There's a Lock on The Old Hotel

(Crawf C. Slack)

Round the old hotel it's dead,
There's a gate upon the shed,
And there's dust upon the register and floor,
I suppose that some are glad,
But for me, I'm glum and sad,
And I grieve to see the lock upon that door.

Here I'm not ashamed to tell,
I revere that old hotel,
It has been the meeting place for many years,
I revere it, but regret
That the boys who with me met,
Are passing and I strive to stay the tears.

Ever since I was a lad,
Merry moments I have had,
Joking there with my companions
Light and free,
We were staunch and stalwart chums
Not a lot of drunken buns,
Which some would represent us all to be,

Sure, we'd take a drink or two
But this I will say for you,
That we all were willing workers
every day,
And among us not a lad,
Which depended on his dad,
For his clothes and board and cash to pay his way.

We were not the shirking pets,
With imported cigarettes,
Which infest the Ice Cream Parlors of today,
Though we scattered far and wide
I can point with humble pride,
To duty's path where each have paved the way.

But as it is my belief,
That its nonsense to court grief,
I am trying to be merry as of yore,
When we used to smooth out kinks,
By a jolly round of drinks,
But I guess we'll never do it any more.

Now you have to get a jug,
From a stealthy moonshine mug,
Of coffin vanilla from his hidden still
They are getting it, you bet,
But I haven't, not as yet,
But I cannot say exactly when I will!

Not that business had failed,
Or the landlord had been jailed,
That the dust was on the counter and the floor,
Not that puritans have choose,
For to close his bar for booze,
That the landlord put a padlock on his door.

But that would be saints in pairs,
Would be swiping all his wares,
Should he go away and leave an door,
And that horses roan and red,
Would be kicking down his shed,
While their owners stole his fuel as before.

So he got some padlocks strong,
For to bar the moral throng,
And he put them on the doors and things about,
When he started in to take,
His vacation at the lake,
If he had but they would surely have cleaned him out.

The Editor of the Reporter wishes to thank Rev. Curtis for a very fine bouquet of Gladioli flowers.

Mr. H. R. Knowlton left last week on a business trip to the Canadian West.

On Sunday last at the Methodist Church the congregations, in both morning and evening services were favored with excellent music. In the morning Mr. W. A. Ackland, Calgary rendered an excellent solo in fine style, all his old friends here being much pleased to hear him again. In the evening Dr. Allan Hafner and quartette from Kingston rendered five quartette numbers and one solo.

It is seldom that we have the opportunity of hearing music of this standard and we are indeed indebted to the boys for a service that will not soon be forgotten. Rev. Curtis and Rev. Elliott of Addison, were the preachers for the day.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. PLANTS FROM CUTTINGS

Plant Propagation as Described by a Master Hand.

Be Your Own Developer of Geraniums—Light Fall Pruning of Orchards Is Safe—The Barberry Hedge a Spreader of Rust in Grains.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Toward the end of the summer, the amateur flower grower often wonders how the stock of geraniums in the flower border can be increased and preserved by some other means than by taking up the old plants in the autumn; the last named method not having, perhaps, proved successful in past seasons. By starting fairly early, toward the end of August, before cold chilly nights appear, a nice supply of young plants, more especially of all kinds of geraniums of the flowering kind, or those having fragrant leaves, or even the bronze or silver leaved kinds, can be had by starting cuttings or slips of these plants. First of all obtain a shallow box about three inches deep, ten or twelve inches wide, and from twelve to twenty-four inches in length; an empty huddle (fish) box will do very well. It should have some small holes bored through the bottom for drainage. Pack this box firmly with moist, clean, gritty sand; sand that will make good stone mortar will do. Then take the terminal or top part of the young growth of plants about four or five inches in length, each shoot or cutting having from four to six joints where leaves are produced. Make the base deep, when they can be taken into the window. When cuttings have roots about an inch in length dig them carefully from the sand without injuring the roots and pot them singly into small 2½ inch pots or set them about two inches apart in well drained shallow boxes in a soil made up of one part sand, one part leaf mould, and about six parts of light loamy soil enriched with one part of dry pulverized cow manure from the pasture field. This is one of the best possible fertilizers for soil for pot plants. Set the young plants in the window in a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees Fahr. an ordinary house temperature. Salvia, Ageratum, Lady Washington Geraniums, Fuchsias, Iresine, Lobelia and many other plants can be started from cuttings in this way.—The late Wm. Hunt, O. A. College, Guelph.

Light pruning in fall is permissible, but heavy pruning is dangerous and likely to result in serious damage from winter killing, especially if the succeeding winter is severe. The injury is caused by drying out of the cut area and may be prevented by covering all wounds of any size with a good covering of paint made from pure lead and oil. Do not use prepared paints, as these contain injurious benzine or turpentine dryers. To make an effective covering it will be necessary to give not less than two coats, because one coat will not prevent checking and drying of green wood. Coal tar makes an excellent wood covering and is easily applied.

This matter of covering wounds made in fall or early winter is frequently slighted by orchard men, but the writer has seen such serious damage result from neglect of this precaution that he feels justified in warning fruit growers with regard to the practice. In experimental trials in the College apple orchard, varieties so hardy as Duchess of Oldenburg, Wolf River, Snow and Scott's Winter have suffered very serious injury following November pruning with the cuts left unprotected. The wounds dry out around the edges and by spring the dead area is greatly enlarged, frequently extending down the trunk or branch for a foot or more. The dead bark comes away later leaving a large dead area, detrimental to the parts above and certain also to decay later.

It is not likely that injury would follow the cutting of branches below an inch in size unless many were removed and there probably would be no necessity for covering such wounds. All above this size, however, should be thoroughly protected.—J. W. Crow, O. A. College, Guelph.

Barberry Hedge Spoiled Ten Crops.

Hundreds and hundreds of instances can be cited to show that the common barberry is the most important factor in the spread of rust in northwest states. In a Government Bulletin on rust and barberry, Dr. C. E. Stakman of Minnesota University Farm relates the experience of a farmer at Crystal Bay, Lake Minnetonka, Minn., who had a barberry hedge of 625 bushes. He had tried to grow oats on his farm for ten years, but each year the black stem rust destroyed almost all the grain. Then one spring he destroyed the hedge before the bushes had become rusted. Ten days before the harvest the field was examined thoroughly and no stem rust could be found. The yield and quality proved to be excellent. It was the first time in ten years that a crop had been grown successfully on that farm. Every land owner should begin early in the spring to destroy the barberry for the protection of grain crops.

Do Your Bit to Prevent Bush Fires

YOUR co-operation—the co-operation of all the citizens of Ontario—is the biggest need in Ontario Forestry to-day.

History shows that impoverishment and national decline follows from the destruction of a country's forests.

Most of the area of this Province is non-agricultural, suited by Nature only for growing trees. This land remains yours but the Government sells the trees.

Every summer in Ontario an average area of 425,000 acres of forest land is burnt over, equal to a strip 130 miles long by 5 miles wide. This yearly depletion at the hands of her own people is gradually turning the northern part of the Province into a rocky desert. On thousands of acres, even the soil has been destroyed by fire!

Save Ontario's Forests They're Yours

The average yearly number of forest fires in Ontario is about 1275. The vigilance of the Fire Wardens keep two-thirds of Ontario's forest fires down to an average size of less than five acres. But the others are big enough to make the total average to 250 acres.

Forest fires in Ontario are destroying the natural assets of timber and pulpwood upon which the Province relies to help pay her share of Canada's War Debt. Forest fires destroy fish and game, decrease the regularity of stream flow, cause spring floods, land erosion and the crippling of water powers; turn revenue-producing areas into rock deserts.

Out of every 100 fires in Ontario's forests only three are caused by lightning, while ninety or more are due to man's carelessness. One thousand men scattered over 100,000,000 acres, have little chance of preventing fires. All they can hope to do is to see the smoke in time to check them and put them out before they spread beyond control.

The problem of adequate protection of Ontario's forests from fire is almost entirely a moral one involving the whole public of Ontario. The vast majority of forest fires are caused by human carelessness due to lack of civic responsibility. The tendency is to leave all the responsibility to the Government for protecting the forests from fire. The Government cannot protect the forests belonging to the people of Ontario unless the people of Ontario co-operate. Forestry needs your patriotism, your public spirit, your regard for the general welfare of Canada.

No Sects in Heaven.

Talking of sects quite late one eve,
What one and another of saints believe,
That night I stood in a troubled dream,
By the side of a darkly flowing stream.

And a "Churchman" down to the river came,
When I heard a strange voice call his name.
"Good father, so; when you cross this tide
You must leave your robe on the other side."

But the aged father did not mind,
And his long gown floated out behind,
As down to the stream his way he took,
His hands firm hold of a gilt-edged book.

"I'm bound for heav'n and when I'm there
I shall want my book of Common Prayer;
And though I put on a starry crown
I should feel quite lost without my gown."

Then he fixed his eye on the shining track,
But his gown was heavy and held him back,
And the poor old father tried in vain
A single step on the flood to gain.

I saw him again on the other side,
But his silk gown floated on the tide
And no one asked in that blissful spot
If he belonged to the church or not.

Then down to the river a Quaker strayed,
His dress of a sober hue was made;
"My hat and coat must be all of gray
I cannot go any other way."

Then he buttoned his coat straight up to his chin,
And staidly, solemnly, waded in;
And his broad brimmed hat, he pulled down tight
Over his forehead so cold and white.

But a strong wind carried away his hat,
And he sighed a few moments over that;
And then as he gazed to the farther shore,
The coat slipped off and was seen no more.

Poor dying Quaker! thy suit of gray
Is quietly sailing—away—away!
But thou'lt go to heaven as straight as an arrow,
Whether thy brim be broad or narrow.

Next came Dr. Watts, with a bundle of Psalms,
Tied nicely up in his aged arms,
And hymns so many—a very wise thing—
That the people in heaven "all around" might sing.

But I thought he heaved an anxious sigh
As he saw the river run broad and high,
And looked rather surprised, as one by one
The psalms the hymns in the waves went down.

And after him, with his MSS.,
Came Wesley, the pattern of godliness
But he cried, "Dear me, what shall I do?
The water has soaked them through and through!"

And there, on the river, far and wide,
Away they went on the swollen tide
And the saint, astonished, passed through alone,
Without his manuscripts, up to the throne.

Then, gravely walking, two saints by name
Down to the stream together came;
But as they stopped at the river's brink,
I saw one saint from another shrink.

"Sprinkled or plunged, may I ask you friend,
How you attained to life's great end?
"Thus, with a few drops on my brow"
"But I have been dipped, as you'll see me now."

"And I really think it will hardly do,
As I'm close communion, to cross with you,

You're bound, I know, to the realms of bliss,
But you must go that way, and I'll go this."

And straightway plunging with all his might
Away to the left—his friend to the right—
Apart they went from this world of sin;
And how did the brethren "enter in?"
And now where the river was rolling on,
A Presbyterian church went down,
Of women there seemed an innumerable throng,
But the men I could count as they passed along.

And concerning the road they could never agree,
The old, or the new way, which it could be;
Nor never a moment paused to think
That both would lead to the river's brink.

But a sound of murmuring, long and loud,
Came ever up from the moving crowd
"You're in the old way I'm in the new
That is the false, and this is the true
Or, I'm in the old way, and you're in the new,
That is the false and this is the true."

But the brethren only seemed to speak;
Modest the sisters walked and meek;
And if ever one of them chanced to say
What trouble she met with on the way,—
How she longed to pass to the other side,
Nor feared to cross over the swelling tide,
A voice arose from the brethren then
Let no one speak but the "holy men";
For have ye not heard the words of Paul?—
"Oh, let women keep silence all."

I watched them all in my curious dream,
Till they stood by the border of the stream,
Then, just as I thought, the two ways met,
But all the brethren were talking yet,
And would talk on, till the heaving tide,
Carried them over, side by side;
Side by side, for the way was one,
The toilsome journey of life was done
And Priest and Quaker, and all who died,
Came out alike on the other side;
No forms or crosses or books had they
No gowns of silk or suits of gray,
No creeds to guide them, or MSS.,
For all had put on "Christ's righteousness."
