Y. M. C. A.

An important meeting will be held in the Bell house next Thursday evening at 8.30, to consider the Financial Campaign of the National Y. M. C. A., and to organize committees for the canvass which is to commence on May 5th. The sum of $12,500 is being asked from the County of Wentworth, and of this the village of Waterdown will be canvassed to raise $600. Out of the $12,500, $4,000 is being spent in the county by taking the Y. M. C. A. program into the small towns and rural centers. A County secretary, Fred G. Fowler, has already been engaged for this work, and he will be at the meeting to meet the people of this community and give an outline of the work he intends to do in this county.

Had Unique Honor

Toronto Officer Led Way Into Sea of Marmora.

The first unit of the British navy to pass up to ports on the Sea of Marmora after the declaration of the armistice was a motor patrol launch, which was in command of a Canadian officer—Lieut. Lawrence Goad, of the Royal Motor Boat Patrol, who comes from Toronto.

As the launch landed its crew, the Greek women of the district strewed the way with flowers, and an old Greek priest came and paid homage. Evidences of the Turkish abominations were to be seen on the passage through the Dardanelles, the bodies of Anzacs and Imperial troops, who had fallen in the glorious attempt at Gallipoli, having been dug up merely for the clothing which was upon them.

At the time the armistice was signed Lieut. Goad was patrolling the Bulgarian coast. A great attack had been planned, and preliminary preparations were being made, but the cessation of hostilities frustrated this. For over three years Lieut. Goad had been on this patrol work in the Aegean Sea. At Mudros he frequently came in contact with the Canadian hospitals, one of which came from Toronto. In addition to keeping a constant vigilance for mines and submarines, he carried British spies, landed them, and then picked them up again when they had spent a week or two on shore. He was busy on mine sweeping after peace was declared, and said there were probably about ten thousand mines strewn in these seas.

This record is more interesting when the circumstances surrounding his joining the navy are known. A Toronto friend in London, Mr. Lachlan Gibb, approached the Admiralty and enquired whether Mr. Goad could enter the Royal Motorboat Patrol. The latter had had considerable yachting experience. A verbal assurance was given, and Mr. Goad reached London, and went with confidence, to the Admiralty. But there was a rebuff; there was no room, it was said, and he could not be accepted.

The sympathy of the late Earl Grey was enlisted, and through the medium of his nephew, Capt. Rex Benson, Whitehall red tape was finally vanquished. Lieut. Goad was put in charge of a patrol. It was only a converted collier. At Malta they were told three U-boats were waiting. These "got" two of the colliers, but Lieut. Goad's was the lucky third, though he had that trying experience of seeing his companions hit while, acting under Admiralty orders, they were obliged to get themselves out of danger.

With him was also A. C. Turner, of Toronto, but although they were both accepted, their ways parted after the initial stages. After three years of such active service without a leave, Lieut. Goad has returned to be demobilized.

Anxious for Canadian Trade.

The economic commission has been holding a series of meetings with the Siberian Supply Company and the agents of the Canadian Government, and are endeavoring to reach an equitable basis for Siberian trade.

At a recent conference there were representatives present of co-operative organizations who expressed an eagerness to develop business relations with Canada owing to the similarity of climate and resources, and also because of successful co-operative movements among the farmers of the Dominion. Canada, furthermore, is without selfish aims. An unwillingness is expressed in the matter of trading through middlemen. Trade, if trade is to be had, is wanted direct. It is realized that it is impossible to develop trade right now owing to the transportation difficulties and the political instability of the country, but in the meantime people in Siberia are anxious to learn modern Canadian methods and are sending representatives to Canada shortly to study the methods.

Will Inspect Grazing Lands.

Prof. W. J. Rutherford, dean of the Faculty of Agriculture, Provincial University, Saskatoon, has accepted the chairmanship of the committee to examine the lands now held under grazing leases in Southern Alberta, to ascertain what areas will be suitable for mixed farming in connection with the campaign now being carried on by the Soldier Settlement Board.

2,500 Guineas for Bull Calf.

A 12-days-old bull calf, Haydon's Dutch King, from the famous English Friesland herd of Mrs. Putnam, has been sold for the record price of 2,500 guineas to Mrs. Brown, of St. Albans.

Tractor vs Horses

Interesting Figures That the Experts Have Compiled.

Figures compiled by the Experimental Farms Department show that the cost of maintaining a 1,600 lb horse for a year, including feed, labor, interest on value of horse, depreciation, interest and insurance, on buildings, harness and other equipment, shoeing, veterinary attention, drugs, etc., is $249.09, and we have it on the word of a fruit grower, who operates on a large scale that one 12-20 caterpillar type tractor has replaced eight horses and three men, in the work of cultivating in his orchards, while the tractor also performed work such as silo filling and grain grinding, during the winter season, that the horses were not capable of. This grower does not claim to be able to get along entirely without the help of horses, but in his particular line of business, and the scale on which he operates, he finds that the tractor products a decided economy. Orchards on his place, which, until he introduced the tractor, were always a little too much for four two-horse teams to cultivate are now kept in much better order as regards clean cultivation, and one man does the work of four in operating the cultivating machinery.

In further comparison of the cost of maintaining the tractor as compared with the horses in this case, it is admitted that the horses displaced were not 1,600 lbs., but doubtless their feed bill equalled that $215.99 charged against the 1,600-lb. horse, in the above-mentioned statement of costs, because in the fruit country, horse feed costs more than in the average mixed farming district. Therefore, the eight horses displaced by the tractor doubtless cost around $2,352.72 to keep for the year as their other expenses were well up to the figures given in above-mentioned estimate.

Considering cost of feed only—gasoline v. hay, oats, etc., the tractor in question uses nine gallons of gas at 35c per gallon per day, or $3.15 a day, equal to $81.90 per month of 26 days, or $491.40 for the six months, which is about the limit of time possible for orchard cultivation. With the horses feed is consumed on every day of the year—work or rest, so the six months for the eight horses would run up a feed bill of $215.99, divided by two and multiplied by eight, equalling $1,263.92—a showing of $772.52 in favor of the tractor on the six months of operation. For the other six months of the year it may be claimed that the horse would be of little more use to the fruit farmer than the tractor could be, while if both were idle the horse would have to be fed while there was no need of feeding gasoline to the tractor, and care of the latter would cost much less than care of the former.

In favor of the horses it must be allowed that they can be more generally useful than the tractor. For instance they lend themselves more easily to change from cultivating to hauling on the road, while in the case of four teams vs. one tractor, more could be accomplished in picking up fruit in the orchard, but at best their use in this direction would entail the employment of a number of teamsters where the driver of the tractor might well change from his machine to a motor truck and so effect a rapid collection and delivery of the fruit as could the four teams of horses.

The tillage implements used in connection with the tractor in question are: a three furrow, 10-in. bottom plough, a 17-plate double disk and any number of widths of drag-harrow that may be found convenient. With this equipment, eight acres of ploughing is an easy day's work, or 30 acres of discing or 50 acres with the drag harrow. The machine requires but little more attention than does one team of horses, but to ensure its receiving good care, the driver is given an hour a day to devote to fixing up and oiling the machine. Under this arrangement it has been found that more work is accomplished daily by use of the tractor and its equipment than was formerly accomplished with the horses.

It is the firm conviction of the owner of this tractor, that such a machine would pay better than horse flesh for cultivating work on any fruit farm of as much as 100 acres, and he is so well satisfied with results attained in his case that he intends purchasing another machine of the same type for his farm, which includes several hundred acres of peaches besides other fruits. Some horses will be kept, but not for cultivating to any great extent, and although the tractors will allow of some reduction in the total number of men employed on the place, there will be work for the ex-teamsters in the way of hand work around the trees, pruning, picking and packing fruit, etc.

THE FRYATT MURDER

(Philadelphia Record.)
Nothing could so comprehensively disclose the sinuities of German psychology as the proceedings in regard to Captain Fryatt. The captain was shot by order of a court-martial on the ground that he had tried to ram a submarine. He got away at the time, but after more than a year the Germans got him and killed him.

This was only of a piece with most of Germany's conduct during the war, and there was no obvious reason why it should have lain more heavily than many other things on the German conscience. The Provisional Government might have disclaimed all responsibility for what the Imperial Government did. But the Fryatt murder seems to have disquieted Germany more than Miss Cavell's murder, or the deportation of 125,000 Belgians, 6,000 of whom perished, or the sinking of the Lusitania.

Germany seems to have been affrighted by Captain Fryatt's ghost, and in an effort to lay it a national court-martial was created to review the proceedings. On that court was Professor Schuecking, reputed to be a great authority on international law, who explained to his associates that it was a principle of the law of nations that a civilian committing an act of war made himself liable to the death penalty.

This is true enough, but if only a small part of the truth involved in the Fryatt case. The German pundit produces as much international law as will vindicate Germany, and ignores the rest, and his countrymen stand awe-struck at the vastness of his erudition. The law of nations provides that a naval vessel in war may summon a merchant vessel to stop and submit to search and seizure. If he refuses it is at his own peril. If he tries flight it is lawful to sink him. If he fights he is outside of the law of nations, and in the event of capture may be shot.

But the essential fact in such a case is that he refused a lawful command to stop and be searched. The worst that could happen to him if he were an enemy would be capture. But the German submarines did not summon vessels to surrender. They did not call on them to submit to search and seizure. The captain of the Lusitania had no opportunity to save the lives of his passengers and crew by surrendering; the vessel was simply blown up without warning. In nearly all cases the submarines proceeded in this manner. Every merchant captain knew when he saw a submarine what was in store for him. The submarine would only sink him if it could, and it might or might not afford any opportunity for the persons on board to escape. In most cases no opportunity was given; the vessel was sunk with all on board unless the crew managed to flee while their vessel was going down, and they might be hundreds of miles from shore and the weather be stormy.

Professor Schuecking and the national court-martial justify the killing of Captain Fryatt by an appeal to that international law which the German submarines treated with contempt from the beginning of the war to the end. The law is made for foreigners; Germans are always above law.

Dealing With the Occult.

An astonishing number of books on occult subjects are being published in these days, especially on lines relating to the future life, the theme taking on a new interest because of the war and its losses. One writer, Prof. W. J. Crawford, of Belfast, is dealing with so-called spirit manifestations in a new way. For one thing, he has tried seating the medium on a weighting machine while the manifestations are going on and watching the varying record of her weight. He has found that where a chair or table was levitated an increase in her weight almost corresponding to the weight of the piece of furniture was noted. When there were rappings her weight lessened, the amount lost varying with the intensity of the sounds. What these phenomena indicate to his mind or what he expects to prove by them does not appear.

THE NORTH ATLANTIC

(Winnipeg Free Press.)

That sea-power depends on something else besides armor-plate and 17-inch guns is quite unobtrusively mentioned by Admiral Beatty in his remarks and the British squadrons which blockaded the German ports. "Stretched across the waste of waters from west of the Hebrides to the Arctic icefields, these ships kept their watch and ward in weather that had to be experienced to be understood."

The stretch of sea the blockaders had to patrol is well described by the admiral as a "waste of waters." The Atlantic, which surges against the fanged coasts of the Western Islands, is the home of Tempests. It spreads, lonesome and sullen, into the frozen zones of the ice-cap, dotted by a few bare rocks, overhung by steel, unfriendly skies, the air too heavily laden with brine, the whole region storm-haunted and alien to man.

In the course of the centuries this wild northern sea has proscribed all its characteristics; the blasts of the hurricane filled the sails of the Norsemen's long ships, the icy spray lashed the oarsmen, the black teeth hidden in the curling foam ripped the timbers and strewn the waves with corpses. This bleak water was one of the highways down which passed the great migrations which peopled northern France and founded the Norman dynasty.

It was a people compounded of the races who long ago made a highway of this savage sea-track that guarded the British Isles during the war. It is no idle figure of speech to describe the modern Briton as a descendant of the sea-rovers. That, precisely, is what a great many Britons are, and that makes them the wardens of the North Atlantic to-day just as their pirate fathers were its wardens centuries ago, they in their swan-prowed longboats, and the modern Briton in his destroyer.

Battleships are easy of construction, brave men are common to all races, but the spirit that can thrive on the waters which the blockading fleets had to guard is the spirit on which British sea-power rests. It is not the sea fights, the winning or losing of battles, that will determine the control of the sea. It is the actual ruling of the waves themselves. A chance shot may sink a dreadnought, but the power to dominate by seamanship the water of water stretching from the outer Hebrides to the Arctic Ocean—this goes to the foundation of naval supremacy.

An Old English Custom.

In the northern counties of England there was practiced at Easter up to at least half a century ago the curious custom of "lifting." It must still exist. I have before me, writes a correspondent, a newspaper cutting of 1860 giving an account of an indignant commercial traveler of the ritual to which he was subjected on Easter Tuesday by the maids of a hotel at Crewe. He was placed in a chair, lifted three times and kissed, by the merry revelers. It appeared that a like privilege might have been his for the exercising on Easter Monday—a privilege which absence-made impossible. There is a remembrance of a century earlier by a man who was treated by the maids of the Talbot Inn, Shrewsbury, in a similar fashion, but who in addition had to pay a fee.—London Chronicle.

WELL SATISFIED WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. Edmond Gagne, Tikuape, Que., writes: "I am well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets. They are absolutely necessary in homes where there are little children. They cured my baby of constipation, and I would not be without them." Thousands of mothers always keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets on hand as a safeguard against constipation, colic, colds, simple fevers or any other of the minor ills of little ones. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TIMELY RECIPES.

PASTE FOR PIE.

To make paste for one pie take one and one-half cups pastry flour, one-half teaspoonful salt, four and one-half tablespoonfuls lard and cold water. Mix flour and salt together and sift once. And the shortening and chop with a case knife until lumps disappear and the mixture is crumbled. Add water a few drops at a time, stirring with a case knife until the paste barely sticks together. Use the fingers to squeeze into shape. Divide into two parts, toss on a floured board and roll with light upward strokes of the rolling pin, moving the crust often to prevent sticking. Warm ingredients, too much water and much handling are causes for a tough crust. Line the pie plate carefully, being sure that there are no air bubbles underneath. Do not trim off under crust. Put in filling, moisten edges with cold water and lay on perforated upper crust. Cut off edges of crust with the palm of the hand rather than a knife in order to seal more securely. A pie should be baked about 45 minutes in a moderately hot oven.

Take three or four pounds of cheaper cut of mutton, remove the fat and try out, cut the meat into one-inch cubes and brown in the fat. Put in a kettle, add one medium-sized onion, chopped fine, and cover with boiling water. Simmer for two hours and then add one-half cup of rice and two teaspoonfuls of curry powder and salt and pepper to taste. One-half hour before serving add two cups of diced raw potato. Serve on a platter surrounded with a border of toast points.

BARLEY COOKIES.

Two tablespoonfuls fat, two tablespoonfuls sugar, one-half cupful molasses, one-half cupful water, one-quarter teaspoonful ginger, one heaping teaspoonful soda, one cupful white flour, and one and one-quarter cupfuls barley flour. Drop from spoon.

QUICK RYE BREAD.

One tablespoonful vegetable fat, one tablespoonful sugar, one egg, three-quarters cupful milk, one teaspoonful salt, one-half cupful chopped dates, two cupfuls rye flour, one teaspoonful soda. Bake in a moderate oven about 40 minutes. Makes one large loaf.

Pooled the Reporter.

A good story concerning De Valera, the Sinn Fein leader, is going the rounds of London.

It appears that recently a certain London newspaper sent a reporter over to Ireland to take shorthand notes of one of his speeches. The audience objected, but De Valera was all smiles and urbanity.

"Let the gentleman remain," he said, "so far as I am concerned, he is at liberty to report my speech verbatim, if it pleases him."

De Valera advanced to the front of the platform. Eyes glistened, ears were all attention, and the reporter's pencil was poised in the air. De Valera bestowed one more benignant smile on the newspaper man, winked wickedly at his audience, and began his speech—in the Gaelic language.—Pearson's Weekly.

WORTH KNOWING.

To make a faded dress white, boil it in two gallons of water in which a half cupful of cream of tartar is dissolved.

Make your piece-bags of mosquito netting. You can then find the location of any piece without dumping out the entire contents of the bag.

Essence of peppermint, applied with a soft cloth and rubbed vigorously, will remove white spots from highly polished surfaces on furniture.

When washing and rinsing colored material add a tablespoonful of Epsom salts to each gallon of water, and even the most delicate shades will neither fade nor run.

When working a pattern in crochet which requires a chain on which to work, first make the chain and whip it to a piece of muslin. This is a great help, as one can work much faster and more easily than on the chain by itself. After starting the work it can be ripped from the muslin.

When you wish to embroider sheer material baste it on heavy waxed paper. You will find this more convenient than to use a hoop. The needle passes readily through the goods, but slides over the paper, and the work can be bent into any shape and not wrinkle, since the paper is very strong and flexible.

Rust can be removed from steel by covering it with sweet oil for a day; then rub it with a lump of fresh lime and polish in the ordinary way.

To glaze linen, add a teaspoonful of salt and one of finely scraped soap to each pint of starch in which it is dipped.

To insure the bluing being evenly distributed in making blue rinse water for clothes add a little salt to it.

GERMAN PEACE DELEGATES CALLED FOR 25TH APRIL
Official Statement By Council of Four Says Treaty Ready For Drafting.
Hun Must Pay $23,800,000,000 For Damages Caused During the War.

Paris Cable — A statement by President Wilson in behalf of the Council of Four says that the questions of peace are so near complete solution that they will be quickly and finally drafted. This announcement was contained in an official bulletin, which added that the German plenipotentiaries had been invited to meet at Versailles on April 25.

The President hopes that the question of Italy, especially relating to the Adriatic, will be brought to a speedy agreement. The Adriatic question will be given precedence over other questions.

The settlements belonging especially to the treaty with Germany, the statement says, will thus be got out of the way, and at the same time other settlements will be completely formulated.

The text of President Wilson's statement follows: "In view of the fact that the questions which must be settled in the peace with Germany have been brought so near a complete solution that they can now quickly be put through the final process of drafting, those who have been most constantly in conference about them have decided to advise that the German plenipotentiaries be invited to meet the representatives of the associated belligerent nations at Versailles on the 25th of April."

"This does not mean that the many other questions connected with the general peace settlement will be interrupted or that their consideration, which has long been under way, will be retarded. On the contrary, it is expected that rapid progress will now be made with these questions, so that they may also presently be expected to be ready for final settlement."

"It is hoped that the questions most directly affecting Italy, especially the Adriatic questions, can now be brought to a speedy agreement. The Adriatic question will be given for the time preference over other questions and proceed by continual study to its final stage."

"The settlements that belong especially to the treaty with Germany, will in this way, be got out of the way at the same time that all other settlements are being brought to a complete formulation. It is realized that, though this process must be followed, all the questions of the present great settlement are parts of a single whole."

Paris Cable — One hundred billion gold marks (a mark is equal to 23 cents) is the amount Germany must pay the Allied and Associated Governments for losses and damage caused in the war, plus other billions to be determined by a special commission on which Germany is to be represented.

This is the final and definite conclusion, which has been reduced to writing after weeks of negotiation which took a wide range and involved frequent changes and modifications. The payment of the 100,000,000,000 gold marks is to be divided into three distinct amounts, as follows:

First—Twenty billions within two years.

Second—Forty billions during thirty years, beginning in 1921.

Third—Forty billions, when a commission shall determine how it shall be done.

One hundred billion marks gold is equivalent to $23,800,000,000.

PAY TO CAPACITY.

Paris Cable — In view of the variations through which the reparation negotiations have passed, an authoritative statement was obtained to-day concerning the final terms of the settlement. This sums up the conditions as follows:

Germany is at the outset held generally responsible for losses and damages in accordance with President Wilson's fourteen points, and the allied response at the time the armistice was concluded. To determine the extent of the payment under this responsibility a commission is set up to take testimony, assemble data and arrange all details of the payment from the enemy and distribution among the allied and associated powers.

While the commission will administer the details of the payments, sufficient is known to permit the determination that an initial payment will be required of twenty billion gold marks payable in two years without interest. It has also been determined that forty billion gold marks shall be payable in bonds extending over a period of thirty years, beginning 1921, with a sinking fund beginning in 1926.

In addition to the foregoing payments, Germany will also be required to deliver additional bonds for forty billion marks, when the commission determines that this shall be done. These three payments of twenty, forty and forty billions bring the total to 100,000,000,000 gold marks.

Beyond this total, the commission is empowered to fix anything further that may be required to cover Germany's indebtedness.

"In other words," concluded the eminent American authority who framed the terms and furnished the foregoing summary, "a commission is set up with power to collect from Germany to the utmost of her capacity to pay, within the limitation of her indebtedness."

It is in the gold mark that all payments are expressed in the final terms. This excludes depreciated paper marks and fixes the standard of payment in gold. The gold mark is worth about the same as the English shilling, and before the war was quoted at 28.52 American cents.

The allotment of the 100,000,000,000 marks among the allied and associated powers has not yet been finally decided, but a tentative arrangement makes the allotment to France about 55 per cent. of the total; Great Britain's allotment between 20 and 30 per cent, and the allotment of the United States between 2 and 5 per cent.

The text of the opening clause of the terms whereby Germany is held generally responsible reads substantially as follows: "The allied and associated powers affirm, and Germany admits responsibility for all losses and damages of the allied and associated Governments and their nationals from the unjustifiable warfare waged by the enemy power against the allied and associated Governments."

Best "Natural Measure."

Perhaps the best-known "natural measure" is "the hand," four inches, to determine the height of horses. This measure is, of course, derived from the breadth of the palm, and it has become so well fixed in popular esteem that it is unlikely it will soon be superseded. Another popular natural measure is the "pace," and probably every countryman who has had to do with land has used it.

The usual method is to stride off, taking as long steps as possible, calling each pace a yard. A natural measure employed by dressmakers is the "yard," as determined by stretching the material to be measured between the chin and the outstretched hand. If it be a matter of inches, the dressmaker will fold the banded upper joint of her thumb along the cloth. These natural measures are generally close enough to serve all practical purposes. For many centuries there was used the measure of the forearm, from point of elbow to tip of middle finger. This was the cubit of the Bible.

A Pill for All Seasons.—Winter and summer, in any latitude, whether in torrid zone or Arctic temperature, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills can be depended upon to do their work. The dyspeptic will find them a friend always and should carry them with him everywhere. They are made to withstand any climate and are warranted to keep their freshness and strength. They do not grow stale, a quality not possessed in many pills now on the market.

MORE BOLSHEVIKI RISINGS PLANNED

Finland, Sweden and Norway to Be Upset.

Communists in Munich Still Troubling.

Berlin Cable — The latest news received here is to the effect that the Communists in Munich have not yet been mastered, and that heavy fighting is raging in the streets of Munich between organized guards and troops loyal to the Government.

The Central Railway Station, the postoffice, and telegraph office and several other public buildings again are in the hands of the Communists, who used heavy mine-throwers in their recapture.

A number of persons have been killed or wounded.

The entire male population of Riga between eighteen and thirty-eight years of age has been mobilized by the Bolsheviki, according to a Lithuanian despatch to the Lettish Press Bureau. The Bolsheviki are also reported to have seized three hundred influential citizens as hostages and taken them to Russia. Open revolt is prevented only by terrorist means.

A Helsinki despatch says "Eight persons have been arrested at Viborg in the act of planning a revolt. It was intended to blow up the Officers' Club of Viborg, the bridge and ammunition depot in co-ordination with a Bolsheviki attack in Finland. A revolt was also planned to break out in Sweden and Norway."

Were.

Simplicity is the rule in German toy shops now, and wood, once formerly used only for cheaper toys, is now almost the only material employed. Lack of flour, which is used with cement to make the bodies, prevents the manufacture of new dolls. Wax, used for the heads, is almost unobtainable, and the material for dresses costs four times as much as before the war. Toys cost at least twice as much as formerly, metal toys are few in number, and some of the very cheap varieties cannot be had at all. The metal that formerly went into the making of trains, horses, soldiers, magic lanterns, etc., has been taken by the government for the manufacture of munitions.

Heart Fluttering Easily Corrected

GOOD ADVICE TO FOLKS BOTHERED WITH PALPITATION, WEAKNESS, ETC.

If your heart flutters, be careful. An attack is liable to come on at any time. Excitement, over-exertion or emotion may cause it.

If blood rushes to the head, if palpitation and short breath are noticeable, there's cause for alarm.

If you want a good honest remedy for heart trouble, we recommend Ferrerozone. We recommend Ferrerozone because we know it's just right for heart trouble. It cured A. F. Beattie, who lives at Allen Hotel, Bay City, Mich. See if your symptoms resemble those:

SOME SYMPTOMS OF WEAK HEART.

Nervousness, Palpitation, Trembling, Dizziness, Sinking Feeling, Heart Pain, Short Breath, Weakness.

Mr. Beattie says: "I was weak and miserable. I was subject to heart palpitation and dizziness. As I grew worse I began to have trembling and sinking sensations. Ferrerozone strengthened my heart, gave vigor to my nerves, soon made me well. It's a great restorative. By strengthening the muscles of the heart, giving proper circulation and causing a general rebuilding of the whole system, Ferrerozone is bound to do grand work in heart trouble; try it, 50c per box, or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from The Cattarhzone Co., Kingston, Ont."

STRIKE TIES UP LIMERICK

Called as Protest Against Martial Law.

Government Says City Not Interfered With.

Limerick, Ireland, Cable, says This city awoke to-day to find itself in the throes of a general strike called by the trades unions as a protest against martial law, which has gone into effect in the Limerick military area. The gas and electric supplies were cut off at 2 o'clock this morning, and no L-tories or stores opened to-day even the drug stores having their blinds drawn. Room supplies have ceased coming into the city, as the farmers refuse to take out military permits to enter Limerick.

There have been no disorders, but several processions were cheered loudly when they marched through the streets. The military area has been extended to include the district north of the River Shannon.

It was reported that the railwaymen have given notice that they would strike in 48 hours unless the order for martial law was rescinded. A railway strike would isolate the city completely, as public automobiles are not operating because of the strike. The only transport would be by jaunting car, the hiring price of which already has begun to advance.

The electric workers returned to their plants early to-night in order that the bakers might be able to work. The gas to-night was still cut off from some sections of the city.

With reference to the Limerick strike, the Government has issued a statement that the proclamation of Limerick as a military area has not interfered with the people of Limerick getting supplies in the ordinary way. It adds that if the people are prevented from obtaining supplies by the action of the indisposed persons, the Government is not responsible for this and can do nothing to ameliorate the consequences.

Clams by the Square Mile.

Any new source of food supply is important in these days, and the government fisheries bureau is greatly delighted at the discovery of the vast and hitherto unknown beds of clams off the coast of Central Alaska, not far from Cordova. One bed is sixty miles long and from three to five miles wide.

The clams are quite different from those common in our eastern markets. They are "razor clams"—a kind of bivalve that derives its name, appropriately descriptive, from its likeness in shape to a razor.

Learn Who Not to Be Silent.

The union of good talker and listener is irresistible. Tact should teach us when to be silent. We have made progress when we realize that it is unnecessary to continually be explaining everything in detail. We flee from the statistical fiend, and the too personal "I" in conversation, personally reiterating the "I have done" and "I have not done"—an attitude significant perhaps of women perchance for failing to grasp ideas in a large way.

The only sure things are death and taxes, and even death isn't so sure in its after effects.

$5,000,000,000 HERE MAY 1, 1921

First Payment by Germany Under Treaty

Also $20,000,000,000 Interest-Bearing Bonds.

Paris Cable — Germany, under the peace treaty, must pay $5,000,000,000 in cash, or the equivalent in commodities, before May 1, 1921. She must also issue immediately to the Allied and associated Governments $20,000,000,000 of interest-bearing bonds.

The interest on the bonds until 1925 will be either two or three per cent., and after that date will be five per cent., according to the present plan.

The bonds will be payable in installments during a period of 15 years. They will probably be kept in the control of a central commission of the Allied and associated Governments, so that they shall not be marketed in quantities sufficient to break the price.

Germany must also obligate herself to pay other amounts for damages done, appropriate to her means, to be determined by a mixed commission of representatives of the Allied and associated Governments and of Germany, which shall report before May 1, 1921.

The indications of worms are restlessness, grinding of the teeth, picking of the nose, extreme peevishness, often convulsions. Under these conditions conditions the best remedy that can be got is Miller's Worm Powders. They will attack the worms as soon as administered and will grind them to atoms that pass away in the evacuations. The little sufferer will be immediately eased and a return of the attack will not be likely.

The Uses of Talc.

Talc, derived from soapstone found in various quarters of the world is as a general thing marketed as rough from which are manufactured various objects, or it is ground into powder. A great deal of the ground talc is employed in the manufacture of paper. It also enters into the making of moulder rubber forms and foundry facings and paints, but the form in which it is most familiar is the toilet powder.

Not only is talcum dusted into gloves and shoes to obviate friction, but it is also blown into conduits to ease the introduction of electric wire or other conductors. Soapstone is largely employed in the manufacture of laundry tubs and similar articles. The very best grades of talc, free from flaws, are saved up to make pencils or crayons. Gas tips are also made from talc.

SPRING IMPURITIES CLOG THE BLOOD

A TONIC MEDICINE IS A NECESSITY AT THIS SEASON.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all-year-round tonic, blood-builder and nerve restorer. But they are especially valuable in the spring when the system is loaded with impurities as the result of the indoor life of the winter months. There is no other season of the year when the blood is so much in need of purifying and enriching, and every dose of these pills helps to make new, red blood. In the spring one feels weak and tired—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give new strength. In the spring the appetite is often poor—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills develop the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. It is in the spring that poisons in the blood find an outlet in disfiguring pimples, eruptions and boils—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills speedily clear the skin because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood. In the spring anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, erysipelas and many other troubles are most persistent because of poor, weak blood, and it is at this time, when all nature takes on new life, that the blood most seriously needs attention. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually renew and enrich the blood, and this new blood reaches every organ and every nerve in the body, bringing new health and new strength to weak, easily tired men, women and children. Here is a bit of proof: Miss Anna Patterson, R.F.D. No. 1, Thorold, Ont., says: "My trouble was one of general weakness, which thinned my blood and gave me at times unbearable headaches, loss of appetite and also loss in weight. I tried several medicines, but without success. Then I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to give them a fair trial. The result is that I feel like a new person. My appetite improved, I gained in weight, my blood is thoroughly purified, and my face cleared of some unsightly pimples, which had troubled me. If one good turn deserves another, then I have much pleasure in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you need a medicine this spring try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—they will not disappoint you. These pills are sold by all medicine dealers, or you can get them by mail at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

For Canada's Manhood

The Reconstruction program of the Y. M. C. A. includes the following vitally important developments:-

- 1. An increased service to 300,000 teen-age boys in the Dominion... 2. Inauguration of Y.M.C.A. work in the country, and the smaller towns and villages lacking Association buildings and equipment... 3. A Quick Relief for Headache

A headache is frequently caused by badly digested food; the gases and acids resulting therefrom are absorbed by the blood which in turn irritates the nerves and cause painful symptoms called headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc. 15 to 30 drops of Mother Seigel's Syrup will correct faulty digestion and afford relief.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson IV. April 27, 1919.
The Holy Spirit Our Helper.—John 16: 7-15; Acts 2: 1-18.

Commentary.—I. The promised Comforter (John 16: 7-15). In the course of the last extended conversation Jesus had with his disciples before his betrayal, in speaking to them of his departure from them, he declared that it was to their advantage that he should go away, for by his leaving them he would send to them the Comforter, the Holy Spirit, who would abide with them. He would reprove the world of sin, of righteousness and of judgment. He would be faithful in his work of showing men their true condition and their needs. The Holy Spirit would also be a faithful guide and would lead the disciples and all who would follow him into all truth. Christ in his bodily presence was with his disciples only as they were all in one place, but the Holy Spirit would be with all who received him in all places, at all times. He would glorify the Father and would call to the remembrance of the disciples all that Jesus had said to them.

II. The coming of the Holy Spirit (Acts 2: 1-11). 1. Day of Pentecost.—The three principal feasts among the Jews were the Passover, Pentecost and the feast of the Tabernacles. At each of these feasts all Jewish males between the ages of twelve and sixty were expected to present themselves at Jerusalem. The women were permitted, but not required, to attend them. The Passover was celebrated at the time of the early barley harvest and commemorated the deliverance of the Israelites from Egyptian oppression. It also pointed forward to the sacrifice of Christ, the Lamb of God. Pentecost means fifty days. The feast of Pentecost was held fifty days after the second day of the feast of the Passover. It was held in celebration of the first fruits of wheat harvest. The Jews considered that it commemorated the giving of the law on Sinai. Fully come—According to Jewish reckoning, the day began at sunset. It was early on the following morning that the day "was fully come." All with one accord in one place—"All together in one place."—R. V. There were about one hundred twenty (Acts 1: 15) gathered in an upper room praying for and expecting the coming of the Holy Ghost.

2. Suddenly—it was not unexpectedly. This company of believers expected the coming of the Spirit, but they did not know when he would come. A sound from heaven—The sound came from heaven. This was one of the manifestations of the Spirit. It was heard by the company of expectant believers. It appealed to them as of heavenly origin. As of a rushing mighty wind—"As of the rushing of a mighty wind."—R. V. The sound heard was like that of a strong wind, but it was not wind that made the noise. The symbol of the Spirit is wind or breath. It—The sound filled the house. 3. There appeared—The manifestation was not only audible, but there was also a visible sign of the Spirit's presence. Cloven tongues—There were seen what appeared like tongues of fire upon the worshippers. Fire is the symbol of the Holy Ghost, and spiritual power was well represented by the partial flames.

4. They were all filled with the Holy Ghost—They had all met the conditions and all were filled. They had different capacities, different natural dispositions and different tastes, but they were all filled with the Holy Ghost. Peter, the impulsive disciple, was there and he was filled. Thomas, who had been doubtful about Christ's resurrection, was in the company and he was filled. Not one failed of receiving the fulfillment of the promise of the Father. They had been converted and their names were written in heaven before this. The coming of the Holy Ghost to them brought clearer spiritual vision. It brought to them the full sanctification of their souls. It brought to them a power for their work which they had never had before and which they could have obtained in no other way. Began to speak with other tongues—As there were persons of many different tongues present, the Spirit gave the baptized followers of Jesus the ability to give them the gospel message in their own language.

Dwelling at Jerusalem—Jerusalem was the centre of the world then, as well as it is now, to Jews, and they had come from every nation to live there and to be buried near that sacred place. Devout men—Simeon is spoken of as devout (Luke 2:26), as also were those who carried Stephen to his burial (Acts 8:2). They were truly religious men. Out of every nation—The Jews were widely dispersed, and from near and distant nations many had come to Jerusalem for a permanent abode. 6. When this was was noised abroad—"When this sound was heard."—R. V. The thought is not that the report of the marvelous manifestations which attended the coming of the Holy Ghost spread through the city, but the sound like the rushing of a mighty wind was heard outside the house. The multitude came together—They were attracted to the place by the extraordinary occurrence. Confounded—They were perplexed. They came to discover the source and purpose of the strange sound and they heard—the followers of Jesus speaking in the various languages used by the multitudes. 7. Gallileans—Most of those who became followers of Jesus were from Galilee, and the multitudes supposed all would speak the dialect peculiar to that region. They were greatly amazed to hear them speaking in other tongues. 8. Wherein we were born—It is probable that all the Jews present understood the Hebrew language of their respective countries, and they wondered at the ability of the disciples to speak these various languages.

III. The prophecy fulfilled (Acts 2: 12-18). 12, 13. What the people who were there assembled heard and saw caused them to be amazed, and their immediate conclusion was that the disciples and others upon whom the Holy Spirit had come were intoxicated. 14. Peter, standing up—Peter was the spokesman of the little company of the disciples, with the eleven—There were but eleven disciples since Judas had committed suicide because of remorse for having betrayed Jesus. Hearken to my words—Peter had an answer to the accusation that the disciples were intoxicated, and a gospel message for the people. 15. third hour of the day—Nine o'clock. It was not customary to begin drinking in the morning. 16. spoken by the prophet Joel—Peter was familiar with the scriptures and the Holy Spirit brought to his remembrance the words he should speak. 17. I will pour out of my Spirit—The apostle was made to understand that what had just transpired was the fulfillment of the prophecy uttered by Joel and recorded in Joel 2:28, 29. shall prophesy—To prophesy is either to foretell future events or to deliver the message God gives. see visions, . . . dream dreams—The Holy Spirit would give to all a knowledge of privilege and duty. 18. servants, . . . handmaidens—

These terms were applied to slaves. The Holy Spirit would come upon all, even the lowest, and would exalt them into fellowship with God and with one another.

Questions.—When was Pentecost? How many days after the ascension? Who besides the apostles met together? For what purpose? How did the Holy Spirit first indicate his coming? What followed the source? What was indicated by the tongues? Who gathered to hear the disciples speak? How would that help to spread the gospel? Who addressed the people at Pentecost?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.
Topic.—What the Holy Spirit does for us.

I. Who he is

II. What he does.

- Who He is. The doctrine of the Trinity is a distinctively Christian possession. It is not a discovery, but a disclosure; and originates not in reason, but revelation. In the Christian conception of Deity there exist in mysterious unity three complete and inseparable, but distinct Persons: the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. All were immanent and active in the work of creation, and all were engaged and their resources enlisted in the greater work of human redemption. Each occupies his own peculiar and efficient sphere in relation thereto. In its progress, the moral administration of the world has been divided into three great periods called dispensations, the full, final and crowning one of which, that of the Holy Spirit, is now in progress. It commenced at Pentecost and continues until the end of the age. The distinct personality of the Holy Spirit is recognized in the scriptures and is made especially and appropriately prominent in the teachings of the new Testament, in which a definite office is assigned Him. He was the author of the light which shone upon the Old Testament prophets concerning Christ and inspired them to write (1 Peter 1: 11). The Holy Spirit was active in Christ's own life, descending upon Him with an anointing of power at His baptism (Acts 10: 38). In his later discourses Jesus repeatedly referred to Him, and gave promise of His coming to His disciples, for which they were commanded to "tarry." This received its fulfillment on the day of Pentecost. He is declared to be the representative of Christ after His departure. He is to abide with God's people forever, and His peculiar office is as a Dispenser of the benefits of the atonement. He is sent by the Father and the Son (John 14: 16; 16: 7). In the baptismal formula, and the apostolic benediction He occupies a place beside the Father and the Son, while distinguished from both. As the Son reveals the Father, so the Spirit reveals Christ.

II. What He does. It is the prerogative of the Holy Spirit to unfold and apply the provisions of redeeming grace. He is the Executive of the atonement and has a permanent and ineluctable mission. In some manner and measure he visits every responsible member of the race (1 Cor. 12). Apart from his agency human nature is hopelessly incapable of either desire or movement toward God. He convicts "of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment. He only can reveal the heart to its possessor (Jer. 17: 9), and He alone can disclose the atoning sufficiency of Christ. In every stage of the Christ process the immediate agency of the Spirit is indispensable. Personal Christianity can neither commence nor continue apart from His ministry. He regenerates, sanctifies, witnesses, instructs, reproves, comforts, empowers and seals; and imparts "severally as He will" the gifts necessary for the work of the kingdom. All spiritual blessings come to the believer by reason of his conception of the Holy Spirit. We are warned against grieving, quenching or doing despite to the Holy Ghost. The only unpardonable sin is against Him. His abiding fullness is the privilege and obligation of every believer (Eph. 5: 18). W.H.C.

Of Course.

A young author said to William Dean Howells at a reception in the latter's honor in Miami: "That was Astoribit who just asked you for your autograph, sir. You don't seem much impressed." "I can never understand," said Mr. Howells, "why people should be impressed by millionaires. My own experience has been that whenever you lunch with them they always let you pay." The young author laughed gaily. "That, of course, is how they become millionaires, isn't it?" he said.

Oozing Fountain Pens.

An application of heavy oil to the joints of a fountain pen will effectively overcome the oozing out of ink at these places, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The types of fountain pens, having points which disappear by turning a section of the barrel, sometimes leak because of wear. To remedy this, soak the pen in warm water and permit to dry particularly inside. Then apply oil to the spindle that is revolved. Heavy cylinder oil is the best for the purpose. The lubricant should be worked through the bearing from end to end. The pen is then refilled and excess oil wiped off.

Warts are disfigurements that disappear when treated with Holloway's Corn Cure.

Some Fashions in Suits.

Plenty of box coat suits, and plenty, too, of the popular blouse suits. Ever so many suits are braid-trimmed or broad bound. And the suit without a colored vest is almost a rarity. The plainly tailored suits have crocheted buttons or frogs, or perhaps just enough braid binding to relieve them of severity. Girdles on the suits sometimes look like sashes, for they go all the way round and then tie and hang down.

Java Rich in Oil and Iron.

Oil and iron have been found on the island of Java. Advice from Sourabaya, Java, state that powerful oil gushers have been tapped at a depth of 900 yards in the Tremboel fields. Another message says that an iron vein four feet thick has been located near Mihil and the chief of the geological survey estimates the quantity of ore available at 10,000,000 tons.

Rich in Misfortunes.

At the end of life a man finds himself rich, not so much by his fortune as by his misfortunes. The Persians had a vase of glass, which when empty was colorless, but when filled with wine flashed forth many rare pictures. So a bosom empty of a heart of pain makes a lusterless life, but a bosom in which a heart bleeds reveals hidden virtues.

RAISED PORK PIE.

If You Eat Pork It is Well Worth Trying.

To make a raised pork pie take a pound of six ounces of lard, one gill of water, one pound of pork, one-half pint of stock or water, one teaspoonful of pepper, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one-half ounce of rennet, one egg. Sieve the flour and a pinch of salt into a basin; make a well in the centre. Put the lard and water into a pan, bring to the boil, and pour into the flour; stir in with a wooden spoon; flour a board, turn the mixture on to it, and knead well.

Keep back a piece for the lid, keeping it in a warm place. Roll out and line a pork pie mould with it. Fill with the pork cut into a neat dice, and mixed with the seasoning and a tablespoonful of water. Roll out the remaining pastry, brush the edges of the pie with egg or milk, cover with the lid, press the edges well together, gash and seal them, brush the top with egg, make a hole in the centre, decorate with leaves of pastry, brushed with egg or milk. Bake in a hot oven the first twenty minutes, then lower the heat and bake about two and a half hours longer. Dissolve the rennet in the stock, and when the pie is cold pour it through the holes gradually. It is best to use a funnel to pour the stock through, or it may spill on the pastry.

Strangled with Asthma is the only expression that seems to convey what is endured from an attack of this trouble. The relief from Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is beyond measure. Where all was suffering there comes comfort and rest. Breathing becomes normal and the bronchial tubes completely cleared. This unequalled remedy is worth many times its price to all who use it.

The Strange Rumani.

Among the Albanians lives a fragment of a strange people who call themselves Rumani, said to be descendants of the Romans—of that fifth Roman legion which dispersed and was scattered along the old highway stretching from Durazzo to Constantinople. This great road of ancient Rome (via Egnatia), called at its beginning the applan Way, passes southeast through Italy to Brindisi; begins again at Durazzo, runs thence through Elbasan by Lake Ochrida to Krusha, and on to Monastir and Voden; thence to Saloniki and beyond to Constantinople.

The Rumani are very proud of their origin, and answer the question of race by saying, "I am a descendant of the Romans." They are a simple, pastoral people, not given to robbery or brigandage. Their primitive little villages of stone are frequently seen in the mountains, often perched near high summits. A large colony of them, known as Vlachs, live on the slope of the Pindus Mountains in sight of Liasoviki, but far away across valley and gorge.

From the heights where they graze their flocks in summer, the Rumani descend into the valleys in winter, and on the road men, women and children, surrounded by their hundreds of sheep and goats in search of grazing lands, from a picture of nomad life that reminds us of the days of Abraham.

There is said to be some 80,000 of these Rumani, but who really knows their number, scattered as they are over hundreds of mountain peaks, in inaccessible villages or caves and moving from place to place?

In fishing for compliments it isn't everyone that knows the difference between a nibble and a bite.

Nova Scotia Man Is Enthusiastic

For Dodd's Kidney Pills Have Made Him Well.

Belleville, Yarmouth Co., N. S., April 21.—(Special).—"You can tell everyone that it was Dodd's Kidney Pills that made me well." This is the joyful remark of Mr. Alois Meuse, a well-known and highly-respected resident of this place. Mr. Meuse, who suffered for a year from kidney trouble, is enthusiastic in his praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills. "I think everybody ought to use them all the time," he says. Then he gives the reasons for his enthusiasm: "I first caught a cold," Mr. Meuse states, "and kidney trouble followed. My sleep was broken, my eyes were puffed and swollen and I had dark circles around them. I was often dizzy and always thirsty. My skin itched and burned at night. I was troubled with nervousness and my limbs were swollen. "I had cramps in my muscles, backache and headache. Then Bright's Disease developed. A doctor attended me but the first real relief I got was from Dodd's Kidney Pills. I took eight boxes of them and they cured me." All of Mr. Meuse's troubles came from sick kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured his kidneys and he felt well all over. That's why he's enthusiastic. For sound kidneys make pure blood and pure blood is the foundation of health.

PARTED BY GOLD

She sighed, and the sigh was echoed by the maid who had come to dress her, for it is a difficult thing to affix gauze wings and arrange the hair of a fairy who hangs her head when she should lift it up, and sighs at her fate when she should be casting self-admiring glances at the mirror.

"Would you mind sitting a little around, Miss Montague?" said the patient dresser, and Miss Montague, with a reproachful start, did as she was requested, saying:

"I am giving you a deal of trouble, Miss Morris, but I will sit still now. Will you do?"

"Yes, miss, don't you mention it," said the dresser. "Won't you have any powder, miss?"

"No, no powder," said Mary, and in truth, she was quite pale enough.

Away went the dresser, and Mary, wand in hand, sat waiting her call.

Presently a tap came to the door, and, opening it, she saw her father dressed as the pirate, standing there.

"Mary, my dear," he said, wiping his brow and looking anxious, "what has happened in the brougham? I left as Mr. Anderson came in, and—and something seems to have put him out."

She colored faintly.

"Don't look so anxious, dear," she said, laying her hand upon his arm. "It was nothing to trouble about. Mr. Tubbs and he were quarreling, and I—well, I parted them. Oh, papa, is it not a shame?" and the tears were ready to fall again.

"Er—er—" He hesitated, coloring with her. "Oh, my Mary, Mary, this is no place for you."

"Hush," she said, hurriedly. "We are never to think of that any more, dear. But how tired you look. Ah, there is something else. What did you come to say, dear?"

"I—nothing—that is, Mary, that gentleman is at the wings again."

"Well?" she said, stooping to arrange the folds of her dress.

"Well," he said, then stopped. Her face was bent down, and did not, as it usually did, help him.

"Mary," he said, suddenly, "don't go on from this side to-night, my darling; it doesn't matter, pass around."

"Yes, dear," she said, obediently.

"But why—"

"I can't stop," he said, hurriedly. "There's the call. Mind, the other

I had the best doctors in Eau Claire and they wanted me to have an operation, but Lydia E. "Mr. Montague," called some one, "Miss Montague wishes to speak to you," and Mr. Montague, with a hurried excuse, hastened away.

Jack sighed. "This handkerchief has a fatality with it. It seems we are not to part unless I break the charm by returning it to the hands of the rightful owner."

Presently the rightful owner came tripping along. He stepped back to let her pass, and bowed with as much respect as that with which he would have saluted a duchess.

The fairy shot a glance at him and just inclined her head.

An imp rushed by and knocked her wand from her hand.

Jack stooped, recovered it and handed it to her.

"I have something else belonging to you," he said. "May I return it when you come back?"

"Yes," she said, faintly, and with a blush, ran on the stage.

Jack turned, his heart beating, but his face calm, and confronted Mr. Anderson.

"I hope I am not in your way," he said.

"No, oh no," replied Anderson, meaning "Yes," very much, and followed the Fairy Queen on.

Jack took up his position at the wing again, and waited impatiently till Miss Montague came off, which she did presently, and looking timidly before her and stopping at his side for that possession of hers he had mentioned.

Jack took the handkerchief from his pocket and held it out half reluctantly.

"That is it," he said, "not very valuable, but he who steals a pin commits a sin, you know, and—"

"Thank you," she said, taking it with evident embarrassment. "I mislaid it, but did not know I had dropped it in the theatre. It was very kind of you to come on purpose to return it."

"And yet," said Jack, "you are angry with me for coming."

He spoke so respectfully, with such a touch of earnestness in his voice, that was dangerously musical also, that Mary Montague felt she must answer.

"No, not angry," she said, keeping her eyes down, "but—no, not angry."

"You make me almost happy," said Jack. "Will you not take the 'but' away? You avoided me the other night. Are you afraid of me?"

"I—" she stopped and looked around.

"You have cause," said Jack, hurrying on and feeling the embarrassment of her position. "Miss Montague, you will forgive me, if I seem presumptuous, even rude, but I have for you nothing but good will and respect. If I sought to do him you love best in the world a service would you refuse to help me because you know nothing of me more than that I am a stranger and forward enough to speak to you thus?"

It was a strange speech, but to Mary, spoken in the gentle, musical and reverential voice, it was sweet.

She raised her fine, thoughtful eyes and examined his face.

"You would help my father?" she asked, gently. "How?"

"By placing him in a position where his talents would be recognized," said Jack, eagerly. "Miss Montague, I have some influence. I can exert it in his behalf, but I cannot do so unless you will help and trust me."

She looked at him again and sighed. "I will trust you," she said. "Your face looks kind, your voice sounds true, and you say you can help my dear father. Oh, sir—"

She stopped, and Jack, his whole attitude one of reverential attention, turned to follow her glance toward the greenroom.

In the spring when you're "all in"—fagged out—blood thin, if you will turn to Nature's remedy, a tonic made from wild roots and barks, which has stood fifty years as the best spring tonic—you will find strength regained. No need to tell you it's Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, put up in tablet or liquid form, and sold by every druggist in the land. After a hard winter—shut up indoors, your blood needs a temperance tonic, a tissue-builder and blood-makers such as this "Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce's.

STAFFORD, ONT. — "I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets. I have used these remedies twenty-five years in my family. Had a very bad case of neuralgia and 'Golden Medical Discovery' completely cured me in a very short time. I have given it to all my family, also to my grand children. I had a grand-child last summer that we thought could not live. We gave him the 'Discovery' and he is strong and healthy as any child could be. I am a great believer in Dr. Pierce's Medicines and would not be without them." — Mrs. A. BOWLING, 288 Railway Ave.

is splendid for — it hurts him, is killing him. If you can help him to get away from it, to rest quietly—

She stopped suddenly and put her hand to her bosom.

There was a sob choking there. Jack's lips trembled.

He was unused to feminine emotion. The mood of his set was, "Die and speak not." The stifled outburst moved him.

"Hush," he said. "I—I am very sorry—I did not mean to—pray do not cry. I shall never forgive myself. But you, yourself, do not dislike this life? Are you weary and tired of it, and do you not long for quiet and rest?"

A wistful smile crossed her fair face for a moment, but it had melted into a calm one of resignation as she looked up into his.

"I do not mind for myself," she replied, "only for him—only for him. But you do not know him. Why—"

He caught up the thread with a lightened color.

"Why do I interest myself? you would ask. May I reply truthfully?"

"Yes, if at all," she replied, in a low voice.

"Then, because he is your father, Miss Montague. Do not look so alarmed, I implore you. You said I was to speak truthfully, and indeed I should have done so in any case. You think I am wrong in coming here, but you do not think it wicked to love the flowers, I saw you kiss them the other night."

She looked up in her startled embarrassment, and said, quickly:

"Your flowers. How could you be so deceitful, sir?"

"Because I would not offend you," he said, boldly. "You would not have picked it up if I had thrown them, but you kissed them when they came from a child."

She nodded.

"You must never throw me any more," she said, quickly, but with a touch of sadness.

"Why not?" he said, but added quickly: "I will not if you do not wish it, if you will only say you forgive me for sending those."

"I forgive you," she said, "if there is anything to forgive. And father—you will help him? Can I trust you, sir? Forgive me, but it seems so strange, so untrue, that you a—"

"A stranger," he said.

"A stranger," she continued, "should be so kind. I cannot understand it."

"Nor I," she said, almost woefully. "Do not let us try. Enough that I feel that I could go to the end of the world for you—you believe me. I know—and that you will let me show how much you trust me by helping your father."

She looked at him and sighed.

"Am I doing wrong?" she said, half audibly.

"No," he said, stoutly. "And now tell me, where is your home?"

"Nor I," she said, with his tired, weary face turned toward the fire in the greenroom, and replied, in a low voice:

"In Harleigh street."

Jack repeated it, eagerly.

"I shall not forget it," he said; "and now will you show your trust in me still further?"

"In what way?" she asked, timidly.

"By allowing me to send you home in my cab. I can walk," he continued, eagerly, as she shook her head. "I am younger, stronger than he is. Pray let me, it is not much to grant, and it would make me so happy."

Before she could reply the callboy cried her name. She started and turned from him to the companion car, in which she ascended to the rear of the bliss.

Jack walked over to Mr. Montague and laid his arm on his shoulder. The old man started and turned his face up, and Jack saw that the daughter had spoken truly when she called it a weary, tired one.

"I have taken the liberty of placing my cab at your disposal to-night, sir; you are tired, I can see, and no wonder, for your part is a heavy one. You will not refuse me?"

Mr. Montague looked at him a moment in silence.

The tired blue eyes met his unflinchingly. The face looked incapable of falsehood.

"I thank you, sir," he said, simply. "I do not know why you should put yourself out of the way for me and mine."

"Sir," said Jack, as simply, "my father taught me to respect age."

At this speech, surely as unsophisticated a one as was ever heard behind the scenes of a theatre, Mr. Montague started. But, strange to say, not so much at the speech as at the voice.

"Er—er," he said, in his nervous way, scanning the young man's face keenly. "I accept, sir, and thank you. Er—will you tell me your name?"

"My name is Hamilton, John, though no one calls me so—Jack Hamilton."

Mr. Montague nodded with an air almost of disappointment.

"Hamilton," he repeated, thoughtfully.
