CHAPTER XXII.

He sank on to a heap of gravel, which was as welcome at that moment as a softly-padded Chesterfield, wiped the sweat from his brow, and felt the most profound respect for that rough and uncultivated, but useful, individual, the British navy. But notwithstanding his innumerable pains and aches, which were like those of a man who had just been removed from that ancient implement of torture, the rack, he felt rather proud of himself, and was resolved to continue in the profession he had chosen.

While he was munching the crust of bread and the hunk of cheese with which he had had the forethought to provide himself, a fellow-workman came and squatted himself beside him. He was an old but fresh-looking fellow, with muscles like brawn, and a kindly eye gleaming shrewdly and wittily from a face which might have been formed from dough, baked hard in the sun which Jack had found so trying.

"New to this game, aren't you mate?" he remarked, as he cut a hunk of bread and apparently raw meat with a murderous-looking clasp-knife. "Thought so. You ain't got no 'ands or feet yet."

"Oh, haven't I?" murmured Jack, with grim irony.

"But you'll get 'em all right enough presently. There's always a bit tender and 'don't-you-touch-me-like' at fist. But it soon wears off."

"The skin, you mean," suggested Jack.

The man grinned at the stoical witicism and nodded approvingly.

per hour—and presently Jack fell into a profound sleep.

He was awakened by the hideous hooter, and returned, with every limb stiff as a poker, to the pleasures of the barrow and the shovel. At the end of the day, he dragged himself to a large shed which served as a shelter in bad weather and a sleeping place for those men who preferred to practise economy rather than cross to the mainland, where the delights of the little "pub" awaited them. Jack chose the shed because he felt that he could just manage to reach its distance, and no farther. As a matter of fact, he was almost too tired to eat the supper which was provided at a nominal cost, and fell asleep in his bunk with the depth and instantaneousness of a dormouse starting on its winter snooze.

He got a swim in the river in the morning, and returned boldly to his work. The experienced eyes of the woman who ran the canteen—she was the wife of Ryan, the foreman—had seen that he was a novice, and noticed his limp and the gingerly way in which he used his knife and fork. No doubt, moved to compassion by Jack's good looks—though it is fair to state that she would have shown just as much compassion for an older and a plainer man—she had given him a lump of lard with which to anoint his blisters, and had been amply repaid by Jack's grateful expression of gratitude. To his astonishment, he found his load much easier, and the plank apparently broader. The old navy gave him some useful tips in the management of the aforesaid barrow, and, use and custom coming to his aid, Jack, much to his surprise, began to take a certain kind of pleasure in the toil which tried every muscle of his body, and he looked forward at some future date to entering as light-weight in a boxing competition.

After a time he began to fall under the spell of the "scenery." There was something impressive in the long stretch of sea and sand, the former broken now and again by some passing vessel. The silence—for the men talked but little—was accentuated by the weird, mournful cry of the gulls, as they hovered about the island in search of the broken victuals with which the men were fond of feeding them. Sometimes a covey of ducks rose and fled across the blue sky-line, and Jack shut one eye at them and longed for a gun; though he could not have used it just then, for it was still close-time, which, no doubt, the ducks knew. The smooth surface of the river was broken by dredgers and passing barges, from which now and again rose the melody of the last popular must-hall song. Not seldom Jack was reminded of the Venetian lagoons, and he was surprised to find that the place was acquiring gradually in his mind a kind of poetry.

And the men, his fellow-workmen, interested him. Like most persons who knew nothing about him, he had always regarded the navy as a kind of natural blackguard, a creature given to drink and foul language; but these men who toiled beside him were temperate enough—at any rate, while they were at work. Their language, often picturesque, was never foul though sometimes strong, and their conduct and manner were marked by a rough kind of amiability which was almost child-like in its simplicity. In their way they were actually polite to each other. A man was sure of assistance if he got into trouble with his barrow or hurt himself. They shared their food, even their beer and tobacco, with a man who happened to run short, and they indulged in little confidences about their wives and families.

In the course of a week Jack saw only one fight. It was a good one, between two men who had quarrelled about some matter—a mistake as to the proprietorship of a spade—which would have seemed too ridiculously trivial to the outside world. The men had stood up to each other in manly fashion, and Jack, who had been chosen as referee, was surprised and delighted to find that all the rules of the polite prize-ring were known and respected. When the victor had downed his man, he had helped him up, just as Jack had helped up Stephen Fleming after their little set-to, and the friendship of the two combatants was re-established as a matter of course. Jack, like most of his class, had regarded the British working man as a kind of necessary evil, but he came to revise his opinion after a fortnight at Wenfleet Island.

Then, again, fortunately for Jack, Mrs. Ryan had a daughter. She was a bright little thing of nine; and, child as she was, she helped her mother with some of the lighter of the innumerable tasks which that good woman managed to accomplish during the day. Jack happened one day to see the child struggling with a log of wood, and went to her assistance, and they struck up a friendship. Dogs and children were a weakness of Jack's, and perhaps he was happiest and most forgetful of the past when he was sitting on the bench outside the hut with Molly on his knee and his pipe between his lips, except when they were employed telling fairy stories.

Molly was a general favourite with the men, but she surrendered her heart of hearts to Jack at the beginning of the siege; and though favouritism would have been absolutely fatal, not to say impermissible, on the island, Molly's mother was not insensible, you may be sure, to Jack's kindness to her little one.

"Come away, Molly, and leave Bill alone," she would call to the child. "I'm sure he's too tired to want to nurse a great heavy girl like you."

"It's all right, ma'am," Jack would reply as he took upon his knee Molly, who was neither great nor heavy, but a slight and fragile little thing. "I'm fond of children, and this kid of yours is no trouble. To tell the truth, she amuses me—excepting when she's asking questions, regular posers, which set me wondering how they got into her head. Certainly the answers will never get into mine—Promise me not to ask why the moon isn't always round, and why there are so many stars, and why the tide goes out and comes in, and things of that sort, and I'll tell you a story about giants that'll make your hair stand on end."

Tells How to Stop a Bad Cough

Surprising results from this famous old home-made syrup. Easily prepared and costs little.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Finex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Finex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Finex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Finex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Household Notes

Salt in whitewash makes it stick. The best color for nursery walls is soft blue. Cabbage should be stored stems up for the winter.

Scissors should have an honored place in every kitchen. Never attempt finer housekeeping than you can afford. Study the markets and buy things which are in season. If a fabric crushes easily do not select it for long hard wear.

Lemon juice is a powerful germicide, and rich in organic salts. Do not use large-patterned wall-papers in a low-ceilinged room. Even the smallest closet can generally be utilized for food storage. Celery in the cellar will not wilt as long as the roots are kept moist.

Praises Dr. Fraser

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—St. John's in particular and Nfld. in general is fortunate in having Dr. Fraser as Public Health Officer, during these trying days when Influenza is epidemic.

The whole population is deeply indebted to him for his vigorous and effective campaign against the disease.

The information and advice which is daily given to the press is very helpful and his letter in this morning's News certainly brings the matter before us face to face.

I trust that in view of this serious declaration from the Public Health Officer re church attendance that the church authorities concerned will consider the health and lives of their people to be more important than even a church service.

There are many people ill in the city to-day who were not sick before they attended church last Sunday.

I must congratulate the Methodist Church authorities for the "high ground" which they have taken in backing up the Public Health Officer in and in defending their people from increasing the casualties.

Yours, etc.

Wotan's Way.

Old Wotan was a deity adored by ancient Huns. Who as a god of thunder controlled the heavenly guns. And in our age he held the stage in places where they sing. And play the great Tetralogy we briefly call the Ring. In figure he was urbane, extremely broad and fat. His beard was long and shaggy and he wore a wondrous hat. He was the heaviest father that ever took the floor. And the world's long-distance champion-belt for monologue he wore. So, wishing to pay honor to this ancient Teuton god, Who tried to rule his daughters with a Rhadamanthine rod. The High Command conferred his name upon the vital "switch" That links Drocourt and Queant with tunnel, wire and ditch. Old Wotan was a German so you couldn't shift his line; Besides, it would be sacrilege, for Wotan was divine; For And so for twice a twelvemonth Hunnish hosts relied On Wotan's indestructible, impenetrable hide. But even super-Germans aren't at times to nod. And to borrow Wotan's aegis was indubitably odd; For he saw his godhead wane And his stately palace vanish in a red and ruthless rain. The secret shows that the legend may foreshadow a sad fact. For the haunted line of Wotan has at last completely cracked. And as his kingdom crumbled with its Pagan creed, outworn, His wall and trench have yielded to blows of Byng and Horne. —Punch.

Always The Brute.

(From the Montreal Gazette.)

"Germany was a brute in 1914," said the Hon. Mr. Balfour, recently, "and she is a brute in 1918." At the moment that through the new Chancellor, she whines about the "salvation of humanity," she is murdering, in cold blood, innocent men, women and children on the high seas. She asks the Allies why they go on fighting, either with astounding naivete, or scornful derision, and at the same time she commits crimes which, unfeigned, as is the world with horrors, during the past four years, stuns the mind by their enormity, indicating as they do a degree of depravity which places their authors on the plane of unadulterated savagery. The most biting of Rasputin's cartoons was that in which he showed a poor woman killed by a bomb in London. The dead body is on the miserable bed; the husband bows his head in despair; the little daughter says, in wonderment, "What a crime in the world which God had made for peace and beauty: "Mother did not do anything, daddy, and, surely, in view of the ineffable callousness exerted at the moment when the Hun hypocritically whines for peace, the whole civilized world, aflame with righteous indignation, will insist that this monstrous power must be beaten to the very earth, if it takes ten more years to do it, so that humanity shall be redeemed from the rule of the bestial and unspeakable Hun, who, with his hands dripping blood, asks the Allies to think of the interests of humanity.

What Has Britain Done?

By Rev. Frederick B. Hodgins, B. A., Formerly of Toronto, in the New York Herald.

What has Britain done? Kept the faith and fought the fight. For the everlasting right. Chivalrously couched her lance In defence of Belgium, France, This has Britain done!

What has Britain done? Given every seventh son, Met the challenge of the Hun; Placed her men on every field; Proud to die too proud to yield. This has Britain done!

What has Britain done? Answers her far flung breeze Blown across the Seven Seas:—"Watch and ward secure she keeps Vigilance that never sleeps." This has Britain done!

What has Britain done? On every front her flag unfurled, Fought a world-war round the world; Then, when all is said and done, Ask her Allies, ask the Hun, "What has Britain done?"

What has Britain done? For her slain Britannia weeps— She might boast who silence keeps. But, when all is done and said, Call the roll and count the dead, And know what she has done.

The Great Canadian Ace.

It is not perhaps generally known that Canada can boast of an aerial warrior whose deeds have probably been un surpassed by the greatest aviators of any nation in the war. He is Lieut.-Col. William Archy Bishop, a native of Owen Sound, Ontario, who has been serving for two years—more in the British Royal Flying Corps. His deeds and honours are very extraordinary. He has twice been decorated with the British Distinguished Service Medal and also won that most coveted of honours the Victoria Cross. He has also won the Cross of the Legion of Honour and practically every other military distinction in the gift of France. His success in aerial battles has been marvellous. He has to his official credit the destruction of seventy-two enemy machines and unofficially he has the best of claims to having sent that many more crashing to earth, twenty-five of these having been accounted for in twelve days. In one case he engaged six German planes in combat and "downed" five out of the number, the sixth one being sent to the earth apparently out of control. It is doubtful if any other aviator in the world war ever equalled this record, a record that rounds to Canada as it does to the young hero himself. Colonel Bishop just recently returned from France to visit his old home at Owen Sound and enjoy a brief rest from his wonderful labors. —Acadian Recorder.

TEXT OF WILSON'S WASHINGTON

The text of President Wilson's Secretary of State makes public the Secretary of State to the Charge in charge of German interests in the Department of State.

Sir,—I have the honor to acknowledge of your note of the 22nd, transmitted under date of the 20th from the German Government to advise you that the President has explicitly assured of the German Government's reservationly accepts the terms of peace proposed to the Congress of the United States of January, 1918, and the principles enunciated in his subsequent addresses. I am glad to see that the details of their application and purpose emanated not from the German Government but from the majority of the German people; and that the explicit promise of the present German Government that the humane rules of civilized war, both on land and on sea by the German Government of the United States feels to be a matter to take up with the Governments with which the United States is associated in an armistice. He deems it his duty to state that the only armistice he would be willing to consider would be one which would place the United States and the powers associated with it in a position to enforce any arrangements entered into, and to make a renewal of German impossible.

"The President has, therefore, responded with the present German Government with which the Government of the United States is associated as a belligerent. If these Governments are disposed to accept the terms and principles indicated, the Allies and the military advisers of the United States are asked to submit to the Government of Germany the necessary terms of such an armistice. It is the duty of the United States and the powers associated with it to safeguard and enforce the terms of such an armistice. UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER,

IS THE DEMAND MADE ON GERMANY BY PRES. WILSON.

Word of Present Rulers not Trusted --- Not Peace Negotiations But Surrender---Fighting Continues on All Fronts.

TEXT OF WILSON'S REPLY.
 WASHINGTON, October 25.
 The text of President Wilson's reply is as follows: The Secretary of State makes public the following from the Secretary of State to the Charge d'Affaires ad interim in charge of German interests in the United States:

Department of State,
 October 23rd, 1918.

Sir,—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 22nd, transmitting a communication under date of the 20th from the German Government and to advise you that the President has instructed me to reply thereto as follows: "Having received the solemn and explicit assurance of the German Government that it unreservedly accepts the terms of peace laid down in his address to the Congress of the United States on the eighth of January, 1918, and the principles of settlement enumerated in his subsequent addresses, particularly the address of the 27th of September, and that it desires to discuss the details of their application, and that this wish and purpose emanated not from those who have hitherto dictated German policy and conducted the present war on Germany's behalf, but from ministers who speak for the majority of the Reichstag and for an overwhelming majority of the German people; and having received also the explicit promise of the present German Government that the humane rules of civilized warfare will be observed both on land and on sea by the German armed forces, the President of the United States feels that he cannot decline to take up with the Governments with which the Government of the United States is associated, the question of an armistice. He deems it his duty to say again, however, that the only armistice he would feel justified in submitting for consideration would be one which should leave the United States and the powers associated with her in a position to enforce any arrangements that may be entered into, and to make a renewal of hostilities on the part of Germany impossible.

"The President has, therefore, transmitted his correspondence with the present German authorities to the Governments with which the Government of the United States is associated as a belligerent with the suggestion that if these Governments are disposed to effect peace on the terms and principles indicated, the military advisers of the Allies and the military advisers of the United States be asked to submit to the Governments associated against Germany the necessary terms of such an armistice as will fully protect the interests of the people involved and ensure to the associated Governments the unrestricted power to safeguard and enforce the details of the peace to which the German Government has agreed, provided they deem such an armistice possible from the military point of view. Should such terms of armistice be suggested their acceptance by Germany will afford the best concrete evidence of her unequivocal acceptance of the terms and principles of peace from which the whole action proceeds. The President would deem himself lacking in candour did he not point out in the frankest possible terms the reason why extraordinary safeguards must be demanded. Significant and important as the constitutional changes seem to be which are spoken of by the German Foreign Secretary in his note of the twentieth of October, it does not appear that the principle of a Government responsible to the German people has yet been fully worked out, or that any guarantees either exist or are in contemplation that the alterations of the principle and of the practice now partially agreed upon will be permanent. Moreover, it does not appear that the heart of the present difficulty has been reached. It may be that future wars have been brought under the control of the German people, but the present war has not been, and it is with the present war that we are dealing. It is evident that the German people has no means of commanding the acquiescence of the military authorities of the empire in the popular will, that the power of the King of Prussia to control the policy of the empire is unimpaired, that the determining initiative still remains with those who have hitherto been the masters of Germany. Feeling that the whole peace of the world depends on plain speaking and straightforward action, the President deems it his duty to say without any attempt to soften what may seem harsh words that the nations of the world do not and cannot trust the word of those who have hitherto been the masters of German policy, and to point out once more that in concluding peace and attempting to undo the infinite injuries and injustices of this war the Government of the United States cannot deal with any but veritable representatives of the German people, who have been assured of a genuine constitutional standing and are the real rulers of Germany. If it must deal with the military masters and monarchial rulers of Germany now, or if it is likely to have to deal with them later in regard to the international obligations of the German empire, it must demand not peace negotiations but surrender. Nothing can be gained by leaving this essential thing unsaid. Accept, Sir, the renewed assurance of my high consideration.

(Sgd.) ROBERT LANSING,

Mr. Frederick Oederlin,
 Charge d'Affaires, Switzerland, ad interim.

WAR REVIEW.

The Germans in Belgium and France still are stubbornly resisting the attempts of the Entente Allied forces to break through their lines and bring about an immediate collapse of their defensive position. On the whole they are succeeding, but nevertheless on all salient positions under attack the enemy line gradually but slowly is being forced backward. On the northern Italian battle front between the Brenna and Piave rivers the Austrians are being put to the test in a new attack by British, French and Italian troops, while in Mesopotamia the British again have gone on the offensive against the Turks and at last ac-severe and vigorous machine gun opposition. Brulle, Lelong, Bechet and Barlemon were captured after strong opposition had been broken down.

A GOOD DAY'S WORK.

ROME, Oct. 25.
 In bitter fighting yesterday in the region of Monte-Grappa, the Italians established themselves on the northern bank of the Ornic River. They captured nearly three thousand prisoners.

GERMAN COMMENT.

BASEL, Oct. 25.
 Comment on President Wilson's latest note to Germany is beginning to appear in the German papers. The National Zeitung of Berlin says: "President Wilson has answered quickly. Well if ever Emperor William's invocation that God be with him is in season it is right now."

FRENCH CAPTURE 1,000 PRISONERS.

PARIS, Oct. 25.
 On the Alsne front, east of Retelfo, French troops have captured the villages of Ambly and Fleury, taking one thousand prisoners, the War Office announces to-day.

WILSON'S NOTE APPROVED.

LONDON, Oct. 25.
 It is understood that President Wilson's latest note to Germany is approved by the Allies and represents in a general sense their views of the situation. Now that the President has consented to submit the request for an armistice to the other belligerents there is no question that individual action will give place to joint conduct of the situation and that the recommendation of the Allies naval and military commanders will constitute the joint terms of the associated powers.

HOUSE GOES TO EUROPE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 25.
 Colonel House, President Wilson's confidential adviser, was sent to Europe as the personal representative of the President on an official mission. This announcement is authorized officially but further information is withheld.

LONDON PAPERS COMMENT WILSON'S REPLY.

LONDON, Oct. 24.
 Commenting upon President Wilson's note to Germany, the Daily News says, "The Imperial Chancellor's note left matters in suspense, but the President takes them where they should be. The sincerity of the German people's desire for peace is today brought to the final test. If the Germans accept the President's terms, there is no reason why fighting should not end in less than a week. Mr. Wilson beyond question speaks for every Allied nation." "President Wilson must win the hearty approval of plain men everywhere," says the Telegraph. The newspaper commends President Wilson's reference of the matter of declaring an armistice to the military leaders. The Times says, "If the Germans will not accept a peace of justice without violence then violence will make them accept a just peace." Under the caption, "The retort courteous," the Post says, "President Wilson's note is a masterpiece of diplomacy. It rivets the German government to an unqualified acceptance of his peace terms." The Express decries Mr. Wilson's note as the greatest of the series of his masterly state-papers.

TURKEY ACCEPTS.

BASEL, Oct. 24.
 (Havas)—Turkey will accept peace based on the principles of right and justice, laid down by President Wilson, which the new Turkish government approves, the Grand Vizier Tewfik Pasha is quoted in a Constantinople despatch as saying in parliament.

BOLSHEVIKS SPREAD TERROR.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 24.
 (By the A.P.)—On the heels of the German evacuation of the Lithuanian districts, east of the Brest-Litovsk demarcation line, detachments of the Red army of the Russian Bolsheviks followed and are extending the red terror among the defenceless inhabitants. The people ask that the evacuated territory be occupied by the British, American or French troops.

FIERCE FIGHTING ON AMERICAN FRONT.

PARIS, Oct. 25.
 (Havas)—The fighting along the American front on both sides of the Meuse is particularly fierce. The Germans appear to be making a despairing effort to hold their positions in this vital sector. Information received here gives the impression that they cannot resist much longer in their present positions.

WILSON ASKS FOR DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.
 President Wilson to-day issued an appeal to the people to return a Democratic Congress in the November elections, if they approve of his course in this critical period.

THE NAVY'S WORK.

LONDON, Oct. 25.
 Figures made public to-day on the growth of the British navy during the war showing that the fleet including auxiliary increased from 2,500,000 tons displacement to 6,800,000 tons and the personnel from 145,000 to 405,000. Since the outbreak of the war 21,500,000 soldiers have been transported by sea, of which 4,391 were lost. For the requirements of the British naval and military forces more than 85,000,000 tons of stores were transhipped, while more than 24,000,000 tons were taken overseas for Great Britain's Allies. Transportation also was provided for 2,000,000 American soldiers. The organization of convoys due to German submarine warfare has been an important part of the work of the British navy since March 1917, from which time there has been 75,923 sailings with the losses numbering only a few hundred vessels.

IN MESOPOTAMIA.

LONDON, Oct. 25.
 An official communication dealing with the operations in Mesopotamia issued by the War Office to-night says: On the 18th of October we were in contact with Turkish forces holding a strong position astride the Tigris, near Fatah, where the river flows through the Jebel Hamrin country. On October 23rd the enemy retired northward under cover of darkness toward Latrasna pursued by us. Our forces on the way road to Mosul, by way of Kerku, drove the Turks cavalry out from Taik and advanced to within four miles of Kerku.

ADVANCING THE LINES.

PARIS, Oct. 25.
 The French to-day advanced their lines at all points despite the most stubborn resistance of the enemy. More than 2,000 prisoners with cannon and machine guns were captured, according to the official statement issued to-night.

Imperial Development.

Another epoch in the development of the British Empire has been marked by the recent decision to accord to each Overseas Dominion, the right to send to, or retain in, London, a minister as member of the Imperial War Cabinet, and the granting to the Overseas Prime Ministers the privilege of communicating direct with the Prime Minister of His Majesty's Government of Great Britain and Ireland, instead of having, as heretofore, to send their communications through the Dominion Governors. The London Times in commenting on this radical change, says that the new arrangements dispose of all possible grievances and mark the final emergence of the Dominions from the status of children to that of partners. This event will have a prominent place in the history of Newfoundland. Proud as we were of our former position, and of our standing as the Ancient and loyal Colony, and proud as we were of our always devoted adherence to British ideals, a devotion shown to all the world during the past four years, we are more than proud of the new step which has been taken towards the British Commonwealth, a partnership which permits us a say in questions relating to both war and peace. The present war has brought about a closer union of the Empire, and has drawn together the bonds which hold all together in Freedom, thereby causing great disappointment to our enemies, who were of the opinion, and strongly hoped, that the Empire would become sundered and shaken with the declaration of war. The spies and writers could detect nothing but absolute dismemberment. Their scientists and philosophers could see nothing to hold the Empire together in the hour of crisis. There was no chain observable to them by which it was linked together. They knew the system was not founded on a cold scientific basis, and consequently failed to perceive the truth. In their relations to the British Dominions and the Mother Country differed entirely from those existing between Germany and her colonies. Therein the German failed entirely to understand the meaning of Freedom, and to realize that the ties of love, life and liberty are stronger than the chains of autocracy and despotism. No German will ever comprehend that until his country is entirely freed from the curse of Kaiserism, and the people educated to the truth that "all men are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

One thing always about Britain, the German always misunderstood, and that one fatal misunderstanding led to his undoing. He could not comprehend the British system of Government, which is different in many ways from that of any Empire which preceded it. The Empire itself has not been erected in accordance with any pre-conceived plan, but a few years ago no thought of the Dominions being taken into the Imperial councils was even considered, and the puzzlement of German scientists and scholars, when the whole system they failed to discover the basis upon which the unity and cohesion of the British Empire is founded. That one vital feature escapes their notice, hence the utter confusion of the German war plans of 1914, when Britain and the Dominions entered the field of war, and hence the defeat of the German arms to-day.

"Draw now the three fold knot, firm on the ninefold bands,
And the law that ye make shall be law after the rule of your lands.
Stand to your work and be wise, certain of sword and pen,
Who are neither children nor gods, but men in a world of men."

Spanish Influenza
WIDESPREAD THROUGHOUT ST. JOHN'S.
Eight Deaths in 24 Hours.—An Infectious Disease Spread by Contact.
The influenza epidemic has now reached such alarming proportions that yesterday eight deaths of young adults occurred—all apparently in the prime of life, and for each one of whom everything possible was done in the attempt to save life.
While a few people may reach a panic over the disease, the majority do not appreciate its seriousness; and, my reason now, for writing is, to appeal to one and all to avoid crowds, avoid public gatherings, indoors, avoid club rooms with their closed windows and smoky atmosphere, avoid church gatherings.

As a medical man, who has witnessed the agony of sickness in the Grenfell Hall of the Institute, and seen the efforts of medical men and nurses fail to save the lives there, but who has seen corpses after corpses carried out after one or two days illness, I appeal to the people of St. John's TO STAY HOME FROM CHURCH TO-MORROW.
Influenza is spread by contagion, and in many cases is brought to the home by the domestic servant. It would seem wise therefore, for householders to keep some control over their maid-servants. Let them avoid visiting sick houses, or houses recently visited by death.
N. S. FRASER.

Masses Discontinued.
In view of the statement of the Public Health Officer in this morning's paper that the Influenza epidemic has now reached alarming proportions and his appeal to the people to stay home from Church, His Grace, the Archbishop does not feel that he can assume the responsibility of having the usual Church Services on to-morrow. Consequently, the Sunday and Week-day Masses will be discontinued in the city Churches until further notice.
J. J. McDERMOTT, V.G., Administrator.

No Services To-Morrow.
In view of the appeal of Dr. Fraser, setting forth the seriousness of the influenza epidemic in the city all services to have been held at St. Thomas' Church to-morrow have been cancelled.

Busy Waterfront An Interesting Picture.
Yesterday and to-day, a very interesting picture was shown in the display window of the store of S. Miller, Water Street. On viewing it directly in front, one sees a Sister of Mercy, with a large red cross on her breast, while a wounded soldier, lying at her feet, stretches forth his hands in appealing agony. The side view presents Britannia, and a soldier, with rifle and fixed bayonet in his hands, on her right side; and a sailor, with a sword on his waist, holding a huge shell in his hands, on her left. Underneath the picture, is a card with the one word "Help" thereon. Some hundreds of people stopped to admire this pictorial metamorphosis, yesterday and to-day, and the firm is to be congratulated on obtaining such an artistic rarity.

It Pays to Advertise IN THE "TELEGRAM."
The silver wrist-watch lost on Tuesday last, and advertised for exclusively in the "Peoples' Paper" was picked up by Mr. A. Moakler, who had great pleasure in returning it to its owner.
ARRESTED FOR FRAUD.—Detective-Sergeant Byrne arrested a city business man, last evening, under warrant. The charge was that of drawing cheques on a bank in which he had no funds.

Obituary.
ETHEL G. DICKINSON.
We exceedingly regret to have the chronicling of the passing of Miss Ethel G. Dickinson, at the age of 33 which sad event occurred this morning at the Seaman's Institute. The deceased lady had but recently volunteered for nursing influenza cases, and was herself taken down with the disease on Thursday. So sudden and fierce was the attack that, with but a few hours exception just prior to dissolution, she never rallied, but entered into her eternal reward at 8.45. Miss Dickinson was formerly a student of the Methodist College, afterwards taking a position on the teaching staff, which she held for many years. Subsequently she went to Canada, taking a graduate course in Domestic Science at the MacDonald College, Guelph, Ontario. Return to St. John's, Miss Dickinson conducted the Domestic Science School, the only inter-denominational institution in Newfoundland, being under the supervision of the three Superintendents of Education. The number of friends of the deceased lady is legion. She was very popular and in all circles took a prominent place. To her father, Mr. G. H. Dickinson, sisters, Mrs. E. L. Pineson, City, Mrs. P. D. Duff (Violet), late of the Montreal General Hospital, and brother, Harry, the Telegram extends the sympathy which will be universally expressed.

Police Court.
The Star Candy Co.'s case came up again this morning. Mr. Higgins called two witnesses, Mr. Moore, President of the Company, and Mr. F. Soper, Vice-President, who both swore that they had never seen intoxicating liquors used in the manufacture of the candy and that they had never known any to be on the premises. Mr. Higgins thereupon moved for a dismissal of the case, and in a masterly manner pleaded his reasons. First, he held that the Company never had the liquor in its possession, Hiltz, the foreman, having taken it on his own initiative and responsibility, and the Company had nothing whatever to do with it. Second, in order to make a complete case for the tort the servant or agent of the company must be acting within the scope of his authority and in his capacity as agent.
Mr. Morine held that the Company was responsible for the actions of the man Hiltz, and quoted precedents to substantiate his standing. An interesting argument took place over the meaning of the word "possession". Mr. Morine contending that as the deed had been performed by the Company, and in working hours, and as the premises of the Company had been used for storage, and the fact of the Company had been used to receive the goods, the Company had received it through its servants.
S. Frehlich's case will come up at 10.30 Wednesday morning. The business man referred to elsewhere in this issue as having been arrested under warrant for issuing checks on a bank, while having no money there, was before court this morning, and was remanded for eight days. A number of boys before His Honor, charged with stealing a fence, the property of G. W. B. Ayre, were dismissed.

Resolution.
Whereas, it is evident that no properly constituted health authority has made any pronouncement on the question of covering public assemblies in this city, and being alarmed at the spread of an insidious disease in our midst, we the Board of Management of the Seaman's Institute, and the Church representing the interests of a body of citizens, do hereby agree to the following resolution:
WHEREAS, that if the proper authority be requested immediately to make an official declaration on this very important matter in order that every precaution may be taken to safeguard the health of the Community.
(Sgd.) C. U. HENDERSON,
Sec. St. Andrew's Congregation, Oct. 26th, 1918.
Note.—A copy of the above resolution has been forwarded the Prime Minister.

Imperial Red Cross Fund.

Yesterday was Tag Day, and the young ladies of St. John's secured a liberal amount for the Imperial Red Cross Fund and W. P. A. During the week the sub-committee appointed by the Board of Trade has been collecting from the Board's members, and find Water Street as liberal as ever, in many cases the subscribers adding to the amounts given to the Empire Day collection.

On Empire Day the whole Dominion raised about $20,000, of which over $20,000.00 was collected from the members of the Board of Trade, and if the target of $100,000 set for Our Day, is to be achieved, that portion of the Dominion outside St. John's must do its part.

The work of the Women's Patriotic Association is known throughout our land, and it is unnecessary to repeat the splendid story, but these are the days of increasing costs, and wool, lint, gauze, flannel and all the materials required for this good work have advanced more in proportion than any other articles.

The work of the Red Cross is not so well known. Many imagine that it has but the supplying of bandages, and other necessities for the wounded, but this is only a small portion of its splendid efforts.

The Red Cross equips and maintains motor ambulances, hospital trains, hospitals in Great Britain and the Allied countries.

In France it has opened hostels, so that the relatives of those who have been sorely stricken may visit their dear ones, and have the sad consolation of bidding them farewell before they pass into the presence of the Great Commander.

The wounded and missing department, by a system of searchers which they employ throughout the various hospitals behind the battle front, endeavour to find out all possible information as to the fate of those who are numbered amongst the missing, while through this organization, news regarding the progress of the wounded is freely and quickly obtained. Usually the report of those being taken prisoners first comes to the Red Cross, and here again the good work is carried on. Immediately a prisoner is reported and his camp known, a parcel of comforts is sent him, either direct from headquarters in London or through the agencies at Copenhagen or Berne, while parcels containing food and clothing are continued at stated intervals, a service to which many of those, who have been liberated, or escaped, say they owe their lives.

The Red Cross is everywhere: in Serbia, Mesopotamia, East Africa, Belgium, Salonika the symbol of mercy flies.

"That blood red cross on its ground of snow Is woven in God's own crest I know."

The cost of the great work is ever increasing so that now almost one dollar every second is spent in its varying operations, and so much free work is given by its helpers that the administration expense is only 1-2-3 c. for every dollar spent, and 98 1-3 c. of every dollar collected goes to the relief of the wounded.

In Newfoundland there was subscribed to the Victory Loan three and a half million dollars, the interest payable being nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

If the interest for the period ending Dec. 31st would be given to the Red Cross the desired amount would be obtained, and the subscribers would realise on their investment more than the interest they would have obtained if the money had been allowed to remain in the Savings Bank, and they will have the added pleasure of knowing that their contributions to the Red Cross will do much to alleviate the suffering of those who are fighting our battles a further investment which will return them liberal dividends, not in money, which is only of passing value, but dividends in men, which will be payable until the end of time.

The Fund will remain open for a few weeks in order to give the outputs an opportunity to contribute their quota.

More Hun Stupidity.

(From the Philadelphia Record.)
Only a Teutonic mind can grasp the psychological processes of the German military and navy leaders who, facing overwhelming defeat and disaster, seem determined to exasperate their foes to the last degree by their brutal and senseless destruction of cities and towns, their cruel deportation of the population and their outrageous conduct in submarine warfare such as firing upon defenceless persons seeking safety in lifeboats. Germany must be made to pay for all these sins against humanity and civilization, and that can only be accomplished by forcing unconditional surrender. The Hun must be taught a lesson that he will not forget for centuries to come.

To Much Fuss Over Germany.

(From the Shoe & Leather Reporter.)

Entirely too much is being said and written about conditions in Germany after the war. This is not our problem except as we must defend ourselves from the frenzied efforts Germany will make to reconstruct her industries through the purchase of raw materials. In our own trade we are well aware that not less than three millions of cattle hides would be needed to fill the empty vans and restore the German tanning industry. The new and enormous demand for hides coming upon an already depleted market might develop panic conditions. It would seem plausible that in other trades as well as ours the period immediately following the war will be surrounded with dangers and difficulties which can only be survived through inter-Allied control. We must consider the rehabilitation of ourselves and our allies. If our enemies were to win the war our interests would not receive consideration, hence it is difficult to understand why apprehension of their fate should take precedence of sensible plans for our own recuperation. Indeed it should be evident to all that the Teutonic menace to the peace of the world will not be removed until the Inexorable Logic of Events has demonstrated to the German mind that the state policy which led up to the war has induced poverty instead of prosperity, commercial isolation instead of world domination. The great conflict will have been in vain if Germany is permitted to escape the natural consequences of her acts.

Hymn of Haste.

French and Russian they matter not,
Nothing matters a single jot,
If only we put the Rhine between Ourselves and the foes that lurk unseen.
We'll steer as one, we'll fear as one,
We'll run as one demented Hun.

He is known to you all, he is known to you all.
The foe that brings about our fall.
He lingers still in Russian hate,
He lurks within the Prussian gate,
In Italy on every hand,
Throughout the French and Polish land,
And far away in U. S. A.
And England.

The Day! The Day! Come, toast the Day
When we are in Berlin to stay!
Haste through water, and haste through fire,
Haste through barbed and tangled wire,
Through galling lead and falling dard
We'll blindly grope and plunge ahead,
One thought we have and only one—
To run like one demented Hun.

More Speed More Speed More Speed

SPEED UP! Speed up! This is the slogan everywhere. In factory and warehouse, in office and store, at work and at play, it is more speed, more speed. There are orders to be filled, and the goods must be turned out. Help is scarce, so those who are on the job must be speeded up.

The men at the head are working, yes, and worrying, strenuously. And so it is among the men and women all down the line. They must make more money, and so there are long hours of overtime.

It is this continuous strain that is breaking so many men and women, both mentally and physically. The hours for sleep and recreation are cut short, and so there is little chance for the restoration of the depleted nerve cells.

Nerve force is necessary for the healthful working of the heart, the lungs, the stomach and other digestive and eliminating organs of the body. If the nerve force is consumed in mental and physical work, in worry and anxiety and continuous nervous strain, the action of these vital organs must surely lag.

And so it is that you begin to lose appetite and relish for food. The stomach fails to digest the food because the nerve force is lacking that should control the flow of gastric juices. The liver, the kidneys, the bowels lack vigor and strength to perform their necessary functions.

You are driving the human machine too hard. Energy is being consumed more rapidly than it can be replaced. Physical bankruptcy is certain.

But what are you to do? The cost of living is high. You cannot afford a long rest.

There is a way in which the nervous system can be restored. That is by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You can help this treatment by taking things easier. Get all the rest you can. Refuse to be worried and excited. Persist in the regular use of this great nerve restorative, and you will soon find yourself gaining in health and vigor.

If your nervous system is greatly run down a little patience is necessary at the beginning, but once you begin to feel the tingle of new energy and vigor through your system you will be encouraged to keep on with this food cure until your health and vitality is fully restored.

Dr. Chase's Medicines are sold by all Druggists and Dealers in St. John's and the Outports. Wholesale quotations from GERALD S. DOYLE, Water St., St. John's, Sole Agent.

A Grandmother's Advice.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A woman was telling about her grand children, what smart, bright children they were (who were circled) the idea that fond mothers are the original monogelists, surely never met a fond grandmother).

Some very rash person interrupted to ask, "Do they mind well?"

"Better than most children," said the proud grandmother.

"Do they obey when they are spoken to once?" persisted the rash one.

"If they do, they are the only children I ever heard of who do!"

The grandmother hesitated. She means to be a truthful person.

Children Might Mind if Spoken to ONCE.

"Well," she admitted, "I can't exactly say they always do, but I think they would if they were spoken to only once. I think most children would. The trouble is that mothers don't speak once. They speak once, and then almost before the child has time to mind, they speak again. The child expects it. He waits for it. If mothers spoke once and then just looked at the child if he didn't mind, it would be better for both mothers and children."

"Did I do that way to my children? No, I didn't and as I look back I can see it would have been better for them and for me if I had. Mothers talk too much. They don't realize that the power of an expectant silence is often greater than that of speech."

Those Double Mothers.

Now, mothers don't like to be told how they might better manage their children, by maiden ladies or childless wives. They complain that the only reason these seldomers talk so freely is that they have never had any experience to put their theories to test. But surely any open minded mother should be willing to take a hint from a grandmother, one of those double mothers who sometimes find more happiness in their second motherhood than in their first.

Are They True or Not?

"Mothers often talk too much."

"Children expect to be spoken to twice, and wait for it."
"The power of an expectant silence is often greater than that of speech." Are these things true or are they false, mothers?
If they are false, I wish you would tell me wherein.
If they are true, surely you will want to scrutinize your own methods and see if you can help yourself by a grandmother's suggestion.

A Hopeless Case

(From the Los Angeles Times.)

The Kaiser is a type of leader who falls hard when he falls. His leadership has been based upon a deliberately arranged theatricalism. He has always been the actor, the grandiose figure, the solemnly impressive star of the performance. When the scenery is stripped from such a figure only a pitiable array of scene "props" and painted canvas is left. It has taken considerable rope, but Wilhelm II. has finally hanged himself. Bismarck was a ruthless old wretch; but he had at least sober, common sense. He was kicked out in disgrace because he could not countenance the wild dreams of the young ruler who wished to make of himself a combination of Charlemagne, Ghengis Khan and Frederick the Great. It is a significant fact that since the beginning of the war the German empire has, one by one, cast aside the pipe dreams of Wilhelm and has substituted the governmental theories of Bismarck. The future of the Hohenzollern dynasty is hopeless. If the return of the defeated and shattered army does not result in a great revolution throughout Germany, it will be miraculous. But if this miracle happens, it is clear that the other Germanic nations, Saxony, Bavaria, Wurttemberg, Baden, etc., are prepared to cast off the yoke of Prussia—and Prussia the Kaiser.

AUTUMN'S BEAUTY.
The trees are shivering cold again,
The hills are purple dressed,
The eyes of man behold again
The meadows at their best,
And something seems to whisper low
To all who wish to bear,
That God has set the world aglow
To mark the passing year.

The maple leaves turn red again;
Earth's canvas is complete,
And beauty's ways we tread again
To rest and laughter sweet,
Of care the weary soul is eased,
The winter has begun,
And there are signs that God is pleased.

With all that we have done,
God's smile is over all again,
The fields of strife and care,
Where soon the snow shall fall again,
The robes of splendor wear,
The poorest tree is rich with gold;
On every twig we see
The praises of the master told
For what it tried to be.

Perhaps when peace shall come again
And all the strife is o'er,
When stillness shall be war's drum again,
And battles rage no more,
Our souls shall glow with beauty rare
Throughout life's autumn days,
And God shall hide our scars of care
'Neath purple robes of praise.

Problems of Peace.

Bulgaria's withdrawal from the great conflict will not be a signal to relinquish our war efforts. To insure the elimination of one of the allies of Germany has proved as encouraging to us as it has disheartening to our enemies, but we are not going to become over-confident at this first concrete evidence of the crumbling of Teutonic ambitions. Nevertheless, while we are pursuing the war with the utmost vigor, it is high time that we took serious thought of conditions that will follow the final conclusion of peace.

The Scientific American has frequently urged the necessity of making preparations for peace; even before the United States was involved in the war, we called attention to industrial conditions that would follow the war and discussed the means of meeting these conditions. From time to time we have repeated the warning that the declaration of peace must not find us unprepared. In fact the problems of peace are likely to prove very serious indeed. Never before has there been a war in which the industries, particularly mechanical industries, have played so important a part. In order to put forth our whole strength we have endowed our Government with powers that were undreamed of a few years since. We have willingly subjected ourselves to a species of paternalism that is decidedly un-American and which would not be tolerated for a moment in time of peace. But how long will it take us to come back to a normal peace basis? If the change takes place suddenly the forces which the Government has been controlling, on suddenly being released, will burst forth like the waters through a broken dam, with inevitable disaster to the country. Just how normal conditions are to be restored is a problem which needs the utmost consideration of the part of our Government. Millions of men will have to be returned from Europe and reintroduced into civil life. It will take a long time to transport these men back across the waters, and then it may not be advisable to release them suddenly for fear of an industrial deluge. Then we have the vast industrial army; when the Government no longer needs such war materials, what is to be done with the men who have been receiving high wages for the making of shells and guns?

At the conclusion of the war we shall find ourselves possessed of a vast merchant fleet. Are we to continue to operate these vessels under the faulty seaman's laws that now prevail in this country? Are we suddenly to cease building ships; and if so what is to become of the vast ship-building plants along our coasts? At the end of the war we shall find ourselves possessed of gigantic fleets of airplanes. Are we going to let these machines lie idle, or is there some service that they can perform with profit? Hundreds of thousands of women are employed in our factories to take the places of the color; are these women going to return to their former duties or will they insist on continuing to work in factories? In the latter case are not serious labor troubles in store?

The problems of peace are endless, England and France have both made preparation to meet them by the appointment of commissions to weigh them and seek their solution. An effort is now being made to have such a commission appointed by our Government. There is plenty of work ahead of such a body, if progress along the fighting fronts continues at its present rate, the problems of peace

Milady's Boudoir

CARING FOR THE INTERIOR.

It is perfectly true that if we keep our bodies scrupulously clean inside and out, we would not be troubled with pimples, muddy complexions, blackheads, open pores, liver spots, catarrh, or any other drawbacks which mar our personal attractions.

We are not perhaps to blame for having let some of them fall upon us, for we have but followed the example of the rest of the world in taking care of the surface, and assuming that the machinery of the body would take care of the rest.

The interior of the body should be thoroughly cleansed daily, just as regularly as we take our daily shower and sponge, and more luxurious beauty bath.

First comes the care of the nose. Milady should not neglect this daily spraying on even one occasion, for there is nothing so disastrous to general health as a catarrhal discharge nor anything so annoying to other people as a constant clearing of the throat.

Then the lining of the eyelids each morning and night should be washed with a solution of boric acid. For this treatment Madame should use an eye cup.

WHEN PEACE COMES.

I know not when that peace will come, for which the people yearn; I know not when the sword and drum will to their shelves return. But I am sure that peace will be all wool and three feet wide, a fabric beautiful to see, no shoddy threads inside. No lords of war will help to weave the web o'er which we'll totter, and none who think that to deceive is authorized by Hoyle. The pattern (which should never fade) won't be designed by chaps who think the pledges they have made are merely paper scraps. I know not when the guns will cease the serenade of war, but I am sure the coming peace is well worth scrapping for. Long sacrifice has made us wise, we're on to Prussian wiles; we can't be lured by Prussian smiles. Before we deal with guns like these, and let our sabres rust, the Prussians must be on their knees and humbled in the dust. I know not, when great Foch will say, "Cease firing! All is done!" But we shall make, on that fair day, no bargain with the Hun. We'll show the fabric made by men who fairly played the game, and if he doesn't like it, then, he'll have to lump the same.

Peerless

Marine engines are of the medium and heavy duty type and are built in sizes from 5 to 50 H. P.

The 5-6 H. P. and 10-12 H. P. sizes are particularly suitable for trap skiffs, while the 20-24, 25-35 and 40-50 H. P. sizes are suitable for larger boats or as auxiliary power for schooners.

All materials used in their construction are the very best of their respective kinds. All machined parts are finished to the closest possible size limits. This insures a very quiet and smooth running engine and also one that will produce the maximum amount of power from a given bore and stroke.

Peerless engines are of the four-cycle type, giving two complete revolutions for each charge of fuel, consequently they use but slightly over half the amount of oil used by two-cycle motors of the same size.

We can positively state that the Peerless is the simplest, most economical, most compact, and most powerful engine of its size sold in Newfoundland to-day.

All Peerless engines will operate on kerosene as well as gasoline, and on the larger sizes high tension magnetos, mechanical oilers and reverse gears are standard equipment. In addition we can furnish Electric Starters for the 16-20, 25-35 and 40-50 H. P. sizes, so an auxiliary installation may have Electric lights as well.

Accessories.

We have a good stock of Wrenches and other Tools, Batteries, Spark Coils, Switches, Wire, Spark Plugs, Oilers, Grease, and Oil Guns, Stuffing Boxes, Lag Screws, Hose, Hose Clamps, etc., and we are expecting a stock of Propellers, Magnetos, Bronze Shafting, Iron and Brass Pipe and Fittings, Stop Cocks, Priming Cups, etc., Lubricators, Enamel, Mufflers, Whistles and Engine Room Gongs. You will find our goods satisfactory and the prices reasonable.

PROPELLERS.
The efficiency of a boat or an engine depends entirely on the propeller. No matter how good your engine or the boat, the speed or towing power depends ultimately on the propeller. Write for our prices.

Oils furnished in one gallon sealed cans with pouring spout, 2-5 gallon square cans to the case, wood barrels and steel barrels.
Greases furnished in 1, 5, 10 and 25 pound pails, wood half barrels and barrels. Write for prices.

Our line of Batteries, Ammeters and Volt Ammeters, also Battery Connectors is complete and the price is right.

We handle the Kingston line of Coils and Magnetos. They are standard and high grade in every particular.

In more than ten years' experience in selling stationary engines we have sold a great many carloads of engines of a number of different makes, and among them we have found none to excel the satisfaction given by the Woodpecker.

Whether for sawing, hoisting, pumping, or running dynamos, we can furnish a Woodpecker to do the work. Sizes 2 to 50 H. P.

There is good money to be made, sawing cooperage and lumber, and we can furnish a complete outfit for your work, no matter how much or how little you may need. Write for prices and advise the size you require.

IDEAL HOISTS
FOR FISH, COAL, SAILS and GENERAL CARGO.

There are many places where there is hoisting to do with a direct line using a rope or cable when a simple and efficient hoist will save a great deal of time, labor and expense. The No. 3 Ideal Hoist will handle loads up to 1500 pounds, and is used with the greatest success for operating single platform elevators, derricks, ice, coal or cargo hoisting, sails, pile drivers, etc.

These hoists can be mounted up with a concrete mixer, water pump, etc., and connected to the same engine, so that it is not necessary to buy an extra engine to operate the hoist.

All hoists can be equipped with two winch heads and Safety Ratchet Brake.

HAVOLINE OILS and GREASES.

LONDON, Sept. 30, 1918.

STORIES FROM THE FRONT.

One of the 1914 officers, badly wounded in 1915 and unable to return to France until the beginning of this year, is now home on leave. He tells me that soldiers who took part in the early fighting could not imagine the conditions in which the struggle is now proceeding. For miles and miles, he says, the country is just a huge field of poison gas. It has been so repeatedly drenched that the very ground is saturated, and our men, but for the protection afforded them, would be coughing and sneezing all day and night. A more pleasant experience was his story of the willingness shown to surrender by some at least of the Germans in the recent fighting. They gave themselves up, he said, with all their belongings tied up into parcels, and in many cases it was obvious that they never intended to fight. One man, with a huge brown paper parcel on top of his knapsack, was asked what was in it. "It's some clothes for my brother," he said. "You caught him three weeks ago."

WAR-DEVASTATED AREAS.

Just two years ago a British Commission went to France to study the devastated areas, and as these have been extended in the interval nothing like a full report of its investigations can yet be looked for. The innumerable problems statesmen will have to solve after peace once more is secured were realised when this body started on its labors. Crops have been destroyed, forests devastated, workshops denuded, and plants and agricultural implements burned, and the total of such destruction is so enormous that it will take a considerable time to estimate and to make good the loss—if, indeed, that be ever possible. When the Commission was sent to France it was understood to be only the first of similar undertakings, and Italy, Belgium, Serbia, and Rumania, to take only our other fighting Allies, present a series of tremendous problems in this regard.

BRITISH FILMS FOR RUSSIA.

Captain Kotinsky, a Czech-Slovak officer with a distinguished military record, as the 18 medals across the breast of his crimson Cossack tunic indicated, has been in London lately. This officer was the first volunteer for the Czech-Slovak army in Russia, since when he has fought for the Allies on more than one front. While in London he offered to take out a series of British films to Russia, where the scope of the cinema in educating the people in the true meaning of the Allied War Aims and the certainty of their triumph is practically unlimited. When I saw Captain Kotinsky he was on the eve of starting on his long journey to Archangel, taking with him a selection of the patriotic films issued by the cinematograph section of the Ministry of Information. The films for Russia depicted among other things the might of the British Navy, the British victories, and the amazing achievements of our aviators; while the lying German claims in regard to the damage supposed to have been inflicted on London by enemy bombs are ruthlessly exposed in a film entitled "London Fact and German Fiction."

APPLES AND ORANGES.

I saw to-day in a fruiterer's shop in an ordinary London district—not the West End, mark you—quite small apples marked at sixpence (12 cents) each. They were the apples that in pre-war times would not fetch sixpence a pound. Scarcity is alleged to be the reason for the enormous prices which are being charged for apples this year, but London shops seem to be well supplied. At any rate, the increased cost of labor and feeding stuffs cannot be pleaded. Nor is it a question of freight, such as in the case of oranges, where a freight charge of 2s. (75 cents) before the war is to-day £2 ($10.00); and, in such circumstances, it is understandable that oranges must cost us more. The trade wants Mr. Clynes, the Food Controller, to permit bigger orange imports, but it objects very strongly to control.

ENGLAND'S RICHEST WOMAN.

No woman of wealth amongst us in London was more unknown to her fellow citizens than Miss Emily Talbot, who died at her house in Cavendish Square last week at an advanced age. Yet her wealth, which was derived from the development of the coal industry in the Rhondda Valley, made her as notable a heiress from that point of view as the Baroness Burdett Coutts, whom the Victorian writing men made famous both in prose and verse and for whom the populace conceived an inexhaustible curiosity. Miss Talbot never "got into the papers," or hardly ever, and except for her charities and her church building, and the occasional association of her name with Port Talbot, the public seldom heard of her.

Only two business men know how rich she became. Her death will be a serious loss to the Church of England on its financial and charitable side, and a substantial gain to the British Government Exchequer.

MADAME LIZA LEHMANN.

Musical life in London is appreciably poorer by reason of Liza Lehmann's death. Few women musicians possessed such varied gifts. First as singer, then as composer, and finally as vocal teacher, she made a distinct mark. She was 56, and had been before the public since 1885. During her nine years as a public singer Liza Lehmann has many pleasant experiences, among them a brilliant success at her first Norwich Festival and the privilege on one occasion at St. James' Hall, London, of singing some Schumann songs with Madame Schumann at the piano. While on a visit to Madame Schumann at Frankfurt she met Brahms, who, like William Morris, had a way of disappointing would-be worshippers thrown into his company for the first time. Liza Lehmann used to say laughingly that so far as her experience of him went the great man was far more interested in his dinner than in anything else. As a composer Liza Lehmann will be remembered chiefly for her famous song cycle, "The Persian Garden." She never again reached the same level, but that was not entirely her own fault. Unhappy circumstances quite beyond her control compelled her to seek the market in which money could most readily be earned. She had to think first of the publishers and their sales.

THE DRAWING-ROOM WIZARD.

St. George's Hall (the centre of conjuring, stage music and all that sort of thing in London) enjoyed itself on Friday in a superior way when it examined the claims of thirty people invited by Mr. Maskelyne to prove their wizardry. Even Merlin might have been daunted by the task of getting across the footlights without an instant's delay and providing an excellent conjuring entertainment in the space of five minutes. The wonder was that so many amateur young gentlemen with private social successes faced the ordeal and did so well. Silent youths, smooth and solemn, glided on to the stage and as silently did strange things with billiard balls, themselves, and packs of cards, then vanished as they came. Others patrolled volubly in a way that was sometimes amusing, but very painful when they were nervous or when the tricks did not come off. Only one woman competed. She borrowed a marked shilling from a member of the audience and restored it to him marvelously from the center of many sealed packages. A youngster of fourteen in shirt and corduroy breeches strolled on with perfect self-possession, patting away in dialect, cut his finger with a huge knife, popped his blood stained handkerchief in a glass, covered it and withdrew it spowly white, winked at the audience, and strolled off again.

A candidate of the old school trotted about and did amusing things with handkerchiefs, but it was a lad who followed who pleased the audience best with his dexterous command of many thimbles and clever patter. He, however, was the son of an accomplished professional. There were many mishaps—balls and thimbles that fell and remained on the floor, yet appeared shamelessly in the receptacles to which they were presumably conveyed, and cards that did not act according to plan. But generally it was a happy day, with roses appearing from empty tubes, yards of paper ribbon drawn from the performers' ears, and cards swallowed by the conjurer recovered from his knee. They still have happy times at London parties.

Coming True.

"When Germany begins to realize her defeat it is certain we shall be urged in the name of mercy, tolerance, loving kindness, for the sake of the future of mankind, or by similar appeals to the inextinguishable vanity of man, who delights in thinking himself holy and righteous when he is really only lazy or tired—I say we shall be urged on these grounds to make a sort of compromise with, or to extend some recognition to, the power which has for its one object the destruction of man, body and soul. Yet if you accept these pleas we shall betray mankind as effectively as though we had turned our backs upon the battle from the first."—Rudyard Kipling in address of welcome to a battalion of American troops landed in England.

Some Sport.

(From Public Opinion.)
A sportsman of great imaginative gift was telling how at one shot he had bagged two partridges and a rabbit. His explanation was that though he had hit only one partridge the bird in falling had clutched at another partridge and brought that to earth entangled in its claws.
"But how about the rabbit?" he was asked.
"Oh, was the calm reply, "my gun kicked and knocked me backwards and I fell on the rabbit as it ran past."

S. MILLEY.

Kissed British!

(A. P. Press Correspondence.)
It would appear from documents that the German army knows it has lost the war and is blue over the fact. German soldiers on the battle front have shown unusual consideration for civilians. Notices in French and English have been found at Dignies informing civilians that they would not be moved east of that town. Of course the Allied guns would not fire on towns known to be full of civilians. The Germans, knowing this, could use it to protect themselves.
In many cases of the towns and localities where the Allied troops have swept past celebrations over their deliverance from the Germans were carried on all day to-day by the people. The people have become so demonstrative in many places that they have interfered slightly with the work of the soldiers. Runners and dispatch riders obliged to pass through Courtrai, for instance, have not been making as good time as usual.

This fact came to the knowledge of a British Brigadier General, who ordered the dispatch riders brought before him. One blushing said that the charge against him and the others was quite true, adding: "But we could not help the delay, sir, for every time we go through a town we have each been soundly kissed. It would not do to tell the women and girls we were in a hurry. They insist on stopping your motorcycle, all wanting to kiss you at one time."
What the brigadier general said is not recorded, but the charges against the men were dropped.
It has been learned from a resident of Courtrai that German cavalry officers were given a ball there celebrating the return of peace on the night the city was taken. At the middle of the dance, British infantry which had broken through the defence to the west, stormed into the town and the German cavalry dis-ties had to run for their lives. In the neighbourhood of Courtrai and Roubaix more than one thousand civilians have been saved.

The Epidemic.

Patients, suffering from Spanish influenza, were admitted to Grenville Hospital yesterday, and two occurred, Frank Broderick, as by us yesterday, and a man of White, of Torbay, a sailor of the Able I. A child named Walter, Barnaby Street, and Otto Burt, Barnaby, also succumbed to the disease. Three were released from the hospital, having fully recovered. A number of new cases were reported yesterday, and three from previous, one of which the disease had been previously reported. We have heard that there may have contracted the disease who have not reported same to Health or Medical people, but who being treated in an unprofessional, at home. It is this true, it is the Public Health Officer to enquire of it, for such can only increase the spread of the disease. In this respect, owing, no doubt, to the difficulty in getting medical aid, the malady seems to be spreading. A message to Dr. Fraser that there are 36 cases at Bri-

Street Collision.

About ten o'clock this morning a horse and long-car containing a heavy load of boxes of goods, coming up Job's Cove, entered Water Street and crossed the street-car track intending to go up Prescott Street. The horse had crossed the track safely but before the car had, No. 1 street car going west struck the long-car just in front of the wheel, knocking it a yard ahead. The horse was brought to the ground, and men immediately sat on his head to prevent the animal from struggling. In the meantime, the street car had backed a little distance, which gave the driver and a couple of men who assisted him time to unharness the horse and get him up. Within a short time the long-car was out of the way, having sustained but little damage. The street car fared a little worse, its front having been bulged and bent. The conductor took the names of the carman and several witnesses, in the event of further developments.

Church Services.

After consultation with the medical authorities, it has been thought best not to have meetings in our Halls tomorrow, but open-air meetings will be held at the usual places, beginning tonight. Lieut.-Colonel Adby, Provincial Commander.

To-Morrow's Ceremony.

His Grace Archbishop Roche will lay the corner stone of the new church at Pouch Cove, to-morrow, Sunday, morning. All friends are welcome.
The new church, which will be erected as soon as possible, by Rev. Father Pippy, P.P., will be known as the Church of St. Agnes, and will replace the old one which has been used for many years.

Court Martial.

Pte. Ross was tried before a court martial composed by Lt.-Col. Knox-Niven, Capt. J. Cliffe and Lieut. B.
Dicks, on a charge of desertion in the face of the enemy, on Thursday last, at Headquarters. Sentence will be delivered when word has been received from the War Office, London.

With reference to the charge made in certain newspapers respecting alleged sales of flour without substitutes, the Food Control Board desire to say that now that a specific allegation in this regard has been made, they have taken steps to have the matter investigated and will institute a prosecution if it be found that the circumstances warrant such. At the same time they think it only fair to say that not alone the firm in question, but virtually every other firm doing business in the colony, was allowed to purchase flour, owing to the shortage in the import of substitutes and embargoes in Canada, to deliver flour without furnishing substitutes at the same time, on an understanding that substitutes would be furnished as soon as procured, and that the parties would pay for the substitutes at the time they purchased the flour. This may be the explanation of the alleged shipments of flour without substitutes.
Furthermore the Police Officer at the place where the principal business of this firm is done, was furnished some time ago with copies of the Regulations regarding the sale and use of flour and substitutes, and empowered to proceed on behalf of the Board against any parties violating these Regulations, so that the Board presumes that any shipments of flour made by this firm were made with the knowledge of the Police Officer and with the confidence that no violation of the law took place.
The Board would ask the public to suspend judgment in this case, and other cases where allegations of infraction of the Food Laws are made, until the other side is heard.
Early last month a charge was made in one of the newspapers that a firm in this city had charged a wa-man from a suburban settlement $20 for a barrel of white flour. Immediately the charge was made, the newspaper was written and asked to furnish the names so that a prosecution could be instituted. A reply was received to the effect that the woman in question had been asked to give the names of any other persons who information has been obtained regarding the matter.
The Board submit, that while possibly every charge made is of this character, it is only fair to those accused that judgment should be suspended until both sides of the case is heard.

Girls Draw A Moist Cloth Through Hair.

Try this! Hair gets thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful
at once.
Immediate!—Yes! Certain!—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time.
This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil; and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair, has been neglected or is scraggly, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first —yes, but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents.
