COLONEL HOUSE MAKES PUBLIC STATEMENT NOW

Refuting Insinuation That He Spoke for President Wilson.

New York, Sept. 22.—Col. Edward M. House, President Wilson's friend and unofficial adviser, whose name appeared in the letter written by Dr. Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian minister at Washington, to the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, made public last night in London said today: "I have spoken to Dr. Dumba on several occasions. The only time I can recall when the question of armament came up was some time ago when I said I did not think the United States would stop the exportation of munitions to any country. I did not quote President Wilson, but gave this as my personal opinion." Dr. Dumba in his letter referred to Col. House as follows: "The true ground for the discouraging attitude of the president lies, as his confidant, Mr. House already informed me in January and now has repeated, in the fact that the authorities in a serious crisis would have to rely on neutral foreign countries for all their war material. At no price and in no case will Mr. Wilson allow this source to dry up."

OSTROW CAPTURED. BERLIN, Sept. 22, via London, 4.30 p.m.—The capture of the Russian city of Ostrow was announced today by the war office.

FRENCH WARSHIPS RESCUE REFUGEES FROM ARMENIA

Five Thousand People, Who Had Been at Bay for Three Months.

Paris, Sept. 22.—The rescue by French warships of a large band of Armenians from pursuing Turks is recounted in a statement issued last night by the ministry of marine. "Pursued by Turks," says the statement, "five thousand Armenians, three thousand of whom were women, children and old men, took refuge in the Djebel Moussa Mountains at the end of July. They succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay until the beginning of September. "Ammunition and provisions then gave out and they would inevitably have succumbed had they not succeeded in getting word of their grave situation to a French cruiser. The latter immediately despatched the French blockading squadron off the Syrian coast west to their aid and took all of them to Port Said, where they were installed in a provisional camp."

Summoned to Sofia. Paris, Sept. 22.—General Michael Savoff, former commander-in-chief of the Bulgarian army, was summoned by telegraph from his country residence by Premier Radoslavoff, according to a Saloniki despatch to the Balkan Agency. He went immediately to Sofia where he held a long conference with the Premier. A pair of rubber-soled shoes saved the life of Clyde McInnes, who was struck by lightning at Sullivan, Ind.

CITIZENS' RECRUITING MEETING INAUGURATES NEW SYSTEM OF RAISING MEN FOR FRONT

Captain Henderson Explains the Organization and Its Work—Will Centralize All Efforts and Have a Medical Board—All Walks of Life Represented.

There was an excellent attendance at the Y. M. C. A. last evening when a meeting was held in connection with the establishment of a recruiting depot in Brantford for the City and County. Representatives of various Patriotic institutions were among those present. Mayor Spruce occupied the chair and in a timely opening address, explained the objects of the gathering. Brantford and Brant County had up-to-date done splendidly in the matter of recruiting—no other section of the Dominion better—but the authorities had decided that a central organization would be the better plan for the future. Capt. Henderson has been placed in charge and he would call upon him to give further details.

CAPT. HENDERSON said that Toronto and Hamilton had hitherto been centres for such depots and the military authorities had now decided to add Brantford and St. Catharines. The ultimate object, as explained by Major Williams on his recent visit here, was to make a still wider extension of the plan. The desire in this regard was to have a citizens committee in co-operation representative of every walk of life. The object to put it in the fewest possible words was "the promotion of recruiting." At the same time, as Brantford was a manufacturing centre, care must be taken not to encroach on the needed industrial army, more especially on the staffs of those engaged in the production of munitions. Their work in its sphere was just as valuable as the work of the men at the front. The advantages of a depot were many. There would be no interference whatever with the recruiting work of the various military organizations but the centralization of all such efforts under one organized head. There would be a medical board and their attestations would be final. Previously after men had been accepted here, they had to undergo another examination at camp, quite a few had been sent back as the result of the second test. This in many cases had been a great hardship as jobs had been given up. Such rejections would now be obviated—men passed here would not be subject to subsequent refusal. Another primary object was the holding of public meetings to be addressed by prominent men regardless of politics and in general to stir up enthusiasm on behalf of the Empire needs during this testing time. Regrets for inability to be present but announcing full sympathy with the movement were announced from W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., J. H. Fisher, M.P., Scott Davidson, M.P., Mayor Patterson (Paris) and Dean Brady. OFFICERS AND COMMITTEES The special committee's report, which was unanimously adopted, was submitted by W. Norman Andrews as follows: "That the Citizens' Recruiting League be formed for the purpose of promoting recruiting in the City of Brantford and County of Brant, and that the central organization consist of representatives of the organizations here present. "Also that the officers and committees be organized as follows, with such additions or alterations as this meeting shall deem proper: "Honorary presidents, W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., J. H. Fisher, M.P., Jos. Ham, M.P., P. Scott Davidson, M.P., President—Harry Cockshutt, Esq., Vice President—Mayor of Brantford, Mayor of Paris, Reeves of several municipalities in Brant County. Secretary—W. S. Brewster. Treasurer—W. Norman Andrews. Finance Committee—R. Scarfe, T. L. Wood, W. N. Andrews, T. E. Ryerson, C. Cook. Executive Committee—Officers and Messrs. T. H. Preston, F. D. Reville, Lloyd Harris, Dr. Charles Leeming, C. A. Waterous, representative of each board represented at this meeting and of each fraternal society, three representatives of the manufacturers and three of the employees in manufacturing establishments, commanding officer of each military organization, with power to add to their numbers."

WITH COURAGE SUPERB, MISS M. DAVIS, AN ENGLISH NURSE, FACED DEATH FOR SCIENCE

Inoculated Herself With the Deadliest Strain of Gangrene Bacilli to Test Cure's Efficacy—Her Faith Has Proved Itself True and she Has Recovered.

Paris, Sept. 22.—Mary Davis, a young English woman who has been working in the pathological laboratories of the American ambulance since January, has just performed an act of heroism as great as any recorded upon the battlefield, an act for which few precedents exist. Her work has been the examination of bacteria from the wounded arriving at the ambulance, and assisting in the experiments with animals to determine their virulence, work for which her studies in the Pasteur Institute in Paris had fully qualified her. In the last few months she was chiefly directed towards the study of gaseous gangrene. She had seen many examples of the horrible results of this infection, and had observed the invariably fatal course of the disease in animals inoculated with the bacilli. She watched and assisted in the experiments in which guinea pigs were inoculated with gangrene bacilli. She had become convinced of the efficacy of injections with quinine hydrochloride, and had concluded that the experiments on small animals were capable, and that the time had come for an experiment on a normal human body, but not one from the battlefield, fatigued and wounded and possibly infected by other bacilli. Well aware that her plan would be prevented if it became known, she determined, without a word to anyone, to risk her life in an attempt to demonstrate the efficacy of the treatment which she was convinced would cure the victims of this dread disease. DELIBERATE PREPARATIONS. Her preparations deliberately and completely made, she waited until she was about to leave for a holiday, so that her absence would not disturb the work in the laboratory. She chose the deadliest strain of bacilli in the laboratory, obtained from the latest fatal case, of which two drops of culture sufficed to kill a guinea pig. Then she inoculated herself in a manner most certain to produce the disease in animals, injecting 50 times the amount used to kill a guinea pig, making one injection deep into the muscles of her thigh, the other just beneath the skin. Two hours later she quietly came to the laboratory and asked to be treated in the same manner as animals under experiment. The consternation caused by her announcement among the medical staff may be easily realized. Gangrene is so rare in civil life that it is practically never seen.

Russians Have Escaped Toils in Vilna Salient; Retiring in Good Order

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The Russians have escaped the toils of the Vilna salient and retired in good order, destroying all military works and a considerable portion of the railway, according to the Petrograd correspondent of the Post, who says: "The strategic value of the Vilna salient has been enormous. It was held by some of Russia's best troops, and therefore risks were taken profitably which might have been fatal under other circumstances. The stubborn holding of this salient nullified German designs upon Riga, and the German left flank is still up in the air."

BULGARIA STIRRING

London Believes Country on War Brink To-day.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Monday, Sept. 20, via London, Sept. 22, 1.16 p.m.—Bulgaria apparently is on the brink of war. The people generally believe that hostilities are imminent. The military authorities have taken possession of the railways, and ordinary traffic has been suspended. Diplomatic reports here of the entente powers generally recognize that their cause is a lost one and that Bulgaria is manifesting clearly a tendency toward the central powers. This is due to the dissatisfaction of the government at Serbia's reply in the negotiations for territorial concessions in Macedonia and at the conduct of Greece in this connection.

HAVE BATTERY GO AS A UNIT TO THE FRONT

Mayor Spence Tells of His Effort to Have It Thus Arranged.

The big thing in recruiting circles last night was the theatre party and banquet of the 32nd Battery Overseas service corps, after drilling guard every day for weeks, the boys last night went in for some fun and it was long after two o'clock when the time of gaiety and enjoyment came to an end. Thanks to the courtesy of Manager Moule the men were invited to the Brant Theatre for last evening's performance. Every man was on hand and they enjoyed every bit of the show, which was exceptionally good. One of the features of the performance was the singing of a patriotic song by Manager Moule. He was in excellent voice and the audience heartily joined in the ringing chorus. After the singing of the National Anthem at the close and giving three rousing cheers for the Brant, the men marched to the old Overland garage which had been fitted up for a banquet room. Including the guests, upwards of 160 men partook of the menu, which was an excellent one, while Barton's orchestra discoursed the latest rag time during the feast. After the various good things had been done justice to, Toastmaster McNamara called the men to order and so the various speeches and songs was carried out. The songs were rendered by Mr. Arthur Harp, Mr. J. T. Whitaker and W. Carpenter, but the real song hits were the rousing bands sung by Corporal Goodhue, which brought down the house. During the course of the evening Sergt.-Major Mayot of the Second, rendered a couple of spirited recitations. Everybody was in a happy mood and so the various speeches and songs were witty and anecdotal. Nevertheless, the men were ready to listen to all that was good, and so Mr. W. G. Raymond who spoke on "Our Army and Navy" was given a splendid hearing. Mr. Raymond was in more than usually good form and his appreciation of the services of Britain in wars and his castigation of the atrocities of the Germans were equally striking. "The C. O. and Staff" was happily toasted and responded to by Capt. Henderson and Sergt.-Major Bowtle, while Captain Cutcliffe did the honors for the "Daughters of the Empire." "I am going to see Sir Sam Hughes tomorrow and try and get this battery sent to the front as a unit," said Mayor Spence in toasting "Our City." The Mayor made flattering references to the appearance of the men and the pride the city took in the fact that so many native born had joined the artillery. "Our Boys at the Front," was toasted by Capt. Hasard of the Army Medical Corps, who himself has been in the trenches and who gave several interesting anecdotes of trench life. "Our Guests" was given by Mr. M. McBride and Capt. Chapin, after which the gathering broke up for the night. The battery wish to thank Mr. John Schultz for the use of the hall; Mr. Tremaine for candy; Messrs. Kayerson and Foulds for various fruits; while liberal smokes were supplied by Miss Halloran, E. Moffat, McPhail Bros., Herb Johnson, J. J. Kelly, John Milton, Fred Haeni and A. Howarth.

FIRST INSTALLMENT OF ANTI-ANNEXATION PETITION ISSUED BY GERMAN BUND

Offices of Bund Since Raided and One of the Members Arrested on Charge of Treason—"Humanite" Prints Part of Petition, Which is Given Below.

Paris, Sept. 22.—The first installment of an anti-annexationist petition issued by the German Bund Neues Vaterland, is printed this morning by "Humanite." The offices of the organization in Berlin are said to have been raided and one of the members, Dr. Wehberg, arrested on a charge of treason. "Humanite" inserts the petition reads in part as follows: "The ideas expressed in the petition issued by the six economic associations contain redoubtable danger for the conclusion of a timely, honorable peace and for the security of the German Empire after peace is signed. Therefore the Bund feels obliged to oppose the demands of the associations and ask the chancellor to stop their activities and disavow the objects of the war as therein set forth. "East and west more than 120,000 square kilometers (a kilometre is two thirds of a mile) with more than 16,000,000 inhabitants would thus be annexed. What do the petitioners of the six associations imagine our relations would be with these men who would have to be subjected to German domination. "The annexation of Belgium in all but name, the annexation of the French coast as far as the Somme as a strategic necessity, the annexation of the Brie or region and the coal regions of the departments Du Nord and Pas de Calais; the annexation of Verdun, Belfort and the western slope of the Vosges for strategic reasons; the annexation of Russian territory adjoining East Prussia for military reasons."

THE PETITION DEMANDED The petition of the six economic associations, regarded as the most powerful of their kind in Germany, demanded: "The annexation of Belgium in all but name, the annexation of the French coast as far as the Somme as a strategic necessity, the annexation of the Brie or region and the coal regions of the departments Du Nord and Pas de Calais; the annexation of Verdun, Belfort and the western slope of the Vosges for strategic reasons; the annexation of Russian territory adjoining East Prussia for military reasons."

DUMBA'S LETTERS PUBLISHED PROVIDE INTERESTING SIDELIGHT ON AUSTRIAN PROPAGANDA

Seventeen Out of Thirty-four of the Most Interesting are Given, All Were Found on I. F. W. Archibald—Von Papen's Confidences Included.

London, Sept. 22.—Of the 34 Austrian and German papers found in the possession of James F. J. Archibald, the American Newspaper correspondent when he was apprehended August 30 at Falmouth while proceeding from New York on board the steamer Rotterdam for Rotterdam, 17 have been made public, and the other 17 are described as being "insufficient to warrant publication." Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador to the United States, in one letter says that Mr. Archibald, in his speech in Philadelphia, was overheard explaining a method for conveying military information by photographs. Document 9—A letter from Ambassador Dumba to Baron Burian, at Vienna, dated New York, August 20, in which the following passage appears: "(Mr.) Archibald, who is well known to your Excellency, leaves today for Berlin and Vienna. I take this rare and safe opportunity of warmly recommending a proposal to your Majesty's favorable consideration. It is my impression that we can disorganize and hold up for months, if not entirely prevent, the manufacture of munitions in Bethlehem and the middle west, which in the opinion of the German military attaches is of great importance and amply outweighs the comparatively small expenditure of money involved. But even if the strikes don't come off, it is probable that we should exert under pressure of circumstances more favorable conditions of labor for our poor down-trodden fellow-countrymen in Bethlehem. These white slaves are now working 12 hours a day, seven days a week. All weak persons succumb and become consumptives."

Australian Losses Total Over Thirteen Thousand So Far

Melbourne, Australia, August 28.—(Correspondence)—The number of casualties among the 76,000 men that Australia has sent to war was made known by Premier Fisher in a statement to parliament today. The losses including the men who died in Egypt and en route since the embarkation of the first contingent in November, 1914, now total some 13,976, he said, of which he gave the following classification: Officers Others Total Dead 117 2855 3032 Wounded 356 8756 9112 Missing 11 725 736 Sick 94 992 1086 Prisoners 2 8 10 The premier stated that 40,000 troops were now in preparation for the front and that by early winter the Australian expeditionary forces not counting losses, would have reached a total of 117,000. Old servants, armed, still guard the grave of the late Mrs. John D. Pockefeller in Lake View cemetery.

Greece Takes Steps to Meet Situation in Balkans.

ATHENS, Sept. 22, via London, 2.35 p.m.—On receipt of the news that Bulgaria had ordered a general mobilization of her troops, King Constantine summoned to conference Premier Venizelos and the members of the general staff of the army. The premier subsequently called a meeting of the cabinet. The greatest activity prevails among representatives of the entente powers. The British, French and Russian ministers held a conference. The Venizelos Government faces the situation confidently.

PEACE RIVER SUGGESTED FOR THE REFUGEES

From Turkish Misrule—Armenians Crowd Cities of Levant.

There is a widespread interest being manifested in the plight of Armenian refugees who have been rescued after terrible privation among the hills of Lebanon and Syria where for months they have held hordes of savage adversaries at bay until relief came. It has become so acute that already Ambassador Morgenthau of United States has called his government to take vigorous action and if possible prevent further activities. Following on this the Chicago Tribune, which represents powerful interests has dealt with the matter and suggests editorially some remedies of colonization which might be applied. Odessa, Alexandria, Port Said and other Black Sea and Levantine Ports are crowded with people from this

PRESS AGREES VERDICT WILL BE FAVORABLE

On McKenna's War Budget, Now Making Such Drastic Changes.

London, Sept. 22.—Discussing the budget presented to parliament yesterday by Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna, "The Daily Telegraph" says: "The revenue from the existing forms of taxation is £272,110,000. The new taxation will add £31,000,000 increased revenue. From the postal charges the increase will be £17,800,000 total of £305,000,000, leaving an estimated deficit of £1,285,000,000 or an estimated dead weight debt of £2,200,000,000." The newspapers all agree that the verdict of the nation on the budget will be favorable. "It was," says The Daily Telegraph, "expected above all to be a taxing budget and declares it fulfills that duty with very fair distribution." In the opinion of The Daily News Mr. McKenna has met the situation of an unparalleled difficulty with courage and resource which justify fully the confidence reposed in his financial generalship. The Times notes a remarkable omission in the failure to mention retrenchment in the national peace services, but says on the whole it is an honest and straightforward budget. The Chronicle says: "It is a great and bold budget, which seems quite certain to go through." "The Daily Express says: "Mr. McKenna has met a terribly difficult problem with justice and common sense."

NEEDED "BUCKING UP"

Document 11—A letter from Capt. von Papan to his wife, dated New York, August 20, in which the German military attaché says: "We are in great need of being 'bucked up,' as they say here, since Sunday a new storm has been raging against us. Because of what? I'm sending you a few cuttings from newspapers that will amuse you. Unfortunately they stole a fat portfolio from our good Albert in the elevated. The English secret service, of course. Unfortunately there were some very important things from my report, among them such as buying up liquid chlorine and about the Bridgeport Projective Company, as well as documents regarding the buying up of phenol and the acquisition of Wright aeroplane patents. But things like that must occur, since you Albert's reply for you to see how we protect ourselves. We composed the document to-day.

"It seems quite likely that we shall meet again soon. The sinking of the Arabic may well be the last straw. Hope in our interest that the danger will blow over. How splendid on the eastern front—I always say to these idiotic Yankees they better hold their tongues. It's better to look at all this heroism full of admiration. My friends in the army are quite different in this way.

DR. ALBERT PAPERS

Document 12—A letter from Ambassador Dumba to Baron von Burian, Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, on the subject of the disclosures of the secret activities of German Embassy and Heinrich Albert, regarding the theft of papers from Dr. Albert and their subsequent publication in The World. The letter concludes: "There are, however, very few impartial people in New York. The peddling of the Arabic, should she have been sunk without warning or should any American passengers have lost their lives, will have a more unfavorable effect as regards Germany on public opinion in the United States than all the newspaper revelations."

Document 14—A letter from Capt. von Papan to the Minister of War at Berlin in which the writer states that he hears that the Netherlands and Norwegian Governments are buying war materials and asking to be informed if there is any objection to the sale of war material by Germany to the said countries. The letter concludes: "I think probably I could dump on the Norwegian Government a great part of the Lehigh Valley Company's coal which is lying here useless."

cally negligible, but since the war the dramatic rapidity and the horribleness of its effects make it more dreaded than any other form of disease, even tetanus, which the war has produced. Injections with a quinine solution were made at once at the points where she had inoculated the deadly bacilli. She was sent to the nearest hospital for observation and further treatment. Quinine injections were given a second time. Symptoms of a slight degree of infection developed within 24 hours, but they subsided without an operation becoming necessary. She is now completely recovered.

The young heroine, who is not yet thirty, will be the first to regret that the story of her act has become known. She is a hard and conscientious worker, absorbed by her duties and absolutely free from any impulsive tendencies or the wish for publicity, her sole interest in the dangerous experiment having been its value as a test of the efficacy of a certain form of treatment. She has since defended her action, saying that experiments with microbes are just as justifiable as those with new types of aeroplanes or with the anti-gas respirators. She took as calm and scientific interest in her own treatment as if she were one of the laboratory guinea pigs.

DESCRIBED SYMPTOMS

She calmly described the symptoms and pointed out how they compared with those observed in an animal's leg, the stiffness of the leg muscles being the same as watched in an injected animal.

Dr. Kenneth Taylor, of the University of Minnesota, pathologist at the American Ambulance, who has been directing the researches with the quinine treatment of gaseous gangrene, told a newspaper correspondent that while no one could feel higher admiration for the young woman's readiness to risk her life for the cause of science than himself, the scientific value of the experiment must not be overestimated.

"There are too many unknown factors concerned in any infection to warrant the conclusion that recovery in this case was the direct result of the treatment," he explained. "However, it forms an important addition to the results already obtained by the experiments with guinea pigs."

BRITAIN ALLOWS FOR SINKING FUND, IN DEBT

Editor of Economist Surveys Budget in Masterly Manner.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
New York, Sept. 22—A cable from London to The Tribune credited to Francis W. Hirst, editor of The Economist says:

"I have just been listening to our third war budget. Reginald McKenna chancellor of the exchequer, went to work in a very business-like way. I have heard the budget speech of every chancellor of the exchequer since the beginning of the war, but none took so much of the taxpayer's money in so short a time. It was almost a case of 'no flowers, by request,' as at funerals, for the House of Commons knew it was in for stern work and did not want political rhapsodies. It was all as matter of fact, as the facts themselves required. There was no word painting. They stood out like black, ironing rocks across the stream of our national life—a painful bar and menace to future progress.

"It is to be a budget, said Mr. McKenna at the outset of 'unprecedented burdens,' and he redeemed his promise. Certainly there has been no such heavy addition to taxation since the Napoleonic wars. On the other hand the taxation of the working classes after this budget will be much less heavy than it was a century ago. "The new taxes that hit the poor hardest are the additional duties on sugar, tea and tobacco. Import duties on motor cars, plate glass, clocks, etc., are sops to tariff reformers, and McKenna's defense of them delighted a section of the Tory party. It sounded like an echo of their tariff reform orations which we heard ten years ago, but it was explained as a means of assisting American exchange.

"The increase of the income tax and super-tax shows that the cabinet is composed mainly of rich men in a representative democracy capable at a crisis of imposing heavy sacrifices on wealth. Thus income and super-taxes on millionaires rise to nearly seven shillings in the pound. Men with £100,000 income will pay £34,000.

"The reduction of exemptions to the limit of the income tax from £160 to £130 is a sound measure. A wider basis for direct taxation is better for a democracy like ours. The figures of expenditure and debt were received as gloomily as they were uttered. But the House took the budget very well. It should have a sustaining effect on British credit, for we are the only belligerent power which has made ample provision for interest and a sinking fund on its new war debt.

"The increase of postal and telegraph tolls is hard on newspapers, which have suffered heavily by the war, owing to the enormous decline in advertising.

"One effect of the budget will be to ridicule our conspirators in their efforts to show that this country has not done its share."

VILNA CLEARED WITH SAFETY BY RUSSIANS

Hardly Likely That Armies Will Escape Without Heavy Losses.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
London, Sept. 22—Special despatches from Petrograd agree that the Russians have withdrawn safely from the Vilna salient, the strategic value of which was considered so great that the Russian staff felt justified in risking some of the best troops to defend it to the last possible moment. In their withdrawal the Russians are said to have destroyed everything of military utility, as has been their practice since the gigantic retreat began.

While the main army probably is safe, it is hardly likely the whole Russian force will escape without heavy losses in men and guns. Field Marshal von Hindenburg's cavalry, which was expected to complete the encircling movement, is still held up between Smorgon and Moloedchno. On the Vilna, Lida, and Slonim Bank, the German advance is proceeding steadily, but Prince Leopold's progress is slower, while Field Marshal von Mackensen has come to a pause beyond the Pripet marshes.

If the Russian retreat is to be stopped successfully the swiftest movement must come from the south and the Germans must reap the full advantage of their efforts within a week. As was predicted the semstvo conference at Moscow petitioned Emperor Nicholas to recall the duma and summon a cabinet responsive to the wishes of the people.

The projected artillery duels along the western front have been relieved by several infantry attacks.

The English public is discussing with greatest interest the record war budget presented yesterday. The budget has been received without opposition worthy of note.

The Situation.

According to present indications, the Russian forces operating in and around Vilna have successfully evaded Hindenburg's net. They were threatened on three sides by the enemy, but have not only made good their withdrawal, but in addition, at one point, are actually threatening some of their pursuers.

All doubt has vanished with reference to the fact that King Ferdinand has allowed Bulgaria to become a pawn for Germany, and the excuse that the only action taken is one of "armed neutrality" is too thin to deceive anyone. It is very evident that the Kaiser and the would-be Czar of the Balkans are working hand in hand together, and the alliance is all the more cold-blooded because Ferdinand owes a large part of what he is to Russia. What will be the outcome as regards the other States in that area? They had a league together against Turkey which Bulgaria broke, and just what the Greeks and the Roumanians will now do is still problematical. Will they take sides or remain neutral? Whichever course they adopt, it can be taken for granted that material advantage will be the one consideration.

The Berlin official report states that "in the Souchez-Arras section the French artillery is keeping up a strong fire almost uninterruptedly," and that on the Aisne-Marne canal blockhouses have been abandoned according to plans. This tells the story of how vigorously Joffre's forces continue to hammer away. They have also succeeded in crossing the canal, and if they can keep hold, have made an advance at this point of great importance.

Sir John French reports increased German activity along the British front, and also records the fact that Empire troops replied effectively.

Hydro-Electric in Toronto.

That great undertaking for the people introduced by the Whitney Government—Hydro-Electric—continues to make good everywhere. Toronto is the most recent illustration.

The first epoch, so-called, because still lower charges are now to be introduced, has ended in a most gratifying manner.

In order that the new rates may be given every chance, the commissioners have taken especial care to clean up all possible charges against previous years and have devoted $69,536.10 to this purpose, thus reducing what would have been a surplus of $70,419.34 to a net final surplus of $883.24.

With rates less than half of those formerly exacted by private companies, the following items have been fully met:

All of the operating and special charges to 31st December, 1914. All interest charges for operating period to 31st December, 1914.

All sinking fund charges for operating period to 31st December, 1914. An adequate depreciation reserve fund of $450,000.00.

And $34,000.00 on account of sinking fund charges accruing to previous construction period.

The report sums up the achievements of the first epoch as follows:

"At this, the close of the first epoch, it may be of interest to point out that the old rates, established at the inception of the undertaking, and continued in force until December 31, 1914, covering a period of a little over three full working years, resulted in net earnings, after meeting all operating and special expenses, to the amount of $1,261,718.78. The sum so earned is the equivalent of the whole of the interest chargeable against revenue, the whole of the depreciation reserve fund set up in respect of the general system, the whole of the sinking fund charges attributable to the opening period, and $33,914.54 on account of the sinking fund charges attributable to the construction period. Not a dollar has been charged to capital account that should have been charged to revenue; the enterprise has therefore fully paid its way and earned a surplus, after dealing in the most conservative manner with its accounts."

The following as to rates will prove of interest:

Residence lighting—Former non-competitive rates K.W. hour, 8 cents; new reduced rates K.W. hour (average), 4.00 cents.

Commercial lighting—Former rates, 8, 10 and 12 cents; new rates, 2.85 cents.

Commercial power—Former rates, 2-3 to 6 cents; new rates, 1.31 cents.

It was the enlightened course of the Whitney Government which has brought such things about in the Queen City and other centres, not forgetting also rural districts.

The British Budget.

The British war budget deals with astounding figures. It is the greatest in the history of the world, and shows that the war is now costing Great Britain about $25,000,000 each day.

As one of the outcomes, in order to secure more revenue, the Free Trade flag has had to be hauled down quite a bit. At the same time, said term of "Free Trade" has always been largely a misnomer as applied to the Old Land.

For instance, during the last recorded year John Bull received from taxes on sugar $15,000,000, on tea $30,000,000, on tobacco, etc., $75,000,000, on cocoa and coffee $2,500,000, and so on. These things are classed by Free Trade fanatics as luxuries, but they have become so part and parcel of everyday life as in reality to rank as necessities.

Now they are all to bear an even larger duty and new taxes are to be imposed upon motor cars, bicycles, picture films, clocks, watches, musical instruments, plate glass and hats. In addition there is to be an advance in the income tax, the halfpenny postal rate is abolished, and telegraph tolls are increased. In the matter of the income tax the man earning $650 a year is to be levied on instead of the minimum of $800 as formerly. War profits are also to be levied on, and this will probably be the most popular feature of the entire deliverance.

That the people of the tight little islands will cheerfully bear the additional levies is without question. They have the consolation, at any rate, of knowing that British resources can stand the strain, whereas in the case of Germany, cut off from all trading with the rest of the world, the demands must pretty soon begin to enter upon the phase of exhaustion. They are even now figuring on war indemnities as an offset—indemnities which they will never get.

SEVENTH AVENUE CAVE-IN CAUSES LOSS OF LIFE

Three Surface Street Cars Fell Into Hole in New York Thoroughfare.

By Special Wire to The Courier.

New York, Sept. 22.—Seven persons were reported by the police to have been killed and more than fifty others seriously injured to-day, when a dynamite explosion in the excavation of the Seventh Avenue subway caused a cave-in which engulfed a surface car and numerous pedestrians. The accident occurred shortly before 8 o'clock and more than half the injured were women and girls on their way to business.

There were 78 passengers on the trolley car which dropped 15 feet into the subway excavation when the entire block on Seventh Avenue, between 24th and 25th streets, collapsed. Although the car remained upright, it was partially buried under an avalanche of concrete, rails, timbers and earth, and many of the passengers were severely crushed.

Persons who were in a large office building close to where the car went down, said there was a great roar as the pavement and portions of the sidewalks sank. This was followed a moment later by the cries of the partially entombed passengers and of pedestrians who were either thrown into the excavation or knocked down.

Within an hour more than fifty injured persons had been removed from the cave. Two of these, a man and a woman died on the way to hospitals and another woman was reported dying by surgeons. A short time later the rescuers reached the worst part of the wreckage and the first dead body was recovered. Police and firemen later reported finding five dead from the cave-in.

Rescuers found numerous sticks of dynamite scattered about in the subway excavation and a foreman for the United States Realty and Improvement Company, contractors on this section of the subway said much blasting had been done this morning.

E. A. Little, general superintendent for the contractors, said: "The disaster was due to a small explosion of dynamite, which caused a number of street props, or shoring, in this section to give way. The charge which actually caused the accident was a regulation dynamite charge, and the cave-in was not due to any carelessness on the part of our employees. Rather, it was due to the crude, loose formation of the dirt, which we unexpectedly came across."

Mayor Mitchell, after an inspection of the cave-in, said that it was too early to suggest criminal responsibility, but that all subway construction work in the city will be inspected at once.

With the City Police

Only a few cases appeared in today's police court for trial. John K. Chilcott was accused of non-payment of wages, but the case was amicably settled between the parties. Alexander Farrell appeared on a $-mile charge and was dismissed. Frank Minnewsky and John Mazin are the owners of vicious dogs. They were told on Wednesday to dispose of them and this they did. So both charges were dropped to-day.

In government circles the statement was made to-day that all the military measures which have been taken are of a preventive nature designed solely to guard against circumstances which might threaten Bulgaria's position in the present situation, which is developing with unforeseen and extraordinary rapidity. These measures consist in turning over the railroads to the military authorities and suspending ordinary traffic.

EVERY PERSON RESCUED FROM LINER ATHENA!

Splendid Discipline and Courage Shown Under Trying Circumstances.

New York, Sept. 22—The Anchor liner Tuscania arrived in port last night with members of the crew of the Greek steamer Athenai, which was abandoned at sea late Sunday afternoon after she had been afloat for thirty-six hours.

Every soul on board the burning vessel was rescued. The officers of the Athenai said last night that they did not know what caused the fire. It was discovered at eight Saturday morning, which was her third day out from New York.

It appeared to have broken out simultaneously in four different parts of No. 2 hold, which was largely filled with cotton bales, printing paper and other inflammable merchandise.

Although there was much excitement among the passengers when the seriousness of the fire was learned, the officers succeeded in allaying their fears, and until all were safely aboard the Tuscania before dark the next day, the passengers behaved coolly, with a few exceptions in the steerage.

There were thirty-two Americans aboard, among them several bound as missionaries to Turkey, and they united in drawing up a memorial praising the conduct of Capt. McLean of the Tuscania and his crew for the "cool courage with which they dealt with a very dangerous task."

The crew of the Athenai, reinforced by a number of passengers, fought the fire all day Saturday with apparent success and at dusk they thought the flames under control. The flames broke out again, however, during the night with increased fierceness, and at 9 a. m. Sunday Captain Bozianis decided to send out "S. O. S." calls, to which the Tuscania, Prince responded. The Tuscania, proceeding at full speed, arrived at noon, and sent a crew aboard with chemical fire extinguishers and smoke helmets which the Athenai was not provided. First Officer McNeill of the Tuscania and some of his men went down into the hold and reported that the fire could not be controlled. However, Capt. Bozianis kept up the fight for the rest of the afternoon before deciding to abandon the ship. The wireless then brought eight lifeboats from the Tuscania and with a few of the Athenai's boats the passengers were transferred without accident, the weather being mild and the sea calm.

Women and children went first, and although several of the men steered the first boats, they were so roughly handled by the crew that they were content to wait their turn. Four of the steerage passengers, including Capt. Bozianis and his wife, were tried to board her ahead of the other boats were beaten off by the Tuscania's crew, and were left to wait until the morning and children had been safely transferred.

Meanwhile the Roumanian Prince had arrived and took off 61 of the 470 souls all told.

One second-class passenger, Thos. Sattir of Meadville, Pa., died of heart disease on board the Tuscania the next day. Most of the passengers lost all their baggage.

The Athenai was last seen a blazing torch on the night sky. Her officers believed that she must have soon gone down.

HESTER, AND A LEGACY

"That is not answering my question," he said, "I know they discovered disease of the heart, but considering the state it was in a little thing—a drop of a narcotic too much—would cause its action to cease."

"Are you trying to prove that it was murder?" she inquired, turning pale.

"Great Heaven, no!" he exclaimed, beginning to pace the room in an agitated manner. "But you absolutely torture me! What am I to think? You will not speak yet. I have no positive grounds for believing that you do know something more of this matter than you admit."

"What grounds?"

He paused in front of her and regarded her steadily.

"I was here at the chase on Tuesday night," he asserted, "and I had an interview with my mother."

"I know that," she replied quietly.

He appeared surprised, but after a minute continued his restless pacing.

"I had received a very angry letter from her that day," he went on, "and I came to the conclusion that it was better come down to Lynnwood and see her myself. I rode down from London late in the afternoon, and it was quite dark before I arrived. I tied my horse up to the gate in the course and walked up to the house. When I reached the terrace I saw my mother sitting alone near the open window of the drawing room. I went in and spoke to her. I held to my resolution on the subject over which we had quarrelled, and she was very angry; she told me she had altered her will and told me she would disinherit me unless I came round to her way of thinking. This did not disturb me much, for she had sometimes threatened the same thing when I had displeased her, and it had afterwards blown over. When I left her I walked through the copse for some time, thinking over what had occurred and made up my mind to go back and explain matters a little, which hitherto I had not chosen to do. So I went back to the house."

He paused and Hester's eyes were fixed on him intently with growing interest.

"As it happens," he went on, "no one but my mother seems to have been aware of our interview, or that I was in Lynnwood at all. This was not intentional on my part—it was purely accidental. I had met no one in the grounds, and I had entered the house through the open window and left it in the same manner."

"Yes," she said, as he paused again, "apparently no one is aware that you were in Lynnwood on Tuesday night except Lady Lynnwood and myself. But why have you kept a secret of this? Would it not have been more natural to say so at once?"

"Wait till you hear the rest of the story, then you will see that it might have led to my being arrested and sent to prison—questions—questions—which I would rather not answer. I went back to the house to speak to my mother again, but when I got on the terrace I found that she was no longer there; the room was empty. As I waited a moment I saw a woman enter. I knew who she was, and I did not wish to disturb her, so I drew back into the shadow. I could see her quite well through the open window, but she came quickly into the room, gathered up the things on the table, and put them away; then she came to the window. I could see her face plainly, as the moonlight fell upon it, it was full of excitement and varying emotions. She came out on the terrace the next moment, passed quickly down the steps, and turned into the shrubbery. She went so quickly that I leaned over the terrace to look after her she had already disappeared among the trees. I sat down on one of the seats in the shadow and waited for her to return. More than an hour passed and she did not come. In the meantime the servants had shut up and bolted the open windows, and the whole house was perfectly still and dark. Still I waited. She came at last up the steps across the terrace without seeing me, and disappeared round the corner of the house towards the garden door, which I closed her side and lock behind her. She was without a hat or cloak, and had been more than an hour alone in the shrubbery till past twelve at night. What would you think of such proceedings if you had witnessed them?"

"I should say that the woman, whoever she was, had some trouble, and had been unconventional enough to follow her instinct for freedom, fresh air, and darkness. Some natives find relief in one way, some in another."

"Yes; it was evident to me that she was in a state of the greatest excitement. The question is, what caused her excitement, or what feeling possessed her? It is strange that it should occur on the night of my mother's death. At the time I could not account for it at all, but since I have thought that she probably had witnessed or knew something—"

"You are wrong!" she exclaimed, looking up. "I did not know or suspect anything. I was greatly excited and upset. Lady Lynnwood had just told me that she had made a fresh will, disinheriting you and making me heiress instead. It was natural that I should be excited."

"Were you pleased?" he asked.

"You know I was not!" she exclaimed emphatically, with a reproachful look.

"Why not?"

"In the first place because it was unjust—altogether wrong, and in the second because I disliked exceedingly the drawers emptied of their contents with marvellous rapidity. Towards eight o'clock came a tap at the door and a maid's voice announcing that her dinner had long been served in her own room and was getting cold. She replied that she had a bad headache and did not want any. An hour later, when everything stood ready and she was brushing her disordered hair, there came another tap at the door and Mrs. Vavasour entered. She stared around her at the packed trunk and evident signs of immediate departure with astonishment.

"Why, what is the meaning of this?" she demanded. "I had no idea you were packing! Are you going away?"

"Yes," replied Hester. "Please excuse the disorder. I am leaving tomorrow early."

Mrs. Vavasour seated herself on a chair in the middle of the room, having first carefully removed a travelling rug and waterproof with her delicate, jeweled fingers, as though they were contaminated.

"These dreadfully abrupt proceedings quite unnerve me," she said plaintively. "Really, I wish people would have a little more consideration for those who are not so strong as themselves. I suffer with my heart very much in the way poor dear Lady Lynnwood did, and I really feel quite upset."

Hester made no answer. The face reflected in the glass was pale and weary beyond words.

"There is no need for this hurried departure," continued Mrs. Vavasour. "You can stay here as long as I do, and I shall be leaving next week. I expect, with Lady Montague. You can stay and make yourself useful. I am sure. You need feel no scruples. You were for so many years with Lady Lynnwood that we all have got to look upon you as—well, almost as one of the family. I might say."

"Thank you, very flattering," said Hester, holding her head so high in the air that she looked defiant rather than grateful.

"And I for one shall be very sorry to lose you. I have just been talking to Lady Montague about it. It seems such a pity when you know my ways and suit me. I am sure no one else would do as well, and I must have a companion of some sort. A young widow cannot live alone, and I am sure that this establishment is broken up and my husband's aunt has gone broad. I must make other plans. I came up now to speak to you about it."

"Thank you," said Hester, "but I do not intend to go again as companion to any one!"

"Why not?" and Mrs. Vavasour pressed her eyes—was in surprise. "I thought you had refused to accept Lady Lynnwood's money? Quite right of course, for poor dear Lady Lynnwood must have been quite delighted when she made that dreadful will and everybody agrees that it would be unkind of you to—"

She hesitated, and Hester looked at her without replying.

"So you will still have to earn your own living, I suppose?" Mrs. Vavasour went on after a pause.

"Yes, but I shall choose another way."

"Dear me, how tiresome! That is really very tiresome! I had quite set my heart upon having you. You must change your mind, you really must! I can make you a really good offer—say, one hundred pounds a year and all expenses paid. What do you say to that?"

Hurried words rose to Hester's lips, her eyes flashed, but all she said was "No!"

"I am sorry I must decline," Mrs. Vavasour felt she was throwing herself against a rock. Like all weak natures, she began to long intensely for the thing that was denied her; it now seemed her one object in life to obtain Mrs. Phillips as her companion. The ready tears came into her eyes.

"It is really dreadful!" she exclaimed. "I am sure I don't know what I shall do. I intended to travel for six months or a year; my nerves have been so completely shaken by this sad occurrence, and the doctor says a thorough change is the only thing for me, and now my plans are all to be upset. I really cannot trust myself with strange people, one never knows what they will do, and one is so completely in their power abroad. They might rob and steal, or drink, and do all sorts of dreadful things and then I should be at my wits' end. I could trust myself with you. You have been so long with Lady Lynnwood, and can speak French and German, and understand paying bills and taking tickets and all the tiresome part of travelling. You never do stupid things, and can take all the responsibility. You really must come! I will give you whatever salary you like to ask—say, one hundred and fifty pounds a year. What do you say?"

CHAPTER XXXI

Hester went to her own room and locking the door, flung herself face downward on her bed. She did not cry; there was something in her heart too deep for tears. She lay so for an hour or more in the dark, and at last roused herself to light a candle and drag her big trunk from the box-room. Then began the work of packing—hurried, nervous, passionate packing, one might almost call it, for the things were put in irrespectively of their weight or value, and
