DIOCESAN CHURCH SOCIETY. The Tenth sinual meeting of the Diocesan Church Society, of Prince Edward Island, (and second since its Incorporation), was held at the Infant School House, of Tuesday evening, the 18th October, 1863, at 7 o'clock.

Tuesday evening, the 18th October, 1853, at 7 o'clock.

The Rev. C. Lioyd, E. C. in the chair, after singing the 100th Psalm, and Prayer being offered up by the Rev. Dr. Jenkins, the chairman opened the meeting with the following observations.

Ladies and Gentlemen, members of the Church of England, I am very sorry we have not the advantage of His Excellency's presence this evening, more particularly as we cannot but remember in how agreeable a manner he presided over our meeting last year. I feel assured, however, that his absence does not arise from any want of interest in the Diocesan Church Society, and I am glad to have this opportunity of stating, that in the instances in which I have had occasion to transact buisness with him on the affairs of the Church, I have found him most kind and considerate. I could have wished, in his Excellency's absence, that my friend Dr. Jenkins were to occupy the chair, on this occasion, but as he did not wish to continue in the excersise of the duties of Ecclesiastical Commissary, and as the laws of the Society require the holder of that office to cal Commissary, and as the laws of the Society require the holder of that office to preside, I can only ask you to extend your indulgence to me, and to give consideration to the office, rather than to the individual, I had been the effect of the office of the office. shall now therefore call your attention to the shall now therefore call your attention to the objects of this meeting, which are to take cognizance of what has been done during the past year, on your behalf, by the Executive Committee, and to provide for the proper working of the society for the ensuing year, but chiefly, if possible, to excite a higher interest in the cause of Church Missions in this Island, than has yet been manifested.

The Society has now been in acception.

The Society has now been in operation under its Incorporated Character for one year, and we ought in some measure to be able to judge to what extent it is likely to be the means of producing those desirable results for which we have hoped. I wish to explain my views of the character and objects of the Dioceean Church Society, for I believe some little misapprehension on this subject that we have the subject of the Church Society for I believe some little misapprehension on this subject that we have the subject to the minds of a low of the subject to the minds of a low of the subject to the subject t The Ecclesiastical Commissary then dismissed the meeting with the usual benove the subscribers. One person has supposed it to be an offset of the S. P. E. another has believed it to be a branch of the Colonial Church Society. But the real truth is, that it is, emphatically, a National Society, representing the Church of England in this Island, in things temporal, you will easily perceive that it stands along it in the cartch, in their department, and in a country where Eclesiastical edifices are so few. I think I may conclude that this along will prove sufficient to recommend this Society to your good will, and to your design to the Church in their department, and at all stronger point of view, in which you may regard it. I chossider the Diocesan Church Society, and stone of the Church in their department, and a nation of a "camphene lamp."

The chairman then called on the Ray.

The chairman then called on the Ray, D. Fitz Gorald, Secretary, to read the an-

Moved by the Rev. Dr. Jenkins, and seconded by Theophilus Desbrisay, Esq. Resolved that the following names be added to the Executive Committee for the ensuing year, viz. Dr. Bell, Dr. Kaye, Samuel Dawson, James Pidgeon, John Hudson, and James Craswell, Esqrs. and that the officers of the society remain as before. before.

It was then moved that the Rev. Lloyd do leave the chair, and that the Rev. Dr. Jenkins be called thereto, on which a vote of thanks was given to the chair.

The Ecclesiastical Commissary then dis-

It should be remembered that not all inflammable substances are explosive; otherwise fish oil and candles would explode.

We know the whole history of the materi-We know the whole history of the materials produced by the pine tree, and used for purposes of illumination. And, strange enouge common parlance has applied the camphene, to the whole of them. This name arose as follows:—The idea of using the common spirits of turpentine for illumination, had been long entertained; but its great excess of carbon rendered it unfit for great excess of carbon rendered it unit for use, as its combustion produced dense volumes of smoke. Attempts were made to neutralize this carbon, by the addition of other substances. It was found that if small portions of gum camphor were desolved in the spirits of turpentine, it changed it to a clear fluid, which burnt with a bright flame without smoke, and was so more explosive than common fish oil. This pre-distilled, as is usual, from Liverpool coal, and Government should institute imments as to its applicability for it, it is use purposes. Yet this simple, cheap, and safe light, it is proposed to prohibit from use by Legislative enactment—This is on a par with the ancient legislation in England, wihich prohibited the use of bituminous coal. There is another composition used for illumination, called by the ignorant, indifferently, 'burning fluid,' or 'camphene.' It was found that, if common high proof whisky, or 'alcohol,' was mixed with common spirits of turpentine, it, like camphor, neutralized the excessive carbon, and brought it into a state fit to be burned in an ordinary lamp, like the common oil lamp, brought it into a state fit to be burned in an ordinary lamp, like the common oil lamp, with ordinary wick tubes.

This fluid is explosive, or about so much so as alchol, and requires care in filling lamps—It, also, is a cheap and beautiful light. Its component parts, alcohol and spirits of turpentine being cheap and cleanly, it forms an exceedingly bright and steady light, better for the eyes than either gas, or oil light. In using the lamps with this mixture, they should always be filled in the daytime, and set aside for use. Whenever, through gross carelesses, an explosion happens, it is published to the world as the explosion of a 'camphene lamp.'

We have never heard of an accident of the kind, that was not the result of gross carelesses. They nearly always happen also appeared on this subject.—We dislike to harp upon one string too often, nevertheless, the subject of artificial illumination is so important to every man, woman, and child in our country, that every person should read all the articles which treat upon it. What a vast amount is expended for illumination in one year. We can form illumination in one year. We can form some idea of this when we take in to consideration that every house, store, street, many churches, lecture rooms, factories, &c., in our land, are lighted up for some hours every night. On land and sea, on railroads and steamboats, in cellar and cabin, in castle and cottage, the lamp is trimmed to cheer man in all situations, and in all conditions. all conditions.

We admit that many of the camphene explosions have an awas introduced to the public under that name, as a patented article.

It was soon found, however, that the use of camphor rendered it too expensive, and the use of spirits of turpentine was tried in various ways without it the spirits of turpentine was tried in the campon of the call of turpentine. It is the excess of carbon which makes it finally a lamp was invented, which by means of a metallic button in the centre of a circular wick at the point of combustion, became so much heated, aided by a good draft through an improved glass chimney, as to consume all the carbon of the spirits of turpentine was tried in the way mentions are tried in the point of combustion, and was introduced to the point of combustion. Resolved, that this meeting fully appreciate the praiseworthy efforts of the Ladies' Branch of this society and prays it to continue, if not to redouble its exertions for the common good.

Moved by Comm vapor of camphene becomes explosive when it is mixed with O28, (oxygen); this amount saturates it to ignate instantaneously and forms carbonic acid and water. The alcohol and camphene mixture is more volatile than camphene, as it contains more hydrogen (C4, H50 THO.) All these fluids are percetly safe to burn, if the vapor can be prevented from escaping. By experiments which were made by the Franklin Institute, the turpentine and alcohol fluid proved cheaper than either sperm, lard, or gas, for illumination. The suggestion by Mr. Jones of our government making experiments with camphene and alcohol fluids is a good one; it is worthy of attention. Newell's Safety Lamp, illustrated in our last volume, is the best we have seen for burning this fluid; it is constructed on the principle of Davy's Safety Lamp, and can be trusted. In our list of claims last week, one was for a can to hold the fluid, which we believe is a good one. The inventer is Dr. Nichole, of Haverhill, Mass. It would certainly be wrong to enact a law to prohibit the use of burning fluids, but at the same time it would not be amiss to make a law to prevent accidents arising from the use of them, so as to punish the culpable and reckless. These fluids can never be used for street illumination, they are neither so convenient acr safe as coal gas sent through tubes; in fact, gas fluids can never be used for street illumina-tion, they are neither so convenient nor safe as coal gas sent through tubes; in fact, gas is the grandest and best of all plans for ar-tificial illumination, and we hope the day is not far distant when nothing else will be used in every family in all the cities and villages in our land. Every improvement which tends to cheapen gas light is an in-calculable boon to the human family.

Several weeks are patient ly employed in forming this heap, but when once formed, it does duty for several years, new matter being added at the top as that beneath rots away. In your report of the proceedings of Wednesday last, I see you have misplaced my remarks on Mr. Whelan's extraordinary conduct on that occasion. It was when that individual thought fit to say, that "he did not expect to have justice done him at that meeting," that I rose to order, and in the name of the highly respectable portion of the community assembled, protested against Mr. Whelan being allowed to offer another word, without first being called more to another to for such insulting rebeing called upon to apologize for such insulting re-flections. It was reserved for Rev. Dr. Evans to administer the severe custigation that Mr. Whelan received at his hands, when Mr. W. a member of the government expressed his contempt for the proceedings of the meeting in his own name, and that of his colleagues, the other members of the government. without attempting to furnish you with the precise language he used, I can assure, you that what he did say created in me a feeling of utter disgust, and I will only add, that in my opinion Rev. Dr. Evans in his just and eloquent remarks, rendered essential service, and gave Mr. Whelan a lesson, which, if he has the feelings of a man, i do not think he will be likely to forget for some Time to cume.

JOHN MYRIE HOLL. Wednesday, Oct. 16th, 1853.

To the Editor of Haszard's Gazerre.

Sir,—in these days of excitement and enquiry on certain subjects now being brought in various ways before the public mind, and the pains that are taken by certain persons to prejudice the people against some promising the principles of Temperance, I have been induced to inform you, and through you the public, of a scene that I witnessed a few days since in a small but flourishing settlement called Margats, where I observed a whole Posse of the members of the Grand Division headed by the D. GLEANINGS PROM LATE PAPERS.

GREATNESS OF ENGLAND.—In his recent work, "six months in Italy," Mr. Hillard has the following paragraph:—

A new sense of the greatness of England is gathered from travelling on the continent for let an Englishman go where he will, the might and majesty of his country seem to be hanging over him like an unseen shield. Let but a hand of violence be laid upon an English subject, and the great British iton couchant in Downing street begins to utter menacing growls and shake his invincible locks. An English man-of war seems to be always within one day's sail of everywhere. Let political agitation break out in any port, in the globe, if there be even a roll of English broadcloth, or a pound of English tea to be endangered thereby, within forty-eight hours an English steamer or frigate is pretty sure to drop anchor in the harbour, with an air which seems to say "Here I ame does anybody want chor in the harbour, with an air which seems o say, "Here I am; does anybody want anything of me?

ARREST OF A SCOTTISH LADY IN TUSCANY FOR CIRCULATING THE BIBLE

An English paper, from which the acis taken, speaks thus manfully on the sub-ject of the supposed right of Tuscany to enact a penal code against the religious freedom of British subjects on Tuscan soil; It is contended that Miss Cunninghame had no right to violate the Tuscan laws .-

But who will pretend that Tuscany or any other gingerbread Power has a right to make aws which are a nuisance, an offence, and an insult to another State—and that State Great Britain? If the Grand Duke of Tuscany and his councillors were to enact that every Englishman should undergo the operation of shaving, on entering the the first officer who attempted to put the law in force would have the lather-brush rubbed in his face, and no power upon earth would deny to England the right to defend and vindicate that proceeding. Yet such an edict would not be more offensive and insulting than that of which Margaret Cunninghame is at this moment experiencing the severity, and about which the Grand Duke is "inex-orable." "It was the law of Algiers," observes a contemporary writer, "that any Algerine might seize a foreign vessel, appropriate its cargo, and sell the crew slaves. That state of law was regulated by the destruction of Algiers; and guiated by the destruction of Algers; and yet, if a people have a right to enact laws as they please, the Algerines did but exercise that right." The people of Great Britain are not to be confined to their shores. by the fears or the malice of any continental Power, petty or large; and when they go abroad they will not consent to burn their Bibles, or say their prayers in a whisper.— We are proud of our freedom and of our religion; and deny the right of any man or ligion; and deny the right of any man or nation to silence us. There are crimes ngion; and deny the right of any man or nation to silence us. There are crimes about which all nations are agreed, because they affect the well-being of all; but the Tuscan crime of Bible-reading is invented Tuscan crime of Bible-reading is invented for application to British subjects alone, and British subjects will not submit to have niliation. We will bow to the statue-book of nations, but we will not submit to have a of nations, but we will not submit to have a dirty Tuscan hand put before our mouths when we have occasion to enter the dominions of the Grand Duke, whose Government as a daily paper remarks, "is a mere twefthcake business at best and has no more right to be treated as a European Power, than Messers. Fortnum and Mason, who import the Lucca oil, which it is the highest privilege of the Tuscan Government to educe from a kindly soil." Let the Grand Duke trouble himself with his oil pressers, and be inexorable. if he pleases, among his oil jars; inexorable, if he pleases, among his oil jars; but let him not interpose his Little Britain wrath between subjects of Great Britain and their religious convictions. The Protestantcontinental fool and ruffian thinks himself licenced to assail; but it is high-time our Government put an end to such insolence.

The fever at St. Georges, it appears from our Bermuda exchanges, had steadily declined during the seven days previously to the 5th instant, our latest date; "and so far as human foresight can be deemed reliable," says the Bermudian, "there is every probability that before the end of the month, the Epidemic will have run itself out in that deeply-afflicted portion of these Islands. Dr. Evans said was true, and yet, that the Fairy Queen was a good boat after all: but it was over in a memost. And Mr. Lord candidly stated that the Resolutions were moderate, very moderate, much milder than he expected. With regard to the words made use of by Mr. Whelan, we will not say, whether the word "colleagues," might not have been the word used, instead of members of the Government; but we do positively deny that the word, "perhaps" or any thing equivalent to it, was made use of by Mr. Whelan. Far from being made in a mild manner and tone, it was the very reverse, so much so, that the writer has been told by several persons who take no part in politics, that had the same thing occurred in many other places, Br. Whelan would have been roughly handled. After the assertion made by Mr. Whelan that the tender of Mr. Whitney was sent in intime, an assertion contradicted by the Hen. Geo Coles, who, in this respect at least, gives the true version of the affair, who can place the least confidence in what he—Whelan—says? In the case of the qualification for a seat in the Legislature, we expressed at the time our conviction, that the unfortunate man, though he had unquestionably sworn to that which was false, had done so through his ignorance of the tenures of land; these repeated instances of want-of veracity, and principle, would incline us however to put a rather severe construction on his conduct, and we fear entitled it to the terms given to it has a serior occurred.

The Chairman briefly explained the object of the meeting all the evangelical denominations in these Provinces, had been commenced, with a view to the amelioration of the condition of the Indians. Mr. Rand, who had already made some proficiency in the language, was employed to labor among them. A portion of the Scriptures—the goepel of Matthew—has now been published, in Micmac, and to some extent has been circulated among them. A school and an industrial establishment is now to be commenced in Now. Scotia, and for that purpose Mr. Rand is about seamoning there with his family. This meeting

STRANGE COMPANY .- The Exeter Nev Letters states that a gentleman residing in that town, owns a cow which he dares not that town, owns a cow which he dares not send out to pasture or in the streets, such is her malicious disposition and perfect hatred of the human species, and especially of women and children. The owner of the cow also has a cat upon his premises, and although othe gentlest treatment in all the blandishment of the dairy have been proffered R in person has been able to lay hands on it or even to lure it in the house. Strangers it may seem, these two wild animals have the best understanding between themselves, and appear to be perfectly happy in each other's company. While few persons dare approach the head of the cow, the cat sleeps in her manger, or upon the cow's back, eating with the cow from one pail, and receiving the kindest treatment from her.

What a gentleman in Iowa proposes to do for us has already been done for the growers of the south of France. By means of a whole district hasbeen rendered inaccessible to those destructive hail storms which so fre-quently follow in the train of thunder showbe done elsewhere. If we can teach light-ning to wait, we can teach it to believe itself. —Lowell Courier.

NOVEL WAY OF HOLDING A HORSE. A gentleman travelling through Germany, thus describes a novel method of fastening a horse which he saw put in practice by a German blacksmith:-

'As soon as breakfast was over, I generally enjoyed the luxury of riding about town, and in passing the shop of a black-smith, the manner in which he tackled and smin, the mainer in which he tackied and shod a vicious horse amused me. On the outside of the wall of the house, rings were firmly fixed to one of which the patient's head was fixetened close to the ground; the hind foot to be shod stretched out to the uthind foot to be shod stretched out to the utmost extent of the leg, was then secured by the other ring about five feet high, by a cord which passed through a cloven hitch, fixed to the root of the poor creature's tail.—The hind foot was consequently very much higher than the head; indeed, it was quite exalted, and pulled so heavily at the tail, that the animal seemed to be quite anxious to keep his other foot on terra firma. With one foot in the heavens, it did not suit him to kick; with his nose pointing to the infernal regions, he could not conveniently rear; and as a heavy band was constantly pulling at his tail, the horse at last gave up the point and quickly submitted to be shed."

J. C. Ayrr. Dear Sir,—My little son four years old has just recovered from a sovere attack of unlighant Scarter Fever, his throat was rotten, and every person that visited him, pronounced him a dead child. Having used your Chritarn Protonal in California, in the winter of 1850, for a severe attack of Bronchitis, with entire succes, I was induced to try it on my little boy. I gave him a ten-spoon-fel every three heurs, commencing in the moraing, and by ten o'clock at night, I found a decided change for the better, and after three days use he was able to cator drink without pain.

Its use in the above, named disease will save many a child from a premature grave, and relieve the anication of the Army of four that of the course of aix weeks.
