ARE the best for the preservation of the sight, and took the medal at the Centennial Exhibition.

The lenses are made of the best material, uniform in density, and of high refractive power, their perfect polish and spheroidal shape adapt them to ease and improve the sight of the wearer.

The eye being the most delicate organ great care should be exercised in selecting spectacles; it is not enough that the glass be of the right focus, but the lenses must be perfectly centered and in many cases perfect relief is only given by having each eye fitted separately. To effect this the lenses are made interchangeable, and having an Ophthalmometer to measure the sight, a perfect fit is guaranteed.

IVANHOE.

(BY SIR WALTER SCOTT, BART.)

CHAPTER XIV.—(Continued.) "By Saint Anthony," answered the black-browed giant, "I will consent that your highness shall hold me a Saxon if either Cedric or Wilfred, or the best that ever bore English blood, shall wrench from me the gift with which your highness has graced me."

"Whoever shall call thee Saxon, Sir Baron," replied Cedric, offended at a mode of expression by which the Normans frequently expressed their habitual contempt of the English, "will do thee an honor as great as it is undeserved."

Front-de-Bœuf would have replied, but Prince John's petulance and levity got the start.

"Assuredly," said he, "my lords, the noble Cedric speaks the truth, and his race may of him precede ours as much in the length of their pedigrees as in the longitude of their cheeks."

"They go before us indeed in the fields—as does before us," said Malvoisin.

"And with good right may they go before us—forget not," said Prior Aymer, "the superior decorum and decorum of their manners."

"Their singular abstinence and temperance," said DeBœuf, "forgetting the plan which promised him a Saxon bride."

"Together with the courage and conduct," said Brian de Bois-Guilbert, "by which they distinguish themselves at Hastings and elsewhere."

While, with smooth and smiling cheek, the spectators, in their turn, followed their Prince's example, and aimed a shaft of ridicule at Cedric, the face of the Saxon became inflamed with passion, and he glanced his eyes fiercely from one to another, as if the quick succession of so many injuries had prevented his replying to them in turn; or, like a baited bull, he surrounded by his tormentors, in a kee to choose from among them the immediate object of his revenge.

At length he spoke, in a voice choked with passion; and, addressing himself to Prince John, as the head and front of the offence which he had received, "Whatever," he said, "have been the follies and vices of our race, a Saxon would have been held in derision" (the most emphatic term for abject worthlessness), "who should in his own hall, and while his own wine cup passed, have treated, or suffered to be treated, an unoffending guest, as your highness has this day beheld me used; and whatever was the misfortune of our fathers on the field of Hastings, those may at least be silent; here he looked at Front-de-Bœuf and the Templar, "who have within these few hours once and again lost saddle and stirrup before the lance of a Saxon."

"By my faith, a biting jest!" said Prince John. "How like you it, sirs? Our Saxon subjects rise in spirit and courage; become sowerd in wit, and bold in bearing, in these unsettled times. What say ye, my lords? By this good light; I hold it best to take our galleys, and return to Normandy in time."

"For fear of the Saxons!" said De Bracy, laughing; "we should need no weapons but our hunting spears to bring these boars to bay."

"A truce with your raillery, Sir Knights," said Fitzurse—"and it were well," he added, addressing the Prince, "that your highness should assure the worthy Cedric that there is no insult intended him by jests, which most sound but harshly in the ear of a stranger."

"Insult!" answered Prince John resuming his courtesy of demeanor; I trust it will not be thought that I could mean, or permit any to be offered in my presence. Here, I fill my cup to Cedric himself, since he refuses to pledge his son's health."

The cup went round amid the well-dissembled applause of the courtiers, which, however, failed to make the impression on the mind of the Saxon that had been designed. He was not naturally acute of perception, but those too much undervalued his understanding who deemed that this flattering compliment would obliterate the sense of the prior insult. He was silent, however, when the royal pledge again went round. "To Sir Athelstane of Coningsburgh."

The Knight made his obeisance, and showed his sense of the honor by draining a huge goblet in answer to it.

"And now, sirs," said Prince John, who began to be warmed with wine which he had drunk, "having done justice to our guests, we will pray of them some requital to our courtesy. Worthy Thane," he continued, addressing Cedric, "may we pray you to name to us some Norman whose mention may least sully your mouth, and to wash down with a goblet of wine all bitterness which the sound may leave behind it?"

MR. B. D. WILMOT AND MR. COSTIGAN.

The following is an extract from a letter sent us by a prominent Liberal-Conservative from this city:—

"I see Mr. R. D. Wilmot is off for Ottawa, and some say he will tender his resignation on going there, unless his colleagues look more favorably at the scheme which has been a pet of his for years, namely, an extension of our currency. Mr. Wilmot is headstrong, and not easily diverted from his purpose when he makes up his mind. Do you think he will resign? Should he resign, are you in a position to say who would be likely to take his place? There is a Douville party in St. John which party in such a case as filling a vacant seat, would be made up of Liberals and Conservatives. Some of these are keeping Mr. Douville to the front, while from other quarters comes the name of Mr. Costigan, one of the veterans of the party. How does Mr. Costigan, do you know, stand for the office?"

Our correspondent here, asks us more than we are able to tell him. We do not know whether Mr. Wilmot will resign or not but our impression is that he will remain where he is. There may have been some differences between Mr. Wilmot and his colleagues, and there may not. Mr. Wilmot is an earnest advocate of a national currency, and he may have been pressing views on the Government in relation to the matter, that they did not feel warranted in accepting. But no Cabinet has ever yet been a unit on every measure that came before it, and we can't believe the Government at Ottawa is any exception to this rule. Individual members of every Government have often times to swallow the bitterest pills without turning away, and more than this they are obliged on behalf of the Government to defend that act when assailed by the opponents of their party. So that if the Government did not see fit to accept the views of Mr. Wilmot, that gentleman should be more stubborn than we believe him to be, to take serious offence at it.

Mr. Costigan's name comes up for the vacancy mentioned, so too does Mr. Douville's. We do not know that the Government has considered the name of either, but we do know that the public of New Brunswick like. They look upon the one as a dashing fellow, just entered on his political career full of fine promise, but as yet only a novice in experience, and innocent of political acts. Upon the other they look as a true and tried friend of the party, a dashing and brilliant politician, a man whose course has been straight as the arrow's. They look back upon Mr. Costigan's career from the first and they see that his footsteps have been steady, his principles fixed, his every act for his country's good and in the interest of the party.

The friends who in our sunshine lived, when winter comes have flown." says the poet; but this with Mr. Costigan has not been the case. In the darkest days of the party his faith was strongest, and when for a few brief moments it was considered a reproach to be a follower of the apostle of the Pacific Scandal, Mr. Costigan was at his post refuting calumnies, while others, misled by the falsehood of the time, hung their heads in shame. It was then he showed his zeal, for he knew it is in the hour of tribulation that a friend is needed. Mr. Costigan was always to the front when the occasion arose, and he sought the occasion to nail every slander to the false counter whence it originated. The party at Ottawa is not blind to this, and we may be sure that Mr. Costigan has not been rewarded by that party before this; only because the opportunity did not exist. Consistency is a jewel in politics, and a very rare jewel; but when is added to it, intelligence of a high order, the possessor is eminently the man for the highest place in the gift of his country. The Conservative of Canada, and eminently the present

Government of Canada are debtors of Mr. Costigan: Nay we may go further and say that his own Province is deepest in his debt. And that Province, looks forward to the day, not far, when the man who has done so much for her will reap his reward. Sir John and his party need not be urged we hope to do this popular act of justice; and before turning to another phase of the question we would say to Sir John with a great philosopher and poet:

"The friends they had and their adoption tried,
Grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel!"

And why the claim of Mr. Douville? let us ask. No one can explain. If a reason at all be given it must be such an unworthy one that few find the courage to state it. Mr. Douville is a protestant, and Mr. Costigan is a catholic! Is that it? Well then a more despicable reason could not be racked out of a disordered mind. That reason will not be given by a tenth, a twentieth of the people of New Brunswick, in fact it is not a reason at all, and will not be given as a reason, except by those directly in Mr. Douville's interest.

The people of New Brunswick, we would have those who think otherwise, to know, have out-lived that hideous age when a man was disqualified for a position he had earned because of the religion he professed. And even in that smoky time, three-fourths the cry of "Protestant" or "Catholic" was often raised by men who did not believe in God, and who laughed in their sleeve at religion. But as we have said that time has passed, and that spirit is emboldened so deep, that there is no hope again of resurrecting it while the present race of beings cover our planet. Two Catholic portfolio bearers in our popular Local Government is further evidence of the death of this hateful spirit, if further evidence is needed.

When we give "Three cheers for Tilley" we do it not because he is a protestant, but because of his mastery and brilliant career. When we say "Hurrah for Costigan," we only bear in mind that no truer or stauncher conservative than he, has Canada ever had, caring little whether he worships in Chapel, Church or Kirk; and if the Province to-morrow had to declare whether it would be Douville or Costigan, we should then see how worthless and despicable was the cry that Costigan was a Catholic. If there is any further change to be made in the Cabinet, and if New Brunswick is to have a representative, there is no other man whose appointment could be more popular to every creed and to every class. Mr. Costigan has never been a bigot, and in his political life he has never seen the line that divides creeds. He has earned the gratitude and the esteem of the people, and stands equally as well with the protestants as with the catholics of New Brunswick.

Inasmuch as the STAR is supported by every creed and every class, it is not a denominational organ, while the editor may hold his own private opinion and if necessary express these opinions as such an organ it takes pleasure in recommending the claims of Mr. Costigan to the Government; and in expressing the hope that should a vacancy occur, Mr. Costigan will be selected as the man to fill it.

LAURELS BEFORE THE WINNING—REPUUDIATION.

There was few of us who prize good name that did not feel a flush of pride when the Montreal Star held up Fredericton as a pattern of honorable dealings to Montreal. Thousands of people were told through Canada that Fredericton voted $5,000 for the sufferers by the St. John fire, and honorably decided through its respectable citizens to redeem the pledge. Our Provincial press struck the same chord, but we were reticent, for we very much feared the issue when it fell into the hands of the Council. Our fears have been but too fully verified.

Mr. Alderman Burchill, to his honor and credit be it said, submitted a resolution to the Council providing that the $5,000 be paid off in five (yearly) instalments, the amount to be raised by direct assessment. The resolution received no other support than that of the seceder, Mr. Alderman Moore. From most of the balance of the Council we could not perhaps expect better than repudiation, but from two of them we did expect better; and we now believe it was the hopelessness of the task of trying to pass a resolution of honor through the board that caused them to sit silent and take no action one way or the other.

One Alderman, who, while he professes honor, is really a repudiation champion, said the matter should stand over till St. John were poorer, and Fredericton richer. It will be observed that if the Council made such an unworthy argument as this the pretext for withholding payment, that repudiation is as sure to be the outcome, as dishonor is sure to be the outcome from men who know not what honor is. For a year from now, Fredericton will be little richer than to-day, and St. John will be no poorer, so that the argument used on Tuesday night will be good so long as Fredericton sends men at the Council Board who laugh at all obligations, save what they are compelled to acknowledge by brute or legal force.

Some men only fear the jail and the whip: it is a sad state of affairs when in the hands of such men the honor and reputation of a community are entrusted. It points out how important a matter even in civic representation, it is to have respectable men. In this connection we may say it is much to be deplored that none of our public spirited and honorable minded citizens—with few exceptions—can be induced to seek for civic honors. In the old country where civil Government is justly regarded as the base of the Governmental fabric, the people have a keen appreciation of the worth of respectability, honor and intelligence in their town politicians; and this is why that at their boards are found men who may have served in the parliament, or who afterwards serve there; or men who fill the most worthy positions in the community. But it is only after learning a few bitter lessons, it is only after being dragged down into the gutters of dishonor by their council, that the City of Fredericton will see the truth of the lesson we read them.

There is no hope now, unless censure drive the Council from its position, for aught else than repudiation. The Saints of the primitive church said, "Listen to the tempter, daily to reason with him, and you fall." The longer repudiation dangles on one side of the balance and honor on the other, the lighter will the latter become. Time will blunt the sense of our responsibilities, till in short this debt of honor will be ranked among the list of "old claims" and there will be few found to press it.

But we wish the minds joy whose greatest aim is to cater to the lowly mob, who are ready to stamp their vulgar applause of anything savoring of brigadoon or dishonor. We wish them joy with their low lived cause and low lived applauders. It is their ambition to make money, and please the vulgar crowd, to offend whom is more a deed of honor than to please. But we are surprised at a certain young gentleman at the Board—keeping the other also in mind—for supporting such a disgraceful measure. This young Alderman aspires one day to higher politics, but if the dawning of his political life be an indication of the day, he had better apply to nothing beyond his ward. We hope he is now sensible of his mistake, and that he will repent at leisure.

QUERY.

Who told Secretary Peters, of the Provincial Farmer's League, that "the Lands owned by the N. B. Railway Company, can be secured for a nominal sum and with easy payments?" The company would like to know. This secretary Peters ought not to burst; he should keep cool when writing his essays.

First Meeting of the New Council.

LIVELY DEBATES—ST JOHN RELIEF AND AID SOCIETY—A BIG SWEEP IN THE SALARYS—APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEES.

The first regular monthly meeting of the new Council was held on Tuesday evening, with a full board. His Worship the Mayor in the chair. The Council Chamber was crowded by an unusually large number of citizens, who anticipated a "crisis" of some sort among the incoming elements at the board.

After order had been restored, the City Clerk read the minutes of last meeting, after which the rules for government of Council in force last year, were adopted without division.

His Worship then begged leave to report that the Committee had advised the Administration of Justice accounts with the County as follows:

From the year ending October 31st, 1877, the cost of administration of justice was $2118.83, the County's share being $1059.42, and the City to pay the remainder, $1059.41.

For the year ending October 31st, 1878, the administration of justice account was $2310.29, divided the County's share, $1155.15, and the City, $1155.14, making the whole amount due the County, from the city up to October 31st, 1878, $2310.29.

A letter from S. A. Chipman, Secretary of the St John Relief and Aid Society, asking for information as to the course the Council intended to pursue, was read by His Worship.

The Mayor also had to report that on the 26th ult., the request of a number of citizens that the Council should meet at which the Chief Justice had moved that the citizens condemn the action of the City Council in cancelling the debentures, that at the will of the people had been prepared, and declaring that the credit of the city demanded payment.

It was wished to know what action the Council proposed to take in the matter.

Adm. Justice. His Worship the Mayor, and Aids, Wilson and Wheeler.

Assessment App. Aids, Wheeler, Burchill, Smith, Guio, Moore, Richey, Moore, Richey and Guio.

City Hall. Aids, Clinton, Guio, Wheeler, Street Lamps. Aids, Clinton, Guio, Wheeler, Smith.

Checks were then ordered for the officers in the various departments of city service.

The devaluations then made their first stroke. Ald. McPherson moved the Principal Assessor's salary be reduced from $300.00 to $100.00, and those of the Assistant Assessors from $250.00 to $200.00. Carried without division.

A petition was read from T. L. Simmons, claiming that he had served the city in the capacity of principal assessor for a number of years and praying for a special demonstration of a renewal of their confidence by being re-appointed to that position.

With exception of Alderman Richey, no one seemed disposed to grant Mr S's request. Alderman Wheeler then proposed Mr James Tibbia, and the Council divided: Yea—Smith, Clinton, Wilson, Wheeler, 4; Nays—Burchill, McPherson, Guio, Richey, Moore, Guio, 6.

Harris S. Estey was then appointed to the office by the unanimous vote of the Council, and James Farrel and George N. Cliff as assistant assessors.

Alderman Clinton then read the annual petition of Joseph Doherty praying for permission to put up a blacksmith shop in the rear of the Victoria Hotel, Regent street. Yea—Wheeler, Guio, McPherson, Wilson, Smith, Clinton, 5; Nays—Burchill, Moore, Richey, Guio, 4.

The petition of Whitman Haines, owner of the steam ferryboat "Sarah H.," asking for a bylaw to protect the petitioner from parties who are accustomed to board his craft and refuse to pay ferrage was presented. Moved by Ald. Moore and carried that a bylaw be prepared by the City Clerk and submitted.

The petition of Mr John Mooney and Mrs Eliza Williams, praying for relief from taxation referred to assessment appeal committee.

The petition of R. A. Ester, asking for a lease of city land from the upper line of Robt. Belyea's lot to lower line of Smythe street, under building lease regulation, and also shore right from the lower line of Isabel Aberdeen's to the prolongation of the lower line of Smythe street, the petitioner to pay $30 per annum for such privileges, was granted without division.

The communication of William Carten in reference to road work was referred to road and street committee.

The petition of Arthur C. Bully praying for the release of his son Arthur E. Bully from confinement on account of money matters, was granted.

Yea—Clinton, Wilson, Wheeler, 5; Nays—Burchill, Moore, Richey, Guio, 4.

STAR BRIEFS.

The space allowed for our lengthy report of the Council Meeting compels us to hold over our usual quantity of other interesting matter.

Mr. William Wheeler is the silent man at the Council Board.

We are glad to receive the Vindicator of Truro, N.S., on our exchange list. Success brother.

We had some New Brunswick bread for dinner to-day, and it was a credit to the province.—ED.

A new steamer for the St. John.

Capt. Garret Vanwart, late of steamer "Star," in company with his legal adviser G. F. Baird, Esq., left St. John this morning on route for New York, where it is said they will purchase a new steamer for the St. John River, and this report is very correct. It will afford a very satisfactory explanation of Capt. Vanwart's late disposal of his steamboat interests.

Mr. G. H. Snow's classes for instruction in vocal music met yesterday in the Reform Club Hall, the juveniles at 4.30 p.m. and the adult class at 8 p.m. A great deal of interest is being shown, and the classes are very busy.
