

LOYD GEORGE AGAIN TAKES PARLIAMENT BY STORM AND SECURES CONFIDENCE VOTE

Lloyd George, in Reviewing Work of Genoa Conference, Warns Parliament of Dangers Facing the World if Objects of Genoa Meeting Are Not Brought to Fulfillment—Russia, Most Miserable of All Nations, in Its Wretchedness and Poverty, He Declares, Must Be Brought into the Community of Nations, Helped and Taught, if the Future Cause of Troubles is to Be Removed—Atmosphere of Europe Full of International Suspicion of Impending Conflict.

London, May 25—Once in the House of Commons to day to render, as Prime Minister, an account of his stewardship at Genoa. Once again, Lloyd George appeared after a precise and carefully worded statement and an eloquent rebuttal of criticism directed against him, he received the support of the Parliament in what is considered the equivalent of another vote of confidence.

The House, by a overwhelming majority of 235 to 26, rejected an amendment moved by Rupert Gwynne, Unionist, to the motion on which debate was based as a means of expressing the dissatisfaction of the House with the Premier's exposition.

For an hour and a half the premier gave a calm exposition of the proceedings to which he returned, Herbert H. Asquith, the Labor leader, John Robert Clynes and Lord Robert Cecil replied criticizing the six weeks session at Genoa as having accomplished little or nothing toward the rehabilitation of Europe.

The criticism aroused the Premier and he thundered answers towards the opposition benches. After a spirited scene in the crowded House, amid handclapping and shouting at the passage between the Premier and Lord Robert Cecil, Lloyd George's second speech ended dramatically as he silenced the House and solemnly proclaimed a policy of co-operation with the French democracy.

Of the United States, he said: "We have invited, pleaded and used every method except force to get America to Genoa and likewise to The Hague."

"If the noble lord can do anything more, we welcome his assistance." "That was loud cheering as he resumed his seat."

London, May 25—Lloyd George, in beginning his speech in the Commons this afternoon, said he proposed dealing only with the business of the Genoa gathering and did not intend to discuss German relations or British relations with France, an opportunity for discussion of which would be provided next week.

The Premier, after reviewing the objects of the conference, said that in regard to the question whether the conference had succeeded, he would simply state the facts fairly and let the members judge them fairly.

Cheers from the ministerial benches followed this utterance. Although peace had been established in Europe it was quite clear, said Lloyd George, that the war atmosphere to a certain extent remained.

As for Russia, it was hopeless for the Premier, to expect to extricate herself from the pit of squalid misery without the assistance of the other thirty nations.

Prompt Work Of Engineer Saved Child

Brought His Train to a Sudden Stop in Time to Save Running Over Youngster.

Moncton, May 25.—Only the prompt action of Driver R. C. Colpitts in bringing his train almost to a standstill within a very short distance as he was approaching Moncton station, the four-year-old son of Fred Abrams would undoubtedly have been instantly killed by the Ocean Limited from Halifax this afternoon. The child was playing on the track but was seen in time by Driver Colpitts to save him from being crushed to death. The little fellow, however, was struck by the slowly moving engine, knocked from the track and stunned. He regained consciousness on the way to the hospital and it is thought will recover.

PICKS FLAWS IN BUDGET OF MR. FIELDING

Learn That Majority Report Will Recommend Minimum Datal Wage of $3.05.

Winnipeg, May 25.—The first budget of the King administration bears about as much resemblance to the Liberal platform of 1919 and to the tariff platform of the Progressives, which was aimed to imitate, as a crow does to a canary," declared Norman P. Lambert, secretary of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, in an interview today with a local paper.

Reductions in the tariff would be "little more than nominal in their actual effect," said Mr. Lambert. The reductions made in the duty on agricultural implements on the basis of last year's imports, would save to Canadian farmers only $14,000, he added. Extension of the sales tax he described as "the most reactionary feature of the whole budget," and he expressed the opinion that increases in this tax, in many instances, would amount to 15 or 20 per cent, by the time they reached the consumer.

Doesn't Reduce National Debt. Mr. Lambert declared the budget did not reduce the national debt, which was a problem for another budget to tackle, "by applying taxation to those sources which can best afford to bear taxation."

Several items on which the budget increased the British preference referred to commodities in which, Mr. Lambert said, there had been no trading between Great Britain and Canada for the past year or two at least and he quoted sugar as an instance of this kind. There had been no sugar imported from the British Isles during the past year.

Those incorporated are Stephen E. Barton, defendant in the case; Ashley A. Cotter, one of the witnesses in the case who took out a policy with Barton, and J. B. McNair, who appeared as his counsel. The formation of the company would get around the difficulty of an extra-provincial license.

The prosecution was undertaken by the Attorney-General's department, but F. R. Taylor, K. C., of St. John, represented the Underwriters and the complainant was W. Frick, of St. John, an officer of the Underwriters.

It is reported that action has been taken in St. John also.

SCOTT AWARD NOT PLEASING TO THE MINERS

Secretary of Canadian Council of Agriculture Declares It Foreign to Party's Platform.

TARIFF REDUCTIONS—ONLY NOMINAL

Describes Extension of Sales Tax as Most Reactionary Feature of Whole Budget.

Sydney, N. S., May 25.—"It that is the case there will be no contract made. This was the comment of James B. McLachlan, Secretary of the United Mine Workers, District No. 26, this afternoon when about the story, carried by the "Bydney Record" concerning a minimum daily rate of $3.05 as the probable award of the Scott Conciliation Board majority report in the wage dispute between the British Empire Steel Corporation and its mining employees.

McLachlan's comment means that he does not believe the miners will accept such an award, and will probably prefer to work on the present day to day basis rather than make a formal agreement covering any specific length of time at the new rate, which is precisely the same as that negotiated between the U.M.W. officers and the company executives at Montreal, six months ago, and almost unanimously rejected by the 12,000 miners of Nova Scotia in a referendum held at the time.

According to the "Record" story, the majority report also recommends the restoration of local contracts in certain ratings, and the improvement of housing conditions in the colliery districts by the building of a certain number of new houses yearly, and by the installation of modern sewerage facilities. The majority report also makes recommendations for improvements in the present company store system of supplying the miners.

SC. HENRY FORD READY FOR BANKS

Candidate for International Fishermen's Cap None the Worse for Experiences.

(Canadian Press). Gloucester, Mass., May 25.—The new schooner Henry Ford, a candidate for the international fishermen's cap, is nearly ready for sea and Capt. Clayton Morrisey expects to get away for the Banks in a few days.

The sails have been bent and most of the fittings installed, all remaining to be taken aboard before the sails and provisions. Apparently the vessel is none the worse for her misadventure on the Essex strand, where she grounded the day of her launching. Captain Morrisey will observe her closely for leakage on her voyage. J. M. Cooney, who made the sails, is also making a new set for the Mayflower.

WASHINGTON STUDYING THE DOM. BUDGET

Sees in British Preference Retaliation at U. S. High Tariff Proposals.

Washington, May 25.—(By Canadian Press)—The fact that the budget brought into parliament at Ottawa increases the British preference on a large number of articles, ostensibly imported into Canada, has not escaped the notice of members of Congress, and officials in Washington, who are following tariff bill developments in high rates in the petates and have threatened to increase the tariff on British goods. The tariff which is being shaped by the higher protectionists of the United States, and that it is in fulfillment of their predictions that the proposed tariff law will drive trade away from the United States and hurt United States industry instead of helping it. Furthermore, they regard this as merely a forerunner of other retaliatory moves on the part of the United States, for instance, are already afoot. The Canadian budget proposals will evidently have some effect here to force Finance Committee leaders to reduce their rates and liberalize the tariff bill. The proposals will, however, materially counteract towards a revival of borrowing by Canada in London. The prophets are predicting that exchange will be at parity within a year.

"Whenever you borrow money you have to trade," said one Canadian financier here today. "If England increases her trade with Canada we shall be able to borrow here."

TO CUT WAGES OF C. N. R. STENOGRAPHERS

Officials Have Taken Question Up With Committee Representing the Stenographers and Clerks.

Toronto, May 25.—In reply to a rumor that has been circulated, to the effect that the stenographers and office help of the Canadian National Railway office are to receive a cut in wages, as well as being asked to work longer hours, A. J. Hill, assistant president, has made the following statement: "Stenographers are not being singled out for special treatment," he said, "the condition for clerical forces of the C.N.R. have been discussed with a committee representing the employees. The question of their rights is not under consideration at present, except in a few cases, for which an adjustment is being considered. There are no rates that became effective in July last year. But, in the aggregate, there is no increase or reduction on the amount of reductions which were made effective by the application of the United States Labor Board award in Canada."

MALCOLM RETIRES FROM MAN. CABINET

Cannot Continue as Member of Gov't With Strife Going On Within the Ranks.

Winnipeg, May 25.—Hon. George H. Malcolm, who announced last week his retirement from the post of Minister of Agriculture in the Norris Government, told a convention of seed in Quebec here today that, for the time being, he was quitting public life.

Mr. Malcolm said it was evident that the Norris party and the United Farmers were not able to see eye to eye and that as he had supported both parties a member of the Government as a member of the United Farmers' organization, the only thing he could do was to drop out.

Strong Candidate Picked by An Enthusiastic Convention to Contest the Provincial By-Election—J. D. Palmer Made Strong Speech Showing Government's Disregard of Pre-Election Promises, Dealing With the Bond Issues and Deficits Which, He Said, Were Rapidly Driving the Province into Bankruptcy—Other Notable Speakers Heard.

Special to The Standard. Hampton, May 25.—At one of the best and most representative conventions ever held in the county of Kings, which convened this afternoon at the Court House, Major A. J. Brooks was nominated as the standard bearer of the local Opposition in the contest to fill the seat made vacant by the resignation of George B. Jones, M. P., and the enthusiasm manifested augured well for the success of the candidate at the polls on June 17.

J. D. Palmer, leader of the Opposition party; C. D. Richards, House leader last session; George B. Jones, M. P., and H. V. Dickson, M. L. A., delivered most inspiring addresses, and pointed out most clearly the shortcomings of the Post-Confederation combination, and how they had failed to live up to their pre-election pledges.

The candidates was given a most flattering reception and made a splendid impression in his speech of acceptance. Councillor McAuley, whose name was also placed in nomination, congratulated the candidate and assured him of his support in the fight.

The name of Hon. J. A. Murray was placed before the convention, but he declined to offer and nominated Mr. Brooks. The convention accorded the name of Hon. Mr. Murray showed plainly the place he holds in the hearts of the electors and many expressed regret that he would not consent to run.

The meeting was called to order by H. V. Dickson, M. L. A. In opening the convention, he said it was called to nominate a candidate to contest the constituency in the by-election called to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George B. Jones, M. P. He then asked for nominations for chairman and Councillor J. William Smith, of Hampton, was chosen for the position.

Councillor Smith took the chair and invited J. D. Palmer, Opposition leader; C. D. Richards, House leader, and George B. Jones, M. P., to seats on the platform. He then threw the meeting open for more nominations for chairman and Councillor J. A. Murray, of the Province, Hon. J. A. Murray, the announcement of Mr. Murray's name evoked much applause, and it was some minutes before he could make himself heard. When the cheering had died down a little, Mr. Murray thanked the delegates for mention of

FAVORABLY REGARD CANADA'S BUDGET

London Financiers Look Upon Tariff Changes as Distinctly Beneficial to Great Britain.

London, May 25.—(Canadian Press)—Although the Canadian budget so far has produced no particular press comment in London, the feeling in city business circles is altogether favorable. The tariff changes are regarded as distinctly beneficial to Great Britain, which, excluding the United States, is the greater exporter to Canada.

The new tariff proposals are regarded as a distinct judgement towards a revival of borrowing by Canada in London. The prophets are predicting that exchange will be at parity within a year.

CAPTAIN VANWART ENROUTE TO HAGUE

Will Give Evidence in Connection With Surrender and Execution of Admiral Kolchak.

Fredericton, N. B., May 25.—Captain Hercules Van Wart left last evening for Montreal, en route via London and Paris to The Hague, where he will give evidence in connection with the surrender and execution of Admiral Kolchak at Irkutsk, Siberia, on Feb. 7, 1920.

Captain Van Wart was the only Canadian officer with 120 British troops at Vladivostok, where he was signalling officer under Kolchak on the march into Russia. When the troops surrendered at Moscow and Admiral Kolchak was given over to the Bolsheviks, he was present, and he was also present at the execution of the admiral at Irkutsk, when he was given the personal papers and documents belonging to the executed general for safe keeping.

Captain Van Wart, who had a narrow escape from being captured by the Bolsheviks, has had these papers and documents in his possession ever since, and he was subpoenaed to present his report on the surrender and execution, and also the papers and documents at a court of inquiry which opens at London on June 6 and later will meet at Paris. ULSTERMEN HELD UP CARDINAL LOCUE

Dublin, May 25.—Cardinal Logue, primate of all Ireland, while returning in an automobile this evening from a confirmation service, accompanied by Archbishop O'Donnell, coadjutor to the Cardinal, was held up by Ulster special at Lisnaffry, 12 miles southeast of Armagh. DE VALERA WANTS PEACE WITH ULSTER Relies, However, on Force to Resist Force from the Orange Side.

Dublin, May 25.—Although Eamon De Valera, in a statement to the press today, expressed a desire for peace with Ulster, he made it plain that his side still relies on force to resist force from the Orange side; therefore, an agreement between the North and South would seem to be still far off.

Many Northerners who had been appointed delegates to the Sinn Fein convention here were arrested on trains, but several managed to reach Dublin by roundabout ways. Irish Republican Army units have not yet been reached, but, though there still are differences regarding ultimate control, both sides are said to agree in approval of Richard J. Casey as Minister of Defense. He was one of the chief authors of the peace agreement which is about to be again discussed in London.

Paris, May 25.—Major W. T. Blake and his companions in the projected 30,000 mile flight around the world, are already twenty-four hours behind their schedule, as they failed to take off from the Bourges field today owing to the weather conditions.

Several of the French aviators say that Major Blake's machine is entirely too new for the long flight and needs tuning up; hence the delay. Blake denies that there is anything wrong with his machine.

ONE WAY TO GET AROUND THE LAW

Incorporation of Insurance Company Presents Interesting Situation at Fredericton.

Special to The Standard. Fredericton, May 25.—The incorporation of Barton and Ellis, Ltd., with head office in Fredericton, and power to carry on a general insurance business is understood to be connected with the prosecution of Stephen E. Barton, of Boston, Mass., for selling insurance business in New Brunswick without taking out a provincial license as required by law. Barton was arrested in Fredericton and defended a case before the police court there. Judgment was to be given today but by consent adjournment was made until next week.

Those incorporated are Stephen E. Barton, defendant in the case; Ashley A. Cotter, one of the witnesses in the case who took out a policy with Barton, and J. B. McNair, who appeared as his counsel. The formation of the company would get around the difficulty of an extra-provincial license.

TOWN WARMED UP OVER SCHOOL ROW

Eliot (Me.) Having Trouble Over Church, School and Baccalaureate Sermon.

Eliot, Me., May 25.—This old town is once again stirred up over another row, originating in the school department over the baccalaureate sermon, which so far has led to the resignation of the Principal of the High School, Percy Gilmore, and his assistant, Miss Bessie Patten.

The opening chapter came when the Principal called for a vote as to which church the class favored for the exercises and sermon. All but three favored the Methodist, and two boys and a girl held out and argued for the Congregational.

The minority votes came from Grant Cole, Clifford Anderson and Alma Lovell, who demanded that the school committee decide the question. The Board ordered the three dissidents and requested the class to attend the Congregational church. The Principal, who was with the majority favoring the Methodist church, quit the department at once.

Toronto, May 25.—Justice Laskford this afternoon quashed the Daylight Saving Bill passed in Kitchener, Ont., on application of a merchant of that city.

PROVINCIAL OPPOSITION IN KINGS NAME BROOKS TO LEAD THEIR HOSTS TO VICTORY

The chairman then called on Major Brooks to address the meeting. The candidate expressed his consciousness of the honor which had been bestowed on him, and said that as he had never made a political speech before they must not expect too much. He hoped, however, before the campaign was over to deliver many. The Foster candidate had made the statement that he had no apology to make for appearing as the standard bearer of that party. Major Brooks said if he was any Judge of public opinion, the people of Kings county were not going to accept any apology from the Foster-Veniot combination, things had gone too far for that, in fact it was the opinion that this combination was only an apology for a government wayward.

The present provincial administration had many things for which they needed to apologize. For instance, there was the school matter. In the back country districts there was to be found hundreds of children starting for schools and the government claimed they had not the money to run them, but they could find money to spend in the towns and cities on vocational education, a fact of the hour. Then there was the health act. This was a failure in the County of Kings, and in other counties of the province, so far as improving the health of the children was concerned. Major Brooks expressed his pleasure at seeing so many ladies present and said he was sure they would be a big factor in the coming fight. The Foster government had not acted in a manner to appeal to the women in their handling of the liquor question; in fact their handling of this problem was a menace to the homes of the province, and had resulted in the province becoming a bootlegger's paradise. In closing he made an appeal for all hands to get busy and keep busy until after polling day.

Councillor McAuley

The chairman then called on Councillor McAuley, who extended his congratulations to the winner and assured him he would work just as hard for him as for himself. Dealing with the questions of the day, he said that when the municipality had the enforcement of the liquor law they had kept the county clean, but things were very different today under the government control. They had dismissed the men who enforced the law and appointed others more pliable, and the bootleggers were prospering today as a result of that action. He also reminded the voters that every vote for the candidate of the Foster party was a vote for the payment of $12,675 which had been foisted on the taxpayers of the county for the purpose of paying a lot of benches who were getting fat salaries and going around the country smoking cigars. It was not, he said, that the people were opposed to a health act, but they did object to the overruling of officials and asked, "are you going to vote for him? To this an emphatic no was the answer."

Mr. Palmer Resumes

The chairman then called on Mr. Palmer to resume his address. He congratulated the candidate on being chosen as the standard bearer of the people of Kings, and the loser of the splendid victory which he had displayed, a spirit of the real party man. The candidate was a young man of considerable attainment. During the war he had put a gun on his back and gone to fight the enemy, and given a good account of himself there. He felt Major Brooks would be a decided acquisition to the Legislature, and he was going there as the representative of the voters of Kings county.

He then proceeded to take up the issues of the day. Mr. Foster was fond of going around the county saying the administration record of the present government was an open book. Well, it might be an open book, but he did not think the taxpayers of the province of New Brunswick would find it very palatable reading, and during this campaign they would be given an opportunity to see what some of the readings were. A reading of the comptroller-general's report would show that the expenditure had increased every department had increased.

ed without any corresponding benefit to the country.
He then proceeded to give a few facts in this connection. The Health Act, of which they were so proud, had resulted in increasing the expenditure for health twenty-five times. The Foster-Veniot combination came into office the amount spent, exclusive of small pox, was about $2,000; last year this item was about $50,000. Was the country that much healthier? He did not think it was.

The apologists for the Government were going around the country and telling the people they were creating sinking funds for every bond issue which would retire them when due. "Well," said Mr. Palmer, "let us take them at their word and see where it lands us. Last year the Government spent on permanent roads, Federally aided, the sum of $227,000; on permanent roads from the automobile license funds, $224,000, and on permanent bridges, $729,000. Assuming that bonds are issued at five per cent. interest, we find that figuring on a ten year basis, and they have not yet started up for that period, they will require $120,154 annually to care for the interest and sinking fund on the first item, or deducting the forty per cent. of Federal aid, $73,154; for the second item they will require the sum of $42,011 annually, and for the third item $43,523 annually. These make a total of $157,687 that must be set aside out of the ordinary revenue for interest and sinking fund.

At the present time this charge amounts to $1,000,000. In six years, if they keep on spending at the same rate as last year, they will require another $1,000,000, and in twelve years $2,000,000. Add this to the $1,000,000 which they are now paying and you have $3,000,000, the entire revenue of the Province, which will be needed to pay interest and sinking funds on the bonds issued if, as they claim, they are providing sinking fund for all bond issues."

Continuing, the speaker said a more economical Government was needed, and he urged that every man and woman who had the interests of the Province at heart take an active part in the campaign and help Major Brooks to win by a substantial majority. He assured them he was at their service and said he hoped to take an active part himself.

George B. Jones, M. P.

The chairman then called on George B. Jones, M. P., for an address. Mr. Jones thanked the electors for the kind treatment they had always given him, in that they had elected him five times, and asked for Major Brooks a continuation of the support given him in the past. Taking up the Health Act, Mr. Jones said instead of $50,000, the Act was costing the taxpayers of the Province $150,000, as there was over $90,000 collected from the municipalities. In his opinion that the Foster Government had many things to apologize for and among them was their recent advance in the price of school books, which bore heavily on the family men of the Province. The Hasen Government had reduced the price of school books, and in 1920, after the price had been passed, the present Government had increased them from 50 to 200 per cent. They had increased the debt of the Province by over $9,000,000 in their five years in office. Mr. Jones also referred to the bill which Premier Foster had been ready to introduce last session to provide for the sale of liquor, and reminded the audience that a victory for the Government in Kings and St. John would be taken as an endorsement of that proposition.

H. V. Dickson, M. L. A., said the ground had been pretty well covered by the previous speakers and he would not speak any longer. He was going to take off his coat and go into the fight, and he hoped every voter in the county would do the same. If they did this, Major Brooks was sure of a glorious victory.

House Leader Speaks

The chairman then introduced C. D. Richards, House leader of the Opposition. Mr. Richards said it had been a great pleasure to him to lead the party in the last session of the Legislature, and expressed his thanks for the splendid cooperation given by the members of the party, and the least of whom was the representative from Kings County, his friend, H. V. Dickson.

He was glad, he said, of the opportunity to come down and meet the voters of the constituency. They were to be congratulated on the representative convention, which assured well for the success of the candidates chosen to carry the banner of the Opposition party. He had known the candidate for some years, and was sure the convention had made no mistake in choosing Major Brooks, for he was well fitted to represent Kings, one of the banner counties of the Province.

He reminded the audience that it was the Foster Government and its acts which were on trial, though they no doubt would try and belaud the issue, as they had in the past. In 1917 the Foster-Veniot combination had come into power pledged to do away with deficits, but who was the record? In the five years they had been in office they had rolled up deficits of $1,400,000. Was this carrying out their pledges? He did not think so.

Take the hydro development at Musquash. In 1920 the cost of this was now up to $3,000,000, and there was estimated at $1,000,000 and it was grave doubt as to whether the amount of power claimed for this development was there. If it was found that the development did not come up to expectations, then the taxpayers of the Province must pay the difference between what was derived in rental and the interest charges on the undertaking. Was it good business to spend this large amount of money until they were absolutely satisfied the power claimed was there?
In closing Mr. Richards assured the delegates that if he could be of any assistance in the campaign he was at their service.
The staging of the National Athletic brought to a close one of the most successful conventions in the political history of Kings county.

Genoa Improved Premier's Position In British Politics Plucky Conference Fight Put Lloyd George Higher in People's Estimation.

London, May 25.—Mr. Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, left a shaky political position behind him when he went to Genoa. He returned to a strong one. His friends believe he could quickly make it stronger should he turn his powerful ability and energy and unrivalled fighting powers to domestic politics.
His arrival at Victoria station on Saturday evening was greeted by a great crowd of ministers, peers, members of Parliament and "mere people." As he appeared at the door of his carriage and looked down on an enthusiastic, hat-waving crowd, and as he drove through streets filled with cheering people, who had waited for hours to give him a royal reception, one could trace a rare gravity behind his ready smile. He was moved undoubtedly by the warmth of his welcome. But it was essentially the smile of a fighter, who still sees hard fighting ahead before victory is won.

Alone as Political Force

The first to utter some cordial words as the Premier stepped from his train was the Duke of Atholl, representing King George. In this, His Majesty interpreted with characteristic insight the British people's wishes. For Genoa has immensely strengthened, momentarily at any rate, Mr. Lloyd George's hold on the British people. They feel he has raised the country's high status by a plucky, good humored, resourceful and almost singlehanded fight against enormous odds. This feeling has to be reckoned with as a factor in the international situation, so far as it is affected by British politics.

As a political force Mr. Lloyd George stands alone. One must read the reviews and estimates by pilgrims who have returned from Genoa with mental reservations. The European situation is still fluid and everything depends on whether the spirit of hopeful effort and determination is still applied to it, it therefore, not surprising if it is not, perhaps, newspaper critics' business to supply this spirit they survey the scene and find it mostly bad. But the Prime Minister has already made it clear that this is how he faces the future and that he will strive and hope until the baroque of European peace and re-settlement is wrecked again, or at least makes the harbor.

Eight Months' Truce

To change the metaphor, Mr. Lloyd George has opened the door to European peace at Genoa, and has fixed it open. What remains still to be done is whether he can lead European peoples through this door to those tasks of peaceful co-operation in the reconstruction of Europe, which he has envisaged.

Crises are not easy to belittle. Genoa, where immeasurable forces of good and evil fought to mold a future which is still obscure. But at least there is a right-minded truce, which may merge into the 18-year truce which Mr. Lloyd George aims at. The division of Europe into victors and vanquished is less rigid. Nations have set their hands to a financial and economic program of the most vital importance though, until a political accord is reached, this importance will chiefly lie in its molding of responsible opinion. Bismarck has not been restored to the oven of nations but the way remains open if his statesmen can steer that fanatical section of their people on which their power rests to acquiescence in the sacred fundamentals of social order which these same statesmen now know their powerlessness to destroy.

GREATER DEMAND FORCES PRICES UP.

The increased consumption of tea in 1921, during which year, by agreement, the tea growers of Ceylon and India had curtailed production) forced the price of tea steadily upwards to the present abnormally high level. The lowering of the duty in England will mean still greater demand, and authorities on tea tell us that still higher prices may be expected.

Entertainment Committee Discuss Ways and Means for Entertaining Delegates to Annual Meeting.

A meeting of the entertainment committee of the Maritime branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was held in the Board of Trade rooms, Prince William street, yesterday afternoon to discuss ways and means of providing amusement and diversion for the delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which is to be held at the Algonquin Hotel, St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, June 21, 22 and 23.

G. Clifford Malby was the chairman of yesterday's meeting, which was attended by several local members of the association, and by H. R. Thompson, the Maritime secretary, of Amherst, N. S.

Every effort is to be made by the Maritime manufacturers to extend to their visiting brethren from Quebec, Ontario and the West the warm and homelike hospitality for which the people of the Maritimes have always been noted.

With this in view, not only are congenial pleasures to be afforded the delegates during their visit to the convention, but side trips to different points of interest in various sections of the Province down by the sea are being planned for the visitors, and it is hoped that after the convention they may profit from the routes mapped out for them and thus obtain a closer and more intimate knowledge and insight into the customs, aspirations, ideals and opportunities of the Maritime Provinces and the land that is theirs. It is thought that such excursions will do much to promote a better understanding and sympathy for the Maritimes by those visitors from the other parts of Canada.

MR. GEORGE GAIN TAKES PARLIAMENTS BY STORM AND SECURES CONFIDENCE VOTE

"Revolutions on a great scale," declared the Premier, "always carry in their train confiscation of property, and I am sorry to say, without compensation. That is our experience, and the French revolution was accompanied by wholesale confiscation of land without compensation. Perhaps the conservation of France today is based on confiscation."
"In addition, there is another view of revolution and that is the obligation of pre-revolutionary obligations. But there is this difference—France created a system of peasant proprietary ownership without compensation, but she was not seeking credits from the world. Russia, with her reputation and confiscation, is going to the very people whose claims she refuses to pay and whose property she has confiscated, and she says: 'Lend me more.'"
"Although peace has been established in Europe, it is quite clear," continued the Premier, "that the war atmosphere has, to a certain extent, remained. While the conference was sitting troops were marching towards the frontier. There is an atmosphere in Europe of international suspicion of impending conflict."

Russia The Problem

"The problem naturally exciting the most controversy was that of Russia. There sat around that table the representatives of 34 nations. Over there sat the Russian delegation, representing more human poverty, wretchedness, desolation, hunger, pestilence, horror and despair than all the nations represented around that table. This is the first fact to realize. The other is that it is hopeless for Russia, whatever her Government, to be expected to extricate herself from the pit of equal misery without assistance of the other thirty nations."

Germany Still Powerful

Germany could not re-equip Russia economically, not having the capital, but that is not the case with armaments, as there is every natural resource in the one country, and complete technical skill in the other. It is necessary that we should look at all the possibilities of the situation and I hope the warning I have given today may not be quoted a few years hence.

Property Claim

"Our claim respecting property was framed, in the first instance, by three of the ablest jurists in Europe—one French, one British and one Belgian—who drafted a convention. The British delegation accepted that draft. The delegates from France accepted it. It was a much better one than the one which we thought an improvement, and this was accepted. There was, therefore, no difference of opinion between France and ourselves upon the property claim embodied in the memorandum. Belgium took a different view. The view of the Belgian Government was that the principle of equalized property restoration or compensation, which is the principle of every civilized Government, the Belgian position was not acceptable. That position was not materially possible. That was not the view of the Canaan resolution. There was the only difference. France accepted the Canaan resolution, not from agreement, because they had already accepted the draft, but rather as a gesture of general sympathy with Belgium. The Canaan resolution was accepted by the British, French and Belgian jurists. No step of any importance was taken without previous consultation with them. The action we took had their unanimous support."

Russo-German Treaty

The Premier alluded to the Russo-German agreement as a "dash of light" which the conference itself cast upon the sinister possibilities of leaving this question alone. "Although it was a grave error, in his judgment, a mistake which he would not repeat."

Halifax Explosion Wrecked Her Nerves

The reader will, no doubt, remember that a few years ago there was a collision in the Halifax, N. S., harbor and one of the munition ships was blown up, causing great loss of life and laying a large portion of the city in ruins, and causing a great deal of suffering and distress among the inhabitants.

undoubtedly by Germany. "I am not going to dwell," he added, "upon the silly forgeries of the military conventions, which take no account of the fact that here you have two of the greatest nations of the world, whether regarded in territory, population or resources, both of which favor, each of them, having done something which desecrated them with the other nations of the world, and each not quite received into the full society of nations. Peace was signed with normal equality, but there was a sense of the superior nation and the inferior nation of the war, that sits above the salt and the nation which sits beneath. These were fundamental facts in the present situation. These might be making reality in both cases. It was sort of society treatment to persons who had behaved discreditably. You felt that in the conference, and they felt it. There was a community of misfortune, a community of debasement, and a community of what they regarded as unfair treatment. There was a difficulty of getting on commissions. This discredit feels that he wants the society of good men, and this might result in a into a fierce friendship. What did that mean? Germany disarmed, and if necessary we could disarm her still more. You could take, do not say every gun away, but you could take most of them and you could render her perfectly impotent, but there is one thing you cannot do, and that is prevent the rearming of Russia if the nations are driven to despair."

with the claims put forward by the Soviet Government for compensation for ruin wrought in the country in the war. They put forward a claim, I think the total $5,000,000,000 for damages done in various parts of Russia. We had to tell them we could not acknowledge that claim under any circumstances, that historically it was an unsound proposition.

Reply Not Satisfactory

"The reply of the Russians was not wholly satisfactory, but the whole of the Powers concluded it was good enough to proceed with discussions. When you came to the question of Russia in the past there was no insuperable question of principle dividing the nations, but if you came to property the division was much more serious.

Dr. Borden's Address to the Graduating Class.

Young Ladies and Gentlemen of the graduating class:

It affords me genuine pleasure to congratulate you upon the completion of the arduous labors which led you to this auspicious moment in your educational careers.

Before going further I would like to express my own appreciation and that of the faculty of the loyal and public-spirited way in which you as a class have stood for all the best interests of Mount Allison. It is one of the rewards of the faithful teacher to find men and women maturing with the years of their college courses and assuming increasing measures of public responsibility.

The revival of the pre-war spirit in sport and debate which has made the year one of such signal triumph is, I am sure, largely to be credited to the zeal and devotion of this year's graduating class.

I suppose the graduating classes of a thousand different colleges and universities will this spring be reminded that this old world is in process of remaking during these post-war years.

A thousand college presidents will also remind their classes of the fact that the college graduate is to be the savior of humanity in these days of flux and rebalancing, and I assume that many of them will emphasize the fact that the man of character will have a better contribution to make to human betterment than the man of mere culture. Though the admonition is trite, so word that can be spoken is more worthy of repetition.

I am not going, however, to repeat the homilies you have become so familiar with during the four years in which you have joined with more or less devotion in the prayer service of the morning chapel, but I am sure that these exercises, where you have been in the habit of pausing a little on the threshold of each day's duty to examine values have left their record in what you are today and in your mental attitude towards your life problems. We need constantly to be reminded of the things that are best worth in life. You have come to the end upon the philosophy of life you carry out with you into the activities of the future. You may well ask yourselves "What is success?" If any person in human history were ever justified in depending upon material strength, the Germans were after their years of preparation preceding the great war. If any nation could ever afford to be upon opinion and regard its treaties as "scraps of paper" Germany could, and yet her contempt for moral values proved in the end her fatal weakness.

Once again she has overreached herself in the recent Geneva conference by her attempt to snatch an unfair advantage by her untimely treaty with Russia. She has torpedoed the cause of peace to her own ruin, the same as she did the Lusitania. She has shut herself out of the coming Hague conference and created such a feeling of distrust in France that even Lloyd George, the Welsh wizard, could not secure for her the benefit that the Geneva conference was created to give her.

You were reminded last Sunday in eloquent terms of the fact that material values do not ever represent the highest good. Perhaps some of you, like Carlisle, have been working your way during the silences of your busy college life, and the great question where perchance faith had fallen asleep and you saw nothing but Tenyson's "an ever-breaking shore but tingled in a Goddess' feet," perhaps you have fought your way out of the centre of indifference where the pleasures and ambitions were the only things to be desired. Perhaps some of you have your eyes to the misty slopes where doubt and indifference are resolved into Carlyle's resplendent summary of real values: "Love no pleasure, love God."

If you have thus acquired the long vision that has seen the ultimate good, if you have learned that all wickedness is weakness; if with that you have made the great conquest; if you have learned that "he that rusts his own spirit is greater than he that taketh a city"; if, in other words you have acquired self-mastery; if you have learned to love that which is good—the good in moral values, the good in mental discipline, the good in literature, art and music, you have acquired the best that any school can ever give you. So nearly you are that you measure up to these high ideals that I am sure you will, in a special sense, carry out into your future the hearty prayers and best wishes of this whole faculty. You will not find in your whole future a more loyal and disinterested group of friends than the culture and loyal teachers on this platform who here today wish you all the best gifts of a beneficent future for you.

Dr. Borden's Report.

The busy round of daily tasks has brought us all too soon to the end of another college year, but before attempting any resume of the work of the year I would take occasion to welcome to Mount Allison the students of other years and the friends of the school who have gathered to renew old acquaintances and participate in the joyous functions of this year's convocation. It is especially delightful to those of us who belong to the octogenarian class to welcome back the giddy boys and girls we found here thirty years ago. I hope whatever happens to Mount Allison that this bond of union with the old school will always continue. I trust that the successive classes who are ejected from year to year, like the scoriae from an erupting volcano, will always come dropping in again to see the dear old crater.

The past year has been to my mind the best of all the eleven years I have been on the University side of the campus. The year has witnessed the revival of interest in intercollegiate contact that has been really gratifying. The fine discipline of our University groups that has given them such an exceptional series of victories in football, hockey and debate is a good proof that the college spirit never ran higher than during the past year. Under a kind providence that general health of the students has been excellent. We have escaped all the usual epidemics to which such large families are liable. We have had 230 students in attendance.

The importance of the contribution that Mount Allison has given to the moral life of our country can hardly be over-estimated. In these days when the banners are being borne in our great industrial centres by clamorous and hungry groups of unemployed, when even the genius of a Lloyd George fails to find any solid ground upon which to reconstruct, standing Russia, when which are only leading the ignorant masses in the direction of social war, I am confident that the general health of educated leaders as urgently as it does today. Men naturally are asking: "Are our colleges supplying this valuable product?" "Why should the University exist?" "Why should men be asked to sacrifice their hard-earned wealth to endow colleges?" An interesting answer has been given to these questions by Prof. A. Caswell Ellis, of the United States Bureau of Education. He claims that a college education, measured even in terms of its financial value alone, has now a definite standing. Taking the names of 15,142 successful men from the encyclopedia, Prof. Ellis found that in this number there were 27 times as many college-bred men who had amassed great wealth as there were non-college men. Prof. Ellis points out that, although less than one per cent of Americans are college graduates, this one per cent has furnished 66 per cent of our presidents, 36 per cent of the members of Congress, 47 per cent of the speakers of the House, 54 per cent of the vice presidents, 92 per cent of the secretaries of state, 50 per cent of the secretaries of the treasury, 67 per cent of the storekeepers-general, and 69 per cent of the justices of the Supreme Court. You are naturally asking: "Has Mount Allison contributed her quota to the general good?" I have not time nor have you the patience to list the names of the graduates of the achievement of her graduates. We can only ask you to look over the lists of eminent judges and jurists, the men who have achieved the highest success in business circles and in the political life of our country. If you will go into almost any city, town or hamlet from the Atlantic to the Pacific you will find some hard working, honest, efficient Mount Allison students contributing his or her best to the uplift of the community. If Mount Allison has done this, the college of the Maritime Provinces are making such valuable contributions to our country why should their peaceful efficiency be disturbed by mere proposals as are discussed in the public press of these Maritime Provinces during the past weeks?

You are, of course, aware that the one outstanding question which is exciting interest in intercollegiate circles of Eastern Canada is the proposed plan of University federation which has been proposed and now being published. This the Carnegie Corporation of New York. In response to appeals from many of the Maritime universities for aid, the trustees of the Carnegie Corporation decided that it was important for them to have first hand information as to the needs of the different schools which they were asked to help. They accordingly sent last two trustees, educationalists in the persons of their Vice President, Dr. Learned and President Sills of Bowdoin University, to visit the Maritime Provinces and report upon educational conditions. This report has been presented to the trustees of the corporation and is now in the hands of the printers for distribution.

If you are all familiar through the accounts that have been published in the Maritime papers with the general features of the scheme, in brief, the report recommends that there should be created a central Maritime University which would confer all degrees and provide the expensive courses for the affiliated colleges and at the same time provide more extended post-graduate facilities than the present colleges with their limited endowments have been able to give.

In order that the affiliated colleges might avail themselves of the professional courses in law, medicine and engineering that Halifax is well equipped to provide, it is proposed that the Loyalty and devotion of these colleges should surrender their degrees conferring powers and group themselves round the central university in a brief, but not less significant, way. This would mean that each college should contribute such a sum of money as would cover the cost of the general dislocation of interests that have been built up through the patient years of the college and the members of the faculty and the students who have brought back such groups of former students as are found here today would suffer severely should Mount Allison be removed to another campus. It felt by some that the advantages of the small colleges might be sacrificed in such a transfer and yet, on the other hand, the advantages of the large school would all be preserved under the present plan. That is, each college would retain all the advantages of the small school and at the same time secure the best of the large school. The expense of the equipment and the specialized courses which a large university alone can offer. While I do not believe that any scheme of federation would be so successful as the one proposed, I am sure that the advantages of the present plan are such that they will be maintained and improved.

The large financial outlay involved in such a scheme would need to be met by a source of revenue that might be fairly expected to contribute. The trustees of the Carnegie Corporation, while greatly interested in a scheme of this kind, are not in the proposal, wish to ascertain, first, whether the Maritime colleges approve of such a scheme of federation, and secondly, whether they are prepared to contribute. RUSSIAN LADY HAS $200,000 IN JEWELS STOLEN

Was on Way to America to Plead Cause of the Refugees

New York, May 24.—Mme. Bontslava Lamproch von Putschenko, a Russian, who arrived here on Friday, on the steamship Peninsula State, told reporters yesterday she had been robbed of jewellery valued at $200,000 when the ship was at sea last Sunday.

The offices of the United States and police and agents in Berlin, in a thorough investigation when the ship docked at Hoboken. No trace of the stolen jewels was found.

Mme. von Putschenko is the widow of the late Dr. Boris Putschenko, who was professor of bacteriology at the University of Petrograd and Cracow, who she says, was formerly a specialist to Professor Ellis Mitchell, of the University of Toronto.

The jewels were partly gifts to her and partly heirlooms from her own family. Professor von Putschenko was killed by the Bolsheviks in 1918. His widow, who is now in Berlin, had the jewels sent to her by her husband's relatives in Poland, and has come to America to appeal for relief for the destitute Russian refugees.

She is now the wife of Kurt Lamproch, owner of a paper mill near Warsaw in Poland, and has come to America to appeal for relief for the destitute Russian refugees.

About Face DOCTOR'S DAUGHTER'S STORY

Another Toronto home possible evidence, how they the way, to classify blood-poison. Doesn't it show there's a vital need for keeping a suitable medicine on hand, always handy?

When called upon, always handy? Avenue, Mrs. J. E. Zentley, daughter of the late Dr. Brown, of St. David's, S. W. Ave., said: "My boy Alfred scratched his leg with the brass handle of a lancet. A nasty poisoner soon developed and I used all the usual remedies. Hearing splendid reports about zam-buk I decided to give it a trial. To my great relief, the pain soon ceased leading to a cure. All inflammation and poisonous matter was quickly removed. My boy was healed in a few days. My daughter, a nurse, was of the opinion that only an operation could remove the mass of inflammation and pus. But I cleaned and healed the wound in a few days." Equally valuable for eczema, pimples, cuts, burns, etc.

Wants Hague To Start With A Clean Slate

Genoa, May 15.—Delirium accompanying the final agency of the Geneva conference is the most reasonable explanation of the attitude taken here toward possible American participation in the Hague meeting. Various delegations, worrying about the reception awaiting them at home, know they were saved if America agreed to come to the Hague. When they learned that America was "sympathetically" considering participation and that Ambassador Child had stated some conditions on which participation would depend, they immediately took for granted that since these particular conditions in their view had already been met the presence of America at the Hague was a foregone conclusion. The wish was expressed in many European papers as a fact.

Then came the Hague note and it was as quickly concluded that the life preserver was nothing more than a ruse to keep the British and the French from dropping their hands. The British view was that the note furnished a basis for further correspondence and the Powers are now considering the proposals and the impression is gaining ground that a door has been left open. There is reason to believe, however, that Genoa will find it hard to pass through the opening left by the man through the needle's eye. The Russians apparently will not grudge if America is absent as they seem to think it would make the European Powers more intransigent in their attitude.

I understand that Washington not only wants the Hague to be a complete break from Genoa—Lloyd George has already declared an "adjustment or continuation"—but wants the memoranda both of the Powers and Russia wiped out of the Geneva record so the Hague can start with a clean slate without any recollection of the past.

There is reason to believe, however, that Genoa will find it hard to pass through the opening left by the man through the needle's eye. The Russians apparently will not grudge if America is absent as they seem to think it would make the European Powers more intransigent in their attitude.

I understand that Washington not only wants the Hague to be a complete break from Genoa—Lloyd George has already declared an "adjustment or continuation"—but wants the memoranda both of the Powers and Russia wiped out of the Geneva record so the Hague can start with a clean slate without any recollection of the past.

The British view was that the note furnished a basis for further correspondence and the Powers are now considering the proposals and the impression is gaining ground that a door has been left open. THE BOLSHEVIK EXPECT FOREIGN TRADE REVIVAL

Their Hopes Based on Presence in Moscow of Representatives of Big Capital.

Moscow, May 25—(By Mail)—The Bolsheviki government anticipates a great revival of foreign trade this summer. These hopes are based upon the presence in Moscow of a number of German, Swedish and other representatives of big capital.

Up to the present time the accomplishment of these capitalists are unknown or incomplete, but there can be no doubt that important negotiations for German participation in the industrial restoration of Russia are under way.

German and Swedish locomotives ordered last year are now arriving in increasing numbers. There are reports of important conferences with Krupp and other German firms which might lead to reconstruction by the Germans of all Russia's damaged railway rolling stock and repairs.

Short term credits have been granted by German and Swedish firms for small orders. A number of shipments have been made on the basis of collections at the point of delivery.

"Cash against documents New York," the terms on which American firms have insisted in doing business with the Bolsheviki government have been the stumbling blocks to several recent attempts by Americans in Moscow to place orders. The Foreign Trade Commission appears to be taking the stand that foreign firms should at least trust the Russians to the extent of sending them goods to be paid for at the point of arrival, while the Americans, perhaps, remembering cancelled orders in the past, want their money before they ship.

Furthermore, so far as these cancelled orders and other previous dealings with America are concerned, the Soviet government apparently takes the stand that these are matters to be settled with the American government, when a trade agreement is effected and all past differences are ironed out.

They seek to start new business with a clean slate even with the Americans who have cancelled orders in the past and are surprised when such firms refuse them credits or insist on cash down payment.

One of the old contracts, involving about $6,000,000 which the Bolsheviki government refused to honor, was that of the Bobrov contract of Milwaukee.

In spite of the fact that they realized the support of the National City Bank of New York might be great value to them, the Soviet authorities have declined to permit the representatives of this bank to come to Russia to recover the balance of the Petrograd branch which was confiscated in the early days of the Bolsheviki revolution.

Canadian Bar Association Meets At Vancouver

At Convention to Gather August 16 to 18, Lord Shaw of Dumfries, Will Be Guest of Honor.

Vancouver, B. C., May 25—The annual convention of the Canadian Bar Association, to be held in Vancouver and Victoria from August 16 to 18, is being held in Vancouver.

The convention is one of the most distinguished of the Lords of Appeal and former Lord Advocates of Scotland.

Much interest attaches to the appointment of the programme which includes addresses by leaders of the bar of the United States and that of other countries are also expected to attend.

The Canadian Bar Association was organized in 1914, and incorporated in 1921. Its president is Sir James H. Inglis, K. C., of Winnipeg, and among the vice-presidents are included such outstanding figures as K. C. of Montreal as Eugene A. McPherson, K. C., of Winnipeg, L. G. McPhillips, K. C., of Vancouver, represents British Columbia on the executive.

British Rush More Troops To Ulster To Stop Fighting

Four Battalions Sent Saturday and Other Units Going If Necessary.

London, May 25—The British Government is rushing troops to Ulster, it was revealed by Winston Churchill, the Colonial Secretary, in the House of Commons this afternoon. Mr. Churchill announced that in addition to four battalions sent to the Irish provinces Saturday, other units and ammunition will be dispatched if necessary. There are now nineteen British battalions in Ulster, which can be used to enforce order if the London Government decides to interfere.

The signatories of the Irish Free State treaty are coming to London this week to discuss the effects of a new coalition policy in South Ireland upon the treaty status in Ireland.

Belfast, May 25—(Associated Press)—The terrorizing by gunmen continued today in Ulster. The killing of W. J. Twaddell, a member of the Ulster Parliament, who was shot while on his way to business, caused the issuance of a manifesto by Sir James Craig, the Premier.

The Premier said:—

"My detestation of this horrible crime fills me with such indignation that I have summoned a special meeting of my Cabinet and all the authorities dealing with law and order. Such an event as this murder demands just retribution."

The manifesto says Mr. Twaddell was murdered for his loyalty to the Empire and his devotion to the cause of Ulster and the welfare of the country. His colleagues and the authorities will carry on and face the future, no matter what the future might hold for them.

Justice and retribution rest with the higher authorities, the manifesto added. "Let the people rally round the established Government, which will see that proper measures are taken with out plunging our province or our capital into a welter of crime and bloodshed."

Five Other Murders.

Late tonight three knocked at the door of the home of Sergeant Henry Walsh in Newport, Tipperary. They were admitted by Walsh's wife. When Walsh made his appearance they killed him in the presence of his wife. Patrick Galligan was shot dead by unknown men in the same village.

John McLaughlin, a railway man, was shot and killed in the Belfast depot. This was the fifth murder in the vicinity of the depot since Friday.

This evening a sniper in Seaford street, east of the city, returning from work in Ballymacarrett. One of the men, George Lawson, was killed.

Another sniper fired into a York street, east of the city, returning from work in Ballymacarrett. One of the men, George Lawson, was killed.

The body of an unknown man riddled with bullets was taken to a hospital during the afternoon.

Thomas Boyd was shot dead this morning in Woodstock road, East Belfast, and James Lindsay was seriously wounded.

A man on top of a tramcar was shot and seriously wounded tonight by a sniper. The ambulance man while taking him to the hospital found another man lying in the street shot in the thigh. The total killings today reached six. Soldiers and police were busy with their firearms replying to the shots that came from various points of vantage.

Suggestive Letter Found.

Inspector Nixon, taking today in Belfast the case of Desmond Green, an amateur actor arrested in a taxi cab in Belfast with a loaded revolver, said he found the following letter on the prisoner:

"A meeting of the northeast advisory committee in Belfast was 11 unanimously decided to convene a meeting of the whole advisory committee for the purpose of devising a definite plan of campaign to be adopted by the Nationalists of the northeast, whereby they can render impotent the so-called Government of northern Ireland."

The most disquieting feature of yesterday's doings in Belfast was the shifting of the centre of trouble to Ballymacarrett, the eastern section, where there is a large artisan population and a small, compact Sinn Fein community living in an area called the Sheet Strand.

Two men were killed in the violent rioting there, and Thomas McInnes, who was wounded Saturday, died, bringing the total of deaths over the week end to fourteen.

During last night's shooting gunmen opened fire on the city electric station, but the return fire from police and troops caused the assailants to withdraw.

The flying column responsible for Saturday's raids in County's Antrim and Down vanished as quickly as it came, but a renewal of its operations is anticipated.

Morse Offered To Enrich Daugherty, Felder Declared

Senator Caraway Renews Attack by Reading Letter from Ohio Lawyer.

Washington, D. C., May 25—Senator Caraway (Ark.), in the Senate today, renewed his attack on Attorney General Daugherty for his connection with the release from the Atlanta penitentiary of Charles W. Morse during the Taft Administration. He introduced the record of a long letter written by T. B. Felder in 1917, in which Mr. Felder told in detail how he and Mr. Daugherty succeeded in obtaining the pardon for a $39,000 debt.

Senator Morse (N. H.), came to the defense of the Attorney-General by declaring the attack on him from the other side is just a smoke screen to protect a former Attorney-General and a former Secretary of the Treasury because of the former's connection with the Boech Memphis case and the release of Morse in the Shipping Board scandal.

Evidently, he added, there is a strong desire to get rid of the present Attorney-General, for he is in position to seriously embarrass the persons mentioned.

The Arkansas Senator denied emphatically he was inspired in making his attacks on Mr. Daugherty by political motives or to protect members of his own political party.

Fails to Give Source.

"If a former Attorney-General is in any way involved in any illegal transaction, he should be prosecuted, and I am not here to defend him. The same is true concerning the former Secretary of the Treasury."

Senator Morse then intimated that documentary evidence being used against Mr. Daugherty had been supplied by agents of the Attorney-General. Caraway took exception, but refused to disclose his source of information.

Felder's letter, which emphasized the statement that Mr. Daugherty was brought into the case, "because he stood so close to the President as to be either lawyer or citizen of the United States."

Then Senator Caraway asserted that Mr. Daugherty had imposed on his friend, President Taft, and abused his confidence.

"No wonder," he added, "Mr. Taft in reviewing his administration observed that the Morse case had been a blot on the record of his administration, because of the fictitious reports on Morse's condition supplied to him by Mr. Daugherty and his associate, Mr. Felder."

Asked Additional Fee

According to Mr. Felder's letter, added Senator Caraway, after it was disclosed that a fraud had been perpetrated on the President concerning Morse's condition, "his attorneys—Messrs. Daugherty and Felder—made all sorts of efforts to persuade the President to rescind the order, and then Attorney General Mr. Wickham, in order to keep the case from the public, he added, they demanded an additional fee from their client."

"Now, if the present Attorney-General and his associate had been sincere and honest," he added, "they would have gone to President Taft and told him that unintentionally they had imposed upon him and that they should like to resign their positions and their client to his fate."

Senator Caraway then ridiculed a statement attributed to former Attorney-General Wickham, in which Mr. Wickham said he had no recollection of Mr. Felder's connection with the Morse case.

"That statement must be a bitter blow to Mr. Felder," explained Senator Caraway, "as he has taken upon himself most of the credit for that performance. He brags about the fact he kept the President from righting a wrong which he made at the suggestion of himself and his associate, Mr. Daugherty."

"Now Mr. Felder says I am crazy and no criminals would ever engage me to defend them. It is a fact I have always been on the other side of the proposition. I have put away many men much better than Mr. Felder. I have never got any criminals out of prison."

Tells of Medical Test

Next Senator Caraway dwelt upon the medical examination which led to Mr. Morse's pardon. He read the following extract from the Felder letter:

"A board of medical examiners was appointed at our request, an examination was made and the three physicians reported that Morse's condition was not serious."

A board of medical officers, doctors were appointed who conducted an examination and thereafter reported that his condition was serious.

"It is interesting to note," added Senator Caraway, "that Dr. A. L. Fowler, who was the leading spirit in bringing in a report to the effect Morse had only a few days to live at

Large Assets Reported By Bank of Montreal

In Half Yearly Statement Assets Total $653,869,071. Liquid Assets Stand at $335,366,697, Equal to 56.42 p. c. of Public Liabilities.

The half-yearly statement of the Bank of Montreal for the six months ending April 30, 1922, which has just been published, is perhaps of special interest this year because it shows that it has been possible to carry through the absorption by The Merchants Bank without in any way disturbing the usual strong position of this leading Canadian financial institution.

The statement shows that the Assets have increased to $653,869,071 and of this amount the sum of $335,366,697, equal to 56.42 per cent. of the total liabilities to the Public is in the form of Liquid Assets.

The Capital Stock now stands at $27,250,000 and the Best Account at an equal amount.

The profits for the half year amounted to $1,231,426, and this added to the balance carried forward from the previous year, made a total of $2,723,072 available for distribution. From this amount 70 per cent. dividends of 3 per cent. each are deducted, as well as the war tax on the Bank's note circulation, amounting to $115,897. A reservation of half a million dollars was also taken from the sum of $1,607,000 credited to Best Account. The balance carried forward amounts to $279,875.

A feature of the statements is the large total of savings deposits. These amount to $401,852,088, while the deposits not bearing interest amount to $142,876,514, making a total of $544,728,602.

Old Ladies' Home Annual Meeting

Reports Received Were Most Encouraging—All Rooms Occupied—Officers Elected.

That the deficit for the year was the smallest of any in the past four years, was the welcome news announced at the annual meeting of the subscribers to the Old Ladies' Home which was held in that institution yesterday afternoon. W. Shivers Fisher, the president, was in the chair.

The directors' report showed that all the rooms in the home were filled, there being twenty-six living there, and that there was a small waiting list. During the year the receipts were larger than for last year both from the interest on investments and from the board paid by those in the home. Some extensive repairs had been made this year and renovating done to the halls and the general living rooms. There was no change in the directors during the year, nor the officers from last year, and they are as follows:

W. Shivers Fisher, president.
R. R. Armstrong, secretary-treasurer.
Directors—F. P. Starr, H. C. Rankine, C. H. Peters, Dr. W. W. White, Mrs. J. Morris Robinson, Mrs. T. E. G. Armstrong, Mrs. W. P. Bonnell, Miss Cella Armstrong, Mrs. Robert Cruikshank, Mrs. W. Local Candidates Notified from Ottawa That They Have Proved Successful.

Among the candidates, who recently wrote the civil service examinations for the Dominion of Canada, and who have been notified from Ottawa, that they have passed successfully, are five young ladies from the Mount Carmel Academy, Burpee Avenue. These young ladies took the commercial course in this institution, under the capable instruction of Sister M. Cyrilla, who is to be congratulated on the number of successful students, whom she has assisted in launching upon a business career. In all thirteen young ladies from the city wrote the examinations.

Destroying Trees In Rockwood Park

Two Young Ladies Taken Before Police Court and Allowed to Go With Warning.

It is to be hoped that the outcome of a session, which occurred in the police court at noon yesterday, will result in a better observance of the by-laws relative to Rockwood Park, and so a warning to any who have been in the habit of committing acts of vandalism in the park, whether thoughtlessly or otherwise.

Two young ladies appeared on the charge of destroying trees in the park by tearing branches from them. Judge Armstrong and John Jackson, directors of the St. John Horticultural Society, were present as complainants. In this case the branches were torn from wild cherry trees, and the young ladies admitted that they had committed the act, but said they were picking the blossoms to send to soldiers in the hospitals, and did not realize that they were doing a wrong. It was pointed out that the Horticultural Society had gone to considerable trouble and expense to beautify the park and keep it in such a condition as to be a source of pride to the city, and that such acts of vandalism, as were from time to time complained of, should be stopped. Besides the penalty provided for an infraction of the by-laws, there is a section in the criminal code, which makes the destruction of trees a criminal offence, and punishable as such.

The sitting magistrate and the directors had a very serious talk with the young ladies, and the latter promised that the event should not occur again, and that they would take the trouble to explain to others the nature of the offence. A fine was struck but allowed to stand.

Benefit For The South End League

Tuneful Musical Comedy Repeated by N. B. Telephone Co. Employees Last Night.

"The Maids of Tracadie," that tuneful musical comedy which met with popular favor and admiration in representing the employees of the New Brunswick Telephone Co. some few weeks ago, was repeated with equal success in a benefit performance given for the South End Improvement League, in the Telephone building last night. The opera is one deserving of great praise, in that it was conceived by an amateur playwright, and every particular of the production was the work solely of amateurs. Sparkling comedy, catching songs and sweet singing vocalists, combined with graceful dancing, pretty girls and costumes, all contributed to make it one of the most profitable amateur productions of the season, and deserving of a larger introduction to St. John audiences.

David A. Sinclair Died Suddenly

Old and Respected Railway Man Succumbed After Walk to Rockwood Park.

The rather sudden death of David Andrew Sinclair, of his home, 98 Stanley street, will prove a shock to his many friends. Mr. Sinclair was old yesterday in his apparently good health and walked to Rockwood Park. He came home and did not complain, and about six o'clock yesterday afternoon he took a weak spell and passed away. He was eighty-three years of age, and a most respected citizen. For fifty years and six months he was employed with the Intercolonial Railway. He entered the service when the line was known as the European and North American Railway in 1859, and at that time he was twenty years of age. He worked for seventeen years as an engineer, and was thirty-three years foreman of the mechanical department in St. John. He retired on October 31, 1909.

Mr. Sinclair was the first engineer in charge of a locomotive to cross the Hammond River bridge, and he helped to ballast the road from St. John to Moncton. When he began his career with the railway the line was only extended five miles from St. John. He was a member of Union Lodge of Portland F. and A. M., and was the oldest member, joining in 1864. He was a charter member of New Brunswick Lodge, Knights of Pythias, although he has not been an active member for some years past. He leaves one son, Frederick H., train despatcher of the Canadian National Railway, and his wife died only last February.

The deceased was a worthy citizen beloved by a wide circle of friends, and of a pleasing disposition. He was a thorough railway man and his loss will be deeply mourned. The funeral will be held from his late residence tomorrow afternoon. The service at 2.30 o'clock.

Will Manufacture Complete Radio Sets

McLean, Holt Co.'s Plant Are Going Into New Line of Business.

Complete radio sets and parts are to be manufactured in the McLean Holt Co.'s plant on Albion street, it was stated by James L. McAvity, who returned to the city yesterday from Montreal. Mr. McAvity while in the Canadian metropolis completed details in connection with the opening of the new industry in St. John, and arranged for the shipment of the special machinery required for such work. Mr. McAvity said that radio receiving and sending, with the advent and greater recognition of the possibilities for amateurs as well as professionals with the radio telephone, was setting the fancy of the public more and more every day, and the demand for the radio sets was enormous. He hoped by his new plant to popularize the radio locally, and said that a broad casting station would be opened in the city within a week, and concerts given for the benefit of all in possession of radio sets. It was hoped to get leading local talent, vocalists and instrumentalists to favor with recitals that would be sent out by the local broadcasting station. Mr. McAvity said that the new radio organization had no intention of interfering in any way with any radio clubs or bodies which had already entered the field in St. John. The new manufacturing company will be known as the New Brunswick Radio Corporation, of which Mr. McAvity will be president. It will manufacture complete receiving sets of different types. The first sets will be equipped with crystal detectors, which will allow purchasers to receive messages at a specified distance.

It is thought that a law suit will follow, in the meantime, the ten days' free storage period is about to expire, following which the city will charge an excise tax of three per cent shall be imposed, levied and collected on

What you should know about a Fountain Pen

A FOUNTAIN PEN is nothing more or less than a writing instrument which carries its own supply of ink. It is virtually a tube containing ink, with a pen point inserted in one end of it.

The difference in efficiency between one make of fountain pen and another lies in how closely they approach perfection in controlling automatically the flow of ink from the tube to the pen point during the act of writing.

Thirty-eight years ago, Mr. L. E. Waterman invented Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen. It was the first fountain pen with a device that in scientific conception and practical application automatically controlled the flow of ink from the barrel to the point of the pen. It did this with a degree of perfection never before known and which, to the present moment, has never been equalled.

This device is the famous Waterman spoon feed and it can be found only in
