SUGGESTION
...last three weeks you...
...by citizens in...
...the waterworks...
...please give this little ar...
...in your paper.
The election is over and to a great surprise to both the "knockers" and "boosters" with a sweeping majority of 95 in favor of the water system. Now since it is over and can't be changed let us all put our efforts together and make it the best paying system in the town of Mildmay. We must keep down expenses and run it along economical lines in not wasting water and more so in the manner of collecting the water rates.
It is reported that the rates are to be collected every three months in order to make use of the money.
This would no doubt mean a person has to go around to collect and he would have to be paid. Why not collect the year's water rate in advance, which has many advantages.
Firstly, each year the money could be collected like the taxes and electric lights. The same bills could be used and the same collector without any extra charges. Secondly, the town would not need to borrow $8200, but about $7000. Thirdly, the interest on the first $1000 is saved and also each following year, which would be about $60 each year for eight years amounting to $480.
Fourthly the principle is paid off at the beginning of each year. No one should object to paying in advance because he is sure that he can get the water all year round and the money will be used at once.
Anyone who has a cash system pays for the article before it is used and the merchant can use the money in the meantime. I would also suggest that the old rate of $7.00 should be kept for the year 1922, and the rates collected at once. Then for the year 1923 the $6 rate could be collected in December with the 1922 taxes. In this manner of financing the council or the water commissioners will get into the right order and find no trouble in collecting the water rates.

Meaford taxpayers will stagger

The Mayor stated that only three mills were at the council's disposal;
the balance was uncontrollable ex-

EXPOSED

A new man got a job as porter on a railway train, and one of his first duties was to learn the rules as laid down in the rule book of the railway for the safety of the train and passengers. He prided himself on knowing them perfectly. One night the conductor going thru the sleeping car noted a red lantern hanging in the passage way. He called the new porter and asked him what the red lantern was doing there. "Why chief," said the porter, "I was just carrying out the rule." "Never heard of any rule calling for a red lantern in a sleeping car," answered the conductor. "Where did you get it from?" "Where did you get it from?" With an air of perfect positiveness the new porter got out his book and pointed out Rule 27—"Caution—All ways hang out a red lantern when the rear end of a sleeper is exposed."

LIGHTNING RODS AS PROTECTION

No men were greater objects of hatred than the lightning rod peddlars of fifty years ago. About that time they made their first appearance, and their dealings with the farmers left a decidedly bad impression which required years and years to eradicate. For a long time the lightning rod man was the most hated being in the community and from his misrepresentations he deserved all he got. Changes have come since then and the lightning rod is held in higher esteem. As a protection against lightning it is now credited with a 99.9 per cent. efficiency when constructed of the right kind of material and installed in the proper way. From a financial report of the Missouri Farmers' Fire Insurance Company, in 1921 this company paid for fire losses in the township of Missouri alone, $23,669.82. Of that amount, $17,632.75 was paid for losses caused by lightning. This loss in one township is enormous and the aggregate of all losses in the province from this one cause is simply appalling and shows the advisability of protection from lightning rods of their protective influence.

The report goes on to say: "Information gathered from insurance companies who make a practice of inspecting lightning rod systems on all farm buildings shows that they give special rates goes to show that lightning rods, when properly installed, are 99.9 per cent. effective. That is, only one building in every thousand properly rodged, is liable to be burned down."

The inference is plain, that if rodging is so great a protection thousands and thousands of dollars would be saved by having buildings thus protected. The report says further: "In a record of eighteen in the province of Ontario, it was learned that of every 7000 unrodged buildings insured by them 37 were struck by lightning, while in every 7000 rodged ones only 2 were struck by lightning. This, if true, and we have no reason for doubt, is strong evidence in favor of lightning rods as a protection against lightning."

WALKERTON.

Prov. Constable Blood, the officer who was sent up from Toronto last week to help enforce the law in Bruce County, has started out to make a clean-up of auto owners who have been carelessly disregarding the laws regarding lights and license plates. The past week he has been checking up Walkerton car-owners. As a result three were fined $1 and $2 and costs each yesterday and we understand there are about a dozen more charges to follow.

Mrs. R. B. Ferguson was the victim of an exciting runaway accident on Tuesday night. She was driving the pony which the Chief bought last week, along Durham St. and at the Hartley House corner the animal refused to turn the corner to the Town Hall. She then proceeded to turn around when the nag gave two quick jumps, throwing her off the rig. Mrs. Ferguson fell on the pavement and was badly bruised in the wrist and shoulder but fortunately not seriously injured. The pony, now thoroughly excited, dashed madly through a tree in front of the hotel, smashing the vehicle all to pieces and then galloped madly down the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ignatz Weber, and family, who have been highly-respected citizens of the town for many years, are leaving in about three weeks for Kitchener to make their home there. Mr. Weber has bought a residence in Kitchener and expects also to purchase a grocery business in that city. The best wishes of their many friends here go with them to their new home.

RIVAL BIDDERS

The clergyman's eloquence may have been at fault still he felt annoyed to find that an old gentleman fell asleep during the sermon on two consecutive Sundays. So after service on the second week, he told the boy who accompanied the sleeper that he wished to speak to him in the vestry.

"My boy" said the minister, when they were closeted together, "who is that elderly gentleman you attend church with?"

"Grandpa" was the reply.

"Well," said the clergyman, "if you will keep him awake during my sermon, I'll give you a nickel each week."

The boy fell in with the arrangement, and for the next two weeks the old gentleman listened attentively to the sermon. The third week however, found him soundly asleep.

The vexed clergyman sent for the boy and said, "I am very angry with you. Didn't I promise you a nickel a week to keep him awake?"

"Yes," replied he, "but grandpa now gives me a dime not to disturb him."

THAT CHARMING AGENT

The blandishments of that attractive woman who solicited backers for the Lyceum Winter Course had business men fairly feeding out of her hand last summer when she coaxed them into signing a contract guaranteeing the Chautauque Company $350 for five concerts in this town. Some of the concerters were only fair and the performers of mediocre ability. The Mildmay ten guarantors have to put up $10 each for feeding out of the fair lady's hands and in Chesley the 30 guarantors are getting off with $1.50 each and it is worth it to know the real secret of how people can be induced to sign a document as guarantors of a course of entertainments rather than refuse a handsome woman, and bring a shadow of disappointment over the beautiful features of a damsel they may never see again. When Samson lay with his head in Delilah's lap he was an example for all time of men who fall for the wiles of a winsome woman. Some enterprising photographer should get a photograph of the ten Mildmay and 30 Chesley simple Simons who lost their good judgement by the attractiveness of a pretty face in shapely form. The photographs with names and addresses could be sold at a fancy price to fake investment companies who would send out pretty female agents to get the signatures of forty easy victims.—Chesley Enterprise.

THE BOOTLEGGERS

On furtive feet along the street in darkness they are going; from stew and slum they bring the rum that keeps the boneyard growing. They make their rye of poisoned lye, of rough on rats their brandy and he who drinks is wise methinks to keep a coffin handy. They fill their vats with old dead cats when they would make sour mashes; and the small drink will put a gink in line for dust and ashes. They make their gin of rusted tin and upas leaves and granite, and he who sips curls up and slips from this our well known planet. They make their booze from cast-off shoes brought in by vampires ghostly, and he who quaffs finds epitaphs the goods he's needing most. Al when you swing a bumper big of bootleg rye or bourbon, your works will split you'll throw a fit no doc can put a curb on. You'll bite the chairs and fall down stairs and start a roughhouse raucy when you're through the coroner true will sit upon your body. Few few escape the shroud and crape who drink the bootleg mixture, and where headstones are a fixture. The bootleg knives are peddling graves, they're selling bottled slaughter; oh, then, with me drink bon set tea, and pop and water!—Wal Mason.

MUNICIPAL RATE HIGH

In many Ontario cities, towns and villages the municipal rate of taxation is oppressively high and property owners complain that the taxes are equivalent to a fair rental. In most cases the high rate is a privilege come from bonuses to or guaranteeing the bonds of industrial concerns that have failed to make good. However, though the rate in some of the municipalities of this province most deeply involved in debt often exceed 50 mills, there is no probability of the sheriff being called in to levy on the municipal property such as has occurred in Swift Current, Sask., a town with a population of about 5000. The Bank of Commerce has also started an action against the town to recover a loan to $200,000. The Saskatchewan Government is trying to catch out the bankrupt town by special legislation. There are several other towns and villages in Saskatchewan also on the verge of bankruptcy.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

The Daylight Saving question is up again. Toronto changes its clocks May 14 and again Sept. 17. It's all right where its popular, says the Owen Sound Sun. Otherwise it is irritating and confusing. Any one who likes can practice daylight saving without changing the clock by going to bed at dark and getting up and at it again with the sun. There is some word of the railways adopting it again this year, which will be an inconvenience except in the few cities where it is in vogue. Unless it can be made general, Daylight Saving is more a hindrance than a help.

DRAYTON FLOODED OUT

The village of Drayton had one of the biggest floods in its history when as a result of the mild weather during the past week and subsequent ice jam the streets of the village were deluged with a tidal wave. Drayton is situated on the Cornestogo River. Cellars were completely filled and the floors of dwellings were several inches under water. A number of pigs and several dozens hens were drowned and in one or two cases horses were rescued only at the last moment.

Miss Maud Mackin of Lindsay was the plaintiff in a breach of promise action for $5,000, heard before Justice Lennox, the defendant being Mr. Arch. McIntyre, garage dealer of Cannington, Ont., and was awarded by jury the sum of $2,500 and costs. The case took up a day and a night, and there was considerable evidence.

This old reliable farm Company insures farm buildings, schools and dwelling houses in cities, towns and villages at a low premium note rate on the instalment plan and collects lower first, second and third instalments than other mutual Companies and allows a preferred rate on buildings well equipped with lightning rods and is capable of carrying any such risks.

The Company has a record for prompt inspection and payment of losses without quibbling or fear not favor so that the assured doesn't need to worry if he sustains a loss because payments are made very punctual after proof of loss is considered by the Directors.

The Board of Directors meets every last Thursday of every month and the office is managed by honest, efficient management. Always prompt. Never negligent. With such low rates it merits the patronage of intending insurers.

EUGENIA POWER PLANT

There is a general feeling, that is becoming more or less chrysalized, that there should be a thorough investigation of the whole Eugenia power system with a view to making economies in the administration and operation of the power division. For some time past the opinion has often been expressed that there is a great deal of waste in that plant, and that this waste is being reflected in higher costs for power to the municipalities concerned.

Some statements have been made recently that the Eugenia plant is very much over-manned compared with the Orillia Power Plant for instance. It is also claimed that there are many experiments made that eat up a lot of money. A full investigation by experts, not in the employ of the Hydro, but favorable to public ownership, should be made with a view to effecting economies at once. Almost every municipality connected with the Eugenia plant have had their rates raised, and there has been a natural desire to know why, and to have some real opportunity to talk the matter over with a view to effecting economies.

There is also a general impression that the officers of the Hydro Commission, those men who direct the affairs from Toronto, are just a little bit too arbitrary for men who are there to serve the people. The men are not put there to act as czars, or battalion sergeant-majors, but to give service and to give it with the greatest despatch.

There are frills in connection with the Eugenia plant that the users of power have to pay for, and that the said users are neither interested in nor parties to. The operation of a pheasantry at Eugenia may or may not be chargeable to Hydro, but if it is the municipalities should have a say in it. It would soon become a big bone of contention.

There should be an effort made to get all municipalities concerned to make a joint application for a general investigation with a view to eliminating waste, if there is any, and to have the plant run at the least possible outlay. If half the men could do the work, only one half should be kept on the job.—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

STRENGTHENING BEVERAGE

MYSTERY OF THE GREEN RAY

By William Le Queux

The outbreak of war sends Ronald Ewart, a young London barrister, to the Highlands to say good-bye to his fiancée, Myra McLeod. On the train he meets Hilderman, who calls himself an American and a stranger in those parts, but later Ewart finds that he has built a hut on a cliff above the falls opposite General McLeod's lodge. While fishing in the river Myra is suddenly blinded by a flash of green light. Gen. McLeod tells Ewart of a strange experience at the same place, known as Chemist's Rock. Hilderman is very curious as to the cause of Myra's blindness. The famous London oculist holds out no hope and Ewart, after taking Myra home, brings Dr. Garsnek from Glasgow. In the meantime Sholto is also blinded, then chloroformed and stolen. Garsnek asserts his belief that Hilderman knew of Sholto's affliction. The next morning the two men find footprints and heel-marks on the beach, and the name-plate from the dog's collar. Ewart telegraphs for his friend, Dennis Burnham. At Chemist's Rock Ewart sees the green flash and Ewart is suffocated. While in the darkness are the two young men are developing snap-shots, Myra discovers that she can see in the red light. As the oculist departs as Burnham arrives, Hilderman and his friend Fuller invite Ewart and Burnham to return from the station in the latter's boat.

CHAPTER XIII.—(Cont'd.)

The trivial but necessary question of edible species will detain us for a few moments," Fuller said. "But we shall be more comfortable here than wandering about in the herring-gull. So we made ourselves comfortable in the deck-chairs in the stern, while the steward went ashore and made the all-important purchases.

"You cruise a good deal, I suppose?" was my first question.

"Yes, a fair amount," our host replied. "I pretty well live on board, you know, although I have a small house further north, on Loch Duich, if you know where that is best."

Mr. Ewart was bent up here, and knows it backwards," Hilderman informed him. And we chatted about the district and the fishing and the views until the steward returned, and we got under weigh. I should have liked to have seen the accommodation below, but the journey was a short one, and I had no opportunity to make the suggestion. Dennis was sitting nearest the rail, and there was a small hank of rope at his feet.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Burnham," said Fuller suddenly. "I didn't notice that rope was in your way." And he leaned over and tossed the rope away. As he did so some hard object fell with a clatter from the coil.

"It's not interfering with me in the least," laughed Dennis, and looked down at a large, bone-handled clasp-knife which had dropped in front of him. He picked it up idly, and weighed it in his hand.

"Useful sort of implement," he said. "Oh, these sailor-chaps like a big knife more than anything," said Hilderman, "and of course they need them strong. I daresay that has been used for anything, from primitive carpentry to cutting tobacco. The one knife always does for everything."

We continued our conversation while Dennis idly examined the knife, opening it and studying the blade absently. Presently Fuller, noticing his absorption, began to chaff him about it.

"Well," he suggested, "have you completed a complete history of the knife and its owner? If you're ready to sit an examination on the subject I will constitute myself examiner, then we'll try who can contradict your conclusions."

"It's a very ordinary knife to find on board a boat, I should think," said Dennis.

"Oh, come, Mr. Burnham," Hilderman joined in, "you couldn't wriggle out of it. Surely you can answer Mr. Fuller's questions."

"If Mr. Fuller will allow me to put one or two preliminary questions to him," Dennis replied, entering into the spirit of the fun, "I am ready to go into the witness-box and swear quite a number of splendid things."

"Come now, Fuller," chaffed Hilderman. "You must give him a run for his money, you know. He is risking his reputation at a moment's notice. I breath away. I have a man on board with red hair, and when the boat came up, the factor he was working about here. I saw him leave his work to come ashore for me. I shouldn't be at all surprised to find that the knife belonged to him."

"Oh, well," Dennis laughed, "one shot right is not a bad average for a beginner, you know."

"No," said Hilderman, puffing a cloud of smoke, and dreamily following his recent with his eyes, "not bad at all. Not bad at all."

And then, the joke of the clasp-knife being played out, we admired the scenery, and convolved of less speculative subjects till we arrived at Glasnabinn.

We were pulled ashore by the man with the red hair, and when our host confronted him with the knife he promptly claimed it.

"I think you won, Mr. Burnham," laughed Fuller, and Dennis smiled in reply. We did alongside the landing-stage and stepped out, and Dennis's schoolmaster was about to slip the painter through a ring and make the boat fast. But evidently the ring was broken, and the man came ashore, and Hilderman began to lead us up the path. But Dennis deliberately turned and watched the sailor. Hilderman and his companion strode ahead while I stood beside Dennis. The man with the red hair fished among a pile of wire rope, and picked out a small marine-spike. Then he lifted a large stone, held the marine-spike on the wooden plank of the landing-stage, and hammered it in with the stone. Then he threw the painter round it, and made the boat secure in that way.

"Yes," murmured Dennis quietly, as we turned to join the others, "I think I won."

For the man had held the stone in his left hand.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Further Mystery.

"Well," said Hilderman, as we caught them up, "what about lunch? After his journey I daresay Mr. Burnham has an appetite, not to mention his excursion into the realm of detective fiction."

"We lunched at Malles," I explained, "with Mr. Garsnek before we came."

"Oh, did you?" he asked, with evident surprise. "I didn't see you at the hotel."

"We went to the Marine," I replied, "to save ourselves a climb up the hill. There was a snack at Malles, too, the American assured, "intending to lunch here. Are you sure you couldn't manage something?"

"It would have to be a very slight something," Dennis put in. "But I daresay we could manage that."

"Good!" said Hilderman. "Come along, then, and let's see what we can do."

We strolled into the drawing-room through the mezzanine verandah, and though Hilderman was the tenant of the furnished house he had contrived to impart a suggestion of his own personality to the room. The furniture was arranged in a delightfully lazy way, and that almost made you yawn. The walls were hung with photographic enlargements of some of the most beautiful spots in the neighborhood. I remembered what Myra had told me as to his being an enthusiastic photographer, so I asked him about them.

"Did you take these, Mr. Hilderman?"

"Yes," he answered. "These are just few of my crew, and it is obvious to one which I should like to see some time. I always leave the enlarging to keep me alive during the winter months. These are a few odd ones enlarged for decorative purposes."

"They are beautiful," I said enthusiastically, for they were real beauties, more like drawings in monochrome than photographs. "And you certainly seem to have got about the neighborhood since your arrival."

"Yes," he laughed, "I don't miss much when I get out with my camera. Most of these were taken during the first month of my stay here."

"These snow scenes from the Callins are simply gorgeous, and surely this is the Kingie Pool on the Garry?"

"Right first time," he admitted, evidently pleased to see his work admired. I thought Garsnek's suspicion, excuse for the way he called you to see that our American friend was engaged on detective work of some kind, and it struck me that with his camera and his obvious talent he had an excellent supposing he went along anywhere, time to explain his presence in some outlandish spot.

"You must have kept yourself exceedingly busy," I remarked in conclusion.

Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade, or run.

Wind and Weeds.

In Sumatra the length of time a widow must wear her weeds is determined by the wind. After her husband's death she plants a flagstaff at her door, upon which a flag is hoisted. While the flag remains untorn by the wind etiquette forbids that she should marry. But as soon as a rent appears, no matter how tiny, she can lay aside her weeds.

Women's Interests

Under-Nourished Children.

During a recent inspection of school children by a trained nurse in a small city some startling facts were brought out about poorly nourished children. Many families with two or three children had not a pint of milk for the whole family, while butter was rarely seen on the table. These poor families aroused the sympathies of club and church ladies, who immediately took steps to supply the children with pure fresh milk daily, so that their poor little starved bodies might have a chance to develop to the standard of normal beings.

But among the poorly nourished youngsters were a number who had recently moved in from the country, and whose indignant parents had much to say that was unkind and impolite in regard to the reports of the nurse. But when they took the children to the family physician the verdict was the same. Under weight, poorly equipped to resist disease, under size and not normal physically because of lack of proper food. Then it came out that the children "hated" milk and would not touch butter. They ate greedily of meat, white bread and potatoes, but used little fruit and eggs. The parents trusting to time to bring them out all right, had not attempted to force them to eat wholesome things; indeed, they hardly knew what children should eat. Yet the man could talk intelligently on balanced rations for pigs and sheep and horses, and his wife could raise chickens better than most of her neighbors, as she proudly informed folks. They knew how to feed for pork and lambs and eggs, but they did not know what was good for children.

With many children it is a whim that they will not touch milk, and often economical parents rejoice when the larger amount of whole milk or cream or butter goes to market, because the children do not care for it. But those who are informed as to the needs of growing boys and girls disguise the milk so that the boys and girls get enough each day while thinking they dislike it. In milk soups, gravies, custards, ice cream, puddings and bread the life-giving elements are introduced and the boys and girls eat them unthinkingly. To be sure, fresh, sweet milk uncooked is better than milk boiled, but by going at the thing gradually it is easy to inculcate a liking for milk and cream and butter. Take mashed potatoes, for example. Fresh, sweet cream and butter can be beaten into the mashed potatoes without the long boiling that milk gets in gravy, and the effect is almost the same as if the butter were spread on bread and the cream used on cereal. Whipped cream sweetened and mixed lightly with warm lapsoa or served with berries is relished by children who will tell you that they do not like milk. By calling it pudding, sauce or salad dressing, the youngsters will eat cream and butter unhesitatingly and get all the benefits therefrom.

Children must have butter, milk, eggs, cream and fruits to thrive and to gain in weight and height. The farmer is alarmed when the pig or the lamb or the cow does not thrive, and immediately changes the feed and tries to discover the cause, but few families change their diet when the children are over thin or when they lack vigor. The common idea is to buy something in a bottle with which to dose them, when good food would accomplish the same or better results in less time and without injury to the stomach. A visit with the children to the family physician two or three times a year, and a heart to heart talk with him about the proper food would save many wrecked lives and many undertakers' bills. Be sure that your children are getting at least a quart of pure milk daily for each one, with butter thickly spread on good bread, and cream on cereals. Then you will see results just as you see results in feeding animals correctly. If it pays to study the needs of animals, and it does, it pays much better to study the proper diet for your children.

Revive This Old Custom.

It used to be the custom for one member of a family to set himself by the fireplace on a cold winter's night, after the chores were done and the dishes washed, and read aloud to an interested and attentive audience. Many of the conditions which formerly encouraged the practice of reading aloud no longer exist, for in earlier days reading matter was scarce, the fireplace was the main source of heat, and the tallow candle or oil lamp furnished accommodation for but one person.

If we of to-day have gained much, we have also lost much; from this practice there are benefits to be derived as valuable to-day as they were fifty years ago. Among these benefits was the exchanging of ideas which possibly by the whole family consideration of the same subject. The voicing of various opinions led to conversation and argument, and discouraged any one from becoming unreasonably set in his own ideas. The reading took the minds of the family away from the weather, neighborhood gossip or family troubles.

Homes where family singing is the practice have another source of endless pleasure at their own hearth, for the good old songs, gaily sung, are wholesome and cheering.

Lift Off with Fingers

She sat directly in front of me, and as the lecture was not especially interesting, I found myself studying the characteristics revealed by the back hair of my neighbor in front.

To begin with, the hair was heavy for nature had been generous, but the close, clinging strands showed an over-olly condition, and when the rays of sunshine shined across the loose mass, it was clearly dusty. So I decided that my neighbor in front was not particularly about herself or she would not permit her crown of glory to be other than delightfully clean.

Then, the arrangement of her hair showed me several things. Part of the strands were twisted up without having been properly combed into a soft, smooth mass, and the hairpins were stuck in any old way to hold it up. It was evident that it looked all right in the front and at the sides, but in the back it was a "sight."

By this time I had lost all track of what the lecturer was saying and had decided that my neighbor in front was not only slack about her person, but careless and rather lazy. The reason I decided she was lazy was because her hair showed evidences of constant

DYSPEPSIA ENDED IN A SHORT TIME

CHAPLEAU SUFFERED SO MUCH HE DREADED FOR MEAL TIME TO COME.

"The Way Tanlac Overcame My Trouble Was the Happiest Surprise of My Life," He Declares.

"About the biggest and happiest surprise of my life was the quick way in which Tanlac brought me complete relief," said Victor Chapleau, 375 Sanguinet Ave., Montreal, Que.

"I was in a terribly run down condition for three years as a result of stomach trouble. I actually got to the point where even the smell of food cooking would nauseate me and I dreaded to see meal time come round, as I knew that no matter how careful I was I would suffer agonies afterwards. I was so nervous at times that my hands shook like a man's with the palsy and I could hardly hold a pencil to sign my name."

"I am like a new man in every way now. Everything I eat agrees with me, my nerves are as steady as a clock and I feel just brimful of life and energy all the time."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. —Adv.

Surnames and Their Origin

CONWAY
Variation—Conwy.
Racial Origin—Welsh.
Source—Locality.
Most people are under the impression that the family name of Conway is exclusively Irish. As a matter of fact, it has a Welsh origin also, and the evidence goes to show that the name more often traces to this Welsh origin than to any other.

Mother! Clean Child's Bowels With California Fig Syrup

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Meat and Drink for the Mind.
Great books are meat and drink for the mind. They have a wonderful sustaining and steady power. Thousands of youths have been saved from moral shipwreck by their influence. Many a boy has been preserved from the evil associations of bad companions by the power of an inspiring book, which held him at home in spite of temptations to follow his associates to low places of amusement and soul-destroying dissipation. The possession of a small library—even if it be only half a dozen of the great books of the world—is worth a fortune to a young man or a young woman.

The largest artificial reservoir in the world is being built at Littleton, to help London's water supply; it will have a surface area of 800 acres.

This is a wonderful power which God gives us when He first blesses us, and then sends us forth to bless others. But it costs self-sacrifice to be a blessing.—C. L. Goodell.

Pyramid Your Efforts.

Success is the result of pyramiding experience and efforts. For instance, if you follow a profession or a trade, you should try to make everything that comes to you count, so far as possible, in that direction. By this, I do not mean that you should become a narrow specialist, but that you would make a large success of your life you must be an expert in your specialty.

WINTER WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Our Canadian winters are exceedingly hard on the health of little ones. The weather is often so severe that the mother cannot take the little ones out for an airing. The consequence is that the baby is confined to over-heated, badly ventilated rooms; takes cold and becomes cross and peevish. Baby's Own Tablets should be given to keep the little ones healthy. They are a mild laxative which regulates the stomach and bowels and thus prevent colds. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Family Album of the Future Will Talk

The family portrait album of the future will talk, according to the makers of photograph records in London, who declare that the demand for private discs is increasing daily. They say that persons are having records of their own accomplishments made and are sending them to friends. Also, instead of sending letters or gifts, some people now talk on a disc and send that by way of greeting. The talk of children at various ages is being fled away with their baby clothes.

A Wreath in Ice.
The anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar is always celebrated by the decoration with flowers and wreaths of the great monument in Trafalgar Square, London. It reached the monument in good condition, and in time to take its place among the other decorations.

GENERAL DEBILITY FOLLOWS INFLUENZA

The After-Effects Often More Serious Than the Disease Itself.

No reasonable precaution to avert an attack of influenza should be spared. The disease itself often proves fatal and its after-effects among those who are spared, make the life of the victim one of almost constant misery. Ask almost any of those who have been attacked by this trouble what their present condition of health is and most of them will answer: "Since I had the influenza I have never been fully well." This trouble leaves behind it a persistent weakness of the limbs, shortness of breath, bad digestion, palpitation of the heart and a tired feeling after even slight exertion.

This is due to the thin-blooded condition in which the patient is left after the fever and influenza have subsided. This condition will continue until the blood is built up again, and for building up the blood and strengthening the nerves nothing can equal a fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The value of this medicine in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mr. Edward J. McGuire, Pembroke, Ont., who says:—"In the fall of 1918 I was attacked with the influenza—and not in a mild form either. I was confined to my room for three weeks, and although the influenza subsided I did not regain my health. As a matter of fact I seemed to be growing weaker. I had no appetite, was subject to fainting spells and my feet and ankles were badly swollen. The doctor told me that my condition had developed into a serious case of anemia, and although I was under his care for over two months I was not improving in any way. At this stage one of my friends advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was loath to do so, as I began to think my case hopeless. However, I was finally persuaded to try them, and by the time I had used two bottles there was no doubt they were helping me. I continued taking the pills until I had used a dozen boxes, when I found that every symptom of the trouble had left me and I was again enjoying the best of health. I returned to my work and have ever since been in good health and feel that I owe it entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I think that any one who is suffering from the after-effects of influenza, or any form of anemia should give this medicine a fair trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sliding Down Hill and Don't Know It.

"He is sliding down hill and don't know it," said a friend to me, the other day, speaking of a mutual acquaintance who had started out in life with great promise, but had gradually lost his grit and ambition, and had completely slumped. Instead of being the first-rater all his friends expected him to become, he is only a second or third-rater.

Are you sliding down hill? Is the edge wearing off your ambition? Are you conscious that there is some deterioration going on within you; that you are not quite what you once were? Have you a feeling that you are slipping down; that your life-standards are dropping; that you are not quite as progressive, not quite as up-to-date, in your dress, your manner, your appearance, not quite as interested in your work, or as ambitious to climb to something higher as you once were?

If you are, it is time for you to call halt, see where the trouble is, and remedy it. If you don't turn about face immediately and get on the upgrade again you are in danger of slipping to a second or third-rater.—Success.

Cobourg, Ontario.—"For many years I have had troubles with my nerves and have been in a general run-down condition for some time. I could not do my work half the time because of trouble every month. I was told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and advised to try it. It has done me good and I strongly recommend it. Since I have taken it I have been able to do all my own work and I also know my friends who have found it good. You can use these facts as a testimonial."
—Mrs. ELLEN FLATTEN, Box 761, Cobourg, Ontario.

Any woman in this condition should take the Vegetable Compound, for it has helped other women and so it should help you.
For nearly fifty years this good old-fashioned root and herb medicine, which contains no narcotics nor harmful drugs, has been the standard medicine for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacement, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, etc.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Did you ever try Grape-Nuts?
with stewed prunes or peaches?

THERE isn't anything better for breakfast or lunch than a dish of Grape-Nuts, with cream or milk, and stewed prunes or peaches.

This delicious combination gives you the elements of a well-balanced food. For it contains not only the material needed to build tissue and furnish energy, but it also supplies fruit acids, that help keep the system in good order.

Go to your grocer today and order a package of delicious Grape-Nuts. You will find that it will digest more readily than most other cereals, and it will "stay by" you longer—because it's so richly nourishing.

Sliding Down Hill and Don't Know It.
"He is sliding down hill and don't know it," said a friend to me, the other day, speaking of a mutual acquaintance who had started out in life with great promise, but had gradually lost his grit and ambition, and had completely slumped. Instead of being the first-rater all his friends expected him to become, he is only a second or third-rater.

Are you sliding down hill? Is the edge wearing off your ambition? Are you conscious that there is some deterioration going on within you; that you are not quite what you once were? Have you a feeling that you are slipping down; that your life-standards are dropping; that you are not quite as progressive, not quite as up-to-date, in your dress, your manner, your appearance, not quite as interested in your work, or as ambitious to climb to something higher as you once were?

If you are, it is time for you to call halt, see where the trouble is, and remedy it. If you don't turn about face immediately and get on the upgrade again you are in danger of slipping to a second or third-rater.—Success.

The Librarian Mind.
"Sergeant," said the commanding officer, "I was looking last evening for some records concerning the religious services held every Sunday morning, but could not find them in the files. Where are they?"
"They are filed under 'H,' sir," answered the sergeant in charge of the files.
"Why under 'H'?"
"Because they began at half-past nine, sir."
