LIBERAL LEADER OUTLINES HIS TARIFF POLICIES TO SOUTH OXFORD ELECTORS

Declares Premier Meighen Has a Remarkable Genius For Deliberately Misrepresenting Situations and Facts and Throwing Dust in the Eyes of the People.

[By Staff Reporter.]

TILLSONBURG, July 29. — South Oxford gave the Liberal leader, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, a vonderful welcome tonight. Electors were here from all parts of the riding, and cheering crowds lined the station and streets and packed the opera house to capacity long before the hour for speaking arrived.

The Liberal leader was at his best, and drove home his points against the Meighen Government with telling effect, and was frequently interrupted by rounds of applause.

A resolution expressing complete confidence in the Liberal policies and in both the federal and provincial leaders, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Mr. Hartley Dewart, was carried amid enthusiasm and applause.

Rousing Reception.

Tillsonburg brass band played as the Liberal leader's train drew in at 7 o'clock and afterwards headed the procession about the principal streets of the town. The reception committee included Mayor M. G. Dean, G. H. Denton, Ex-Mayor W. C. Brown, Ira Trooper, Lieut.-Col. T. W. Mayberry, ex-M.P.P., of Ingersoll, Lieut.-Col. J. C. Hegler, K.C., of Ingersoll and W. J. Comiskey, also of Ingersoll, president of the South Oxford Reform Association.

President Comiskey in opening the meeting expressed the opinion that a general federal election was liable to be held at any time in all probability before another session of Parliament.

He explained to the Norwich and Otterville members that although this annual meeting ought to have been held in their district, it was not deemed likely that a hall large enough to accommodate a rally addressed by Hon. Mr. King could be secured in either of these places. Encouraging reports were presented by Secretary Denton.

Elected Officers.

After a largely increased membership had been enrolled, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mayor M. G. Dean of Tillsonburg, president; Charles G. Hullett, Norwich, vice-president; C. H. Denton (re-elected), secretary-treasurer. Chairmen and secretaries for the various subdivisions were re-elected, the executive to fill vacancies occurring.

The address of welcome which followed the business session was tendered to Hon. Mr. King, J. A. Robb, M.P., of Huntington, the Liberal whip, and General Secretary Hayden of the Reform Association of Canada. Mayor Dean, who foresaw in the public experience and service of the Liberal leader during recent years splendid training to fit him for the duties of the future premiership of Canada.

Musical contributions to the program were made by Mrs. Wilfred McGuire and Miss Ethel Oatman, vocalists, and Miss Helen Trestain, pianist.

Trying to Divide.

Mr. Robb, beginning his address, congratulated the residents of South Oxford upon the splendid development of their farms and communities. Residents of the Eastern Counties of Quebec believed that they lived in the garden of Canada, but after seeing South Oxford he had to admit there was another garden of Canada.

He spoke strongly of the bon entente which had so long existed between Ontario and Quebec, although racially and religiously different. French and English speaking Canadians, Roman Catholics and Protestants, had united solidly to turn out the traitors of 1896.

The Conservative party with a view to dividing the Liberal party in Quebec, had sought to sow enmity between the two races and the two religions, but the Conservative efforts to sow discord had not met with much success.

Today as never before there was a solid Liberal block in Quebec. After 24 years of sane, solid Liberal representation, Quebec is one of the most progressive provinces in Canada and the home of the most contented people in Canada. Quebec remembers her annual deficits and her discontent in the days of Conservative administration, when her citizens by thousands were removing to the New England States. Today her people are returning home, and Quebec remembering, intends to continue her solid Liberal representation.

Criticizes Meighen.

Mr. Robb sharply criticized Premier Meighen and other cabinet members for galivanting from one foreign country to another at a time when Canada has so many important and serious problems of her own to settle.

The Government is growing bolder and bolder in corrupt deals as its term of office continued and as each session of parliament advanced. Much had been said about abolishing patronage, why then had patronage been revived in the appointment of the census commissioners and enumerators, why could not these appointments have been left to the civil service commission.

Time For Unity.

Referring to the wild extravagance of the Conservative party he asked could anyone wonder that the people in their discontent were breaking up into groups and new functions. The extreme versatility of the Conservative appeals was pointed out. First Quebec was told by the Conservative allies in Quebec that Laurier was too loyal to Britain. At the next election in 1917 Ontario was told that the Liberals were disloyal and the people of Quebec were slackers. Now Premier Meighen goes to Quebec and implores that province to save Canada from the Bolshevists of Ontario. This was a time for unity said Mr. Robb and Canada must not allow the discord sowers to divide her people, because of the reckless extravagance of the Borden and Meighen Governments. The next government must be pledged to the closest economy possible. Such a government would not be popular, but economy must be practiced to restore public confidence and reduce the public debt which the Conservative Government have allowed to accumulate.

Great Reception.

When Hon. Mackenzie King rose to speak the cheering was deafening and continued for some minutes. His address in part follows:

He was presented on behalf of the South Oxford Reform Association with a bouquet of roses by little Kathleen Jane Brown, daughter of W. C. Brown of Tillsonburg, former president of the association.

The Liberal leader expressed his deep appreciation of the splendid reception accorded him, and the resolution of unswerving support and fullest confidence which the association had passed at the beginning of the meeting.

Different Problems.

Today Canada's problems were not the same as they had been before the war. Restoration of popular liberty and free speech had been promised by the Conservative Government upon the expiration of the war, but instead it had grown more reactionary than ever in its legislation. Canada today was governed on the one hand by political autocrats, and on the other hand by industrial plutocrats.

A class of politicians was in power, which did not care what befell the country so long as they could retain power, and the moneyed men had but one thought of making more money, escaping as much as possible themselves from the burden of paying their share of public expenditure, said Mr. King, introducing his address on the tariff and taxation. Evolution, not revolution, he said, must be the method to supplant indirect by direct taxation.

Must Go Slowly.

Indirect taxation cannot be dropped all at once. It would be too burdensome if suddenly applied in view of the great national debt. But indirect taxation should not be used as a protection for one industry as against another.

In speaking of the tariff, the first consideration to keep in mind, is that the tariff is a tax, and that as such it bears directly upon the all-important question of the cost of living, which is inseparable from the problem of taxation. If taxation is high, other things being equal, the cost of living also will be high; if low, other things being equal, the cost of living also will be low.

No Escape From Effects.

Some people believe that because they do not see the tax that is being imposed, because they do not pay out taxes as an amount by itself to some tax collector, they are therefore escaping taxation altogether. There could be no greater mistake. It must ever be remembered that taxes are divisible into two classes, according to the method of their imposition; direct taxes which are paid immediately and with the knowledge of the person making payment of which is passed on to another, of which the tariff is the outstanding example. The customs tariff, and that is simply a tax imposed by the state on goods and commodities coming into a country, whether they be in the nature of food, or clothing, or furniture, or anything else, and collected, in the first instance, by the tax collector from the importer at the customs house through which they pass, but paid ultimately by the persons who buy the goods, in the extra price paid.

From this it will be apparent that, so long as the state is in need of taxation, and has a customs tariff as a

SINN FEINERS UNDER SENTENCE OF DEATH WILL BE LIBERATED

British Government Orders Release Pending Hearing of Appeal.

Dublin, July 30.—The crown attorney announced today that the Government had decided to release John J. Egan and Patrick Higgins pending a hearing of an appeal against the contempt of court orders issued in connection with their cases. The master of the rolls, accordingly stayed the order he had issued for the attachment of Gen. Sir Neville McCready, commander of the British troops in Ireland, Major-Gen. Sir Edward Strickland, division commander, and others for their failure to comply with the habeas corpus writs issued Tuesday.

These writs called for the production in court of Egan, sentenced to death by military court-martial in Limerick last June for having ammunition in his possession, and of Higgins, accused of having taken part in an ambush at Clonmult.

The overruling by the Government of the military in the decision to release Egan and Higgins is considered here as an indication of a fixed intention on the Government's part to encourage the spread of the peace atmosphere.

FIRE CHIEF IS KILLED WHEN CAR OVERTURNS

Fatal Accident Occurs Near Town of Essex.

Essex, July 30.—Samuel E. Smith, for many years chief of the local fire department, and a former member of the town council was instantly killed between 1 and 2 p.m. today when the automobile in which he and his brother, John Smith of Maidstone, were traveling turned turtle near town.

The accident occurred near the home of John Lickman while the two brothers were proceeding toward Essex. They evidently lost control of the machine, and in attempting to avoid hitting a large tree on the roadside the machine turned completely over twice. Mr. Lickman, hearing the crash, rushed to the scene, and found the fire chief dead when he arrived. Death is believed to have been due to a fractured skull. His brother was but slightly hurt.

Mr. Smith was about 50 years of age, and has lived in Essex practically all his life. A widow and five sons survive.

FRUIT GROWERS' APPLICATION IS "TURNED DOWN"

Judgment Will Mean Higher Cost to Consumers.

Ottawa, July 30.—Canadian Press dispatch.—In a judgment issued today the board of railway commissioners refuses the application of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, the Niagara Fruit Growers' Association and the Niagara Peninsula Growers, Limited, for an order directing the express companies to restore the arrangement for unlimited loading of carload fruit and vegetables from stations in Ontario to points in the Maritime Provinces and Western Canada. This privilege gave shippers the right to have fruit unloaded, from carload lots, at different points, in addition to the final destination.

Chief Commissioner F. B. Carvell, in his judgment, declares that he is not able to convince himself that it is the duty of the board to order transportation companies to lose money in carrying goods in order that there may be no interference with an old established business. Hon. Mr. Carvell says that he realizes that the judgment will probably result in consumers paying more for their fruit, but that, although he regrets its personally, he is compelled to refuse the application.

THE KING AND THE DUKE

Where, Oh! Where Are Those Long Lost Promises? Is Plaint of Ex-Soldiers

Flowing Rhetoric of Borden and Meighen Still Remembered by Battle-Scarred Veterans—But Still They Wait in Patience For Practical Fulfillment of Fulsome Promises.

The old-timers freely boast, and rightly so, of the stirring days and the equally active night they sojourned in the region of obliterated Ypres. In idle moments of reminiscence they fondly recall the lengthy session endured along the shell-torn barren spaces beside the historic Somme. With telling emphasis battle-scarred veterans relate (usually to one another, as no person else appears interested now) those never to be forgotten incidents involving Sanctuary Wood, Vimy, the old familiar Nine Elms or the handy cellars of of Cite St. Pierre.

One hears frequently the oft-repeated stories—the kind that never grow old with a sympathetic audience—about the scrap at Hart's crater, the jump-off from Sugar Trench; the smash through the Buisey Switch, or any one of a hundred other occurrences already famed in verse and story. The "old sweats" and their younger associates are wont to grow fervent, not without due cause, of course, in graphic versions of that last triumphant sweep to the border—the advance to the Rhine—a magnificent and fitting sequence to a hundred dayes of cruel, ceaseless driving, such as the world had never before witness d.

The Great Adventure.

Then again there are others who emerged successfully from the last upheaval (usually referred to as the Great Adventure by poets, high-class descriptive writers and others who were never there), who cherish secretly fond recollections of actual participation in the one happening in quarrelsome Europe that needs must be duly recorded before the official eyewitnesses and special observers write "Finis" to the whole thing, and so cause the enthusiastic reader of history to turn the page to peruse events of lesser importance.

Verily it has been written there are those who charged at Ypres and again at Vimy. There are those who marched through Bully Grenay and then through Brussels. But when all is said and done there are many who in the years to come will falter and hang their aged heads in shame when a child inquiring voice anxiously questions: "Grandpa, were you with Borden at Ticnques?"

Yes, Ticnques (pronounced Tanks). It may be herewith spelt correctly. Then again it may not. However, who cares? It was a beautiful summer day in 1918, and Ticnques one of those typical, peaceful little French villages, at such a discreet distance behind the danger zone as to be favored by general headquarters, was literally alive with troops. It was truly a big day for Canada and Canadians, and why not? The first gentleman of the Dominion was once again at the saluting point

City Parks Add Greatly To Beauty of London, But Limited Funds Handicap

Many Improvements Inaugurated This Year, With Rare Blooms Introduced to This City—Playgrounds, Parks and Tree Trimming Maintained For $30,000 Per Annum—New Scenic Entrance Planned for Springbank.

Public utilities employees, particularly Parks Superintendent B. E. Graham and his staff, are to be congratulated upon the excellent condition of London's parks. The natural beauty of Victoria and Queen's Parks has been greatly enhanced by co-operation in the parks department, with the result that these centres are objects of admiration for citizens and visitors to the Forest City.

Victoria Park at the present time is resplendent with its beds of canna lilies of many varieties, several of which can be seen here for the first time, the President, a red bloom, and White Eureka being introduced from Philadelphia this year. They can now be seen at their best, and interest in them has been evinced to such an extent by citizens that General Manager Buchanan of the public utilities commission has offered to facilitate procuring specimens for any person desirous of trying out these beauties in their own gardens.

Orange Bedder.

Another floral feature is known as orange bedder, introduced this year to Londoners from Philadelphia, and can be seen only at Victoria Park. As a neat setting to the canna beds at this center, Pennisetum Cupra, a copper-colored grass, stands out in the park gardens. Coliu and other foliage plants are utilized in the gardens to the best advantage.

The lily pond at Victoria Park is worthy of inspection by all horticulturally-inclined citizens. It is surrounded by a "carpet bed" of clipped plants, over 4,000 being required to complete the scheme. Within the pond are red, white and the rare blue water lilies,

Some Telling Points Made In Liberal Leader's Great Speech

"In speaking of the tariff, the first consideration to keep in mind is that the tariff is a tax, and that as such it bears directly upon the all-important question of the cost of living, which is inseparable from the problem of taxation. If taxation is high, other things being equal, the cost of living also will be high; if low, other things being equal, the cost of living also will be low."

"Some people believe that because they do not see the tax that is being imposed, because they do not pay out taxes as an amount by itself to some tax collector, they are therefore escaping taxation altogether. There could be no greater mistake."

"Today the women of the country, as well as the men, have the right to vote. It is most important, therefore, that they, not less than the men, should clearly comprehend the problems of government, and in particular whatever relates to taxation, the means by which government is carried on."

"When a woman purchases a new dress or hat, the kind of dress and hat she can purchase will depend on its price. She may not think, when asked more than she ever paid before, that the reason is that part of the price is going to keep up the outlays on the militia, the navy and the merchant marine, but such is nevertheless the case."

"If each single man and woman who is paying no direct tax whatever, and thinks he or she is thereby escaping taxation altogether, will stop to think what it means to be contriubting not less than $50 or $60 per year in taxes, and each head of the family of five will think what it means to be contributing from $250 to $300 per year, whether they are paying income tax or not, he or she will see why, among other reasons, the manner in which the Government is carried on is to him or her a matter of immediate concern."

"Mr. Meighen has been saying that there are only two kinds of tariff—a protective tariff and a free trade tariff. With this statement I take direct issue. I go further, and say there is no such thing in the world as a free trade tariff, and that no one knows that better than Mr. Meighen himself."

"Premier Meighen has a perfect genius for twisting and turning and misrepresenting situations and facts, and like most contortionists, is fond at times of displaying his ability in this direction. He does it always for a purpose. The acrobat in a circus performs his tricks to make people laugh. Mr. Meighen performs his in a manner which should make the nation weep. And this for the reason that his twists and turns are so wholly misleading."

"It is not honest to say that we can do away altogether with the customs tariff in Canada at the present time. If we do, how are we to raise the immediate sums that are required to pay off our public debt, and meanwhile to pay the interests on it? How are we to raise the moneys required to meet the obligations growing out of the war, the pensions to returned soldiers, to those who are suffering from impairment of health or bodily injury, or to the dependents of those who were killed? How are we to finance our railways, and how meet the other expenses of government, amounting, as I have said, for the present year to between five and six hundred million dollars?"

"So long as you recognize a customs tariff you cannot have free trade. The tariff is, as I have stated, a tax. It is a tax on imports, and a tax on imports is an obstruction to trade. Free trade means the absence of all tax; it means what it says, complete freedom of trade, and the raising of revenues by some other method exclusively, by income tax, for example, and when the prime minister and his following say that the issue is between protection and free trade, they do not describe the situation aright."

"The issue, so far as the Liberal party's attitude on the tariff is concerned, is not and never has been in this country, between free trade and protection; it has been between a tariff imposed primarily for purposes of protection, and a tariff imposed primarily for purposes of revenue."

"The prime minister says it is either free trade or protection; that there are only the two grounds; there is no middle ground between them. That is in order to divert the public mind from the middle ground, and to center it upon the one extreme or the other."

SEARCH FOR ROMANY ENDS IN MIRAGE

Long Road Leads From Commonplace to Land of Picturesque.

GYPSIES WERE TOWNFOLKS

And Air Bridge to Upland Arcady Was Barred by Trespass Sign.

Have you ever taken the road to Romany Here and there, along life's main highways, the road to Romany branches off and goes winding, zig-zagging in easy, picturesque curves through hill and valley, past the haunt of singing birds and fragrant weeds, skirting enchanted woods, around gnarled old apple orchards and quaint farm houses. Adventure beckons and Romance lures, and around every succeeding jog in the roadway, one may expect to find the wonderful fabled land of Romany which poets have sung, dreamers have fashioned, and painters colored in rainbow hues since time began. But the mirage of this Promised Land ever recedes, and time and again, finding the road too long, the would-be pilgrim must turn back to more prosaic highways and byways of the work-day world.

In a little town in Western Ontario, at the end of a long, broad street, a less traveled way shoots suddenly down in a charming valley, and away between the hills and woodlands, along a reedy river. One leaves behind the ruins of a great breakfast cereal factory the product of which was once known the wide world over, and a model milk condensing plant, now standing white and silent, as a manifestation of the industrial depression.

But this road to Romany climbs up a hillside and past an old mysterious farmhouse set close to the roadway, rambles on—mayhap, one may in imaginative fancy picture—to lead somewhere, somehow, to Romany.

The sleepy waters croon in their sleepiness an answer to the buzzing dragonfly's drawsy murmur, and the reed-bird's dilettante twit-twit-twittering.

Sons of Maygar.

One's heart leaps up in sudden hope, for behold a caravan is resting in the three-sheltered hollow of a little hillside. Surely, these must be the very Magyars of the long, free trail, who luxuriate in the sunshine or lazily gather dry, dead wood for their camp fire! A gypsy camp indeed! The comely maidens rest on the steps of a van, a swarthy gypsy is trying to negotiate a

CONSIDERATION OF RURAL MAIL MEN'S CASE IS PROMISED

Carriers Claim Cost of Maintaining Equipment Leaves Them Without Profit.

Ottawa, July 30. — Canadian Press. —The case of the Canadian rural mail carriers and the postoffice to railway station mail contractors was placed before a special committee of the Union of Canadian Municipalities at the closing session of the later body yesterday by Garfield Mackinnon, secretary-treasurer of the Mail Carriers' Association.

Mr. MacKinnon requested the delegates to the Union of Municipalities to enlist their services in the fight being carried on by the mail men for more pay and improved contract conditions. He pointed out that rural mail carriers are at present receiving about $35 per mile per year, and the average length of the routes is 70 miles. This makes $700 annually for the work, and the carrier must keep two horses, and two or three light wagons, besides giving his time. The upkeep of the horses alone, Mr. MacKinnon told the delegates, runs away with the pay. Added to this the carriers are made sign a four-year contract.

Consideration of the matter was promised by the committee.

SAYS NORTHCLIFFE'S CASE IS ONE FOR DOCTORS, NOT POLITICIANS; SUFFERING FROM MEGALOMANIA

London Morning Post Declares Noted Publisher's Mind Is Apparently Overstrained — Alleged Interview in New York Followed by King George's Denial of Statements Attributed to Him and Northcliffe's Repudiation of the Interview Have Created Sensation in Britain.

London, July 30.—The sensational and unprecedented incident of a British sovereign repudiating to Parliament through the prime minister statements attributed to him in a newspaper interview is given the greatest prominence in the entire British press this morning.

Political circles have been able to talk of little else since Mr. Lloyd George appeared in the House of Commons yesterday and read a statement, authorized by King George, in which the King declared that words attributed to him concerning the Government's Irish policy in a reported interview in the United States by Lord Northcliffe, owner of the London Times, were a "complete fabrication."

The alleged interview quoted King George as saying to Premier Lloyd George just before his majesty left England to open the Ulster Parliament: "Are you going to shoot all the people in Ireland?"

The prime minister is said to have replied: "No, your majesty."

"Well, then, you must come to some agreement with them," the King was quoted as saying. "This thing cannot go on. I canot have my people killed in this manner."

Reported Interview.

(The foregoing conversation appeared in an interview published in New York City uJly 25, attributed to H. Wickham Steed, editor of the London Times, who is traveling in America with Lord Northcliffe. It was given by Mr. Steed the day after his arrival from England and subsequently appeared in English newspapers attributed directly to Lord Northcliffe.) The latter yesterday sent a cablegram from Washington to Lord Stamfordham, private secretary to King George, denying the reported interview. The cablegram said: "Please convey to his majesty with my humble duty my denial of ever having ascribed to his majesty the word or words as stated by the prime minister yesterday. I gave no such interview."

British newspapers display the entire affair at great length and under large headlines this morning. The papers controlled by Lord Northcliffe contain brief editorials calling attention to the denials of both King George and Lord Northcliffe.

The Times, in an early edition, assumed that the reporter who took the alleged interview was "misled by ignorance of British constitutional practices, but dramatized the conversation with technical skill" that the Government was induced to accept his version "of a purely imaginary conversation between King George and the premier."

This statement does not appear in later editions of the Times, neither does the Times, nor the Daily Mail, another Northcliffe paper, offer a further explanation of Lord Northcliffe's share in the incident, but both devote considerable space in commenting upon the King's correct attitude in relation to his opening of the Belfast Parliament. The Times says: "At Belfast the King's action obviously was in accordance with constitutional tradition, but at the same time it should be clearly understood that his majesty constitutionally was entitled to call the attention of his advisers to his own standpoint."

Victim of Megalomania.

The Mail says that it is unnecessary to remind its readers regarding the "attitude of the Northcliffe press towards the throne of Britain and the revered sovereign who occupies it."

"The King," it continues, "has done more than anybody to bring about a new understanding of the Irish problem and to advance the cause of Irish peace, but he has acted, as he always acts, within the limits of his constitutional position."

After ridiculing the attribution of such "nonsense" to the King, the Morning Post says that Lord Northcliffe's denial was needed, "as the words ascribed to him were not entirely out of character to other authentic utterances from the same lips."

Referring to an article in the Daily Mail last Thursday, describing the activity of Lord Northcliffe in America, the Morning Post continues: "Lord Northcliffe's mind is clearly overstrained. It is not a case for the politicians but for the doctors. There is a point at which megalomania becomes dangerous. The patient must either be persuaded to rest or his friends must fear the worst."

MISSING BOY

REGINALD BATES, of Atlanta, Ga., who disappeared from Strathroy on Thursday last.

ATLANTA BOY MISSING FROM STRATHROY

Was on Visit to Grandmother —Disappeared on Thursday.

If Reginald Bates, aged 14, who disappeared from Strathroy on Thursday afternoon, will come back to his anxious mother, all will be forgiven.

When her son did not return to the house on Thursday evening, Mrs. Bates of Atlanta, Georgia, who with her son Reginald is visiting her mother in Strathroy, made inquiries at the railway station and learned that Reginald had purchased a ticket for London.

Another informant intimated that the lad stated that he was on his way back home to Georgia. That he has not sufficient money for that purpose, however, his mother is confident, and naturally fears that he will get into serious difficulties if he attempts to "beat it" by fast freight. Before leaving he changed his clothes, leaving his best in Strathroy.

Mrs. Bates is at a loss to explain her son's sudden departure without a word of explanation. He has never been troublesome, she says, or in any other trouble. As she had intended that they would return to their home in the South on August 15, she is more than anxious to locate him immediately. The local police were interviewed and gave assurance they would do what they could to assist. The grief-stricken mother is only too willing to forward return fare from wherever he may be eventually discovered.

1921 BUILDING BEATS 1920 BY HALF A MILLION

Permits For July $67,895 More Than Last Year.

Building Inspector A. M. Piper announced today that he has issued 112 building permits this month, the estimates totalling $256,090, are far ahead of the figures of July, 1920, which reached $188,195, when 111 permits were issued. The total estimates of 811 permits for the first seven months of this year are $1,675,560, in contrast to $1,013,300 made up of 707 permits in the same period of 1920.

The principal buildings erected here during the month of July are the new Victoria public school, to cost $162,000; buildings for the Western Fair Association at $7,000, and 16 private dwellings costing in all $46,900.

Recent permits issued are: To T. J. Ashman, for a 2-story brick veneer dwelling at 520 Grosvenor street, to cost $4,500; a similar dwelling on Cathcart street, for T. H. Griffith, at $4,000; a 2-story elevator at 67 King street, for London Motors to cost $2,700, and repairs to 370 Ontario street, for E. W. Moore, to cost $1,000.

DR. STORK VISITED 142 HOMES IN JULY

Only 46 Marriages Recorded —Death Called 76 Citizens.

Vital statistics issued for the month of July show that the hot weather has affected the activities of Cupid, who registered only 46 on his marksmanship, in comparison with 76 marriages here in July, 1920.

However, Mr. Stork revelled in the warm breezes, calling at 142 homes in the city with 73 girls and 69 boys. Last year 132 were ushered in during July as prospective citizens of London, of which number 70 were eligible to become mayor, and 73 will fight for woman's rights.

The grim reaper harvested a crop of 76 this month, taking 41 females and 35 males. In July, 1920, there were 78 deaths registered in this city.

LATEST "AUTHENTIC" FISH STORY

A member of the local postal staff (who wishes his identity withheld for a few days because of political reasons) has been duly awarded the "beautifully-engraved fly-swatter" and "nice brown Derby" for bringing in the best fish story of the season.

Turning on the tap the other morning to get a drink of that stuff that flows under bridges he encountered, he states emphatically and repeatedly four baby minnows, and it was only his unusually clear, unmistakable vision that prevented him from swallowing the same, he adds.

Two or three of the postoffice staff place credence in the yarn.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Fort William, July 30.—Edward Gedery, said to be a native of Nova Scotia is dead, and Charles Goddart is in the hospital in Port Arthur, the result of being struck by lightning yesterday afternoon at Nipegon, while asleep in their tent.

Peach Leaves Antidote For Poison Ivy

So many requests have been made by readers of The Advertiser and other interested parties for a copy of the poison ivy remedy carried in the issue of July 9, 1921, that for the information and use of sufferers from this most unpleasant affliction it has been decided to republish the remedy herewith:

The Remedy.

Boil one pint of peach leaves and one quart of water for five minutes. When cool enough to put the hands in, wring cloths out and apply as hot as possible. Repeat until the itching is gone and the poison is dead.

LIBERAL LEADER

means of raising taxes, or what is spoken of as revenues, every person who buys any of the commodities on the list included in the customs tariff, will in all probability be paying some portion of the tax. Once this is rightly understood, every man and woman, and for that matter every boy or girl who has a dollar to spend will see why it is of immediate and direct interest to themselves to keep from the expenses of government, and to have in office only such a government as may be expected to exercise the most rigid economy in all matters of expenditure.

Direct as Well as Indirect Taxes.

When amounts to be raised by taxation are not very considerable, it may matter but little how they are raised, whether by direct or by indirect means. When, however, they are large, it is a matter of great consequence to everyone. There is this also to be remembered, that because part of the taxes may be raised by direct taxation, the burden of which falls mostly upon the wealthy and the well-to-do, it by no means follows that the tax rests there. The chances are a thousand to one the tax, or some part of it, will be passed on to someone else, and that the poor man or woman in the last analysis will bear more than his or her share. The wealthy landlord, for example, who has a big income tax to pay passes it on in a raise of rent to his tenants; if he is the owner of a coal mine, he may pass it on in the price of coal; if he is the owner of a railway, in the rate of fares and freight, and so on and so on. It is said that

"Big fleas have little fleas
Upon their backs to bite 'em;
And little fleas have lesser fleas,
And so ad infinitum."

It is much the same with the passing on of taxation from the fellows of big incomes to those of lesser ones:

"Big bugs have little bugs
To whom they pass their taxes;
And little bugs have lesser bugs
Who have to grind their axes."

It is well that all should remember this, because there are two things which no one, no matter how poor he may be, is likely ever to escape. One is the Day of Judgment, which, however, belongs to the hereafter; the other is taxation in one form or another, which is here and now every day in the week.

Women Specially Interested.

In previous years the men of the country were the only part of the population who were given right to vote; or, in other words, to decide who were to compose the government of the country. Today the women of the country, as well as the men, have the right. It is most important, therefore, that they, not less than the men, should clearly comprehend the problems of government, and in particular whatever relates to taxation, the means by which government is carried on. It may be that, because some women do not pay direct taxes to the state, many of them think that it matters little to them who are in control of the government, or how its affairs are administered. If, however, they once come to realize that all that we mean by the cost of living is bound up in the most intimate way with the expenditures of government, they will see how closely all questions of public expenditure and taxation relate themselves to their own happiness and opportunities.

A woman, for example, when she reads that the government is spending ten or twelve millions of dollars each year on the militia, and an equal amount on combined naval and merchant marine service, may think that this expenditure is too remote to be of much concern to her. But for a population of less than ten millions to spend over twenty millions on military, naval and merchant marine account, means an average of a little over $2 per individual. If she would stop to reflect, she would discover that, if it were possible to trace this payment to the one who finally makes it, she in all probability is paying her $2 on this account, if indeed not very much more. The money has to be raised either through direct or through indirect taxation. If raised in part out of large incomes, it will be passed on, in the price of commodities or services, to the persons of lesser incomes; if raised in the form of indirect taxation, it will be paid for out of the increased cost of commodities purchased.

When a woman purchases a new dress or hat, the kind of dress and hat she can purchase will depend on its price. She may not think, when asked more than she ever paid before, that the reason is that part of the price is going to keep up the outlays on the militia, the navy, and the merchant marine, but such is nevertheless the case. A man or a woman may read in the newspaper that Parliament has voted $165,000,000 on account of railway expenditures, and imagine that that amount being so large, it must necessarily come out of the large incomes. There could be no greater mistake. Every pound of coffee purchased, every pair of shoes bought, every loaf of bread, every kitchen utensil, every bit of house furnishing, practically everything in the way of food consumed, one way or another, is carrying in its price a part of that $165,000,000, and the man or woman who makes the purchase is helping to pay it.

Cost to Individuals.

How, then, when we come to consider the total expenditures of government. Fifty or sixty millions of dollars is a very large sum of money, but that is what our Parliament was called upon to vote at the last session as the amount to be spent during the present year. Assuming that our population was ten millions—which in all probability it is not—that would mean an outlay per individual of from $50 to $60, and an outlay per family of five of $250 to $300. One is almost frightened to contemplate what it would mean for a family of twelve; the figures are, however, $600 to $720.

These are the taxes which the Government at Ottawa alone are at present imposing upon the people of Canada. When we recall the circumstance that for the most part the entire population under 14 years of age is dependent on others over that age, and that most of the population under 21 years of age is dependent in some measure upon the men and women who are over 21 years of age, it will be seen that what is allotted to them in per capita tax should in reality have been placed upon those who are electors: so that the amount which each man and woman will necessarily be contributing to the state is considerably greater than the figures I have indicated.

If each single man and woman who is paying no direct tax whatever, and thinks he or she is thereby escaping taxation altogether, will stop to think what it means to be contributing not less than $50 or $60 per year in taxes, and each head of a family of five will think what it means to be contributing from $250 to $300 per year, whether they are paying income tax or not, he or she will see why, among other reasons, the manner in which the Government is carried on is to him or her a matter of immediate concern.

If you have clearly grasped what a customs tariff is, and how and by whom it is ultimately paid, we may go on to consider the different kinds of customs tariff, and also their possible and probable effects.

Not Honestly Stated.

Mr. Meighen, the prime minister, has been saying that there are only two kinds of tariff—a protective tariff and a free trade tariff. With this statement I take direct issue. I go further, and say that there is no such thing in the world as a free trade tariff, and that no one knows that better than Mr. Meighen himself. Why, then, does he say it? I can only surmise the reason. I regret to say that our prime minister is not always wholly candid; he has a perfect genius for twisting and turning and misrepresenting situations and facts, and like most contortionists is fond at times of displaying his ability in this fortunate direction. He does it always for a purpose. The acrobat in a circus performs his tricks to make people laugh. Mr. Meighen performs his in a manner which should make the nation weep. And this for the reason that his twists and turns are so wholly misleading, and are made, not with a view of playing upon the good nature of his audiences, but upon their prejudices, which he knows sometimes go very deep.

In this matter, for example, he knows that in many parts of the country, and especially in the cities and towns to which he is looking for support, there is a strong prejudice against free trade, and so he says the issue on the tariff is between protection and free trade; that he is for protection, and the Farmers and the Liberals are for free trade. I must leave the leaders of the Farmers' party to speak for themselves. So far as the Liberal party is concerned, I should like to say here, what I have said on every platform from which I have spoken in Canada on the subject of the tariff, and what I have said in Parliament on more than one occasion, that the Liberal party is not today and has not been since we have had a tariff in Canada for free trade. That the issue is not one between protection and free trade, or, as Mr. Meighen expresses it, a protective tariff and a free trade tariff. It is between a tariff imposed primarily for purposes of protection, and a tariff imposed primarily for purposes of revenue; between a protective tariff and a tariff for revenue if you will, but not between a protective tariff and no tariff at all, which is the meaning of free trade.

Existing Financial Requirements.

It is not honest to say that we can do away altogether with the customs tariff in Canada at the present time. If we do, how are we to raise the immense sums that are required to pay off our public debt, and meanwhile to pay the interest on it? How are we to raise the moneys required to meet the obligations growing out of the war, the pensions to returned soldiers, to those who are suffering from impairment of health or bodily injury, or to the dependents of those who were killed? How are we to finance out railways, and how meet the other expenses of government amounting, as I have said, for the present year to between five and six hundred million dollars, and this with the setting aside of nothing in payment of our public debt, which amounts to over two billions, three hundred and sixty-five millions of dollars? No, we cannot change from a system of indirect to one of direct taxation all in a day, even if that were to be deemed the wisest course. What might have been possible before the war, when the total expenditure of government was between one and a half hundred millions of dollars, is not so easily achieved today, where the total expenditures of government are four times that amount. The highest point public expenditure ever reached during the Liberal regime was $136,000,000 all told; that is to say, on ordinary and capital account, including subsidies to railways, $87,000,000 on ordinary expenditure alone. Today the figures stand at $563,000,000, with a public debt in addition which has jumped from $340,000,000 to over $2,350,000,000.

Let me report, existing financial requirements of the Dominion demand the maintenance of a customs tariff. This the Liberal party put forward as the first clause in a resolution on the tariff, which was moved in the House of Commons by the Hon. Mr. Fielding, and seconded by myself, and which received the unanimous support of the Liberal Opposition and of the Agrarian group during the debate on the budget in the session of Parliament which has just ended.

So long as you recognize a customs tariff, you cannot have free trade. The tariff is, as I have stated, a tax. It is a tax on imports, and a tax on import is an obstruction to trade. Free trade means the absence of all tax; it means what it says, complete freedom of trade, and the raising of revenues by some other method exclusively, by income tax, for example, and when the prime minister and his following say that the issue is between protection and free trade, they do not describe the situation aright. The minute a tax is imposed on trade, that moment trade is obstructed. The obstruction may be made to serve primarily one of two purposes: It may be made a means of raising revenue, or it may be made a means of affording protection to some industry within the country. Usually it serves both purposes in some measure. A tax imposed for purposes of protection may be so framed as incidentally to afford revenue, and a tax imposed for purposes of revenue may be so framed as incidentally to afford protection. The art of statesmanship in the imposition of taxation lies in making taxation as light as circumstances will permit, and in having regard for existing national needs in whatever taxation may be imposed.

The Real Issue.

The issue, so far as the Liberal party's attitude on the tariff is concerned, is not and never has been in this country, between free trade and protection; it has been between a tariff imposed primarily for purposes of protection, and a tariff imposed primarily for purposes of revenue.

The prime minister says it is either free trade or protection; that there are only the two grounds: there is no middle ground between them. That is in order to divert the public mind from the middle ground, and to centre it upon the one extreme or the other. Let me quote his exact words:

"I said a moment ago that any body of men framing a tariff must adopt one of two principles, the protective principle or the free trade principle, and I say that every public man owes it to the people to declare definitely on which of the two principles he stands."

That was a statement made at Winnipeg on October 25, 1920. You will observe that Mr. Meighen is choosing his own premises in presenting the alternative. He makes the assertion, and then he begins to argue from his own premises, but his premises are not right to begin with. He says:

"There is a free trade tariff, and there is a protective tariff."

He goes on to say:

"Is there a man or woman here who knows whether Mr. King stands for tariff on the free trade principle, or on the protection principle? You may keep on asking him, but you will never get an answer, yes or no."

You might as well expect the answer "Yes" or "No" from a man to whom you might address the query as to whether or not he had stopped beating his wife, when as a matter of fact he had always been kind to her. This is political trickery, not statesmanship.

Mr. Meighen knows very well that I will never give an answer "Yes" or "No" to a question based on promises that are entirely false. The question is not between protection and free trade. He says, in an issue between protection and free trade, there is no middle ground. In that I agree with him, if by protection he means tariff and by free trade absence of tariff. The one is the negation of the other. That issue may be fought out theoretically, but practically there is no such issue in this country, and never has been. Mr. Meighen says: "You can have two kinds of tariff and only two; you can have a tariff founded on one principle, that of protection, or another principle, that of free trade." That is where he misstates the case. You cannot have a tariff on the principle of free trade, for the principle of free trade means the absence of all tariff. What Mr. Meighen should have said, what he would have said had he not been trying deliberately to becloud the issue when speaking of the only possible alternatives of a tariff, is that there are but two kinds, a tariff based on the principle of protection, and a tariff based on the principle of revenue. Had he stated the alternative in these words, he would have correctly described the issue.

Will Consider All.

In dealing with taxation, whether it be the tariff or any other form of taxation, the aim should be to make taxation fall as lightly as possible upon the people of the country. The art of statesmanship as respects taxation, as respects everything else pertaining to public administration, consists in having as much regard for all the interests of the country as possible. If, when a Government is framing its tariff with one object or another in view, it does not take into consideration all the other objects of which account should be taken that are to be served, it will not be doing its full duty by the people whose representative it is. Unless Mr. Meighen, when framing a tariff for purposes of protection, is prepared to say that he will give no consideration to the revenue that is to be raised, he should not hurl a stone at us because in regard to a tariff designed primarily for revenue purposes, we declare that we intend to have regard for the interests and needs of the country and the industries in whatever direction these needs may present themselves. The prime minister has never once spoken of there being an issue between a tariff primarily for revenue and a tariff primarily for protection. He has tried to make an issue between free trade and protection. Speaking of free trade or protection, and omitting altogether reference to a tariff primarily for protection or a tariff primarily for revenue, which must be as familiar to him as it is to any person in the country, he has shown that he has been trying to draw away the minds of the people from the real issue and cause them to give him their support on something which is not the issue at all.

Traditional Liberal Victory.

The position which I have just stated has been the position the Liberal party has all along taken in regard to the tariff. In the last speech he delivered on the budget before the war, the Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated in the clearest possible terms the position of the Liberal party on the tariff. Here are Sir Wilfrid Laurier's words. They will be found in the Hansard debates of the House of Commons, of April 23, 1914, page 2844.

"We have always contended, that the policy best suited to this country is not a protective tariff, but a customs tariff for revenue purposes."

There is the statement of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. There is the statement of the Liberal party in the matter of the tariff. That is where Sir Wilfrid Laurier stood; that is where I stand; and that is where I shall continue to stand irrespective of all the twists and turns the prime minister may seek to make.

If I may be permitted to say so, the prime minister has gone out of his way to misrepresent to the public the attitude of the Liberal party on the tariff, and to misrepresent me personally from one end of the country to the other. He has led the way in having his press and his following in Parliament and the country assert that I stood in one place for one thing, and in another for another; that I particularly had created throughout the country the impression that I was trying to be all things to all men. I might quote many of his utterances. I shall mention only one or two. Mr. Meighen is reported to have said, in addressing a meeting of the ladies at the Women's Liberal-Conservative Association at Toronto on April 16 of this very year:

"In Eastern Canada, the Opposition has advocated moderate protection, and in Western Canada free trade. Everything their leaders had spoken had bound them to free trade."

Then at a meeting of the Conservative Club in Toronto, on the same day, the prime minister is reported in the Toronto Mail and Empire as having said:

"But is there anyone who knows where the Hon. Mackenzie King stands? Mr. King was an advocate of ruthless tariff reduction out west, but in the east he stood for the adequate protection of industry."

So he told the same story both to the ladies and to the men, and yet in both cases he must have known that what he was saying was not true.

Challenges Meighen.

I challenged the right honorable the prime minister on the floor of Parliament to point to any utterance of mine in the west that can possibly be understood as meaning that I stood for free trade, or, as he in a more modified form expressed it, ruthless tariff reduction. He was unable to accept the challenge, and yet he has never retracted his words. It is a very easy thing to misrepresent an opponent. It is quite another thing to undo the evils of misrepresentation. I regret to say that I fear one can look as little for chivalry as for truth from the prime minister where it serves his purpose to take a different attitude.

The speeches I made through the Canadian west last year were made in the hearing of thousands of persons; they were reported very fully in the western papers, and in dispatches to the east; they were made within the hearing of many persons from this province and from Eastern Canada; and I challenge anyone to point to a single sentence in all that I have said which will afford a shadow of justification for allegations of the kind that have been wilfully made. I have looked through the press reports of the different speeches I made in the different cities, and I find that every one of them on this question of the tariff tallies, verbatim et literatim, with the policy of the Liberal party as I stated it in the House of Commons, both at the last session and the session previous.

Present Liberal Position.

That there may be no misunderstanding as to the position I took on the tariff during the western trip last fall, that there may be no misunderstanding as to the position I took on the tariff when I spoke in the Maritime Provinces a little over a year ago, that there may be no misunderstanding of my present attitude on the tariff, may I repeat what I said in a speech which I delivered in the city of Toronto on Saturday, August 14, of last year, and which will be found reported on the front page of the Toronto Globe of the Monday following. The report there contained is, to all intents and purposes, identical with the presentation of the Liberal attitude on the tariff as made at every meeting at which I have spoken on the tariff since the Liberal convention of August, 1919. It is in all essential particulars true to the Liberal platform as laid down at that convention, and is absolutely in accord with the aim of the Liberal party on fiscal policy as set forth in the resolutions we have moved in Parliament since that time. I challenge any man or woman in this country to show that I have anywhere, at any time, swerved from the views and opinions and statement of policy as set forth in that report, which is both clear and comprehensive. The Globe says:

"Speaking on the all-important tariff question at the Liberal picnic Saturday, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, said:

"'We believe that the time has come, indeed, that it is already long past, when a downward revision of the tariff is necessary. In this revision we believe that there should be substantial reductions of the duties on the necessaries of life; in other words, on those articles which go to make up the food, the clothing, the shelter of the Canadian people; that certain specific articles required for the purposes of consumption and other articles essential to production should be placed upon the free list, and that in regard to the implements of production in the basic industries of agriculture, mining, lumbering and fishing there should also be a substantial reduction of duties. It is not a question of free trade or protection.

"'In revising the tariff to this end care will be taken of the position and needs of all the industries in our country, but such tariff as may be necessary in this connection will be, under Liberal policy, a tariff for consumers and producers, and not a tariff to further the interests of combines, monopolies, or of any special or privileged classes.

"'It is not honest to say that we can do away with the tariff. We can revise it, and that is the policy of the Liberal party. And I shall say in regard to tariff policies exactly the same in the city of Toronto as I shall say in the western provinces. I have not one message for the city and another message for the country—one message for the employer and another for the employee.'"

Tariff Revision Downwards.

You will observe the Liberal policy is a policy of tariff revision, of revision downwards, not upwards, of revision in the interests of producers and consumers, not of special interests and privileged classes.

With the Liberal party, the main concern respecting the tariff is not free trade or protection; it is revenue; it is the needs and well-being of the home, and the development of our industries in such manner as is likely to serve best the interests of the Canadian people. I want to emphasize the fact that if called upon, as I believe we will be, to revise the tariff, in any revision we may make, it will be the home and its needs that will receive first consideration; that in any readjustment of the tariff that may take place, regard will be had to existing conditions of trade, and changes made in such manner as will cause the least possible disturbance of business. As respects the tariff, as with everything else of national importance, the Liberal party believes in proceeding along evolutionary, not along revolutionary, lines.

This brings me to the reason why, as respects the tariff, we, as Liberals, stand on the principle of a tariff primarily for revenue, rather than on the principle of a tariff primarily for protection. We believe that a tariff primarily for protection is certain to be a tariff for special interests, whereas a tariff primarily for revenue comes as near as any tariff can to being a tariff for the people.

Immediate Tariff Revision.

Mr. Meighen and his friends profess to be in favor of a revision of the tariff. Over and over again, the Government, but Sir Robert Borden and Mr. Meighen, have emphasized the need for revision. Sir Thomas White, when minister of finance, in his budget speech of June 5, 1919, said that a general revision was "long overdue," but owing to the war unavoidably overdue. It was urged that, because of the unsettled condition of international trade, still hampered by war restrictions and prohibitions, and by exchange conditions, it would not be practicable to make a sound general revision of the tariff at that time. The hope, however, was expressed that within a year conditions would have become so stabilized as to permit of a general revision of the tariff. The finance minister urged that, preceding the revision, a thorough inquiry should be conducted by the minister of finance and two or more of his colleagues, and gave it as his view that this inquiry might well be commenced about the autumn of that year. It was stated that the result of such an inquiry should be "a body of information which would enable the Government to effect a general revision of the tariff fair to all parts of the community and effectually promoting the national welfare of Canada." This pronouncement served the purpose of the avoidance of any tariff revision during the session of 1919.

Delays in Carrying Out Revision.

The autumn of 1919 came and went, but the inquiry foreshadowed for the fall of 1919 was not proceeded with. This occasioned a second official declaration. It was made, not by Sir Thomas White, but by his successor in office, the present minister of finance, Sir Henry Drayton. In a remarkable utterance, issued in December of that year, not only the time of general revision, but the time also of the inquiry which was to precede it, was further postponed. It was urged that international and economic conditions were in many respects worse than they were six months previous, or at any time during the war. Whilst this might serve as an excuse, if not as a reason, for delaying the general revision, it was evidently recognized that it would not serve with like effectiveness as a reason for abandoning the promised general inquiry which was to precede it. Accordingly the Government hit upon the rather unprecedented device of reversing the order of procedure with respect to inquiry, and instead of having the ministers confer with consumers and producers in a series of public hearings throughout the Dominion, announced its intention of having interested parties present their views and opinions in the form of written statements, which could be "systematically analyzed and classified for the purpose of making them a basis of general public inquiry to be held throughout the country."

The written statements were made to do duty for the session of 1920. Parliament was informed, in the budget speech of May 18 of that year, that though unfortunately trade and economic conditions were yet unstable, the tariff investigation had commenced, and public sittings would be held throughout Canada after prorogation. The minister of finance went further than promising the prosecution of the inquiry; he told the House that to make the inquiry thorough the department of finance would have the assistance of experts and other advisers, and he went on to say, "I am further of the opinion that not only should the investigation proceed, but that information should now be given of the principles and policies of the Government in the light of which effect will be given in the tariff revision to follow to the evidence and facts developed in the inquiry."

Then followed a somewhat pretentious and high-sounding enumeration of principles and policies, proceeded by the declaration, "Our policy calls for a thorough revision of the tariff," and concluding with a reiteration of the affirmation that "a general revision of the Canadian tariff based upon the foregoing consideration was due." This statement of the Hon. the Minister of Finance was limited only by this condition that the revision should not be undertaken "until a thorough inquiry is made to ascertain the essential facts upon which the tariff provisions must necessarily be based."

Long and Expensive Inquiry.

That brought us to the end of the session of 1920. Before the summer of 1920 was over the minister of finance and certain of his colleagues, together with their experts and other advisers, entered upon the public sittings of the investigation, which was announced as having commenced when the statements of consumers and producers were called for. Across this continent, from ocean to ocean, at most of the important centers throughout the Dominion, and at great expense to the country, the committee of the cabinet conducted its hearings. Nothing was omitted in the way of press propaganda to have it appear that the committee was doing a great public work. When the public hearings were over, the country was given to understand that the delay in the summoning of Parliament was due to the time required by the committee to get its information in shape for the tariff revision, which was to be the main feature of the present session. Finally, on February 14, Parliament reassembled, and with the opening of Parliament came the pronouncement, in the speech from the throne, respecting tariff revision.

Revision Promised for Session.

"My advisers," said his excellency, "are convinced of the necessity for revision of the customs tariff." There was no uncertainty there. "Conviction" and "necessity" are strong words, and both find a place in this terse and emphatic sentence. His excellency continued: "In order to secure the most complete information a committee has conducted an extensive and thorough inquiry." Here again were clear and emphatic words. Not only had the inquiry been conducted, but the inquiry had been extensive and thorough. The pronouncement continued: "The hearings necessary for this purpose have now been completed, and the conclusions founded thereon will be submitted to you in due course." It is unnecessary to quote further. No declaration could be clearer. It only remained for the budget to be brought down for the House to enter upon the important work of the session.

What was our surprise, and the surprise of the country, when on Monday, the 9th of June, the minister of finance, in presenting his budget to the House, instead of submitting the conclusions founded upon the hearings of the committee of investigation, and outlining the measure of revision of the customs tariff promised by His Excellency in the speech from the throne, calmly informed the House that it was "not proposed to put into effect now a general revision of the tariff schedules."

Government Not a Free Agent.

But one of two alternatives is possible; either the Government, despite all its professions, had never had any real intention of revising the tariff; or, having such an intention, it was frustrated in the carrying out of its intention the moment advance had been made to the point where definite action became necessary. It matters very little which of these alternatives we take; the one really significant fact is apparent, the Government was not a free agent, in the matter of either intention or action. It is not a free agent at the present time. Its members in truth do not constitute the real Government of Canada today. In word and act, it is but the visible expression of influence and forces which dictate the policies, aye and in large measure are controlling the destinies of Canada today—forces and influences which constitute the real though the invisible Government of this Dominion.

The failure of the Government, at this time of high living costs, and much needed increase of production, to give any relief from burdensome taxation to either consumers or producers, is not due, as professed, to any legislation of the United States. The stock in trade argument of the Tory party has all along been that in tariff legislation we should act altogether independently of the United States. It is due to a deliberate and determined effort to thwart trade and to restrict competition in every direction, with the Mother Country and our sister dominions even more than with the United States, in order that a few wealthy men and their immediate friends and associates may reap still larger fortunes through obtaining, not a much-needed market, as they would have us believe, but a monopoly of the Canadian market, in addition to markets abroad secured for them through government action in a variety of directions and at enormous expense to the taxpayers of this country.

Power of Interests.

I have referred to the combined power of a few special interests as constituting the real, albeit an invisible, government, compared with which the government we see personified in Mr. Meighen and his associates is but form and shadow. Perhaps the time would be well spent if we paused for a moment to look behind the shadow and discern what we can of the reality. A moment's reflection will enable us to see how this organized power came into being, and how menacing its existence is to the social and industrial well-being of our country.

I need not remind you that for four years the energies of this country, the energies of its government, of its industries, as well as of its people, were strained to the one herculean task, the winning of the war. It was inevitable that during that period there should be the closest kind of association between certain financial, manufacturing, transportation, and distributing interests, and between these several interests of the government and its members. That association between the more active and prominent members of both groups was interrupted, and indeed necessarily intimate, over the greater part of the entire period. They were linked the one to the other by the most powerful bonds. There was the bond of disinterested public service at the moment of the greatest crisis in the world's affairs, and there was the bond, wholly different in character it is true, but to some individuals even more powerful, of personal and private self-interest at a moment of opportunity such as had presented itself but once in the history of the world.

Huge Sum Loaned.

During those four years, a sum amounting to something like two billions of dollars was loaned by the country to the Government, and under Government direction was disbursed among these financial, manufacturing, transportation ad distributing interests. The Government was permitted a free hand; in the loans thus subscribed, the sacrifices present or future were never questioned; in the spending of these vast sums little or no check was exercised by Parliament; orders-in-council, at the caprice of the ministry, were permitted to replace legislative enactments of both houses of parliament. It was an era of unparalleled opportunity both for the exercise of autocratic power and for the bestowal of favors. Strange indeed it would be had not the closest kind of relationship been formed between the controlling factors on both aides. That they were so formed, every Canadian citizen is well aware.

Self-Interest Prompts Combination After the War.

With the termination of the war and the demobilization of the military forces this era of unlimited expenditures and unparalleled contracting came to an end. Not, however, the association between the financial, manufacturing, transportation and distributing interests, among themselves or with the

Who Has Diabetes?

Here Is the Wonderful News!

"I suffered with diabetes five years," says Mrs. C. Maier of Brooklyn. "A restricted diet following doctor's instructions brought my weight down to 87 pounds. I was a physical wreck. But now I am doing all of my housework again, gained in weight and feel that life is worth living."

Like thousands of sufferers from this dread disease, Mrs. Maier had been taking treatments in accordance with the old, false theory of restricted diet, starving her body, denying herself proper food and gradually becoming so weak, thin and nervous she could not stand on her feet. But one day she heard of Mr. Richartz, whose free book, "Eat and Get Well," is doing so much for diabetics.

This book Mr. Richartz mails free to sufferers from diabetes. It tells all about "Eksip," the wonderful preparation which enables you to eat all the food you need while getting well, completely exploding the old theory of "starve yourself or die."

If you suffer from or know of anyone afflicted with diabetes, send for this free book, "Eat and Get Well." It will be sent to all who write, absolutely free. Address, M. Richartz, 220 W. 42nd street, R-78, New York, N. Y. b

SOCIAL SERVICE COUNCIL TO AID IN FINDING WORK

Unemployed Men Will Be Urged To Go On Farms.

The official report of the special committee of the Social Service Council, which met some days ago to discuss the probable unemployment situation the coming winter, was furnished to The Advertiser today as follows:

The Social Service Council has assigned to a special committee the task of endeavoring to secure employment for those in need of it.

Although this city is probably more favorably situated in respect to unemployment than other large centres of the Dominion, there are at the present time many who wish to get work and are unable to do so. Unless there is a sudden and rather unexpected revival of business, this condition of affairs is not likely to improve, and there may be still greater scarcity of work before next spring.

Work on Farms.

Work, while scarce in the city, is very plentiful on the farms and hundreds of able-bodied men might find employment for many months.

This statement is now made public by the committee referred to, and is addressed to those who wish to look into the matter with a view to securing employment during the summer and fall, and to save something towards the winter months, when there will probably be even less to do. The rush work of harvesting is nearly over, but there is and will be a heavy demand, particularly for single men, to help the farmers at threshing, silo filling, and the harvesting of root crops, etc., during the next two months.

Prices Are Down.

Prices of the farm products have decreased to such an extent that the farmer is unable to pay as high wages as formerly. The price of his cattle, for example, has been reduced from 15c to 7c a pound; wheat from $2.65 to $1.40 to $1.50 a bushel; butter from 70c to 35c; eggs, 60c to 31c or 32c. These are current prices paid to the farmers in the country, and must not be confused with the prices asked on the city market by the farmers and others who bring the produce practically to the door of the citizens of London, and naturally expect remuneration for the time expended in doing so. Despite these conditions, many farmers are willing to go as far as possible to secure willing help. Wages for experienced farm help run, at present, from $30 to $40 a month with board, partly experienced $20 to $30 a month with board, and inexperienced help from $15 to $20 a month with board. Work can be obtained within 25 miles of the city.

For Married Men.

The case of married men, with or without families, has also had consideration, and the difficulty of supporting a family in town while the man goes on the farm is fully realized. To meet such a case, efforts will be made to secure, with the help of the farmers, a small house or cottage in the country or country village in districts where the man can secure plenty of work by hiring out to the farmers. This would give him a certain independence, allowing him to work for the best wage he could secure, and would certainly be better than living without employment in town.

Single Men for Farms.

By arrangement with the local representative of the immigration and colonization department of the Provincial Government, an effort will be made to place those who are willing to do their part in relieving the situation by seeking farm employment. It is pointed out that the effect of a large number of single men securing work on the farms would greatly increase the chances for married men, with wives and families to support, to secure work in the city. Applications will be received between the hours of 10 and 12 and 2 to 4 at the office of the Social Service Council, Bank of Toronto Building.

City Briefs

C. OF C. SECRETARY ON HOLIDAYS.—Secretary Gordon Philip of the local Chamber of Commerce left today for Port Frank, where he will spend a two-weeks' vacation.

G. T. R. CLERKS COMBINE.—A combined picnic of the clerks of the freight department and the superintendent's office of the G. T. R., will be held in Springbank on Saturday, August 6, it was announced today.

CARMEN TO ENJOY OUTING.—It is expected that fully 2,000 employees of the local G. T. R. carsnops, their wives, families and friends, will picnic at Springbank today. The picnickers will go to the park by specia cars. A long list of sports will be a feature of the outing.

FISHING PARTY.—Three motor cars left early this morning carrying a party of Londoners who will spend ten days fishing in the vicinity of Georgian Bay. The party was made up of Messrs. J. H. Aldis, J. H. Childs, F. B. Kelborne, N. S. Thompson, W. Scott, W. Pearson, Dr. Childs and Dr. Luney.

TWO BICYCLES STOLEN.—Walter Matron, 230 Talbot street, has reported to the police the theft of his bicycle, a Massey-Harris, No. 662894, from the rear of the Scott-Chamberlain shoe factory Thursday at noon. On Wednesday someone took a bicycle belonging to J. H. Hitchins from in front of the Hobbs wholesale, and left another one in its place. The exchange can be made at the police station, detectives say.

MORE WAGE CUTS ANNOUNCED.—Several hundred employees of the transportation department of the C. P. R., including clerks, freight handlers, watchmen, messenger boys and others in many similar positions, will be affected by orders received Friday announcing a wage cut. The reductions are practically the same as those which were put into effect on the G. T. R. earlier in the week, and similar to all other cuts. They will be retroactive to July 16 on a tentative agreement.

SECOND INSTALLMENT OF TAXES.—Tax Collector Turner and his staff at the city hall are working overtime today collecting the second installment of city taxes. Late comers lined up in a long queue before the wicket today in an effort to pay up before the time limit expires. The office will be open this evening to accommodate property owners. "We are rushed today," City Treasurer James Bell informed The Advertiser this morning. "We expect to take in between $250,000 and $300,000 in this installment."

CHANCE TO THINK IT OVER.—Deputy Magistrate P. H. Bartlett remanded a 19-year-old drunk in police court this morning in order to give him time to think where he got his liquor. He stated that a man whom he knew as "Shorty," and who lived on Wellington street south of the G. T. R. tracks, gave it to him. As the court was of the opinion that he knew who the party was, he remanded him for a week. The Ontario temperance act provides that a person refusing to disclose where they got the liquor can be confined in jail for three months or until such time as they tell.

BARR FAMILY REUNION.—A very happy reunion of the Barr family was held at Springbank Park on Thursday, July 28. Relatives were present from Alberta, Detroit, Merlin, Aylmer, Ingersoll, Salford, Putnam, Crumlin, Dorchester, Mossley and London. A splendid dinner and supper, provided by the ladies, was enjoyed. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, B. R. Barr, Dorchester; secretary-treasurer, Daisy Barr, London; ladies' committee, Mrs. B. R. Barr, Mrs. W. Topham, Mrs. Margaret Barr; men's committee, J. H. Barr, A. H. Treadwell, A. J. Barr.

PYTHIANS TO PICNIC. — The Knights of Pythias' meeting on Thursday night completed arrangements for the big Pythian picnic to be held at Springbank next Saturday, under the auspices of the local knights and the recently organized lodge of Pythian sisters. It is expected that 500 will attend from Stratford, St. Thomas, Woodstock, Strathroy and Sarnia. The following is the personnel of the committee in charge: Mr. Fysh, chairman; Mrs. McLean, secretary-treasurer; Mr. Tinsley and Mrs. Sharp, transportation committee; Mrs. Tinsley and Mr. Garlick, refreshments; Mrs. Parks and Mrs. Foster, sports; Mr. Murray, judge.

DR. CARNINE'S LAST SUNDAY.—Sunday in First Methodist Church the Rev. Dr. Carnine will preach in the morning on "Does the World Grow Better or Worse?" and in the evening, "Love Minus Sentiment." This will be the final Sunday here for Dr. Carnine, who with Mrs. Carnine and Miss Carnine will leave early in the week for Ohio, en route to St. Petersburg, Florida, their home. That the church may be "comfortable" for hearing a special motor and plant have been installed by which the air in the church building will be ice-cooled and completely changed every fifteen minutes throughout the services, practically each member of the congregation being reached individually by the fresh and cool atmosphere. The "coolest spot in London."

BIG FIELD DAY FOR CHILDREN IS BEING ARRANGED

Boys' League Baseball Games and Folk Dances by Girls.

A monster field day will be staged in Tecumseh Park by children of this city on August 24, if arrangements can be satisfactorily made for these grounds on that date. Finals of league games will be played by the boys, while the girls will give folk dances, and demonstrations of playgrounds work for the year will be given with parents of the city as spectators.

On August 20 an aquatic meet for the youth of London will be staged in the Thames street sulphur baths. Swimming races will be staged for boys with breast strokes and swimming on back included on the program. An event of interest will be the long diving contest, and fancy diving wil also be demonstrated with each contestant limited to five stunts.

Aquatic events for girls will also be staged on this date. Valuable orizes will be donated for the winners at this meet.

AERIAL FIRE PATROL.

Victoria, B. C., July 30.—To protect valuable timber on Vancouver Island and along the coast from fires started by campers and motoring parties, the Provincial Government has instituted an aerial week-end fire prevention patrol. A forest protection service seaplane from Vancouver will make a scouting tour of the whole coast every Sunday.

Firemen Attempt Rescue

The loud calls and meowing of a cat perched high on top of a roof of a downtown building attracted the attention of a kind-hearted woman about 8:30 o'clock last night. She promptly called George Tustin, local Humane Society inspector, who, in turn, called on the fire department to rescue pussy from her perilous position.

The hook-and-ladder wagon from No. 1 station was dispatched to the scene of excitement, but when the firemen had scaled the wall and arrived on the roof pussy made her escape by jumping into an open skylight.

MOTORISTS PROTEST CONSTANT 'TRAPPING' BY COUNTY POLICE

Claim Made That Fee System Is Cause of Trouble.

FINES EXCESSIVE

Assert Victims of Constable's Sabbath Day Activities.

From the whole of Western Ontario come reports that certain Middlesex county constables are making a fairly good living at the expense of London and district motorists. Two sections of the motor vehicle act of Ontario, pertaining to speeding, are said to be the medium through which this money is secured. Motorists are up in arms over the matter, and Dr. Hugh A. Stevenson, M.L.A. for London, has promised to take the matter direct to the powers-that-be at Toronto.

It has been claimed that two or three constables in particular have been trapping auto drivers wholesale at the intersection of the Wellington road and Brick street. It has even been rumored that these constables issued almost one hundred summonses as a result of work on a certain Sabbath Day. As it is a well-known fact that very few of the motorists fight these cases, choosing to pay the fine rather than lose time from their business, and as county constables get at the very least $1—and in many cases more money—as their share of the costs when an M. V. A. conviction is secured, it will be readily seen that if the figures above quoted are correct, it was a profitable Lord's Day.

Much of the blame for this alleged indiscriminate trapping of car owners lies at the door of the county fee system, and it is argued that if the constables were on a regular salary and only received 50 cents as witness fee for their work in court, many autoists would be $10 or more richer.

Comparison of the city and the county system shows this: In the city, when a man is convicted of speeding his total payment, including costs, rarely exceeds $6.85, and $5 of this is the fine; while in the county it casts as high as $18 to "give her gas."

There are numerous police traps in the county, Wellington and Brick street being the locality where the most victims are secured. At Lobo village, where the Sarnia road and the road to Grand Bend join, is another speed trap. Other police traps are reported at St. Johns village, on a provincial road, and on the Governor's road. On these two roads the county police are not, it is claimed, allowed to interfere, the provincial officer being in charge. Recently a number of motorists from Westminster Township called at the London police department with summonses, asking for directions as to settling, and it was found that they had been ordered to attend court in St. Johns.

Many motorists have been summoned for crossing the intersection of the Wellington road and Brick street at a greater rate of speed than 12½ miles an hour. The motor vehicle act states that an auto must not be driven at a greater rate of speed than this at intersections, and that the general speed rate in the counties is 25 miles an hour.

One prominent county official contends that in the meaning of the act a car is only to be slackened to a speed of 12½ miles an hour at an intersection when the corners are such that the driver cannot see a vehicle coming on the road that intersects the road on which he is driving. No such condition exists at this particular intersection, he contends.

Recently a public service commission was formed to recommend changes in the administration of justice. It is commonly agreed that among the changes that are to be made is the placing of county constables on a salary instead of remunerating them by fees.

Another charge that has been made and unofficially confirmed is that in some instances constables are receiving more mileage fees than they should. As the result of investigation in Elgin County, it was discovered that if a constable has several persons summoned to appear in court, that he is only allowed to collect mileage once for the one day's court attendance. The practice was stopped there. One official stated that Squire W. H. Chittick also stopped the practice of payment of mileage on each case before the court.

The method said to be used to get persons who do not slow down to a snail's pace when crossing the Brick street and Wellington road trap is to place two pieces of paper on each side of the road, and then put the stopwatch on the auto when it is within fifteen feet of the first paper, and take the watch off after it has gone fifteen feet beyond the second paper. Then the rate is figured out by using the time the watch records and the distance between the two papers plus the extra thirty feet.

If the constables received a straight salary and only 50 cents for court attendance in these cases, would they be so zealous? ask local motorists.

TO DEVELOP MANY ATHLETES, NOT JUST FEW STARS—BROCK

Director of the Public Playgrounds Preparing Several Schedules.

With the baseball schedule well under way, G. Mel Brock, chief supervisor of public playgrounds, announces that he is working on plans for soccer, basketball and volleyball leagues, which will be inaugurated in city playgrounds at once. Owing to lack of space in the various playgrounds, soccer rules are being altered, with grounds of smaller size, and a decreased number of players on each side. The schedules are being drawn up now.

Boys attending the larger playgrounds will not be allowed to play in two leagues, the supervisors keeping in mind the idea of obtaining as many as possible youthful participants and developing many athletes instead of a few stars.

Mr. Brock desires the names of any young men familiar with the rules of baseball who will agree to umpire baseball games one or two evenings per week. The games are played with indoor ball, and he has experienced difficulty in obtaining sufficient umpires to work out his scheduled games.

WADING POPULAR SPORT FOR KIDDIES AT QUEEN'S PARK

With the lilies in the pond at Queen's Park removed to Springbank, children of this district are now provided with a 70-foot wading pool, hundreds swarming about in it Friday afternoon. There were girls and boys of almost every size, shape, age and hue, in the swim, there being no restrictions excepting that each is required to come properly attired, be under the age of 15 years, and observe proper conduct.

The water in the pond is 18 inches in depth, and a fine spray is played upon kiddies congregating in the center, near the fountain. The bathing is supervised, and has proven a decided success.

While no dressing quarters have been provided, it is expected that a portion of one of the Western Fair buildings will be utilized by the children next week, arrangements being now under way.

CITY PARKS

the latter donated to the city recently by Dr. D. H. Arnott.

Many Goldfish.

In addition to the lilies in the pond, an occasional flash reveals the fact that goldfish swim about in its cooling depths, these members of the finny tribe wintering in warm quarters at Springbank each year. In contrast, congregated on the benches about the pond, may be seen a group of old men, known as "railbirds," who gather daily, and settle the vital affairs of the world, with a draw in the vote usually predominating.

Acalypha is the most extensively-used plant in the "carpet bed" gardens throughout Victoria Park. The trees at this breathing spot are numerous, in fact, so numerous that in order to prevent crowding of beautiful rare ones many sturdy maples will be removed in the near future. In addition too much shade prevents the grass from properly developing.

Remove 40 Trees.

It is pointed out that last winter 40 trees were removed from Victoria Park without the citizens noting the difference made, so dense is the foliage here. The signs announcing the names of all rare trees were donated to the city a few years ago by F. E. Leonard.

New lamp-posts added to the park have improved night conditions, eleven additional standards being provided. A new fountain would greatly assist in beautifying the park, the one at the north end, donated years ago by the late Col. Lewis, at one time a beautiful structure, has now so greatly deteriorated that its period of usefulness has expired. At the same time a new bandstand to replace the existing ruins is required to keep this park up to its usual standard.

New Iris.

Superintendent Graham announces that several new varieties of iris are on view in the Victoria gardens, which are three weeks ahead of their usual schedule, and will be more beautiful in his opinion early in August. These specimens of iris were recently imported from France by the public utilities.

They are cared for along with other delicate plants at the city greenhouses, situated on the Pipe Line road, en route to Springbank. A section of these greenhouses is electrically heated during off peak hours. Here may be seen hundreds of bulbs for next year's gardens, and a similar number of young plants grown as seedlings. Sunken pits provide a place for them to develop in warmth in early spring.

Banana Plants.

In the greenhouse two large Abysinnian banana plants and 600 hollyhocks are on display ready for city parks next spring.

On property adjoining the greenhouses corn and roots are grown by city employees to feed the animals at the Springbank zoo. A modern tree nursery is also maintained nearby.

Supervisor Graham announces that in the future a pretty scenic entrance to Springbank will be opened approximately one-quarter mile east of the present entrance. Trimming and removal of a few trees to widen the road now laid out is necessary ere this can be accomplished, and lack of funds may prevent the new road being completed this season.

At Springbank, near the pump house, new backstops have been erected for the tennis court, which is growing in popularity.

Zoo's Population.

Charles McConnell, on duty at the Zoo, is proud of his sixty odd charges, including four buffalo, eight deer, five bears, one fox, two seals, two beavers, seven raccoons, one falcon, two buzzards owls, 24 water fowl and innumerable rabibts.

Recent arrivals include a young deer, twins of the same species, four raccoons, of which two have died, a pair of seals, guinea fowl and a pair of Australian black swans. The happy family is in good health and proves very interesting to the many daily visitors.

Rock Gardens.

The rock gardens west of the zoo at Springbank vie with it as an attraction, these products of the parks staff being beautiful at the present time, as are also the other flower beds, resplendent with flowers of all species, with canna lilies predominating. The rock gardens have many different plant families represented in their varied make-up, and a vehicle road soon to be constructed around it will permit the motorist to admire its wealth of beauty without leaving his car.

New lavatories are also in course of construction a stone's throw from these gardens, thus providing additional conveniences to the patrons of Springbank. These lavatories will be of the most modern type and will be completed next month.

At Queen's Park, two new tennis courts have been completed, while the lily pond, nowe serves as a wading pool for the children of the district, who after reveling in the waters "cannot see it as a lily pond from now on."

Other Parks.

Other parks maintained by the public utilities include a section at Hamilton road and Trafalgar streets, a similar strip of land at Maitland street and Hamilton road, and the federal square property at Wellington and Dundas streets, where paths have recently been cut, and benches placed near the sidewalk, to serve the tired pedestrian.

It is pointed out that all the beauty of Victoria Park, Springbank and others with maintenance, and salaries of gardoners and other labor, is done for $30,000 per annum. This amount must also cover the cost of tree trimming in all parts of the city every fall, maintenance of civic greenhouses and nursery, and upkeep of the Springbank zoo.

Maintain Playgrounds.

Notwithstanding this severe strain on the funds they have been stretched out to cover the cost of maintaining eight city playgrounds, two bathing camps, and the sulphur baths at Thames street, with salaries for all supervisors deducted from the $30,000.

Hence there is not much left when all these items are met, and although Superintendent Graham has several excellent ideas under consideration for further beautification of London and its parks he can do nothing because funds are limited. Better luck next year is the slogan of the public utilities commission members, who, aided by an efficient parks staff, aim to surpass their good work in 1922.

STEAMER FAST ON ROCKS.

Sydney, N. S., July 30.—The Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company's steamer Volunda, which went ashore at Neil's Harbor point some 60 miles north of Sydney, early yesterday while en route from Sydney to Montreal, is lying on a smooth rock bed between two rock ridges, with deep water right astern, according to information received here. It is considered that there is small possibility of getting the vessel off. She lies on her side and has six feet of water in her hold.

KI-Y CAMP BREAKS UP AT SAGE FARM SATURDAY MORNING

Soldiers' Sons Return to City After Delightful Free Vacation.

The Ki-Y camp for soldiers' sons at Sage's farm broke up last night, although the boys did not return to the city until early this morning.

Last night being the ending of the camp, the boys all lay awake until a late hour, expecting reciprocating raids on tents, but nothing exciting happened, except that the camp doctor's supply of iodine was found to be mysteriously missing, and was not discovered until this morning, when the boys started making their first appearance. Several discovered the fluid rubbed on their faces.

The final camp fire was lit last night and the usual camp fire songs and good-night services were led by Lloyd M. Houlding of the "Y." Farewell speeches were made by L. M. Houlding, W. Casson, A. Horwood and Mr. Sage. Upon services being concluded the boys gave three hearty chers and a royal and rousing tiger for Mr. Sage for the kindness he has shown them during their stay there, and for the use of the grounds free of charge.

Last evening the Ki-Y ball team defeated the Fanshawe team with a score of 8 to 3.

On Friday afternoon the boys held a hike from the camp along the river bank as far as the Asylum sideroad. On the way out they stopped at a farmer's house with a view to purchasing some milk, but there was none to be had. Coming back, they were halted by the farmer and taken into his house, where two large pails of milk and a large supply of fresh bread and butter was waiting for them. There was no stopping them then until the last crumb was devoured by these seemingly starving boys. But everyone knows there is no limit to the food which a boy can make disappear.

The lads were very reluctant to leave the camp, but were kept in good spirit by the fact that next year they will have a full month instead of two weeks.

The lads were brought into the city on trucks provided by the members of the Kiwanis Club.

RUSSIANS AGREE TO ACCEPT AID OF AMERICANS

Offer of Herbert Hoover Will Be Put Into Effect at Once.

Riga, July 30.—The offer of Herbert Hoover to aid Russia in relieving suffering due to famine on condition that all United States citizens now held as prisoners in Russia be released, has been accepted by the Rusian authorities, who suggest immediate negotiations in order to realize speedy assistance, according to a dispatch from the Rosta News Agency of Moscow, received here today.

WORLD FAMOUS GAME OF PASSING THE BUCK

Ald. Wenige's Comment On Reply From Attorney-General's Dept.

Ald. G. A. Wenige, who, to settle a controversy, wired to Attorney-General Raney, asking him if a juvenile court judge is compelled to sentence boys convicted of auto theft to jail, received a reply from Deputy Attorney-General Bayly, who refers Ald. Wenige to the crown attorney for further information. The reply stated that Attorney-General Raney is not at his office this week, and hence his deputy answered.

"Did you ever hear of that world-famous game called passing the buck?" Ald. Wenige asked an Advertiser reporter this morning. "Well, this is a star play in that game. I guess they don't know the answer to that telegram themselves down there, and pass the buck to the crown attorney."

UNCLE OF LOCAL OFFICER ORGANIZED THE R.N.W.M.P.

Death of Gen. Sir George French Took Place Recently in England.

Gen. Sir George French, the famous British general, who died in England on July 8, was an uncle of Lieut.-Col. J. P. French, D.S.O., of this city. Another nephew is Inspector F. H. French, D.S.O., of the R. N. W. M. P., stationed at Portage la Prairie.

General French, who was the founder of the artillery branches of the Canadian militia, was a veteran of the Reil rebellion, and was first commissioner and organizer of the R. N. W. M. P. in the 70's. When he left Canada he was captain in the Royal Field Artillery and was transferred to the service of the R. F. A. in India. At the time of the Boer war, he took command of the Australian forces.

His wife, Lady French, predeceased him in 1917. He is survived by two sons and three daughters, among whom are Lady McLagan, wife of the commander of the forces in Scotland; Major A. I. French, D.S.O., fruit farmer, Scuke, B. C., and Col. G. A. French, C.M.G., residing in Ireland.

Lady French was formerly Miss Long-Innis of Kingston, a cousin of Lady Carling of London.

JOHN WALTERS FOUND GUILTY ON CHARGE OF STEALING BICYCLE

Other Charges Face the Local Youth—Companion Is Awaiting Sentence.

John Walters, alias John Williams, was convicted in police court this morning of stealing a bicycle from Pat Rosinello, 140½ Wortley road. At the time of going to press he was awaiting trial on a charge of stealing a pair of shoes from G. Wyatt's store on the Hamilton road, and his companion, Ernest Brock, alias Jack Thom, was awaiting sentence for stealing a purse from a woman on the corner of Clarence and York streets two weeks ago. It was stated in evidence that Brock snatched the purse from the woman.

"Not guilty" was Walters' plea in the bicycle theft case. The owner said that he saw him hanging around his place shortly before it was stolen, and saw a man who resembled him take it away.

Jacob Fox, pawnbroker, stated that on the evening of the theft a man closely resembling Walters sold a bicycle to him for $5. The bicycle was said to be worth $15.

A notebook which Walters had in his possession was produced. It had such entries in it as: "Elm street, Toronto, pair of opera glasses, watch"; "Hamilton, pair of trousers"; "Woolworth's," "Metropolitan." He admitted that he stole a glass-cutter from Woolworth's store here, and a pair of shoe laces from the Metropolitan department store. He denied that he gave the cutter to Brock or used it himself in the Wyatt robbery. At this store a cutter was used on the window and two pairs of shoes stolen.

He stated that he had sold the bicycle and shoes for a third man, whom he did not know. Several times he was "tripped up" in his evidence by Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop, K.C.

WHERE, OH! WHERE

about to deliver his age-old and threadbare message from the Canadian public. It was undoubtedly an impressive sight. That was conceded by everyone, and in fact it was intimated that General Foch, who dropped in at the tea hour, remarked that it was certainly a milepost not to be carelessly overlooked by the gent who elects to write a world war history.

Few Well-Chosen Words.

The premier's few though well-chosen words (quoting from a government paper) were received with the utmost gratification. It was absolutely denied that Bob Borden was asked "How about nine on a loaf?" The gathering was free from such low-brow remarks. "I bring with me for you that wonderful message from the Canadian public," he said in effect. "They watch your efforts from time to time and glory in your work. Anxiously awaiting the moment of your arrival on fair Canada's shore, they guarantee that your period of suffering is over."

That was in 1918. The long, weary war dragged on and the years slipped by, a bad habit they have failed to master. Look! It is 1921, and another momentous occasion (all old stuff). Like the knights of old another premier rides boldly forth to save the world for humanity's sake. This time it is the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, now in Blighty. To the tune of "I'm Following My Father's Footsteps" (meaning his predecessor, Little Bob), he delivered himself, not long since, of the following:

"France lives, and France is free, and Canada is better, because she did something worth while to help free France to live. In many hundreds of plots throughout these hills and valleys, all the way from Flanders to Picardy, lie 50,000 of our dead. Their resting-places have been dedicated to their memory for ever by the kindly, grateful heart of France, and will be tended and cared for by us in the measure of the love we bear them. Around and over all are being planted the maples of Canada, in the thought that her sons will rest the better under trees which they knew so well in life. Across the leagues of the Atlantic the heart-strings of our Canadian nation will reach through all time to these graves in France. We shall never let pass away the spirit bequeathed to us by those who fell. 'Their name liveth for evermore.'"

Talking It Over.

It is still 1921, but throughout the length and breadth of the country—wherever two or more are gathered together—they are "talking it over." It was truly a stirring and very effective oration, but fully convinced that the time for the shake-up is drawing near, those battle-scarred and war-weary heroes of St. Julien, the Somme and the Last Hundred Days, are now fully convinced that it is like many another (including several emanating from Little Bob), no more nor less than "some bunk."

What is in the wind? The decimated platoons, the survivors of Kemmel Hill and the Canal du Nord are rallying for the last fight; this time without the trusty musket. The more or less effective ballot is to be available, but first there must be unity. Acordingly, with this in view, the big bulk of the returned men, sickened to the utmost by the present administration, are laying tentative plans to amalgamate into one organization, the Canadian Legion, for the avowed purpose, they say, to throw their weight where it will be most felt at the next general election. What will be the ultimate result? A word to the wise is sufficient.

MOTOR CLUB MAY INSTITUTE TEST CASE

Will Await Decision of Attorney-General Before Taking Action.

Doubting very much the legality of the many prosecutions made by the county police against motorists who drive past corners in the vicinity of this city at a speed greater than twelve and a half miles an hour, the London Motor Club in all probability will fight a test case in the near future. The matter will be brought up at the next meeting of the directors, and it is expected that all plans will be made at that time.

Officials of the club are confident that if the matter is fought in the county court, and, if necessary, in higher courts, it will be found that the county magistrates have been putting a wrong interpretation on the Ontario motor vehicle act. If Attorney-General Hon. W. E. Raney fails to take action in the near future it is believed that a test case will prove effective in putting a stop to the alleged persecutions.

The directors of the club are in accord with County Engineer Talbot in the belief that the corner of Brick street and Wellington road is not a blind corner in the eyes of the law. It is caimed that the buildings do not encroach on the roadway and that the trees do not entirely block the view of the crossroads.

NEW SCHOOL BOILER TO BE SUPPLIED BY AMHERST, N.S., FIRM

Beams Being Destroyed by Dry Rot At Simcoe School.

Members of No. 2 committee of the board of education, in session Friday afternoon, decided in favor of the Victory water tube boiler for the new Victoria Public School, now under construction, and will recommend to the board of education that this type of boiler be installed. Although it is the product of an outside firm, Trustee Thomas Coleridge announced that this boiler will be manufactured by a local concern, acting as agents for the Robb Engineering Company, which will guarantee it to render all services, as specified for Victory boilers manufactured in the Robb factory.

"The Victory Boiler will pay for itself in a year," commented Trustee Eggett, in indorsing the recommendation.

Architect L. E. Carrothers reported that dry rot has caused wooden beams in four downstair rooms of the Simcoe Street Public School to deteriorate, and that they must be replaced at once, to protect the children. He explained that one of these beams crosses the centre of each room, and is supported by an iron pillar.

He recommended that they be replaced by 18-inch steel beams at an estimate cost of $1,500. In view of the fact that wooden beams are almost as expensive as the steel the committee concurred with his recommendation. In addition the architect pointed out that lowering of the pillar bases in each of the four downstair rooms will be necessary to accommodate the steel beams. The pillars cannot be eliminated, as the walls are not sufficiently strong to support the proposed steel structure.

Mr. Carrothers also reported that joists in the corridors at Simcoe Street School have deteriorated with age, and must be replaced, the total sum involved for improvements in this school being estimated at $2,000.

"We have no estimates for this work," said Trustee Coleridge, "but it must be done."

"We have to do it, as we can take no chance on the lives of the children," commented Trustee Udy. "We cannot open the school in September as it is."

The members decided that the committee has no authority to spend $2,000 without consent of the entire board of education, and therefore recommended that the work outlined above be proceeded with at once. This recommendation will be dealt with at a regular meeting of the board of education to be held next Tuesday afternoon.

PROTESTS HAVE THEIR EFFECT IN OLD COUNTRY

Canadian Agents Are Now Restricting Immigration to the Dominion.

That the recent vigorous protest against apparent indiscriminate and continued advertising overseas of Canada's wonderful opportunities during the present period of depression has not been without obvious good results, is evidenced today.

R. A. Finn, of the local department of agriculture, commented upon a communication just received from a party in the old country, who advises him that, although he has friends in this immediate district who would be sure to look after him, the Canadian agent at Salisbury refuses to allow him to come until he can show definitely that he has a bona fide job awaiting him.

"This shows," pointed out Mr. Finn, "that some effort is now being made by the overseas officials to regulate immigration for the time being at least.

Discussing briefly the agitation in certain interested quarters to hold all examinations of prospective immigrants in the port of embarkation rather than in ports of arrival, the representative asks "why not?" Many Europeans, it is explained, sell their homes with the prospect of settling in Canada, and are then "ruthlessly" turned back when they disembark at Canadian seaports because they fail to pass the necessary tests. It is felt that it would be for the good of Canada also if the selection of settlers could be made final at the British end with greater care given to the medical examination and mental tests which are now applied at this end.

SEARCH FOR

horse deal with a shrewd farmer, and another nomad is lying in the clover copse and gazing, carefree, at the blue and carefree sky. Here is romance and story for the asking—whence comes the caravan from the spice-gragrant breezes of Araby, or the uaint roadsides and villages of Rumania?

Alas, romance is shattered like a bbble from the creeping river, just like a bubble from the oily surface of the lazy stream, gathered up in the air for a moment by the vagrant zephyrs for a little flight over the ripening milkweed and the goldenrod, and then burst by the sunlight, nowhere to be found. The folk of the caravan are not gypsies, but only prosaic summer-campers, but yet not of Romany, and unable to claim the exaltation of wayside birth, or trace their lineage to gypsy king or singing troubadour. Their faces, tannel in the Canadian sunlight, were illumined by the rarer light of romantic fancy into the dusky reverie of Magyar faces.

tSill Seeking.

So once more, to the enchanted road of many veerings to the right and left, unwinding new vistas of fresh hope at every turn. Are those not red Indians trudging stolidly along to somewhere? Somewhere, beyond the next or some succeeding turning, lies most likely an Indian village or reservation of the wild wood, where the nature-loving natives of the Hesperian forest preserve their simple customs and picturesque pagan faiths.

Over the greenish river yonder is a narrow swing-bridge leading to the uplands of the opposite shore, where old farm buildings just peep through a stretch of young woodland and a clump of pine trees redolent with the balsamic odors and the incense that Pan, the wood-god, loves. Stately and silent and very symmetrical are the pine trees, because in their heart they hold in sacred trust the sylvan mysteries, the esoteric philosophy of all the woodlands and all the woodfolks. But, alas, over the approach to the swaying swing-bridge is a "Trespassers Prosecuted" sign. Who cares for threats of prosecution in the bourgeois law courts, when he has taken the road to Romany? And yet, the narrow staves which form the flooring of the bridge are old and decrepit, and the vivid green waters below betray no secret of their actual depths. Perhaps it were just as well not to disregard too flagrantly the threat of the bourgeois signpost. More than likely the apples in the upland orchard are sour, after all.

And long, long, lies the road whence went the dusky Indians, returning from the town, each laden with a bundle. They would not carry bundles, were they true sons of Romany—they would travel free. One of their womenfolk has trudged with slower step and fallen behind. Ten full miles away is the Indian village, she explains. She and the others, returning from the town, live beside the sawmill among the white folks. Her brave does not hunt in the free, wide forests, but sweats in the lumber mill, where discordent saws, like over-attenuated jazz music, go screeching and tearing at the stout herts of the once-proud forest trees all through the hot summer day.

It is too far to Romany. Some other day the pilgrim heart will adventure forth again, but back in the prosaic town there is at least cooling two-percent and orange-colored and pink-flavored ice cream to assuage the thirsty throat and panting heart.

NEW YORK RAW SUGAR FUTURES ARE STEADY

NEW YORK, July 29.—The raw sugar market was firm early today at 3¼c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 4.86c for centrifugal. No sales were reported.

Raw sugar futures were steadier on covering and buying by Wall Street interests, with prices at midday 2 to 3 points net higher.

In refined sugar there are only three refiners in the market now, another having withdrawn. Prices are unchanged at 6c for fine granulated.

Trading in refined futures consisted of a few lots of December at an advance of 10 points.

WALL STREET REVIEW.

New York, July 30.—A dull and heavy tone in stocks and an active and strong bond market were the divergent features of the week's stock exchange. Industrials comprising the secondary group of equipments and various specialties of no definite description suffered extreme declines of 10 to 25 points, rails alone displaying comparative firmness.

Statements of earnings for the second quarter of the year, as submitted by the United States and Bethlehem Steel Corporations, plainly indicated the unsatisfactory state of that basic industry.

The money market alone afforded ground for encouragement. Call loans were made at as low as 3½ per cent, the lowest quotation in almost two years.

Sentiment respecting general business conditions was more hopeful. Bankers at western points reported a turn in the tide.

SITUATION IS ACUTE.

LONDON, July 29.—The controversy between the British and French Governments over Silesia has reached an acute stage, the latest British note drafted by Earl Curzon, the foreign minister, indorsed by the imperial cabinet and handed the French Government in Paris this morning, being officially described as a "vigorously worded" document.

The note ascribes the present situation to the presentation of the French note to Germany of July 16, calling the attention of the German Government to the still menacing attitude of the German defence troops in Upper Silesia, without previous consultation with France's allies, the first departure from the policy of co-operation hitherto followed.

Expresses Surprise.

The French Government is reminded of the firmness with which Great Britain has always adhered to the principle of close co-operation and mutual consultations between the allied governments, and the note expressed surprise at the sudden change in attitude on the part of the French Government, especially as early this week the principle of co-operation was emphasized and agreed to between Lord Curzon, the foreign secretary, and the French ambassador, whole following the incident of the occupation of Frankfort by the French in April, 1920, M. Millerand, then the premier, had given definite assurances that France would not in future take isolated action on matters of common concern to the Allies.

Tone Is Friendly.

The note also expresses surprise at the unusual and apparently unfriendly tone of the French communique of Wednesday last, which Great Britain, the note states, is loath to believe was meant to convey an unfriendly intention on the part of the French Government.

Great Britain asked that the alliance cemented by appalling sacrifices, be continued on the same lines of mutual trust and confidence, for the promotion of which Great Britain will make any concession to the French Government, and is ready to do so should the latter keep Great Britain fully cognizant of France's wishes.

Unable to Agree.

On the principle of joint allied responsibility for Silesia and other matters under the peace treaties, however, it is clearly impossible, the note continues, for Great Britain to agree to such acts as would inevitably undermine the basis of the Allies. In view of the perplexity raised by the tone of the last French note, the British Government, the note states, feels bound to inquire what explanation of its intentions the French Government can offer, as until the matter is cleared up it will be difficult to see on what basis the allied co-operation can continue. The question of the supreme council meeting is not made the subject of fresh proposals in the note pending hoped-for improvement in the atmosphere, but throughout the document the hope is strongly expressed that nothing will be done by the French Government to weaken the solidarity of France, to which, for every reason sentimental, as well as political, it is pointed out, the British Government and people are deeply attached.

BRITAIN'S POLICY ON SILESIAN QUESTION REMAINS UNCHANGED

Reply to Latest French Note Is Delivered To Paris Officials.

CO-OPERATION URGED

Joint Action by Allies Advised in British Communication.

Paris, July 29.—Great Britain's reply to the latest French note on the Upper Silesian question, in which divergencies still exist between the two nations as to the procedure to be adopted in dealing with the problem, notably as to the sending of reinforcements to the area, was delivered at the foreign office this morning by Lord Hardinge, the British ambassador. An hour's conversation between Lord Hardinge and Premier Briand ensued, after which the premier joined his colleagues in the cabinet meeting in progress at the Palace of the Elysee.

The dispatch of the British note followed two conferences by the Lloyd George cabinet on Thursday on the Upper Silesian situation. It was said afterward that no change in the British policy was to be expected, and that Great Britain hoped the French would not send troops to Upper Silesia until the supreme council had considered the situation. It was understood the note was conciliatory in tone, and that it urged adhesion by France to the principle that whatever was done in Silesia should be done jointly by the Allies.

BRITISH MUST HAVE CLEAR UNDERSTANDING, FRANCE'S INTENTIONS

London, July 29.—Great Britain's note to France regarding the Silesian problem, dispatched last night and delivered in Paris this morning, recapitulated the circumstances which led to the present situation and refutes the allegation that Great Britain had set herself against the French, and was thereby strengthening the German attitude.

Officials describe the note as of a friendly character in "marked contrast to the attitude displayed in the French note" to which it is a reply. Great Britain, officials declared, is still anxious to consider any means by which the French can be met, but it is emphasized that according to the news being received in London there is no danger threatening the French troops in Silesia which renders the sending of reinforcements urgently necessary, as the French have claimed.

The note calls attention to what is described as "the extraordinary action on the part of France" in endeavoring to act independently of the supreme council in insisting upon the immediate dispatch of troops. It points out that this is an impossible basis upon which to pursue any future policy, together and that no good purpose would be served by further discussions until there was a clear understanding of France's intentions.

As to the contents of the note, it was said in an authoritative quarter that although the tone of the communication was conciliatory it did not appear that in it the British Government had made any sensible progress toward reaching the French viewpoints.

WAGE WAR ON SUNDAY THEATRES

Quebec, July 29.—A committee of citizens composed of clergy and laiety have decided to wage war on the Sunday theatres. A sub-committee appointed at a recent meeting consulted legal opinion, and decided that the Lord's Day act was very clear in this connection and that theatres operating on Sunday were not within the law.

Says Mr. Babson:

"Business will be called 'quiet,' but in many lines there should be some improvement. If you have weathered the storm of the past seven months, you can take courage! At this stage of depression the main problem is selling. Cut down your production expenses as far as you can, do without further expansion in new buildings and equipment, but don't skimp your selling appropriations. Now is the time to use that reserve fund which was set aside during the fat years! Later in the depression area we shall come to the point where you should increase your plant, but this summer—plan to increase your advertising! Take the aggressive course.

There is, perhaps, no better barometer of business conditions than Babson's Statistical Bureau.

The significant injunction in the foregoing report is "plan to increase your advertising—take the aggressive course."

Already many experienced advertisers have let their daily newspaper advertising contracts for the fall. They are not going to be caught napping when the pendulum starts its upward swing.

What of yourself?

REGARDS PRISONERS' DOCK AS A RELIC OF BARBARIC DAYS

Toronto Commission Reports On Police Court Conditions There.

Toronto, July 29. — That the "prisoners' dock is a barbarism and should be removed" is one of the recommendations made by the public service commission in its report on the Toronto police court. The commission also demands that the name be changed to the "municipal court," and suggests trial by jury in this court without the necessity of going to higher courts. Need of a woman magistrate and many other reforms are urgently recommended, also many amendments in the criminal code in regard to bail.

government. In considerable measure, it is true, the compelling force of the bonds which had united these interests with the government were lessened. Members of the government who read their obligation to the country in terms of disinterested public service, recalling the pledges on which the government was returned to power, one by one retired from the ministry. Others of their colleagues, for reasons best known to themselves, continued in office. Similarly, it is to be presumed, among the financial, manufacturing, transportation and distributing interests were numbers of influential and prominent men who were quick to sever the intimacy of the relations formed with members of the government during the period of stress and strain, and to give their thought to their particular business interests regardless altogether of government favors or action.

Self-Interest Only.

Unfortunately for our Dominion, all the men of great wealth and power have not been of this class. The same self-interest which caused members of the government to cling to office despite honorable obligation and constitutional right, has operated in the manner to cause certain members of the financial, manufacturing, transportation and distributing interests to continue to look to government for special favors and special privileges, and in return to support the administration by direct methods as well as indirect in its retention of power against the will of the people as a whole. Thus we have come to have in Canada, on the one hand, a prime minister and a ministry to whom usurpation of office and the exercise of autocratic methods in government belong as a sort of natural right, and on the other a small circle, a sort of little oligarchy of interwoven financial, manufacturing, transportation, and distributing interests, prepared, in return for a continuation of favor and special privilege, to use their wealth and influence to keep the Administration in power, and thereby constituting in a very true sense the real though invisible Government of this country.

Political Autocrats.

We have, in other words, political power united with plutocracy in a bond of self-interest, the former the visible symbol of authority, the latter the governing and directing force in the state. We have a Government democratic in form, but autocratic in behavior, and back of that Government, and vastly superior to it in many respects, we have the privileged coterie of wealthy and influential men, connected with certain of the financial, manufacturing, transportation and distributing interests mentioned, who are not satisfied with sharing in the control of industry and the state, but wish to dominate both. They are for the time being able to exercise this domination at their own free will, for the Administration owes its existence to their dictation and its continuance in office to the powerful influence which is a multitude of directions they are able to exert. There is the eral situation with which the country is faced at the present time. That is the danger to Canada at the moment. If is not that her Government is not a Government carried on in the interest of the people as a whole, but rather that we have the selfish groups united together, working for their joint ambitions, and the great body of the people left to look after themselves.

Seeking Undue Protection.

This is the explanation of the failure of the Government thus far to revise the tariff. It was not fear of the consequences of American Emergency legislation—that really was a ground for action—it was the maintenance by the favored few of their privileged position as it has come to be in consequence of the war and conditions as they have grown out of the war. It is the explanation of the declaration made by the prime minister in the course of his speech on the budget in Parliament:

"This Government stands for the tariff that is in existence today, and in any adjustment that will be made we will admit the principle of profection and we will apply it."

Protection, yes, but protection for whom? Protection for these favored interests, not for the great masses of the people. The invisible Government has decreed that thus he must stand, and so the day of tariff revision in the interests of either producers or consumers has been indefinitely postponed.

Defeat Selfish Combination.

It is because of this combination, the combination of political autocrats and industrial plutocrats, by which all Liberal and Progressive forces will be opposed at the general elections, whenever they are held, that it would be disastrous to the well-being of the people as a whole for Mr. Meighen and his colleagues to be returned to power and intrusted with any revision of the tariff. It would never be a tariff framed in the interest of producers and consumers, but a tariff for the benefit of a few wealthy men and their friends. What folly is it in the face of so great a danger for the forces of progress to be divided at this time. Autocracy has ever sought to win its victory by keeping divided the forces by which it is opposed. For any group calling itself progressive to seek isolation, and to fail actively to co-operate with every other Liberal group, is to help to accomplish its own ultimate defeat, and to deliver the day of victory to a common enemy.

Workings of Combination.

Fortunately I need not ask the people of Canada to accept my anaylsis of the situation as a last word. Did time permit I might cite an abundance of evidence as proof of the accuracy. We have, however, the evidence of one who has been on the inside, one of the Government's own supporters, who was permitted a peep behind the scene, in a position of exceptional opportunity, who was appointed to office by the Government itself, and who has given to the public a description of what he has seen, in an official report to the Government itself. I refer to the report of Mr. James Murdock, presented at the time of his resignation from the board of commerce.

Having been a member of the board from the time of its inception, Mr. Murdock came at once into a specially favored position. Indeed strategically, he was in the best of positions; he was where he could view, on the one side, the organization of the specially favored interests I have been describing, and on the other, the relation thereto of members of the Administration. Both situations he has described with perfect clearness, they are depicted in the official communication sent the prime minister in June of last year, and which the Government has had before it ever since. Here is the situation as respects the favored interests.

Price Fixing Agreement.

Referring to the preliminary investigation of the board of commerce, and the necessity for some governmental machinery to protect the consumers and producers of the country against the kind of protection, Mr. Meighen and his associates have been advocating, Mr. Murdock says:

"(a) Businessmen living together under the protection of the tariff have got to know each other so well that price-fixing agreements and arrangements are the rule, rather than the exception. The board has already on file evidence in some scores of cases of such agreements. Not all of these are reasonable or proper. It should not be left to the unfettered will of the businesses interested to fix prices on necessaries of life. . . .

"(b) Combines which have been fastened themselves on the production and distribution of certain essential articles of food, such as canned fruits, have introduced systems of merchandizing which are injurious to trade and the consumer, and prevent fair competition. . . .

"(c) The board has discovered that unfair and excessive profits are being taken by certain textile manufacturers, cement companies, and other large concerns. It is in the public interest that these investigations thus begun be not stopped at this point. . .

"(d) There is no reason to believe that sugar is not the only commodity in which speculation to the detriment of the public has taken place. . .

"(e) Without a board of commerce the public has no organization to watch and protect its interests, while on the other side there is the most complete organization and cross-organization; manufacturers' associations, retail associations, packers' associations, and hundreds of other associations. The public, unorganized as the sands by the sea, requires a protector against the super-organization of modern business."

Need of Consumers for Protection.

Mr. Murdock, you see, speaks of the need of protection, but it is not the protection of the members of the associations he has described, but the protection of the great body of consumers that are like the sands of the seashore, without any protection whatever against what he terms the super-organization of modern business. It is the few wealthy men responsible for this super-organization of modern business depicted by Mr. Murdock who constitutes the ring that controls the Government of Canada today, that shackles its freedom of action, and compels the Government on pain of extinction to do its bidding. It is the favored position of these privileged few that the Government is striving in all its measures to advance and to protect.

Then, Mr. Murdock goes on to speak of the Government's attitude as he came to know it—and, be it remembered, this was a statement issued to the prime minister of this country by Mr. Murdock, while Mr. Murdock was still a member of the board. The majority of the cabinet, he declares, were never in sympathy with the provisions and intent of the board of commerce act and the combines and fair prices act, and only favored the passage of these measures as the result of temporary alarm incident to the Winnipeg strike and other demonstrations, when the people demanded some means of controlling profiteers. He points out, moreover, that certain cabinet ministers, and others prominent in the councils of Canada, had undertaken so far as possible, to minimize the effects of these acts, and had repeatedly tried to thwart the board's activities by quiet and hidden restrictive opposition, and that the chairman himself saw to it that nothing was done which could in any way effect the business and financial interests which, in his judgment, should be protected from interference by the board of commerce. Mr. Murdock cites another instance in which certain members of the cabinet endeavored to relieve the textile manufacturers of the necessity of furnishing information which the board had called for, and this when later records show that the disclosures which could have been made had full information been furnished were such as "would have startled and incensed the Canadian public beyond anything that has developed in recent months."

Finally, as indicating beyond shadow of doubt his view of the Government's relationship to the super-organization of business interests he has described, Mr. Murdock concludes:

"In connection with your suggestion that I continue as a commissioner of the board of commerce until the decision of the Privy Council. I feel that the people need, and are entitled to, some results now. The light should be let in. I believe your cabinet will devise some means to prevent the board of commerce from functioning, even should the Privy Council give a favorable decision. My conscience will not permit me to become a high-salaried time-server."

Could anything be clearer? There are the specially-favored, duly-protected interests on the one side; the Government, their protecting and willing servants, on the other; and the whole a matter of public disclosure, and now of public knowledge.

Not Attacking Busines.

Let me say, so that my words will not be capable of misconstruction, that in making these references to certain financial, manufacturing, distributing, and other business interests, I am making no attack on big business as such I am making no attack whatever on vast organizations as such, for in these days of competition between industry and industry, between locality and locality, between nation and nation, between continent and continent, large organization is absolutely necessary, and vast accumulation of wealth in particular industries is absolutely necessary if the country is to hold its own in competition. So I am making no charge against the organization of business as it is carried on today, nor against the men to whom this country is, indeed, vastly indebted for their skilful organization of industry and the way it is carried on. But what I wish to do is this: I wish to distinguish between these men who are prepared to share in the government of industry, and in the government of the country, and those men who wish to monopolize and dictate in matters of industrial policy and the control of political affairs. You have in every country the two types. You have the men who are willing to work with their fellows, and to share with their fellows, and you have others who wish to dictate, who wish to control, who wish to monopolize, and it is these latter groups that have been brought into combination through the circumstances of the country as I have described them, and who are controlling this country at the present time.

Should Be Shared, Not Monopolized.

Why should a few men monopolize government and the patronage of government? Why should one bank, one railway group, one trust company, one insurance company, be favored at the expense of others? Why certain industrial enterprises and not all? In a country like Canada, all should be permitted a share in government and government business. It is against monopoly in government business and government favors, as against monopoly in all else, that our attacks are directed.

Think of a government permitting itself to lie under the shadow of such an indictment! Mr. Murdock's charges were made on the eve of prorogation a year ago; the Government has taken no steps to free itself from all that those representations imply. Why has Mr. Murdock not been summoned to appear before some committee of this House and prove the charges he has made? There is one reason, and one reason only: the Government knows the charges to be true, and that any attempt at investigation will mean the letting in of more light.

Examples of Government Favors.

Did time permit, Mr. Meighen's charges might be duplicated many fold. I purpose at Hamilton on Saturday night to show how this baneful combination of political autocrats and industrial plutocrats is operating to increase the fortunes of a few wealthy individuals at the expense of the public, through the manner in which public funds are permitted to be spent in connection with the administration of our railways, and those who are benefiting sheltered from all possibility of exposure by methods the Government has devised. I might go on to show how Canada's credit in the form of loans of public moneys to foreign governments has been made an instrument of increasing the private fortunes of many wealthy individuals, some of whom are the Government's own supporters in Parliament. I might show how legislation passed by a previous administration, designed to protect the consumers against the exactions of combines, monopolies, trusts and mergers, has been repealed, and nothing permitted to be enacted in its stead. I might go on to point out how this year, as in former years, no account whatever has been taken of profiteering; how another year has been allowed to pass without any effort whatever having been made by the Government to recover any of the war-time wealth: how, instead of the removal of any of the taxation that bears immediately upon the masses of the people, the duties upon the necessaries of life, it is the business profits taxes and the luxury taxes that have been abolished. The prime minister talks of protection, of the need for protection, and says that we are all in favor of protection. Let him have it so, but let me tell him that the protection for which we stand is the protection of the consumer against the exactions of combines, monopolies, and the super-organization of associated business, not the protection of these specially favored organizations against the interests and well-being of the people at large.

Must Break Powerful Combination.

What is needed most in this country today is to break this selfish combination of political autocrats and individual plutocrats which has grown and developed during the war and fastened itself like an octopus on the people of Canada. That is the task which is too large to be performed by the present Parliament; it is a task which the people alone can successively undertake. We of the Opposition may do our best, but we are powerless when the Government has in its hands, and uses against us, the weapon of the closure, when on matters of public expenditures we try to let in light. The only way in which that combination can be broken is to give to the people of this country their right to have a parliament composed of their own representatives chosen in their own way. Until that right is granted we will never know what the assets sor liabilities of this country are.

We of the Opposition in Parliament may make the best effort we can—we have been doing that—but we are powerless, as I have said, in the face of weapons, such as the closure, which the prime minister and his followers are prepared to use on behalf of the interests that are sustaining and keeping them in power. We do demand, however, and shall continue to demand, in the name of the people of this country, that for the sake of Canada's present condition and for the sake of her future need, the people be granted the right, the constitutional right which is theirs, of electing a parliament of their own choosing, and of breaking without further delay a combination which is so inimical to the public weal.

Summer-Spoiled Skin Removed by Absorption

As undue summer exposure usually leaves an undesirable surface of tan, redness or roughness, often freckles, too, the sensible thing to do is to remove such surface. There's nothing better for this than ordinary mercolized wax, which actually absorbs an unwholesome complexion. The thin layer of surface skin is itself absorbed, gently, gradually, so there's no inconvenience, no detention indoors. Spread the wax lightly over the entire face at bedtime and take it off in the morning with warm water. If you will get one ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store, use it for a week or so, you may expect marked improvement daily. When the underlying skin is wholly in view your complexion will be a marvel of spotless purity and beautiful whiteness. Don't let those summer wrinkles worry you; worry breeds more wrinkles. Banish them by bathing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in one-half pint of witch hazel. Used daily for a while this will be found wonderfully effective.

Indian Drops Gun When He Sees 'Red Coat'

Vancouver, B. C., July 29.—The Indian's respect for the mounted police was again demonstrated a few days ago, when George Williams, an Indian fugitive, suspected of murder, drew his gun on a provincial police inspector, but promptly dropped his weapon when a "red coat" appeared behind. Williams heard that a warrant was out for his arrest and took to the woods, leaving a message at a village that he would shoot Provincial Constable Matthews on sight.

Brought to bay in the woods 125 miles from here, Williams prepared to carry out his threat, but was instantly cowed when a mounted policeman stepped into the clearing. Williams will be brought to Vancouver by motor-launch for trial, charged with the murder of another Indian.

MAXIMUM FEE FOR OPERATION IS PLACED AT $1,000

Baltimore, Md., July 29.—The board of trustees of the Johns Hopkins Hospital yesterday issued the following dictum:

The maximum fee that any surgeon ought to charge for an operation, no matter how wealthy the patient may be, is $1,000.

The maximum charge that any physician ought to make for attending patients in any hospital is $35 a week.

The dictum takes the form of an order to physicians and surgeons practicing in the hospital, limiting fees to be charged.

The ruling was issued after long and thorough consideration of all the conditions surrounding physicians and surgeons, the cost of living scale on which physicians and surgeons are required to live, and the like. In it many eminent scientists at the hospital concurred.

GOVERNOR SMALL WILL LEAVE CASE ENTIRELY IN ATTORNEY'S HANDS

Chicago, July 29.—Governor Len Small was expected back in Chicago today after spending the night at his home in Kankakee, Ill., and apparently returns with a decision to leave his case growing out of his indictment by a Sangamon County grand jury for the alleged embezzlement of state funds while he was state treasurer, in the hands of his attorneys while he resumes the executive business of the state.

"I don't propose to be annoyed further in serving the people," Governor Small said prior to leaving for his home last night, after an all-day conference with attorneys here. "Others are trying to keep me from looking after the affairs of the people, but I intend to go ahead and do my duty."

MINIMUM WAGE FOR FEMALES SEPTEMBER 1

Toronto, July 28.—It was announced at a hearing of the minimum wage board tonight that the minimum wage rates for female help in laundries and dry cleaning establishments would probably become effective on September 1st. The orders provide a minimum wage of $12 a week of 48 hours in cities of over 50,000, and $11 a week elsewhere in the province.

EXPRESS CRUISER EVENT.

Detroit, Mich., July 29.—Addition of an express cruiser event to the list of races to be held in conjunction with the gold cup and Harmsworth Trophy power-boat races here August 27 to September 5, was considered by the Detroit Gold Cup-Harmsworth Trophy committee here today. A race of 20 miles for cruisers with a speed of 17 to 30 miles an hour is planned. Eleven events already have been scheduled for the regatta.

SEPARATE PARLEYS ON DISARMAMENT WILL BE REFUSED

United States Government Would Not Consider Such a Proposal.

Washington, July 29.—It was indicated today that the United States would reject any suggestion for separate parleys with any of the powers invited to participate in the caucus on limitation of armament and discussion of far eastern questions. There was an intimation that at least one of the nations concerned had suggested the advisability of such a partial conference.

ASSOCIATION TO PROBE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF PROFESSIONAL ETHICS

Cleveland, July 29.—The alleged violation of professional ethics by Dr. H. L. Russell of Buffalo, in testifying in the Stillman divorce case, was up before the House of Delegates of the American Osteopathic Association yesterday, and a heated discussion ensued.

The New York Association of Osteopaths was ordered to make a thorough investigation and submit a report with recommendations to the national organization.

Action was deferred when the point was raised that under its constitution the national association could take no action until the New York association had made recommendations.

A telegram received from his attorney stated Dr. Russell is on his vacation in Canada, but that he will welcome an investigation "which will afford him an opportunity to defend himself against this unfounded criticism."

WIRELESS TO AID CHICAGO POLICEMEN AND FIRE FIGHTERS

Chicago, July 29.—A wireless telephone system connecting all fire and police stations and operated from the top of the city hall was given a workout today. According to City Electrician Keith, it is planned later to attach receiving apparatus to the coats of all policemen.

SNOWBALL INJURES EYE.

Colorado Springs, July 29.—J. C. Williams of this city may lose one of his eyes as a result of being hit by a snowball. Williams was ascending Pike's Peak with a party of tourists last night. Another party engaged them in a friendly snowball fight.

BODY NOT YET RECOVERED.

Banff, Alta., July 29.—Up to a late hour last night no word had been received of the recovery of the body of Dr. W. E. Stone, president of Perdue University, Lafayette, which is lying somewhere at the foot of Rock Chimney, where the university president fell when climbing Mount Eon with his wife last week. The spot where, according to Mrs. Stone, the body lies, is in a most difficult part of the mountain to approach.

A WOMAN'S RIGHT TO GOOD HEALTH

Most Troubles Afflicting Women Are Due to Poor Blood.

To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy, active life; yet nine out of ten suffer from some form of bloodlessness. That is why one sees on every side pale, thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures—sure signs of headaches, weak backs, aching limbs and uncertain health. All weak women should win the right to be well by refreshing their weary bodies with the new, rich, red blood that promptly transforms them into healthy attractive women. This new, red blood is supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body. Through the use of these pills thousands of women have found benefit when suffering from anaemia, indigestion, general weakness and those ailments from which women alone suffer. Among the many women who tell of the good Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done them is Mrs. L. Hicks, Round Hill, N. S., who says: "I became very much rundown in health; my blood seemed weak and watery, my strength failed, and I was so easily tired that my work was a burden. I had often read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them, and I can truly say that after using three boxes I found myself gaining, and under a further use of the pills all my old-time energy and vitality was restored. Out of my own experience I can strongly recommend this medicine."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

POSSIBILITIES FOR ALBERTA CABINET

Calgary, July 29.—Herbert Greenfield, premier-designate of Alberta, after spending a busy day conferring on the cabinet situation, announced last night that he would make no statement as to the probable make-up of the new Administration, and is not likely to do so until the next conference of the U. F. A. members-elect which will be held in Edmonton prior to the taking over of the Government administration. According to some members of the party attending the conference, the cabinet line-up will be as follows:

Herbert Greenfield, premier and minister of health.

John Brownlee, Calgary, attorney-general.

George Hoadley, Okatoka, minister of agriculture.

Perrin Baker, Medicine Hat, minister of education.

COMMISSION REFUSES TO CONFIRM FARE REPORT

TORONTO, July 28.—The transportation commission refuses to confirm the report that they will fix a seven-cent fare on Toronto street cars after Sept. 1, but the report is generally credited. The high fare is said to be necessary to cover the program of extensions and improvements contemplated, which will cost about $8,000,000. Three million will be spent in the erection of new car barns, and $3,000,000 in new cars.

U. S. ULTIMATUM TO BRITISH SHIPPERS

London, July 28.—The United States Shipping Board it was learned here today, has delivered an ultimatum to British shipping lines that unless its ships are accorded fair treatment in contracts for the transport of cotton from Alexandria, Egypt, to the United Kingdom and the United States, the shipping board will "declare an open market and haul anywhere at any rate."

CO-OPERATION OF PRODUCERS AND DAIRYMEN URGED

Prof. Deane of Guelph Addresses Milk Producers' Association.

At a meeting of the local Milk Producers' Association held last night in the county building on Ridout street, Professor H. A. Deane of the Guelph Agricultural College, who has had 30 years of experience in dairying and other farm products, spoke on the vital question of the day, in so far as the farmers are concerned, the disposal of surplus milk.

Make Good Roads.

In his speech he stated: "The day of the farmer changed two years ago when the Farmers' Government took the helm. People began wondering then what would become of the Dominion, as they had no faith in them and were fearful lest they should run the country into debt from which they would never get out, but I may safely say that the present Government did the same thing that was attempted by others, who failed, but they succeeded. Take our road in Guelph for instance. Two years ago it was full of ruts, bumps and other things detrimental to the bringing of farm products into the city, but now look at it. It is paved and is a credit to the country. The farmers realize that good roads are necessary to bring dairy products into the cities, and they took things into their own hands, thus making the first vital step in bringing milk prices to normal by improving hauling conditions.

Chinese Market.

We are unable to find a steady market for our milk and milk products in this country, but we can ship it to other countries. China needs milk products, but is unable to supply its own demands and must buy it elsewhere. This is the best market in the world. This is one of the solutions to the surplus supply which we have on hand and which, alone in London, amounts daily to nearly one thousand gallons.

Live 150 Years.

There is much more value in one pound of milk products than there is in a pound of beef, yet if we were to ask 30c for a quart of milk just think what a howl the newspapers and all householders would make, yet that is what they are paying for a pound of beef, and they haven't got to cook the milk either before they are able to use it. Butter, a milk product, is really a special oil for the brain and that is the reason you can almost hear some men's brains creak. They don't use enough butter. If people of today were to use milk and milk products constantly they would live as long as some of the men mentioned in the Bible who lived anywhere from 150 years up. People of today in Bulgaria are known to be living to be 150 years of age, because they are the greatest milk consumers in the world and live principally on sour milk."

First Cheese Factory.

Branching on to co-operative dairying he stated, "The history of co-operative dairying dates back to 1852 when Jesse Williams in the State of New York started a cheese factory. In 1864 the first cheese factory was erected in Canada, being built in the Village of Norwich.

"Standard prices are back of the co-operative plan. There is no system the way the situation is being handled at present. We must all work together if we are to achieve this end. The London association must be able to dictate terms. It is unfair to the farmers to lower or raise the prices without first consulting them and if this co-operation plan works out as it should there will be no need for consultation, they will be part of the firm.

Advocates Advertising.

"The vital question of this association is, 'What shall we do with the surplus milk?' My plan is for the local organization to co-operate with the provincial and have these two get together and join up with the Dominion and put on a Dominion-wide advertising campaign in the newspapers, in the street cars and in the streets and fields. Every one else is doing it, and getting big returns. Why not the farmers? Have it continually before the people, point out its good merits and you will double the consumption of milk in London and elsewhere.

Cause of Surplus.

"Look at the splendid results that were obtained in Toronto. The board of education and the board of health in that city have done much to increase the consumption of milk and the very best results were obtained by advertising. The public does not understand the food value of milk and this is the cause for so much surplus stock.

"Results will never amount to anything unless we have co-operation. Get the manufacturers of dairy products and the producers together and everybody works.

Emphasizes Co-Operation.

"The farmers are never assured of any standard price for milk and for this reason they have lost in the last few years and lost heavily in some cases. The can't go on, farmers are not going to keep cows unles they are a paying proposition and to make it a paying proposition and at the same time give the public a fair showing we must have, as I have stated several times, and I want to emphasize, co-operation."

EARLY HARVESTING GENERAL THROUGHOUT WHOLE OF PROVINCE

Hay, Wheat and Small Grains Being Reaped At Same Time.

Following is a summary of reports by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario department of agriculture:

Heavy rains early in the week in most parts of the province revived pastures to a wonderful extent, and by the week-end a marked improvement was observable in the milk flow. The root crops also were greatly benefited by the showers.

Harvesting operations are being rushed, and were never more varied. Middlesex puts it thus: "Oats are now being cut, three or four weeks earlier than last year, and it is rather unusual to have hay, wheat and small grains harvested at the same time." A number of farmers are also threshing.

Haldimand says that fall wheat is threshing very well, both as regards yield and quality.

Hay is selling in Kent at $20 a ton.

Second Cutting.

The second cutting of alfalfa is now being done, and is giving fair satisfaction. Halton, however, says that farmers who kept the first crop for seed report that many pods matured very poorly on account of the hot weather.

Peas have been badly scorched by the hot weather, and are not doing so well as usual.

Corn is making tremendous growth with timely rains and continued hot weather. It has reached the tasselling stage in most parts of the province.

Essex reports that early tomatoes are at the height of their season.

Lennox and Addington states that a large acreage of millet and buckwheat has been sown during the week.

Cattle Set Aside.

In most counties the marketing of cattle has been thrust aside by the work of harvesting, although many good beef animals are ready for buyers. Perth, however, states that a number of finished cattle are changing hands, one load going to Great Britain.

Lambton says: "The first trial shipment of live stock to the British market left this county last Monday. Mr. John Zavitz and Fred Dolbear contributed 74 head. The success or failure of this shipment will greatly influence the method of disposing of the balance of heavy cattle in the county."

Middlesex also refers to the export of cattle as follows: "Some cattle are being shipped to England and will likely net about 11.5 cents. These cost about 14c per pound last fall, and from 2½ to 3 cents to winter, or their total cost is around 17 cents, and they lose to the owner about five cents."

Lennox and Addington reports condensery prices for milk at $1.30 a cwt., for 3.3 per cent milk.

Hogs are scarce, and are selling at from $11 to $12.75 a cwt.

Fall Plowing.

Recent rains have made the land easier to plow, and many hay fields are being prepared for fall wheat. Owing to the early harvest it is likely that an increased acreage of fall plowing will be done.

Grenville is of the opinion that there will be a shortage of good seed grain in Eastern Ontario, and urges farmers who have good seed from last year to hold it.

Wellington says that summer fallowing will be more practiced this year, as thistles and other weeds have been making great headway during the last two years.

Washington, July 29.—The wool schedule in the Fordney tariff bill was the special object of an attack by Senator Gooding, Republican of Idaho, in the senate yesterday during a lull in the hearings on the measure by the senate finance committee. Mr. Gooding declared the old schedule K, in the Payne-Aldrich bill "was very commendable," as compared with the new wool schedule.

BE OF GOOD CHEER.

Gilbert K. Chesterton in one of his unique appreciations refers to the essential optimism pervading the stories of Charles Dickens. It silvershines even the pathetic and tragic, and grows out of his irrepressible love for mankind. But with an insight into the moral and spiritual significance of conduct, Mr. Chesterton suggests that there is a true and also a superficial optimism which debases. A happy-go-lucky indifference to consequence, regardless of obligations to the Divine Being and one's fellows, becomes sheer folly akin to fatalism, and a long remove from real hopefulness which is securely rooted in faith. Undeniably it is well to look at the better side of things, hoping for the best, but not to halt there. One might leave a lusty young plant or tree on the surface of some good soil, but mere hoping would not make it take root and bloom. So there is a kind of do-nothing optimism that finally betrays a lack of confidence in God, and is a virtual repudiation of the Divinely-ordered way of doing things. Vital faith proceeds to plant and water and nurture. When those duties are performed, then one may legitimately look for the bloom and fruitage of good cheer. There is a sham cheerfulness, the product of levity or folly, which the paragrapher probably has in mind when he cracks his jokes about the "cheerful idiot." Cheerfulness, then, is a healthy by-product of faith, an assurance that the best will be realized. Faith, optimism, love, is the order by the Great Apostle. Some have a natural disposition to cheeriness that can be further cultivated, others an unhealthy tendency to grouchiness, to be overcome and displaced by the better spirit. Cheerfulness will grow into a state of mind and heart, and betokens a sign of wisdom reaching on into eternity, as one writer has said.

Naturally, the New Testament features cheer and cheerfulness. The possibilities of a bright and better day dawned for humanity with the birth of the Prince of Peace. The admonition to be of good cheer in the Christian sense never loses its seasonableness. Rev. Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas, formerly of Wycliffe College, Toronto, now of Philadelphia, recently elaborated the Christ conception beautifully in Broadway Tabernacle, New York. Dr. Griffith Thomas excels as a scholarly, reverent and truly helpful interpreter of the Scriptures. For the benefit of a wide constituency of Bible students he is continually drawing from the inexhaustible stores of Revealed Truth treasures new and old. Twice in one chapter St. Matthew records the command of The Master on a healing mission to be of good cheer or comfort. In several other places, also, similar words are followed by reasons which reach down to the fundamentals of Christian faith. That the basis of cheer is broad and strong is inferred from its five-fold nature. As shown in the incidents related, it grows out of pardon, peace, protection, power and preservation. It was by reason of the faith of the four friends of the palsied man that The Saviour said: "Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee"; and when malignant scribes resented the assumption, the helpless cripple was told to rise and walk. The man's most serious trouble was sin. Free and complete deliverance became the supreme occasion of his cheer. On the way to restore the ruler's daughter, a chronic sufferer ventured all upon a touch of faith, which was immediately honored: "Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole." She received not alone a physical blessing, but the spiritual gift of cheer. With her public confession came peace to her weary heart. When the disciples were tempest-tossed on the sea, He appears on the scene, and quiets their fears: "Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid." And so it transpires in the spiritual voyage, when dangers real or imaginary threaten, He allays fear with His reassuring word and protecting presence. The soul of Newman grew great praying for Divine guidance: "Lead Kindly Light amid the encircling gloom," and good Dr. Watts sang:

"God is the refuge of His saints,
When storms of sharp distress invade;
Ere we can offer our complaints
Behold Him present with His aid."

On the eve of Calvary's lowering shadow The Redeemer is thinking most of His disciples and the trials of His followers during coming years and centuries. He communicates the needed assurance of overcoming power. He does not lull them into any false security by hiding approaching tribulations, but bade them: "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." Having His spirit within and the presence of The Comforter, they would become more than conquerors, and so it proved. Those infinite resources are ever available to the trusting believer. Many gloomy and wasteful forebodings never come to pass. William Cowper and a host of other saints have seen clouds break into blessings. Without nights and days of shadow and storm, fertile fields would soon parch and perish. When the early Christian church had been established and the messenger of The Cross needed heartening, St. Paul, in the castle, after a night of terror, receives the message of his Lord: "Be of good cheer, Paul; for as thou has testified in Jerusalem so shalt thou bear witness at Rome also." And so he did. The preserving word proved prophetic. Through all his tempestuous career and at its grand finale he triumphed gloriously. Be of good cheer.

LIBERALS AND THE TARIFF.

The Liberal leader, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, in his speech at Tillsonburg, disposed of once and for all Premier Meighen's assertion that Mr. King was an advocate of ruthless tariff reduction out west, but in the east he stood for the adequate protection of industry. It is not Mr. King, but Mr. Meighen, who is guilty of political contortions and verbal gymnastics, and this statement can be substantiated by an examination of the utterances of the respective leaders.

In the last speech Sir Wilfrid Laurier delivered on the budget before the war he defined in the clearest possible terms the position of the Liberal party on the tariff question. He said on that occasion: "We have always contended that the policy best suited to this country is not a protective tariff, but a customs tariff for revenue purposes." This is where the Liberal party and the leader of the Liberal party stand today.

With respect to the tariff, as with everything else of importance to the nation, the Liberal party believes in proceeding along evolutionary and not revolutionary lines. They are builders up and not breakers down, and this is why they believe, as Mr. King points out, that a tariff primarily for revenue is as near as any tariff can be to being a tariff for the people. As he says: "With the Liberal party the main concern respecting the tariff is not free trade or protection; it is revenue; it is the needs and well-being of the home and the development of our industries in such a manner as is likely to serve best the interests of the Canadian people."

It has been repeatedly stated by Mr. King, as well as by other exponents of Liberal policy, that in any readjustment of the tariff that may take place regard will be had to existing conditions of trade and changes made in such a manner as will cause the least possible disturbance to business. It is only by the adoption of such methods that true reforms can be carried out, and that they can be made lasting and effective. In dealing with the tariff or any other form of taxation the primary idea should be to make the burden fall as lightly as possible on the shoulders of the people at large. This is the aim of the Liberal party; the building up of revenue upon a widely distributed and secure foundation; not the making of promises or the extension of favors in particular directions, but a policy in which the good of the whole it the first consideration.

On the basis of a population in the Dominion of ten millions the amount which each individual in the country is called upon to contribute in taxes is not less than from $50 to $60, and this makes the annual contribution for a family of five amount to from $250 to $300. These are the taxes which the Meighen Government is at present imposing on the people of Canada. As a matter of fact, the amount per capita that each man and woman has to contribute is much greater than these figures indicate, for it must be remembered that children and others unable to contribute toward their own living pay nothing.

The Meighen administration is doing nothing to lessen this burden or to distribute it in a fair and equitable manner. There is a vast field for their energies in the development of the natural resources of the country along proper lines, and the securing of all the advantages which these resources contain. At vilifying and misrepresenting their political opponents Mr. Meighen and his associates are adepts, but they are utterly unable to bring forward any policy of reconstruction which will relieve the present acute situation, and make for the restoration of the country to its normal state of prosperity. All that has been attempted are tinkering efforts to economize in directions that are of little or no advantage to the general welfare. So far as he finances of the country are concerned, there has been much straining at gnats and swallowing of camels among the members of the so-called Union cabinet, but no real progress has been made in alleviating the conditions which are at present unsettling the industries of the country, and piling up its expenditure. Pelion on Ossa has alone resulted from the recklessness and extravagance of Mr. Meighen and his conglomerate government.

THE REVIVAL OF CRICKET.

There is an effort being made to revive the game of cricket in St. Thomas. Some of the prominent residents of St. Thomas are old cricketers. We wish them complete success. It is the best of all games, and is of great educational value. Toronto is the best place in Canada for cricket, and several of the schools are doing much to encourage the game. One young Londoner, Ross Somerville, son of ex-Mayor Somerville, is the best all-round cricketer and athlete at Ridley College, St. Catharines. He is the best bat and best bowler there. When the Western University is comfortably settled on its new site there will be room for all good games, and cricket should not be overlooked, but London should not wait till then to revive cricket. There are some of the old cricketers still left, Jack Gillean, George B. Harris, Mr. Saunders, Hon. R. M. Meredith, Dr. Hadley Williams, Dr. McLaren, the cricketers at the asylum, Hon. C. S. Hyman and others. Mr. Hyman played against the English eleven when they played in London, and caught out W. G. Grace, the best bat in England in his day. London had then a good cricket club, but most of the players have either removed from the city or are dead. Two other young London cricketers of that day played against the English eleven, Charlie Shaw and Gib. M. McLean, but both have been dead for some years.

We would like to see a revival of cricket in London and have, as was once the case, a boys' cricket club in every section of the city. We would like the game to be taken up by the Collegiate Institute and the Western University. The moral effect will be very great.

Cricket is pure English. It is a game a man can play till he is old. It furnished many of the soldiers of England and Scotland in the great war. Objection has sometimes been made that it is an all-day game. That objection lessens, when other games are considered, and as people are learning to take a reasonable amount of leisure time for sports and travel. Cricket is a game Canada needs, and the whole world needs, because it teaches a better manliness and requires the greatest skill to play it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The canker worm of Toryism is squirming under the spray-gun of Liberalism.

Despite the fact that prohibition is now in force there are still quite a number of liquor cases in evidence.

OTHERS' VIEWS

THE KILLING OF BIRDS.

[Montreal Herald.]

The British plumage bill will become law shortly. It has passed through the House of Commons, has been read the third time in the House of Lords, and now only awaits the formality of the royal assent.

The bill has had a stormy passage; but even in a parliament in which business intersts are strongly represented, humanitarian principles have triumphed over the opposition of the feather trade. The plumage bill group in the House of Commons have carried the British public with them in their claim that the killing of any wild bird merely for the decoration of women's hats is not only a cruel act, but in view of the utility of bird life in the scheme of nature, an anti-social act.

The bill forbids (with certain specified exceptions) the importation into the United Kingdom of birds for millinery purposes. The birds whose plumage may be imported under the act include the eider duck and the African ostrich—and the trade in ostrich feathers has always been regarded as a perfectly harmless and legitimate branch of business.

Is Canada likely to follow the example of the Mother Country in this matter?

NEWSPAPER COSTS.

[Brantford Expositor.]

The reason the newspaper morgue is so full is shown by an editor who has been investigating the cause of so many newspaper demises. He figures out that in 1907 wages were at 100. In 1914 they had advanced to 178, and in 1921 the figure was 393. Newsprint from 100 jumped to 177 in 1914, and to 623 in 1921. Newspaper postage, which cost the normal of 100 in 1907, was 147 in 1914, and 337 in 1921. In was 100 in 1907, 200 in 1914, and today stands at 831. Editorial expense jumped from 100 in 1907 to 120 in 1914, and 241 in 1921. Miscellaneous expenses went from 100 in 1907 to 125 in 1914, and to 244 in 1921. Taking the average of all newspaper costs, it was found that while the average in 1907 was 100, in 1914 it was 159, and in 1921 it reached the high mark of 411. It is not surprising with such figures that over 4,000 newspaper publications have gone out of existence in the United States, and a corresponding number in Canada.

JAZZ MUSIC AND CUBIST ART.

[Toronto Telegram.]

Jazz music has had its day. According to the Sheet Music Dealers' Association the once popular jazz has lost its grip and is fast sinking into obscurity.

It is not surprising that jazz is on the down-grade—the wonder is that such a grotesque imitation of music should have been tolerated so long.

Jazz music ante-dates the Great War, but it blossomed during the days when men's minds were overburdened with catastrphic events that jazz music seemed to provide a sort of safety valve for overcharged emotions—as a good cry often relieves the over-wrought nerves of a tired woman.

There was more psychology than music in the jazz regime. Future generations may marvel at an age advanced in so many ways which delighted to dance and sing to the accompaniment of cow bells, sandpaper, police whistles and automobile horns.

It is at least as easily explained by futurism and cubist art, which offends the artistic eye much the same as jazz jars the musical ear.

A HUN DECISION.

[Vancouver Province.]

One point established on the authority of the German court is that the sinking of the hospital ship and slaughter of victims in the boats was in itself a capital crime. The officers escaped conviction for murder because the judge held that the crime was not premeditated. The court seems to have decided that this butchery was not a wanton murder, but an act of panic, induced by fear that the victims might escape and give evidence. The submarine officers have no reason to be proud of this verdict. Even the German court agrees that the submarine warfare against hospital ships was criminal brutality, and the officers only escape sentence for murder by the conviction of manslaughter tempered with cowardice. They are allowed to live, but are sentenced to everlasting and universal contempt.

A LAW UNTO HIMSELF.

[Montreal Herald.]

Billy Hughes, the Australian premier, is, so to speak, a law unto himself, and his countrymen are constantly amused by his original sayings and doings. Many and varied are the anecdotes told of this outspoken labor leader. He is full of humor, and is always ready "to spill the beans" when occasion demands. Wherever he is the atmosphere is full of electricity, and when first he blew into the Old Country the statesmen of the old school could not size him up at all. In his more human moments, when not engaged in calling his opponents hard names, he delights in "leg-pulling"—an art which, as many who met the "Diggers" when they were in London can testify is greatly favored by Australians. At a dinner party the other evening Mr. Hughes told the guests how, when he was to be presented at court, he was carefully coached by his friend, Bonar Law; being instructed as to the manner in which he was to approach his majesty, kiss the royal hand, and so forth. Owing to Mr. Hughes' deafness, Bonar was a little anxious as the time for the presentation drew near, fearing that his instructions might have been imperfectly comprehended. "Are you feeling anxious?" he inquired, as he stood at Billy's elbow. "Not a bit of it," was the answer; "but I'm hanged if I like the idea of the King having to kiss my hand." B. L. gasped, but as the moment had arrived for the prime minister to go forward, there was no time for fresh explanations. However, everything went well; Billy had quite understood his intructions, and had merely been "pulling the leg" of B. L. But the latter afterwards confessed that he experienced several anxious moments ere the ceremony was completed.

THE HIP IS SAFE.

[Hamilton Herald.]

It is officially stated that officers whose duty it is to enforce the prohibition law have no legal right to hold up travelers entering Ontario and search their pockets for hidden flasks. But it is stated that the officers are authorized to search a traveler's baggage in their hunt for the forbidden thing.

And so the minions of the law may not manhaul a traveler and go through his pockets. That is something. It is a concession to personal liberty and the right of citizens to be unmolested so long as they behave themselves.

And suppose a traveler does carry a flask in his hip pocket? Many very good men—and women too—have long been accustomed to take a little spirits with them when they travel, for medicinal use in case of emergency. What harm is there in that? Even if the "medicine" is carried in a suitcase, if there be only a small quantity of it, it should not be liable to seizure, nor should the traveler be treated as a lawbreaker.

With time, perhaps, the enforcement of the prohibitory law will be tempered more and more with common sense and humane consideration.

POETRY AND JEST

A VERY OPEN LETTER TO MR. TROTZKY.

[C. L. F. in New York Sun.]

Mr. Trotzky, you and Lenine have remarked, I understand,
That you'll Bolshevize our country—even got your posters planned;
And you'll take our wives and children for the welfare of the mass,
Taking, too, our home and money and our flowers and our grass.

Mr. Trotzy, you are thoughtful to have planned for us this way;
You're a mighty busy feller, Bolshevickin' every day;
So we're giving you this tipsky—better study it as such—
We've a home-made Yankee government, and like it very much.

We are just a bit old-fashioned when it comes to wife and home—
And a man who tried to swipe 'em might get dotted on the dome.
As to property and money, while we haven't such a "slew,"
We will keep it as we have it, if it's all the same to you.

We're fed up on all your theories, and your worthless, workless dope,
All your schemes to wreck ambition, plans to bury faith and hope.
In conclusion, briefly speaking, we have only this to say:
"Mr. Trotzky, take your plotzky clear to hellovitch and stay!"

HE DIDN'T WANT IT.

[Exchange.]

A well-known judge, who had the reputation of being a "bon vivant," was one day trying a case in which there was a dispute about a water supply. Having just partaken of a hearty luncheon, he began to nod suspiciously during counsel's long-winded arguments. Suddenly the barrister thundered out:

"What we want, my lord, is water!"

"Very little in mine, please, very little in mine," cried his lordship, starting up anxiously.

Several people had the bad taste to chuckle loudly.

IN AN OLD STREET.

[David Morton.]

The twilight gathers here like brooding thought,
Haunting each shadowed dooryard and its door
With gone, forgotten beauty that was wrought
Of hands and hearts that come this way no more.
Here an intenser quiet stills the air
With old remembering of what is not:
Of silver slippers gone from every stair,
And silver laughter long and long forgot.

Deeper and deeper where this dusk is drifted,
Gathers a sense of waiting through the night,
About old doors whose latch is never lifted,
And dusty windows vacant of a light.
Deeper and deeper, till the grey turns blue,
And one by one the patient stars peer through.

[Exchange.]

He was an optimistic soul and a sportsman. His pals, whom he infected with his enthusiasm, followed his tips blindly, with more often than not disastrous results.

"See what you've done," wailed one of his friends after a race. "And you told me I could put my shirt on that horse."

"And did you?"

"Yes—worse luck."

"Well, then," replied the optimistic sportsman, "see the money you'll save on laundry bills."

What's In a Book?

By Kathleen K. Bowker.

Ida A. R. Wylie, who wrote "Towards Morning," and that dominating book, "Children of Storm," as well as a score of short stories that are a delight to the ear and eye of the reader, has tempted fate and the publisher (that latter has succumbed), with a volume entitled, "Rogues and Company." (Copp, Clark & Co. Toronto).

The basic idea—a young man who received a blow on the head that caused him to lose his memory; who woke to find himself wearing an English thief's clothes, and a French count's identity—might live to be amusing. Instead, the amusement and interest die out in a few pages. The dialogue is poor, the complications foolish, and entirely unconvincing, and the characters, not only puppets jerked by strings, but defaced puppets, jerked by visible strings, that have knots and flaws in them. The preposterous plot upon which "Bulldog Drummond" was founded, was so well handled by "Sapper" that while one was reading the book, one could honestly pretend that it was true; and the diction was so clever and funny that even when one did not believe the tale, one enjoyed it. But this—O, dear, Miss Wylie, do not trade too hard upon the dictum of that American magazine editor (a Hearst man by the way—characteristic?) who advised "until you have made a name for yourself, you must do only first-class work—after that, you can put over all the mediocre stuff you like."

"Galusha the Magnificent."

Just fancy anybody starting a child with the name of Galusha! Especially when they were forced to end him with Bangs. If it had been a girl, there would have been the hope of marriage, but for a boy—!

And at that, they wanted to make him a banker. Fate, however, had a kindly thought for the hardly-named one and turned him into an Egyptologist over night. Then she went right on, and plied unearned increment all over his bank account—of which he made no immediate use, and then for a time she forgot him.

Left to his own resources, Galusha got the flu, and a spot on his lung. Also an order from the doctor for a restful year next to nature. Having previously received an invitation to stay with some friends down Cape Cod way, and forgetting that it was a year old, he set off, unannounced, to accept it. After a series of damp and depressing adventures, he might have succumbed to hunger and cold, had not Miss Martha Pratt almost mistaking him for the cat upon her doorstep, brought him right in, and made him feel at home. Miss Pratt—(salt of the earth, with a heart of gold—tho' a salted heart does not sound nearly as warm and wholesome as Martha's was!), needed a boarder, and Mr. Bangs needed a landlady. In this particular relationship, they adapted themselves to one another, like the hammer to the nail. Miss Martha was certainly the driving force, but Galusha had great staying power. But even with the assistance of a star boarder, Miss Pratt's financial affairs were getting into a bad way. The investments that her sea-faring father had bequeathed to her were a dead weight on her "current account." Miss Martha was not the sort of person who would threaten a banker with the removal of her overdraft if he did not accommodate her with collateral. She would sell her house first—her beloved, cheery cottage, where she had kept house for that revered father for so many happy years, before he set sail upon the longest voyage of all.

Galusha, meantime, who was a big ornament in his own archaeological niche, was looked upon as very small beer indeed by the Wellmouth-ians. He was absent-minded, his trousers bagged at the knees, his suit was more worn than brushed, his hat a misfit, and his favorite outdoor sport was "nosing about" in the graveyard. Galusha, however, was also a modest and friendly soul, with a big heart that was full of gratitude to Miss Martha for the care by which she had made a new man of him.

Kind hearts may be more than coronets; but they are far less obvious to those who have backed up against nature so long that they have become mossbacked themselves.

So when Miss Martha, in an unnerved moment, and never thinking that her boarder had any moneyed interests, explained that her only hope of financial salvation was to sell some shares that her Dad had left her, that possibly had "a future" fifty years ahead, Galusha persuaded her to let him put them in his pocket, and took the next train to Boston, to interview his clever banker cousin as to their possible disposal.

The banker cousin (who had charge of all Galusha's dollars and cents happaned to be lotus-landing in California.

Galusha never intended to do it, but as he knew that Miss Martha could not be persuaded to accept a loan from him, and as he was not good at contriving ways and means, he just bought the shares himself and hid them away, being dreadfully ashamed of the transaction. It involved the poor little man in a host of ridiculous lies, and not being used to deception he was fearfully clumsy about it, as well as horribly ashamed of himself. So finally, when his banker cousin returned from the far west and came hot foot down to see what he had done with the money——!

There's a real heart touch in this little book, as well as some honest-to-goodness Cape Cod folks, and a "needjum" who works in the most approved manner of the self-inspired. The account of the last "See-ance" is a bit of masterly writing, comedy and tragedy jostling one another.

There are two love affairs and a grand finale; a lot of smiles tucked away between the pages, and a wholesome flavor to it all.

THE SILVER LINING

By Fullerton Waldo.

SILVER LININ 6..6.. .. ....

THE QUITTER.

The quitter is first cousin to the slacker. He is the vertical next-door neighbor to a worm.

There was a wise man of Stamford, Conn., named Sam Fessenden, of whom one saying chiefly is remembered:

"God Almighty hates a quitter."

Man, made in God's image, hates a quitter too.

The quitter sees a ramping, roaring lion in the way, when you and I know that it's good old Beppo, the harmless house dog, flagging welcome with his tail.

The quitter loves to raise objections—and these are all he ever raises. When other folks have called a meeting to plan a forward move of the utmost urgency, he gives his hand and voice for a paralysis of action till some vaguely distant day, when the chance that is now so vital will be rotting in its grave.

And when things go wrong with something that was started, he is the first to pull out and leave the punishment to the rest. When those who stuck have won, he wants to come back and take what was earned in spite of his withdrawal.

Give me for a friend the fellow who hangs on till it is good skating on the Styx—who, with a wrecked plow and a spavined horse, plows the furrow through to the end—and who finishes what he starts—who, as a friend or fellow-workman, is faithful down to death.

NO. 12—GASPE AND PERCE.

Canada is big enough to provide Little Trips by the score, if not the hundred. Some of the objective places are familiar and accessible; some are off the beaten tracks and therefore all the more worthy of a visit.

Such a corner of Canada is Gaspe and Perce. They go together, even if thirty miles or so apart; but that is only a trifle of distance, in this land of distances. You'll find the two towns on the map of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the Bay of Chaleur and on the Quebec shore of the Bay, and they can be reached by boat from Montreal or Quebec or by a railway connecting with the Intercolonial, now the Canadian National at Metapedia.

Take Gaspe first, a bright and picturesque little town at the head of Gaspe Basin, and near the high cliffs of the peninsula that defiantly face the Atlantic and its bombarding breezes. It was in this area that Jacques Cartier made his first landing on Canadian soil in 1534 and took possession of the country in the name of the King of France. A century later, a French fleet was destroyed by the English and again in 1760, the town was captured by Commodore Byron. With this historic background, Gaspe is full of interest as its rivers are full of salmon and its forests of game.

But Perce, the home of "Le Rocher Perce" or the Pierced Rock, is the dramatic feature of the Bale des Chaleurs—the Bay of Heat, as Cartier named it. A mile or so from the mainland is a mighty mass of red sandstone, three hundred feet high and fifteen hundred feet long, rising out of the sea like a stranded ocean liner stripped of masts and funnels. It gets its name from a huge tunnel, fifty feet high, made by the waves. On the roof of the rock are thousands of sea birds, gulls, cormorants and gannets, whose shrill cries fill the air.

Facing Perce Rock is Mt. Ste. Anne, surmounted by a cross as a guide to the mariner, while steep cliff walls protect the two beaches of the little fishing hamlet with their clusters of fishermen's cottages; artists haunt the place and many a canvas is the result.

The visitor will find much to hold his interest, among the French-speaking fishing folk of the place—much that is picturesque and quaint with a background of striking scenery and mountain paths for the climber. Above all, there is the sea with its tang and tonic, the miles of tide-washed sand beaches and the old-fashioned farms bordering the highway.

Gaspe and Perce will make an ideal Little Trip and both will live up to this recommendation.

LACKEY—MURRELL.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Murrell, Thorndale, on Wednesday, July 27, when their only daughter, Laura Jane, was united in marriage to Roy Lackey of Thamesford. The bride, who was given away by her father, was dressed in ivory georgette trimmed with hand embroidery and gold braid, and wore the conventional bridal veil caught with a bandeau of pearls. The bridal bouquet was of Ophelia roses and maidenhair fern.

Little Ruth Thompson, the only attendant, made a dainty flower girl, dressed in a frilly white organdy frock, and carrying a basket of sweet peas. The ceremony took place under a latticed arch, beautifully decorated with myrtle and white phlox and banked with ferns, and was performed by Rev. C. W. Baker of Thamesford. During the signing of the register, Miss Mabel Carroll of London sang "Until."

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl sunburst; to the flower girl, a pearl and turquoise ring, and to the pianist, a gold brooch. The bride's gift to the groom was gold sleeve links. After congratulations, the guests, numbering about 50, were served with a dainty wedding breakfast by six ladies, the Misses Hazel Murrell, Myrtle Murrell, Margaret Murrell, and Mildred Thompson, cousins of the bride, and the Misses Blanche Walters and Rosa Patterson, cousins of the groom. The happy couple left by motor for Sarnia and other points, the bride traveling in a navy tricotine suit with grey hat. Just before leaving the bride threw her bouquet among the young ladies, it being caught by Miss Myrtle Murrell. The presents were numerous and costly, among them being a substantial check from the bride's father. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Lackey will reside on the groom's farm near Thamesford, and will be at home to their friends after August 1.

XXXIX.—What Mary Saw.

Mary, back at her office desk, had been working hard all day.

She had no time to even think of Dick, so great the pressure of her work had been.

When the clock struck four she rose, carried her pile of letters into the inner office, and stood waiting for the signature of her "chief."

"You look fagged out. I'd advise you to go straight home and rest. I can attend to all this stuff myself. There's nothing really important for you to wait for." Carrington Bellairs looked keenly at the girl. "In a day or two I'll require you at my country place. The air there is exactly what you need—and in the mornings we'll get through a heap of business."

He dismissed her.

Mary, relieved, put on her hat and coat and gloves and left the office.

There was some shopping that she wished to do. She would be in time—provided that she hurried—to make her purchases before the large shops closed.

The streets looked dark and dreary, and the traffic was enormous.

Mary boarded a bus that was going west, climbed to the roof and drank in the cold, damp evening air.

Her thoughts drifted to Dick, and then to Eve Rochester. Poor Eve—who surely cared for young Calardin. Eve had said cruel things last night; but then Eve, caught in the throes of unrequited love, had been unstrung and unhappy. Mary therefore forgave her much.

At Thirty-fourth street she descended.

There was a big jam in the traffic here—a long line of vehicles held up. A taxicab pulled up close to Mary. Light from the lamp above her streamed across it, illuminating clearly its two occupants—a man and a fair-haired girl, with heads pressed close together, kissing.

Mary recognized the girl, Eve Rochester, and her companion, Julian Vandaveer!

Mary's fleeting glimpse filled her with a queer mixture of astonishment and indignation.

Eve was a fraud! That damsel's alleged affection for Dick Calardin was a chimera! If actually there was an engagement between herself and Dick—a statement that Mary had always found it hard to credit—then Eve was acting most dishonorably in permitting herself to be made love to by another man.

"How can she?" thought simple-hearted Mary, mentally comparing Dick's attractions with the artificiality of Vandaveer.

A girl like Mary—honest, true, sincere—couldn't possibly understand the psychology of an Eve.

She wended her way through the crowds, her mind in chaos. But behind her criticism of Eve there lurked an immense relief. Mary's conscience need no longer check her for encouraging Dick's attentions. Eve couldn't possibly care for him—had never really cared at all.

Mary made her modest purchases and proceeded homeward. Long lines of people waited for the buses. Then as each vehicle drew up, they all dashed out of line and struggled desperately to get aboard.

Mary was jostled at each succeeding venture.

How huge this city was! How heedless were the crowds!

And yet there was a fascination in the pulsing life of it.

All roads led to New York. The ambitious man, the genius, inevitably drifted here. The failure, too.

Mary had an immense, welling pity in her tender heart for failures—New York's might-have-beens!

If only she had money she would help them.

The traffic was enormous on this chilly, early winter evening. Taxis by the hundreds skidded and hooted on the oily paving. Mary idly studied the faces of the multitude.

For the most part they were serious, preoccupied. Their cares were written for the understanding eye to read.

Were human beings really meant to live in a great, crowded city, where competition was intense, where one must fight and elbow for a living, much as the waiting mobs were elbowing for a foothold on the home-going bus?

Miss Mary wondered.

Tomorrow—Home?

WASHING SILK STOCKINGS.

Silk stockings should be washed by themselves, and if white or colored, apart from black or other colored ones. In fact, the easiest way to do them is a pair at a time in the wash basin of the bathroom, and it is a wise economy to wash them out at night rather than to let the perspiration and soil of a day's wear dry in them over night. Silk should not be soaked nor boiled nor rubbed with strong soaps nor subjected to very hot water. For black silk stockings use warm waters with a good suds from some mild white soap. Rinse well in clear warm water, at least twice, wring out and dry out-of-doors if possible. White silk stockings are very likely to go yellow with washing unless a little mild bleaching agent, such as borax or hyposuphite of soda, about a teaspoonful to a quart of water, is used, and, of course, only white soap. In the last rinsing a little pale bluing helps to keep the clear white color desired. For colored silk stockings, use soap substitutes, such as bran or soap bark dissolved in cool water; after washing the stockings add a little salt to the water before wringing them out of it. Salt hardens the water as well as sets the color of the stockings; therefore they can be better washed before the salt is added. Use half a cupful of salt to enough water to cover the stockings well. Silk stockings need not be ironed if they are carefully hung to dry and are smoothed by hand when taken in. If ironed, they should not be subjected to great heat; a damp cheesecloth between the iron and the silk helps to protect the silk fibre.

Personal Health Service

(By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D., Noted Physician and Author.)

Anhedonia Series. II.—Take a Bracer Every Hour.

Splanchnic anhedonia, which, as every schoolboy knows, is the incapacity to enjoy life associated with sagging abdominal organs, is pretty generally induced or at least favored by a slumpy posture. If you will stop and look about and visualize your cheerful, happy, good-natured acquaintances, you will find that they are all fairly well set up, they carry themselves well, they have a good posture. On the other hand recall the slumpy, slouchy, weak, ungainly posture of your sad, gloomy, melancholic or unhappy friends. Is good posture an expression, merely, of vigor, health and cheerful mindedness, or is health of body and mind a state more or less dependent upon good posture? Of course the answer to this question is a matter of opinion. In my opinion good posture is rather the determinant of the physical and mental health that assures happiness. I am no believer in that popular injunction "smile and be happy." To my mind you have got to be happy in order to register a real smile. And happiness is health.

In recommending half a dozen or more somersaults on the floor, or on a mattress or mat or pillows, each night and morning, as a prophylactic against stagnation of the splanchnic pool and the long train of evils suffered therefrom, I have specified the importance of coming up smiling. Some correspondents of twenty, forty or sixty have written me painful letters asking how in somewhere a person can come up smiling if he is so dizzy and sick he can't get outa bed for a week after the first attempt at somersaults. You see—that is what false dignity and neglect of physical education will do to you.

Bearing in mind, then, children, what I told you the other day about the three-inch lift one can give a sagging stomach or some other organ by merely contracting the abdominal muscles and lifting up the chest, and remembering also the pumping effect on the splanchnic pool produced by vigorous contraction of the abdominal muscles (such as occurs in a hearty laugh), it should not be difficult for us to comprehend the good health value of the habit of taking an hourly bracer, a little something to drive away the willies, a sort of an organized stretch, if you know what I mean.

Although it is best, if possible, to stand up for this hourly bracer, a fairly good bracer may be taken sitting or even lying down. Study your automatic actions, or those of your friends, while naturally laughing and while unconsciously stretching, and strive to imitate those muscular actions in your hourly bracer. Bad business, very bad, to wait for the end of the seventh inning to take a bracer. Most everybody needs one at least every inning. Study your own muscle sensations while you assume a perfectly erect posture standing vigorously at attention, and strive to put all those muscles into action for a moment—no time at all—every hour. Every time the clock strikes take your bracer—drawing the chest well up, chin well in, crown as high as you can reach, toes a little in, shoulders down and back, thumbs out, palms forward, knees stiff, and most particularly of all efface the "stomach."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Fishskin.

My elbows and arms are scaly, dry and dirty looking no matter how much I wash them. It is worse in colder weather, but bad enough in summer. Please suggest something I can use for this. (O. A. M.)

Ans.—Salicylic acid, 30 grains; powdered bezoin, 20 grains; absolute alcohol, 15 drops; oil of sesame, 4 ounces.

This is to be digested three hours over a water-bath, then filtered. A few drops may be applied to the roughened skin once or twice daily.

Attention, Ribbon Grass.

Dear Miss Grey,—Am sending the words of "Golden Gate" (which was asked for) and "The Dying Cowboy" for whoever wants it. And if Ribbon Grass will send me her address and some stalks I can send her a few slips of a Lady Washington plant.

I also am a bookworm, but have no time now to be discussing them. I would like to get the words and music of the following pieces if anyone could send them to me: "Where the Flies Go," "Just Like a Gypsy" and "The Lovely War." I will change my pen name, as I have not wrote very often yet, and do not like it at all. I don't know why I ever gave myself that name. Well I'll come again (if I have not worn my welcome out this time), and bring some help. DIPPIE.

Ans.—Thank you, Dipple, for inclosures. Please do not change your pen names, when it can be avoided, as it is very confusing.

Wants Patterns.

Dear Miss Grey,—I have intended to write to you for quite a while but could not think of what to write.

I find your column very interesting and helpful. I am inclosing a few patterns. The edging in blue is very sweet worked round a centrepiece, and the smaller one is very pretty for the top of a nightgown, the diamond is pretty for a baby's yoke, and the spider-web is also very pretty for a yoke. I wonder if you would mind sending me the star, rose and bluebird pattern? I would appreciate it very much.

I can't think of anything else to write. I will close, wishing you and your helpful column every success and hoping to receive those patterns.

BESS OF PALESTINA.

Ans.—The patterns you ask for are not in the Mail-Box. Many thanks, Bess, for patterns inclosed.

Wants Books.

Dear Miss Grey,—Here I am again. It is a long time since I wrote, but have enjoyed the letters very much. Will you kindly send me A Wife's address, also the address of the Boxite who said she had a lot of Blue Books to give away. I will gladly pay postage if she will send me some. I am nearly a shut-in myself. Hardly able to walk sometimes. If you have A Musician's address, can I have it, too, Miss Grey? Kindly excuse my awful writing as it seems an awful job to hold the pen still. If the lady who had the sick baby (I think she signed herself Uneasy) will give him a little orange juice each day I think it will very likely help him. Inclosed find mite. JEFF'S WIFE.

Ans.—Am mailing you Musician's and Wife's addresses. Will the Boxite who offered Blue Books send them to Jeff's Wife? Thank you for hospital mite.

Rhubarb Jam.

Dear Miss Grey,—Must write and ask you to thank Sardonyx for the nice parcel she sent me. I should have written before, but have been busy. My berries have ripened very quickly, so I have been picking and canning. This is a very busy time of year. I am sure Sardonyx has felt the heat hoeing corn I have, also over the stove with the berries, but they taste good when we cannot pick them. It is very kind of Sardonyx to think of me again, and I have found the things very useful. Have any of the Boxites made rhubarb jam my way? Perhaps they would try it. Get good ripe rhubarb and wash and wipe dry, then cut in lengths, and to every pound add a section of candied peel, citron, lemon and orange and a pound of sugar. Boil for one hour and put in sealers. It will keep any length of time, and is good to taste. I suppose Mary Pickford's double has given the baby clothes away. I did not get an answer to my letter, or perhaps she is too busy to bother. I have noticed quite a number of Boxites have asked for my address, but I have heard nothing of them. They may want to think of me in the future. Find inclosed a dime for the hospital. I am sure, Miss Grey, your corner is a great help to many. I had better close or I may take up too much space. Hoping you are well. I am yours, TRULY NEEDY.

Ans.—Thank you, Truly Needy, for hospital mite, also for recipe, which I am sure would be very good.

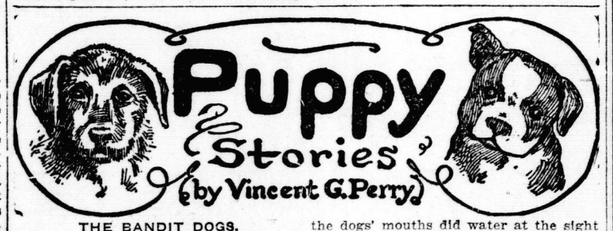
SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentry and colic are most prevalent. Any one of these troubles may prove deadly if not properly treated. During the summer the mothers' best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.



THE BANDIT DOGS.

Part Seven.

It was not many days before the bandit dogs came to the end of their day's journey in front of a large home near the outskirts of the city.

"I am sure there must be plenty to eat here," Riggles told his fellow-bandits. "I smell the remnants of a feast."

Sure enough, a great wedding feast had been held at that house that day, and there were many costly meats left over and put safely away in the pantry.

"We'll have to have some of them," Riggles declared.

"Don't you think it rather mean to steal from a wedding feast?" little Cha spoke up. "It might bring unhappiness to the bride and groom, and no doubt they are very fine people."

"I never thought of that," Riggles said regretfully. "I don't believe in stealing from really nice people."

"Perhaps though there are some rare bits thrown out," Rolf suggested. "Let's go to see."

The other dogs assented readily to accompany him, and they set out very cautiously for that part of the yard that was nearest to the kitchen.

"Shh," Riggles gave a little cry of warning. The four dogs crouched by the side of the house. Just at that very minute a man servant from the house carried out a huge pan of scraps—such meaty, juicy scraps, too. How the dogs' mouths did water at the sight and smell of such dainties. They watched him with eyes wide open. The thing had happened before the dogs knew what the servant was going to do. He threw those good scraps into a little stove that was in the yard for burning garbage.

What a disappointed lot of dogs they were when the servant departed for the house.

Quite carefully the three larger dogs started off for the pantry while little Cha sat on guard. No sooner had they rounded the corner of the house than something darted at them. Riggles, first in the line, was the first to meet the attack. He tried to bite, but he was bumped and battered about. Rolf and Tige tried to catch hold of this big white monster who had attacked their leader, but they were bunted, too.

"Now then, scoot for your lives," cried the monster. It was none other than Billy the house goat. And the three dogs did scoot, and little Cha, who had escaped the attacks, scooted with them. How the old goat did laugh at their fright.

Once safe outside Riggles stopped running and turned to bark at Billy the goat. "He thinks he has saved the pantry, doesn't he? He hasn't at all, we'll be back," he declared.

JUST BETWEEN US

(BY SEE S. GEE)

"I have made it a rule that any player who deliberately strikes an umpire shall not play in this league the remainder of the season. I told "Buzz," and made the suspension indefinite so Crichlow could play in another league, and offered to help him secure a berth. I now find he thought I might lift the suspension; hence the failure to inform you. Probably I made a mistake in letting Morrisette back the time he hit Brichter. Personally, I like Crichlow, and will find him a position if he wants to work. I told "Buzz" I would lift Crichlow's suspension the day he got another job in another league."

The foregoing is an excerpt of a letter sent the London club by President Maines of the Mint League, a copy of which was mailed The Advertiser at the same time.

It leaves no room for doubt as to the president's intentions with regard to the suspension of Crichlow. The old gauntlet is rather down, and in full view of anyone that cares to take a look at it. The London club hahs already taken the old glove up, and is going to fight the case along constitutional lines, it is believed.

President Maines, in his communication, goes on to ask for a square deal for himself from the press of London. He points out that he has had a very rough row to hoe this season, but that he has kept the league intact, and that it is rank ingratitude to harp on this Crichlow case, when his mind is made up.

President Maines undoubtedly does deserve credit for keeping the league going through two precarious seasons and achieving an immense amount of publicity for the organization, one must admit whether one has always considered the means the most dignified and the most lasting.

However, if President Maines had decided on such strict disciplinary measures, his first step should have been the publication of a bulletin of warning to the league in general that in future any assault on an umps would mean expulsion from the league. This was never done.

The London players, the London club, the London fans and the London press have always been fair to Michigan-Ontario League umpires. Umpires have had less trouble in London than any other city on the circuit, the three seasons' records will show, and that is saying a good deal for London forbearance, considering some of the umpires and the work they've done while working here.

But opinion is unanimous in London with regard to DeLave. Without overhearing any of his insulting remarks to players, his scathing opinions of Canadians, his demeanor on the diamond was enough to convince London fans just what kind of a man DeLave is. A collection of typical DeLave remarks from around the circuit fit in too well, both together and with the man himself, to be just spite work on the part of players.

No baseball law is big enough to stop any red-blooded player from resenting such remarks as DeLave is said to have continually made throughout his sojourn in Canada.

President Maines should take into account London's unanimity when it comes to an opinion of DeLave as an umps or man or anything else.

If he prefers to ignore criticism that has been levelled at DeLave for good and just cause, London's good record, both as players and fans in its treatment of umpires, and last, but by no means least, London fans threats to boycott the park and stand behind Crichlow, for which mob opinion there must be good reason, then President Maines stamps himself as at once unfit for the position he holds.

That George Sisler of the St. Louis team, who was indefinitely suspended by President Ban Johnson, will be back in the game today, is a significant contrast to President Maine's attitude.

Sisler attacked Umpire Hildebrand twice, each time putting the umps down for the count. Sisler had never broken loose before, and the early lifting of his suspension had already been freely foretold.

This will be the first time a title has ever been awarded in this way, and will bring to the notices of boxers and managers more forcibly than ever the power of these commissions, which, in many instances, are still looked upon as only formal bodies.

U. OF T. JUNIORS WIN AT HENLEY REGATTA

Argonaut Crew Was Second—Argos Also Win Junior Fours.

ST. CATHARINES, July 29.—The junior eights final was won after a stirring race by University of Toronto crew, stroked by G. W. Smart. Argonauts crew was second; Lachines of Montreal, third; Detroit, fourth, and Hamilton, fifth.

The five crews got away with Lachines, Argonauts and Detroit boats running perilously near together on the one side, and Hamilton and Varsity crews together on the other side, but presently they got straightened out and with plenty of room and gradually the Varsity crew began to ease away from Hamilton, which hung on tenaciously for a time. The other three crews were racing neck and neck. The Varsity boat increased its lead and finished three lengths in front of Argos. The gun popped three time in quick succession for Lachines, Detroit and Hamilton. Varsity's time was 7:11 2-5.

In a furious contest Detroit's eight crew defeated Toronto, Ottawa, Argonauts and Lachines of Montreal.

Lachines picked up the lead at the start, but by a superhuman effort. Detroit came up and passed them half way down the course.

The other three boats were hanging on like leeches and it was a race to the very end, the only crew really out of it up to the very last being the Argonauts. Detroit crossed the line half a length ahead of the Varsity crew in 7:16 2-5, with Lachines right behind and Ottawa racing for third place, too. The Argonauts came in a length behind Ottawa.

In the junior doubles, Moran and Walters of Don Rowing Club, Toronto, defeated Allison and Lewis of Argos. Their time was 9:53 1-5.

In the junior fours, the Argonaut crew, stroked by Lewis, won handily from Buffalo Westsides and Ottawa crews, finishing about two lengths of open water ahead of the Buffalo crew. Westsides made for the Argonauts' flag in the turn and there was almost a collision, but the mixup was not sufficient to stop the boats. In the straightening out for the home stretch the Argos got away well ahead of the Bisons, who hung on to the end. Ottawa finished a length behind Buffalo. Argo's time was 9 minutes 39 2-5 seconds.

Yank Wins Singles.

Edward McGuire of Buffalo won the junior singles final. It was a popular victory. He steered erratically all the way and before long was away across the course. McGuire performed the surprising feat of crossing zigzag in front of Swain of Brockville.

Owing to the big entry in the senior singles it was the intention to row this race in two heats today with the final tomorrow, but McGuire of Buffalo and Hayes of Hamilton dropped out, following their battle today in the junior singles, leaving only six contestants, so the plan was changed and the race will be decided in one heat tomorrow. The six entrants are: H. A. Belyea, St. John, N. B.; R. G. Dibble, Don Rowing Club, Toronto; J. H. Durnan and W. Durnan of the Argonauts, Toronto; A. H. Stacey, Brockville, and Jack Costello, Philadelphia.

Hamilton and Sarnia-Hurons Split Double-Header.

BAY CITY, July 29.—Three big innings sufficed to give the Bay City Wolves a clean sweep of the series with Brantford, Friday's game ending 9 to 3. Both teams hit hard. Collins, who started on the mound for the Wolves, being relieved in the third after Dye had driven the ball over right field wall with one on base in the second. Bay City scored five in their half of their second after two were out, Sauer making a home run, and Herman walking the next three to fill the bases, Knoll singled, and Kelly doubled to drive in four more runs. Kelly drove the ball over the fence in the fourth with one on to score two more runs. Pitcher Noonan of the Brants was chased from the park after an argument with Umpire Cavanaugh. The score:

Second No-Hit-No-Run Game in Manufacturers' League.

Foster of the Bolt and Hosiery nine of the Manufacturers' League pitched a no-hit-no-run game against the strong G. T. R. aggregation at Queen's Park last evening. It was one of the best games of the year. This is the second game of its kind in the league this year. The winners got their only run in the third inning when Summer walked. While stealing second Catcher Crawley threw wild and he advanced to third and was brought in by Summers' hit.

Mooney Gibson's Record From Time He Stepped Off Sandlots To Poop Deck of Pirate Ship

BY A. L. "ADDIE" RICHARDSON.

George ("Mooney") Gibson, the Pirate pilot, who a few years ago was crowned as king of backstops, is one of many young Canadians who have been lured away from their native city by the hope of winning greater fame and fortune in the United States. It was 41 years ago, July 22, 1880, that big George Gibson arrived on this mundane sphere, via London, Ontario. He was initiated into the great American pastime around the sand lots at little London-in-the-Woods before he sallied forth across the international border—to become one of the greatest catchers in America, and who, on this, the anniversary of his birth, is the guiding hand and shining light on the top rung on the National League ladder. In his day "Mooney" Gibson was the "whole works" behind the bat, and he hung up a National League record of catching 150 games during the season of 1909, a record which remains unbroken in Jack Heydler's organization, and is only surpassed by Ray Schalk of the Chicago White Sox with 151 during the season of 1920. Gibson has been described as a born catcher, and at his best was the most valuable receiver in America. He always made a close study of the opposing batters, and had them card-indexed in his mind so well that he could just about dope out what each player would do—a very close student and a keen observer to the weakness of the opposition. As a manager of the Pittsburg club he has achieved wonders. From a fourth place club last season to a prospective National League winner and a battle for the world's championship with either New York or Cleveland is the work of the handsome youth from London. Here's looking at you, "Mooney"; you're a true native son, and all Canada is pulling for you to attain your cherished ambition—a world's baseball championship. May your ambition be realized.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER

Grey Lag, the Hildreth marvel, arrived at the Devonshire Park track tonight, fit to race for a king's ransom, and is named to bear colors in the piece de resistance—fifth on the card. On present form it would seem only an exercise gallop for the easterner. True, Black Servant is named and will have the services of Lyke. Personally, I believe the Bradley horse to have "gone back." If he finishes second that will about let him out. Dark Horse should be third.

The opening dash brings out Bengore, on which an exceptionally smart clique all but sunk the ship last time. I understand the same connections are right back today. All of which means that they will have a "shade" —whatever that is. Viola G. and Statim for what is left. Uncle Charlie Worthington and a coterie of "hard boots" are figuring on mopping up. With Dorothy Buckner they believe they have better than an "ace." Hence, our publicity won't hurt now, and for goodness sake, go and plank your three megs right smack on her beezer. Lillian Mae and Hysteria for what is left.

Missed the Time was an overnight commission. Lamp the gab appended by the boys at the track.

"This bird is better than ordinarily rated and can run backwards and beat the mob." Now, that kind of chatter usually brings home the bacon. Flibberty Gibbet is well placed, and if any mistakes are made she will have her number hung out first. Kirah would be better suited if the going turns muddy. In this order I fancy them. Thunderclap to cop the fourth leg. Dresden is as easily next best, though Breeze has shown smart improvement of late. Lafoundre must of necessity be given the call in the closing dash. The Gallagher boys have their horses in excellent form, and this old mare is on edge. Burgoyne and Broom Peddler should battle the issue for what is left. That's my story, and I am going to stick to it.

HAMILTON SCHOONER RETAINS GEORGE CUP

Toronto Boats Won Third Race, But Lost On Points.

HAMILTON, July 29.—Scrapper II. of Toronto won the third and last of the George Cup races here today, but the trophy remains in Hamilton, as the Nirwana finished second today, and by so doing gained a total of seven points against six scored by the Toronto boat which won two of three races, but failed to finish in the first race, and was not credited with any points as a result. Today's race was sailed in a light breeze, and the Toronto boat proved best at every turn, winning by an even larger margin than yesterday. The Nirwana managed to hold its own in the beat before the wind, but was outclassed on other parts of the course. The elapsed time was: Scrapper II., 3:08:02; Nirwana, 3:17:22; Huskie, far the greater number of shots on their opponents' goal. The three goals all came early in the first half. The lineup:

Owen Sound—Goal, Gladneath; backs, Eddie McDonald and Dick Neath; half backs, Roub Neath, Steve Stanley and Ernie Tuckwood; forwards, Bill Butler; field, Sid Simkins, Albert Dennis, Leddie Clark and Bill Heyworth.

Galt—Goal, McArty; backs, Connor and Patrick; half backs, Allan W. Bentley, Mason; forwards, Maley, Moss, H. Bentley, Hossick and Cluney.

Referee—H. W. Brown, Stratford.

The London line-up is as follows: Sanford, Homer, Scheilding, W. Donahoe, Kemp, I. Whitby, Doc. Whitby, Lankin, Hodgins, McKay, Russell, Perry and B. Smith.

MAYOR THREATENS TO PROHIBIT BOUTS

CLEVELAND, July 29.—The Cleveland Boxing Commission is preparing a statement to be sent to all state boxing commission and the national boxing commission tomorrow, reversing the decision of Referee Jimmy Gardner of Boston, and giving the middleweight championship of the world to Bryan Downey of Cleveland, J. B. Wilberding, chairman of the Cleveland Boxing Commission, announced today.

In a bout here Wednesday night Referee Gardner gave Johnny Wilson of Boston, the champion, the decision on a foul in the seventh round, claiming Downey struck Wilson while the champion was down, following two previous knockdowns.

Following the protests growing out of the Wilson-Downey bout, Mayor W. S. Fitzgerald today said.

"The next time any general protest is made against the way boxing matches are conducted here I will prohibit further bouts."

BASEBALL REVIEW.

Chicago, July 30.—Babe Ruth, baseball's home run king, has the distinction of being the first player in the major leagues to pass the century mark this season in runs scored. The American League slugger has registered 101 times for the Yankees. In the National League, Frank Frisch of the Giants leads in runs scored with 77.

Ruth has stretched his total base record to 259 bases and is batting .355.

Harry Heilmann of the Detroit Tigers was the only member of the leading seven batters to add to his mark of a week ago. He added one point, and is heading the list with .430. Ty Cobb dropped a point, but continued in second place, while Tris Speaker slumped three notches and is third with .381. S. Harris of Washington added a brace of stolen bases to his string and leads with 19. His closest rival is George Sisler, the St. Louis star, who is trailing with 16.

George Kelly of the Giants got back into his home run stride during the past week and cracked out four circuit drives, bringing his total for the season to 17.

Hornsby continues to top the National League batters, with an average of .416. Pep Young of the Giants and Cutshaw of Pittsburg are tied with .362, while McHenry of St. Louis is next with .358.

Frisch of New York, who, with 77, is high man for runs scored in the league, is out in front among the base stealers, having added two the past week. His string now is 28.

MINT PATTER

—By C. S. G.

The series which starts with a twin bill on Monday between London and the Saginaw Aces is a croocial affair, as these games will go a long way to getting either one of the teams firmly entrenched in the first position.

If London can grab the whole series off, and they are going at a pace which indicates they are not in the slough of any slump they'll be away to a fine start for the second series.

Just now the club is careening along with just a round dozen players which isn't quite good enough.

Herbst will not be away along. Bonesetter Reese doesn't take long to look an arm over, and then it's a case of the patient following instructions. The big fellow needed the attention. Although he worked his head off every time he went in, he couldn't get everything he had on the ball, and fractions of an ounce in weight count in hurling.

The Kitchener Telegraph had come out frankly and admitted a week back that Matt Kirley was through as a pitcher. Then Matt comes back this week and pitches a four or five-hit game, just by way of denial. The life of a critic is full of unseen pitfalls.

[Sarnia Observer.]

The prolonged suspension of Leslie Crichlow of the London Club for his run in with Umpire Delave is creating an undercurrent of feeling on the Mint wheel which is not at all complimentary to President Maines. Without going into the merits of this individual case, the prexy of a league is perfectly justified in suspending a player who assaults an umpire without sufficient provocation to justify the attack, but if the remarks attributed to Umpire Delave by officials of neutral clubs, who would gain nothing by the London gardener's return are true, or even partially so, the arbiter should be given the gate pronto.

OWEN SOUNDERS GET THREE-GOAL LEAD ON GALT LAST YEAR CHAMPS IN PLAY-OFF

Goals All Came Early in First Half of Contest.

OWEN SOUND, July 29.—The Owen Sound football team goes into the second game of the Western Football Association intermediate finals with a three-goal lead. Tonight they trimmed Galt 3 to 0 in a game that was fast all the way through. Owen Sound got two goals on foul backs, which the Galt goalkeeper failed to stop, and the other goal was a free gift of the Galt goalie, who caught the ball and threw it into the corner of the net. The play was very even, although Owen Sound had

FOURTH MYSTERIOUS BLAZE AT CHATHAM

Big Warehouse and Stave Plant Destroyed Last Night.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

CHATHAM, July 29.—The large plant and warehouse of the Sutherland-Innes Company on Grand avenue east with all contents was totally destroyed by fire tonight. The value of the buildings and contents is estimated at $15,000.

The cause of the fire is unknown. When a truck arrived from the central station the building was doomed. Two lines of hose were laid and played upon adjoining buildings and freight cars on a P. M. R. railway siding nearby. On one occasion poles of the hydro carrying high tension wires became ignited, but they were put out by a stream. Adjoining buildings and residences on Taylor avenue were threatened on several occasions by the flames.

The buildings, which were entirely of wood, were filled with packed staves. The building was used by the Sutherland-Innes Company as a cooperage plant and warehouse and contained valuable machinery. All the goods in the warehouse were completely destroyed.

Scores of automobiles followed the fire apparatus to the fire and at one time impeded the passage of an emergency truck of the city hydro department. Men from the truck had to force their way through to a set of transformers close to the fire in order to prevent them from being damaged from the great heat from the burning building. This makes the fourth mysterious fire in three weeks. Various theories have been advanced for each fire, but so far no solution has been found.

CLERKS' SALARIES TO BE READJUSTED

Gas Committee To Arrange Matters For Former Hydro Employees.

ST. THOMAS, July 29.—The gas committee, with Ald. Lemon presiding, arranged at its regular meeting to adjust the salaries of the clerical help taken over from the hydro-electric department, the gas collecting end of the city treasurer's office.

Misses Walker and Sanderson will be paid by the gas department and the water board will be responsible for the salary of Cecil Boughner, accountant, and Mrs. Crane in the billing department. The city treasurer was allowed an increase of $25 monthly for his additional duties and responsibilities. The city auditor's salary was placed at $120 a month.

The hydro-electric department is to allow the gas department one per cent of all collections and $350 of the sum is to be applied on account of rent. A stenographer will be supplied by Superintendent Christie at the plant at $40 a month.

Supt. Christie will attend the meeting of the gas association at Montreal and read a paper on "The Plant System." Miss Marion Taylor was appointed stenographer to Supt. Christie.

By the changes affected the gas department will save $1,500 yearly.

O. J. C. OFFICIAL'S $1,000 FINE TO BE REMITTED

TORONTO, July 29.—The conviction registered in the police court against William P. Fraser, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Jockey Club, "for having liquor for sale on the premises of the Ontario Jockey Club contrary to the Ontario temperance act," has been quashed by Judge Morson, with costs. Mr. Fraser was fined $1,000 and costs in police court, and the fine will now be remitted. The judge finds that it was not pretended that either Mr. Fraser or the club kept liquor for sale, and he assumes the Legislature did not intend that the innocent should suffer for the guilt of another.

The charge arose out of breaches of the O.T.A. said to have been committed during the recent meeting at the Toronto Woodbine track.

MEIGHEN SAILING FOR HOME TODAY

Nothing Definite Yet Regarding Preliminary Meeting For Disarmament.

LONDON, July 29.—Right Honorable Arthur Meighen, prime minister of Canada, will sail tomorrow on the Carmania on his return to Canada from the imperial conference of overseas premiers.

It was not until last night that Premier Meighen changed the date from Thursday, when Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, minister of marine, sails on the Empress of France.

No official report of the conference has been issued, but it is understood that an agreement has been reached over the naval policy within the last few days, reaffirming that each dominion shall be responsible for its own coast defence.

There is still much speculation here concerning the probability of the holding of a preliminary meeting in London prior to the Washington disarmament conference, but nothing definite has so far transpired.

GRAIN YIELD GOOD IN TARA DISTRICT

Later she was married to the late William Steele residing on the 13th Concession of Arran, before removing to Tara. Mr. Steele pre-deceased her some fifteen years ago. One adopted sister's daughter, Mrs. Herb Miller, survives.

BIGGEST AIRSHIP HEAVILY ARMED TOP AND BOTTOM

R-38 Fairly Bristles With Armament, Says London Dispatch.

WAR'S LESSONS HEEDED

Has Machine Guns, Automatics and Two Kinds of Bombs.

LONDON, uJly 29.—Uncle Sam will soon become the possessor of the British-built R-38, the largest rigid airship yet constructed in any country and a craft that represents the very "last word" in "aerial dreadnought" designing.

Trim and smart as the quarter-deck of an admiral's fragship, the R-38, scoon to be designated officially by her new American name, ZR-2, is claimed to be the most formidable craft ever to "take the air."

She is expected to be capable of 5,000 miles flight at full speed—70 miles per hour—or 6,500 mbiles at a "cruising speed" of 6 0miles per hour.

Heavily Armed.

Her specifications call for an armament of fourteen Lewis guns, a one-pound automatic gun, four bombs of 520 pounds, and eight bombs of 230 pounds. The machine guns are distributed at vantage noints so that any form of attack, from land, sea or air, might effectually be combatted.

The ship's heavy armament serves as an index to her character. She is designed to serve, if occasion arises, as the general headquarters of a whole battle fleet, eyes, ears and, in emergency, an auxiliary "business end." From the compact, convenient "skipper's cabin close up under her nose, to the neat little machine gunner's "nest" at the very tip of her stern, ZR-2's arrangement and construction spells efficiency and "strictly business."

Will Carry 65.

Without extensive alterations, ZR-2 could not accommodate comfortably a party of 65 persons as did the Italian-built, semi-rigid airship "Roma" after being taken over by the American Government recently. But if a submarine were sighted, ZR-2 could manoeuvre into position, then the mere pressing of a button in the captain's control cabin would release a bomb, or a dozen bombs, if required, to "do in" the enemy undersea boat.

Protection From Aeroplanes.

If the enemy aeroplanes become bothersome during this procedure they would not find, as was the case with the German zeppelins, that there was an unprotected spot under the ZR-2's lower part aft where they could hover and pump machine-gun bullets into his gasoline tanks. To meet just such a contingency there is the stern machine-gun nest, one situated some 50 yards ahead of the underpart of the ship, and one on each of four of the ship's engine-cars, which are suspended at her sides.

Should the attack come from above, a gunner, protected from the fury of high altitude winds in a cockpit at the top of the ship, would probably be able to do anything necessary with his one-pound automatic piece.

These represent some of the many improvements, indicated by examination of wrecked Zeppelins and other experience, which have been incorporated in the ZR-2.

Like the R34.

Seen in flight, the ZR-2 will be much like her sister ship, R-34, of transatlantic fame. But her shimmering sides and clean appearance conceal a confusion of "interior workings" that, to one unaccustomed to such craft, is most bewildering.

As one proceeds along the narrow, "man-high" corridor which extends the entire length of the ship he sees a complication of criss-crossed aluminum girders, rows of gasoline and water tanks, what seems to be, and actually are, acres of fabric gas bags, and a miscellany of guy wires, control valves, pipes swivels hinges and gew-gaws that defy understanding. But after a guide who knows every inch of the gigantic bulk has made explanations the handling of the ship is seen to be simplicity itself.

Thus, the "skipper," standing at the wheel in his cabin, just as a sea captain on the bridge, has within reach a miscellany of buttons, switches and levers, electrically controlled, with which he can release ballast water, deflate one or more gas bags, empty the gasoline tanks, start a bomb toward an objective, and, of course, steer the ship upward, downward, to right or left.

Complete Telephone System.

He can send orders through a telephone system which connects up the whole ship for the starting or stopping of one or all of the ship's six propelling engines, advise his machine-gunners of the approach of an enemy, or, through the operator at his back, send observations by wireless to a flagship or land base.

Comfortable bunks are provided for the off-shift of the crews—in all, 30 officers and men. During prolonged flight warm meals are made possible by a system of cooking from engine exhaust heat. Electric lights are provided wherever required. The ship can "tie up" to a mooring mast, replenish her gas, oil, water and fuel containers through "feed" pipes terminating at her bow, and resume her journey with the loss of but a few hours' sailing time.

Here are some of ZR-2's measurements and specifications:

Length, 695 feet (50 feet longer than R-34).

Diameter, 85 feet, 4 inches (6 feet, 7 inches larger than R-34).

Capacity, 2,700,000 cubic feet (against R-34's 2,000,000).

Total lift under normal conditions, 85 tons (against R-34's 59½ tons).

Disposable lift—available for carrying of fuel and other stores or, if altered for commercial uses, for freight or passengers—fifty tons (against R-34's 24 tons).

Total horsepower, 2,100 (against R-34's 1,250).

Engines, six of 350 horsepower each (against R-34's five of 250 horsepower each).

Endurance at sixty miles per hour—cruising speed for ZR-2 and full speed for R-34—6,000 miles (against R-34's 3,000 miles).

"Ceiling" or maximum altitude, 25,000 feet (against R-34's 13,800 feet).

If adapted for transport ZR-2 could carry forty passengers and two tons of freight in a non-stop flight from England to Egypt in about forty-eight hours. As a result of the experience gained in building ZR-2, however, he constructors have designed a ship with a gas capacity of about 4,000,000 cubic feet, which it is believed could carry fifty passengers and thirteen tons of freight on the same journey in forty hours.

KING DENIES NORTHCLIFFE STATEMENTS

Complete Fabrication, Says Message Read in House by Lloyd George.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—Lord Northcliffe made public today the following cablegram sent to Lord Stamfordham, private secretary to King George: "Please convey to his majesty with my humble duty, my denial of ever having ascribed to his majesty the word or words as stated by the prime minister yesterday. I gave no such interview."

Mr. Lloyd George today read a statement which he said the King had authorized him to read on his majesty's behalf.

"His Majesty the King has had his attention directed to certain statements representing an interview with Lord Northcliffe appearing in the Daily Mail and reproduced in the Daily Express and some Irish newspapers. The statements contained in the report are a complete fabrication. No such conversations as those which are alleged took place nor have any such remarks as alleged been made by his majesty.

"His majesty also desires it to be made quite clear, as the contrary is suggested in the interview, that in his speech to the Parliament of Northern Ireland, he followed the invariable constitutional practice relating to speeches from the throne in Parliament."

Serious Charges.

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Lloyd George said:

"Statements have appeared in certain organs of the Irish and English press attributing words of grave consequence to His Majesty the King, relating to Irish policy. They appear in the form of an interview which Lord Northcliffe seems to have given in the United States and to have caused to be forwarded to his newspapers here for publication.

"It is quite impossible always to follow these calumnious statements, but here they are of a very categorical character and attribute very serious statements to the sovereign, and moreover they are calculated at the present moment, if believed, to prejudice seriously the chances of an Irish settlement. They have been circulated very freely, more especially in Ireland, and his majesty has, therefore, authorized me to read to the House of Commons the following statement on his behalf, which I have just received."

Personal Attack.

Mr. Lloyd George then read the previously quoted statement to the House. He continued:

"I hope this statement may do something to sterilize the effects of the criminal malignity which for personal ends is endeavoring to stir up mischief between the Allies, misunderstanding between the British Empire and the United States and to frustrate the hope of peace in Ireland."

The interview to which the prime minister referred quoted King George as saying to Mr. Lloyd George just before his majesty left for Ireland: "Are you going to shoot all the people in Ireland?" To which the prime minister was quoted as replying: "No, Your Majesty."

"Well, then, you must come to some agreement with them," said the king, according to the interview. "This thing can't go on. I can't have my people killed in this manner."

Fully Justified.

J. H. Thomas, labor member, who followed Mr. Lloyd George, said he believed it was the duty of all the members of the House to associate themselves with "the King's dignified protest—a protest that he is entitled to make, not only in the interest of himself, but in the interest of the constitutional government.

"I am glad," Mr. Thomas declared, "that this opportunity has been given not merely in the interest of the Government, but in that of the House of Commons, which represents the country, to place on record the feeling that his majesty has not taken what otherwise would have been an unconstitutional action."

Sir Donald MacLean, Liberal, said the King had acted in accord with what the whole people of this country and his faithful Commons had expected of him.

The reputed conversation between King George and Mr. Lloyd George, quoted in the foregoing dispatch as having appeared, according to the British prime minister "in the form of an interview which Lord Northcliffe seems to have given in the United States," appeared in an interview published in New York City, July 25, attributed to H. Wickham Steed, editor of the London Times, and companion of Lord Northcliffe on his United States tour. The interview, the context said, was given by Mr. Steed the day after his arrival from England with Lord Northcliffe.

The interview apparently appeared in English newspapers attributed directly to Lord Northcliffe.

SAYS TALK OF COAL FAMINE IS 'PROPAGANDA'

Dealers Being Undersold by $3 a Ton At Windsor.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WINDSOR, July 29.—Coal will again be sold at cost next winter to domestic consumers by the city. The civic transportation committee has purchased ten cars of hard coal which will be retailed at $15 per ton, or $3 less than is now being charged by dealers. Ald. Hooper, a member of the committee, tonight termed the statement of the dealers that a fuel famine is certain next winter as "mere propaganda."

Fire of undetermined origin tonight caused $2,000 damage to the Waverley Hotel, Sandwich West, the proprietor of which is W. L. Messenger. Windsor fire department, which responded to the call, made the eight-mile run only to find the fire out when they arrived.

Allen Ferris, 35 years old, living at 336 Church street, was probably fatally injured tonight when he was thrown from an auto. The car that collided with the one in which Ferris was riding did not stop, the police said. Ferris, who was taken to Hotel Dieu, suffered a fracture of the right hip and injuries to his head.

Consumers Plan To Fight Boost In Gas Prices

Mayor of Chatham Charges Unfairness On Part of Referee Henderson.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

CHATHAM, July 29. — The special meeting of the Municipal Gas Consumers' Association here today was marked by several violent varbal encounters, and judging from the remarks which passed between several delegates' strenuous action may be taken by the consumers to reopen the gas question in Southwestern Ontario. The disposition of several delegates to let matters stand as they are brought forth censure from the majority, who are not content to pay a 45-cent rate to the producing companies.

Alleges Unfairness.

Claiming that the contracts between the consumers and gas companies were ignored by the referee in the recent inquiry held in this city, Mayor F. H. Brisco of Chatham, president of the association, launched an attack on the referee for his alleged unfairness, and especially for ignoring the provisions of franchises between the consumers and companies in which stipulated prices were agreed upon for a given number of years.

Hon. Harry Mills, minister of mines, also came in for scathing criticism, owing to his apparent apathy in regard to the gas situation. The entire survey by Samuel S. Wyer, consulting engineer, who, he alleges, only stayed in the field for slightly over one day, was condemned. The mayor alleged that the service charge which the referee has imposed on the consumers will mean an increase in revenue to the Union Natural Gas Company alone of $24,000 per month. He claimed that there are nearly 150,000 people in Western Ontario who are affected more or less by the rate, and that every consideration should be given to them, especially the poor.

At this juncture Secretary Hallett read a telegram from Hon. Harry Mills, stating he would be unable to be present, and also a telegram from Referee Henderson, apologizing for his absence.

R. L. Brackin, K.C., M.P.P., for West Kent, and solicitor for the association did not mince words with the association in referring to the rate war.

"You may register a protest to the Ontario Legislature if you wish when it reassembles in the fall," he stated. "But you must remember that the Government cannot alter rates. You can ask the Government to change the natural gas act so that you can appeal against the referee's decision. If the Government does not want to have the gas war hanging around its neck at every session they may repeal the entire act and tell you to "go ahead and scrap." You asked for the act, for the field survey, for the inquiry and for a rate adjustment and now it hurts."

Strongly doubting the ability of Referee Henderson as an arbitrator in the gas situation and deploring the fact that the consumers' side was ignored during the recent hearing, the following resolution was unanimously adopted by the entire body of delegates at the afternoon session:

Make Strong Protest.

"This association wishes to protest in the strongest possible terms to the Premier and Government of the Province of Ontario against the action of the referee under the natural gas act of 1921 in unreasonably increasing the rate to be paid by the people of Southwestern Ontario for natural gas, and also against the action of the said referee in entirely ignoring the provisions of the franchise under which the gas companies are permitted to operate in the different municipalities, the provisions in question being those fixing the price to be charged for natural gas by the gas companies in such municipalities.

Ready To Prove It.

"Be it further resolved that this association express to the Government its dissatisfaction with the manner in which the referee conducted the inquiry at Chatham. The association is prepared, if the Government desires it, to go fully into the details of such inquiry for the purpose of showing that it was not properly conducted.

"Be it further resolved that this association requests the Government to carry out the promise made some time ago by the premier, the minister of mines and the attorney-general as to the making, by auditors appointed by the Government of a complete audit of the books of the producing gas companies.

"Be it further resolved that, inasmuch as we are satisfied that the consumers will not succeed in getting justice in the matter of rates from the present referee, we request the Government to ask for Mr. Henderson's resignation and to appoint a new referee who will administer the act in a manner satisfactory to the people of the province."

Tells of Conservation.

Col. C. B. Harkness, gas commissioner for the province, spoke briefly at the afternoon session and outlined the efforts of the department of mines in conservation, details of which were given to "gas" legislators. The commissioner was quite frank with the consumers and explained the work of the department in a very clear and concise manner. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the commissioner for attending the meeting.

President Brisco presided at the morning session and Acting Mayor Jackson of Windsor, at the afternoon session. Delegates were present from Windsor, Tilbury, Maidstone, Sandwich and Sandwich East, Sombra Ridgetown, Howard Township, Walkerville and a number of other municipalities.

LOST ENTIRE CROP IN WESTERN HAILSTORM

[Special to The Advertiser.]

DELHI, July 29.—John Wilbur, who is visiting in this vicinity from East End, Sask., received word today that his entire crop was hailed out. Mr. Wilbur had prospects of one of the best crops since he has been in the West. There is not a straw left standing of his entire crop of 250 acres of wheat and 50 acres of oats. He carried no insurance. The storm started at Rob Harte, 40 miles from the Wilbur farm, and took in an area of 80 miles length and four miles width. This would indicate that Mr. Wilbur's farm would be in the centre of the great storm. So great was the hail that it killed jackrabbits, birds, gophers and other small animals. It also cut the roofing from Lorne Wilbur's house.

OLD HOME WEEK WAS SUCCESSFUL

Walkerton's Big Celebration Closed by a Community Dance.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WALKERTON, July 29.—Walkerton's Old Home Week came to a close tonight with a community dance held on Main street. The dance was attended by hundreds of people and proved a most enjoyable affair.

The Old Home Week proved a success from start to finish. It was the greatest thing of its kind in the history of the town and more than 25,000 visitors from all parts of the country enjoyed the celebration.

Judge Klein, the energetic and capable chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements, stated to The Advertiser tonight that the celebration was a success in every way.

"We will cane out ahead financially," he said. "It was quite an undertaking, but it has been a grand success all the way through ad I am sure the people of Walkerton and the visitors will look back on it as one of the best things of the kind they ever attended."

The races this afternoon were keenly contested and thoroughly enjoyed by a large crowd. There were four events.

Wednesday was the big day of the celebration and drew an crowd of 10,000. Throughout the big gathering the crowds were most orderly and there were no accidents.

CHARGES J. P.'S ARE TOO HARSH

London Member Lodges Protest Before the Attorney-General.

TORONTO, July 29.—Dr. Stevenson, the Labor member for London, was at the Parliament Buildings today to lodge with the Hon. Mr. Raney a complaint regarding "the harsh manner" in which J. P.'s and magistrates in London and the surrounding district are handling motorists alleged to have committed breaches of the speed law.

The attorney-general was not on hand, but Dr. Stevenson, who stated that he was here in the interests of the London section of the Ontario Motor League and motor owners, declared that the presiding magistrates and J. P.'s. had exceeded their jurisdiction and prosecuted motorists on the strength of technicalities. He says it is up to the attorney-general to investigate the matter with the least possible delay.

BANDIT IS GIVEN A LIFE-SENTENCE

Baldy Ladell Hums Tune As Court Passes Sentence.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

DETROIT, July 29.—"Baldy" Ladell, the Campus Martius bond robber and killer, was found guilty of murder in the first degree of Detective-Lieutenant Phil Ellenstein tonight. The jury was out two hours and forty minutes.

Judge Cotter sentenced him immediately to spend the remainder of his life in confinement and at hard labor in Marquette penientiary.

Ladell, as unmoved and taciturn as he was during his trial, hummed an unrecognizable tune through his thin lips as he stood waiting orders of the court. He had been cheered up by the unexpected length of time required by the jury to reach a verdict, but he made no sign. He listened imperturbably while the court talked to him.

"This was the most dastardly crime ever witnessed in the history of this city," Judge Cotter said. "It not only deprived two valuable police officers of their lives, but it made a human wreck of a third one for the remainder of his life.

"There was some property loss, but property is not to be classed with the loss of human life."

SUDDEN CALL FOR LAWRENCE HENDERSON

Ingersoll Man Found Dead in His Room At Hotel.

INGERSOLL, July 29. — Lawrence Henderson, a well-known local man, was found dead in bed this afternoon at the McMurray House, where he had been a boarder for some time. So far as is known he was last seen alive late last night. Coroner Cornish deemed an inquest unnecessary. Henderson was widely known, having been for many years in the employ of the Noxon Company as a mechanical expert, during which time he made many European trips in the interests of the firm. He went overseas with the 168th Battalion.

While working on Ann street this afternoon John Holmes, son of Chief of Police Holmes, who is connected with the waterworks department, was caught in a cave-in, and, it is feared, injured internally. A pipe was being lowered to him when the wall collapsed, and he was buried to his waist.

MASKED BANDIT ROBS HAMILTON BANK OF $4,400

Backs Staff To Wall With Gun —Then Fills Pockets.

HAMILTON, July 29.—A branch of the Bank of Hamilton here was relieved this afternoon of $4,400 in cash by a cool and daring bandit who, masked and with gun in hand, entered just at closing time. He had alighted at the door from an automobile and stepping briskly into the building, vaulted over the counter and covered the manager and clerks with the gun. He ordered the men to back against the wall and stand with arms above their heads, which they did. One clerk started to dash for the door, but when ordered by the bandit to halt or be shot down, he stopped and got into line again.

The teller had been counting his cash and his counter was covered with bills. These the robber scooped up and stuffed into his pockets.

"Is this all the money you have in the bank?" he asked. He was told that it was. He then demanded bonds, and Manager Gibson replied that there were no bonds. Not satisfied with this the robber made a careful search himself, but without result.

A lady customer entered the bank at this stage, and she was warned to sit down and say nothing.

After carefully looking into all the drawers in search of more money, the bandit hurriedly backed out and jumped into his car. Mrs. Gibson, wife of the manager, who lives next door to the bank, suspected that all was not right and she noted the car license as the robber pulled away. The car was found to be the property of a grocer, and it had been stolen earlier in the day.

Although only one man was seen, the police are of the opinion that he had accomplices, and also that he was well acquainted with this particular bank. A vigorous search is being carried on in Hamilton and district for the robber, without any apparent results so far.

SAYS M'FADDEN RAVES IN CELL

Hotrum Is Calm, Declares the Story From Toronto.

TORONTO July 29.—The Toronto Tejegram today says:

"That William McFadden, not Roy Hotrum, was the man who actually shot Leonard Sabine, druggist, on the night of the robbery and murder, is the belief in Toronto jail today. Many officials who formerly blamed Hotrum for the fatal shooting have changed their opinions in the past 24 hours. Their belief is based not on any confession by either party—for no confession has been made—but on the attitude of the two men since the appeal was entered at Ottawa.

Cursed and Raved.

McFadden yesterday, after a visit from his spiritual adviser, Pastor Brydges, cursed and raved in his cell, and called down unprintable anathemas on the head of his companion in crime. Hotrum, on the contrary, is said to be calm and resigned, and is bearing himself with the patience of a martyr. McFadden is known to have been in "bad man" when under the influence of liquor. He was drunk on the night of the crime."

BURSTING TIRE CAUSES FATALITY

John Taylor of Owen Sound Dies of Fractured Skull.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

OWEN SOUND, July 29.—John Taylor of 1424 Fourth avenue east died in the General and Marine Hospital today from a fractured skull. He was riding in the rear seat of a car with his step-daughter, Mrs. Johnson, and Mrs. Jas. Smith, and in the front seat was Mr. Smith and the driver, Andrew Markle. The car was proceeding at a good speed on a fine piece of road, when a front tire blew up. The driver lost control of the car, which turned crosswise on the road and completely upset.

Mr. Taylor was thrown head first to the road, sustaining a fractured skull and other injuries. He was taken to the hospital, but never regained consciousness. The driver had his collarbone broken and Mr. Smith was rendered unconscious for a time, but is now apparently all right. The two women escaped practically unhurt. The accident occurred when the party was on its way to attend a meeting of the local True Blues.

The dead man was in his 52nd year and had been a resident of Owen Sound for 25 years, coming here from Oil Springs.

He is survived by his widow. He was a member of the Orange Order, under whose auspices the funeral will be held Sunday afternoon.

SENSATION IS DEVELOPED IN FIRE PROBE

Former Londoner Denies Allegations Made by Witness At Guelph.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

GUELPH, July 29.—In summing up the evidence given at the investigation of the Upper Wyndham street fire of July 6, held here this week under the fire marshall's act, and which concluded this afternoon, Fire Marshall Heaton stated that although every effort had been made to find out the origin and cause of the $500,000 blaze, he was free to confess that he had failed.

He pointed out, however, that evidence had been direct and clear that there had been delay on the part of the Bell Telephone operator in sending in the alarm, and unquestioned testimony had been given that the water supply pressure and fire-fighting equipment in Guelph was woefully deficient. And if the investigation did nothing else, it roused the citzens to this fact.

Serious Allegation.

A sensation was caused at today's hearing, when a witness alleged that his wife had seen two constables leave a house of ill-fame on MacDonnell street at the time of the fire.

The witness, F. G. Hatch, MacDonnell street, followed the officers, and in court today he identified Officers Clark and Singleton as the men. Both constables swore positively they were on their beat in St. Patrick's Ward at the time, and Mrs. Dempsey, at whose apartments they were alleged to have been, swore that she had never seen the officers before coming to the investigation. She had at her home at the time her two children, and a Miss Peacock, who came here from London, Ont., three months ago.

Corroborates Evidence.

The latter corroborated the evidence of Mrs. Dempsey. She stated she was a nurse, and before leaving London had been housekeeper for a Victorian Order nurse.

Owing to the fact that the accused officers were not on their beat in the fire area on the morning of the fire, Mr. Heaton said his scope was limited. Mayor Burgess, however, promised a full investigation of the charges would be made by the police commission.

MINES WILL DOUBLE CAPACITY OF PLANT

TORONTO, July 29.—McIntyre Porcupine Mines will double the capacity of their plant at Timmins, according to an official statement today, and a start will be made at once on the work. This will add an extra capacity of 500 tons a day, or 1,000 in all. With the new equipment the company will be able to produce well over $3,000,000 annually. At the meeting today a 5 per cent dividend, payable September 1, was voted.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT ARRESTED FOR THEFT

HAMILTON, July 29.—Louis Young of Brantford, one of the occupants of the Ford car that went into the ditch on the Guelph highway twelve miles from Hamilton the other night, was arrested today on his discharge from the hospital, on information from Waterford involving him in the theft of the car. William Spragg was fatally injured in the accident.

Seasonable Pointers For Farmers

THORNDALE IS IMPORTANT STOCK AND DAIRY CENTRE

Second in Dominion as Local Shipping Point — Farmers Endeavor To Produce Type of Animal That the Market Requires.

[Specially Contributed.]

Thorndale, situated on the G. T. R., in West Nissouri Township, ranks second in the Dominion of Canada as a local shipping point for live stock.

A few years ago in the reports issued Calgary stood first, Ailsa Craig second, and Thorndale third; but since that time Calgary has built her extensive stock yards, and can scarcely be classed as a local shipping point any longer.

The development of the live stock industry in this locality is partially due to the fact hat the farmers have endeavored to produce the type of animal that the market demands, and they have found that in so doing they reap much larger returns.

The local buyers have urged the farmers not to send their stock to market in an unfinished condition. The immediate effect of the sale of poor type and unfinished stock is to reduce the price the farmer can be offered, often enough below the level of profit. The average returns of sales on stock yards in 1919 showed that "good" cattle ranged from $2.50 to $4 per hundredweight more than "common," unfinished cattle, adn it is the few cents on the top price which makes the difference between profit and loss.

During 1919 out of 698,849 cattle marketed at stock yards for slaughter in Canada, 359,418 graded "good" and 339,431 "common." At the prices then there was a difference between "good" and "common" of roundly $30 to $40 a head. This was loss to the farmer due to the continued use of scrub bulls and of lack of finish.

FARMERS' LOSSES.

Farmers also lose a great deal from bruises in live stock. About 70,000 pounds of meat are annually condemned at packing plants for this reason. Most of the bruises are caused while on the way from the farm to the stock yard. Bruising by prodding and kicking is common, and a select animal may be classed as second or third as a result.

It has been estimated that $250,000 a year is lost to farmers in Canada by not dehorning animals.

Much labor in past years has been spent in breeding the wrong types of live stock. Long years of demand through a steady building up of trade in British markets by packers in Argentina have led farmers there to produce cattle, particularly heavy in the hindquarter, sirloin, porterhouse, and rump steak of the best quality must be produced in the proper proportion per carcass if high prices are to be obtained by farmers. Packers in Canada cannot compete with others on a European market unless they can also secure beef which is heavy on the hindquarter.

In arriving at the dressed cost of meat in the packing plants, the cost of the live animal is taken and from that is subtracted the value of the hide, hair, heart, liver, casings, fat, killing, processing and marketing expenses. Special treatment is given each part, according to that for which it can best be utilized.

Tests made af a Canadian packing house in 1920 showed the yield of saleable parts and of waste material in an average steer of 1,000 pounds, live weight, to be as follows:

	Pounds.
Dressed carcass	540
Hide	70
Edible fat	40
Tongue	6
Liver	9
Heart	3½
Tail	1
Head meat	5½
Sweetbreads and weasand	1
Casings	10
Tripe	10
Fertilizer	12
Oil and grease	6
Bones	18
Blood (dry)	9
Sinews	2
Waste (shrinkage, evaporation, etc.	257

HOG RAISING.

The hog-raising industry has made rapid progress also in the vicinity of Thorndale during recent years due to the farmers gaining knowledge as to the type required by the buyers and by intelligent feeding and finishing of the animals. Hogs must be raised for the market which can be found by packers. For Canadian trade this market is undoubtedly in Great Britain. There they demand lean, streaky bacon, mildly cured, and the position of Canadian bacon is becoming stronger as the United States bacon is too salty and fat to be popular.

The Dominion of Canada has become famous for the Wiltshire bacon and has established a special market for it. After the meat has been minutely inspected and passed by the Government inspectors, of whom a dozen may be engaged in one packing plant, it may be sent into the export section. There it is converted into the Wiltshire, which may be described as one-half a pork carcass without the head and shanks. It is not cut up into sides, shoulders and ham on this side of the Atlantic, but includes all of them. The side is given a mild pickle cure and shipped for export sale. The smoking and cutting are completed according to English practice by bacon curers in Great Britain.

If the hog product is intended for domestic trade it is treated in an entirely different way. It is cut up into the well-known sides, shoulders and hams, and occasionally into other cuts. They are then cured and smoked. In the cutting and trimming process about 21 pounds of meat and bones per hog are cut off and go into the cheaper grades.

Hog fats are prepared as lard for shortening, and into what is known as "neutral" or deodorized lard. These products are then worked up with other oils into various products, thus large quantities of edible fats which formerly became soap grease now are prepared in forms as food. The inedible fats are used as soap grease.

Thus all the parts that cost the farmer as much as the meat to produce are utilized so as to considerably enhance the value of the live animal.

Due to many farmers in the Dominion rushing hogs to market last year in an unfinished state, 28,000 more hogs had to be slaughtered to give the same quantity of pork as formerly.

LIVE STOCK IN WEST NISSOURI.

The farmers of West Nissouri Township, having carried on the live stock industry on a scientific basis, are enabled to supply the buyers with about 200 well-finished hogs each week or over 10,000 annually and about 10,000 head of cattle are also shipped yearly from Thorndale centre.

R. P. Bilyea, who is a buyer for the Harris abattoir of Toronto, in addition to regular weekly shipments of hogs, also ships large numbers of cattle, calves, sheep and lambs.

During the Christmas season of 1920 when there was a heavy demand for poultry, he shipped in one week $1,746 worth of dressed turkeys and $700 worth of live poultry. In the following week the shipment included $1,000 worth of dressed turkeys and geese.

Belton Bros., who have for many years been noted cattle dealers of Western Ontario continue to ship many carloads of fine cattle.

G. B. Vining makes shipments of hogs each week to Toronto, Stratford or Ingersoll and also several carloads of cattle to the Toronto market.

Edward Henderson of the northern part of the township is a noted buyer of choice cattle.

D. Weston and G. Hobbs of Thorndale have carried on a large export trade in cattle during the past year.

Prior to the passing of the Fordney bill, many of these buyers exported hundreds of choice cattle to the American markets.

In December, 1920, G. B. Vining and Edward Henderson exhibited cattle at the fat stock show in Buffalo and secured first, second and third prize.

FINE DAIRY HERDS.

In visiting the farms in the district of Thorndale, we find some of the finest dairy herds in Canada, one of the most noted being that of R. R. Wheaton. This famous herd of milking Shorthorns was started in 1908, and is known today all over Canada as having one of the highest average records for milk and butter fat production. The cows average over 9,500 pounds of milk each for the year. All cows are officially tested, and none are retained but what will qualify for the R. of M.

Victor 3rd, the Wheaton herd bull, was grand champion at the National Show and Congress in 1919.

Graybird, a daughter of Victor 3rd, one of the Wheaton herd, which has a record of 11,886 pounds of milk in a year, with an average test of 4.66 per cent butterfat, is considered one of the best dual-purpose matrons in America. Following are the records of some of the Wheaton herd: Lily Archer, 13,599 pounds; Graybird, 11,886 pounds; Emma, 11,727 pounds; Rosebud Queen, 11,376 10,721 pounds; Lady Russel, 11,721 pounds; Queen Daisy, 10,510 pounds; Dorcan, 10,721 pounds; Lady Russel, 11,721 pounds; Daisy (2-year-old), 10,050 pounds.

Golden Wimple, a calf of this herd, sold for $2,050.

Farmers in West Nissouri have learned by experience that it pays to produce the higher type of stock.

From Thorndale centre are shipped three carloads of cheese weekly for 9 months in the year. A large quantity of cream is also sold to the London creameries. Thorndale can also boast of a fine cheese box factory, owned by R. T. Wright, and in which in 1920 was manufactured 22,000 cheese boxes.

CO-OPERATION.

Owing to the excellent facilities for shipping and the fine agricultural area in the surrounding district, the Thorndale Co-operative Dairy Company, Limited, was organized recently with the following board of directors: R. J. Stevenson, president; John Dawson, secretary-treasurer; Dr. T. W. Wilson, W. F. McGuffin, and John McKay. This company has secured a charter and prospectus, with a capitalization of $40,000, and a minimum of $15,000 to begin building operations of a co-operative dairy plant. From this milk, cream, butter or cheese can be shipped as the market demands, thus furnishing excellent facilities for the disposal of dairy produce. The farmers in the district will have the privilege of securing stock in the company.

E. H. Stonehouse, president of the National Dairy Council, in his address at the convention held in Guelph recently, advocated that dairymen purchase and operate co-operative plants, as that is the only solution to the situation in the dairy industry today.

Grading Up the Flock Means Profitable Results

Owing to Decline in Price of Live Stock, More Thought Must Be Given Breeding Work—Sheep-Raising Is Especially Affected by New Conditions.

With the sudden decline in prices of live stock and their products, greater thought must be given our breeding work if profitable results are to be obtained. There is no branch of live stock more affected than is that of sheep raising. Not only have lamb and mutton decreased in value, but wool has gone down to pre-war prices. Moreover, there has been very little decrease in the cost of production. These facts are apt to cause a certain decrease in production. However, the farmer who stays by the sheep breeding industry has little to lose and every prospect of considerable gain. This will be particularly true if he makes good use of the period of low prices in culling out the poor individuals in his flock and in practicing systematic grading up by the use of pure-bred sires. No matter what the condition of the market poor live stock is a liability while good live stock is an asset to any farm.

Some Remarkable Results.

It will not be out of place here to mention the results of grading up work in sheep conducted at the Experimental Farm, Nappan, N. S. A grade flock was established in 1915, the ewes being just average-bred stock, lacking in uniformity both in size and breeding, and on the average yielding fleeces of 6.5 pounds of poor quality wool. They were bred to a pure-bred Shropshire ram of fair size, good type and exceptionally well wooled. The first crop of lambs, while not very uniform, as might be expected, showed marked improvement over the original stock. The improvement in the quality of the wool was most pronounced, while the body gave a more meaty touch with a quarter well filled out. From these ewe lambs selections were made, and they in turn were bred to a pure-bred Shropshire ram with a little more size than the former one, but equally as good in so far as fleece was concerned. The result was that in the spring of 1920 the grade flock was so improved that nearly seventy-five per cent of them might pass as pure-bred. They were uniform in size and type, while the average fleece was 8.45 pounds instead of 6.5 pounds (the average for the original flock), an average increase of nearly two pounds per head; moreover, over seventy-five per cent of the wool graded medium combing. The lambs were 15 pounds heavier at maturity than were the first crop dropped. The carcasses were much superior to the first cross of lambs. In fact, they were sufficiently good to win first place in the group of three: First place in single one-year-olds and second place in singles under one year, against strong competition from all breeds at the Maritime Winter Fair in 1920.

Selection of Ewes.

In grading up the flock, the first step is to select the foundation ewes. They should be as uniform as possible, both in size and breeding. Select ewes that have been well grown, for in the majority of cases poorly grown ewes will yield poor wool and their progeny will lack uniformity and quality of wool.

In selection of ram, one must have in mind the nature of the improvement desired. If the ewes are large and bony and lack quality of wool, the ram should be finer boned but outstanding in fleece. If the ewes lack size and mutton qualities a ram having these characteristics should be selected. In any case the ram should be active and vigorous in order to sire lambs full of life and vigor, he should have a wide-open, bright eye, with broad nostrils, well distended, a deep chest with a well-extended brisket and, above all, should be true to type of the breed selected. In grading up the average flock it is imperative to have a pure-bred ram. By adopting these tactics at the present time, the farmer will help develop the sheep industry of the country and at the same time increase his own profits.—W. W. Baird, superintendent, Experimental Farm, Nappan, N. S.

Three fat cows exhibited by E. Henderson and G. B. Vining at Buffalo Fat Stock Show December, 1920. They are pure bred Shorthorns, and secured first, second and third prizes.

BRITISH BACON IS NOW NORMAL

Market Has Reverted to the Limits of Weight For Wiltshire Sides.

The British bacon market has reverted to the rigid limits of weight for Wiltshire sides. During the war the demand for bacon and for fats generally was so keen that the limits were relaxed, so that for a time a Wiltshire side weighing anywhere between 45 pounds and 100 pounds was accepted. As a consequence there was not the same discrimination made by packers' buyers between the prices for light and heavy hogs and the price paid for select hogs. The extraordinary demand, however, is over. The fat, lard-type hog is at a distinct discount in Canada. So with the light weight hog; it should be finished on the farm.

For some time past the British ministry's limits for Wiltshire were 45 lbs. to 90 lbs. The market is returning to normal and the weights are now 45 lbs. to 75 lbs. Packers have long since recognized that the return to normal was inevitable and warned farmers and breeders against going in for any but the well-known bacon hog. They repeat that it is all-important for the future of the bacon industry that farmers breeding types and breeds of hogs unsuitable to produce select Wiltshires should at once get rid of them and stock only hogs which will yield prime Wiltshires that the British trade demands as well as the products required in our domestic market. "Outweights" below 45 lbs. or over 75 lbs. are heavily penalized in the export trade. The hog to give best results should average about 185 lbs live weight. At present packers are compelled to make a difference of from $1@2 a hundredweight in what they pay for light weights and from $2@3.50 for heavy weights as against hogs of selected weights.

EXTENSION OF CANADA'S SEED TRADE.

During the year 1920 Canada's export seed trade made a considerable advance, owing in no small degree to the efforts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and the Department of Trade and Commerce. The Canadian Trade Commission supplied lists of prospective customers abroad for Canadian seed. These were communicated with and their requirements placed before Canadian exporters. In this way an increased export of seeds was brought about to the United States, Great Britain, France and Newfoundland. To Ireland alone approximately 200,000 bushels of fibre flax seed, worth about $1,000,000, was exported. In British Columbia, field root and garden vegetable seeds, amounting to 150,000 pounds, were marketed through the United Seed Growers, Limited, Penticton, B.C. Some 75,000 pounds of mangel, Swede turnip and field carrot seed, grown by the Experimental Farms, were sold at current wholesale prices to farmers' organizations and individual farmers. It was deemed advisable to confine the marketing of this seed to Canada, so that farmers might have the exclusive advantage of using this high quality seed. Circulars detailing the available seed potato supplies in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec proved an important factor in relieving the shortage in Ontario. Demonstrations conducted on 117 farms in Ontario and Quebec with mangel and swede turnip seed resulted in showing the superiority of home grown seed over foreign. Seed laboratories are now maintained by the Dominion Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, Winnipeg and Calgary, and at those points some 28,000 tests were carried out. Samples of wheat, oats, barley, timothy and clover were tested for vitality, and at Calgary, investigation was made into the effect of frost on germination.

HOW TO SECURE EGG PRODUCTION IN WINTER TIME

On the Careful Development of Pullets Depends Success in This Line.

It is thought by some poultry keepers that when the chicks reach the age of four or six weeks all danger is over, as they are able to find the feed for themselves. At this stage they are over the first troubles which arise from weak vitality, but they have reached the stages of feather forming anad bone making, and they require some care, both as regards feeding and housing. Indeed, the rate of mortality is too high at this stage, and might be reduced by greater attention on the part of the attendant. When the chicks are about six weeks old they should be taken from the hen, and for the next six weeks they should rest overnight on the ground of the poultry house, which should be littered with iut straw or peat moss litter. If the ground is not suitable a wooden floor should be improvised, placed about one foot above the ground, to which the chicks can easily fly up. On this board the chicks should be placed for a night or two by being well spaced apart. Thus they will rest comfortable, and there is no danger of the breast bone becoming deformed.

Chickens are very inclined to huddle together into a corner at night. This habit should not be allowed, as the chicks nearest the corner or against the wall will get smothered by the pressure of the others. It is not always realized that fowls require more oxygen in proportion than any other domestic animal; they require more than twice as much as do human beings or cattle.

The greatest danger of chicks without the hen is that of rats. But if poultry keepers would learn the value of quarter-inch mesh wire netting many valuable broods of chickens would be saved. The floor of the chicken house should be covered with the netting, which should be attached half a foot up the walls, and from time to time a fresh layer of earth should be spread over the ground above the netting. In many cases the wire netting will last for years and the chicks reared season after season in perfect safety. Quarter-inch mesh wire netting is one of the materials which rats are powerless to overcome.

ONTARIO TOO DRY FOR GOOD GROWTH

Cutting and Threshing of Fall Wheat Now in Full Progress.

The following is a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the head office of the Bank of Montreal from its branches:

Prairie Provinces.

Edmonton District—Sufficient moisture; wheat practically all headed out; oats and barley coming on well; hay lighter than usual.

Calgary District—Prospects in north half of district better, owing to rains since last report; south half not so good; fair crop but less than average expected in whole district; some damage by hail; hay short crop.

Lethbridge District—All wheat headed; estimated average yield throughout, 12 bushels; should increase with favorable weather, blast rains doing good; first cutting alfalfa excellent; prairie hay short, but no fear feed shortage next winter.

Regina District — Prospects above average, except extreme west district, where suffering from drought; hail damage above average; cutting will start in two weeks.

Saskatoon District—Wheat and oats doing well and former nearly all headed; prospects good, except in few districts, which suffered from drought; scattered hail losses reported.

Winnipeg District—While crops have suffered slightly from heat, there have been beneficial showers; crops maturing rapidly and early harvest with satisfactory yields expected.

Quebec and Ontario.

Indications point to a light crop of hay in Quebec, probably 50 per cent of the normal; cereals, root crops and grass pasture have been improved by recent rains, but still need moisture.

The prolonged dry weather in Ontario has checked growth and only moderate crops are now expected. General conditions have been somewhat improved by recent rains, although they came too late to be of benefit to a large percentage of the crops. Cutting and threshing of fall wheat is now in full progress, while in some localities, notably around Guelph and Paris, returns of over 30 bushels per acre are reported in other districts. The crop is poor, and on the whole it will probably be barely an average crop. Other grains are likely to show a light yield; they are short in straw and are ripening prematurely. The hay crop varies from poor to fair, only a few districts reporting a good yield. Present conditions as regards fruits are generally satisfactory. Small frpits show fair returns. Roots and tobacco are doing well. Pasture is short and dry. More rain is required.

Maritime Provinces.

Crops generally are greatly in need of moisture although recent rains have improved prospects. Hay is expected to be light. Root crops are fair. Grass pasture generally is poor. Conditions in Prince Edward Island have been improved by recent rains.

British Columbia.

Hay cutting nears completion; crops heavy throughout; grains heading out well and indications point to a full crop. Roots continue satisfactory progress. Tomato prospects now excellent on smaller acreage. Excellent hop crop is forecasted. Estimated Okanagan fruit output will be 5000 cars against 3,800 in 1919, the previous record year. Apples large and well colored: other fruits developing satisfactorily. Cherry movement at peak and quality good.

PRINCIPAL HONEY PLANTS OF WESTERN CANADA.

For the production of surplus honey, alsike and white clover are not of nearly such great importance in Western Canada as in Eastern Canada, but white clover is of prime value in many parts of Manitoba and around Edmonton, Alta.; Nelson, B. C.; Enderby, B. C., and a number of other localities, and alsike is of some value in the Lower Fraser valley.

The honey plants of the Prairie Provinces vary widely. They consist partly of prairie flowers such as wolfberry, wild bergamot, anise hyssop, hedysarum, silverberry, goldenrods, etc., none of outstanding importance. In some parts of Manitoba some of the introduced weeds such as Canada thistle, perennial sow thistle and mustard give surplus. In Southern Alberta, alfalfa is very important where much grown. In some southern parts of the Prairie Provinces sweet clover is worthy of trial. In the north and in the moist, timbered sections of Manitoba, fireweed (Epilobium angustifolium) is, in places, a source of abundant nectar.

In the mountain region the honey flora is also varied. It includes wolfberry, snowberry, dogbane and goldenrod. But the principal honey plant of British Columbia is the firewood. Some very high yields of honey have been obtained from this plant in the Lower Fraser valley and other places, mostly near the coast, that have a fair rainfall. At the coast, surplus honey is obtained some years from the broad-leafed maple. Snowberry is important in the vicinity of Victoria. In the dry and irrigated sections of the mountains alfalfa and sweet clover are of growing importance, and fruit bloom often helps.

Throughout the West the willows are chiefly instrumental in starting the bees to breed up in spring and they are followed in many places by dandelion, in the mountains by bearberry, and in the Lower Fraser by crabapple, etc.—F. W. L. Sladen, Dominion Apiarist.

AGRICULTURAL USE OF LIME

For the improvement of the soil, lime is of great value. Unless rationally employed, however, its effect may be exactly counter to that desired. A bulletin, prepared by the Dominion chemist, just issued by the Ottawa department of agriculture, deals fully with the agricultural functions of lime and its several compounds, and indicates what may be expected from them and their effect on soil fertility. It treats of the nature of lime and limestone, of values of methods of application of quick lime, slaked lime, ground limestone, and gypsum or land-plaster, and the use and misuse of same. Results of experiments are set forth and the composition of Canadian limestone at fifty different points in the country is detailed in tabular form. Limestone, it might be explained, is found extensively in the Maritime Provinces, in Quebec, in Ontario, in Manitoba in the vicinity of Lakes Winnipeg and Winnipegosis—otherwise not west of the Rockies—and at various points in British Columbia. Some space is given to a discussion of soil characteristics with a view to explaining the kind of lime that can best be used, and its method of application.

Forest Fires Kill Jobs

HERE are instances of carelessness such as the Fire Rangers of Ontario are meeting all the time. Each is an actual case, as officially reported in detail to the Forestry Branch. Until each individual realizes personal responsibility and co-operates to prevent forest fires, Government Fire Rangers can hope merely to lessen the tragic consequences of such human carelessness and bad judgment.

Save Ontario's Forests

They're Yours

Lumbermen's Fires

May 25th, 1920—A careless river driver, by leaving his smudge fire or throwing a cigarette into slash, burned over two townships, including 7,000,000 feet of pine, a $5,000 mill, camp buildings and equipment worth $7,000, sawn lumber worth $7,500, and killed several million young spruce and jack pine trees.

May 25, 1920—Fire in a rubbish heap behind a lumber company's boarding house got away and, despite prompt action, burned over 1,600 acres, including 2,000,000 feet of white pine, and a set of new camps worth $1,000.

June 1, 1920—Two old men left to attend to the stop logs in a dam, let fire get away from either their smudge or camp fire, and burned over 9,000 acres, including 6,000,000 feet of pine, one mill, four camps, large quantities of supplies, and equipment to a total value of $40,000.

May 4th, 1921—Lumbermen burning slash around their camps, lost control of their fire and 15,000 acres were burned before they regained it.

Railway Fires

June 5th, 1920—Engine No. 1368 started a forest fire which ran over 15,000 acres, burning one saw mill, three sets of lumber camps, stables, houses, and outfits, 5,000 cut logs and 1,400 piles, besides standing timber.

May 25th, 1920—Engine No. 2509 set a fire which burned over 12,000 acres of timber worth $20,000 on the stump, camps and logs worth $5,750, and cost $1,000 to fight.

June 2, 1920—A section crew left a pile of burning ties to go away to their regular work. The fire spread over 1,200 acres.

Fires Set Out Under Permit

June 10th, 1921—Parties burning slash under permit, lost control through bad judgment, and 1,050 acres were burned and forty buildings, including saw mill, were wiped out.

May 27th, 1920—A squatter, burning debris near his shack, fired 7,000 acres, 1,000 of which were virgin timber, and wiped out four sets of logging camps.

Neglected Camp Fires

July 4th, 1920—Tourists left camp fire on shore of Deer Lake. After six days' fight, rangers put fire out, but 550 acres of young pine were dead.

May 31st, 1920—A neglected camp fire, despite efforts of Chief Fire Ranger and 42 men, burned 1,200 acres of young pine.

May 7th, 1921—Indians left camp fire, which burned over 7,000 acres and took one week of fighting to control.

Be careful of fire in the forests. Be careful to put your camp fire out—dead out. Don't throw away lighted matches, cigarettes or cigar ends. Watch out, lest your fire gets away from you.

Just one year ago today.

COAL

DOESN'T IT? BUT

just as sure as we swelter under the torrid rays of the sun now, the day for evening up will come next winter, when we will shudder with the other extreme, Jack Frost. Now's the time to fortify against this monster. We have the ammunition, and it's pretty good looking material. Better prepare now before the rush begins, while it's possible to give best service.
May we be of service to you?

MEXICO PREPARING TO PAY HER DEBTS

Senor Covarrubias Asserts His People Are Disgusted With Revolution.

SEEKING RECOGNITION

Asserts That If Powers Will Give Country Chance She Will Make Good.

LONDON, July 29.—The Mexicans are sick of revolutions and won't follow any leader in any attempt to overthrow the present established Government, Senor Covarrubias, financial representative of the Mexican Government in London, told the New York Herald correspondent. He said that the chief wish of his country was recognition by the powers, particularly the United States, so that Mexico would be able to get to work, pay her debts and return to an honorable footing with the world.

Mexico has just purchased a fine building in Belgrave Square for her legation, costing £15,000, and has started a businesslike campaign to get back into good graces, and is promising that she is determined to behave in the future.

Senor Covarrubias says that his mission is purely of a financial character, but denies that the failure of the United States, England and France to recognize Mexico is based on any just claim of lack of stability and unwillingness to meet international obligations.

"The present Government," he said, "whether considered from the standpoint of legality or stability or its readiness to comply with international obligations, is the best Mexico can produce, and there never has been a better in regard to these points since the time independence was gained. The Mexicans won't follow the discredited malcontents of the late Carranza regime. Because of lack of recognition there are now plotters in the United States who are greatly disturbing the public peace in Mexico.

"At the same time it is declared that the Government cannot be recognized because it isn't firmly established, owing to the machinations of these plotters. In other words there is no recognition because there are plotters against the Government, and there are plotters because there is no recognition. It is said that as long as Mexico does not pay her foreign creditors no recognition will be granted. Here is another vicious circle, because no proper arrangement can be made with foreign creditors as long as the Government is prevented from doing so. The creditors of Mexico really have shown very little disposition to accept the invitation of the Government to give it a chance to pay."

Senor Covarrubias says that the legation is being opened here after seven years in order to begin operations with a view of resumption of service of public debt and the Government will welcome representatives of foreign creditors in order to make arrangements to carry out payments.

"We are not only ready but anxious," he said, "to comply with our international obligations and to regain the place which we occupied before in the family of nations, although we realize with sorrow, but without complaint, that no help or encouragement is given us by the nations most interested in the rehabilitation of Mexico."

MANY ROBBERIES FROM FREIGHT CARS

Burglars Are Busy, According To Special Agent Kast.

ST. THOMAS, July 29.—The bandits are now operating in the railway yards, and, according to the M. C. R. special agent, Capt. Kast, several burglaries have taken place along the line of the Michigan Central within the last few days. A freight car standing in the St. Thomas yards was broken into and a quantity of shoes consigned from the Aylmer Shoe Company were stolen, valued at $350. There were three cases, or 68 pairs, of shoes removed. Police officers outside have been asked to be on the watch for the sale of the goods at houses under suspicion where seconds are kept.

Lorry Was Smashed.

A lorry placed on the M. C. R. rails at Taylor was hit by a fast freight last night without serious damage to the locomotive, but the lorry was knocked to smithereens. Children playing around the station are blamed for the act. The M. C. R. detective, however, is investigating.

Pickpockets at Port.

Pickpockets are again reported at Port Stanley. A woman declining to have her name published was relieved of $98 on the boardwalk, and others lost smaller sums in the recent crush at the lakeside.

Biggs Opens Park.

The community park at Dutton will be opened on Tuesday, August 16, by Hon. Frank Campbell Biggs, minister of public works.

Aylmer has been advised by the gas company that beginning August 1 gas will be 80c a thousand, net, and a service charge of $1.50 a month.

PALMERSTON A. A. MAY BUILD SKATING RINK

PALMERSTON, July 29.—If the resolutions of the Palmerston Athletic Association are carried out there will be skating in Palmerston this coming winter. It will not probably be under a cover, but there will be good ice, and a foundation for one of the best rinks and buildings in the county. In addition to skating this winter there will likely be a swimming pool for the summer on the same premises. There are resolutions adopted by the association, and it has been decided to start the ball rolling at once to provide for a rink, and the committee in charge, composed of the president, secretary and treasurer, is negotiating for the purchase of sufficient property at the rear of Dr. Coleman's property on Queen street, upon which to build.

What is the use of storing up that old sideboard, when you can easily sell it through an advertisement in The London Advertiser. Classified ars are read by everybody, and you will be able to find a customer readily.

WRIT CALLS FOR APPREHENSION OF GEN. MACREADY

Notice of Appeal Is Announced by Irish Commander's Counsel.

DUBLIN, July 29.—Writs of attachment, calling for the apprehension of General Sir Nevil Macready, commander of the British troops in Ireland, and Major-General Sir Edward P. Strickland, commander in Munster, were issued today by the master of the rolls. Sergeant Hanna, attorney for General Macready and General Strickland, and also for the governor of Limerick jail, for whom a similar writ was issued, announced that a notice of an appeal against the decision of the master of the rolls would be lodged with the House of Lords.

The case had its origin in the failure of those against whom the writs were issued to comply with proceedings in habeas corpus to produce John Egan, under sentence of death by a military court in Limerick, in court today.

Not Yet Executed.

Sergeant Hanna told the master of the rolls that he had been instructed by Macready to give an undertaking that, pending a final hearing on the appeal, the sentences of death against Egan and another prisoner named Higgins would not be executed.

The master of the rolls, however, declined to listen to Sergt. Hanna. He declared the case represented deliberate contempt of court, unprecedented in the whole history of British law, and ordered the writs of attachment issued.

Next Step Uncertain.

Uncertainty prevails as to the next step in the case. Dublin is not under martial law, and it is therefore presumed that General Macready, who is now in London, and the others against whom writs are issued, are liable to arrest.

It is reported that appeals will be lodged not only against the issue of the writs of habeas corpus but also against the order for the writs of attachment.

WOULD ELIMINATE PERSONAL SECURITY

Manager of Iron Works Appeals To Finance Committee.

ST. THOMAS, July 29.—Managing Director Rogers of the Erie Iron Works appealed to the finance committee of the city council at a meeting this afternoon for the elimination of the personal property security incorporated in the mortgage held by the city on the real estate and stock of the company.

Mr. Rogers offered to reduce the mortgage by $2,000, if the council would accept the security of the real estate alone as sufficient protection for the amount now due by the company. Mr. Rogers desires that chattels in the shape of stock-in-trade, stock under manufacture, and other personalty be removed from the mortgage, as the lien upon them held by the city is a hindrance to the company when negotiating for advances at the bank. A committee consisting of Chairman Raven, the city solicitor, Aldermen Walker, Penhale and McIntyre was named to visit the works and confer with Mr. Rogers.

Mrs. Davis' Taxes.

The complaint of Mrs. Davis, Victoria avenue, against the payment of interest on a sum of taxes overdue was referred to a special committee to investigate the condition of Mrs. Davis' property.

Failed to Appear.

The three young men, who were alleged to have infracted the O. T. A. near Vienna during the week and were summoned, failed to appear before the magistrate today. Warrants may be issued for their arrest.

Driven Out by Taxes.

The Provincial and Dominion taxes are driving the carnival companies now showing in the city outside the limits of Ontario. The aggregation is paying about $600 a week in taxes. It leaves here to go to Quebec.

53 Babies Treated.

Fifty-three babies, eighteen of whom made their first appearance, were treated at the baby clinic yesterday.

The home of William Chute, Malahide, and most of the contents were recently destroyed by a fire. The family were camping at Port Bruce. The loss will be large.

OPPOSES PLAN TO BUILD SEWER BY PIECEMEAL

Alderman Fears Many Ratepayers Would Not Vote For Bylaw.

ST. THOMAS, July 29.—Objections were taken by Ald. Meehan, at the meeting of the council tonight, to the building of storm sewers by piecemeal as the property owners not directly benefited by the sewer would not favor a bylaw to cover any special section of the city and the cost of it to be raised by a vote in installments. Ald. Meehan demanded that a bylaw go to the people for the construction of a system which would cover the entire city. All the municipality would be interested and general benefit would result to the whole city.

Gives Estimate.

Chairman Curtis placed the cost of the proposed improvement on Wellington street at $25,000. In case of extending the system, Ald. Currie explained that a special act would be necessary and the aldermen desired to hasten the work and relieve that end of the city.

The mayor suggested that before any definite action is taken that the scheme be thoroughly investigated by the council.

Objects to Chief's Trip.

Chairman Hill of the fire committee objected to Chief Henderson attending the firemen's convention at Three Rivers next month. The alderman protested against the expense of the trip. The committee had not money enough to paint the front of the fire building and the alderman moved that Chief Henderson remain at home. There was no seconder.

Chairman McIntyre advised the council that an inspector would come from Montreal to inquire into the cause leading up to the leaking of the roof of the new pavilion at Pinafore Park.

The Ontario society for the prevention of cruelty to animals advised the council the secretary-treasurer was obtaining data for the proper treatment of animals caged at Pinafore Park and will be able to place practical suggestions before the council in a few days.

Asks For $4,000.

The chairman of the Ontario committee of the National Sanatorium Association made a request that a contribution of $4,000 be made in aid of the building fund of the association. No. 1 will consider.

The clerk of Peterboro wrote asking the co-operation of the council in having the criminal code amended so that the fines collected on indictable offences may be retained by the municipalities. The proposed change would benefit St. Thomas to the extent of $3,500.

City Solicitor Doherty is down for a paper on the subject which he will read at the meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association in September.

Charles R. Singer was given permission to erect a galvanized garage at 18 East street.

The mayor and solicitor were named to attend the Ontario Municipal Association, Toronto, August 31 and following days.

The Labor men were given the privileges of Pinafore Park on the occasion of their demonstration on Labor Day.

Would Resign Chairmanship.

Ald. Hill objected to the shelving of the purchase of a motor truck because no demonstration is being given by the rival trucks. No action was taken.

Ald. Hill found fault with some of the members of the council, who apparently did not approve of his work as chairman of the fire commitee and he asked to be relieved of his duties of chairman. The mayor refused to act on the request of Ald. Hill.

MRS. LINDSAY WAS EXECUTED AS SPY

Kidnapped in Her Home by Three Armed Men.

DUBLIN, July 29.—Mrs. J. W. Lindsay, widow of a Cork landowner who was kidnapped from her home in Coachford early in the year, was executed some months ago on the charge that she "was directly responsible for conveying to the enemy information which led to the execution of five of our men by the British authorities, for the death of a sixth by wounds received in action, and for the sentence of 25 years' penal servitude passed upon a seventh."

This information is contained in a letter which a sister of Mrs. Lindsay has received from the "Dail Eireann defence department," acquainting her with the circumstances, "in accordance with instructions by the president."

Was Postponed.

The letter says that the carrying out of the sentence pronounced upon Mrs. Lindsay was postponed while she wrote to Major-General Strickland, divisional commander in Ireland, pointing out the consequences to herself should the men be executed. They were executed, nevertheless, and five days afterwards the sentence on Mrs. Lindsay, suspended pending a reply from Major-General Strickland, was duly carried out. The letter concludes:

"We regret the circumstances and the stern necessity to protect our forces which necessitated the drastic action by our local commanders."

WOMAN WAS KIDNAPPED.

LONDON, July 29.—Mrs. J. W. Lindsay, widow of a Cork landowner, who was kidnapped from her home in Coachford in February last by three armed men, was executed as a spy, according to information revealed this evening by the Dail Eireann authorities.

MILK AND CHEESE WILL BE HIGHER

COURTLAND, July 29.—More than 100 dairymen of this district attended a meeting here at which the Courtland branch of the Ontario Milk and Cream Association was organized, with the following officers.

George H. Ronson of Courtland, president.
J. Macdonald, vice-president.
Arthur Simmons, secretary.

The speakers were E. H. Stackhouse, president of the Ontario Association; G. G. Bramhill, Norfolk agricultural representative; Delmer Woolley, president of the Simcoe Milk Producers' Association, and the elected officers.

Mr. Stackhouse, in his address, predicted higher prices for milk and cheese.

BRANTFORD IS EN FETE FOR OLD HOME WEEK

Sports Will Feature Big Program, Which Opens Monday.

BRANTFORD, July 29.—The city is gay with flags and bunting in readiness for the opening of Old Home Week, which starts on August 1. A splendid program has been prepared and professional baseball and amateur games will be played all week. Old-time teams of lacrosse and baseball are also included and a big ten-mile road race, the first of the kind in some time here, are billed. The Gladstone Athletic Club of Toronto is sending up Dellow and Scholes and other well-known runners.

Fire in a West Brantford dump developed rapidly this afternoon and a squad of firemen spent some hours handling it.

Valuators, forming a civic commission, have awarded a total of $2,100 in damages to residents whose land is in the vicinity of the St. Paul's avenue railway subway. Claims from citizens were all heard and most of them granted.

WOMAN IS RESCUED FROM LEDGE OF ROCKS

Mrs. Stone, On Way Back To Civilization, Tells Story.

MARVEL CREEK, Alta., July 28.—(By pony express to Banff.) — The Calgary Herald's staff correspondent sent by pony to the scene of the Stone tragedy wires his paper from Banff today as follows:

"Suffering from starvation and shock, Mrs. W. E. Stone is lying in an improvised fly camp on the side of Mount Eon, while the party who rescued her are busy building a raft to convey her down the Marvel Lakes, the first stage of the 55-ile trip to civilization. The search for Dr. Stone's body has proved unavailing so far, and the rescue party are nearly exhausted from their efforts to find it. It is probable that the body will be left until another and better equipped search party can be organized.

Out of Danger.

"After having been trapped on the side of a precipice for eight days without food or water, terribly bruised and realizing that her husband must lie dead somewhere beneath her, Mrs. Stone is in wonderful condition. She is weak, but Dr. Bell of Winnipeg, who was one of the rescue party, and who has been with her since she was found on Sunday, is confident that she is now out of danger. Though she has had little more than an hour's sleep since she was found and little nourishment, on Wednesday evening she was able to speak briefly of her terrible experience. During the greater part of the time, however, the rescue party has been unable to converse with her, except at odd intervals.

Mrs. Stone Tells Story.

"The accident in which Dr. Stone lost his life occurred on Saturday, July 16. Mrs. Stone has been able to tell some of the circumstances. On Friday she and her husband set out to climb the eastern slope of Mount Eon, near Mount Assiniboine. They established a camp on the slope of the mountain, and on Saturday morning started the ascent. They climbed without being fastened together with a rope. In the afternoon they had nearly reached the summit and were negotiating a particularly stiff bit of almost perpendicular cliff. Dr. Stone was slightly in advance. As Mrs. Stone looked up toward her husband she believes that he stepped on a loose rock or else a handhold on the mountain broke away. Instantly he fell, and as he went past Mrs. Stone she saw him strike his face on the cliff several times, his body turning over and over until he disappeared into the grim abyss below.

Attempts Rescue.

"Without stopping to count the cost, and realizing the impossibility of saving her husband's life, Mrs. Stone prepared to go to the rescue. Fastening a rope which she carried to the mountain side she climbed rapidly down. When she reached the end of the rope she found no foot or handhold, and dangled there, and then being unable to make her way up the rope again and finding nothing else to cling to, she released her hold on her slender lifeline. Fate intervened to save Mrs. Stone from instant death, for below the cliff sheered away abruptly for 1,000 feet before a more gradual slope could be found. Dropping, she fell about ten feet from the end of the rope onto a tiny ledge, not four feet wide. Here, without food, or water, with little to hold to, she remained for eight days.

"During that time clouds often surrounded the mountain top, and frequently storms, accompanied by lightning and thunder, broke about her. Long before help arrived she must have despaired of ever being rescued, but her wonderful stamina carried her through, and caused her to cling to the faint chance for life.

Saved by Guide.

"It was just after supper on Sunday evening that Rammer, a Swiss guide, found Mrs. Stone. Letting himself down to her ledge with a rope, he fastened the rope about her body, a difficult task, for she was terribly bruised. Drawing her up to where a foothold could be gained, he performed what Gen. Mitchell describes as a wonderful feat, for he carried the unconscious woman down the face of the mountain in his arms.

"At the present time an arduous journey remains for Mrs. Stone, for the trail to Banff is 55 miles on pack horse, beset with many difficulties. She must be carried on a stretcher every foot of the way, with the exception of the short span of the Marvel Lakes."

PRODUCE SLUMP MAY DELAY ROAD LAYING

TORONTO, July 29.—With the price of cement tending downward the Drury Government has decided not to go ahead with the construction of the proposed provincial cement plant. Hon. F. C. Biggs, minister of public works, said that the many calls on the finances of the Government was also a factor in the decision. It is realized also that the decided drop in the value of agricultural produce may delay to some extent the laying of permanent provincial roads in some sections.

DE VALERA IS STILL SILENT

No New Move Pending Release of Feiners From Jail.

LONDON, July 21. — Eamonn de Valera still is silent, another day having passed with no word from the republican leader.

The general supposition now is that there will be no new move in the peace negotiations pending the expected release of those members of the Dail Eireann who are in jail and the summoning of a full meeting of the republican parliament. Mr. de Valera for the best part of the last few days has gone over the peace proposals with the available members of the republican "cabinet," and it is expected when the Dail Eireann is called to consider what shall be the decision he will be ready to present the views of his colleagues, as well as his own opinion.

Temporarily the peace negotiations have been overshadowed by the extraordinary action of the military authorities in Ireland—General Sir Nevil Macready, Major-General Sir Edward Strickland and others—in defying the master of the rolls by failing to comply with writs of habeas corpus which he ordered in connection with the sentencing to death of John Egan and the reported spiriting away of Egan from the Limerick jail to an unknown place.

What action the court will take is a subject of discussion, as the arrest of those concerned for contempt of court, it is believed would involve legal technicalities connected with the operation, or otherwise, of martial law.

HIGH TAXES ARE PARTIALLY DUE TO HIGH LABOR

Civic Financing Discussed by City Treasurer At Rotary Meeting.

BRANTFORD, July 29.—City Treasurer A. K. Bunnel urged the members of the Rotary Club at their noonday luncheon today to take a deeper interest in civic matters, and to make civic affairs more interesting and gave them an illuminating talk on civic financing, a talk highly appreciated. He stated that Brantford's financial position was sound, but that taxes were undoubtedly high and would be so long as labor costs remained high, for these were the foundation of civic expenditure. What kept the tax rate high, too, was the constant demand for further services, and he instanced mothers' allowances, suburban area road work, supervised playgrounds, medical and dental inspection of school children, and other services lately introduced. The civic utilities here, street railway, water and hydro were all paying their own way and were giving service.

Mayor Wellace informed the Rotarians that he had endeavored to secure provincial action in aiding cities to furnish unemployed men with tickets for the harvest excursions to the West, but found that the provincial authorities took the stand that the men who could pay their own way West would be of such number that the needs of the West would be fully met.

CARADOC WILL HAVE PLENTY OF POTATOES

Crops Generally Are in Excellent Condition Throughout Township.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

MOUNT BRYDGES, July 29.—In spite of damage done by the big storm a couple of weeks ago, Caradoc's potato yield this season will be a large one. Reports of heavy damage to the potato crop in other places lead many local growers to expect firm prices.

Dr. Woods and Ed. Trott tonight finished judging the 50 gardens entered in the school garden competition. Never have there been better gardens than were judged this season and the children received many warm compliments. The winners as announced to The Advertiser are:

Reta Hawes, 100; A. D. Thomas, 99; Lloyd Steer, 98; Jessie Pettigrew, 98; Shirley Wyatt, 98; Marion Stiltz, 97; Jean Bond, 96; Marion Niles, 96; Stella Wyatt, 94; Irene Hyatt, 93; Lela Steer, 92.

Crop Competition.

Following are the results of the standing field crop competition in oats, held by the Caradoc Agricultural Society:

1. Alex. Lamont, 89.
2. Dougald Campbell, 88.
3. Norman Curtis, 87½.
4. Weld Bros., 87.
5. John A. Crawford, 86½.
6. D. M. McNeil, 85½.
7. D. A. McNeil, 84½.
8. John Walker, 84.
9. John K. Crawford, 83.
10. Clarence Trott, 81.
11. Norris McGugan, 75½.

The first seven named are the prize winners.

The judge was very well pleased with the crops he inspected, declaring them the cleanest and best all-round fields of this grain he had seen this year. He was delighted with their high standard of excellence. Oats have done pretty well this year in Caradoc, particularly on the light land.

Leaves Hydro Commission

HON. I. B. LUCAS, whose resignation as a member of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission is announced. He was appointed while attorney-general in the Ontario Government.

FINANCIAL, MARKET AND COMMERCIAL SECTION

UNSETTLEMENT IS MANIFESTED ON NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

More Seasoned Industrials Are Immune From Pressure.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Further unsettlement was manifested by the stock exchange today on renewal of liquidation and short selling of speculative issues. Rails, and the more seasoned industrials, were immune from pressure, but eased in the general reversal of the last hour.

New elements of weakness were uncovered by the aggressive bears. Shippings, notably United Fruit and Mercantile Marine preferred were freely offered on adverse rate conditions and the cheaper motors proved susceptible to reports of a slackening demand.

Chemical and paper specialties were sold in the accompaniment of lower prices for these commodities, together with labor disturbances. Various miscellaneous issues fell one to two points.

The more stable equipments made partial recoveries from mid-week reactions and further advances in prices of raw and refined rubber infused firmness to the tire group, but a heavy tone ruled at the close. Sales amounted to 435,000 shares.

Call money hel dat 4½ per cent, upsetting the calculations of borrowers, who had hoped for renewals at yesterday's minimum rate of 3½ per cent. More time funds were available, however, at 5¾ per cent.

All leading foreign exchanges were lower, demand sterling falling a fraction under $3.56, with concurretn weakness in French and Belgian francs, also marks and guilders. Italian and Spanish rates hardened, but a sagging tendency marked the moderate dealings in bills in Czecho-Slovakia and Poland.

The bond market made further upward progress on enlarged operations with foreign issues the chief feature. The new French 7½'s were especially strong, also Swiss and Japanese flotations. Liberties closed mostly at substantial gains.

Total sales (par value), aggregated $14,450,000.

STOCKS AND VICTORY BONDS ARE FIRM ON TORONTO EXCHANGE

New York Fails To Give Lead—Turnover Nominal.

TORONTO, July 29.—A holiday air pervaded the Canadian stock exchanges today, but prices were firm. The recess involved in a close of the exchanges from Friday afternon until Tuesday morning gave many brokers and traders a chance to leave the city and there was a general air of quiet in the financial district.

New York still failed to give a lead in and direction and in most of the active local stocks the turnover was merely nominal.

There was firmness in local stocks as well as in Victory bonds. Brazilian Traction was far in the lead in volume but the number of sales was small. The prices stayed close to 22 all day and closed at that price with a gain of a quarter point. F. R. Peacock, vice-president of Brazilian, before leaving for Mexico on Thursday offered the opinion that too many rumors and untrue stories about Brazilian Traction were in circulation. As to a dividend he was quoted as saying that he would be agreeably surprised if Brazilian were able to declare a dividend within the year.

Riordon had its share of trading among the paper issues, and this time was weak. Both Old Riordon common and New Riordon preferred declined a fraction. The other paper stocks on the local list were firm, and advances were made by Abitibi, Spanish River and Laurentide.

Canada Steamships preferred, Canadian Pacific Railway, F. N. Burt preferred and Steel of Canada, also advanced. Toronto Railway, Twin City and Steel Products were easier.

The chief gain of the Victory group was made by the 1937's, which moved up 45c. A 10c gain was made by the 1924's.

Total sales — Listed stocks, 777 shares; unlisted stocks, 215 shares; bonds and war loans, $124,650.

TONE OF TRADING IS STEADY TO FIRM ON MONTREAL EXCHANGE

Most Business Continues in Paper Group, With Riordon Leading.

MONTREAL, July 29.—The general tone of the trading on the local stock market today was steady to firm and issues which had displayed strength during the week were either a little higher or about steady. The largest gain of the trading was in Ames-Holden preferred, which sold up to 24, an advance of six points, whilst the nearest to this was the gain of 3½ points in Canada Steamships preferred at 49.

Most of the business continued in the paper group with Riordon the leader. This issue showed slight advance at the start, but closed unchanged at 4. Laurentide was fractionally up at 69. Spanish River common closed unchanged at 55 and the preferred was down half a point at 59½. Abitibi was up a fraction to 28. Howard-Smith preferred advanced 1½ points to 68½. There is talk of a short interest in this stock, which has brought it up around eight points since Monday last.

Business in bonds held up fairly well, although prices were generally inclined to be easier.

WHEAT PRICES CLOSE UNSETTLED AND LOW ON CHICAGO BOARD

Accumulating Stocks and Diminishing Outlet Are Depressing Factors.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Accumulating stocks and diminishing outlet counted as depressing factors in the wheat market today. Prices closed unsettled, 1@5c net lower, with September, $1.23¾@1.20, and December, $1.26¼@1.26½. Corn lost ¼@⅞c, and oats ⅜@¾c. Provisions closed unchanged to 35c lower.

With receipts here totalling nearly 700 cars and with even heavier arrivals at Kansas City, the market soon gave evidence of feeling an apparent almost complete stoppage of export demand. In this connection bears pointed out that in three weeks Chicago had received 13,000,000 bushels, whereas shipments from here had been only 3,000,000 bushels. The situation was further illustrated by announcement that today's export business amounted to but three cargoes of which two were for Brazil, leaving just a single cargo bought for Europe. Bullish reports as to the probable size of the domestic spring crop and as to drought in Germany, rallied the market during the middle of the session. In the last hour, however, selling led by a big elevator concern carried the market downward again, and the finish was about at the lowest level of the day.

Oats merely reflected the action of other grains.

Provisions had a general downward slant, owing more or less to assertions that the forthcoming monthly warehouse statement would be a bearish one.

MARKET PRICES FOR WHEAT FUTURES ARE HIGHER AT WINNIPEG

Little Demand For Anything Else But No. 2 Northern.

WINNIPEG, July 29.—On the cash wheat market this morning there was little demand for anything except No. 2 northern, for which a premium of ½c was being paid. There was no inquiry for other grades and all stocks were being placed against past sales. Saturday will be the last day for trading in July futures and it is believed that all shorts have been eliminated and contracts cleaned up. In the coarse grains there was little demand with no change in spreads. In the futures market for wheat, prices were moderately higher after a steady opening. July closed ⅝c higher; October ½c up, and December, ½c down.

The future coarse grains market was of a very dull nature, little trade being worked with no great amount offering. Oats closed ¼@1¼c lower; barley, 1⅛c lower to unchanged; flax, ¾@1c lower, and rye unchanged. Quotations:

EVENING GRAIN LETTER.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Wheat—Another day of slow export business has made the wheat market more responsive to the movement of wheat from first hands than to reduced estimates of final yields. The shortage in elevator space in the Chicago market necessitates a slowing down in the demand for the purpose of storage, and in addition to this the delivery of carlots on future contracts does not permit the buyer to turn around readily; as a consequence, the demand for the futures is lessened. Choice wheat, particularly the spring grade, demands enormous premiums here and elsewhere, but this is ineffective in the case of the liberal movement of winter wheat and the congestion at western terminals. Two more cargoes have been sold for shipment to South America, the reason for the demand from that source being the relative cheapness of United States wheat. While it is true that the offerings of winter wheat from first hands are decreasing there is still sufficient contracted and in transit to make a sizable total, and under this influence prices may drag over the end of the week, but with Central Europe's needs enormous and the United States wheat the cheapest in the world it is only reasonable to expect that the material reduction in United States total yields as indicated by threshing returns leaves no room for belief that we will have any surplus remaining as the crop year progresses.

Coarse Grains—Timely rains over central portion of the corn belt have relieved apprehension, but these rains have not been sufficiently widespread to say that crop as a whole is making proper progress. They have been sufficient to make the market sympathetic with the decline in wheat. The estimate on oats, as issued by a local authority says that the condition is the lowest on record, which means not only duced, but that such oats as are available duced, but that much oats as are available are of very poor quality. Just at the moment this market is laboring under an extremely slow demand and heavy discounts for the daily receipts.

We are inclined to view corn and oats as we do wheat, namely, that prices may drag temporarily, but that our entire surplus will be in demand.

EVENING STOCK LETTER.

NEW YORK, July 29. — The stock market was again a two-sided affair, weakness in some and strength in others. The selling of specialties during the past few days was probably equally divided between liquidation and professional selling, and in each instance is due to conditions peculiar to the individual stock or company rather than to the market in general.

The money market has now become an important factor.

The railroad business is gradually becoming more profitable, and the moment the matter of accounts between them and the Government is settled, they will become more liberal buyers of equipment, which will mean business for the steel companies and many other institutions.

We continue to feel hopeful about the future of the market, and are of the opinion that stocks should be accumulated.

ROSCOE ("FATTY") ARBUCKLE IN "BREWSTER'S MILLIONS" AT THE ALLEN MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY NEXT WEEK.

"Brewster's Millions," which has convulsed the thousands of readers of what is perhaps the most popular novel ever written by George Barr McCutcheon, threw thousands of playgoers into spasms of laughter when it was presented on the stage. With the indescribably wider range of possibilities offered by the screen, this "Fatty" Arbuckle vehicle becomes a veritable explosion of hilarity. The story is one of pure comedy romance. It has been embellished, in the screen version, by the inclusion of a number of instances that appear in neither the novel or the play, with the result that the production has a far greater comedy value.

Among the many added attractions will b shown a "Snub" Pollard comedy, "The Bike Bug," Allen World News, Chester Outing Pictures and special musical program.

"BURGLAR PROOF" STARRING BRYANT WASHBURN AT ALLEN'S LAST HALF NEXT WEEK.

Dancing as a means to restore jangled nerves is prescribed John Harlow in "Burglar Proof," starring Bryant Washburn, which comes to the Allen for three days, beginning Thursday next. Bryant Washburn as "John" has a terrible (and amusing) time reconciling his tight-wad ideas with the spendthrift crowd among whom he is thrown. In his old country days he had loved Jenny Larkin. He finds her in the city now, a slangy, gum-chewing "teacher" in a dance hall. Jenny sees a chance to "shake down" this "Hick sweetie" for a little change. But the shaking is poor until Laura, another dancer, returns from a vaudeville trip. How the purse strings fly open! Jenny sees her "easy mark" slipping and tries to prove that Laura is interested in another man, but in the end—why tell the story and spoil the climax for you. Lois Wilson heads a capable supporting cast.

On the same program with "Burglar Proof" will be shown a Booth Tarkington comedy, "Edgar's Country Cousin"; Allen News, and fourth episode "Hope Diamond Mystery," "The Virgin's Love."

AT LOEW'S.

FASCINATING STORY OF A SENTIMENTAL YOUTH AND TRUSTING GIRL IS "SENTIMENTAL TOMMY," WHICH SHOWS AT LOEW'S MONDAY NEXT.

Grizel, serious and responsible beyond her 12 years, has been ostracized all her life by the inhabitants of Thrums, a Scotch village, because of the taint that hangs over the respectability of her mother, known generally as the Painted Lady, until her one constant yearning is to be recognized as decent. One morning when she, as usual, is being taunted by the other children of the town, a champion appears in the person of Tommy Sandys, a newcomer to the town with an unlimited imagination, and Tommy becomes her fast friend.

At the age of 22 Tommy has become recognized in London as a precocious genius and successful author. Returning to Thrums, he discovers that Grizel, now a beautiful girl of 18, loves him.

Tommy goes away, and Grizel doesn't hear from him for a long time. Fearing that Tommy is in trouble and needs her, Grizel follows him faithfully to Switzerland, where she surprises him by coming upon him when he is making love to Lady Alice, and before Tommy can make an explanation, she disappears. Tommy finds Grizel in her mother's old home, demented from grief over him. With true remorse he marries her, and sacrifices everything. Also a Sennett Comedy and Loew's Screen Pictorial. In addition to the picture program, Arthur Deagon is engaged for the headline of the vaudeville bill. Arthur is a favorite in Canada and will be remembered as the popular musical comedy star who appeared in "Peggy From Paris," "Belle of New York," "The Highwayman," and many other stage successes.

FAMOUS MONASTERY OF ST. BERNARD REPRODUCED IN "THE FATAL HOUR" AT LOEW'S THURSDAY NEXT.

New York studios in West Sixty-first street were transformed by M. P. Staulcup, art director, into a reproduction of the interior of the Monastery of St. Bernard, in Switzerland. The monastery is the background for one of the most dramatic scenes in the thrilling melodrama, "The Fatal Hour," by Cecil Raleigh, adapted for the screen by Julia Burnham.

The big hospice in the medieval building, where the monks give a night's lodging to any traveler, is copied from the original. The vaulted ceilings, the Gothic arches, the big pillars and the stone flooring have been installed and the atmosphere of the monastery, gloomy with its shadows and age, has been created.

Another big scene to be constructed by Mr. Staulcup for "The Fatal Hour" is the Thames embankment, showing the Tower of London. A location for this scene was obtained along the East River.

MORE PROTECTION TO PUBLIC IN SALE OF STOCK WILL BE URGED

Chamber of Commerce to Consider Special Resolutions—Major Chisholme May Come Here.

Because it is believed that existing laws governing the sale of stock in Ontario do not afford sufficient protection to the public, the directors of the local Chamber of Commerce voted unanimously at a meeting on Thursday to adopt a report of a special committee in which several recommendations were made. The recommendation, however, will not be made public until after they come before the members' council, when if they are given a favorable reception they will be passed on to the Provincial Government.

The directors decided to exhibit the great picture of London taken from the air by the Geodetic Survey of Canada at the Western Fair. The picure when completed will measure approximately ten feet square, and it will show every house, pole and other natural and artificial feature of the city. The picture will be on exhibition in the Agricultural Building.

Major Chisholme, British trade commissioner to South America, who is to visit Canada in August, will be invited to visit this city, and to address the United Export Managers of Western Ontario. Major Chisholme is conversant with the trade requirements of all the countries in Central America and of the northern countries of South America, including Mexico, Panama, Cuba, Havana, Colombia, and several others. It is expected that his visits will do much to bring a better understanding between this country and the south.

NOTED AUTHOR MAY LECTURE IN LONDON

Samuel S. McClure, publicist, author, and lecturer, the founder of McClure's Magazine, will in all probability come to this city during September under the auspices of the members' council of the local chamber of commerce. At a meeting held on Thursday the council decided to invite him to give a lecture on some topic which will be selected at a future date.

Mr. McClure is familiar with conditions the world over, as during the past 25 years he has traveled extensively visiting among others, the seventeen most important countries of the world several times. While on his travels he has studied the manners, customs, and the political and industrial life of all nations. He is especially familiar with all subjects relative to the welfare of the English-speaking races.

SOLDIER PATIENTS TO BE KIWANIANS' GUESTS

On Thursday evening next the soldier patients of the city hospital will be treated to a drive about London and district by the Kiwanis Club. At today's weekly luncheon of that association at the Tecumseh House, more than twenty members volunteered to be on hand with their machines on the appointed evening.

A very encouraging report was received at today's gathering in relation to the boys' camp now in progress at "Tiny" Sage's farm. Some 35 boys, wards of the Kiwanians, are enjoying a two weeks encampment, and each day members of the club visit the scene of merry-making and lend their spirit of co-operation to the proceedings.

FIVE CHARGED WITH AUTOMOBILE THEFT BOOKED FOR TRIAL

Will Appear Before Judge Macbeth in Few Days To Elect.

Chester Roe, Orville Restorick, George Grant, George Langridge and Clarence Greason were committed by Squire W. H. Chittick at the courthouse Friday afternoon for trial on a charge of theft. They are alleged to have stolen an auto belonging to George Geogeghan in Westminster Township. They will probably appear before Judge Talbot Macbeth within a few days to elect whether they wish to be tried by judge or jury.

Joseph Soden declared that on July 1 Chester Roe visited the garage at which he is employed at Ingersoll for repairs. He said that after he left he missed a cushion and other articles. Later, Soden came to London to investigate the matter and to see Roe's car. He learned from Roe that four other young men had taken Roe's car to Hamilton for a trip. Soden was asked, he said, if he could handle stolen cars and other stolen property. He said that he thought he could. Then he was told that there was a car stripped of tires and other parts on a seldom-travelled road between Springbank and Komoka. He was told of another car hidden in the upper part of a barn. He arranged to go to the former place and get the car.

An hour later he told the local detective department of his findings and Detectives Harry Down and Thomas Bolton, along with George Geogeghan, went to the spot Soden described and found Geogeghan's car. It was stripped of several parts. This was on July 22.

On July 23, the detectives met Soden coming from Nilestown and "got a line" on the five accused. They found three of them on the road in the vicinity of one car and chased the other two, who fled in a second car. They overtook them and brought the five men and the two cars to police headquarters, the detectives testified.

Constable Matthew Easton saw the five accused on Layard street pumping wind into a tire on a car, about four hours after Geogeghan's car was reported stolen. He positively identified the five as being the men who were there.

In one of the cars the police found a raincoat and a pair of shoes which they claim were stolen and were the property of Geogeghan.

J. M. Donahue, solicitor for Clarence Greason, contended that his client should not be sent for trial as there was no evidence to show that he was connected with the theft of the car. Squire Chittick said that Constable Easton's evidence particularly impressed him that the whole gang were implicated in the matter. W. R. Henderson and E. W. Scratcherd were other counsel for the defence.

Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop, K.C., declared that all five should certainly be sent for trial.

COUNTY READY TO BEAR SHARE OF EXPENDITURE

Middlesex County desires to play its part in the establishment of a juvenile court, County Clerk John Stuart told The Advertiser yesterday. In 1920 the Middlesex County council, he stated, passed a resolution recommending the founding of a juvenile court in London, where county and city juvenile cases could be disposed of. The resolution was forwarded to the attorney-general. The present scheme as brought before No. 1 committee of the city council, provides only for city cases, as Mr. Stuart sees it.

Some of the worst cases of juvenile crime take place on the outskirts of the city, he claims, and about the only way they can be dealt with is in juvenile court. Regular police courts are not deemed suitable places for making disposition of the cases.

As Inspector W. E. Kelly of the Children's Aid Society will be a probation officer, according to the juvenile court plan now up for approval, and as inspector of the Children's Aid Society, he works in the county as well as in the city, it would not be much extra work to include the county in the scheme, it is contended. And the county is willing to pay its share of the cost of the court, just as it does for other machinery connected with the administration of justice in this district, the county clerk concluded.
