in the neighborhood of Lunenburg, they took and compelled him to act as their guide. About midnight they landed on Payzant's Island. It was Saturday night. Through the week soldiers, hired by Mr. Payzant to break up and clear the land, had returned to their barracks in the town. His hired man had also gone to the fort for the night.

That left Mr. and Mrs. Payzant, their children, the wife of their hired man, and their child on this island. Mr. Payzant heard, the Indians landing. He thought they might be some of the lawless people of the neighborhood who had come to rob him of his goods, which he stored in his house. Against the wishes of his wife, he opened the door and discharged his gun, loaded only with powder. Three of the Indians seeing him in the light of the open door, and the flash of his gun, fired on him and pierced him with bullets. He fell back into his arms, saying, "Mary my heart is being cold," and expired.

The first scene of this tragedy, which proved to be a long one, was of brief duration. One of the redskins dashed the brains of the servant woman's head. The mother screamed frantically at the tomahawk cut short the mother's life. She fell dead to the floor beside the corpse of her master and her child. Next in turn was the guide. He was fourth one dead on the floor. To rob him would endanger the enterprise, would be difficult to take him safely over the long journey by land and now before them. The four heads were scalped, as much groceries and goods as they could carry were packed into their canoes. With the four Mrs. Payzant and her four children, and their booty they started for a place of safety, taking pains to fire the canoes before they left. By the light of the rising moon, the canoes glided over the water. The Indians paddled away as silently as possible in a southerly course, around the point of land on which Mahone Bay is located, enforcing silence on Mrs. Payzant and her children as they paddled with threats of death. Not one of the children could have screamed more loudly. The tomahawk was ready, and sentinels were on duty at the fort. A stream might put pursuers in chase of any person on seeing the fire should the alarm, the house would be consumed before it could be reached. The scene would be that it was accidental. That all the family had perished in flames. Soon they had reached the side of the fort, and were on their way to the near wilderness up the LaHave. Ere the sun rose they were in the neighborhood of what is now Bridgewater. There they remained concealed until the search for them was abandoned. Then up and up the LaHave they went and over lakes, rivers and portages till they arrived at the waters of the Avon. Soon they were winding down its yellow tide. They must pass Pisiquid (Windsor) by night. An English fort. Just before commencing the fort, Mrs. Payzant and children were made to lie down in the canoes, and threatened with death in case any one of them should make a noise. The Indians crouched and noiselessly paddled their light canoes which glided swiftly down in the darkness on the outgoing tide. In that awful stillness Mrs. Payzant heard the tramp, tramp, of the sentinel on duty at the fort. But her mouth was sealed, not with the fear of her own death, for that was of little account to her now, but with the fear of the death of her children.

They soon reached the broad waters of the Basin of Minas. But around its shores reigned the silence of the wilderness, broken by no sound except the barking of foxes and the hootings of owls. Only seven months had passed since the English transports sailed out of the Basin lighted by the fires of burning Acadian homes and churches, as the Indian canoes a few night before, had skimmed over the Mahone Bay in the light of the fire of the Payzant house. Now Mrs. Payzant could sympathize with the Acadians whose weeping, and wailing had been heard from these transports, as they were borne away they knew not whither. Behind were their homes dissolving into flame, smoke and ashes.

Nature had now overspread the scene of desolation around Grand Pre with a carpet of green. Spring life was bursting into vernal beauty. Multitudes of water-fowl hovered over the Basin or floated on its yellow tide. Countless songsters had returned to the groves around the ashes of Acadian homesteads. Their mellow voices rang out upon the morning air. But to Mary's heart all this music was as oppressive as a funeral dirge.

The course of the Indians lay across the head waters of the Bay of Fundy. Great precautions must be taken along this part of the journey. Fort Cumberland is near; and British vessels are cruising on the Bay of Fundy. But the wily Indians knew how to make plans to avoid danger. No telegraph then flashed the news over the province; no, not even a mail carried the intelligence of this tragedy. On they are borne between the Peteticodiac river, up which the bore tide wall rolls along its sinuous channel, leading the in-coming tide which the Indians take on the flood.

The travelling in places where there is danger must be done by night. In the daytime, their canoes are drawn up into the edge of the forest, and concealed. Fish, fowl and wild animals are captured to supply their commissariat. They pass along where is now the city of Moncton and pursue their way further up the Peteticodiac. When they arrive at what is now called Portage Hill, canoes and provisions are carried about three miles from the headwaters of the Peteticodiac to the head waters of the Kennebecasis. Over this hill Mrs. Payzant and her children helped the Indians carry the goods which had been stored in her house to meet the wants of the family for many a long year in their wilderness home. They have now come to a part of the country free from danger. Here they find Indians and escaped Acadians skulking in the woods in friendly relations with the redskins. Now they begin to descend the Kennebecasis. Fish and fowl are abundant here, too. There is no lack of provision.

After some days of paddling along this river, now seen by the traveller on the Intercolonial railway, peacefully winding its way to the sea, they come out upon the St. John river; and up its stream they turn the prow of their birch canoes. At length they arrive at a place twelve miles below Woodstock and forty-eight miles above Fredericton, now called Bel River. There was at this point an Indian settlement and a French missionary station among them. Here the course of travel to the St. Croix and the Penobscot branched off from the St. John River.

This was the first place at which they remained to take rest. As Mrs. Payzant herself was French she had no difficulty in conversing with the missionary. Here she looked upon the past which seemed unreal—an ugly, oppressive nightmare.

From the moment she was hurried out of the burning house till she arrived at this mission station, travelling by day and by night, sleeping or waking, these words rang in her ears—"Mary, my heart is growing cold." But like a true heroine she rose to the occasion. For her there was neither cold, fatigue, hunger nor fear. To everything in this life except one, she was lost—the welfare of her children. Philip was about twelve years old, Mary ten, John eight and Louis six.

Except the youngest, they all became servants to do drudgery for the Indians. One squaw, a mother, was humane to Mrs. Payzant. At some point in the journey, it does not appear where, except that it was on the St. John River, there was another tragedy. An Indian who drank heavily ill-used Mrs. Payzant's children. The humane squaw did all she could to protect them. At last this Indian saw one of the Payzant boys stealthily taking some berries from a basket in a canoe, tied up in the end of a tree which had fallen into the water. The Indian who was on the land rushed toward the boy with his tomahawk in hand. But in his haste he slipped and fell into deep water. He was unable to rescue himself and as there was no other Indian near to help him out, he was drowned.

At this encampment it was decided that the Indians should take Mrs. Payzant and other adult prisoners to Quebec leaving the children behind. This is another tax on the courage of Mary. Up to this time how precious to her was that gory scalp of her husband which she would willingly have purchased, had she possessed the means with which to do it. Now her four children must be left behind. Of course the French missionary had all in his power for them. This her except the tax on the mother's bitter cup. Now she must leave her dear little ones behind, and plunge into the forest, to make the journey to Quebec, as she has already made it from Mahone Bay to this point. Nothing of the wrecked and burned home would accompany her except the scalp of her husband, of her servant woman and her little child. They are now in the market with fixed values on them.

O, what a fall from Christian civilization. France and England have descended to the level of North American savages in their trade in blood dripping scalps. As it had been in the journey from Mahone Bay river so it is to be again. Up and down rivers, over lakes and portages, they pursued their tiresome way toward Quebec. Still the mother's hopes, although she travels on a helpless captive in the hands of heartless savages. Faith, fortitude and courage sustain her. Her fortitude and courage of the journey, she will plead the cause of her children at the feet of the governor of Quebec.

He is a French man, she is a French woman. Her language of supplication shall be charged with the impurity of the ruler's heart, hope, faith and prayers. She is assured she can find her way to the ruler's heart, and gain her case. Borne up by these musings, she drags her weary emaciated body over portages, and sustains herself in her sleepless nights under the leafy branches of the forest, though the cold stars seem to look down upon her without pity. But above the stars is the God of her fathers, the God who had sustained her Huguenot ancestors in the times of persecution and martyrdom, through which they ascended to the rest where there is neither persecution, night nor fear, but a rest all of glory. Even now her husband has reached that home and looks down upon her with a love and sympathy greater even than that which she had received from him from the day when, in their Jersey home they had pledged themselves to each other in matrimonial fidelity so long as life should last. Such luxuries unknown to her Indian masters. In the wilderness her Saviour spread a table before her in the presence of her enemies. "How could she sink with such a prop as her eternal God, who bears the earth's huge pillars up and spreads the heavens abroad." (Continued next issue)

PORT WILLIAMS AND VICINITY

Mr. Justin E. Gates is seriously ill at his home with congestion of the lungs. Miss Marjorie Weaver entertained a number of her girl friends on March 26th. Mr. Elias Curry, of Wolfville, spent the week end as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Cogswell.

Mrs. Eldridge is able to be out again after her serious illness. There were a goodly number of the people from here attended the concert in Wolfville, given by Mr. Earle Spicer (a Kings county boy) and Mr. George Chavchavdze (Russian prince). Everybody was delighted with them, as they both proved themselves artists. Mr. Spicer is an exceptionally fine baritone singer, and Kings county should be proud of him, not only because he has sung before royalty and was the only Canadian asked to sing at the Wembley exposition, but because he has persevered and overcome all obstacles in making a career for himself with the wonderful talent given him. Mr. Spicer is a nephew of Mrs. Fred Jackson, of lower Church Street. More need not be said of either Mr. Spicer or the Russian prince, who was equally clever at the piano for a young man of only twenty. We would all like to hear him again after he has finished his musical education.

Mrs. Justin E. Gates has been on the sick list again, but is improving. Mr. Boardman Lantz's family, who have all been sick with influenza, are out again.

Miss Mildred Gates, who has been suffering from spinal trouble, is progressing finely, and is able to walk about.

Miss Edith Murphy, of the telephone staff, Wolfville, spent last Sunday at home.

Mr. Donald Ellis, Belcher Street, has returned from Guelph Agricultural College, from which he passed his examinations successfully.

Miss Dorothy MacKinnon, teacher at Arlington, spent the week end at home.

Mr. Lloyd Jess has resumed his studies at Acadia University, after his recent illness.

The April meeting of the Port Williams Women's Institute will be held in Citizens' Hall, Thursday, April 9th. Program in charge of Agricultural Com. Committee. Roll Call, "Current Events".

Master Eustace and little Miss Eleanor Rand have recovered from their recent attack of influenza.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Starr, of Starr's Point, returned home this week from spending the winter in Florida.

Mrs. C. Cyrus Ellis is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

Mrs. Fred Jackson, of lower Church Street, is ill with influenza.

Mr. Thomas Winter, of Yarmouth, is visiting Mrs. Elizabeth Chase, Church Street.

Mr. Fred Murphy, of the Royal Bank of Canada, Kentville, has been ill at his home in Church Street with influenza. Congratulations are in order for Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Congdon, Church Street, on the arrival of a son, March 23rd.

Mr. Geo. H. Gates had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse on April 1st.

Mr. Wm. Jacques, of Church Street, left for Toronto last Saturday to buy a car load of horses.

There will be service in St. John's church, Church Street, at 11 o'clock next Sabbath morning, led by Coadjutor Bishop John Mackenzie. There will also be a reception at St. John's rectory on Saturday evening for the Reverend gentleman, from 8 until 10 o'clock, and all are invited to attend.

College doesn't make fools; it develops them. It doesn't make fools; it develops them. A fool will turn out a fool, whether he attends college or not, though he'll probably turn out a different sort of fool.

WILL CO-OPERATE WITH NOVA SCOTIA

Governor Brewster, of Maine, Will Include This Province on His Weekly Talks

The State of Maine is now co-operating with Nova Scotia in our publicity campaign. The summer attractions of this Province will be mentioned from time to time in a weekly series of broadcasts on Maine, which is being arranged for by Hon. Ralph O. Brewster, Governor of Maine. Governor Brewster is a strong supporter of publicity, which he terms "the life blood of modern business". Under his direction, the story of Maine will be broadcasted weekly from a station in New York City, at the request of the Nova Scotia Publicity Bureau he has kindly consented to include Nova Scotia in that weekly talk.

In a recent letter to the local Publicity Bureau the Maine Governor says: "It is one of the fine things in the world to have good neighbors, and that is what we want much to be. I think we all believe we are justified in our confidence that this eastern section of our Continent has very special ways in which it may serve, and the presentation of these possibilities is calculated to advance the interests of us all, and to make the whole beaten to our door. As a member of the Maine Publicity Bureau, I have known of the cordial relations existing between your section and our own. I am very hopeful of visiting your region within a period not too far removed."

OUR STANDARD OF LIVING

So great is the desire on the part of Italians to earn their own living apart from any state aid, that women operatives in the Iseo region near Brescia are working at the phenomenal wage of 18 centimes per hour (which is less than 4c.). It is even claimed that the works in question can be kept in operation day and night, so anxious are the people in the district to be self-supporting.

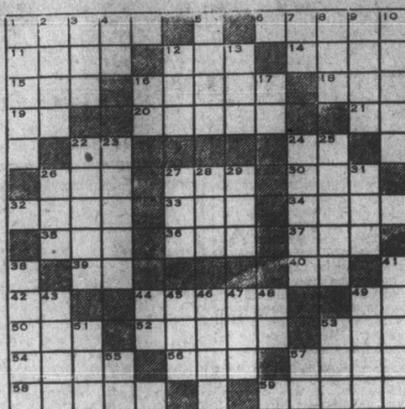

The products of this cheap labor are being offered in Canada in competition with Canadian made goods. As in Italy, so in France, in Germany, in Belgium and other countries of Europe, the people are working at wages which permit the marketing of goods at prices which cannot be contemplated by the manufacturers in this country on the present level of wage costs.

The Canadian manufacturers in the face of this situation are demanding that the government increase the tariff protection. It is not hard to understand the difficulty of their position and the problem with which they have to contend. And contrary to the opinion commonly held by workers—at least as expressed by their spokesmen—there is no general effort on the part of the manufacturers to reduce wages. Manufacturers will tell you, when asked on this point, that they want to pay wages in keeping with our present standard of living.

Manufacturers are seeing their home market supplied with foreign goods and they do not want to be accused of grinding down the wages of their workers to meet competition. Their attitude is worthy of commendation in one sense. No one wants to take a step which seems aimed at lowering the standard of living. And yet we have serious unemployment, and the standard of living of the man who cannot get work must be much lower than that of the man who has a job, even if he has to take lower wages.

The question is whether we can afford a standard of wages in industry so high that the goods produced under such a standard cannot be sold in competition with similar goods manufactured under a different standard in another country plus duty and the cost of bringing them to our market. Would it not be better to have more full time jobs at a somewhat lower wage scale than maintain the present standard with short time and unemployment?—Financial Post.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE CONTEST

The winner of THE ACADIAN'S Cross Word Puzzle Contest last week was Miss Laura Boates, with Mr. R. P. McLeod second. Will these kindly send us the names of persons outside their own family to whom they would like to have us send the paper for six and three months respectively.

Others who sent in correct solutions were Mrs. G. B. Harris, Wolfville; Miss Dolpha E. Holmes, Avonport; Mr. W. J. Regan, Halifax.

As those living outside of Wolfville are placed at a disadvantage in not receiving their paper as early as those in town, we are confining this week's contest to our readers in Port Williams. Who will be the first one from that section to send us a correct solution and win a six month's subscription to THE ACADIAN.

SAYS 100,000 WILL LEAVE ENGLAND FOR CANADA IN 1925

WINNIPEG.—Immigration to the number of 100,000 will come from Great Britain to Canada this year, according to the prediction of J. H. Carmichael, steel magnate of London, England, whose estimate is based upon what steamship agents and other interested immigration parties had told him in the Old Country.

The Empire settlement scheme is arousing more attention to Canada in Great Britain, and Wembley exhibition was a great stimulus. Young married couples experienced in agriculture and with little capital were looking to Canada for their future livelihood.

Mr. Carmichael warns that European immigration agents must be watched to see that they do not assist the entry of workers, who would only increase the ranks of the unemployed in Canada.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 1

Tea as a Beverage

Tea first became known in China nearly 3000 years before Christ. In that country tea was greatly prized, both for its remarkable qualities as a beverage and for the almost religious ceremony attached to the drinking of it. Up to the sixth century, tea was used only for medicinal purposes. Even in the seventeenth century it cost $25.00 to $50.00 per pound. All tea caddies were constantly kept under lock and key. Today when even fine quality like "SALADA" costs less than one-third of a cent per cup, it is not surprising that the consumption of tea is increasing tremendously.

A great medley of men were on the boat, and their faces, the manner of them, also woke old thrills for Angus MacPherson. He knew their type. He had lived with such men at Forty Nine Mile, at Dawson, at Wild Horse, over the seas at Calgoorlie, on the Yeld. Old ecstasies of youth returned. He tapped their eagerness, their desire more for the quest than the getting. It was always like that for him. The quest was the fun. His own quest was different from theirs. They were going to Kokanee, just boomed. He had his secret. Kokanee was but a bluff.

Or was it a secret? He considered the faces on the boat to see if any of them had been on the train, and if so, how long. There were but three that he recognized as having come all the way from Eagle Bend, and these were already on the train at Eagle Bend, when he went aboard, had come from beyond.

And then he wondered. It was a trifling thing that made him wonder. He was looking at a man, and conjecturing about him—where he had first shown up in that bunch of pilgrims. The man turned, caught his gaze (Angus surmised it had doubtless been very keen) and looked away again abruptly.

"Now," thought he, "if a body is caught staring as I was caught staring at you fellow, he generally gets a wee bit of a gaze returned to him, kind of in the way old Cobbett looked at the squire." (Some literary allusion this, doubtless, from MacPherson's much reading.) "That fellow looked as if he wanted me not to remark him. It may signify nothing. It may be but temperamental to him to look away like that when observed. He may have a guilty conscience. But I certainly saw him in the depot at Spokane talking to that thirsty lad who was going to take in the Spring Fair."

He visualized the incident: the thirsty and loquacious young man at the Spokane depot, talking to that man, and how their glances drifted to him with what, looking back, seemed an exaggeration of the casual.

The steamer whistle roared and she churned off. They went down to the saloon for lunch, and when they returned to the deck she was still leisurely yet surely breathing on, her wake, along the near west shore, smashing on lonely granite cliffs, or rolling up on shingle beaches at the end of long gulches that came spreading down, with a creek in their midst.

Well on in the afternoon she suddenly turned inshore, just where the opening begins for the West Arm of Flat-Bow Lake. She headed for a sandy beach, stuck her blunt prow in; a gang-plank was thrust out, two deck hands ran down with a bundle that looked like a rolled tent. They were at once followed by two men in prospector's high boots, grey-shirts, slouch-hatted, carrying blanket rolls.

"Say," growled Angus, "this is really where we should have got off—here, before we cross the Arm. You see I never thought of it till I saw these prospectors landing. We should have outfitted in Colvally after all. But then, of course, I'm forgetting. We must go to Kokanee for to get our miners' licenses. Well, well, the new excitement up yonder seemed the most feasible reason for leaving home. And also," he lowered his voice and passed on to Piccolo what he kept as a private belief all day, "I think we are under surveillance, Pic."

The steamer chugged back with the plank being drawn in. On the beach the two landed men gathered up their belongings, and marching up the shingle disappeared among the edge of shore willows, came back again, and carried up more bundles. The steamer righted gently out, and then again headed north. The West Arm opened with a long vista to its first bend. Again the wake broke against rock fronts and backward iron-like cliffs, where precarious trees gloomed along the edge.

"No landing place here," said Angus. "We shall not be able to walk along the shore south from Kokanee, and then down the Arm to opposite the place where we begin our southern investigations."

Piccolo was lost in thought. When he spoke he enquired thinly: "What do you mean by saying we were under surveillance?"

"Oh, I thought ye had missed that remark and I wasn't going to repeat it. Never mind if you haven't seen. Maybe we can start out from Kokanee just like any other prospectors for to explore the hills. Then we'll get away over those awful peaks southwest, on to the West Arm again to right opposite where, as I say, we begin to mount south—homewards, as ye might say. I see the water is pretty high. The snow is melting quick up in the high parts. We can't walk along the beaches anyway."

"But who has got us under surveillance?"

"Never mind. If ye don't see, all right. I may be wrong."

The steamer at last turned a bend and there, before them, was a scattering of branched unpainted frame houses, a more elderly log shack, of white tents, and a plume of steam from a small saw-mill. And that collection of human dwellings was small, insignificant, under the tremendous scaring of the firmed leagues of slopes, and the prying, behind and over, of sheer rock precipices, five, six, seven thousand feet aloft into the sky. A donkey-engine puffed and a pile-driver dropped its weight with a whack on the shore, but for the time being a jetty did not exist.

Down the creaked gang-plank the motley crowd went with grips and camp-sacks, and blanket rolls. The deck hands, like ants on an ant hill, ran up and down their planks depositing stacks of cases, white sacks, dark sacks, on the small piece of shingle not yet covered by the freshets from the melting snows on the peaks.

On the way up to the collection of tents and houses, Angus stopped.

"Let me help you carry your load," said Piccolo.

"You have enough of your own," answered Angus. "I'm not stopping because I'm over-burdened. I'm stopping to see what hotel is patronized by you man in the brown suit."

"You're suspicious of him? Is he the man you thought was watching us? What would he watch us for? It couldn't be in connection with our find."

"What way 'no'?"

"I beg your pardon?"

"Why not?"

"Because they knew in Colvally that we were coming to Kokanee."

"Innocence, thy name is Piccolo," said Angus.

The man in brown passed on well beyond them, and then lowered his suitcase and mopped his brow.

"He's waiting to see where we go," said Piccolo.

"Hoots man! How do ye know? You have seen nothing, not even what I've seen, and I've had a wee bit of indication—indication of maybe nothing."

"Well, we'll wait and see where he goes; and then we can go to another hotel anyhow, now that you make me suspicious of him," said Piccolo, and bending down he employed himself readjusting the hock of his blanket roll.

"No, no," said Angus. "I want to go to the same hotel, for further observation of him."

"O—I see," said Piccolo. And then he had a thought. "Well, then," said he, "what's the matter with us going ahead and letting him follow us to our hotel?"

"How do you know that he would? It may suit him better to go elsewhere."

"I never thought of that."

"Ah, but I did! There, he's going on. Follow easily."

But when they came to where the choice presented itself of a big canvas tent with the word "hotel" painted on a card hanging upon it, and a new frame house with the words "Kokanee Hotel!" on the front, the man in brown halted again and lowered his grip.

"We'd think he was packing ore samples into Kokanee," said Angus.

"Never mind. Let him go his way. I believe he's a nothing. Come on—" and he chose the tent hotel for the sake of days in old camps from Alaska to the southwest of Australia. "I believe he is a crook, but I believe we have no interest in him," he declared.

They had their cots slotted to them, and washed at one of the basins at a trestle table outside, and then sat down on a log to look at the scene, listen to the water lap and gurgle past. The pile-driver stopped thudding. The saws ceased their buzzing that had been rising to a scream, and ebbing to a hum, and rising again since their arrival.

It was the end of the day's work.

Other men came and washed. Some few went down to the lake and plunged in there. Then a bell rang and Angus and Piccolo went into the big tent again and passed to its far end. Outside, under a big cotton-wood, were stoves and two cooks, and waiters standing by in shirt sleeves. The tent dining-sitting was crowded. The men sat down and kept silence, as though to eat were a sacred rite. Then came the waiters with no menu cards, but to patter off, like a nursery rime, the culinary possibilities. Some sat rigid as in church; some sat with elbows on table; some smoothed their hair; here and there partners sitting together talked in low voices.

The man in brown was at their table, playing with his knife and fork. He toyed with these a while, waiting for his order, and then, holding the fork edge on to the table he inserted his knife blade between its prongs and played with them so.

Piccolo made a wheezing sound.

"Eh?" said Angus.

"I beg your pardon?" said Piccolo.

"I thought ye spoke," Angus explained.

"No," said Piccolo.

Then the soup was whipped down before them and the cracker bowl proffered. It was Piccolo who noticed another man, as well as the man in brown, who played with his knife and fork in the same way. He did not play long, however. He just flicked his knife blade once or twice in between the prongs of his fork making a sharp ticking, and then desisted, looking round for his soup, it seemed. And then it came.

The man in brown was by then at his second course—of steak and potatoes. Having finished that he took up a teaspoon from his saucer and, head on side, like one in a muse, toyed and tapped with it on the cup for a spell, then replaced it in the saucer, blew on the tea, and drank.

All through dinner neither Piccolo nor Angus spoke—till Angus said:

"Well, Pic, we have no table conversation as they have in polite society. Our adage seems to be: 'Eat first and talk after.'"

"Oh, we have table conversation all right, you bet," murmured Piccolo; but when Piccolo murmured his voice was indeed tenuous.

"What?" said Angus.

"I'll tell you after."

"Oh!" said Angus.

Then came prunes, and thereafter the ritual of rising, bending forward to select a wooden toothpick from a small stack in a cup in the table center; and then the slow march out of the tent.

"Ah well, here's our two cots," said Angus, as they came to the dormitory portion.

There they were, each with a stool between for guests to sit upon, and every here and there along the wall was a card tacked up which read thus:

GENTS ARE REQUESTED NOT TO SET ON THE BEDS TO TAKE THEIR SHOES OFF. SET ON THE STOOLS PLEASE.

"Bad grammar," growled Angus, staring at one of these, toothpick between teeth.

"We'll set outside," said Piccolo.

"As you please."

So they went out into the open where a golden evening light was over all the big silent sweep of mountains, and a great quiet dwell, threaded with the sound of plashing and falling streams and the ceaseless sigh of a thin wind, high aloft in the trees that did not bend.

"Did you hear me say in there I had something to tell you later?" asked Piccolo.

"I did."

"Well, Mr. MacPherson, we're watching all right."

"Oh?"

"I never told you I was once a telegraph operator."

"Ye never did. Is the time ripe for telling me?"

"Well, I was. And that man in brown tapped out a message with his knife blade in between the prongs of his fork."

Angus just turned his head and glared at Piccolo under those bushy grey brows of his.

"What he tapped out was this: 'Is there a man here called Hawke?' and then another man tapped back to him: 'He's right here.' And then the man in brown stopped."

"Ay, well, I guessed he was crooked, but he may only be a hooch carrier looking for the man to deliver to here. They have a kind of prohibition in this country now. You can send out for large quantities, but you may not buy a drink in a saloon. It's funny, but so it is, I hear. You grip of his he handled awful careful. Maybe he's in the boot-legging business."

"Oh, yes," said Piccolo, brightening up. "I should not be suspicious, and so on, I know; but then the man you suspected—you suspected—"

"Uh-hu!" said Angus, and his grey brows came down in a frown.

"Then he tapped it out with a spoon, longs and shorts: 'Come to me after supper. I've something to put you on to about that old man, and the twig beside him.' Twig, sir, he coded me! Angus's mouth gave a wry twist. He blew smoke. He took a new and thoughtful look at his partner. He said in a low rumble:

"Ye have the quality, Piccolo, of unexpectedness. You rise in my regard. Don't address me any more, despite the fact that I'm aulder than you consider, ably, Piccolo, either as sir, or Mr. MacPherson. Call me either Scotty or Angus. Scotty maybe, let us say. Here is another proof of the contention I have against the Auld Country ideas. I say the more things a man knows, the more jobs he has tackled, the better. And the West says the same. In the Auld Country—or so it was when I was a laddie—man, if you had done more than one kind of work you were suspiciously regarded. If you had done a matter of three different kinds of work you were looked upon as a vagabond, as ye might say in the nature of a bum or a hobo."

"Yes sir—I mean Scotty. But what do you think of what I've told you?"

"I'm thinking—thinking hard!" replied Angus. "Let us rise up and walk. I think better walking."

Victoria Will Say it With Flowers

When Victoria, the evergreen city of the West bids you welcome, which it will whenever you choose to visit the capital city of British Columbia, it will "say it with flowers," and at most unexpended times and places will present bouquets for your appreciation throughout your stay, whatever the season may be.

What an extraordinary city this is. Though very young compared with many other cities on the Continent it has, no doubt through the agency of its temperate climate, drawn about itself such a mellowed atmosphere as is usually associated with more ancient places. Whatever is offensively new is given a covering or a background of foliage and flowers and it soon fits into the general scheme of things Victorian. Even down in the business and shopping districts where there is much coming and going you will find your flowers, suspended, of all places, from brackets on the street light stands.

And yet it must not be thought that this is a city of gardeners alone although one does wonder in looking over the city and its suburbs that its citizens can find time for anything other than gardening. Those who do business do it in much the same way as it is done in other up-to-date cities of its size and, unless one happens to know them, the stores of Victoria are quite a surprise. As most of the merchandise sold comes over the cheaper water routes, tourists have found it most advantageous to shop there, to the benefit of the merchants and the city generally. On this account, as much as to take care of local requirements, large stores have evolved which may be fallen back upon if ever the sights and scenery pall.

But apart from its own immediate glories and attractions, Victoria is the gateway to a land of enchantment. Hundreds of miles of good motor roads thread Vancouver Island, through the virgin forest in which the biggest firs on the continent grow, winding round mountain peaks and running out again here and there to the shore line.

With its chief city, Vancouver Island is coming into its own as a Mecca for the pleasure and health seekers. For the convenience of the increasing number of tourists who visit the Island the Canadian Pacific Railway has built two of the most magnificently appointed vessels on the West coast, to ply between Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle, and for their recreation and pleasure a huge Crystal Garden is being built, to be completed early in spring and to feature the largest salt-water swimming pool on the continent. However, Victorians pride themselves on the fact that their chief attractions are not of an artificial nature which, in these days of publicity bureaux and advertising campaigns, is much more than can be said of many other fashionable resorts.
