Estimates Come in for Sharp Criticism
—Trash in the Libraries—Good Days Work.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, March 7.—The members of the Ontario House did their full allowance of work during the afternoon and evening sittings, getting through a large quantity of business. A four-cornered passage-at-arms between Mr. McDougall, Mr. Hanna, Mr. Graham and Mr. Whitney over license matters enlivened the afternoon considerably.

Mr. McDougall (Ottawa) moved for a return of: 1. Copies of all correspondence relating to the cancellation or granting of a liquor license to the Palace Hotel at Fort Frances, 2. Copies of all correspondence relating to the cancellation or granting of a liquor license to one Thomas Wilson at Fort Frances, 3. Copies of all correspondence relating to the resignation or dismissal of the license inspector or license commissioners at Fort Frances, 4. Copies of all correspondence relating to information in his possession, the condition of affairs in Fort Frances was apparently as bad or worse as the sad and regrettable state of affairs as revealed by the license inquiry in Toronto. He thought some light would be thrown on the subject if the documents were produced.

Mr. Hanna said he had no objection whatever to producing any documents in the possession of the department. (Conditioned there, he thought, were best described in a letter from a minister, who wrote that never in the history of the town had the license laws been so well enforced as during the last eighteen months. The minister had also stated that though hitherto a staunch Liberal, he meant henceforth to support Mr. Whitney. In fact, the reverend gentleman had made the rosy statement that nine-tenths of his congregation agreed with him.

Mr. Graham—He does not know their contents.

Mr. Hanna went on to say that the information in Mr. McDougall's hands doubtless came from a man named Young, who had been refused a license. Mr. Hanna said he had no doubt that Mr. Young's communication said some horrible things about himself and the commissioners. Mr. Hanna had himself said the latter threatened that if he did not get his license he would put the information in the hands of the Liberals, who would make it hot for the Government in the House. Mr. Young promised to treat confidentially the Secretary of the Liberal party. Mr. Hanna had replied, telling Mr. Young that if he had any information about irregularities it was his duty to make it public at once.

Mr. McDougall—Has not the inspector at Fort Frances been dismissed recently?

Mr. Hanna—He has been asked to resign for reasons stated in a letter sent him.

The Toronto Inquiry

Mr. Hanna, continuing, said that the investigation in Toronto was likely to go on for some time and it would be a period not hitherto touched, so far as anything had been disclosed which in 1907 might be reflected on the present reputation of the present commissioners, whose difficulties had been chiefly from the intolerable condition of affairs brought into existence under the late Government.

Leader Graham

Mr. Graham, who followed, said that the Provincial Secretary seemed to be able to anticipate what the commissioner was going to do, which indicated that the Government was in exceptionally close touch with the inquiry. So far as the Liberals were concerned, the inquiry could go back to the flood. The evidence showed a disgraceful state of affairs in Toronto. The investigation should not be adjourned seven or eight days every time the scene got hot. "We want the truth," said Mr. Graham, "even if it hits the Liberal party."

Mr. Whitney replied heatedly that Mr. Graham's insinuation that the Provincial Secretary was unwarranted, unfair and unmanly. No member of the Government was in close or distant touch with Mr. Starr.

Mr. Graham—The Provincial Secretary gave the impression that he knew what was going to happen.

Mr. Whitney—I throw back the honorable gentleman's insulting insinuation. When I held in my hand a bundle of checks sweated out of the holier purposes of Toronto for election purposes it was an indication of the appalling inquiry which had extended back for fifteen years. The Government is determined to get rid of that system, and any Conservative found guilty will be punished. Everything will be exposed to the light of day, said Mr. Whitney as he took his seat.

Won't This Stagger Some
Of the City Councilors!Board of Education Likely to Ask for at Least $150,000 for Schools This Year.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Chairman Fitzgerald stated today that he will call a special meeting of the board of education next week for the purpose of considering the estimates for the year.

Mr. Fitzgerald added that the figures which have thus far been discussed do not include an extra item which can be done away with.

"We have not put in an extra dollar except for salaries," said the chairman, "and these we cannot get over. We must of necessity pay the increase we voted the teachers last year, and we must also provide for salaries for teachers in the addition to Chesley avenue school and the addition we propose building to St. George's school."

Mr. Fitzgerald admits that it will take about $3,000 a year for the addition to St. George's, which will likely be opened next September.

There will be at least two extra teachers in the Chesley avenue addition. There are four rooms there, but it is probable that they will not all be used for a year or two.

At all events, it will take $1,500 to look after this addition this year.

Thus the board is faced by a new expenditure of a little less than $5,000. Then the increase in salaries to public school teachers voted last year amounts to about $8,000 per annum, and it will take $2,000 to provide for the increases made to Collegiate Institute teachers.

From these figures it looks as though the board will ask the council this year for between $150,000 and $155,000 for both the Collegiate Institute and the public schools.

This is an increase of between $10,000 and $15,000, as compared with the figures of a year ago.

MISS HOLMES WINS
OVER COMMITTEE

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, March 7.—An interesting discussion took place in the private bills committee this morning on a bill to enable Miss Sadie Holmes, of Tillsonburg, to practice dentistry. Miss Holmes occupied a seat in the committee room and listened to Donald Sutherland, her legislative friend, and Eric Armour, her legal adviser, present a few arguments in her behalf.

Miss Holmes told the story of her professional life. She began in an office in London about eight years ago, and afterwards in Tillsonburg.

"But I have never been able to make more than a dollar a day," she complained. The bill would enable her to collect regular fees.

"Carried!" exclaimed several city-aldermen.

Dr. Burns, a dentist, of St. Thomas, highly praised the work done by Miss Holmes and urged the passing of the bill.

"I love the ladies, without regard to age or color," declared Mr. Craig (Wellington), but he opposed the bill.

N. W. Rowell, K. C., voiced the strong opposition of the Dental Association.

"If you allow this act to pass there are three or four hundred lady assistants throughout the Province who are just as well qualified to ask to be made dentists," declared Dr. Abbott, president of the Dental Association.

"I can bring you twenty applicants tomorrow, just as well qualified as Miss Holmes," declared Mr. May, of Ottawa.

He was opposed to railroad people into professions.

"On absolute principle," quoth Sam Clark, "perhaps this should not be passed, but absolute principle is something unknown to the members of this committee. I am not a member of this committee. I am a man."

Mr. Young, in reply to Mr. May, said that if he had any information about irregularities it was his duty to make it public at once.

Mr. McDougall—Has not the inspector at Fort Frances been dismissed recently?

Mr. Hanna—He has been asked to resign for reasons stated in a letter sent him.

Conference.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

London, March 7.—At today's session of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom, which are holding their annual meeting here, a resolution was adopted, asking the Government to conduct negotiations at the forthcoming colonial conference with the object of promoting reciprocal trading within the British Empire.

Robert H. Reade, of Belfast, president of the chamber of commerce of that city, who moved the resolution, contended that the colonies were denied preferential treatment, and that if this was further refused they would look elsewhere for better treatment, and Canada, in particular, would seek for reciprocity with the United States, thus leading to the disintegration of the empire.

LEVY GOES BACK
AFTER HARD FIGHTYouthful Thief Returns to New Jersey Reformatory to Complete Time.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Isadore Levy, the youthful Hebrew who was arrested here over two months ago at the request of the Railway, N. J. authorities, left yesterday afternoon for New Jersey, where he will complete an unfinished sentence on two charges of theft.

Levy's case is a remarkable one in many ways. In 1903 the boy was arrested in Jersey City and given an indefinite sentence in the New Jersey Reformatory at Rahway. According to the laws of the institution, it is within the power of the board of control at the reformatory to allow a prisoner his liberty on parole after he has served a short period. Levy was allowed on parole at the end of two years, and under the conditions of the parole, he had to remain in Jersey City for a period of one year, a suitable position having been procured for him by the authorities. For a time he reported as required, every month; then he disappeared, and became a ticket-of-leave man. For over a year the New Jersey detectives scoured the country for him, and eventually located him in this city.

When first arrested, Levy agreed to return to New Jersey without extradition, but when the officers arrived he refused to do so, and engaged counsel to defend him, as he believed that his offense was not an extraditable one. The New Jersey people in turn engaged the Crown Attorney McKillop to prosecute the case, and the fight was a warm one while it lasted. Eventually, Mr. McKillop won out, and Levy was obliged to return.

Levy has spent over two months in the local jail, and his extradition was only procured at great expense. He added to his four trips to and from Rahway on the part of the reformatory officers. It was found necessary to bring to London the assistant attorney-general of the State of New Jersey in order that he might testify in reference to the statutes of New Jersey.

The case was first argued before Judge Macbeth, and later an appeal was taken, and the fight carried into the high court at Toronto. The New Jersey authorities are of the opinion that Levy will earn the costs of the case before he secures his freedom once more. The prisoner, however, is optimistic, and he seemed in excellent humor as he boarded the train yesterday which was to take him back to the reformatory.

The meeting was the most animated of the session and was attended by the largest numbers yet. In fact, other committees could scarcely get a quorum.

property at Rectory and Dundas Streets
Goes to Mr. E. L. Liddicoat.

The vacant property at the southeast corner of Dundas and Rectory streets has been sold by Chas. J. Lodge, of the Independent Oddfellows, to Mr. Edward L. Liddicoat, of Dufferin avenue, East London. The property has a frontage of 116 feet 10 inches on Dundas street, and is very suitable for stores. The price paid was $3,000.

Mr. Liddicoat will commence the erection of a store on the corner lot as soon as the weather will permit.

The competition for the property was very keen.

East London's boom is surely continuing.

HON. MR. HYMAN'S RESIGNATION
GOES TO A SUB-COMMITTEEquestion of Validity to Be Taken Up Again Next Week.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, March 7.—At the privileges and elections committee today, Mr. Speaker of the House of Commons appeared to say that he would not like to say positively that there was a seal to the first resignation received from Mr. Hyman. Some of his officers thought otherwise. It was in the possession of Mr. Bowles, an officer of the House for some time, and it was his opinion that a seal was not attached. The speaker wanted to make this explanation at the last meeting of the committee.

Mr. A. K. MacLean (Lunenburg) asked for the presence of Mr. James Duffield, of London, who got the telegram from Mr. Hyman, asking him to get his resignation witnessed. Today Mr. Duffield was called, but did not appear. The clerk of the committee said that Mr. Duffield was notified, but had made no reply.

Mr. MacLean asked that he be summoned for the next meeting, and that the committee adjourn until Thursday next.

Mr. Armand Lavergne moved in amendment that the resignation be accepted, as the evidence was sufficient to show that the resignation was valid. It was Mr. Hyman's signature and duly witnessed.

Mr. Aylesworth said that the matter was an important one. They not only attested to the signature, but they attached a seal, which was a very important point. They were not only settling this case, but making precedents as well.

As far as Mr. Hyman's resignation was concerned, if it were decided that it was not valid, then another could be had in five minutes. One of the members of the committee in the last meeting was certain that it was not valid. He suggested that a small sub-committee be appointed to look into the matter and report at the next meeting.

Mr. Bergeron suggested that an officer of the House go to California and get Mr. Hyman's resignation.

Mr. McDonald (Pictou) said that there were many members of Parliament in England who wanted to resign, but they could not do so. They had to accept the conditions of the House. Mr. Hyman's resignation was valid or not, Mr. Aylesworth moved an amendment to the amendment that the following sub-committee be appointed to report at the next meeting: Mr. McDonald (Pictou), German, Barker, Norburn and the mover.

Mr. Bergeron said that the whole thing was a farce. Mr. German said that if the resignation had not been questioned by Mr. Borden, there would have been an election in London before now.

Mr. Barker—But the election might not have been regular.

The amendment to the amendment put by Mr. Aylesworth was carried, and the committee adjourned until Thursday next, when Mr. Duffield is expected, as well as the report of the sub-committee. The committee will report to the House.

MADE IMPRESSION ON MINISTERS
COLD SHOULDER FROM MEMBERSSchool Board Deputation Returns from Toronto, Where It
Pleaded for Increased Grant.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Chairman Fitzgerald, Trustees Westervelt, McCormick, MacRobert and Graham of the board of education, returned last night from Toronto, where they waited on the Minister of Education relative to securing a larger Government grant for the schools of London.

The deputation this morning to the Minister of Education felt as though an impression had been made on the minister, and that his promise of consideration of the city of London's request means that something will be done along the lines indicated by the deputation.

Hon. Dr. Pyne informed the Londoners that they were the first to bring the matter of an increase to the urban schools before the Government.

The Londoners, who were introduced by Hon. Adam Beck, put up a strong argument in favor of an increased grant. They began by pointing out that there are in London 130 rooms in the public schools, and that if the city grant was based on public school education as done in other municipalities, it would amount to about $16,000. Instead of the sum of $4,300 which the city now receives, or the increase of about $12,000 to the city of London.

It was further stated that the city pays three times as much for public school education as do other municipalities. Last year the city's tax was 5.5 mills on the assessment, which is levied on almost the real value of assessed property, while in the county the rate averaged less than two mills on an assessment of not more than 50 per cent of the real value of the property assessed.

If there were any favors to be extended to any municipality, the deputation urged, the city of London is well entitled to consideration, from the fact that the city has all along paid good salaries to teachers, and that without being compelled to do so, as is the case with rural municipalities. In London the minimum for teachers is $300 per annum, with a maximum of $600; principals receive from $800 to $1,200 per annum.

"We told the minister in conclusion," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "that we have in the London the best qualified teachers, and the most efficient schools in the Province, and no one disputed the statement."

After hearing the arguments of the deputation, the minister promised consideration.

It is understood that before and after the conference several of the trustees had informal talks with members of both sides of the House, and that they received but very little encouragement. Some of the members stated that the city of London is well able to pay its school tax without seeking further Government aid. They stated that the city of London should not seek to place itself on a par with the "poor farmers" of the rural communities.

The answer the Londoners made to this argument was that in the county of Middlesex the farmers are infinitely better off than are the people of the city. Nearly all the farmers are landowners, and are well to do, whereas the great majority of city people do well to own a cottage, and that they depend for a living on days' wage.

THE DUMA TO STICK.

St. Petersburg, March 7.—The Russian press, which previously has been chiefly with descriptive accounts of the opening of Parliament, today editorializes more carefully on the significance of the first day's proceedings. The general view is that the self-restraint and feeling of responsibility exhibited by both right and left morning a speedy dissolution improbable. Parliament will continue in session for from six weeks to two months.

THE GOVERNMENT AND ZAM-BUK.

SURVEY OUT FROM FORT WILLIAM TAKES A SUPPLY OF THIS USEFUL BALM.

Zam-Buk, the favorite household balm and salve, is now adopted as "the Doctor" by leading parties engaged in surveying various parts of the Dominion lands.
Mr. Henry Hall, writing from Fort William, says: "Having proved how beneficial Zam-Buk is in cases of cuts, skin injuries and diseases, I determined to keep a supply handy. Being engaged to go on a survey, I thought it would be a most useful thing to take along. I obtained a supply in Fort William and very well it was. I did so. I may say that pretty nearly every day it was called into requisition by one or other of the party for cuts, bruises, burns, or some injury or other. It is wonderful how quickly Zam-Buk takes the soreness out of cuts, burns, bruises and injuries; and on our survey it earned golden opinions from all who had occasion to try it. I have found it very fine for skin diseases, and I can strongly recommend it as a household balm."
Mr. Isaac Scott, one of the leading Government analysts, says: "I have no hesitation in certifying the entire purity of Zam-Buk, which in my opinion is excellently adapted for skin injuries and diseases." Zam-Buk cures cuts, scalds, burns, ulcers, eczema, scalp sores, ringworm, ulcers, chapped places, Spring As an embrocation it relieves rheumatism, neuralgia and sciatica. Druggists and stores sell at 50c a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes sent for $2.50. Send 10 stamps and we will mail you free sample box.

THE GRAND

Excellent Array of Attractions for the Small House.

It is said that George Ade, the noted humorist, has been so successful with his plays that his royalties from these alone is $3,000 a week. To this is added the income from his books, which shows that it pays to be funny. One of Mr. Ade's most popular plays, "The Musical Comedy," "Peggy from Paris," will be presented in this city on Friday, March 8, at the Grand.

AL. H. WILSON.

The golden-voiced singer, Al. H. Wilson, the clever German dialect comedian, in Sidney R. Ellis' new play of picturesque Switzerland, "Met in the Alps," will be the attraction at the Grand on Saturday, matinee and evening, March 9. A feature of more than special interest, especially to music lovers, in the performance of this new play of Wilson's, are the beautiful, tuneful and catchy melodies. Mr. Wilson sings several new songs during the action of the play.

MARY MANNERING.

One of the notable features of the theatrical season at the Grand will be the appearance of Mary Mannerling on Monday, March 11, in her new play "Glorious Betsy," written especially for this charming actress. The appearance of Miss Mannerling, whose delightful Geraldine and Janice Meredith won her such great favor with audiences in this city so universally, will be an event of unusual interest. In her new play, Miss Mannerling has been provided with a character, the famous Baltimore belle, Betsy Patterson, who came into international fame by her marriage with Jerome, the younger brother of Napoleon Bonaparte.

FIRST DAY OF CAYUGA TRIAL

Witnesses Testify Favorably to Mrs. Perkins.

THE VISITS OF T. MACDONALD

Expert Ellis Tells of Finding Considerable Strychnine in Dead Man's Stomach.

Cayuga, Ont., March 6.—The county court house was this afternoon crowded fully an hour before Mrs. Mattie Perkins was brought in to face the charge of murdering her husband, Henry, on Christmas Day.

As many women as men found seats. When the benches underneath the gallery, and the gallery itself, were filled, the curious throng overflowed into the space reserved for the legal and newspaper men.

Isaac Curry, father of the accused woman, was among the first to arrive, and he found a seat immediately next to the prisoner's pen. Townsman and farmers accompanied their wives and daughters to the court house. The inquest into the woman who is on trial for her life was seen in the bearing of the spectators.

As Magistrate Thomas E. Cline and Dr. Harrison took their seats, Crown Attorney John A. Murphy, Detective Greer, and Chief Constable John Farrel sat on one side of the counsel table, on the other side sat E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., and his partner, J. C. Grant, lawyers for the defense. A few minutes later Chief Farrel called order and the accused woman, clad entirely in black and heavily veiled, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Hyslop, entered the court. Both women occupied chairs at the end of the table near Mr. Johnston.

The First Witness.

John Darrah, lessee of the Perkins farm, one and a half miles northwest of Canfield, was the first witness called by Mr. Murphy. Mr. Darrah said that on Sunday, Dec. 23, Henry Perkins called at his house and was taken ill. At the time Perkins rose to get a drink in the room and found that he could scarcely walk. He was seized with violent fits of vomiting and Darrah took off his collar for him. Perkins explained that he felt as though somebody was taking him by the throat. Mr. Darrah gave him warm water at his request, as he wished to assist the fits of vomiting. Mr. Darrah also gave him a glass of hot liquor. Perkins came to his house about 11:30, and the vomiting ceased at 1 o'clock. After the vomiting Perkins said that he felt better. At 2:30 Mr. Darrah's daughter drove him home, because he was so weak.

Mr. Darrah, in reply to Mr. Murphy's question, said that he met Perkins on Sunday night at 7 o'clock on the station platform. Perkins had just alighted from a train from Welland.

"Did you ask after his health?"

"I did not."

The Cross-Examination.

Mr. Murphy then handed the witness over to Mr. Johnston. Mr. Darrah said, "Perkins had always been a decent, good woman and an affectionate wife, getting along with her husband splendidly."

"Were you asked by anybody to say that MacDonal was later than 9 o'clock?"

"No, not that I know of."

"Were you asked to say that MacDonal had been there dozens of times?"

"Well, I believe I was."

"Who asked you?"

"I was asked by several people."

"Just think," said Mr. Johnston; "look across the table and see if there is not a man there who asked you?"

"Mr. Murphy did and Mr. Greer, too."

The deathbed scene was gone into in detail by the lawyer for the defense. Mrs. Perkins had always been a decent, good woman and an affectionate wife, getting along with her husband splendidly.

The witness stated that he had heard such a report.

"Was any pressure put on you to say that MacDonal had been there a dozen of times?"

"No, not in particular."

"Whatever you said, you said voluntarily?"

"Yes."

To Mr. Johnston witness stated that he only heard this statement on the station platform and it might refer to any other person.

"That is a slender thread to hang a woman on," said Mr. Johnston.

Fred Gowing, a farmer, testified that he saw MacDonal enter the house during Perkins' absence about a dozen times between the hours of 10 and 11.

In cross-examination witness could not remember a single other instance, except one night he watched Mr. MacDonal at the Perkins house last November.

He admitted that he had no use for Mr. MacDonal on account of a smart deal the latter had given him.

Wm. Thompson, station agent of Canfield, stated that Dr. Kerr had diagnosed the death of Perkins as due to perforation of the stomach. Dr. Ellis, of Toronto, was subpoenaed to appear today, but he was not present when called.

C. D. Blackford reiterated his evidence at the inquest as to the constitution of the embalming fluid called magnam. There was no strychnine in the fluid.

John Nagle, the Cayuga undertaker, told of the funeral arrangements. The funeral took place two days after death of deceased because Mrs. Perkins wanted it.

Mrs. John MacDonal, who was present at the deathbed, stated that she knew of Perkins' sickness on Sunday prior to his death, but was not sure whether the prisoner had told her. She told of the conversation with Henry Perkins at 7 o'clock Christmas morning three hours before he died. Mrs. Perkins had left the room for a bottle of heat medicine and Perkins had told her that he would not get better. The medicine was not given as Perkins took another shivering spell.

"After that," continued the witness,

Out of the Darkness

"How so, Miss Maturin?"

"Ah! you do not know me; I am a poor creature, but I can be very patient. I will not call heaven to witness my innocence, for you would not believe my words; but I will never rest. I will never cease from striving day after day, and year after year, till I remove this suspicion. Mr. Ord, it will be my one, my only thought."

"You heap coals of fire on my head," returned, but the sarcasm somehow melted him.

Once more she looked at him with that mild reproach in her eyes.

"Yes, the time will come when you will own that you have wronged me; may be years hence, but I know it will come, when you will surely own

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

6765—A DRESSY SHIRRED WAIST.

A little more labor expended upon a waist for nice occasions is never wasted for the pleasure in wearing a really beautiful garment is recompensed by the benefit of the lover of beautiful clothes. The fabric of which was made was silk voile, beautified with threads of silk, in another color. The shoulder edges and sleeves were gathered and shirred in such a manner that they could be drawn up and fastened to not only bring out the charms of the material but those of the wearer also. A pointed tucker of lace gave the faintest of finishes next the face, while a note of contrast was touched by the trimming bands of darker velvet. The waist is one which might be fashioned by the amateur sewer at home, and for that purpose is reproduced here. The sleeves of the pattern may be long if preferred. For the medium size 27-28 yards of 20-inch material are needed, the waist being adaptable to silk, cashmere, velvet or chiffon.

very unjust. You do not know how to be merciful. But I can wait my time. And after that he had nothing to say. It was a strange, dreary walk, and one which they were not likely to forget. It was a relief when they had left the river behind them, and were treading the well-worn pavement of High street, and still more a relief when they had reached the portico of the King's Arms.

And then they parted.

"I suppose I may not offer you my hand, Miss Maturin," he said, with some slight feeling of compunction, as she turned her white wistful face to him.

"No, Mr. Ord, you may not; you may never offer it to me again till you have taken back all you have said—till you have cleared me from this terrible imputation." And then, when she had said this, she left him and went in.

CHAPTER IV.

"Oh, what makes woman lovely? Virtue, faith, And gentleness in suffering. An endurance Through scorn or trial: these call beauty forth. Give it the stamp celestial, and admit it To sisterhood with angels!" —Brent.

In a well-known suburb of London—a suburb so widely known that its very name will bring a flood of reminiscences to many of us—there is a retired and pleasant thoroughfare called Chatham Place.

The glory of Hackney is departed. The traces of past grandeur are fast fading away from its sunny old streets. The monster tide of fashion that has set in during late years has swept hither, as he walked up and down among the brick heaps; he had done his work—she had forced him to do it; but the result did not satisfy him. What good was it to him that he had convicted her of her sin if she would not own that she had sinned? He had gaped with her, and she had gaped from him with a look of reproach which haunted him against his will; do what he would, he could not banish a certain feeling of remorse as he thought of it. He had accused her of virtual dishonesty, or at least of obtaining an undue influence over his aunt, and she had not defended herself by so much as one word. Surely he had been gentle enough with her. He had been betrayed into anger once or twice, and had then repented and restrained himself. With all his wrath he had said nothing specially bitter, though the sternness of his look or tone might have rebuked her. But of what avail was all this mildness and refraining, since she would insist on assuming the airs of heart-broken innocence? It made him feel as though his magnanimity had been thrown away; and yet a few hours ago he had sworn that on no account could he bring himself to forgive her.

These were not pleasant thoughts, as he stumbled over the brick heaps, among the moldering passages. How he loathed the whole place with its patient, uncomplaining recurrence to him in future days! He could always recall that scene, it was so vivid in his memory—that desolate dwelling, with the strips of plaster clinging to the damp moldering walls; the gaping window-frame, the broad green level, and gray ruin mistily driving rain; the dull thud of beamed heads striking impatiently against the doorway; and always motionless, always the central figure in that picture, the tall figure in the clinging black draperies; he could see the curve of the long neck, the small head bowed slightly forward, the fluttering of the thin hands; could almost hear the monotonous tones of the low murmuring voice, "Yes, the time will come when you will own that you have wronged me." When and how did that time come to Robert Ord?

The rain was ceasing now; he had just become aware of the fact, and the silence and open his lips to speak to her, when she relieved him of his embarrassment.

"The rain is over now, I believe," she said, turning round to him. There was not a trace of color in her face, but her calmness was wonderful; all the tremor, the nervous agitation that had so disturbed her yesterday, had left her; she looked like one who had unexpectedly received a deadly blow, but who was rallying from it. Her perfect self-possession astonished him.

"The storm has not turned its back upon us yet," he returned, trying to speak with equal sang-froid, "but, if you are willing, we will take advantage of this lull," to which she briefly assented; and in another minute they were walking side by side along the high road and under the dripping trees, greatly to his surprise, for he had expected her to decline his escort; but he did not know her.

There was another awkward silence which neither attempted to break, and then he took courage and relieved himself of a perplexity.

"Miss Maturin, after what has passed between us, as it is impossible for me to consider myself otherwise than injured; but still, as I said before, you may not have anticipated all these consequences. I do not wish to judge you harshly. I feel sorry that you compelled me to speak."

A dim smile flitted across her face, more mournful than any tears.

"Do you mean there can be peace between us? I certainly do not wish it otherwise, Mr. Ord."

"Neither do I," he returned hastily. "What is done, is done. I have no wish to make your position wholly unbearable. I suppose we can always exchange the civilities of strangers?"

"I have no intention whatever of avoiding you, Mr. Ord."

"You could not if you wished," he returned, plucked by her perfect indifference. "Bryn and Kirkby Vicarage are too close together."

"Yes, I know," she answered, with a shiver. "Do you think I forget what lies before me? If you will let me come among you, I will come; if not, I will bide my time. I do not mean to shun any of you. Why should I? I have done nothing of which to be ashamed—all such shunning will be on your side."

"I cannot answer for it that we shall be very cordial, Miss Maturin."

"Of course, not. Do you think I expect it? Of course, you will make my life bitter amongst you. But then I do not mean to blame you. You are

BLACKEST OF FOGS SHROUDS LONDON

English Capital Has an Unwelcome Visitor That Recalls Old Times.

London, March 6.—On the very threshold of spring, London has been visited by the blackest fog of the whole winter.

When a businessman started from his suburban home for the city early Thursday morning he found nothing worse to grumble at than the chilliness left by an overnight frost and a mist that promised to yield to the rising sun, just as had been the case for several days previously. But before he had reached his destination his train was plunged into darkness. His sorrowful gaze recognized the familiar features of the fog fiend.

There were many cold feet, husky throats, smarting and streaming eyes and exasperated tempers before the business trains had discharged their passengers at the various termini which serve the city.

Of late years "London particulars," now called "smogs," have shown a tendency to become mercifully fewer, but Thursday's was the worst was the real old genuine article.

As the morning advanced it grew denser over the eastern side of London. Gray became murky yellow, yellow a dingy brown and brown was merged in black, until at last a Chimerian gloom hung to use the only simile that can serve, like a gigantic pall over the busy streets of the city.

If it was not quite pandemonium it was something very like it. The traffic that assailed the city with a bewildering medley of sound and left the eyes to peer in baneful blindness passed at a funeral pace through thoroughfares usually alive with vivid color and brisk movement. Even then collisions were inevitable, and the scene of any accident could be located by the shouting that arose like the out-cry of some spectral contest.

Autobuses, missing, perhaps, the aid of brute instinct, seemed to be specially subject to mishap, and more than one pair of these monsters found themselves in an embrace of wheels.

Fortunately the plague of darkness did not last many hours. It went by the same gradations as it had come. It was with immense relief that people found the black gradually becoming brown and the brown becoming yellow and the yellow gray. There were parts of the metropolis that even saw the sunshine early in the afternoon.

It was not only this quiet change of character but its partiality that made the fog so remarkable. A man with time on his hands might have enjoyed a dramatic sensation by a journey from the East to the West End. To a fanciful mind it was like ascending from the pit of Acheron, from darkness as thick almost as pitch where the atmosphere not only smelled and tasted but felt sulphurous, into light, air and something like brilliant sunshine.

Yesterday morning again smog made journeying to the town very difficult, but it did not last. In fact, the meteorologists say that we are now entering a spell of fine, springlike weather.

Father Aoby, who died lately in Berne, Switzerland, was "the most miserable miser in all Europe." Since he was 20 years of age, when he inherited a large fortune, he had lived on charity and the earnings of three cents a day. He died at the age of 70, and his body was so emaciated that it resembled a mummy. He left securities valued at $750,000, $1,000,000 in gold and silver coin concealed about his house, and no relatives.

A Hungarian blacksmith recently sent as a present to the Emperor of Austria a horseshoe, a pair of pliers, a file and knife, all ingeniously nailed to a goose's egg without the egg being broken. The emperor sent in return his photograph, a gold medal and 50 ducats.

Map showing location of the Silver Mountain Mine beside the University Mine.

The Property of the Cobalt Silver Mountain Mining Company, Limited, is located in the heart of the richest silver belt in the world, and consists of twenty acres.

It is surrounded by five of the best and richest shipping mines in the Cobalt Camp, viz., The University, Bailey, Pig Pete (or Cobalt-Central), McKinley-Darragh-Savage and Silver Bar Mines, and it is also adjacent to the famous Gilles Timber Limit and only a few hundred feet from the Nipissing and Foster Mines, as shown on the map.

The Silver Mountain Co. has the best located and most promising undeveloped property in the Cobalt camp to-day and the men most largely interested in the company comprising some of Cobalt's largest mine owners and some of the best-known and most influential men throughout Canada, including over a dozen members of parliament, confidently expect that

THE SILVER MOUNTAIN CO.

Will Be Just as Large a Shipper as the Mines Adjacent to it in a Few Months

Mr. C. E. Kingswell, one of the best engineers in the Cobalt camp has made an extensive report on the property, and the company will gladly send a copy of same to anyone interested, upon request. He says in his report among other things:

ENGINEER'S REPORT

"Your lot is within one lot of and surrounded by the Foster, Big Pete and the McKinley-Darragh-Savage Mines and within two lots of the Nipissing, all of which are among the most famous mines in the camp. The property lies wholly in Diabase, and has thirty-eight veins so far discovered, and these veins form a perfect network all over the property. I carefully assayed this property some time ago, and never failed to get silver in any assay I took. The famous timber limit lies immediately southeast of this property, and borders it, and upon this limit the government are now working a very good mine, and this mine lies only a short distance from your property. Near your property and the timber limit a good small ledge was discovered last June by the foreman of the Silver Bar Company, and this lead runs directly into your property. I know veins on your property that carry very much better ore than ever the Big Pete did at the start and no attempt has been made to follow these leads down. One ledge on your property has been explored for four hundred feet, and this ledge in places is quite four inches wide and it carries nine ounces of silver to the ton. Every ledge upon your property has good true walls, and they are all free from the walls and have every sign of permanency and value; and my humble opinion is, that if a shaft was put down to a reasonable depth good paying ore would be found, and you could cross-cut to strike other ledges. I have explored and reported upon most of the good mines here and also upon a large number of prospects, and have never yet inspected one with as many leads as yours has and I consider that it would be a fresh of nature if your claim does not prove a good payable one. The fact that the Bailey Mine, which adjoins your property, and the Big Pete Mine, which is within one lot, are both located on this same Diabase hill on which your property is, and the fact that they are two of the best mines in the camp, is one of the greatest proofs to my mind that your lot will be found to contain the same kind of ore as is being shipped from these mines."

THIS IS A CHANCE OF A LIFETIME.

THE PROPERTY OF THE SILVER MOUNTAIN CO., HAS NEVER BEEN DEVELOPED, THOUGH SOME

Thirty-eight Veins Carrying Silver Have Been Discovered on the Surface

And all the property should need to bring it to the shipping point is some development work.

The property has been completely paid for with stock of the company, and not one dollar is required except for development purposes.

Just about a year ago, as you know, a block of stock of the Foster Mine, a close neighbor to The Silver Mountain, was offered to the public for 80 cents per share in order to raise money for development work. You know also that this stock has sold since for over $4.00 per share and can be sold to-day to yield an immense profit to the original purchasers.

BUT REMEMBER IT is the man who bought the stock when first offered who made the most money. NOT the man who waited until it reached somewhere near its real value. Please remember the above and read the following offer:

THE SILVER MOUNTAIN CO. IS PREPARING TO COMMENCE OPERATIONS ON ITS PROPERTY ON A LARGE SCALE

And needs some working capital, consequently the directors have decided to offer for public subscription a small block of stock at

A SPECIAL PRICE OF

SIXTY CENTS PER SHARE

Cash with subscription. This is the first and only allotment which will be offered to the public at this price. SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR ANY NUMBER OF SHARES WILL BE RECEIVED UP UNTIL NOON ON THE 15TH DAY OF MARCH, 1907, and the directors reserve the right to refund all over-subscriptions as soon as the necessary amount has been subscribed. Subscription will be accepted according to the order in which they are received, whether by wire or letter, and may be sent direct to the secretary of the company, 95 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

If you have any faith in Cobalt you will get some of this stock and get it at once, for to-morrow may be too late. Opportunities like this only come once. We believe if you know anything about Cobalt, we have said enough, and if you want to learn more, we will be glad to tell you all we can.

Send in your wire for reservation of stock, and your subscription to

THAW'S MOTHER ON THE STAND

Testifies to Acts of Son That Point to Insanity.

CROSS-EXAMINED BY JEROME

The Aged Witness Twice Breaks Down During the Course of the Questioning.

New York, March 6.—Another dramatic chapter was added today to the history of the trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White when the gray-haired mother of the defendant took the witness stand to do what she might toward saving her wayward son from the danger which faces him. Mrs. Thaw's story before the jury was brief. When Delphin M. Delmas had deftly limited her examination to the change she noted in her son's condition following his return from Paris in 1902, after Evelyn Nesbit had told him her life story, and when District Attorney Jerome had, with the greatest respect and consideration, conducted a short and ineffectual cross-examination, the mother-love welled strong in Mrs. Thaw and she felt she had not done her all. She was loath to leave the witness chair.

"There is the question of heredity," she protested when both Mr. Delmas and Mr. Jerome told her she might step down.

"I have asked you, madame, all that is considered necessary," said Thaw's attorney, with the utmost deference. Mrs. Thaw half rose, hesitated and was about to begin again when the leading counsel for the defense offered her his hand to assist her from the stand.

Witness Breaks Down

Twice during her recital of the events which caused her to fear all was not right with her son, Mrs. Thaw broke down and was unable to proceed. Her face flushed and she made an effort to speak, but the words would not come.

If Harry Thaw's fate is placed in the hands of the twelve men in the jury box who today heard his mother's story there seems little doubt that what she said will carry wonderful weight with it. But Mr. Jerome gave the impression that he may use the mother's testimony in another direction in his fight to have a commission appointed to test the present state of mind of the defendant.

While the elder Mrs. Thaw was on the stand today the district attorney became involved in a wordy dispute with Mr. Delmas, during which he uttered publicly for the first time the threat as to a lunacy commission.

In upholding the principle that the presumption of insanity continues, Justice Fitzgerald seems to place the burden of proof as to the present sanity of the defendant entirely upon the defense.

Thaw Nervous.

With the completion of Mrs. William Thaw's testimony today Thaw's attorneys announced that they would have but two more witnesses—experts—who will be called upon to answer a newly-framed hypothetical question covering the entire case from beginning to end.

These experts are said to be Dr. Graeme M. Hammond and Smith E. Jelliffe. Harry Thaw during his mother's stay upon the stand seemed unusually pale and extremely nervous. For a time he would stare fixedly at her, then look away and bite his fingernails. His two brothers, Edward and Josiah, sat near him, but neither the Countess of Yarmouth nor Mrs. George L. Carnegie, his sisters, were in court.

Mrs. William Thaw, mother of the defendant, was the first witness called after the luncheon recess.

Mrs. Thaw was dressed in the same black frock in which she appeared the first day of her son's trial. With head erect and veil thrown back over her head, she walked to the witness chair. Clerk Penny administered the oath and as the witness sat down, the crier announced:

"Harriet Copley Thaw."

Harry Thaw was all interest. He sat facing his mother and seemed extremely nervous. He rested his cheek on his hand and then bit his nails.

Mrs. Thaw repeated her name in response to a question by Mr. Delmas, speaking in a low tone.

Mr. Delmas stood immediately at her feet.

Mrs. Thaw said that in the fall and winter of 1903 she was living in Pittsburgh. Harry came home, she said, on the 16th or 17th of November, a day or two before his brother, Josiah's wedding.

Jerome Threatens.

During the time Harry was at home, did you notice anything unusual about his conduct? asked Mr. Delmas. "I certainly did."

"Will you please describe what took place?"

"That day when he first came to the door there was a look of absent-mindedness on his face, a despairing look."

interest in everything. His room was next to mine. Often in the night from his room I heard smothered sobs. Sometimes when I was awake late at night I would see light under his door and often found him sitting up at 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning."

Justice Fitzgerald overruled Mr. Jerome's objection to Mrs. Thaw's telling conversations with her son in 1904. He said the question of the appointment of a lunacy commission was not before the court. Mrs. Thaw proceeded.

In arguing on an objection by District Attorney Jerome, Mr. Delmas said he would invoke the rule of law that Thaw being insane in 1903 continued insane in 1904.

"If that assumption is sound," said the district attorney, "there is no reason to believe defendant is not insane today and it becomes the duty of the court to suspend the trial."

Jerome said he was not suggesting the appointment of a commission in lunacy at this time, but was advancing the point as an argument on the question as to whether Mrs. Thaw should be allowed to repeat all conversations with her son.

Harry Thaw's Story.

"He told me he could not sleep," continued Mrs. Thaw, "and there was no use going to bed. I am not of a prying disposition, but I asked him to tell me what the matter was. He said it was impossible."

"Did he at any time freely or in answer to your questions tell you the story?"

"He freely told me one night when I insisted on it."

Mr. Jerome objected to the repetition of the story until Mr. Delmas stated that the time at which it was told was covered by the testimony of the alienists as a period when Thaw was insane.

Then Jerome withdrew his objection and allowed the witness to give the purport of the conversation.

"He told me the story," said Mrs. Thaw, "but not definitely. He said his troubles were caused by something a wicked man had done in New York, probably the wickedest man in New York. He said it had ruined his life and he never could be happy. That was all I could get from him for a week."

Mrs. Thaw, as she told of her son's condition almost broke down. Her lips quivered and she covered her mouth with a handkerchief. But her emotion did not last long and the white-haired woman, with an apparent effort, controlled herself and continued:

"Harry seemed absorbed, as if he was working with a great problem. He was fond of music and often he would leave the table and go into the parlor. Then I would hear loud music on the piano, which would gradually grow softer and softer. And then he would come back to the table as if nothing had happened. He did this often, even when there was company at the table, and he was engaged in the conversation."

"The week before Thanksgiving I understood more. I did not know the girl's name. I did not ask it. I did not want to know it, but I did know that his condition had something to do with a young girl. He had told me about the wicked man in New York, but it was only later I found out that this man had ruined a young girl."

"I asked him why he should allow his life to be ruined," continued Mrs. Thaw. "I told him it was not his duty to look after the girl, and tried to induce him in another direction."

"But he protested that his life had been ruined. He told me the girl had the most beautiful mind naturally of any person he ever knew."

"He told me this about Thanksgiving time, and it caused me to look at matters in a new light."

"Harry said the girl had been neglected by her mother, or that she had no mother, or this awful thing would not have happened. He said there was still a chance for her to be good, and so on. I don't recall all that he said."

"On Thanksgiving Day, Harry and I were alone during the day when all the rest of the family were away. Here Mrs. Thaw's voice again failed. Her face flushed and her eyes filled with tears. Justice Fitzgerald asked if she could proceed. She nodded, but remained silent.

To relieve the situation, Justice Fitzgerald ordered that Mrs. Thaw's testimony up to this time be read to the jury by the stenographer. Mrs. Thaw's voice had been so low her words could not be heard distinctly.

"It was the first Thanksgiving in our large and beautiful new church," said Mrs. Thaw finally. "Harry and I went to church, and it was so crowded we had to sit well back under the gallery. I was glad it was so later. When the choir was singing Kipling's Recessional to De Koven's beautiful music, I heard Harry sob, and looking at tears falling upon the programme he held in his hands. I put out my hand and touched him. He was trembling all over, but I quieted him."

"As we drove home I asked him how he came to forget himself. He said this dreadful thing had suddenly come over him, and it had not happened since."

Mrs. Thaw told of Dr. Gingham having been called in and prescribing a nerve tonic for her son. Thereafter Harry often talked of the young woman.

"When did you first learn who the young woman was?" asked Mr. Delmas.

"I think it was in the spring of 1904."

"Do you recall the conversation you had with your son at that time?"

Mr. Jerome objected on the ground that there was nothing in the evidence to show that Thaw was insane at that time. The conversation, he declared, should be confined to the periods of insanity, as testified to by the experts.

Mr. Delmas replied that Dr. Wagner had testified that Thaw's insanity began in 1903, when he heard Evelyn's story. Mr. Jerome interrupted.

"Are you invoking the rule which I pointed out yesterday?" he asked, "that the presumption of the defendant's insanity continues until otherwise proved?"

Mr. Delmas answered affirmatively, whereupon Mr. Jerome, for the first time, mentioned publicly the possibility of a suspension of the trial for the appointment of a commission in lunacy.

Mrs. Thaw then told of Thaw's engagement to Evelyn. She said he first secured her mother's consent.

Jerome Cross-Examines.

Mr. Delmas here announced that his direct examination of Mrs. Thaw was concluded, and Mr. Jerome at once began his cross-examination. He asked Mrs. Thaw if she were not, for a time after her husband's death a trustee under his will.

Mr. Delmas objected. "This is not proper cross-examination," he said. "This matter was not gone into, and I can hardly conceive that it is the purpose of the learned district attorney to attempt to discredit the witness."

"I would like to show," replied Mr. Jerome, "that this defendant's income was at one time after his father's death increased."

Mr. Delmas said he would not press his objection if the district attorney would show the income of the place subsequent to June, 1903, when Thaw was first declared insane.

Mr. Jerome turned to the witness and asked: "Was this defendant's income fixed at a stated sum in his father's will?"

"Yes."

"Was it subsequently increased by you?"

"No, not in the way—"

Mr. Delmas interrupted to insist upon his objection. Justice Fitzgerald said he would sustain the objection, as to any occurrence before June, 1903.

Mr. Delmas asked the witness, "after 1903 to one of Mr. Jerome's questions and the district attorney turned to him with a bow, and said, 'I trust, that the learned counsel for the defense will allow the learned counsel for the people to form his own questions in his own way, and when they are in proper I am sure the learned counsel for the defense will object, but until he does so, the learned counsel for the people would like to form his questions in his own way.'"

Mr. Delmas apologized to the "learned counsel for the people."

Mr. Jerome was profoundly respectful in his attitude toward the defendant's mother in his cross-examination. He asked the witness if she would kindly state what Harry's income was subsequent to June, 1903.

"I am not able to say exactly. It was certainly not what the newspapers have said."

"Was the income from his father's estate?"

"It was from his own estate inherited from his father."

Mrs. Thaw said the income was "a moderate one."

"When," asked Mr. Jerome, "did the defendant first inform you of his relations with the young woman who became his wife?"

Mr. Delmas objected.

He said the question assumed was not in the evidence.

Mr. Jerome changed the form, and asked: "Did the defendant ever disclose to you the fact that he had sustained relations with the young woman before she became his wife?"

"He did not."

"When your son returned to Pittsburgh, in the fall of 1903," asked Mr. Jerome, "did he express a desire to you to marry Miss Nesbit?"

"He did not."

"Did he ever express a fear that others would prevent her from accepting him?"

"He said that she had told him it would be a very unsuitable match. He said if she came to me her past would be a closed book. The man's name was never mentioned in my presence."

"I did not understand, madame, what you said that the defendant said to you about Miss Nesbit's mother being of no help to him."

RAILWAYS WILL EXTEND

Many Miles of Track to Be Laid in Northwest in the Spring.

Estimated That Over 6,000 Men Will Be Engaged in Construction Work in the West.

Winnipeg, March 6, 1937.—The advent of spring will witness the undertaking of an enormous amount of railroad work in the Northwest. In the contracts already awarded over 60,000 men will be employed, and even at this rate the railways will find it difficult to keep pace with the rapid expansion of the country. The Canadian Northern Railway will build the branch from Edmonton to Athabasca Landing, a distance of 100 miles, while on the western main line work will be prosecuted from Edmonton to the Yellow Head Pass, comprising 200 miles, in addition to the proposed extension from Brandon to Regina.

Contracts have been awarded for a large amount of work on the Grand Trunk Pacific, which will be carried from Portage la Prairie to Edmonton, continuing to the Yellow Head Pass, and on through to Prince Rupert. A branch line from Port William, to connect with the main line, will also be built. The C. P. R. will build a number of branch lines, including the Wolsley-Reston Branch, while a big force of the company's men will be employed in the double tracking between Port William and Winnipeg.

Approximately the contracts awarded and upon which work will be started in the spring aggregated over 1,500 miles.

In the supplying of equipment for the prosecution of the work the Canada Foundry Company of Toronto is playing an important part. The Canadian Pacific Railway has placed an order with the company for four 90-ton Bucyrus steam shovels. This is a duplicate order, testifying that this shovel has fully met the requirements of construction work.

The loads of the Bucyrus more than fill a flat car. Mr. J. D. McArthur, the contractor, who is engaged on the Wolsley-Reston branch of the C. P. R., and on the National Transcontinental line from Winnipeg eastward, has given an order for a 70-ton Bucyrus steam shovel.

The Canadian Foundry Company has also received an order from the Canadian Northern Railway for fifteen locomotives, ten wheelers, weighing 140 tons each, and twenty-five locomotives of the consolidated type, weighing 150 tons each. Owing to the large storage capacity of the tenders, these locomotives are particularly adapted for the long runs crossing the prairie, where fuel is scarce and water, as a rule, not frequently met with.

In the construction of railway bridges the Canada Foundry Company has attained a reputation which has placed it in the forefront. Contracts for a number of big bridges for the Canadian Northern Railway have been entered upon. In the western section of the Canadian Pacific Railway system, wooden bridges have been replaced by the modern steel structures built by the Canada Foundry Company.

The Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission recently placed an order with the Canada Foundry Company for several bridges, one a three-span bridge over the Vabie River. This in conjunction with other large bridge orders which they have entered upon with the C. P. R. and other railroads is destined to keep the company pretty busy for some time to come.

FAREWELL PRESENTATION

Esteemed Residents of Tupperville Leaving for Dorchester.

A very interesting occurrence took place at Tupperville on Thursday evening of last week, when Mr. C. G. Smuck, chemistmaker for the Chatham Gore factory, and Mrs. Smuck, were invited by the board of Mr. H. C. Burrows. Here they found that number of friends, including the directors of the cheese factory and also brother members of the Oddfellows' order, had gathered. Mr. William George, president of the company, took the chair.

After a few remarks, explaining the object of the gathering, called by Mr. A. McArthur, municipal clerk of the township, who read to Mr. and Mrs. Smuck a very kindly-worded address in which Mr. and Mrs. Smuck were held by the community which they were leaving; the regret that they should be going away, and hearty good wishes for their happiness and success in their new home. Following the address, Mr. J. T. Holmes, on behalf of the friends, presented the couple with a very handsome sideboard in quartered oak, and also a purse of money. The address was signed for the friends by Mr. H. C. Burrows.

The presentation and address were a complete surprise for Mr. Smuck, who had not the least idea that such a thing was contemplated. In thanking the friends for their valuable gift and for the kindly sentiments expressed in the address, Mr. Smuck for himself and Mrs. Smuck said they reciprocated the feeling of regret at parting with so many good friends. Mr. Smuck spoke of the pleasant relations he had with the directors of the company with which he had been connected for twenty years past, and he in turn expressed his best wishes for his many friends in Tupperville and its vicinity. Before separating refreshments were served and an enjoyable social hour was spent by the assemblage.

Again on the evening of Monday, (March 4), at the instance of the members of the Union Sabbath School, in which Mr. Smuck had been a teacher for about fourteen years, there was a gathering at the home of Mr. James Henderson, Mr. John McArthur, president, and after a few well-chosen remarks, read to Mr. Smuck a very appropriate address, expressing, on behalf of the school and its officers, appreciation of his faithful work as a teacher and general co-laborer, and the regret they felt at losing his valuable services and his genial companionship. The address was signed for the school by Miss Maggie Ferguson, Miss Carrie Burns, and Mr. Charles Shaw, members of the class. Along with the address Mr. Smuck was given a very handsome Bible, the presentation being made by Miss Ewing. Mr. Smuck made a happy response, expressing full appreciation of the beautiful gift and the kind words of the address. Mr. Smuck has been engaged by the North Dorchester Cheese Factory, and enters upon his new duties at once.

Doctors Tried for

8 Years to Cure Me

But I Am Well Now and Believe I Owe My Life to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is a remarkable cure described in this letter which should prove of vital interest to anyone suffering from derangements of the kidneys.

Mrs. Dave W. McCall, Lombardy, Leeds Co., Ont., writes: "I desire to acknowledge the benefits I have received from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I was troubled with kidney disease for eight years and doctored with several doctors to no avail until my husband got me Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I began using them. Altogether I used ten boxes, and can truthfully say I would have been dead long ago only for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Words cannot express my praise for them, for I believe there is no medicine so good for kidney and liver disorders."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are unique in that they have a direct and combined action on both the liver and kidneys, and for this very reason, prove effective when other treatments fail. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

BRONCHITIS CAN BE CURED

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup Will Do It.

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by indolent weather or exposure to wet, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

The symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color.

Neglected Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of consumption, so cure it at once by the use of

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

"I feel it my duty to let you know of my experience with Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. My little girl was very low with Bronchitis and our doctor did all in his power for her, but could only give her relief for a short time. My husband saw your medicine advertised, and immediately procured three bottles. I never saw anything give so much relief in so short a time. It stopped the annoying cough at night and she is now perfectly cured. I am so glad I can hardly express my gratitude for what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has done for us."

Price 25 cents at all dealers.

THERE ARE TWO KINDS OF STRENGTH

Both Are Very Important, But Not Equally So.

Among the recent and valuable discoveries of science is the fact that strength is of two kinds—Life Strength and Mental Strength. The former is of much greater importance than the latter, as it is "life strength" that determines whether our lives shall be long or short. It is the vital force which enables us to overcome disease. It is naturally stronger in the young than the old. For instance, la grippe, that insidious disease so prevalent at the present time, is much more severe in the case of aged people. But when a young person becomes weakened by la grippe he is not so easily overcome. If it is severe enough to overcome, that excess of vitality there is danger of physical breakdown and wreck. One thing, in many cases the only thing, that can save them, young or old, is Psychine, that embodiment of the best scientific knowledge put into concrete form to save from the power of la grippe and all forms of diseases that lead to consumption. Tens of thousands of grateful hearts have given their earnest testimony to its saving and restoring power.

I was very much run down after having La Grippe and Psychine seemed just the medicine I needed. It helped me at once, so I can cheerfully recommend it to my friends and will do so.

MRS. J. A. BECKSTEADT, Cheshamville, Ont.

Psychine gives that vitality and "life strength" by building up the vital organs, and its users are invariably long-lived and full of vigor and youth. It cures la grippe quickly and permanently.

A Paris woman who was arrested for picking pockets, and who pretended to speak an unknown language, betrayed herself in her sleep. When brought before the magistrate she was interrogated by Turkish, Russian, Polish and Hungarian interpreters, but none could understand her. The magistrate ordered her to be kept under strict surveillance. In her sleep she talked fluent French, with the true Parisian accent.

Certainly the Hortons did not play up to their usual standard last night. As Harry Peel, who refereed the bout, put it, the score does not always tell a honest tale. The Hortons shot often than did the Saints, but unfortunately they generally missed the net. Sad, isn't it?

The following opinions were handed out after the game:
The boys were off-color. They can trim those Saints on London ice—Mike Foley.

I was rooting for London with all my might, but it didn't do any good. We've still got a chance—Ward Casselman.

The Hortons are a great little bunch, but the Saints are too heavy for them—Vic Jackson.

The Hortons lost out when they heard me root. I was up on a rafter and the bunch were too busy trying to find me to play the game. We'll get 'em next time sure—Mike Tierney.

The following letter, recently received at this office, explains itself.

Sporting Editor of The Advertiser:
London has the goods to make a good lacrosse team this year, and if the ball players don't play hog with Tecumseh Park, there is no reason why London cannot have a good team. Boost lacrosse once in a while, and see if we cannot wake up some of our slumbering sports. Yours truly

In connection with the above letter we would state that these columns are ever open to the advancement of good, clean sports of all kinds, and local sports in particular. Lacrosse is undoubtedly one of the most fascinating of all summer pastimes, and any suggestion which will tend to boost it in this locality will gladly be given space on this page. Wake up, lacrosse boys. Get busy.

There may be a different tale to tell when Paris meets the Orsents in this city tomorrow night at the Jubilee Rink. It generally makes considerable difference in a team's playing when it is on foreign ice, and everybody is hoping that Paris gets a severe attack of "strangeness," "stage fright," or "homesickness" when they clash with the yellow and black aggregation tomorrow night. The bout should prove highly interesting whichever way it goes, and one of the largest crowds of the season will doubtless be on hand to cheer the local boys to a victory over the Carling cup holders.

The following item from the New York World serves to show the immense popularity of baseball on the other side:
The season of 1907 promises to be the most successful in baseball history.

There are more professional clubs under the National agreement, which is the supreme government of baseball, today than at any time since the league consisted of eight clubs forty years ago.

Listed under the head of the legitimate there are thirty professional baseball leagues throughout the United States, and these will average seven clubs to the league. That gives us 210 professional baseball clubs to entertain the sport-loving public from the cosmopolitan cities to the small hamlets. These clubs will "try out" and employ regularly twenty players during a season. That means that 4,200 professional ball players are on the pay-rolls of the various clubs, and through the support of the public, $340,000, or nearly a million, is paid out in this way. It is very likely that the salaries paid to ball players would easily reach $1,500,000.

Aside from the professional players so listed there are hundreds of semi-professional leagues, in which the players receive salaries ranging from $50 to $100 a month. If it were possible to reach every one of these players, the aggregate of the money paid out in this way it is very likely that the salaries paid to ball players would easily reach $1,500,000.

President Elliot of Harvard has broken loose again, and has indulged in one of his periodical attacks on football. Like Happy Hooligan of discredited yellow-journal fame, the learned professor can't find words to express his contempt of the strenuous athletic diversion, so he contents himself with saying that it is "fierce." All fair-minded persons must admit that the average brand of Rugby isn't exactly as gentle as a game of old maid or checkers, but then it is a game for men, and one in which boys develop into sturdy men. Again, it must be admitted that the game is not the best on the sporting calendar in many ways. Hockey, for instance, is much more interesting to witness, as is also baseball and lacrosse, but for all that, the sport is better supported in the United States than any other athletic form of amusement, with the possible exception of baseball. So long as the public demands the game, and so long as there are so many athletes anxious to indulge in the sport, it ill-befits a man like President Elliot to attempt to belittle it.

It's awful to be famous. At least, those who are so hold that opinion, and surely they ought to know. Last summer, when Mike Donlin and Frank Bowerman were cavorting about the outer and the inner gardens of the Glants' big baseball yard in New York, little did they dream of the greater fame which was to be thrust upon them. And he who says that "it is an ill-wind which blows nobody good" knows what he is getting away with. This spring, when the axe fell on the two players' pay envelopes the stuff appeared to be all off. It looked like a kiss in London parks on summer nights; but it was not to be. These shining lights would not douse. A certain spot on the map, dignified by the name of Kewanee (pretty name, isn't it?) has loomed up on the horizon, and offers the town baseball lot for the education of the natives, and to incidentally the manufacturing end of the village, a long-sought-for prestige in the commercial world at large. Press accounts do not state just what brand of merchandise is turned out in Kewanee, nor do they state where the burg is located, but it is surmised that Kewanee is productive of lemons or pickles, and that it is located somewhere near Conville, Kidding Territory. Wouldn't it jar you to pick up at some near future date a bottle of condensed pickles, labeled, "Just like Mike Donlin cats," or "Grown in Bowerman's backyard?"

Bill Squires, the king-bee punch artist of the antipodes, has more minds than a 36-year-old splinter out on a shopping tour. Only a day or so ago Willie said that he wouldn't scrap with black Jack Johnson under any conditions. Then the big brute got busy with his tongue and said so many "mistake" things about Bill that the Australian got busy and offered to whip "Mistah Johnson" on the spot. Later he agreed to a match for a purse and side bets aggregating $50,000. The press agent doesn't state whether the dough is stage money or the real thing, but it must be presumed to look like genuine crap-money, for Johnson is said to be as eager to get into the fray as a baby generally is to get its face on the outside of a milk bottle.

A local correspondent writes to inquire why the Toronto papers don't boost their baseball team. The writer is respectfully referred to the baseball records for 1906.

KINGSTON PLAYERS NEW C. L. A. TEAMS HURT IN ACCIDENT HAVE MANY PLAYERS

Kingston, March 5.—Members of the Fourteenth Regiment hockey team received severe bumps in the train collision at Toronto yesterday than was at first realized.

Potter, the rover, has an injured knee, which necessitates the use of a cane.

George Richardson, captain of the team, was so sore from a toss he got that he could scarcely walk last night. He is better today, however.

Manager F. H. MacKee does not think it will be necessary to ask the O. H. A. executive for a postponement of Friday night's final game with Stratford for the O. H. A. championship.

The Kingstonian most severely injured was Charles E. Willis, teller of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal. His back was painfully injured and he will have to spend a few days in the general hospital.

Toronto, March 6.—Harry Gillespie and J. K. Forsythe, of the North End Athletic Association's new senior C. L. A. team, have their entire team together, and, according to reports, it is a strong one. Who they have landed they refuse to tell, though.

St. Kitts have got 20 men to pick from, and do not have to go outside to get them. Every man is a native of the city. The Hamilton team has seven men so far, including McDonald, of Grifolia, and Uppelgrove, of Toronto, and have others in view.

Buffalo promises to be very strong, and is going to be in the business in great style. They have six St. Kitts players, and Tod Downey, of the old guard, is to manage the team. The Brantford team is fast materializing. There is a big bunch to choose from, as every stick-hander in the Telephone City is willing to help out. A cracking good line-up is assured.

SAINTS MADE RUNAWAY MATCH OF IT IN THE FIRST HALF

Tallied Five Goals While Hortons Couldn't Score—London's Pets Walloped.

Two hundred and fifty Londoners started the natives of staid old St. Thomas last night when they landed in the burg, headed by the Hortons, winners of the City League series, and a bugle band. The aforesaid Londoners went to the railroad burg to witness a Horton victory—but they didn't.

St. Thomas' little bandbox of a rink was packed, jammed to the doors, and many spectators were obliged to find resting places up in the sky parlor of the inclosure—in other words, on the rafters. And how those loyal London sports rooted! When they found that the Hortons were about to be snowed under they rooted for the Saints. Later, they rooted for the referee, and still later for the traction cars. The boys were out to root for something or somebody, and they would not be denied.

And the game? It wasn't a game. Goals—railroad tallies—came so fast and furious in the first half that the scoreboard kid became dizzy trying to figure them up.

It's hard to be obliged to admit it, but truth will out: our pet Hortons were simply outplayed. That is the story in a nutshell. The prizes of Horton street—and London—did all right until they struck the Saints' defense line. Then it was all off.

Last night's victory was no one-man affair, however. How, for the Saints, showed up no better than anybody else, and not half as well as the rover and center of the Saints.

When the game—or rather the slaughter—began, London, b. f. Boys, missed scoring by a narrow margin. Then the Saints hogged the puck and were discourteous enough to keep it until the half ended, with the exception of the time it reposed in St. Thomas' net.

"Big Injun" Howe got bad during the half and amid a shower of London boots retired to the side lines to repent.

When the big fellow returned, the score, which had been 2-0 in favor of the Saints after the first five minutes of play, stood 4-0. A moment later it was 6-0, and the London rooters giggled themselves red in the face over the fun. And Mike Tierney on the rafters, nearly threw a fit—of grief. It was pitiful.

The Second Spasm.
In the second spasm our prizes did better, and for a while it looked as though they had struck their gait, for they scored three goals in rapid succession, and missed a dozen others by a narrow margin. The Saints appeared to outweigh the London boys ten or fifteen pounds to a man, and in checking the big kids were the candles.

"Big Bug" Howe, who weighs in at 180 or 190 pounds, into the side of the rink on one occasion, and the jolt nearly shook Mike Tierney off his elevated point of vantage. Jimmy Caruthers also pulled off an imprudent turn, when he went first into the brand of the cage without being damaged. With the score 5 to 3, the water-tank people got busy again, and rained pucks into the Horton net for a moment or so, and the score read 9-3.

With bowed heads two hundred and fifty odd mourners departed from the rink (via the side entrance), after the storm had blown over, and made their weary way, to the Traction Company cars headed for the Forest City.

Well, we don't begrudge the Saints the pleasure they derived from last night's bout. Not at all.

Next Monday night, however, there may be another tale to tell, for the railroaders will hook up with the local champions on the latter's own stamping-ground, and that makes a lot of difference to a team.

St. Thomas is bubbling over with joy, while we—oh, well, we are hoping for better things Monday.

Kenora, March 6.—At the meeting of the executive of the Thistle Hockey Club in the new town hall yesterday afternoon, the challenge of the Wanderers of Montreal was accepted and dates were wired, Tuesday and Friday of next week being the choice of the Thistles, two games to be played, total number of goals to govern. The championship games will be played at home.

Thistles had a good stiff work-out last night and showed the best form seen yet since the Stanley Cup games. Hooper was back to the game after injuries received in Toronto. The rest seems to have done him good and he is playing with great fire and dash. Beaudry, who was badly shaken out in a practice week ago, was also out, and will be in shape in a night or two. Phillips got a very severe cut in the game with Portage la Prairie over a week ago, but is in great trim again, and traveling per usual. Whitcroft, the Peterboro recruit, was at center and works in well with the team. He is a very ready player, and remarkably effective about the net.

Griffis, at cover, practice, and it is almost impossible to pass him. In last night's work-out McGimble was tried at point, but owing to the excellent work of Griffis had comparatively little to do.

The next battle for the Stanley Cup will, without doubt, be a big improvement in the playing of the Thistles. There is likely to be a great stir made towards better combination on the part of the forwards, and the defense promises to be almost impregnable. If the final selection of a point man is made, the whole will, in all probability, just fly as fast and yet more systematic hockey.

ST. THOMAS LOSES SOME GOOD PLAYERS
St. Thomas, March 6.—Three of the star members of last year's local baseball team have decided to play elsewhere the coming season. Pete McDonald, third baseman and outfielder, Empire State League, Chaucer Elliott, formerly of the Brantford team, is manager, and says he considers Pete a coming wonder.

Jimmy Graney, the speedy left-fielder, has united with Foughkeeps, N. Y., in the Hudson River League. Jimmy has the ear-marks of a "comer," and with a little experience in fast company will deliver the goods in due time.

Ed Killingworth, the pitcher, who has done much to bring glory to the city, has become part of the East Liverpool, Ohio, P. O. M. League. He has had several offers, among them being one from Trenton, N. Y., team of the Tri-State League, but he decided to play with the East Liverpool.

Thomas will also be represented on the diamond this summer by the efficient and popular Charles Smith, who is going over to umpire in the Empire State League. Mr. Smith's excellent work last season, both within and outside the "big town," has preceded him with a satisfactory recommendation to his new associates.

That the crowd may make good will find a hearty response from the old and young sports of the city.

CHES.
MADE IT THREE STRAIGHT.
New York, March 6.—Mrs. S. R. Burgess, of St. Louis, challenger for the woman's chess championship of the United States, made it three straight today in her match with Mrs. C. P. Fey, of Newark, N. J., the champion. Mrs. Fey won the first game of the series, so the score now stands at 3 points to 1 in favor of Mrs. Burgess, who needs but one more game to win the match. The fifth game will be played on Friday.

GOLF.
INTERNATIONAL MATCH.
London, March 6.—It was announced at a meeting of the council of the Ladies' Golf Union here today that an international match would be arranged between British players and the American women golfers who are coming over for the championship meeting to be held at Newcastle, County Down, Ireland, in May.

BASEBALL DECISIONS.
New York, March 6.—The National Baseball Commission today announced the following decisions:
The application of the Toledo Club for the retention of Player Grueser, who had been drafted by the Washington Club, was refused.
The claim of the Hudson Baseball Association against the New York American League Club for the first payment of the conditional purchase of Garatty was rejected.
The application of the Birmingham Club for a rehearing in the case of the payment of Moore's salary was denied.
The applications for reinstatement of Broderick, R. A. Unglaub and Frank J. Corridon were granted with the provision that each pay a fine of $200.
The application of A. T. Briggs for reinstatement was granted without imposition of any fine.

WRESTLING.
BURNS DOWNS PARR.
Omaha, Neb., March 6.—"Farmer" Burns won a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match with James Parr, of England, here last night. Parr took the first bout in 21 minutes and Burns the second and third in 13 and 24 minutes respectively.

THE RING.
MELLOYD WORSTED.
Philadelphia, March 6.—Joe Thomas, of California, had a slight advantage over William Melloyd, of Boston, in their six-round bout before the National A. C. tonight. Thomas dropped Melloyd in the opening round with a left to the chin, but the latter was quickly on his feet and rushed to a clinch. The fight was unsatisfactory, because of the almost incessant clinching of both fighters.

GIDDY OLD FITZ.
East Liverpool, Ohio, March 6.—Before leaving here today, Bob Fitzgibbon issued the following statement: "I received in my mail here revised articles of agreement for my battle with Tommy Burns before the National Athletic Club, Philadelphia. We will fight six rounds, and my share of the gross receipts—$20 per cent with a guarantee of $5,000. We will close the show in a few days and I will go into training on my farm in New York. I will do only light work, as I am already in good shape, and could go into the ring at a moment's notice."

BILLIARDS.
DEMAREST A WINNER.
New York, March 6.—In the fourth game of the national amateur billiard championship tournament played at the Linderkranz Club this afternoon, Charles F. Conklin, of Chicago, defeated Mortimer S. Rolis, of Philadelphia, by a score of 200 to 136.

Tonight the young Chicagoan, Calvin Demarest, met J. Ferdinand Poggenburg, of New York. Demarest went out in the 16th inning, while Poggenburg's score was 139.

HOCKEY.
SOUTHERN LEAGUE SEMI-FINALS.
Cayuga, March 6.—In the semi-finals of the Southern Counties' League, Cayuga and Hagersville met on the Waterford rink last evening. The game resulted in a score of 3 to 4 in favor of Cayuga.

SEAMEN BEAT PILOTS.
Goderich, March 6.—A benefit hockey match in aid of the hospital was held last night. The opposing teams were the Seamen and Pilots, composed mainly of lake sailors. When time was called the score stood 4 to 3 in favor of the Seamen.

MARKDALE CLUB CANNED.
Toronto, March 6.—The Markdale Junior Hockey Club has been tagged for the O. H. A. ash heap. They are on the suspended list now, and unless they can show the O. H. A. that the nine, has left for Atlanta, Ga., with action of C. H. Treloard, their secretary, who played under a spurious age certificate, was unknown to the rest of the management, the entire club will the way, Chase, Hughes, Brockett, follow the said Mr. Treloard into the field, and the club will be at Atlanta this week.

In order that he might play, this certificate gave his birthplace as Montreal, whereas he was born near Owen Sound. Owen Sound alleged that Markdale had a man over age early in the season, and are now much disgruntled because Treloard was not exposed earlier and the Markdale Club thrown out, for Markdale put their juniors out of the running.

A BRUTAL GAME.
Moncton, N. B., March 6.—The most brutal hockey game ever seen in the Maritime Provinces was played here when the Moncton and Sackville teams met. Several players were so badly injured that they had to be carried from the ice. After the Sackville goalkeeper had been knocked down in a mix-up he struck a Moncton man over the head with his hockey stick, inflicting a terrible gash. The two then fought, rolling round the ice until parted. The game lasted two hours and a half, and the blood ran freely.

SEPARATE SCHOOL TEAMS PLAY.
Teams representative of St. Mary's school and the Sacred Heart school played a friendly game of hockey last night. The result was a draw, the latter by a score of 12 to 3. Gilles, Murray and Maloney were the stars. The victors listed up as follows:

SCOTS HAVE PLEASANT EVENING

The local Scotchmen spent a most enjoyable time at their club room on Tuesday evening, when they held a card party and smoker. About 35 members were present. Eucure and pedro were indulged in during the early part of the evening, and refreshments were served later. The programme was impromptu, and was introduced by a short speech by Chief Fraser, who occupied the chair. It was almost entirely made up of Scotch selections. Mr. James Patterson and Mr. Taggie were among those who rendered selections. Speeches were made by Mr. Francis Love, police magistrate, Mr. James Taylor and Mr. J. W. Jones. At an early hour in the evening the gathering was brought to a close by the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

MUSIC CLUB CONCERT

Very Enjoyable Programme Arranged by Mrs. A. D. Jordan.

The programme for the very enjoyable Woman's Music Club recital in the Masonic Temple yesterday afternoon was arranged by Mrs. Albert D. Jordan. One of the most delightful features, and, in fact, a masterpiece of this season's programmes, was the sonata for piano and violin by Cesar Franck, played by Mr. Jordan and Mr. Maurice Poure. The extremely difficult number was played with brilliancy and sympathy.

The following was the programme: Mendelssohn—Songs Without Words, 14, 18, 9, 20.
Frank Lyness—"He Was a Prince."
Miss Ella Deacon.
Paper—"The Evolution of the Organ."
Mr. Jordan.
Florence Ednah Chipman—
(a) "In Dream."
Charles Deacon—(b) "A Song of Joy."
Miss Emma Kidner.
Cesar Franck—Sonata for Piano and Violin.

1. Allegretto ben Moderato.
2. Allegro.
3. Recitativo Fantasia.
4. Allegretto poco mosso.
Mr. Jordan and Mr. Poure.
Thomas—"Ah, My Heart is Weary" (Nadeshda)

LARGE AUDIENCE GREATLY PLEASED

Volunteer Organist Played to a Packed House at the Grand.

An audience which packed the theater from pit to gallery last night turned out to witness the production of "The Volunteer Organist" at the Grand. The play has been seen in London before, and it solidly left a good impression. It is a wholesome play, revealing an interesting story from beginning to end, and it was highly appreciated by the large audience which witnessed it.

"The Volunteer Organist" is a tramp drunk, who grows tired of the primrose path and wanders back to his old town and the Methodist Church, of which his brother is the pastor, in time to find that the choir has gone on strike because the minister has determined to marry the daughter of a local volunteer organist. When the minister calls out the hymn to be sung, there is no response from the organ loft, and it is then the tramp, listening outside in the snow, makes his way into the loft and plays the hymn, "The Palms," while two boys also volunteer their services and sing the number.

The play winds up with everybody doing good, even those who were bad turning over a new leaf.

The cast was a very capable one. Mr. Goldwin Patton, as the minister, was very acceptable. Mr. Fred Campbell, as the volunteer organist, carried his part out splendidly. Mr. John Maynard, as the village grocer, was natural in the role, and Phil McCarthy, as the village factotum, made the best of a very funny comedy role. Miss Grace Barrett, as Florence Malone, the tavern-keeper's daughter, gave an intelligent interpretation to her role. Miss Virginia Fairfax, as Lucetta Barrett, injected a streak of genuine comedy into her part, which kept the house in laughter all evening, and little Viola Savoy, as Jennie Yokem, was both winning and clever. Other members of the cast carried out their parts well.

The singing of the choir boys, Masters Mellor Newman and Willie Nelson, was a feature of the performance. The scenery was excellent. Professor James Creswell's orchestra won favor with the audience by playing several pleasing popular airs in an artistic manner, the house applauding the leader and his musicians.

"The Volunteer Organist" was the first play presented under Manager Bowers' management here, and he was greatly pleased with the manner in which Londoners turned out to witness the production.

The Teeth and Their Relation to Good Health

A good digestion is one of the prime essentials to good health. It is not the amount of food taken into the stomach that is beneficial to the body and builds it up, but the amount that is well digested. Now food that is not well masticated will sooner or later retard or destroy digestion, hence bring about ill-health. Bad teeth then means broken-down and decayed teeth. Disorders of digestion are not the only maladies that may arise from diseased gums and teeth, hence the importance of taking care of the teeth, having decayed ones filled, or when lost, replacing them with artificial substitutes.
