THE CANDIDATE. 'Father, who travels the road so late?'

How's your wife and how are you? Ah! it fits my fist as no other can.

Brothers, who labor early and late, Ask these things of the candidate: What's his record? How does he stand?

Select Literature.

A Conductor's Story. I was riding on a night train on the Pennsylvania Central from New York to Washington on a mission as newspaper correspondent.

'That's the Franklin, sure,' broke out Jake, once more. 'No other engine on the road could overhaul us as we are going now.'

'Well, you're not stopping long for refreshments, I can assure you, and then Jake and I looked to see our conductor friend in the new pull up at the station and take lodgings for the night.'

'You see me with this platform thinking whether I had better wait the passengers to hold themselves ready for a shock, Jake came from the forward car dragging after him two large petticoats, each of which would hold a quarter of a barrel of oil.'

'Now, then,' said Jake to me, 'If you will roll one side of the track I will try the other brought the mouth of an oil can as near as possible and commenced pouring on it the kerosene.'

'You have raised my expectations of a catastrophe so high that you have been obliged to grease the track so as to let them down again easily,' said I for I felt a little nettled at the unexpected turn the story had taken, and was inclined to believe that the conductor was drawing largely upon his imagination for the facts.

'Well, now you come to the ridiculous part of the story. The collision did not take place at all,' he said, in an apologetic tone, as if there ought to have been a serious accident after so much preparation.

'Oh, the collision?' said the conductor. 'Well, now you come to the ridiculous part of the story. The collision did not take place at all,' he said, in an apologetic tone, as if there ought to have been a serious accident after so much preparation.'

The Weekly Monitor.

BRIDGETOWN, OCTOBER 30, 1878.

"BETTER TIMES."

A brief phrase—nay, even a single word—often contains a volume of meaning. It is—more than a mental key, which unlocks the door into a storehouse of thought, and illustrates what Locke meant when he dilated on the "association of ideas." A mere monosyllabic utterance often awakes a marvellously expansive train of thought—brushes the cobwebs from memory—and calls the airy powers of the imagination into play.—"The time of the singing of birds" is a scriptural phrase which contains within itself a vivid idea of returning Spring. It not only produces on the mind the impression of grove music, but it also makes us see the vernal season, with all its greenness, leaves, buds, and flowers.—"The time of snow" is another phrase of a kindred import, picturing in the mind the chilling characteristics of cold Winter.

The two words, which we have selected as an epigraph to our present remarks, are pregnant with a multitude of thoughts, hopes, wishes, longings and expectations. In all the bygone ages men have been looking to the future for the realization of better times. An undefinable millennium in the world's prosperity has been anticipated. A sighing and struggling for something better were as common all through the long ago historic period as they are to-day; and generation after generation has lived and passed away without entering into the enjoyment of those better times for which they ardently longed. Pope says:

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast; Man never is, but always to be blest."

Whether or not these aspirations for coming good is an innate principle imbedded in human nature, it is not for us to say. It may be that these are soul-paintings for immortality; and are the yearnings of our spiritual being, which are clogged by earthly impediments and are indications of a higher destiny than pertains to this mundane sphere; and that they will be fully satisfied in the experience of a higher life. This is a matter which we leave with the theologians. We may say, however, that the visions of better times, as regards worldly prospects, are for the most part illusory, and hopes, based upon them are fruitless and unattainable.

The present is a period of discouragement, of business depression, and of monetary stringency; but just such seasons, from time to time, were experienced by our fathers, if not by ourselves. We sometimes hear "the good old times" talked of; but times were never so good—so satisfying—that the longing for still better times was not as prevalent and universal as it is to-day. It ever was, is now, and ever will be in men's minds. But it must be conceded by every body that just now the business matters of the world are in a degraded and disheartening condition. It is felt alike in both hemispheres and this cry for better times is more wailful and loud than usual.

If ever the unhappy condition of things, to which we have referred, is removed, and a better state of the world's business affairs realized, the change must be effected by industry, prudence, retrenchment and economy. We need not hope that Aladdin's magical lamp will come to the rescue, nor that extraordinary favors will come from the skies, like manna showered on the Israelites in the wilderness. Providential blessings have been munificently vouchsafed; but we have perverted them. We have been too lavish in our expenditures—too stylish in our mode of living—too reckless in running into debt—and too indifferent to the claims of economy. Looseness in all these matters has ramified all ranks, classes and condition of the people.

Bankers, merchants, traders, professional men, farmers, artisans, mechanics and day laborers have all been infected by the prevailing lack of energy and prudence in managing their business affairs, and extravagance in modes of living. Even paupers, in some instances, have been affected by the prevailing mania for ostentatious show and style. Of course, in every community there are exceptions, as respects the folly which has brought hard times upon the business world; but the multitude have been reckless and imprudent, and are now suffering in consequence of their want of industry and forthrightness. Necessity and difficulty may drive thousands into habits of living, and business courses, which they should pursue from choice rather than from stern compulsion.

Better times is a hackneyed phrase, like some others which we quoted in the opening paragraph of our present remarks, and the very mention of which, as we intimated, present to the vision of the mind a wide range of matters, connected with them. And what is implied in better times? Industry, prudence, economy in expenditures, discretion and forthrightness in all our undertakings, and the practice of honesty in all the departments of business, whether commercial or otherwise. There must be retrenchment in our households, as well as activity, care and reliability in the out-door relations of business life. All these are essential to the return of better times.

COLLEGIATE EDUCATION.

A century ago, in the highest educational institutions in the world, the only attainments required, in winning collegiate degrees, were the classics and mathematics. Instruction in the physical sciences was little thought of, and much less regarded as essential to a thorough course of study. A knowledge of languages—more particularly those of antiquity—and mathematical science, was almost everything that was required in the conferring of degrees in the most distinguished universities. It is true, there were chairs of philosophy in the colleges, but the teachings of those were chiefly confined to the more occult branches of metaphysics. Psychological investigations, however attractive they may have been, and still are, to curious and inquisitive students, were not pregnant with those practically utilitarian results which ought always to be aimed at in the acquisition of knowledge. Collegiate instruction should invariably have the same end in view.

It seems to us that no youthful student should spend years in the study of the Greek and Latin languages to the almost utter exclusion of branches of inquiry that are better adapted to secure the principal object of all educational undertakings and efforts, namely, mental discipline—intellectual invigoration. Perhaps there is no exercise of the mind, which so much tends to its development and vigor as does a thorough mathematical training and study. The thinking powers in no other way are more entirely brought into play. The grappling with Euclid's problems gives an impulse to the intellect, and calls into healthful strengthening exercise its innate powers. The mind of even a little boy receives both expansion and vigor, when it is made to comprehend the meaning of the multiplication table.

The study of languages, however, requires less exercise of the thinking, calculating powers. Without a very large amount of thought, a boy, with an ear for sounds and a retentive memory, may make respectable proficiency in learning Hebrew, Greek and Latin; he may be able to read Homer and Virgil with accuracy in the languages in which they are written, and yet have but an imperfectly disciplined mind. But in the study of the physical sciences, the intellect necessarily receives an invigorating training.

At the opening of the present century the vast field of physical science was an unexplored waste. The properties of matter, organic or otherwise, were then little known, and less understood. To the genius and industry of Sir Humphrey Davy the world is indebted for the widening—we may say the opening—of a field of science which has greatly enlarged the circle of human knowledge, and which has marvellously contributed to the business interests of every day life. Till his time the science of chemistry was little better than it was in the days of superstition, when alchemists, (as denoted a few centuries ago as were Oak Island gold-diggers in our own time) were in search of the philosopher's stone. The arcanum opened in this interesting field of science by Sir Humphrey has been more beneficial to the world than have been the mines of Golconda or Mexico. Contemporaneously with his efforts in this department of inquiry and experiment, other big-minded men were engaged in researches that have tended to vastly enlarge our knowledge of material elements of the universe. The mineral world, geology, electricity, and other kindred sciences in these modern days, have all, within the memory of living men, become popular studies, and are now regarded essential to thoroughness in education. A student in any of these departments of physical science has his mind more disciplined, and his knowledge more enlarged than it could be by familiarity with Homer's immortal Epic, or with Ovid's "Metamorphoses."

It is no matter of marvel then that the physical sciences are receiving that collegiate consideration which their utility and importance demand. What has led to our present remarks is the fact that the Governors of Dalhousie College have added an Art Course, embracing the physical sciences, to the other courses of instruction in that institution, and we venture to predict that sister academical seats of learning will do likewise.

JUST NOW, To-morrow will be the closing day of October. It has been a lovely month. It has scarcely been darkened with a storm, or chilled by a heavy frost. Golden sunshine has brightened its days, and the milder light of the moon and the stars has beautified its nights. In the gardens, autumn flowers have bloomed in defiance of the advanced season, and the aftermath is still deeply verdant on the marshes and meadows. Though the foliage of the forest is dead, there has been no violent gale to shake the leaves from the trees. Their dying beauty has been as gorgeous as a rainbow, and their variegated tints of brightest hues have thrown loveliness and splendor like a Dolly Varden mantle, on the sides of the mountains. All good-natured, right-minded people must have enjoyed the month exceedingly. Meanwhile, there has been activity in the orchards. Thousands of busy hands have been di-gently employed in plucking the most abundant crop of apples that was ever gathered in our Province. The affluence of foliage has transcended, if not satisfied, the wishes of the most greedy orchardist; and multitudes, as they have looked on the marvellous yield of pears, pippins, greensteins, greenings, nonpareils and rosy-cheeked baidwins, have cried—"more than enough!" Coopers have been overworked in the hasty manufacture of barrels, innumerable, to accommodate shippers of fruit, some of whom are transporting the produce of our orchards across the wide Atlantic. October has verily been a beautiful and busy month. But what of its successor? Burns mournfully sang—"Oh! November's early blast."

Yes—its storms will soon be upon us. It will probably scatter snow-flakes on the bare ground, intimating that he is the precursor and pioneer of stern, icy Winter. But in November we usually have our brief Indian Summer—a few delightful days of exquisite weather before Autumn merges into the coldest season of the year. Almost everybody has something to say about "the short, dark days of November;" but in some years its gloomy days are few, and it is not chilled by a temperature of uncomfortable frigidity. May such be the incoming month.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

For the last three or four years, we have seen notice of an organization, entitled as above in Canada. It is composed of secret societies called "Granges;" and its avowed object is the promotion of Agricultural interests. Several of these societies, have been formed in Colchester, Hants and Kings, and the subjoined communication announces one lately formed in this County. We are unprepared at present to express any opinion on this rural organization.

ONE PRESENT.

VICTORIA HALL.—We wish to draw the attention of our readers to the Musical and Dramatic Entertainment for Wednesday evening next, the 6th of November. The programme has been laid before us, and we can assure those who intend patronizing the entertainment, that it will be well worthy of their countenance in every respect. We have not space to mention the different features separately, but among the most prominent of the attractions is the excellent and refined comedy-farce, by Jerrold, the celebrated Dramatist, entitled, "Cool as a cucumber." This little play has been rendered popular by the eminent actor, the late Charles Matthews. We also notice several beautiful tableaux, which we are informed will be arranged in the most pleasing manner. Also, several celebrated character and costume songs, and a number of very taking choruses by the choir, &c., &c., which, altogether, tend to make the Programme one of the best ever offered to the inhabitants of our little town. These varied attractions will, no doubt, draw one of the largest audiences ever assembled in Victoria Hall. We wish them every possible success.

TOWN MEETING.—On the 4th inst. the annual town meeting for this poor district will be held in the Court House, this town, commencing at 10 o'clock, a. m. This is a meeting which concerns every rate payer in the district, and instead of some dozen or so attending the same, we hope to see a large gathering on the day named. Year after year we are heavily taxed for the maintenance of a large number of poor, comprising persons of all classes and ages. In some other poor districts in the County, the rate payers have purchased suitable farms to keep the poor upon, and thereby saved themselves a vast amount of labor and taxes, and it proposed to do the same in this district, at the next town-meeting. The rate payers should therefore be present.

Mr. John Z. Bent has opened a furniture establishment, opposite the railway station, where he intends keeping on hand a large variety of Parlor, Bedroom, Dining-room, Kitchen and Office furniture. He has likewise provided himself with a fine hearse, and intends carrying on the undertaking business in all its branches. Our Baptist friends have had their Mission house thoroughly overhauled and painted for the reception of their present pastor, the Rev. Mr. Warren. The old front had a bay-window put in and looks exceedingly well. The work was executed by Mr. Robert Ewing, of Centreville, and the job reflects credit upon him.

Our entertaining livery stable keeper, Mr. J. Worden Beckwith, has just returned from the United States with a handsome fit-out of carriages, suitable for the business in which he is engaged. He has also brought home a hack, such as those in use in Boston and other large cities. Mr. B. is now prepared to accommodate any person wishing a first-class fit-out.

Our course of Lectures was opened on Friday eve, Oct. 11th, by Rev. Robert Stewart, subject:—"Time and its uses." The lecturer was very methodical, and the subject was treated in a practical manner, and was very suggestive to all present, especially to those who are just commencing a year's study. Dr. Binney lectures next Friday eve, Nov. 1st, subject:—"Our greater blessing." The Bridgetown Dramatic Club favored us with an entertainment on Friday evening last. The audience was not large, but the performance merited frequent applause from those present—indeed they deserve credit. The High School has opened with indications of even better success than last year. The Commercial Department will prove a very important auxiliary in the education of the youth. Professor McDonald and Miss Brown are working very satisfactorily in their departments. We believe that only four B. Honores were received in this County, at the last examination, and three of those were students from the High School.

For the past six or eight weeks, the wharves have been lined with vessels, small and large, taking in apples and produce for market. Since the advent of the railway, this port has suffered greatly in this respect—very few vessels calling here to load. This season the old state of things has returned, owing, no doubt, to the vast amount of apples in the county, and the prices obtained for them being so low, causing shippers to find the cheapest mode of transit for them.

Several serious accidents occurred in this town and vicinity since our last issue. Mr. Geo. B. McMill, of Wilmet, who was in the call of the leg, getting out of a wagon, after returning from chasing up a party who stole his horse. John Morgan, Esq., of Lawrenceport, who was hurt very badly, while at work in mills belonging to R. Randolph, Esq. Mr. Samuel K. Mack cut his hand in the variety mill, in Mr. J. B. Reed's furniture factory. A son of Mr. Samuel Ruggles, of Albany, aged ten years, broke his left arm by falling when at play. Dr. Morse, of Lawrenceport, attended him.

Miscellaneous.

Vast herds of buffalo in Manitoba promise plenty for the Indians the coming winter. The quail yield of California for the current year is estimated at 8,000,000, and of the aggregate value of $2,500,000.

The yearly value of the milk, cream, butter and cheese produced in the United States is $800,000,000; of eggs, $180,000,000, and of poultry, $68,000,000.

Of the 264 millions of capital invested in British railways, forty-one and a half per cent on dividends all last year, and less than ten millions paid over eight per cent.

At a great shoe manufactory in Lynn, Mass., recently, a pair of kid side-laced woman's boots was made from the stock in just eleven minutes, in sight of visitors.

According to the Chatham, N. B. Advertiser, George Forbes, Esq., of Kouchibouguac, has been left by a relative in California, a million and a half dollars.

The value of the entire amount of gold in the world is estimated at nearly $7,000,000,000. It might all be contained in a block 17 feet high, 25 feet wide, and 66 feet long.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER A SHIP'S CREW.—Capt. Britton, of the brig, Arctic, which arrived at Sydney, C. B., on the 17th inst., from Bayonne, France, reports having a man in irons 45 days for having attempted to murder the crew.

A "Heathen Chinese" at Gold Hill, Nevada, six months ago bought 500 shares of Bolia stock at 40 cents a share, and when it reached $53 sold out, putting the entire amount in Sierra Nevada at $9 a share. When Nevada was booming he sold out for $190, and immediately invested his easily acquired fortune of a round $300,000 in United States bonds.

NARROW ESCAPE.—Two brave little boys, children, nothing more, one aged five years, the other five years, Vernon Clark, and King Murchie, Capt. A. Murchie, father of the first boy, Capt. A. Murchie, father of the second boy, took it into their heads to take a boat, and row out to Schooner "Nellie Clark," then lying at anchor about a half-mile distant. The little fellow succeeded in reaching the vessel. No person was on board, but little Murchie, with the gallantry of a British tar, attempted to board the "Nellie." He attempted this by chain-pull, but as the vessel was high out of water, he fell into the water—the boy Clark, in the boat, had drifted away from the schooner, and so he help seemed at hand to save the drowning child.

The boy Clark cried aloud, and although within hearing and seeing distance, yet they seemed oblivious to the sight of the drowning child, and the cries of the other. The mother of little King Murchie was the first to catch the cry of distress, and with a mother's quick perception, at once gave the alarm. Captain Murchie rushed to the beach, and he and George Langmaid in a boat, were soon alongside the "Nellie."

The little drowning boy had got to the stern of the schooner's boat, and had taken hold of a rope-yarn hanging over, and with his left hand, had held on until his strength failed, when he lay on his back aloft, but the water was just closing over him as a hand, the hand of his earthly father, guided by "Our Heavenly Father," caught the arm of his dying, drowning child.

The feelings of the parents of the rescued little King Murchie, on receiving their child, and being back again to life, may be well imagined, but words cannot express them.—Bay Pilot, St. Andrew, N. B.

EUROPE.

MADRID, Oct. 25.—As King Alfonso was driving through the street known as Calle Mayor, this evening, a man in a blouse discharged a pistol at him. The king was not touched, and continued on his way to the palace, amid the acclamations of the crowd. The assassin was immediately seized by soldiers and taken to prison.

His name, Juan Monacal, aged 23, a cooper and native of Tarragona. He states he is a member of the International Society and that the deed was premeditated. His bullets struck no one. Monacal was rescued with difficulty from some women who threatened to lynch him.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Wright, one of the imprisoned directors of the Glasgow Bank, and his partner, William Scott, are heavily indebted to the bank on acceptances. It is believed that a call for $2,500 per share, of which the liquidations of the Glasgow Bank gave notice yesterday, will result in the means of smaller shareholders and throw the burden of assessment upon a few wealthy ones.

The funeral of Cardinal Cullen took place today, and was witnessed by 50,000 people; while 10,000 took part in the procession and ceremonies.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Standard's despatch from Vienna says that Russia's military preparations are so vast that no one can doubt that she is bent on further conquest. The only question appears to be whether she will wait until spring or commence war before that time. Their excuse will probably be outbreaks among the Bulgarians, gotten up by Russian agents.

The Times says that Russia ventures to stand in the way of the Berlin Treaty because she trusts to forbearance of other powers; a word spoken in earnest by England or Austria would bring her to her senses in a moment. It is preposterous to assert that our hands can be tied by the Afghan difficulty. We must force ourselves on Afghanistan to the exclusion of others who have no right there. Our course is clear. When we shall enter upon it is another question. It is certain, however, that a decisive campaign will not commence before spring. Our attention will meanwhile be given to the carrying out of the Berlin Treaty.

The Bulgarians have been informed from St. Petersburg that neither Prince Nikita nor Prince Michael has any chance of becoming their ruler. It is believed that the election will be managed quietly, and Europe confronted by an established fact.

UNITED STATES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Southern Railway is starting daily. Yesterday there were only two deaths from the disease and at New Orleans but twenty-four in the latter city. The Red Cross Association has relinquished work among the sufferers, and the regular local charitable associations have continued the labor of providing for the distressed.

From all sections of the infected districts the prospects of an early frost are flattering.

INDIA.

A despatch from Simla estimated the Peshawar column at 17,000 men and 66 guns; Kohat column, 9,000 men, 24 guns; Quetta column, 12,000 men, 60 guns; besides a strong single train. One-third of the troops are European. The evacuation of the Home Cabinet is expected on the 28th.

CANADA.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—The Clan Campbell are rallying throughout Ontario and Quebec, for a grand reception to the Marquis of Lorne.

It is rumored that Lady Dufferin will visit to spend the winter with the Princess Louise. Preparations are being made to erect a mammoth sewing machine factory in this city.

TERRIFIC GALE.

TERRIBLE DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY—LOSS OF LIFE.

The State of Pennsylvania was visited on Wednesday last by a storm of great severity. It seems to have spent its fury in Philadelphia, and vicinity. Upwards of forty churches in the city were more or less damaged and the spires of several being swept away by the gale. Hundreds of dwellings were unroofed, and in many instances entirely demolished, while railway depots and warehouses suffered severely from the effects of the storm. Seven persons are reported killed and about seventy-five wounded. The property loss is not fully known, but it is estimated that it will reach several hundred thousand dollars. The havoc in other parts of the State, though less severe than in the city, was very destructive. At Harrisburg, Reading, Pottstown, Chester and adjoining towns the devastation was appalling.

The Grand Division S. of T., will hold its annual session two weeks later than previously announced. The session will be held in Philadelphia, on Tuesday evening, 20th of November. This will enable G. D. members to be in Halifax during the visit of the Marquis of Lorne and the royal visitors.

ITAVIA, do you wish to gather flesh, to acquire an appetite, to enjoy a regular habit of body, to obtain refreshing sleep, to feel and know that every fibre and tissue of your system is being braced and renovated? If so, commence at once and use the Quinine Wine prepared by Northrop & Lyman of Toronto, and in a short time you will feel the whole system invigorated and strengthened. It is a well-known fact that Quinine has been acknowledged by the medical faculty for many years as the best appetizer and tonic. At present, however, the popular opinion of this medicine is found superior to all other preparations. And combined as it is with fine Sherry wine, it is a delicious tonic, and is made agreeable and pleasant invigorator to the whole system. The properties of Quinine are a febrifuge, tonic, and antipyretic. It increases the force of the digestive organs, and invigorates the general debility and as an appetizer, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never be superseded. It is a powerful and judiciously administered, unless other persons predominate of a different character. Persons of weak constitution may take it without the least difficulty, as it strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, but seldom require more than one or two bottles to effect a decided cure. It contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the "Quinine Wine prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto," and you are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money.

Live is King.

The liver is the imperial organ of the whole human system, and it controls the health and happiness of man. When it is disturbed in its proper action, all kinds of ailments are the natural result. It is the seat of the passions, the seat of the heart and blood, the action of the brain and nervous system, are all immediately connected with the workings of the liver.
