HARTLAND LEADS SAILORS' FUNDS

The Observer has been given a detailed statement of the money collected in Hartland and vicinity for the Sailors' Relief Fund, following to the length of the list of contributors it is found impossible to put it in type this week, and it may not appear until the issue of Jan. 25. But the full statement will be printed in these columns. The total of the sums collected, $211.05, was handed over to Treasurer M. L. Hayward, and by him transmitted to County Treasurer McDonald, Royal Bank, Woodstock. In addition to this The Observer has received $5 from Miss Agnes White of Waltham, Mass. for the fund, which sum has also been sent to the county treasurer.

The Woodstock Press reports that up to Jan. 5 the county treasurer had received only $341 of the hoped for $1000 contribution from Carleton county, but several of the villages had not then made their returns. It will be seen of the $341 contributed Hartland and vicinity supplied $211.05. The Press also states that Woodstock's contributions amounted to $143.51, which added to that sent in by Hartland totals $354.56. The Observer does not know what reduced the total fund to $341--possibly some expense items.

FARMERS' MEETING ON SATURDAY

A meeting of Peoples Union Agricultural Society on Saturday was not so well attended as it should have been. Delegates to the F. & D. Association at Fredericton were appointed, as follows: G. E. Nixon, C. E. Barnett and Scott A. Shaw. Substitutes appointed were H. C. Cochrane, E. O. Morgan and B. N. Shaw. A public meeting was arranged for the afternoon of Saturday, Jan. 13. This meeting should be profitable to every farmer and interesting to anyone.

Prof. H. B. Duros will discuss the fertilizer situation and Prof. J. W. Mitchell will speak on farm dairying. There should be a good attendance. Of course no admission fee will be charged. Nevertheless the meeting should be worth a good deal to farmers.

C. M. Shaw, secretary of the organization, says that he has taken orders for more than 500 tons of chemicals for home-mixed fertilizers. This is an increase of more than 300 tons over last years importation.

THE VALLEY RAILWAY

"Make the Most of a bad Bargain"

In the arbitration case being tried in St. John, wherein A. R. Gould, Valley railway contractor, seeks to recover some three or four hundred thousand dollars from the province, it was brought out by the counsel for the government that the Valley railway in its operations last year showed a deficit approximating $150,000, which the people of New Brunswick will have to pay.

This is as has been foretold. The Valley railway is not a paying proposition, and it never can be made a paying proposition, whether run by the I. C. R., as it is now, or by an independent company.

No matter in whose mind the idea had birth, there never was even a remote possibility that the Valley railway could be a paying business project. One train a day, every day in the year, will not yield sufficient revenue to pay maintenance expenses, and a train run every day whether traffic offers or not is a tremendous loss, for some days.

Whether the Valley railway is operated as it is now, one hundred and twenty odd miles with a small country village as each terminus, or if it were completed to Grand Falls and to St. John on its own rails, lack of traffic would be the eternal bugaboo, and truly some bugaboo at that. If there was $150,000 deficit last year, will the road this year get sufficient business to "break even"? It is probable that the road is now hauling all the products of the territory contiguous to it, but which, from figures shown, is not sufficient by half to pay the interest, to say nothing of upkeep. No one will have the courage to say the old-settled country through which the road runs is going to double its production within the lifetime of one generation.

How, then, can the road, operated between Centreville and Gagetown, ever be made self-sustaining?

Suppose the road were built to Grand Falls. What quantity of freight would be furnished in the way of through traffic? Not one car in a year! And the narrow strip of land between the C. P. R. and the international boundary can not grow potatoes and hogs and hay in one year more than one train could haul away in a week.

How is traffic to be increased by building the road to Welsford or Westfield? This journal cannot answer the question.

Whoever we believe it was a Liberal—projected a valley railway from St. John to Grand Falls lacked clarity of vision, except that he possibly saw a gain in political prestige. There came another who took up the idea, examined it, pronounced it good for his own political purposes, and appropriated it. Then all the politicians in the land, Liberals and Conservatives alike, were confronted with the problem that had suddenly assumed the proportions of a demand from an important section of the province. Not one politician was bold enough to treat the matter properly, although it was clear enough to all of them that no part of the scheme was feasible from a business standpoint. Had there been one to denounce the scheme as impracticable he might not be in political life today but he would have yielded up his political ghost as a martyr, and saved the province millions of dollars. But in that case there would have been no Valley railway, and the people who now enjoy its privileges would be as handicapped for transportation facilities as were their fathers before them.

In the course of exploiting the Valley road the C. P. R. intervened and pointed out the impracticability of the scheme. And in a conference the Great Alternative Idea was born whereby all kinds of promises might be given for political purposes but care was to be taken that in actual construction the road was to be a branch running into the C. P. R. The result is what we have today.

The Valley railway has cost the province millions of dollars, and it has cost some people their decent claim to public respect.

The Valley Railway cost the province last year $150,000, and it is plain that it will cost as much this year, and the next, and next, ad infinitum.

The only apparent and obvious course to save this tremendous expense, and still give the people the benefit of the road's operation, is to give the road to some existing railway company that will accept it as a gift and operate it, and pay a portion of the interest on its bonds.

Lacking traffic of its own to pay expenses as an independent line, it might be profitably used by the C. P. R., in part as a feeder originating traffic, but more useful as a means of conveying to St. John the traffic of its Woodstock-and-north lines. In short the C. P. R. might be made a feeder to the Valley railway rather than the reverse. This idea is borne of the fact that in the heavy traffic season there is a continual congestion of freight at McAdam and all along the C. P. R. to St. John, no small part of which is freight originating north of Woodstock.

We believe this to have been the Great Alternative Idea aforementioned, and, while deploring the method of its bringing about, and its awful cost to the province, we perceive in it the only feasible solution to the Valley railway problem.

If there is any profit in the Valley railway the C. P. R. alone can extract it.

Carleton Co. People Wed in the West

A very pretty wedding took place Christmas day at the home of A. J. Smythe, Vancouver, B. C., when Miss Jennie Mae Ebbett, daughter of Mrs. A. E. Hoyer of Lower Wakefield was united in marriage to Ralph Hartley Boyer, son of Mrs. A. J. Boyer, formerly of Hartland.

The ceremony was performed in the drawing-room under an arch of evergreen by the Rev. G. R. Welch.

The bride, who was unattended, wore a gown of mauve charmeuse with georgette crepe and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. She was brought in and given away by A. J. Smythe. The bridal music was played by Miss Evelyn McNaughton.

A buffet luncheon followed the ceremony after which the young couple left for their home at 845 Thirteenth Avenue, West.

Leonard A. Doucett Dead

Leonard A. Doucett, formerly of Knowlesville, but who some years ago moved to the west, died of paralysis at his home at Windthorst, Sask. He had his first seizure in August while he was driving his own car to town, and grew steadily worse, with recurrent shocks, up to Nov. 9 when he passed away. He is survived by his wife and six children: Paul and Wallace, at "the front", Jacob and Harry, prairie farmers, Mrs. J. E. Harvey (Dora) of Kipling and Mrs. Oliver McInnis. There remain two brothers, Henry and Walter, at Knowlesville, while Mrs. O. A. Lewin of Benion and the late Mrs. C. T. Phillips were sisters.

Mr. Doucett was a man of strong integrity and there are many here in the country that was for so many years his home who will hold him in kindly and respectful remembrance. In the west he "made good" farming. He was born at Yarmouth in 1852.

Did You Raise 300 Bushels of Potatoes Per Acre This Year?

This is not an unusual yield but did you get it this season? If you didn't raise 300 bushels of potatoes per acre you have lost a part of your profit.

If you were planning to raise 300 bushels of potatoes per acre next season—How far apart would you space the rows? How far apart would you drop the seed pieces in the row? What are you doing to prevent scab and blight?

We have specialized in the manufacture of potato fertilizers for sixty years and are supplying many of the best farmers in Aroostook County. We have a practical book for potato growers entitled

"POTATOES: A Money Crop"

Anaemia

"Only tired."

This is the way anaemic, bloodless people usually describe their condition.

But there is a pallor of the lips, eyelids and gums which denotes the weak, watery state of the blood.

Tired feelings tell of muscular weakness. Failure of the digestive organs indicates their weakened action. The system is running down because the blood is lacking in the nutritive element which is necessary to rebuild the cells wasted by the daily work and in the process of living.

In this weakened condition one is an easy prey to colds and all contagious diseases. The blood must be enriched by such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food before you can hope to regain strength.

Anaemia does not correct itself, and, consequently, the greatest danger lies in neglecting to take active treatment until the strength is too far wasted.

Many thousands have been cured of anaemia by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and this is the best proof that it will not fail you.

It supplies, in condensed and easily assimilated form, the ingredients from which nature forms rich, red blood. Consequently, the benefits obtained are both thorough and lasting.

TAKE YOUR CHANCE

Rats, Dogs, Birds, etc. Form "Dainty" Edibles

From China comes a long list of dainties that would be recognized by the Western fancy and palate. Bird's nest soup is well known, and so is trepang, the sea slug, in whose capture many Chinese fishermen earn their living. In the streets of Canton there may be seen, exposed for sale to such as care to buy, rats, dogs, crows, piles of the larvae of bees and moths, and many other edibles of whose origin the Western traveller shudders to think.

Many curious dishes are beloved of the natives of the various republics of South America. The Indians of the Amazon lake and eat snake. Bear meat is enjoyed by those inhabiting the Andes uplands, and has been pronounced excellent by hunters. In the Chilian markets there may be seen heaps of small, immature octopi, fated to be made into soup, and also bundles of seaweed, which is stewed and served as a vegetable, and highly esteemed for its valuable tonic and blood-cleansing properties.

Like the French, the Chilians eat the legs of large frogs, which may be caught or reared. Prickly sea urchins, called by the natives "orizos," are eaten raw, as are also large mussels, called "choros." There are no rabbits indigenous to Chili, but the place of that useful little animal is taken by the common pussy cat, who is frequently made into "cazuela," a native dish, which is something between a soup and a stew. Many a traveller, munching at some wayside inn of the appetizing dish he has just consumed, has been told, to his horror, "¡Cato piquante, señor!" (savory cat!)

"SAFETY FIRST" PIONEER

N. S. Dunlop Introduced Novelty into Canadian Railroad Life

Mr. N. S. Dunlop, tax and insurance commissioner of the C.P.R., who decided to take a prolonged rest upon the advice of his physician, had been in the service of the company for 26 years. He joined in 1888 at Toronto. The year afterward he was appointed tax and insurance commissioner and claims adjuster. In these capacities Mr. Dunlop did excellent work.

Mr. Dunlop may be said to be the father of "Safety First" on the Canadian railways; and into this work he threw himself with splendid enthusiasm—doing much to popularize the movement. As far as the outside public is concerned, he is best known as the creator of the floral department of the C.P.R. He began in 1888 to save flower seeds from his own garden, and conceived the idea of spreading the cult of flowers over the system. He was a flower, nature and book lover; and the work was congenial to him. He sent out seeds and bulbs to the agents and others along the system; and soon, from ocean to ocean, the plots in front of hundreds of stations were ablaze with flowers. He gave prizes; and labored in every way to make this feature notable. In this he succeeded abundantly.

Mr. Dunlop is a member of the New York State Geographic Association, one of the oldest and largest associations of shorthand in the world; but his brochure, "What the Flowers Tell Us," and his work at love in adorning a big railway system with floral beauty, will be Mr. Dunlop's best recognition in connection with his long service with the C.P.R.

Galeb's Conversion

By HAZEL OSWALD

It was Christmas eve, and Galeb Churton, the money-lender, sat in his great dining room, surrounded by all that makes for luxurious living.

"No Jack preferred his artist's work to this," he mused, chuckling contentedly while he half-spoke the words.

Ten years before, his elder brother had told their father that he was not cut out for a Shylock; that he preferred to get a living by pleasant means than his fellow-brothers' flesh and blood, and had gone out into the world, cursing by the father and laughing at by his brother.

Three years later—and 12 months after he had announced his marriage to a fellow-artist's daughter—that old Churton died, leaving all his business to Galeb, and not mentioning Jack Churton by as much as a single word in his will.

To do him justice, Galeb had rebelled against this as much as he could, but he had found out that his brother was able to keep his head above water, and after offering him a share in the business, he had indignantly refused—Galeb applied himself to the task of doubling his father's wealth.

All these things went through his brain as he sat by his fire. Of a sudden a thought struck him. "If I were to go and parade my wealth before them—will make the wife bitterly envious and Jack sorry that he ever refused me!"

With this ambitious intention he rose, ordered his automobile to be brought out, and was soon whirling toward Jack's home.

Suddenly the auto stopped, and he got out, telling the chauffeur to return in an hour, not later.

"If I am finished before, I can spend the time somewhere," he thought.

Up the steps of the great apartment he went until he came to a door labelled 42. Then he knocked, and getting no answer, entered very quietly, finding the door not locked.

He looked round the tiny hall, and then stepped into the first room.

"Are you Santa Claus?"

The timid little query stopped him in his wanderings, and he looked down to his feet to see a sunny-haired, blue-eyed little mite gravely regarding him.

"That me, you can't be Santa Claus, for he's over so old, and has got a white beard and a long coat, and a big bag full of toys, and comes down the chimney, and doesn't come till after I've gone to bed, and—"

She paused in her list of details for want of breath, and the first time for many years, Churton laughed heartily.

"You queer little mite," he said, "I'm not Santa. Who are you?"

"I'm Gladys, Churton, and I'm not queer. I'm very well, thank you."

"Are you Gladys," he said, "where are your father and mother?"

"They've gone out to buy some things for me, and they told me to be ever so good. They will be back soon."

Churton looked around him. It was so pleasant, so happy, evidently, and the home he had left seemed to lack great deal. He sighed.

"What's the matter, strange man?"

"Nothing, dear."

"But there must be something. I always go like that when I want a doll, and mamma won't buy it for me. I haven't got a little girl."

"Poor strange man!" with a clouding of her sunny face. Then, suddenly,

"Look out, here come mamma and—"

"All right, dear, tell me where!"

Instantly she drew him behind a curtain, and followed.

"Where's my girl?" in a clear, happy voice.

"The mite ran out and struggled in my mother's arms."

"You don't know who she is, do you?" she said, impatiently.

"She's—"

"She's—"

"She's—"

DRINKING IN JAPAN

Terrible Havoc Wrought by Addiction to "Sake"

That drinking is a widespread habit in city and country life alike, says Captain Bickel, is a widespread general impression. An, however, outward evidences of direct intoxication are comparatively scarce in public, I fear that the terrible havoc wrought by liquor in Japan is not fully understood.

Reports from many prefectures give striking evidences that drink has a terrible grip on the communities. A few places report drinking as being moderate but by far the large majority of the reports have statements such as the following: "Fifty per cent. of the village A drink."

"The village of B with 600 houses spends 12,000 yen ($8,000) per year on sake." "Several families in the village of C spent above fifty lars each year on alcohol." (The figure represents about the annual earnings of unskilled workers such as night watchmen or porters, and more than most workers will earn in a country village.)

I have intimate knowledge of one country largely given over to the manufacture of shoyu (a sauce like a ketchup) in which the consumption of sake largely outstrips the profits on this main source of income. Liquor shops are largely on the increase in country districts.

MOTOR OILS AND COLD

Proper Kinds of Oil and Anti-Freezing Mixtures

Many anti-freezing compounds use alcohol, glycerine, water and calcium chloride. The best of the three is that using alcohol, glycerine and water, but for really cold weather, more alcohol and glycerine and less water should be used. When these solutions are used and evaporation occurs it is not necessary to add make-up solution to compensate for the evaporation. The alcohol evaporates much faster than either of the other liquids, so it is necessary to add only alcohol to bring the radiator to capacity.

During cold weather it is necessary that the owner pay attention to oil changes in the gear cases. In cold weather lighter oil should be used than in summer because of the effect of cold on the viscosity of oil. Some use a medium cylinder oil. It is better to use a lighter oil, and should not be used. Before the oil is placed in the case, the latter should be thoroughly cleaned and flushed twice with kerosene.

VERY SWEET OF THEM

A Lollipop Manifesto Which Will Please the Children

There is not a child in London who will not endorse a manifesto issued by a body of grown-ups in Manchester, called the "Confectioners' Association of the United Kingdom." The object of the manifesto is to show, beyond all doubt, that the food value of one pound of lollipops is more than three times greater than, say, one pound of beef. This is made clear by long, learned words to the most obtuse adult intelligence. The Confectioners' Association is trying to persuade the Government that candy should be treated as a necessary article of food, and that they should not be taxed or restricted.

Ornamental Horn Match Holder

Match holder made of the horn shell of cattle hoots mounted on a wooden shield, as shown in the sketch. It is both ornamental and useful. One of the pockets holds the unused matches and the other the burned ones. The hoots were cleaned thoroughly and polished and the edge of the shield was beveled off and varnished in the natural color of the wood. The front was lacquered black and also varnished. How "Bound Feet" Began

According to Chinese history, the custom of small feet among the females of China originated several centuries back, when a large body of women rose against the Government, and tried to overthrow it. To prevent the recurrence of such an event the use of wooden shoes so small as to disable them from making any effective use of their feet was enforced on all female infants.

TOURING THE WEST BEAUTY AND DANGER

Fraser River Canyon—Niagara Gorge Multiplied in Marvelous Scenery—A Racy Description

An easterner, touring British Columbia, writes: Greenhorns going west and not familiar with the infinite capacity of British Columbia to tilt itself on end, think that Siamous is the beginning of normal country. It ought to be, for at that place function have been passed, and the Selkirk text books say merely that the rest of the Province is diversified by hills. It is an understatement. Siamous lies on an arm of Shuswap Lake, a name not to be pronounced safely except by prohibitionists. For 80 or 40 miles toward there are reaches of level land, but always on the opposite side of the lake there are bold and arrogant hills which in any other land would be called mountains.

Like the Old Country

The guide book says the scenery is reminiscent of Scotland and Scottish poets are imagined that Caledonia is vivid and impressive. You can draw your own conclusions. Seen the most westerly arm of Shuswap narrows and becomes the Thompson River, blue clear and in a continuous hurry. The hills are higher and higher still until they form the Thompson River canyon—perhaps 2,000 feet deep, and shaped like a huge V. There are really two sorts of hills on each side of the V. Close to the river and upwards for perhaps 600 feet are immense deposits of gravel and white clay, much of it reminiscent of the clay formations at Scarborough Heights, Ontario. Above that again are rock hills, some naked, some covered sparsely with spruce, and all of a reddish tint much more in appearance than the peaks of the ranges we have passed. The task of building a railway on the shattering side of a gravel pit 100 miles long is not as easy as picking potato bugs. The danger of disastrous slides may be understood, but by cribwork and artificial aids of this sort, the engineers have triumphed.

Niagara Gorge Multiplied

Then comes the high moment when the Thompson joins the Fraser River. The hills are mountains now, stark precipices sweeping to formidable height and clothed, where there is foot of snow, with an infinity of spruces. Multiply the Niagara gorge by ten—perhaps sometimes, by 20, and you may have a dim notion of this stupendous chasm. The river is not clear. It is a dull pea green and it boils so constantly in its narrow path that it has no time to clarify itself. In the train, perhaps 200 feet above the river, one frequently must lean closely towards the window to see the top of the opposite bank. Not infrequently this bank lifts itself into a wall with traces of snow in the upmost crevices. For 180 miles this canyon yawns before the traveller, and if he be timid, gives him nervous prostration. If he be wise, he merely admires and looks, looks and admires the hinder ridges of the neck grow rusty and give warning by ominous creaks. Even when the track leaves the margin of the Fraser and strikes across country to Vancouver, these same mountains have chased one into town and now wait languidly across the bay until the time shall come for chasing one eastward again.

BURMA GRASS FOR PAPER

Kaing Grass May Form a Good Paper Material

The possibilities of utilizing the kaing grass of Burma for paper making have for some years past been investigated by interested persons. In consultation with paper manufacturers in England, and it is now announced that the conversion of this grass into pulp and subsequently into paper can be accomplished in a simple and economical manner.

The yield of unbleached pulp is 89 per cent. calculated on the air-dry grass. This does not compare badly with esparto grass, from which about 45 per cent. of unbleached pulp is obtained. Kaing grass grows in great profusion in all parts of Burma, frequently reaching a height of ten feet.

For paper making material it may be classed with esparto grass, and is much cheaper, though the quality of the pulp is not quite so good as that obtained with esparto. Esparto grass is to a large extent cultivated, whereas kaing grass grows wild and is sometimes rank and coarse. By systematic cutting, however, over preserved areas, a finer grass of uniform quality can be obtained in a very short time.

Fixing the Valve Stem

A bent valve stem on an automobile engine invariably will cause trouble by sticking open and thus causing misfiring of the cylinder in which it is operating. In testing for a bent stem, which hardly is noticeable to the eye, the forefinger gently lifts the stem. It should move freely and drop back to normal position of its own weight. If it does not, clean the stem and guide and try again. If the stem and guide are clean the former may be bent.

Plenty of Proof

By O. F. WOODRUFF

Teddy sat upon the top step of the stairs that led to the street and rested his chin in the palm of his hand. Some of the fellows came along and hulloosed to him, but Teddy didn't answer. He didn't want to play with the fellows just now, for he was battling with a great sorrow.

Tom had said it, so it must be true, for Tom was eight years old and didn't have to go to bed until 8 o'clock. Teddy's hour for retiring was half past 7, and he realized that the extra half hour made a man of the world out of Tom, while it left the unfortunate Teddy still a baby.

Tom had stuck his hands into his pockets—Tom's trousers were lovely and rough, just like his father's—and had swaggered around telling all the fellows that there wasn't any Santa Claus. When questioned further, he had said that there used to be, but that this year there wasn't going to be, and there never would be again.

No Santa Claus! If Teddy hadn't been six years old, he might have cried, but of course one as old as he never cries.

Teddy wondered if he'd better tell his mother. He decided he wouldn't. Why should his mother, whom he loved so dearly, be made to suffer any longer than was necessary?

It was hard, though, during the next two weeks, which seemed like years, not to tell, and when Christmas eve came and his mother early brought out his biggest pair of stockings and hung them up at the end of the mantel he could hardly keep back the tears.

How disappointed he and his mother would be when they got up in the morning and found the stockings empty! She leaned over and kissed him tenderly. "Are you tired, dear?" she asked. "You don't seem as happy as usual!"

Teddy assured her, as well as he was able for the lump in his throat, that he was perfectly well. His mother, like the wise one she was, didn't press the question. She merely threw up her long looking chair and sat beside the bed until she thought Teddy was asleep, and then crept quietly down stairs.

Teddy lay for a long time after she went, watching the brilliant flicker on the walls. He couldn't go to sleep and besides what was the use, when there wasn't a thing to wake up for? A good many tears rolled out of the corners of his eyes, but he didn't care now.

He must have lain there for about four or ten hours, he thought, and had just shut his eyes to rest them from the light, when he heard a sound, a very little bit of a sound. He sat up quickly in bed and listened eagerly, because it sounded like really old sound, as if it might be sleigh bells. In a minute, he didn't know just how, he was leaning out of the window.

He didn't feel as if he had walked there at all, but more as if he had just stumbled along without any effort on his part, as if he had been some sort of delightful fish bird. He leaned away out of the window, not feeling a bit afraid of falling, and looked down upon the street.

Yes, down there on the street, as plain as day, he could see the reindeer, their long horns and branching antlers, and the bells that seemed almost to cover them filled the air with their musical tinkle. And then there was a gleam of red. Somebody was climbing into the sleigh! There was the echo of a jovial voice calling, the horns of the reindeer quivered joyfully, then the whole turnout seemed to leap into the air, and like a flash was gone!

Teddy rubbed his eyes. It was funny! He thought he was at the window, but here he was in bed. He sat up and looked around the room. The fire in the grate had gone out, but the gray light of the morning was beginning to steal through the curtains. Teddy got out of bed and crept softly to the fireplace.

The stockings were bulging in all directions, as had been their exhilarating wont in other years! He put out his hand and touched one of them gently. It was no dream! The stocking was full to overflowing!

With a little sighing, whispering wheeze of joy and relief Teddy clasped his hands until the knuckles showed as white as the snow outside. Then with a cry of absolute delight, he dashed into his mother's bedroom.

She opened a pair of sleepy eyes at the sound of the pattering little feet. Teddy threw himself upon her, laughing and sobbing.

"Oh, mother, mother, mother!" he cried. "He came after all! Santa Claus did come! Santa Claus did come! He did, he did, he did!"

A very few minutes of close application, and the boy announced to his surprised teacher that he had already learned his lesson, was permitted to recite and go. Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

MERCHANDISE

GENERAL LINE OF GOODS
FOR SALE EN BLOC ::::

I invite the merchants of Hartland and vicinity to come in and look over the remainder of my stock and make me an offer. Every day I hold this store is money lost, and the right time for a good buy is when you catch a man dead anxious to sell, and "THAT'S ME!"

To the Buying Public:

I wish to thank the Public for its very generous and satisfactory patronage accorded me during the years I have been in business, and my last word to you is that I will sell out the remaining stock at the same prices. I am willing to let it go to the other merchants, who will buy only to sell again to you at regular prices.

We know not the day or the hour when we shall turn the key on the public, but we are open today and tomorrow and Saturday, provided we don't sooner sell en bloc. There is a bargain here still—for YOU!

Take No Chances

BUYING a Ford is much like buying a good farm or a good bond. It is a profitable investment. A Ford is what the bankers call a cash asset.

The man or woman who buys a Ford car takes no chances. There is no risk involved. It is an investment that is absolutely safe-guarded and one that will yield a great return in health, pleasure and satisfaction. It will bring increased cash returns in business.

Ford cars have the strongest backing and guarantee of any motor cars made. They are constructed on engineering principals that have proved their merit beyond any shadow of doubt. The fittest survive. Neither men nor machines, if they are unfit, can long withstand the crushing strain of an exacting existence. Ford strength has withstood supreme tests in every land where man himself has penetrated.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Salow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

But Imitations Only Disappoint

There are many imitations of this great treatment for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and whooping cough. They usually have some sale on the merits of the original, but it should be remembered that they are like it in name only.
