FRANCE IS HOPEFUL IN RHUR CRISIS

Reply to Great Britain Received at Office of British Embassy.

PREVENTS RUPTURE

Premier Baldwin, it is Predicted, Will Not Consider Reply Conclusive.

(Canadian Press.)

Paris, Aug. 21.—The French Government's reply to the British Foreign Secretary, on the reparations situation, was handed to the British Embassy at nine a.m. The hope in French official circles is that this note, dictated by Premier Poincaré, will prevent a rupture of the entente cordiale.

There is no concealment of the fact that the reply is largely controversial, that Premier Poincaré is unyielding on the outstanding features of the situation, and that it is not expected Premier Baldwin will find the reply conclusive.

It is hoped, however, that he will regard it as encouragement and will without any plans for separate action toward Germany until the points in dispute are further elucidated. There is said to be a separate conference among the allies, and it is thought to be certain that Premier Baldwin will see Premier Poincaré when the latter returns from his vacation today at Aix Les Bains.

The French reply takes up fifty pages of a yellow book, which will be issued tomorrow, together with a summary in both English and French.

LANDS AND MINE SESSION IS ON

Disposal of Damaged Timber to Be Discussed at the Fredericton Conference

(Special to The Times.)
Fredericton, Aug. 21.—The Advisory Board of the Brunswick Department of Lands and Mines began a session this afternoon at 2:30. Hon. C. W. Robinson, Minister of that department, arrived here last night. Other members arrived today.

The most important matter which will be discussed is the disposal of the damaged timber on the tracts covered by the forest fires of the summer. Complete reports of the damage done and the condition of the tracts will be received. Two men are still at work on cruise. The outside limits have been pretty well defined, but interior is still to be covered by cruisers.

The intention is to have as much as possible of the damaged timber logged this season. Some of the timber can stand till a second season without serious depreciation, but much cannot.

Wood-Boring Beetle.
Dr. J. B. Todd, of Fredericton, head of the Federal Entomological Service in New Brunswick, has given Chief Forester Prince information to the effect that the large wood-boring beetle, Monochamus, the grubs of which make large holes in dead and dying timber, already had laid eggs in vast quantities in the plots examined, which would mean that after the present season spruce, pine and balsam could not be logged for boards, and that every effort for that reason should be directed to getting as much out as possible in the coming winter.

The plots reported upon by Dr. Todd were about Nain and Nepsigait lakes and are considered representatives of the Big Cedar Brook and Mammoet-Nepsigait fires and probably northwest Upsigait.

Forestry Board to Meet at Ottawa
Fredericton, N. B., Aug. 21.—The initial meeting of the Royal Commission on Forestry, which is the name by which the commission recently appointed by the Federal Government to inquire into the forest resources of Canada will probably be known, will be held at Ottawa, but will not take place until after the middle of September, according to advice received by R. W. McLellan of this city, the New Brunswick member of the commission.

Bandits Hold Up Train In Texas

Bartlesville, Okla., Aug. 21.—Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger train No. 133, south bound, was held up by bandits south of Okesa, Okla., at midnight. The train crew engaged the bandits in a gun fight, and at least one man has been wounded.

An ambulance from Pawhuska was ordered to meet the train at Nelogany. The robbers escaped with 20 packages of registered mail. Value is unknown.

FAILS TO RESCUE STRICKEN SAILOR

Freighter Has No Drugs to Aid Stricken Sailor.
New York, Aug. 21.—When the captain of the Eastern Star, a freighter, was unable to carry out the wireless prescription of the surgeon of the United States liner President Arthur in the case of a seaman suffering from pneumonia, liner and freighter shifted their courses on August 13 and the man was transferred to the larger vessel. There were no stimulants, cocaine or aspirin on board and asking for help. Dr. Shuey, ship's surgeon, ordered the administration of stimulants and then cocaine or aspirin. The freighter's captain answered there was none on board.

Captain Krelbhorn of the President Arthur directed the other vessel to shift its course so the two would meet. The United States liner picked up the stricken sailor on August 13, and Dr. Shuey, ship's surgeon, ordered the administration of stimulants and then cocaine or aspirin. The freighter's captain answered there was none on board.

When Dr. Shuey went aboard he found the man in a serious condition that he advised his transfer to the President Arthur, where he could be cared for properly in the sick bay. Mariner was lowered into the boat and the return progress toward the liner was begun.

The liner meanwhile had circled around to make a lee for the boat, which after another struggle through the waves was brought alongside. Mariner was hoisted aboard, but was too weak to resist the disease, of which he died soon after.

The Eastern Star was bound from Danzig to Norfolk, the President Arthur from Bremen, Southampton and Cherbourg. The liner brought 804 passengers and two stowaways. Among the passengers was John A. Parker of the Judge Advocate's Department, U. S. A., who returned from London, where he successfully pressed a claim for $200,000 insurance for the Government in the case of a number of barges burned during the war.

TO FLY TO POLE

Amundsen Plans to Make Trip to the North Pole Next Year.
Nome, Alaska, Aug. 21.—Captain Amundsen, who arrived here last night on the coast guard cutter Bear, announced that he would try next year to fly to the North Pole from Spitzbergen. Captain Amundsen, who last spring abandoned an attempt to make a flight over the pole from Wainwright, Alaska, because the landing gear of his plane broke in a test, said yesterday that the machine was unsuitable for the project. He declares that it has sufficient power to lift two persons and the fuel necessary for a flight over the pole.

Asserts Dempsey Must Act Early
Chicago, Aug. 21.—Unless Jack Dempsey wins from Louis Firpo within four or five rounds, he will not win at all, in the opinion of Jess Willard, who is in Chicago on a visit.

In my opinion it is a toss up, but I believe that Dempsey is a better fighter and hit with little regard for boxing, and it is merely a question of which one lands the first punch.

"I consider Dempsey the greatest quick starter in the business, but I do believe that unless he cops in five rounds he will not cop at all. I honestly believe Dempsey is going to get the surprise of his life, when he goes against Firpo."

POTATOES EXPORTED TO BERMUDA

First Seed Shipment from New Brunswick Leaves This Week.

DEMAND IS HEAVY

Recent Reports Indicate the Crop This Year Will be Record One.

Fredericton, Aug. 21.—What is said to be the first shipment of seed potatoes for export from New Brunswick this year is being made this week and comprises three or four carloads which are to be sent to Bermuda. For several years New Brunswick has been furnishing some seed potatoes for Bermuda, where there is a demand for northern grown seed stock available for planting for the crop planted early in September for the Christmas market in England.

This shipment to Bermuda will go from Kewick and Millville in York county by rail to Halifax, where it will catch a steamer for Bermuda. See Record Copy.

Recent reports regarding the potato crop indicate that New Brunswick will this year have the largest and best crop of seed stock in history. Buyers from Virginia who have lately toured the province have bought up large quantities of potatoes in the fields; their representatives are remaining right on the ground after inspection has been completed by the pathologists who accompany the buyers and nothing is being left undone to insure the best disease-free seed stock being shipped.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 21.—"The Man Without a Country" has a rival here in Fred Litson, 27, who is under court orders never again to see his mother, Mrs. Harriet Litson, 71. Litson was convicted in justice court of assault and battery, it being charged by his father that he beat the aged woman and threw her out of the front door of the family home into the street.

After sentence had been passed the father turned to his son and said: "Please stay away from me too, I don't ever want to see you again."

Despite the terrific current rescuers got her out but too late to save her life. She was about 30 years of age and leaves a husband and three children. She had been ill for some time and was very dependent, relatives said.

SAYS MAYOR IS AN EX-CONVICT

Newspaper Demands an Investigation Into Charge Made Against Manila Executive
Manila, Aug. 21.—Manuel Quizon, who recently resigned as president of the Philippine Senate because of his differences with the U. S. executive administration, has called the U. S. Secretary of War that Mayor Rodriguez of Manila, lately appointed to that position by Governor-General L. Wood, was an ex-convict from Bilbid Prison. The Herald issued an extra edition, demanding editorially that the Governor-elect request Mayor Rodriguez's resignation.

Quizon charged that the Mayor served one year for procuring the abduction of a woman by a band of bandits. Rodriguez also was convicted, according to Quizon's cable, of being an accomplice to the murder of J. P. Berry of the 27th United States Infantry.

CAPTAIN DYING AFTER BATTLE

Ship's Cook Also In Hospital Following Fight Off Rock Point
Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 21.—Capt. A. Moore of the Nova Scotia schooner J. Scott Henderson, was in a critical condition at the hospital here today, with recovery improbable, a result of a battle between the schooner crew and a run pirate off Rock Point, yesterday.

Harvey Harm, the ship's cook, also was at the hospital, suffering from several wounds, which were not considered dangerous.

What became of the pirates after they attacked the vessel is not known. This morning the schooner could not be seen from shore, and it was uncertain whether the remainder of the crew had worked her into some other position or had set sail for another port.

Two Board Schooner.
Members of the crew told fishermen who responded to distress calls late yesterday and took the wounded men ashore that two men had boarded the schooner from a motor boat and discharged their revolvers without warning. Captain Moore, in spite of his wounds, returned the fire and wounded one of the attackers. The two men made no attempt to take off any of the vessels cargo of 8,000 cases of whiskey. Apparently alarmed at the resistance they had met, they jumped back into their motor boat and headed for shore.

JUDGE HOLDS COURT IN AUTO OF SICK DEFENDANT
Washington, Aug. 21.—Judge Robert E. Mattingly of the Municipal Court left the bench and held court in a "motor" parked in front of the Court House after being informed that M. B. Elbert, defendant in a law suit, was unable to leave his car because of paralysis.

Elbert was sued for a small amount by a real estate agent who said he had the contract to sell the Elbert home. Judge Mattingly sat in the rear seat with Elbert and heard his testimony and listened to the cross-examination. The unusual proceedings attracted a large crowd. The case was taken under advisement.

Rail Centres and Many Factories "Bombed" by 16 Huge Fliers.

Bangor, Maine, Aug. 21.—The U. S. air service yesterday carried out the greatest demonstration of air power seen in the U. S. since the war, when 16 huge Martin bombers flew from Langley Field, Virginia, to Bangor in eight and a half hours. Eight hundred miles was covered in the flight, which was under simulated war conditions. Rail centres, cities and factories along the route were thoroughly "bombed" by the airmen in their practice, and Bangor, a "city in danger," was saved.

MUNICIPALITY MEETING OPENS

New Era of Civic, Economic and Social Welfare Aim of Delegates.
(Special to Times-Star.)
Campbellton, Aug. 21.—Mayor McKay in opening the eighteenth annual convention of the Union of New Brunswick municipalities in the council chamber of the new municipal building began with a tribute to the late Governor-General, Lord Bessborough, whose death occurred shortly after his election to the presidency of the Union last year. He hoped their deliberations would express his sorrow.

Mayor McKay extended a most hearty welcome to the delegates. Alderman O'Brien and Golding of St. John and Belmont spoke in French and then in English endorsing the Mayor's greeting. Apart from these conventions they would exert a salutary influence in increasing the bond between the two races, all should unite to make New Brunswick the best and most prosperous of all the provinces.

Dr. Murray spoke in behalf of the county of Restigouche and cordially welcomed the Union for its second convention in the northern part of the province. He hoped their deliberations would speed a new era of civic, economic and social welfare.

Oscar, Blind 'Newsie,' to Marry Yetta, Sweetheart He Never Saw

New York, Aug. 21.—Oscar Herman, the blind newsboy of Clinton street, has never seen his bride-to-be. He probably never will, but they will be married. Oscar is blind, but he has a large brown eye that can see for them both. So Oscar is happy, and for several blocks the children are waiting to pile into the synagogue on Peck street a week from next Sunday to see the "newsie" and Yetta married.

They have known each other five years. Yetta was always kind to Oscar, ever since the first began to buy her papers at his stand and exchange little pleasantries over the purchase. The neighborhood got used to seeing them together. Yetta was always ready to give Oscar a helping hand and lead him around. Oscar cannot remember the time when he was able to see.

It was only within the last few weeks that they talked of getting married. Now they talk of nothing else. It is going to be a big wedding, with all the neighborhood there, and Yetta is having her satin dress and orange blossoms made ready just as if the bridegroom could see it all. She tells him from day to day what her shimmering satin will look like and Oscar can visualize it with the sixth sense of the blind.

In the house where Yetta lives three small girls and a boy are jumping around at the thought of attending a real wedding—like first one Yetta Stecka is like a big sister to the Wasser children. She has boarded with Mrs. Ida Wasser only relative to a brother who lives in Brooklyn. Yetta, who is about twenty-six years old, is a waif ex-aminer in a clothing house on Town.

Oscar is thirty-five and lives at 150 Clinton street. He and Yetta have been looking for a home and have found some rooms on Delancey street. After a few days' honeymoon they will settle down there and the newsie will go back to his stand and Yetta will take him to and from work. He is well known in the neighborhood and makes a fair living.

Motor Climbs Tree, Thrown To Another

Vineyard Haven, Aug. 21.—One of the queerest of motor accidents happened on the state highway in West Tisbury, when a small car struck an oak tree, bent it to an angle of 45 degrees, shinned up the entire height of the tree and made a perfect catapult curve, landing in the middle of another tree 20 feet away.

A branch of this tree turned the car over and it fell to the ground. Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Richards, who were in the car, were spilled into the underbrush, but were not seriously hurt. The police could hardly credit the story of what happened, yet the scrap board and bent tree were mute witnesses.

30 INJURED WHEN ROOF COLLAPSES

Actual Death Toll is Not Known as Ruins are Smoldering.
RECOVER 6 BODIES
Many Linesmen Crushed Under Tons of Debris as Flames Spread.

(Canadian Press)
New York, Aug. 21.—Rescue workers early today estimated that at least ten firemen had been killed, and more than 30 had been injured, some of them fatally in the collapse of the roof and a section of the wall during a fire which destroyed an old three story brick building in Brooklyn shortly after midnight.

The toll cannot be known until the still smoldering heart of the wreckage can be reached. Dawn found the weary rescue squad of firemen still burrowing toward the centre of the heap of brick and girders which was believed to be the sepulchre of at least a half dozen of their comrades.

Many Will Die.
From the ruins six dead had been taken before daylight came. Five or six more are believed to be in the debris. There were thirty-two injured in Brooklyn Hospital. Several of them will die, the police said.

The fire, of unknown origin, was in a 40-year-old building that formerly housed a Masonic temple. Of recent years it had housed two stores in its ground floor, and a saloon on the third stories. Firemen were given over to dance halls. Firemen found a stubborn fire in a wooden beam which he had heart of a close packed tenement district, three additional fire alarms were rung.

Working under the glare of a half dozen hastily erected arc lights, the fire fighters apparently had the fire under control at two a.m. The curious crowd had begun to disperse. A score of linesmen were on the lower floor with hysteresia, and their cries rose above the shouts and groans of the injured.

Wall Crashes In.
Without warning, a fifty-foot section of wall crashed in. A heavy steel girder, recently installed as an additional roof support, fell, with the crumbling wall, and carried its burden with it. The wall crushed most of the linesmen in the ground floor under tons of debris. Those on the fire escape were carried with the wall into the burning mass. The roof under the very heart of the building. The seventh floor was a wooden beam which he had straddled; in its fall it twisted its living freight into space, clear of the wreckage. He was rescued, only slightly hurt.

The crash was heard for blocks around and thousands of men, women and children flowed from the close packed tenements to crowd about the tragic spot and add to the confusion. The women, most of the of Latin extraction, for the quarter has many foreign residents, carried their horror with hysteria, and their cries rose above the shouts and groans of the injured.

Give Fifth Alarm.
A fifth alarm brought additional firemen as rescue workers, telephone calls summoned police reserves.

The rescuers worked, at first, under the glare of the flames which flared up anew with the crash. They continued their task under the light of several arcs hastily installed by their comrades. It was slow work. The debris was hot, and great clouds of smoke and steam arose as tons of water were poured on to cool the pile and facilitate rescues.

Whale Fights and Shakes Up Captors
Victoria, B. C., Aug. 21.—A monster sperm whale, after being harpooned, charged the whaling vessel Brown of the Pacific Consolidated Whaling Company, and damaged both propeller and shaft forty miles out from Kyauqui whaling station, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, recently. The boat was badly shaken. The propeller blades were snapped and the huge shaft bent nearly double, but the whale was captured.

Employes In States Show a Decrease
Washington, Aug. 21.—A decrease of 18 per cent. in the average number of employes in July as compared with June was shown in a report made public today by the department of labor giving preliminary figures for 6,738 representative establishments in fifty-one U. S. manufacturing industries.

The total amount of wages paid in the month showed a decrease of 4.7 per cent., while the average weekly earnings of the 2,383,258 employes were 2.9 per cent. less.

SILVER FORBIDS PAY RAISE FOR ALL STATE EMPLOYEES. Vetoes in Advance Plan to Add Million to Budget by Blanket Increase. Trenton, N. J., Aug. 20.—Governor Silzer, in a letter addressed to Charles P. Messick, secretary of the Civil Service Commission, has forbidden the proposed plan of increasing a general 10 per cent. increase in salary to employees of the state.

The Governor said he understood the proposed increase would mean additional expenditure of $750,000 in the state appropriations, and it would also state employees and would amount to $1,000,000 a year. Instead of writing for the budget to come up and be voted on, he has decided to make an announcement of his ideas in advance, so the commission might be advised of his attitude.

"I wish you would say to the Civil Service Commission that I am unalterably opposed at this time to any increase in our pay roll," the Governor wrote. "If I understand the temper of the people at present, when they are asked to pay more taxes, it is that they do not want an additional $1,000,000 yearly burden added to what they are already carrying."

SUICIDE ON WEDDING EVE. Dickman Wrote Brain Was Twisted and Torn by Oliver. St. Louis, Aug. 21.—Oliver G. Dickman, New York Evening World comic artist, who committed suicide by shooting himself in the head, was married next day to Miss Viola Schubert.

Miss Schubert said she had planned to marry Dickman by surprise to her relatives, who knew of their engagement, but did not know the ceremony had been contemplated for so early a date.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide. A note found in Dickman's clothing and read at the inquest said: "For the last six months I have had my mind twisted and torn by worry. No one knows how much. I can't get the pressure in New York for the end. The pressure in New York has been too great and most of all, the separation from Viola."

Relatives said they could not explain the phrase regarding separation from Viola, as they knew of no obstacles to the proposed marriage.

From time to time he returned to the factory and told the workmen that the rush of the crowds and the jibes directed at him were getting to be too much. He turned on all the gas jets of the kitchen stove, then sat in a chair beside the stove. His body was found by one of the workmen.

Mrs. Medley McKell, of the Manawagonish road, entertained a number of children and their parents yesterday afternoon in honor of the birthday of her little daughter, Leona. The party took the form of a picnic on the lawn and the afternoon was pleasantly spent. The children played games, while the grown-ups enjoyed social converse. Refreshments were served.

TROUBLES OF SUBWAY LIFE DROVE A GUARD TO SUICIDE

New York, Aug. 21—The troubled life of a subway guard proved too much for John O'Connor, 50, of East Eighty-fourth street, who committed suicide in the rest room of the Matheson Lead Company factory, in Long Island City.

O'Connor worked at the factory until about a year ago, when he got a job as a subway guard. From time to time he returned to the factory and told the workmen that the rush of the crowds and the jibes directed at him were getting to be too much. He turned on all the gas jets of the kitchen stove, then sat in a chair beside the stove. His body was found by one of the workmen.

Mrs. Medley McKell, of the Manawagonish road, entertained a number of children and their parents yesterday afternoon in honor of the birthday of her little daughter, Leona. The party took the form of a picnic on the lawn and the afternoon was pleasantly spent. The children played games, while the grown-ups enjoyed social converse. Refreshments were served.

DOLLAR DAY.

Are you awake to Dollar Day, its meaning, the personal advantage it offers you, and its actual practical effect in forwarding local trade?

The shops make the most careful preparation for this annual event, with the result that the customer gets quick service, has a wide variety of choice, readily gets what he or she is looking for, and is pretty well certain to see their articles the need for which had been forgotten until they met the eye.

THE FIGHTING INSTINCT.

From men too highly placed to be disregarded there came occasional warnings that further disarmament while it will be accomplished in time, is not a matter of tomorrow.

THE OTHER SIDE.

Certain classes in Berlin strike the visitor as well fed and apparently material most of the big nations are either increasing their margin of strength or holding themselves in preparation to do so.

There was a manifest note of caution and reserve, too, in the words of the Prime Minister, who, in summing up the debate commented on the difficulty of eradicating the fighting instinct in mankind, and insisted that without the will to peace all the efforts of legislation or arbitration must be vain.

operation of local and government authorities is evidently the outstanding need of the situation. A port is likely to keep the business it once gets. That which is forced into other channels is hard to recover.

"While American politicians are telling us what Europe is like," says the New York Independent, "would it not be well if some enterprising paper were to obtain first-hand impressions by, say, Lord Balfour and Clemenceau and Mussolini of some of our innocents abroad?"

DORCHESTER FIRE

Dorchester, N. B., Aug. 20—Fire which broke out at 9:45 tonight destroyed the residence of Aubrey Bishop and Frederick Boves in Main street and threatened to spread to much greater proportions, but was brought under control by the combined efforts of local fire fighters and a relief force from Sackville.

Two barns on the Bishop and Boves properties were also destroyed. The residence of F. B. Palmer caught fire but the flames were put out before the house was damaged to any extent.

The fire broke out in the Bishop house. The fire fighters were hampered because of the lack of water supply and had to depend on chemical apparatus.

Relief was also asked from Moncton, but the flames were under control before this help could arrive.

The loss was about $10,000; insurance, $2,400.

BANKER HOLDS PLAYGOING RECORD; REGULAR ATTENDANT SINCE 1850

S. G. Bayne, of New York, Has Known Many Stars.

(New York Sun.)

The oldest regular theatregoer in the world is the title claimed for S. G. Bayne, 79 years old, chairman of the board of directors of the Seaboard National Bank. This hale and hearty old gentleman, who was born in Ireland, was a first-nighter when foot-lights were gas flames, and when Sam Phelps, the tragedian, was setting flag-stand apart with his portrayal of the Melancholy Dane.

There are men alive today who went to the theatre before I did, perhaps," he told a reporter from The Sun and The Globe, "but in the oldest regular, I'm sure, I started frequenting the playhouses when I was 6. I've kept it up ever since. Even now I go four or five times a week."

Mr. Bayne has visited the theatre in virtually every part of the globe. He has known intimately many of the famous actors and actresses of other days, among them Charles Keen, Henry Irving, Ellen Terry, Gustavus Vaughan Brooke, Barry Sullivan, and John Lawrence Toole, the comedian.

From the pages of his memory he can bring back many rare and amusing stories of these glittering stage personalities of the past.

"It was in 1850," he continued reminiscently, "that I first went inside the portals of a playhouse. That was the beginning of my world. The performance was 'Hamlet' and Sam Phelps, one of the great actors of the day, was the star. I was only six years old and my father went with me—I was accompanying him from our home near Belfast on a tour of the principal cities of England.

The theatre was the old Sadler's Wells Playhouse in London. Of course, the production would be considered crude nowadays, but it made a great impression on me. Phelps moved me deeply and the historic display caused me great wonderment.

At this point the reporter could not refrain from asking this veteran playgoer how the Hamlet of Phelps compared with that of John Barrymore, which was seen in New York during the last season.

"I wouldn't go to see Barrymore's production, I understand it was very radical," said the aged financier with a dim, far away look in his eyes. "Barrymore played it without the Ghost. That isn't right. The part of the Ghost has been played by many of the most illustrious actors. The part to me, almost rivals that of Hamlet."

Recalls Pre-Jazz Age.

Mr. Bayne, who has led an adventurous, exciting life, full of travel and high finance, but who has always kept the theatre as his first love, then went on to tell more details about the theatre before jazz shows and bedroom farces. He has an engaging, youthful personality, in spite of his years, and his eyes twinkle as he recalls the "grand old days."

"The later years of my youth were spent in Belfast, where I indulged in an orgy of theatregoing," he said. "I was serving my time with Sir James Hamilton, a noted merchant. I saved my money and bought annual season tickets to the Theatre Royal, Belfast, was a great theatrical center, and was visited by all the London stars who toured the provinces.

"As the years went on my love of the theatre increased and I made frequent trips to London and European capitals to see the plays that didn't come to our town. I met all the famous actors and actresses of the day and became their friend.

"In Belfast was an internationally known theatre lover, one Dave McTear, who was the principal light in the Union Club of Belfast. He loved to give grand dinner parties and receptions to visiting players and he always included me, inasmuch as I knew so many of the actors.

"It was through him that I met Edward Askew Sotherton, the father of E. H. Sotherton, who, as his son did, made a huge success with the part of Lord Dundreary. The elder Sotherton and a party of us went one day to the races near Belfast. We rode out in a four-in-hand, and Mr. Sotherton won a pool of £50 on the main race.

Praise for Elder Sotherton.

"He loved gay parties and after his £50 'victory' he spent all the money on entertaining us and the proceedings waxed merry indeed. His was a delightful, scintillating personality that I shall never forget as long as I live.

"Included among my other special friends at the time, about sixty years ago, was that great actor Henry Irving. He was turning London upside down with his Hamlet, but the critics—they were almost as pedantic in those old days as they are now—used to make unmerciful fun of his pronunciation and his many mannerisms. He was of Cornish birth and his real name—not many know it—was John Henry Brodribb.

"His accent lasted so long as he lived. He couldn't pronounce the word 'queen.' Instead, he always made it 'quane.' The funny papers of the day used to refer to him in jest as 'the Eminent Wan.'

"In later years when Irving came to America—I was here then—he was at first afraid to appear in New York as Hamlet, because of his Cornish accent and the mannerisms complained of. Accordingly, he decided to use Philadelphia as a 'dog town,' and put it on there. He took a great company, which included Ellen Terry, William Terris, and many other actors of note, with him.

"He invited me to go along in the special train and it was a glorious occasion. The performance in Philadelphia was a great success. Invited were all the literary and social lights of the town, and they applauded Irving rapturously, in spite of his accent.

"I went back to his dressing room after the performance and he was feeling in a playful mood. 'Payne,' he said to me, 'I remember many years ago in Belfast, you had been drinking a bit of Bush Mills malt and you thought you would make a great Othello. From now on I'm going to train you for the part. Who knows? Perhaps you'll be the greatest actor of the day.'

"I only laughed at the bogus offer. In turn, I said: 'Mr. Irving, what action would you take against some one, if he called you 'Hen' to denote his intimacy with you?'

A woman in Hamilton, Ont., had a wardrobe extensive enough to meet the requirements of a dozen or more of her neighbors. But she didn't split it up with them. She never paid cash and she had no charge account, police say. Now she's being held on a shoplifting charge. Articles merchants say she stole from them filled every nook in the court room. Here they are.

Adolph to a bit of boxwood hedge on the fringes of the pretty lawn in front of his sailor's boarding house, in that section of Brooklyn vulgarly referred to as Red Hook. Two or three innocent children of the Red Hook populace, playing hooky as is the little dear went, joined Adolph in his innocent merrymaking and, before very long, one of them had Adolph by his tail.

"I dubbed the most famous actor in Japan at the time the 'Henry Irving of Japan.' I didn't think he was a good actor at all, but he got a princely salary because he could act out twenty different ways of killing men with a great deal of realism. He really worked up some splendid illusions, and he also had to be carried out of the theatre on a sort of stretcher when his efforts were finished.

"Apparently he would drown men in vats of water on the stage, knife them to death, saw them in two—how he did it I don't know. I still have some of the old play bills showing how he was advertised as an accomplished actor in the art of doing away with the race of men."

Monkey, Free, Has Lark In Brooklyn

Plays Jungle Pranks on Folks In Two Days of Roaming.

New York, Aug. 20.—An extraordinary monkey, the name of which is not known, was captured in the bathroom in the house of Mrs. E. J. Lehigh, Brooklyn, and thus ended two days of worry for the Brooklyn police—worry that almost called for a casting letter and a few lines of verse from Commissioner Enright to Mayor Hylan.

The monkey's name is Adolph, meaning seeker after knowledge, and he was released to Brooklyn by a sailor from Takuatamba, a celebrated port on the white gold coast of Africa. The sailor was in his boarding house room at Bush and Columbia streets, on Tuesday morning studying his lines in 'Philoena in Taurus,' a play he and his honest seafaring brothers contemplate giving at sundown September 1 on the five masted schooner Hyacinth, which will be at that time well on its way to Pernambuco to take on a load of rare lumber.

The owners of the Hyacinth insist that their sailors cultivate the esthetic sides of their natures and it is in this manner that the bluff fellows please their employers as well as while away the lonely hours at sea.

Seizes Adolph by Tail.

While thus engrossed, the sailor (he has asked that his name be withheld), in the meantime with the vice that, since time began, has been recognized as the voice of freedom. But the milkman raised his voice, also, and policemen, hearing, came quickly. But not in time to capture Adolph.

AND SHE NEVER BOUGHT A THING!

In Sackett street Adolph came upon sounds of early morning revels. Through a small, opaque window the sounds proceeded. Beyond that window a human heart was leaping with the sheer joy of living. There was a splashing as of a wild cataract not to mention a swooning as of a wild bath taker. Life and happiness filled that room and Adolph was looking for a playmate. He entered because the window was open in invitation.

A piercing scream, slamming of a door and Adolph found himself alone in the bathroom. The wild spirit to which he had come had fled. And pretty soon three men came with a raincoat which they threw over Adolph and his two days of freedom were over. He is now in the care of the S. P. C. A., and his owner may have him as soon as he can spare time away from his studies of the Greek theatre. And the Brooklyn police may now settle back to defending themselves against the underworld interest which, though the columns of the traction controlled press, would deprive them of their rightful heritage or something

Adolph, partaking of the spirit of the game, bit the hand that slung him and, incidentally, gained freedom from his leash. Adolph sniffed the Red Hook air. Ah, but it was good. The jungle, the jungle, the free, glorious jungle once more. He took stock of himself and decided that it was food he required.

He tried Hoyt street at a venture. So many people have done that very same thing. Through an open window in Hoyt street leaped Adolph, first taking care not to injure any of the delicate tendrils of honeysuckle with which the window was made fragrant and the family within gaid.

Adolph found himself in a well filled dining-room. Twelve sweet Greek children were helping to fill it. Their parents, gently schooling the little ones in the etiquette of the sales manager, did not see Adolph until he, mischievous wight, laid hold of a loaf of bread and ran laughing lightly back to the window. The police were notified, not, mind you, that this gentle family cared when they thought of Adolph wandering homeless in Red Hook.

Adolph took on his flight from that scene of well bred eating, lay an honest workman. His name is Luigi Di Cabidocci. He was taking the strong man's forty winks, so to speak, as it was noon and the laborer is worthy of his hire.

Roots on Man's Face.

Playfully Adolph leaped upon the fine Italian countenance. A baritone voice—clear as De Luca's and as manly as Straciar's—issued from the face on which Adolph rested. It demanded that police attend and that help be requisitioned forthwith. The police responded but Adolph had crept on and was seen no more that day.

Yesterday morning the sprightly little fellow joined a Red Hook milkman on his rounds and nothing would do really of milk—but he must roll bottles of milk hither and yon, chattering

PRIMROSE LOST 29 YEARS AGO

Yachting Disaster Off This Harbor in Which Eight Died.

Today is the twenty-ninth anniversary of the yachting disaster in which the sloop Primrose was sunk off the southwestern end of Manawagonish Island, and her owner and captain, Samuel Hutton, of the famous Paris crew, was drowned, with seven of his crew. It was on Tuesday, August 21, 1894, during a race for the Corporation Yachting Cup, during a very heavy squall, that the Primrose went to the bottom.

ing line, off the Customs House, about one o'clock in the afternoon. There was a nice northerly wind blowing at the start, the Primrose having a slight lead, while the Maple Leaf, having had some trouble with her sails, was the last to leave. A little to the southward of Partridge Island the Maple Leaf got on even terms with the other boats, she and the Gracie M., got a slight lead when they ran into a calm. A soon as a long, dark line of clouds was seen gathering in the northwest. The northwester came out with terrible fury. The Maple Leaf first felt its effects; she was carrying a mainsail, gafftopsail and three jibs, the outer one being a big balloon containing ninety yards of canvas. The other yachts had all their sails on with the exception of spinnakers. The Maple Leaf's downhaul parted and the big balloon ballooned out in the water and the yacht was gradually being overturned when the topsail broke and she righted. The Primrose went over almost with the first violence of the squall and went down in about two minutes. This heavy squall was followed by others and in the meantime the tug Lillie, which was the official boat, hastened to the scene and saved the four men in the water.

INVITE PARK MEN TO TALK IT OVER

Rotarians Tell of Situation Relative to the Allison Playgrounds.

The Rotary Club wants to spend some money and do development work on the Allison playgrounds, which are held by the St. John Horticultural Society, in order that the grounds may be put in good shape for the boys this fall, but the special committee appointed for the purpose of taking up this matter report that they have run against a snag. It appears from the discussion which took place at yesterday's Rotary Club meeting that the committee has been endeavoring for the last five or six weeks to get the City Council and the society to endorse their proposed development work. Commissioner Frink, the commissioner of parks and playgrounds, it was reported, was heartily in accord with the desires of the club, but he said he had no authority to act. The directors of the Horticultural Society, so the committee reported, do not look with favor upon their scheme of development and to date the committee has not been able to secure the authority to build on the grounds a dressing room, shelter which is very much needed.

VISITING K. P. MAN DIES IN MONCTON

Moncton, Aug. 20.—A tinge of sorrow will mark the annual convention of the maritime domain of the Knights of Pythias, which opens here tomorrow. Dr. Frederick William MacPherson, of Lynn, Mass., who came here a week ago to attend the annual session of this domain, died here today at the residence of his sisters whom he was visiting. The late Dr. MacPherson was a past chancellor of Abraham Lincoln Lodge, K. of P., Salem, Mass., and also a member of the I. O. O. F. He was born in Fredericton, N. B., 75 years ago but had resided in Lynn for the last 34 years, during which time he had been engaged extensively as a medical practitioner. He was a graduate in arts of the University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, and a graduate of Harvard in medicine. Thomas Melette appeared in the police court yesterday afternoon and pleaded guilty to keeping intoxicating liquor in his premises in Prince Edward street. He was fined $200, which amount he paid.

CYRIL McADAM GOES UP FOR TRIAL Cyril McAdam, a young man, was charged in the police court yesterday afternoon with stealing money from the firm conducting the Phonograph Salon, 25 King Square, between July 1, and September 30, 1921. Louis Lelacheur, gave evidence that the accused was in his employ during 1921, and was engaged in selling phonographs and Christmas cards on commission, that he had taken a portable phonograph valued at $80, and Christmas cards to a total value of $70, and had only made returns of $10 to the firm. Harold Finley, another member of the firm, corroborated the evidence given by the previous witness. In answer to the charge, the accused said that he had purchased the phonograph from a former manager of the Salon for $20, and that all the money he received for the postal cards was $20. He was committed for trial.

Eases Kitchen Work To Women Who Do Their Own Work: Suppose you could save six minutes every day in washing pots and pans—two minutes after every meal. In a month, this would amount to a saving of three hours of this disagreeable but necessary work. This saving can be made by using SMP enameled kitchen utensils, as their smooth sanitary surface will not absorb dirt or grease. No scraping, scouring or polishing is needed when you use Diamond or Pearl Ware. Soap, water and a dish towel is all you need. Ask for SMP Enameled Ware. WESTFIELD EN FETE
THURSDAY NIGHT

Entire Community With Their City Friends Will Help to Entertain Each Other—A Big Crowd Expected.

The Westfield Community residents are never stereotyped in their efforts to entertain, and when they promise something both interesting and practical for Thursday evening, at the Club House, interest is readily aroused.

A concert is announced for eight o'clock as a certain raiser to a comedy drama in which will participate all the community residents, and it is expected many from the city. Thirty of the most attractive young ladies in the village will play leading roles, and oposite them as a finale will be chosen the lucky swains who have earned the right to assist the young ladies in the certain samples of the culinary art. In other words, Westfield, Thursday evening, is to stage a mammoth old fashioned picnic for the benefit of the Hillendale Church, and they want their friends, both in town and country, to rally to their assistance, as until the church is completed one of the most distressing sorrows of the great town remains unrelieved.

Four Westfield cooks, (male) have been delegated by President Warwick to protect the nursery, so that everyone attending Thursday evening will be sure and get their money's worth.

KAISER NOT THERE
WHEN THEY CALLED

Rev. Dr. Hutchinson Writes of Visit With G. S.
Mayes.

That the meetings of the World's Baptist Congress in Stockholm, to which he was a delegate, had been wonderful was a statement made by Rev. Dr. David Hutchinson, pastor of Main Street Baptist church, in a letter received by a member of his congregation. Dr. Hutchinson had returned to England, but was not certain just when he would sail for home. Before going to Stockholm, Dr. Hutchinson and G. S. Mayes, who accompanied him, spent a week in Germany, visiting Hamburg, Berlin and Potsdam.
They considered both Hamburg and Berlin fine cities, large and beautiful, and the population as a whole seemed to be quite prosperous and happy although they heard of a number of cases of poverty. In Potsdam they visited the beautiful castle, formerly occupied by Kaiser Wilhelm, but Dr.
Hutchinson wrote "strange to say he was not on hand to greet them."

MAYOR'S BUILDING
CASE IS SETTLED

Agreement Reached, Injunction Dissolved—Concrete Wall Necessary.

Mayor Fisher is now entitled to proceed with the repairs to his building in Charlotte street, the injunction having been dissolved this morning on His Worship agreeing to certain conditions imposed by the building inspector.

The matter came before Mr. Justice White in Chambers this morning and His Honor ordered that the case be dismissed and the injunction dissolved, the parties to the case having arrived at a private settlement and a permit for the repairs having been issued, and that no order be issued for costs.

It is understood the building inspector specified that a concrete wall must be built between the building and the Globe Laundry and that metal sheeting be used on the walls and ceiling.

M. G. Teed, K. C., appeared for Mayor Fisher and W. H. Harrison, K.
C., for the building inspector.

ON DUTY AGAIN.
John Brooks, mayor's clerk, is back at his desk after a two weeks vacation, which he spent at his summer home, Pamandance owing to an accident which he met with two weeks ago. Mr.
Brooks had intended spending the vacation in the Annapolis valley.

LOCAL NEWS

ASKS ABOUT ST. JOHN.

The Board of Trade has received from a publishing company in Iowa a request for information about the new St. John buildings of a public character and civic improvements within the last five years. The necessary data is being prepared for forwarding.

TO ADDRESS BUSINESS MEN.

The Board of Trade has arranged a meeting for Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock to hear J. S. MacKinnon, who will speak on the matter of Canadian exhibits at the Empire Exhibition. The Board is sending out invitations to all the St. John manufacturers to attend and hear Mr. MacKinnon.

TAXATION QUESTION.

The question that is agitating the minds of some people who reside in the county but work in the city, is whether they should pay a tax for county purposes in both the city and county. It is contended by one this morning that he was paying the same tax twice and that was contrary to all principles of taxation. He said he pays on income only and to bear out his contention that in the city he was taxed 80 cents on $100 for the upkeep of the various institutions and for the same purpose he was taxed in the county $2.01 per $100.

REPORT GOOD CONVENTION.

The St. John delegates to the annual convention of the Churches of Christ, held at Lord's Cove, Deer Island, returned to the city last evening and report one of the most successful conventions ever held in the Maritime Provinces. The delegates returned by way of St. George and while in that town they were shown through the pulp mill and several of the granite manufacturing establishments. Among those who regarded yesterday were Postmaster J.
S. Flagler, J. B. Prince, Harold Johnston, Mrs. F. Coggins, Miss Maggie Roberts, Miss Armstrong of this city; J.
Miss Wright and Miss Stewart of Charlottetown and Miss Cossaboon, Tiverton, N. S. Rev. W. J. and Mrs. Johnston are returning today.

Imperial Picture Theatre Spur to Works of Charity

A few days ago The Imperial presented a deeply spiritual play. The theme dealt with the reformation of a great man, who having become crust and morose through deafness learned the great lesson of loving kindness and service by his ability to read the lips of afflicted people who had been spied with opera glasses from his park-side window.

The picture carried a powerful moral. It preached the philosophy that sometimes our personal calamities may become blessings. Thousands of people seemed impressed with the spiritual force of the play, at least one citizen must have taken it close to his heart.

The coincidence—if indeed it was not more than a coincidence—was this:—
In the photograph the great man whose head was turned from heaviness to real joy through service and timely help, among other good deeds bought a large doll and teddy bear for some orphan children and became to them an impromptu Santa Claus.

The picture had not completed its run at the local theatre when an anonymous caller at the door of a city orphange left a large parcel for the children. It was found to contain a doll and teddy bear. The gentleman smilingly refused to give his name, made some apologetic remark about the second-hand toys, and quickly departed. As a matter of fact the players were brand new.

Like pretty nearly everything else in this daily life of our moving picture entertainment, would appear to be a mixture of the good, indifferent and perhaps once in a while, something that exciting people would consider had. It is at least to the credit of the screen that its edifying and inspirational pictures speak with a louder voice, reaching the minds and hearts of a wider range of people than either of the printed sermon or the spoken word.

AGAIN TALK OVER
COST OF POLICE

Lancaster Summer Residents Continue Committee in Office.

"To have or not to have" seems to be the state of mind of the summer residents of the Parish of Lancaster in respect to police protection. At a meeting last evening they authorized the committee appointed a week ago to make the best possible arrangement with the municipality both as regards police protection and adjustment on the assessment for this year.

James Brittain was in the chair and G. McNalin was secretary. S. G.
Olive reported on the conference with the assessment committee of the Municipal Council. They discussed at some length and it was pointed out that next year's assessment would probably be not more than half of this year, as there would not be the amount of arrears and the opinion expressed that the protection was worth that much money.

It was finally decided, on the motion of Charles Magnusson, seconded by Willis Waring, to continue the former committee in office and give them authority to make the best possible arrangement for the necessary police protection and a reduction in the assessment for this year.

Now we are told that matrimony promises life. But does not that depend somewhat upon the woman's aim?—Cleveland Times and Commercial.

DINGLEY IN WITH 350 PASSENGERS

St. John People Return;
Others Receive Visitors from U. S.

The Eastern Steamship Line Governor Dingley arrived this morning about 10 o'clock from Boston via Eastport and Lunenburg with 350 passengers and more than fifty tons of general cargo.
The majority of the passengers left for the Union Station, where they entrain-ed on the C. N. R. for points east.

Among those coming to St. John were:
Miss Alma Burke of Lynn, Mass.,
Mrs. Patrick Killen, St. James street,
Miss Nan Nugent and Miss Agnes Dolan returned home after visiting Miss Nugent's sister, Mrs. Halnes, in Boston.

Walter Comeau, a past chancellor of the Knights of Pythias Lodge in Cambridge, Mass., arrived enroute to Mon-ton to attend the Grand Council. He was met by William Deming, who will take him to Moncton by automobile.

NOT TO MEET TODAY.
The Civic Power Commission meeting scheduled for this afternoon has been postponed until the last of the week, probably on Thursday afternoon.

FATHER NUGENT
GOES TO FAIRVILLE

Transferred There as Curate to Very Rev. Dean Collins.

It is learned today that Rev. Robert J. Nugent, who has been stationed at the Cathedral for the last year as curate to Rev. W. W. Duke, rector, has been appointed curate to Very Rev.
Dean Charles Collins, rector of Fairville Church. Father Nugent will take up his new duties this week. Father

Nugent was ordained in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception on May 1, 1922 by His Lordship Bishop E. A.
LeBlanc.

Very Rev. Dean Collins was ordained on September 21, 1878 by Archbishop Charles Sabre in the Grand Seminary, Montreal. There was a class of forty-five ordained at that time. Father Collins was stationed at the Cathedral here until the spring of 1879 when he went to Milltown as curate to Rev.
James Quinn. He remained there six months at Sussex and Carleton after eighteen months and then spent six months at Sussex and Carleton after he returned to the Cathedral where he remained for three years. He then went to Chipman for one year and one another into being reasonable?—

AWAY TO MONCTON.
Some St. John delegates to the Pythian Grand Lodge left this morning for Moncton where the session opens today and a number of "Doseys" will leave this evening and tomorrow morning for the big ceremonial on Wednesday.

Still, if there were no Reds, how would European nations scare
one another into being reasonable?—

BRITISH JOURNAL TURNS BACK ITS PAGES AND RECALLS 100 YEARS AGO

Days When News was Handled Discreetly and Sparingly.

(New York Sun.) "Gentlemen—" It is Mr. Dempsey talking. His sparring setto with Mr. Gibbons had given satisfaction. He had "busted as usual." And now it was time for him to "return thanks."

Mr. Dempsey sits down, winces. Obviously, things were different a hundred years ago. Prize fighters no longer make statements from the ring—especially in periodic sentences.

Such, for example, as here and there quoted account of the sparring matches which, with little indifference to its readers' betting proclivities, contained not a word of any of the winners of the six matches scheduled.

One of the stories told in the 1923 paper is sufficiently entertaining in itself to triumph over the difficulties of the reader by both the teller, the lack of headlines and the somewhat confusing editorial policy which results in later developments of one incident being placed in different parts of the paper.

The respectable woman's distress was occasioned by the disappearance of her daughter—nameless in the Southampton, etc.—who she had reason to believe had left her home in Chichester and gone to London with a baronet.

forth had a firm belief in the faithfulness of their readers, however. On the next page, quite unconnected with that which has gone before, lurks another item, also succinctly headlined "Bow Street."

Not "without cause," surely, was the good Sir—perturbed! Other items reflect old customs, some certainly happily superseded. There is, for example:

PREMIER TO REMAIN ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Montreal, Aug. 20.—Hon. I. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec, denied in an interview here today that he was about to relinquish the post of Attorney General of the province, although remaining at the head of the Government.

What kind of sleep satisfies you?

Some sleep so soundly they do not hear even the crash and roll of a thunderstorm. Others start awake at the flapping of a curtain or the honk of a passing motor car. The sound sleepers get the kind of rest that renews vigor and stores fresh energy for the coming day. They are the "men who do things"—the women and girls whose vitality is equal to every opportunity of social or business life. The light sleepers seldom "let go" and dip down to the strength-restoring levels of deep, dreamless rest. As often as not, it is only a sagging spring or a lumpy, worn-out mattress that cheats them. Simmons "Banner" Spring. Why not give your bedding the careful study it deserves tonight? Then go to your furniture dealer and compare it with the cradling comfort of the Simmons "Banner" spring and Ostermoor mattress. Two cents a night pay for their years of service. Study the "Banner". Examine the whole line of Simmons springs. They are economical—do not sag—and keep their life for many years. They are priced, like Simmons beds and mattresses, to fit any pocketbook.

DESPERATE STUFF THIS; WOULD GROW HAIR ON A DOOR KNOB

Chicago, Aug. 21—A veritable lake of hair tonic, 2,448 cases—29,276 pints—sufficient to make Chicago the hairiest city in the world, and keep the barbers' union busy for many months, was seized today by Federal prohibition agents, who found it contained 93 per cent. alcohol, and carried a too-powerful "kick" for the bald pate. The stuff was held in three warehouses. It was made in New York.

"This is the most powerful hair tonic ever seized," said William Hassett, one of the Government operatives. "It is strong enough to grow hair on a door knob."

MYSTERY OF SWIFT STAR IS GIVEN UP BY THE SEA

New York, Aug. 21.—The scorched body of a man, apparently a seaman, picked up among the wreckage on oil-strewn waters in the Caribbean Sea last month, apparently has explained the fate of the tanker Swift Star, which vanished as mysteriously as did the U. S. collier, Cyclops, several years ago.

C. D. Maloney & Company, owners of the tanker, have decided that a bolt of lightning sank the vessel, which carried a crew of 28 men.

SAYS NON-UNIONIST ATTITUDE WICKED

Chicago Presbyterian Paper Condemns Opponents of Union in Canada

Chicago, Aug. 20—"No just name for it except sin," is the caption of an editorial appearing in The Continent, one of the leading Presbyterian church papers of the United States, in discussing the attitude of the non-unionists in the Presbyterian Church in Canada in opposition to the proposed union with the Methodist and Congregational Churches.

The editorial points out that the church is in the habit of condemning sin in those outside, and asks who is going to condemn sin in the church itself.

The editorial goes on to say: "The Continent thinks that such a time has come when the anti-union Presbyterian minority in Canada declares its determination to prevent the union of the Presbyterian and Methodist denominations there by injunctions sued out in the civil courts. For such an attitude in such a case there is only one judgment possible where the distinction between right and wrong is equitably held for all classes of people, professedly religious or confessedly irreligious. That judgment is that this kind of opposition to the union of Christians is wicked, and if not repented of, must incur the severest condemnation of a just God. For there are no reasons embodied in the form or in any other factor of the union agreement now consummated which can sustain a doubt that this united Canadian church will function for the greater glory of God. All the reasons that are given for opposing the union have their rootage not in the glory of God but in the selfish and totally irreligious prejudices of men, on which account they deserve to be completely reprobated by all Christian people."

The editorial concludes: "This is plain speaking—plainer than would be pleasant for the leaders of the union cause in Canada to employ. For that reason it may help them to have some outsider say what needs to be said. And it is hoped that some at least of the antagonists of union will be smitten in conscience by the proper characterization of their sin."

Get Liquor Seized In Three Year Raids

Unknown Robbers Loot Seizure Room When Agents Are Recalled.

Philadelphia, Aug. 21.—Half a dozen prohibition agents were called into this city from Harrisburg recently, simultaneously with their departure from the Capital City there also vanished from the seizure room three aquors of all descriptions, the accumulation of three years of raids. State prohibition officials are upset and attempts were made to suppress the news.

Divisional Chief Sams decided that the Volstead act should be enforced more successfully if all the agents were centralized in this city. Orders were issued to various branch heads throughout the State to desert their offices and send all agents here. They reported to the State headquarters early Monday the local office was informed of the disappearance of the liquor. An investigation revealed that the liquor vanished on Sunday. It is the belief of some of the agents that as soon as they left Harrisburg some unknown persons slipped into the seizure room. An automobile load of unknown men who were seen leaving Harrisburg prohibition headquarters early Saturday afternoon seemed to be in a hilarious mood.

Mr. Sams issued a statement saying the robbery was an "inside job." According to the statement robbers who were employed around the seizure room were accused, but no arrests have been made.

His Mistake.

Little Bobby, who had been playing with a neighbor's daughter, came sobbing to his mother and declared that his playmate had pulled his hair.

"Why, Bobby," his mother gasped, "I thought she was such a nice little girl that she would never do a thing like that."

"She did!" wailed Bobby. "That's why I kicked her."—American Legion Weekly.

THE EVENING TIMES-STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B., TUESDAY, AUGUST 21, 1923

Policemen Long To Be Detectives

pressed, decided to give the fellow a chance.
Policemen on an Inspector's staff are commonly known as plainclothes men, and the work they are called to do is of a somewhat different nature than that of members of the Detective Bureau. The men of the bureau are chiefly interested in investigating such crimes as burglaries, felonious assaults, and murders and in apprehending the perpetrators, whereas the Inspector's men are interested in upholding the morals of the community. It is their duty to see that vice, gambling and kindred crimes are kept down.
The new plainclothes men experiences that he did not encounter on patrol. He becomes thoroughly acquainted with gamblers' methods. He gets to know the tricks they use to hook with the police. It is a common thing for two plainclothes men to engineer a raid by themselves and corral twenty-five or fifty devotees of craps or racing.

A certain plainclothes man, finding no way to enter a Harlem building in which a game was in progress, went to the roof and dropped through a skylight into a group of astonished negro crap shooters. The policeman marched his prisoners through the streets to the station house while gazing denizens of the neighborhood looked on. When the prisoners were arraigned in court they made a formidable array. Gazing at them the Magistrate asked the arresting officers to step forward. The single policeman did as requested and the Magistrate asked him where his fellow policemen were. The policeman replied modestly that he was the sole arresting officer.

"What?" the Magistrate exclaimed. "Do you mean to say you arrested this band all by yourself? How did you do it?"

"I surrounded them, sir," replied the policeman.

Many detectives bear the stamp of their calling, and clever crooks recognize them at sight. Many, however, would never be taken for what they are. Some dress in such a rough fashion that even fellow policemen are unable to recognize them. Then the detective shows his police shield, which he always carries for identification. These rough-looking policemen, because no one would mistake them for "cops," are able to enter places without exciting suspicion and so gain a first-hand knowledge of crooks and their ways.

DISTURB MUSIC LOVERS.

Plainclothesman Watson, of the police force, is performing excellent work in the King square. While automobile horns have become silent during band concerts, the many hundreds of people who gather in the square have been annoyed by the disorderly conduct of young boys, and several girls, who apparently are not present to enjoy the excellent music but to make a playground of the square, chasing one another about the band stand, calling loudly and making such a disturbance that it is very annoying. Last night about 9:30 Officer Watson caught three boys who were the chief disturbers and took them to police headquarters, their names were taken and the largest of the trio is no stranger. Chief of Police Smith gave them a severe lecture and allowed them to go. It is said that one of the forms of amusement to young boys is to stick pins into girls as they promenade through the walks. The Chief of Police is sincere, when he states that all disorderly boys and girls will in the future be taken into custody, and the youngsters can take this as a final warning.

Yankee Veteran Woods Rumanian Princess

Bucharest, July 25.—(Associated Press)—Queen Marie tells a story about her youngest daughter, Princess Ilyeana, in which an American doughboy living in Pennsylvania figures. The former Yankee soldier, who had served on the western front in France, returned to his father's farm in a little town near Philadelphia, where he saw photographs of the little princess with her pet dog in Sunday newspaper pictorial supplements. Enamoured of her smile and girlish beauty, the doughboy wrote the princess asking her to correspond with him, and saying if she would become his girl he would "never take any other girl to the movies." The princess, who is just past 14 and surpassingly pretty, replied to the Yankee soldier boy, enclosing her photograph and saying she had heard a lot about the gallantry of the American soldiers and would be delighted to hear from him again. The doughboy replied expressing his renewed admiration for Europe's prettiest princess, and a wish to see her in real life. Ilyeana was about to acknowledge his letter when Queen Marie discovered the correspondence and cautioned her that she must not raise false hopes in the heart of her youthful admirer. She ceased her letters regretfully, but the princess, who is a girl of spirit, marked that the frequent reports of King Boris of Bulgaria were fabricated and cited the doughboy story as illustrating the childish simplicity of Ilyeana and her unpreparedness for marriage.

Organized target practice held once a week during a six-week period in the summer season before the opening of the hunting season has been a big factor in increasing sales of guns and ammunition in the Dulbech-Scoville Hardware Company in William, Minn.

In six weeks last summer the firm sold 800 worth of guns and ammunition largely as a result of the target practice stunt and a special window display.

The target practice was held once a week under direction of one of the salesmen in the store and the invited to attend, and was offered as prizes to the persons having the best scores at the end of the period.

The target practice was well advertised in the community, and the newspapers and a large number of contestants entered. At the target practice stock guns were used and prospective customers in this way had an opportunity to test various models and see for themselves how the guns would perform. This proved an excellent sales aid. In addition the salesman had an excellent opportunity to demonstrate the various hunting conditions.

Guns used in target practice were supplied by the store and were from stock. The stunt attracted much attention in the community, especially among farmers, and in addition to the contestants drew many spectators.

One gun was awarded a prize, a mounted deer, and another to experienced hunters.

Backing up the target practice, the store arranged a special window display. It consisted of a forest scene, a deer, a mounted deer, and an assortment of guns and ammunition displayed nearby. Attractive cards told the story of the gun and set forth interesting facts about each model. At the same time the store used considerable space in the newspapers advertising guns and announcing the dates for the target practice.

Yellow Fever Germ Being Wiped Out In Every Section

Dread Disease Is Expected to Be Memory of the Past.

A recent report based on a world-wide survey states that yellow fever is coming more and more under control of the medical and sanitary agencies of many nations working on the problem.

The big strides have been taken toward conquering this disease in recent years are told in a recent communication to the National Geographic Society by William Joseph Showalter, who even predicts that soon medical science can advance that yellow fever "has been banished from the face of the earth and that the germ which causes it has become extinct along with the dinosaur, the dodo, the great auk and the passenger pigeon."

How the strongholds of this disease, of which all hot countries stood in terror a generation or more under control, are being wiped out is told in a recent world-wide survey.

This proved an excellent sales aid. In addition the salesman had an excellent opportunity to demonstrate the various hunting conditions.

Guns used in target practice were supplied by the store and were from stock. The stunt attracted much attention in the community, especially among farmers, and in addition to the contestants drew many spectators.

One gun was awarded a prize, a mounted deer, and another to experienced hunters.

Backing up the target practice, the store arranged a special window display. It consisted of a forest scene, a deer, a mounted deer, and an assortment of guns and ammunition displayed nearby. Attractive cards told the story of the gun and set forth interesting facts about each model. At the same time the store used considerable space in the newspapers advertising guns and announcing the dates for the target practice.

Stresemann Forms New Four-Party Coalition Government in Germany

PRESIDENT AND MRS. EBERT, MRS. STRESEMANN.

Berlin.—The task of forming a new four-party coalition government for Germany, including representatives of the United Socialist, Clerical, People's and Democratic parties, fell upon the shoulders of Dr. Gustav Stresemann, head of the People's Party, and called "the mouthpiece of the industrialists."

Politicians expected Stresemann to take the post of Foreign Minister, in view of the difficulty of finding a man for the place. The new coalition government will have all of the 469 votes in the Reichstag except 71 Nationalist votes and 26 Communist votes.

Stresemann, the former Foreign Minister, is expected to take the post of Foreign Minister, in view of the difficulty of finding a man for the place. The new coalition government will have all of the 469 votes in the Reichstag except 71 Nationalist votes and 26 Communist votes.

SAYS POOL HAS YET TO PROVE SUCCESS

Yorkton, Sask., Aug. 20.—At present we cannot say whether the wheat pool is going to be a success or not, declared Premier Charles A. Dunning, in an address at Springside Saturday night.

Premier Dunning stated that he did not believe it was possible to make any change in the present form of marketing which would bring better returns.

"This province," he said, "will average 250,000,000 bushels of wheat, whereas the total production of the world will be 2,500,000,000 bushels, and it will be impossible by juggling to force people to pay a higher price for our wheat. The whole trouble is that we have some wheat to sell to a market which is 5,000 miles away and which has no money."

"Now," he said, "you please yourselves about signing the contract or not. If you sign it you are in for five years. It will probably be a good thing. It will not bring such good results as some of the advocates say and unless 50 per cent of the farmers enter it will not operate at all. However, the pool has my blessing."

INSURANCE AGENT RECOVERS APPETITE

Generally Run-Down After Long, Trying Winter, Mr. Harmer Tries Dreo, With Splendid Results.

Mr. E. T. Harmer, the popular insurance agent of 107 Prince William Street, St. John, N. B., is a practical business man, who, realizing the need of a reliable tonic, selected Dreo. As it is usual in all such cases, this splendid remedy quickly toned and regulated his whole system and restored Mr. Harmer to his accustomed health and spirits.

Mr. Harmer's statement which follows, is particularly appropriate at this season of the year, when everyone is in need of a spring tonic to properly flush out the system and put it in shape for the hot summer months.

"I was not feeling well after the hard winter we had and I was badly in need of a good tonic. I felt weak and could not eat. I had no appetite at all. I heard so many good reports of Dreo that I thought I would try it. I have only used one bottle and I feel fine. I eat heartily and my strength is coming back. I feel literally like a new man. Dreo certainly is a great tonic and I recommend it strongly."

Not only is Dreo a splendid tonic and corrective for all digestive ailments, but it is perfectly safe and natural in its ingredients and action and, compounded with scientific accuracy from herbs, roots, bark and leaves of known medicinal value, it contains no mercury, potash or habit-forming drugs.

Dreo is being specially introduced in St. John by Ross Drug Co., 100 King Street. It is also sold by Moore's Drug Store, 105 Prince Edward Street, and W. F. Nieme, 357 Main Street. It is also sold in Fairville by T. H. Wilson, in West St. John by Watson R. Dunlop, and by a good druggist everywhere.

Encircling Wall Fails to Conceal Chung-king, China

Towering Hills Make It Look Lump of Stone Rising From Earth.

"Chung-king, on the upper part of the Yangtze River, the westernmost Great port of central China, is assuredly one of the most remarkable cities in the world."

So far as appearance is concerned—the Chinese Republic has got the best of the earth itself," writes Fritz Socker in the Berlin "Tagblatt" as translated for "The Milwaukee Journal."

"If you stand on the opposite bank of the Yangtze, it draws far into the distance, according to the time of year. The voice of the water is not the same the whole year through. It depends on the freezing in the mountain ranges and on the subsequent melting of the snow. At high water mark the river laps against the city walls, but at low water it draws far inland, leaving a wide expanse in front of them."

A portion of the population follows the falling water and sets up its little huts, its shops and tea booths. When the water begins to rise again the temporary suburb goes back one row of huts after another as their owners find themselves in danger of being overcome by the enemy. The regularity with which this temporary city rises and disappears again is very like the change of scenery in the theatre.

"Where all the thousands of inhabitants of the land in front of the water, the water is not the same the whole year through. It depends on the freezing in the mountain ranges and on the subsequent melting of the snow. At high water mark the river laps against the city walls, but at low water it draws far inland, leaving a wide expanse in front of them."

"Hundreds of thousands of human beings live in Chung-king crowded together in the very narrowest of streets. The hillside streets are steep and the hillside character of the city, instead of streets thousands of steps lead up hill and down dale. Moreover, many of the business streets are so narrow that two litters can hardly squeeze past each other."

"There are a good many litters in the city, but the number of water carriers is legion. Progressive as Chung-king in general is, the city has not yet attained to a good system. The water for the daily use of the inhabitants—and this is a good deal because the humping teakettle is never at rest—drawn in buckets from the Yangtze and the tributary Kiang-ling, and is peddled to the householders by coolies. The water carriers, bargaining over the price, are a common sight on the daily streets. The business is transacted in strings of cash, one of which is equal to about 2,100 of an American cent. The distance of the house from the place of delivery regulates the price, which runs from 30 to 80 cash buckets. Being hung from the unsteady carrier-poles, the water splashes out of the buckets, so that all year long the stone steps are wet and slippery."

Beggars Are Efficient. Here even the poor beggar is saved from hunger. Every day my path leads through a troop of them, dressed in rags and setting up a rumble of beggary.

Offender Swears in Sleep. In Bath, England, a policeman stated that he heard a torrent of expletives coming from a house, lasting nearly half an hour. The occupant brought before the police court, declared that he had been swearing in his sleep.

Author of "Anne of Green Gables" Books Heard in Imperial

That the literature of a country to be great must have a great people behind it, was the challenge proclaimed by Mrs. Ewan MacDonald, (Miss L. M. Montgomery) of Anne of Green Gables fame, in her address before the large audience in the Imperial Theatre yesterday afternoon. Mrs. MacDonald made a plea for better support for Canadian literature for the sake of the young writer; she told something of the humors of an author's correspondence and gave varied and entertaining readings from her own writings. She not only emphasized the idealistic side of the subject, but in plain terms showed the responsibility of Canadians to buy Canadian books and magazines. In Canadian households one book out of every three acquired, she said, should be a Canadian book, and at least one Canadian magazine should be subscribed for. Mrs. W. Edmond Raymond, the president of the club, was the chairman and thanks were extended to Mrs. MacDonald in a motion ably moved and seconded by Mrs. Margaret Lawrence, president of the St. John Women's Canadian Club, and Miss Estelle Vaughan, librarian of the public library. At the outset, Mrs. MacDonald ex-

To "Break In" New Boots

Here is a pointer. If your new boots hurt in spots, immediately before you put them on polish them with Pacer's BLACK-O (Tan-O for Tan) applying liberally to the leather and rubbing well in. The leather is softened and will, when you put the shoe on, expand where the pressure is and conform to the shape of your foot. Black-O is remarkably black and lasting, and it also preserves the leather.

To Be Dainty Combat that dingy film on teeth

Wherever you go now you see glistening teeth. They are teeth you envy, maybe. Then make this test we offer. Learn how people get them.

Millions are brushing teeth in a new way now. They are combating film. You will be amazed when you see what this new method means.

Why teeth grow dim
You feel on teeth a viscous film. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors. Then it forms dingy coats, and substance teeth lose their luster.

Film also holds food and white which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. It breeds millions of germs, and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people who brush teeth in old ways escape those film-caused troubles.

Now a better way
Dental science, after long research, has found effective ways to fight film. One acts to disintegrate the film at

The Young Writer.
Turning to champion the cause of the young writer, she spoke of Canada as the hardest country in the civilized world in which the young writer would get a start. The young Canadian writer must compete with all books written in the English language. He would not earn a living by writing for the American magazines and must lose his distinctive Canadian flavor. If he frightened to publish another book by that author.

Mrs. MacDonald then put forward her plea for support of Canadian magazines and the purchase of Canadian books as a first step towards a great national literature and as a second essential she told of the duty, opportunity and privilege that was to be found in preparing the way for a great literature by setting a standard of lofty and enduring ideals, far-sighted and keen vision and real and profound culture. She held that genius was only the ability to grasp and to give expres-son to all that had long existed in the soul of a people.

A pleasing incident of the afternoon was the presentation of a bouquet to Mrs. MacDonald by "Miss Canada."
VEY'S PICNIC TODAY.
The War Vets' picnic at the Nashua Park yesterday attracted a fair-sized crowd during the evening owing to threatening weather conditions. The committee in charge decided that the fair would be run today as well when a better attendance can be expected.
Certain forms of protection against fire losses existed among the Romans.

Letters containing a thrilling life story and the suggestion that Mrs. MacDonald and the writer of the letter should go "fifty-fifty" in the proceeds if she should write a book with the story as the plot, were quite common and one of this nature had been received from a New Brunswick man who was undaunted by the information that Mrs. MacDonald had a series of plots which would keep her supplied for years. He solemnly agreed to wait six years. A divinity student wrote that Mrs. MacDonald had convinced him at last that it was possible to be a Christian and write novels, but he deplored her inveterate habit of marrying off her characters, as being calculated to bring into contempt the holy estate of matrimony. He had never replied to her answer that there were only two alternatives to marrying her characters off, dragging out their lives in single blessedness or living together without getting married.

One fastidious lady had written in disappointment of book characters having the solace of a pipe or using slang and Mrs. MacDonald had pointed out that reading would be dull indeed if in books nobody did what they should not. To sins, follies and tragedies the world owed its great literature, she pleased and not to instruct. She admirably achieved her object in giving pleasure—and she went far beyond that goal. By her enthusiasm and her radiant personality she made warm friends of all the members of her large audience. First she read that happy humorous chapter of the "Anne" books which tells of the visit of the supposed great aunt Eliza who turns out to be in reality the Governor's wife. Then she recited two lyric bits of poetry which the familiar scene of the fishing fleet at her childhood home on the north shore of Prince Edward Island had inspired. "Off to the Fishing Grounds" was the first and the companion poem was "When the Dark Comes Down." Later she read that half sad, half joyful chapter from "Rilla of Ingleside" that describes the dog Monday's vigil of years, awaiting the return of his master from overseas.

Speaking of the letters that come in an author's mail bag, she declared there were two very pleasant things about being an author: friends, ready made, were found wherever she went and friendly and appreciative letters came from all over the world. She liked those letters. Occasionally there was a freak one. One letter writer had hastened to claim, "L. M. Montgomery" as Lionel Montgomery, an uncle long lost. This supposed niece had recognized in "Anne of Green Gables" facts of family history and urged Lionel to return and all would be forgiven. A young girl had filled twenty pages of her voluminous letter of appreciation and had asked for a photograph because she could not sleep without the coveted picture. Mrs. MacDonald had rather squelched that overflowing ardor by sending a snapshot of herself in house-cleaning attire in the backyard.

Then she recited two lyric bits of poetry which the familiar scene of the fishing fleet at her childhood home on the north shore of Prince Edward Island had inspired. "Off to the Fishing Grounds" was the first and the companion poem was "When the Dark Comes Down." Later she read that half sad, half joyful chapter from "Rilla of Ingleside" that describes the dog Monday's vigil of years, awaiting the return of his master from overseas.

The Young Writer.
Turning to champion the cause of the young writer, she spoke of Canada as the hardest country in the civilized world in which the young writer would get a start. The young Canadian writer must compete with all books written in the English language. He would not earn a living by writing for the American magazines and must lose his distinctive Canadian flavor. If he frightened to publish another book by that author.

Mrs. MacDonald then put forward her plea for support of Canadian magazines and the purchase of Canadian books as a first step towards a great national literature and as a second essential she told of the duty, opportunity and privilege that was to be found in preparing the way for a great literature by setting a standard of lofty and enduring ideals, far-sighted and keen vision and real and profound culture. She held that genius was only the ability to grasp and to give expres-

son to all that had long existed in the soul of a people.
A pleasing incident of the afternoon was the presentation of a bouquet to Mrs. MacDonald by "Miss Canada."
VEY'S PICNIC TODAY.
The War Vets' picnic at the Nashua Park yesterday attracted a fair-sized crowd during the evening owing to threatening weather conditions. The committee in charge decided that the fair would be run today as well when a better attendance can be expected.
Certain forms of protection against fire losses existed among the Romans.

Letters containing a thrilling life story and the suggestion that Mrs. MacDonald and the writer of the letter should go "fifty-fifty" in the proceeds if she should write a book with the story as the plot, were quite common and one of this nature had been received from a New Brunswick man who was undaunted by the information that Mrs. MacDonald had a series of plots which would keep her supplied for years. He solemnly agreed to wait six years. A divinity student wrote that Mrs. MacDonald had convinced him at last that it was possible to be a Christian and write novels, but he deplored her inveterate habit of marrying off her characters, as being calculated to bring into contempt the holy estate of matrimony. He had never replied to her answer that there were only two alternatives to marrying her characters off, dragging out their lives in single blessedness or living together without getting married.

One fastidious lady had written in disappointment of book characters having the solace of a pipe or using slang and Mrs. MacDonald had pointed out that reading would be dull indeed if in books nobody did what they should not. To sins, follies and tragedies the world owed its great literature, she pleased and not to instruct. She admirably achieved her object in giving pleasure—and she went far beyond that goal. By her enthusiasm and her radiant personality she made warm friends of all the members of her large audience. First she read that happy humorous chapter of the "Anne" books which tells of the visit of the supposed great aunt Eliza who turns out to be in reality the Governor's wife. Then she recited two lyric bits of poetry which the familiar scene of the fishing fleet at her childhood home on the north shore of Prince Edward Island had inspired. "Off to the Fishing Grounds" was the first and the companion poem was "When the Dark Comes Down." Later she read that half sad, half joyful chapter from "Rilla of Ingleside" that describes the dog Monday's vigil of years, awaiting the return of his master from overseas.

Speaking of the letters that come in an author's mail bag, she declared there were two very pleasant things about being an author: friends, ready made, were found wherever she went and friendly and appreciative letters came from all over the world. She liked those letters. Occasionally there was a freak one. One letter writer had hastened to claim, "L. M. Montgomery" as Lionel Montgomery, an uncle long lost. This supposed niece had recognized in "Anne of Green Gables" facts of family history and urged Lionel to return and all would be forgiven. A young girl had filled twenty pages of her voluminous letter of appreciation and had asked for a photograph because she could not sleep without the coveted picture. Mrs. MacDonald had rather squelched that overflowing ardor by sending a snapshot of herself in house-cleaning attire in the backyard.

FOUR CASES ARE IN ONE STREET

Fines This Morning for Violations of the Traffic Regulations.

Several traffic cases were before Magistrate Henderson in the police court this morning. C. D. McGuire was fined $10 for speeding at the intersection of Prince Edward street and Haymarket square at 9:25 p. m. on August 19. Policeman Quinn said the accused had been going about fourteen miles an hour around the corner. Mr. McGuire said he might have been going over six but was positive that he had not been going fourteen.

Leslie Laing was charged with operating automobile No. 14927 at an excessive rate of speed and not sounding his horn at the intersection of Prince Edward and Richmond streets at 11:35 p. m. on August 19. Policeman Chisholm said the rate of speed was from thirteen to fifteen miles. Mr. Laing said he was sure he had sounded his horn and did not think his speed excessive.

Col. E. C. Weyman said he was in the car at the time. As to blowing the horn he could not remember that particular case but knew that Mr. Laing did it habitually. The speed was impossible to swear to but in his judgment it was not so fast as stated by the policeman. There had been no congestion of traffic. Six miles an hour was almost impossible in high gear. A fine of $10 was struck.

Stanley Dwyer was charged with exceeding the speed limit and not sounding his horn at the corner of Prince Edward and Richmond streets on Sunday, August 19. Policeman Chisholm said the rate was from thirteen to fifteen miles an hour. A fine of $10 was imposed.

Harley Brown, on the same charge and for the same same place, was fined a like amount. The speed named by Policeman Chisholm in this case was fourteen miles an hour.

ANDREWS FACES DOUBLE CHARGE

Coachman Troubles at the Depot Get Into the Police Court.

Thomas Andrews was charged this morning with assaulting Harry Holt at the Union depot on Saturday. He pleaded not guilty. D. Knowlton appeared for the defense and W. M. Ryan for Holt. Holt said he had been at the station on Saturday waiting about two hours for the Boston train. On the arrival of the train he had solicited passengers. One had started to go with him and the accused had stepped up and seized the grip of the intended passenger but when the accused found that the passenger wanted to go to an inconspicuous place he had passed the grip over to another coachman named Parks. He said the accused had used very bad language to the complainant. The letter had remarked that it was a very funny way to do business whereupon the accused had struck him in the mouth, causing it to bleed. He had then defended himself.

As several other witnesses in the matter were not present the case was postponed until three o'clock this afternoon. The accused was required to put up a deposit of $20 for his appearance.

Andrews also was charged with soliciting passengers inside the designated place at the Union depot on the arrival of the Valley train yesterday. He pleaded guilty. C. N. R. Policeman Young told of the man going inside the rail at the station and picking up a bag.

The magistrate remarked that the maximum fine was $30. For some time the cabmen and taxi drivers had been getting off with a nominal fine and they did not seem to appreciate the fact that they had been let off easily.

Special Officer Ryan of the N. R. said that the accused had caused them considerable trouble and that a report on his case was being made to headquarters. He asked that the maximum penalty be imposed. The magistrate said he would not impose the maximum this time but would fine the accused $10.

The East St. John Community Club at a meeting last evening decided to co-operate with the Edith Avenue Sunday school in holding a picnic to Red Head on Saturday, and committees were appointed. O. J. Lawson was chosen as chairman of the sports committee, and he already has a fine programme sketched out. The committee will canvass the community for contributions towards the cost of prizes. Royden Foley had offered the use of the poetry room to try the children to and from the grounds, and J. M. Morrison has offered to donate the refreshments. Other members of the community who have cars will be asked to use them in conveying the children to the picnic grounds.

BOY OVERBOARD AT INDIANTOWN

A drowning accident was narrowly averted last evening during the progress of the St. John Power Boat Club races at Indiantown. The steamers Majestic and D. J. Parry were moored at the wharf with the Majestic on the inside. A boy about nine years of age got from one boat to the other and was making his way back by crawling around the stern of the outside vessel. When he thought he was near enough to make it he jumped and landed in the water. He could swim a little and managed to keep himself afloat. Seeing the boy's plight, Arthur Stone of Brooks street, who was nearby in a motor boat, jumped into the water and hurried to the boy. He succeeded in pulling the lad out of the water but in the process of thinking, though he got a very bad scare.

Hon. M. W. Doherty to Organize Wheat Pool

Friends in this city will be interested to learn that Hon. Manning W. Doherty, former minister of agriculture in the Ontario Government, and some years ago manager of the local branch of the A. R. Williams Machinery Company, and president of the Maritime Construction Company, is leaving for the West where he will organize the volunteer wheat pool, consisting of grain growers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, to handle the western crops.

As Hiram Sees It

"Well, sir," said Mr. Hiram Hornbeam to the Times reporter, "I heard about them there society women—some of 'em's true—fer we aint all built alike—an' sometimes when I've seen what was some a' them an' shucks, then come out an' seen them there lummies flyin' along as if they owned the air, I almost felt like throwin' stones—but I guess we got to find out who's who afore we do that. Now they there women I seen comin' out that they a'ley has a heart—an' it's in the right place. She wasn't jist throwin' a bone to a dog or a dog to what they used to call the 'lower orders'—she was takin' the sunshine into the dark places—an' if she took a spin over a good road afterwards she be my blesin'—yes, sir."
