"GAG" IN THE LEGISLATURE AN ALL-NIGHT BATTLE

(Special to The Ontario) TORONTO, March 18.—An effort on the part of the Government to jam through, without opportunity for discussion, a bill indemnifying Mr. G. Howard Ferguson, member for Grenville, from forfeiting his seat for services that he performed for the Dominion Government in investigating conditions on the Trent Valley Canal, was resisted with remarkable spirit by the Opposition in the Legislature yesterday. The proceeding was characterized by Mr. Rowell as "gag," "closure," and an invasion of the rights of the members of the House.

Mr. Rowell pointed out that he had already intimated to the Attorney-General that so far as the first reading was concerned he was quite prepared to waive the two-days' notice. But without consulting his colleagues he could not consent to the bill passing through the necessary stages at one sitting.

Mr. Rowell then went into authoritative detail. He quoted Bourinot to show that the rules could not be suspended without an opportunity for discussion. If the Government would adopt the ordinary procedure there would be no objection from the Opposition.

FOXBORO

Foxboro.—Owing to circumstances Rev. A. L. Brown's report of the recent convention at Bowmanville, was not given to the League here until last Monday night but it was well worth waiting for. Mr. Brown wasted no time in minor details of routine work, but in a forty-five minute address set forth the salient points of several of the best speeches delivered at the convention in such eloquent, forceful style that their edifying and inspiring power could not be felt. One timely phrase was "The best citizenship of good men."

A man may be a good man as a private individual and yet a bad citizen and it is to this fact that most of the existing evils in the state may be traced. The problem is worth thinking over.

Laughter is one of the best tonic, latter day physicians tell us. If so the large attendance at the box social on last Wednesday night should be well toned up to resist the ill that are supposed to accompany the advent of spring; for with one exception each member on the program, with its predecessor in mirth-provoking propensities. This exception selection, which was highly appreciated was the graceful interpretation in sign language of the sacred song "Abide with Us" rendered by Miss Hough as the selection was being sweetly sung by Mrs. Anderson. The star performer was Miss Moon who was ably supported by Woman's Little Way "Is my hat done?" inquired a cold-looking lady at a millinery establishment one pleasant day.

"Yes, ma'am," politely responded shop woman. "It will be here in a moment."

An assistant soon brought up the hat, and while the customer was duly inspecting it the proprietress ventured to inquire:

"How do you like it, ma'am?" "It's simply horrid," was the reply.

"But it's just as you ordered it," pleaded the maker of the headwear.

"Yes, something as I ordered," was the short and snoring answer.

"I am sorry, but—" "Well, never mind," broke in the buyer, with set lips. "What's the expense?"

"About four dollars," said the shop woman, timidly.

The money was paid over and the hat ordered up to the house, when the purchaser went out, and immediately exclaimed to an accompanying friend:

"Isn't it perfectly lovely?" "Yes," she replied, "it's ravishing!"

"But how could you talk so to that woman?" "Talk so!" exclaimed she of the hat. "Why, if I had let her know how much I liked that hat she would certainly have charged me $6, but now, you see, I've got it for $4."

The other woman said she had not thought of that, but would profit by her friend's experience, and never like an article again until she had bought and paid for it.

WORK FOR THE FOWL INSPECTOR

Perhaps that West Belleville fowl inspector can give us some definite information upon the points raised in the latter part of this paragraph. If so he will confer a lasting benefit upon those of us who are too poor to pay three cents a piece for Easter eggs, or whose hens are always on strike when eggs are most wanted. He has a chance to perform a work of real philanthropy on behalf of his fellow citizens.

A Wellington county hen-sharp announces that in order to have hens do their best work they must be amused. He goes on the theory that "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," applies to hens as well, and that amusement as well as work should be their portion. The trouble is that this same sharp did not instruct the common everyday folks that own a few hens, how to amuse them. The hen is in every sense a day bird, goes to bed at dusk, and consequently cannot be taken to Griffin's. So far as known the gallinæ do not appreciate classical music, being most human in this respect, and so one cannot employ a Schumann-Heink for them with hope of getting returns justifying the expense. Then one is handicapped in reading to them on account of their wandering habits, and the further fact that one does not know and has no means of learning their tastes in literature. They might have widely varying tastes in this line, and while some of them would be tickled to death to have a poem or two of Martin Farquhar Tupper read to them, others would be disgusted with it and insist on a chapter from Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, or Baxter's Hints to the Unconverted, or something of that style. One cannot play marbles with them or mumble-to-peg, and they do not seem to have any liking for hockey or baseball, or pitching horseshoes, and owing to conditions over which they have no control, they cannot play pool, or poker, or anything of that kind, and so the average man is up against it as an amuser of the sorrowful and down-hearted hen.

With eggs selling at thirty cents a dozen a hen that will not work overtime is beyond reformation and we for one refuse to put in our time tickling her ribs with a straw or spending our hard earned money hiring a brass band for her entertainment. She can lay or set, just as she pleases, and she can sing, cackle or cluck for her own amusement—or go unamused to her haughty roost.

BASHFULNESS AND PREVAILING STYLES

One of the most soul-harrowing things in life is bashfulness. It is one of the most prominent characteristics of the old man who writes these few sad lines, and whose life has been one continuous round of nervous shock, and most of it for no reason at all only that overweening diffidence. One after another things come about that keep him in a nerve-wracked condition. Just now it is the latest style of dress assumed by the women. He never goes out on the street but that he fears the expected will happen, and that, too, where he would, as it were, be a party to it, for he feels that it yet is sure to happen, and that is, that sometime, somewhere, some of the belying pins, halcyards and other unknown things that hold the feminine garments in place on their bewitching wearers, will become unspiced, or slip a cog or something, and let the garments do what they are apparently trying to do all the time—drop off. The skirt seems to hang in a kind of hopeless and helpless way from a hook or something concealed under a sort of sack that hangs from the shoulders as gracefully as a nightgown on a nail and acts as though it, too, wanted to retire from business, go off to some solitude and commune with nature unadorned. Well, the fashions will change in time, and this danger will be over, but what will take its place? That is already getting on the old man's nerves. Let us hope that whatever it is, it will not make our girls look like a woolsock full of snaths with the handles on.—Salem Capital-Journal.

MAY RESULT IN UNIVERSAL PEACE

It looks very much as though the nations generally would have to adopt the universal peace plan, for they, one and all, have about reached the limit in the way of war preparations, and the burdens cannot be increased without civil war. Each of the great nations is now in the condition where additional burden in the way of taxes will cause rebellion. They are much in the condition of two belligerent farmers who have gone to law and finally each has expended all his substance in lawyer's fees and court expenses. They have to quit because there is nothing with which to pay the lawyers. A cursory examination of conditions will convince anyone of this fact. Here are a few figures illustrating it:

A half a century ago European military expenditure aggregated $3,000,000,000 annually; by 1912 it was over $10,000,000,000; by the end of 1913 it approached $13,000,000,000. Military expenditures alone in Europe to-day exceeds the sum of all the European budgets of 50 years ago.

The German budget between the years 1800 and 1912, a period of 22 years has increased 140 per cent; the Belgian 112 per cent; the French 47 per cent. Europe has a population, in round numbers of about 400,000,000 and to meet the expenditure for armament yearly requires a tax equal to more than $30 per capita for the entire population. This in time of peace, and just as a matter of defence in case of war. With war in progress this sum would be greatly increased.

With wages of $1 a day, it would require an army of 40,000,000 working steadily to meet the payments for war charges in time of peace. This pace cannot be maintained. If the announcement, made recently, that explosives could be exploded by wireless at a distance of several miles is true, war is at end and the great warships and air fighting machines are utterly useless, and dangerous only to those who would try to use them. When an operator sitting in his office in Halifax can explode all the ammunition on a battleship 20 miles at sea, at a cost of a few cents, the fighting business is over.

It is rumored that the C. P. R. is about to acquire the C. N. R. Well, why not? As the C. P. owns everything else, why not make a clean job of it?

When you hear a knock at the door this month don't rush to open it expecting to find Opportunity trying to get in. The chances are it will be the assessor wanting to put to you a few simple but very important questions.

It sure is some revolution in more ways than one, that down in Mexico. When barefooted peons ride in automobiles while the former "upper classes" skurry for tall timber and denser underbrush, it is not simply a revolution, but a reversion. If the proverb about a beggar on horseback riding to the devil is true, what will be the destination of a drunken Mexican peon in an automobile?

Now is the accepted time to begin the campaign against the housefly, and it ought to be along more sensible lines than merely using the "swatter." The only real and lasting results are obtained by removing the breeding places of infection laden insects.

A warning against the fly. A man who enjoys doing large sums in arithmetic tells us that from June 1 to September 1, one unswatted fly means 4,353,564,672,000,000,000,000 flies. We will accept his statement rather than audit the figures, but it is easy to see what a swat in time means.

The old familiar mud is showing its oozy face on Front Street once more. Perhaps for the last time—yes, perhaps. So take a good look at it now. Next spring when the snow goes off, there may be only some common, cheap, bitulthic bricks, creosoted concrete or vitrified rocks to be seen and we will then have lost our distinction for having a main street that is unequalled in any other city in Ontario for its pure, creamy tint, for depth, and plasticity. Think fellow citizens and fussy fathers before you make the change.

One thing Billy Sunday does prove. The talk of a decline in religious interest is without substantial basis. The hopes and fears of immortality possess the human heart. Perhaps the institutional church, with its subtle invitation to faith, through shower baths, gymnasium, moving picture shows, and dance halls, may not draw them out to expression, but when the master chord is touched they reveal themselves in these days as they did in the times of our fathers.—New York Sun

It is an age of ill manner in both men and women. Garish vulgarity taints what is regarded, commonly at least, as the best society.

So far have we sunk that the man of genuine courtesy and polish must balance it with some sort of coarseness or be damned as a "sissy."

It is ill mannered to say all this. But the fact, no less the ill-mannered assertion of it, fits the times.—Montreal Mail

The Department of Labour's Index Number of wholesale prices stood at 136.1 for February as compared with 136.5 in January and 135.8 in February, 1913. Dairry products, especially eggs were lower, poultry, sheep, cattle and beef, showed declines but grains and fodder and hogs advanced somewhat. Textiles were also down slightly, but lumber, raint and oils, and furs averaged slightly higher. In retail prices potatoes were advancing, and butter was upward, but eggs declined considerably.

At last a cheap process for making cloth absolutely fireproof has been discovered. There have been lots of fireproof materials out that could be used for many of the purposes for which ordinary cloth is used, but this is the first time that there have been any definite steps taken toward producing a cloth that is cheap enough for ordinary uses. And it is also the first time there has ever been devised a process that would fireproof any ordinary cotton cloth in a way that enabled the cloth to be washed or laundered.

The new process is the work of an English chemist and his claims are based upon the fact that the fireproofing of any material desired, and especially of cotton cloth will not increase the cost of production more than a fraction of a cent.

Heretofore the cotton cloths that have been fireproofed have taken out a hard and unyielding texture that made them almost impossible for the ordinary uses of such materials. It is well known that the cotton flannel material which women use throughout the world for making wrappers and night clothing, is highly inflammable and that a number of tragedies have been caused by its being worn. Despite this disadvantage the cloth is used because it is soft and gives good wear. The discovery of a process for rendering such material fireproof, therefore, is deserving of more than ordinary attention.

Now is the time when it's doubly winter while to get up at sunrise. During the winter there was always a temptation to lie abed late and snooze beneath warm comfortable—when you have any. Where one's work compels a prompt get-up, it's a bother rather than a blessing; and one is daily reminded of the chap who, suddenly willed a million, spent his first days of idleness throwing pillows at the alarm clock.

Not so, however, as Old Sol crawls close to the vernal equinox. The glory of a March sunrise, the glister upon the morning frost and the faint but slowly growing suggestion of coming sagard buds and flowers and renewed twitter of birds are real pleasures which the sluggard misses.

Besides, there's a stimulus about this getting up with the sun which no other hour of rising quite approaches. It recalls the vim with which, a boy on the farm, you used to jump up to do the chores, bathe your face in the icy basin near the pump, down your quota of steaming bacon and eggs and go to the tasks of the day with pulses leaping and joy singing anthems throughout your soul.

Do you doubt what we say? Then put it to the test. Get up, to-morrow, with the sun, the chickens and the four-legged beasts. Walk to work in the exhilarating fresh air and sunshine. And see if it doesn't put pep into every part of your sluggish system.

"Do you know, Mayme, I had the hardest work in the world to keep Mr. Smith from proposing." "I dare say you had—to some other girl."

French Dancing Master—"Meeze Brown, we have been chosen to lead ze tango." Miss Brown—"We?" French Dancing Master—"Oui." Miss Brown—"O, you and I."

Victim—"Mercy! That isn't the right tooth you've pulled." Dentist—"Be patient madam; I'm coming to it."

WHERE THE WEST BEGINS

Out where the hand clasps a little stronger,
Out where a smile dwells a little longer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the sun's a little brighter
Where the snow that falls is a trifle whiter
Where the bonds of homes are a wee bit tighter,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the skies are a trifle bluer,
Out where friendship's a little truer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where a fresher breeze is blowing
Where there is laughter in every streamlet flowing
Where there's more of reaping and less of sowing
That's where the West begins.
Out where the world's in the making,
Where fewer hearts with despair are aching—
That's where the West begins.
Where there's more of singing and less of sighing
Where there's more of giving and less of buying,
And a man makes friends without half trying—
That's where the West begins.

THE SCHOOL OF THE POET

An original poem written for The Ontario by Alice P. McDavitt Foxboro.

Have you sounded the depths of sorrow,
Have you been 'midst the deepest woe,
Have you added the dawn of the morrow,
For your heart was troubled so?
Then write—and the words inditing
Will be read by one and all
Your poem shall be worth writing.
If written where tears do fall.
Have you winced 'neath malicious slander
Belittling your life, work fair?
Have you wished for a life out yonder,
For rest and peace are there?
But write, for then all will read it
And smile as they go their way,
For wrong has none to heed it
And justice has gone to-day.

Or did you envy the dying
When the call of death had come,
That you 'neath the grass were lying
And your soul with God at home.
Have you lost the friendship dearest
And found that false were your friends?
'Tis then your poems ring clearest
When alone life's way you wend.

A sweet joyful laugh go borrow
Brightly jest and make folks glad,
You may write who have known sorrow
But not of themes that are sad.
No liting rhymes of pleasure,
With joy make your songs alight,
And to tunes of gleeful measure,
Sing the chansons gay and bright.
By grief you are taught composing,
To sound the depths you've leared
And 'mid' cross and thorns-reposing
The Poet's wage have earned.
Your work while you live forgotten
You must tread the ways that grieve,
But the songs by sorrow begotten,
Shall in the future live.

THE HABITANTS' FRIEND

A correspondent sends us the following beautiful dialect poem with a request for publication. It evidently refers to the death of Dr. W. H. Drummond, the big-hearted Irish Canadian poet, author of many humorous, pathetic, and amusing poems, voicing the sentiments, and aspirations, and portraying the lovable characteristics of the French Canadian habitant.

Marie, you take dat stuff away—
I don' wan' to eat to-night—
And bring does cloe's I buy las' fall
And dat shirt dat's clean an' white:
For I go to Mon-real—
Only bout sixty mile:
You won' min' to be alone,
I come back in a little while.
I don' care it was ten thousand mile!
My heart he tell me right,
He say, "Go to Mon-real,
Go, Pierre, to night!"
I won't open de money for train
I walk alone all de way,
An' I told you, my frien' he dead;
He died yesterday.
Dat man he was kind to me
An' to you an' baby too,
When you were so sick an' so poor
You do not know what to do—
An' every day for mo' a month
He came an' made you well,
An' he give money but you don't know—
For Pierre, he never tell.
An' he say to me: "Cheer up Pierre,
De spring he soon be here,
Dis snow an ice dey go away—
So don' you never fear,
Your wife an' chil' dey bot' get well
In 'bout a week or so."
An' you bot' get well, just as he say:
I wonder how he know?
An' when I say in few month's time;
"What ha' e I to pay?"
When he look at me an' laugh an' laugh,
An' den I turn away—
An' like a fool I bow my head
An' not a word can speak
I almos' cry jus' like a chil'
An' feel so very weak.
But I shake his hand an' den he say
"Somthing kind to me;
Mon Dieu I de tears come to my eyes
So bad I could not see:
An' I jus' say: "Merci, my frien'
For what you done for me."
'Bout an hour ago they tol' me
How he died in Mon-real
How de peoples say dey lose deir frien'
How dey honor him not because he's rich
But for being kind.
An' dey all say in Canada
He de bes' man you can find.
Marie, if some one ask for me
You tote him what I said,
An' say I go to Mon-real
My frien' is dead."

SERMON TO YOUNG MEN

There was a large attendance at Holloway street church last night to hear the first of a series of sermons to young men by the pastor Rev. A. E. Sanderson. The congregation was largely composed of young people. Mr. Sanderson chose for his text, "I Samuel heard David arose up early in the morning, and left the sheep with a keeper, and took, and went." From this text Mr. Sanderson developed a very suggestive and practical line of thought. He drew an eloquent picture of home and what it should mean to every young man. Then he described the youth leaving home and the ambitions and plans dotted in many cases to meet with disappointment. The young men were cautioned not to be in too great a hurry to leave the old home, and he deprecated the spirit of levity with which many a youth departed from the home of his childhood.

A BUSY TIME IN BOSTON

Lieut.-Col. Ponton has returned from Boston where he was the guest of honor of the Canadian Club on March 14th. There he met nearly two hundred Canadians, five of them old Belleville boys, Messrs. An oil that is prized everywhere—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil was put upon the market without and flourish over thirty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field and it is now known and prized throughout this hemisphere. There is nothing equal to it.

BRIGHTON CITIZENS ARE AGAIN HAPPY

The various restraints to the public issued by the Board of Health, owing to the recent outbreak of scarlet fever, were relaxed at a meeting of the Board, Wednesday evening, 14th inst. when the Medical Health Officer, Dr. Webb, advised that in view of the fact that the spread of the disease had been prevented by the adoption of all precautionary measures, and it appeared now to be safe in permitting the congregating of people in public places, the danger of contagion having been eliminated by thorough fumigation of the open house, library, public and high schools, bank, post office and other places. Consequently the opera house was declared open for public use, and the schools and library will be open Monday next, and the Sunday schools will proceed with their meetings on Sunday next, 8th inst. No new cases have developed of late and it is evident that circulation of the fever has been considerably checked. The wheels of business and pleasure will once more revolve in the eventful of their way, and there need be no fear on the part of the wary citizen.—Ensign

Yesterday he came to the police station, giving a number of a street and saying a woman within had been blackmailing him to come to the police investigated and found that this was not the case. The woman in question was in a helpless condition and was sitting at the window to get the heat of the sun. Angelo who followed the officer hit up a racket, acting in a disorderly manner on the street and he had to be arrested on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. This morning he was proven guilty and fined $5 and costs, totalling $8.25. Magistrate Mason issued through an interpreter a strong warning to Angelo and all foreigners to keep away from houses and to desist from peering into the window.

"LET ME LIKE A SOLDIER FALL"

The arena skating rink season is now over. Although the ice was a little slow in making in the beginning of the season, yet it has been the best season for years. To celebrate the event, the married and single men of the Fifteenth Regiment battled last evening in hockey and the final game on the married men's ranks was awful. The single-headed sharpshooters poured in a rain of grape-shot on the defenceless defence of the "double breasted" militiamen and defeated them by 43 to 17. Tell it not in the sergeant's mess, for it will cause trouble.

DANGEROUS THROAT TROUBLES PREVENTED BY NERVINE
It Ends Misery of Colds Quickly
Don't wait till night
Get after your cold now—this very minute, before it grows dangerous
You should apply old-time Nervine! Rub your chest and throat, rub them thoroughly with Nervine. Relief will be immediate.
Nervine will save you from lying awake tonight, coughing, choking and suffering from congestion in the chest and acute pain in the throat.
Nervine will break up that dull neuralgic headache—will kill the cold and chill at its very beginning—will save you, frame perhaps a serious illness.
To take away hoarseness, to break up a grippy cold, to cure a sore throat or bad cold in the chest, you can use nothing so speedy and effective as Nervine. For forty years it has been the most largely used family remedy in the Dominion. Time has proved its merit, so can you by keeping handy on the shelf the large 50c family size bottle; small trial size 25c, sold by any dealer anywhere.

- From Saturday's Daily Market Reports:
Butchers are satisfied these days with the sales of beef and other meats, said one of their number on McAnnamay street this morning. Much good veal was offered for sale today, bringing 12-12c to 13c per pound. The carcass Extra fine veal sells for 14c. Dressed hogs bring $18 and live all around $9. Beef brings $13 per cwt for hind quarters and $12 for front quarters.
Eggs were a little lower on the market, being the most plentiful of today. In this respect the market was well stocked and at 1.30 many baskets still looked as if they were to remain unsold. One man cut the price to 28c, feeling in this line only hope of sales. Purchasers in eggs were not very active.
Butter sold uniformly at 30c lb. Chickens were rather unprofitable few brought so low as $1 per pair. "Big those" as one lady said, looking down upon a duck of Iowa. Others went up as high as 1.50 and $2.
Hay sells at $13-15 per ton by the load. There is a fair supply being hauled in before the roads turn bad.
Roots sell at 20c per peck. Carrots, beets, parsnips, etc.
Shamrocks were sold at 50c per peck.
A number of young porkers were brought upon the market this morning.
An occasional turkey and goose found lodging on the inner market counters. The public are not heavy buyers in those lines now.
Apples are worth from 75c to 1.25 per bushel.
Hides and tallow remain unchanged. The principal quotations being—

PRINCE EDWARD LIBERALS HELD ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

Officers Elected and Stirring Addresses Delivered by Dr. Currie, Mr. M. V. Pettet, Mr. J. W. Hyatt and Others.

Prince Edward county Liberals met in the town hall, Picton on Saturday for the purpose of electing officers for the current year. The hall was well filled and every section of the county was represented. No outside speakers had been advertised and none were expected. Nevertheless the general discussion conducted with affairs political and crown the town hall with electors bent on the common people's square deal. Mr. J. L. Shannon, President of the Liberal Association, called the meeting to order, and asked for the nomination of officers.
Amid great enthusiasm two Liberals who have since the early days been in parliament and in the country were elected honorary presidents of the Association. Hon. Wm. Patterson and Dr. J. M. Platt, who are both living and in Picton, were thus honored by Prince Edward county Liberals. The other officers elected are—
Pres.—W. J. Gerow, Bloomfield
1st Vice Pres.—Dr. Morley Currie, Picton
2nd Vice—T. G. Wright, Hallowell
Secretary—A. M. Platt, Picton
Treasurer—C. B. Allison, Picton.
The newly elected president addressed the meeting briefly on the matter of organization and then called on Dr. Currie who received with rousing old time enthusiasm. The doctor put a great deal of vim into his address and after a preliminary talk on the necessity of thorough organization, he launched into political affairs, both as regards Government activities in Prince Edward County and in the Dominion. He condemned in scathing terms the material used and the manner in which the Government armory building in Picton had been erected. He pointed out with no uncertainty that the material of which that structure was composed, was of the very poorest, from top to bottom. There was something about it which was fit to be the subject of the most skillful mason of the town of Picton had refused to work on the building, because they said they would not be disgraced by taking part in such a botched job. This was a very serious matter, he said, and he had been treated with great reciprocity would have carried in 1911. This was democratic age, an age in which the common people ought to rise in their might and demand their rights, and that was never a thing which is so dangerous. These useless armories were sprinkled all over Col. Sam Hughes' constituency.
Dr. Currie pointed out the substantial Picton post office built by a Liberal Government with the flimsy structure just opposite it built by a Conservative Government. He said, "The world would save the forty millions of dollars about which they boasted, on the construction of the government transcontinental. If they built it that much cheaper, but it was positively disastrous."

He said, "The world would save the forty millions of dollars about which they boasted, on the construction of the government transcontinental. If they built it that much cheaper, but it was positively disastrous."

The armories of Picton had been under the inspection of a Government appointed officer, drawing ten dollars per day, and the fault was not on the part of the inspector. Who was this inspector? Well he had been highly recomended because of his efficiency and not on the grounds of efficiency.
Dr. Currie said he believed in a militia, as a force back of the administration of law and justice. He proposed that a duty or honor guard be maintained in the near future. Touching on the question of reciprocity, he said that the prosperity of our eastern farmers depended to a very great extent on the development of commerce in the Northwest. The condition of affairs in 1911 was just at the critical stage when both the eastern and western farmer needed reciprocity, and the manufacturers and the banks would have had the principles of reform broken and the farmer to rise to the position to which he is entitled.
Messrs. T. G. Wright and H. C. McMillen spoke briefly. Mr. McMillen said that most of the beneficial reforms of this country had come from the process of Canadianizing the foreign element pouring into this country.
Mr. Wright gave some encouraging and inspiring thoughts on organization.
Mr. James Purcell made a short, but eloquent speech. He spoke particularly of Mr. Rowell as the best leader of the Liberal party ever had, with the best policy. A policy that was sure to win.
Reeve Hubbell and Councillor H. R. Pearce visited Toronto last week for the purpose of disposing of the Town Hall debentures. They were successful in securing the highest price paid to a small municipality during the past year, according to some of the Bond houses. The price received for the $9,000 debentures was $889.97. Messrs. Hubbell and Pearce certainly deserve credit for their good work as many towns and cities have only received from 90 to 94 for their debentures. Hastings County sold $170,000 at 94.—Hastings Herald

IN MEMORY OF MISS MARJORIE ILER.
There is a reaper whose name is Death,
And with his stroke he reaps
The flowers that grow between,
And the flowers that grow between,
I shall I have naught that is fair, saith he,
Have naught but the bearded grass
Through the breath of these flowers is
I wait to me,
I will give them all back again.
He gazed at the flowers with tearful eyes,
He kissed their drooping leaves,
It was for the Lord of Paradise,
He bound them in his sheaves.
They shall all bloom in fields of light,
Transplanted by my care,
And saints upon their garments
These sacred blossoms wear.
And the father gave in tears and pain
The flowers he most did love;
He knew he would find them all
In the fields of light above.
O not in cruelty, not in wrath,
The reaper come that day;
'Twas an angel visited the green earth
And took the flowers away.
'Friend after friend departs,
Who hath not lost a friend?
There is no union here of hearts
That hath not here an end.
Again we face the great mysteries
Of life and death. Our hearts are pierced
With sorrow when we learn of his
His beautiful young life so suddenly
Called away. 'The old must die and
The young may die' but when the Beautiful but just blossoming into Flower with all its sweet perfume is Chilled by the frost of death, and
Our hearts rebel, and we wonder,
And ask why? Our hearts go out in Sorrow, and we pray that the
Savior who has died for us
Our Savior took little children
In his arms and said 'Of such is
The kingdom of heaven.' And we know
That far away from pain and sorrow,
She rests forever with her
Christ.
'And the desolate Hiawatha
Far away amid the forest,
Sits away among the mountains,
Heard that sudden cry of anguish.
The voice of Minnehaha
Calling to him in the darkness
Hiawatha, Hiawatha,
O'er snow fields waste and pathless
Under snow encumbered beaches,
Homeward hurried Hiawatha,
Empty handed, heavy hearted,
Heard Nokomis moaning, wailing
Wabanonin, Wabanonin
Would that I had perished for you,
Wabanonin, Wabanonin!
And he saw his lonely Minnehaha
Lying dead and cold before him
And his bursting heart within him
Uttered such a cry of anguish
That the forest moaned and shuddered.
That the very stars in heaven
Shook and trembled with his anguish.
Then he sat down still and speechless
On the bed of Minnehaha,
At those wailing feet,
That never more would run to meet him
Never more would lightly follow."

THE BEEF FAMINE

It does not appear as if there was any strong prospect of any material reduction in beef prices for the householders of Belleville in the immediate future.

The condition of the American market may well be judged by the following article from the last issue of The Toronto Sun.

Table with 3 columns: Year, Imports, Exports. Rows for 1906, 1913, and 1914.

Exports. 1906 29,000 584,000. 1913 776,000 26,000.

In 1906, only seven years ago, the United States imported 26,000 cattle and exported 584,000.

In 1913 the same country exported 26,000 head and imported 746,000.

Seldom in the history of the world's trade has there been such a sweeping reversal in trade statistics in so short a time, save as the result of war.

The export and import figures for last year show how serious is the stage reached in the cattle famine which the United States is experiencing.

After some thousands of years of law making and amending, humanity seems no nearer getting a sensible view of things than it had in the beginning.

The outlook for beef production in Canada is brighter than it has been since the days of the old Reciprocity Treaty.

FINANCIAL OUTLOOK NOT BRIGHT

The improvement in financial conditions, which was showing some weeks ago particularly in the debenture market, does not seem to have continued.

The following report in the Weekly Sun gives some of the causes for the continued depression.

Financial conditions do not mend. The last bank statement shows a contraction during the month of fifty millions in assets and as much in liabilities.

It seemed so remarkable for a man to be honest in the sublime sense of the simple statement in those days, that the more Confucius's neighbors thought over it after he died the more they liked it.

ity or the unwillingness of English finance to afford the credit which the world demands.

It is apparent that even the Canadian Finance Minister, of whom so much was expected, must borrow circumspectly.

The spiritualist mediums ought to go before parliament and have the tell-tale flashlight declared a dangerous weapon.

The time when women shall have the right to vote seems to be drawing measurably nearer. It now appears probable that within the present generation all civilized countries will adopt female suffrage.

After some thousands of years of law making and amending, humanity seems no nearer getting a sensible view of things than it had in the beginning.

We as a nation, in the manufacture of alcohol, draw down nearly $10,000,000 a year as our share of the plunder, and then charge a license for selling it, and punish those who happen to use more of it than is, in our opinion, good for them.

But why prolong the tale! The further it is examined the worse it is, and yet we apparently like it for we go on doing the same thing.

LACKS THE VITALITY OF REAL FAITH

China has a long way to go yet. Nothing caused a greater impetus in China's movement toward free government than the influence of western civilization.

Now the standpaters of China have gained a momentary victory and purpose to establish the religion of Confucius as the formal religion of the Republic.

Confucius was a man who lived about five hundred and fifty years before Christ. He was an early office holder in China.

It seemed so remarkable for a man to be honest in the sublime sense of the simple statement in those days, that the more Confucius's neighbors thought over it after he died the more they liked it.

It is merely a gentle, comfortable substitute for the individual who feels he would like to have the respectability of a religious life without any of its sacrifices.

If China's effort to have a democratic form of government succeeds, Confucianism will fail because it will not be strong and vital enough.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE

Nothing is much more mischievous than a principle perverted. Although the Monroe Doctrine expresses an obvious truth in simple language, hardly a day passes that it is not misstated in all parts of the world.

Nothing is much more mischievous than a principle perverted. Although the Monroe Doctrine expresses an obvious truth in simple language, hardly a day passes that it is not misstated in all parts of the world.

The willingness of Europe to leave the pacification of Mexico in our hands for the present is not due to the Monroe Doctrine, but to courtesy and to recognition of the fact that our interests there are paramount.

What are your tests to prove a man's a man? Which of your compounds ever threw its life away, as man has always done.

A charge frequently made against the Jews is that they will not assimilate with other races. But Israel Zangwill, writing in the London Chronicle, says that Jewish families who found refuge in England under Cromwell have wholly disappeared as a race.

Debates are splendid developers and should be held weekly in every rural schoolhouse. Here is a subject: "Resolved that a man who pays $25 to a good tailor for a suit of good Scotch Tweed gets better service than the man who sends $30 to a mail order house for three $10 suits of shoddy."

A writer in the London Chronicle reminds us that maudlin sympathy of emotional females with justly convicted murderers is not a modern development. Tears were shed on January 21, 1670, he says, when Claude Duval, the most notorious figure in the annals of highwaymen, was executed at Tyburn.

After he had hanged a convenient time, he was cut down, and by persons well-dressed carried into a mourning coach, and so conveyed to the Tangier Tavern in St. Giles, where he lay in state all that night.

SOMEBODY'S MOTHER

The woman was old and ragged and gray, And bent with the chill of the winter's day. The street was wet with a recent snow.

"REACTIONS"

So that's the answer, eh? We're only lumps Of ordinary chemicals—some salts, Acids and gases, accidentally grouped.

Pardon me, gentlemen, but—it's a lie. "Reactions," eh? Well what's your formula. For one particular kind—I won't insist.

What are your tests to prove a man's a man? Which of your compounds ever threw its life away, as man has always done.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xiii, 18-35. Memory Verses, 18, 19—Golden Text, Matt. vii, 21—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The topic of this study is entitled "Lessons by the Way," and in the verses for today we have lessons for all the way, always centering upon Him who is "the way," hated by His adversaries, rejoiced in by His people.

The two parables of our lesson must be studied in the light of their setting, not only here, but as first recorded in Matt. xiii. The closing verses of our lesson chapter tell of the desolation of Jerusalem until He shall come again.

After he had hanged a convenient time, he was cut down, and by persons well-dressed carried into a mourning coach, and so conveyed to the Tangier Tavern in St. Giles, where he lay in state all that night.

RHEUMATISM GLEE CLUB DURING MARCH IN "CONCORDIA"

Victims Can Care Themselves With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

During the month of March people who are affected with rheumatism begin to have unpleasant reminders of their troubles. The weather is changeable—balmy, and springlike one day, cold, raw and piercing the next. It is such sudden changes of weather that start the pangs and tortures of rheumatism, lumbago and sciatic pain. But it must be borne in mind that although weather conditions start the pains, the trouble is rooted in the blood, and can only be cured through the blood. All the liniments and lotions in the world can't cure rheumatism. Rubbing while you are rubbing, but there is a change of blood in the blood can cure rheumatism. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured so many thousands of cases of this trouble. The new rich blood these pills actually drive out the poisonous acid and rheumatism. Lumbago, and kindred troubles are banished. Among the many sufferers from rheumatism cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Dr. J. Sinclair, of Goscine, N.S., who says: "About two years ago I was laid up with rheumatism. For two months I could not walk and had to stay in bed with my arms and legs in a swollen state. My arms seemed to be paralyzed. I had been using doctor's medicine for a long time but it did not seem to help me, and the doctor finally told me that the only thing that would cure me would be a change of climate. At this time I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and got a supply. After I had taken them for a while I found they were helping me, and I got a further supply, and they completely cured me, and I have not been sick one day since. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for this trouble."

HOLLOWAY ST. LEAGUE

From Saturday's Daily West Belleville League accepted an invitation to Aitkens Church last evening and a most enjoyable time was spent. Miss Bell, the president was in the chair and opened the meeting with hymn 192 and prayer by Mr. Sanders and an address of welcome by Miss Bell. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and contests. Refreshments were then served by the Aitkens League. Mr. Zoutter president of West Belleville said a few words thanking them for their kindness shown.

ATTEMPTED TO ADMINISTER DOPE

That an attempt was made to put a glass of liquor in a glass of liquor with a view of robbing a local man of a good sized wallet, is a story that is in circulation on the streets. It is said that the party in question carried a sum of money in a small bag on his person and had the money on his person. It was known by several others, and on Wednesday evening when he was about to depart on a horse for "dope" was detected. The matter has been placed in the hands of the authorities, and an investigation is being made. It is understood that the above was placed in type. The Post has been informed that the two men in question were drinking at the bar when one of them produced a small plain and poured some of the contents into the other's glass of liquor. The act was noticed by the bartender. The police were summoned and they took possession of the phial.—Lindsay Post

GUN DISCHARGES AND TEARS ANKLE

Arthur Peck, son of Mr. Jesse Peck, Foster Avenue, this city, was the victim of a serious accident near Selmerville, Prince Edward, yesterday. Mr. Peck, who is a citizen of Ontario, had been spending the winter months with his father-in-law, Mr. Frank Doney, Northport, and for part of the time resided at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Samuel Silks, Marshall Road, Sidney.

Yesterday he was one of a party who went out shooting. On his return to Selmerville, he carried a loaded weapon and unfortunately slipped. The fall caused the gun to discharge and enter at close range the ankle of one of Mr. Peck's feet. The member was badly torn and as soon as possible physicians were sent for and he was carried to the residence of his father-in-law, Dr. Doney, Northport, held a consultation and determined to amputate the foot.

The unfortunate young man had lost a quantity of blood. Last night according to news which reached here, he had not come out of the anesthetic. This morning no bad reports have been received. It is thought his chances are good for recovery. Mr. Peck is twenty-four years of age and intended to leave for Calgary shortly.

NEW ORANGE LODGE INSTITUTED

Loyal Orange Lodge No. 2519 was instituted last evening in Benjamin lodge rooms in this city under the most favorable auspices. Upwards of one hundred and fifty members of the order were present to assist in the formation. This makes the fiftieth Orange lodge in Hastings county. Among those present to assist in the ceremonies were Bro. James Bernier, Past Grand Master, Bro. F. M. Cline, Grand Secretary, Bro. W. C. Reid, Grand Auditor, Bro. Rev. E. A. Duprau, Deputy Grand Chaplain, and Bro. George McCartney, Grand Organist. Also in attendance were Bro. C. H. Bonstetter, district master and Bro. W. H. Reynolds, county master.

It is wise to prevent disorder—Many people lead to disorders of the stomach and bowels are free from them. At the first manifestation that the stomach and liver are not performing their functions, a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills should be tried, and it will be found that the digestive organs will speedily resume healthy action. Laxatives and cathartics are so blended in these pills that no other preparation can be so effective as they

WOMEN NOT CHATTELS NOW

Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P. has addressed the following letter to The Toronto Globe:

"To the Editor of the Globe—Kindly permit me to correct what in your report of my speech before the Equal Suffrage League on Wednesday evening would create a wrong impression in stating that 'married women were mere chattels, owned and controlled by their husbands.' I referred not to their position under the present law, but to their position under the law that existed prior to 1884 when an act was passed by which married women are now capable of acquiring, holding and disposing of real and personal property without the concurrence of her husband, and subsequently in 1897, when an act was passed which removed all incapacity of a married woman to contract."

TWO MORE MEN ARRESTED

Yesterday while in Napanee Constable Donovan of the G.P.S. aided Chief Graham in the capture of two more men wanted in connection with the robbery of a freight car at that place. Yesterday Mr. Donovan took down Emerald Standford of Kingston, Ontario, to Napanee. This makes five arrests in connection with the affair. The other four men were a Montreal and Albert L. Pointe of Montreal and Ford Sandford and Edward Drinkie, both of Oshawa. They are charged with breaking and entering the car and stealing books. They were remanded until next week for trial. The last two to be captured were secured in the house of relatives just before they were going to get out for Deseronto.

IS WITHOUT PROTECTION

This village is at the present time practically without police protection, and were it not for the fact that Constable Bailey is a county constable, might be said to be wholly so. When the present council took office about the first thing they (or at least a majority of them) did was to declare pro-bibly the most efficient officer we have ever had in the person of Mr. Bailey, and appoint a man who was wholly lacking in experience, and no matter how good his intentions may be it cannot be expected that he can give the work the attention it requires when he is only receiving a salary of $60 per year. Like the rest of us he has to work for a living, and his work is of such a nature as to keep him away from the business section of the village during the greater part of the time. The result is that his services are seldom available, and the deposed constable has to come to the rescue when the necessity arises. Mr. Bowers, we understand, was assured that he would likewise receive the appointment of county constable, and it was on this condition that he accepted the office of village constable at the salary offered. However, some one promised more than he was able to carry out, and Mr. Bowers is not worrying himself particularly about the moral welfare of the town. We have heard the present occupant of the office declare the fact that there was altogether too much drunkenness and rowdiness going on in the village. It is up to him now to protect what he has been preaching.—Barnett Times

PIONEER IN THE CANNING BUSINESS

Thomas E. Owens, of Picton, Ont., who retired this week as a director of the Dominion Canners is one of the pioneers in the canning industry of the province. Mr. Owens was probably the first man to can goods into the great Canadian Northwest. He built up the Bloomfield Packing Company, one of the strongest units of the merger today, and he was one of the last of the canners to enter the merger. Mr. Owens knows every detail of the canning industry and was a real acquisition to the Canners' Board as a practical man. Failing in health, however, has forced him to give up active duties.—Financial Times.

LETTER OF CONDOLENCE

To Bro. G. W. Palmer—
In behalf of the members of Can- nilton Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 2500, we extend to you our most sincere sympathy in the great loss you have sustained in the death of your beloved wife. Doubtless you will miss her very much but we hope that God will comfort you in your remaining years. For these dark clouds and bereavements of life only more firmly remind us that our journey in life must some day end. When we shall be called upon to swell the countless ranks of the Great Unknown, death levels all ranks and lays the shepherd's crook beside the kingly scepter. While we looked upon her mortal remains may we be reminded that we too are mortal and ere long we shall be called to answer the last summons. Therefore, we behold our life is like a shadow. The closing of our mortal existence is of momentous interest and infinite solemnity: the close of our earthly affairs. The end of all human pursuits. We should therefore have a deep consideration of our approaching end and be prepared to meet. "Where flowers immortal ever bloom To cheer us on our way. Whose perfume is filled with sweet perfume Of flowers that never decay. For Remember The halcyon has never yet been told About that heavenly state Though birds have sung of streets of gold. And talked of pearly gates. Signed in behalf of the Lodge. John M. Waterhouse, W. M. Wm. Irvin Cole, Rec. Sec'y

A CORRECTION.

Daily Ontario.—The notice which appeared in your issue of the 13th regarding Mr. Warren Brotherhood copied from Ottawa Journal is absolutely incorrect. He was in the employment of The Pringle Co. as an office clerk for a short time. He has had no connection with the firm since Feb. 7th, 1914. He never was manager of The Pringle Co.

W. A. Chapman of Winnipeg, formerly of Plainfield arrived in the city last night and expects to remain a few days. He is on his way to Ottawa and will then return here. It is eight years since Mr. Chapman was here and he notices many changes around the city since that time.

THOUGHT IT WOULD KILL HIM

Terrible Torture From Chronic Indigestion, Short Treatment With "Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured The Whole Trouble.

G. T. HILL, Esq.

Chatham, Ont., April 3rd, 1913
"Some two years ago, I was a great sufferer from indigestion. I treated with a prominent physician here for some time, but I did not get any better so I went in to see him one day and said "Doctor, what do I owe you? I am not getting any better and am going to quit you." I paid him his bill and he remarked to me, "Charlie, you have a case of chronic indigestion that will be hard to cure."
I left his office and as I stepped out on the street my eye caught a bill board advertisement of "Fruit-a-tives"—that big "Fat Man and Thin Man" and I said to myself, "If Fruit-a-tives will build me up like that, it's good enough for me." I walked directly over to Park's Drug Store and I bought a box of "Fruit-a-tives." After taking these wonderful tablets for only three weeks, I found myself greatly improved. My case was no light one either, for many times when I was on the street, I was compelled to go into some store or business place until the acute spasms wore away. Gas would often form in my stomach and I was in daily fear it would get around my heart and kill me. To-day, I have no such fears. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Stomach Troubles."
C. T. HILL.
Perhaps your case is exactly like Mr. Hill's. If so, do exactly as he did—take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure yourself. "Fruit-a-tives" will prevent the formation of gas in the stomach by making digestion complete. It will insure the food being promptly digested by providing an abundance of gastric juice in the stomach. It keeps the stomach sweet and clean, not only by helping the digestion but also by regulating Kidneys and Bowels and toning up the system. If you suffer with Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Belching, Gas, Stomach, Heart Pains after Eating, take "Fruit-a-tives." 50c. a box. 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. at all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

EARTH TO BECOME MAN'S PARADISE

How This Will Be Done Is the Gospel Message.

THE WORLD'S REGENERATION

The Earthly Paradise—Lost Through Disobedience—Redeemed at Calvary—Messiah's Great Work—The Restoration of Paradise—"The Story of the Cross"—Importance of Character-Development—Its Effect on the Future Life—The Heavenly Paradise—Who May Attain It—How—The Alternative of Paradise, the Second Death, Everlasting Destruction.

Pastor Russell to-day depicted the beauties of Paradise, as described in his free Photo-Drama. His text was, "I will make the place of My feet glorious." (Isaiah 60:13.) He said: "Paradise is another name for the Garden of Eden, the abode of bliss. It was lost through the sin of our first parents, but the gracious promise of our great Creator is that this condition of earthly bliss shall be re-established—not merely in a little corner of the earth, but that the whole earth shall become the Paradise of God. Heaven is God's Throne and the earth is His footstool, and He assures us, "I will make the place of My feet glorious"—"in due time."

How this will be done is the Gospel Message. The Divine Promise to Father Abraham, that all the families of the earth shall be blessed through his seed, includes the thought of man's full restoration to Divine favor—as before he sinned and fell, before Paradise was lost, before man came under the curse, or sentence, of death. The Jews hoped that Messiah would come and constitute their nation the earthly Kingdom of God and re-establish Paradise with Palestine as its centre. They had expected that under His wise ministrations, using their nation as His instruments, the Divine Law would extend to all and, by bringing all people into harmony with God, would gradually bring all back to the Paradise state.

It was in full harmony with this that the dying thief asked the Lord to remember him when He should come into His Kingdom. He should have known that the Kingdom which was to be established, was not to be an earthly Kingdom, but a Kingdom of Divine grace and righteousness in the earth, and thus convert the world, under Divine favor, into the Paradise of God. Our Lord's answer was that which is so well known to all, that while He is yet in Paradise, Paradise has not yet been established; for God's Kingdom has not yet come to earth; it will not until a certain work for the Church shall be accomplished.

It is not the Divine purpose to make of the nation of Israel God's Kingdom in the highest sense of the word, though it will be identified with His earthly representative, God is selecting during this Gospel Age a new nation, Spiritual Israel, from every nation, people, kindred, tongue, and subsequently, He gathered from Israel such as were saintly and ready for the Kingdom; since then He has been taking out from other nations enough to complete the forerunner number of the elect Church. These will constitute the Kingdom per se, and it cannot be set up or established in power until this selection, and all that have been committed and glorified on the spiritual plane, by the power of the First Resurrection. Paradise, or the Garden of the earth, not only represents the condition for the benefit and blessing of the natural man—as the reward for his obedience to the rules of Immortality during the Millennium Age Kingdom—but it also applies to the glorious and Heavenly position which God has in restoration for the Church. Thus we read in the Book of Revelation that God has promised to give to them that overcome with the Church, "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the Tree of Life, which is in the midst of the Paradise of God."

This is a grandly beautiful, and symbolic message and promise, assuring us of the happiness and Heavenly bliss in eternal-life conditions of all who are faithful followers of Christ in the present Age—walking in His footsteps in the Narrow Way. The Book of Revelation pictures the history of this Gospel Age down into the Millennium Age and shows us Paradise re-established, with the Heavenly City, the glorious Church, as its centre and capital. The River of Life is pictured as flowing from under the Throne. On either bank of its crystal waters of Truth and Grace grow the Trees of Life, after the manner of Eden of old. The future state will all be Paradise. The completeness of blessedness will first be manifested in the Church on the spiritual plane; and secondly, it will be manifested in the Ancients Worthies on the earthly plane—Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the holy Prophets perfected; the earthly representatives of the Heavenly Kingdom shall fill the whole earth. The wilderness shall blossom as the rose, the solitary places shall be glad, and streams shall break forth in the deserts, as we read in Isaiah 61. The morally lame shall learn to walk in the paths of righteousness. Yes, they shall leap for joy as they come to a knowledge of the grace and goodness of God. The world's eyes or understanding shall be opened and their deaf ears shall be unstopped, that they may see and hear of the Goodness, the Mercy, the Justice and the Love of our Father. The willing and obedient shall eat of the good of the land," but evil doers shall be cut off in the Second Death. Gradually the boundaries will be spread abroad until they will include the whole earth. Gradually the number enjoying Paradise will increase until, in the end of the Millennium, the entire race of Adam shall experience the privilege of God's Love and Mercy through Christ.

St. Paul, like St. John the Revelator, was caught up to Paradise in a vision, and saw the glorification of the future, which he was not permitted to explain to us, because the due time had not yet come. Neither was St. John the Revelator permitted to reveal fully the condition, the glory and the beauty of Paradise, except in a few symbolic hints or suggestions respecting the glories of Paradise restored.

We have already noticed that Paradise was lost through disobedience to the Heavenly command. Life, blessedness, Divine favor and fellowship, were all lost to Adam and so to us, his children, under the death sentence. There was no hope for any of us, until the latter was born to die, man, created with possibilities of life eternal, was sentenced to the loss of all. Indeed, under a demoralizing and a brutal condition, finally more degraded than the brute creation and apparently less worthy of Divine favor. But God, rich in Mercy in the great Love wherewith He loves us, has provided for man a recovery from sin and death, while He has made no provision for the future life of the brute creation.

God's provision for man's recovery from the sentence of death is the "Cross of Christ." Because a man had sinned, the Redeemer must be a Man. Because the penalty was human death, the Redeemer must die for the sinner's release from the death sentence, to uplift the willing out of sin and death conditions—up, up, up to fellowship with God and eternal inheritance. Because the Redeemer was born in a state of poverty, and physical defects, therefore none of his posterity was worthy of eternal life. But in the Divine arrangement, as Adam involved all of his children in the Paradise home in children and death, so a redemption has been effected through Christ.

The great work of Messiah will, therefore, be the restoration of the world to all that was lost in Eden and redeemed at Calvary. The work of Restoration, St. Peter tells us, has been spoken of "by the mouth of all God's holy Prophets since the beginning of the world." MISS CAMPBELL'S NEW PARLORS

From Thursday's Daily. Miss Campbell's new parlors on Front Street were most attractive today, the opening of the millinery display. The new rooms have been renovated and larger quarters have been provided in the showrooms. The windows are carried out in colors of pink and white with a tone of black shown in a sequin mode. One of the Hyland hats on exhibition is a fine French chip in pure white with a cogue band around the crown and two square wings directly in front. This piece of head-gear is faced with black.

The early Victorian model is carried out in black with a high sideband of King's Blue flowers, velvet streamer, and a light band of coral and pink. The shades this year are very interesting. The old blues include nuttier navy, soves, gobelin, wadgewood and labrador blue between copahagan and navy. There are all shades of tan from biscuit to tobacco brown, beige, tango, mahogany nigger brown. The dark greens include the mignonnettes and jone and the rose shades are shown in all tones from the faint ecru to the deep turko or indian red.

The hats are small with some of the early Victorian styles the straps with real high sides, showing a headband on the Charlotte Corday shades. Black sequins are being shown very extensively. The basket over the mirror is decorated with pink and white carnations.

SCOTS HAD BRAW TIME

From Friday's Daily. Last evening, Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, had a braw time. The occasion was the official visit of District Deputy Grand Chief, Bro. William McIntosh. After the initiation and refreshment their rooms were thrown open to their families and friends. A varied selection of recitations and songs was given and an interesting address by Rev. A. S. Kerr, following this refreshment were served. Everybody spoke well of the fine entertainment given, pronouncing it the best yet.

POLITICAL TURPIDITY

(The Canadian Courier) Commenting editorially upon the recent Evanture disclosures in the Ontario Legislature, "The Canadian Courier" for March 7th describes it as political turpitude. It says: "When a man undertakes to represent a certain constituency in a parliament, he undertakes a position of trust equal to that of a general manager of a bank. When the latter signs false documents or appropriates money for his own purpose or commits any other sin against society and the banking laws, he is punished by a term in prison. There seems to be no adequate reason why a defaulting member of parliament should be treated more leniently than a defaulting bank manager. The Monocle Man, in his customary burlesque, says: "How to Get Rich." There is a syndicate on which is worth close study. "A Page of Country Life," "Tova Planning in Regina." The New Martin Harvey and other features so to show that the National Weekly touches every phase of life. Samuel Alexander White's story "Out of the Whirlpool" is one of his best. Newway photographs and a comprehensive Women's Supplement make up a valuable issue of the National Weekly.

Funeral Late Miss Holden

From Friday's Daily. The funeral of the late Miss Esther Holden was held privately from the George street residence on Thursday afternoon. The Rev. A. S. Kerr, M.A., of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, conducted the solemn services in lieu of the deceased's relatives and officiated at Belleville cemetery where the interment took place. The bearers were all relatives of the deceased lady.

Funeral Late B. Baker

From Friday's Daily. All that was mortal of the late B. Baker was laid to rest on Thursday afternoon in Belleville cemetery. The Rev. Chas. G. Smith, assisted by the Rev. J. R. Webb of Peterboro, conducted a solemn service at the home of Mrs. A. M. Frest, in her room, in lieu of the deceased's relatives and officiated at Belleville cemetery where the interment took place. The bearers were all relatives of the deceased lady.

The Canadian Courier for February 28th contains some rather striking material. John Melville cited as an important parliamentary topic, under the title, "The Fiasco of Isaac Robertson, M.P." This is the story of an independent who went to Ottawa and tried to establish a new regime at the House of Commons. Professor Swanson, of Queen's University, has an article on "Rural Co-operative Credit Societies" which is a subject receiving much attention at the present time. How the class would be affected by the establishment of co-operative credit associations is one of the important points discussed in this particular article. William H. Moore writes an interesting article entitled, "Truth About Chinese Northern." The Monocle Man discusses the relations between Democracy and its hired servants, in his usual clear and tell-tale manner. There is the usual number of stories and pictures, making up a very valuable issue of the National Weekly.

WANT PRISONER RELEASED

A strong effort is being made at present by a number in the village of Marmora to have Mr. Dan Osborne, who is serving an indeterminate sentence in the Central Prison, released and allowed to return to his home here. The citizens of the village are practically unanimous in the opinion that Mr. Osborne has already received greater punishment than his offence would warrant, as it is nearly five months since he was arrested.

When not under the influence of liquor Mr. Osborne was an industrious and law-abiding citizen, and his becoming intoxicated, particularly while severely of his sentence was largely due to his refusal at his trial, to call who had given him the liquor. He was given an indeterminate sentence of not less than three months or more than two years, less one day. Some weeks ago a petition for his release was circulated in the village and largely signed. By mistake this petition was forwarded to Judge Broche, the trial judge, instead of to the Minister of Justice. His Honor forwarded the petition to the Warden of the prison, with a recommendation that Osborne be released. It appears that even this was not sufficient as the petition was shelved in Toronto.

Last week when the Reeve and a number of the councillors and officials of the village were in Toronto, the matter was taken up with the local member, Mr. R. J. Cooke, who had the petition forwarded to the Minister of Justice, and has taken the other necessary steps so that it is believed that Mr. Osborne will be able to return home in a few days—Herald.

TARZAN OF THE APES

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey Company

With the knife that hung at his side he cut several large pieces from the bear's body...

Tarzan was an interested spectator. His desire to kill burned fiercely in his wild breast...

When Kulonga had finished his repast and disappeared beyond a near turning of the path...

He had seen fire, but only when the lightning had destroyed some great tree. That any creature of the jungle could produce the red and yellow fangs...

Tarzan would not ruin good meat in any such foolish manner, so he gobbled down a great quantity of the raw flesh...

And then Lord Greystoke wiped his greasy fingers upon his naked thighs and took up the trail of Kulonga...

All day Tarzan followed Kulonga, hovering above him in the trees like some malign spirit...

Tarzan did not look into the matter. The young brother of the real Lord Greystoke's father...

When Kulonga awoke he found that his bow and arrows had disappeared. The black warrior was furious and frightened...

With a mighty roar the bear turned and charged once more, only to be met with a third arrow...

As Kulonga continued his journey Tarzan closed up on him until he had traveled almost over the black's head...

The moment was delayed only because Tarzan was anxious to ascertain the black warrior's destination...

Tarzan was directly over Kulonga as he made the discovery. The forest ended abruptly...

As Kulonga emerged from the shadow of the jungle the quick nose tightened about his neck...

So rapidly did Tarzan of the apes drag back his prey that Kulonga's cry of alarm was throttled in his windpipe...

Hand over hand Tarzan drew the struggling black until he had him hanging by his neck in mid-air...

Then Tarzan, climbing to a larger branch, pulled the still thrashing victim well up into the sheltering verdure of the trees...

He fastened the rope securely to a stout branch and then, descending, plunged his hunting knife into Kulonga's heart...

Tarzan examined the black intently. Never had he seen any other human being. The knife, with its sheath and handle, caught his fancy...

them. A copper anklet also took his fancy, and this he put on his own leg. Then quickly he lowered Kulonga's body to the ground...

From a lofty perch Tarzan viewed the village of thatched huts across the intervening plantation.

He saw that at one point the forest touched the village, and to this spot he made his way, lured by a fever of curiosity to behold animals of his own kind...

His life among the brutes of the jungle left no opening for any thought that these could be other than enemies. Similarity of form led him to no erroneous conception of the welcome that would be accorded him should he be discovered.

His strange life had left him neither morose nor bloodthirsty. That he joyed in killing and that he killed with a laugh upon his handsome lips betokened no innate cruelty.

So it was that now, as he cautiously approached the village of Mbonga, he was quite prepared either to kill or be killed, should he be discovered.

He proceeded with unwonted stealth, for Kulonga had taught him great respect for the little sharp splinters of wood which dealt death so swiftly and unerringly.

At length he came to a great tree, heavy with thick foliage and loaded with pendant loops of giant creepers. From this almost impenetrable cover above the village he crouched, looking down upon the scene below him.

There were naked children running and playing in the street. There were women grinding dried plantain in crude stone mortars...

Scarcely had the search commenced and with it the theft of the poisoned arrows. Nothing more they found, and it was a thoroughly awed and frightened group of savages which huddled around their king a few moments later.

They stood in little groups, talking in low tones and casting averted glances behind them from their great rolling eyes.

Tarzan of the apes watched them for awhile from his lofty perch in the great tree. The sun was high in the heavens. Tarzan had not broken fast this day, and it was many miles to where lay the toothsome remains of Horta, the bear.

It was not yet dark when he reached his tribe, though he stopped to exhume and devour the remains of the wild boar he had caught the preceding day.

He noticed that the women alone worked. Finally his eyes rested upon a woman directly beneath him.

Before her was a small cauldron standing over a low fire, and in it bubbled a thick, reddish, fatty mass. On one side of her lay a quantity of wooden arrows, which she dipped into the seething substance and then laid them on a narrow rack of bows which stood at her other side.

Tarzan of the apes was fascinated. Here was the secret of the destructiveness of "the archer's" tiny missiles. He noted the extreme care which the woman took that none of the matter should touch her hands.

How he should like to have more of these little death dealing salvers! If the woman would only leave her work for an instant he could drop down, gather up a handful and be back in the tree again before she drew three breaths.

As he was trying to think out some plan to distract her attention he heard a wild cry from across the clearing. He looked and saw a black warrior standing beneath the very tree in which he had killed the murderer of Kala an hour before.

The fellow was shouting and waving his spear above his head. Now and again he would point to something on the ground before him.

The village was in an uproar instantly. Armed men rushed from the interior of many a hut and raced madly across the clearing toward the excited sentry. After them trooped the old men and the women and children, until, in a moment, the village was deserted.

Tarzan of the apes knew that they had found the body of his victim, but that interested him far less than the fact that no one remained in the village to prevent his taking a supply of the arrows which lay below him.

CHAPTER VII. King of the Apes.

TARZAN dropped to the ground beside the cauldron of poison and stood motionless, his quick eyes scanning the interior of the palace.

No one was in sight. His eyes rested upon the open doorway of a nearby hut. He would take a look within, thought Tarzan, and so cautiously he approached the low thatched building.

For a moment he hesitated without listening intently. There was no sound, and he glided into the semi-darkness of the interior.

Weapons hung against the walls—long spears, strangely shaped knives, a couple of narrow shields. In the center of the room was a cooking pot and at the far end a litter of dry grasses covered by woven mats, which evidently served the owners as beds and bedding. Several human skulls lay upon the floor.

Tarzan of the apes felt of each article, hefted the spears, smelled of them, for he "saw" largely through his sensitive and highly trained nostrils. He determined to own one of these long pointed sticks, but he could not take one on this trip because of the arrows, he meant to carry.

One by one as he took each article from the walls he placed them in a pile in the center of the room, and on top of it he placed the cooking pot, inverted, and on top of this he laid one of the grunting skulls, upon which he fastened the headdress of the dead Kulonga.

Then he stood back and surveyed his work and grinned. Tarzan of the apes was a joker.

But now he heard without the sounds of many voices and long, mournful howls and mighty wailing. He was startled. Had he remained too long?

Quickly he reached the doorway and peered down the village street toward the village gate.

The natives were not yet in sight, though he could plainly hear them approaching across the plantation. They must be very near.

Like a flash he sprang across the opening to the pile of arrows. Gathering up all he could carry under one arm, with a kick he overturned the seething cauldron and disappeared into the foliage, just as the first of the returning natives entered the gate at the far end of the village.

He turned to watch the proceedings below, poised like some wild bird ready to take swift wing at the first sign of danger.

The natives filed up the street, four of them bearing the body of Kulonga. Behind trailed the women, uttering strange cries and weird lamentation. On they came to the portals of the village, but in which Tarzan had wrought his dupery.

scarcely to be so common among the black men he had visited. The brilliant stones glowed strangely against his smooth, brown hide.

The letters he could scarcely decipher, for he had learned little or nothing of script, so he put them back in the box with the photograph and turned his attention to the little book.

This was almost entirely filled with his script; but, while the little bugs were all familiar to him, their arrangement and the combinations in which they occurred were strange and entirely incomprehensible.

Tarzan had long since learned the use of the dictionary, but much to his sorrow and perplexity, it proved of no avail to him in this emergency. Not a word of all that was written in the little book could he find, and so he put it back in the little metal box, but with a determination to work out the mysteries of it later on.

It was the diary of John Clayton, Lord Greystoke, kept in French, as had always been his custom.

Tarzan replaced the box in the cupboard, but it was thereafter he considered the features of the strong, smiling face of his father in his heart and in his head a fixed determination to solve the mystery of the strange words in the little black book.

At present he had more important business in hand, for his supply of arrows was exhausted, and he must needs journey to the black men's village and renew it.

Early the following morning he set out, and, traveling rapidly, he came before midday to the little clearing, which he took up his position in the great tree, and as before, he saw the women in the fields and the village street and the little cauldron of bubbling poison directly beneath him.

For hours he lay awaiting his opportunity to drop down unseen and gather up the arrows for which he had come. But it was not until night fell that Tarzan saw his chance. This time he took all of the arrows, for he had brought a number of long fibers to bind them to a bundle.

When the savages discovered that once more their arrows had been pilfered it seemed to them that they had offended some great god who ruled this part of the jungle. From then on an offering of food was daily placed beneath the great tree from whence the arrows had disappeared, in an effort to conciliate the mighty one.

But the seed of fear was deep sown, and had he but known it Tarzan of the apes had laid the foundation for much future misery for himself and his tribe.

That night he slept in the forest not far from the village, and early the next morning set out slowly on his homeward march, hunting as he traveled. Only a few berries and an occasional grubworm rewarded his search, and he was half famished when, looking up from a log he had been rooting beneath, he saw Sabor, the tiger, standing in the center of the trail not twenty yards from him.

The tiger's yellow eyes were fixed upon him with a wicked and baleful gleam, and the red tongue licked the longing lips as Sabor crouched, working his stealthy way with belly flattened against the earth.

Tarzan did not attempt to escape. He welcomed the opportunity for which, in fact, he had been searching. Quickly he unslung his bow and fitted a well daubed arrow, and as Sabor sprang the tiny missile leaped to meet him in mid-air.

At the same instant Tarzan of the apes jumped to one side, and as the tiger struck the ground beyond another deer tipped arrow sank deep into his loin.

With a mighty roar the beast turned and charged once more, only to be met with a third arrow, full in one eye, but this time the arrow fell in the spine of the letter to midstep.

Tarzan of the apes went down beneath the body of his enemy, but with gleaming knife drawn and striking home. For a moment they lay there, and then Tarzan realized that the inert mass lying upon him was beyond power to injure.

With difficulty he wriggled from beneath the great weight, and as he stood erect and gazed down upon the trophy of his skill a mighty wave of exultation swept over him.

With swelling breast, he placed a foot upon the body of his powerful enemy and, throwing back his fine young head, roared out an awful challenge of the victorious bull ape.

The forest echoed with the savage and triumphant paean. Birds fell still, and the larger animals and beasts of prey slunk stealthily away, for few there were of all the jungle who sought for trouble with the great anthropoids.

And in London another Lord Greystoke was speaking to his kind in the house of lords, but none trembled at the sound of his soft voice.

Sabor proved most unsavory eating served as a snack, and ere long the well fed ape man was ready to sleep again. First, however, he must remember the hide for it was as much for this as for any other purpose that he had desired to encompass the destruction of Sabor, the tiger.

Defly he removed the great pelt, for he had practiced often on smaller animals, and when the task was finished he carried his trophy to the fork of a high tree. There, curling himself securely in a crotch, he fell into deep slumber.

What with loss of sleep, arduous exercise and a heavy meal Tarzan of the apes slept the sun round, awaking about noon of the following day. He straightway repaired to the carcass of Sabor, but was angered to find the bones picked clean by other hungry denizens of the jungle.

He hastened on toward the point where he had left the tribe and, when he had found Sabor, proudly exhibited the skin of Sabor, the tiger.

"Look," he cried, "apes of Kerchak! See what Tarzan, the killer, has done. Who else among you has ever killed one of Sabor's people? Tarzan is mightiest among you, for Tarzan is no ape. Tarzan is— But here he stopped, for in the language of the anthropoids there was no word for man, and Tarzan could only write the word in English. He could not pronounce it.

The tribe had gathered about to look upon the proof of his wondrous prowess and to listen to his words.

Only Kerchak hung back, nursing his hatred and his rage.

Suddenly something snapped in the brain of the anthropoid. With a frightful roar the great beast sprang upon the assemblage, frothing and shrieking in the insanity of his fury. Kerchak looked about for the object of his greatest hatred, and there, upon a nearby limb, he saw him sitting.

"Come down, Tarzan, great killer!" cried Kerchak, ready for battle. "Come down and feel the fangs of a greater! Do mighty fighters fly to the trees at danger?"

And he omitted the volleying challenge of his kind.

Quietly Tarzan dropped to the ground. Breathlessly the tribe watched Kerchak, still roaring, charge the relatively puny figure.

Nearly seven feet stood Kerchak on his hind legs, his enormous shoulders were bunched and rounded with huge muscles. The back of his short neck was as a single lump of iron sinew which bulged beyond the base of his skull, so that his head seemed like a small ball protruding from a huge mountain of flesh.

His back drawn, snarling lips exposed his great fighting fangs, and his bloodshot eyes gleamed in horrid reflection of his madness.

Awaiting him stood Tarzan, himself a mighty muscled animal, but his six feet of height and his great rolling sinews seemed pitifully inadequate to the ordeal which awaited them in their struggle with Kerchak.

Tarzan tried of it as he found that kingship meant the curtailment of his liberty. He longed for the little cabin and the sun kissed sea, for the cool interior of the well built house and for the never ending wonders of the many books.

As he had grown older he found that he had grown away from his people. Their interests and his were far removed. They had not kept pace with him, nor could they understand aught of the many strange and wonderful dreams that passed through the active brain of their human king.

Had Kala lived Tarzan would have sacrificed all else to remain near her, but now she was dead, and the playful friends of his childhood grown into ferocious brutes, he felt that he must prefer the peace and solitude of his cabin to the irksome duties of leadership among a horde of wild beasts.

The hatred and jealousy of Tarzan, son of Tablat, did not mean to counteract the effect of Tarzan's desire to renounce his kingship among the apes, for, with-born young Englishman that he was, he could not bring himself to retreat in the face of so malignant an enemy.

That Terkoz would be chosen leader in his stead he knew full well, for time and again the ferocious brute had established his claim to physical supremacy over the few bull apes who had dared resent his savage bullying.

Tarzan would have liked to subdue the beast without recourse to knife or arrows. So much had his great strength and agility increased in the period following his maturity that he had come to believe that he might master the redoubtable Terkoz in a hand to hand fight, even if not for the terrible advantage the anthropoid's huge fighting fangs gave him over the poorly armed Tarzan.

One day the tribe was feeding quietly, when a great screaming rose some distance east of where Tarzan lay upon his belly beside a limpid brook, attempting to catch an elusive fish in his quick brown hands.

It Was a Thoroughly Awed and Frightened Group of Savages.

One day the tribe was feeding quietly, when a great screaming rose some distance east of where Tarzan lay upon his belly beside a limpid brook, attempting to catch an elusive fish in his quick brown hands.

With one accord the tribe swung rapidly toward the frightened cries and there found Terkoz holding an old female by the hair and beating her unmercifully with his great hands.

As Tarzan approached he raised his hand aloft for Terkoz to desist, for the female was not his, but he held to her poor old ape whose fighting days were long over and who therefore could not protect his family.

Terkoz knew that it was against the laws of another, but, being a bully, he had taken advantage of the weakness of the female's husband to chastise her because she had refused to give up to him a tender young rodent she had captured.

The man was too quick and, ducking the blow, himself delivered a mighty one with clinched fist in the pit of Kerchak's stomach.

The ape was staggered by the blow and, what with the mortal wound in his side, had almost collapsed, when with one mighty effort he rallied for an instant, just long enough to enable him to wrest his arm free from Tarzan's grasp and close in a terrific clinch with his wily opponent.

Straining the ape man close to him, his great jaws sought Tarzan's throat, but the young lord's sinewy fingers were at Kerchak's own before the cruel fangs could close on the sleek brown skin.

The greater strength of the ape was slowly prevailing and the teeth of the straining beast were scores an inch from Tarzan's throat when, with a shuddering tremor, the great body stiffened for an instant and then sank limply to the ground.

Kerchak was dead and Tarzan of the apes, the young Lord Greystoke, withdrawing the knife that had so would have died as he had lived—an unknown savage beast in equatorial Africa.

But there was that which had raised him far above his fellows of the jungle, that little spark which spells the vast difference between man and brute—reason. This it was that saved him from death beneath the iron muscles and ferocious fangs of Terkoz.

Sorely and they fought a dozen seconds ere they were rolling upon the ground, striking, tearing and reading—two great savage beasts battling to the death.

Terkoz had a dozen knife wounds on head and breast, and Tarzan was torn and bleeding, his scalp in one place half torn from his head, so that a great piece hung down over one eye, obstructing his vision.

But so far the young Englishman had been able to keep the horrible fangs from his jugular, and, as they fought less fiercely for a moment to regain their breath, Tarzan formed a cunning plan. He would work his way to the other's back and, cinging there with tooth and nail, drive his knife home until Terkoz was no more.

The maneuver was accomplished more easily than he had hoped, for the stupid beast, not knowing what Tarzan was attempting, made no particular effort to prevent the accomplishment of the deed.

But when finally he realized that his antagonist was fastened to him where his teeth and fists alike were useless against him Terkoz buried himself about upon the ground so violently that Tarzan could but cling desperately to the tangle of limbs, twisting body, and ere he had struck a blow the knife was hurled from his hand by a heavy impact against the earth.

Tarzan found himself defenseless. During the scolding and squirmings of the next few minutes Tarzan's hold was loosened a dozen times, until finally an accidental circumstance of those swift and ever changing evolutions gave him a new hold with his right hand, which he soon realized was absolutely unassailable.

His arm was passed beneath Terkoz's arm from behind, and his hand and forearm encircled the back of Terkoz's neck. It was the half Nelson of modern wrestling which the untaught ape man had stumbled upon, but divine reason showed him in an instant the value of the thing he had discovered. This was the difference to him between life and death.

And so he struggled to encompass a similar hold with the left hand. In a few moments Terkoz's bull neck was creaking beneath a full Nelson.

There was no more lunging about now. The two lay perfectly still upon the ground. Tarzan upon Terkoz's back. Slowly the bullet head of the ape was being forced lower and lower until it reached the ground.

Tarzan knew that the result would be, in an instant, the neck would break. Then there came to Terkoz's rescue the same thing that had put him in the same straits—a man's reason, cunning power.
