They had slept the clock round, and now that it was again dark on the following evening, Piggy still lay in bed, smoking and planning. Jack, who had occupied a mattress on the floor, had sallied out at four o'clock, declaring his intention of ordering clothes, buying a portmanteau of linen, and spending a couple of hours at a Turkish Bath and an hour with a manicure. At the Uterson Street house he had got railroad, respectable enough to let him enter a West End shop without being too much stared at, and he was anxious to complete the transformation. The practical Piggy, who saw the advantage of having a show member in the firm, had grunted approval, and turned over for another snooze. Now he was revelling in a first pipe after waking, and, as we have said, was planning.

ing for him. But a very different Jack from the dirty, weedy tramp who had eaten broken vitals and smoked "toppers" on a bench in Trafalgar Square. Barber, maitre, masseur, and haberdasher had done their work, and a good dinner at the Holborn had put on the finishing touch. "Richard is his bally self again, I see," said Piggy. "So, so! I can't really show, of course, till I get my clothes; those beastly things are an awful fit, and made by some cheap city tailor. However, I've ordered four suits, one of them to be finished right off, and enter a West End shop without being too much stared at, and he was anxious to complete the transformation. The practical Piggy, who saw the advantage of having a show member in the firm, had grunted approval, and turned over for another snooze. Now he was revelling in a first pipe after waking, and, as we have said, was planning.

"Ugh!" said Jack, surveying "his nails, on which a young lady at Truett's had been exercising her muscle, and had really got to a very creditable state. "For goodness sake let's keep out of that!" "We're going to if I can manage it," said Piggy; "but nothing was ever gained by blinking facts. How ever, to continue. What I would like to find would be a house of flats, after the French style." "But there are heaps of them. Why as Knigstledodge?" "No, Jack, those are only after the French style to the extent that they are let in flats. But the flats are all well flats, and the tenants swell tenants—more or less, anyway. Now, a real French apartment house is very different from that. There are apartments in it of all prices, and tenants of all ranks. Rich society people live on the first floor, above them lawyers and doctors, and above them again chimney-sweeps and cabmen. Now our insular notions don't stand that; we still think of the staircase as being somehow private. A Frenchman, on the other hand, considers the public staircase of his house to be simply a continuation of the street, and doesn't care or notice whom he meets there. We have flats for professional men, and in other neighborhoods we have tenement houses for the artisan class; while I could have been a grubby journalist or author, or anything you like, in an attic, and having my emergency exit on to the roof. We could have judged by his countenance whether we would let on that we knew each other or not. That was my first idea, but it can't be done, and on the whole I am not sure that I haven't managed better. I bought half a dozen papers, and read over I got something to eat at an A. B. C. shop. I made a selection of half a dozen or so, more or less close together, and went off to inspect. No, I did not go in and ask to see in fact, as you so politely reminded me last night, I scarcely look the sort of man they want. I just moped about, and made my inspection from outside. The decision I have come to is that my friend, Mr. Jack Demers, had better take up his quarters at a place called Paarsberg Mansions, in Chelsea, or perhaps a little beyond." "New place, I suppose; never heard of it, but no doubt you have your reasons. What are the advantages?" "One advantage is that it is a show place, only just open. You will be able to pick and choose. Then there are private gardens, with another gate into the street, of which all the tenants have keys; that gives an extra entrance, without any scaling walls or roofs, and, what is more, a very private one. Also Paarsberg Mansions are situated in one of those curious neighbourhoods that one comes across in big towns where the slums run right up against a fashionable street. Two steps take you from the slummiest of slums right into the midst of rank and fashion." "Draw it up, Piggy! Blank and 'Well, comparative rank and fashion, at all events; rich people with pair-horse barouches and electric broughams, and so on." "And this juxtaposition of electric broughams and costermongers' barrows will be good for us?" "One can easily imagine situations arising where it would be convenient. It is going to be specially convenient for us, because while you inhabit your flat in Paarsberg Mansions, I shall only be a hundred yards or so away from you, established in the upper part of a little house in Ratcliffe Street." "A slum?" "Well, no; it would scarcely be fair to call Ratcliffe Street a slum. It may rather be defined as a modest highway, running through the slums. I have taken the top half of No. 16. The house belongs to a bookbinder, who uses the lower part and basement only. I saw a card up announcing unfurnished rooms, went in, found him just shutting up shop, saw the place, took all he had to let, paid a deposit, and even, on my way home, ordered a little furniture to be sent in." "Give your own name?" "Yes, it's as good as any other. Time enough to take aliases when we have to. Well, as I say, this place, No. 16, Ratcliffe Street, is only about a hundred yards from the house where I want you to take a flat. From the back windows of some of the flats my window can be seen. If you could manage to get one of those, we could signal to each other." "Mooch—flag-wagging?" "What? you were not a volunteer at Eton. However, we can easily fit up some system signals. Piggy, considered as a strategist, you fairly take the cake." "Wait till you know all," said Piggy, though evidently pleased by his friend's approval. "I've kept the best till the end. Here's your coffee." "In all attention," said Jack, as he took the cup. (To be continued.)

THE BEST LAXATIVE SOLD IN TELEGRAPHIC AND GENERAL NEWS THE TIMES LEADS.

AN OBJECT LESSON In a Restaurant.

A physician puts the query: Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from sixty to eighty years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile? Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something. If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating, you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored. The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers. There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous sickly looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories. The matter in a nutshell is that the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantity, any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase, and nux.

U. S. ARMY STATISTICS Military Secretary's First Report a Good One.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The annual report of General F. C. Ainsworth, the military secretary of the United States army, the first issued from his office since its creation by congress at its last session gives the total strength of the army at the close of the last fiscal year at 8,871 officers and 68,946 enlisted men. The loss of officers from death, dismissal, retirement, and other causes was 155. The number of enlisted men lost by death was 456, of the 27,381 recruits enlisted during the past fiscal year, 8,652 were foreign born. Complaints as to the number of unsatisfactory recruits are said to have been unusually numerous. Very satisfactory progress has been made toward bringing the organized militia, respecting armament, equipment and discipline, up to the standard of the regular army. A total of 6,966 officers and 83,102 enlisted men of the militia organizations were present at the inspections.

TWO WOMEN QUARRELED And Now One is Dead and the Other Under Arrest.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 10.—Mrs. Cora Cassidy, wife of Christopher Cassidy of Highwood, is dead, as the result, it is claimed, of injuries inflicted by Mrs. Elizabeth Barnes, a friend, during a quarrel. Awaiting the result of the autopsy, Mrs. Barnes is held on the charge of manslaughter. She is 45 years old and has seven children. The story told to the police is that the women got into an argument over some trivial matter, and Mrs. Barnes jumped on her, inflicting internal wounds. The women was treated for peritonitis.

THE ST. JOHN EVENING TIMES

ST. JOHN, N. B., NOVEMBER 11, 1904.

The St. John Evening Times is published at 19 and 21 Canterbury street, St. John, N. B. (excepted), by the St. John Times Printing & Publishing Co., Ltd. A company incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act, 1884. A. M. BELING, Editor.

LET US BE CHEERFUL.

The philosopher of the Globe has been casting about for an explanation of the fact that this constituency rejected Messrs. O'Brien and McKeown, and he has rightly come to the conclusion that the G. T. P. is responsible.

But the philosopher is grieved. He feels that a grave mistake has been made and that the people have been the victims of a hallucination. Hence he reflects:

No earnest observer of the world's ways can fail to recognize in the behavior of St. John that this railroad was planned to injure them a resemblance to certain fears and ill-shapen beliefs which at times assail the understanding, and which run their course in the human mind as does disease in the physical system.

The phase will pass. The time will come and that very speedily when Dr. P. H. and Dr. Stockton will be living evidences of the public folly, and the people will stand amazed at the error which they committed, at the injustice which they did these two gentlemen in sending them to parliament where their actions are to be controlled by the error of their election.

The people will remember that they were told directly by a Canadian premier that this transcontinental railway was designed and driven for the express purpose of bringing the products of Canada to the sea; they will remember that when the road reached them a helping and helpful hand, and that they disbelieved the statement and rejected the hand. They will not blame themselves as they should, but the condemnation will fall upon the gentlemen whom they have sent to parliament.

Doubtless Dr. Daniel and Dr. Stockton will appreciate this expression of sympathy, and will be comforted by the thought that when the St. John electors rest as a burden upon them at Ottawa, they can occasionally steal away to the restful atmosphere of the senate chamber, and commune with the philosopher of the Globe.

But there is really no reason for the city or its representatives to be cast down. Had the government been defeated, but Mr. O'Brien and Mr. McKeown elected in St. John, would the Globe then argue that the people of this city had been the victims of "certain fears and ill-shapen beliefs"?

The people of St. John, in common with the people of Charlotte, York, Kings, Albert, Queens and Sunbury, elected opposition members to parliament. The government, regardless of the verdict in these constituencies, will proceed to carry out its policy. A group of clever men from these constituencies will be in parliament to fight that policy, on which the county has pronounced judgment, but to look after the interests of their several localities.

So much for the present. With regard to the future, the only thing that would justify the city in proceeding at the present time with the erection of a new city hall would be a particularly advantageous sale of the present one and the water works would then be possible to concentrate all the departments in one building, of up-to-date design.

The question is a large one, and will not be disposed of at a sitting. But if there is a prospect of selling the present structure the time is opportune for consideration of the whole subject. It is admitted that the present city hall is entirely unsuited to the present needs of the department.

PORTLAND AND BRISTOL. The following from the Portland Advertiser has a bearing on the discussion about the alleged curtailment of the Bristol steamship service.

Another trans-Atlantic service from Portland is the good news that has been officially announced from the Grand Trunk. This is not a new service, but a revival of one that it was thought would be continued this year, that, between Portland and Avonmouth or Bristol.

The restoration of this service to Portland makes the sailing of steamers on this port practically the same as those of last year. The season will not be as long as it was thought it would, but will on the contrary be fully as good as it was last year.

The steamers on the Bristol service will leave once every three weeks. The first will be the Harborman which will sail December 17 and the next the Maxman which will sail Jan. 7.

The steamers will then leave tri-weekly. This practically means there will be four lines of steamships from Portland, one to Liverpool, one to London, another to Glasgow and a fourth to Avonmouth.

The Montreal Gazette states that there will only be one boat every three weeks between St. John and Bristol. Four boats are to be taken off this route, but the hope is expressed that the shortage of inward and outward freight will be temporary, and the service before long increased.

FRENCH BIRTH RATE.

The birth rate in France continues to show a falling off, and to be far below that of other European countries. A Paris cable says:

Official figures just published for 1903 show the total births were 826,712, and deaths 763,606, an excess of births of 73,106. The excess in 1902 was 83,944.

The population of France in 1902 was 38,901,945. The population in 1903 was 39,119,095. In 1903 there were 18,968 fewer births than in 1902 and the number of deaths were fewer by 7,282 than in 1902.

It is pointed out in the report that the increase in population in 1903 was not due to any increase in the general birth rate, but solely to the steadily declining death rate. The table goes on showing that while the excess of births over deaths in 1902 was 21 per 1,000 inhabitants, the ratio for the same period in Germany was 15.3, and in Great Britain 11.9.

There is a very striking difference between the average number of persons in a family in France and the average among the French in Quebec. In Quebec large families are the rule; in France they are the exception.

The political prophet of the Winnipeg Telegram foretells the coming of a conservative provincial government in New Brunswick. He has had his ear to the ground, and heard the tramp of six opposition members from St. John, four from York, and enough from other counties to give Mr. Hassen a majority. But the Telegram predicted a clean sweep of the west for Mr. Borden. The fact is that it is generally safer to make a political prediction after the event has transpired. A number of gentlemen of sporting propensities will endorse this assertion.

Says the Montreal Gazette:—"It has been decided amongst the leading members of the liberal party, including several alternates of the same political faith, to run Senator Cloran for the position of chief magistrate at the expiration of Mayor Laporte's term. The matter has evidently been whispered around amongst the faithful, for when Senator Cloran entered the St. Joseph Hall yesterday he was greeted with cries of "Our future Mayor." Mayor Laporte's term does not expire until 1906."

The vote in Maryland was so close that a despatch last night said:—"Until the canvassing boards of the several counties and of Baltimore city shall have examined and counted the ballots, it will be impossible to say which of the presidential candidates will receive Maryland's electoral vote."

The word has gone forth to the liberals of Ontario to nominate candidates in readiness for the provincial general elections.

Another peculiar feature about the Advocate is that its editor and manager never has to worry about how business keeps up. The paper is a national institution and is supported by the nation, the council passing an appropriation every year for its support. The paper is distributed free to the full blooded Cherokees who cannot read English. There are one thousand copies sent to them every week. In addition to this, however, there are hundreds of copies sent out over the United States as a curiosity. This is the only publication that has ever been printed in Indian language, using Indian characters. In the other nations of the Five Civilized Tribes a good deal of matter of interest to Indians is published in the Indian language of that nation, but English characters are used.

WATCHERS BY THE SEA. (Boston Transcript.) Alone on the shore of the infinite sea, Searching the vista of ocean and sky, Are those who are destined forever to be Watchers for vessels that never draw nigh.

Still waiting for ships that lie over the lip, Ships that lie ever beyond the deep blue. Where white-bombed clouds on the billow-slopes ride, Searching their argosies from our view.

Awaiting the glint of a foamy sail, Threading its growing in gonyon strain, But the bell-buoy toll to the sea sea, Vain are our hopes—ah, we wait but in vain!

And straining our vision to catch but a gleam, Truant at best—of the phantom like fleet, We seek not the glow of the treasure that gleams, Treason, unseen, in the sands at our feet.

We watch and we wait for the Never-to-be, Reckless of what hath the Present in store, We search for the ships on the broad, barren seas, Passing the pearls in the shells of the shore.

We pass by the joys that he ever at hand, Strangers are we, 'em to those of our kind, We wait not the wealth of the sea where we roam, Weeping for ships that will never come.

An official report shows that the total value of butter and cheese shipments from Montreal this season was $25,000,000. Of this amount the cheese exports totalled $18,000,000, and the butter exports $6,000,000. This is a falling off of close to two million, as compared with last year.

A BUDDHIST FROM INDIA

Wants to Know the Meaning of Christian Science. HAS COME TO LEARN

British Government Good on the Whole, But Native Opinion Should be More Consulted—Interesting Interview Printed in a Montreal Paper.

(Montreal Witness.) M. Ramdas is a Hindu. He is wealthy. He is a member of one of the oldest castes. He is a scholar and a philosopher. He is deeply versed in the lore of the East, and as for the West, he knows the West, measurably. He desires a more intimate acquaintance. That is why he came all the way from Calcutta to this country.

Mr. Ramdas is, properly speaking, a Buddhist, and yet he is, without any contradiction, a theosophist. He is greatly interested in the study of ethnic religion, and having heard and read a good deal of Christian Science, which corresponds in not a few essential regards with theosophy, he determined to come to this continent, see the founder, and write a book on the subject.

Mr. Ramdas was seen yesterday at the office of the C. P. R. He is presently on his way to Boston. He is tall, dark, tense, and active in appearance. He is a member of the Indian National Congress, and is a member of the Indian National Congress, and is a member of the Indian National Congress.

Of course, he has a word to say about the British government. British rule in the East has been, on the whole, beneficial, and its prestige has undoubtedly been increased lately by the expedition to Tibet. That strengthens England in this way; it gives the notion of invincibility, which the east deems by love. It conveys the notion that when England undertakes anything, she will not give up the contest. The populations of the East are affected by what is dramatic. When England does anything, she is dramatic. When England does anything, she is dramatic.

At the same time, Mr. Ramdas is well of the opinion that England should have done much more for the native populations which she has subjected. She has not eliminated the famines, which sweep off the people like flies. She has not given to the people any like republican government. She has, indeed, allowed the natives to take part in the conduct of the government, but she has not given the native a vote which she has not given the native a vote.

Mr. Ramdas talked learnedly, and in good English, in regard to the well of the opinion that England should have done much more for the native populations which she has subjected. MR. C. M. HAYS IS PLEASED.

Says the G. T. P. Can Get Plenty of Capital Now That the Government Has Been Returned.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—Charles M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Pacific, returned to Montreal yesterday from England, where he was on a financial mission in connection with the transcontinental project. As the result of the visit, he said he was able to say as soon as the weather permits next spring the work of actual construction will begin westward from Lake Superior and will be pushed forward simultaneously from various points between there and the Pacific coast.

Mr. Hays would not make a prophecy as to when the road would be open for business but he said that the wheat fields would be tapped as soon as men and money could complete the task of building the railroad.

Mr. Hays was greatly pleased with the return of the Laurier administration which he says assures the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific plans. There will now, he says, be no difficulty in getting all the capital required for the building and equipment of the railway.

WEDDINGS. McKelvey-Lord. A church wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock at the Congress Street Methodist church, when Miss Grace Amelia Lord, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Lord, was united in marriage to John Edward McKelvey of Boston. The church was beautifully decorated with evergreen ferns and palms. Rev. Claude H. Priddy, pastor of the church, who used the singing service, performed the ceremony. The bride was given away by her father, wore a gown of white crepe de chine and her long veil which was thrown back from her face was held in place with little of the valley. She carried a white prayer-book and her only ornament was the groom's gift, a sunburst of pearls. The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Alice P. Lord, who was attired in pastels green chiffon with pearl trimmings and she carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The best man was James M. McKelvey of St. John, N. B., a brother of the groom. The ushers were Miss Helen Morton, Miss Emily Jarrold, Miss Mabel Jarrold and Miss Marion Holbrook, all of whom were gowned in white with pastels green from her which matched the maid of honor's gown. A wedding breakfast was held immediately after the ceremony at the bride's parents, 26 Melbourne street, the guests including only the wedding party and relatives of the two families.

Mr. and Mrs. McKelvey left on the evening train for Montreal, and will visit Mr. McKelvey's home before they return. Mr. McKelvey travelled in a brown broadcloth, costume with a sandford hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. McKelvey will reside at 110 Draper street and will be at home after the first of January.

Out of town guests at the ceremony were John McKelvey and Miss Jennie McKelvey of St. John, father and sister of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Laechele, Miss Lena Laechele of Dorchester, Mrs. Wm. E. Spauld and Miss Louise Sheafe of Brookline. Portland, Oct. 10, 1904.

CHARLOTTETOWN TO CHOOSE. A convention is to be held in the B. I. S. hall on Friday evening next, to select liberal-conservative candidates to contest this city in the forthcoming provincial contest. It is generally believed that Mr. John A. Messervy, ex-President of the Board of Trade and vice President of the Tourist Association, will be chosen as the property-holders' candidate, and Mr. F. S. Brown as the candidate for the franchise vote. The names of Capt. A. J. B. Mellich and others are also mentioned.—Charlottetown Examiner.

At the York Theatre. York Theatre was a busy place last night. There was a good attendance and the show. This week's company has won general favor and will find proof of the appreciation bestowed upon them. It is their due for every artist works hard to receive his share of the applause. There has not yet appeared a better costumed company at the York, than the present one. A big bill is advertised for next week, and special holiday matinee will be given on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 17.

VISIT TO ADMIRAL TOGO AND HIS BIG FLAGSHIP.

An American Correspondent Describes the Japanese Nelson as He Walks His Own Quarter Deck--A Stoic and a Philosopher But a Fighter Over All.

An American war correspondent describes a visit to Admiral Togo and his big flagship in the following letter: On board Mikasa, Adl Togo's flagship, off Dalry, July 17--The man who seemed best able to hold the world's eyes motionless on the quarter deck as I wrote, under the two 12-inch guns of his after turret. They gazed toward the blue speck of hills over Port Arthur, which is visible beyond San Shiao Island, that lies off Dalry.

Miss Gannon, Sec'y Detroit Amateur Art Association, tells young women what to do to avoid pain and suffering caused by female troubles.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM--I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness, and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains, and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose. At that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I wanted women who suffer to get well as I did."--Miss GULLA GANNON, 359 Jones St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary Amateur Art Association.

It is clearly shown in this young lady's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will certainly cure the sufferings of women; and when one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is only one of the countless hundreds which we are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtue of Miss Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all; and for the absolute cure of all kinds of female ills no substitute can possibly take its place. Women should bear this important fact in mind, and more I suffered with female troubles to accept anything that is claimed to be "just as good" as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for no other medicine for female ills has made so many cures.

How Another Sufferer Was Cured. "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM--I cannot praise your wonderful remedies enough for they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. For the last eight years and more I suffered with female troubles, was very weak, could not do my housework, also had nervous prostration. Some days I would remain unconscious for a whole day and night. My neighbors thought I could never recover, but, thanks to your medicine, I now feel like a different woman.

"I feel very grateful to you and will recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all. It has now been four years since I had the last spell of nervous prostration. I now weigh one hundred and twenty-eight pounds at that time; now I weigh one hundred and twenty-three. I consider your Vegetable Compound the finest remedy made. Thanking you for the medicine I received from your medicine, I remain, yours truly, Mrs. H. E. FARRAR, 2919 Elliott Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Remember Mrs. Pinkham's advice is free and all sick women are foolish if they do not ask for it. She speaks from the widest experience, and has helped multitudes of women.

Large display of costly and useful presents. A quiet home wedding took place on Wednesday, Nov. 10, at the residence of George Miller, of Granville Ferry, when his daughter, Florence, was married to J. Fletcher Bent of Paradise. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. H. Saunders. The bride was gowned in a navy blue tulle and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. After the trousseau the happy couple drove to their future home in Paradise.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL. An Interesting Meeting Held in Toronto this Week. The National Council of Women held an interesting open meeting on Tuesday night in the Woman's Art Association rooms at the Confederation Building, in Toronto. Miss M. A. FitzGibbon occupied the chair. The feature of the evening was the reading of reports by Mrs. Dr. Augusta Stow-Gullen and Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, upon the work of the National Council's recent convention at Winnipeg. Dr. Gullen gave an instructive summary of the papers and discussion at the convention upon the various phases of Canadian law as it affected women. Mrs. Willoughby Cummings spoke of some of the country women in the United States. Recently Mrs. Hoodless, vice-president of the council for Ontario, was present, and gave an interesting talk. She referred to the club movement among women in the United States. Recently Mrs. Hoodless, vice-president of the council for Ontario, was present, and gave an interesting talk. ANNAPOLIS. Rumor That the D. A. R. Has Purchased Midland Railway. Annapolis, Nov. 10--It is surmised on good authority that the D. A. R. has purchased the Midland Railway running from Windsor to Truro. Tuesday was declaration day for this county, and the returning officer declared Mr. Pickup elected; with a majority of 219. The total vote was--Pickup, 2019; Shafer, 1794. A public meeting was held afterwards in the Academy of Music, an instructive summary of the papers and discussion at the convention were made by Mr. Pickup, the member elect, and L. D. Shafer, his opponent; also by Attorney General Baueroff, M. P. P. Cheers were given for the member elect and Sir Willoughby Cummings in honor of the meeting.

The first move of the season arrived on Monday falling to the depth of several inches, which gave the landscape a wintry appearance. Since then it has almost disappeared. Next Tuesday will be the election of municipal councillors will be held. There will be voting in twelve of the different wards in this county, and four councillors will be elected by acclamation.

Well Known St. John Man Died Suddenly in Toronto Last Night. Toronto, Ont., Nov. 11.—(Special)—Geo. R. Davis, of the Davis Specialty Co., Adelaide, St. East, died suddenly at his residence, Kensington, Toronto, last night.

The late George R. Davis was very well known in St. John. He was born near Liverpool (Eng.), but came to Canada early in life and engaged in business at Yarmouth, N. S., as an agent for pianos and organs.

OBITUARY.

Dr. D. J. U. Wiley. Dr. David J. Wiley, a native of Fredericton, who practised at Fredericton for twenty seven years, and removed to Tillamook, Oregon, in 1889, where he won prominence and was mayor of the town for two years, died there October 21st of neuralgia of the heart, aged 82 years.

Mrs. George Hibbard. After a lengthy illness she passed away yesterday at the residence of her son-in-law, Prof. Mac M. Stone, in Amherst, one of Cumberland's oldest residents in the person of Mrs. Hibbard, widow of George Hibbard of Minville. Deceased was a daughter of the late Ames Seaman who in his day, was one of the largest property holders in Cumberland county, and deeply interested in mining at Minville and River Herbert.

Capt. Richard J. Loudon. Captain Richard John Loudon died in New Orleans on Sunday. As a native of Nova Scotia he shipped here for the first time in 1840, when he was captain of a ship in the European trade at twenty-three. He left his service to take charge of a lighthouse and eighth lighthouse districts, and constructed several lighthouses, including that on the Lewis and Clark coast at Timbalier Island, from this he branched into journalism in New Orleans, where he was an editor and sketch writer. Going back to the sea, he commanded the steamer Sandusky for seven years until wrecked on the Florida coast, with a loss of several lives. He then entered the theatrical profession, wrote several plays, and built the Pensacola Opera House and the Avenue Theatre in New Orleans, which he managed until its destruction in 1890.

Daniel Bonnell. Daniel Bonnell, of Roschville, Studholm, Kings County, died yesterday morning, aged 82. He leaves a wife, four daughters and five sons. He was a member of the Free Baptist church and was the oldest farmer living in that locality. The funeral will be held Saturday morning.

Mrs. George Ambrose. The death occurred at Shubenacadie, N. S., yesterday of the relict of Rev. George Ambrose, M. A., D. D., for many years rector of Digby. Deceased was Miss Bares, of Liverpool. A short funeral service was held at Shubenacadie today, after which the body was taken to Digby for interment. The following sons and daughters survive: H. W. Ambrose, traveler for Imperial Oil Company, Amherst; Sister Katherine, of St. Monica's Home, Boston; Mrs. Baker, New York; Harry Ambrose and Edward Ambrose, mounted police, Northwest Territory; Miss Edith Ambrose, traveling abroad; Mrs. Bragg and Miss Ambrose, at Shubenacadie, and Rev. George Ambrose, rector at Stewiacke.

STAR LINE'S NEW FLYER ARRIVED THIS MORNING.

The Pokanoket, For the River Service, is Now at Indiantown—She Will be Refitted This Winter and Will Go on the Route in the Spring.

The steamer Pokanoket, recently purchased, in Philadelphia, by the Star line company, arrived in port this morning from that place. The steamer arrived at Partridge Island, last night at 12 o'clock. Captain Charles J. Watson says he had a smooth passage up, but when he left the Delaware River it was a little rough. The steamer left Philadelphia last Sunday at 9 a. m. and City Island, where she lay about two hours; from that place her next call was at Hyannis, where she remained about five hours. She then made Boothbay leaving there at 6 o'clock yesterday and coming along at about 12 knots, until Partridge Island was sighted last night. The Pokanoket proved herself to be a good sea boat, and will no doubt be the speediest steamer on the river after receiving repairs.

A YOUNG LADY AND SOME CHOCOLATES.

A Case That is Said to Promise Some Interesting Developments, Now That it is in the Hands of a Lawyer.

A rumor of a case of shop lifting, or kleptomani, which promises interesting developments was wafted into the Times' office, this morning. As the story goes, it seems that a well known young lady has been in the habit of dropping into the store, and getting what she wanted, and that a well known young lady has been in the habit of dropping into the store, and getting what she wanted, and that a well known young lady has been in the habit of dropping into the store, and getting what she wanted.
