CHAPTER VII.
An Apology and an Invitation.
"I am going to the Court," he said, slowly, "and shall see the earl. I am sure that he will permit me to convey to you his permission to go about the estate."
"Thanks, very much," said Cyril, "it's very kind of you. But I saw the earl this afternoon, and he was kind enough to make me free of the place."
"You saw the earl?" said Guildford Berton, then he stopped. "I'm very glad. Then—this evening?"
Cyril nodded, and took up his folded easel, preparatory to marching off.
"Yes, about nine o'clock, if that's not too early," and Guildford Berton rode off slowly in the direction of the Court.

Some feeling that he could not explain caused Cyril to glance back after he had gone a few hundred yards, and he did so in time to see the pink dress fit close up beside the black horse. It was there only a moment, for Cyril saw, or fancied he saw Guildford Berton raise his hand with a warning gesture, and Becca disappeared again.

CHAPTER VIII.
A Strange Welcome.

CYRIL worked at his sketch all the afternoon with a keener delight than he had ever before experienced; for, though he had painted out Norah's figure, the picture was so closely connected with her that her presence actually seemed to be in the room as he painted; and he paused now and again to lean back and recall the morning, which she had made so delicious a time for him. Then, when he had finished his dinner—a simple affair of chops and a tart, but which he enjoyed with the zest which youth and a good appetite alone can give—he lit

'Twas a Bad Time to Take Chances, By Dorgan

a pipe, and bethought himself of Mr. Guildford Berton's invitation.

If Cyril had followed his own inclination he would have avoided any further acquaintance with the gentleman who could be offensive one hour and conciliatory the next; but he had accepted, and intended going, though there was something about Guildford Berton which repelled Cyril. For one thing, he did not like a man whose eyes so continually sought the ground instead of those of his fellowmen; and there was a certain turn of the lips and the chin which offended Cyril's artistic sense. Had the face been positively ugly he would have forgiven it, but it was the expression which marred it and of which he complained to himself.

Just before nine he put on his hat, and started in search of the cottage. Following Mrs. Brown's directions, he walked up the lane behind the horse pond, and presently came upon a door in a high wall, behind which he could see the upper windows and chimneys of an old cottage.

As this was the only house in the lane, Cyril concluded that it must be Mr. Guildford Berton's abode, and he was as unfavorably impressed by it as he had been by its owner. One expects a country cottage to be light and cheerful; Mr. Guildford Berton's resembled a small lunatic asylum, and had a morose and forbidding appearance, singularly out of place in the pretty green lane.

He tried to open the door, but it was locked apparently, and he touched a bell-handle, which hung high up in the wall, above the reach of infantile hands.

The bell clanged harshly, and quite in keeping with the gloomy appearance of the wall, and, after a few minutes, the door was opened by an old woman, who eyed him with an expression that puzzled him; it was not exactly one of suspicion, but rather the concentrated look of a person who lacks one of the five senses, and is endeavoring to make up for its loss by more than the ordinary acuteness of the remaining four.

"Is Mr. Berton at home?" asked Cyril.

The woman nodded, and, opening the door wide enough for him to enter, let it go, and it fell to with a sharp clang. Then, with a slight gesture, she beckoned Cyril to follow, and, leading the way up a path which was lined on each side by thick shrubs, and wound so that it hid the cottage, she stopped before a door and motioned to him to enter, instead of preceding him and announcing him in the usual way.

Cyril found the door ajar, and, pushing it, entered a small hall. The place was remarkably quiet, and after waiting for a minute to see if his host would come out from some room to receive him, Cyril knocked at a door which he thought might be that of a sitting-room.

No response came, and, after another spell of waiting, he walked to the front door, and looked about for the woman who had let him in; but

Good Old Home-Made Family Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind—Easily and Cheaply Prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with ginseng and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, be sure to ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

the winding path, with its thick shrubs, effectually hid everything from view, and, not liking to "shout out," "Mr. Berton, where are you!" he returned to the hall, and gently opened the door of the room at which he had knocked.

It was a sitting-room, as he had suspected, but so dimly lighted by a small petroleum lamp that at first he could scarcely distinguish anything distinctly. Then suddenly, as he grew accustomed to the light, he was startled to see Guildford Berton's figure lying back in an armchair. It was placed with its back to the window, and Cyril, thinking that he had fallen asleep, wondered whether he had not better return as quietly as possible, and refrain from waking his host, who had apparently so completely forgotten his visitor. But as he turned to go, with a sense of relief, something in the attitude of the figure struck him, and he noiselessly drew a little nearer.

Guildford Berton, if he were asleep, had fallen into slumber very suddenly, and in a very uncomfortable position; his head lay all on one side of the chair, and his legs were stretched out with a peculiarly helpless expression about them.

As Cyril looked he experienced a sudden shock, for the thought flashed upon him that the man was dead! The stillness of the place hung over it like a pall, and, for the first time, he noticed a faint and peculiar odor in the room, that reminded him of the smell hanging about a chemist's shop.

He went up to the motionless figure and bent over it. The eyes were half open, the lips tightly compressed, but, whatever else was the matter, Cyril saw by the slow and labored breathing that Guildford Berton was not dead.

Considerably alarmed, he looked round for a bell, but, not seeing any sign of one, he went to the door and called to the woman. "Hi!"

No response came, the stillness was unbroken, and, hurriedly returning to the unconscious man, he shook him gently by the shoulder, and called him by his name. This failing of effect, he searched the room for some water, and, seizing a carafe from a side table, poured out some of its contents into the palms of his hands and bathed Guildford Berton's forehead.

After a few minutes, which seemed years to Cyril, Berton opened his eyes and heaved a long sigh; then a gleam of returning intelligence came into his face, and, making an effort to sit up, he said, staring at the visitor: "The bottle— Put it away!" Cyril looked round, but saw no bottle on the table, or anywhere else.

"What bottle?" he asked, anxiously. "I don't see any. What has happened? Are you ill?" Guildford Berton stared vaguely for a little while, then managed to raise his head.

replied Guildford Berton, avoiding his questioning and anxious gaze.

"But—but," said Cyril, more gravely still, "if that's so, is it wise to live in such an out-of-the-way place, and so much alone? I've tried to call your servant, the woman who opened the door to me—but all to no purpose; and I'm afraid that if I had not happened to come in it is likely you might have lain here until—"

"I died?" filled in Guildford Berton, with a peculiar smile. "There was no fear of that. It isn't fatal."

He dropped back as he spoke, and a shiver ran through him. Cyril, taking it as a sign of a relapse, looked round the room for some restorative. Behind the chair was a cupboard door, and, in the hope that he might find some brandy, he opened it. As he did so the pungent odor he had detected before came out to meet him strongly, and he saw that the cupboard contained a number of bottles such as are used for chemicals. One—a small phial of blue glass, with a medicine measure beside it—stood at the extreme edge of the shelf as if it had been hastily placed there.

More and more puzzled, Cyril pushed the bottles along in search of brandy, but could find none, and was still searching when he heard Guildford Berton's voice exclaim:

"What are you doing there? Come away!"

Cyril closed the cupboard, and came to the chair.

"I was looking for some brandy," he said. "I think a little would pull you round."

"There is no brandy," said Guildford Berton, curtly. "If you'll be good enough to wait a moment—" He stopped, and, rising slowly, stood holding on by the chair for a second or two; then he staggered to the cupboard, and, taking a bottle from the shelf, poured some of the contents into the medicine measure and drank it.

Almost instantly his weakness seemed to disappear, and, after locking the door, he turned and confronted Cyril with the same expression of restraint and reserve which had been so marked in the morning.

"I'm afraid I've alarmed you," he said, with a forced smile.

"You certainly have, my good sir," assented Cyril, "I hope you are better."

"Oh, yes, I am all right now," was the reply. "Pray sit down."

Cyril sank into a seat slowly, and Guildford Berton went back to his chair.

"It is very unfortunate that I should have fainted just at the moment of your arrival; it was a poor kind of welcome; but I'm very glad to see you, Mr. Burne."

Cyril made some response. "Don't trouble to talk for a little while," he said. "I don't think you are quite right yet, and you'd better rest."

"Oh, I am quite recovered, thanks," said Guildford Berton. "These attacks don't last long, and leave me as suddenly as they come."

"You appear to have got quite a collection of chemicals in your cupboard," remarked Cyril, not curiously, but for the sake of saying something. "I suppose you keep them as restoratives?"

Guildford Berton paused for a moment, then he smiled. "Some of them, yes," he said. "I always had a taste for doctoring, and I keep a few simple remedies by me. We have no doctor nearer than Parkham, and I find the kind of things I keep useful among the poor people here. Toothaches and that sort of thing are their most serious ailments, and they have got into the habit of coming to me."

The Progress of Frighfulness.

With little news from the battle front, though that little distinctly encouraging for us, attention is everywhere focussed upon the progress of the German submarine campaign, which has burst out with renewed vigour and is marked by a much greater degree of ruthlessness and brutality than before. The chief question of interest it presents is as to the attitude of the neutrals affected by it, for the Allies have long ceased to expect any mitigation of the barbarous practice, and put their sole trust in the effectiveness of their own measures of defence. As a result of a few weeks' piracy, Germany finds her relations with Norway strained to breaking-point and those with the United States seriously threatened. Her attacks on Greece are of no practical importance, having, no doubt, the secret approval of what remains of the Greek Government.

The outcome of the Marina investigation will be received with interest and in some quarters, not a little anxiety. Accepting the strange status of submarine warfare agreed upon by Washington and Berlin, we are forced to admit that nothing, until this incident, has since occurred to raise any serious question. In every case the answer to any protests has consistently been that Germany's pledges have not been violated, but the answer itself has implied that any such violation would be regarded as a casus belli or whatever Washington cared to substitute for war. It seems as if it will tax the combined ingenuity of the two foreign offices to concoct an explanation of this last outrage sufficiently plausible to convince the world that is looking on.

This little contretemps, however, need not interfere meantime with other negotiations between the two countries; until they are compelled to be enemies they might as well be friends. So it is not surprising to learn that Washington is prepared to make a bargain with Berlin for the carrying of mails undersea, though the proposition in itself strikes us as extraordinary. Our knowledge of history may be at fault, but we doubt if there has ever been an instance of a neutral Government arranging with a belligerent Government for what is nothing more nor less than blockade running. That, however, is by the way. What the more decent Americans will be concerned with is the making of any such overtures at all at such a time and under such circumstances.

America now says in so many words to Germany, "We fear it looks as if you have murdered some of our citizens. Kindly find out all about it at once."

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Mystery of the "Tanks"

One of War's Surprises—London Daily Express Praises Machines are Receiving Praise Which by Right Belongs to Men.

London, October 21.—The "worship of the tanks" is getting a bit overdone. The paens of the uninformed grow louder and louder, and it would seem only incidentally that it is taken into account that the great battle in which they first appeared was won by men and not by machines. Some persons are talking and writing as if the "tanks" had won the war, while Mr. Lloyd George himself has warned everybody not to expect too much from them.

It is recalled in the Daily Express that at the beginning of the war mysterious references were made in the newspapers to a wonderful high explosive with which the French were going to blast the Prussians from the face of the earth. Its merits were discussed in messes, in ward rooms, at sea, and at clubs and in drawing rooms at home.

"We are," the Express says, "in spite of the war, a simple nation. We believed the yarns. We went even further and enlarged upon them, until a new surprise was launched on the top of us which completely eclipsed the old one.

"Surprises of the War."
"Very few of these early surprise packets materialized. Who among us did not hear stories of the wonderful concrete built ships which were to be sunk in the mouth of the Kiel Canal; of the Zeppelins which would asphyxiate towns with their loathsome bombs, or of the great howitzers which were to plaster the cliffs of Dover with a daily 'hate' as a reminder that Calais was nearer than it seemed?"

"In those early days we were most efficient talkers. Nevertheless, it was the Prussian who sprang the first surprise on us with his poison gas. We were deeply shocked. It was unsportsmanlike. It was not cricket. We raised horrified hands to heaven . . . and talked . . . and went on talking, till one fine day we made gas ourselves, and later used it. War is a great leveller. The poison gas surprise was first blood to the Prussian. As Tommy and Jack have it, they did it on us—proper. We made gas every bit as good as the Prussian, improvised gas helmets and respirators, and waited for the next surprise. It was not long in coming. The Prussian went one better than the poison gas invention and treated us to liquid fire.

"Tirpitz and His Boats."
"While we were busy making gas helmets and poison gas, Grandpa Tirpitz so far forgot his whiskers as to hurl a bomb at us in the shape of his famous 'unterseeboot' campaign. They were most wonderful boats, those submarines of Grandpa Tirpitz. Tens of thousands of miles was their radius of action; they carried torpedoes innumerable, they speed was at least thirty knots, and they bristled with guns. Grandpa Tirpitz has had a fair measure of success. We must give him his due, but where in the sea do those great dreadnoughts and cruisers lie which were to fall such an easy prey to the torpedoes of the U-boats?"

"Russia has had her surprise as well as England and Germany. The great Sikorsky biplane, a huge aerial monster of efficiency, was brought into use early in the war, and there were few Zeppelin commanders who dared the flight over the Masurian lakes with these giants of the air for antagonists. There have been many surprises in the shape of inventions, but of all the inventions which have borne fruit and prospered, the new mystery cars are the greatest. What are they like, these great, formidable, steel-clad monsters? Of what calibre are these 'tanks' which override trenches and trees and dugouts and shell craters? Are they merely the mechanical perfection of the human brain, or do they contain real devils that can put a battery of guns out of action, charge a prisoners' cage and enlaid a trench in one full swoop?"

"The 'Tank' in Action."
"The Prussian cannot tell you. Of a surety he must have thought some form of Satanic incarnation had broken loose when he saw the great, mammoth-like 'buses' rolling toward him in the cold, gray morning, menacing and ugly, utterly heedless of barbed wire and shell holes, plunging over mine craters, spitting fire and smoke as they came.

"They are wonderful cars, these 'tanks.' Whose was the clever brain that thought them out and perfected them? Where and by whom were they made? The stories about them are almost miraculous as the cars themselves. Here are a few 'real truths' which have been circulated about them:

"They carry a crew of 400 men.
"They have 12-inch guns.
"Their speed is 30 miles per hour, and:
"They were made by Swedes in Japan."

"Whatever the 'tanks' may be, whether fish, flesh, or good red herring, they are marvellously efficient. They are a real surprise, and, what is more, an effective one.

Killed in Action.

Again the city has been depressed by news of the death of one of its brightest sons. Word has been received of the death in action of Bert Goodridge, (as he was known to all) on the 7th of October. He belonged to the 7th London Regiment. His loss will be very keenly felt for there was no more popular man in St. John's and few more talented. Though many years beyond what is regarded as the fit military age, he was among the first to offer his services. He has sealed them with the last supreme act of devotion. The grief of his aged and respected father, the Hon. F. Goodridge, and of his family will be shared by many in the city and out of it who claimed him as their friend.

"It is extraordinary how like we are to Cousin Hans. It is not such a long time ago that our protests rose to the skies against poison gas. It is a still shorter time since we used it ourselves. We have thoroughly scarred Hans with our 'tanks' and already he is complaining that they are a cowardly and unfair weapon to use against an honorable nation in modern warfare."

Don't Neglect Your Cough.

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insect real devils that can put a battery of guns out of action, charge a prisoners' cage and enlaid a trench in one full swoop?

Hicks, who is in charge of the present northern campaign, has a squad of recruits accompanying him and put them through the various drilling exercises every night.

The "Turret Cape."

The S. S. Turret Cape put into this port for repairs yesterday afternoon. The ship was two and a half days out from Montreal, laden with steel billets and bound to Havre and Manchester. She encountered heavy weather, during which a derangement occurred in the engine room and it was decided to come here for repairs, which are now being made and it is hoped to get the ship away again this afternoon. The Turret Cape is a steel steam steamer of peculiar construction with funnel aft, is 21 years old, was built in Sunderland and is owned by the Canadian Ocean and Inland Navigation Co., Ltd., and is 1327 tons gross, 1142 net, 253 ft. long, 44 ft. broad and 19.4 ft. deep.

Fads and Fashions.

Separate blouses are made of velvet. The taffeta petticoat is here to stay. Crepe de chine is most favored for lingerie. The sports hat invariably matches the coat. Charmeuse and plaid taffeta make a chic dress. Bead girdles are made up in Paisley colorings. The plainer the tailored suit the smarter it is. Ermine collars are gracefully used on mole coats. Quite a few skirts are draped about the hips. Tailored skirts should be wide but not voluminous. Capes are made only in very high-priced materials. Wide collars are the rules on waists and coats. Pleated effects are very desirable in separate skirts. The most chic toilettes have wraps to match the gowns. Simplicity is the keynote of the best separate waists. In muffs the rather small round shapes have the lead. The most economical evening frock is made of black. The frilly blouse is so becoming and it is still with us. Pockets remain a striking feature on young girls' frocks. Black satin petticoats are worn with black satin dresses. Checked silks are favorite materials for youthful frocks. Cloth-covered link chains are charmingly used for belts. Slipover and peplum waists are worn with short suit coats. Some skirts are very wide and full, even at the waist line. The frock of the day can be enriched with embroidery in blue and red. Straps of fur appear on the corners of some evening gowns. Pockets in novel shapes are frequently placed at the neckline.

Indigestion Resulted From an Inactive Liver

The Bowels Became Constipated and the Whole Digestive System Upset.

With many people constipation becomes a habit. And it is a dangerous habit which is certain sooner or later to cause serious disease.

"Daily movement of the bowels" is the first and most important rule of health. When the liver becomes torpid the flow of bile into the intestines is stopped and the bowels become constipated. But you can readily overcome this condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment obtainable which so promptly swakens the activity of the liver and bowels and thereby corrects derangements of the digestive system.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty of Beaver Brook, Albert Co., N.B., writes: "I can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a great medicine for constipation. I have suffered from constipation ever since I can remember, but got to using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was so benefited that I began to study this malady. I found that the indigestion resulted from a bad case of inactive liver, and as soon as I got the liver working right I didn't have any stomach trouble or indigestion. I cannot praise this medicine too highly, and would advise anyone suffering from indigestion or constipation to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. My husband also claims that these pills have done him more good than any medicine he ever used. You are at liberty to use this letter."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively relieve and cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, indigestion, backache and kidney disease. Put it to the test. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edman-son, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

The total munition orders for Canada since the outbreak of war have been $550,000,000. Last week the Imperial Munitions Board was instructed to place additional contracts to the value of $60,000,000, running well into 1917.

The British Man-Power Board, it is said, has reached a decision that every young man in the country must be definitely placed in the national service. The Times says that it is probable that the board will recommend before long that all men under a certain age must be put at the disposal of the military authorities or the minister of munitions.

OPENING OF THE STORES AT NIGHT.—At 3 o'clock this afternoon the Importers' Association will hold a special meeting to consider the feasibility of further postponing the opening of the stores after nightfall during the autumn season and up to the end of the year. It was already decided that the business houses were to open from 9 p.m. till 2 p.m. beginning Monday next, Nov. 6, but this arrangement is said to be affected by the new lighting regulations. It is not unlikely, we hear, that a further postponement will be made as a result of to-day's meeting.

It is an advance of $150,000 over the amount now raised.

Lord Wimborne, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, in an address at a banquet last week in Dublin settled the much disputed question regarding the name of Irishmen who have enlisted to fight for the British Empire. At the beginning of the war, he said, there were 34,822 Irishmen with the colors or in the reserves. Since then 92,404 Catholics and 62,291 Protestants have joined the army from various parts of Ireland. Owing to heavy losses at the front 30,000 more would be needed before Christmas.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In last night's Mail and Advocate a very nasty attack was made by a correspondent of that paper on P. J. K., who had written a timely letter to your Journal a day or two ago.

The Mail and Advocate is ever miserable in its permitting unknown correspondents to take on the opinions of writers in contemporary Journals, but neither P. J. K. nor any other writer who has not received the "glad hand" of the Advocate need fear its attacks.

As a result—(or part result) of P. J. K.'s article to your paper, the opening of the stores at night HAS BEEN postponed, so we see that he scores one—even against the Mail and Advocate.

Yours truly,

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggists."

KOENIG COMMUNICATIVE.

NEW LONDON, Conn., To-day. Describing a visit to the German army headquarters on the east front, where he was the guest of the Kaiser at dinner, Capt. Koenig said he found the Emperor in good health, a little white and drawn but not at all weak. He found the German people during his stay, he said, believing the war would last another year.

DIED OF WOUNDS.

LONDON, To-day. Major Baron, Llaugattock died of wounds received in action. Born in 1870, he held the post of High Sheriff Mayor of Monmouth.

WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-day. Herd fighting is again taking place on the Somme front, in France between the Entente Allies and the Germans. Since Tuesday the British and French near Courcellette and on the Les Boeufs-Guedecourt front, to the south have been attacking violently with the Germans tenaciously holding them back, except at Les Boeufs, where the combined Entente forces have gained some ground, and to the west of Les Boeufs in St. Pierre-Vasat Wood near Sully-Salliseil, where the men of General Foch took additional German trenches. Between Le Sars and Guedecourt and in the vicinity of the Schwaben redoubt the Germans are heavily bombarding the British positions. On the Transylvanian front the Roumanians are keeping up their drive of the Austro-Germans in the Juhl Valley, but according to Petrograd the Teutons have occupied two villages south of the Rothenthurm Pass. In the Predel Pass sector the Germans have penetrated the Roumanian positions, and captured ten cannon and 17 machine guns, also have made further progress southeast of Rothenthurm Pass. Again the Russians have assumed the offensive in Galicia along the Narayuvka River and in the Michisou region. Berlin records the repulse of five heavy attacks in the former district. Petrograd admits that the Russians in the latter one have been pressed back by superior Teutonic forces. Bad weather is again hampering operations on the Macedonian front, but nevertheless, the British in the Strupa region have taken Baraklazuma from the Bulgarians, while the Serbs have made a slight advance on the left bank of the Cerna River and also put down an attack by the Teutonic Allies and made prisoners of both Bulgarians and Germans. With the advent of fine weather in the Austro-Italian theatre artillery engagements are being fought all along the line. Bombardments are especially violent east of Gorizia and on the Carso plateau.

KOENIG'S NARRATIVE.

NEW LONDON, Conn., To-day. Capt. Koenig, in an interview this afternoon, said he didn't know where the other undersea boat Bremen was. It sailed on Sept. 28th and had 60 days' supplies aboard. The captain said there were only two merchant submarines, the Deutschland and Bremen. The America did not exist. Capt. Koenig said that while approaching the coast he saw a British petrol boat a long way off and submerged for a time. The course from Bremen, he said, was off the Scottish coast and to the north of the Orkney Islands. It was uneventful. The submergence was not much more than 100 miles, and all the trip was without incident, he claimed. The captain thought he would begin his return trip within a fortnight.

A PLUCKY LITTLE CREW.

LONDON, To-day. A Beershaven despatch to Lloyds Agencies says the American tug Vigilant has been brought there safely by the second mate and two firemen. The captain and other members of the crew were taken on board the Dutch steamer Ryndam abandoned the tug 100 miles west of Pastat. The Ryndam landed the captain and 12 of the crew at Falmouth.

AN ELECTION POSSIBLE.

LONDON, To-day. In a discussion in the House on the Register Bill to make provision for the possibility of an election during the war, the Premier announced today that the Government was anxious to give soldiers, sailors and munition workers an opportunity to participate in any such election, and that they would introduce a bill to that effect.

ATROCIOUS CONDUCT TOWARDS SUBS.

BERLIN, To-day. The Overseas News Agency reports that three German submarines which recently returned at their home ports sank within a few days 21 ships of a total of 28,500 tons in the English Channel. The same Agency states that a German submarine which recently returned from the cruiser war was reportedly offensively attacked by armed steamers or shelled by others when it began a lawful search. This submarine was attacked altogether seven times. In nearly all cases the steamers were British, which carried one or more modern guns. The same sub. had been fired at six times by hostile steamers during previous cruises of several weeks in the Mediterranean. The commanders and crews by their ability and presence of mind escaped in all cases.

TWO MORE SHIPS GONE.

LONDON, To-day. The British steamers Meroe and Torno have been sunk, it is announced by Lloyds Agency. The Meroe was 3,552 tons. The Torno is not contained in marine records. Lloyds also announce the sinking of the British steamer Rio Phary. Thirteen members of the crew were landed, but one boat from the steamer is missing. The Rio Phary was 3,161 tons.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, To-day. (Official).—This afternoon in conjunction with the French we made a local attack east of Les Boeufs where some ground was gained. There was heavy hostile shelling against our front between Le Sars and Guedecourt and in the neighborhood of the Schwaben redoubt. South of Helluth this morning we bombarded the enemy trenches with good results. The enemy west of Angres was easily repulsed. Yesterday our aircraft did some useful work in reconnaissance and bombing enemy batteries. One hostile machine was driven down in a damaged condition. One of ours is missing.

BIG BOOTY AT VERDUN.

PARIS, To-day. North of the Somme the French captured two trenches northeast of Les Boeufs and strongly organized a system of trenches on the western outskirts of St. Pierre-Vasat Wood to the southeast of Sully-Salliseil, says a bulletin issued by the French War Office to-night. According to late information the total prisoners taken on the Verdun front since Oct. 24th reached 6,011. The material captured comprises 15 guns, 5 of which are of large calibre, 51 trench mortars, 14 machine guns, 2 wireless plants, a great quantity of small arms, 100,000 rounds of ammunition, 100,000 lbs. of explosives, 100,000 lbs. of food, 100,000 lbs. of clothing, 100,000 lbs. of other supplies, and 100,000 lbs. of other material.

EXCUSE FOR ANOTHER OUTRAGE. BERLIN, To-day. The German Government in retaliation for the alleged failure of the French Government to keep an agreement regarding the release of prisoners has determined to send two hundred French men and women of representative families from an occupied French district to Germany. An official statement on this subject given out for publication says the German and French Governments last January agreed about the release of civilian prisoners on both sides. Thus all German women interned in France and all German men younger than 17 or older than 36 years as well as all units for military service had a just claim to be sent home, except if indicted for crimes. France has not kept the agreement, refusing the right of departure to a large number of Germans, especially from Alsace and Lorraine, among them women and children, without giving reason. The German representatives having met with no success, the German Government has now decided upon a reprisal and will first arrest 200 French men and women of representative families in the occupied districts, and then send them to Germany. They will be detained there until the Germans who are detained in contravention of the agreement are returned to Germany.

SUFFRAGETTES BREAK OUT.

LONDON, To-day. Two suffragettes were arrested at midnight on Tuesday while hurling stones through five of the windows of the Home Office and Colonial Office in Whitehall. The stones bore inscriptions "Down with Grey," "Down with Haldane" and "The Romanians must not be sacrificed." In Bow Street Police Court the public prosecutor asserted that the raiders acted in violation of the laws declared between the Government and the leaders of the suffragette movement for the duration of the war. He said he believed the leaders of the women's movement would frown upon acts of this character. At the request of Counsel for the defendants the court postponed their case to a later date.

FOOD SHORTAGE IN RUSSIA.

LONDON, To-day. The food crisis daily assumes more formidable proportions, says the Times Petrograd correspondent. The discussion at Wednesday's meeting of the Budget Committee left little doubt as to the gravity of the situation. The speakers emphasized the imperative necessity of adopting amelioration measures on behalf of the working classes if the most unfortunate consequences are to be avoided. The situation of the lower classes is at present intolerable owing to the impossibility of obtaining the necessaries of life without standing for hours daily outside the provision shops.

Sailly Pounded to Pulp

French Gained Greater Part of Objective in Fifteen Minutes Fighting. On The Somme, Oct. 26—It is yet difficult to estimate the importance of the German works in Sailly-Salliseil, because the whole ground was so completely smashed by shell fire, but from unofficial reports which have reached the French, the Germans boasted they were even more impregnable than those of Combes. The number of German dead found on the field is further evidence of the importance they attached to the position. Holding this captured sector were mixed elements of the First Bavarian Division and the Sixteenth Division. The Germans had anticipated this attack and had brought up the Second Bavarian Division in support, and yet the French were able to seize the greater part of the ground in fifteen minutes after their artillery had smashed it to pulp. There was a nasty little salient made by the German trenches in the French line south of the Somme, between the village of Bisches and the houses of La Maisonette. This it was decided to straighten out. The visibility in the afternoon south of the Somme, was much better, and the French artillery took full advantage of it. They not only completely smashed the German defenses, but also knocked out their batteries near Doingt on east bank, which endeavored to check the infantry by a heavy feu de barrage. At 4 p.m. the "blue devils" went forward and having heard that their comrades in the north had accomplished their job in fifteen minutes, they proceeded to put exactly the same time record. The Germans, aided by better light, showed considerable skill in bringing other batteries, further to the north, at the village of Bisrus, into action and proceeded to smother the captured works but only for a short time. French aeroplanes investigated the German line, found out the source of evil, and signalled back the intelligence to the heavy guns, and in a very short time the German gunners near Bisrus were silenced. These are two excellent examples of how the Somme was into the German reserves of men. In the course of the day, four of their divisions, the First and Second Bavarian and the Sixth and Eleventh Reserve, were pounded into desolation by the French artillery and then ousted from their works.

"The Fool."

(By Robert W. Service.)

"But it isn't playing the game," he said. And he slammed his books away. "The Latin and Greek we got in my head. Will do for a commoner day." "Rubbish!" I cried. "The bugle's call isn't for lads from school." "Dye think he would listen? Oh, not at all!" So I called him a fool, a fool. Now there's his dog by his empty bed. And the flute he used to play. And his favorite bat... but Dick, he's dead. Somewhere in France, they say— Dick with his rapture of song and sun, Dick of the yellow hair. Dicky whose life had but begun. Carried off out there.

Look at his prizes all in a row. Surely a list of fame? Now he's finished, with nothing to show— Does it seem a shame? Look from the window! All you see Was to be his one day. Forest and furrow, lawn and sea. And he goes and chucks it away. Throws it away to die in the dark. Somebody saw him fall. Part of him mud, part of him blood. The rest of him—not at all. And yet I'll bet he was never afraid. And he was as the best of 'em. For his hand was clenched on his broken blade. And his face was turned to the foe of the war. He said he believed And I called him a fool!... how blind was I? Oh, the curse of my grief's abrim! Will Glory of England ever die So long as we've lads like him? So long as we've fond and fearless. Who, spurning fortune and fame, Turn out with the rallying cry of their school. Intent on playing the game. A fool! Ah, no! He was more than wise. His was the proudest part. He died with the glory of faith in his eyes. And the glory of love in his heart. And though there's never a grave to tell. Not a cross to mark his fall. Nor a God! We know that he "batted well" In the last great game of all!

Marne Battle Saved America.

(The "Wall Street Journal.")
When Germany went to war it needed no military expert to see the plan of campaign upon which it pinned its faith. The German general staff had studied the campaigns of Napoleon to good purpose. But they lacked a Napoleon and seemed instead to be actuated by the spirit of Attila. Perhaps it was the irony of fate that their invasion should receive its check at the River Marne; for it was at Chalons-sur-Marne Attila the Hun met his crushing defeat, and Europe was saved. It will be years before we in America fully realize what this battle meant to us as well as to those engaged. But in the two years that have passed since the battle was fought there has been a partial clearing away of the mists that enveloped the issues of the war at first. We know more of the history of modern Europe and its politics than ever before. Events leading up to the war have been studied. Reason and judgment have begun to assert themselves over bias and racial prejudice. This is a war of ideals, and an overwhelming majority of the people now see that the very ideals we cherish were at stake at the Marne. Greater battles have since been fought, measured by numbers and length of contest. But they are merely pushing back the wave which the Marne checked and started backward. It was here that Germany lost the war. It was here that civilization was spared from the triumph of autocratic force. On one side was superior generalship and exalted courage; on the other preponderance of numbers and armament. Was it only chance that inflicted upon Germany the irremediable blow?

HIGH PRICES.

Our forebear, whose bright shades are soaring where noble anthems swell, while here on earth did little roaring about H. C. L. Of simple manners, they went plugging around the mundane scene; they had no wish to go chug-chugging, or burn up gasoline. To Mother Nature they were closer; they did not spend their brass, for canned provisions, with the grocer, but raised their garden sass. The barber seldom saw their money into his cashbox drop; when hair and whiskers got too funny, their wives would shear the crop. They went to roost at early gloaming, tired by the tolls of the day; you never saw our grandsires roaming along the Great White Way. They read no fiction, light and shallow, they sought no movie shows; they greased their boots with mutton tallow, and wore no underclothes. If they could journey back from Eden, and watch us for a spell, they'd understand, as we went speedin', our fierce H. C. L.

Your Boys and Girls.

All babies are lovely—at least most mothers think so. Their features may not be perfect, but their complexion when healthy is always beautiful, skin clear, eyes bright and dimpled with an expression of innocence and prity. Now to preserve that lovely complexion is a question often asked after it has been destroyed. Children are often confined in ill ventilated homes; this should not be so, for oxygen is an agent that nourishes the blood which forms the complexion. A home of this kind not only destroys the complexion, but it brings about numerous other bodily ills.

Expert Diagnostics.

(From the Ladies' Home Journal.)
The physician had been called in haste to see a small negro who was ill. After a brief examination the doctor announced: "This boy has eaten too much watermelon."
"Oh, doctor," expostulated the parent of the ailing one, "they ain't no such 'ting as too much watermelon. Dat niggah jus' ain't got 'nough stomach."

Everyday Etiquette.

"Hearing of a death in a friend's family, what is the proper thing for me to do?" asked Mildred?
"Cards of condolence or sympathy are sent to friends in bereavement, with the words: 'With deep sympathy' written across the top. Of course, one should, if possible call and leave cards without asking to see any one, but if this cannot be done cards are sent by post," her aunt advised.
"Much attention will be paid to buckles on the evening slippers. Blue serge combined with Georgette crepe makes a smart frock."
